ACCORDING to the Bishop of London, the best test of a man's or woman's honour is the three-penny (six cent) bit. Speaking at Fulham in opening a bazaar, he said;—"Those who put a penny or a three-penny bit in the church plate when they can well afford a half-crown have no sense of honor at all." The Bishop added that it was the meanest trick for anyone to give less than one was able to afford merely because one's fellow-creature's could not see what was being

NOTE AND COMMENT.

The British warship is always on the job whenever there is trouble brewing. The pupils of the American high school near Constantinople were safe on board a warship that flies the Union Jack before the ships of their own nation had received word to sail.

It is possible that Michigan may see a vote for state wide prohibition this year. The recent granting of the franchise to the women of the State has given special encouragement to the temperance forces and they think they can win.

Among the curious suggestions of amendments to existing laws was one to regulate the length of ladies' skirts. Another was to prohibit the enclosure of pictures, flags or other things in boxes of cigarettes, which are calculated to stimulate the sale. These suggestions have been recent ly made at Ottawa.

While it is stated that less than half a hundred cases of divorce will come before ihe Canadian Parliament this session, it must not be forgotten that many Canadians settle their matrimonial troubles on the other side of the line. Between 1887 and 1906 there were 455 Canadian cases a year in the United States, or an aggregate of 8,645.

The passing of Sir Edward Clouston leaves Canada with only four resident baronets :-- , Sir Charles Tupper, Sir Edward Gordon John son, a descendant of the famous Sir Wm. Johnson, and now in the employ of the C.P.R. at Montreal; and Lord Aylmer and Lord Somers, who are baronets as well as peers. latter is farming at Pickering, Ont.

A paragraph is going the rounds about a Milwaukee dairy-farmer who has been experimenting with music on his herd of 75 pedigreed cows. The experiment was tried, we are told, with a gramaphone, "on the told, with a gramaphone, "on the theory that music at milking-time would make the cows less inclined to be nervous." In that way it was found that the milk-producing value of the herd was increased by two quarts each cow per day—a total of one hundred and forty quarts.

A new movement has been started to keep the boy on the farm. It has been decided by the Ontario Agricultural Department to hold fall fairs in connection with the public schools in all parts of the province, and those who have been endeavoring to widen the appeal of the farm to the younger generation feel convinced that the desired results will be achieved by the means now proposed. The idea was originated this year when twelve fairs were held by school children in different parts of Ontario.

THE FARMER'S WIFE.

Practical Remedy For Monotony and Lonelinesa of Country Life. We have all heard that insanity is more prevalent among farmers' wives than among women of other communi ties. This is explained on the ground of the monotony of the life. Having no interests, the woman in the counttry is likely to grow morbid and even-tually to lose her grip on the sane things of life, says Dolly Madison. One of the most practical remedies for the monotony and loneliness of farm life may be found in the forming of a club. This, in the beginning, may not be an ambitious affair. A half dozen women may get together and decide to do some one thing for their community which shall improve it, and which will give them an interest in the working out of such improvement. There is nothing which makes women feel that life is worth while like a sense of being in touch with big movements. In the city we hear much of "neighborhood houses" or "friendly" organizations and other social centers which are intended to uplift and to bring about a better understanding between the fortunate and the unfortunate. There is great need for neighborhood houses in the country, but it is on different lines from those pursued by the social settlement. In the country poverty is rarely the reason for loneliness. It is more likely to be work which keeps a woman tied to a treadmill.

The farmer's wife may make her club a place in which shall be discussed her own problems, those of the school life of her children, besides certain educational improvements. The question of overwork for farm women may be solved by the co-operation of the club in hiring specialized help. There will be more enthusiasm over vegetable gardens when there is some body with whom to compare notes Books and magazines may be exchange ed, and the problem of high prices may be met by ordering in wholesale quantities and sharing with other members.

