ST. JOHN'S MUNICIPAL COUNCIL

THE following Sections of the amended Municipal Act, passed March 22nd, 1910, are published for the information of those interested and the General Public:—

31. From and after the passing of this Act the construction of houses or buildings of any sort shall not be commenced within the city limits without the permission of the Council, who shall have power to make and prescribe terms and conditions to be observed and performed by the owner of the land or the lessee in respect of the payment by the said owner or lessee of the whole or a portion of the cost of the laying or introduction of the water or water pipes, the opening or construction of sewers or sewerage, or the making, opening, widening or improvement of the road or street along or near to which the said house or building is to be constructed.

32. Whenever after the passing of this Act the Council shall decide upon the opening or construction of a main sewer along or through a street abutting upon or in the vicinity of land which is suitable for building purposes, but upon which no buildings have been erected, and if it shall appear that the said main sewer about to be constructed is or will be available for connection with buildings hereafter to be erected upon said land so that the value of the said land will be thereby improved, the Council shall have power to levy and impose upon the said land or any portion thereof, from time to time, a tax or assessment at such a rate either per foot or frontage upon the said road or street or otherwise as the Council shall determine, and to apply the money raised by and under the said tax or assessment to or towards the cost of the opening or construction of the said proposed sewer or sewerage. The said tax or assessment shall be a charge upon the said land or such portion thereof as shall be defined by the Council, as subject thereto, and shall be recovered from the owner or lessee, as the case may be, in the same manner as provided in and by the principal Act in respect of the recovery of taxes, rates and assessments.

33. Whenever it shall be found necessary for the purpose of widening or improving any road or street for the Council to take and appropriate private property and to pay compensation therefor to be determined by arbitration under the provisions of the principal Act, the Arbitrators, in computing or assessing the amount of such compensation, shall consider and determine whether or not the said widening or improvement has affected the value of the land or property adjoining to the land so taken, belonging to the same owner, and in case it shall be found that such widening or improvement has improved or increased the value of the said adjoining land, the amount of compensation to be awarded for the taking of the said land shall be reduced or abated accordingly.

ROBIN HOOD FLOUR

IS DIFFERENT

IT HAS ROUSED THE CURIOSITY OF THE WHOLE WEST

"Do you really think?" one housewife will say to another "that this new flour can be better than the flour we are using?" Madam, there is no doubt about it. But there is just one way you can be convinced. You must use it yourself. Our claims will not satisfy you, but we back up our claims in such a way that you will lose nothing by trying Robin Hood. Your grocer will tell you about our guarantee which gives you back your money if you are not satisfied.

Which Was The Heir?

CHAPTER XLIV.

NEVER mind! she retorted, doggedly. "You have your secrets from me, and I have mine from you; but if you think I am helpless and unprotected you make a mistake. I want the question of my marriage settled, and made plain. In fact, I don't mean to remain as I am any longer. I tell you plainly I intend to announce my marriage to-morrow, to let the earl and all the world know that I am your legal wife. I don't care whether he leaves you his money or not. You're the heir to the title and estates—I know enough to know that—and I'll be satisfied to be the future Countess of Starborough. I'd rather let any amount of money go than go on living as I am under suspicion. Why, the very servants and landlady here suspect me of being—or being—not your wife. Do you think I am going to stand that? No; I go to Starborough to-morrow to tell the earl—everybody—who I am!"

He thought for a moment and rapidly; then he forced a smile and shrugged his shoulders.

"Perhaps you are right, my dear," he said. "As you say, money isn't everything; anyway, we'll risk it; we'll go to the earl together in the morning, and perhaps he won't be as hard as we were afraid he would be. Is that champagne there? Give me a glass, will you? I'm half knocked up with the worry of it all, and with travelling at night."

He went up to her and put his arms round her and kissed her. She suffered the caress, took it coldly, and with a gesture of dislike and disgust, but little guessing what a Judas kiss it was. His touch, his presence, was abhorrent to her; for there had been less love or passion on her part as on his; and her faint liking for him had vanished weeks ago.

He opened another bottle of champagne and filled a glass for her and himself. She had already had enough and the full glass made her drowsy and stupid. He watched her covertly.

"Now you lie down a little while," he said. Here let me put the cushions comfortable for you. I'll ring for the servant to put some supper on, while I go and have a wash—I want it badly enough. I'll find that certificate for you, too. I think it is in my dressing bag."

She looked at him suspiciously through her half-closed eyes, and muttered something like a threat; then her eyes closed, and she fell into a drowse.

Sidney looked back at her from the door and drew a long breath of relief.

MENTHOL PLASTER

For Neuralgia, Lame Back and all Rheumatic Pain

Rev. G. S. White, Napanee, writes: "I have used over twenty of your Plasters and know of nothing that will check pain in the back or side so quickly. Each 25c. in an airtight tin box; yard rolls $1.00 can be cut any size. There is only one 'D. & L.'; all other 'Menthol's' are counterfeit."
DAVIS & LAWRENCE CO., Montreal.

She might sleep till morning. He went up to their bedroom, hastily slipped his face and hands, then went to the jewel-box, and wrenching it open, collected its contents and stowed them away in his pocket. There were some bracelets and rings and small trinkets on the dressing-table; he took every one, even the most trifling and least expensive, and pocketed them. In his present mood he would have taken the furniture if he could have stowed it away; for there was nothing but hatred for her in his heart.

As he went softly down the stairs and took up his hat, the servant passed him with the supper-tray.

"Oh, tell Mrs. Richards that I am just going for a stroll on the parade," he said, "and to get some cigars. I sha'n't be gone more than five or ten minutes."

He put on his hat and overcoat quickly and passed out. Outside he paused a moment to consider. It would not do to go to the railway-station, for he might have to wait for a train, and, while he was waiting, Rachel might follow and catch him. A policeman was standing by the area-step—doubtless waiting for an interview with the cook—and, disconcerted by the man's regard, Sidney turned to the right and walked off towards the cliff—perhaps it would be wiser to walk along the coast and take a train at the next station.

The maid laid the supper, glancing suspiciously at the sleeping woman on the sofa. With a shrewdness, a knowledge of evil, peculiar to her kind, the girl suspected something was wrong. When she had laid the supper she went down stairs; but when a quarter of an hour had elapsed and Mr. Richards had not returned she went upstairs again and woke Rachel.

"Supper's ready, ma'am," she said. Rachel rose and pushed her hair from her face in a dazed fashion.

"Where is Mr. Richards?" she asked.

"He's gone out, ma'am," replied the servant.

Rachel looked at her, suspicion suddenly awoke. She pushed past the girl and darted upstairs. The first thing she saw was the jewel-case with its lid wrenched open. Her eyes flew to the dressing-table; not a single jewel, or ornament, remained. As swiftly as a flash of lightning the truth darted across her mind—Sidney had taken flight, had left, deserted her; there was something wrong about the marriage; she had been deceived and betrayed! With a cry, a cry of fury and despair, and of hate and loathing, she screamed to the maid; but before the girl had got to the room Rachel had snatched up her hat and cloak.

"Oh, whatever is the matter, wherever are you going, ma'am?" exclaimed the servant, aghast and terrified at Rachel's appearance.

