How to Preserve Eggs

During the month eggs are exceedingly cheap, and those who are anxious to preserve a supply for use during the coming winter should lose no time in making the necessary preparations.

It is necessary, whatever system is employed, to use absolutely new-laid eggs for the purpose. It is folly trying to keep eggs that are several days old when placed in the preparation.

A RAPID CURE.

Mark Twain's Story of a Schoolboy Who Suddenly Got Well.

On his last visit to his old home in Hannibal, Mo., Mark Twain told the school children a story of a schoolboy, the truth of which it was hardly necessary for him to guarantee, though he did so.

"This boy," he said, "broke one morning very ill. His groans alarmed the household. The doctor was sent for and came posthaste.

"Well," said the doctor, as he entered the sickroom, "what is the trouble?"

"A pain in my side," said the boy.

"Yes, sir."

"Is the right hand stiff?"

"A little."

"How about the right foot?"

"That's stiff too."

"The doctor winked at the boy's mother standing by.

"Well," he said, "you're pretty sick. But you'll be able to go to school on Monday. Let me see, today is Saturday, and—"

"Is today Saturday?" said the boy in a vexed tone. "I thought it was Friday."

"Half an hour later the boy declared himself healed and got up. Then they packed him off to school, for it was Friday, after all."

We think that the humorist knew this boy very well indeed—Woman's Home Companion.

Habit.

The proprietor of a billiard and pool room in West Philadelphia was annoyed by a certain customer who, though he was a regular, had a bad habit of putting the chalk in his pocket and walking off with it. The proprietor decided to put a stop to this man's carelessness, so one day last week he went up to him and asked:

"What business are you in?"

"Me? Why, I'm in the milk business. Why?" was the answer.

"Thought so," said the proprietor, "from the amount of chalk that you take away with you. Any time that you want a bucket of water come around, as I may as well let you have that also."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Too Young.

He was a headless youth, and the peachy down was on 's cheek.

"Darling," he whispered, "I beg of you to give me just one kiss. They are intoxicating."

But the beautiful girl shook her head and withdrew to the far end of the sofa.

"No, Freddy," she replied in tantalizing tones; "I don't want to do anything unlawful."

"Unlawful, Miss Rose?"

"Yes; you know it is against the law to give intoxicants to minors."

And then poor Freddy melted away like a tub of ice cream at a Sunday school picnic.—Chicago News.

Exemplary.

Fredie had been spending the day with his aunt and had been duly instructed beforehand as to his behavior. Upon his return his mother questioned him as to what he had said and done while away from home. His conduct seemed to have been most exemplary in every way.

"I'm glad you were such a good little boy," complimented his mother, "and didn't take a second helping of meat."

"No, ma," replied Fredie very proudly. "I remembered what you'd told me and said I'd take two plates of ice cream instead."—Harper's Weekly.

A Base Insult.

"Cholly—I—I—I never was so insulted in my life. I—I snuffed my cigarette case at him real viciously, don't you know?"

Fredie—That policeman, dear boy? What did he do?"

Cholly—Thwacked to wrest me out of my pipe and the street in male fashion.—Puck.

Hard to Tell.

"Mrs. Styles, I'd like to see your baby, my dear. Is it here in the park with the others?"

"Yes, it's here somewhere, but the new nurse my husband engaged came while I was out, and I don't know her by sight myself yet."—Ballinger's American.

AMAZING REVELATIONS.

How Government Money is Thrown Away by Bungling Officials.

The stupidity of officials, ranking from Cabinet Ministers to subalterns of the army, costs Great Britain a nice thing annually. It is very amusing, but the jokes are of the most expensive pattern. The reports of the Committee of Public Accounts give particulars of these matters. That committee is a sort of watch-dog of the spending departments, and its insistent bark draws attention to any irregularity or extravagance in the expenditure of public money. The report issued by the committee contains some incisive criticism of the War Office. It will be remembered that the gross expenditure on the Army Votes during the year 1905-6 fell short of the estimate by £1,324,136. The actual surplus on March 31, 1906, was almost double the amount (£2,631,000) anticipated by the War Office in a forecast submitted to the Treasury as late as nine days previously. To explain the demand for an explanation of this astounding discrepancy reply was made that there had been a complete upheaval of the War Office. Indeed the change in personnel was so thorough that it can be best realized by quoting the words of the Director-General of Army Finance: "All those who had had life-long experience in dealing with the finances of the army disappeared." The committee recognizes the difficulty created by these circumstances and says they are glad to learn that there is the most extraordinary desire on the part of the Military Headquarters Staff to effect reductions. As regards the future, the committee are without assurance that a more satisfactory result may be expected. For, it has been explained to them that the military directors (who now frame estimates and control the progress of expenditure) "are transient officers who come to their post with very expensive notions, and only get to know their work thoroughly by the time they have got to go." The Committee of Public Accounts next turns its vigilant gaze on South Africa. It appears that the general officer commanding in South Africa made a contract with the municipality of Standerton in 1904 for a supply of water to the troops at the minimum of 80,000 gallons per diem, the contract to run for twenty years. As the garrison has been so much reduced, and the daily requirements of the troops are naturally much below the fixed minimum, efforts are being made to obtain an equitable reduction of the annual bill. The committee inquires wonderingly how it was within the competence of any officer with a local authority to bind the country to pay a large sum of money for a long term of years without receiving the question of the home authorities for consideration. The evidence before the War Stores Commission disclosed bribery in connection with various contracts for supplies. In accordance with the bribery clause inserted in military contracts a fine of 10 per cent. is recoverable in such cases. In every established case of bribery the name of the firm is automatically removed from the list of Government contractors. In connection with expenditure under the Military Works Loan Act, the committee's attention has been drawn by the controller and auditor-general to the following instances of the loss of public money due to excessive charges of policy. (i) At East Billford there has been a loss to the public of between £140,000 and £180,000 in erecting a Mounted Infantry School, which was closed on July 1, 1906. (ii) At Tidworth nearly a million pounds has been expended in building barracks for eight infantry battalions, though only four are needed. The surplus barracks are being altered at considerable additional cost so as to house a supplementary regiment of certain other troops. (iii) Near Fermoy, a sum of £35,000 was expended in 1905-6 for the purchase of Moore Park (843 acres, with mansion and grounds) as a site for barracks and for training mounted infantry. The idea of a Mounted Infantry School in Ireland has now been dropped. (iv) At Slobs, "the original idea was that it was going to be a great training ground for officers, but it has been given up." The War Office having "only spent £24,000 out of the £725,000 which had been intended."

at a time when it was anticipated to have six Army Corps. The land purchased is used "mainly for volunteer camps and things of that sort."