Each neighborhood must, of course, work out its club plans along the most practical lines possible, but I know of no better example of what a club if this class may become than the history of one in the far west where the life of the community revolves around a certain house which was bought by the farmers' wives of that section. It is a country club, not in the suburban smart set sense, but in being the practical center for the boys and girls and the men and women from adjoining farms. Here the young people play tennis, here the men meet to discuss rural problems, and here the women give afternoon teas and bring together the lonely souls, who without this lit-tle house set at the crossroads might be left to languish.

WHY WASH DAY IS BLUE.

wash day is often spoken "blue Monday" because it is usually a day of hard work, followed by days of recovery from such aches as woman thinks her due. Now it has been definitely proved, says J. Howard Frick, instructor in medical correction gymnastics in the Samaritan hospital of Germantown, in the Mothers' Magazine, that washing clothes has nothing to do with making a woman feel gloomy, but that the way she does it has all to do with her after health.

The most common complaint of women after a day's washing is the terrible backache which almost compels them to go to bed. This is sometimes followed by headaches in the middle of the head and behind the eyes, which often last for days. Now, what is the cause of these after effects? Certainly ordinary work should not entail such after sufferings. The whole cause is the position of the woman while working over the tubs. The majority of wash benches are too low, and the woman must stoop over while at work. This causes the muscles over the abdomen to relax, which allows the stomach, liver, kidneys and, in fact, all the organs to fall forward out of their normal positions, causing the terrible after effects of such work.

The proper position before a tub is a perfectly erect position.

Another point of value in the erect position is the fact that the wringing of the clothes is much easier since the whole force of the arm can be used without having to exert an effort to keep the erect position.

The lifting of tubs is an entirely unnecessary labor. When they are not of the stationary kind they can be emptied by means of a siphon.

School Bag Carrying Every mother should insist that her child be not forced to carry a heavy bag to school. If it is necessary to carry the bags they should not be carried on the shoulder, so that it is possible for one side of the body to get shorter than the other side. When this is allowed to happen the spine become affected and many are the sicknesses that grow from this seeming little mistake.

The bag should be carried in the hand and often shifted from one hand to the other, often enough to prevent any tendency to stunting either side of the body. This can be explained to any sensible child, and if he does not heed the suggestion the very fact that the bag has no shoulder harness will mitigate the trouble.

However, most teachers these enlightened days have the school bag question in mind, and the bags are not so heavily laden. The carrying of heavy satchels or bags every day is certainly a great mistake and should not be allowed to continue for any length of time. Household Hints.

The way to launder a round centerpiece and keep it flat: Wash it with white soap in the usual way, wring out the centerpiece, have a piece of white muslin or a sheet spread upon the carpet, then take the centerpiece and spread it on the sheet or muslin, which should be larger than the centerpiece, pin the centerpiece all around the edges and see that it is smooth. After it is pinned out put a cover over it to keep it clean while it is drying. This is an easier and better way than ironing. Be sure that the centerpiece is dry before taking it up.

MISTAKEN THRIFT.

Don't Cut Down Table Expenses For Less Important Things.

RIB ROAST BEEF SUBSTITUTE

Breakfast Should Be the Most Important Meal of the Growing Child and the Worker by the Day-It Ought to Be Inviting and Wholesome.

Parsimony in nutrition does not necessarily imply parsimony of the pocketbook. The housekeeper who buys ready to serve food in small quantities frequently pays an excessive price for supplies which may at the same time have had their food values abstracted to such an extent that she is literally feeding her household on husks. There once fell under the writer's observation a would be thrifty hospital steward who fed the nursing staff of the hospital on chickto prepare the requisite number of gallons of chicken broth for the patients. Such thrift, by reducing the effectiveness of the working corps, defeated its own ends. Whittling down the table expenses of a household for any purpose-the purchase of a new rug or piece of furniture-is unwarrantable unless it is accomplished by the substitution of less costly but equally nutritious and digestible food supplies. The substitution of braised round of beef for rib roast is permissible; the substitution of corned beef and cabbage would leave the fastidious hungry. Breakfast is the most important meal for the growing child and the worker by the day. The breakfast should be inviting, wholesome and generous, says

Dr. Van Vleit Manning, The insufficient breakfast results in a craving which is responsible for the establishment of various unfortunate appetites-lead pencil chewing and the pickle and candy habit in the schoolgirl, cigarette smoking in the boy and alcohol in the man. An anaemic clerk of substandard weight concluded he had a tapeworm, as he felt such a gnawing in his stomach all day, and consulted a physician. Investigation disclosed that the man breakfasted at 6:45 on bread and coffee, commuted to the city, worked from 8 o'clock to 12:30, when he lunched hastily at a lunch counter, and worked the rest of the day on his nerve rather than on well nourished muscle, blood and brain.

