Enthusiastic Reformers' Meeting at Mount Brydges.

Speeches by the Minister of Education and Other Prominent Liberals—Telling Disclosure of the Vacillating Conduct of the Opposition and Its Leader.

MOUNT BRYDGES, May 2.—The meeting of the West Middlesex Reform Association was held at the Town Hall in this village to-day and was one of the most largely attended conventions ever held in the riding. The morning session was occupied with ess and the nomination of a candidate. The enthusiasm shown was such as to leave no doubt that the Minister of neation, Hon. G. W. Ross, will poll a larger vote than ever at the coming elec He was present himself during the day and was kept busy receiving the well-wishes and hearty hand-shakes of his supporters. In the morning Mr. James F. atherland, president, called the meeting to order, with Mr. F. F. Evans acting a

The President analounced that as there were many who degred to return home by the esternoon trains e speakers, with the exception of Mr. loss, would be limited to ten minutes each. to Mr. Ross they would place his limit, two or three hours if he wished.

Mr. Watterworth, Ex-M.P.P. was the first speaker. He had a hearty reception. In feeling terms he reterred to the loss lich the Liberals of the West Riding had stained through the death of various well-nows and respected citizens, including lassrs, C. J. Anderson, Richard Whiting, lobert Bockin and Thos. Northout. He hen passed on to the particular business for bide in this largely-attended convention had etc. The people of West Middlesex were tricularly fortunate in having for a representative in the Legislature a gentleman of iom every fair-minded citizen ought to be pud—a statesman of whom every Liberal sindeed proud. (Cheers.) The member twest Middlesex many of them had flown since he was a boy. By his own indomitable pluck and perseverance, and he supreciation of his friends he had raised himself step by step till he had attained the proup lossition which he holds in a stailless towermment. Hon. Mr. Ross had consulty represented the constituency, and be provided the proup position which he holds in a stailless to public the mount of the follows and the word of word of the mount of the follows the bonorable gentleman by any such man it John Morgan, however hard he might conduct his still hunt. The electors of the fonstituency have every inducement to support Mr. Ross, continued the speaker. We have other reasons besides the fact that he is an old and faithful servant of the constituency. Any candidate would suit us provided he supported Hon. Oliver Mowat. To the hast eighteen years that grand old sun—the Gladstone of Canada (cheers)—this managed the affairs of Ontario in such manner that not a single corrupt transacion can be brought home to him or his floverment. (Cheers.) When our legislive and constitutional rights were ive and constitutional rights were ailed, who stood up manfully them, and defeated the trickstere Ottawa! Hon. Oliver Mowat. Who stood

Hon. Oliver Mowat. In conclusion, Mr. Watterworth expressed his satisfaction at seeing such a large gathering present. He advised them to complete their organization at once, and go to work to make ready that every vote in favor of honest government should be polled in favor of Hon. G. W. Ross, who should be placed at the head of the poll by a larger majority Hon. G. W. Ross, who should be placed at the head of the poll by a larger majority than ever has yet been recorded for him. Then he would be able to complete the educational reforms which he had so successfully inaugurated, while aiding Oliver Mowat in faithfully conducting the general affairs of the Province. For reasons thus set forth, Mr. Watterworth said, it had given him the greatest pleasure to propose given him the greatest pleasure to propo Hon. G. W. Ross as the Liberal candida for the riding. (Loud cheers.)

MR. WM. MURDOCH made a capital speech in support of the nomination. He spoke on the license law, made a capital speech in support of the nomination. He spoke on the license law, and said that he was sure every man who had anything to do with councils, and was not prejudiced, would say that Mr. Meredith's policy to hand back the licensing system, in any degree, to the municipalities, would be a retrograde step. On the registrar question, he believed that a government, whether Liberal or Conservative, would be fully as capable of making an appointment as county councils would be. He had no faith in the professions of some Tories, that Mr. Meredith would reduce the salary if he got into power. Tory Governments were not made that way. He believed that Governments should select their own officials. The trouble with the Tory bosses, however, was that they wished to get hold of the Provincial resources, which Mr. Mowat had so carefully defended and husbanded, and distribute them among their favorites as they had done with the Dominion property under their control. He believed it was the duty of every patriot to minion property under their control. He believed it was the duty of every patriot to believed it was the duty of every parties to resist these men, so closely allied with the Rykert gang, and in West Middlesex that could be done by voting for the colleague of their honored Premier, Hon. G. W. Ross. (Cheers).

(Cheers)

MR. GEO C. GIBBONS,
as president of the City of London Liberal Association, was proud to be present that day and aid in doing honor to the able colleague of Hon. Oliver Mowat. The Liberals of West Middlesex had every reason to entertain the highest regard for the member for the riding. Mr. Ross was especially honored by the fact that the whole force of the enemy had leveled its batteries against him. The Tories of today have not a single tenable cry to bring against the Ministry. At last election, they said we were corrupt, and Mr. Meredith said he wanted the people to aid him in putting that down. Now they have to confess that the Government's financial record is a clean one. Then they said the confess that the Government's financial record is a clean one. Then they said the Government had no surplus. We are getting interest from the investments straight along now, and that cry won't go down. At last election the chief Tory organ urged its leader to raise the religious cry. Now he and his friends are trying to do it, but not in every constituency. They know that it is all arrant humbug, and they are trying to hedge in some of the ridings. Mr. Macklin has retired in North Middlesex. Why did he retire? Well, at the convention he committed himself to the supposed views of his leaders in regard to separate schools. He has since said that he would fight it on that line. But the Tery managers have gone to him, and said,

Debate on the Increased Duty

A Surprise All Round-Rykert Steps Down and Out.

OTTAWA, Friday, May 2. In the House of Commons to-day, Mr. Wood, of Westmoreland, called attention to the Globe's paragraph regarding the Albert and Cape Tormentine Railway, and his connection with it, also the public expenditures to improve his investment in mills on the line. He said: "I own no penditures to maprove his and the mills on the line. He said: "I own no mills on the line. He said: "I own no mills on the line. I have no private or personal interest to be served in any way by the construction of that line.

There was a long debate on the new iron bounty proposals. Mr. Foster presented the resolutions, explaining that in 1883 a bounty of $1 50 was granted for three years and $1 for three years thereafter. In 1886, on the expiry of the first term, the bounty of $1 50 was renewed and the $1 bounty of $1 years and $1 for three years thereater. The 1886, on the expiry of the first term, the bounty of $1 50 was renewed and the $1 was made to apply to the succeeding three years. It was now proposed to continue the principle and make the bounty $2 from the expiry of the bounty in 1892.

Sir Richard Cartwright contended that as the iron duties fell upon an article which was the raw material of many manufacturers and of universal every-day use, they were about the most injurious to the public interest of the whole list. Considering that pig iron was produced at an average of $11 a ton, the advantage given to the manufacturers by the duty of $4 was an enormous one, yet an increase of the bounty to $2 was now proposed. The true policy to promote the iron manufacture in Canada was to enlarge the market and open to Canadian producers at least the markets of the continent.

Mr. Davis made a strong, well-reasoned speech on the question, presenting the figures in a striking light. He read from Sir Leonard Tilley's speeches in the early days of the National Policy, declaring that a temporary protection was all that was necessary, to be taken off in about ten years, when the industry was well established. Now, after the expiry of ten years, the proposal was to continue the bounty for seven years and to increase it. There never was a case where people of this country were so deluded and duped as in this increase of iron duties. The policy was hateful, burdensome and wrong. were so deluded and duped as in this in-crease of iron duties. The policy was hate-ful, burdensome and wrong.

Mr. Chariton and Mr. Watson also spoke in opposition to the resolution. The ques-tion was discussed again after recess, and the resolution was finally adopted in committee.

MR. RYKERT STEPS DOWN.

When the House resumed after recess, the unexpected happened. Mr. Rykert handed in his resignation as member for Lincoln and Niagara and left the House. He felt that the matter having at that time been so thorcughly discussed he had a right to claim protection under the law against it being brought up again after this lapse of time. This correspondence was of a private and confidential nature, he said, and had no right to be brought before Parliament. He complained that the committee appointed called upon him to proceed with his defense without any proceed with his defense

Mr. Blake rose to a point of order. It was not in order, he said to discuss the conduct of a committee which had not re-

Mr. Speaker—I understand that unable member is not doing that.

Mr. Blake—He certainly was proceeding to discuss the conduct of the committee.

Mr. Rykert, continuing, said: "I do not wish to transgress the rules, but I feel that I have not had fair play at the hands of the House or the committee. I had hoped that was first closed before the to discuss the conduct of the committee.

