LIBERAL RALLY

Large Number Visit Bridgetown to Listen to Liberal Leaders, Premier Murray and Hon. W. S. Fielding

Bridgetown was in gala array on Saturday of last week on the occasion of the Liberal rally. Flags and banners decorated Queen street through which passed the distinguished visitors, Premier Murray and Hon. William S. Fielding, minister of finance, and other prominent politicians of the Liberal party, the carriages of the procession being preceded by the Bridgetown Brass Band. After the visitors had dined at the Grand Central Hotel, the party again headed by the band proceeded to the school grounds, where a speaker's stand had been arranged for the occasion and where the ladies of the Methodist Church had prepared for supplying the wants of the inner man for the throngs of out of town people who were glad to avail themselves of the catering thus offered. It is estimated that about a thousand people, including the townspeople, were present.

Mr. Fred R. Fay, President of the Liberal Association, was in the chair and among those on the platform, besides Messrs. Murray and Fielding, were E. H. Armstrong, of Yarmouth, R. M. MacGregor, M. P. P. of New Glasgow; Hon. J. N. Armstrong, M. L. C. of North Sydney; G. Fred Pearson and T. M. Fraser, Halifax, A. Johnston, Sydney, Col. Spurr, A. M. King, Sheriff Gates, Rev. J. R. Hart, F. R. Elliott, Dr. M. E. Armstrong, John Irvin, Dr. Burns, and others.

Chairman Fay called upon Mr. Irvin to read an address to Premier Murray. Mr. Murray followed, dealing with the history of the Liberal administration and in turn was followed by Mr. Fielding who spoke quite briefly in consequence of suffering from hoarseness. Mr. Armstrong was the next speaker and dealt quite exhaustively with the temperance question. R. M. MacGregor, M. P. P. was the last speaker, after which the speakers personally greeted all who cared to meet them individually.

After the good things provided by the ladies had received attention the crowd adjourned. Special trains conveyed the visitors eastward and westward to their homes.

Aldershot Camp

The annual Militia encampment opened at Aldershot on Tuesday, 7th inst., with three regiments under canvas, including the 68th from Kinross Co., 69th from Annapolis Co., three companies of the 17th Hussars, and one company of the army medical corps, in all about five hundred and fifty men.

The commanding officers are as follows: Colonel Humphrey, of Halifax, chief commanding officer; Colonel Roscoe, of Kentville, in charge of 68th regiment, Colonel Lecain, of Round Hill, in charge of 69th regiment, and Major Parsons, of Middleton, in charge of the K. C. H.

The camp though small in quantity is good in quality as the officers report the men an exceptionally smart lot, and fine results are expected. Every precaution has been taken to prevent disease among the men. On the arrival of troop trains all "Red-coats" were examined by medical officers and vaccinated. The grounds have been improved during the past year, several new buildings having been erected, among them being the staff offices and W. C. T. U. building. —Kentville Advertiser.

U. M. W. PRESIDENT IS UNDER ARREST.

Glouce Bay, Sept. 12.—A sensation was sprung here tonight when Daniel McDougall, local president of the United Mine Workers, was arrested on a charge of criminal libel. The charge arose it is said from an article which appeared in La Patrie, of Montreal, in which it is alleged McDougall warned Quebec men not to come here to work as the Dominion Coal Company were using men like slaves and their yards were filthy. Action was taken, it is believed, at the instance of the Dominion Coal Company. The arrest was made by Detective Carlington of Montreal who arrived at Sydney on Saturday night Carrington came to Glouce Bay this afternoon and arrested McDougall at 10.30 tonight. He was immediately placed on a special train and will, it is reported here, be taken by special train tonight from Sydney to Montreal.

St. Joseph, Lewis, July 14, 1909. MINARD'S LINIMENT CO., Limited. Gentlemen,—I was badly kicked by my horse last May and after using several preparations on my leg nothing would do. My leg was black as jet. I was laid up in bed for a fortnight and could not walk. After using three bottles of your MINARD'S LINIMENT I was perfectly cured, so that I could start on the road. JOS. DUBES, Commercial Traveler.

Necessity

(By Ella Wheeler Wilcox.)
Necessity, whom long I deemed my foe,
Thou cold, unsmiling and hard-visaged dame,
Now I no longer see thy face, I know
Thou wert my friend beyond reproach or blame.

My best achievements and the fairest flights
Of my winged fancy were inspired by thee;
Thy stern voice stirred me to the mountain heights;
Thy importunings bade me do, and be.

But for thy breath, the spark of living fire
Within me might have smouldered out at length.
But for thy lash, which would not let me tire,
I never would have measured my own strength.

But for thine ofttimes merciless control
Upon my life, that nerved me past despair,
I never should have dug deep in my soul
And found the mine of treasures hidden there.

And though I walk divided pathways now,
And I no more may see thee to the end,
I weave this little chaplet for thy brow,
That other hearts may know, and hail thee friend.

MINERS MAKING $52 PER WEEK.

As an indication of what the men the Dominion Coal Company think of who are now at work in the mines of the strike conditions and their feelings regarding an early settlement of the difficulties, the opinion expressed by two miners is a practical expression:

"Why," they said, "here are our pay checks for the last fortnight, $104 each. Two men can now make as much as four men could earn previous to the strike, and the reason is not far to seek. The men working get their coal taken more readily. The company can get fully as large an output as was obtained in ante-strike days with but 75 per cent. of the men then employed. We who are working do not want to see the strike end, as under present conditions, we are making more money than we ever did in our lives before."

"Will Cook Substantiate His Statements?"

Battle Harbor, Labrador, (via Marconi wireless Capt. Ray, N. F.), Sept. 10.—The Roosevelt will remain here three or four days coaling and overhauling ship. I expect to arrive at Sydney about Sept. 15. Do not trouble about Cook's story or attempt to explain any discrepancies in his statements. The affair will settle itself.

He has not been at the pole on April 21, 1908, or any other time. He has simply handed the public a cold brick.

These statements are made advisedly and I have proof of them. When he makes a full statement of his journey over his signature to some geographical society or other reputable body if that statement contains the claim that he has discovered the pole I shall be in a position to furnish material that may prove distinctly interesting reading matter for the few. (Signed) ROBT. E. PEARY.

Copenhagen, Sept. 11.—Director Ryberg, head of the Greenland administration, was asked today if Dr. Cook was in earnest in his attempts to send a ship after his Eskimo comparison. He replied:

"Dr. Cook has asked us to do everything in our power to send out a ship for that purpose. I advised him, but would be useless and foolish to send an expedition this season."

Then director Ryberg added: "I believe that Dr. Cook is entirely reliable and earnest. His reputation in Greenland is the best possible and it would require the strongest contrary evidence to shake our faith in his word."

Hundreds of telegrams are arriving here for the explorer and the members of the American Legation are almost buried under correspondence resulting from Dr. Cook's visit. The explorer was told that some of the newspapers had questioned his sincerity he remarked: "I hope I am not crazy but from the hysterical and foolish telegrams I am getting I should judge there are plenty of lunatics at large."

Sudden Death of Chief Engineer of Prince Arthur

(Yarmouth Telegram.)

Yarmouth was shocked on Wednesday afternoon last when a message was received telling of the very sudden death in Boston of Mr. Duncan Campbell, chief engineer of the D. A. R. steamer Prince Arthur. It appears that Mr. Campbell was hastening to board his vessel just before her time of sailing, and had turned from Atlantic Avenue on to the wharf, when he was seen to fall. He was carried into a nearby store and word sent to the steamer. Baggage master Brooks at once went to his assistance and found Mr. Campbell unconscious. Everything possible was done for his relief, but without avail, and he passed away in a few minutes.

Mr. Campbell was 38 years of age and leaves a widow and three young children, residing in their home on Brunswick street. He was a member of St. John's Presbyterian church, was of a quiet disposition, highly appreciated as a citizen, a thorough master of his profession and enjoyed the confidence of all who had the pleasure of his acquaintance.

Mr. Campbell was a native of Par-tick, Scotland, coming to Yarmouth eight years ago, and has occupied the position of chief engineer on the D. A. R. steamers Boston, Prince George and Prince Arthur running between Yarmouth and Boston.

AMEERST PAINTER FALLS TO DEATH.

Amherst, Sept. 1.—A terrible accident occurred about five o'clock yesterday afternoon whereby Isaac Milner, a painter, was almost instantly killed. The deceased had the contract for painting the Amherst Hotel, and was at work on the roof, his ladder being attached to the ornamental iron railing along the peak. A portion of the rail gave away and the unfortunate man was dashed to the year below, a distance of about 35 feet. A piece of the iron railing penetrated the back of his head, and he was also terribly cut on the side of the face and bruised about the body.

WHY SALARIES ARE PAID.

If another man gets a higher salary than you receive it is probably because he is worth more. Employers do not pick out men to pay good wages to because they have curly hair.

Spa Springs Bottling Factory Destroyed

(Outlook.)

There was a bad fire at Spa Springs on Monday which destroyed the big bottling factory of the Wil-mot Spa Springs Co. The factory was situated on the street from the factory.

At about midnight Mr. Phinney's daughter heard a team drive up to the factory and drive away again. Shortly after hearing a crackling sound she got up and saw the factory building was all ablaze. The wind was blowing directly toward the house and it caught from the factory and in a few minutes was also burning as well as Mr. Phinney's barn.

Mr. Phinney and his family and some six or eight guests at the Victoria House as it is called had scarcely time to get out before the house was a mass of flames.

A few chairs was all Mr. Phinney saved. His furniture, household supplies, hay, grain, and farming machinery were all destroyed. He had $1800 insurance.

