MEMORIAL AT HORTON LANDING

Cross Erected to Mark Site of Acadian Exile Suitably Dedicated.

The party of tourists from the province of Quebec, organized by Le Devoir, Henri Bourassa's newspaper, to visit localities in the Maritime Provinces of special interest to the French speaking people, arrived at Grand Pre on Tuesday morning at 7 o'clock. Two beautifully equipped steel trains of the Canadian National railway accompanied the visitors, who were accompanied by Mr. F. G. J. Comeau, Passenger Traffic Agent of the D.A.R.

On arrival at Grand Pre the party repaired to the Memorial Church where addresses were given by Rev. A. D. Cormier and Dr. J. V. Landry, of Shediac, who gave a brief outline of the incidents connected with the expulsion of the Acadians. Mass was celebrated by Monsignor Richard, of Verdun, a descendant of the Acadians, which proved a very beautiful service.

Addresses of welcome were made by Mayor Chambers, President Patterson and E. W. Robinson, M.P., on behalf of the people of this section, after which the visitors spent some time wandering over the historic grounds.

The party then re-embarked and the train returned to Horton Landing, at which place an iron cross has been erected to mark the spot where the Acadians were supposed to have been embarked on the occasion of their exile. The visitors and people from the surrounding section assembled in front of the cross which was blessed by Monsignor Richard with appropriate ceremony.

Addresses were made in French and Mr. Bourassa also spoke in English. He is an exceedingly pleasing speaker and his address was greatly enjoyed. He referred to the historical significance of the memorial which had been erected in recent years, and expressed the opinion that the main fault for the expulsion lay neither with the English nor the French of this country, but rather lay at the door of the powers in Europe. He gave expression to his Nationalist principles when he said that Canada should not be drawn into the turmoil created by the selfishness of nations far away; that the spirit which should animate Canadians should be first their duty to their God, and then their duty to Canada, first, last, and always. He hoped that the spirit of concord and harmony which had existed in the Maritime Provinces for many years would never diminish, but that the two great creeds and creeds might find an even closer unity of purpose in the upbuilding of Canada as a nation, forgetting the petty strifes which individuals at times endeavor to stir up; not forgetting the past because to appreciate and map the course of the future, history must be known; but to bury the hatchet, and become a people with a single purpose—the making of a Great Canada.

Rev. R. E. Dixon was called upon and gave a fine hearing in a short, but most becoming address. While the exercises closed with the singing of "O Canada" and the "National anthem," the remaining time spent here proved to be a treat which those present greatly enjoyed. Among the visitors were many excellent singers and the various folk-songs were rendered in a manner most entertaining. The party was made up of professional men, teachers and business men and were exceptionally cordial and agreeable, and included a number of ladies.

At 11 o'clock the train proceeded towards Annapolis after hearty cheers were given for those left behind.

"THE BLIZZARD" IS TAKEN FROM TALE BY SELMA LAGERLOF, WINNER OF NOBEL PRIZE

Under the title "The Blizzard," William Fox is presenting the picture version of "The Story of a Country House" by Selma Lagerlof, winner of the Nobel prize for literature. The production comes to the Orpheum theatre Friday and Saturday of this week. Mary Johnson, known as the "Mary Pickford of Europe," has the leading role as Ingrid, the little violinist of the wandering circus. Einar Hanson portrays Gunnar Hede, the young artist who loses his mind in the terror of a stampede of reindeers during a terrific blizzard. Others in the principal roles are Pauline Brinius, Beckla Ahlander, Adolf Olchansky, and Stina Berg, all well known Swedish artists. The story tells of the love of a boy for his violin, which brought love for a girl, because she too loved her fiddle. There is a materialistic mother and an idealistic son. Then too, there are Blomgren and his wife, who entertain the village folks by their droll clownings on the green. The reindeer stampede and the blizzard are said to be among the most impressive scenes ever caught by a camera.

RAILWAYS LOSING MONEY

Sir Henry Thornton, President of the Canadian National Railways, stated at a luncheon given in his honor at Calgary last Friday that the loss on operation of the C.N.R. lines in 1924 will be from thirteen to fifteen million dollars, much of which is due to bad business in the United States where the Canadian National has a large and productive mileage.

GRAND LODGE, I.O.O.F., CLOSSES SESSIONS

Rev. G. W. Whitman, of Windsor, is the new Grand Master

The closing session of the Grand Lodge, I.O.O.F., of the Maritime Provinces was held last Thursday afternoon, and the delegates returned to their homes on Friday, much pleased with their visit to Wolfville.

At a special meeting of the Grand Lodge Finance Committee, Thursday, it was voted unanimously that the recommendation of the Home committee for an appropriation of $35,000 for an enlargement of the Home is not feasible at the present time. The meeting of the Rebekahs, which took place on Wednesday evening, had as its main business the installation of officers who were elected at an earlier meeting. There was a general exchange of appreciation for the courtesies of the local reception committee after which the Rebekah Assembly adjourned to meet again with the Grand Lodge next year.

At a special meeting of the Orpheum Lodge of Wolfville, Wednesday afternoon, twenty eight members of the first degree team of Eureka Lodge, of Springhill, exemplified dramatically the historical drama on which the Degree of Friendship is based. The principal officers of the visiting lodge were Royal Guilbert, Noble Grand, and John Urquhart, Vice Grand. Harry Slater was pianist, and his musical accompaniment added to the drill, figure construction and posing required in representing the emblematic phases. After the Degree, a vote of thanks was tendered the team and a purse of $68 was given them to help pay their travelling expenses.

The Grand Lodge met at 9:30 Thursday morning and conducted routine work until 11 o'clock, after which the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:
Grand Master—Rev. G. W. Whitman, Windsor.
Deputy Grand Master—A. C. Barnaby, Bridgewater.
Grand Warden—M. L. Robinson, St. Stephen, N. B.
Grand Secretary—J. J. McKinnon, Charlottetown.
Grand Treasurer—J. M. Donovan, Halifax.
Grand Representative, 1924-1925—A. A. Gunn, Stellarton.
Trustee of Home, 1925-1929—H. R. Brown.

The Lodge voted unanimously to hold their next convention at St. John, N. B. Resolutions of courtesy expressing thanks to the Mayor and Council of Wolfville for their welcome, and to the visiting officers of the jurisdiction, were passed.

At the afternoon session the officers elected at the morning session were installed, after which the Lodge adjourned until their next meeting in 1925. In the evening a reception and dance was held in Harris' hall for the benefit of the visiting Odd Fellows.

WOLFVILLE LOSES TO LIVERPOOL

The Wolfville baseball team journeyed to Liverpool this week for the second game in the play-off series yesterday and were again defeated, the score being 15 to 4. The locals evidently did not show the form they did in the game last week. They filled the bases in the first inning but were unable to score. Munro was not in his usual condition and after Liverpool had secured five hits in the first inning he was removed and Howatt pitched the remainder of the game. Liverpool scored eight runs in this inning. Wolfville failed to score until the fifth when they made two runs. In Liverpool's half of the same inning they scored four and three more in the seventh. Wolfville did not score again until the ninth. The longest hit of the game was made by Colin Munro, when he made a home run.

Liverpool: A. Winters, 3b; Feener, lf; Smith, rf; Joudrey, p; Thornburn, 1b; Al. Winters, c; Boyd, 2b; Chandler, ss; Mulhall, cf.

BRILLIANT TENNIS

Played by Local Club Members in Nova Scotia Tournament

The rainy weather has interfered considerably with the Nova Scotia Tournament at Halifax. The players were forced to rest on Thursday and Friday on account of the rain but the contests were continued on Saturday. The representatives from Wolfville, as usual, have made a splendid showing and it is expected that some will reach the semi-finals at least. Dr. Leslie Eaton and Murray Beardsley have distinguished themselves in a number of hard fought matches.

The results of the contests on Saturday, in which the Wolfville players figured, were as follows:
Miss D. Holmes lost to Mrs. J. W. Allen, South End, 2-6, 6-0, 4-6.
Miss D. Holmes and Miss K. McLean defeated Miss B. Wickwire and Miss Fay, Kentville, 6-0, 6-2.

A. Chute defeated A. McLeod, North Sydney, 6-1, 8-6.
A. Chute won by default from Dr. Leslie Eaton, South End, 6-0, 6-0, 4-6.
Dr. deWitt defeated G. Neary, Kentville, 6-3, 6-3.

Dr. L. Eaton and M. Beardsley defeated E. Jubien and A. Thompson, N. Sydney, 6-1, 4-6, 6-3.

Dr. L. Eaton and Mrs. F. Walker defeated J. Jones and Miss G. Creighton, George's, 6-2, 6-2.

Dr. deWitt and Miss K. McLean defeated Dr. Stultz and Mrs. A. Smith, Waegwoltic, 8-6, 6-4.

Dr. deWitt and A. Chute lost to J. LeMoine and R. Webster, Amherst, 6-2, 0-6, 1-6.

Rain again interfered with the tournament on Monday but playing was resumed on Tuesday, the local players scoring as follows:
Dr. deWitt defeated H. Edwards, Waegwoltic, 6-4, 7-5, 8-6.

Dr. L. Eaton and M. Beardsley defeated Professors Dawson and Mercer, South End, 4-6, 7-5, 8-6.

Miss K. McLean lost to Mrs. H. G. Grant, South End, 4-6, 6-4, 3-6.

The greatest surprise of the day was the defeat of Professors Dawson and Mercer by Dr. L. Eaton and Mr. M. Beardsley in two out of three hard fought sets. Dawson and Mercer, Halifax County champions, were looked upon as one of the strongest combinations in the tourney. The Wolfville stars played fine combination tennis and their driving was a big feature of the day's play.

The victory of J. C. Edwards, South End, yesterday over his older opponent, Dr. L. Eaton, Wolfville, in three strenuous sets contributed the best tennis to date of the Nova Scotia tournament. Dr. Eaton had the advantage games and the advantage point on three occasions, losing out after a brilliant struggle. The sets were 3-6, 6-2, 8-6.

M. Beardsley and Miss D. Holmes, Wolfville, in the mixed doubles, in defeating A. C. Wiswell and Mrs. Campbell, South End, created considerable added interest in the mixed doubles event, playing splendid tennis and scoring frequently in highly efficient teamwork.

The Wolfville players scored as follows yesterday:
M. Beardsley lost to M. Roper, Waegwoltic, 6-4, 2-6, 2-6.
Dr. L. Eaton lost to J. C. Edwards, South End, 6-2, 2-6, 6-8.

