CHARLES LUND,

Jan. 5, 1910—4i

48 Brook Road, Quincy, Mass.

Tara, Christian and Pagan.

Of all the sites in Ireland, there is no other that can at all approach the Hill of Tara, either in antiquity, in historic interest, or in the variety and suggestive significance of its ancient monuments, says Bishop Healey, of Clonfert. If we are to accept, even in substance, the truth of the bardic history of Ireland, there was a royal residence on the Hill of Tara before Rome was founded, before Athens's earliest shrine crowned the Acropolis of Athens; about the time perhaps that sacred Ilium first saw the hostile standards of the kings of Hellenas. But before sketching the history of the Royal Hill, we must first say something of its physical features, which alone have remained, through all the changeful centuries, unchanged and unchangeable.

Tara is not a high hill, its elevation above the sea being only about five hundred feet. It is rather broad and flat-topped, with gently sloping declivities. Still it commands a far-reaching prospect of surpassing beauty. On the northeast the hill of Skeen rises to the sky line, and shuts out a wider view of the swelling plains beyond; but on every other side the prospect from Tara, of a fine summer's day, is one of enchanting loveliness. Nearly the whole of the great limestone plain of Ireland lies in view, with all its varied scenery of grassy plain, and deep embowering woods, and noble mansions peeping through their sheltering foliage. Then there are the towers of Trim, and the silvery windings of the Boyne stealing serpent-like through sunlit meadows, with glimpses of the hoary walls of Bective and Columcille's ancient shrine, whose sweet-toned bells once tolled across the fertile fields and populous villages, where herds of cattle now roam in what is almost a primitive, though still a rich and grassy wilderness.

Then, far away to the southeast, the Wicklow mountains rise up like giant ramparts against the blue of the sunlit sky. The smoke of Dublin shrouds its spires in the distance. Beyond Dandalk the hills around Cucullin's ancient home are distinctly visible. To the north and northwest the peaks of Caran and Moneghan are well defined against the sky, while to the south and southwest the isolated hills of the great plain rise in solitary grandeur, with the immense range of Slieve Bloom on the southern horizon, which the men of old regarded as nature's barrier between the Hy-Niall and the warriors of Leagh Mogha. It is difficult to get anything else in Ireland, except, perhaps, from the Hill of Usnach in Westmeath, and that is somewhat similar, a prospect to equal the view from Tara Hill in extent, in variety, in picturesque beauty, and historic interest. You may get grander and wilder scenes, but nothing more attractive to the eye, or more suggestive to the mind, than the matchless landscape revealed from the summit of Tara Hill.

It is no wonder then that the fertility of the soil, and the beauty of the prospect from Tara Hill, attracted the attention of even the earliest colonists in Ireland. Those ancient men of barbarous times, in one thing at least showed far more taste and judgment than the cultured people of this nineteenth century. They chose for their dwellings and strongholds the breezy summits of fertile hills, which at once gave them health and security, and above all a far-reaching vision of picturesque grandeur. No doubt it was necessary for them to see the country far around them, so as to be able to notice the approach of the foe, and take measures for their own defence in unsettled times. But there was something else in their minds besides this idea of self-defence. They appreciated in their own simple way the manifold beauties of their island home; they loved to see them and enjoy them; and the vision gave them loftier thoughts and bolder hearts. They would not dream of building their dens in a swampy plain or secluded valley. They built their homes on the windy crests of the swelling uplands, where they could see their wide domains, their flocks and herds, the approach of the foe, and the gathering of the warriors to defend their hearts and homes.

All broils between individuals or factions during its sessions were punishable with death, without the option of an arid, and it would seem that it was forbidden to bear deadly weapons, or engage in martial exercises, lest they might lead to strife amongst the champions. The place of every king and chief was fixed by the public heralds with the greatest exactness, and his arms and shield hung above the head of the chief, but were not worn in the hall. The next famous reign in connection with the history of Tara is that of Tuathal Teachtmar. In regard to Tara his most important proceeding was to take a portion from each of the old provinces to form a mensal kingdom for the high-king. These united together formed the new province of Meath, which henceforth was reserved for the maintenance of the royal court and the royal guards of the high-king. The ancient Feis of Tara was preserved; but Tuathal directed that yearly assemblies should be held in each of the four parts of his dominions taken from the other provinces. So he ordained that at Tlachtas, near Athboy, a religious festival should be held at Beltane; that a great fair should be held at Usnach about mid-summer, and that a market, with sports and games should be established at Tailteann on the first Sunday of August, called in consequence Lugnasa; but this latter was probably of far earlier origin.—N. Y. Freeman's Journal.

