Now, suppose there was no other feature suggestive of suspicion through out the accounts, we ask any rational man conversant with the nature of the habits and employments of the people of this couniry, would grounded doubt that all was not right. We have already said that the two months of July and August were not months when poverty stalked throughout this Country—quite the reverse : how then was it that there was nearly as much money expended in those two month of last year (if we are to believe Dr, Shea and of the year, in the relief of the poor, under the heads of casual and permanent poor. And here fifteen thousand pounds was not the whole amount expended for the relief of the poor in the year under consideration [1855]; no, it is only that portion of it embraced under the heads we have just mentioned, vix, : casual and pounds besides expended for the Poor in other ways, such as for Lunatic paupers, for able bodied paupers employed on roads, and so on; so that the "fifteen thousand Pounds" was but one branch of the pauper money. And we see how it was managed. We have something more to say about this matter, and we shall take our own good time to say it, of course. We must hunt out every lurking scoundre lism that is coiled within it.

Field Esq. Vice President of the New York Newfoundland and Londen Telegraph Company, publicly: stated two years since that 3000 would be the amount expected from Newfdland as sufficient for the purpose adverted to, will the Imperial 3000 pounds relieve this Colony from all further demands in this particular? We have been startled by a ramour, that some 7000 or 10,000 pounds was in contemplation to be approprated by our Legislature out of the Colonial chest for the purpose; this must have been a calumity; we would not have the advantages of direct Steam Communication, undervalued, but if to the 3000 Pounds Imperial 10,000 or even 7000 Colonial is to be we may as well remind our readers that this added-if such an amount is to be wrung by additional taxation, from the people, - then we boldly assert, that the Country cannot afford it, and that other improvements of a purely local and domestic character, should establish a preliminary proof of the efficiency and patriotism of permanent poor. There were thousands of our local Legislature; under any circumstances the advantages to this country would be more obviously decisive-more permanently secured in every point of view; if the above amount had been granted by the Home Government as a salary to the Representative of Royalty in this Country, thus rendering onr Governors independant of the caprice of party, and relieving them from the necessity of having the amount of stipend annually descanted upon and carved out by such men as now constitute the Legisla ture of Newfoundland.

> But the master policicion is too wily to recommeud such a course, whilst the advantages of a different procedure, stand forth as the result of recent experience.

We were happy to meet with Mr. Gisborns yesterday, who, calling in here from his exploring expedition, reports the discovery of a lead mine near Holyrood; and states that the produce of the mine previously discovered at Turk's Head, has, during the past fortnight, considerably exceeded the amount of expences aurage that time, Mr. Gisborne by his intrepidity dance with the Royal Instructions, No 33, to and perseverence, has already laid the Country under lasting obligations to him; and we trust he will long enjoy the gratitude and honour to which he is so justly entitled.

"This Company added about £90,000 to its permanent capital, for the increased protection of its Insurers. This step distinctly shows that the Company has always acted upon the principle enunciated by one of the directors at the last Annual Meeting of the proprietors—that the interests of the assured have a paramount claim on the directors - a claim superior even to that of

"From that moment, as might be expected, the Campany attained the highest consideration throughout the country, and has retained it ever since. The result is shown in the unexampled fact that its Fire Revenue alone rose in about five year from little more than £30,000 to about £130,000! " A further cause of this rapid growth lies somewhat more below the surface, but is yet of importance. From inquiry we learn that no fire office possessing half the above revenue annually deposits its accounte with the Registrar-general.

"The resources and balance-sheet of this great Company are, on the contrary, annually registered, and unmistakeable evidence is thus given periodically of its capacity to, meet its engagements."-Morning Herald, December 26, 1855.

"Indeed, the bonus of the 'Royal' may be pronounced to be larger than any ye declared by the mass of the English office! Here is an office which yields a fairly earn est and wholesome reversionary bonus of 8 per centum in its Life Branch, and it regard to fire operations, can make this very enviable boast, that it has exceeded the Fire business of all but two of the London Fire offices - viz. : the receipt o nearly £130,000 per year in Fire premi ums alone - some of which ancient office! have been in existence for a century! Equally successful and singular in both departments, Indeed, the Life Depart ment may be said to present results equally as worthy of mention."—Morning Chronicle November 28, 1855.

HYMN OF THE UNIVERSE

PARAPHRASED FROM GOETHE.

Roll on, thou sun! forever roll, Thou giant, rushing through the Heaven Creation's wonder, nature's soul! The golden wheels dy angels driven; The planets die without thy blaze, And cherubim with star-dropt wing Float in thy diamond-sparkling rays, Thou brightest emblem of their King

Roll, lovely earth! and still roll on, With ocean's azure beauty bound; while one sweet star, the pearly moon Pursue thee through the blue profound And angels with delighted eyes Behold thy tints of mount and stream, From the high walls of paradise; Swid-whirling like a glorious dream.