Dr. L. Eaton and M. Beardsley defeated G. Gass and B. Beck, New Glasgow, 6-2, 6-4.
Miss D. Holmes and Miss K. McLean won by default from Mrs. Young and Mrs. J. Crowe, Stewiacke.

M. Beardsley and Miss Holmes defeated H. D. Stevens and Miss Todd, South End, 6-2, 6-3.
Dr. deWitt and Miss McLean lost to A. S. Martin and Mrs. G. Grant, South End, 0-6, 2-6.

Dr. L. Eaton and Mrs. Walker defeated L. G. Fraser and Mrs. Meares, Waegwoltic, 6-0, 6-3.
M. Beardsley and Miss Holmes defeated A. C. Wiswell and Mrs. Campbell, South End, 6-2, 6-4.

Dr. Eaton and Mrs. Walker defeated O'Brien and Miss Holder, St. John's, 6-0.

Mr. and Mrs. James Eye and son Claud, of Melanson, accompanied by Mrs. Fred Eye, of Wolfville, motored to Chester over the week end. They left Melanson at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon and reached Halifax about six, enjoying the ride immensely, and stopping at intervals to pick blueberries. After a lunch at Halifax at the home of Mr. Eye's cousin, they proceeded to Chester, greatly enjoying the ride over the St. Margarets Bay road and the wonderful sunset. They spent the night at Chester with relatives of Mr. Eye and Sunday morning took in the sights around town. Mr. Eye was much interested in the yachts which were at Chester for the races. They left for home about 2:30, returning by way of Halifax.

SUNDAY'S VISITORS

Insurance Party Makes Brief Stay at Grand Pre and Wolfville

Members of the agency branch of the Bankers' Life Insurance Co., of Des Moines, Iowa, who had been attending the annual convention or 'school' at Montreal paid a visit to the valley on Sunday last. The party numbered about a hundred, fully half of whom were ladies. These special representatives from a convention numbering about 425 in all were the recipients of special favor from their company because of exceptional good work done. They are the "gold medalists" of the company and each had written from $400,000 to $600,000 of business during the year.

Leaving Halifax by special train at 2:30 a.m., the party made a brief stop at Windsor and arrived at Grand Pre at 11:30. They were in charge of Kenneth L. Chubbman, travelling passenger agent, T. Smith, William Curran and Laurie Ellis, superintendent of the D.A.R., and were provided with a fine train made up of C.N.R. coaches and diners.

On arrival at Grand Pre the visitors were welcomed by local representatives and escorted to the Memorial Chapel where Mayor Chambers, of Wolfville, welcomed them in a brief address. This was graciously acknowledged in fitting words by Mr. Nollan, the Vice President of the company, who called upon a member of the party, Mr. Miller, to take charge of the exercises. This gentleman referred to their visit on Sunday and the fact that some had been kept away from church in order to give them a welcome and suggested a short service in keeping with the day.

This included the twenty-third Psalm and the Lord's Prayer in which all present were called upon to join, and a pleasing address appropriate to the occasion.

Mr. George Parker, caretaker of the Memorial Church, also gave a brief address to the visitors after which the tourists visited and admired the park. Arrangements had been made for motor drives but these were cancelled because of the threatening condition of the weather. A number of cars, however, were on hand and those wishing to visit the surrounding sections were given an opportunity to do so.

The visitors remained at Grand Pre until 3 o'clock when the train brought them on to Wolfville, where a stay of nearly two hours was made.

Dr. Patterson met the party on arrival and invited them to visit the educational institutions, which invitation they very gladly accepted.

The visitors walked about town and were driven to different points of interest in and about the town. The sun shone and the out-doors presented a very attractive appearance which the strangers greatly enjoyed.

At 5 o'clock the special proceeded to Kentville where some time was spent. The party left again for Yarmouth in the late evening.

N. S. FRUIT CROP ESTIMATED 65 TO 70 PER CENT OF LAST YEAR

The Department of Agriculture (fruit branch) report for August estimates the total apple production in the various provinces in Canada for 1924 as follows:

Nova Scotia, barrels, 1,274,744
New Brunswick, barrels, 93,844
Quebec, barrels, 57,876
Ontario, barrels, 104,320
British Columbia, boxes, 240,000

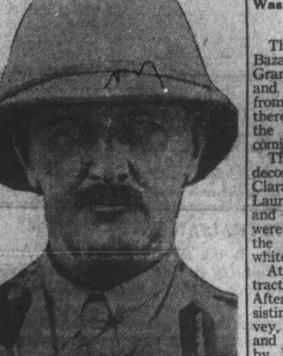

NOVA SCOTIA
The weather has been dry the greater part of the month, resulting in a heavy drop reducing the estimated crop to 65 to 70 per cent. of last year. This, however, may show a material change for better or worse, depending on weather conditions for the next few weeks. If sufficient rain falls during August, the packed crop may be considerably higher than present conditions indicate. Comparatively little injury is reported from insect pests, but notwithstanding the dry weather, scab is developing even in some of the well-sprayed orchards. Control measures have been successful for the most part with the Green Apple Bug. Present conditions indicate crops compared with last year's as follows: Gravensteins, 125 per cent.; Transparents, Crimson Beauties, Duchesses, Dudleys, and Nonpareils, 100 per cent.; Ben avon, 75 per cent.; Greenings, Wageners, and Spies, 70 per cent.; Ribstones, Kings, Golden Russets, and Ganos, 60 per cent.; Fallwaters, 25 per cent.; Starks and Baldwins, 20 per cent.

POLITICAL PICNIC

Starr's Point the Scene of Interesting Gathering on Wednesday

The political picnic under the auspices of the Liberal-Conservative Association of King's County, which was held on Wednesday at Starr's Point proved a success in every particular. The day was an ideal one and throngs attended to participate. These came by auto, team, and on foot and it was estimated that the assemblage numbered four thousand persons.

The picnic was held on the property of Mr. Percy Starr in the beautiful grove overlooking Minas Basin, which is certainly one of the beauty spots of the county. A choice program of music was furnished by the Canning band. Selections were also given by the Clarke-Cross quartette. Refreshments were provided by the members of the Port Williams Women's Institute and by the ladies of the United Baptist and Anglican churches, of Canning.

The morning was devoted to sports and amusements and in the afternoon a splendid array of speakers discussed the political conditions of the day. All the speakers were given an excellent hearing and the various points made met with generous and hearty applause.

Councillor G. L. Bishop, of Greenwich, president of the Association, occupied the chair and introduced the speakers. These included Messrs. A. L. Davidson, of Middleton; R. T. Caldwell, of Kenville; Dr. O. B. Keddy, of Windsor, president of the Hants County Liberal-Conservative Association; Dr. Rehlfuss, of Lunenburg; G. C. Nowlan, of Wolfville; W. L. Hall, provincial leader of the Liberal-Conservative party; and A. deWitt Foster, the former founder, and for some time, manager of the Castle Girls school, and was greatly beloved. Her husband died in 1908.

Mrs. Churchill has been described as great in faith, constant in prayer, abundant in labors, generous in gifts, and unreserved in her devotion to India. She was a daughter of William Faulkner, of Truro, and was born at Lower Stewies. She was a graduate of the Normal School, and taught in the high schools before going to India.

Mrs. Churchill was one of the really historic missionary figures of the Baptist Church in Canada, and a volume entitled "The Life and Letters of Mrs. George Churchill," and covering the period from 1871 to 1916, written by Mrs. Grace McLeod Rogers, of Amherst, has had a wide circulation.

She has, since her return from India, made her home with her daughter, Bessie (Mrs. Stillwell), in Toronto. Mrs. Stillwell's husband being Secretary of Missions of the Baptist Church in Canada.

Throughout the entire day nothing happened to mar the enjoyment of the occasion and those who had charge of the affair are to be congratulated on the success of their efforts.

DEATH OF PIONEER MISSIONARY

Word has been received of the death in Toronto, after ten days' illness, of a veteran missionary of the Baptists, Mrs. George Churchill, one of the pioneer missionary workers in India, where she spent about 45 years among the people of Bobble, or as she recently expressed it, "fifty years with five short furloughs." She sailed in company with her husband for Burmah in 1873, and to Coocoda in 1875. She was the founder, and for some time, manager of the Castle Girls school, and was greatly beloved. Her husband died in 1908.

WARD ELECTION FOR GASPAREAU

In consequence of the resignation of Councillor J. B. Gertridge for Ward 7, Gaspereau, an election is being held in that ward for a successor. Councillor Gertridge has accepted the position offered him as County Assessor at a salary of $2,000 with an allowance for expenses, and has entered upon his work.

The election date is set for Tuesday, Sept. 2nd, and a keen contest is expected. Mr. Frank Gertridge, of Gaspereau, has been requested by a large number of the electors to be a candidate and has accepted. A large number of citizens of the Ward have also urged Mr. L. W. Long to offer as a candidate and he also has accepted.

It is expected that between the present and election day the electors of Ward 7 will be fully instructed in the Municipal conditions and prospects of the county.

SEWING CIRCLE GOSSIP

There was some discussion at the Sewing Circle this week about the beverages to be served at the Tennis Club Bazaar. The wife of the Radio Operator said she had no objection to the list of these being as long as her arm, but as for herself and her husband there was nothing they liked so well as LUXOR COFFEE, which they drink three times a day and as many times oftener as they can get it.

THE CANADIAN DOLLAR AT PAR

Large Transfer of Surplus Funds From New York to Montreal

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—Canadian exchange touched par for the first time this year. The demand for Canadian dollars is said in banking circles to be due, in large measure, to the transfer of surplus funds from New York to Montreal and other Canadian cities for temporary employment there because of the higher interest rates across the border. Heavy purchases of high grade Canadian securities by United States investors also held a contributing factor. Wall Street also hears unconfirmed reports that persons engaged in illicit liquor traffic have been active purchasers of Canadian dollars. The year's low in Montreal exchange was established on March 11, when the Canadian dollar was at a discount of 3 1-2 cents in the local market.

TALK IS NOT REALLY CHEAP

Parliament has become a very talkative body. The average member of the Commons does not believe that so far as he is concerned—actions speak louder than words.

Here is how this is arrived at. The House of Commons Hansard for the session has 5,050 pages. Set solid it contains about 960 words to a page, which means about 4,850,000 words.

