The copy filmed here has been reproduced thanks to the generosity of:

National Library of Canada

The images appearing here are the best quality possible considering the condition and legibility of the original copy and in keeping with the filming contract specifications.

Original copies in printed paper covers are filmed beginning with the front cover and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression, or the back cover when appropriate. All other original copies are filmed beginning on the first page with a printed or illustrated impression, and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression.

The last recorded frame on each microfiche shell contain the symbol \rightarrow (meaning "CONTINUED"), or the symbol ∇ (meaning "END"), whichever applies.

Maps, plates, charts, etc., may be filmed at different reduction ratios. Those too large to be entirely included in one exposure are filmed beginning in the upper left hand corner, left to right and top to bottom, as many frames as required. The following diagrams illustrate the method:

L'exemplaire filmé fut reproduit grâce à la générosité de:

Bibliothèque nationale du Canada

Les images suivantes ont été reproduites avec le plus grand soin, compte tenu de la condition et de la netteté de l'exemplaire filmé, et en conformité avec les conditions du contrat de filmage.

Les exemplaires originaux dont la couverture en papier est imprimée sont filmés en commençant par le premier plat et en terminant soit par la dernière page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration, soit par le second plat, selon le cas. Tous les autres exemplaires originaux sont filmés en commençant par la première page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration et en terminant par la dernière page qui comporte une telle empreinte.

Un des symboles suivants apparaîtra sur la dernière image de chaque microfiche, selon le cas: le symbole \rightarrow signifie "A SUIVRE", le symbole ∇ signifie "FIN".

Les cartes, planches, tableaux, etc., peuvent être filmés à des taux de réduction différents. Lorsque le document est trop grand pour être reproduit en un seul cliché, il est filmé à partir de l'angle supérieur gauche, de gauche à droite, et de haut en bas, en prenant le nombre d'images nécessaire. Les diagrammes suivants illustrent la méthode.

Tourists.

The Tourists' Association of Victoria, B.C., has extended a very hearty invitation to members of the British Medical Association who are attending the Annual Meeting at Toronto, to visit Victoria during their Canadian tour. In order to get a proper conception of the vast country and of its varied natural resources, magnificent scenery, and its climatic advantages, they hope every member will avail himself of the invitation.

Victoria is the most western city of the Dominion, and for many years has been Great Britain's only naval station on the Pacific coast of America, and is the first British port reached after leaving the Orient, and the last in leaving Canada for the Orient. It has a world-wide reputation for being the most beautifully situated city in the Empire, but more than all it is interesting to every Englishman because it is said to be the most English city in America; and it is described in many illustrated articles as "a bit of England on the shores of the Pacific."

Aschoff (Freiburg), Professor Calder Leith (Birmingham), Dr. Pearce (Albany), Professor Clifford Allbutt (Cambridge), and Professor W. Osler (Oxford). Discussion will commence at 11.15 a.m.

The following is a synopsis of the contribution of Mr. Oskar Klotz, Resident Pathologist Royal Victoria Hospital, to the discussion on the Forms of Arterio-sclerosis, their Classification and Experimental Production: Experimental arterial lesions which can be produced in animals are of two kinds: either a degenerative one, affecting mainly the media, or a regenerative one, in which the intima proliferates, while little or no degenerative change is seen. It is found, too, that the substances which are used to produce the former belong to the class of high pressure drugs, but at the same time it is likely that the high pressure does not in itself lead to the medial lesions noted; there is a direct degenerative action of the drug on the muscle fibres of the media. Elastic fibres become affected later. The latter once giving way leads to aneurysmal dilatation. The degeneration is of a fatty nature. The intimal regeneration is consequent to bacterial toxins, the proliferation being confined to the endothelial and subendothelial cells. When only intimal lesions are present aneurysms are not formed. The character of these lesions can be compared to those in man to a certain extent. Here lesions entirely of a degenerative nature are met with in the Moenckeberg type of peripheral arterio-sclerosis, and with the form of this disease as it is found in the aorta, both of which processes are confined to the media. The experimental bacterial lesions of vessels simulate the endarteritis chronica deformans which develop the pearly intimal plaques.