I had hoped that when his case was first closed before the committee that it would not be opened again, but it was reopened, and I understand the proceedings of the committee have again been opened also. Having been charged with accepting a trust and then betraying it, I feel that I can no longer occupy a seat in this House. I feel it my duty in the interest of those I have represented so long, and whose confidence I have so long enjoyed without interruption, to tender my resignation as member of this House for Lincoln and Niagara. Hon. G. W. Ross then took the platform and the entire audience applauded loudly. He was in excellent voice and his remarks were frequently interrupted with applause. He spoke of his gratefulness at being unanimously mominated for the seventime to represent the West Middlesex Reform Association. During eighteen years of close contact with a man there was an excellent chance to discover one's faults, and for that reason he considered that he had additional source of self-gratification in receiving such a hearty expression of approval. ANCIENT ORDER UNITED WORKMEN

At the last meeting of Detroit Lodge, No. 6, 1,200 members were present to witness the initiation of 273 new members, the securing of the same order in paint, resulting in the securing of 340 applications, 300 of whom were elected. This work is all the more remarkable when it is considered that there are fourteen lodges of the same order in Detroit, with a combined membership of nearly 5,000, and also the fact that Detroit Lodge has been initiating from two to seven candidates at each meeting since the first of the year. AN EMINENT BAPTIST.

Rev. Dr Castle's Opinion of Hon. Oliver

It is charged against Mr. Mowat that his Government is more favorable to the Roman Catholics than to any other denomination, but even his opponents know this charge to be untrue, and made only for political effect. The words of Rev. Dr. Castle, principal of Toronto Baptist College, are worthy of consideration by all. In a public address he

Toronto Baptist College, are worthy of consideration by all. In a public address he used this language:

"I have looked upon the course of the Premier of this Province with the highest satisfaction. It has seemed to me a most delightful thing that throughout the length and breadth of this land we could look to him who has the controlling position and feel that we had in that position, an honest man, a capable man, a pure man, a Christian man. And one of the mysteries of iniquity is how it can be possible for Christian ministers to lend themselves to the tricks of party for the sake of hurling from office a Christian statesman of whom we are all proud. I hope it will be found that those who are prepared to take all the risk, and it is a terrible risk—of exciting religious bigotry in the community, and of stirring into flames fires which were smouldering in their ashes, causing those fires to blaze forth once more, assuming the awful responsibility involved in fanning into fresh flames the embers of bigotry, and, taking that risk and assuming that responsibility for political effect, will have so far defeated themselves that there shall go out a voice, declaring, down henceforth and forever with those who would resort to such a means of gaining political advantage. Mr. Chairman, I desire to offer a motion to the effect that this meeting rejoices to acknowledge with thanks that under the Administration of Hon. Oliver Mowat ALL DENOMINATIONS AND CREEDS HAVE HAD IMPARTIAL JUSTICE."

Is MR. Mowar a fit Premier for the Prov Yes; up this way every intelligent elector says so. Give us a more difficult one.

DUNDAS Banner: "John Waters has been enominated for North Middlesex. He belongs to the still kind, and, as you know, still Waters run deep.' John always runs deep and brings up the votes."

THE Toronto Telegram (anti-Mowat organ) truthfully remarks that "in Grit constituencies Conservatism hugs the Equal Rights candidate to its bosom and in a voice hoarse with joy tells him that he is indeed the stuff. In Toronto the same grand old party stands ready to throw all Equal Rights candidates out of the window."

East Lambton Tories are advertising Hon. John Carling as one of the attraction for their convention in Watford a couple of weeks from now. This, we suppose, is one more evidence that Mr. Meredith has cut himself entirely adrift from the Ottawa centralizers! Go tell the yarn to the marines, Messieurs Tory canvassers. Intelligent men will not believe it.

MR. MARSHALL, Tory M. P. for East Middlesex, dodged the recent motion on the Jesuit Estates Act, presented to the House of Commons by Mr. Charlton. The resolution simply declared that it was the duty of Sir John Macdonald, before refusing to disallow the Jesuit Estates Act, to submit it to the Supreme Court of Canada for an opinion on its constitutionality.

INGERSOLL Town Council passed a bylaw restricting the number of licenses to sell liquor in that town. This action was taken ordance with the act. A large number of citizens objected to the reduction and the bylaw has been repealed. The commissioners are asked to pay no attention to the original bylaw, but grant licenses to the hotels cut off. Public opinion on these matters seems to be very fickle.

The Tory papers are printing pictures purporting to represent Mr. W. R. Meredith. They show him to be a dreadfullooking individual, and not the handsome man we know him to be. In all probability the maker has made a mistake, and produced a picture intended to do duty in the papers on the morning of June 6, for a more wilted, broken-up looking man than that esented in the woodcuts now being circulated one can scarcely conceive.

In Toronto, members of the Equal Rights Association are pitched out of Tory conventions. In North Essex, Sol. White, Mr. Meredith's chosen first lieutenant, is the Tory candidate. Yet he asks for support on the ground that he is opposed to what he calls Mr. Meredith's course on the separate schools. Cause: In Toronto, Protestants predominate; in North Essex, the population is largely French-Canadian and Catholic. The double game is being played all over the Province, and Mr. Meredith is a party to it. No wonder that Principal Caven, president of the Ontario Equal Rights Association, warns his friends to resist the wiles of the crafty mischief inakers, and indorses the legislation of Hon. Oliver Mowat as fair to all parties.

A private letter from Owen Sound says Mr. Creighton, the Empire manager and first lieutenant to Mr. Meredith, is certain of defeat in North Grey. At last election, he was only elected by a majority of sixteen, when he had elements of strength which he does not possess now that he lives in Toronto. His opponent is again Mr. James Cleland, of Meaford, one of the best-known merchants and manufacturers in the North, and univer-Association are pitched out of Tory con-

THE WASTE OF IT.

Northwestern Ontario, and chains the belonged to the Dominion. Then he handed them over to a St. Catharines Company, which had the goodwill of the notorious Rykert. Of "The great question of Province will of the motorious Rykert." will of the notorious Rykert. Of course, the Tory leader had no claim on the limits, therefore he could not honestly give them to any company. But handed over they were. Macdonald forced Premier Mowat to go to the courts to regain possession of Ontario's territory, and the Tory bosses said, "What a shame to apend money on territory of so little value."

The St. Catharines lumber men knew its value, however, and resisted eviction. Did Sir John Macdonald or Mr. Meredith then stand by the Provpattle of the rights of the Province alone. Not only that, but the Tory leader hired Macdonald Government undertook to pay all the legal expenses which McCarthy in-curred in the defense of its favorites. It was night, by Hon. Mr. Chapleau, that over $14,000 had so far been paid for this purpose. The bills are still coming in. And all to get the recourses of Northwestern Ontario out of the control of honest Oliver Mowat and into the hands of the Rykerts, the Laidlaws, and the men of that stamp. Could testimony to Mr. Mowat's faithfulness to his Province be stronger? Who knows how long the territory could be kept from the gang were the associates of these men to get control in Ontario?

DR. CAVEN'S WARNING. In the "Facts for the Irish Electors," which Mr. Meredith approved for his campaign purposes in 1883, it was stated that "In spite of all the blustering intolerance of the Reform party THE CON-SERVATIVES CARRIED THE SEPARATE SCHOOL BILL through the House of Assembly, and foremost in the ranks of those who fought for it we find the name of Sir John A. Macdonald, now Premier of the Dominion; and foremost against it we find the name of Hon. Oliver Mowat, now Premier of Ontario." Mr. Meredith was at that time not content with counting a majority of Irish Catholics among his followers, but he wanted a "solid vote," and he thought he was entitled to it for the service of his party in procuring the passage of the Separate School Act and for personal reasons besides. Whatever changes had been made in the law from the first year of Confederation down to that time were made with his assent and ap-proval, and it was not until after his crushing defeat at the general elections four years afterwards that he showed any disposition to find fault with the Government, either on account of the Separate Schoo Law or the teaching of French in the public schools. Indeed it was not until several nonths after the Equal Rights Association was organized and its policy formulateduntil all hope of recapturing the "solid" Catholic vote of the Province had vanished with the rout of his party in West Lambton—that Mr. Meredith indicated a tardy conversion to some of the views of the Equal Rights Association, as expressed in his London speech. And now this mercurial leader of a fossil party seeks to place himself at the head of a movement based on prejudices of race and creed which in their intensity far transcend anything professed by the Equal Rights Association. What the Rev. Dr. Caven, president of the association, thinks of this new party move of Mr. Meredith and his friends of the Ontario Opposition is shown very clearly in a letter published in the Toronto Mail of last Wednesday, and to which the ADVERTISER has already called attention. It is worthy of far more than a passing notice, however. Touching the re-lations of the Equal Rights Association to lations of the Equal Rights Association to party Dr. Caven says:

The association is not itself a party in the ordinary sense. It has nothing to say regarding the questions which divide Conservatives and Reformers which divide Conservatives and Reformers which relative proportions I consider the representation of the respectation of the association depends upon scrupulous impartiality with which all matters that affect or involve party shall be treated.