Roll, Planets! on your dazzling road, For ever sweeping round the sun! What eye beheld when first ye glowed? What eye shall see your courses done? Roll in your solemn majesty, Ye deathless splendours of the skies! High altars from which augels see The incense of creation rise.

Roll, Comets! and ye million Stars! Ye that through boundless nature roam Ye monarchs on your flame-winged cars! Tell us in what more glorious come, What orb to which your pomps are dim, What kingdom but by angels trod-Tell us where swells the eternal hymn Around His throne-where dwells your God

THE GRAVE OF HAROLD.

BY WILLIAM JONES.

CAME monks to Norman William, When England's king lay dead, And the noblest of the Saxon thanes Were thick around him spread. "We claim of thee, on bended knee, The corse of Harold brave, With psalm and prayer, to ley him where A king his rest should have !"

"Not so," replied the Conqueror, "He needs no abbey dim-The rocky coast, his country's boast Is meetest tomb for him; Where wild winds sigh, and waves rush by, Impetuous as his life, There let him sleep—his shade will keep Britannia free from strife !"

And so they laid him mournfully Within the barren sand, The last prince of the Saxon race That sway'd nis native land. A glorious grave for warrior brave, And men said," Fear no more, Peace to each home no fee will come, While Harold guards our shore;"

THOU WEARY MORN.

BY ROBERT GILFILLAN.

Thou weary morn, when wilt thou dawn? And yet nae gladness comes wi' day; But day and night, I mourning sigh For loved hours fled an' joys away. My laddie was the kindest swain, An' sought my heart wi' a' his skill, An' yet I've tint that lad sae true Wi' woman's pride an' woman's will.

It wasna but I lo'ed him weel, It wasna but I thought him kind But just that silly pride o'heart That lovers shouldna ever mind. He tauld me that my heart was proud, An' what he said was maybe true; But little does my laddie ken How humble low that heart is now!

At kirk I keekit aff my book To see if he would look at me, Ne'er a blink gat I frae him, Although the tear stood in my e'e. An' when the preachin' time was done. Ilk lassie had her lover gay, While I gaed dowie hame alone, An' oh! it was a weary way!

But the lavrock sings high in the lift, Although his nest's deep in the glen; Sae, though my withered hopes are low, They maybe yet will rise again! The sun behind the clouds does shine, Although his face we dinna see; Sae my dear lad may yet prove kind, Although it all seems dark to me.

A few days ago he was in company with some of the workmen, when, the murder having been referred to one of the men remarked "I wonder whether the murderer was amongst the batch lately discharged by the company. "No," replied Spollen, "I am certain the fellow is still amongst us, and laughing at us!" The Freeman's Jou nal states that among the means resorted to shortly after the crime was committed for assisting to discover the murderor was a clarevoyance, and that there was forwarded to the police authoritie from England a statement, alledged to have been made by a clarevoyant operated upon in the usual way, that the murderers name was "Pollen," or a similar name, and that he lived in "a cottage near the railway." The clairvoyant was a boy employed in a factory in London, and the foreman of the establishment who forwarded the communication to the police here, mentioned that the boy's powers in this respect had been frequently tested and found use-

In the Dublin Freeman of the 27th ultimo we read: Mrs. Spollen and her daughter Julia were examined at great length by the Crown Solicitor and Mr. Guy on the 25th ult. Their respective statements were fully written out, and read to them on the 26th ult. In Mrs. Spollen's statement relative to the manner in which the murder was committed, she says that, on the evening of the 13th of November last, her husband was lying in wait in the corridor at about seven o'clock. He was not long there when Mr Little came out of his office, and went has declined to be put in nomination for Angers into the water-closet which adjoins the cash at the second elections, which take place on office. She further says, that after having effected his escape by a window and along the roof of the terminus, he brought the money which he had taken ...om Mr. Little's office home with him in a bucket.

A no less remarkable feature than any of the numberless others in this almost unparelleled deed of blood, is, according to the same informant, that after carrying off the money and getting clear away, her husband, finding that he had left his time book behind him, which, if discovered would lead to his immediate detection, actually retraced his steps, re-entered the room, and carried away the object of his search. The key of Mr. Little's office-on the night of the murder-was found on Saturday evening near the place indicated by Mrs. Spollen. This is regarded as a most important piece of Levidence against the prisoner, even though his wife be precluded from giving her testimony before a court of justice as it appears she is. Thus it will be seen that her statement respecting the concealment of the plunder, and the disposal of the key, with the instruments used in the murder of Mr. Little, has been fully confirmed. That she knows who the murderer is has been proved. But her husband denies that he is the guilty party.
