FUTURE OF C. N. R. BRIGHT, SAYS MACKENZIE

Despite "Mischievous Reports," Overseas Friends of Railway More Enthusiastic Than Ever and His Own Optimism Was Never Greater.

MONTREAL, May 7.—(Special.)—Sir William Mackenzie, president of the Canadian Northern, whose mission to England has caused so much comment, returned to Canada, arrived here this afternoon, and previous to leaving for Toronto, made the following statement: "Notwithstanding mischievous reports to the contrary, I have returned from the borrowing centre of the world, feeling just as confident as ever over the success of the Canadian Northern enterprise. I am glad to be able to say that our financial friends on the other side are more enthusiastic than ever over the outlook of the company, and of the general development of the line, and we are all inspired by the fact that the last spike uniting Toronto with Vancouver, over the Canadian Northern rails, will be driven somewhere in the Rockies in November next.

As for the connection with Montreal, the date will be a little later, owing to short delay in the completion of the line between Pembroke and Port Arthur. Montreal will, however, be hitched up with Toronto by an independent line by Dominion Day.

Speaking of the issue of preferred stock in Brazilian Light, Heat and Power Co., Sir William said that the money was required for extensions.

WHEN'S EMPIRE DAY? JOHN BULL UNCERTAIN Commons in Quandary as to the Wherefore and Why of Celebration.

LONDON, May 7.—(C. A. P.)—Replying to Major MacCallum in the Commons today as to whether it was the intention of the War Office to prohibit all public school corps from parading on Empire Day, Col. Seely said: "Yes, the army council thinks parades of soldiers in uniform should be reserved for the King's birthday."

CITY HALL CAPERS. Mr. MacNeill: "Will the right hon. gentleman ask Lord Meath, who is the only person who knows?"

WATCHED LIGHTNING CAVORT ABOUT HIM

Man Held Breath While His Room Was Completely Wrecked.

Special to The Toronto World. WINSTED, Conn., May 7.—Brainard Beany held his breath as he lay on a lounge in his home on West Hill last evening and watched a bolt of lightning cavort about him. The ball of fire tore off shingles and plaster, broke out window lights, tore off door casings, ripped up a carpet, riddled an umbrella, burnt a wire cord letting a picture drop, smashed the front door and completely destroyed the telephone instrument. Beany felt no ill effects, but his housekeeper, Mrs. Anna Smith, who was in the kitchen, was shocked.

UNLAWFUL TO KEEP DATE WITH SPOOKS

Buffalo Man Quite Indiscreetly Told Policeman at Falls About It.

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., May 7.—"I'm going down to Prospect Point to keep a date with the spirits at 2 o'clock," said William F. Ehle, 35 years old, Buffalo, to Reservation Constable Charles J. Martin at 1:30 o'clock this morning, while walking toward the brink. Martin arrested him to prevent him from going over the Falls. "I expected to be arrested for making the remark to the officer," said Ehle, in the police court today. "I don't know why to unlock the door to await the arrival of Buffalo friends. Ehle said he had a wife and child in Buffalo.

BEST WAY TO MAKE CORONER'S COCKTAIL

Chorus Girls, Champagne, Automobile, Drunken Chauffeur, Joy Ride, Good Night—Inquest.

Special to The Toronto World. CHICAGO, May 7.—Coroner Peter S. Hoffman of Cook County has evolved "the coroner's cocktail," which he guarantees to stimulate business for the coroner. This is the way to make it: "Mix three chorus girls with as many men, and soak in champagne until midnight, squeeze into an automobile, add a dash of joy and a drunken chauffeur. Shake well and serve in 15 minutes an hour. Coroner's inquest is the result."

TOO MANY ONIONS FOR KING EDWARD

His Late Majesty Rebuked Footmen, According to "What I Know."

Special Cable to The World. LONDON, May 7.—(Copyright)—"Hawkins, you've been eating onions," angrily exclaimed King Edward to his servant footman one day at Biarritz, according to Edward VII's motor mechanic, C. W. Stamper, in a book just issued, entitled "What I Know."

Stamper confesses that the sergeant footman, the knight courier, and the postmaster, who were with him, called the sergeant footman, and the King was proceeding to tell him when he stopped short, looked at the man, and then accused him of eating onions. "You've been eating onions," protested the courier.

"Yes, you have. I'm sure you have. Send Mr. Hilley here at once, and Mr. Greer."

"Yes, your majesty." The sergeant footman withdrew, and presently Postmaster Hilley was announced. The King called him to his side and was beginning to read to him a telegram he wanted him to despatch when he burst out: "Hilley, you've been eating onions."

"A HORSE ON ME," SAID THIS DRIVER

And the Animal Certainly Was on Him With Both Feet.

Special to The Toronto World. NEW YORK, May 7.—George Bennett, of East Hampton, L. I., was injured today when a runaway horse jumped into his wagon, knocking Bennett out. A team owned by Charles Hackett of East Hampton, frightened by a squealing pig, ran away. As the team came abreast of Bennett's wagon the horse shied and jumped, landing in the vehicle, feet in air. Bennett was knocked unconscious, cut and bruised, and it is feared has internal injuries. It took an hour to get the horse out of the wagon, in which it was wedged. A glass jar of vinegar in the vehicle was not broken.

BURIED THEIR QUEEN

Bees Built Wall of Wax and Then Left the Hive.

Special to The Toronto World. BANGOR, Me., May 7.—Elden Harriman made a strange discovery this spring when he opened a hive of bees. The queen bee had died in the winter, and the other bees stood her up straight on the bottom of the hive and built a little wall of their wax around her, after which they left the hive.

ANTARCTIC EXPLORER OTTAWA BOUND TO HELP STEFANSSON IN ORGANIZING

MONTREAL, May 7.—(Can. Press.)—Dr. A. Forbes Mackay, who was one of the medical men attached to the expedition to the south polar regions which won Sir Ernest Shackleton his knighthood, was a passenger by the Allan liner Gramplan, which arrived here from Glasgow this evening. Dr. Mackay stated that he had come out to join the Swedish explorer Stefansson in his expedition to the far north, and expected to be absent for three and a half to four years, before returning to civilization. Dr. Mackay left for Ottawa to organize the victualing and other details connected with the voyage of Stefansson's ship, the Karluk. The doctor was accompanied by a fellow passenger, W. L. McKinlay, who is also to be a member of the Stefansson expedition.

LAMP THROWN DURING FIGHT SET FIRE TO THREE HOUSES AND NEARLY COST TWO LIVES

Drunken Quarrel at One o'Clock This Morning Terminated in the Destruction of Houses 107 to 111 Sherbourne Street Andrew Thomas and Lizzie Thompson Were Locked in Room and Had to Be Rescued by Firemen Before Being Arrested by Police—Roofer Overcome by Smoke and Taken to Hospital.

Locked in a burning room at 111 Sherbourne street, the door of which had to be battered down before the firemen could effect their rescue, Lizzie Thompson and Andrew Thomas were within an ace of losing their lives at 1 o'clock this morning in a fire which is said to have resulted from the man throwing a lighted lamp from the window, and which spread to the adjoining premises at 109 and 107, causing damage estimated at $800. The couple were in such an intoxicated condition that when the blaze started to spread they were unable to unlock the door, and would have perished but for the arrival of the firemen. When carried out, both of them were suffering from slight burns, while the hair of the woman was badly singed. A boarder in the house, John Foster, a middle-aged man, was overcome by smoke and had to be rushed to St. Michael's hospital for treatment. The couple were taken to Court street station, where a charge of intoxication was preferred against them.

Great Excitement. Scenes of the greatest excitement attended the release of the couple from the houses in this district after a thickly tenanted. Many of the occupants rushed to the street in their night clothes, and hampered the movements of the fire-fighters. The first alarm received at fire headquarters was that Price's stables were on fire, but the real locality was soon learned to be 109 and 107.

Narrow Escapes. The fire had attained such a good hold at the point of outbreak that in a few minutes tongues of flame had reached the neighboring building at 109 Sherbourne, tenanted by Jacob Wolfman, and secured lodgment on the roof in a short time this house was a mass of flames, and many of the lodgers had difficulty in effecting their escape from the threatened premises. All fled to safety in their night clothes. The several lines of hose were brought into commission, the blaze spread to 107 Sherbourne, tenanted by Thomas McGuire, and before the fire was brought under control this was partially destroyed.

All the downtown reels responded to the call, and the fire-fighting operations were directed by Chief Thompson. In spite of the early hour, Queen and Sherbourne streets were lined by dense crowds, and the reserves from Court street station had to be summoned to form a cordon and prevent the excited spectators from hampering the firemen.

Riot Averted. When the Thompson woman and her companion were carried down by their rescuers, and it was ascertained that they were to be handed over to the police, the crowd became ugly and surged around both officers and firemen, demanding the release of the couple. Fortunately a riot was averted by the prompt arrival of the patrol wagon, and the prisoners were rushed to the station.

Later the report went out that there were still other lodgers locked in their rooms at No. 111 Sherbourne, and a thorough search resulted in the finding of John Foster, who was discovered unconscious in bed. His condition is said to be critical.

CLOTHING FRED PREMIER BORDEN DIED OF BURNS

Mrs. Robert Orr Fatally Injured While Mixing Medicine For Her Husband's Horses.

