LABOR DAY, 1919.

THIS year's celebration of Labor Day was in a great measure dissimilar from those previously held, as in most sections of the Dominion during the war period the usual annual parades had been abandoned. It was thus fitting that the peace year should see a resumption of the old-time processions, with the floats and banners, in vigorous manner.

From the strength exhibited the lesson could be gleaned that the worker's standard of living may not be lowered and conditions must be improved. The spasmodic passing of changed values must not be attached to the workers' shoulders to their detriment.

Labor Day, this year, was more than an ordinary anniversary, it was an epoch. The increase in numbers in the ranks, the solidarity more in evidence, the day was the threshold of time to a larger, better and brighter period for the workers.

LABOR CONFERENCE.

ORIGINALLY the date for the National Industrial Convention at Ottawa, was set for Sept. 11, later changed to Monday, Sept. 15, a postponement of four days. The workers having waited for years for "the day," a period of four days will be a matter of little moment.

Incidentally it is understood that some sixty labor representatives will be in attendance, selected by the executive of the Trades and Labor Congress. It must have been a pleasurable duty that this executive had to undertake. The sixty unions these representatives claim membership to will sure be elated, but the other two thousand odd unions throughout the Dominion will have the loud voiced ego to make the grinch of hand-picked, remembering the sour grape story.

GOING AND COMING.

HERR SASSENBACH and his bunch of men representing German Labor went up against Sam Gompers at a meeting of the International Trades Union Congress. They relaxed considerably after Sam Gompers went after them in vigorous style.

KELLY.

HE was a fine, healthy, rosy-cheeked labor man and he went into an office to get a business man's advertisement for the programme of a labor picnic. "Sure I'll help a real labor picnic," says the business man. "But how do I know that you aren't an O.B.U. or a Bolshevik?" "Try me!" says Kelly. "Do you know Paddy Draper, Billy Lodge, Dan McCann, Pat Green or Charley Lewis?" asked the business man. "I sure do—and I'm proud of 'em," says Kelly. "Give me a whole page in your programme," says the business man. "Thanks," says Kelly, passing out with a real Trades Unionist smile.

AS IT SHOULD BE.

THE PURPOSE AND INFLUENCE OF THE TRADES AND LABOR CONGRESS OF CANADA.

(By Tom Moore, President, in the Ottawa Labor Day Annual.) The keen interest being shown at the present time by all classes in the community towards labor, its organizations and affiliations, leads me to endeavor to briefly outline some of the outstanding features of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada.

Turned around the year 1888 it has never ceased to be an influence in aiding the workers to better their conditions both socially and industrially. From its inception the Trades and Labor Congress has been the legislative multiplicity of the organized workers of Canada.

Another growing activity of the Congress is the aid constantly being rendered in adjusting industrial difficulties, especially where any of the Government departments are effected. In conclusion therefore it is to be hoped that the Trades and Labor Congress is a necessary and growing influence in the trades union activities of Canada, and it is to be hoped that the trades unionists can look back to the record of its 32 years of existence, and with confidence determine to establish it still more firmly as a force to be counted on in the future.

When we celebrated Labor Day we knew that eventually the war would end, and that preparation would have to be made to meet the changed conditions when peace would come, but no person knew how long the war might last. Consequently the immediate and imperative demands of our minds to such a degree that peace considerations were very secondary.

During the months that elapsed between the declaration of the armistice and the completion of the peace treaty, the members of the Congress were free to study the immediate future under the inspiring assurance that we have the shaping of our destiny in our own hands.

The international officers elected for the past year are: Mr. John Prender, of Washington, president; first vice-president, Mr. Joseph L. Heffern, Washington; second vice-president, Mr. Alex J. Currie, Ottawa; international treasurer, Mr. Robert Nichol, New York; international secretary, Mr. J. A. MacCaskie, New York.

The members while in Ottawa were taken by motor cars to the J. R. Booth plant and shown over the whole establishment. The City of Hull, the Experimental Farm and the Government Driveway were also visited.

At the banquet several interesting addresses were given, and the evening was spent in a most enjoyable manner. The members were given by Miller and Rutherford, from the Dominion, and Thos. Hamilton, which were enjoyed. Some very interesting and instructive speeches were given by the international officers and others.

On Sunday the members motored to Farm Point, where a pleasant dinner was served, after which an amusing baseball game was played between the two teams. A trophy designed and engraved by the members of the Ottawa local was carried away to Washington. The next convention will be held there in 1921. Supper was served at Holt's Hotel, Aymer, and speeches given and gay were delivered by the brethren from Washington and New York.