Equal Rights men bind themselves to maintain the principles of their alliance as set forth in the platform of the association; otherwise they are as free as ever to give their support where they choose. The association represents an important principle—the distinction between Church and State; and it would prevent all undue ecclesiastical interference in civil affairs. The Provincial Association cannot forbid

It is clear enough, reading between the lines, that Dr. Caven regards the attempts What prodigals the Dominion Ministers of the Ontario Opposition as "base and imare! But words of Sir John Macdonald, the Province had no legitimate claim to one stick of timber or one pound of minerals in the territory. The Board regulated the children of Roman Catholics out of the public schools contrary to the law, the Government decided to make the provisions of the act so clear and positive that no mistakes in assessment for public and separate schools can be made hereafter saving by the willful, the pervers night, by Hon. recent modifications of the Separate School mands." But it only makes more emphatic what the Attorney-General contends was always the law of the country—a fact of which Dr. Caven, Rev. Mr. Milligan and other leading men who had their doubts on the subject at last election, are now fully convinced. No man can charge Mr. Mowat with having pandered to any church or nationality for the purpose of gaining its support, "solid" or otherwise; and his great strength is due to the honorable and consistent course which he has pursued all through his public life. Nor will anyone suspect that Dr. Caven had Mr. Mowat or any of his colleagues in his mind when he penned this sentence in his letter to the Toronto Mail:

"To all men of any party, who have shown no interest in our organization till they imagined that it might be used for personal or party ends, conscientious and intelligent friends of Equal Rights will give a wide berth."

GALT Reformer: "'In vain is the net spread in sight of any bird,' might well be said of the Tory attempt to capture the Equal Righters. The Equal Rights movement was started to compel the Dominion Government or Parliament to disallow the Quebec Jesuits' Act. Mr. Mowat had no more to do with it than the man in the paid organizer of the Tory party, Birming paid organizer of the Tory party, Birmingham, is running about Ontario, trying to get in double-dyed Tories in doubtful ridings by labeling them 'Equal Rights candidates.'

Mr. Birmingham may amuse his employers by holding, out hopes of the success of his schemes as an organizer, but when the elections are over he will find that Ontario has outgrown the age of political babyhood, when such dishonest and silly Tory devices can entrap intelligent men into overthrowing the best Government which any section of Canada has ever enjoyed."

Time is one of the greatest factors in making a first-class piano. It requires time to season wood; time to let glue and veneers dry; and time to permit the many coats of varnish on a piano case to become hard. Time signifies capital, and only firms of large resources take advantage of this desideratum. Pianos that are rapidly built and rapidly finished are rapidly pealess.

That is why the Mason & Risch Pianos are so popular. With ample capital, and a determination to make quality and durability the prime consideration, the makers have always given to each instrument every advantage gained by "time" and skilled workmanship.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 2.-The International season opened in Buffalo to-day. Although the weather was fine, not over 800 people attended the game. It was a very one-sided contest, the Londons, except Hiland, batting Dunning almost as they pleased. Parks' third base play and great hitting made him a favorite, while Shortstop Doyle, not satisfied with two home runs, tried for three, but it resulted only in a two-bagger, and his two other

EAST MIDDLESEX.

Rousing Reform Meeting at St. Johns-Speeches by Dr. Henry Arnott, Geo. and Mr. James H. Hodgins.

Sr. Johns, May 3.—Conservatives and Reformers alike pronounced the meeting held last night in the Town Hall at St. Johns as the best meeting ever held there in the interests of Reform.

The chair was occupied by Dr. Bice, of St. Johns, who said he would reserve his remarks till the close, and called on Mr. Geo. D. Davis, water commissioner, of London, who spoke for about half an hour on the general policy of the Mowat Government. Its financial record was clearly put before the meeting by the speaker, and the immense benefits conferred by it upon the people by its expenditures in aid of railways and charities. Mr. Davis' speech was attentively listened to and frequently applauded.

Dr. Arnott said he was well known to them all, but not as a politician, because he was not a politician, but simply appeared before them as a friend of the Reform candidate and asked them to give him their support. He was personally in favor of less party politics and more reason. It mattered little to him what a man's politics were if he was a competent man, and he hoped at the election the voters would exercise their judgment and not vote as if they had been born either Conservatives or Reformers. He thanked the meeting, in closing, for their attention, and asked a good hearing for Mr. Purdom.

Mr. Purdom spoke for about an hour on REMEDIES. My boy, when one year of age, was so bad with ecement that he lost all of his hair. His scalp was covered with eruptions, which the dooters said was scall head, and that his hair would never grow again. Despairing of a cure from physicians, I began the use of the CUTICURA REMEDIES, and, I am happy to say, with the most perfect success. His hair is now splendid, and there is not a pimple on him. I recommend the CUTICURA REMEDIES to mothers as the most speedy, economical and sure cure for all skin diseases of infants and children, and feel that every mother who has an afflicted child will thank me for so doing.

Raw with Eczema.

I am cured of a loathsome disease, eczema, in its worst stage. I tried, different doctors and have been through the hospital, but all to no purpose. The disease covered my whole body from the top of my head to the soles of my feet. My hair all came out, leaving me a complete raw sore. After trying everything, I heard of your Curicura Remedies, and after using three bottles of Curicura Researchers, with Curicura and Curicura Resolvent, with Curicura and Curicura Soap, I find myself cured at the cost of about $8. I would not be without the Curicura Remedies in my house. the CUTICURA REMEDIES in my house.

knee to the foot was one mass of running sores. The doctors bandaged it every day for a week, and every time the bandage was removed a large seab would come off, and the blood pour down. I got one bottle of CUTICUTA RESOLVENT, one box CUTICUTA, and one cake CUTICUTA SOAP, and they cured me. I told a lady who was similarly afflicted to use it, and it cured her also. I gratefully acknowledge that it was CUTICUTA that cured me.

MRS. KATE BEAARD, Orange Valley, N. J.

Unbearable Itching.

I have been afflicted since last March with skin disease the doctors called Eczema. My face was covered with scabs and sores, and the tiching and burning were almost unbearable. Seeing your CUTICURA REMEDIES so highly recommended, concluded to give them a trial, using the CUTICURA and CUTICURA SOAP externally, and RESOLVENT internally for four months. I call myself cured, in gratitude for which I make this public statement.

Fever Sore 8 Years.

I must extend to you the thanks of one of my customers, who has been cured by using the CUTICURA REMEDIES, of an old sore, caused by a long spell of sickness or fever 8 years ago. He was so bad that he was fearful he would have to have his leg amputated, but is happy to say he is now entirely well—sund as a dolto say he is now entirely well—sound as a dol-lar. The adjourned sessions met this morning, Squire Owere presiding, and Squires Edwards, Lacey, Jarvis and Garner present. The only business done was the appointment of Edwin Chapman as county constable on the recommendation of the Reeve and Police Magistrates of Ailsa Craig.

Mr. J. S. McConnell, who has for a number of years ably filled the position of night manager at the G. N. W. Telegraph Company's office in this city, left to-day for Chatham to take the management of the company's office there. Mr. James McConnell, jun., who was night clerk in the local office, accompanies his father to Chatham.

To-day's market was a big one, and the customary activity was added to by two runaways. The first was a horse attached to a lumber wagon, which ran into a letter box at the corner of Talbot and Dundas streets, smashing the box and throwing letters around promiscuously. Theother vehicle was a covered buggy, which was pulled around by a horse at a lively rate. It ran over a small boy in front of the Opera House, but did not hurt him seriously.

London West School Teachers.

The regular meeting of the London West School Board was held last evening, all the members being present. The Board decided to engage two teachers to fill the vacancies on the staff. The choice fell on Mr. Macdonald, the medical student, whose application was received and filed at the last meeting. His engagement will expire at the close of the midsummer term, salary at the rate of $325 a year. Miss Evans was also engaged, her term to expire at the pleasure of the Board, salary $275 per year.