Arrangements were made at a meeting last evening for meeting to be held in the Arena, on May 19, at which the Right Hon. F. L. Borden will be the principal speaker. In addition to the premier, there will be several ministers from Ottawa, including Hon. J. D. Hazen and Hon. T. W. Crothers, as well as several provincial ministers and members of both the Dominion and provincial parliaments.

Mr. Borden and his colleagues will be met at the North Toronto station about 7 o'clock, and will be escorted to the Arena by a torchlight procession, formed by members of the different Conservative associations in the city, and any others who wish to participate. The main portion of the Arena will be occupied by members of the Conservative associations, and the remainder will be thrown open to the general public. No admission tickets will be issued.

Special Cable to The World. PARIS, May 8.—(Copyright)—A duel during three years old was fought today upon the private lawn of Dr. Plouffe's sanitarium for the treatment of morphine, cocaine and alcoholic patients before a fashionable crowd of society folk, press photographers, reporters and fencing experts. The combatants were K. C. Berger, a famous swordman and son of a Paris deputy, and George Brietmayer, also expert in the use of the rapier.

Berger received a severe wound in the breast, but after a short rest in the sanitarium, where he was treated by notable surgeons, he left the institution gaily, still wearing his sky blue shirt all stained with blood, and waving his hand to his friends, drove home in an automobile.

LEGISLATURE CENSURES PROUDFOOT WHO REFUSES TO RESIGN HIS SEAT; WHITNEY AND HANNA ARE CLEARED

CONDEMNATION AND CENSURE FOR MEMBER FOR CENTRE HURON

Following is the amendment made by T. W. McGarry, and seconded by Dr. Priest, Conservative whip, to the minority report brought in by the opposition. It was carried by a vote of 69 to 19, with Sir James Whitney, Hon. W. J. Hanna and Wm. Proudfoot not voting, and Allan Studholme voting with the opposition. On the same division the majority report of Chairman Howard Ferguson was carried: "That all the words in the amendment after the first word be struck out, and the following substituted therefor: 'The following words be added to the motion (the majority report): And this house deems it to be its duty to place on record its unqualified condemnation and censure of the conduct of the member for Centre Huron in putting before this house charges of a serious character reflecting upon the honor of two ministers of the crown, and which charges were shown by sworn testimony of witnesses called by the said member for Centre Huron to be untrue and without foundation whatever, and this house further censures and condemns the conduct of the said member for Centre Huron in refusing to be sworn and to give satisfaction to his said charges when called upon by the said committee to do so.'

HANNA CHALLENGES PROUDFOOT TO SUBSTANTIATE HIS CHARGES BUT MEMBER KEEPS SILENCE

Failure to Answer Minister's Taunts Accepted as Assent to Utter Failure of Allegations—Mr. Hanna's Statement to the Legislature.

Sitting stolidly in his place in the opposition ranks of the legislature yesterday afternoon, William Proudfoot of Centre Huron faced one of the most embarrassing political situations of his career. Challenge after challenge the provincial secretary, whom he had charged with corrupt and improper practice, hurled at him, defying him to substantiate accusations from which the very bases had been torn. A veritable wall of jeers and taunting laughter rising up from eager members failed to arouse him, until the minister, turning to him, accepted his silence as his own assent to the utter failure of his attempts to bring down the government.

"Any little evidence apart from the statements of the Manonville letter to 'con tenders'" prompted Mr. Hanna. "No reply." "No evidence re underfed stokers?" Still no answer.

Then clamor broke loose, and the rules of parliamentary decorum went by the board.

Long Discussion. This followed by a discussion participated in by both sides of the house, in which the opposition demanded a royal commission because of unfair committee tactics on the part of the government members claimed an exhaustive and thorough vindication of all parties concerned.

When Mr. Hanna rose to speak, the applause from the desks on all sides was so deafening that for a few moments he was forced to wait. "There was no hesitation in the manner in which he faced the assembly, however, and it was seen at once that he meant to have the matter out for their good and all."

Mr. Hanna's Statement. "When these charges were made on the floor of the house, I said that I not only did not shrink from them, but that I welcomed them," he began, "and I said it for reasons which are perhaps more apparent to the house today than they were at the time. I have no intention of attempting to review the evidence or going over the ground which has been covered by others so much better than I could do, but there is one stage I may be permitted to refer to. That is that when the charges were made I knew the responsibility resting on me, and I would feel the same responsibility on my part."

"One thing, however, I want to make plain, and that is that the most cruel, unjust, unmanly, and I may say, inhuman act, was when they included Sir James Whitney in those charges. If Sir James Whitney, during the past two or three weeks has been dragged in the mud with his name in every newspaper, it has been because of an indiscretion of mine, an indiscretion, if I may say, if the men who backed these charges were as honest as I was when I took the matter up with Sir James, or when he took it up with me and later came down on the floor of the house and stated the truth, and the whole truth, might be charged to them."

"They got the whole truth, and he did not have to be put on oath to get it. I dealt with my full knowledge and concurrence."

What Responsibility. This latter statement the minister repeated, and then turned to the remark of Mr. Rowell concerning the responsibility of making a charge on the floor of the house.

"Let me ask here on the floor of the house," he said, "the responsibility of the member from Centre Huron? Let me ask if he has taken more responsibility. How is he going to discharge it? What is his next move? I speak not concerning myself particularly, but the house. I am not here pretending to put up a defence for Sir James, for he does not need it."

Here the minister brought home fully to the mind of the member who had launched the charges the brink on which he was standing. "I make the suggestion, and I hope that the member from Centre Huron will take it to himself and consider it—that if he acts up to what his leader

Man Who Formulated the Charges of Improper Conduct Against Ministers Was Strongly Condemned After Wild Scenes in the House—Opposition Still Demands a Royal Commission to Investigate Charges Which Have Utterly Collapsed.

The Ontario Legislature has cleared the names of Sir James Whitney and Hon. W. J. Hanna from any suggestion of improper or corrupt practice. Amid the enthusiastic cheering of the assembled host of members, the singing of voices and thunders upon the desks, which literally rocked the chamber, the house signified the closing term for the year 1913 by establishing with finality the utter falsification of the Proudfoot charges and placing on the records an unqualified condemnation of the man who had formulated them. This having been carried thru amid unlimited excitement by a division of the house, adjournment until prorogation on Friday followed.

To the end, however, the member from Centre Huron clung obstinately to his position, refused to give up his seat in the assembly, as the provincial secretary had suggested. In the afternoon, as a fitting move for one placed in his embarrassing situation, and urged a royal commission to still further proceed. As if to further flatten his charges and follow their expiation a mere mockery, Mr. Hanna submitted to a cross-examination in the course of the evening and came out in the square denial of certain lingering suspicions of opposition minds. An uproar of applause followed the consequent discomfiture of the inquirer. "Did you return the $500?" asked Mr. Proudfoot.

"It was contributed to party funds and spent in that way legitimately," came the response. "Did you ask Taylor for any further subscriptions?" came the next cunning question. "I did not," retorted Mr. Hanna amid applause, and thereafter the house refused to take Mr. Proudfoot seriously.

Premier's Thanks. Sir James Whitney followed with a brief statement to the whole chamber. "It is not in accordance with what I consider the finest things or my self-respect that should be done in my address," he said. "I desire to thank my hon. friend from East Hamilton for the frankness and candor with which he voiced the criticisms of every hon. gentleman, even those who have been attempting so industriously to destroy the property of Ontario."

Adjournment. "God Save the King and rousing cheers for the premier and his provincial secretary."

The rising of T. W. McGarry of South Renfrew, the rapid fire speaker of the house, to speak from an intimate knowledge of the whole affair was greeted with a chorus of applause by the government members, and his whole address, which was delivered with more spirit than has ever been shown, was punctuated through by rounds of applause.

"To look at this matter dispassionately one should regard the man who brought in the charges," he began. "He should come in with clean hands. First, however, let us see the character of the ministers."

Rapidly reviewing the regime of Sir James Whitney since he had appeared on the scene, he pointed out his opponent dismissed for corruption, his aim had been to live up to the understanding with the people that clean government would follow his move. He had done so, as all knew. Mr. Hanna had always been a fair man, fighting the right battles in the province, and had done more for the advance of civilized legislation than any other for a span of years in the history of the province. Never had there been even the hint of a slur against his character until this miserable statement was made.

What About Proudfoot? And now he wished to make a few revelations about the formulator of the charges. Had he held the attack with clear hands? In answer, he would ask the opinions of Milton Carr, Taylor Pipe, George Ross, Howard Campbell and others who had been branded as blinded pigeons by Mr. Proudfoot.

Oshawa's New Harbor

The Government is spending $350,000 on a harbor for Oshawa, the work commencing almost immediately. This harbor will be doubly protected by two breakwaters, 300 feet apart, and extending considerable distance into the lake, and will have a waterway of regular canal depth, with a 25-foot retaining wall. Undoubtedly, Oshawa will have the finest harbor between Toronto and Montreal, which will add considerable importance to its already great shipping facilities, three transcontinental railroads and three electric lines serving it at present.

