BRITISH PANAMA EXPOSITION DECISION

Decision of the British Government Should Arose No Resentment from the United States

The decision of the British Government in definitely declining to take part in the Panama Canal Exhibition, is hardly to be wondered at, and it certainly should arouse no resentment towards Great Britain on the part of the people of the United States. The action of certain "slick" politicians at Washington, who dragged the fair name of the country of Lincoln and Washington in the dust at the behest of the shipping ring's lobby, is responsible for the course now taken by Great Britain, and if there is any resentment in the matter it is upon the heads of these politicians that it should be visited. Great Britain and Canada and every other civilized country will rejoice with Uncle Sam in the completion of this monumental task, which adds a new and greater wonder to the Seven Wonders of the World. But it would be a most undignified proceeding for Great Britain to join officially in the jubilation of Uncle Sam's "slick" politicians over the event. That would be to announce to the world that Great Britain was quite ready to countenance the action of those politicians, and to invite all other nations under treaty obligations to go and do likewise.

THE COSTS WERE HEAVY IF THE FINE WAS LIGHT.

Bridgetown, July 31.—Stipendiary Magistrate John Irvin, K. C., was today the recipient of an anonymous letter from a Halifax lady enclosing a cutting from The Herald of the 28th, taking him to task for the light fine he imposed in the recent case of cruelty to a horse. The following is a verbatim copy of the letter:—

"Halifax, N. S., July 30.—"In reading the enclosed I was utterly horrified to see that such an act of cruelty should be treated so lightly by you. The fact of imposing such a trifling fine proves it. A good lashing would have been the mildest punishment I should have given the brutal man. I hope he will have no luck in his future life and get what he deserves for his cruelty to one of God's dumb animals. As I am a member of the S. P. C. Society I feel I have a right to say what I think is my duty. A fine of three dollars is absurd for such a crime. To His Honor Stipendiary Magistrate John Irvin.

Asked what he thought of the letter and its writer, the Stipendiary remarked that he considered the writer a very zealous and well-meaning advocate in favor of the rights of the lower creation, and he only wished there were more such earnest laborers in the effort to protect the dumb animals. The light fine was taken in connection with the heavy obligations of their country that "The canal shall be free and open to the vessels of commerce and of war of all nations observing these rules, on terms of entire equality; so that there shall be no discrimination against any such nation, or its citizens or subjects, in respect of the conditions or charges of traffic, or otherwise." No nation can afford to forget that these same politicians have refused even to submit the question to arbitration. And no action can afford to forget that these politicians have from sheer shame allowed the general treaty of arbitration with Great Britain, previously initiated by President Taft, to lapse. There need be no ill-feeling between the British people and the people of the United States over the matter. We know that the action of the administration at Washington has never been more bitterly denounced than in the United States itself. The leading papers of that country, the leading ministers, and all who are in a position to express the feelings of the same and self-respecting masses of the populace of the United States, have expressed their indignation and their shame at the action of the political minions of "the interests." We have too much faith in the people of the United States to believe that they will do ought else but approve the action of Great Britain, in declining to jubilate, as being the only signified action that a self-respecting and treaty-respecting nation could take under the circumstances.

costs, the constable having to go to Kings County for the man. And again that the object of the law is as much punitive as preventive. As the man could not pay a greater total—$23.10, and the town and County would not allow him to go to jail at their expense, it was thought proper not to increase the amount.—Halifax Herald.

EASTERN-CANADIAN CITIES.

Montreal, Aug. 2.—That eastern Canadian cities have enjoyed a rapid growth in the past two years is the belief of the compilers of Lovell's directory, issued today, and generally accepted as a standard at least equal in authority to the Dominion census. Every eastern maritime city of importance has shown an advance in population, according to Lovell's which furnishes the following present estimates: St. John, N.B., 67,000; Halifax, 55,000; Sydney, N.B., 22,000; Moncton, N.B., 14,000; Charlottetown, P. E. I., 13,000.

The directory gives greater Montreal a population of 652,533, or without the suburbs, 568,033.

Sixty-six pulp mills are now operating in Canada. In 1912 nearly 2,000,000 cords of pulpwood were cut of which forty-seven per cent was manufactured into pulp or paper by domestic mills.

SCHOOLS AND HEALTH

(Virginia Roderick in 'Everybody's.')

About seventy-five per cent of fifteen million, of the twenty million school children in the United States, have physical defects. This includes the ten to fifteen million with bad teeth, five million with defective vision, six million with enlarged tonsils, adenoids, or enlarged cervical glands; five million with nose, throat and ear troubles; the six hundred thousand who are tubercular; and five million who suffer from malnutrition often partly due to other defects.

To remedy these defects, and to prevent the ravages of epidemics, medical supervision is an obvious necessity. Yet of 1,308 cities (nearly ninety per cent of the total) recently studied by the Russell Sage Foundation, only forty-three per cent have regularly organized systems of public school medical inspection, and in only 214 of these cities does this include a complete physical examination conducted by doctors.

A thousand doctors are employed where many thousands are needed. Only sixty-nine cities have expert dental inspection. Five hundred school nurses—a recent phase of medical supervision—are doing a splendid work for both school and home, and an increase in their numbers is one of the best hopes in this field.

Medical supervision, of course, has a constructive side, which should be developed; school doctors, should be essentially doctors, of public health, teaching pupil, teacher and parent—yes, and janitor—to ride the "hobbies" of modern medicine; fresh air, pure water, plain food and recreation. On this side they join hands with the score of agencies specifically directed to keeping well children well.

Chief among these is the sanitation of school buildings by improved plumbing, better architecture, dustless floors, vacuum cleaners, proper dusting, the abolition of the common drinking cup, and modern systems of ventilation. The knowledge that the percentage of tuberculosis is higher among teachers than in any other profession should be grim reason for pushing such reforms at top speed.

INTER-COLLEGIATE SPORTS FOR NOVA SCOTIA PROVINCIAL EXHIBITION.

Athletic Contests Between Representatives of the Maritime Colleges Will be a Feature of the Exhibition Amusements at Halifax.

Among the great amusement features of the Nova Scotia Provincial Exhibition which will open in Halifax on September 3rd and continue for eight days will be the great Inter-collegiate Meet open to students of the Maritime Provinces. Last year there were competitors from four colleges—Dalhousie, Mt. Allison, King's and Acadia, the handsome cup offered by the Exhibition Commission being won by Mr. Allison.