Tara was called Cathair Crofhan even before it was called Tara; and Crofhan is said to have been a queen of the Tuatha de Danaan, remarkable both for her talents and her beauty. Doubtless she was buried within the precincts of the Royal Rath, to which she gave her name; that is, if she did not, like many others of her people, take up her abode in the Land of Youth, either under the grassy slopes of Tara, or some other of the beautiful enchanted hills of Erin.

They were a strange people, these Tuatha de Danaan, dark-eyed and brown-haired, of unknown origin, but of much culture, ingenuity and weird mysterious power, who left no survivors in the land of Erin, at least, amongst the children of mortal men. Would they had not vanished so completely, for the bardic story that tells of their advent and departure is full of a strange subtle interest which takes and keeps the mind by a secret, silent influence that cannot be measured or analyzed. It pervades like our history and our romance, the tales of our childhood, and the wanderings of our mature fancy in mystic realms of a fairy-land that is not all a fable. It was the Tuatha de Danaan who brought to Tara that wonderful Lia Fail, the Stone of Destiny.

One hundred and twenty kings of the Soutic or Milesian race reigned in Erin from Hereomon to the cursing and desolation of Tara in 565; and it may be regarded as fairly certain that all these high-kings kept their court (at least for a time) on the Royal Hill. The history of Tara would, in fact, during all this time, be the history of Ireland. So we can only refer to a few of the most noteworthy events in its annals specially connected with the place itself.

Ollamh Foblia, the fortieth in the list of Irish kings, after a reign of forty years, died, we are told by the Four Masters, "in his own house at Tara." He was the first king by whom the Feis, or Assembly of Tara, was instituted, and by him also a Mur Ollamhan was erected at Tara. The king's real name was Eochy, the term Ollamh Foblia, or Doctor of Erin, being given to him as an agnom on account of his learning. There are not wanting critics who doubt of the existence of this ancient king; but the entry proves at least one thing, that the "Feis Tara" was in popular estimation of every ancient origin. Reference is frequently made to this famous assembly in all our ancient literature, both sacred and profane. It was, in fact, the national parliament of the Celtic tribes in Ireland, and as such must have exercised a very great influence on the national life.

It was held triennially for one week at Samhain, that is three days before and three days after November day. It is probable that in fine weather the chiefs met in council on the green of Tara in the open air; but if the weather were inclement then the meeting was held indoors, and most likely in the great banqueting hall, which was the largest building in Tara. Its object was to discuss all matters of national importance especially the enactment of new laws, the assessment of tribute, the examination and purification of the national annals, the settlement of tribal disputes, and the maintenance of a militia for the preservation of the peace and the protection of the nation.

Under her guidance society receives its first formation, while in harmony with her influence the atmosphere of society begins to breathe of health and happiness. The Church alone has the secret for healing the social unrest because she alone can bring peace and harmony into the family life. The Pilot.

Based on the objections on the considerable expense for dress entailed, and on the use in their preparation of time which should be given to regular school work, the School Boards of several dioceses have this year passed resolutions asking school authorities to eliminate elaborate and formal closing exercises. Simple programs made up of short addresses and exercises which do not require too much preparation are urged in their stead.—America.

LIFE WAS A BURDEN
MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS
CURED HIM.

Mr. Alexander McKay, Post Phillips, N. S., writes:—"Seeing testimonials in the B.B.B. Almanac of how many poor sufferers had been helped by Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, I thought mine would not be an exception. I am a man of fifty-four years, and have a family of five children. About two years ago I was a sufferer from heart trouble, and life was a burden to myself as well as others. I could not lie on my left side and sometimes I would nearly choke, and was very nervous and run down. My father, a very old man of eighty-five years, told me that he often heard people recommend Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills to be a great cure so thought I would do no harm to give them a trial, but I had very little faith in them. My wife went to the store and got me two boxes, and before I had used the last of the first box I noticed a change, and before the second box was done I was cured and am a well man to-day."