Mr. A. J. Morrison, manager for the Wil-mot Spa Springs Co., estimates the loss of the company at $7,000. Of this $2,500 was on building, $3,000 on machinery, and $1,500 on bottles, etc. There was not a cent of insurance as it had lapsed, so Mr. Morrison informs us. This is a bad set back for a promising industry of our town.

No fire had been in the furnace for three weeks and it is difficult to account for the fire except that some person either by design or accident started it. As it appeared to be most advanced in the packing room it may have been that some person was attempting to steal and dropped a match in the litter strewn about the packing room and thus caused the blaze. Until there is a meeting of the shareholders Mr. Morrison does not know what will be the course of the company.

Hundreds Drowned in Mexican Floods

Despatches from Monterey, Mexico, state that twelve hundred persons are drowned, 15,000 homeless, and property damaged to the extent of $12,000,000, as the result of a flood which struck that city August 28th. The scene in the flood-swept section of Monterey is one of utter desolation.

For seventy-two hours rain fell in unprecedented volume throughout that section and the Santa Catarina River rose gradually until the water had a height never before attained and swept buildings from their foundations by the score. The electric light plant was put out of commission and the complete darkness was an added horror. Cries of the drowning could be heard, but the onlookers were powerless to render aid.

HOUSES TORN AWAY.

When daylight came the scene was indescribable. All through the flooded district groups could be seen huddled on the tops of two-storied houses, entirely surrounded by a tumultuous seething mass of water. One by one these houses disappeared with their human freight. Nothing could live in the wild current of the Santa Catarina River, which was running at the rate of twenty miles an hour.

CANADIANS LOSE HEAVILY.

The electric light and street railway system of Monterey, modern in every respect, constructed about three years ago by a Canadian company, in which Mr. William Mackenzie, of Toronto, is heavily interested, was damaged to the extent of approximately $1,000,000. The Monterey water and sewerage systems suffered a loss estimated at $1,000,000 or more. These were also dominated by Mackenzie and Mann.

EXCURSION TO DIGBY

Over Two Hundred Excursionists Enjoyed the Sail on the Beautiful Annapolis River and Basin

The Excursion to Digby on the steamer Granville II on Saturday last, under the auspices of the Baptist Sunday School, was an unequalled success. Notwithstanding that the day opened with a downpour of rain, and the managers were undecided about the advisability of holding the excursion, people from near and far kept gathering, and it was finally decided to venture.

The steamer left Longmire's wharf here about half-past nine o'clock under the capable command of Captain Collins. Before noon old Sol's beams gladdened the sight of over two hundred happy excursionists. Finding they would not land at Digby at the usual meal hour, baskets were opened and luncheon dispensed with before landing. At half-past one the party landed at Digby and spent an hour or so in this Mecca of the tourists.

after which they proceeded to Annapolis and spent some time visiting the historic landmarks of this picturesque town.

The day was delightfully ended by the leisurely sail along the winding banks of the river during the sunset and twilight hours, while strains of music rendered by the Bridgetown Brass Band added to the charm of the occasion. It was about half-past nine when the sail was ended, and the excursionists dispersed to their homes.

Councillor Dixon, who is Superintendent of the Sunday School, and managed the details, deserves much credit for the energetic efforts which made the occasion so successful.

It is believed that had the day opened with fairer weather prospects, the excursionists would have exceeded in number the accommodation of the boat.

Town Council Meeting

A meeting of the Town Council of the town of Bridgetown was held in the council chamber Sept. 13th, 1909, at 8 p. m., with Mayor Ruggles in the chair and councillors present as follows: Messrs. Calder, Longmire, Dixon, DeWitt, and Freeman.

Ordered that the following bills be paid, viz., Charles Berry, $5.00; Laurie Mansfield, $4.87; William Hudson, $8.50; Percy Sims, $6.00, (to be paid to A. B. MacKenzie), Charles F. DeWitt, $8.72; Caleb Veinot, $6.00; Percy Burns, $65.00, for work on water cart and $27.50 sundry services; Alden Walker, for gravel, $11.40; W. J. Hoyt, for service as presiding officer August 2nd, 1909, $2.00; J. T. Eggleshaw, for sundries, $9.70; Wm. Avar Marshall, $5.15; and that Mr. W. E. White be refunded $5.00, on water paid in advance subject to deduction of any expense of turning off or on.

Moved by Councillor Dixon and seconded by Councillor Longmire that the Town Clerk see upon what terms a contract can be negotiated with the Bridgetown Electric Light, Heat and Power Company, Ltd., for lighting the streets and report to the council. After some discussion the motion was carried.

Minutes read and approved and council adjourned.

C. P. R. PLANS LINE TO GEORGIAN BAY.

Toronto, Ont., Sept. 12.—Plans have been filed at Lindsay by the C. P. R. for part of the line from Victoria Harbor, on Georgian Bay, to Peterboro, and the next step will be acquiring of property required for the new line, by purchase or expropriation. The new road will be known as the Georgian Bay and Seaboard Railway.

Cook and Peary

The Montreal Witness reminds us that Dr. Cook is not the first explorer whose word has been gravely doubted. The story of Bruce, the Abyssinian traveller, was, we read, given the lie direct, and he was the butt of all his countrymen. But his story was eventually found to be true. Then there was Marco Polo, who travelled in the Far East in the time of the famed Kublai Khan. He was called a first-class liar for several centuries, and even now in Italy there is a ridiculous clown who tells monstrous whoppers, and who is called Marco Milioni. Not until Stanley had crossed Africa was Du Chailieu believed. Was not even Columbus doubted and abused? as was Abbe Hue, who explored China and Thibet. Humboldt himself did not escape detection.

While the general tendency is to accept without question Commander Peary's announcement of his discovery and to reserve a modicum of philosophic doubt toward his rival's claims, it must be admitted that Dr. Cook's story is in itself convincingly circumstantial and that his attitude during the controversy which has arisen has been reasonable and dignified, more so than Peary's. In the circumstances the public can well afford to withhold its decision until the scientific world has time to investigate. It is quite possible that both men are acting in complete good faith, and in a great enterprise of this kind there is glory enough for two.

A clean character is a business magnet! This is one of the business mottoes of the great store house. The strength of such an asset, daily as well as in the crisis which comes to everybody, is beyond estimate!

think I shall tell you and tell you a secret." "All right," he said carelessly. "Fire or—I mean do so, by all means." He seated himself and added dramatically, "Believe me, maiden, it shall be sacred with me." "There!" she cried in triumph. "I knew you could do it, though Harriet says flatly—just flatly—that you could not." "Couldn't what?" "Act." "Well, she's right," agreed Richard. "I can't. I've been told so before. Where do you get your strange delusions?" "Once more her big baby eyes looked toward me with a pleading glance. But you'd try it, I asked you, didn't you? You couldn't resist if I begged you—er—real hard, could you?" "Nothing short of assassination could make me refuse you," said Richard, emphasizing the pronoun and looking sadly out across the Hudson. It was wrong, of course, but he couldn't help it, and really she was pretty enough to excuse so venal a lapse. "Oh, you dear, delightful man!" chirped the little lady. "Now, listen. Don't look at the river. Look at me." "I dare not."

"Nonsense! You said you were not afraid of butterflies." "I was wrong. I am of one." "Don't be afraid of me. I won't hurt you," said the highly flattered girl laughingly. "I breathe again. Go on." "Well, Lord Croylund, we are going to have a little one act play on Friday evening, and you are in it, because you just said you would, and I know you will do it just beautifully, because I told Harriet you could, and having promised, of course you can't refuse now, when everything has been said."

"Hold on; hold on!" interrupted Richard. "The sort of losing my grip on things. Show down to a trot and let's get our bearings." This sounded very unlike an English nobleman, but the young lady in her excitement failed to notice. "You see," she began again, "the play is called 'The Man and the Bird.' You are the man, and—" "And you are the bird," completed Richard. "I thought as much. Well, go on." Miss Imogene dimpled with pleasure and applauded his quick perception. "Yes," she said, "I am the bird, and you—it's only a play, you know, of course—and you're just desperately in love with me." "I couldn't act that part. It's too real, and—" "Oh, yes, you can! I thought you wouldn't find it difficult. I'll help you." "That settles it. I'm lost." "And, besides, it will make Cornelius Van der Awe just frantic. He isn't in the cast, you know. We've put him in the audience, and he has just to sit there and be wretched. Oh, I see it. It will simply be too delicious! Don't you think so?" "Rapturous, but dangerous for me," assented Richard gravely. "Is Miss Renwick in the play?" "Why, of course she is, stupid! She's getting it up herself and has the leading part." Richard brightened. Private articles were not so silly, after all. "What sort of a part will she play?" he asked. "Oh, the serious part!" his companion advised him. "It's more real acting than mine, of course, but I like the love part best, don't you?" Richard nodded, and the debutante continued: "Harriet is the rich heiress, you know. And, oh, she's going to wear the Renwick diamonds! Her father will bring them up from the city tomorrow night. She'll look awfully stunning in them. You are engaged to her—in the play, I mean—but you'll find out that you love me best, and it's an awfully exciting scene. You and I—in the play, I mean—you and I—are in a room together, and you tell me how much you love me." "Hadn't we better practice a little bit now?" "Don't you think you could do it without practice?" "I shall need to acquire—er—restraint in the presence of such temptation, you know." "Oh, I see. I guess it won't be necessary for you to be too restrained. It's beautiful, so impassioned—the language, you understand." "I shall try to live up to it." "And just what you kiss me?" "I'm sure it would be best for us to try that in private." "Not at all. We can make believe about that part, you know." "That's not true acting." "Isn't it? Oh, we'll see about that later, and we needn't rehearse that anyway." "But I'm sure to be so awfully awkward about that. I've had so little practice in my short life." "You poor little innocent Englishman! We'll fix that later." "Oh, happy hope!" "Will you listen to me, Lord Croylund?" "I'm silent." "Harriet comes in and denounces you. Don't you think it's perfectly delicious?" "Dazzling!" "Then it's settled. I'm so glad. Come on and let's dig up more roots." Miss Imogene Chittendon proceeded to pick wild flowers. Mr. Richard Williams carried them in the four ounce basket and commended with himself. Denunciation at the present speaking was rather a sore subject with him and coming from the lips of the girl he worshipped in a one act play in which he was some one else was more than flesh and blood could stand. It had too definite a relation to his present circumstances to be comfortable. On the whole, he decided to get out of that play if he could. He did not want Harriet denouncing him, even in fun. She might have to do it in earnest later, and he did not wish her to have the advantage of a previous rehearsal. He was so sensitive, he realized, but he wanted to see her alone, to talk with her as a kind of relief from the troubles that were gathering around him in uncomfortable, sticky coils. But at every turn his innocent purpose was frustrated, and he found himself in the clutches of some one else, an inquisitor like Michael Corrigan, a character like Miss Chittendon.