In addition to the entries from the colleges mentioned there should be at the forthcoming Exhibition Athletic representatives from St. Francis Xavier, University of New Brunswick and St. Dunstan's, P. E. I. It is expected that there will be entries from all these colleges and that these athletic contests will be keen and interesting.

The sports will take place in front of the Grand Stand and with the Horse Racing and vaudeville will give gala entertainment. The list of events is as follows:—100 yards, 220 yds., 440 yds., 1 mile, 1 mile, 1 mile relay. The entries for the horse races and for all classes of exhibitors close on August 16th, but for the Inter-collegiate sports the entries may be sent in any time before the opening of the Fair.

SANITARY CONDITIONS ON P. E. ISLAND FOX RANCHES.

Ottawa, August 6.—Donald Nicholson, M. P. for Queens, Prince Edward Island, had an interview today with the veterinary director-general, suggesting that an officer be detailed to inquire into the sanitary conditions of the fox ranches in Prince Edward Island. About four hundred pups were bred this season and a good many of them have died from disease. It is desired to take reasonable precautionary measures to preserve the health of the industry. The matter will be taken up by the department.

HYMENEAL

DODGE-WILLIAMS.

Round Hill was the scene of great flutter and excitement on the morning of Wednesday, August 6th, when one of its most popular young ladies, Miss Hazel Williams, was married to Mr. Lewis Dodge of Kentville.

Brides of young girl friends decorated the English church very tastefully with daisies and white sweet peas, while a pretty bell of white flowers hung immediately over the bride's head as she stood at the altar.

A number of guests from Kentville and other neighboring towns were present, and they, together with the Round Hill guests, were escorted by the ushers, Mr. George Williams and Mr. Reginald Bailey, to special pews which were designated by floral trimmings, as the seats of honor.

The bride, who was given away by her father, looked very charming in a white serge tailor-made suit, and large black picture hat. Instead of the stereotyped bouquet of flowers, she carried a beautifully bound prayer book. She was accompanied by her sisters, Miss Gertrude, who was also in white costume, and touches of old rose, and little Miss Lou, who attended in the capacity of flower girl.

The groom was ably supported by Mr. Moore of Kentville. The service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Reeks, and the choir, chiefly composed of girl friends of the bride, sang "The Voice that Breathed o'er Eden" and "Oh, Perfect Love."

As the newly wedded couple passed down the aisle, the flower girl strewn blossoms in their pathway, while the organist played the wedding march. The inevitable shower of rice assailed the bride and groom as they stepped into the motor at the church door and they drove off, showered alike with rice and with good wishes from hosts of friends.

Motors and carriages conveyed the wedding party and a goodly number of guests to the residence of the bride's father, where a wedding luncheon and reception took place, which, once more followed with rice and love and good wishes, Mr. and Mrs. Dodge motored to Kentville. "Happy is the bride whom the sun shines on," and in this respect the married life of Mr. and Mrs. Dodge has had a most propitious beginning. Although the Round Hill people cannot help owing a bit of a grudge to Mr. Dodge for carrying off perhaps the most popular girl of the place, yet they all unite in wishing both him and his wife every happiness that life can bring them.

Switzerland will not exhibit at the Panama Exposition.

OBITUARY

MRS. THOMAS BARTEAUX.

A sad gloom was cast over North Williamston on Monday morning, July 28, when it was learned that Mrs. Thomas Bartheaux of that place, had passed peacefully away during the previous night. The deceased had been a sufferer from heart trouble for several months.

During her sufferings she was never heard to murmur, but bore her afflictions patiently for her husband's sake, in whom she faithfully trusted. The deceased was highly respected by all who knew her and her death has caused a sad loss to this community where she has resided for a number of years. She was a consistent member of the Nictaux Baptist church, and was always found a willing helper in every good cause.

The funeral service, which was held at the home, was conducted by her pastor, Rev. O. E. Steves, assisted by Rev. F. Armitage of Lawrence town. The interment took place at the Lawrence town Cemetery. She leaves to mourn a sorrowing husband, three sons, Beckwith of Montana, Harry and Richard of Amesbury, Mass., and two daughters, Mrs. Sands of Amesbury, and Mrs. George Durling of Lawrence town. The last four named were present at the funeral, and one brother, Richard Haines of White, also a host of relatives and friends who will sadly miss her. It is a comfort to know that she has gone to be with Jesus, and our loss is her gain. May God comfort and sustain the loved ones in their sad hour of affliction.

MRS. JAMES SAVARY MCGIVERN.

Many friends in this city and in Nova Scotia will regret to hear of the death of Mrs. James S. McGivern which took place on Wednesday afternoon, after an illness of two years. Mrs. McGivern's illness did not take a serious turn until June and since then she had sunk gradually. She was a daughter of the late Rev. W. H. Snyder, formerly of Weymouth and Mahone Bay, N. S., but had been a resident of this city for many years. Besides her husband she leaves two daughters, Mrs. J. D. McKenna, of St. John, and Miss Annie, of this city, and one son, Richard J., of Vancouver. The funeral will take place on Friday afternoon from her late residence.—St. John Globe.

REV. W. M. BOGGS, D. D., MISSIONARY TO INDIA, PASSES AWAY.

(Truro News.)
The Maritime Baptist, St. John, now edited by Rev. Dr. Crowell of Truro, in its issue of July 30, has the following:

Just as we go to press word has come of the death of Rev. Dr. Boggs, missionary in India, a former pastor of Main Street church, St. John, and known and beloved by hosts of our readers. His pastoral work here was about forty years ago, before he became a missionary.

Dr. Boggs was a native of Lower Stewiac, Colchester County, where he received his preliminary education. He also attended school in Truro.

He went to Acadia and graduated with honors in 1865, and was pastor of the Baptist church in Sydney from 1865-1870. He was pastor at Portland, St. John, from 1870-1874.

He was a missionary to the Telugu in India continuously from 1874-1887, when he returned to this country and was Dean of the Gordon Training School, Boston, for some time.

He was in poor health for a time, but recovering, he, about a year ago, again went to his great work in far-off India, where he died as mentioned above. His wife was with him in India.

He was an author, of considerable note, writing books and pamphlets that had a bearing upon the Baptist church or upon missionary subjects. He received his M. A. degree from Acadia in 1874 and got D. D. honors in 1895. The William Jewell College had given him the degree of D. D. in 1889.