But Rachel, like one distraught, pushed past her, tore down the stairs and out into the night. She paused outside, as Sidney had done, and—

"My husband—where is he?" broke from her quivering lips.

The policeman was still there.

"Are you asking for Mr. Richards, ma'am?" he asked. "He has gone up the cliff walk."

Rachel sped past him. A fly was crawling along the roof, and she hailed the man and got in.

"Drive on—straight on," she said. There was a nearly full moon, some times obscured by light clouds, and the wretched woman leant forward, her long, ungloved hands gripping her knees, her distended eyes scanning the faces of the men she passed. It was late, and the passers-by grew less frequent. Suddenly, as the moon was for a moment unobscured, she saw a tall, thin figure silhouetted against the sky. It was Sidney. With a cry of satisfaction—a vindictive cry—she rose to stop the flyman, paid him, and got out and followed Sidney slowly and stealthily.

The flyman watched her for a moment or two, then, with a shrug of his shoulders and a "Going to be a row, I should say!" turned his horse and drove back towards the town.

Rachel stole after Sidney for some distance without attracting his attention. She was half mad with fury—for robbing her of her jewels, her dearly loved jewels, was like robbing the leopardess of her cubs. Even the greater wrong she suspected he had done her dwindled, in her confused and ill-balanced mind, to insignificance besides this actual theft of the things she loved better than her own soul. She hated him—she hated him! As he strode on there before her he was so absorbed in thought, so little suspicious of being followed, that he did not hear her, did not look round; and he reached a point of the narrow walk along the edge of the cliff where a road diverged; there he hesitated for a moment, and in that moment she overtook him and was upon him.

"You thief!" she gasped. "You mean bound! you thief! I thief! I thief! Give them back to me!"

He shrank back and gazed at her, his face white, his lips working.

"What do you mean by following me?" he stammered. "Go back! I've business—"

"You shall go back with me!" she exclaimed, hoarsely. "You've de-

LAI D UP FIVE YEARS

Until Half a Bottle of Father Morrissey's Liniment Cured His Shoulder.

Mr. Joe J. Roy, a prominent tinsmith of Bathurst, N.B., July 16, 1909:

"I cannot let this opportunity pass without letting you know what benefit I received from your Liniment. For five years I had a sore shoulder, which prevented me from working or from sleeping at night. I had tried everything possible and still could find no relief until I was advised to try a bottle of your liniment, which I purchased without delay. I only used one half of the bottle when I was completely cured, and now I feel as if I never had a sore shoulder. I would advise anyone suffering from Rheumatic pains to give your liniment a trial, for I cannot praise it too highly."

A liniment that will do that is the liniment you want. It is equally good for sore throat or chest, backache, tooth-ache, ear ache, sprains, sore muscles, cuts, bruises, burns, frost-bites, chapped hands or chilblains. Rub it in, and the pain comes out. 25c per bottle at your dealer's, or from Father Morrissey's Medicine Co. Ltd., Chatham, N.B. 64 ceived me—you have lied about our marriage. I know it—I can see it in your face."

Her own face at that moment was distorted by her fury, and the sight of it roused all his hatred.

"Our marriage!" he said, defiantly, even tauntingly. "There was no marriage. You were fooled, my good girl, and not only by me, but by your own father. The clergyman—he laughed derisively—'was your own father. He played the part well, didn't he? Your own father! A pretty father—a scoundrel, a convict! Yes, you've followed me here to bully and browbeat me when I'm in trouble, and you shall hear the truth. Your long-lost father has turned up. It was he who performed the ceremony. He's a convict. I daresay the police are on his heels at this moment."

"It's a lie!" she shrieked.

"It's true!" he retorted, with a heartless laugh. "You were a fool not to have seen through it—the pretended marriage, I mean. What! do you think I should marry you? I, the heir to Starborough, marry the daughter of a common jail-bird!"

Her long hands had been working convulsively at her side; they darted forward and curled round his throat. (To be continued.)

281-283 Duckworth St., St. John's

GENTLEMEN.—Our shelves are now replete with the choicest goods that the West of England can produce. All parts of Old England are famed for the excellence of their goods, but more especially the West, and, as regards that undesirable "thing" called style we know how, and can give full expression to that elusive quality. We please both young and old. You can have your choice of either English or American cut. Personal supervision given each order. Give us a trial and we have a customer. Thirty years experience in the tailoring line.

The Evening Chit-Chat
By RUTH CAMERON

"Why, if I were any good at that sort of thing, I'd love to make the presentation speech for you," insisted the lady, "but you know how stupid I am that way. Get Marion Ellis."

She is the cleverest speech-maker, the wittiest talker in the club. She knows it. We all know it. And yet whenever we ask her to make a speech or do anything of that sort, she always sets up a wall similar to the above.

And then we fall over ourselves to tell her how witty she is, and to recall past successes, and to hoot the idea that any one else could possibly do it one-tenth as well as she.

After we have kept up this program for some time she weakens and finally yields.

"Why shouldn't she? She has gotten what she wanted—a large and powerful dose of praise and flattery. Of course, you have met this lady, or rather some of her type—the self-deprecators.

They go about telling their friends how homely and how stupid and how uninteresting and unlikeable they themselves are, simply in order to extract complimentary contradictions. And the pity of it is they usually get them.

Self-deprecation always poses as modesty. I suppose it may be that sometimes, but nine times out of ten it is simply a sign of a most virulent case of vanity—a shameless fishing for compliments. The bait is modesty and humility, but underneath the bait, the hook of relentless vanity for flattery almost always lurks.

"Oh, dear, I wish I were as pretty as Alice!" sighs the self-deprecator. She knows just as well as you do that she is pretty, and prettier, but she wants you to tell her so, and she thinks that is the easiest way to make you.

Do you know what your duty is if you are a friend of hers?

Not to tell her so.

If you dislike the habit of self-deprecation as much as I do—and I'm sure you do—it's your duty to help cure her of it, and the best way is to refuse to rise to her bait.

Say, "Yes, it would be nice to be as pretty as Alice," and then change the subject.

She will open her eyes pretty wide for a moment, but if she is much of a girl she will probably begin to think a bit.

If you know her well enough, you might assist the thinking process. It may hurt at the time, but it will surely help in the end.

And, by the way, while you are assisting with the mote, don't forget to look for the beam.

Ruth Cameron

Stomach Blood and Liver Troubles

Much sickness starts with weak stomach, and consequent poor, impoverished blood. Nervous and pale people lack good, rich, red blood. Their stomachs need invigorating for, after all, a man can be no stronger than his stomach. A remedy that makes the stomach strong and the liver active, makes rich red blood and overcomes and drives out disease-producing bacteria and cures a whole multitude of diseases.

Get rid of your Stomach Weakness and Liver Laziness by taking a course of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery—the Great Stomach Restorative, Liver Invigorator and Blood Cleanser.

You can't afford to accept any medicine of unknown composition as a substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery," which is a medicine of known composition, having a complete list of ingredients in plain English on its bottle-wrapper, same being attested as correct under oath.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate Stomach, Liver and Bowels.

Fads and Fashions.

Many of the new coats have the fronts cut without a break at the waist line; the back, however, is filled a trifle at the waist line and pulled into a satin or leather belt.