He was not so occupied with his thoughts, however, as to forget a plump man's training, and during the latter half hour of his wild flower hunt he was conscious of a spy upon his trail. He had turned at some remark of his companion and had chanced to see a figure that dodged swiftly behind a boulder some fifty yards away. He had paid no special heed to the occurrence. But when it was repeated twice he became convinced that some one was watching them—why, he could not imagine. As they neared Restonville Richard wheeled suddenly and spied the figure crouching along a boxwood hedge. It seemed a very strange affair, and he determined to get to the bottom of it. So, excusing himself on the steps of the veranda, he made a circuit of the house, cut across the rose garden and vaulted a fence into the road. The hedge ended at this point, and to the vast surprise of two gentlemen, Richard came near to landing on the head of Mr. Cornelius Van der Awe.

"I've never picked wild flowers with a real nobleman."

"I should like her present fancy for you disillusioned." "Of course I'd rather set my heart on doing this role; but, by Jove, I'm going to chuck the thing and let you do it!" "Me?" cried Mr. Van der Awe, clutching at his benefactor's hand. "Oh, I say—" "Wait," said Richard. "I haven't finished yet. A young man of your obvious histrionic talent ought fairly to glitter in a part like that, and, besides, it will give you a chance to do the devoted to your life's love. Just as you are in the middle of it Miss Harriet sails in and denounces you. Oh, it's a bully little play, especially the denunciation! But you don't mind that on account of your great and glorious love for the bird. Miss Harriet's remarks just roll off you like water from a duck's back. Touching little scene! Hanged if I can see how I can give it a part, but—" He paused, sighed, then turned impulsively: "Shucks! I don't want to appear mean. The part is yours!" "For half a minute perhaps Mr. Van der Awe gazed in silence at his generous friend, beaming with gratitude. "Lord Croylund," he murmured broodingly at last, "you're a good fellow! I'll try to do the part justice. I—I don't know how to thank you." "I'm sure you will. Don't mention it," said Richard, with the wan smile of a complete martyr. "Let's play a game of billiards."

CHAPTER XII. RICHARD, much to his chagrin and disgust, did not see Miss Harriet until the four ladies and the two gentlemen sat down to luncheon. To one thing he had made up his mind definitely—he would follow Mr. Corrigan's advice and brazen it out, putting his faith in luck, but helping luck along with assurance. From the opposite side of the table the fair Imogene cast languishing glances in his direction, while on his left the ancient Miss Schermerly grew positively sprightly and covered him with a Gatling gun of perplexing questions. She wanted authentic information regarding barons, earls and noble dukes, to all of which Richard gave ready but quaint answers—answers that might have caused the English aristocracy to rise in one vast, furious mass and lynch him without formalities of trial or benefit of clergy. "How different it is from what we read in novels," said Mrs. Renwick. "I'm afraid our American authors are ill informed. Really, they ought to travel more." "They travel enough, but I fancy they do not get into the best society abroad," suggested Miss Schermerly. "I shall prepare a paper upon that very subject for the Woman's Literary League. Would you have any objection, Lord Croylund, if I quoted you as an authority?" "Not in the least," said Richard gallantly. "In fact, my dear Miss Schermerly, I should be honored—vastly so." He smiled on himself at the thought of the real Lord Croylund should that gentleman ever chance to read the paper in question, but that was Croylund's affair, not his. "I will bring my notebook into the library this afternoon," the ancient one stated, and, with a smile to Richard, "Could you help me then, do you think?" "I should be most pleased," said Richard, with an answering smile, "but I fear I'm engaged to Miss Renwick this afternoon for quite a long horseback ride. At another time I shall be charmed, I assure you."

Miss Harriet started. She was unaware of any such engagement, but somehow the idea did not displease her. She smiled and offered to release Lord Croylund, but that gentleman would not hear of it. "By the way," said Miss Harriet in order to change the subject, "Imogene tells me that you have agreed to take part in our little play. It is awfully good of you to help us out." "Not at all," answered Richard, with pronounced sadness. "It is a pleasure to serve you in any way."

Mr. Van der Awe in thunderstruck amazement stared blankly across the table, while his half raised fork fell clattering upon his plate. "Oh, I say!" he began, but Richard arrested further speech by a swift glance. There was silence for a moment; then Miss Renwick spoke: "You don't seem to be overenthusiastic at the prospect, Lord Croylund. Don't you think the part would suit you?" The Texan considered her words being continually led away from the house of his ladylove for secret conferences was growing rather monotonous. This was the fourth time in two days, and each excursion seemed to involve him more deeply in some quagmire of trouble. They sat down under a tree and for a time remained silent.

"Smoke?" asked Richard, holding out his cigar case. "Thank you, no," said the young man sadly. "I have no heart for pleasures just at present. If you don't mind, we'll get down to business."

The Texan lit his cigar and expressed a willingness to open negotiations with the enemy, while the enemy collected his thoughts and dug holes in the ground with a short sharp stick. "Lord Croylund," he began at last, "in this country openness and squareness are the first principles. I've heard that gentlemen have the same ideas in England. Is this true?"

"Very well, I'm going to ask you a plain, blunt question, without any intention of offense, and I want you to give me a straight, plain answer. Which one are you after?" Richard's cigar nearly dropped from between his teeth, while he gazed at his questioner in extreme astonishment.

"Which one of what?" he asked when he recovered himself. "The girls," said Mr. Van der Awe. "Perhaps I didn't put it clearly." The Texan tried hard to conceal his amusement and succeeded imperfectly. "Ah, I see," he returned. "Which one are you after?" "Miss Imogene," confessed the young man without reserve, "and if you don't object to my confidence, Lord Croylund, I love her as no man ever loved a girl before. It's—it's—well, hang it, it's painful!" He fell into a thoughtful pause, then looked up again. "Now, I think I've been perfectly candid with you, and I want you to be quite frank with me. If it's Miss Chittendon we can decide what to do later."

"My dear fellow," said Richard, "you can't imagine how I appreciate your openness and squareness. It throws new light upon your glorious American people. Allow me to give you a cigar and be equally unreserved. While I admit without hesitation that Miss Imogene Chittendon is a most charming and utterly desirable young lady, I beg to assure you, sir, that never for a single fraction of a second have I entertained the least idea of—in your own phrase, of going after her. Is that satisfactory?" "Entirely so," said Mr. Van der Awe, holding out his hand with the nearest approach to happiness he had yet shown. "I'm glad to know you in your true, real light. You are not a bit like other Englishmen I have met. Fact is, you don't even talk like one."

"Thanks," bowed Richard, prudently screwing in his monocle. The eyeglass always made him feel like an idiot; but, on the other hand, it gave a dash of color to his appearance with which he would have been lost. "Is there anything else in which I can serve you, old chap?" "Yes, Lord Croylund, there is. You have very kindly stated to me that you have no intention of making a bid for Imogene. That's very square of you, and I appreciate it. But would you mind telling her so?"

Richard laughed a long, free, bubbly laugh that came echoing back in merry mockery at this most ingenious proposition. "Well, he said, 'that's rather a difficult thing to do, isn't it? Strikes me as rather—er—indelicate.'"

"Not at all," protested Mr. Van der Awe. "Imogene is a sensible girl"—oh, the blindness of love!—"and would understand you perfectly. You see," he explained, "she's young. Her mind, I confess frankly, is immature. She's apt to be—well, dazzled, I might say, by foreign titles and brass buttons and things of that description. It's a woman's natural instinct, you know, and I have no logical right to blame her. You see, I have reasoned it all out and am speaking from a standpoint of superior age and experience. Now, you can't find fault with that line of thought, can you?" "Not a flaw," answered Richard gravely. "It's simply perfect. Go on."

"I should like her present fancy for you disillusioned."

CHAPTER XII. RICHARD, much to his chagrin and disgust, did not see Miss Harriet until the four ladies and the two gentlemen sat down to luncheon. To one thing he had made up his mind definitely—he would follow Mr. Corrigan's advice and brazen it out, putting his faith in luck, but helping luck along with assurance. From the opposite side of the table the fair Imogene cast languishing glances in his direction, while on his left the ancient Miss Schermerly grew positively sprightly and covered him with a Gatling gun of perplexing questions. She wanted authentic information regarding barons, earls and noble dukes, to all of which Richard gave ready but quaint answers—answers that might have caused the English aristocracy to rise in one vast, furious mass and lynch him without formalities of trial or benefit of clergy. "How different it is from what we read in novels," said Mrs. Renwick. "I'm afraid our American authors are ill informed. Really, they ought to travel more." He smiled on himself at the thought of the real Lord Croylund should that gentleman ever chance to read the paper in question, but that was Croylund's affair, not his. At another time I shall be charmed, I assure you."