A brother, Mr. T. M. Boggs, (who had a letter in the News only a few days ago in railway accommodation, development and extension through the Stewiac Valley) lives at Gay's River, Colchester County.

Dr. Boggs graduated from Acadia in a very brilliant lot of able students. Among his fellow graduates were the late Rev. Elisham N. Archibald, Upper Stewiac; Rev. Thomas A. Blackadar, now Baptist clergyman at Bass River, and Rev. D. A. Steele, D. D., Amherst; Silas M. McVane, Professor of History at Harvard and the late H. C. Creed, for many years Principal of the New Brunswick Normal School at Fredericton.

The death of this veteran missionary will be much regretted by friends in the Indian mission field, as well as by his many acquaintances in his native province.

HEARING ON LOCAL TELEPHONE MATTERS

The Public Utility Commission Met Here Yesterday—Bridgetown and Lawrence town Grievances Given a Hearing.

The Public Utility Commission, consisting of John U. Ross, Esq., K. C., of Pictou, R. T. MacLrith, K. C., of Halifax and Mr. Colpitts of Halifax, came to Bridgetown yesterday in answer to the appeal of the Bridgetown Board of Trade to hear the complaint made against the Telephone Company. Quite a large number of citizens attended the session of the Commission at the Court House.

Mr. B. Roscoe, of Roscoe & Roscoe appeared on behalf of the citizens, and the Telephone Company was represented by the General Manager, Mr. Winfield of Halifax, and the local manager, Mr. Geo. Freeman.

The first matter taken up was the Lawrence town grievance, that town being represented by Mr. S. E. Bancroft, H. H. Whitman, Dr. Young and R. J. Messenger, all of whom spoke and condemned very emphatically the unsatisfactory condition of their telephone service as now carried on, in which part of the town is connected with the Bridgetown exchange and a very small balance attached to a Lawrence town exchange. All the speakers urged that they be restored to the former arrangement with connections with Bridgetown.

The Commissioners asked numerous questions of the speakers and appeared to grasp the situation that obtains there, where neighbors at present are charged ten cents to speak with each other.

When the Bridgetown complaint was called, Mr. H. B. Hicks, Secretary of the Board of Trade, narrated the proceedings up to date in our efforts to get an all night service for this exchange, and directed the attention of the Commissioners to the way we had been curtailed of our privileges by being cut off from Granville Ferry, Annapolis, Round Hill, Granville Centre, Port Lorne and lastly Lawrence town. Stipendiary Irvin, O. S. Miller, Dr. Armstrong, E. A. Hicks and others entered into discussion of the matter.

Mr. Winfield replied for his Company, saying a night service would be installed when there were 175 instruments in the exchange.

Mr. Roscoe in summing up the matter for the people laid before the Commission correspondence on the subject, and showed how the cutting off of Lawrence town had hindered our reaching 175 instruments, where, had things remained as they were at the beginning of the year or as the people here and at Lawrence town desired, we would have had the required number and more, but with the dissatisfaction as at present the number could not easily be got.

The Commission then closed and an early decision will be given.

The Commissioners were accompanied by their own stenographer, who took a complete record of the proceedings.

CANADA'S REPRESENTATION AT THE HAGUE.

When Senator Danderaud and Mr. H. B. Ames go to the Hague in September to represent the Canadian Parliament at another Peace Congress, they will be able to give personal testimony to the far-reaching and blighting effects of war. During the past year construction work on some of our great railways in the West has been seriously impeded by the withdrawal of vast numbers of laborers to their homeland to serve on one side or another in the Balkan War. In addition many municipalities and large numbers of private corporations in this country have found it difficult to secure the capital needed for carrying on their enterprises, because the money markets of Europe have had to supply the money absorbed in war budgets.

It is only in indirect ways like these that the evils of war and its accompaniments are brought home to people on this continent. America alone, of all the continents, can show the world an international boundary line between two high-strung and proud peoples that is a civilized neighborhood, swept clear of the jungle miasms of battlements and workshops and guns and sentinels on guard. This is the result of the proper, civilized, neighborhood idea. Some day the example of the United States and Canada will be followed by all the world. In the meantime let us hope that Canada's influence will always be on the side of those who are so nobly striving to extend to the world the benefits now confined to this continent.—Daily Telegraph.

VINCENT ASTOR AND HIS FARM.

Young Vincent Astor has shown on many occasions since coming into his immense fortune a sense of proportion which is as gratifying as it is unusual in one so circumstanced. His latest feat is farming on an elaborate and scientific scale for educational purposes. His great farm is being made into an institution for practical teaching of agriculture, and he insists that he is going to carry out his plans for years to come.

Lately he has adopted the plan of spending every Saturday on the farm and coming in personal contact with every one of his employees. If more multi-millionaires would follow the plan of young Astor there would be less complaint against wealth and wealth would be able to do much more service. Ireland suffered terribly from absentee landlordism. This country suffers from millionaire aloofness. Mr. Astor will get as much good as his employees from his new philosophy of life.—Telegraph.

MINARD'S LINIMENT CO., Ltd.

Gentlemen,—In June, '98, I had my hand and wrist bitten and badly mangled by a vicious horse. I suffered greatly for several days and the tooth cuts refused to heal until your agent gave me a bottle of MINARD'S LINIMENT, which I began using. The effect was magical; in five hours the pain had ceased and in two weeks the wounds had completely healed and my hand and arm were as well as ever.

Mr. W. S. GUNDELUS, a farmer living near Fleming, Pa., says he has used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy in his family for fourteen years, and that he has found it to be an excellent remedy, and takes pleasure in recommending it. For sale by all dealers.

DEATH TO THE TRAFFIC.

While our church and temperance organizations are educating the youth in the principles of total abstinence, our dives, barrooms and drinking clubs are also carrying on educative work, in a direction far removed from righteousness. The church endorses; the barroom degrades. The church education means salvation; the barroom education means damnation. The church is an admittedly good institution; the barroom is an admittedly bad institution.

The time has surely come to strike a death blow to the liquor traffic. It has lived too long, and the reason is the fact that the law for the suppression of the traffic has been weak, the enforcing authority has not been aggressive, the people have not seriously enough taken to heart the question of temperance reform.

A MORAL AND ECONOMIC CURSE.

A barroom, a drinking place is a plague spot which breeds moral pestilence. The liquor dealer runs an institution which is both a moral and economic curse.