But these figures, which account for 4,850,000 words, make no allowance for the words spoken in committees.

Senator McCoig has suggested that radio be substituted for Hansard. The proposal will not be popular among the members, for among other things it would do away with that veritable mine of information in the form of old speeches contained in Hansard, which are a never-failing inspiration, especially to those who are not prolific in ideas.

Here and There

A remarkable report comes from Brockville, Ont. Harry Church, a farmer residing five miles north of that town, is the owner of a Holstein cow which has just given birth to three calves. All are alive and thriving.

On July 11, Her Majesty the Queen of Spain and her two daughters visited the Canadian Pacific Railway's pavilion at the British Empire Exhibition. Her Majesty evinced deep interest in all she saw and declared the exhibit to be "perfectly lovely."

Although the present season of ocean travel has reached the period usually associated with a falling off in the number of passengers, steamship companies report that little decrease is apparent this year and that the total volume of passenger traffic in 1924 will probably be the largest of any year since the war.

World production of silver for the first half of 1924 is 117,650,000 ounces, as against 118,250,000 ounces in the first six months of 1923. Canada accounted for a production of 10,800,000 ounces in 1924, as against 10,500,000 ounces in the first half of 1923, being the third producer after Mexico and the United States, both of which showed a decline.

Saskatchewan's output of creamery butter in June amounted to 1,767,056 pounds, as compared with 1,746,000 pounds in June, 1923, an increase of 41,056 pounds or 2.4 per cent. From January to June, 1924, the province has produced 5,109,090 pounds of butter, as against 4,423,014 pounds in the same period in 1923, an increase of 686,076 pounds, or 15.5 per cent.

Among the tributes to the late Sir Edmund Ouler, of the Canadian Pacific Railway's directorate, was one from C. R. Hosmer, for many years a fellow-director. It was addressed to Vice-President Grant Hall and read as follows: "He was the last living of the great men who organized our great railway."

The late Sir Edmund became a director of the Canadian Pacific Railway in 1885, the year of the completion of the transcontinental line.

A most interesting and attractive volume entitled "Here and There in Montreal" has just been published by the Musson Book Co. of Toronto. The book is well illustrated with maps and pictures in color and brings out many noteworthy facts, such as that the city's total population is 900,000, that two-thirds of this number are French-Canadians and that Montreal is the second port of importance in North America. The author is Charles W. Stokes, Asst. Gen. Publicity Agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

The first annual Pow Wow of the Trail Riders of the Canadian Rockies, held at Yoho Camp, was a great success. Over 200 internationally known writers, artists, etc., rode in to gather round the sacred fire in the Sun Dance Lodge. Charles D. Walcott, secretary of the Smithsonian Institute of Washington, D.C., honorary president of the Trail Riders, addressed the gathering, a poem written specially for the occasion by Bliss Carman was read and Chiefs Walk-in-the-Road and Buffalo Child Long Lance performed an Indian dance.

THE GOLDEN ROAD

Chicago Tribune: Though it is natural for each of us to want as much as any one else has, the way to more for each of us is the way to more for all of us; that is, to increased production of wealth. Measures of forced equalization which check production may bring us nearer to equality, but it will be an equality on a much lower plane than we can all attain if the processes of production are stimulated and the store of total wealth enlarged. We must constantly work for equity in the reward of all human effort. But equality is not equity, nor can it sustain progress. A fair and therefore a wide distribution of wealth is an ideal we ought all to strive to bring about. But the production of wealth is of far greater importance to progress and the welfare of the mass of mankind than any re-arrangement of its distribution. It is in denying or ignoring this basic truth that the radical is in effect the worst of reactionaries.

It is estimated that Canada this year will grow more than a tenth of the world's wheat crop. As the Dominion has only a two-hundredth part of the world's population, its exportable surplus should be large and profitable.

RAMBLING THROUGH NOVA SCOTIA BY TRAIN

(Emma Gilmore Snow.)
A book recently written about Acadia only tells one about half the beauty of that wonderful country, so near to us, and so little explored by the American people.

It always seems strange to me why Americans prefer Europe, when many go over every year that know absolutely nothing about their own country.

Now take the trip alone from Quebec to Charlottetown or Halifax, through the straits of Northumberland, the scenery of which is unsurpassed. The little towns we pass resting on the slopes of the hills, looking down into the valleys below, dotted here and there with fox farms, are a very pretty and unusual sight.

It is amazing to think of the rivers and lakes in that region, redolent with the blossoms from the apple trees in May, when the valleys are white with bloom. But let me tell you of our correspondent's trip, which will give one an idea of her experiences while on her vacation, in her own words.

"We left Boston on the steamer 'Prince George'. A more foggy, disagreeable day could never be imagined. As we passed down that beautiful Boston harbor, out through the narrow channel to the sea, the fog grew thicker; the noise of a fog horn over our heads utterly precluded sleep. If you have ever slept under a fog horn all night, you can readily picture the situation.

After wandering around without seeing many, we retired to our stateroom, sad, lonesome, and heartily wishing we had taken a train to St. John. The gloom was distracting and coupled with the noise of a fog horn over our heads utterly precluded sleep. If you have ever slept under a fog horn all night, you can readily picture the situation. From a doze we were suddenly awakened by the sound of another kind of a horn which sounded very close and upon peering from the little window, what was our surprise to see a light-house. The effect was startling, to say the least. Upon inquiry we found we were approaching Yarmouth. Upon landing the boy told us we were to go through the customs. After taking us to the officer, who upon looking into the trunk said, 'Madam, are these second hand clothes?' we indignantly replied, 'No, of course not, they are ours.' He smiled, put a mark on, and said 'Next!'

We remarked how many thrifty boys were there, so early in the morning, selling postal cards, and we nearly cleaned them out. The roads around Yarmouth were good. The scenery is very pretty, and the marshlands all over Nova Scotia lends an attractiveness not found in any other part of the world, which with the tides, are most unique.

Yarmouth is more or less of a fishing village; the men love their native shores, and many of them have never been to Halifax.

All over Nova Scotia are many lakes and rivers, which appear unexpectedly. We also see many toy lighthouses which seem to be far away from the water when the tide is out, yet when the tide is in and a boat passes one of these toy lights, the effect is startling, as we saw it on the river at Canning.

One's train glides along all too swiftly through the woodland towards Weymouth, and we see the little villages, each with its church spire showing through the trees, quite unspoiled places are they, caring little for the outside world except when an occasional newspaper finds its way there and creates a little excitement.

We reach Digby with its many charms. The Gut, where the steamer glides through, the writer remembers in a former visit years before, when a small English steamer, the 'Prince Rupert', made a daily run from St. John, and at the landing was most picturesque as it seemed to tally with all the surroundings. This trip through the Gut is very attractive if one be so fortunate as to make the voyage on one of the seldom fogless days on this Bay of Fundy.

We have to cross the river to get to Bear River, a very important place, and also connected with the writer's former visit as a place where large, luscious, black cherries tied to a stick were sold by small boys—about all one could eat for the sum of five cents.

This was once a great shipbuilding place. A model Government orchard was there. We catch a fleeting glimpse of Digby as we cross the river, and soon come to Annapolis Royal, where we dawdle along to the old fort which was built before Jamestown was settled. It was originally called Fort Royal and is the entrance to Annapolis Valley, far famed for its apples, and is a wonderful farming country.

Here we can still see the old traditions, and the Indians and French fighting for their rights. As the sun gets higher we pass the small stations. The conductor calls out 'Paradise; Paradise'. 'You bet bet get off, you may never get here again'. We smile as we look out, only to see a small station and a young woman holding a babe in her arms, looking wistfully at the train. Is it because she wishes she were going also?

As we approach Kentville, a large town, we decide to stop awhile and explore. We wonder how we can reach a small place, about four miles out, noted for apples. After a short interview with the postmaster we learn that (for a consideration) the R.F.D. man doubtless could be induced to take on a passenger. Upon finding him, we find that he would readily take us if we did not mind a long ride in a small buggy, while he attended to the mail. The delighted passengers heartily agree, and that drive of 20 miles over to the North Mt. was the greatest experience in all our trip; and later we land about four miles from Kentville for the sum of fifty cents, and talking of apple blossoms, well here are eighty acres.

As we look down the hill and see the Cornwallis river sliding along like a thread of silver in the sun, with the old gnarled roots of trees hanging on the edge. But the crowning point was the hay wagon down on the meadow on the banks of the stream; a little cooing and we were installed as drivers of a pair of horses and trampler, and when we drive proudly into the barn without hitting any sides, we feel we have accomplished quite a feat. This place is a small village, a few houses, a church, and Postoffice in the kitchen of a house. But nearby is Kentville, a busy town, and from there one can take many trips to the surrounding country.

But on to Wolfville, as it is here our interest lies. Here is the long village street. Here we find a small neat hotel called Kent Lodge, and find it was named after the Duke of Kent who once visited at this house many years ago, when it was the home of one of the first families. There is a college here, dear to the Acadians, up on the hill, with also a view higher up, of the Gaspareaux Valley.

It seemed a desecration here to take an auto for a visit to Grand Pre and Evangeline's Land. So much to the chagrin of the stable man, a buggy answered our purpose much better. One would think this spot a curiosity spot, but no, a more peaceful, quiet place it would be hard to find. On every side we can almost see the Acadians, who were driven from their homes and made famous by Longfellow's poem of 'Evangeline'. How he could ever have written that poem without ever having seen the place is a marvel. Over the Gaspareaux river still stands one of the almost forgotten covered bridges. The Gaspareaux is a treacherous stream, but when the tide is out one could sit on the bank and coast to the bottom, 40 or 50 feet, but what use? How to get back? That is the question. Here also are the dykes, which stretch out for miles, and in bygone times furnished hay for many horses.

Here also is the old church, built 700 years ago, and in the churchyard ministers who lived in the vicinity, names familiar to our family.

Looking across we see 'Blomidon', standing sentinel for all of the bay'. Across the Basin of Minas runs the little steamer, 'Prince Albert' to Kingsport, our next objective point. This place is out of the way for the usual sight seeker, consequently it was the place we wished to see; a more picturesque place would be hard to find.

Kingsport is a peaceful village up on the bluff on Minas Basin—and the drive! One drive to Blomidon is beautiful as we cross the Peneaux river another of those rivers that look like marshland until the tide comes in. Some very fine orchards are here. Blomidon is the home of Glooscap, the famous Indian Chief. We can imagine we see his huge wigwam, where he lived with his dogs. Minas was his beaver pond. Spencer's Island was his overturned kettle. He taught the Indians to hunt and fish. It is still believed he will return. Here we hear an old legend.