The badly served breakfast does not invite the capricious appetite of mornirg, when a well prepared meal would induce the stowing away of enough good fuel to fire an engine, supplying heat and motive power to cool the hand and clear the head of the wage Sutorville.

It is our sad duty to chronicle the death of a highly esteemed citizen in the person of Mr. A. J. Davis, of Sutorville, which sad event occurred about 10 a.m. Tuesday, The deceased who enjoyed good health up to two weeks ago, was stricken with a severe attack of erysipelas, and although the best medical aid was in constant attendance he gradually grew worse until the time of his death. The late Mr. Davis was born at Wainfleet, near Hamilton, in April, 1866, Wainfleet, near Hamilton, in April, 1866, and was consequently in his 47th year. He received his early education in the public schools of Wainfleet and at Hamilton Business College. When quite a lad he sailed the great lakes for several seasons and afterwards conducted a general store at Tupperville, Ont. On May 20th, 1890, he was united in marriage to Eliza Smith of Tripperville, and soon afterwards reof Tupperville, and soon afterwards removed to Sutorville, where he built a small store on the corner of lot 6 in 13 Mt. comes to such and established a good home and a prosperous business. Deceased is survived by his widow and family of two sons and one daughter, namely, John, Bryan and Ruth, all at home. Two brothers, Mossia and John, of Hamilton, also survive. In those earlier days around Sutorville young men did not make their start in life under such favorable anspices as now, and the subject of our sketch worked hard to bring his business to the success which it has attained. He was a man of more than ordinary intelligence and very liberal to those in need. In politics he was a staunch Liberal and in religion was an Anglican, having held the position of vestry clerk ever since the church was built here. Many beautiful wreaths were received in honor of the deceased, among them being one from each of the following:—R. Struthers & Co., London; T. Kenny Co., Sarnia; Holmes family, Tupperville; Citizens of Watford; S. Stapleford & Son, Watford; Lillie Saunders, Letha and Beulah Saunders, and Saunders Bros., Sutorville; also one from family of deceased and one from Lo. L. Stapleford & Son, Watford; Lillie Saunders, Letha and Beulah Saunders, and Saunders Bros., Sutorville; also one from family of deceased and one from L.O.L. 1029 and Court Pearl C.O.F., of which deceased was a member. The funeral was held on Thursday at 1.30 p.m. to Christ Church, Sutorville, where the services were conducted by the Rev. S. P. Irwin, B.A., rector, assisted by the Rev. Canon Downey, Port Stanley, for many years rector of this parish. Rev. Irwin spoke briefly from a text found in Rev., 22 chap. and 5 vs. "And there shall be no night there, and they need no candle, neither light of the sun. For the Lord God giveth them light, and they shall reign forever and ever." After the services at Christ church, Sutorville, interment took place at St. James cemetery, 6th line. The pall-bearers were all neighbors, Thos. H. Lucas, Absolam Lucas, Richard Lucas, Daniel Saunders, Jacob Saunders, Richard Williamson. Mrs. Davis and family have the heartfelt sympathy of the entire community.

Those from a distance who attended the funeral of the late A. J. Davis were Wm. Holmes, Dresden, Harvey Holmes, Tupperville, John Holmes, Chatham, brothers of Mrs. Davis; and Earl Smith, her son, also William Davis and Moss Davis, of Hamilton, brothers of deceased; T. Kenny, Sarnia, and Mrs. J. L. Eadie, Co-operation in Lambton County.