The liquor dealers have taken out of the pockets of the people tens of thousands of dollars of hard-earned money and in return have filled our jails with drunkards and have robbed wives and children of the comforts of home.

Let our business men, our professional men, all classes of men and women unite in an aggressive campaign and this province will be too clean, in a few months to afford protection to a traffic which means to the country at large financial and moral waste.

H. R. GRANT,
New Glasgow, July 10, 1913.

P. S.—By the repeal of the Scott Act, and the abolition of the License System in Halifax, the whole province would be under the Nova Scotia Temperance Act. This Act, placed upon the statutes in 1910 and improved by amendments in 1911, 1912 and 1913, can be used with better effect than the Scott Act. With thorough enforcement of this Nova Scotia Temperance Act, Nova Scotia would make great progress in temperance reform.

A Little Nova Scotia Outing

(R. D. McDonald in Rod and Gun.)

The summer of 1912 should pass into history as the summerless summer, or the year without a summer, or at least the year without fishing, for many a good Nova Scotia fishing trip was spoiled by the wet weather which goes to prove once more that "the best laid schemes of mice and men," etc. Almost every trip I planned that summer was spoiled by the rain.

This last trip was arranged by Mr. H. Boss and myself. Every commercial traveler between Vancouver and Cape Breton knows H. S. Boss and that portion of the brotherhood who ply the rod for the sleeked trite know that H. S. is second to none in fly fishing, even though he does seldom go fishing without breaking his rod three or four times. Of course the other fellow is always to blame for this catastrophe, or perchance the fish jumped at the wrong time, or the boat was drifting in the wrong direction. There are many things that may be held accountable when a good fishing rod in the hands of an expert is converted into kindling wood. However, let that pass.

The morning of the 13th of September, 1912, found us on the road to Fountain Lake with our tackle and other articles necessary for a good trip snugly stowed away—a portion of the necessities being carefully placed where the right hand could find them without the left hand knowing what was going on.

The morning was fine and everything augured well. A flock of crows that passed through the air added a certain charm to the outing and the rabbit kept to his burrow and did not show himself—everybody knows that if a rabbit crosses one's track on a fishing trip that the fish will refuse to bite that day.

We got to the lake in the afternoon and went to camp where we put everything in order for the night. The camp is half a mile from the lake and when we had things straightened out we went down to the lake, and started fishing, staying out until nearly dark. On our return to the camp we realized that we were without light. Fortunately there was plenty of wood and a fairly good stove, its only drawback being that it would not draw at all through its natural chimney, the stove pipe, but persisted in emitting smoke through the covers, which were nearly half gone. This was all very annoying to H. S., but he is never stuck for a shift. He soon found a piece of dry pine which he skillfully split into long thin slivers that made a very good substitute for a taper. It was pressed into service as a candle stick, a task that became very irksome, for just as I would be waiting into dreamland I would hear Boss's voice piping out:

"Hold this sliver, Rory, will you, till I fix this thing under me!"

When the thing would be fixed, for the time being, and sleep would again be closing my heavy eyelids, I would be startled out of my doze with—

"Hold this sliver, Rory, till I fix this stick under me!"

These commands and others of a similar nature were not conducive to restful slumber and at last I told Boss in language more forcible than polite, to keep still and leave me alone. It was useless however, and after a time I coaxed him to go out and give a call, as I thought there might possibly be a moose in the vicinity of the camp and Boss is a practical caller as well as an expert fisherman. He could not be induced to respond however to my suggestion.

Ten minutes or so passed when I heard a sound that Webster could not have spelled, notwithstanding his known ability as a maker of dictionaries. The sound was a long drawn moan. I asked Boss if he heard it.

"Was that you?" he asked.

"No," I answered, whereupon my companion jumped up and proceeded to tap the door of the shack with the remark—

"No wildcat is going to get his supper off my old bones!"

The night passed and morning dawned, an ideal morning for fishing. We were successful that day in getting all the fish we wanted, notwithstanding the fact that Boss broke his rod three or four times.

We were surprised to find out the following day that a moose had come to our camp the night before and, standing within ten yards of us, had made the ghostly moan which we had attributed to a wildcat and which had caused us to securely bar the door of our shack.

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 13, 1913

A meeting of the British Medical Association was recently held in Brighton, the famous English watering place, to which the fashion and wealth of the nation resorts. The churches took advantage of the gathering of so many distinguished physicians from all parts of Great Britain and opened their pulpits to them on the Sabbath. A number accepted the invitation, and in many instances the subject of temperance was introduced into their discourses. In one church a lady physician spoke. Referring to the 30,000 physicians of Great Britain, 150 of whom were practicing in Brighton, and for all of whom incomes must be provided, she remarked that the necessity of so many medical men would be largely diminished were it not for alcoholic indulgence. She particularly insisted upon the injury caused by medicated wines. In another church, Sir Victor Horsley spoke. He laid great stress upon the harm done to children by the use of alcohol by their parents. He affirmed that even the moderate use of alcohol was harmful, though the harm was not distinctly apparent in the user. The harm was seen in the children, many of whom succumbed to illness, as the result of the drinking habits of their parents. They were born so weak that they were unable to resist disease. He advised all his hearers to become total abstainers, if they were not already so, and also to become advocates of total abstinence. And he charged the existence of the slums to the drinking habits of the people.

Such preaching was quite in order in a city where on an average more than three pound sterling are spent annually by every person in intoxicating drinks.

The testimony of physicians in all lands is coming more and more into line with such remarks.

—It was supposed by many persons that the vacancy occasioned by the death of the late Poet Laureate, would not be filled, but after some delay, the position has been offered to and accepted by Dr. Robert Bridges, and the wisdom of the appointment is generally recognized, though, as might be expected, there are some loud gainsayers.

Dr. Bridges is not only a poet, but an acknowledged authority in church music. In a pamphlet on the subject he quotes Wm. Law, the well-known author of "A Serious Call to a Devout and Holy Life," the book which had such a powerful influence on John Wesley in the beginning of his ministry. Mr. Law says, "If a person were to forbear praying because he had an odd tone in his voice, he would have as good an excuse as he who forbears from singing because he has but little management of his voice." Dr. Bridges admits there are exceptions to this general statement, but coincides in the main with Mr. Law, and says, "All will agree that hymns are that part of the church music in which it is most desirable that the congregation should join."