The Roblin Conservative Government of Manitoba swept the Province in the general elections held on Monday last. The returns show that 27 Conservatives were elected to 14 Opposition. This result was achieved right under the nose of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who spoke in Winnipeg on the day after the election.

Current Comment.

(Calgary Daily Herald.)

The trip which Sir Wilfrid Laurier is taking for the purpose of pouring oil on the troubled waters will be ineffectual. The feeling of resentment against the party in power in Ottawa is too strong and the betrayal of the people by the government of Alberta has been too complete for the people to be brought into subjection by the pleasant smiles of a most affable gentleman.

(Hamilton Spectator.)

A million dollar graft steal has been uncovered in the government printing bureau at Ottawa. The chief of the conspirators is gone and five of the employes have been dismissed. There seems to be no chance of getting back any of the stolen coin, which belonged to the people. Incidentally this is one of the departments which the Conservative opposition demanded should be investigated, but which the government refused to investigate. Next!

(Edmonton Journal.)

The spectacle in the province of Ontario of thousands upon thousands of people of all shades of politics travelling miles to hear R. L. Borden tell of the scheming and chicanery which has been used to divorce the Dominion from its wealth and resources indicates a new awakening in the public conscience of the people of Canada, giving reason for the belief that henceforth the grafter will answer with his political life for any traitorous action toward his public trust.

(Toronto Mail and Empire.)

Sir James Whitney declares that Mr. Borden does more real work for the country than any group of Cabinet Ministers. This is true Mr. Borden is the master of every detail of administration. The Cabinet Ministers charge themselves with nothing beyond the care of their own departments. Mr. Borden is working all the time. The Cabinet Ministers do nothing between sessions and very little when the House is sitting. Half a dozen of the Ministers are at this moment touring Europe at the expense of the people of Canada.

(Hamilton Herald)

Of course Canada is able to spend very much more money for public works now than she was able to spend a decade or two ago, because her revenue is very much greater. And yet there is good reason for giving heed to Mr. Borden's comments on the fact that, while $367,650,000 more public revenue has been collected in the last ten years of Conservative government, the national debt has been increased $78,000,000 since the Laurier government assumed power.

(Toronto News.)

Mr. Borden's severe arraignment of an enfeebled government has awakened marked interest in all parts of the country, and he has developed a penchant for effective phrases which remain in men's minds. His characterization of the projected Laurier fleet as "an Order-in-Council navy" will live, and the electors heartily approve his sentiment, that, "if we are in the Empire in time of peace, we must be in the Empire and for the Empire in time of war." His insistence that Canada should do its duty by Great Britain in the naval arena is highly approved in every constituency.

(Vernon News.)

Mr. Pugsley while he was in power paid his own private telegraph bills out of the public purse and kept the fact quiet. When there was a change of government and the legislature investigated matters, then—and not till then—did Mr. Pugsley refund. He admitted that the account was improper. He knew that he was milking the treasury to his own advantage. He kept on doing so as long as he was shielded and made restoration only under the spur. Yet Sir Wilfrid Laurier permits a man of such loose ideas respecting trust funds to preside over one of the greatest spending departments of the federal government.

A Humorest Wanted.

It is charged against Mr. R. L. Borden by the organs of the Liberal party, fearing the effect of the triumphant tour of the province of Ontario by the leader of the opposition; that he lacks a sense of humor. That the quiet heart to heart talks, Mr. Borden had with thousands of electors in that province have struck a note of dismay in the Liberal ranks is demonstrated by the clumsy efforts to belittle the tour. It is solemnly stated that no man should aspire to the position of premier of Canada who is not a humorist. There is in this suggestion more than appears at the first glance. The people who for ten years, after having an opportunity of learning what it was, and is, continued the Laurier government in office, must be heartily fond of a joke, even when it is at their expense. Both in its personal and its work the Laurier government is a practical joke upon all those who by their votes prolong its reign of power. Take that fine old comedian Sir Richard Cartwright. His record is funnier than the quips of any "end man" in a minstrel show. People who judged him by his long opposition attitude put him down as a vigorous hater of all jobs, jobbers, waste extravagance, corruption, and the elements of protection in the tariff. He was announced as the leading Ontario statesman who was determined to keep the hands of political thieves out of the public treasury. The old joker showed his humor by watching the rascals with an eye which saw not, by winking when jobbers passed his way in the course of their business, by snoring away calmly when the public outlay was being increased without reason, and by assuming the responsibility of rewarding with office besmirched political workers other ministers hesitated to countenance. Then there is Hon. William Paterson, the daddy of the cabinet, and minister of customs. In his way Mr. Paterson is a laugh producer of the first rank. It was he who being interested in the bakery business injected into the tariff a little joke which must have been much appreciated by the free traders. He increased the duty on biscuits.