THE LABOR SITUATION.

Fifty-One Strikes in Progress in the States-The Outlook Elsewhere.

IN FRANCE.
PARIS, May 3.—A general strike in the collieries in the South of France is threatened.

HAMILTON.

HAMILTON, May 3.—About 40 laborers employed at the West End sewer marched to the City Hall yesterday with a grievance. They found that they were being paid at the rate of $1 25 a day. The laborers on the streets receive $1 37\frac{1}{2}, and the sewer laborers think they are entitled to the same. The men objected to work for $1 25 a day and struck.

TORONTO.

TORONTO.

TORONTO, May 3.—The strikers have received offers of aid from the United States, ceived offers of aid from the United States, Quebec and Montreal.

Matters continue very quiet. There are 314 men on the pay-roll of the Bricklayers' Laborers' Union.

GREAT BRITAIN.

LONDON, May 3.—Now that the strike of the employes of the Great Southern and Western Ráilway is over, both the directors of the corporation and the returned workmen are loud in their praises of the two men instrumental in bringing about the compromise whereby the hostilities ceased. It is difficult to determine which of them, Archbishop Walsh or Michael Davitt, is entitled to the greater degree of credit for the result, but it is nevertheless true that to their efforts solely the end of the strike is due.

GLADSTONE TO THE WORKERS.

LONDON, May 2.—Mr. Gladstone has written a letter, which will appear on Sunday next, in which he exhorts the working classes to consider closely their present condition. He says: "There may come a time when labor will prove too strong for capital and may use its strength unjustly, but capital will surely hold its own." In conclusion, he expresses a wish to see labor and art allied with the view of alleviating and adorning the life of man. and adorning the life of man.

"Apparently they were not very pleasant ones. He walked round the room, which was reeking with patchouli or some such compound, well mixed with the odor of stale cigar smoke, looking absently at the geegaw ornaments. On the mantlepiece were some photographs, and among them, to his disgust, he saw one of himself. ance, in that vulger, guady, victous looking room.

Suddenly he bethought him of the letter in his wife's handwriting which he had stolen from the pocket of Edward Cossey's coat. He drew it out, and threw the tea gown and the interminable glove off the sofa sat down and commenced to read it. It was, as he expected, a love letter, a wildly passionate love letter, breathing language which in places aimost touched the beauty of poetry, vows of undying affection that was throughout redeemed from vulgarity and even from silliness by their utter earnestness and self abandonment. Had the letter been one written under happy circumstances and innocent of offense against morality, it would have been a beautyful letter or passion at its highest has a'ways a beauty of its own.

He read it through, and then carefully folded it and restored it to his pocket.

beauty of its own.

He read it through, and then carefully folded it and restored it to his pocket. "The woman has a heart:" he said to himself; "no one can doubt it. And yet I cennot touch it, though, God knows, however much I wronged her, I loved her—and love her now. Well, it is a good bit of evidence if ever I dare to use it. It is a game of bluff between me and her, and I expect that in the end the boldest player will win."

He rose from the sofa—the atmosphere of the place stifled him—and going to the window he threw it open and stepped out on to the balcony. It was a lovely moonlight night, though chilly, and for London the street was a quiet one.

Taking a chair, he sait down there upon the balcony and began to think. His heart was softened by misery, and his mind fell into a tender groove. He thought of his long dead mother, whom he had dearly loved, and of how he used to say his prayers to her, and of how whe used to sing hymns to him on Sunday evenings. Her death had seemed to choke all the beauty out of his being at the time, and yet now he thanked God she was dead. And then he thought of the accursed woman who had been his life and corrupted and destroyed him.

Next there rose up before him a vision of Belle, Belle as he had first seen her, a maid of 17, the only child of that drunken old village doctor, now also long since dead, and how the sight of her had for awhile stayed the corruption of his heart because he grew to love her. And then he married Belle by foul means, and the woman rose up in his path again, and he learned that his wife hated him with all the energy of her passionate heart. Then came degradation, and the abandonment of principle after principle, replaced only by a fierce craving for respectability and rest—a long, long struggle, which ever ended in new lapses from the right, till at length he saw himself a hardened schemer, remorselessly pursued by a fury from whom there was no escape. And yet he knew that under other circumstances he might bave been a good and happy man—leading an honorable life. But now all hope had gone; that which he was he must be till the end. He leaned his head upon the stone railing in front of him and wept, yes, wept in the anguish of his soul, praying to God for deliverance from the burden of his sins, and yet well knowing that he had none to hope for. For his chance was gone and his fate fixed. ce was gone and his fate fixed.

CHAPTER XVI. THE TIGERESS IN HER DEN.
Presently a hansom cab came rattling down the street and pulled up at the door.
"Now for it," said Mr. Quest to himself, as he metaphorically shook himself to-reason why," and she pointed toward the cab in such a fashion that seemed to cow her companion, for without another word the turned and got into it.

"Where to, sir?" asked the cabman.
"Oh, to hell or the Haymarket, it's all one," he growled, flinging himself back in the corner. In another moment the cab had turned, and he was gone, muttering curses as he went.

The woman was none other than Mrs. D'Aubigne, alias Edith Jones, alias the Tiger, turned and entered the house, accompanied by her servant, Ellen, and presently Mr. Quest heard the rustle of her satin dress upon the stairs. He stepped back into the darkness of the balcony and waited. She opened the door, entered and closed it behind her, and then, a little dazzled by the light, stood some seconds looking about her for her visitor. She was a thin, tall woman, who might have been any age between 40 or 50, with the wreck of avery fine agile looking figure. Her face, which was plentifully behabed with paint and powder, was sharp, fierce and handsome, and crowned with a mane of false yellow hair, her eves were cold and blue, her lips thin and rather drawn, so as to show a double line of large and gleaming teeth. She was a dressed in a rich and hideous tight fitting gown of yellow satin, barred with black, and on her arms were long bright yellow gloves. She moved lightly and silently, and looked round her with a long searching gaze like that of a cat, and her general appearance of enveyed an idea of hunger and wicked ferocities. "Now for it," said Mr. Quest to himself, as he metaphorically shook himself to gether.

Next minute he heard a voice, which he knew only too well—a loud high voice—say from the cab, "Well, open the door, stupid, can't you?"

"Certainly, my lady fair." replied another voice—a coarse, someweat husky male voice—"adored Edith, in one moment."

"Come, stow that rot, and let me out," replied the adored Edith, sharply; and, in another moment, a large man in evening man, with red cheeks and a hanging under lip, emerged into the hampi git and turned to hand the hady out. As in id so the woman, Ellen, advanced from the doorway, and going to the cab door, whispered some thing to its occupant.

"Halloo, Johnny," said that lady, as she descended from the cab, so loudly that Mr. Quest on the baleony could hear every word "you must be off; Mr. D'Aubigne has turned up, and perhaps he won't think three good company, so you had just best take this cab back again, my son, and that will save me the trouble of parigi it. Come, cut!"

"D'Aubigne," growled the flashy man, with an oath; "what do I care about L'Aubigne, growled the flashy man, with an oath; "what do I care about L'Aubigne, growled the flashy man, with an oath; "what do I care about L'Aubigne, and he might not freeze on to you Don't you understand?"

"Now stop that noise and be off. He's a lawyer and he might not freeze on to you Don't you understand?"

"Hair Magic"

Is a good name of Dr. Dorenwend's German preparation for the hair. It really works like magic. All who have used it pronounce it to be usefuled for remedying the lost vitality of hair roots, restoring gray hair, removing dandruff, etc. Just tryit. It is first-class. All druggists sell it.

round her with a long searching gaze like that of a cat, and her general appearance conveyed an idea of hunger and wicked ferocity. Such was the outward appearance of the Tiger, and of a truth it justified her name. "Why, where the dickins has he got to?" she said aloud; "I wonder if he has given me the slip?"

"Here I am, Edith," said Mr. Quest, quietly as he stepped from the baleony into the room.

"Oh, there you are, are you," she said, hiding away in the dark—just like your nasty mean ways. Well, my long lost one, so you have come home at last, and brought the in with you. Well, give us a kiss," and she advanced on him with her long arms outspread.

Mr. Quest shivered visibly, and stretching out his hand, stopped her from coming near him.

A Dinner Pill.—Many persons suffer ex cruciating agony after partaking of a hearty dinner. The food partaken of is like a ball of lead upon the stomach, and instead of being a healthy nutriment it becomes a poison to the sytem. Dr. Parmelee's Vege', table Pills are wonder ful correctives of such troubles. They correct acidity, open the secretions and convert the food partaken of into healthy nutriment. They are just the medicine to take if troubled with Indigestion or Dyspepsia.