His observation, however, leads him to believe that when people are musical they prefer to listen, and when they are unmusical they prefer to sing. It would be very unfortunate if this were the general experience. We incline to think it is not. But, we believe that to persons who attend the public services of the church with the proper motives, it is a pleasure and a profit to be permitted to join audibly in the praise of God, even when they are well aware of defects in voice or training on both.

The Rev. Ches. W. Gordon, (Ralph Connor) of Winnipeg, in a recent interview with a reporter in England said, that twenty years ago there was a keen national feeling among young Canadians, but no clear consciousness of their relation to the Empire. But, at present there is a growing realization of the value of British connection and of the imperial significance of London as the heart of the Empire. He himself never so clearly recognized what an immense thing it is for the Empire to have a great new and magnificent nation like Canada springing up to be the buttress and bulwark of the Empire.

He adds that the rush of immigration has been so great that it has outstripped for the time the demands of the labor market, and made a tightness in money. But, so the money market will be normal and the surplus labor will all be profitably absorbed.

He sees no evidence of a desire for annexation with our southern neighbors, and has great faith in the future of Canada as an influential part of the British Empire.

Church Notes—Parish of St. James
ST. JAMES, BRIDGETOWN.

At this church on Sunday last the Rector had the assistance of the Rev. I. W. Morse, of Lynn, Mass., who preached an able sermon on the Holy Scriptures.

On Monday evening a special meeting of the Rector, Wardens and Vestry was held in the schoolroom to discuss the much needed improvement to the furnace room and heating apparatus. On investigation it was found that the work which has become almost imperative will involve a large outlay, the walls under quite a third of the building being in a precarious condition. It was decided to summon a general meeting of the congregation next Wednesday evening to fully discuss matters and devise ways and means, the corporation being confident that with united effort all difficulty can soon be overcome.

CELEBRATION OF A CENTURY OF PEACE.

The century of peace between two great English-speaking peoples was fittingly celebrated at old Fort Erie on Wednesday last, when Canadians and citizens of the United States clasped hands in fellowship and good will across the international boundary, and united in expressions of hope that the bonds of brotherhood would grow still stronger in the days that are yet to come. Erie Beach Park was the scene of the joint festivities and on both sides of the border a general holiday was proclaimed. Mr. W. M. German, K. C., M. P., was chairman of the proceedings in the stadium, and the speakers included Sir John Gibson, Dr. J. A. Macdonald, Hon. J. O. Reame, Hon. H. P. Bissell, Justice of the Supreme Court of New York, Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, A. B. Humphries, New York, and other distinguished participants. Sir John Gibson said: "We still cling to the mother country, bound not by chains of obligation, but by ties of filial loyalty and affection. Some great men have forecast the fate of Canada to be absorbed by the United States, while others have predicted independence to be our ultimate goal. But there never has been a time when Canadian views were more un-animously and more definitely pronounced in favor of the British Empire than now. May the time come when standing armies shall become industrial armies, and naval armaments and dreadnoughts be converted into messengers of commerce and the best efforts of statesmen be devoted to the improvement of domestic conditions." Sports and games and fireworks filled up the program of the day's proceedings, and the Union Jack and Stars and Stripes floated side by side on the breeze over the historic scene. A model of the proposed bridge to commemorate the century of peace was exhibited during the day, and at night was illuminated. More than twenty thousand people took part in the celebrations. —Weekly Globe.

This Week Forty Years Ago

(August, 1873.)
A lady correspondent complains of the dark and gloomy covered bridge, and reminds her sex that the ladies of Yarmouth, by their exertions light the whole town, and suggests that every lady living within two miles of the town give one cent a week and light the bridge and some other dark places about the village.

ANNAPOLIS ROYAL INDUSTRY MAKES A RECORD.

It will surprise some of our readers to learn that Annapolis Royal has an industry that during the past month made a record unequalled by any plant of the same kind east of Montreal.

We refer to the Nova Scotia Clay Works Company's Plant which during the month of July made building brick to the number of 1,102,000. This is a record month's output, the nearest approach to this number being made by the same Company's plant in Pugwash last October, when 985,000 brick were manufactured.

Annapolis brick have always found a ready sale and with the large output sales increase. Of the July make only 109,000 were taken into stock on August 1st.

The Annapolis plant paid out for labor the past month $2200.00. The merchants of our town cannot but feel the direct benefit of such a manufacturing plant and wish for the Nova Scotia Clay Works Company all success.—Spectator.

SPRAYING NOTES.

(Kentville Advertiser)

Rather interesting reports are coming in from the experiments the government is carrying on in different sections of the valley, when plots of apple trees are being sprayed with Bordeaux, or with Lime Sulphur, and check plots left unsprayed.

Mr. Davis, who has charge of the Experiment at Bridgetown, was in town last week and says that on King trees by actual count, no perceptible difference is to be found in the number of spotted apples between Bordeaux or Lime Sulphur sprayed excepting the foliage on the latter is far ahead. But on the Gravenstein trees the Lime Sulphur sprayed fruit is about eight per cent cleaner and free from spray injury, whereas the Bordeaux sprayed fruit is so disfigured that the spray injury is worse than the spot and a large percentage of the leaves on the Bordeaux sprayed trees are turning yellow and dropping off.

On the unsprayed trees Mr. Davis says there is not enough apples left to make a comparison.

At Berwick, where another experiment is being carried on, both fruit and foliage is better on the Lime Sulphur sprayed trees than on the Bordeaux sprayed. It appears to be only a question of time when the greater part of the leaves on the Bordeaux sprayed Gravenstein and Ben Davis trees will be on the ground.

Royal Children Like Other Kiddies

Home life in modern palaces, so far as the training of children is concerned is not so different from that of ordinary people, unless it is somewhat more severe, and often more economical in spirit. The Kings and Queens of this new century try, as far as they are able, to make companions of their children, to love them wisely and to fit them to become the rulers of tomorrow. And probably there are times in every royal Queen mother's life when she wishes in her secret heart that she were just a wife and mother among the common people, able to enjoy the simple pleasures of domesticity, away from etiquette and pomp and ceremony.

At any rate baby foods are an important consideration in Royal nurseries; baby talk is dear to lips that speak and hear it; necessary punishments are minor tragedies; economies are rigid with educational intent. Royal mothers teach and train their children; Royal fathers discipline unruly sons, and Royal grandparents dote upon their grandchildren, relaxing that severity they felt in duty bound to show their own youngsters. But over all the spirit of a great fear reigns; to present casual troubles of nursery life, such as diseases of childhood, little misdemeanors, is added the weighty responsibility of the future. Weakness and obstinacy in a Prince means danger for him and his country when he becomes more formidable than microbes of social unrest in a kingdom. Therefore, spiritual and mental constitutions must be looked after quite as well as physical.