Split Rock
A weird tale comes home to me
Of a country far and wide,
Where a rock was split by the sea
Near the Bay of Fundy's side.

The fishermen bold steer clear of the place
When out on the bay so calm
There is no light to show its face
When the day is done. There's the harm.
On that bay so wild

This tale oft was told
A Clipper was wrecked. In the hold
A babe was born. Dark and cold
Was the wreck on the shore.

Under the sunlit sky in the morn
A man was seen on the sand:
His hair was wild, his clothes were torn;
Lashed on a slab, a babe, newly born:
A woman lying near. In the dawn
Looking ghastly, white as a swan.
They picked her up gently;
Babe alive, well and healthy
It was told when grown,
How its mother had flown
Up to Heaven. While the old man
(Who sits by the fire every day,
Was the man on the Clipper
(He was mate to the Skipper)
Father of this fisherman.

He was all that was left,
All the others had died
Near that great cleft
Of rock. That was split from the side.

We had (for a consideration) hired a man to take a buggy and take us over the North Mt. on the Bay of Fundy.
It is hard to hire a horse, as most of the farmers "think more of their horses than they do of their wives"

It was three in a narrow buggy: we ride up—up; and down—down: to a small place with few houses; when we emerge from that buggy, cramped and sore—well, we forgot it! It is a place few have ever seen. It has the inevitable wharf, and we wanted to go out on the water. The fishermen said it was too rough for a sail, so we had to feast on the scenery. We also met some of the people; that was more interesting.
It looks only a short way to Split Rock;
but on a stormy day it is impossible to even go on the bay. It was wonderful, and too soon we are in that buggy, (which seems to be native here), ready to go back to Kingsport.

A Legend of Glooscap.
On a promontory bold,
A legend oft was told
Of Glooscap, an old Indian Chief,
On Blomidon, cold,
Lived he, with dogs, till old,
In a huge wigwam, famed beyond belief.

The Dam was at Cape Split,
From the Mt. it was ripped;
Spencer's Island was his kettle of stone;
Two rocks were called his dogs.
(Name expressive of the Logs)
All connected with the legend, that alone.

Then came a treacherous guest,
White man, who came in quest
Of gold and amethyst, to make his pile.
Glooscap was much displeased,
Turned dogs to stone, released
The kettle. Left the country for awhile.

Back we go to Kingsport, that place of red sand, so attractive and alluring, with the long wharf, seen in almost all these places on account of the tide.
We embark on a small steamer, the 'Prince Albert', which plies between Wolfville and Parrboro every day in the year, weather permitting. The queer arrangement of fares is, 25 cents for a round trip, but $1.00 if you stop over.

If one happens to pass the Amethyst rocks when the sun is shining on them, one is well repaid for the trip alone.

Dr. Grant was summoned and all that was possible was done for the unfortunate man. Mrs. John Spruce kindly offered her home and care but it was decided to remove him to Westwood Hospital, where he died at noon on Saturday. It is supposed that he was stricken with paralysis some time on Sunday that day. He was a native of Hall's Harbor, where he is survived by his mother and several brothers and sisters.

SELF-SACRIFICE IS THEME OF "THE STRANGER"

"You don't look guilty. Are you?" "Do you realize that you are going to hang?"

Silence after these words would mean nothing but a confession of guilt. But The Stranger in the Paramount picture by that name, knowing that the happiness of two young people whom he loves and the career of a third depends upon his failure to defend himself, remains as he had all through the nerve-racking trial without a word to say in his own behalf.

It's a gripping situation—one that you can't fully appreciate until you have seen the picture, produced for Paramount by Joseph Henabery from the story, "The First and the Last", by John Galsworthy.

Betty Compson, Richard Dix, Lewis Stone, and Tully Marshall are the featured players. At the Orpheum next Wednesday and Thursday.

Blue Bird Tea better than Premier King, in an address at the ham, Ont., last Saturday, moral statement that there will be no election this year.

Mr. Kitto, of the National Bureau of Intelligence, called making a tour of the Valley at the Acadian office on Tuesday.

Paul G. Webster, Eyeing the late has taken over the practice of J. F. Herbin. Inform Herbin or had at the office at Wolfville, 43-31 by telephoning 20 at Wolfville.

The professional baseball championship of Nova Scotia was won by the Yarmouth team yesterday when they defeated the Kentville team in two games played at Kentville. Last Friday the same was played two games at Yarmouth, home team winning both.

Rev. G. V. Miller, formerly minister of the Presbyterian church here, who has been spending a brief vacation at Grand Pre during the past week, occupied the pulpit of the Old Church at that place last Sunday afternoon, and was heard gladly by the congregation.

The tea habit in this country is one of the best habits we have. It's a habit that is both healthy and pleasurable. It is not an expensive habit either. A pound of MORSE'S SELECTED ORANGE PEKOE you can make cups of the most delicious tea that you ever tasted.

A Missionary Aid Society was re-organized at Avonport, at the home of Mrs. Percy B. Reid, the officers of the year being appointed as follows: President—Mrs. Ashley Cox; Vice-President—Mrs. E. B. Reid; Treasurer—Mrs. George Huntley; Secretary—Mrs. M. E. Coldwell. A very pleasant evening was spent in social converse. Refreshments were served.

At a meeting of the ratepayers of the town of Berwick, held last week, the Town Council was authorized to borrow a sum not exceeding $6,000 for the purpose of purchasing a lot of land for erecting Town Hall and equipment. Authorization was also given for the borrowing of a like sum to provide for the purchase of land and erection of a public school house.

The first apples in carload shipments, of the 1924 crop, were shipped from Berwick station last week by Mr. S. Chute. These included five carloads of the early Crimson Beauty variety, which Mr. Chute has an abundant crop. Three cars of this fruit were shipped on Wednesday, two being consigned to Sydney, C. B. and one to Hamilton, N. B. Two more cars went forward Saturday, one to St. John, N. B., and another for Newfoundland.—Berwick Register.

The relinquishment of the Liberal leadership in the House of Lords by Mount Gray of Falloon, on account of ill health, it may be assumed, virtually marks the end of his active public career. Lord Gray's name will be missed by his countrymen as one of the foremost statesmen of his day. His services to Britain as the great Foreign Minister who strove to maintain peace, and when his efforts failed, conducted the war diplomacy with masterly skill entitle him to a high place in his country's esteem.

Due to favorable weather in the West there is now every prospect that the estimate of the wheat crop issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, namely, 282,000,000 bushels, will be exceeded. Estimates in Winnipeg place the total at about 300,000,000 bushels, which of course will be much below the huge crop of last year, yet with possibly two exceptions the largest in the history of the country. And it is to be remembered that the West more and more is going in for mixed farming, and the returns from other branches of agriculture will swell the total.

Lieut. Colonel E. W. MacDonald, D. M.C., of Halifax, son of Rev. Mrs. J. H. MacDonald, Wolfville, has been appointed Inspector of penitentiaries by the Civil Service Commission. Colonel MacDonald was formerly commissioner of Provincial Police in Nova Scotia and organized and directed that force during the industrial unrest in Cape Breton. He received a commission in September, 1914, and while in France received a distinguished service order with two bars and a military cross. He was mentioned three times in despatches.

Coming Events

Notices under this heading are inserted at 10 cents a line. Each repeat, 5 cent a line; minimum charge, 30 cents. Contract rates on application.

Mr. Ralph A. Harris, A.A.G.O., will give an organ recital in the Baptist church, Upper Canada, on Sunday evening, Aug. 24th, at 8 p.m. Mr. Harris is director of the St. Pauls Episcopal choir, Brooklyn. This choir of 35 male voices is one of the most efficient choirs of Greater New York. Those who have heard Mr. Harris render a recital will know that a treat of unusual merit will be enjoyed. Beside the rare talent of Mr. Harris the program will have other features of exceptional quality. Mrs. Ralph Eaton, of Kentville, Mrs. Bowser, of Sheffield Mills, and others will enrich the program. The proceeds will be wholly devoted to the organ fund.

ANOTHER ROBBERY

On Sunday night last the store of J. D. Harris was entered and a considerable quantity of goods stolen. Considerable damage was done to the building through the rear door on the west side of the building through which ice for the refrigerator is taken in. The door had been pried and the staples drawn. When the store was opened on Monday morning the appearance indicated that a robbery had been committed, goods being disarranged and burnt matches scattered over the shelves. It is difficult to estimate the loss as yet but it is known that a large amount of cigarettes, candies, etc., were taken. The cash-register, which contained considerable money was untouched. There has been considerable thieving of late and a determined effort should be made to detect and punish the offenders.

BAPTISTS, ATTENTION!

During Convention week Rev. D. E. Hatt, Manager of the Baptist Book Room, Toronto, will have in the Baptist Sunday School Room, Wolfville, a very large display of samples of Religious Books and Church and Sunday School Supplies. This will be an unusually good opportunity for the people in general and Church and Sunday School Workers in particular, to examine the samples and make selections. A large number of books suitable for Sunday School Libraries will be shown. A cordial invitation is extended to all interested in any part of the day or evening during Convention Week.

NEAR DROWNING ACCIDENT

Gordon, the little eight years old son of Mr. William Lynch, of this town, had a very narrow escape from drowning on Monday afternoon. The little fellow was playing around the wharves at high water and in some way managed to fall over without being seen. Boys on the other wharf saw the object in the water and calling attention to it Mr. Fred Jessup went to the rescue and succeeded in saving the child in an almost drowned condition. The usual means of resuscitation were taken and Dr. Elliott was summoned, with the result that the little fellow was soon none the worse for his experience.

A few minutes later, Miss Sanford, who was watching them from a window, exclaimed that a flash of lightning had enveloped the box. On examination the pullets were found huddled together in a sitting posture, with life extinct. This is a warning to keep away from trees and wire fences during a thunder storm. Launder dainty things twice as often, this way. It's not necessary to keep your prettiest things folded and laid away. Wear them—often. Launder them just as often as necessary. But do it this way! Use PALMOLIVE PRINCESS SOAP FLAKES—and see fragile crepes, silks, laces, come from laundering absolutely unharmed. Colors brightened and freshened, if anything. The great foam of suds contains nothing to hurt the daintiest fabric, the most delicate coloring. It dissolves the dirt, however, most thoroughly—and washes it away. These snowy, crinkly flakes contain nothing but pure soap. So they go farther, cleanse more efficiently. That makes it economical to use them in the washing machine, for all laundering, and for every general household purpose. If only to try, get some today of your dealer. He has them—in handy one-pound packages. THE PALMOLIVE COMPANY OF CANADA, Limited Toronto. PRINCESS SOAP FLAKES Made in Canada. For finest silks, or coarsest woolsens.