Women's Christian Association.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Women's Christian Association at the Home, King street, the following members were present: Mesdames Carfrae, Roger, Peto, Perrin, Reid, Murray, Hopkins, Ward, Fysh, Gibson, Hyttenrauch, Pope, and Misses Skinner, Fraser and Kennedy. The Treasurer's report showed, receipts, $582 76; disbursements, $437 54; balance, $145 22. The reports of the various homes, etc., were all satisfactory. The Aged Women's Home being found much too small to accommodate all the applicants, it was thought advisable to open a branch home. The house adjoining the Aged Men's Home, on John street, being unoccupied, the ladies decided to rent it for that purpose, and to ask through the press for donations of furniture, beds, bedding, dishes, etc. Any useful articles will be most thankfully received by the association. THE PROOF OF LOVE.

THE PROOF OF LOVE.

The test whether we love Christ or not is thus supplied by his own words: "He that hath my commandments and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me." (John, xiv., 21.) Obedience is the proof of love; and love always makes obedience both natural and pleasant to the soul.

ABSORBING THE GOOD.

Just as a bee absorbs all it wants of a flower, and only that, so should a man alsorb only the good of what he sees and finds about him, and then the storehouse of bis brain will become like a kaleidoscope of pleasing memories, which will show him on unending series of recollections, which can always return to, and a genial light from the time of its acquisition until all the senes are fully played out, the green curain falls on his care. The green curain falls on his care. from the time of its acquisition until all the scenes are fully played out, the green cur-lain falls on his own life's drama, and the lights are extinguished.

HARMFUL AMUSEMENTS. HARMFUL AMUSEMENTS.

Amusement is not an end, but a means—a means of refreshing the mind and repleuishing the strength of the body. When it begins to be the principal thing for which one lives, or when, in pursuing it the mental powers are enfebled, and the bodily health impaired, it falls under just condemnation.
Amusements that consume the hours which ought to be sacred to skeep are therefore censurable. Amusements that arouse or stimulate morbid appetites, or that cause us to be restless or appetites, or that cause us to be restless or discontented, are always to be avoided. Any indulgence in amasement which has a tendency to weaken our respect for the great interests of character, or to loosen our hold our eternal verities of the spiritual realm, is so far an injury to us.—[Golden Days.

Why will you allow a cought to learned to the happy, says J. R. Millar, D.D. The benediction of Christ on every home to which he is welcomed as an abiding guest is "Peace be to this house." While perfection of happiness is unattainable in this world, rich, deep, heart-filling happiness certainly may be, and ought to be, attained. Yet it requires wise building and delicate core to make a home truly and perfectly happy. Such a home does not come as a matter of course wherever a family takes up its abode. Happiness has to be planned for, lived for, sacrificed for, puyed for, oftentimes suffered for. It may be said, in a word, that Christ himself is the one great, blessed secret of all homehappiness. But the lesson may be hocken up for the sake of simplicity. For one thing, the husband has much to do in solving the problem. Does a man think always of the responsibility for assumes when he takes a happiness. But the lesson may be broken up for the sake of signal broken up for the sake and absolutely harmiess. It responsibility he assumes when he takes a foung wife away from the shelter of mother-love/und father-love, the warmest, softent human nest in the world, and leads be into a home, where his love is to be homseforth her only shelter. No man is fit to be the husband of a true woman who is not a true man. He need not be great, not beilliant, nor rich, but he must be a man, true, bruve, generous, maniy. He must be a man, true, bruve, generous, maniy. He must be a solor man; no man who comes home instructed, however, rarely, is doing his of the throat and lungs.

SUNDAY READING.

EXPENDING AT THE THRESHOLD.

I'm kneeling at the threshold, weary, faint and sore, with a door:

Waiting for the dawning, for the opening of the door:

To the clory of his presence, to the gladness of his home.

A weary path I've traveied, 'mid darkness, storm and strife.

Bearing many a burden, struggling for my life:

But now the morn is breaking, my toil will soon be o'er:

I'm kneeling on the threshold, my hand is on the door.

Methinks I hear the voices of the biessed as they stand.

Singing in the sunshine of the far-off sinless land:

Oh, would that I were with them, amid the shining throng.

Mingling in their worship, joining in theirsong.

The friends that started with me have entered long ago:

One by one they left me struggling with the foe:

Their pilgrimage was shorter, their triumph sooner won:

Moth them the blessed angels, that know no live in our pains.

With them the blessed angels, that know no live is done!

With them the blessed angels, that know no live is done!

Sharie in making happiness for his wife and family. He must be a man of pure, blame less life, whose name shall grow to be an honor and a pride in his household. Husband is an honor and a pride in his household. Husband is an interest deal to do with the matter of happiness at home. The wife, too, has a responsibility. It should be understoed at the very beginning, that good housekeeping is one of the first secrets of a happy home. If a man must be a good provider, a woman must be a good provider, a woman must be a good provider, a woman is ready to marry until she has mastered the fine arts of housekeeping. Home is the wife skingdom. She holds very largely in her hands the happiness of the hearts that nestle there. The best husband, the truest, the noblest, the gentlest, the richest-hearted, cannot make his home happy if his wife be not in every sense a helpmeet. In the last analysis, home happiness does depend on the wife. Children, too, are great blessings when God sends them, bringing into the

The pause at the last liberty-inspiring interrogatory was broken by a voice in the gallery, which rang thus through the theater:

"You will! Harry George."

There was an explosion of laughter. The merriment spread to the stage, and in the midst of it Harry George folded his papers and "silently stole away."

One Out of Thousands of Cures Effects

НемрутеаD, L. I., May 17, 1889. Mrs. HARRIET HUBBARD AYER:

My Dear Madam,—I have been afflicted

Finally I was pronounced incurable, and had become almost entirely discouraged, when I made up my mind to make a trial of your remedies, and the result has been most gratifying, as I now believe that I am cured of my trouble, not having had a return of it In at least two months. I feel that I can safely say to anyone suffering from any skin disease, that the RECAMIER PREPARATORS will come them if they will give them TIONS will cure them if they will give them a fair trial, as I consider my cure as almost the "Recamier Preparations" of a most troublesome skin affection. I remain, Sincerely yours, H. E. Powers.

What the Recamier Preparations Are and Why They Are To Be Used.

Recamier Cream, which is first of these world-famous preparations, is made from the recipe used by Julie Recamier. It is not a cosmetic, but an emollient to be applied at night just before retiring, and to be removed in the morning by bathing freely. It will remove tan and sunburn, pimples, red spots or blotches, and make your face and hands as smooth, as white, and as soft as an infant's.

Recamier Balm is a beautifier, pure and simple. It is not a whitewash, and unlike most liquids Recamier Balm is exceedingly beneficial and is absolutely imperceptible except in the delicate freshness and youth-fulness which it imparts to the skin.

Recamier Lotion will remove freckles and moth patches, is soothing and efficacious for any irritation of the cuticle, and is the most delightful of washes for removing the dust from the face after traveling, and is also invaluable to gentlemen to be used after shaving.

Recamier Powder is in three shades, white,

after shaving.

Recamier Powder is in three shades, white,

Recamier Fowder is in three shades, white, flesh and cream. It is the finest powder ever manufactured, and is delightful in the nursery, for gentlemen after shaving, and for the toilet generally.

Recamier Soap is a perfectly pure article, guaranteed free from animal fat. This soap contains many of the healing ingredients used in compounding Recamier Cream and Lotion.

The Recamier Toilet Preparations are positively free from all injurious ingredients, and contain neither Lead, Bismuth nor Arsenic, as attested to after a searching analysis by such eminent scientists as Roots and Ensilage.

What is the difference in feeding value for milch cows of swede turnips and corn ensilage? We can grow more pounds per acre of turnips than corn. P. S. Canada. [Swede turnips are not proper food for milch cows, since the turnips give an objectionable flavor to the milk and butter made from it. But the real feeding value of swede turnips is very similar to that of corn ensilage. Yet fodder beets are more appropriate food for milk, and this food has feeding qualities similar to swedes, except that this root does not affect the flavor of the milk unfavorably. The digestible nutrients in that this root does not affect the flavor of the milk unfavorably. The digestible nutrients in fodder beets are: Albuminoids, 1.1 pounds; carbohydrates, 11; fat, 0.2. Carrots also make an excellent milk food for cows, and this root has more albuminoids and more carbohydrates. The best corn ensilage contains the following digestible nutrients: Albuminoids, 1.2; carbohydrates, 12; fat, 0.50. But we should think in the location of R. S. the same labor would produce 0.50. But we should think in the location of R. S., the same labor would produce more corn ensilage than either turnips or beets, and if a crop of vetches could be raised and preserved in silo with corn it would be found very superior milk food.