HAPPY ITALIAN CHILDREN.

There are many happy homes among the courts of Europe, Italy is conspicuous among them. Few mothers of the people see as much of their children as does Queen Elena. Her favorite boudoir is the nursery.

And the children show the result of her attentiveness. Even in the pictures of them it is plain that they are used to being loved. The eldest daughter, Princess Yolanda of the sweet voice, is a second mother to them; there is charm and affection in the way she marshals the younger ones about, little Mafalda, Humbert and Giovanna. At Racconigi, the Royal country palace, the children ride horseback, romp and play; climb trees or drive their patient donkey in a brightly colored Sicilian cart.

They have pets, too; one of the photographs, which the Queen herself took, shows the Princess Mafalda with a white kid in her arms. The children of the Crown Prince of Germany are equally fortunate. Their imperial grandfather relaxes for them the severity he shows his own children, and the kind Empress, many times a grandmother, probably makes up to them for any oversight on the part of their young pleasure-loving mother. Early the Crown Prince taught his eldest son to ride on horseback, taking him in front of him on the saddle until he was old enough to sit on his own pony. The boys have bicycles, too, and pets, and in the summer they spend happy hours by the sea.

ENGLISH QUEEN DEVOTED MOTHER.

Queen Mary of England is devoted to her children. Her fifteen-year-old daughter, Princess Mary, is her boon companion. And even the education of her boys has been largely entrusted to her. She is notable among Royal mothers for her fondness in talking about her children and their playmates. One of her favorite stories just now is of a little friend of her son Albert, the grandson of the Duke of Aberdeen, who serving as a trainee for his grandfather at the coronation, had presence of mind enough, when his nose began to bleed, to march along sedately, leaning far over so that the ermine of the train might not be stained, but only the crimson velvet.

It is interesting that the Anglo-German influence practically dominates the thrones of modern Europe. In the next generation almost all Protestant Europe will come under the sway of descendants of Queen Victoria, who will rule over Great Britain, Germany, Spain, Sweden, Roumania, Norway and Russia.

This fact has become a thorn in the flesh of the Spanish people because their Queen insists upon an English regime in her nursery. The little Prince of Asturias is now four years old, and delicate, Prince Jaime comes next, then Princess Beatrix, and, finally the tiny baby, English nurses, English food and English clothes for the Royal children antagonize the subjects of Alfonso, and add thus to the real difficulties of the King's political position.

The Royal nursery of Athens contains five well-brought-up children, who are reared simply and with the regard to homely virtues.

CZAR'S CHILDREN HAVE DULL TIME.

Little Prince Olaf of Norway, gayest sprite among the small Kings of tomorrow, is his father's charge, more than his mother's and is taught to like and understand the finest mechanical toys to be found in Europe. The Crown Princess of Sweden is a charming mother to her half-English children, and whenever she drives through Stockholm with her carriage load of lovely babies, the people show their delight in her in a genuine ovation. The children of Roumania are little blonde beauties, especially handsome when dressed in native costume. There are four of them, Prince Charles, the Princesses Elizabeth, Marie and Helena and Prince Nicholas. Royal Princess Juliana of Holland is a roly-poly little girl, brought up with Dutch economy and taught to treasure her playthings. The story is told that she loves her tattered rag doll best of all.

But over the Imperial Russian nursery hangs a cloud, partly the result of social and political conditions in the country, and partly because of the nervousness of the Czarina, whose heart is ever brooding on its fears. The four young girls are beautiful. Grand Duchess Olga is nearing womanhood, and Tatiana, Marie and Anastasia are nearly, if not quite, as comely. They have a rather sombre time both at the winter palace at St. Petersburg and at the Imperial summer home at Tsarkoe-Selo, for they are hedged in by etiquette, and their mother insists that they live with great simplicity. The Czar-eitch is the apple of the Czarina's eye, and she fears so for his life that she would make that life a burden if it were not for the impetuous, strong-willed nature of the handsome eight-year-old lad. He is an obstreperous young Prince, and when he does not get his own way he lies down on the floor and kicks. In this nursery the grandmother is the one who makes the brightness by her sunny disposition and her wholesome common sense.

Most picturesque among the Royal granddaughters are the aged Prince Regent of Bavaria and his wife, and handsomest among the Princesses is their little great-grandson, Prince Albert. The two old people are simple and affectionate in their home life, and one of the sweetest pictures in this year's Royal gallery shows them in the garden enjoying the spring together.

HONESTY.

Why are there so many non-Christians in a land where Christ is known of by every person? Is it because people are not willing to be honest with themselves and with their Creator?

Certainly every man has at least some desire to be honest, and no man can rightly be honest who is not, first of all, honest to the instinctive impulse of his own soul, in its cry for God. A man cannot be called honest who will not own his relation to his Maker. Neither can he be called honest if he ignores the happy peaceful life he may enjoy, if he lives for God's glory. Nor can he be honest toward his neighbor if he is not anxious, through the indwelling in him of the spirit of God, for the welfare of his neighbor's soul.

People think it is hard to be a Christian, and they are correct in this opinion. But, is it not hard to be a non-Christian and carry a condemning conscience, instead of one which commends? God is not a hard Master, expecting greater things from us than we can offer. Not a sparrow falls to the ground without His notice, and nothing done, however small, to please and honor Him and benefit the humblest or most unworthy of His creatures escapes His notice or fails to receive His approval.—COM.

"I ATTRIBUTE MY CURE SOLELY

And Entirely To Taking "Fruit-a-tives"

HULL, QUE., Dec. 24th, 1909
 "For the past twelve years, I had painful attacks of Dyspepsia. I could not digest my food and everything caused the most agonizing pain in my stomach. I also had a fearful attack of Constipation and at times, I had no movement of the bowels for two weeks. Three doctors attended me for two years and gave me all kinds of medicine but did me no good. My weight came to only 80-pounds and everyone thought I was going to die. Finally, I had the good fortune to try "Fruit-a-tives" and as soon as I began to take them, I felt better. I persisted in the treatment and to my great joy, I steadily improved. Now I feel very well, weigh 115 pounds, and this is more than I ever weighed even before my illness. I attribute my cure solely and entirely to "Fruit-a-tives" and can never praise them too much for saving my life. To all who suffer from Dyspepsia and Constipation, I recommend "Fruit-a-tives" as a miraculous remedy."