Owing to an unusually heavy crop of apples in the United States and Canada the demand for fruit this year is not so keen. The Canadian West has been invaded by British Columbia as well as Washington, Oregon and other Western States. Eastern Provinces and States have contributed liberally to the Old have contributed liberally to the Old Country market with the result that Canadian apples have this year sold at somewhat reduced figures. This un-favorable condition has told most heavily upon the individual grower, who, with only a few barrels for sale, looks in vain for a buyer. The buyer does not come for a buyer. The buyer does not come for he goes to the Sec'y of a co-operative association and books 5000 barrels of apples as quickly as he could purchase 50 barrels from the individual grower.

Many orchardist not acquainted with actual conditions predict ruin for the industry and express themselves disgusted with that line of farming. Conditions do not warrant this opinion. The last census shows a decrease throughout Canada amounting to 212,562 bearing trees. Pears, plums and cherries have fallen off to a considerable extent while peaches alone show any increase over the previous census. In the West, towns and cities spring up in a night surrounded by a farming country which will never be able to produce fruit. Con-ditions augur well for the future of the

The greatest impetus to fruit growing is the confidence displayed by the largest grower in Lambton, Norfolk, Northumberland and Durham counties; they umberland and Durham counties; they understand market conditions and are confident regarding the stability of future fruit growing. One thing however must come, and that is the cooperative method of selling. It is sweeping Ontario and is responsible for the greatest apple group every pro-sale of the greatest apple crop ever produced in Lambton County. Not only does it facilitate the matter of selling but through the estimates handed in by but through the estimates handed in by the different associations the supply of fruit can be determined much more easily than where each individual acts separately in the matter. This condition vill insure a steadier market throughout the season and make the business less of a gambling game.

In evidence of the usefulness of such an organization one might cite the vicinity of Inwood. A satisfactory shipment of apples of any account was never booked at Inwood until this year when, at Inwood until this year when, through the energetic endeavors of a Fruit Growers Association, newly formed, four hundred and seventy-five (475) barrels of apples were disposed of to good advantage. Another instance can be cited in the County also where one individual made five hundred dollars (500,00) more from the crop by selling be cited in the Colinty also where one individual made five hundred dollars (500.00) more from the crop by selling through an association, rather than alone as was the old time practice. The orchard is becoming a valuable adjunct to the farm and ways and means to make it more profitable should not be overlooked. Egg circles also have done good work in many localities by supplying the market with fresh produce and returning to the farmer an increased revenue from his flock.

It is the intention of the Dept. at Petrolea to put forth every effort this winter to establish associations in districts which are not already served, and we ask all parties who may be interested to confer with us at an early date that active organization work may be accomplished this winter before the rush of the summer months renders it more difficult.

The Warning of Mr. Geo. C. Fox Is One That Should Be Heeded by All.

Few men on the road are better known than genial George Fox. whose friends throughout the West are legion in the following letter he expresses gratitude for signal services rendered by Dr. Hamilton's Pills. He goes on to say: "Until I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills and experienced their wonderful mildness and curative power, I estimated the value of every pill by its activity. Talking about this to a well-known physician I met on the train the other day, he explained there are different kinds of drugs that act upon the bowels, the most active being known as drastic. Except in extreme cases where the life of the patient depends upon speedy evacuation of the bowels pills should never be drastic. Purgatives cause catarrh of the bowels and inflammation; their dose must be increased, causing even more harm. With such a clear explanation I could see why Dr. Hamilton's Pills are curative and not irritating, why they are mild, yet most searching. "From my experience I recommend everyone that takes pills to give up the old-fashioned harsh, purging pill, and, instead, to use Dr. Hamilton's. They cure headache, billousness, constipation, bad stomach, and keep the system in perfect condition."

REBECCA'S WEAVING

A Story of Little River

By CLARISSA MACKIE ********************

In the weaving shed under the walnut tree, Rebecca Oswald sat with idle hands before the big loom. There was a pungent smell of green walnuts and the peculiar odor of rankly growing hollyhocks that latticed the window with fluted pink cups.