Hosiery matches one's bathing suit in color. Either the white or black slippers or shoes are worn; if the suit is trimmed with black, that is the color of footwear selected.

A band of insertion, or embroidery, or a stitched band of the material of the dress is a neat finish to the square collarless neck of a wash dress, whether of gingham, chambray or linen.

Among other trifles of dress that have gained in importance since the opening of the season is the sash. Special ribbons in weaves as soft as chiffon have been brought out for these sashes.

Some of the most stunning clasps for evening coats are made of large cameos. Cameos are used, too, for giving smart touches to evening gowns, serving to hold the drapery of either waist or skirt.

Vests of richly braided or embroidered satin are being worn much under the satin coat so smart to-day. For wear under the linen suits a vest of wide wale cotton Bedford cord or pique is in good form.

Hat pins and buttons of wood are among the novelties of the season. The hat pins are carved in all sorts of figures, the chandelier, of course, being in favor, the buttons are frequently colored to match the suit.

With a long shaker coat and a bonnet closely fashioned after the regulation shaker bonnet, midsy may look very demure. The shaker garb, however, is usually followed in style of cut rather than that of color.

In making a gulmpie, put the chiffon over your face instead of under. This not only is pleasing to the eye but the renovating of a yoke is simple for the chiffon is easily replaced while the lace is intact.

The chiffon elastic belt is as serviceable as any; its cost is large; dependent upon the buckle used for fastener. Of course the belts of hand embroidered elastic or those riel with designs of unusual colors and studded with semi-precious stones are expensive.

A very pretty bathing suit has the Russian blouse effect in general lines. It is of dark blue, banded with dotted foulard. The banding follows the opening at the left of the front, it also marks the waist line and edges the round neck and short caps serving for sleeves.

The mesh for summer veillings has grown so large, so open, so cobweb in design that it has had to be gin all over again. So filmy are veils that they will not hold together. The wide figures are now stretched on an invisibly fine net basis. These wide mesh figures are entirely replacing the heavy lace designs in veils.

The introduction of an odd bit of material upon a very usual dress is one of the new notes in dressmaking. There is, for instance, red felt on broadcloth—a bright flame red or an English pink—the merest patch or strip of it with a raw cut edge as the one spot of color on a shepherd's plaid costume trimmed with black satin. Chamouis with cut edges appears on another, and strange as it may seem, the dress on which it was used was a lavender linen.

Revolvers and Clubs Used in Fight in Hotel Bar-Room Sunday Afternoon.

Bangor, Me., May 29.—One of the most spectacular raids that the Sturgess Deputies in this section have figured in took place on Sunday afternoon, when the South Brewer Hotel was visited. A free-for-all fight ensued between the officers and the men in the barroom, the deputies finding it necessary to draw their revolvers and clubs. In the melee Proprietor Peter Smith, with a pair of handcuffs on his wrists, escaped, but Daniel McDonald was arrested after he had been clubbed into submission. Deputy Herman was struck in the eye with a pair of brass knuckles and painfully injured. A wagon load of liquor was seized.

MINARD'S LINIMENT USED BY PHYSICIANS.

ASTHMATICS, READ THIS.

You know attacks of asthma follow colds, and excite Catarrh of the breathing apparatus. This irritates the nervous mechanism of breathing. Asthma follows; you suffer terribly in consequence. What have you done to prevent taking cold?—only a little, probably. A very simple means of maintaining the breathing apparatus in a healthy condition is to use a few minutes each day healing, soothing Catarrhazone. Catarrhazone is a remedial, healing essence you breathe right into the lungs. Its healing vapor reaches every ramification of the bronchial tubes. Catarrhazone instantly destroys germs and at the same time relieves congestion and heals sore places in nose, throat, or lungs. In severe attacks of asthma Catarrhazone affords wonderful relief—it allays irritation and lessens force of attack. Asthmatics, be wise, anticipate the severe paroxysm of your malady. Use Catarrhazone as a preventive—it will prevent. No question about its usefulness, in asthma, it is an effective remedy. Next time you get asthma, breathe Catarrhazone for ten minutes and see how quickly it will relieve you. Once you know this, then you will by occasional use prevent recurring attacks; that should be the aim of your life. Complete outfit $1.00. Trial size 25c.

Preparing for the Passion Play.

Oberammergau Villagers Spend the Nine Years in Preparation for Great Spectacle.

It requires nine years of preparation for the villagers of Oberammergau to appear in perfect in their parts of the beautiful Passion Play spectacle for it goes without saying that it is not possible for them to sit nine years on their carving stools and suddenly, in the tenth year, appear before a public consisting of several thousands and play the difficult parts of a Christus, a Prologus, a Calaphas, a Judas, a Daniel, a Mary or a Magdalene. It is not only required that the cast should be letter perfect, but there must be a quiet and self-possessed performance—a certain dignity—comporting to the sacredness of the theme. The preparation is found in practice plays during the years preceding the tenth year of the vow. And in the course of these practice plays careful selection is made, with the result that, actors demonstrate themselves worthy emulators of the best traditions of the art.

The entire action of the Passion Play is arranged in acts and a tableaux beginning with a scene showing the streets of Jerusalem and a procession entry of Jesus. The entire ensemble of over four hundred persons forms a spectacle, the charm of which is heightened by the rays of the morning sun finding their way into open air amphitheatre. The curtain raises and shows the halls of the Temple, full of Pharisees and merchants, Jesus, moved with indignation at the sight, drives them out.

The connection between the living picture and the action would be difficult to understand if the Prologus did not explain. The spectacle of "Tobias's Farewell" and "The Manna," the pure bread of heaven, which Jesus distributed at the Last Supper, are beautiful features of the early portions of the programme as described by the Prologus in prose, and by the chorus. Led by the Choragus, in the impressive music and song scenes of the opening acts, but the more beautiful appear later in the action.

Old Time Radical Passes Away.

Goldwin Smith only survived the most exalted of his pupils one month. It will be remembered a few weeks before his death King Edward sent a message of sympathy to the Grange at Toronto, where his old tutor, Goldwin Smith, lay stricken sore from an accident which led to his demise on Tuesday last. With the death of Goldwin Smith, the last of the old school of robust independent thinkers and writers of the radical school passes away. Born in 1823 at Reading, England, he was educated at Eton and Oxford. He gained much eminence as a classical and English scholar, and became a fellow of University College and also of Oriel College. He soon made his mark in educational reform, and was secretary of two Royal Commissions of Enquiry into the state of Oxford University, where from 1858 to 1868, he occupied the chair of the Regius Professorship of Modern History. He was a keen and attentive student of current affairs and the Emancipation of American Slaves, found in him an ardent champion. In furtherance of Emancipation he wrote much, and in 1864 he visited the United States. He was warmly welcomed in the North, and Brown University conferred on him the degree of L. L. D. On his return to England he wrote two books one entitled "England and America," and the other "The Civil War in America." In 1868 he again visited America and gave lectures on England Constitutional History at Cornell University. In 1871 he exchanged this post for a non-resident professorship and took up his residence in Toronto; where he passed the remaining forty years of his life.