Miss Harriet started. She was unaware of any such engagement, but somehow the idea did not displease her. She smiled and offered to release Lord Croylund, but that gentleman would not hear of it. "By the way," said Miss Harriet in order to change the subject, "Imogene tells me that you have agreed to take part in our little play. It is awfully good of you to help us out." "Not at all," answered Richard, with pronounced sadness. "It is a pleasure to serve you in any way."

Mr. Van der Awe in thunderstruck amazement stared blankly across the table, while his half raised fork fell clattering upon his plate. "Oh, I say!" he began, but Richard arrested further speech by a swift glance. There was silence for a moment; then Miss Renwick spoke: "You don't seem to be overenthusiastic at the prospect, Lord Croylund. Don't you think the part would suit you?" The Texan considered her words thoughtfully, fumbled for his monocle, got it into position after another gymnastic exercise with his left eye and sighed elaborately. "The part," he stated, with a slow drawl, "is delightful as I understand it—but—shall I be perfectly candid, Miss Renwick?" "The ladies in a breath assured him that that was just what they wished, so he continued, struggling with embarrassment: "I've never gone in for that sort of thing—but once and confess with regret that I caused a fiasco. I'm very stupid at such things—really, you know, abominable. It is rather the duty of a guest to comply with the wishes of his hostess, and I feel it incumbent upon me to make a trial of the role, even if the outcome holds me up to open ridicule. We Englishmen appear a bit eccentric to Americans, I am fully aware, but nevertheless it hurts at times when—"

He paused and looked at his plate in deep confusion. Miss Harriet blushed furiously. She had wounded her guest unwittingly and was sincerely sorry. Lord Croylund, she thought, was acting very nobly in thus sacrificing himself for the sake of her foolish whims, and she ought to have consulted him first of all. She made up her mind at once and turned to him impulsively. "Lord Croylund," she said, "you are to believe me when I say I never thought for an instant of giving you up to ridicule. Would you give me? It was splendid of you to agree, and—there—we won't have the play at all!"

"But, my dear Miss Renwick," Richard protested, "if you abandoned it on my account, I should feel frightfully cut up if you abandoned it on my account. Do go on with it. Perhaps I shan't be so jolly had after all. I—All four ladies immediately took up the cudgels against him until his polite protests grew weaker and weaker, finally subsiding in a suggestion that relieved the situation from every point of view.

"Why not have Mr. Van der Awe do the part?" he asked, with a beaming smile directed at that young gentleman. "You'd do it splendidly, old chap, and I shall be uncommonly obliged to you."

Amid a chorus of approval the young lover accepted blushing, while Richard not only freed himself of a hateful task, but became a hero and a genius in the eyes of the entire party. As they passed out of the dining room Cornelius plucked Richard's sleeve and whispered: "See here; I thought you said you couldn't act?"

"Can't," returned the Texan, with a sly wink. "That was what you Americans call bluff, but if you let on I'll wring your neck."

The Earl of Croylund proceeded to take the offender by the scruff of the neck and kick him soundly through his host's baronial halls, repeating the attention until his valet reached a point somewhere beyond the Renwick's front gate, but on second foremost he changed his mind. First and foremost he wanted information. There would be time enough for that later.

"Well, Bills," he began, with a dash of sarcasm in his voice, "for a recently employed servant you seem to be doing remarkably well."

"Yes, sir," returned the valet, with the utmost complacency; "I'm doing nicely, thank you." He helped himself to another goblet of liquid cheer and held the glass between his eye and the light. "This 'ere brandy, sir, is equal good as wot we's on the other side. Your judgment's better than the earl's, sir. You 'eath, sir."

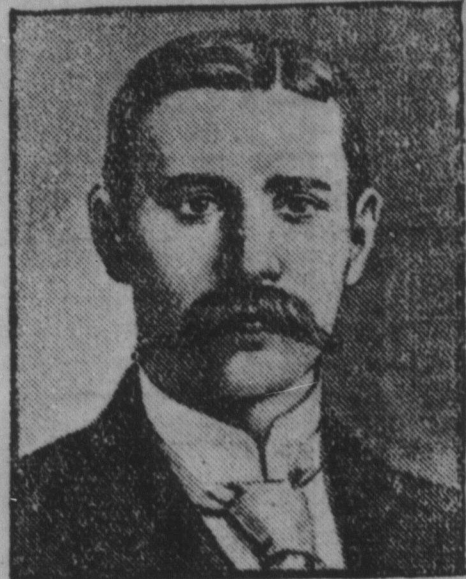

Richard stuffed his clenched hands deep into his pockets, staring at all his might to keep them from the impudent scolar's collar. What did it mean? However, there was nothing to be gained by violence, while much could be learned through the exercise of a little tact. Therefore he curbed his rage and spoke calmly. If Bills had known the Texan better he would have realized that when he was most quiet he was most dangerous.

"Might I inquire as to the reason of your present condition?" asked his master. "Yes," answered Bills airily, but nevertheless in quite open defiance; "ne'er an' you 'as got to part company, Mr. Williams."

"Ah!" "Yes, sir." The murder was out. The man's manner of address implied many things which Richard was as quick to grasp as to appreciate their consequences. Bills might drop a bombshell in the Renwick household by a mere mention of the name of "Mr. Williams." A confession on Richard's part would be bad enough, but to be forced to admit the accusation of a servant would be infinitely worse. Bills, too, seemed aware of the situation and was determined to make the most of it, as was shown by his next remark.

Our Big Boys—How to Win Their Confidence

The "big-boy" age is full of the subtlest and sweetest opportunities for the strengthening of the bond between mother and son.

A well-brought-up boy usually at this period regards all women with a kind of wonder, half awe, half worship, and his mother heads the list.

It is a phase of the boy's development which will pass away; but it is, perhaps, the most critical time in the lad's whole life, and one when, by the very law of nature, he is peculiarly sensitive to the mother touch.

One lad of sixteen, who had never before given a thought to his personal appearance, suddenly developed anxiety about the prominence and color of his nose, which, from much outdoor sport, was of a very ruddy hue.

A political speaker was attacking the Government of the day with more venom than reason. A man at the back of the hall last cried out: "You're wrong, sir!"

While campaigning in his home State, Speaker Cannon was once inveigled into visiting the public schools of a town where he was billed to speak.

In one of the lower grades, an ambitious teacher called upon a youthful Demosthenes to entertain the distinguished visitor with an exhibition of amateur oratory.

"But, hush! hark!" exclaimed the youngster—"a deep sound strikes like a rising knell! Did ye hear it?"

The visitors smiled, and a moment later the second sneeze—which the Speaker was vainly trying to hold back—came with increased volume.

This was too much, and the laugh that broke from the party swelled to a roar when "Uncle Joe" chuckled "Put up your weapons, children; I won't shoot any more."—Success.

There are probably few better raconteurs alive than the Duke of Argyll, and in his memoirs he has told some inimitable stories.

DEATH IN A SCRATCH.

Simple Injuries with Serious Results.

Morris Quatzam, an eleven years old Windsor boy, has just died as the result of a scratch on his wrist.

Poison entered the wound, which was caused by falling off his bicycle, and despite the physicians, the boy died. Such incidents as these—by no means infrequent—ought to make people realize the danger that may lie even in the smallest flesh wound.

Take a simple illustration. When a dirty knife, a rusty needle, a splinter of dirty wood, a barbed wire fence, or a thorn, scratches the hand, the latter is inoculated with germs, of which the air about us is full.

When the invading germs are too strong for Nature's defences, in a few hours the finger will become hot and throbbing. A little later the wound may exhibit a whitish appearance in the middle of the swelling, and we have what is known as a festering or poisoned wound.

The way to avoid such serious results is to cleanse the wound and apply Zam-Buk. Zam-Buk is a powerful yet painless germ killer, and when applied to the broken skin is absorbed into the tissue, instantly destroying the germs that spread disease and inflammation.

The flesh is thus soothed and purified, the wound made perfectly healthy, and all poison and cause of festering removed. Having done this, Zam-Buk then proceeds to heal the wound or sore with new healthy tissue, in a quick, painless and perfect manner.

Zam-Buk must not be confused with ordinary ointments. Zam-Buk is a unique preparation, possessing anti-septic, soothing, and healing qualities that are not to be found together in any other preparation. It is not only a unique healing balm, but it is also a skin food. For all skin diseases and injuries—cuts, bruises, burns, eczema, chafing, ulcers, ringworm, etc., it is without equal.

HYSLOP BICYCLES Bicycles are rapidly coming back into popular favor, the demand this year being five times what it was five years ago. We have planned for it in two ways—by getting the very best English wheel we can for popular selling, and saving to our customers all intermediate profits by filling orders direct by mail instead of through agents. In this way we can offer $50 Wheels for $25 and give better satisfaction all round. The quality of the wheels is all right—only the best materials used and only skilled mechanics employed in construction. The equipment is right up-to-date and the machines throughout are such as we can thoroughly recommend. We sell automobiles as well as bicycles and our plan is to make wheels serve as a good advertisement to the entire business. Send for illustrated folder. WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 15, 1909

The question of lights for our streets came up before the Town Council again at their regular meeting on Monday evening last and a resolution was carried authorizing the Town Clerk to consult again with Mr. Beckwith to obtain any concession possible from his terms as previously given.

We suggest that a public meeting should at once be called to get the voice of the people in the matter. There is not much doubt that the people want the light, and if they cannot afford to pay for the plant at the owner's valuation, they cannot longer afford to haggle upon the question of one or of half a dozen more lights.