Famous Lilac Tree.

Chief among the many objects of interest in the gardens of Eastern Lodge, Dunmow, Eng., the residence of the Earl and Countess of Warwick, is the magnificent lilac tree which occupies a conspicuous position on the terrace. This tree is the finest specimen of its kind in the United Kingdom. It has a circumference of 120 feet and a height of 16 feet and it has so dense a growth and blooms so profusely that when in flower it forms a huge bouquet of lilac blossom. The lilac is that commonly known as the Persian, and described by the botanists as the Chinese; but it is not a native of either Persia or China, but was raised in the Roman Botanic Garden in 1755 by the hybridization of the true Persian lilac and the common lilac of British gardens. It was of noble proportions at the middle of the last century, and produced such a magnificent display of blossoms that in the flowering season Viscount Maynard, Lady Warwick's grandfather, used to make a special journey from London to enjoy the beauty and fragrance of the flowers.

Wouldn't Lose Two Days.

A young man who dropped into the recorder's office for a marriage license, finding that a license had just been issued containing the name of the young lady who was to figure in the document sought, purchased his license all the same with the name of another girl inserted. That was his day for getting ready to be married, and he didn't propose to let small matters bar the way.

SALVATION ARMY SECRET.

Mystery of General Booth's Successor Not Yet Revealed.

Certain statements published professing to reveal the name of General Booth's successor as head of the Salvation Army have given considerable offence.

The aged evangelist had stated at Blackburn that "the same electric flash that carried the news of his death would announce that a new general of the Salvation Army lived."

On this was built up a theory that the individual pointed at was Mr. Bramwell Booth, eldest son of General Booth.

Commissioner Nicol characterized this story as "most incredible and stupid."

No one but the general himself and his legal adviser can know who is to be the successor. The document which secures the succession is in a sealed packet in the strong-room of the solicitor, and will not be opened until after the general's death.

"It is safe to say, however," said Commissioner Nicol to a pressman, "that the general has done all that the best legal minds can suggest to him to preserve the principles and conduct of the Army, and everything will proceed as heretofore."

"As to jumping at names, it is most indiscreet. Couldn't the Army have a queen as well as a king?"

As illustrating the extreme care which the general has used in drawing up the contents of the sealed packet, Commissioner Nicol volunteered that amongst those the general had consulted in regard to the principal arrangements are Mr. Haldane and Mr. Asquith.

General Booth is now in his 79th year, and Mr. Bramwell Booth, the eldest of his three sons, is fifty, and now bears the title of chief of staff.

A Pretty Story.

General Booth's own comment on the situation in the event of his death is as follows: "Many people have said to me, 'Well, general, you can't expect to live for ever, you know. You must die some time. What is going to become of the Salvation Army when you are dead?' My answer to this simple question is: 'I would be foolish indeed if after building up a great organization I did not take the necessary steps towards its perpetuation. I would be lacking good business sense if I had not already made all preparations that best legal skill could devise. All these preparations are made.'

"But I want to say I am not dead yet, on the contrary, I have a lot of fight in me still."

The latest lover of the general has called forth many dainty stories, but few with more feeling than the one told by a Salvationist lassie at Southampton. When applying for her first situation she was asked for a reference, but not having been in work before she was unable to produce one. Noticing her Army brooch, and seeing the general's photo suspended from it, the employer said: "Well, I will take General Booth as a reference."

"So, you see," added the girl, "the general got me my first place."

STRUGGLE FOR PRIZE MONEY.

"Sport of Kings" Attracts Men of Diversified Professions.

The vast multitude of race horse owners in England, from the King downwards, are eagerly engaged in a strenuous struggle for the £500,000 annually distributed as prize money on the turf. It is extremely interesting and somewhat surprising to glance at the list of winning owners and see who the lucky sportsmen were who obtained a share of this glittering heap of gold in the last contest. Headed by His Majesty the list of winning owners contained the names of our dukes and twenty-four lords, says The Tatler. The dual owners carried off £18,719, but the lords easily beat them with an aggregate of £79,224. As showing how widely and curiously distributed was the turf gold the winning owner comprised brewers, distillers, bookmakers, professional backers of horses, a theatrical manager, an actor, an actress, stockbrokers, diamond merchants, ex-jockeys, millionaires, newspaper proprietors, trainers of racehorses, army men, a rear-admiral of the fleet, a solicitor, bankers, a boot manufacturer, farmers, a ladies' mantle merchant and a whole host of other trades and professions, all meeting on the same common level of the turf.

Slang Will Creep In.

In a paper contributed to Putnam's Monthly recently, Herbert Paul, an Englishman, deplors the decadence of the English language. He thinks he may be forgiven a passing qualm when he finds such a phrase as "queering the pitch" in the leading column of a great newspaper which "used to be a fountain of classical English. He is not so 'tutle and pedantic as to wage war against slang. But its proper place is surely private conversation."

If it were ourselves are moved to record a passing qualm. Only the other day, in a household where the Laras and Penates were shipped direct from the Athens of America, we overheard a conversation between a nice old lady and the ten-year-old daughter of a Radcliffe graduate. It bore somewhat remotely upon the virtues of thrift, and so we cannot be quite sure whether the old lady's manifest bewilderment arose from the irrelevantness or the phraseology of the child's impulsive avowal. "I'm going to plant all my dough in a bike."—Life.

A Lucky Purchase.

In order to secure some token by which to remember a great-aunt to whom she had been much attached, Miss Bertha Chevanne, a young French-woman, attended a sale of the old lady's effects. The girl was poor, and most of the articles were beyond her purse. A shabby old book—a book of devotions—was, however, put up. Nobody bid for it except Miss Chevanne, and she bought it for next to nothing. In turning over the leaves she came across a folded paper. It was a will bequeathing her the whole of her great-aunt's estate, valued at $20,000.

A Hint to Husbands

Isn't it strange that some men, who will be kind and obliging to their neighbors, gentlemen and polite to other ladies, will be so rude and cold and harsh at home, and perfect bears to their wives--crabbed, snappish, ungenerous and altogether unsocial and hateful? Does anybody know of any such men? Not that we wish to lay all the wrong doing and blame on mankind, or condemn them en masse, not at all. There are plenty of good, noble men, but not quite enough. When they are so strong, and have so much power to do good, and win love, and bless their homes, why won't they all do it.