These facts have influenced substantial concerns to build their factories in Oshawa; the Government to sanction the expenditure of $350,000 for a harbor to Oshawa; workmen to make Oshawa their home, and thus give active interest to builders and investors in buying land. The half has not been told of Oshawa, but the twenty-four-page illustrated folder sent you on receipt of signed coupon gives you full and complete information by photographs. Call or send for this; then, satisfied that it looks like a good investment, take a trip to Oshawa and see the property itself. Your expenses both ways will be allowed on your purchase.

GLEBE MANOR

One's idea of a home is its location. Where in all Toronto, or around Toronto, are there to be found more desirable homesites than in Glebe Manor? Nowhere. Over ONE HUNDRED NEW HOMES are being built this Spring.

If you don't know Glebe Manor, you should make a point of seeing it. It is interesting not only to home-builders, but to investors. You will see great building activities on the property itself, and notice that all adjoining properties are completely built up. It is in the heart of a busy district, centrally located and convenient to the Yonge Street cars. This property can be compared to no other property on the market. It is distinctly good, and is fast being sold up. Building lots are $32 a foot and up. That's no price at all, compared with the high prices being asked for other properties that have not the rich advantages of GLEBE MANOR.

See this property, and if you have money that is not working, invest it in GLEBE MANOR. No bank, no stock, or other form of safe investment, can pay you the dividends that GLEBE MANOR will; and, as to safety, the land will always be there and go on increasing in value. Telephone us the time that would be convenient for you to have our car call to take you out—M. 7281. Remember the price.

LEGISLATURE CENSURES PROUDFOOT

Proudfoot in his statement that a silver service given by certain Cobalt citizens was a gift from the blind piper to the recipient, a police chief, Carr was an ex-Liberal member and Pipe was the present president of the Cobalt Liberal Association, and these, in sharing the gift, were implicated. The man who made these charges was the one also responsible now.

"This man who comes in and attacks men of unblemished character is the one who convicted his own friends of being corrupt and was forced to apologize," he declared. "He has not manliness enough to apologize."

The speaker here turned to a scathing attack on the late J. F. B. Johnston, who had refused to accept the privileges and elections committee but only because he would have been reminded that no other than he had been very skillful in old times of getting corrupt into put through. He instanced the old Hunter claim 40 years ago to prove it, and told of the forty acres of land in Renfrew which had come to the late Johnston at that time. Was the only evidence laid before him by Proudfoot the letter of Thorne? The Thorne letter, he said, was shown to have obtained a hearing, which precedent would not have countenanced. The records showed that in case of a charge against the agricultural department the committee had found so much evidence based on hearsay and petty scandals, stirred up by ex-officials of a frivolous nature that they shut down on it altogether.

Similar Case.

"Oh, how similar was that case to the one today," he said, amid cheers. Mr. Elliott had endeavored to damn the ministers with faint praise, yet he did not believe in the charges himself.

The attitude taken by the premier today in bringing it before a house committee was that taken by him at the Gagey charges. The then premier had also agreed before he had gone around consulting counsel.

"I will say one thing," cried the speaker, "that never in the history of the Liberal administration did a premier stand up and make a statement such as that of Sir James Whitney."

The Huron member had spoken of burking the enquiry and said in the committee that he had not had time to consult counsel. Was this true, or was his statement in the house on Tuesday correct, that he had called on the three lawyers, right? At any rate, after the evidence of Mr. Cartwright and Warden Gilmore, that had led into the foundation stones of their charge gone and had begun to spar for charge. Were between the devil and the deep sea and did not know what to do.

Harley Dwyer also came in for some rigorous condemnation. His statement that he could not examine Thorne on the show was untrue, and was an endeavor to get into falsehood and show him denying his own evidence. Why did they not want him the first day? Was it to trail him about with detectives, as they tried to do?

"It was because Iago was not there," he declared. "The leader of the opposition was also leader of the council."

The Prosecution.

Mr. McGarry then turned the house into laughter at the description of the Liberals leaving the chamber on that day. The chief member had left uttering threats in a sepulchral voice, the whip had gone out in the spirit of he who fights and runs away night after night, and the whole leave-taking had shown the whole thing rehearsed in the leader's office beforehand.

It was on the refusal of Mr. Proudfoot to take the oath that the speaker waxed most warm. He quoted a case of The London Times charging the Irish parliamentary party with corruption and the appearance of the infamous Pigott in the box. Afraid of seeing his charges fail, he had gone out and hanged himself. He would not suggest such a thing in this case, but while the two ministers had gone into the box and sworn, his refusal could only show that he did not believe the charges himself. He would have been forced to say that his whole grounds were in the letter.

Piece of Burlesque.

"I will review the evidence of all the parties taken, and showed the one all and repudiating the suggestion that anything dishonest had occurred. He then reviewed a piece of burlesque, and as confessed by Thorne himself, overdrawn.

"Why, in the name of heaven, do you not accept his sworn statement? He demands 'If the hon. member wishes to preserve the honor of this house and of the nationality from which he sprung let him stand up as an honest man and retract his charges.'"

The depths to which he was sinking were incredible and showed only exorbitant ambition to shine whether infamous or famous. "Who is the Rooseveltian gentleman?" people would say as he strode along. "Why, that is Proudfoot, the maker of charges," would come the reply.

"I will leave the gentleman to position," he said, "and under no guise will the people accept his direction what to do. If all doors are to be opened, why not examine all the elections for the last 25 years? Would he like to have an investigation into the Lake Superior Corporation when the Liberal administration did a premier stand up and make a statement such as that of Sir James Whitney?"

Up Against It.

Mr. Elliott then charged that Sir James Whitney had made no statement in the house until he was up against it and compelled to do so. "Now, sir," he said, "I give the premier credit for the statement he made in the house, but in that statement the premier said that he had known for some time that Mr. Hanna had accepted a political contribution. Would not that have been the proper time for the premier to make this statement? If you're to get full credit for a statement, the statement should not be made after everybody knows it to be a fact."

"I further submit," said Mr. Elliott, "that the admission made by Hon. Wallace Nesbitt does not go a bit further than what we know before the investigation ever held by the committee. 'The names of the prime minister and the provincial secretary will go down in history reversed by all,' said Mr. Hartley Dwyer. But that Mr. Proudfoot, if it ever does appear, will only be distinguished as a man in office who has done things better left undone. There is no stain upon the character of either, and the tributes repeated by all the Liberals showed that they had been dragged into it unwillingly by the one man."

Fuller Inquiry.

Z. Mageau of Sturgeon Falls had always entertained the highest respect for Mr. Hanna, but felt that a fuller enquiry should be allowed. A. C. Pratt followed with a bitter attack on the Liberal ranks. "They are on the defensive and retreating within the walls. Scandalous charges have been made and have fallen. Now every has formulated that if he makes a charge, he must be prepared to take the responsibility. He must consider his next move.

"I do not now think how he is going to discharge that responsibility."

Saw the Point.

The house saw the point, and to a man watched to see the effect on the member who sat with eyes on his desk. The minister continued, however, and pointed out in brief fashion the course of events which had given rise to the charge. He did not know whether the contribution had been made, he said that it had been asked why the claims had been allowed to accumulate. His answer had been given in the witness box and on the floor of the house, and had not been disputed; in fact, had been assented to by everyone concerned, whether in the department or otherwise. The matter had never taken the form of acute disputes, and there never had been the thought of a threat in his mind. He had known that the claim had been in the mind of the Taylor-Scott Company or not, but no whisper of any such had reached his ears until the matter was brought to his attention.

Thorne was gone, he explained, and Postlethwaite had succeeded him, but owing to the breaking of his health he was not the slightest doubt that if his health were alright it would never have gone the way it did. The first time there was any thought of litigation was after the fall of 1910.

"Coming to the day that Taylor came to my office and made threats, my hands were tied and it was impossible to part to speak to anyone concerning the fact," declared Mr. Hanna. "Never again will I submit to the same treatment, or anyone did the word 'cross my lips.'"

Referring then to Montgomery and the subsequent proceedings, the minister said that in June, 1912, in response to a proposition of Montgomery, undoubtedly a substantial claim existed, but that the Taylor-Scott Company, institution who might well be utilized if there were an extension of contract from five years to seven.

"I say that although the charges go on to say that further threats were made, Taylor, and that he by some pressure or otherwise brought it to the court, not one word ever crossed my lips to the effect that I was going to leave it there," declared Mr. Hanna.

Then came Mr. McNaught's evidence, which he would not repeat, but in the minister's report it was stated that Thorne had been allowed $1000 for three or four days' work. It was utterly unfair, Mr. Thorne had sworn that he was not the partner of the Taylor-Scott company, and that it remained unsettled up to the time of his appointment as referee.

Maisonville's Hand.

"Now the money was paid, and that ended it, until, as I repeated in the house, Maisonville's hand appeared," said Mr. Hanna. "It appeared in March and April, and from that day to this I am glad to say that the matter is disposed of, and Maisonville's part in connection with my good friend from Centre Huron is cleared up."

He then said that no man with any experience in law, or with a clear perception of the English language, could see more than two charges for which the member from Huron would take responsibility. He would be the first to say that he had not charged concerning stokers or coal-tenders. Mr. Dewar had pretended evidence about the matter.