Here he took a prominent part in the discussion of public matters and became the best known among journalists on the American continent. He took a prominent part in educational movements in Canada and became the President of the Provincial Teachers' Association, Senator of Toronto University and representative of the Public School teachers on the Council of Public Instructions. Many of his views were peculiar, but he maintained them with great ability.

For a long time he maintained that the destiny of Canada was independence, but later he modified this into a belief that Canada would eventually cast in her lot with America.

Sudden Death at the Penitentiary.

A prisoner died suddenly this morning at the Penitentiary. His name was Albert Downs. Yesterday he was sent down for drunkenness. Yesterday he appeared somewhat delirious, but there seemed nothing the matter with him to arouse the apprehension of the wardens. This morning he was in a bad condition and about 9 o'clock he was seized with a fit and collapsed. The prison surgeon Dr. Keegan, was sent for, but before his arrival, the unfortunate man expired.

In Hymen's Bonds.

Cochrane St. Church was the scene of a very pretty wedding yesterday when Mr. Earnest Victor Wylie and Miss Isabel Parsons Nicholls were united in the bonds of matrimony by the Rev. F. R. Matthews assisted by Rev. Chas. Hackett. The bride looked charming in a costume of cream silk and carried a bouquet of Carnations and asparagus ferns. Miss Hawkins was bridesmaid and Mr. R. S. LeDrew supported the groom. Mr. Arthur Mews presided at the organ and played the Wedding march. After the ceremony the happy couple, accompanied by about 50 guests drove to Smithville where a sumptuous luncheon was partaken of and the following toast list was honoured:

Bride and Groom—Prop. Mr. R. S. LeDrew; resp. Mr. Wylie. Song—Miss Russell. Recitation—Mr. Milley. Host and Hostess—Prop. Mr. H. N. Burt; resp. Mr. J. D. Halfyard. Song—Mr. C. W. Hatcher. Bridesmaid—Prop. Mr. Wylie; resp. Mr. R. S. LeDrew. Song—Mrs. Matthews. Our Guests—Prop. Rev. F. R. Matthews; resp. Mr. J. Taylor. Recitation—Mr. W. Hatcher. The Homeland—Prop. Mr. R. A. Squires; resp. Rev. G. Forehand. All the speeches, songs and recitations were of a high order and appropriate to the occasion. After the toast list various songs and games were indulged in until 11 o'clock, when the wedding party returned to their homes after having spent a most pleasant evening. The happy couple were the recipients of many valuable and useful presents, among the number being an upholstered easy chair from the officers and teachers of Cochrane Street Sunday School, of which school the bride was a teacher. Mr. and Mrs. Wylie will remain at Smithville until Saturday, when they will take up their residence at 16 Williams Street.

Complains of Officiousness.

We learn that a captain of a local craft complains strongly of the officiousness of some officials of the Custom House. He says he answered all the questions the tide waiter who boarded his vessel had any authority to put to him, and that when he landed, and was proceeding to the Custom House, he was called into Mr. Watt's office and presented with the expression, "Here's the man." The captain explained his position, but at first he was wondering whether he was in the dominions of the Czar and whether there was any danger of being exiled to Siberia, for not submitting to petty officialdom. He complained to the superiors, who told him it was mere officiousness.

(Before the Full Bench.) Anglo-American Tel. Co. vs. Reid Nfld. Company.

Mr. Greene, K.C., moves for an order directing the master to make up the accounts referred to him, to the discontinuance by the defendant of their special wire. Mr. Furlong, K.C., for defendant. The hearing is adjourned sine die.

(Before Mr. Justice Emerson.) John Ellard vs. Mary Cantwell.

This is an action for the recovery of a piece of land at Torbay, known as Kerrivan's land. Mr. Furlong, K.C., for plaintiff, and Mr. Morris, K.C., for defendant. By consent of both parties it is ordered that judgment be entered for plaintiff for the land in question together with the costs of the action subject to the following agreement, viz.: That the plaintiff shall pay to the defendant for the use of her two children by Peter Ellard the sum of $20 in half yearly payments on the 30th of June and the 31st December of each year for ten years from July 1st, 1910, the first payment to be made on December 31st next, and on the expiration of the said ten years the plaintiff shall convey to Peter Ellard, the son of the defendant, for the use of himself and his sister Mary, all the land now fenced and under cultivation with the house thereon, being part of the land which is the subject matter of this action.

Great Doings at Manuels.

There are now 125 men employed at Manuels Beach in gathering pebbles. The work has been going on since May 18th. The pay roll up to the end of the current month, it is estimated, will be $6,000 in labor alone, and for the four months it will be about $24,000. There were 5,000 sacks filled up to yesterday. About the end of this month the first cargo of 1,500 tons will be shipped to New York, to be followed by four similar shipments before the season closes. Five sizes of pebbles are being gathered and the men make from $1.25 to $1.50 a day on contract.

Ten Days in the Fog.

The Galatea which arrived here this morning was ten days in the fog on the coast. The whole trip was made from Cadiz in 28 days. She put into Acquaforte last Monday out of the gale of N. E. wind. This is the first trip of the schooner since she was repaired and Capt. Connors and crew are well pleased with her sea-going qualities.

Florizel Arrives.

The S. S. Florizel arrived from New York via Halifax at 12.30 p.m. to-day. Capt. Clarke had a good run down expecting that it was rather foggy when making the coast. The ship brought nearly a full cargo of general goods and the following passengers in saloon from New York: Mrs. E. Kampf, Mrs. S. M. Harris, Miss E. Harris, Mr. E. K. Harris, Mrs. D. O. Gwilym, Mrs. M. C. Christian, Judge Conroy, Mr. R. Korts, Mr. O. Schwenk, Miss E. Foley and 15 in second cabin. From Halifax there were: R. A. Brehm, Ah Sing Park, Mr. F. P. Martin, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Monroe, Mrs. J. T. Gillard, Mr. E. Rogers, Mr. W. Power, Mr. E. Parsons, Mr. F. Carey, Master C. Prent, Master J. Hancock, Mrs. F. Johnson, Mrs. W. Sharpe, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Football Annual.

In this annual edited by Secretary Higgins, we find these introductory notes: The laws of the game remain unchanged. The alteration which we have been advocating with regard to confining players to one division comes into effect this season and we feel confident the results will justify the amendment. The same number of clubs as last season will appear in the fixtures, the T. A. retiring in favour of the "Casuals." We welcome the new-comers and trust they will have a successful term. A new departure is made this year by the appointment of an Official Referee. We trust that he will prove satisfactory.

Neat Show Cases.

Mr. Joseph Roper who spares not time or money to make his store attractive and up-to-date, has lately imported an elegant set of show cases which are unequalled in beauty and attractiveness by any in the city. His jewellery store is now well worth seeing.

Marine Notes.

The General Laurie cleared to-day for Brazil taking 177 tons, 3,500 half drums in all 4,000 quintals for A. Goodridge & Sons. The Dunure is ready to sail for Oporto with a load of fish for Bowring Bros. Ltd.

TO VISIT FATHER ROE.—Rev. G. J. Batcock came in by train from Holyrood to-day to visit Father Roe at the General Hospital. ASK FOR MINARD'S AND TAKE NO OTHER.

Snapshots Around the World.

(By the Man in the Moon.)

The total deficiency in the United States Treasury for the current fiscal year is estimated to be less than $10,000,000.