So much for Mr. Paterson.

Mr. Graham, who left the cold shades of Ontario provincial Liberalism after the Whitney cyclone swept the province is also counted among the funny men. He comes from Brockville that home of political humor, where there have been perpetrated such merry quips as stuffing a ballot box with Pritchett paper and thereby sending a Conservative candidate to grass instead of to Ottawa. One thing is certain: Mr. Borden has never shown any such humor as these gay blades of Ontario Liberalism. It is doubtful if he could rival Mr. Fielding in getting off those annual surplus jokes, and persuading some of the people that they are growing rich by what he saves of their taxes while all the time he is adding to their debt by what he borrows to keep the political machine running and please the men who like big appropriations for the day no matter what may be the final result, or who hasto foot the bill. And surely Mr. Borden can never expect to meet on an equal footing Mr. Pugsley who is by popular acclaim regarded as a party to the famous Richibucto joke that got a political friend $5000 of public money for a $700 slab and sawdust wharf. Nor could Mr. Borden expect to equal the sardonic humor of Mr. Oliver as shown in those regulations concerning the admission of Englishmen and other immigrants which have made one half of the Canadian people ashamed and all of them angry. It was the department of the Interior also that was responsible for what priceless piece of humor, the western timber limit deals, which system worked out in practice so that no matter how much study a stranger gave to the conditions of his offer, somebody who seemed to know generally got the plum, for just a trifle more than the highest outside bid. And such waggery as ministers perpetrate individually is naturally outdone when they combine their wits and act collectively. There was for instance that funny affair, the launching of the National Transcontinental Railway scheme. A great first class railway they said was to be built from Moncton to Winnipeg. The Tory constructed Intercolonial and Canadian Pacific were to be entirely put in the shade. The whole was to cost $51,400,000. Mr. Fielding even had an actuarial calculation to show that all the treasury of Canada would be called upon to pay could be provided by the investment of a portion of his book-keepers surplus of 1903. The joke is that the read is not to be shorter or better than the Intercolonial, that it is not to make the CPR look like a siding, and the cost will be over $200,000,000. Allied with the National Transcontinental was the Quebec bridge joke. The government agreed to back the bonds of a company formed to construct this work, the promoters of which showed their long-headed wisdom by refusing to venture in it even as much of their own money as would pay for the plans. An engineer in the government employ who knew something about bridges and who was given the duty of reporting on the plans disapproved of them, but he was ignored. The company went on with the bad construction, and the ministers went on giving security for its debt, till the whole thing toppled into the river through inherent weakness. Then the ministers who by use of the public credit had provided the money for the work bought from the company at a big price the title to the ruins which are yet, years after the disaster encountered with the bodies of some of the 80 victims of a folly that amounted to a crime. The story of the Intercolonial, under these ministers who have a superior sense of humor, has been almost a continual joke. The climax was reached this year when it cost $120 in operating and maintenance outlay to earn $1 in traffic receipts. Mr. Borden's friends will admit that he is deficient in the sense, humorous or otherwise which sees anything light or amusing in these matters. At the present time Canada wants grave men with ability to cope with grave problems, and not mountebanks and wearers of the jesters cap and bells.

Minard's Liniment cures Distemper.