Apples Trees and the British Preference. We have bought the total output for the Annapolis Valley of Brson Brothers' Nurseries of Ontario, which are selling at moderate prices. This stock has been giving great satisfaction the past few years. The British Preference was defeated by six votes in the British House of Commons, 272 votes for, 278 votes against. Best opinions are that this preference will be granted within a few years, and growers having trees then coming in bearing will be in a position to take advantage of same. We strongly recommend growers planting the Winesap for a well colored, long-keeping dessert apple, highly appreciated on the British markets. For prices and varieties apply Herbert Oyer Kentville, N. A SECRET OF HAPPINESS

"If you don't care for the things you can't obtain you will be fairly happy." On the surface it is not an inspiring message. Not to care for the things we can't obtain is to resign, give up, to be supine. And when we quit in life's struggle we pay a dear price, indeed, for our meagre mite of happiness. Most of us, perhaps, would rather keep on fighting. There is joy in the fight; joy at least to know that there is at least fight in us. Let us reverse the formula. "If you care enough for the things you have obtained, you will be extremely happy." The humble farmer on his little farm—if he loves that farm—may be happy beyond compare. If he loves it well, he will till it well, intelligently, thoroughly, and it will yield him a rich store. The widowed mother, in the little cottage, has her children, and if she loves them well they will be her life. The clerk at the desk, if he loves his work, will be happy in it. Or the motorman, in his cab of steel, may find in the easy response of the throbbing motors and his rolling palace, a sense of responsibility for the passing multitude that will bring him pride and joy. To be truly happy in our lot we need not be contented. Indeed, happiness and contentment, while we keep moving on life's highway, are not to be reconciled. If we love the work we do we shall be thrilled not alone to do it well, but to do it better. Far away fields are always green to too many of us. Only after many fruitless pilgrimages is the simple truth borne home to us, that if the field at our door is not attractive and verdant it is because we do not water its shrubs and grasses. If we love our fields we will tend them. And, more important, if we tend them we will come to love them. And this to them in whom ambition burns. Only by the degree by which you prove yourself true to the modest task of today can you fit yourself for, or inspire others to entrust you with, greater duties tomorrow. Said Carlyle: "Here in this poor, miserable, hampered despicable Actual, wherein thou even now standest, here or nowhere is thy ideal; work it out therefrom, and working, believe, live, be free." And be happy. FOSSIL TREES PROVE CANADA CLIMATE MILD TORONTO, Aug. 9.—Nearly 200 species of fossil plants and animals unearthed near here show that between the great ice ages Toronto had a climate like Pennsylvania. Dr. A. P. Coleman of Toronto University told members of the British Association for the Advancement of Science here. The geological formation from which these fossils were obtained is the most extensive and important interglacial formation in America, he said.

DOOL AFTERNOON FROCK DEVELOPED IN BLUE AND WHITE CHIFFON

As to a junction on the main line, that starts early, we find. It is a train with a car for passengers. Lighted again, we arrive early and en- that ride hugely, but when we ar- ve at the junction again consternation tares us in the face, and after five weary hours waiting for a tie up, we start once more for Halifax. We stop at Truro, a large place, and make a stop also at Shubenacadie, another of those small towns, on a river of the same name that glides along so smoothly through that country. It is, of course, an Indian name, and is an exquisite place. Here we visit a Fox farm. They do not allow one too near, for if the fox is frightened (they are very shy) she will bury her young, but we could look through the glass door, and see them. Well, we slide along among the pret- ty villages towards Halifax, meeting there a business friend of the firm who said if we would cross the ferry to Dart- mouth, he would take us up the Grand Lakes in his sailboat. Would we? We went. A rustic camp, with a de- licious lunch, awaited us at his home, also a ride in a beautiful canoe, with a small boy, and to crown all, a row in another boat where the father and daughter did the rowing, as each one seemed to have their own boat. Swiftly we went through the darkness to the club house, where the boat was hoisted out over our heads almost before we had stepped out. The young people were dancing here, and we remained until we were obliged to get the ferry for Halifax once more. The lights were dancing as we crossed, it seemed quite as busy as New York. We do up Halifax, the citadel, gardens, and take the train to Yarmouth, being obliged to cut out a trip planned to Sydney Mines and across to Newfound- land—much to our regret, but, next time. We also regretted a boat trip, to Boston, which we had taken on a former trip, the "Evangeline", an English steamer, having been in service. But what would you? MODERN SOCIETY A man was motoring up the drive to his country house with a business friend whom he was going to entertain over the week-end. "There's part of the family," he said, "having tea on the piazza now." "Ah, yes indeed," beamed the business friend. "What a charming group! I suppose the young girl in the short frock is your daughter. The young fellow in the riding breeches would be, of course, your son, while the lovely lady in the pink silk tea gown and port lace is your wife naturally." "No," grunted the other man. "No, not at all. The young girl in the short frock is my wife's mother, the young fellow in the riding breeches is my wife herself, and the lady in the pink silk tea gown is my son, a sopho- more, who is rehearsing today for the new revue, where he takes a female part." Souvenir folders, containing sixteen pictures of Wolfville and vicinity, on sale at The ACADIAN Store. Price only 15 cents.

(Continued from Page 3.) We pass Blomidon and see her really standing "A sentinel for the Bay" we see Amethyst Rocks wonderful shore, where Blomidon stands sentinel for all of the bay. Across Minas is Evangeline's lands famous by Longfellow's lay, so gray near the Gasperaux mouth, from out of the gloom, over across to the south, that toy steamer, soon sail across that bay so grand, as star as we glide o'er the waves shyest rock shines on the land, as it we see in the caves? 'Tis the blue and green amethyst that's seen, the winter, I know, is buried in snow; low sparkling and white on comes the night, no longer are bright. As we land at the quay they're dingy and gray, and watch the waves dancing, could be more entrancing? The tide goes out fast, leaves the boat stranded, (The men have all landed) Why? Could the picture not last? Sing at Parraboro is another event in ever eventful trip—a small, village with five sister islands, a clean small hotel, but con- sider only one train a day which

On The Move

LIKE the "standing army" that "just stood", goods that remain on the shelf are expensive luxuries to any merchant. ADVERTISING is the force that moves slow sellers from counter to customer. Every advertisement is a salesman of proven ability, reaching every class, creed and sex in the community. The set-up of an Advertisement is as important as the dress of a salesman. In "The Acadian" special attention is given to Advertising set-up. In our columns

Advertisers, Attention!

The Acadian has just installed the Bonnet-Brown Advertising Mat Service and Stereotyping Machine.

You will now receive the same ad service that the large metropolitan newspapers render their advertisers. Illustrations that Help Sell Under this splendid New Service Plan, we receive fresh each month, ads and illustrations for every kind of advertising. We receive these illustrations in matrix form—a paper mold of the cut-to-be. This new stereotyping machine enables us to pour hot metal into this form and make a plate for printing the illustration in THE ACADIAN or on a circular. Advertisers who receive matrices of their merchandise from their manufacturers or wholesalers can bring them to us and we will make cuts for use in their advertising. This service, we are confident, will result in greatly-increased business for every advertiser who takes advantage of it. You will be better able to tell the people of Wolfville and vicinity about what you have to sell or what you want to buy. And you can put your message across in a concise, easily-understood manner that will be pleasing to readers of THE ACADIAN and most satisfactory to you in the greater results obtained.

Advertising Service for Every Business And, in addition to being able to supply you with suitable cuts for illustrating your ads, we are prepared to furnish advertisements covering practically every line of business. These ads have all been written by competent advertising experts—and are so planned and executed that they exert the maximum amount of pulling power possible in the space used. So, when you want to run an ad, instead of spending time to write it yourself, come in and let us help you. We'll give you one that fits your needs—illustration and all.

NEW TROPHIES FOR NOVA SCOTIA TO WIN

Silver Challenge Cups For Imperial Apple Championships

The friendly rivalry between England and Canada, in the British Empire Section of the Imperial Fruit Show, that has been such a prominent feature of all previous stagings of this event, should be greatly accentuated this year, by the fact that there are now two Challenge Cups, offered for inter-country competition, over a term of years, trophies now being provided which will be regarded as the premier honors of the Exhibition, and which, perhaps, crossing and re-crossing the Atlantic, or held one year in Nova Scotia and others in British Columbia, Ontario, Quebec, or New Brunswick) will eventually, as the result of three winnings, become the proud possession of the thrice-declared Champions of the British Empire for Dessert and Cooking Apples.

The 50 pounds silver challenge cup, presented by George Swift, J.P., C.C., for the cooking class, was open to competition last year, when it was won by B. Norris Bowford, Salford Priors, Warwickshire. England has already won the first round in the contest for supremacy within the Empire in the production of culinary apples, and special efforts should, therefore, be made by Canada to give the trophy a sea voyage next November. Great interest has been aroused in England by the victory for the Mother Land, and, as England rather specializes on cooking varieties, there will, no doubt, be a notable contest for the award at the Birmingham show.

This year, a second Challenge Trophy has been added to the attractions of the exhibition, the Agents-General for Ontario, Nova Scotia, British Columbia, and Quebec offering a 50 pound silver cup for the best entry in the dessert class of the British Empire Section, to be won three times by the same champion of the Empire. As Canada produces the best dessert apples in the world, and has a great advantage over England in the climatic conditions that produce attractive red color, highly rewarded on the judges score card, this trophy should certainly be marked down for an early visit to the Dominion.

In considering the traveling that is undoubtedly in prospect for these splendid challenge awards, it is interesting to note that, had they been in existence from the start of the Show, the results would have been as follows:

Class 1, Dessert
1921—Victory for England.
1922—Cup would have crossed the Atlantic to be held by Nova Scotia.
1923—Cup would have travelled west to British Columbia.

Class 2, Cooking
1921—Victory for England.
1922—Nova Scotia's triumph completed by award of double honor.
1923—The Cup would have been brought back, in triumph, by England. A slogan registered for Canada is: "Start the challenge trophies on a tour of the Dominion".