The Carnegie Veterans' Association has decided to have a bust of Mr. Carnegie modelled in bronze to be placed in the Carnegie Institute in Pittsburgh.

It is reported that the flag placed on Mount McKinley, on April 3rd, by Thomas Lloyd and his three companions was sighted by J. E. Baker, a fur buyer, who made out the flag with glasses from the Kautishna. There was no sign of Dr. Cook's records, however.

A young Syrian recently attempted to bribe the Customs men in New York. He had a lot of trunks with false bottoms, which concealed $3,000 worth of laces and embroideries. He tried the game at $5 at first, then raised it to $250, but it didn't work, and he was promptly arrested. At this the Syrian was surprised as he thought offering the money was the regular thing to do.

The Rev. Dr. McLaughlin, one of the most widely known ministers in Chicago, has decided to leave the pulpit and go into business. The reason for taking the step is because of his espousal of the cause of Prof. Foster of the University of Chicago before the Baptist Ministers Conference during the proceedings that resulted in the expulsion of the university lecturer from that body for holding unitarian views and giving utterance to them.

It is said that the diplomatic representatives of the United States and Chile in London have been instructed by their Governments to obtain the consent of King George to take his father's place as arbitrator of the Al-sop claim dispute between the two countries. These Governments had arranged to submit their case to King Edward, but his death made it necessary to obtain the consent of the new King before the case can be submitted.

Six months in jail was recently imposed by a New York judge on a man by the name of Schulman, because he insisted on answering "I don't remember" when being questioned concerning his assets in an insolvency proceeding. Judge Cox, of the Court of appeals, said: "As a lubricant for the wheels of memory this precedent, if judges will only invoke it, should prove very effective. Everybody knows that this notorious forgetfulness is nothing but deliberate perjury and a defiant refusal to answer at all. If there are any who believe that the trouble has actually been the falling memory of witnesses let them observe the curative power of a prospective sentence in jail."

Florizel Arrives.

The S. S. Florizel arrived from New York via Halifax at 12.30 p.m. to-day. Capt. Clarke had a good run down expecting that it was rather foggy when making the coast. Big Aeroplane Prize.

Special to the Evening Telegram. NEW YORK, N. Y., June 8. Dr. Walker, the editor of the Scientific American, announces that Edwin Gould will offer a prize of $150,000 to the first aviator who designs a twin screw aeroplane, driven by twin motors, more efficient than the present single screw type, with which all flights thus far have been made.

Suspected Smuggling.

Special to Evening Telegram. HAVANA, June 8. The capt. of the Cuban revenue cutter, which held up the British schooner, Marlon, has made an official report on his detention of her. He states she was acting suspiciously close ashore near Cape Maisi. He suspected smuggling and sent a boat with an officer who examined the manifest and cargo of the schooner, the captain offering no objections. As no evidence of smuggling was disclosed the schooner was allowed to proceed.

Coast Weather Report.

Sound Island—Plenty of herring today; sign of caplin at Arnold's Cove, little fish on trawls. St. Mary's—Caplin still plentiful; codfish in small quantities secured at Holyrood to-day; all traps not out. Fishermen would like to have a similar daily report furnished from St. John's last year. Burin—Caplin plentiful, fish scarce, wind S.S.W., foggy. Curling—Wind west, dull, moderate. Lark Harbor—Wind west, raining.

Banking Trips.

The Portia reports the following bankers with trips to date as follows: Almeida, 1,200 qts.; Hispaniola, 1,200; Mary Smith, 1,000; Campanula, 1,000; Excelsa, 700; Australia, 1,900; Portland, 350; Victoria, 350; Baden Powell, 300; Little Gem, 150; Olive, 120 qts. The codfishery north of Cape Ray is a failure. The lobster fishery from Cape Ray to Bonne Bay is fairly good.

McMurdo's Store News

THURSDAY, June 9, '10. Here are two or three suggestions for the baby's comfort and health during the warm weather: First—Do not use ordinary toilet soaps on its skin. Use a good Infant's Soap. Baby's Own and Infant's Delight Soaps can be had for 15c. a cake. Brown Windsor is only 5c. Don't use "any old Talcum." The good ones from all established makers can be had from us at 25c. Finally, if you have any suspicion of the milk you are using, drop it and use Glaxo. Glaxo is pure full-cream milk, and is absolutely germ free. Price 40c., 80c. and $2.00 a tin.—adv't.

Is It True?

Editor Evening Telegram: Dear Sir,—It is town talk that the sum of Five Hundred Dollars has been offered by one of the candidates to the Municipal Council to help defray the cost of extending the water supply in the Higher Level section of the city.

As this is a matter which interests every citizen, I hereby ask those whose business it is to come out and throw some light on the subject. No one who is intimate with the Higher Levels, can close their eyes to the great danger that exists to the whole city in case a fire breaks out on a windy day. If there is any benefit to be derived from the offer (if such an offer has been made), I think the public should be made aware of it.

Yours, CITIZEN. St. John's, June 8th, 1910.

An Appreciation.

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir,—Before leaving for our mission work in Fortune Bay, I should like to express through your columns my deep appreciation of the work being done at the General Hospital. After 11 months treatment there my wife is now fully restored and hopes soon to resume her wonted place in the home and church life. Apart from which treatment, humanly speaking, she would not now have been in the land of the living. We both wish to thank the doctors, especially the Drs. Shea, Rendell and Keegan, for the deep and constant solicitude they have manifested and for the earnest effort they have put forth in our behalf. Of one thing we are quite sure that the medical men connected with the Hospital make a conscience of what they do and that their best reward is the recovery of their patients. The nurses Southcott and Hannaford with their able staff of nurses have been throughout this protracted illness the embodiment of tender, patient, loving kindness, the remembrance of which will be to us always as the fragrance of sweet flowers. The General Hospital and the noble work being done there will ever claim our friendship and sympathy. With earnest wishes to every member of the staff.

We remain, REV & MRS. JAMES MIDDLETON.

Yesterday's Sports a Grand Success.

PROGRAMME CARRIED OUT IN A VERY SATISFACTORY MANNER.

A large gathering assembled at St. George's Field yesterday afternoon to see the Star-C. C. Sports.

The weather was cold, but the attention of the spectators was so riveted on the events going on that they were quite willing to endure the discomfort.

The C. C. C. Band entered the field with the Battalion and played the March Past which was the formal signal for the opening of the programme.

Most of the contests were very keen and the spectators did not fail to accord a due meed of applause to the winners. The C. C. C. Band played appropriate airs which added to the pleasure of the occasion.

At the conclusion the prizes were presented by Mr. T. Kelly, Chairman of the Committee, who thanked the people for their liberal patronage on the occasion especially the members of the other clubs who attended in such large numbers and to whose support the success of the day was mainly due.

Following is the programme and the names and winners of events:—

YOU NEED BRAIN FOOD.