"Circumstances alter cases." Some men's wives are trying enough to wear out the patience of Job; but then, in the perversity of things, you will generally find a real bear of a man united with a frail, patient, forbearing and forgiving wife. She is your wife, Mr. Bear, and the mother of your children, and probably dependent on you for home and means, and can't get away from you; so, of course, she is in your power and you can treat her just as you choose. But if you expect her heart to bound with pleasure when she hears your footsteps, or to proffer you caresses or to rejoice in your presence, you are much mistaken. She is human--neither more or less. Please reverse your situation and conditions. How much, and how long would you bear such treatment as you give her? You will inevitably be weighed for just what you are and there is no help for it.

Highly Acquainted

In a recent chapter of his "autobiography" Mark Twain tells of his dinner in Berlin with the Emperor of Germany. He had but recently arrived in the city and had begun housekeeping in a furnished apartment, when one morning at breakfast the invitation to dinner was delivered. The family was very much impressed, particularly the younger members. He says:

"During several months I had encountered socially, on the Continent, men bearing lofty titles; and all this while Jeanne was becoming more and more impressed and awed and subdued by these imposing events, for she had not been abroad before, and they were new to her--wonders out of dreamland turned into realities. The imperial card was passed from hand to hand around the table, and examined with interest; when it reached Jean she exhibited excitement and emotion, but for a time was quite speechless; then she said:

"Why, papa, if it keeps going on like this, pretty soon the Emperor will be left for you to get acquainted with God."

"It was not complimentary to think that I was not acquainted in that quarter, but she was young, and the young jump to conclusions without reflection."

Her sister, Miss Anna Gould, it will be remembered, was recently divorced from her husband, Count Boni de Castellane, after he had spent nearly all his wife's great fortune. She lives in Paris with her children and is now called Mme. Gould.

A lady millionaire of quite a different type is Mrs. Hetty Green, who has a fortune of at least $50,000,000, and has the reputation of being the greatest woman financier in the world. On Wall Street, where she has an office, Mrs. Green is a familiar figure in her black poke bonnet and shabby dress. Her holdings in real estate and other investments are enormous, and at seventy she deals in stocks and shares like the most experienced Wall Street broker. Shrewd and calculating to the verge of meanness, Mrs. Green lives in a shabby little flat, and acts as her own maid-of-all-work. Yet in spite of her mean ways and dowdy appearance, Mrs. Green is said to have a kind heart.

In Philadelphia there is living a lady, Mrs. Anna Weightman Walker, who several years ago inherited from her father, the "Quinine King," a fortune of $60,000,000.

The Richest Women In The World

The wealthiest woman in the world is not an American but a German, Frau Bohlen-Halbach, better known perhaps as Bertha Krupp, the daughter of a famous gunmaker. Four years ago her father died and she became owner of vast Krupp works at Essen and German towns and mistress of a which is said to be close to the $225,000,000. The gun works employ over two thousand men and employ one hundred and two men.

Perhaps the rich woman on this side of the water who leads the most at life at present is Mrs. Russell. Ever since her husband died a bit a year ago and left her a fortune been variously estimated at from $50 million to a hundred million she has a little peace or rest in her life. But the terms of her husband's will known, she has been besieged by begging letters from all parts of the world, and has been obliged to announce through the newspapers her determination to give nothing to promiscuous beggars, although she fully intends to distribute the greater part of her fortune to charity, leaving herself only just enough to live on quietly and comfortably. And while endeavoring many worthy charities, she also aims to aid poor people who stand in need of help but have too much self-respect to ask for it.

Another famous plutocrat and philanthropist is Miss Helen Gould. She cares nothing for society and titled foreigners, and men of wealth of her own country have sought her hand in vain. With the same inflexible purpose which made her father supreme in the realm of finance, Miss Gould has consecrated her life to charity. Her residence on Fifth Avenue has become a vast charitable bureau, and here Miss Gould may be found busy at her self-imposed labors, which engage the constant work of five secretaries as well as her own unremitting attention. Charities of every kind claim Miss Gould's sympathy and aid, but soldiers, sailors, railroad men and crippled children are her special care. On her father's railroads she has established a system of clubhouses for railroad men in connection with that association. Her care for the soldiers earned Miss Gould a gold medal from Congress, while the paternal sailors' clubhouse, which she built for the naval branch of the Y. M. C. A., at Brooklyn, at a cost of $500,000, testifies to her interest in the welfare of the world.

With the poor and friendless little children Miss Gould is still more at home, and every year she receives many poor little waifs from the New York Mission Society, who are nursed back to health at the Children's Home near her own country seat on the Hudson.

Her sister, Miss Anna Gould, it will be remembered, was recently divorced from her husband, Count Boni de Castellane, after he had spent nearly all his wife's great fortune. She lives in Paris with her children and is now called Mme. Gould.

A lady millionaire of quite a different type is Mrs. Hetty Green, who has a fortune of at least $50,000,000, and has the reputation of being the greatest woman financier in the world. THE DOUKHOBORS ARE OUT AGAIN

This is the common remark we hear when we read of the foolhardy tramps of a few. We should not judge the whole by a few. We have made the subject one of a little study.

Only think, less than one hundred are on this fanatical pilgrimage which must, if persisted in, result in the death of many if not all, and there are over 800 Doukhobors in the west. The majority of these people are diligently working in the interests of their community.

During the summer they have given evidence of much enterprise. At Yorkton they have established a brick making plant, which is among the largest and best of the kind in the Dominion. Then a large number are employed in turning out large quantities of brick of the best quality under the supervision of an expert, himself a Doukhobor. The plant is to be complete and modern in every way and is an object of great interest to visitors to the town who are in turn surprised at the magnitude of the undertaking and the thorough way in which it is being carried on.

As yet the plant is not working to its full capacity which is 50,000 bricks a day. The profits of the enterprise go to the community, and its executive managers are the community leaders.

This one thing would show that the Doukhobors, as a whole, are not a restless, discontented, wildly visionary people, lacking in enterprise and executive ability, and liable to become an incubus or menace to the Dominion. It seems rather to point to enterprise in attempting to make up for loss of lands by introducing industries that will enable them to maintain their communal system and give them certain very obvious advantages.

In this they should be encouraged, and we would not have the whole judged by the few.

Kipling is again in Canada and from what he now sees and knows, almost regrets penning "My Lady of the Snows." His presence recalls his Anathema Marnatha on America. He reproduces it in his own downright, vigorous style.

"Because you steal the property of a man's head, which is more his peculiar property than his pipe, his horse or his wife, and because you glory in your theft and have the indecency to praise or criticize the author from whom you steal, and because your ignorance, which is as dense as a pickpocket's ignorance of anything outside his calling, leads you to trifle with his spelling, and because you print the stolen property aforesaid very vilely and uncleanly, you shall be cursed with this curse from Alaska to Florida and back again.