Sir Wilfrid's Tour.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, accompanied by Hon. George P. Graham, minister of railways, E. M. Macdonald, M. P. for Pictou, F. F. Pardee, M. P. Liberal whip for Ontario, and Senator William Gibson, has left for a tour of the Northwest, and addressed a meeting at Fort William Saturday evening. On July 12th, the day after the Manitoba elections, they held a meeting in Winnipeg, proceeding thither over the Port Arthur branch of the Grand Trunk Pacific. If properly conducted, this should be a most interesting tour. The premier will have an opportunity of explaining how it is that the portion of the Transcontinental from Winnipeg to Moncton which is being built by the government was originally estimated to cost $51,300,000, and, according to the figures quoted in the house on December 31st last, will cost at least $500,000,000. The length of the road is 1,804 miles, and it was estimated by the finance minister that this would cost $25,000 per mile. Instead of that the expenditure in eight amounts to $111,000 per mile. He may also be able to explain how the contracts let represent a cost for extras over the original estimate of 60 per cent. Mr. Macdonald, M. P., will also be on the spot to explain at least a part of this enormous discrepancy, as he was the chairman of the committee which was appointed to investigate the Lumsden charges. It will be recalled that Mr. Lumsden, the chief engineer, resigned as a protest against the manner in which extras were being allowed on the construction of this road. An investigating committee was appointed composed of a minority of Conservatives. The majority of the committee refused to have a counsel appointed to represent the taxpayers of Canada on the investigation, and, as a result, the Conservatives refused to act on what was obviously a white-washing investigation. That it was a whitewashing investigation, was proved in most humorous fashion by the ultimate finding of the Liberal majority. Mr. Macdonald and his colleagues succeeded in discovering that there was absolutely no wrongdoing in connection with the allowance of extras for contracts, and that there was nothing in the allegations of Mr. Lumsden that prices were allowed contractors for rock cutting where no rocks existed. The upshot of the investigation was that the chief engineer was placed in the remarkable situation of having resigned his position, and the handsome salary attached thereto, as a protest against the abuses in awarding extras to contractors, when in reality no such abuses existed. The reduction to an absurdity Mr. Macdonald will no doubt be able to adequately and eloquently explain. In connection with these facts and figures, Hon. Mr. Graham, as the responsible minister, will also no doubt be able to contribute much valuable information of an explanatory character, which may or may not convince the audiences who will gather to hear the distinguished party.

Then there is Mr. Pardee, the Liberal whip for Ontario, who so valiantly acted as sponsor for the American company which has undertaken the greatest raid on Canada's natural resources that has, so far, been undertaken. He it was who fathered the bill which aimed at granting to the great electrical corporation of the United States the right to dam the St. Lawrence river at Cornwall, and generate there some 800,000 h. p. He is who led the house during the celebrated all night session, when five members of the government sat in the front row, lending their moral support to what was nominally a private bill, and at stated intervals found it necessary to arise and formally impress upon the house that though they were there to back the measure, it was not a government bill. It was on the same celebrated occasion that Hon. Mr. Emerson patriotically sided with the opposition against the job that was being put up, and was instrumental in bringing forward information that the chief engineers of three government departments had investigated the proposition, and unanimously condemned it as dangerous to Canadian property, and liable, in the case of accident, to flood the suburbs of Montreal, but that the same three engineers had been ordered later on to make another report on the same project, and, strangely enough, had pronounced in favor of it, notwithstanding the physical dangers which, they so vividly realized when making their first report. Even usually Mr. Pardee's bill went through with the active assistance of the government, after several important amendments had been forced into it by the Conservative opposition.

So far as Senator Gibson is concerned, he has no sin to answer for, and is probably taken along as a make-weight, and in order to add to the joyousness of the tour by the exuberant radiance of his genial personality.—Ottawa Citizen.

Destructive Conflagration

The town of Campbellton, N. B., was swept by fire on Monday of this week, and practically wiped out. The fire started during the afternoon in Richards' Lumber Mill, and soon got beyond control of the local brigade. Campbellton had a population of 5000, and when the sun rose Tuesday morning practically the whole community was homeless. With the exception of a few scattered private residences, lying on the outskirts, nothing but smoking embers remained of what was one of the most prosperous towns of New Brunswick. Help was asked from the fire brigades of nearby towns, but before assistance arrived the flames had gained such headway that nothing could be done to check the conflagration. All the hotels are gone; five mills were burned, and one child was suffocated. The property loss is not less than $2,000,000, and five thousand people are homeless. Richardsville, a village three miles distant was also completely destroyed, and it is reported that a number of men perished in an explosion. The fire burned all Monday night; but after six o'clock in the evening, the people gave no attention to the saving of property, but only thought of saving themselves from the flames. Assistance to the sufferers is coming in from different sections.