On Monday the members attended the ceremony on the Hill, and the members of the Congress were conducted through the plant of the American Bank Note Company. The members before leaving expressed their appreciation of the City of Ottawa and the surrounding country, describing Ottawa as the City Beautiful, with a charm entirely of its own.

In closing my last year's greeting with a text for this year's welcome to the members of organized labor in the cities of Ottawa, Hull and vicinity, I said: "The most I can do is to congratulate organized labor in Canada for the truly patriotic efforts it has made in the past year, and to urge co-operation in the cause of the allied nations; to express the hope that before another Labor Day comes to us we will have a final and satisfactory victory to record; to insist upon the bending of every energy, at no matter what individual sacrifice, to the attainment of a common end; and to appeal to all, who have the interests of labor at heart, to keep up courage, to have confidence in other public bodies, with each other, to increase the efficiency of their organization, and in the midst of war and its tumult to carry on their work in their respective jurisdictions."

The policy of the Congress has been one of co-operation with the Government and the improvement of Canadian National life, and its representatives have served on numerous committees and commissions with that object in view. The history of the Congress, has been one of continual growth. The records of the first annual convention show an attendance of 42 delegates representing an affiliation of 31 Trades Councils and local unions, while today four Federations of Labor, over 60 Trades and Labor Councils, and approximately 1,700 local unions are affiliated representing a membership of close to 150,000.

Considerable organization work, co-operatively with the affiliated international unions and the American Federation of Labor is carried on and much of the increased membership of the trades unions in the Dominion can be attributed to the assistance rendered by the Congress and its chartered central bodies.

Another growing activity of the Congress is the aid constantly being rendered in adjusting industrial difficulties, especially where any of the Government departments are effected. In conclusion therefore it is to be hoped that the Trades and Labor Congress is a necessary and growing influence in the trades union activities of Canada, and it is to be hoped that the trades unionists can look back to the record of its 32 years of existence, and with confidence determine to establish it still more firmly as a force to be counted on in the future.

SERVICE BUTTON WORKERS.

POSH SAYS BRITISH DID. Marshal Foch, in a letter of thanks to the British Parliament, says he was very glad to see the war to a speedy conclusion it was due to the sustained determination of the British Government to reinforce and keep up in 1918 sufficient effective and give powerful assistance to the transport of American divisions.

MANY GOING INTO THE WOODS.

Large numbers of returned soldiers in Northern British Columbia along the line of the G.T.P., according to officials of the line. Every train that leaves Edmonton for the west carries from 25 to 50 men, who are placed with the troops in the good old-fashioned way. The men who have been going out to the camp for the past two or three weeks are all returned soldiers and are a fine class of men. Most of them are young men and many of them are going into the woods for the first time—Edmonton Journal.

THE OLD, OLD STORY.

(By Lieut. C. R. Lennan, D.C.M.) Tell her the old, old story, lad. In the good old-fashioned way. Say that you dream of her by night. And think of her by day. Tell her you're simply longing, lad. Tell her you're missing her, lad. Tell her the sight of her would be like sunshine after rain. Tell her you'd give your life, lad. To gaze into her eyes. Tell her a score or so, lad. Of the good old-fashioned way. Tell her your love is coming. But for heaven's sake don't tell her. Of the girls you mash in Pees.

REGINA BOYS WANT LIVING COST REDUCED.

Great War Veterans of Regina, last night passed a resolution calling on the Federal Government to adopt drastic measures to reduce living costs by reducing food in cold storage, canneries and elsewhere; coal at the mine heads, and clothing and other necessities of life in factories at a fair price for the benefit of the consumer.

The Veterans resolved to call a public meeting here, to discuss the cost of living.

REPRIATRIATION OF GERMAN PRISONERS.

The Supreme Council on Friday passed a resolution regarding the repatriation of German prisoners of war. The resolution states that in order to diminish as rapidly as possible the sufferings caused by the war, the allied and associated powers have determined to anticipate the date of ratification of the peace treaty with Germany as far as the repatriation of German prisoners is concerned.

The process of repatriation will begin immediately under the auspices of the inter-allied commission, which German representatives will be added as soon as the treaty comes into force. The allied and associated powers point out that a continuance of this benevolent policy from which German soldiers will so greatly benefit, must depend on the fulfillment by the German Government and people of their obligations.

VANCOUVER VETERANS MEET.

The Great War Veterans Association, at its regular meeting Thursday night, turned on record as its support to the new labor Thursday; the international Trades and Labor Council, providing it was shown that the old members whom they objected to, had been expelled. It was resolved that a standing committee should be appointed to confer with the new labor body for the mutual good, this committee to consist of Comrades Mackenzie, Lees, Ruddy, McKinnis and Paige.

ARMY AND NAVY VETERANS MEET AT HAMILTON.