"Your women shall scream like peacocks when they talk, and your men neigh like horses when they laugh. You shall call 'round' 'round', and 'very' 'varry,' and 'news' 'noos' till the end of time.

"You shall be governed by the Irishman and the German, the vendor of drinks and the keeper of vile dens, that your streets may be filthy in your midst and your sewage arrangements filthy.

"You shall be given over to the call of tin-pot secret societies and the organizing of 'tuppeny-hapenny' processions, the spouting of nonsense, and the perpetration thereof.

"You shall be governed by laws that you cannot enforce and sentiments that you cannot control, that the murderer may walk among you a vision of delight to young women and the darling of old maids while you are engaged in shooting the wrong man.

"You shall prostitute and pervert the English language till an Englishman has neither power or desire to understand you any more.

"You shall be cursed State by state, Territory by Territory, with a provincialism beyond provincialism of an English country town—you and your governors and what you are pleased to call your literature, your newspapers and your politics.

"You shall buy your art from France and considerably spoil it in the buying because you are dishonest.

"Your hearts will be so blinded that you shall consider each one of the curses foregoing a blessing to you as it comes about, and finally I myself will curse you more elaborately later on."

By The Way

There ought to be no difficulty to secure men to fill any public office, and it is up to you, citizens, to choose the best.

A cargo of coal will soon arrive, and let there be warmth.

In imposing licenses, don't be hard on the goose that lays the golden egg.

Political moves, by political "movers," get stale after a prolonged diet of it.

The enthusiasm of South Boston citizens, over the sidewalk was served with ice.

Yes, repairs on the public wharf will soon be made, and the genial Capt. Milliken can furnish information about it, explicit enough to challenge enquiry.

Politicians, on the road, are still pointing with pride and viewing with alarm.

Shortening up the time between St. John and St. Stephen? Well, all right, but don't cut it down too close.

Thirty-eight years ago, Oct. 4th, the Saxy gale burst upon us, and found our hats not nailed down.

It seems to be quite generally allowed that this is going to be a great season for politicians.

All good men, and true—and all occupy the centre of the stage.—A. C. Gilmor, A. McGee, Lewis Connors, Edw. McGrattan, Nicholas Mastand, Hazen McGee, Geo. Frauley, Dr. Taylor, H. V. Dewar, Mayor Lawrence, R. T. Wetmore, Dr. Alexander.

Excuse the publicity, gentlemen, but the people are so interested.

It is said that moose are wondering around the village of Bonny River, to the great annoyance of everybody. They have been practised on by many "good shots," and in consequence of continued immunity from harm, have become as tame as cows.

We acknowledge our weakness for flattery, but with the most of humanity it generally "goes down." We have been receiving some nice letters lately, and feel very grateful to the gentleman who wrote us from Boston. The writer says in part:—"It is a pleasure to receive from one's home town such a cheerful and well edited paper as Granite Town Greetings, and I wish you every success."

We are sorry to speak of unpleasant events which cast their shadows beforehand, but it looks as if the ticket can only have four names.

Don't stand on the street and point out the faults of the town, knocking everything and boasting nothing. If you don't like the town, get out and go away. The calamity bowler is the cause of much trouble.

Collins who committed the most cold blooded and heartless murder in the annals of Canadian crime, richly deserved the sentence given him. Those ladies and others so full of sickly sentiment, and anxious to turn the fiasco upon the public, will do well to read the following from a lenient judge:

Judge Wofford of Kansas City, was called upon in the course of his judicial duties to pass sentence upon a convicted negro murderer. He might have sentenced him to death, but, instead of doing so, addressed him as follows: "You are a poor, ignorant, no-account black man, and I don't want to hang you. You have no friends. You have no one to plead that you were insane. There will not be a lot of women circulating petitions to save your neck. There will not be a lot of fool men writing letters to the Governor to save you. No one will send you flowers. You'll just be forgotten till the day set for your hanging, and then they will hang you. I'll sentence you to thirty years in the penitentiary. Perhaps justice was cheated of a fair victim by the judge, but possibly his his utterance will make it easier for full justice to be done to another whose deserving is quite as great."

Senator Gilmor and Mrs. Gilmor were in town Monday, going out on evening train to Montreal. They will return as soon as their handsome town residence is completed. Their summer cottage will probably be closed this month.

Mr. Geo. Frauley returned on Saturday from an extended trip through the west. Mr. Frauley visited all the principal cities and places of interest, and had a very pleasant and profitable trip, and talks very entertainingly of what he saw. He considers Vancouver the most prosperous, cleanest and up-to-date city. Mr. Frauley was there at the time of the riots, and says the most intense excitement prevailed. He thinks the whole question can be settled to the satisfaction of all concerned, if politicians will keep their hands off.

LOCAL AND SPECIAL

Keep out of the woods and don't get mistaken for a deer.

There is not any decrease in the dog population of the town.

Sportsmen say the weather is very unfavorable for hunting.

The new steel spans for the bridge are expected to arrive here very soon.

Lumber is arriving for the town hall, and it is expected that the building will be advanced toward completion before cold weather.

Three hundred mechanics are out on strike at Springhill, N. S., in sympathy with the miners. The government will operate the collieries.

Messrs. Simmons are pushing the stone work at the bridge as rapidly as possible. All the work done looks good and when completed will reflect much credit on the contractors.

The pulp Co. will cut the usual amount of lumber this season. Several small operators are getting ready for the season's work. In spite of the fact that wages are high men are very scarce.

One of the officials of the N. B. S. Ry., in a conversation with a representative of Greetings, said the present time table was giving general satisfaction, as results would show, and would be continued during the winter.

Notwithstanding the rainy weather, the workmen on Main street are making good progress in paving and building the sidewalk. Commissioner Mealey is a hard and painstaking worker and can be found on the streets at any time.

Two warriors of the Foley tribe appeared before Justice McLaughlin on Friday. The surroundings assumed a bright vermilion hue during the recital of the terrible and desperate deeds of which one accused the other. After listening to the blood-thirsty tales of both, the Magistrate gave them some wholesome advice and sent them home.

The parish people are beginning to feel that they should have a representative in the Council to look after their interests, and have united on Mr. I. E. Gilmer of Bonny River, who was tendered the nomination at a meeting held last week. Mr. Gilmer has many warm friends who will be pleased to see him at the County Council, where he will "make good" as he always does in anything he undertakes.