The Pope's Swiss Guards, one of the most famous organizations in the world, who for over four hundred years have watched over the Pontiff, and whose uniforms were designed by Michael Angelo, about whom there is a glamor of mediaeval tradition, have gone on strike. They who, at least once in their long history, proved themselves as capable of a heroic death in the service of the master who paid them the Swiss mercenaries who laid down their lives for Louis XVI, are insistent in their demand last week that Pope Pius X. was obliged to order their disarmament. And, if report be true the attitude of the disgruntled Swiss became so threatening that the Pope was on the point of telephoning to the Italian Government, requesting that a squad of carabinieri be sent at once to curb the mutinous mountaineers. That other august body, the Pope's Noble Guard, is also discontented, it is reported, on account of Pius X.'s recent decree extending the right to belong to the corps to noble families all over Europe instead of having it confined, as formerly, to those of Italy. The grievances of the Swiss Guards serve to remind the world forcibly that, in spite of their mediaeval uniform and glamorous traditions, they are eminently modern men. It seems that their present commander is too strict a disciplinarian to please them. In the old days, when men were more turbulent, the task of guarding the Pope was no sinecure, and the military efficiency of the Swiss had to be kept up to its highest pitch. But times have changed, and the mounting guard at the Vatican has become more of an honor than anything else.

THE PASSING OF THE POTATO BUG.

Spruce Bud Worm is the New Pest—Millions Swarming Through the Forests of New Brunswick Causing Great Damage.

The passing of the potato bug will be hailed with delight by farmers everywhere. It's gone; where is a mystery, but the fact remains just the same that the potato bug is a thing of the past. As to the cause of this remarkable disappearance the most credible reason offered is the interminable work of a parasite; probably in fungus form. Farmers in the vicinity of Sussex report us evidence of the potato bugs' death that in some cases where four and five acres of potatoes under cultivation have gone over only two or three plants had the pest on them and in some instances not a single one was found. A marked decrease this season in the sale of Paris green is reported by our merchants; but farmers, who ought to be authority, do not advise the stopping of the use of Paris green altogether, where the sil hest trace of the bug is known.

The potato bug has gone and the farmer will rejoice; but a new pest danger has appeared, known as the Spruce bud worm which is causing great anxiety and worry to the lumbermen. Ravaging through the Province in disastrous numbers is a little grey or brown bug known as the Spruce Bud Worm, which is very destructive and is causing much damage to the forests. At the present time great areas of spruce, fir and hemlock appear as though their tops had been scorched and although it is not an uncommon occurrence to have them look that way, this year the damage is unusually serious.

Dr. Panhurst, an eminent authority on forest insects, characterizes the "Spruce Bud Worm" as the most destructive insect in North Eastern United States and he records several instances where serious injury has resulted from their work. Mr. Kellogg another expert, who has made a particular study of the species, says that the danger is due largely to the fact that the spruce has so few buds usually two or three at the end of a twig. If these are destroyed the twigs do not reproduce them until the following season, thus putting back the growth one year for each time they are demolished. It is made very easy for the insect to destroy the tree or inflict very serious injury by devouring these buds.

The little worms gnaw the buds or needles close to the twigs, separating them. "The life history of the insect is as follows: The eggs are being deposited on the trees at the present time. These will hatch in about ten days and the ground caterpillars will pass the winter partly grown among the twigs of the tree. They will begin feeding in the spring, attaining their full growth early in June, at which time they transform into the pupa. This is fastened to the twigs and in about a week the parent insects appear. These are little grayish or brownish moths measuring a little over half an inch across the wing. At the present time millions of these may be seen hovering about the spruce, fir and hemlocks. Numbers of these insects are usually kept down by insect eating birds, parasite insects which attack them, and certain weather conditions.

"Parasite forms are now very plentiful depositing eggs on these bud worms and these may have a tendency to decrease the pests, but no assurance is had that the spruce bud worm will not continue in ever increasing destructive work."
 H. E. Gould, who is spending the week at Dick's Lake purposes collecting some specimens of the pest and will forward same to Ontario, for the Entomologists to examine.

NO CRUELTY IN PRODUCTION OF OSTRICH FEATHERS.

(By F. W. FitzSimons, Hon. Secretary Port Elizabeth and District S. P. S. A., Cape Colony, Africa)
 From countries other than South Africa come reports that the opinion is widespread that the production of ostrich feathers entails a considerable amount of cruelty to the birds. Attempts were even made to get ostrich feathers included in the bill for the prohibition of the importation of the United States. I desire to most emphatically state there is no cruelty attached to the production of ostrich feathers. The birds are driven into a small enclosure and are caught one at a time. A sort of stocking is dropped over the ostrich's head when the creature at once becomes docile. The plumes both of the tail and wings are snipped off with special clippers, the stumps of the quills being left in the sockets. These after a time shrivel naturally and so all sensibility is lost, some drop out and the rest are removed without the rupture of a single blood vessel. The whole process is absolutely painless—as much so as cutting one's finger nails in the usual manner.

No farmer would be stupid enough to actually pull out the plumes for the reason that in so doing the cells within the socket, which build the substance of the feather, are more or less seriously damaged, causing the next and all succeeding crops of feathers to be inferior. Every farmer knows that the value of each ostrich is in proportion to the excellence of the feathers and that market prices for these plumes are graded according to quality, therefore the most brutal of ostrich farmers would never resort to plucking the feathers from the birds. The ostrich feather industry provides a living for millions of people directly and indirectly and my Society considers that it is the duty of every S. P. C. A. to do its very best to educate public opinion on this matter—Dumb Animals.

"Were all medicines as meritorious as Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy the world would be much better off and the percentage of suffering greatly decreased," writes Lindsey Scott, of Temple, Ind. For sale by all dealers.

SPICY CORRESPONDENCE OF TITLED LADIES.

In a recently published work on "Society, Politics and Diplomacy" in England between 1820 and 1864, being passages from the journal of Frances W. H. Cavendish, a foreign office official, there is published an entertaining correspondence between Lady Seymour, wife of the eldest son of the Duke of Somerset, who was a Sheridan, had been the Queen of Beauty at the Enlington Tournament the previous year, and Lady Shuckburgh, which suggests nothing to the pages of "Punch."