Sure too, if you suffer from lassitude, mental tiredness, wakefulness, fears, and forebodings, lack of clearness or purpose of mind. A true brain food can only be supplied by rich red blood. When mental fatigue and weary alarm you, forget about the brain, look to the stomach and other organs. There you will find the cause. No other remedy possesses the marvellous brain, nerve and blood strengthening power that Ferronone (blood food) has demonstrated in thousands of cases. Ferronone (blood food) is not a stimulant; it does not brighten into artificial glow brain power and activity. It improves digestion, forms blood, fortifies the nervous system, hastens assimilation, gives strength to the heart and supplies a stream of vitalized blood to the brain. This is what it is, a true brain food—why is it the greatest renewer of strength and endurance known in medicine. Ferronone (blood food) is 50 cents per box.

KAISER'S ALLOWANCE.

Special to Evening Telegram.
BERLIN, June 7.—The Government measure increasing the royal civil list was sent to Committee in the Prussian Diet to-day, but not until the Socialist opposition to the measure had been vented with a freedom that raised a hubbub. The measure provides for an increase in the King's annual allowance of $500,000 with an additional sum of $275,000 for the support of the Royal theatres. All parties in the Diet with the exception of the Socialists are in favor of the measure.

CONFERENCE TALKED OF BETWEEN PARTY LEADERS.

Special to Evening Telegram.
LONDON, June 8.
A conference of party leaders, seeking a solution of the difficulty, arising from the Veto of the House of Lords is almost certain to be held very soon. King George has intimated his earnest desire that a resolute effort should be made to avoid a resumption of the struggle between the two Houses, and it is believed that Premier Asquith within a few days will take the initiative and formally invite the Opposition leaders, who are known strongly to favour the plan, to take part in the conference.

Commander Peary Sued in Germany.

Special to Evening Telegram.
BERLIN, June 8.
Immediately after his arrival here this evening, Commander Peary was served with a notice of suit that had been instituted against him in the local courts. After conferring with Ambassador Hill, regarding the matter, Commander Peary said that he washed his hands of the whole matter. He stated positively that the suit had not been brought by Dr. Cook nor on his behalf and that Cook was in no way concerned with the affair. He declined to say who was bringing the suit, but it was rumoured that it is Rudolph Francke, Cook's assistant, who is now in Germany.

A Royal Marriage.

BERLIN, June 8.
Princess Agatha Von Ratibor, one of the most beautiful women in the society of Berlin, and Prince Frederick of Prussia, second cousin of Emperor William, were married at the new palace in Potsdam to-day. Dr. Bryant the court preacher performed the ceremony, following which Empress Augusta Victoria put a crown on the head of the bride. The wedding was attended by members of Royalty. The bride is the eldest daughter of the Duke Von Ratibor, and is 22 years old. The Prince is the third son of the late Regent of Brunswick. His two elder brothers, preferring to live abroad, Frederick was appointed by the Emperor, administrator of the immense properties of the Regent.

Thirty-Two Bodies Taken From the Earthquake Ruins

Special to Evening Telegram.
CALITRI, Italy, June 8.
The ruins of Calitri and adjoining villages were inspected, to-day by King Victor Emmanuel and Queen Helena. Most of the houses in Calitri have been destroyed and the people who escaped from the effects of the earthquake yesterday are camping in the fields. Thirty-two bodies have been uncovered, while ten more are still thought to be under the fallen walls. Two were taken out in the presence of the King. One section of the town is almost completely buried, under the walls of a feudal castle which toppled over by the first heavy shock and came crashing down the hill crushing the houses below. The work is being carried on rapidly by the civil authorities and soldiers, but contrary to the experiences at Messina and Reggio no more is being unearthed alive. A two year old baby, however, was found close beside a heap of wreckage unharmed. The Duke Aosta also visited the villages and inspected the work of relief leaving to-night for Naples. The Sovereigns did not rest or sleep for 36 hours. When they departed to-night for Rome there was touching demonstrations, many of the women kneeling before the Queen. The visit of their Majesties has done much toward restoring order and confidence.

TUCKER AND SHANNAHAN AT YESTERDAY'S SPORTS.

Yesterday the C. C. C.-Star sports being on, myself and Tucker and Mrs. Tucker started out to take it in. The weather being a kind of doubtful, Mrs. Tucker with her usual cuteness put on her winter doberman and carried her second-hand parasol. As we moped along we met many old friends, people whom we often fell in chat with at the head of the pond on Regatta Day. We are certainly an amusement-loving people, for the crowd that attended yesterday despite the threatening weather clearly proved that we are hard to knock out. As we entered the field a somewhat gloomy appearance it presented. There was no lack of trying to enjoy yourself about it, but the wind was beastly cold and the flags waved in a funeral like flutter, as much as to say "Beware." The usual amount of energy was shown by the Committee in charge and they had put on their summer sporty-like walk. In fact, some of them got up early enough to take an occasional run out of themselves. We noticed some very energetic sales ladies present, who are ever ready to do their best to swell the receipts for any good movement. Many of them have seen for years at the same job, but time only seems to increase their energy in making you part company with that loose shilling in your pockets. Our friends, like Messrs. Conroy, Curran, Bennett, Thompson, Higgins and a host of others, were there attending to the items on the programme, but the evening being dull it did not propel them on to their work, and the heavy overcoats which they had on gave one the impression that it was too much like work. Still bravely did they hold the deck, though we believe they'd prefer being by the side of a stove fagging their pipes or having a game of draw. You must never admit you're cold at sports, you know, even supposing your two knees are knocking together you must look sporty. That's a part of the summer's sport (?) and must be endured calmly and without a wrinkle in your brow. The amount of work which sports like these give a committee must be enormous, and we all sympathize with them; but myself and Tucker are beginning to realize that we are not living in a country where you can be sporty with any true assurance of balmy breezes and dandy skies so early in the summer. You can walk sporty, turn up your pants and slew your cap in a regular sporty way, but when the northeast holds away it takes all the poetry out of it, and when hailstones come down sideways it makes you make tracks for a warmer climate.

The tug of war between the firemen and laborers was indeed very interesting. Mrs. Tucker stood up on the seat on the grand stand while this was on, and clapped her hands to such an extent that she slewed the "Merry Widow" of a dandy young lady, much to the annoyance of the latter. But Mrs. Tucker doesn't mind trifles like that, and the boys behind us enjoyed the sport. A young fellow whom they told me was Eric Bowring knocked all the others out easily throwing an iron ball. He had only one or two heaves out of it, but that was enough to keep the rest of them busy. The march past by the Cadets was simply grand. Every lad moved as one, and I was thinking what a grand chance the boys of today have compared with the time we were growing up. Why, in my time the only physical drill you'd get would be carrying about fifteen turns of water from a tank after school was over. That and carrying bags of shavings was our pastime. Of course, you'd have an odd game of rounders with a rag ball, or a game of cricket with a two-and-sixpenny bat, a seven-penny "red painty" ball and three broom handles cut off for stumps; but clear of that your only recreation was "takes." The old folks know what a good "take" really means, but I will not enlighten my younger friends on the subject, for 'twould be dangerous. To return to the sports, I must not forget to mention the grand exhibition on the gymnasium by Michael Comerford. It was certainly wonderful the way that young fellow twisted himself, and his pyramids with the aid of some of the cadets reflected great credit on them all.

The judges now looked cold—colder in fact and looming out of the mist I ran up against my old friend Mr. Bates. Mr. Bates is a real sport and every time I meet him he puts me in mind of the old Myrtle. "Very chilly," said I. "It is," said he, "and I'd advise you to muster your crew and head for home." When I called for Tucker and Mrs. Tucker on the stand a boy told me they had taken a short cut for Belvidere.