CARELESS RAILWAY EMPLOYES WHO ENDANGERED HUMAN LIFE.

Ranning on Another Train's Time-How the Sleepy Headed Operator Got Into Trouble and Out of It-The Confessions of a Telegrapher.

of a Telegrapher.

I was formerly agent for the West Shore road at a little station a few miles east of Amsterdam, N. Y. A work train, consisting of an engine and a number of flat cars, was employed on the section near my station. Each night they were expected to drop the flat cars on some of the sidings in that vicinity and lay the engine up for the night at Amsterdam. On the day in question the train had been working later than usual, and when the time came to quit they found that they were trospassing on the time of a passenger train. Instead of flagging themselves to my station according to rules, they took chances and came flying down at the rate of forty miles an hour, showed two cars on the siding, and rushed off for Amsterdam in front of the and rushed off for Amsterdam in front of the passenger train, only seven minutes ahead of her time, when their limit was ten.

RIDING TO DEATH.

The engine was going backward and in order to get to Amsterdam ten minutes ahead of the passenger they would have to make the run three minutes quicker than she did. By the time they got out of sight they were fairly flying. Eye witnesses of the occurrence told me it took them just six minutes to come from the place where they were working, throw in the two flats, and get back—a disthrow in the two flats, and get back-a dis throw in the two flats, and get back—a distance for the round trip of seven miles. When the engine reached a curve about half way between my station and Amsterdam the tender left the track, and both were thrown into a ditch bottom upward. The engineer was killed and the conductor so badly scalded that for a long time his life was in danger; but, there being a strain of heroism mixed with his recklessness, he crawled on his hands and knees back to a curve and with a red light signalled the oncoming passenger train to stop. He was found insensible from his injuries when the train pulled up. The track was torn up for a distance of twenty yards, and but for the fact that I had notified the passenger engineer to be on the doctor bills. THE OPERATOR SLEPT. THE OPERATOR SLEPT.

One of my telegraph friends worked on a Missouri railroad a few years ago. He was 16 years old at that time. There were only three stations on his division where the passenger trains stopped, and at Booneville, where he was operator, the conductors registered their trains as they bassed. He had rewhere he was operator, the conductors registered their trains as they passed. He had received an order to flag and hold the east-bound passenger for orders, but after repeating the order he forgot to put out his flag and afterward fell asleep. The train arrived, was registered by the conductor, and departed. The westbound train had orders to run from Fayette, the next station east, to Booneville, regardless of No. 4 (the eastbound train). Their orders were already signed, and so far as the dispatcher knew, they were then on their way to Booneville. He called Booneville, but got no response. He called again and again, and finally my friend, the operator, awoke and answered.

"Is No. 4 in sight?" he inquired.

"Well, you go out on the platform and see "Well, you go out on the platform and see if you can hear anything of them."

My friend went out, looked up and down the track, but could see nothing. On his way back to the instrument he glanced at the register, saw that they had left while he was asleep, and hurried to the wire.

'They're gone," was all he had strength to say.

to say.

"You better take to the woods," said the dispatcher. "If I can't catch them at Fayette you'll see trouble."

Then he called Fayette hard and fast. "I, I "come the newer."

Then he called Fayette hard and fast. "I, I," came the answer.
"Can you catch No. 3?"
"I guess so; I'll try."
Then the wire opened and the dispatcher and the miserable youngster at Booneville waited with bated breath to know the fate of a hundred unsuspecting human beings whose lives they had put in jeopardy. At last it came:

came:
"Yes, I caught them just as they were pulling out."

The dispatcher's hand dropped from his key and his whole body shook with the reaction, while perspiration streamed from every from while perspiration streamed from every pore. The operator at Booneville nearly fainted away, but quickly recovered, and opening his key, said: "Here's my resigna-tion; I'm going to skip out."

"No: don't say a word about it, and I'll do

"No; don't say a word about it, and I'll do likewise," was the dispatcher's reply, and no one but the operators ever knew of it.

For ten years I was working as night operator at a small station near the Penhsylvania border. Night after night I would fall asleep and fail to report trains, receiving only a slight reprimand from the dispatcher, which I knew would be repeated ad infinitum without anything more serious coming of it. All sorts of excuses were invented by the operators to account for their attacks of sleepiness, and some (myself among them) didn't even take the trouble to excuse themselves. I know of one operator who made a regular practice of pulling his old mattress up before a hot fire after he ate his lunch, stretching himself out, and going to sleep. When he woke up he would ground the wires, find out from the other operators about what time the train had nessed his station and then refrom the other operators about what time the train had passed his station, and then re-port to the dispatcher. This was done night after night and mouth after month.—F. M. Jones in Buffalo Express.

The Venerable Masher.

The Venerable Masher.

Two ladies were standing at the corner of Bush and Kearny streets about 9 o'clock waiting for a car. Both were young and pretty. An elderly man, whose mustache was white but curied up at the ends by the barber, and whose tile and clothing were a credit to his hatter and tailor, edged up to the ladies and stared at them. He shifted around, and besides staring made his best effort at a fascinating smile. Then he coughed goutly, wiped his lips with a dainty silk handkerchief and smiled again. At last he lifted his hat and bowed. "Louise," said one of the young ladies to the other, calmly, "give the poor old man a nickel. He is evidently too timid to ask for it."—San Francisco Examiner.

Fooling with a Burglar Alarm.

A certain down town man has a contrivance which makes his place of business burglar proof. His valuable stock is placed in his safe every night. Attached to this safe is an electrical contrivance which is connected with a burgiar alarm at the central station. The arrangement is such that, after business hours, no one can open that safe door without turning in the burglar alarm.

The other night the proprietor of the place came down town with a party of ladies and gentlemen. At dinner the owner of the store was telling his guests how contented a man was after business hours. No fears of burglars annoyed him after nightfall. Then he told them why, and of course the ladies wanted to see the contrivance.

"It is all right," he said. "I am the proprietor here and was showing my friends how the alarm works."

This pacified the ladies, but it didn't satisfy the detectives. One of them insisted, "Come along," he said. "We have that played on us every day." The ladies shrieked again. The proprietor of the store assured the detectives. proprietor of the store assured the detectives he was the proprietor. A Preserved Head.

Of all the hideous, uncanny objects, the one that hangs in the window of the Hall Rubber company is the uncanniest and most hideous. It is the preserved head of a South American

The head is five centuries old and belonged to an Indian chief named Huambrsa, who to an Indian chief named Huambrsa, who was killed during the war with the Augaruns Indians on the river Santiago. The head was cut from the body by its Brazilian captors, and with consummate art-all the bony matter was removed from the interior, leaving nothing but the flesh and skin. Then by some long lost process it was embalmed; so perfect is the work that all the features are preserved in their exact proportions, but so reduced in size that the whole head is not larger than a good sized orange.

Where to put clothing is a question on which most persons, and especially most advisers, are much in want of light. There are certain parts where nature has placed her thermometers of sensation expressly to regulate her business. Such are the neck, the late her business. Such are the neck, the wrists, the back, the knees and the feetparts which are among the most neglected, while they should be the most sexupulously protected against the signal of disromfort. The neck and wrists expose great currents of blood constantly to the temperature of the air and thus open enormous leaks of our vital warmth, if not carefully protected. This is not necessarily "muffling" in all cases, and yet in many cases muffling is requisite. Whether it is so or not any one can tell for himself by watching the sepastion thermometers that are placed at those points.—Sanitary Era.

She Took It Literally.

A good story comes from a Birmingham photographer. A lady sat for pictures. The next day she returned for the proof, which was given her in an envelope on which was printed, "Return after five days to —, photographer, Birmingham, Coun." The lady kept the proof much longer than persons usually do, particularly as she said she was in a big hurry for the pictures. On the fourth day she came to the studio, bringing the proof, and apologized to the artist for coming back "one day ahead of time," but she said she had business in town and could not come again. It took the artist a day to understand what she meant.—New Haven Palladium. She Took It Literally.

ABOUT HAIR

Editor of the Advertisen:

Sir,—I have, as you know, for some time advertised in Canada and the States a preparation for the hair called "Dr. Dorenwend's Hair Magic." I have received some thousands of flattering testimonials from those who have used it as to its merits as a restorative of gray or faded hair; also as a promoter of the growth and a certain cure for dradriuff.