I.
 Lady Seymour presents her compliments to Lady Shuckburgh and would be obliged to her for the character of Mary Stedman, who states she has lived twelve months and still is in Lady Shuckburgh's establishment. Can Mary Stedman cook plain dishes well, make bread, and is she honest, good-tempered, sober, willing and cleanly? Lady Seymour would also like to know the reason why she leaves Lady Shuckburgh's service. Direct under cover to Lord Seymour Maiden Bradley.

II.
 Lady Shuckburgh presents her compliments to Lady Seymour. Her Ladyship's note, dated October 28, only reached her yesterday, November 3, Lady Shuckburgh was unacquainted with the name of the kitchen maid until mentioned by Lady Seymour, as it is her custom neither to apply for nor give characters to any of the under-servants, this being always done by the housekeeper, Mrs. Couch, and this was well known to the young woman; therefore Lady Shuckburgh is surprised at her referring any lady to her for a character. Lady Shuckburgh having a professed cook as well as housekeeper, in her establishment, it is not very likely she herself should know anything of the abilities or merits of the under-servants, therefore she is unable to answer Lady Seymour's note. Lady Shuckburgh cannot imagine Mary Stedman to be capable of cooking for any except the servants' hall table.
 Pavilion, Hans place, November 4.

III.
 Lady Seymour presents her compliments to Lady Shuckburgh and begs she will order her housekeeper, Mrs. Pouch to send the girl's character without delay, otherwise the woman will be sought for elsewhere, as Lady Seymour's children cannot remain without their dinners because Lady Shuckburgh, keeping a "professional cook and housekeeper," thinks a knowledge of the details of her establishment beneath her notice. Lady Seymour understood from Stedman that, in addition to her other talents she was actually capable of dressing food fit for the little Shuckburghs to partake of when hungry.

IV.
 Madam—Lady Shuckburgh has directed me to acquaint you that she declines answering your note, the vulgarity of which is beneath contempt and although it may be the characteristic of the Sheridans to be vulgar, coarse and witty, it is not that of a "Lady" unless she happens to have been born in a garret and bred in a kitchen. Mary Stedman informs me the young Ladyship does not keep either a cook or a housekeeper, and that you only require a girl who can cook a mutton chop. If so, I apprehend Mary Stedman or any other scullion will be found fully equal to cook for or manage the establishment of the Queen of Beauty.
 I am, Your Ladyship, etc.,
 ELIZABETH COUCH, (not Pouch).

A clergyman who was very particular about his personal appearance, finding no mirror in the vestry, and fearing his hair might not be as smooth as it should be, he asked the clerk if he would get him a glass. The man was gone some minutes, but at length returned and produced a parcel very mysteriously from under his arm. To the astonishment of the parson, when it was opened it contained a bottle of whiskey, with water and a tumbler.
 "You mustn't let on about it, mister," said the clerk, "for I got it as a great favor, an' I shouldn't a got it at all, bein' church hours, if I hadn't said it was for you, sir."

It was in St. Paul's Cathedral that a guide led forth thus to an American traveler:
 "That, sir, is the tomb of the greatest naval hero Europe or the whole world ever knew."
 "Yes?"
 "It is, sir, the tomb of Lord Nelson. This marble sarcophagus weighs forty-two tons. Inside that is a steel receptacle weighing twelve tons, and inside that is a leaden casket, hermetically sealed, weighing two tons. Inside that is a mag'ny coffin holding the ashes of the great hero."

"Well," said the Yankee, after a moment's reflection, "I guess you've got him. If he ever gets out of that telegraph me at my expense."
 A coloured man was brought before a police judge charged with stealing chickens. He pleaded guilty and received sentence, when the judge asked him how it was managed to lift those chickens right under the window of the owner's house when there was a dog in the yard.
 "Hit wouldn't be of no use, judge," said the man, "to try to 'splane dis ting to you all. Ef you was to try it you like as not would get yer hide full o' shot an' git no chickens, nuther. Ef you want to get into any rascality, judge, yo' better stick to de bench 'whar yo' am familiar."

The little boy in this story from "Touche a Tout," was evidently a firm believer in the old adage, "Of two evils choose the less." Turning a corner at full speed, he collided with the minister.
 "Where are you running to, my little man?" asked the minister, when he had regained his breath.
 "Home," panted the boy. "Ma's going to spank me."
 "What!" gasped the astonished minister. "Are you eager to have your mother spank you that you run home so fast?"
 "No," shouted the boy over his shoulder as he resumed his homeward flight, "but if I don't get there before pa, he'll do it."

Here is one of Dorchester street minister tells since his return: "Two Scotchmen entered a swell New York restaurant, one of them carrying a satchel. The obsequious waiter was surprised when they asked for two plates, two knives and two glasses. But the limit was reached when they drew from the satchel a bundle of sandwiches, which they proceeded to open, and a bottle from which they poured a beverage supposed to be popular in their native land. The waiter could stand it no longer. He is for help. An irate individual approached:
 "Gentlemen," he began, "I am the manager."
 "Right glad I am to see you," interrupted one of the diners. "I was thinking to send for you. Why is the orchestra no' playin'?"

The King of Spain is the most elaborately and expensively attired monarch in Europe.
 It is doubtful if the youthful monarch has ever been seen more than half a dozen times in the same suit, and it is certain that there are many suits in which he has been seen but once or twice.
 When he takes a fancy to a particular tweed or cloth he will often order a dozen suits from it straightway and wear each one two or three times. If he tires of the material before he has worn the whole dozen, he will have the whole lot put out of the royal wardrobe. It would be difficult to say how many suits of clothes the King of Spain orders a year.
 The number greatly varies. Sometimes King Alfonso will order as many as a couple of dozen suits at a time, while at other times he will give his tailor, or rather one of them for he patronizes several, an order for but one or two suits a year, of which King of Spain keeps from one hundred to one hundred and fifty suits in the royal wardrobe, and buys on an average of one hundred suits a year.
 His Majesty's bill to his tailor alone averages $5,000 a year, of which King of Spain keeps from one hundred to one hundred and fifty suits in the royal wardrobe, and buys on an average of one hundred suits a year.
 There is one London tailor who, when the King of Spain was the guest of the Duke of Westminster at Eaton Hall some little while ago, took an order from the Spanish monarch for forty suits.
 The tailor was asked by wire to go to the Duke's residence, and returned to London with the largest single order he ever received in his pocket.