Coming direct to the charge, the minister drove the matter straight home to Mr. Proudfoot.

"Because it is perhaps the last opportunity I will have in this matter, I would ask, apart from Maisonville's letter, is there a title of evidence to base the charges on under-feeding stokers?"

Mr. Proudfoot rose bravely and tried to show that evidence had been restricted on one point.

Not the Point.

"No, no," cried the members, "that is not the point, apart from Maisonville's letter, is there a title of evidence to base the charges on under-feeding stokers?"

"You made charges on the floor of this house," continued the minister, coming back with determination. "Had you a title of evidence to support them?"

Mr. Proudfoot sat silent. Finally he burst forth: "I'll reply when you get your feet in league with Maisonville."

Uproar broke loose at this point, and the voices of the members became menacing in tone.

"Answer to the question. Yes or no. Make him answer," they shouted, but still he sat silent.

"Let me call attention to the position he occupies," continued Mr. Hanna. "He accuses me of manipulation of tenders, if you please. I ask him now had he a title of evidence when he made the charges on the floor of the house?"

Game Was Up.

Amid the hoots and jeers of the government benches the member sat in silence, and it was clear that his game was up.

"Then, Mr. Speaker," continued Mr. Hanna after a pause, "that is charge number one. Now I ask about the coal tenders."

"Again he sat silent. 'Lift him up,' yelled one. 'Carry him out,' cried another. 'He made charges on the floor of this house,' and the matter was finished.

Not the Point.

"No, no," cried the members, "that is not the point, apart from Maisonville's letter, is there a title of evidence to base the charges on under-feeding stokers?"

"You made charges on the floor of this house," continued the minister, coming back with determination. "Had you a title of evidence to support them?"

Mr. Proudfoot sat silent. Finally he burst forth: "I'll reply when you get your feet in league with Maisonville."

Uproar broke loose at this point, and the voices of the members became menacing in tone.

"Answer to the question. Yes or no. Make him answer," they shouted, but still he sat silent.

"Let me call attention to the position he occupies," continued Mr. Hanna. "He accuses me of manipulation of tenders, if you please. I ask him now had he a title of evidence when he made the charges on the floor of the house?"

Game Was Up.

Amid the hoots and jeers of the government benches the member sat in silence, and it was clear that his game was up.

"Then, Mr. Speaker," continued Mr. Hanna after a pause, "that is charge number one. Now I ask about the coal tenders."

"Again he sat silent. 'Lift him up,' yelled one. 'Carry him out,' cried another. 'He made charges on the floor of this house,' and the matter was finished.

has formulated that if he makes a charge, he must be prepared to take the responsibility. He must consider his next move.

"I do not now think how he is going to discharge that responsibility."

Saw the Point.

The house saw the point, and to a man watched to see the effect on the member who sat with eyes on his desk. The minister continued, however, and pointed out in brief fashion the course of events which had given rise to the charge. He did not know whether the contribution had been made, he said that it had been asked why the claims had been allowed to accumulate. His answer had been given in the witness box and on the floor of the house, and had not been disputed; in fact, had been assented to by everyone concerned, whether in the department or otherwise. The matter had never taken the form of acute disputes, and there never had been the thought of a threat in his mind. He had known that the claim had been in the mind of the Taylor-Scott Company or not, but no whisper of any such had reached his ears until the matter was brought to his attention.

Thorne was gone, he explained, and Postlethwaite had succeeded him, but owing to the breaking of his health he was not the slightest doubt that if his health were alright it would never have gone the way it did. The first time there was any thought of litigation was after the fall of 1910.

"Coming to the day that Taylor came to my office and made threats, my hands were tied and it was impossible to part to speak to anyone concerning the fact," declared Mr. Hanna. "Never again will I submit to the same treatment, or anyone did the word 'cross my lips.'"

Referring then to Montgomery and the subsequent proceedings, the minister said that in June, 1912, in response to a proposition of Montgomery, undoubtedly a substantial claim existed, but that the Taylor-Scott Company, institution who might well be utilized if there were an extension of contract from five years to seven.

"I say that although the charges go on to say that further threats were made, Taylor, and that he by some pressure or otherwise brought it to the court, not one word ever crossed my lips to the effect that I was going to leave it there," declared Mr. Hanna.

Then came Mr. McNaught's evidence, which he would not repeat, but in the minister's report it was stated that Thorne had been allowed $1000 for three or four days' work. It was utterly unfair, Mr. Thorne had sworn that he was not the partner of the Taylor-Scott company, and that it remained unsettled up to the time of his appointment as referee.

Maisonville's Hand.

"Now the money was paid, and that ended it, until, as I repeated in the house, Maisonville's hand appeared," said Mr. Hanna. "It appeared in March and April, and from that day to this I am glad to say that the matter is disposed of, and Maisonville's part in connection with my good friend from Centre Huron is cleared up."

He then said that no man with any experience in law, or with a clear perception of the English language, could see more than two charges for which the member from Huron would take responsibility. He would be the first to say that he had not charged concerning stokers or coal-tenders. Mr. Dewar had pretended evidence about the matter.

Coming direct to the charge, the minister drove the matter straight home to Mr. Proudfoot.

"Because it is perhaps the last opportunity I will have in this matter, I would ask, apart from Maisonville's letter, is there a title of evidence to base the charges on under-feeding stokers?"

Mr. Proudfoot rose bravely and tried to show that evidence had been restricted on one point.

Not the Point.

WHAT NEW ZEALAND IS DOING FOR DEFENCE OF THE EMPIRE

Hon. James Allen, Minister of Defence, Says It Is Impossible to Defend the Imperial and the Defence Questions and Told of the System of Which His Is the Head.

Col. the Hon. James Allen, minister of defence of the Dominion of New Zealand, was the guest of the Military Institute at luncheon yesterday, and the recipient of an address. Controller Church, in seconding a vote of thanks, expressed the hope that the city would be able officially to recognize Col. Allen's visit.

Col. Allen is an Englishman, who was a schoolmate of Col. Merritt at Cambridge, where he had a scholarship. There was no better, hard working, conscientious forward on the football field, said Col. Merritt, and he liked to play behind him in the scrimmage. He had also an oar in the Cambridge boat.

Col. Allen presents a dominion which sent 85,000 men to South Africa during the Boer war, or double the number of the whole militia of Canada. This was dwelt upon in the address following.

On this occasion, the first visit to its premises of the minister of defence from a foreign dominion of this great empire, the committee of the Canadian Military Institute feel that its welcome should be emphasized by presenting it with formal addresses. They are actuated in this largely by recognition of the splendid loyalty invariably exhibited by the plucky dominion which has so long borne the colossus burden of imperial defence.

Col. Allen in reply said it was impossible to separate the imperial and the dominion. In New Zealand they desired nothing more than to remain in peaceful occupation of the shores they lived on.

Col. Allen was in opposition at the time the Compulsory Service Act was brought in. "We could have made party capital out of it," he said, "but my advice to my leader was not to make a party question of it. It was too big a thing for that."

Women troubled with fuzzy growths will be delighted to learn that a single application of a paste made with powdered salicylic acid and water will remove every trace of hair or fuzz without pain or injury.

EFFICIENT HOUSEKEEPING

Home Made Bread--Yeast

THE essentials to bread making are: Proper flour, fresh yeast and a steady oven, but a knowledge of the leavening process is of great assistance.

For that reason I always insist that young cooks, who come to my classes for instruction, read Herbert Spencer's interesting little volume on Plant Life.

Rising of bread is caused by growth of the yeast plant; as it grows wonderful changes take place in the sponge or dough thru its activity.

It is allowed to rise without being worked down, or kneaded, the mass would become wonderfully light and overflow the bowl.

There is no such thing as luck in bread making if you will master the few facts that I have only touched upon briefly in these short articles.

Tomorrow--choice of flour. left unfettered. They must keep the peace everywhere. The flag meant liberty and freedom.

It had been said that their registration was a failure, but they had more than 18 to 21 than they expected. Some did not turn up, and prosecutions at first by the former government were lax, but the present government has enforced the law, and now no prosecutions were needed.

One of their problems was what to do with the excess number of men. They attacked them to rifle clubs. The men had asked for an extension of training in camp from 9 to 14 days, and those who took the longer period were excused from drill.

They felt in New Zealand that they must also be ready to help the empire, and he was going to recommend collection to form an expeditionary force of 8000 men, ready to go at a moment's notice with all equipment provided, to any part of the empire where they might be required, the only condition being that they should be outside their Dominion, the men must volunteer. But they would have no difficulty about that.

He felt that they could not stand alone. Step by step as they had built up the constitution of England, he believed step by step they would build up the greater constitution representative of them all. Each must do its part. Local administration must be maintained.

PATTERN SERVICE NEWS FOR WOMEN

GOVERNMENT WILL BE ASKED TO GIVE MONEY FOR WOMEN

Schemes For Agriculture and Playgrounds Proposed by the National Council—Certificates of Age For Working Children—Inspection of Dairies Is Strongly Urged.

By a Staff Reporter.