A radical change in the course of studies in the schools, designed to give the pupils a more practical education, has been adopted by the city of Cleveland, Ohio. A letter from that city says:

BENTLEY-DUMARESQ.

A wedding which was altogether out of the ordinary in regard to the surroundings in which it took place, occurred at Kent Park, Prince's Lodge, at 6 p. m. Wednesday.

The wedding took place at six o'clock. About fifty guests from the city arrived on the 5 o'clock train and others from the village were present.

The decorations of the piazza were particularly pretty. Ferns, flowers and flags were used to good effect and lights were hung in among the lovely decorations.

The bride's appearance was in keeping with the surroundings. She looked particularly charming in a dress of cream silk.

The ceremony was performed on the veranda of the pretty residence. The grounds are beautiful at any time, but dotted as they were by colored lanterns along the borders of the walks, they looked quite fairy-like.

The decorations of the piazza were particularly pretty. Ferns, flowers and flags were used to good effect and lights were hung in among the lovely decorations.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. F. Newcomb, pastor of the North Baptist church. Rev. Dr. Lockhart, of Manchester, N. H., uncle of the groom, assisted in the ceremony.

After the ceremony the party entered the house, which was tastefully decorated with flowers and autumn leaves and candles. Here an elaborate collation was served by a city caterer.

The presents were numerous and of great beauty in many instances. The bride is very popular in a large circle of friends and acquaintances and the presents indicated the high esteem in which she is held.

The groom's present to the bride was a necklace of pearls and amethysts. The bride's present to the groom was a solid gold watch chain.

The staff of the Union Bank at Bridgetown sent a handsome cut-glass water set.—Halifax Herald.

Bridgetown, N. S. Empire Liniment Co., Limited. Dear Sirs,

Your Capt. Burns gave me a bottle of your Empire Liniment at the Grand Hotel, Sydney, C. B. At the time I had contracted a very severe cold which settled on my lungs, and which confined me to my bed.

A generous application of Empire Liniment on a flannel cloth relieved me so much I was able to go home the next morning and my Doctor tells me I broke up a severe case of Pneumonia.

I consider your liniment a splendid remedy and I have placed an order for your goods in my drug store and will push it on its merits. Yours very truly,

The marriage of Mr. Burton De Wolfe Nelly to Mrs. Elizabeth Miller Griffin is announced to take place tomorrow, the 16th inst.

Invitations are out for the marriage of Miss Leonora Bell Lloyd to Mr. Alfred Osborne Morse to take place on Wednesday, the 29th inst.

The household furniture of Mrs. N. V. Munro was sold at auction on Saturday last, and Mrs. Munro left on Tuesday for Norfolk, Va., where she has recently purchased a home.

The lost coat advertised in our last issue has been returned to the owner, the finder leaving it at this soon after the appearance of the advertisement.

Unless heavy fall rains come soon the town reservoir will be depleted of the necessary supply of water. Citizens should be careful that there is no waste or leakage on their premises.

Dr. Jost has presented the Bridgetown School for its cabinet of curios a huge maple leaf from British Columbia, sent him by a friend. It would make about twenty of the maple leaves that grow in Nova Scotia.

The Nova Scotia Press Association met at Amherst on Thursday and Friday of last week and united with the New Brunswick and P. E. I. Associations, forming a Maritime Press Association. A detailed report is crowded out of this issue.

The marriage of Manager Bentley, of the Union Bank here, to Miss Jessie Dumaresq, of Halifax, took place on Wednesday last. Mr. and Mrs. Bentley on their return from a trip to American cities will occupy Mr. Beckwith's house, lately vacated by Mr. Elliott.

The Wolfville Tennis Club met the Bridgetown Tennis Club last Wednesday afternoon on the Bridgetown Court, our home players suffering a defeat by nineteen points. The Annapolis Club will again meet Bridgetown on the Court here on Saturday afternoon next.

The Granville Centre, Belleisle, Round Hill and Clarence Divisions met with Olive Branch Division on Monday night. An interesting program of dialogues, recitations and readings was given, and refreshments of ice cream and cake were furnished by Olive Branch Division.

About fifty American and Canadian press correspondents who have been awaiting Commander Peary's arrival at Sydney for some days have put to sea in the government steamer Tyrina in an attempt to intercept Peary's steamer, the Roosevelt, on its way to Sydney, where a royal reception is in preparation for the explorer.

Bridgetown shone forth in all its old-time brilliancy of well-illuminated streets on Thursday evening last, the occasion of the Liberal rally. Citizens wondered if the lights had come on to stay, but investigation proved that the illumination was a gratuitous benefit on the part of Mr. Beckwith. They reappeared also on Sunday night as church services closed.

Dr. H. S. Davidson, of Columbia University, former pastor of the Gordon Memorial Presbyterian church in Bridgetown, has been offered the directorship of the Oriental department of the Astor public library, New York, during the absence of Professor Gottbell, who, for the coming year, is to be the director of the School of Archaeological Research at Jerusalem.

Rev. F. M. Young, of Parrsboro, a former pastor of the Bridgetown Baptist Church, occupied the pulpit here on Sunday last and will also preach here and at Centrelea on the coming Sunday. Mr. Young is accompanied by Mrs. Young and child. They are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Reed, and are welcomed by many other old friends.

An exchange says: "Yesterday morning when the freight train from Annapolis arrived at Kingston Station it was found that a number of pigs, which were put in with a car of cattle, were injured. The entrails of one were protruding from the wounds made by the horns of the cattle. Others had their legs broken." We trust none of our local live stock shippers were responsible for this.

ALLAN LINE ABSORPTION BY THE GRAND TRUNK

Liverpool, Sept. 12.—A report sent the Grand Trunk railway's absorption of the Allan line is generally credited in shipping circles, for some such move has long been contemplated. While it is believed that definite terms have been provisionally agreed upon, it is questionable whether any official announcement can yet be made, owing to the existing arrangements as to mail carrying between the Allan line and the Canadian Pacific.

Later inquiries show the deal, so far as arranged, is to transfer the fleet business of the Allan line from H. and A. Allan, Glasgow, to H. and A. Allan, Montreal, a statement which is not at variance with the denial of the original announcement. There seems, it is stated, little doubt that H. and A. Allan are acting in conjunction with the G. T. R.

FISHERMEN MAKING $20 A DAY.

Boston despatch: Fishermen sometimes receive large pay as their share of a vessel's catch on a shore trip. A case of this kind was reported yesterday at T. Wharf. The men on the Edith Silveira, Capt. Silveira, shared at the rate of $20 a day for a three days' cruise to Middle ground and almost within sight of land. The schooner's fare weighed 73,000 pounds, of which 60,000 pounds was cod, and brought about $1400. Nearly all of the fish was taken to Gloucester. Last week the same vessel stocked $1500, the men of her crew sharing $54 each. The Silveira is fitted with fourteen dories, her men fishing single with six tubs of trawl to a dory which makes her large catch in such a short time remarkable.

TO PROHIBIT STEAM TRAWLERS.

Boston, Sept. 2.—The possibilities of co-operation between the United States and Canada looking into the eliminating of the French steam trawlers which have played havoc with the tackle of the Canadian and American fishermen, and harried the sea of the common fishing grounds off Newfoundland, was the subject of a conference in this city today between Congressman Augustus P. Gardner, of the sixth district, and A. K. MacLean, a member of the Dominion Parliament for Lunenburg, N. S. Mr. MacLean expressed himself as hopeful that something favorable might come of the conference.

QUEEN STREET, BRIDGETOWN

THE HOME

KEEPING WELL AND YOUNG.

Careful dressmakers say that the left arm of the average woman is shorter than the right, doubtless because it is less used. Physicians tell us that the appendix had once some purpose in the body, but through disuse has fallen into its present unenviable position as a menace to life; and arguing from these things, we may confidently look forward to the age of the lungless man.

Probably not one in a hundred persons makes proper use of his lungs. If only deep breathing were taught in the schools, and practised as faithfully as piano lessons, we should speedily hear less of the "great white scourge." Not only does deep breathing of pure, fresh air improve the general health, but it straightens the form as well, puts youth in the face and color into cheek and lip that can not be rivalled by the most cunning French rouge. The busiest housewife loses time by dropping her work and stepping out for a dozen deep-breath breaths five or six times a day. "As free as air," we say, and then exclude it from our houses and lungs as carefully as though it were pestilent.

An exercise said, among other things, to induce deep breathing, recommended by Ernst Haeckel, the scientist, is simply stretching up, up, up, as if one were reaching for fruit on the branches of a tree, or setting dishes on a high shelf. He explains the chief value of this exercise by saying that the internal organs have a tendency to drop with increasing years, and that this simple motion—a natural one, by the way, as most of us "stretch" on rising—serves to lift and keep them in proper position.

Even though we are not Christian Scientists, we must admit that their dictum, "Think health," is a most wise thing. Mental and physical health depends far more on what we think than many of us care to admit. Too many of us are living cramped lives. A "pot-bound" plant will not blossom, and pot-bound lives such as many of us lead, will bear no lasting fruit, and we fade mentally, physically, spiritually. For our own sakes and for the sake of those about us, we should make enjoyment part of each day's duties. To be happy does not necessarily imply that we must be idle. After all, play is only work that we like.

Stretching the body up is a good thing. So say all who have tried it. So let us think health, youth, happiness, and so stretch our minds up, up, up, until they, too, stand on tip-toe, and all the troubles of today that seemed so mountain high fade away, for only by dropping our cares shall we attain any measure of that spirit of youth which has been the quest of the ages.—Elizabeth Hayes.

MANNERS AND MANNER.

"Who would have her child loved by others—and who would not?—should not allow him to do unlovable things," says a child-lover. "It is a sorry thing for a grown person to have to be always thinking about his manners," says one who knows by experience.