Rebecca's lips were curved in bitter smile as she dreamed in the mellow gloom of the shed. Her slender form, erect and motionless, was sharply outlined against the light.

Within the shed everything was immaculately clean and fresh with the penetrating odor of cedar shingles. The big loom filled one end of the room with its massive framework, and in the corners were rolls of rag carpet and several baskets filled with bright hued rag strips.

Maria Oswald paused in the doorway, her round eyes peering sharply at her sister's tense profile. "Rebecca, what the land are you doing?" she asked sharply.

Rebecca started and turned her head. "I wasn't doing anything, Maria. I was resting awhile."

The older sister advanced and sat down in a chair near the loom; her keen eyes searched Rebecca's sensitive face and her own reddened with. indignation. "I saw Ida Benjamin's boy coming out of the gate. What did he want?" she demanded.

"He brought some rags; his mother wants some mats made-for Edna," said Rebecca quietly. "Of course you won't make them," protested Maria. "I must-if I don't, Ida will say its because of Edna marrying Myron."

"If that ain't just like Ida Benjamin-the spitefulest critter that ever drew breath! Why didn't she take the rags down to Peterkin?" Suddenly Maria's disturbed countenance became an urbane mask. "Don't you dare cry, Rebecca Oswald," she added fiercely; "she's coming now!"

A shadow darkened the doorway, and Ida Benjamin entered. She was a tall, strongly built woman, with colorless hair rolled stiffly away from her sallow skinned face. Cold blue eyes were set unpleasantly close to a prominent nose hooked above a bitter mouth. She carried herself with the proud insolence of one whose weapons are always unsheathed. Ida Benja-min's keenest weapon of attack and defense lay behind the even rows of her false teeth. Now she rustled forward with an amplitude of starched

"Busy as a bee, Rebecca. I dec you're always at it, ain't you? I'll take this chair, Maria. You needn't She beamed amiably upon the sisters.

Rebecca removed her foot from the treadle and turned to the newcomer. "Robbie brought the rags, Ida. What color warp do you want?"

"White, I guess. Do you think you can get them done by the 1st of October? They are for Edna's new house and"— She paused significantly.

"Why not take them down to Peterkin? He's starving for work, and Rebecca's got all she can do," interpolated Maria acidly.

"I want nobody but Rebecca should touch them," protested Ida Benjamin. "Being Edna's wedding outfit, they are very special, and Rebecca makes such pretty mats.'

"Very well, Ida; I can make them. There's plenty of time before the 1st of October. Tell me how you want them made," said Rebecca quietly.

While the two women discussed the making of the rugs—or "mats," as they are called in Little River—Maria arose and silently left the wealing shed.

Alone with Rebecca Oswald, Mrs. Benjamin dropped the ball of rags she had been displaying to the weaver and leaned back in her chair. "Well, Rebecca, I hope you don't hold any hard feeling toward me and Edna," she said, with a malicious smile.

"We never have been intimate friends. Ida; you know that," said Rebecca proudly, "but why do you imag-ine that I should feel any especial enmity toward you now?"

For an instant Ida Benjamin's sallow face reddened; then, as if Rebecca's question offered an opening for which she had long waited, the color left her cheeks sallow and strained, and she spoke coldly and deliberately:

"You needn't pretend you don't mind losing Myron White after keeping company with him for five years. Of course he's older than Edna, but the very minute he set eyes on her he lost his heart. You can't blame him, Rebecca; Edna's so young and fresh, and you-and me, too-are not as young as we used to be. There; you needn't redden up and look so proud. Rebecca. You might as well look the truth in the face as to pretend you don't care.' "Have you got anything more to say?" asked Rebecca icily.

1da Benjamin hesitated. An eager question had burned her tongue for five years. To her coarse grained mind there was no indelicacy in the asking of such a question, but she did shrink from Rebecca's answer. She felt instinctively that Rebecca Oswald would speak nothing but the truth. Her eagerness now found vent in the question.