MONTREAL, May 7.—The advisability of replacing the committees on education and supervised playgrounds by a committee on education and supervised play was the first important matter that occupied the attention of the National Council of Women this morning. Miss Peters, who has been having been interested in the playgrounds movements from the beginning, stated that the proposed change did not appeal to her. She suggested that the committee should be named the "committee on playgrounds, recreations and social centres." Miss Stead of Halifax and Miss Derich of Montreal, the suggestion of the executive to retain both committees was accepted. This motion was lost. Miss Peters' motion carried. The question "What's a name?" has been often asked. Those who have the pleasure of listening to the discussion on several changes suggested by the report of sub-committees on standing committees are convinced that many differentiations arise in the search to find the title most suitable. The debate as to whether the name of the workers on women's employment should be "committee on employment for women, including agriculture," or "committees on employments and agriculture" was a lively one.

Can Be Useful.

In response to Miss Ritchie of Halifax, Mrs. L. A. Hamilton stated that it was because Canada is essentially an agricultural country that a separate committee was desirable. Women can be peculiarly useful along many lines of work and careers in agricultural lines are open to many. Miss Derich's amendment to eliminate the standing committee, but to retain the sub-committee on nurses, was carried. The committees on laws, finance, citizenship, public health, immigration and colonization, peace and arbitration, fine and applied arts, objectionable printed matter, and equal moral standard, as they are, are Committees on aged and infirm poor are dropped. The committee on the care of the feeble-minded has taken its place. A suggested new committee on the conservation of natural resources was carried. Miss Derich spoke against retaining the sub-committee on nursing, not because the nursing is not interesting, but because the National Association of Nurses is not affiliated with the council. Miss Mackenzie, on the part of the nurses, explained that she had spoken to them individually and had found that perhaps not a dozen in the Dominion knew anything of the work of the council.

Council in Sympathy.

Mrs. Torrington said that she felt sure that the National Council was in sympathy with the nurses. Mrs. Lyle thought the standing committee on nurses ought to be retained. Miss Derich, in her opinion, thought that nothing had been done for the nurses. Mrs. McLellan, also of St. John, stated that the local council had done all they could to encourage the nurses in their locality.

Age Certificates.

A recommendation from the council, which was moved by Mrs. Huestis, seconded by Mrs. Hamilton, asked that

THE SEASHORE.

The time is now opportune to plan for your summer outing, and to those who have enjoyed the seaside the resorts on Long Island Sound, in the vicinity of New London, Conn., offer many attractions, and for those who have not experienced the delights of a stay at the seaside we recommend the territory for their vacation this year. A new booklet dealing with the district mentioned and entitled "The Seashore" has been issued by the Grand Trunk Railway System and copies may be had for the asking. The descriptive matter in the booklet is interesting and profusely illustrated with scenes from direct photographs. Hotel accommodation is available to suit all pockets, the rates running from $10.00 per week to $10.00 per day. The special features are warm sea bathing and deep sea fishing. The district is within a night's ride of Montreal. Reduced fares are offered and first-class train equipment will be at your service. Ask the Grand Trunk agent in your city for a copy of the book.

Some Troublesome Insects

THE ROSE.

The rose that most beautiful and most easily raised of all plants, seems to have the greatest number of enemies, waiting to prey upon its buds, blossoms and leaves.

The green fly, or as it is scientifically called the Aphis, is a tiny almost invisible fly, most harmful to the foliage of the bush. The Aphis lives mostly on the rose leaf, turning it to a sickly unhealthy yellow. If not destroyed the Aphis will also blight the buds.

Colonies of these pests gather on the young growth, the tender greenish yellow just-born leaves, and are so close by associated with these young shoots that it is easy to pass them by undetected, unless an alert eye is kept on the bushes. Spray the plant with tobacco solution, or dust the plant with tobacco powder, after first spraying the whole bush with a little tepid water to make the tobacco powder adhere closely to the leaf.

A solution of whale oil soap, described yesterday is in my opinion by far the most efficacious. One warning to any gardener is a way that lost not a trifle by persistence.

Mrs. Malaprop and "The Rivals" will be repeated tonight.

Decorate With Pennants.

The popularity of pennants for decorative purposes is such that everybody is doing it, so The World has arranged to supply its readers on the popular coupon plan. On another page will be found the announcement and coupon. You can decorate that dining room or summer cottage with a prominent display of gorgeous pennants, and the cost will be a mere trifle. The pennants are 12 inches by 30 inches in size, and made of the best felt fitted with straps, so that they can be tied to a staff or other fixture. Today we will distribute a Canada pennant, with the Canadian coat of arms and the word Canada in a blaze of colors.

"THE RIVALS" IS CLEVERLY GIVEN

Quaint Comedy of Manners and Sparkling Wit at the Royal Alexandra.

Such an exquisitely pleasant comedy as Richard Sheridan's "The Rivals" deserved a far larger audience than it had at the Royal Alexandra last night, but the applause and laughter evoked were equal, in volume, to that received by most of our present-day comedies drawing crowded houses. There is in this old masterpiece a mellowness of humor never seen in the quickly passing plays produced with such abundance now; a sprightliness of action far from evanescent in its appeal, and manners, with a quaint charm.

As played by Anna Russell's company, there is not a backward spot in the cheerful, witty flow. Throughout the company is clever, and willing, and effective. In the minor parts, in the relation of the characters portrayed, there was consistently good work, with occasional flashes of beautiful comedy. The principals, and the piece allows for no stalling, permitted not a dragging moment; the evening was one of continuous, pleasant—not forcible—exhilaration.

Fred W. Permain as Sir Anthony was energetically pettish and decidedly good. Without overdoing the dash, Oswald Yorke was a dashing, polite and attractive Captain Jack. The good-natured, careless, but thoroughly likable Bob Acres was given with faithfulness by George Giddens, and with considerable broad humor, Annie Russell as Lydia Languish was coy, uncertain, and delightful. And Mrs. Malaprop, played in magnificent style by Elliott Paget, must not be forgotten. The urging upon others the desirability of profound learning, this delightful old lady used incongruous words in a way that lost not a trifle by persistence.

Service Recital.

A service recital in St. James' Square Presbyterian Church last night proved some excellent music to a considerable audience. Dr. Davies and Richard Tattersall furnished organ solos, the former eliciting all the charm of Alfred Hollis' "Spring Song" and the latter displaying clever pedalling in Bach's "Toccata in F." Johnston's "Aubade" by Dr. Davison and two movements from Widors' "Second Symphony" by Mr. Tattersall, were among the other numbers. Miss May Hinckley's clear and cultivated soprano gave distinction to several solos, and Miss Olive Belyea sang "He Was Despised" with touching expression. Her voice is a rich contralto of peculiarly thrilling quality. Members of the choir sang "Tenor and Bass Solos, Mendelssohn's 'It Is Enough' being sung with sympathy. The choir sang a number of anthems with fine taste, the a capella numbers showing purity of tone and careful training; due to Dr. Davies, the director and organist.

NO OTHER WAY

By Gordon Holmes

She was far too wise a wife to seek direct information. Taking her turn at the newspaper, she read the Narragansett "sensation." "I shouldn't be at all astonished if those two came together again," she said.

"Which two?" enquired the great man, carefully cutting the end of a cigar.

"Mr. Waverton and his wife, of course."

"Why? Because he saved the baby?"

"Well, isn't it the strangest coincidence you ever read?"

"Coincidences are always strange. If they were not, we shouldn't notice them."

"But he cannot be such a bad man as was represented in court."

"Oh, come, come, Jack! There are scores of convicts in Sing Sing today who would have done as much for a stranger's child."

"Still, this affair is wonderful. He practically went from the train to the ocean, and jumped in after the little girl; tho there was a strong tide running, and he could have swam to the pier. You have missed the real coincidence, my dear," said Staingal, and his blue eyes twinkled.

"That is that?"

"Read the message from Atlantic City—about a dead man found in a boat."

"Mrs. Staingal read. 'It is horrible,' she announced; 'but what has it to do with the Waverton divorce?'"

"I am just wondering, Herbert W. Kyrle of Absecon is Mrs. Delamar's husband."

"Jim, you don't say so!"

"I am not on oath, my dear; but I am speaking to the best of my belief."

"All this is amazing," cried Mrs. Staingal. "What do you make of it?"

"Nothing—at present," and Staingal went into a study of garden, where some clumps of sweet peas were battling vigorously against the strenuous climate of Brooklyn. Having satisfied himself as to their progress, he returned to the house and telephoned headquarters.

"Clancy been in yet?" he enquired.

"No, sir," said a subordinate.

"When he shows up, ask him to come and lunch with me here."

So it came to pass that while Rice, the valet in Providence, was searching his wits to account for the fact that Claude Waverton's giving such little heed to the mention of Mrs. Delamar's New Jersey address in the record of the Atlantic City tragedy, the two cleverest detectives in New York were discussing the same problem, tho with more ample knowledge, and from a widely different viewpoint.

CHAPTER III.

Wherein a Detective is Puzzled and Admits It.

Usually, the repository of secrets, the police headquarters, at the corner of Grand and Centre streets, has too many irons in the fire to permit of its experts engaging in work that is not imperatively called for; but as it happened, "the beautiful Mrs. Delamar"—a descriptive phrase by which the lively girl generally figured in gossip-mongering newspapers as one of those social meters whose irregular orbits attract the attention of the police. There are always a score or more of such meters kept under trusive surveillance. Some among them are dames actually moving in good society, some call themselves actresses, no means hard-working members of an honorable profession, but masqueraders of the stage—some are known to the public only by reason of their striking appearance and ultra-fashionable attire; but, one and all, they are adventuresses, and the New York Detective Bureau seldom gets their regular duties, various criminals. And, certain members of it had a particular interest in Mrs. Delamar.