The child who is not taught good manners is handicapped all along, deprived of privileges, because he is constantly offending others' feelings, rousing their dislike. Moreover, he is very apt to be under-rated, counted out, by first-class people, both in social and business circles.

By good manners here is meant not merely compliance with the rules of etiquette, but also that grace of manner which comes from a thoughtful, kindly, courteous spirit, from knowing how to deal with people on the basis of the Golden Rule.

Sometimes parents, conscientious ones, act on the principle that the child ought to be allowed to follow his own natural bent; that the little crudenesses will of themselves disappear as time goes on and the child comes to where he realizes the advantage to be gained by being polite and making himself agreeable. This idea touches upon the principle of individuality that must have its place in the training of a child, but there is such a thing as going too far with any one principle. Individuality isn't good for much if it will not survive reasonable training. True, some people can and do improve wonderfully when they begin to see what others do, but how many and many a person of high ability, real genius, of true character-worth, has suffered from a sense of unfamiliarity with the ways of the well-bred, from a consciousness of unpolished manners and manner!

We know that, other things being equal, the child who begins the study of music early has far greater certainty of coming to success in music, to ease and grace in execution, than does one who begins late. One who is taught to speak correctly from infancy doesn't have to stammer and hesitate and be ashamed in the presence of those who know how to use correct English. He can speak well without thinking. There's the great advantage for a child in being "to the manner born": in having the "minor morals"—as manners are often so aptly called—ingrained into one's life while he is growing, so that they may become "second nature" to him. If one has always known and practised good behavior, he doesn't have to be "always thinking about his manners": he can be mannerly without thinking.—N. Phillips.

ONE LITTLE BOY.

I used to sit with idle hands,
As if all life were play,
As one who counts the hour-glass sands
To while the time away.
Now I am busy as can be,
And leisure time employ
By darning holes in stocking knee,
For just one little boy.
By heaven's first law my house was kept!
The brass was polished bright,
Each room was dusted well and swept;
It was a pleasant sight,
But now mud tracks are on the floor,
And with them many a toy,
And finger marks upon the door,
Tell of one little boy.

Once quiet reigned, or silvery sounds
Of music filled the air,
Now tramp of many feet resounds,
And, clanging up the stair,
March martial bands, with life and drum,
All flushed with pride and joy,
Behold! at 'double quick' they come,
Led by one little boy.

Time was I pondered Browning's verse,
And Walter Pater read;
Of Ibsen I could once converse,
But now—a tired head
Is cuddled close at 'story time,'
When evening shadows fall,
And I am wise in nursery rhyme
And fable, that is all.

Once when I tucked him into bed,
He hugged me tight, and then:
'What would you sell me for?' he said.

I kissed him once again
And answered, 'Not for diamonds,
Nor gold without alloy;
Not all the wealth of all the worlds
Would buy my little boy.'
—'Good Housekeeping.'

FERN LEAVES AS A FOOD PRESERVATIVE.

On many farms in this country there are areas, more or less extensive, covered with ferns. This plant has not been regarded as of value, except for decorative purposes, but it has a practical value of which few people are aware. A United States Consul reports that in parts of England fern leaves have long been employed in packing fruit, fresh butter, etc., for market. Formerly grape leaves were used for this purpose, but the fern leaf is said to be far superior to that of the vine for keeping articles wrapped in it fresh and whole some. The fishermen of the Isle of Man pack their fresh herrings in ferns, which keep the fish fresh until it reaches market. Potatoes packed in ferns keep many months longer than those packed in straw. Fresh meat also is preserved for a protracted period when swathed in fern leaves. It is said that the preservative quality of the fern is due to the large quantities of salt in its composition. The strong odor of the fern also repels larvae, maggots, etc.—Leslie's Weekly.

THE SHY CHILD.

The first important step toward helping a child of this kind is to give her self-confidence, even if you run the risk of making her vain and conceited. She needs a little wholesome praise to make her feel that her playmates will like her. Make her look as attractive as possible, and tell her that she is attractive; see that she is trained in all the arts and—traces that will make her attractive; send her to dancing school. As she gets older see that she excels in games, in athletics, in anything that will give her confidence in herself when she associates with her schoolmates. If she is going away to school or college give her lessons on the banjo and guitar so that she can join the banjo and guitar clubs. If she has any talent of any kind by which she can entertain her friends help her to develop it. She must be taught to feel that she can help others to have a good time and that consequently she is welcome among them and liked by them. Once that feeling is established the battle is won.—Harper's Bazar.

MOTHER'S SMILE.

It is true, as some writer has wisely observed, that "It is the mother's sunny smile that starts the day happily, or her frown that mars the day for members of her household. In order to command love and respect, mother must, first of all, have full control of her temper; must be able to appear happy under trying conditions; must have learned to govern herself; and have reason to respect herself, or she will fall where she should reign supreme."

Not an easy task—may, a difficult one at times, and one requiring the divine patience that God gives to some wives and mothers. There is many a great moral victory back of the mother's smile, back of her self-control, back of the careful guard she puts upon her tongue. No mother ever reigns worthily in her own little home kingdom without achieving a great many moral victories and without winning the approving smile of God.—Faith Fenton.

Children delight in dabbling in water, and this proclivity may be utilized by giving them some little things which really need to be washed in soapsuds, or scrubbed with small brushes. An oilcloth apron and rolled-up sleeves will insure the child from a wetting, with ordinary caution and care. With common little blocks and chips from the kindling pile, children may lay out villages with make-believe houses, gardens and public buildings. Imitative work is usually best pleasing to child-minds. Let them make something or do something which is like grown-up work and it is most diverting.

Pulling out long basting threads may busy an embryo seamstress, while drawing tacks may employ a boy. A child's own choice is often suggestive.—Julia H. Johnston.

THE WOMAN AT HOME.

The nature of a child is trustful and truthful, and it becomes otherwise only through the corrupting influence of those older than itself.

Worry, ill-temper, haste, laziness, overwork, selfishness, egotism and distrust are in many cases bad habits in the nerves.

The new veil is much shorter and narrower. The most popular are the fine chemise-dotted ones.

When cleaning house use plenty of turpentine in the scrub water. It means certain death to moths.

Keep the wax coated boxes in which crackers are packed, for they make excellent polishers for floors.

Extract onion juice quickly by cutting an onion across and pressing it against a coarse grater. Move it a little and the juice will run.

MY GARDEN MUST BE BEAUTIFUL.

(By Anna Temple.)
My garden must be beautiful;
For when the shadows play
In length'ning shapes along the wall,
And comes the cool of day,
Perchance my Lord might come to see
The place where roses bloom for me.

And if He asked to come within
This house of mine to rest,
How fair and sweet the rooms
Should be
For such a wondrous Guest!
'Twere better far to keep them so,
Lest He might come before I know.

And if He stayed for friendly speech
As he the light of day,
How should I know to talk with Him,
Or holy things to say,
Unless my soul acquainted be
With some of Heaven's mystery?

PLASTERING A CUT.

Court plaster should be used with care. If the injury be very slight the method of application is unimportant; but if it is at all deep, like a cut, never use the plaster to cover the cut. Simply cut long narrow strips and apply them across the cut to bring its edges together. Then the secretions of the wound can escape. Never apply court plaster to a bruised wound. Times without number do we see a wound become a painful sore by being covered with court plaster. Its whole use is to bring together and hold together the edges of the cut, or to protect an irritated but unbroken skin.

TABLE MANNERS.

Table manners stamp each individual as nothing else can do, giving at once an unerring indication of social standing and training. Dress does not matter, crockery is of no consequence, plated silver is as useful as solid, and linen may be coarse or fine but these who sit at meat together should be uniformly courteous and kind.

LIFEBUOY SOAP is delightfully refreshing for Bath or Toilt in hot weather. For washing under-clothing it is unequalled. Cleanses and Purifies.

Lawrencetown.

Miss Edna Marshall spent Sunday in Digby. Misses Pearl and Nellie Morse spent part of last week in Annapolis. Mrs. Green, of Bridgewater, has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Bent. Mr. Lancaster, of Halifax, is relieving Mr. Palfrey while on his vacation. Dr. A. L. Bishop and wife, of Conn. are guests of his mother, Mrs. W. Bishop. Miss Bancroft, of Digby, has been the guest of her uncle, Mr. S. E. Bancroft. Mrs. Dunlop and daughter, of St. John, have been recent guests of Mrs. Archibald. Miss Ada MacLeod, trained nurse of Boston, is the guest of her niece, Mrs. S. C. Hall. Church services, Sunday, 19th.—Baptist, 11 a. m.; Episcopal, 3 p. m.; Methodist, 7:30 p. m. Messrs. Wheelock and Dr. Richardson have returned to Yale and Brown Universities, respectively. Mr. Ogilvie, of Massachusetts, returned home last Saturday, after spending his vacation at the guest of his aunt, Mrs. C. H. Daniels. Miss Chute, of Bridgetown, was in town this week, previous to her fall millinery opening. Miss Chipman, of Tapperville, takes charge again this season.

Upper Granville

Mrs. Hunt has gone to Boston, where she intends spending the winter. Miss Mina Chute, who has been living in Whitman, Mass., for some time past, returned home and is at present with her sister, Mrs. Adam Clarke. Mrs. Robert Munroe, of Digby, has been at the home of Mr. Samuel Mack for some time, the critical illness of her father, Mr. James Fellows, calling her thither. Numerous visitors throughout the Valley are weekly returning to their various occupations in the United States, none the worse for enjoying the free outdoor life and liberal hospitality of Granville homes. Mrs. L. D. Fash left on the 10th inst. with her daughter, Mrs. Gainer, to visit her son, Rev. Zenas Fash, at Hillsboro, N. B. Mr. Gainer preceded them two weeks ago and will now continue his journey with wife and son to Strathcona, Alberta.