"Sarah Quigley says that years ago, before I married Jonah Benjamin, he courted you and wanted to marry you,

I told her it wasn't so und that he tolk er appeared to like you, but just the same it spoiled all my mourning for fim. I haven't been to the cemetery since she told me that, Did he ask you to marry him?" Ida Benjamin's voice sank to a low tone of bitter anguish, and her barsh face was distorted with an effort for control. She leaned forward, her eyes fixed on Rebecca's face.

"That's why you've been so hateful to me the last five years-because you're jealous of that?" asked Rebecca pityingly. The other woman flared flercely,

"I'm not jealous, not a mite, but I can't have it that way." Now the power was in Rebecca's hands. She could flay Ida Benjamin's suffering heart with a detailed account of how the defunct Jonah had in his youth wooed her. His doglike devotion, his obstinate refusal to take "no" for an answer, had been a village jest. These facts were weapons in Rebecca's With them she might avenge hands. herself upon this woman who had deprived her of the man she loved and destroyed her happiness through some long cherished jealousy.

Ida Benjamin was waiting for Rebecca's answer, hoping it would be a denial that she might carry forth to confound her fellow busybodies, with whom she waged alternate war and peace and in whose midst reputations were won and lost in an hour.

All at once Rebecca seemed to see down into Ida Benjamin's sordid little soul, and a revulsion of feeling swept over her. A strange light came into ner eyes as she looked at the woman standing there so curiously subdued and expectant, suffering tortures of jealousy, and she was filled with pity.

Then it was that Rebecca Oswald spoke to her enemy and told her first "Jonah came to see me a few times, Ida, but I guess he got tired of me. I want you to bear in mind he never asked me to marry him." Rebecca was quite pale when she con-

The other woman sighed relievedly. Her head went up with her accustomed insolence. "I never believed a word of it, Rebecca. I knew Sarah Quigly was lying. I suppose you're willing to repeat that before her?"

cluded.

"I think I have said enough," replied Rebecca wearily. The sunshine had faded from the pond, and the shadows seemed reflected in her face. "I'll have to be going now." Mrs. enjamin stood in the doorway looking down at the weaver, a curious hesitancy in her harsh voice and a strange expression mingled with the triumph in her hard eyes. It was almost as if she felt sorry for Rebecca Oswald.

When Rebecca was alone she stared through the lattice of hollyhocks with a strange sense of desolation. It had been a hard day. The pressure of humiliation had been strong upon her, and she had suffered. All at once she beat her fists upon the window sill with a little fury of despair. "It isn't fair and just," she sobbed. After awhile she arose and closed the window. Touching the loom with one slender hand, she looked down at the maze of purple warp blurring before her eyes.

"I suppose people's lives are like rag carpet some's plain, some's striped and others are just 'hit or miss,' with lots of bright colors. Mine's been in stripes, with lots of gray and black in between for trouble. I guess it has stopped now just as I was beginning a beautiful stripe, thinking all the rest of the carpet was going to be that rosy color. But I've got to keep on weav ing. It'll be drab colored for awhile until I get some sense into me." She dashed away the tears and straightened proudly. "I've got to weave those mats for Ida Benjamin. I've got to make them so as to pay me back for telling that lie."

The door flew open with startling suddenness, and Myron White stood there, handsome, black eyed and with black brows meeting in a heavy frown. His attitude was one of mingled shame and defiance.

"Rebecca, Maria was down to the store, and she told me that Ida Benjamin had brought mats for you to make. Where are they—here?" At Rebecca's nod of assent Myron bent down and swept Mrs. Benjamin's bags of rag balls into his arms and deposited them in a wheelbarrow he had left outside the door. Then he came back and faced Rebecca in the gathering gloom of the weaving shed.