Jenkins, Mr., F.R.C.S. (London). (If time will permit.) Congenital Dislocation of the Hip.

Bond, Mr. Charles John, F.R.C.S. (Leicester). The Treatment of Acute Septic Peritonitis. Discussion to be opened by Dr. William Howitt (Guelph), and Dr. O. M. Jones, F.R.C.S. (Victoria, B.C.).

The following is a syllabus of the paper in which Mr. Bond will introduce the discussion on acute septic peritonitis:

Physiology of the Peritoneum.—The great importance of the diaphragmatic portion and the peculiar sensitiveness of that covering the small intestines.

Its Pathology—The way in which the peritoneum reacts to infection and the protection of the endothelial layer by the formation of a fibrinous deposit

The Bacteriology of Peritonitis—Chemical peritonitis not seen clinically. Peritonitis accompanying the intraperitoneal extravasation of blood generally due to the Staphylococcus albus

Gonococcal Peritonitis not of a very high degree of virulence.

In Ruptured Gastric and Duodenal Ulcer—The infection not highly virulent, but the necessity for immediate operation most urgent. The infection can be frequently arrested by irrigation, with or without drainage. Septic peritonitis due to infection from the alimentary canal below the duodenum. The frequent and early migration into the peritoneum of the Staphylococcus albus in many cases of septic peritonitis acts beneficially by stimulating phagocytosis and has an important bearing on treatment and the question of irrigation Streptococcal Peritonitis is highly virulent and generally fatal in spite of treatment.

Pneumococcal Peritonitis—Its frequency in female children. Its primary and secondary varieties. The importance of the observation of the naked eye characters of the exudate and the appearance of the inflamed membrane, especially in this variety of peritonitis.

By drugs, morphine, and purgatives.

By serum.

Wanted a polyvalent anti-Bacillus coli serum.

The surgical treatment.

Importance of respecting the diaphragmatic area.

The risk of removing phagocytes by indiscriminate irrigation.

The prime object is to attack the primary focus of invasion and arrest further infection.

Next point is to treat the infected general peritoneal cavity.

In cases of moderate severity the safest course is the efficient treatment of the primary focus by dry sponging or local irrigation and drainage, combined with the least amount of interference with the general cavity, unless collections of fluid exudate in pelvis or loins require drainage.

Highly virulent streptococcal infections may require free irrigation with even partial evisceration.

Cases of slight virulence are best treated by free irrigation, either with or without subsequent drainage,

General Conclusions.—Irrigation beneficial where the peritoneum contains foreign material capable of removal by flushing, such as blood, gastric or duodenal contents, faecal matter, pus, infected urine or bile. Harmful in cases of fibrinous sticky exudate, and when used to wash away a turbid exudate containing active phagocytes, or when instrumental in spreading infection.

Drainage.—Free drainage or tamponage essential in the treatment of local abscesses, necrosis of bowel, or where the treatment of the primary focus of invasion must be necessarily incomplete. It is generally harmful when used in the upper peritoneal area unless this is primarily infected. It is generally of very little use in the small intestine area. Most frequently useful in the lateral areas and in the pelvic basin. The efficiency of peritoneal drainage depends on the integrity of the endothelium in the area drained.

THE Armour Laboratory was established for the purpose of utilizing the firm's facilities for obtaining the raw material from which the organotherapeutic agents are made while it is perfectly fresh. The excellence of the Armour products shows that every advantage enjoyed by Armour & Company is made use of.

The Armour preparations stand pre-eminent, and we direct attention especially to Suprarenalin Solution, Ointment, Triturates, Trypsin and Glycerole Trypsin. Pepsin, Pancreatin and their combinations, Extract of Red Bone Marrow, Thyroids and other glandular substances in powder and tablets.