The fashion papers, which are authority on the styles, claim that ladies with large mouths are all the fashion now. It is singular the freaks that are taken by fashion. Years ago a red-headed girl with a mouth like a slice out of a pumpkin would have been laughed at, and such girls are worth going miles to see. It is easier to dye the hair red than to enlarge the mouth, though a mouth that has any give to it can be helped by the constant application of a glove stretcher during the day, and by holding the cover of a tin blacking box in it while asleep. What in the world the leaders of fashion wanted to declare large mouths the style for, heaven only knows. Take a pretty face and mortise about a third of it for a mouth, and it seems a great waste of material. There is no use a large mouth can be put to that a small mouth would not do better. They can't, certainly, be any better for kissing.—Calvin Advertiser.

A generation has grown up since H. Price Webber first visited St. George. During his recent engagement here we noticed a boy in the audience, and smiled as we recalled the first engagement of the genial Price, when the boy's father carried the "bundle," from the hall to the hotel, and this was the price of his admission. And yet Price and his charming wife stepped off the merry dance in "Beyond the Rockies," with all the abandon of the school boy and girl. Genial Price, with your smile and your happy greeting, the world is better because of you. Thousands of men and women remember with pleasure their first show—recall, with the joy of youth, how you were going to have "Buttons all Over You," and hope that youngsters for years to come may be able to get their first glimpse of life "On the boards," from H. Price Webber and Edwina Grey.

The ladies of the Catholic congregation will hold a tea-meeting on Tuesday 15th inst.

The Marian N., a trim little fishing schooner from Eastport, was in the harbor Monday.

The residence of Mrs. Sylvester French Pennfield, was totally destroyed by fire Saturday afternoon.

A car load of finished granite went through to Toronto and other points on Saturday, several local concerns making shipment.

The pretty and durable quilt, made by Mrs. Frank Fisher and presented to the church of the Transfiguration, St. Patrick, was ticketed off at her home on Saturday evening. Master Donald Holt had the lucky number 83.—Com.

Miss Ellen Riordan of Elmville, was found drowned in the Digbyquash river on Thursday 3rd inst. She had recently returned from Chipman Hospital where she had been under treatment for nervous trouble. Miss Riordan was very much respected among her neighbors, and her untimely ending has cast a gloom over the little community in which she lived for so many years. Deceased was about 50 years of age and in comfortable circumstances.

The storm of Monday and Tuesday had done much damage, especially to wire owners. Communication with the town is cut off, but last report received feared that all exposed wires would suffer considerably. Telegraphic and telephone wires are down, and it is impossible to reach any place by wire. Some large trees have blown down, and many signs that adorn the fronts of shops have come to grief. The stage from Back Bay had a hard time making connections. Alex. Dewar was compelled to chop his way through part of the distance, owing to fallen trees.

Two of the beautiful trees in the garden of Mrs. J. E. Lynost were blown down. It is the worst storm for years in this vicinity.

WEDDING BELLS.

A very pretty wedding event took place Wednesday, Oct. 2nd, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Matheson, when Miss Edie Jane Matheson was married to Mr. William John Dockendorff.

The bride was becomingly gowned in a wedding dress of brown silk, and was attended by the groom's sister. Mr. D. Matheson acted as groomsmen. After the ceremony a pleasant time was spent in conversation, after which Mr. and Mrs. Dockendorff left on a short wedding trip. On their return they will reside in Boston. The bride was the recipient of a large number of beautiful wedding gifts. Both Mr. and Mrs. Dockendorff are well known and popular, and have the best wishes of a large number of friends. Rev. F. V. Buchanan performed the ceremony.

LET THEM ALL COME.

The influx of bright and clever young men from the small towns and other places in New Brunswick to this fair city goes merrily on. Among the latest arrivals is Mr. Charles J. Callaghan, of St. George. A few years ago he was the efficient principle of the Union Point school at Fairville, and later on satisfactorily discharged similar duties at the Superior school in the granite town. He is now Inspector with the Atlantic Mutual Fire Insurance Association, and the offices are in the Globe Building, Prince Wm. Street. The Monitor welcomes him to the Winter Port City of Canada. Those of our readers who may have any business with Mr. Callaghan will be sure to find him prompt and attentive to any matters entrusted to his care.—Monitor.

A young daughter arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. Hazen McGee, on 7th inst.

John Hill, of St. George, visited friends here on Sunday last.—Elmcroft Cor. Courier.

A young daughter arrived Sunday to brighten the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Craig.

Mr. D. Bussen went to St. John on Monday's train.

B. H. Gilmer, R. T. Wetmore and Alex. Milne are attending court at St. Andrews.

Mrs. Mosbray, of Halifax, is the guest of Mrs. J. Sutton Clark.

DOMINION STEEL AND THE LEPREUX MINES

Sydney, N. S., Oct. 5.—The Dominion Iron and Steel plant is now in splendid condition and the company in order to be in a better position to increase the output have installed two other batteries of boilers for use under the blast furnaces. This means an addition of one thousand per cent power to that plant.

Mr. Jones, general manager, when asked if he had anything to say about the proposed purchase by the Steel company of the Lepreux iron ore areas, outside of St. John, replied: "I have nothing to say." The belief is that the owners of the Lepreux company will be given stock for their property, also a royalty on all the iron ore mined. It is thought here, however, that the deal will likely go through. Further asked if he had heard anything of the report that he (Jones) was to be elected to the board of directors at the meeting on 8th October, he laughed and said "No," any more than what he had seen in the papers. A number of Mr. Jones' friends are said to be working hard to get him there, as it is realized, that he would be a valuable acquisition owing to the splendid grasp he has of the working of the entire plant.

Mr. Bilton, Why does the street commissioner allow the rocks to remain on Main St. ? If he does not know the danger of this condition of affairs some one should tell him.

Last Sunday evening a lady got a bad fall by straddling over one of these rocks in the dark. Something should be done at once about this matter, or the town will have a suit for damages to defend.

well, Mabel P. Sinclair, V. S. Vroom.
Canterbury, York Co., Margaret C.
Scullin.

Miss Mary Mitchell was appointed assistant secretary, and Miss Laura Peakes, Miss Bertie Richardson and Principal
McFarlane a committee of audit.
The session opened with a thoughtful address by the President, its keynote being that we should adapt the system of teaching to the child, not the child to the system.
The chief superintendent followed, with an encouraging review of recent progress in the work of education in New Brunswick. He announced that the increased allowance to teachers for which provision had been made by the provincial legislature is to be available this term; and that the educational conference in London, of which he gave a very interesting description, is to meet quad-rennially hereafter, with full official sanction.