Officially, unless requested to make an arrest by other municipal police authorities or federal officials, the New York Detective Bureau has no interest in persons committed within the city limits. But some members of the bureau have been known to take a very active interest in affairs that could not possibly be included in their regular duties. Various powerful influences have had no difficulty in securing the aid of the department in matters of which there is no official record, and in which the Detective Bureau could have no concern.

The head of the bureau had received a request—really, it was a patent as a direct command—to give him that it was believed could make and unmake police officials, to find out if Mrs. Delamar could be placed in a position where she could be valuable to no one. She had been concerned in a certain financial matter of great moment, and it was feared that she should be "silenced," with never a reason for it, and to this end unlimited expense money was available to avoid subsequent official curiosity about vouchers.

And this is the reason why, after reading the two apparently unrelated sensations in the newspaper, Staingal sent for Clancy.

A couple of long-distance calls elicited two new facts—the quest on the man found dead on board the steamer cutter would be held at Atlantic City on Wednesday, and Claude Waverton and his wife had left Narragansett Pier hurriedly on Saturday afternoon.

"Where have they gone to?" asked Staingal, who was in communication with the chief of police at Narragansett.

"We have not troubled to ascertain," came the answer.

"Will you kindly find out, and let me know?" he said.

An hour later he heard that Waverton had gone to Newport and Thence to Providence, with the added fact, born of official suspiciousness, that, whereas Waverton had stated definitely that he meant to pay a prolonged visit to the Rhode Island resort, he had cleared out, bag and baggage, within a few hours of his arrival.

"Nothing in it, I fancy," said Staingal to Clancy. "I suppose he hardly expected to meet his wife there, especially in the same hotel; so he settled the difficulty by going at once."

Gourlay Methods

The first Gourlay Piano was the result of accumulated knowledge in the art of piano making. We supplemented our own knowledge by searching not only Canada, but the entire world to find the most efficient and advanced methods of piano building. Those methods that had proved best, we adopted.

To-day, if there is an innovation or change discovered that proves upon investigation and trial to be sound, we adopt it. This applies to principle, process, and material. This policy is unwaveringly observed in the Gourlay Factory, no matter what time or expense it involves.

The Gourlay Piano

reflects these methods. It proves in tone, in durability, in finish, that this is the only correct principle of manufacture. The Gourlay Piano was never intended to sell at a low price. It never claimed your consideration on the ground of cheapness. It was designed and built to be a staunch, life-long companion, to win your lasting esteem because of its inherent good qualities, and a piano made by methods less thorough cannot meet this standard.

When you buy a piano, select a Gourlay, it is the piano which makes musical and material excellence the only consideration.

Advertisement 2: Bertha: You ask why a woman in the twenties gets crow's feet and wrinkles and what to do to avoid them. Ill health may cause loss of flesh and sagging of the skin which is not long filled out by flesh, but more often the result of worry, deep thought, sorrowing of the habit of smiling. This can be removed by using this stimulating vegetable jelly cream which can be made at home at very little cost and will, by filling out the wrinkles, purge the skin of muddy spots and pimples. Get from your drug store one ounce of glycerine, add one-half pint of cold water, adding 2 tea-spoonsful of glycerine. Stir and let stand one day. Apply to wrinkled surface, rub entire face to prevent wrinkles and leave through night. Then wash off and use the jelly cream as a massage. This treatment will remove the most obstinate wrinkles or finest crow's feet, while leaving the skin of a velvety texture. It is greasy and does not grow hair.

WOMEN DON'T SEEM TO HAVE BRAINS

That Is, When They Ride on Street Cars, Says Ex-Conductor.

Special to The Toronto World.

BOSTON, Mass., May 8.—That women are "brainless" as far as riding on the street cars goes, was the declaration of Edmund Trowbridge Dana, grandson of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, social economic investigator, Harvard student and retired street car conductor, in an address today before the Boston School of Social Science. He said:

"When it comes to riding on street cars women are the stupidest things imaginable. When you are trying to make up time they are always in the majority and always blundering. Why, they don't seem to have any brains at all."

"I was somewhat of a Socialist when I started to work, but I was more thoroughly one when I stopped work on the road. Up to that time I had never done a stroke of work in my life, aside from a bit of athletics at college. I was surprised to note how tired I was when my work was done. It was entirely different from football and sprinting."

THURSDAY MORNING, MAY 8

GETTING OUT OF TOUCH.

Every day shows more clearly that Controller Church and Controller Foster are getting out of touch with the city. They are out of touch with their own constituents, but even more notably are they out of touch with the business spirit of the council. The petty squabbling and wrangling that used to occupy the sessions of council and give delight to such as the late poet-citizen Sabine, may have suited the Toronto of twenty years ago. But the city of 1913 with its half million people expects something better than the petty childishness from which the two controllers seem unable to shake themselves free.

Before they can control the city business they ought to make some progress in controlling themselves, their ill-humors, their egotisms and their small political ambitions. These things are not important to the citizens and do not advance city business. The board of control was established to attend to city business, and when the citizens realize that these two controllers are more interested in their own private aims than in city business another election will evince the public judgment of their action.

COMPULSORY MILITARY SERVICE

Rev. Dr. Carman was highly applauded at the Military Institute luncheon yesterday when Colonel Allen spoke of the people in New Zealand who had to be dealt with on account of their religious objections to military service. "They ought not to have any objection," remarked the patriarchal representative of the church militant and triumphant. Everybody present concurred, and even Lieutenant-Governor Gibson declared he would like to see universal military service, but hoped they would be able to do without the word "compulsory."

Representing the first British state to adopt compulsory service, Colonel Allen is an object of great interest to Canadians, some of whom regard the idea of compulsory service as the last social iniquity.

OPINION WILL PROBABLY CHANGE IN THIS RESPECT, ESPECIALLY SHOULD THE EXPERIENCE OF NEW ZEALAND AND OTHER BRITISH STATES SHOW THAT COMPULSORY MILITARY SERVICE HAS AN ELEVATING INFLUENCE UPON THE INDIVIDUAL PHYSICALLY, MENTALLY, MORALLY. THE SOLDIER OF TRADITION, THE SOLDIER OF EUROPEAN ARMIES, THE SOLDIER OF THE LAST GENERATION EVEN IS FAR FROM THE IDEAL OF THE CITIZEN-SOLDIER AS COLONEL ALLEN DEPICTS HIM. HE IS TRAINED FOR DEFENCE. HIS MILITARY FITNESS AND INTELLIGENCE ADD TO HIS GENERAL EFFICIENCY AS A CITIZEN. THE MOTHERS WHO WERE FRIGHTENED THAT THEIR BOYS WERE GOING INTO DENS OF INFAMY WERE REJOICED TO FIND THEM COME BACK BETTER RATHER THAN WORSE, READY, AS COLONEL ALLEN TESTIFIED, TO MAKE GOOD CITIZENS AND LEAD HONORABLE AND CLEAN LIVES. A REALIZATION OF THIS AND THE DEMONSTRATION OF SUCH EFFECTS ON THE YOUNG MANHOOD OF THE COUNTRY WOULD SO REMOVE THE OBJECTIONS TO COMPULSORY SERVICE.

AUSTRALIA'S LAND TAX.

In 1905 the local government system of the State of New South Wales, Australia, was reconstituted and it was made mandatory that a rate of one penny in the pound on capital unimproved value should be imposed. All the shires of the state now raise their revenues from land values, and since 1906 the municipalities of the state have also been compelled to levy the same assessment and have the additional power of rating on land values for all requirements. As a result the 189 municipalities, with trifling exceptions, now rate on land values only. The most striking developments happened in the forty suburban municipalities of Sydney, the capital of the state, which had in 1909 land value assessment of $11,000,000, where the average rate needed to meet their requirements was 2 1/2 pence in the pound on capital unimproved value, rising to 5d. When this rating was imposed protest was immediately made that it would ruin the poor market gardeners and other small holders.

The reform, however, has been fully justified by results, as given in a statement signed by ninety suburban mayors and aldermen, recently made public. It says:

In response to a request for an expression of opinion, we wish to say that the system of rating on unimproved values, which came into force under the provisions of the Local Government Act of 1905, is working remarkably well. It has reduced the rates of a very large proportion of the ratepayers, and we are raising a larger revenue. It has stimulated the building trade, employment is more constant, and business generally on a much sounder footing. It has induced a number of ratepayers to build or dispose of land which they are not willing or able to use themselves, and has promoted the subdivision of land hitherto withheld from use for speculative purposes. It is fair to all ratepayers, as it simply requires from each his due proportion of the rates. It especially benefits those ratepayers whose use of land is most effective and creditable to the municipality, while it has put effective pressure upon a number of owners of idle or partly used land to change their tactics. As far as we can judge, the new system has the emphatic support of the bulk of the people. There is no public demand for a change. It is but fair to admit that rating on unimproved values is working as well as its advocates claimed that it would before it was adopted.