"I'm a doggoned fool," he said bitterly. "I've gone and cut myself off from the only woman I ever wanted to marry just because—oh, I've got to tell it so's to do right by you, Rebecca. You know I was getting up courage to ask you to marry me when Ida Benjamin got after me. I don't know what she meant by it, but she said Edna was dying for love of me. Well, what could I do? When Maria told me you was going to weave mats for us I just made up my mind I'd be a man, so I've been and told little Edna all about itthat if you won't have me I don't care whether anybody else does or not. And she was just as glad as I was-said she was planning to elope with Lance Wayland anyway, and she said she hated me and my old rag mats. I can't trust myself to talk to Ida Benjamin, but I'm going to take her rags back. I won't have you making mats for her. I hope you'll forgive me for all the trouble. I guess you never want to see me again." He turned and walked dispiritedly toward the door. "I don't suppose I deserve you should forgive me," he added. Rebecca's eyes were heavy with unshed tears. She who had patiently taken up the weaving of her drab future suddenly found her weft was rose and gold. All at once her restored happiness found utterance in broken

Chinese Similes. some of the ordinary expressions of the Chinese are pointedly sarcastic enough. A blustering, harmless fellow they call "a paper tiger." When a man values himself overmuch they compare him to "a rat falling into a scale and weighing itself." Overdoing a thing they call "a hunchback making a bow." A spendthrift they compare to "a rocket" which goes off at once. Those who expend their charity on remote objects, but neglect their families, are said to "bang a lantern on a pole, which is seen afar, but gives no light below."

FOR THE OVERWORKED.—What are the causes of despondency and melancholy? A disordered liver is one cause and a prime one. A disordered liver means a disordered stomach, and a dis-ordered stomach means disturbance of ordered stomach means disturbance of the nervous system. This brings the whote body into subjection, and the victim feels sick all over. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are a recognized remedy in this state and relief will follow their

DO YOU ENJOY EATING

Or Does Everything You Eat Distress You?

Experts declare that the reason stomach disorders are so common in this country is due to hasty and careless habits of eating. Stomach troubles and run-down conditions also usually go together.

John Lind, of Oneonta, N. Y., says:
"I have been troubled with a bad stomach trouble for fitteen years, and became so weak that I could hardly, walk or do any work. My appetite was very poor, and it seemed impos-sible to get any relief. Since taking two bottles of Vinol I find that it has already made a remarkable improve-ment in my health; my digestion is much stronger, and I have gained in

Vinol makes weak stomachs strong because it strengthens and tones up the weakened, tired and overtaxed nerves of the digestive organs. Vino is easily assimilated by the weakes stomachs, and is delicious to the taste

Try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding that your money will be returned if it does not help you.

PLEA FOR COLLEGE ROOM.

Not Necessary That It Should Be a Junk Heap.

't has for a long time seemed necessary for the college girl's room to be a cross between a gymnasium and a junkshop. This is altogether a fatal idea, not only from an artistic point of view, but from the point of view of the work to be done at college, play to be played at college and health to be maintained at college. It stands to reason that in a room which is insanely furnished concentration on anything-play or work-is bound to be more difficult to attain, and from this difficulty of attainment a strain naturally ensues. Surely if there is anything to be avoided at college it is strain of any kind whatever. The sane room, then, is one answer to the question of how to overcome some of the nervous tension that seems to cause breakdowns and the relinquishing of college courses.

The sane room does not mean a colorless, prim or cold room. On the contrary, it means just the opposite. It means a room that is hospitable, warm in coloring (not hot) and consistent in design-a room, in other words, as conducive to rest and tranquillity as it is to consistent, undiverted thought and to the most enjoyable type of camaraderie, room parties and the inevitable "eats."

If the inmate of a certain room is a clever athlete all the more reason why her trophies should be housed in her room in such a way as not to cause her eyes or thoughts to wander from the tasks in hand and also so that they will not fall every time she or some one passes them. All the more, too, if she is athletic should she have-yes, should she need-a room which makes for repose and not unquiet. Far better is it for the "greasy grind" to have a might be diverted reasonably from her overconscientiousness. But even for her this kind of a room is unwise, because with all the effort and strain needed for the closest kind of application to her work she should, even as the athlete, have a room that tends to organization rather than to disintegration. Otherwise her effort is the greater, with the consequent increase of strain to her body and mind.