Inspector Carter gave a brief address, which, as usual, was full of practical suggestions. He spoke strongly in favor of parish school boards, instead of the present district system, as tending to equalize the school assessment and improve the service.
At the afternoon session of Thursday,
Mr. B. R. Armstrong presented a plan for teachers' pensions, and on motion of Principal J. M. Keefe, of St. George,
the following resolution was adopted:
That this institute of Charlotte County teachers place on record its belief in the principle of pensions, its appreciation of the efforts of the government of New Brunswick in this matter, and the hope that they will still give the matter their careful consideration.
An excellent paper on School Gardens, by Miss Margaret Kerr, of Bocbec, was followed by discussion; in the course of which Dr. Inch stated that there are now twelve or thirteen school gardens in the province, and Inspector Carter spoke of Bocbec in the highest terms of praise as a progressive school district.
The chief superintendent asked the teachers to have their pupils compete for the Lord Meath challenge cup, offered for the best essay on the relations between the province or the dominion and the mother country; or the best letter to a friend desiring to emigrate; the former open to all pupils between fourteen and eighteen years of age, and the latter to those under fourteen.
The secretary offered some remarks about the names of places in Charlotte County, and asked the help of teachers in their further study.
Instead of an evening session, the visiting teachers were invited to a reception given by the St. Stephen trustees and teachers in the Methodist vestry, which was a very enjoyable affair.
Valuable papers by Miss M. A. C.
Osborne, of St. Andrews, on What Knowledge is of Most Worth, and by Principal Tuttle, of Grand Manan, on the powers of Memory and Imagination, were read at the Friday morning session.
Principal McFarlane, Inspector Carter, Principal Bridges, of the Provincial Normal School and Mr. W. J. Corbell, of Calais, took part in the discussions which followed.
The institute then divided into sections for discussions on Number, led by Miss Ella Veazey and Miss Amy Young, and on English Composition, led by Principal DeLong and Principal McFarlane.

The afternoon session opened with a very pleasing paper on Drawing, by Miss S. H. J. Millidge, of Oak Bay, followed by a paper on Spelling, by Miss E. D.
Bartlett, of St. Stephen High School, and an address on Elementary Reading, by Prin. H. V. B. Bridges, of the Normal School.
The election of officers resulted in the choice of Mrs. W. J. Graham, of the Milltown School Board, as president for next meeting; Principal Woods, of St.
Andrews, vice-president; Mr. F. O.
Sullivan, of St. Stephen, secretary-treasurer; and Miss Margaret Kerr, Miss Louise Milliken and Miss Rheta Allingham, additional members of executive committee. The time and place of next meeting were left to the executive.

Literally the Truth
Two or three generations ago Dr.
Samuel Reed was one of the prominent physicians of Boston. His large practice included many patients outside of the city limits, and these he visited in his buggy.
One day he bought a new horse, with which he was much pleased until he discovered that the animal had an insurmountable objection to bridges of all kinds and could not be made to cross one.
As, at this period, it was necessary to cross some bridges in order to reach any one of the surrounding towns, the doctor decided to sell the horse. He did not think it necessary to mention the animal's peculiarity, but was much too honest to misrepresent him, and after some thought produced the following advertisement, which he inserted in a local paper:
For Sale—A bay horse, warranted sound and kind. The only reason for selling is because the owner is obliged to leave Boston.

WITH THE KING AT SEA

ROYAL YACHT VICTORIA AND ALBERT A FLOATING PALACE.

His Majesty's Day When Cruising—How the Time is Spent—Yachts Elaborate Fittings—Crew Are All Picked Men—Lower Deck Must Be King Edward a Good Sailor—Carries No Armament Aboard.

Many of the rulers of Europe spend their summer vacations on long cruises. King Edward and Queen Alexandra are satisfied to drift idly around the British Isles on their magnificent yacht, the Victoria and Albert. This sort of life is just about as comfortable and peaceful as life in Buckingham Palace, but the King, although he is a good sailor, prefers the steam yacht to a sailing vessel.

There is a conspicuous absence of arms and armor on board the Victoria and Albert, unlike the German Emperor's Hohenzollern, which is practically a second-class cruiser carrying a formidable armament of 4.7-inch guns.

The Victoria and Albert is a marvel of elegance and luxury, says the New York Sun, being in the most literal sense a steel floating palace of some 4,000 tons burden, propelled by twin screws. She is a little smaller than the Car's Standard, but far more sharply being of the clipper type, with fine schooner bows and an elliptical stern.

Her engines develop 12,000 horsepower and are capable of propelling the yacht at 21 knots. The graceful bows carry a "head" consisting of a gilt crown surmounting a shield that bears the royal coat of arms and supported on either side by a foliated ornament in which the rose, thistle and shamrock are introduced.

From her graceful mast to the stately hall of royal blue and gold the Victoria and Albert is a real home on the sea, with spacious drawing rooms, bonders and business offices that would do credit to Buckingham Palace itself.

One Day at Sea. King Edward's day at sea commences at 8 o'clock, when His Majesty rises to a light breakfast of coffee, rolls and an underdone chop. After breakfast the King's morning is devoted to state affairs and to matters attended to by secretaries under the King's own direction. He himself rarely appears upon deck much before noon, but at this hour he will select a sheltered nook upon the promenade deck for his morning cigar.

London is served at 2, and the afternoon is devoted by the King to a novel or a game of cards. It is interesting to note that His Majesty has a keen appreciation of the hardy work and those of Marie Corelli. As a rule dinner takes place at 8 o'clock unless there is a formal function at which guests of high rank are present. In this case the meal is served one hour earlier.

Afterward King Edward joins the gentlemen of his suite in the smoking room, and as a rule the evening is spent in the study. Both the King's and Queen's favorite nook on the yacht are found above the upper deck, where the promenade deck is fitted with shelter from the wind. As to the navigation of the craft, the King is assisted by officers and men of the Royal Navy, commanded by a commander of the rank of a lieutenant.

Officer to be Drafted. To be drafted into the royal yacht is an honor much sought among officers, petty officers and men. They used to be among the lower deck hands a seaman named Hall, who was a gutter performer of no mean ability, and very often the King, while strolling along the decks after dinner, would say to him: "Come along, Hall! Bring your guitar aft as it has us here a time." The seaman boasted with perfect truth that he had had the honor of playing before the King and Queen more frequently than any crew musician alive.

Another of the officers and men of the Victoria and Albert number 399, quite apart from the personal servants of their Majesties. And in regard to the King invariably uses a boat rowed by blue-jackets, with himself handling the tiller ropes in the stern sheets.

From first to last the present Victoria and Albert—which is a contrast indeed with her predecessor, Queen Victoria's own yacht—has cost nearly $5,000,000. Her coal supply is large enough for a radius of more than 2,500 miles at a cruising speed of 14 knots. Thus the floating palace will easily go from Portsmouth to the French Riviera without refilling her bunkers.