The annual meeting of the Dominion association of the Army and Navy Veterans was held at Hamilton on Monday. Resolutions were passed calling for the same gratuity to reservists who served as volunteers in the war as C.E.F. men, either in the shape of a pension or a bonus. Something more than a long service medal for men who put in 21 or more years in the militia, and that a bonus of $100 be given to survivors of the Fenian Raid, and the dependents of those who died.

The president advocated the establishment in Ontario of an old soldiers home. In order to prevent the turning over to medical schools of the bodies of soldiers who have served in any part of the association with the Government to make this impossible.

KING TO BE INVITED TO CONGRESS. The British Trades Union Congress, which will assemble at Glasgow, on September 8, promises to be the largest ever held. Already 848 delegates have been appointed to attend the congress, representing more than 2,255,000 workers.

The Parliamentary committee of the International Labor Congress in Washington in October. It is believed that the controversy between the alternatives of direct action and constitutional action will be fought out during the coming fortnight in discussions by the coal miners' conference and the triple alliance—the transport workers, miners and railway men—and finally by the general conference, which is generally expected that the decision will be against direct action.

BRITISH AFTER PROFITEERS.

In the British House of Commons, C. A. McCurdy (Northampton), chairman of the central committee established under the new profiteering act, foreshadowed drastic action against food profiteers. He said that enquiries would be conducted by small committees of experts, representatives of labor and employers into the cost of such commodities as boots, clothes, underwear and household utensils. These committees are not appointed to fix prices, but to ascertain the facts for public information. "We are," says Mr. McCurdy, "creating machinery similar to that established in the United States, and it is the intention of the government to make it permanent."

The central committee, of which Mr. McCurdy is chairman, will investigate assertions made by traders against profiteering on the part of the wholesalers, and it has the power to institute prosecutions. The function of the committee will not be that of courts, imposing penalties, but they will investigate grievances and, after making a declaration of what a fair profit would have been in the cases before them for consideration, they will be empowered to order a refund of the excess to the purchaser.

THE NATIONALIZATION QUESTION.

It is considered practically certain that the nationalization issues will be brought to a head at the Trade Union Congress which opens in Glasgow on September 8. The Parliamentary Committee of the Trade Union Congress said recently that the Government is a declaration of policy the Miners' Federation would adopt. No definite resolution on mine nationalization had been tabled for discussion at the congress and the period for sending in resolutions from the unions had expired. In view, however, of the Premier's announcement of the policy of the Government it was probable that a proposal would be made to raise the question by special emergency resolutions although there was a nationalization resolution on general terms on the agenda already.

The Government's decision, Mr. Bramley said, did not merely mean turning down the miners' demands and ignoring the recommendations of the majority report of the Coal Commission, but was in direct opposition to the policy of the Trade Union Congress, which for years past had supported nationalization of the vital industries and natural resources where there was a monopoly. The importance of the present situation lay in the fact that for the first time the Government had definitely declared against nationalization.

It was useless to continue passing pious resolutions, Mr. Bramley contended, adding, "I am convinced there will still be a general strike or general election, probably the latter."

Pelmanism Gets Workers Wage Increases

Besides its social and intellectual advantages, the Pelman System of Mind and Memory Training has made it possible for thousands of ambitious men and women to secure increased earnings. How this is done is told in booklets which will send for the asking. Proof is to be found in testimonials received daily. Here are two typical cases:

"HIGH POST SECURED." "After taking up Pelmanism for about three months," writes a Departmental Manager, "my work has been about four times as good as it was before. I am now offered a very high position in the firm in which I am employed. This opportunity is due to the fact that I have been able to do my work so much better than I was able to do before. I feel confident that the methods I have learned from you will be of great value to me. I certainly don't think I should have had the self-confidence to accept the position had I not taken your course." "A. B. Clerk."

LABOR'S FUNCTION

“SAVIOUR OF 'IS COUNTRY”

RUDYARD KIPLING once called Tommy Atkins “Saviour of 'is country,” but today the Straight Trade Unionist is the real “Saviour of 'is country.” The very life of our nation depends on industry, and without absolute co-operation between the public labor and capital no industry nor nation can be successful.

Unfortunately we have a few ignorant agitators in Canada who would destroy Industry and rob the great majority of workers of the success organized labor has achieved by its broadminded, open, frank, safe and sane methods of dealing with industrial problems.

WE have no place in Canada for brute force methods of dealing with labor problems. The vast majority of the workers of Canada are backing the old reliable International Trade Union Movement in its endeavor to destroy the beast that is amongst us, that would take away by brutal force our very means of existence and give us nothing in its stead.

Is it any wonder then that the the general public herald the trade unionist as “the saviour of 'is country”?