A great many of my correspondents ask the questions, "Why is my hair turning gray so simpossible for more hair sulling out? As its suppossible for more hair sulling out? As its impossible for more hair sulling out? As great many persons do not seem to be aware that excessive washing and rubbing is injurious to the growth of the hair; such is the case, however. Constant washing and rubbing the scalp and hair causes over irritation and removes the oily substance which gives strength to the hair; undue heat caused by the wearing of heavy headgear is also injurious. Anything that will tend to dry up the sap or life of the hair will cause dandruff, falling out of the hair, gray or faded hair causes as disabness. Of course there are other causes as disabness, of course there are other causes as foldenses. Of course there are other causes as foldenses. Of course there are other causes as foldenses. The hair will cause dandruff, falling out of the hair, gray or faded hair manufacture than and most common.

Dr. Dorenwend, an eminent German physician, has given to the world after years of toil and experiment his now famous "Hair Magic." The object of this preparation is to assist nature in the production of this oily substance absolutely necessary to the growth of the hair. It is now sold by all reliable druggists at $1$ per bottle, or six bottles for $5$, or will be

A DOUBLE SURPRISE.

For the first few weeks after we went into gamp at Talo, away up in Upper Burmah, on the head waters of the Irawaddy river, we had a pretty stiff time of it, and what with righting dacoits and locating sub-military stations about the country our hands were full. Then, just about the time things began to settle down, a new difficulty arose, for what little cultivated land there was had been robbed and plundered by the dacoits, and so the poor Burmese found themselves in danger of starving, and the worst of it was it and so the poor Burmese found themselves in danger of starving, and the worst of it was it dooked as though we might have to starve with them. The Madras Pioneers, whom I commanded, were a brave and sturdy lot of fellows, but I saw only too plainly that their scant rations were having a serious effect. For awhile native traders had been coming down the Irawaddy in boats on their way to Mandalay, carrying gold leaf and indigo, sweet oil and pickled tea, and, what was of far more value to us, cocoanuts and bananas, eggs and rice; but the dacoits along the wooded banks of the river waylaid and robbed them so often that they were beginning to find it more profitable to stay at home, and a trader's boat was now a rare and curious thing.

home, and a trader's boat was now a rare and curious thing.

"Well, Capt. Charlton," said a cheerful wide as I sat smoking a cheroot before my tent one evening, "pondering over the food problem, are you? Don't worry. I have yound a sure solution for that."

The speaker was Lieut. Redvers, and he looked very happy and contented as he pulled cut a camp stool and sat down at my side.

"I have a splendid idea," he went on. "Half a dozen of those cowardly traders were in camp this morning during your absence begadozen of taose cowardly traders were in camp this morning during your absence begging us to give them some protection. It seems the dacoits have robbed two boats in the past week. There is a whole nest of the wretches about ten miles above here. These traders circled round to avoid them, and they report a boat load of stuff lying at a village twenty miles up the river which they they report a boat load of stuff lying at a village twenty miles up the river which they are afraid to bring down. Now my idea is this: Suppose we take a picked dozen of men and go back with these fellows. Then we hide ourselves in the boat, start down the river and when the dacoits come out to board us we pop up and give them a leaden reception. I assure you they will trouble no more traders' boats, and in future we will feast as royally as the Rajah of Munnipore himtelf. Now, what do you think of that, capturing.

I expressed my availage at the cold muzzle of the revolver against his naked breast. "Stop, stop, sahibs," he cried, falling on his knees. "I will do your bidding; only spare my life." "Make haste," I cried, "or you die on the boat firmly held by Redvers and one of the men, and in a loud voice addressed his friends, motioning them backwards as he spoke.

My knowledge of Burmese was scant, but I could readily make out that he cold muzzle of the revolver against his naked breast.

It was very dark and very quiet. Redvers and I sat out on the deck with the boatmen, for it was necessary to keep a sharp lookout. The profile of the shore could be seen but dimly, and the steersman found it difficult to keep the center of the stream. It was a long and tedious ride, but at last the owner of the boar, whose name was Sang, pointed out a faint glimmer in the east and told us it was time to get ready. It grew gradually lighter, until from my knot hole in the shutter I the trees on the shore quite the trees on the shore quite that the trees on the shore quite that the trees on the shore open and the current was strong, and before noon we safely arrived at Talo and anchored our precious beat load of Talo and talo anchored our precious beat load of Talo and talo anchored our precious beat load of Talo and talo anchored our precious beat load of Talo a

"Make ready now, men."
Redvers was down at the other end of the line with rifle in readiness, and I saw that every man had one trembling hand on the bolts of the shutter. The dacoits were so close now that I could see their faces plainly. They were armed with both guns and spears, and as they drew a little nearer they let fly a volley at our boatmen, which drove them inside, happily without injury. It was time to act, for the long canoes were close to the boat and I saw by the triumphant look of attisfaction on their swarthy faces that they

The word of command had hardly left my lips when the shutters fell in unison, letting in a blinding glare of light, and so astounding the robbers that they actually ceased paddling for one second of stupefied amazement. Then our rifle fire raked through the cances with deadly effect, and in an instant they had plunged overboard, some never to rise again, others striking out wildly for the rise again, others striking out wildly for the rise again, others striking out wildly for the shore, while the abandoned canoes floated off with the current.

shore, while the abandoned canoes floated off with the current.

One big savage, who seemed to be the leader, got confused and drove straight toward the boat. He came to the surface so close that I reached out and caught him by his long black hair and, with Redvers' assistance, hauled him strugiling and kicking on board. By this time many of the dacoits had reached the shore, and their loud outery showed plainly that it was their chief who had fallen into my hands. I was just about to order the men to give them another volley, when a loud cry from the steersman overhead attracted my attention, and looking down the river I saw a sight that nearly froze my blood. Less than a quarter of a mile distant a perfect fleet of canoes were moving out into the stream from both shores, and I saw that we were hopelessly cut off.

Two of our boatmen at once plunged overboard and gaining the right bank disappeared in the jungle. I confess I was badly scared. My first sensation was surprise at seing such a large force of dacoits. Then I calized our peril. In this clumsy old craft we would be overwhelmed by sheer force of numbers, with no chance of escape. It was useless to attempt to reach the shore. The men with faces slightly blanched were waiting my orders.

A desperate struggle and a soldier's death were all that were left to us, and I was just about to tell them so when a glance at the sullen countenance of our captive inspired sullen countenance of our captive inspired me with a brilliant idea.

I knew these dacoits were cowards at heart and, turning to the chief, I mustered up my scanty knowledge of Burmese and said flercely: "You dog of a robber, if your men come a yard nearer I will shoot you on the spot," and I pulled out my revolver as I spoke.
"Listen," I said. "An Englishman never lies, and you know it. Bid your men go back to shore and let our boats go by unmolested. When we are five miles below here you shall be set free."

The robber shook his head sullenly, and I saw with alarm that we were fast drifting village, twenty miles distant.

That is, it was twenty miles by the water, but it was at least thirty by the way our guides led us, for we circled away back from the river, crossing over a couple of mountain ranges and wading through bamboo swamps and thorny jungles.

It was a perilous trip for such a handful of men and we were all glad when we arrived at the village about nightfall.

It was a mere trifle of a place, but it was encircled with a strong stockade of teak logs, and the natives had made such a heroid defense on the several occasions when it had been attacked by dacoits that the robbers had ceased to molest it. We found the boat moored along the bank. It was a typical Burnses barge, the very counterpart of a toy Noah's ark, with shelving roof and sides constructed of movable shutters that opened downward on hinges toward the water. It was propelled by a big stern paddle and the steersman occupied a little covered platform that was built up over the roof at the rear of the boat. We delayed our departure until after midnight so as to reach the decoy position about dawn.

The grateful natives piled us with food and the face of Redvers' revolver that dusty midvidual, who held all our lives in his hand, dared make no sign, and so we divide not of boats.

The grateful natives plied us with food and drink, and just before we started an aged phoonge offered up prayers for our success in an old pagoda that stood on the bank. We stowed ourselves away in the interior of the boat, among the bananas and occoanuts, and cutting loose from the bank we glided out on the sluggish stream.

It grew gradually lighter, until from my knot hole in the shutter I could make out the trees on the shore quite plainly. We continued to float on very gently with the current, the suspense growing all the while more painful.

"Was it possible that our ruse was suspected?" I began to wonder.