Silver Deck Fittings. The entire scheme of internal decorations was carried out under the direct supervision of Queen Alexandra, and no attempt has been made after the gorgeous or elaborate. Even on the upper deck, which is exposed to very severe weather and the action of the salt spray, solid silver is used for the deck fittings.

The various suites are after the 19th century English style, done in white enamel. The necessary warmth and color is obtained in the furniture, carpets and draperies. Thus in the King's private stateroom the carpet is a royal blue, which harmonizes perfectly with the blue Morocco of the chairs. The King's bedroom is very handsome, with its swining bedstead of silver plate without tinsel, set in wood furniture and ingeniously contrived stick and sword stands, as well as brackets and shelves and conveniences for the display of photographs and personal souvenirs.

The Queen's bedroom is much larger than the King's. The furniture is of satin wood, with silver fittings, and there is a stately canopy bedstead from the ceiling. The color scheme throughout is a soft green. The dressing room is surprisingly large and has an immense bath of snow white Carrara marble, with dressing tables of inlaid satin wood, fitted with front of side mirrors.

Just opposite the royal sleeping quarters is a magnificent Louis XV. drawing-room done in blue silk.

LEAN YEAR FOR ONTARIO.

Because of Scarcity and High Price of Feed.

Under the caption, "Lean Year for Ontario," the Weekly Sun says: "Roughly, we have nine million acres devoted to the various field crops grown in Ontario of this total, about three million acres are in hay, and two and three-quarter millions in oats. Thus with over sixty per cent. of our entire acreage given in cultivation, it is in these two crops, and these two main crops are the poorest in many years. Hay will not give over two-thirds of the tonnage per acre that it has been harvested in recent years—probably not over half. Oats are likely to be nearly 25 per cent. below the average yield, and this is equivalent to cutting of twenty-five million bushels on this one crop alone."

On the other hand, the hay which has been harvested has been unusually well saved, and corn, which can be largely substituted for hay, has of late been making splendid progress, while the area in this crop is larger than usual. There is only about one-tenth the acreage in corn that we have in hay, but the tonnage per acre is six times as great in one case as in the other. If we have an open fall, the permitting of full maturity of the corn, the increase in yield in this crop may pretty well offset the shortage in the other coarse fodder.

Peas, which had been steadily declining in acreage up to 1904, have since shown a rapid increase, and the area in this crop in the present season will probably be one-fourth greater than that of three years ago. At present, the promise is for an excellent yield in peas. Barley again, of which we will probably have 800,000 acres this year, seems as if it will be somewhat above the average in yield per acre. If the autumn had been a normal one for all fall crops, we would probably have had eight hundred thousand acres in this crop, and a great deal of the wheat has been drilled in with barley, and this, while it means a shortage in flour, will add considerably to the available supply of feedstuffs. But, as the allowances are made, there will undoubtedly be a material shortage in feed in 1907, as compared with recent years.

So far as grain is concerned, Ontario will, as our correspondent writes, have practically none for export this year, but dependence in products for sale will be on butter and cheese, bacon and beef cattle, and the cost of making these will be higher than in any other year, the high values which will undoubtedly be placed on feedstuffs.

As for whole, this will be a lean year for Ontario farmers, but as compared with recent years.

Prison During War. A signal victory for British science was scored in the House of Lords recently in a shipping act which has occupied the attention of the courts since the close of the Russo-Japanese war.

The case came before their lordships by way of appeal by the defendants, the Palace Shipping Co., Limited, at the owners of the steamship Franklin, from a decision of the Court of Appeal affirming substantial judgment of Mr. Justice Lawrence.

The plaintiffs were the crew of the Franklin, who in December, 1904, signed articles for a voyage from Cardiff north to exceed three years' duration to ports within certain designations, including Hong Kong. The ship loaded coal at Cardiff for Hong Kong. The crew knew that coal was being transported as contraband of war by both Russia and Japan, and that the ship for which they were engaged was to be used for the purpose of carrying coal to Japan. As soon as they were told that the ship was going to Sasebo, they refused to proceed. They were then taken by force to Sasebo, where they were imprisoned in a Chinese prison, where they suffered great hardships and privation. Meanwhile the ship went on her way, making off a crew of Chinamen. The British sailors returned to Hong Kong, and were sent home as distressed seamen.

The action was then brought by the crew to the House of Lords, and the main question argued was whether the men were justified in refusing to proceed to Sasebo. The Lord Chancellor said the men had been treated with harshness and injustice. Indeed, in his opinion, the conduct of the owners to these men was illegal from beginning to end. The master had no right to require them to sail to Sasebo, for the risk was not a commercial risk nor the voyage a commercial voyage, such as the articles contemplated.

The Lord Justice of Appeal, continuing in giving the men wages and indemnities, said that the crew had no power to avoid the men damages for their sufferings in Hong Kong. Could they have given such damages they would have been exemplary. The other noble lords concurred, and the owners' appeal was dismissed with costs.

Bricks From Garbage. The system of refuse destruction in some of the English cities is beyond criticism. The money derived from the material in many instances more than covers the cost of collection and reduction, and, in addition to this, heat, light and power are supplied for municipal purposes. A notable instance is at Nottingham, England, where a third incinerator is about to be erected which will be much larger than the two existing plants. In that city one of the by-products of the plants is bricks for paving or building. The clinkers from the furnace are mixed with cement and under hydraulic pressure formed into blocks which are said to be harder and more enduring than rock itself.

The Thieving Jackdaw. The Truro City Corporation has been ruffled not a little lately by the persistent disappearance of plant labels from the public park, and has in consequence issued solemn warnings, per placard, to the children who congregate to play there. But the "Whereas" and the pains and penalties recited should not have been directed to the Cornish barns. At a chapel held by a big pile of the missing labels has now been found, under a hole in the roof, conveyed thither by an acquisitive jackdaw "Jack" cannot read the Corporate cautions, but his ignorance of the law has not saved him from prison for his infringement.

PAIN

STUDY OF HAND-MADE LUMBER CAMPS.

La Presse of Montreal in a recent issue devoted three pages to a thrilling story of hardships said to have been encountered in the lumber camps of the Province of Quebec, and Driftwood City, in New Ontario.

That lumbermen are half starved, robbed of their wages, ill-treated by their foremen and threatened with fire arms if they dare resist is hard to believe.

Still that is what a reporter of La Presse, who spent two weeks in the wilds, declares to be true. He interviewed a large number of shantymen before they reached the camp they say they had to travel 600 miles with dry bread and cheese as their only food. During their long trip on a slow train they were not even given water to drink.

Before arriving at camp after tramping through the woods for miles without food they were subjected to their written contracts and subjected to altogether different treatment.