WEEKLY BUDGET COST OF FAMILY DECREASED

It was $9.91 in July as Against $10.17 in July of Last Year—Industrial Disputes of Last Month

OTTAWA, Aug. 19.—The average cost of a weekly budget for a family of five—using twenty nine staple foods was $9.91 at the beginning of July, according to the current issue of the Labor Gazette. At the beginning of June it was $9.86, and $10.17 for July of last year. Slight advances occurred in the prices of flour, potatoes, butter, eggs, and fresh pork. Prices of sugar, butter, bacon, cheese and beans were lower. Fuel and rent showed little change.

The time loss caused by industrial disputes in July was less than in the previous month or in July of last year, according to this week's Gazette. Fourteen disputes began or were in progress during the month, affecting 9,224 employees, and causing a loss of 229,204 working days. The previous month there were 23 disputes affecting 13,872 employees, and 244,673 working days were lost.

The Newspaper Has the Greatest Advertising Influence

The Women's Advertising Club of Los Angeles, working through the Women's Clubs of that city, conducted a questionnaire on advertising media and their influence, which should be very interesting to the retail advertiser. The computation was made that 90 per cent. of the buying is done by women and that millions of dollars are squandered every year in an effort to gain their attention. All walks of life were covered and the results figured on the basis of one thousand returns.

"Which of the advertising media influence you most?" was the question. The answer was announced as follows:

Bligh who will spend a couple of weeks with her cousin, Mrs. Nettie McKay. The ladies have met only once in over forty years, and they are improving the time talking over old times and of happy days spent in Hantsport. Mr. McKay and son started on their return trip the same day, going by way of Detroit.

Benjamin V. Card, was a ship carpenter and was employed in both the Churchill and North shipyards. Those were the days when Hantsport was the scene of a busy industry and its population was composed chiefly of those engaged either in building or sailing vessels.

On April 3rd, 1870, I began to serve my time in ship iron work in the shop of the late Rufus Comstock, on what is now known as Prince street. Mr. Comstock did a large business being employed by both yards. I worked with him for twelve years and assisted in ironing such vessels as the barques, J. W. Holmes, commanded by Capt. George Levi Holmes, who now makes his home in Kentville with his daughter, Mrs. (Conductor) Clarke. This vessel was a great money-maker and was afterwards sold to the Norwegian government, and was still afloat when last heard from, under a Norwegian name. The next vessel on which I worked was the barque "Minden", which was commanded by Capt. Alonzo Mitchener, of Mount Denson, who died a few weeks ago. He was a good man and highly respected, also worked on the brig "Venture", Capt. Folker; the barque "Forest King", Capt. Smith, of Newport; and other vessels.

A RE-UNION OF VETERANS
John Cowley, aged 85, sitting on the driving seat of Stephenson's locomotive No. 1, the first engine in the world to draw a passenger train, which is now on exhibition at Wombey. Mr. Cowley was the fireman when this engine made its first appearance.

I was acquainted with George A. Frost, whose interesting letter appeared in a recent issue, and was very glad to hear from him. He and his brother Ben, were both younger than myself. He will remember, perhaps, a letter which he sent home after going to California, in which it was recorded that the father of a young lady with whom he was keeping company, and who was a grower of small fruits, at one time made serious complaint of the Frost getting into his strawberries.

I am pleased to get in communication with former denizens of Hantsport through the medium of your paper and trust that many of my old time associates may be induced to take advantage of your generous offer or would be glad to hear from them personally.

GOLDEN WEDDING CELEBRATION

On Tuesday afternoon, August 12th, at the home of Miss Ella Smith, the fiftieth anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Morgan was celebrated. The wedding march was played by Mrs. A. deW. Foster, and the bride of fifty years was presented with a beautiful bouquet by Miss Eleanor Chesley. An appropriate address was read by Mr. J. W. Lawrence, the only one present who had been a guest at the wedding, and Mr. and Mrs. Morgan were presented with a purse of gold.

The celebration, which had been gotten up by the congregation of St. Andrew's Church of England, in which Mr. Morgan has been Senior Warden for twenty-five years, was a genuine surprise to Mr. and Mrs. Morgan, the few well chosen words. After the presentation those assembled took their places at tables laden with choice viands, the centre piece being a handsome wedding cake decorated in gold and bearing the dates 1874-1924, made and donated by Mrs. Wm. Dorman. Supper followed by music, dancing and cards. Of the five children only two were able to be present—Mrs. P. A. Coffin, and one son Roy, and his wife.

DIARY OF MARGARET D. MICHENER

Sept. 21st, 1849. Ruth Holmes came and helped me sew on my dress. Mary Ann Robinson came and took care of the children while I went to the funeral, which took place at two o'clock. We went to the meeting house from Mr. Michener's. Rev. Vaughan preached a good sermon from Proverbs 14: 31. Mr. and Mrs. Vaughan went to Mr. Micheners after the funeral and stayed to tea; poor old man, how disconsolate he feels. I was over there a while. There is something missing in the home; her chair is empty and the room looks lonely. Mr. Michener can not keep still, but walks about almost continually.

22nd. Have been busy today doing little things after dinner. I went over to Mr. Michener's. Maria said she was the first one in and she was busy clearing up. I went to Mrs. Man-son's and bought some mourning. Ann Eliza West called this afternoon to bid me farewell; she has gone to Bath with Joshua in Edward Barker's vessel; she will spend the winter and summer there. I was very pleased to get a letter from Mary Ann Keys. John and Robert were in this evening awhile, on their way to Olivia's.

23rd. I had planned to go to Sunday School but it rained so I did not

In the afternoon Emily Ann's children came over and I had a Sunday School here.

26th. Mother came and called for me to go to Olivia's with her, but I was churning, and in the afternoon I painted my floor. As I was milking, Rebecca Elder called saying Mr. Roe was to preach at 7 o'clock. Mother returned from Olivia's, and then went to meeting. I told her I would go up home tomorrow.

27th. I arose early and did up the work as quickly as possible hoping to get away before the rain came, but when I had got the children ready to start the rain came down in torrents. Rodmond began to cry when I said we could not go, it has been nearly eight weeks since I have been home. It cleared up in the afternoon. I made my bonnet today.

28th. I arose early and made the fire; Maria also, who had spent the evening and night with me, Capt. Michener having gone up to load. After the work was done I took my family and went up to Mother's. I spent a pleasant day and then Ann came down with me, expecting the boys to come later to Mr. Frost's to a sing, but they did not come. I put Simon to bed and went over to Ann Barker's, she and her mother just having returned from a visit in Cornwallis. Ann received a letter from Nancy and I one from Maria Dickie, who also sent me some apples. After a short call we started for Mr. Frost's and met Esther coming for us. Charlotte and Amelia were at the door. Mr. Lockhart brought his bass viol. Mary Ann Robinson and Mary Faulkener came in, and shortly after David Huntly arrived. It was a lovely evening.

29th. I arose this morning before the sun; I have been busy with various things. Maria spent the night with me. Mrs. Beckwith was in for the evening. Levi Lockhart and his family left night in the "Parallel" for Portland. Capt. Michener left port also, intending this to be his last trip for the season.

30th. I went to Sabbath School this morning, not having been there for four Sundays, which was a privation. I enjoyed myself well, had a large class, all of my scholars being there and I had Ann's also as she was at Olivia's to take care of her children. I stayed to meeting; Rev. Roe preached. Emily Ann's children came over this afternoon so I had school again.

Oct. 1st. This has been a beautiful day. I washed and got the clothes dry, but towards night it began to rain. Maria has been over.

2nd. I ironed today. It has been raining some; I carded wool this evening and thought of Simon. Mary and Hibbert. Last night I dreamed of Simon for the first time since he went away.

3rd. Lydia and her family have been here today. This evening Mr. Barker and Father have been in to settle their account. I assisted them and then read some.

4th. Olivia and Mrs. Huntly went to Mother's to visit. Adah and Sarah stayed here. At night when their mother returned Adah asked her to let her stay all night, so she is still here.

5th. This has been a rainy day. The boys went to school but the master said there would be none in the afternoon, so they and Adah had a fine time playing about. We have our first snow storm. I never saw larger flakes come down. The children were so pleased to see it snow; it was laughable to hear them talk, such funny wishes and expressions they made. The wind is now howling around and I am thinking of my sailor boy and friends, hoping they are safe from danger.

6th. This has been a cold squally day. Ezra went home with Adah this morning and stayed till after dinner. I called at Emily Ann's awhile she being in bed; Maria is there taking care of her. This afternoon I have been spinning. Mrs. James came in. At five o'clock Ann came and stayed till meeting time. Mr. Marshall the Methodist minister preached. The boys and I have just been having some exercise running after a mouse, but it was smarter than we—so it got away.

7th. We assembled today for the last Sabbath School this season. We had an interesting time, but I could not get a chance to speak to each of my scholars as I wished to. If ever I should teach a class again, quite likely I will have new scholars as these will take the place of teachers. Sarah Vaughan has been in my class five or six years. Jane Elder, Marianne Davidson and Mary Dickie have attended almost constantly, and a number of others part of the time; they all are fine intelligent girls. Mrs. Barker's and Davidson's children came over this afternoon, so I taught them and find them quite willing to learn.

8th. I am alone at the table surrounded by books and papers I have been reading. It has rained all day; the children are asleep. I have been spinning today. Father and Uncle Willy have been in to see me. I hear Hannah Faulkener has a son.

9th. It is reviving to have such a fine day after the rain; I think all the people in the place have been washing today. At sunset I sat by the window to watch for the mail. I sent Ezra over but he had not returned when Uncle Willy came in saying he had a letter for me. I was about to open it when I glanced at the name and saw it was for Michael Michener instead of me, so I was sadly disappointed. I wish the "Sterling" would get in. I think I would then hear from the "Village Belle".

10th. I took the children today and went to Olivia's calling by the way to see Mrs. Bezanon, who has a sick baby. In the evening we returned home. Robert and Ann came down and we had a sing.

11th. When I arose this morning and looked out of the window I saw the "Sterling" had arrived, so soon as I milked I went to Kendal's to inquire about the "Village Belle". He saw them in the Rappahannock as he was coming down. They were well. I expect it will be three weeks yet before they get home. I cut out three pairs of trousers for out people today and in the afternoon Ann came down to help me sew. Elmina came over and spent the evening; David Huntly also came in. It is a very stormy night.