The Chicago Stock Co.

TO-NIGHT.

The T. A. Theatre will open with the Chicago Stock Company, one of the most capable acting stock organizations that has been seen in this city at popular prices.

The list of plays to be presented are all well known successes and each play will be elaborately staged with all special scenery and effects.

The opening play for this Thursday evening, June 9, will be the complete production of Grace George's phenomenal New York success, Clothes. This company will present the entire production used by Miss George in New York city and it will surely prove one of the most lavish productions ever attempted in this city at popular prices.

Other plays to be presented during the engagement are An Enemy to the King, The Missourians, The Straight Road, The Lost Trail, Genesee of the Hills, Men and Women, Two Men and St. Elmo.

The Chicago Stock Company has been breaking all records in New England and it is safe to predict that after the patrons of the People's Theatre see this organization this evening there will be a lively demand for seats for the balance of the week of the week.

The Fishery Question.

Light From History on the Dispute--Important Letter From W. G. Gosling, Esq.

Editor Evening Telegram:
Dear Sir,—In my book recently published, "Labrador, Its Discovery, Exploration and Development," I had occasion to enquire closely into the rise, decline and cessation of the extensive fishery once carried on upon the coast of Labrador by United States fishermen. As a result of my investigations, I became impressed with several aspects of the American fishery question which had not heretofore, so far as I am aware, been pointed out. Further inquiries, more particularly into the history of American fisheries in Newfoundland waters proper, have confirmed the theories I had formed. What these theories are I think it not amiss to make public. It is my intention to deal more particularly with the Newfoundland and Labrador part of the controversy than with that of the Dominion of Canada. Prior to the war with France, which culminated in the conquest of Canada, the adventurous New Englanders had carried on a whale fishery in the Gulf of St. Lawrence to the mouth of the Straits of Belle Isle; and as soon as peace was declared, and the coast of Labrador thus thrown open to their operations, they flocked thither in great numbers. Their vessels were fitted both for whaling and codfishing, so that if unsuccessful in the former they might make a saving voyage by the latter means.

Sir Hugh Palliser, Admiral Governor of Newfoundland from 1764-9, was grieved to find that these important fisheries were monopolized by the Colonists. In a letter to the Admiralty in 1765, he tells that there "was not one old England ship or seaman employed therein, nor a seaman raised thereby for the service of the fleet." Palliser was a most ardent naval officer, and in his eyes the supply of seamen for the fleet should be the end and aim of all British fisheries. He at once set to work to change the condition of affairs, and decided to apply to the Labrador the principles upon which the fisheries were conducted in Newfoundland. These were, broadly, to prevent the colonization of the country, and to preserve the fisheries for the benefit solely of the ship fishery from Great Britain, by which means seamen would be trained and retained in the service of England. This ship fishery was quite important at that period, being conducted principally from West Country ports, but also from the Channel Islands. The merchants who sent forth this fleet of vessels were a powerful body and used all their political influence to perpetuate the trade they had so long enjoyed.
In 1766 Sir Hugh Palliser issued a Proclamation for the regulation of the fishery on the coast of Labrador, one clause of which promised corporal punishment to any one found fishing on that coast who had not sailed from a port in Great Britain that season. The New Englanders were therefore peremptorily ordered off the coast by English cruisers, and no doubt considerable hardship was inflicted upon them. They at once sent a protest to England, and received permission to fish at Labrador "provided they conformed to the established rules of fishing." They soon greatly increased their fishing operations on that coast. Lieut. Roger Curtis, afterwards Admiral, writing in 1772, gives a very unflattering account of them. He says they were a lawless banditti, the cause of every quarrel between the Eskimos and Europeans, and whose greatest joy was to distress the subjects of the Mother Country; they swarmed upon the country like locusts and committed every kind of offence with malignant wantonness. Lorenzo Sabine in his "Report on the Principal Fisheries of North America," 1853, has overlooked this chapter of their history.

Sufficient has been said to prove that the New England colonists were carrying on a large whale and cod-fishery on the coast of Labrador up to the time of the outbreak of the War of Independence. Such was not the case in Newfoundland proper.

Acts 10 and 11, G. L., H. L., permitted all British subjects within the realm of England, or the dominions pertaining thereto, to fish at Nfld., and to dry and cure their fish upon the shores of that island. But the ship fishers from Great Britain had first choice of fishing stations, and until they were satisfied, not even the inhabitants could begin their fishery operations with any certainty of not being disturbed. It appears that this clause was also made to operate against the New England fishermen, for Sec. 4, 15 Geo. 3, Cap. 31, reads:

"And in order to obviate any doubts that have arisen or may arise, to whom the privilege or right of drying fish on the shores of Nfld. does or shall belong under the before mentioned act made in the tenth and eleventh year of the reign of King William the Third, which right or privilege has hitherto only been enjoyed by His Majesty's subjects of Great Britain, and the other British

KNOWLEDGE OF FOOD.

Proper Selection of Great Importance in Summer.
The feeding of infants is a very serious proposition, as all mothers know. Food must be used that will easily digest, or the undigested parts will be thrown into the intestines and cause sickness.

It is important to know that a food can be obtained that is always safe; that is Grape-Nuts.

A Texas woman writes: "My baby took the first premium at a baby show and is in every way a prize baby. I have fed him on Grape-Nuts since he was five months old. I also use your Postum for myself."

Grape-Nuts food is not made solely for a baby food by any means, but is manufactured for all human beings.

One special point of value is that the food is partially predigested in the process of manufacture, not by any drugs or chemicals (whatsoever), but simply by the action of the heat, moisture, and time, which permits the distaste to grow, and change the starch into dextrin, a portion of which is further changed to dextrose or grape-sugar. This presents food to the system ready for immediate assimilation.

Its especial value as a food, beyond the fact that it is easily digested, is that it supplies the needed elements to quickly rebuild the cells in the brain and nerve centres throughout the body.

Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

dominions in Europe; be it enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, that the said right and privilege shall not be held and enjoyed by any of His Majesty's subjects arriving at Nfld. from any other country except Great Britain or one of the British dominions in Europe."

But so far as can be ascertained there had been very little if any attempt made by the American colonists to fish in Nfld. waters. One very good reason was that their home waters afforded a bountiful harvest, and the Grand Banks and the Gulf of St. Lawrence supplied them with the greater part of their cod. No evidence is to be found anywhere of New England fishermen pursuing their avocations at Nfld. in the 18th century. But while there was no fishery, there was a very large trade. Numbers of New England vessels went trading to Newfoundland every season, exchanging flour, provisions, molasses, rum and ships' stores for the lower grades of codfish, which they marketed in the West Indies. This trade was looked upon with very jealous eyes by English merchants, but although many complaints were made no restrictions were placed upon it. Larkins in his report, 1702, says that American vessels were traders only and that he had known of but one fishing vessel.

In the years immediately preceding the War of Independence, therefore, the New England colonists carried on a large fishery upon the Grand Banks, in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and on the coast of Labrador, but at Newfoundland they had no fishing interests at all. The importance of this fact will be observed later.