From an official statement issued in December last, it appears that the City of Sydney is growing at a rapid pace, and the building done in 1911 constituted a record. Excluding public buildings, 6508 were completed, at a cost of $28,000,000, while in the past few years 22,214 were erected, costing over $60,000,000. Passing from New South Wales, the State of Queensland has raised all its income from land values since 1891, and in South Australia the land value tax is one half-penny in the pound up to £5000 of capital value, plus one penny over that amount. The commonwealth has also a land value tax carried in 1910 by the present government. Its avowed object was to break up great estates. Within seven months from the passing of the act the first annual contribution of $6,800,000 was received by the treasury and the first report of the land tax commissioner, just presented to parliament, shows that taxpayers in the nine months from October, 1910, to June, 1911, sold land of the value of $90,000,000, in 233 separate transactions. This liberation of the land has largely contributed to promote the extraordinary boom in Australian immigration. This year the number of emigrants from the United Kingdom is expected to reach 100,000, all the steamship accommodation being booked till December.

MAY USE PRESENT JAIL FOR NEXT TWO DECADES

Location of New Isolation Hospital Still Puzzles Health Board.

To arrive at a definite policy upon location of the isolation hospital the board of health will appeal to the board of control to urge the police commissioners to decide at an early date if the Toronto jail building is to be used, indefinitely, or is to be removed in the near future.

Ald. Rowland stated that the police commissioners have no intention of discontinuing the use of the jail building, and that the building may be there 20 years hence.

Ald. May held that the present site of the isolation hospital is the best, and that additional buildings could be erected upon the jail premises. He believes the jail building will not be needed much longer, and will give place to isolation hospital buildings.

THROWN FROM BUGGY.

As a result of a horse she was driving becoming frightened at a passing engine and bolting, Mrs. Phillip Payne, coleseller, A. She was attended by Dr. McNamara, and afterwards removed to her home in Speers' ambulance.

ONE MORE GRAND CURE IS REPORTED

Dodd's Kidney Pills Add to Their Record in New Brunswick.

Mr. M. G. Wilson, After Suffering for Five Years, Finds Quick Relief and Complete Health. LITTLE SHIPPEGAN, Gloucester Co., N.B., May 7.—(Special).—Another grand cure has been added to the splendid record of Dodd's Kidney Pills made in New Brunswick. Mr. M. G. Wilson, a well-known resident of this place, suffered for five years from a severe form of kidney disease. "Dodd's Kidney Pills cured him. I suffered for five years with a terrible pain in the small of my back and shoulders." Mr. Wilson says in an interview. "My trouble started in a cold, and I was treated by doctors and tried all kinds of medicine, it continued to grow worse. "My joints were stiff, my sleep at times was broken and unrefreshing, and I had a dragging sensation across the loins. My skin itched and burned and I had lapses of memory, while occasional sharp pains in the top of my head added to my discomfort. "I was a sick man when I started to use Dodd's Kidney Pills; but they soon gave me relief and five boxes cured me completely. They are the best pills I ever used." If the disease is of the kidneys or from the kidneys, Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure it.

COAL AND ICE.

The coalman lives in clover while stormy blizzards blow, but when the winter's over his heart is full of woe. When icy blasts are roaring, around his door we wait, most earnestly imploring more semi-burning slate. With chuckles of elation he then takes all our beans; with bitter indignation we hoist them from our hearth, and when the summer's nearing, his yards look lone and bare, we hear no gleeful chorus when his wagons and his horses stand idly in the shed. Yet his rule now ceases, at which we howl with joy, there comes another Croesus to vex us and annoy. The coalman now is beaming his beams to beat the band—for old Sol's rays are streaming upon our smiling land; and when the heat is burning degree above degree to altitudes appalling, a happy man he'll be, for then he'll place before us a sample of his ice, and in a mighty chorus we'll bid him hie him to the door. Thus, going and returning, these two chaps take their toll an easy living earning till years shall cease to roll.

NEW MUSKOKA TRAIN.

The Grand Trunk Railway System is putting a new train from Toronto to Muskoka Wharf, commencing Saturday, May 17, leaving Toronto 10.15 a.m. daily, except Sunday, arriving Muskoka Wharf 1.45 p.m., making direct connection with steamers for all points on Muskoka Lakes.

A brand new train, consisting of baggage car, vestibule, big parlor-library-buffet car, coaches and passenger cars, will be operated and passengers are assured of a comfortable ride along the most interesting route to Muskoka Wharf, which is the original gateway to the far-famed Muskoka Lakes.

NEW G.T.R. DEPARTMENT

The Grand Trunk Railway announce that effective at once a new department will be established in Toronto, which will have supervision over European import traffic on lines in Ontario west of Belleville to Detroit and St. Clair rivers. This department will be in charge of Mr. George Peppall, the present assistant foreign freight agent, who will look after both import, as well as export traffic.

Mr. P. R. Clark, formerly traveling freight agent in the division freight agent's office, has been transferred to Mr. Peppall's office as soliciting import agent.

This arrangement, on the part of the Grand Trunk, will be of special interest to the importers, enabling them, as it will, to get into direct touch with an office that will specialize on import traffic. The amount of import to the class of traffic moving in connection with the Grand Trunk or its affiliates interests should in future be addressed to Mr. Peppall's office.

KODAK LECTURES ARE GREAT HIT

Hundreds of People See Fine Views at Massey Hall.

The Kodak exhibition which is being held at Massey Music Hall to a large and appreciative audience is not intended as an art exhibit—but rather as an exposition of how photography touches every human interest.

The pictures were made for the sake of preserving the thing photographed—not with the thought that it would be a picture deserving of salon honors. Yet the pictures are artistic because they have the greatest attribute of art—simplicity. They compel interest because they are pictures of things worth while in travels, sports, adventures and domestic life.

The pictures are artistically arranged on screens around the hall. For those interested in the technique of photography demonstrations are given by experts from the Canadian Kodak Company. Limited, and amateurs are invited to bring their photographic problems and have them solved.

Leafs Down Indians Again Orioles Win at Rochester

HUB NORTHERN'S TRUSTY STICK WINS SECOND FOR THE LEAFS

New Right Fielder Drops One in Bleachers in Ninth—Brant Indulges in Duel With Old Cy Barger—A Great Battle.

It always comes to him who waits, is at old adage, and a very true one. One gentleman, named Hub Northern, waited all afternoon for a Newark hurler with a kindly feeling in his heart to put one on the inside and a respectable distance high, and was well repaid for his patience. Gaskell did the kindly act, and Hub smacked the pill with might and main, dropping it in the right-field bleachers, circled the bases, and won the second contest of the series from Newark.

While hardly playing as good a game of ball as on opening day, the Leafs and Newark dished up a much more interesting brand of the great pastime for us poor, undisciplined boys. It was one of those games that keeps you on pins and needles every inch of the way, and it wound up in a blaze of glory.

Brant, the good right-hander who came to the Leafs via the Boston Americans, and who had a good record in the Texas League last year, indulged in a great pitchers' duel with Cy Barger, once the mainstay of the Brooklyn nationals, for eight long innings. Brant had the Newark swatmen tied up in knots, and let them down with two consecutive, one after the other of the scratchy variety. Brant made seven Redskin wafers, but Barger had a little on the Newark recruit in steadiness and allowed but one more hit than Brant. Brant was not allowed to allow McConnell to hit him, and Barger retired to let Manager Smith try and break up the contest.

It was a good turn that Harry Smith did us when he benched Barger. The Leafs were in hot water, with the score tied and Gaskell on the mound for the Sailors. Gaskell started well and fooled Jordan in the eighth, when he gave Northern just the right one, with the right pace, and the fair-haired sun gazer dropped the ball in the bleachers.

Off in front. The Leafs were in front when a walk to Shavy came. Shavy's good double netted them a counter in the second. Brant was working in grand shape, and the Newark batsmen were falling like him like before a strike ball right in the pocket.

"Swats" Swacina, clean-up wallop, had twice whiffed in the first four innings, much to the delight of one Joseph Kelley and Brant's manager, one of the fifth. The break came after Gaskell had been disposed of. McCarty singled to DeLoach, who hit into the hands of the Indians, who were in the lead. This left Newark with a one-run lead.

Came Across With Two. The Leafs earned two runs and were handed a counter in their own half of the second. Shavy opened with a clean ball left, and Hub Northern, who was batting with a sacrifice, McConnell was sent in to bat for Brant, and nearly delivered. Swacina knocked out the first baseman, and McConnell singled thru the left and Shavy was in. O'Hara hit at the end of the inning, and McConnell, who had then thrown the ball to the stand trying to get Fitz at third. Eddie came back to bat.

Horne was sent in to finish the battle for the Leafs, and got off badly by walking. E. Zimmerman, Gaskell, and McConnell and McCarty slugged out a double that counted Zimmerman. The next two were easy.

Gaskell twirled the last season for Newark and Northern won the game with his homer into the right-field bleachers after Jordan had fanned.