Most Modern Cattle Accommodations at the Dominion Exhibition.

The most modern of live stock accommodations will be afforded exhibitors at the Dominion Exhibition in St. John, N. B., September 5th to 15th. Indeed the new facilities embody the latest and best approved ideas, and will be appreciated by both exhibitor and sight-seer. In the cattle barn proper 500 head will be housed within easy eye-range. In connection with each stall there will be running water and other modern improvements. A patent litter carrier suspended from a rail track in the ceiling will be utilized to remove all accumulations, while the drainage will be perfect. Sheep will be accommodated in keeping with most modern ideas. From central elevated walkways spectators will be afforded an excellent view of the animals as they wander around their six-foot pens. The carpentry will be open or picketed, assuring constant circulation of air. The fignery will follow the same plan of erection, special attention to ventilation, freedom from over-crowding, lighting and sight-seeing. Heretofore exhibits of horses have been made in rows of box stalls only, but this year special provision is being made for harness horses in new barns arranged with broad aisles. Coultry and Pigeon Stock are to be shown in what was formerly known as Agricultural Hall where much more space is available and a comprehensive display is possible.

It is rumored from London that the King and Queen will make a tour of the Empire.

D. A. Vail, a prominent business man of Sussex, N. B. was terribly and probably fatally injured by the explosion of a soda water cylinder which was being charged.

Walker Wellman and Melvin Vaniman will attempt this coming fall, to cross the Atlantic Ocean in the dirigible balloon America, which was built for the Wellman Polar Expedition and has twice been tested in voyages over the Arctic Ocean North of Spitzbergen. This is what is reported from New York.

The hot weather has been the cause of a very unusually high infantile death rate in Montreal. Last week there were 240 deaths in the city, as compared with 198 births—a net decrease in population of 42. Of 240 deaths, 154 were of children under 5 years, most of whom were killed by bowel complaints incidental to the hot weather and bad food. Vast majorities of deaths occurred in the poorest quarters where the intense heat caused great suffering.

We had the pleasure yesterday of a brief call from Rev. Leo Logan of Boston, accompanied by his mother Mrs. Logan, who were on the trip from Montreal on the Bonavista. In their company was Miss McGrath of St. John's N.B., also coming from Montreal. Father Logan and his mother left the Bonavista here and crossed to Pictou by the Northumberland this morning. Thence they proceeded to Halifax and take the steamer Halifax for Boston. They have enjoyed their trip very much.

An explosion in the powder magazine at Sand Point, fifty miles west of Ottawa, resulted in the death of three men and the serious injury of several others.

Mr. D. B. McDonald, of Boston, and latterly of San Francisco, is now on a vacation trip to his old home at Little Pond, Lot 66. Hope you will spend a pleasant vacation, "Dan!"

The boiler of Jenkins' Laundry at Laconia, N. H. blew up clearing its way up through the centre of a three-story wooden building, killing one man and causing injuries to six other employees, mostly women.

Daniel McDonald, of Loch Lomond, C. B. was gored to death by a bull, while feeding his cattle in their pasture. McDonald made a desperate effort to escape, but every time he stood up the infuriated animal levelled him to the ground. The man was finally torn to shreds.

During a fire in Boston Mrs. Sarah Posner, twice crossed a narrow plank four stories above the ground from her house to that of a friend, carrying to safety Mrs. Solomon Rosenberg and baby. Four small children following directly after Mrs. Posner and escaped.

Frank McGillivray, son of Mark McGillivray, of Glenfanning, King's County, fell 65 feet to the ground from the sixth story of a building on which he was working in Boston, received fatal injuries, from which he died four hours later. The body was brought to the Island for interment in his native parish.

50,000 garment and cloak makers, of whom 8,000 are women, walked out at the call of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union, New York which demands an eight-hour day, increase in wages, and a guarantee that the contractor shall stand behind sub-contractors for wage payments.

At the shooting at Bisleigh, England, the Canadians have done good work. They won the McKinnon cup, open to teams of 12 men, Scotland was second, finishing 41 points behind Canada. In the Kilmoppe Cup, another country won, with Canada second. The winning score was 798 points, and Canada's score was 796, only 2 behind.