Albany.

Some from here attended the Centennial at Nictaux. Mr. Harold Oakes and Mr. Frank Whitman have gone to Aldershot. Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Prentiss recently visited his sister, Mrs. Letitia Halsey, Lakeville, Kings Co. Mr. Roy Balcom and Miss Annie Fair attended the Convention at Paradise, as delegates from this S. School. A pie social was held at Mrs. Lemuel Murray's recently. Sixteen dollars was realized toward Mr. Roy Balcom's salary. Miss Hiltz, of East Dalhousie, is teaching the school in South Albany. The north section has not yet obtained a teacher. Miss Elsie Oliver and little brother are visiting their relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Murray, also Mr. and Mrs. Charles Whitman. Rev. A. H. Whitman and family have returned to their home at Billtown, Kings Co. The former preached here very acceptably on Sunday, 5th. Mrs. Edward Holden and Mrs. Edward Oakes, who have recently spent three weeks in the States, returned on Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Whitman, have returned to Lynn. Mr. Rufus Sheridan, of Framingham, Mass., came on Monday, 6th. He is spending a few days with his parents and will accompany his wife, Etta Carl, and Miss Richardson home on Saturday, 18th. Rev. George Whitman returned to Washington, on the Pacific Coast, last Friday. He will remain there with his family until Christmas when he expects to start for China again, where he has been a missionary for a number of years. He is the youngest son of Deacon Daniel Whitman.

A SPRAINED ANKLE

As usually treated a sprained ankle will disable the injured person for a month or more, but by applying Chamberlain's Liniment and observing the directions with each bottle faithfully, a cure may, in most cases, be effected in less than one week's time. This liniment is a most remarkable preparation; try it for a sprain or a bruise, or when laid up with chronic or muscular rheumatism, and you are certain to be delighted with the prompt relief which it affords. For sale by W. A. WARREN, BRIDGETOWN, A. E. ATLEE, ANNAPOLIS ROYAL and BEAR RIVER DRUG STORE.

Annapolis.

Mr. and Mrs. A. M. King left on Tuesday for a visit to Boston. Mr. Isaac Harris, of Boston, is on a visit to his sister, Mrs. T. Patton. Miss S. Hardwick, assistant post mistress, spent the week end in Halifax. Miss C. Whitman left for Windsor on Saturday for a short camping trip. Mr. William Hardwick, of Boston, is visiting his brother, Mr. G. A. Hardwick. Mr. L. V. Harris, of Bear River, spent the week end with his mother, Mrs. A. Harris. Mr. Hal Atlee left for Halifax on Monday to resume his studies at the Halifax Medical College. Mrs. R. W. Hardwick returned Saturday from a three weeks' visit to friends in Guysboro County. Miss McGivern, of St. John, and Miss Johnson, of Dartmouth, are the guests of Judge and Mrs. Savary. The Harvest Festival at St. Luke's will take place on October 3rd. Mrs. Byers will be the soloist for the day. Miss Kathleen Cutler How returned on Saturday from Sydney where she had been the guest of Mrs. Allan Jost. Mrs. Maxwell is on a visit to Adirondack, having been called there owing to the sickness of her daughter-in-law. The members of the Annapolis Royal Tennis Club held an enjoyable corn-bowl at Lover's Lane on Monday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Edgar McCormick drove through to Maitland on Tuesday, intending to spend a few days in that vicinity. Miss Alice Copeland, of the O'Connor store, Halifax, is spending her vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. Copeland. Mr. and Mrs. Walter French and Mrs. French's mother, Mrs. Dargie of Rosbury, Mass., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dargie. Mr. Thomas Clark, assistant inspector of the Union Bank of Halifax spent a few days in town last week inspecting this branch. Mr. and Mrs. Huggleson, who have been visiting the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Simon Riley, returned home to Boston last week. Mr. Ned Brittain, who has been spending the summer months with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Brittain, returned to Boston on Friday. Rev. and Mrs. McNeil have returned from their annual vacation and Mr. McNeil on Sunday again conducted the services in his church. Mr. George Harris left on Monday for New York where he will enter some preparatory school with a view to entering Harvard University. Mr. Blanchard Ralph, who has been a resident of this town for the past year, returned to his home in Andover, N. H., on Thursday last. Miss Grace Robinson, who has been summing on the Kennebecasis River N. B., returned home last week, accompanied by her cousin, Miss Dorothy Kinnear. Mr. Sam Pickup, who has been on the G. T. P. railway survey, at McGivern Junction, N. B., returned home Monday, accompanied by his friend, Mr. Robie Stallard, of St. John. Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Chase and Miss Lucy and Mary Chase, who have been spending the month of August at the Milford House, spent Wednesday and Thursday with Dr. and Mrs. Horsfall on their way home to Wollaston, Mass. On Sunday evening, the Rev. Dr. Lyman, of Brooklyn, N. Y., one of our summer visitors, again occupied the pulpit of the Presbyterian Church here. The church was seated to capacity. The doctor preached a practical and instructive discourse on the "Transmitting of our failures into service." The intensity of the preacher held the rapt attention of the audience. On Friday last a pleasant picnic was held at Three Bridges where Charlie Hoyt, the organist of St. Alban's, was the guest of honor. The younger people had many games, and seemed to thoroughly enjoy themselves. Before the merry party broke up, Rev. H. How presented Charlie Hoyt with a substantial token of the regard in which he is held by his large circle of friends. Charlie goes to Boston on the 14th. On Sunday, St. Alban's was filled by a congregation which celebrated the Harvest Festival. Many bushels of lovely cut flowers, as well as potted plants and choicest vegetables, adorned this pretty house of prayer. Charlie Hoyt was at the organ for the last time. The choir was reinforced by some local singers. Simpler's Anthem, "Gracious is the Lord," was sung. Mrs. H. R. McKay took the solo very nicely. The service was, by request, repeated on Monday evening.

Bear River.

Mr. Procton returned to readyby on Saturday. Mrs. Carrie Peake returned to Boston on Wednesday. Mrs. Thayer arrived on her usual annual visit last week. Mr. Laurie Nicholl, of Boston, is visiting friends in town. Mr. Harold Crouse went back to St. John on Saturday. Misses Alice Rice and Blanche Purdy drove to Annapolis on Sunday. Mr. Charles Meuse is visiting relatives after an absence of five years. Capt. George E. Purdy and Edward Riordan arrived home on Thursday last. Mrs. Frances Ann Harris, who was taken suddenly ill on Monday, is improving. Mr. Henry Hennigar, Boston, arrived on Monday last on a visit to old friends. Mr. William Rice returned to his home at Somerville, Mass., on Wednesday last. Mrs. Frank Ray arrived Monday on visit to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall. Mr. Elisha Balcom, Annapolis, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. John Purdy. Mr. B. C. Clarke and daughter, Miss Gladys, went to St. John on Thursday last. Mr. and Mrs. Whitehead returned to their home, East Jeffries, N. H., on Saturday last. Miss Mary Milberry went to Boston on Wednesday, where she expects to spend the winter. Dr. Herbert Rice will have charge of Dr. Lovitt's practice during the latter's vacation in the woods. Mr. O. H. Ford and family went to Maitland for a couple of weeks where they will visit Mr. Ford's parents. Mr. A. C. Dunn crossed the Bay in the S. S. Bear River last Thursday from St. John, on a business trip. Messrs. A. B. Marshall, Ralph Purdy and Dr. Fitzmaurice went in the woods on Tuesday on a moose hunt. Mrs. (Capt.) Mathews, who has been here visiting her husband during the loading of his vessel, returned home Monday. Mrs. Harrington and daughter, Miss Marjorie, who have been guests of Dr. and Mrs. Lovitt, returned to Kentville on Saturday. Dr. Lovitt and family and W. G. Clarke and family are taking a vacation in the woods and will try to capture some of the monarchs of the forest. Tern schr, General Laurie, (Mathews), sailed down river in tow of S. S. Bear River on Tuesday, loaded with lumber for Grenada, shipped by Messrs. Clarke Bros. Mr. J. Edgar Lamoreaux, representing the O. H. Warwick Co., Ltd. of St. John, was in town the latter part of last week with samples of staple and fancy goods for the Xmas trade. Mr. L. V. Harris left on Saturday for Annapolis. After a day or two in that town he expects to take a trip to Sydney, the drug store in the meantime being in charge of Mr. McNeil. Messrs. Wallace and I. Wilkie Rice, Atlee Clark, Weston Harris, Rupert Harris, William Lent, Avard Marshall, M. E. Armstrong and Payette Tupper are among the number who are after moose this week. On Saturday last, Dr. Lovitt, assisted by Dr. Herbert Rice, performed an operation on little Carl Schmidt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Schmidt, by removing a growth from the throat. We are pleased to state that the little fellow is doing well.

Annapolis.

Given in the parlors of the Mill House was certainly a treat for those who ventured there on Friday evening. Mrs. Lyman's reading of three of the chapters of her forthcoming book, "If I were you and other things" was splendid and the subject matter of her essays showed her to be a deep student of life and character. The Misses Brock assisted with a solo, duet and musical selection. The collection added seventeen dollars to the Presbyterian Manse Fund.

BEST TREATMENT FOR A BURN.

If for no other reason, Chamberlain's Salve should be kept in every household on account of its great value in the treatment of burns. It allays the pain almost instantly, and unless the injury is a severe one, heals the parts without leaving a scar. This salve is also unequalled for chapped hands, sore nipples and diseases of the skin. Price, 25 cents. For sale by W. A. WARREN, BRIDGETOWN; A. E. ATLEE, ANNAPOLIS ROYAL, and BEAR RIVER DRUG STORE.