GIANTS TRIMMED REDS. NEW YORK, May 7.—New York again defeated the Chicago Cubs today, the score being 6 to 4. Benton was wild and was hit hard. He was relieved by Packard, a young left-hander, who threw a wonderful game after the third inning. The Giants did not get a hit off the pitcher until the third inning, when Wild and Innes were hit and relieved with the bases full in the second. Matthews struck the Reds in the eighth, but was hit later hard. Cincinnati scoring three runs on hits on clean hitting, under the great game for New York at short, accepting 12 chances without an error.

CHICAGO, May 7.—Washington today defeated Chicago in the opening game of the series 2 to 2. This was the first game of the eastern series in Chicago. The locals took an early lead, but on a fender's choice, an error and a triple by McBride, the visitors took the lead and then added another run. Cloutier retired to let Easterly bat for him, and when Lange took up the pitching the visitors getting three scattered hits in five innings.

Finding it Real Tough Sledding

ROCHESTER, May 7.—Manager Ganzel used three hurlers, Keefe, Upham and Wilhelm, today in an attempt to stave off defeat, but to no avail. Baltimore winning 9 to 4. Although the Orioles piled up five errors behind him, Roth had the game well in hand, hitting six in six straight victories this season. Score: Baltimore, 9; Rochester, 4.

Frank Chance, manager of the New York Americans, has landed his third game this year. Ray Keating, ex-Baltimore pitcher, has twirled all three games.

Stock Markets in Cheerful Mood---European Crisis is Passing

BRAZILIAN SCORED SHARP RECOVERY

London a Buyer of the Shares and Price Rallied Rapidly.

GENERAL LIST IGNORED

And Stocks Just Held at Steady Levels---Winnipeg Elec. Down Again.

Brazilian scored a sharp recovery in the Toronto Stock Exchange yesterday, a sudden reversal of sentiment, inspired by the incoming of substantial buying orders from London, establishing the security on the upgrade again. Outside of the movement in this issue, the market was quiet in the extreme, with trading, particularly in the afternoon, reduced almost to a dead level.

After considering overnight the issue of preferred stock by Brazilian, traders evidently came to the conclusion that there was small chance of the common dividend being endangered, and in view of the remarkable possibilities ahead of the company, they were inclined to deem the four point decline as somewhat fortuitous. There was probably some short covering on the upturn, but this was not a material influence.

Followed London's Lead. London did not follow the decline of Tuesday on our market in full, and this fact was responsible for the higher opening here. The first sale was made at 92 1/2, compared with the closing transaction at 91 3/4 the previous day, and from that on the shares made steady improvement until noon, when the price touched 94 7/8. In the afternoon the activity dwindled and the stock held within a small range, ending up at 94 7/8, the high for the day, and a net advance of a full 3 1/8 points for the session. In all over 4500 shares changed hands, the most active trading for many months in the security.

The general list was practically ignored through, and outside of small price changes there was little of interest. Winnipeg Railway dropped back a couple of points to 202 1/2, and closed with the best bid at 200, its lowest since March. Toronto Electric, Mackay, Duluth Superior and Macdonald all made fractional gains, but the dealings were too restricted to attract attention. A rise of a couple of points in C. P. R. in New York was not followed here.

IRREGULAR TONE IN MINING MARKET

Steadier Trend to Some Issues Offset by Weakness in Others.

ROBT. SIMPSON CO. HAD A GOOD YEAR

The net earnings of the Robert Simpson Co. for the year just ended, before deducting interest on bonds and loans and the amount written off for depreciation and for special expenditures, amounted to $777,472.20. After payment of interest charges on bonds and on dividends on common and preferred shares, there was carried forward to profit and loss account a surplus of $219,223.34.

RAILWAY STOCKS DIDN'T MAKE GOOD

NEW YORK, May 7.—The American quotes Floyd W. Mundy as saying it is time for stockholders of railroads to organize for protection. Taking New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio and Pennsylvania as representative examples, he points out that, including bonds and stock, average income received by investors in these companies in 12-year periods has been considerably less than 5 per cent. due largely to onerous taxes.

ANOTHER LOAN FAILS

NEW YORK, May 7.—A London cable says that the £1,000,000 Brazillian 5 per cent. loan issued on Monday was not a success, and that the securities were not in the market today at a discount of 1 1/2 per cent.

MAKING PROGRESS.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—At a conference today between Attorney Everts and Attorney General McReynolds it is understood that progress was made in Union Pacific-Southern Pacific disposition plans. No details have yet been obtained.

TWIN CITY EARNINGS.

For the last nine days of April the earnings of the Twin City Rice Trust Co. were $204,311, an increase over the corresponding period last year of $17,093, or 8.12 per cent.

NEW YORK STOCKS RALLIED AT CLOSE

Bears, After Early Success, Met With Opposition of Determined Sort.

PACIFICS LED UPTURN

Rumor of Quick Settlement of Dissolution Problem Inspired Optimism.

NEW YORK, May 7.—After a day of mixed movements, in which no well defined trend was discernible, the stock market became distinctly strong in the final trading and closed with substantial gains for many of the important stocks. At the opening of the session bear traders attempted to carry forward the decline of yesterday. They were successful in forcing down prices temporarily, but later met with determined opposition, which brought about a smart advance. The demand fell off on the rally, and movements thereafter were uncertain until the final outbreak of buying, which lifted prices to the highest of the day.

Speculative interest again centered in the Harriman stocks, whose heaviness in the early trading was a disturbing feature. Southern Pacific broke to 93 1/2, a new low price since 1908. That stock and Union Pacific were leaders in the late upturn, being helped by unconfirmed reports that the Union Pacific management had arranged for quick compliance with the supreme court's dissolution decree and the distribution of Union Pacific securities to the holders of the stock.

Some New Low Records. Weakness in stocks other than the Harriman issue acted as a drag on the market. New York Central sold below par for the first time since 1908 for other issues made new low records.

London bought stocks here moderately, its purchases on balance being estimated at 10,000 shares. Traders who expected that the clearing up of the Balkan situation would be the signal for heavy repurchasing by Europe for American securities have been disappointed at the comparative smallness of the foreign demand in the last few days.

RESUME WORK SOON AT THE PEARL LAKE

PORCUPINE, May 7.—The new steam-driven compressor at the Pearl Lake will be resumed within about ten days. Independent of the electrical power situation. Work will be rushed on the sinking of the three dred foot level, where station will be cut, and fixed the amount at $26,848.37. It is probable that the property, consisting of 40 acres southeast of Cobalt Lake, will be sold in order to meet the judgment.

GLASGOW CATTLE MARKETS.

GLASGOW, May 7.—Heavy supplies. A slow demand experienced at quotations: steers 14 1/2c to 15 1/2c; bulls 12 1/2c to 13 1/2c.

CATTLE MARKET PRICES UNCHANGED

Calves Were Firmer---Sheep, Lambs and Hogs Firm, But Unchanged.

Receipts of live stock at the Union Stock Yards were 52 cars, 551 cattle, 1726 hogs, 163 sheep and lambs, 305 calves, and 6 horses.

The cattle trade at the Union Stock Yards was about steady at Tuesday's quotations. The market was not unbalanced, but calves were again firmer, while sheep, lambs and hogs were firm but unchanged.

BORDEN SHUTS OFF DISCUSSION BY MAKING USE OF NEW RULES

FINAL VOTE EARLY NEXT WEEK

Opposition Given Taste of Closure Medicine When Second Clause of Naval Bill Was Under Consideration—Lemieux's Attack on Commander Roper Drowned in Hisses.

OTTAWA, May 8.—(Special).—Mr. Borden tonight slipped his larriol over the neck of the opposition and commenced the tightening of the noose by making use of the new rules. The prime minister said in reply that the moral effect would be much better if the entire sum was appropriated at once. It would show the empire and the world where Canada stood on the question of imperial defence. The house but a few days ago had appropriated ten million dollars in aid of agriculture which was to be spent over a period of ten years. The present bill was not a departure in principle.

Mr. Guthrie suggested that it might be well then to appropriate enough money to run the country for five years and let the government spend it and thus avoid to away with the necessity of having more than one session during the lifetime of any one parliament. Mr. Borden then moved that further discussion of clause 2 be postponed. The motion was not debatable under the new rules. Mr. Fuglesy moved that the question be now put. Mr. Borden then moved that the question be now put was declared out of order by Chairman Blodin and the chair was sustained—yeas, 84; nays, 45.

Mr. Borden's motion to postpone further consideration of section 3 was then passed. The consideration of the remaining clauses of the bill will be postponed by motion tomorrow, when notice will be given of closure, and the final vote in committee stage be reached at Friday night's sitting. Nothing will then remain but the third reading and the bill itself may finally be passed by the end of the week.

HERE'S ONE ISSUE THAT TOOK WELL. NEW YORK, May 7.—A London cable says that the offering of 6 per cent. notes of the United Fruit Co. was a huge success, and that the securities are selling at a premium of 1-2 of 1 per cent. in the market today. The subscription books were opened at 10 o'clock and closed again at 11. It is understood that the London allotment was $3,000,000.

PARIS LOOKS FOR MONEY STRINGENCY. Erickson Perkins & Co. wired: Paris is expected to draw considerably more gold from New York, by offering a premium variously estimated at $5000 to $10,000 per million dollars. Paris apparently is looking for some strain on the money market as a result of the heavy demands for new flotations.