Dorothy Doughty aged six years is dead, her sister Eliza aged ten is seriously injured, two other sisters are terribly burned, but not fatally, and their father Augustus Doughty, is in the hospital in a critical condition, all the results of a fire at their home at Chebogue Island, Maine. The father's injuries were caused by his efforts to save the children.

Fred. S. Cameron, won the Canadian ten mile championship road race on the Ramblers ground at Amherst, last Thursday night in 58.5.2.5. His only competitor was Edward White, of Brockville, James George, of Beauséjour, Ont., and Edward Cotton, of Toronto, the other entries failing to show. Cameron won by about a yard after a sensational struggle in the last lap. About 1000 spectators were present.

By the breaking away of the eel, Henry Machon, was precipitated from the roof of a barn which he was shingling at Murray Harbor on Friday last. He fell to the ground striking on his head, and died a short time afterwards without regaining consciousness. James Bell who was with him caught hold of something that broke his fall and he escaped unhurt. Machon leaves a widow and two sons.

The hot wave that we are experiencing these days seems to be general in Canada and the United States, and in many places has been productive of fatal results. In and around Boston eleven lives were lost by drowning on Sunday, and in nearly every case the victims were seeking relief from the torrid temperature, by a plunge in the cooling waters. In addition to these fatalities there were numerous prostrations and some deaths from the heat. 83 was about the maximum shown by the thermometers; but the humidity was very great and scarcely a breath of air prevailed. The heat in New York was tremendous and at least three persons went mad, and eight died of it, while the last of prostrations was very long. It was the hottest Sunday known in years. Ten deaths and many prostrations occurred in Philadelphia where the mercury reached 93. One death and four prostrations are reported from Washington, where 102 degrees of heat were recorded.

The lobster season on the north shore of the Province closed on the 10th inst. No great hauls were secured at any time during the season; but the fishing, although in pretty light batches was fairly constant and the season's work was very fair. From St. Peter's Harbor to Nantuxo seven factories were in operation. The factory of O'Hanley & Rafferty is further west. This is a large factory and a fair season's work was accomplished. Next to this comes the factory of Lewis and McCauley. Good work was done here and the season closed with good satisfaction to the owners. Sutherland Brothers continued their business at the old stand, just at the end of the portage road. Their year's pack was quite good considering the general fishing conditions, and they have no cause for complaint. At Meakill River O'Hanley Bros. did a good compact year's work and wound up operations in fine shape. McKinnon and O'Hanley at Goose River kept up their end in good style and came out well as things went this season. Mr. John P. Sutherland played a lone hand hand at Hallow River; but played trumps for the most part and is well satisfied with results. At Cow River, McKinnon & Bryan conducted a large packing establishment and came out well for this year.

To Be Well Dressed at a Reasonable Cost Let Us Make Your Suit!

Have you been giving your money away to a poor tailor for clothes that did not satisfy you? Or worse still have you, thinking you were saving two or three dollars on your suit, paid your good money for a "Ready-Made"—a suit that stays good only until you wear it, and instead of adding to your appearance, will by its bad fitting qualities make you appear poorly dressed. Have you ever thought that a "Ready-Made" was the most expensive suit you could buy. Do you know that one good Tailor-Made Suit at $20.00 to $25.00 will outwear any two Ready-Made at $15.00, and that the made-to-order suit will hold its shape and its good looks until the cloth is worn out, while a Ready Made will only look good for a short time. Isn't it cheaper for you to invest $25.00 for a good suit once a year, than to invest $15.00 for a poor one, twice in that period? You will agree with us in that, won't you? Then our proposition is this: We keep a stock of all the best cloths made—we have Worsteds, we have Tweeds, in all the leading shades; we have Serges and Venevians in blue and black—in fact we have everything that's made for men's clothes. We have expert cutters, men who have spent years in studying the art of designing men's clothes, and we have a staff of workmen trained in every branch of the trade; men who put into a job work of the highest order.

You can select a suit at any price from $18.00 to $30.00. We will make it to your individual measure, we will put the best of trimmings into it, and we give you good style and the best of workmanship. In short, your money is not ours until you are satisfied with the suit in every particular.

Don't you think it will pay you to leave your order with us?