In 1775 Lord North passed an Act through the English Parliament forbidding the rebellious colonies from fishing on the Grand Banks, with the expressed intention of starving them into submission. Naturally one of the first declarations of the Congress of the United States was that at the expiration of the war they should continue "to enjoy the common right to fish on the Banks of Newfoundland and other fishing banks and seas of North America."

When peace began to be negotiated (1779) definite instructions were given to Mr. Adams on this point.

"You are therefore not to consent to any treaty of commerce with Great Britain without an explicit stipulation, on her part, not to molest or disturb the inhabitants of the United States of America in taking fish on the Banks of Newfoundland and other fisheries in the American seas anywhere, except within the distance of three leagues of the shores of the territories remaining to Great Britain at the close of the war, if a nearer distance cannot be obtained by negotiation. And in the negotiation you are to exert your most strenuous endeavors to obtain a nearer distance in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and particularly along the shores of Nova Scotia; as to which latter we are desirous that even the shores may be occasionally used for the purpose of carrying on the fisheries by the inhabitants of these states."

No mention was made of Newfoundland for two reasons:—

(1) Because the United States fishermen had not been accustomed to fish there; and (2) because Great Britain had always particularly preserved it for their own ship fishery.

The result is traceable in the Treaty of 1783, which was arrived at after many long and heated debates when every word was fought over. The course of the negotiations need not be traced minutely, but two incidents are important. (1) Earl Shelburne declared that on no account would U. S. fishermen be permitted to land on Newfoundland shores; and (2) in the dispute as to the use of the words "right" and "liberty," Mr. Adams declared, "We have constantly been fighting in Canada, Cape Breton and Nova Scotia for the defence of this fishery, and have expended, beyond all proportion, more than you." The first instance shows that England kept Newfoundland apart from the other colonies during the discussion; and the second sets forth the chief argument used by the U. S. plenipotentiaries to prove why they were entitled to a participation in the British American fisheries; but it will be noticed that they do not lay claim to Newfoundland by reason of the martial assistance they had rendered to the Mother Country.

In passing, let it be noted that while the colonists did lend excellent help in the wars with France for the possession of North America, it cannot be said that they won them for England any more than it can be said that England won the New England colonies for them. J. R. Sealey, "Expansion of England," pertinently says, "We had ourselves enabled our colonies to do without us, by destroying for their interest the power of France in North America."

It must be freely accorded that the representatives of the U. S. did as they were bidden and negotiated strenuously, obtaining far more than the ultimatum contained in their instructions. The right of the United States to fish in the open seas was acknowledged, and liberty given them "to take fish of every kind on such part of the coast of Newfoundland as British fishermen shall use (but not to dry or cure the same on that island), and also on the coasts, bays and creeks of all other of His Majesty's dominions in America," and to dry and cure the same in any of the unsettled bays, harbours and creeks of Nova Scotia, Magdalen Islands and Labrador, etc. They claimed that they had obtained practically all the rights of fishing they would have enjoyed as colonists, which is correct. They secured rights of fishing on the coasts, that is the open coasts and banks about Newfoundland, but were not permitted to enter the bays, harbours, or creeks, or to dry fish on the shores of that island, which rights they had not enjoyed as colonists.

The term "such as British fishermen shall use" has been very generally misunderstood. Attempts have been made to prove from it that bays, harbours, and creeks, being used by British fishermen, were therefore open to U. S. fishermen. Such was not the intention. It was used to indicate that part of the Newfoundland coast reserved solely for the British, in contradistinction to that part on which the French had concurrent rights, and known as the French Shore. The reason is obvious. During the War of Independence the United States had made a treaty of alliance with France, one particular clause of which was that the U. S. undertook not to interfere with the fisheries enjoyed by the French in North America. Fishing rights on the French Shore were therefore of no value to them.

Hr. Grace Notes.

Nearly all the Labrador fleet are now left for the coast.

Some very fine codfish, and a number of salmon were in the market this morning.

The S. S. Invermore arrived from St. John's at 11 o'clock last night on the way to Labrador. A number of passengers joined her here, and after a few hours delay she continued on her way north.

Mrs. Stephen Butt left by the express last evening for Sydney, where she will spend a few months with her son, Alexander, who is settled down there. Mrs. C. Davis, of Woodville Road, left by the same train en route to Maynard, Mass., and will reside in future with her son, Nathaniel, who is in a good position there.

The chairman of the Road Board, Mr. Edmund Rogers, has a number of men on the roads in different parts of the town. We would like to draw the chairman's attention to the wretched condition of the road leading to Rocky Pond. A number of people reside on the road, and find it very difficult to get to their gardens. We know we have only to draw Mr. Rogers' attention to this matter, and he will have it attended to as soon as circumstances will allow.

Miss Flynn, late of the High School, Tilting, arrived by the cross country train on Thursday last on a visit to her many friends here.

A man under the influence of liquor caused an uproar on Murray & Crawford's wharf last night shortly after the Invermore arrived. He was taken in charge by the police, and thus the row was quelled. He was taken before Judge Oke this morning, and we hear was given the option of paying $14.00 or going down for 7 days.

Twitching of the Nerves

Wonderful cure brought about by DR. A. W. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD

It is only by watching the symptoms of nervous exhaustion and applying restorative treatment that you can ever hope to ward off locomotor ataxia and paralysis.
Mrs. E. J. Vanderburgh, of Eastern Welland Ave., St. Catharines, Ont., states:—"For twenty-one years I was badly afflicted with heart trouble, nervousness and cramps in the limbs, also twitching of the nerves and nervous headaches. I became weak, debilitated and emaciated. My condition was distressing and I was made worse through worry and loss of sleep.
"I tried a hundred remedies in vain. After having used half a dozen boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food my old troubles had entirely vanished, and I was enjoying better health than I had since girlhood."

Such cases as this prove the wonderful efficiency of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Food. It cures in Nature's way by enriching the blood and for this reason has a lasting effect. Its benefits are lasting. 50 cts. a box, all dealers or Edmanston, Bates & Co., Toronto.

8720 A PRACTICAL APRON.

A serviceable work apron, such as the one here shown, not only protects the entire dress, but is very becoming as well. It may be made with very little difficulty, and the ease with which it may be slipped on and off is a feature that will recommend it at once to the busy housewife. The bib is cut circular and slips on easily over the head, requiring no pins or buttons to hold it in place. A generous size pocket is a useful addition that will be appreciated by the wearer. Such a garment as this could be successfully made from linen gingham, madras and percale. The medium size will require 3 1/2 yards of 36 inch material for the making. Sizes—Small, Medium and Large.

"Silver Plate that Wears."
"1847 Rogers Bros."

We All Use Them
Perhaps you have seen their best days and you have about made up your mind to purchase new. You think you are sure if you ask for and receive "Rogers goods" it will be all right. You are not, however, for there are many grades of so-called "Rogers goods." There is only one "1847 Rogers Bros." brand of Knives, Forks, Spoons, etc. (note "1847"), which is the original and genuine. This same brand was used by our grandparents and is the only "Rogers" silverware which has been in use since the year 1847. Fictitious brands of "Rogers" spoons, etc., were unknown till many years later. Be sure the prefix "1847" is stamped on every article and you will get original quality.