Here It Is, the Watteau Plait. This gown is especially designed for a voung girl. It has the clinging lines and graceful draperies that are so charming for indoor wear.

As pictured it is made of gray crepe de chine with touches of old blue and silver embroidery and a wide, draped sash of old blue silk.

The watteau panel at the back is knotted below the hips, the ends falling in sash effect over the train.

Make Your Own Tarragon Vinegar. Now is the time to make tarragon vinegar. Strip three ounces of leaves from the branches of tarragon, put them into a quart fruit jar and fill with good vinegar. Close and let stand for about twenty days, then strain and bottle for use. The best vinegar to use for this purpose is white wine vinegar, but cider vinegar will answer. The amount of tarragon used costs 15 cents and the white wine vinegar 10 cents per quart. You will have an expensive vinegar at a small cost and free from adulteration. Dry stems flavor soup.

This vinegar is used for salads and anappy sauces.

Exciting Battle With a Savage Bull In India.

A WILD SCRAMBLE FOR LIFE.

There Were Several Narrow Escapes For the Hunter That Was Hunted Before an Unexpected Climax Ended the Rather One Sided Engagement.

In her book, "Roughing It In Southern India," Mrs. M. A. Handley presents a graphic description of a thrill. ing adventure in which a member of her party played one of the star parts. It was a brilliant but unwilling engagement, and it was too serious while it lasted either for comfort or for the enjoyment of the grimly humorous phases of his enforced battle and wild scramble for his life. Mrs. Handley says:

"Although as a forest officer F. had frequently looked death in the face, he never felt so utterly helpless at the critical moment as he did in a certain adventure that he had with a bull bison. The animal took the aggressive as soon as he was discovered. F. had time only to jump behind a buttress tree.

"The bison began by chasing him round the tree till his head swam. The animal gave him not a moment's leisure in which to take aim. The buttress tree is not easy to climb, for the trunk throws out walls or buttresses all round, between which are deep recesses. To be caught in one of them would certainly mean being pinned to the tree and gored to death. "Half an hour of this exercise did not tire the bison in the least, whereas from moment to moment F. grew dizzier. Knowing that he could not keep it up much longer and that a fall would be fatal, he started to run in another direction. Quick as he was, the bull was quicker. Suddenly F. felt a touch on his back. Then he felt himself caught up by the belt and tossed high into the air. "Luckily the belt gave way, for otherwise he would have been brought down again, to be either tossed once more or gored. As it was, he was thrown to a distance, while his rifle, flying out of his hand, struck with a metallic ring on a rock. From where he lay, jarred almost into a stupor, F. saw the angry bull go up to the rifle and trample it into a ruin of splintered wood and twisted iron.

"The bison then turned his angry eyes about and advanced toward F., who thought himself powerless to stir. At the last moment, however, he managed to scramble up from under the creature's very nose.

"Near at hand were his men, one of whom carried his spare rifle. This man watched his opportunity, darted sidewise, dropped the gun into the grass and placed a stick upright beside it to mark the spot where it lay. Meanwhile all the others danced and shouted in order to distract the bull's attention.

"Running his best, F. must now needs stumble, but he picked himself up and turned round to see what was in store for him. Before he could slip to one side the bull plunged at him, knocking him down, and stood over him, with the foam from his mouth dropping into his face

"The huge brown head bent lower and lower till the bloodshot eyes were turned downward.

"F. had no time to think. He had to do whatever the moment suggested. He grasped the horns, was raised up by them and balanced for an age long second in the air; then, partly thrown, partly springing to earth, he tore ahead without stopping to look behind him.

"As he ran toward the rifle placed ready for him the pounding of hoofs behind suddenly ceased, although the bellowing and snorting were redou-bled. He turned to look, and at the same instant the men's cries turned from despair to joy. The bull had trapped himself.

"In his blind fury, heedless of his own steps, he had fallen nearly chest deep into a wedge shaped crevice in the rock, with all his feet in a bunch, and the more he struggled the tighter he stuck. It was the work of a moment for F. to seize the rifle and fire the shot that put the bison out of his mis-