Belle Isle

A number of our young men are at Kentville with Capt. A. J. Bustin attending drill. Mrs. (Rev.) Ernest Underwood is visiting friends this week at Belleisle, Centre Granville and Young's Cove. Miss Gladys Paine, who has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Dodge the past few weeks, returned to her home in Halifax last Saturday. The young ladies of the Bible class of St. Mary's purpose having a picnic, on Saturday, the 18th, on the grounds of Mr. R. L. Dodge. They hope to meet a large number of their friends on that enjoyable occasion. Capt. W. C. Collins of the steamer Granville, with Mrs. Collins and children, made an over Sunday visit to Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Fraser. A few days previous, Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Milner, of Bridgetown, were guests at their hospitable home for a short visit. The Rev. George Johnson, of the Wesleyan Church, holds divine service at the new hall here on alternate Tuesday evenings. He preached a very powerful and impressive sermon on Tuesday evening last week. They also hold prayer meeting there on every Sabbath evening. Among the many beautiful homes through the Valley, very few, if any, present a more beautiful appearance than the double residence of Mr. James Waugh and his son-in-law, Mr. George A. Bunt. They have remodelled the old home, adding new wings, one on each end. Externally it is finely finished and in its rich dress of paint an ornament to the locality. They have it furnished with all the modern improvements and it is, indeed, a typical home of the "well fixed farmer" of the Valley.

Hampton.

(Sept. 9th.)

Mr. Jasper Titus returns to Bellaire, Ohio, on Sept. 9th, via Boston, Buffalo and Cleveland, taking up his former position with the Pennsylvania Railroad, as telegraph operator. On Friday, Sept. 3rd, a party of our young people enjoyed the day on a picnic at Port Lorne, the mode of conveyance being a large hay wagon tastefully decorated with small and large flags. A very pleasant day was spent, and the party returned home by moonlight, late in the evening. A large party of young people were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Titus on Monday evening, Sept. 6th, in honor of their son, Jasper, who returns to resume his duties with the Pennsylvania Railroad at Bellaire, Ohio, on Sept. 9th. A large party of Port Lorne's young people came by the way of the straw-wagon route. An enjoyable time was spent, luncheon being served during the evening. Everyone departed satisfied with having spent a very pleasant evening. Our annual Sunday School picnic was held on Friday last. Miss Hattie Brinton, of Lynn, is visiting her friends here. Judson Foster and wife are visiting friends in Aroostook Co., Maine. L. D. Brooks and wife took a trip to St. John last week per Ruby L. Edward B. Foster and wife were visiting friends in New Germany last week. Mrs. Bessie Hutchinson, of Matapan, is the guest of her grandmother, Mrs. Brinton. Hennigar Foster, of Lynn, is visiting the home of his nativity, after an absence of nine years. Mrs. Beech has returned to her home in Windale. She was accompanied by her sister, Mrs. John Templeman. Lizzie Milberg, of New Hampshire, is visiting her parents. She was accompanied home by her cousin, Mr. Milberg's home. John E. Farnsworth took a trip to Lynn last week, combining business with pleasure. Mrs. Farnsworth went as far as Digby and visited friends until his return. Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Southward, of Boston, are visiting Mrs. Southward's sister, Mrs. W. H. Foster.

Arlington

Mrs. Silas Banks is recovering from her recent illness. Several of the young men from here are attending Camp at Aldershot. A number from here attended the political meeting at Bridgetown last Thursday. Mrs. Charles Brinton was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Stirk one day last week. Mr. and Mrs. Byard Marshall and Miss Edna Marshall, of Outram, and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bishop and daughter, Pearl, of Williamston, were visiting at the home of Mr. Howard Messenger recently.

Port Lorne

Service for Sunday, 19th, at 7.30 p. m. Mrs. William Phinney and child, of Lynn, are visiting friends here. Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Armstrong, of Mount Hanley, were in town over Sunday. Our tourists have left for their respective homes and the village seems quite deserted. Mr. and Mrs. John Hall, of Lynn, Mass., are visiting Mr. Hall's brother, Mr. Israel Hall, and other friends in this place. Mrs. G. L. Pearson, of Paradise, and Miss Patterson, of Horton Landing, were guests of Mrs. Freeman Beardsley on Friday last. Mrs. Mary Congdon and son, Harry, are visiting her father, Capt. John Anthony. We are sorry to report the captain's health very much impaired. A few of the young people went to St. John on the excursion, S. S. Ruby L., Friday. The weather was all that could be desired and though we did not get back as soon as we expected (not returning till Saturday evening) the time was pleasantly spent in calling on old friends and in visiting different points of interest about the city. Prof. P. J. Smith and family left for their winter home, Nutley, N. J., on Friday via Ruby L. to St. John. These friends will always be remembered for their work in connection with the church and choir. As a result of their influence and help, a chancel has been built for the choir and the Canadian Baptist Church Hymnal placed in the church for the use of the congregation. Previous to their leaving, the members of the choir met at "Fundy Lodge" and presented Mr. Smith with an address and a set of military brushes, after which refreshments were served and the evening spent in social conversation and parlor games. We look forward to their coming next year.

North Williamston

Service here on the 19th, at three o'clock, by Rev. Mr. Hart. Mr. McFarlane, of New Brunswick, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. John Moore. Mrs. Harry Beals and baby, Marjorie, of Holden, Mass., arrived on the 6th. Miss Elsie Durling, of Leominster, Mass., is the guest of her aunt, Mrs. W. M. Charlton. Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Warner, of Middleton, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. O. DeLancey, on the 10th. Mr. Thomas Moore left for his home in New Brunswick last Saturday, after spending a week with friends here.

St. Croix

Mrs. James Hill is spending a few weeks among friends in New Germany. Mrs. J. H. Kneear and friend, Mrs. George Vincent, have returned to Halifax. Mrs. James H. Burke and daughter Inez have returned to their home in Keene, N. H. Mr. and Mrs. John Hall and son, Karl, of Lynn, are visiting relatives in this place. Joseph F. Hall left last week for the United States, where he will remain the winter.

Margaretville

Mr. and Mrs. Cabot Devoll and Miss Simpson, of Lowell, Mass., are visiting Mrs. Gertrude Harris. Mr. Bradford Magranahan is spending his vacation with his mother, Mrs. Amanda Magranahan. Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Blair and Miss Lottie Landers have returned to their home in Dorchester, Mass. A very successful pie social was held in the schoolhouse on Thursday evening for the benefit of the school. Miss Minnie MacLean, one of our very clever young ladies, has gone to Truro to take up the A. studies at the Academy. Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Balcom and daughter, Georgie, and Miss Annie Stronach are spending their vacation at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Judson Balcom, Lawrencetown. Mr. Robert Wilkins, a very respected citizen of this place, died at the home of his son, at Farmington, a few days ago. His remains were brought here for burial. Mr. Levey Gordon, of South Carolina, arrived on the Ruby L., and on his return will be accompanied by his sister, Miss Alice, who has been spending the summer with Mrs. Jas. Aldred.

WHY?

From a small beginning the sale and use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has extended to all parts of the United States and to many foreign countries. Why? Because it has proved especially valuable for coughs and colds. For sale by W. A. WARREN, BRIDGETOWN; A. E. ATLEE, ANNAPOLIS ROYAL, and BEAR RIVER DRUG STORE.

Smith Cove

(Sept. 7th.)

Miss Nellie Sullis visited friends in Digby last Sunday. Miss Bessie Weir has gone to Weymouth to visit friends. Charles Hunt, of Boston, is visiting his father, Mr. William Hunt. Mrs. Joseph Weir has made some improvements to her residence. Mrs. Gesner and Mrs. Edward Hunt of Granville, visited friends here last week. The Misses Longley and Sanford, our two teachers, spent Labor Day at their homes. Mrs. H. H. Sullis did a good ice-cream business this season. She turns out a fine article. Mrs. N. H. Raymond has returned from New York to spend a further vacation of several weeks. Buyers are picking up what elder apples they can for shipment to the different vinegar factories. Mrs. R. A. Sumner, of Providence, R. I., who has been visiting Miss Addie Cummings, has returned home. The apple growers are beginning to look around for barrels, and shipments of apples will soon commence. Mrs. M. Sullis reports a big business this summer. The patronage she receives as a result of tourist travel is growing. Mrs. T. J. Gunn and Miss Gunn have broken up housekeeping in their summer quarters and have returned to their homes. The most of the summer visitors have left for their homes, and people are settling down to the usual winter routine. Mr. and Mrs. Byron Lingley and Mr. and Mrs. Sancton, who have been summing at Wobensla Lodge, have returned to St. John. Mrs. E. Winchester is happy at the news of the arrival in New York of a little grand-daughter, born on the 6th inst. to Mr. and Mrs. Lovitt Winchester. Mr. George W. Potter has rented his house and bungalow for next season to New York families, the rental for both places being three hundred dollars for the season. Squire Isiah Wilson will soon be touring the western part of the county in the interest of Division work. The squire will endeavor to revive a number of Divisions that have been dormant for some time. Mr. Charles L. Merritt is expected home on a vacation the latter part of this month. When he returns to the States he will be accompanied by a bride, who is one of our popular girls. Mr. Merritt holds a lucrative position in Worcester, Mass., as operator with the Boston and Albany railroad company.

GOOD FOR BILIOUSNESS

I took two of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets last night, and I feel fifty per cent. better than I have for weeks, says J. J. Firestone of Allegan, Mich. "They are certainly a fine article for biliousness." For sale by W. A. WARREN'S, BRIDGETOWN, A. E. ATLEE'S, ANNAPOLIS ROYAL, and BEAR RIVER DRUG STORE.