The men say that the company will not take cash to settle any indebtedness for board, railway fares or any other expenses, but demand that the men work till they have earned up all kinds of charges to keep the men at work.

A party of workmen once tried to escape, but were run down by private detectives and marched back to camp under cover of guns.

Food of a bad quality is supplied, they say, and scores of cases of exorbitant charges for necessities of life are recorded. The price even of postage stamps is increased.

Driftwood wanted to purchase rubber boots before they started to work in the woods. The company refused to let them have any, however, before they had earned them in work.

The men say that some of the clerks tried to disperse the crowd with revolvers. The Italians drew their pistols and had a fight with the company furnished the footwear.

Hon. J. J. Foy was asked if his statement to see well-dressed women picking their way through the mud, visitors for the day from towns within easy reach. But to miners of long experience Cobalt is a mining camp of the luxuries. They may grumble about the ban on alcohol, but they appreciate the plentiful supply of food as well as the fact that "Tarwater" is only twelve hours off. For "Tarwater," they tell me, is one of the finest jag-places on earth."

READY FOR H'VESTERS. Railways Expect to Handle the Crop Without Difficulty.

At the present moment the western section of Canada is claiming all the spare energies of the Canadian Pacific in preparation for the handling of the harvest. The task is a big one, as even with men packed as close as the harvest laborers travel their special, it means from 45 to 50 big trains to go to them to the West. The passenger department now busily engaged making arrangements for these trains. But this is only the beginning of the railway problem, and by no means the hardest part of it.

For some time past sections of the Canadian Pacific have been securing reports from all sections of the western wheat belt in order to be able to make an approximate estimate of the number of cars required to get the wheat to the lakes. A report has been received from Winnipeg stating that the crop would probably require 150,000 thousand box cars with a sufficient equipment of engines to handle them. This, of course, does not mean that the wheat could be pooled into fifteen thousand cars, but that this number kept on the go as steadily as possible will be enough to take care of the wheat as it is marketed. Owing to the very heavy flow of freight that has been going westward during the past few months, which has been much heavier than the eastward movement, the Canadian Pacific already has almost fifteen thousand freight cars in the West, and by the time the first harvest is harvested there will be a thousand or so more there, so that it is not thought there will be any car shortage that would will any empties be crushed either in other years. This has been a record, possibly the greatest activity displayed during the past twelve months by the Canadian Pacific. It is heavily stocked with china, glass and crockery ware, and running the length of the store, leaped over the high desk and dashed through the window in which any trouble is likely to be caused by the sudden rush of enormous quantities of wheat to the railroad towards the end of the shipping season. There is the more danger of this as a big crop is expected, and it is some twenty days late, which means that there will be that much less time to get the wheat away before lake navigation closes.

Deer in China Shop. A large deer with a good spread of horns dashed through Weston streets the other day, making a startling appearance and a dramatic picture. Three gentlemen were standing on the curb when the deer dashed through the former city square and, falling on the wet pavement, was thrown between them, abruptly terminating the conversation. Quickly arising, the animal dashed into the East India store, which was heavily stocked with china, glass and crockery ware, and running the length of the store, leaped over the high desk and dashed through the window in which any trouble is likely to be caused by the sudden rush of enormous quantities of wheat to the railroad towards the end of the shipping season. There is the more danger of this as a big crop is expected, and it is some twenty days late, which means that there will be that much less time to get the wheat away before lake navigation closes.

Murder Through Ignorance. In the case of the Indian chief and medicine man in the Kewatin district taken to Norway House for murdering a squaw of his tribe supposed to be possessed by an evil spirit, or Wendigo, it appears the prisoners were appointed by a meeting of the band to which they belonged to put an end to the unhappy victim of savage superstition. The woman was sick and afterwards became delirious, and the Indian belief is that when this happens the Wendigo has entered the afflicted person, and if the latter afterwards dies a natural death, the evil spirit escapes to the woods and the game takes flight and disappears and famine results. The report received by the Indian department states that the band assembled according to established usage, and the "high honor" of choking the squaw to death in order that the spirit might remain imprisoned in the corpse was accorded to the chief and medicine man. The two executioners, therefore, placed a piece of canvas around the squaw's neck, with a noosed rope, and lighting the rope the ravings of the poor demented creature were stopped and the band was satisfied that the evil spirit remained safely imprisoned and that the game in the woods would not disappear. News of the affair coming to the knowledge of the police, the chief and his assistant were taken into custody, the band protesting that what had been done was the custom of their fathers, and they did not know it was wrong, and asking for leniency.

Why Scotchmen Succeed. Some of the Best Immigrants Canada Receives. Admiral Lord Charles Beresford, in a recent speech, gave a breezy description of the characteristics of Scotchmen and why they succeed in life—a description of which was the more interesting that it came from an Irishman, says P. T. O. The Scot, said Lord Charles, is one of the most interesting men in the world. He says the greatest attention to detail. He has proverbial honesty of purpose. He is a man of strong opinions in his dealings. He has indomitable energy. The Scot is a very business-like man in many cases. He has a mechanical skill. These characteristics that have brought the Empire to the place it occupies at the present time are the Scotchman's characteristics that Englishmen and Irishmen have similar characteristics, but these distinctive qualities are essentially Scotch, and that is why Scotchmen all over the world have advanced to the highest positions in every sphere of activity.

It was under a Scotsman that Lord Charles served three years of his apprenticeship to the sea as a midshipman; namely, Sir Houston Stewart, who was one of the finest seamen who ever trod deck. Another great admiral whom he remembered in his early days was Sir Alexander Milne, familiarly known as "Sandy." Recently Lord Charles was ever upon business in Canada. One day he saw two trains arriving with emigrants for this country, and he said to the mayor of Calgary: "What lucky people you Canadians are!" because in these trains were the finest specimens of Scotchmen and North of England Englishmen he had ever seen, full of energy and full of go.

Fire Killed Wood. Government tests of fire killed timber have demonstrated that this wood is good and should be considered as thoroughly seasoned timber so far as its use is concerned.

A Canning Cricket. A hunter in tropical regions tells of seeing a cricket pursued round the trunk of a tree by a lizard. Suddenly the insect settled itself in a small depression in the bark, spread out its wings slightly and flattened itself so that the lizard actually crawled over it and went away without ever knowing what had become of it.

Ocean Drift. A box thrown overboard by the steamer Hunter was picked up twenty months and twenty-six days later, having drifted in that time a distance of 4,751 miles.

Trees and Lightning. Some trees are much more liable to be struck by lightning than others. Thus the oak and the elm are often struck and destroyed, but the ash is rarely struck, and the beech, it is said, never.

Spider's Web. A web two quarters miles long has been drawn from the body of a single spider.