Suddenly a shadow darkened the doorway and Sang whispered in softly: "We are near the place now, sairbs."

Every man took a final look at his rifle and made ready to cast loose the shutters when I should give the signal. We dropped down stream for a hundred yards or more in desd silence. I was falling into utter despair when suddenly a dark figure stepped out on the bank and hailed us loudly in Burmese, bidding our boatmen come peaceably to shore at once. Sang made reply. "We are poor boatmen from Myong," he cried, in well simulated tones of fear. "We are taking a cargo of rice to Tamo, and we pray that you will stusg by unharmed."

The only answer to this appeal was a derisive laugh and a sterner command to steer for the bank at once. Sang made no further reply, and as soon as the robber saw we were going to float on by regardless of his commands he gave a loud shout, and on the facant from the shadow of the bank three Allen's Lung Balsam was introduced to the public after its merits for the positive cure of such diseases had been fully tested. It excites expectoration and causes the Lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus; changes to throw off the phlegm or mucus; changes action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect that it is warranted to break up the most distressing cough in a few hours' time, if not of too long standing. It contains no opium in any form and is warranted to be perfectly harmless to the most delicate child. There is no real necessity for so many deaths by consumption when Allen's Lung Balsam will prevent it if only taken in time. For Consumption, and all diseases that lead to it, such as Coughs, neglected Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma and all diseases of the Lungs. ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM is the Great Modern Remedy. For Croup and Whooping Cough it is almost a specific. It is an old standard remedy, and sold universally at 50 cents and $1.00 per bottle. The 25-cent bottles are put out to answer the constant call for a Good and Low-Priced COUGH CURE. If you have not tried the Balsam, call for a 25-cent bottle to test it.

FLORENCE KNITTING SILK

THIS IS NOW MUCH USED FOR FRINGE and for tassels, as its soft finish renders it superior to other silk for this purpose. It will not untwist and become frayed in wear.

Those elegant costumes seen in the show rooms of our leading merchants are often beautifully "Feather-Stitched" by hand. Examination shows that the work is done with No. 300 Florence Knitting Silk, thus securing beauty, durability and economy. THE RULER'S DAUGHTER.

LESSON V, SECOND QUARTER, IN-TERNATIONAL SERIES, MAY 4.

Text of the Lesson, Luke vili, 41, 42, 49-56-Commit Verses 54-56-Golden Text,

After the parables spoken by the and the further parables spoken in the house, He entered into a boat with His disciples to cross the sea, and as they sailed He fell asleep.
But a great storm arising, they awoke Him;
He arose and rebuked the wind and the sea, and there was a great calm, so that the disciples marveled, saying: "What manner of man is this?" Having crossed the sea, He healed the man of Gadara, who was possessed with a legion of evil spirits, and sent him home to his friends a well man, to tell the great things the Lord had done for him.
Jesus then returned to His own city, Capernaum (Matt. ix, 1), and the people gladly received Him, for they were all waiting for Him. Contrast verses 37 and 40 of this chapter, and see the Gadarenes driving Him out and the people of Capernaum receiving Him. cross the sea, and as they sailed He fell asleep. ter, and see the Gadarenes uriving and the people of Capernaum receiving Him. What has your heart for him? Rejection, or hearty welcome?

Jairus, and he was a ruler of the synagogue."
Matthew says that Jesus was sitting at meat
In the house, in the midst of His disciples and many publicans and sinners, and to the fault finding Pharisees He said that Henry finding Pharisees He said that He came to call sinners and not righteous ones such as they considered themselves to be. The disciples of John also come with a question concerning fasting, and Jesus in reply speaks of Himself as the Bridegroom, and of the impossibility of combining the old and the new.

"And he fell down at Jesus' feet, and bescripth Him, that He would come into his "And he fell down at Jesus' feet, and besought Him that He would come into his house." He cares not what any one may think or say; one great need fills his soul, and here is one who can satisfy it; so he stops not to think of his dignity as a ruler, nor of the criticisms that may be passed upon him, but only of this Great Physician whom he seeks.
In this gospel we find four different people at Jesus' feet (vii, 38; viii, 35, 41; x, 39), and they are four very different kinds of people.

ey are four very different kinds of people, it the same Jesus meets the need of each. "For he had one only daughter, about daughter, his only daughter, and she is sick, very sick, dying, perhaps dead by this time. 49. "While He yet spake, there cometh one from the ruler of the synagogue's house." On the way not only do the crowd press and throng Him, but there mingles with them another whole hearted seeker; only a poor woman, a sufferer for twelve years, who has spent all her living upon physicians but without years. Only a contrast in social position to the ruler, but they are both alike in this, that ch is a whole hearted seeker because of a keenly realized need and sense of utter help keenly realized need and sense of unter nearlessness, and each has faith in Him.

50. "Fear not: believe only, and she shall be made whole." Mark says that Jesus said this word just as soon as the messenger from the ruler's house had spoken; as if to quiet the ruler's mind and keep him in peace, for it is Jesus' way to speak peace to His people and keep the mind stayed on Him in perfect peace. Here is a word for every child of God which will carry them in triumph through every trial. Take it as you find it in Mark v, 36: "Be not afraid, only believe," and let your heart reply, "I will trust and not be afraid" (Isa. xii, 2). So shall you have peace and victory, while you wait for the but more than man, quietly He utters the word, but mark the result.

| 55. "And her spirit came again, and she arose straightway." Instantly, from the spirit world comes back the one just set free, the little tabernacle is again tenanted, the heart and lungs resume their functions, the eyes open and look around, she arises to her feet, and quicker far than I have told it she is in her mother's arms alive and well. Not weak and sickly booking as one arising from a sick bed, but perfectly whole as one in good health; and with an appetite for food, for He commanded to give her something to eat. At the same word shall all who are in their graves come forth, either among the Blessed and Holy who take part in the First Resurrection, or among the rest of the dead who hive not again till the thousand years are finished (Rev. xx, 5, 6). What reunions never to be broken, what joy, what blessing unalloyed when we shall sit down with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob in the Kingdom of God, to eat and drink with Him, at His table, in His Kingdom (Matt. viii, 11; Luke xxii, 30).

56. "And her parents were astonished; but He charged them that they should tell no man what was done." Yet Matthew says that "the fame hereof went abroad into all that land." He did nothing secretly; there were always witnesses enough to all He said and did, but for wise reasons He often told these witnesses to say nothing about this or that particular event. He came as Israel's Christ, and when the rulers of the nation refused to receive Him, it was only meet that many of His mighty acts should be hidden from these rulers who only sought to slay Him.

His command now is to all who believe in His command now is to all who believe in Him, that in the power of the Holy Spirit they should preach the glad tidings to every creature, that whosever will may be saved and become part of His elect church. Disadience is guilt. Are you obedient?

To drink deeply—to be drunk—is a sin; that is not denied. At what point does the taking of strong drink become a sin? We suppose a man perfectly sober, who had not taken anything which can intoxicate; one glass excites him, and to some extent disturbs the state of sobriety, and so far destroys it; another glass excites him still more. But where does the sin begin? At the first glass, at the first step to complete intoxication, or at the sixth, or seventh, or eighth? NERVOUS DISEASES.

ome Interesting Facts About These Too Common Afflictions — Encouragement for the Sufferers—How Even the Worst Cases Can Be Cured, and the Patient Live to Good Old Age-Nervous Troubles Which May Be Easily Cured.

If the nerves get tired easily, the sleep is poor, and there is lack of brain force, don't think that the sure end is the insane asylum or the grave. Of course, if these symptoms are not attended to in season, there is a very strong probability of serious results. One of the worst features of this nerve exhaution is that there is not enough vitality left to resist fever, pneumonia, or other dangerous illness, and the apparently vigorous person is an easy prey for death.

That is an overpowering reason for taking care of the nerves. But it is not the strongest. Better a sudden, unexpected death than the living death in the imeane asylum, which is too often the end of neglected brain and nervous affections Paine's Celery Compound is a positive cure. And it has often cured those whom triends and physicians had given but a few days co live. Mr. Richard D. Young, the well-known perfumer, of 100 William street, New York, is always glad to tell any inquirer how he was cured of insanity by Paine's Celery Compound. Others will tell you it cured them of paralysis, St. Vitus' dance and the most serious forms of nerve and brain diseases.

This medicine is a purely scientific preparation that strengthens the nerves and restores the brain to vigor. Use it, and see how soon the return of strong memory, clearsightedness in business affairs and energetic feelings will prove the wondrous power of this grand invigorator.