London Daily Chronicle: It is not the function of the scientist, as scientist or the soldier, as soldier, either to make peace or to make war. The function of the soldier is to be prepared to fight; that of the scientific inventor is to invent. It is the duty of society, and of all individuals in their social capacity, to make peace and provide the conditions for it. But if society is bent on war, or if part of society compels another part to protect itself by war, then the soldier must fight as hard as he can, and the inventor must invent weapons as destructive as possible. Society cannot escape responsibility for its own deeds by blaming scientists.

SOCIETY AND SELF-PRESERVATION

America Asleep, Australia Awake

Adelaide Chronicle: One of the reasons assigned for the reluctance of the Americans to involve themselves in "foreign entanglements" is their consciousness of how little they know about world affairs. The Americans, in their self-absorption, may plead that not being implicated in the League of Nations, they are exempt from the obligations devolving on the countries that are. As Australians form part of an Empire that may be said to constitute the backbone of the League, they cannot afford to live like the inhabitants of the Trans-Pacific Lotusland.

A world's decrease from the previous year of 373,000,000 bushels of wheat and 122,000,000 bushels of rye is disclosed.

U. S. TO ADOPT CANADIAN SYSTEM

OTTAWA, August 14.—Impressed by the Canadian system of government surveys as demonstrated at the annual meeting of the British Association for the Advancement of Science at Toronto recently, the United States Government has decided to adopt it in connection with the contemplated survey of Alaska next year, and representatives of the United States Government were today taken over the Topographical Survey Department in order to obtain the necessary information.

THE INVERTED PYRAMID

BY
Bertrand W. Sinclair
Author of "North of Fifty-three"

Rod sat with elbows on the sill of his bedroom window late that night, staring out over a moon-bathed landscape, silver barred with black, where the shadows of great trees lay across the lawn. He looked down at a shimmering moon-path that seemed to offer a bright highway across the channel where Mary Thorn lay sleeping—if indeed she slept. Rod wondered if something in her breast ever drove her to a window to stare across the tide and think of him. She was home now. He had his own sources of information. Tomorrow he would see her. Tonight the querulous imps that make a man question his destiny and desire bade him consider if he did well to let his heart abide so constantly with Mary Thorn when there were other desirable women to be had for the asking. Isabel, for instance? All clear sailing. No questions asked or answered. The dual family blessing, and any little material wants cheerfully attended to. On the personal side, well, he was flesh and blood, sexual tinder. When Isabel put her face against his breast and sobbed in that stifled, choking fashion he had been deeply moved, thrilled, conscious of her physical nearness, the sweet fragrant odor of her tousled hair, the trembling of her small, soft body. Wasn't that good enough? What did a man want of a woman when he took her to wife?

Rod shook himself impatiently. What rot he had been thinking. Whatever it was in Mary Thorn that so imperatively promised to fulfil his every need, it didn't reside in Isabel Wall. He was sure of that. He could let himself slide into a temporary infatuation with Isabel—perhaps. He could conceive of possessing her. But he couldn't behold her down a long vista of years, playing the game fairly and bravely, taking the cards dealt from the deck of life, good, bad, and indifferent, with courage and fortitude. He couldn't picture Isabel doing that any more than he could picture her, at six-teen, shooting the Eucataw Rapids in a dugout, eyes shining in sheer ecstasy of swift movement, hair streaming in the wind. Isabel would either have been frightened or wildly, dangerously excited.

That was as far as Rod carried his analogy. It was sufficient. He had not tried his hand at creative fiction with-out a sense of character, of form, proportion. He egotistically assumed that he could accurately gauge personal values, that he did it intuitively as well as rationally. If his prescience did not clearly account for the depth and tenacity of his affection for Mary Thorn it quickly and thoroughly disposed of Isabel as a substitute.

A light flashed from a window in Oliver Thorn's house. Rod rested his chin on cupped palms. Unrest, longing blew through the spaces of his being like a hot wind. The bright moon and the dusky woods beckoned him into their restful silences, and the light across the channel seemed to blink a message. It drew him like a magnet. Over there his heart lay. If Isabel's unheralded breakdown had served no other purpose, it had filled him with a wild impulse, revived a fever that burned him. The madness of a lover's moon! The coursing blood of youth clamoring for the fulfilment of life's promise—life that promises so much and often gives so little. The impulse to translate dreams into realities. Quen sabb?

He rose and went softly downstairs and out a side door to the pale emptiness of the lawn crossed with inky bands of shadow, and so sauntering, head bowed and hands sunk deep in his pockets, presently brought up on the float. The Haida lay moored on one side, the Kowloon on the other. A profusion of canoes and rowboats lay hauled out on the planks.

Rod stood awhile, like a man in two minds. His eyes lingered on the moon-path. His ears took note of the lessening monotone between the Gillard Islands on the east and the choked westward passage inside Little Dent. A still night and a slackening tide. He got into a dinghy, shipped the oars, rowed slowly out into the channel. Halfway, an eddy setting toward the Valdez shore took him in its sweep. He let the oars rest and lighted a cigarette, gazing at the tranquil, silvery beauty.

"What a night," he whispered. "What a night for fairies and mermaids—and lovers."

Then the current slid him into the deep shadow cast by the high forested ridge behind Oliver Thorn's house, and as his boat touched the float and he sat in a moment of indecision, a voice spoke softly.

"Hello, Rod."

He looked sharply over the float. The shadow of the hills lay on it like folds of crepe. But in a moment he made out a dim figure. He went over, still holding the painter in his hand. It was Mary, wrapped in a gray coat, sitting on a box.

"I thought you'd be in your little trundle bed," he greeted her.

He knew, or thought he knew. There was an attitude of surrender, unmistakable, complete, that filled him with a strange delight. But he wanted the verification of that voiceless pledge.

"I don't know. How can one account for a mood, a longing? I came down here to sit in the moonlight. It was so radiant. Then after a little the shadow crept out from shore, and it was just as if something black and gloomy had settled over me. I felt small and forlorn and lonely. And all at once I wanted you, Rod. I wished you were here. I wanted you. And you're here. That's all."

"It's enough," he said tenderly.

CHAPTER XIII

The day following Rod drew his father into the library and bluntly announced his engagement to Mary Thorn, also that the date of their marriage was set for the first week in July, exactly one month ahead.

Norquay senior sat down, lighted a cigar. He did not precisely lose his poise, but he was slightly staggered.

"Well," he said at last, "the younger generation is supposed to be speedy but didn't imagine you would ever step on the accelerator like this. Why the mad haste? Can't you at least give us a chance to get acquainted with the young woman?"

"We've had plenty of opportunities for acquaintance," Rod could not forbear saying, "since she is a close neighbor, so to speak. Besides, the family isn't marrying, Miss Thorn, pater. I am. And I have known her for several years."

"I suppose she's pretty," his father observed grimly. "Has she any manner? Education? Ever been anywhere?"

Rod looked at him soberly.

"Are you trying to get my goat?" he asked. "You want me to blow up, polite insult is as good a way as any. I'm of age and a little more. You took pains to educate me. You've granted at various times that I have good taste in many things. I should be qualified to choose a wife without the ordinary essentials."

"Perhaps I didn't put it very well," Norquay senior replied. "I don't mean to adopt a toplofty hypercritical attitude. I may seem unduly impertinent, my son, but marriage is important—in this family, and to this family. A wife isn't something to be put aside if she doesn't happen to suit. Remember, I've had no warning of this. Therefore, naturally, the first questions that occur to me are these: Is the girl such as we can accept into the family as one of us? Is she a person our friends can meet as one of themselves? Have you asked yourself this, Rod?"

"Contrary to the general notion of what an infatuated youngster does in such circumstances I have. Or at least I should certainly have done so if there had been any doubt in the matter. To be quite candid, Mary Thorn has equally as good a deal more—education as any girl I know. And about fifty per cent. more discrimination in most things. If the family and the family's set refuse to accept her at her face value, that will be the privilege of snobbery. It won't make any difference to me."

"Quite sure about that?"

"I meant it wouldn't make me hesitate. Of course, it would make a difference. But this girl means more to me than merely pleasing my family and friends by what they regard as a suitable match."

"You're fully determined on this?"

"Absolutely," Rod confirmed.

Norquay senior half-turned in his chair to look out the window. His gaze crossed the channel, rested without change of expression on Oliver Thorn's house.

"I can scarcely conceive of a suitable mate for a Norquay arising out of such surroundings," he said gravely, "nor from such antecedents."

"I wonder if you know what you really mean by antecedents," Rod said patiently. He had to force himself to be patient. He had warned himself that he would have to encounter just such prejudice. It grated on him, but he kept his temper in hand and his wits alert. "For instance, you accepted Laska Wall as being quite worthy of the most important of your three sons. And I am sure Laska is. But you must know, pater, that if John P. Wall didn't have scads of money you would never have tolerated the Walls. Mrs. Wall herself is only passable. Wall is simply a keen, able money-grabber. His people were nobodies—petty tradesmen. Wall's father kept a little two-by-four shop in Toronto for twenty years. I learned that quite by accident. And it is nothing against them. It simply happens that in our more or less democratic West, Wall's daughters, having enjoyed every advantage of easily and quickly acquired wealth, go everywhere and are accepted. That being so, antecedents do not seem to carry so much weight as you infer. I believe myself that they do; but not in the way you mean. And though you may not credit it, Mary Thorn's people are as good, able, pioneering stock as we are. Except that they didn't take permanent root and acquire wealth."

"Acquisitive ability is a pretty good test of character, Rod," his father commented. "It takes brains, initiative, determination, sterling qualities to amass wealth and hold it. Your prospective father-in-law doesn't exhibit those traits."

"No? You've tried to buy his timber holdings, haven't you? I heard you confess irritably that you couldn't see why he would never log it off nor sell. Perhaps it never occurred to you that he is doing precisely what we've done—on a smaller scale—acquire a natural source of wealth and hold it, benefiting by the sure increase in value. He has seventy thousand dollars' worth of timber there. He makes it produce a reasonable living. When he lets it go, he will have a moderate competence. He has managed to give his daughter a university education. If he hasn't luxury, he has something he values more— independence. That rather argues character, doesn't it?"

"The argument is yours, Rod. Special pleading. You'd have made an excellent advocate. But suppose the worst. Suppose you find you can't mix oil and water—you know what I mean, don't you?"

"Well, then I won't be the first young son of this house to break away, to go on his own and make the best of things as he finds them. Will I?" Rod asked.

"I'd be sorry to see you do that. It's so unnecessary. There's room and plenty for all of us here. Of course, if you should elect to do that, you have your inalienable income from the estate. But I'd much prefer to see you and Phil together carrying on the up-coast end of our affairs. I don't want to see my boys scattered. I may have a selfish interest in keeping the family together. I should find myself very lonely here with all my children gone."

"And you're afraid I'll bell things up by marrying a girl nobody knows, and to whom people may not take kindly, eh?"

"That's about it, my son."

"Well, it's coming off on schedule, you may be sure of that," Rod said tartly. "I think I love Hawk's Nest as dearly as any of us. I have a pretty keen sense of what's due the family. I am perhaps a little proud of belonging to it. I'd a little rather be a great-grandson of that adventurous old trader than anything I know. But I have only one life to live, and I propose to live it according to my lights. I am not going to do anything that will reflect on you. I merely intend to marry a poor man's daughter because she seems to me the most perfect woman I know."

"You are quite determined?" his father asked again.

Rod answered him with a simple "Yes."

"At any rate there is no need for such haste, is there?" Norquay senior continued, with a hint of petulance.

"Next month is absurd. Give us a chance to meet your fiancée, to get acquainted with her. If she is to become one of the family, let's have a show at making her feel that she'll be welcome. Incidentally, it will give you time to think. A month's engagement is positively indecent."

"Time to think, pater?" Rod echoed. "I've had a solid year of thinking it over. It has taken me a year to persuade Mary Thorn it's the only thing to do. You want us to think it over—after twelve months of thrashing it out from every conceivable angle. No. One month from today. And there aren't going to be any frills. If you are at all dubious about countenancing me in this, just say so and I'll make my own arrangements. I'd be delighted to have you meet Mary, and I'm sure you'll like her immensely, but if you have any idea of adopting a 'to-be-examined-on-approval' attitude with her, why I'll introduce her as my wife and we'll make the necessary adjustments afterward."

Norquay senior smiled at his son's vehemence.

"I didn't dream you had so headlong a temperament, Rod," he said. "Speaking for myself, I wish you had chosen differently. Still, I concede you are well witted, and I am anxious to meet this unexpected choice of yours. I'll be courteous and cordial. You know that. But I can't promise that every one else will."

"If they aren't—" Rod shrugged his shoulders. "Well, I don't think people will be downright stupid."

"If they aren't," his father continued judiciously, "you can't browbeat them into being so."

Rod agreed that this was obvious.

"In which case," his father said slowly, "I shan't be able to do much, if people won't receive your wife, Rod, on terms of equality, you can't shove her down their throats."

"You needn't be alarmed," Rod assured him stiffly. "I shan't try."

CHAPTER XIV

On the whole Rod considered that he came off very well in the matter of breaking this news to the family. Laska, who was staying while at Hawk's Nest, having a clear understanding of the situation, bundled Isabel off to town at once and gallantly proposed that she, herself, take Mary under her wing for the remaining four weeks.

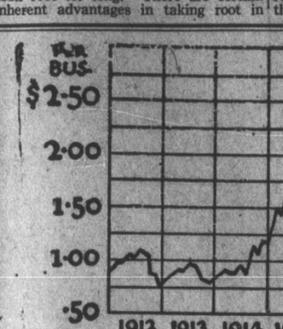

Rod promptly vetoed this.

"Won't work," he said frankly. "You have never even met the girl. She's much too clever to be fussed up by a burst of family interest all at once. I'm not going to have you pitchfork her into a giddy round before she has time to get her bearings. When we're married and come home, I'll take it kindly if you will all be as casual as if I'd married some girl we'd all known for years. No special efforts at gaiety, please, at this stage of the game."

Laska agreed that might be good policy. She was frankly curious about this girl Rod was going to marry. She was also well aware that the slinky fast-stepping crowd which occasionally descended on Hawk's Nest might make it difficult for a rank outsider thrown in their way. As Rod's wife, Mary would partake of the family dignity. As a mere fiancée she would be fair game, especially for the younger women.

So matters stood as they were. The circumstances were fortuitous enough. Grove was the one fly in the ointment,—an uncertainty as to what he might do or say. And Grove had just betaken himself across the Atlantic, cooking up some financial sly in London. Grove was very jealous of his dignity. He was more arrogant than ever. Rod anticipated a certain amount of minor trouble with Grove. Hence he was as well satisfied that Grove was not present to inject the virus of his distaste into the already dubious mind of their father. Phil merely grinned and wished him luck.

He didn't know that I'd have had it turn out just this way if I'd been the arbiter of destiny," Oliver Thorn said to him. "I hope you and Mary will never be sorry. It's natural, I suppose—but natural evolution sometimes has its pains and disasters. Why do you want to go outside your own class to fall in love and marry?"

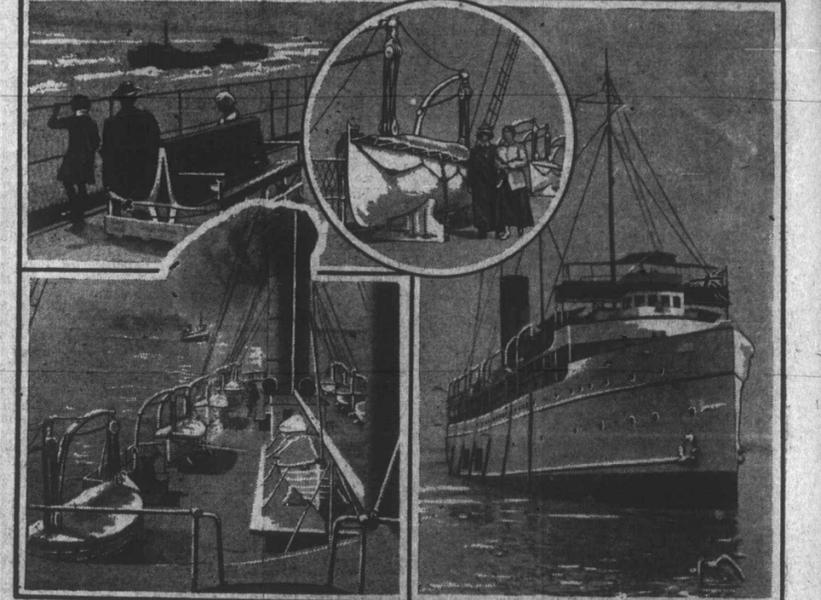

A SURVEY OF CANADIAN WHEAT PRICES IN THE LAST DECADE
The recent jump in the price of wheat has focused the eyes of all Canadians in particular, on the crop situation in Western Canada. From the information available it appears that the Canadian West will see a reasonably good crop. As this diagram indicates it will be marketed at a much better figure than has been paid for No. 1 Northern since 1922.

WESTERN FARMERS ARE GROWING ENSILAGE
Corn and sunflowers are the chief ensilage crops of Western Canada and more acreage is being devoted to these crops every year. This year, owing to the lateness of spring operations, a decided increase is being planted to corn and flowers, particularly in Saskatchewan, for the production of winter feed. Where a few years ago, the growing of corn was thought to be impossible, farmers in the mixed farming territory are now devoting considerable acreage to the production of this crop for winter feed.

Afloat on the Big Water of Hiawatha

Above are scenes of one of the Great Lakes steamships—the Anahibia. The decks are as spacious as the cabins, and so clean and comfortable.

No traveller has seen Canada until he has crossed the Great Lakes. Missing them he misses not only the opportunity of tracing a great, historic, important and beautiful waterway. He also misses an experience which cannot be enjoyed in any other part of the world—that of going to sea in the centre of a continent. Above all, he misses nearly two days of delightfully cool voyaging, which, if he be travelling between the eastern provinces and the prairie region, provides a welcome break in the long and dusty journey.

The Great Lakes of Canada form the most remarkable groups of lakes in the world—a group remarkable for its extent, its importance, its historic interest and its beauty. With the St. Lawrence river, they provide Canada, in summer, with a stupendous inland waterway by which it is possible to reach the heart of the Dominion from the Atlantic ocean, a waterway which, since the beginning, has been inestimably important to the country's development. This vast expanse is haunted by the ghosts of many of the most famous makers of North America. As for their beauty—the loveliness of these pine-fringed inland seas is something which one feels rightly belongs in dreams.

The Canadian Pacific Railway, through its Great Lakes Steamship Service, enables those anxious to enjoy all this to gratify their desire. Three fine steamships, the "Anahibia," "Keewatin" and "Manitoba," are maintained by the company in this service. Built on, and brought out from, the Clyde, they are miniature ocean liners.

Choice may be made of three sailings a week, two from Port McNicoll and one from Owen Sound, both on the Georgian Bay, a north-easterly off-shoot of Lake Huron. A train run of a few hours from Toronto by Canadian Pacific brings one to Port McNicoll, within a few miles of the spot where Champlain and the Jesuits made their ill-fated treaty with the Hurons against the Iroquois three centuries ago.

The illusion of being at sea comes rapidly. Flocks of great gulls wheel overhead, fearlessly settling on rail and davit. The deck throbs beneath. Cool breezes drive out all unpleasant memories of heat, dust and smoke. Only two features of a life on the ocean wave are lacking—the tang of salt, for which the pleasant rolling, instead of which we have almost complete steadiness.

Throughout an afternoon one views an ever-changing panorama. Large islands bearing tiny houses, flit by. Small islands, canoes on their shallow beaches, give glimpses of white tents seen through trees, and the smoke of campfires. Night comes softly, gradually enveloping this picturesque medley of water, land and sky. The moon rises, casting a restless trail of silver across the lake, a trail left by the canoes of Radisson, Marquette, Etienne Brule, Father Horguez, Hennepin, Mackenzie, Henry, a long procession of daring men, whose paddles still make music in the pages of Canada's thrilling history.

Acquaintance begins in the dining-room and is carried on in the verandah café, the lounge, the smoking rooms and on the decks, with card parties, music, dancing and yarning on every conceivable subject.

In the morning one finds that Lake Huron has been left behind. The ship is now in the St. Mary's River, whose green banks, with their succession of summer cottages and bungalows, are sliding by. And so on. Past the Soo, through the "Big Water of Hiawatha," out of sight of land to the Twin Cities—a never-to-be forgotten trip.
