MOTHERS WILL YOU RISK IT?

Your child—or some member of your family—has a bad sore, cut or ulcer, or eczema. Whatever you put on that sore place will get into the blood as surely as if it were swallowed into the stomach. Now what are you going to use?

Many ointments are not antiseptic.—Zam-Buk is. Many ointments cause pain.—Zam-Buk kills pain. Most ointments contain mineral poisons.—Zam-Buk does not.

Most ointments have as a basis animal oils and fats.—Zam-Buk is purely herbal.

Most ointments suitable for adults are unsuitable for children.—Zam-Buk is suitable alike for babes or adults.

Most ointments, if not used up, go bad.—Zam-Buk retains its power for years. Economical.

The deeper you look into it the more clearly you see the foolishness of taking risks. Don't you think your children should have the best? Zam-Buk is the standard by which ointments are to-day judged. Some dealers will tell you they have something "just as good as Zam-Buk." Why spend money on imitations of Zam-Buk when you can get real Zam-Buk? Take no risks. Try Zam-Buk for cuts, burns, eczema, piles, scalp sores, eruptions and all skin diseases and injuries. See name on box before buying. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price.

CHAPTER XII.

"Are you as happy as you sound?" said some one close by, as she ceased singing; and she discovered that the reactor, unseen, had been her audience.

"Well, I do believe I am," she answered, blinking the tell-tale moisture from her long lashes as she closed the organ and released the curly headed Peggs. "You don't think me utterly childish for it, do you?"

"Nay," he answered, very kindly, knowing though not from her, something of the Gate House doings. "You have every right to revel in the present, and what it is bringing you. Only, take an old man's counsel. Don't set your heart on it too much. Riches sometimes make themselves wings and fly away."

"Ah, but," she answered, "mine shall not. I mean to be a penurious old lynx, and never exceed my income."

"Good!" laughed Mr. Vaughan; "long may this wisdom last! But," lapsing into seriousness, "if ever this money of yours eludes your vigilance, if it melts away, let the record of its use leave a pleasant memory

HIS BLADDER WAS TERRIBLY INFLAMED

GIN PILLS Brought Relief

Larder Lake, Ont., March 26th. "I had been suffering for some time with my Kidneys and Urine. I was constantly passing water, which was very scanty, sometimes as many as thirty times a day. Each time the pain was something awful, and no rest at night."

I heard of your GIN PILLS and decided to give them a trial at once. I sent my chum 60 miles to get them and I am pleased to inform you that in less than six hours, I felt relief.

In two days, the pain had left me entirely. I took about half a box and today I feel as well as ever and my kidneys are acting quite natural again. SID CASTLEMAN.

GIN PILLS soothe the irritated bladder—heal the sick, weak, painful kidneys—strengthen both these vital organs. Money back if they fail. 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50. Sample free if you write National Drug and Chemical Co., of Canada, Limited, Toronto. 179 ed the old dame, she supposed. "Why should I go away? I don't want to." "Ay, ay," chuckled the old body, "that's on'y like the lady should say, but there's them that won't fall in with it. 'A thief'—askin' pardon for the sayin'—'don't leave his sack behind,' now do he?" And then Mrs. Hills, who was afflicted with asthma, fell into such a fit of mirthful choking, in simple charity, her visitor nodded good-bye and departed—only, however, to encounter equally mysterious words before she had gone fifty yards further. For round the corner of the village street swept Lady Comyngham's low phaeton, herself, with the cockaded groom behind, driving the handsome cream cobs, which much against their will, were reined in at sight of Miss Alwyn.

"I have been at The Dale," said the countess, leaning forward most amiably, "and was so sorry to miss seeing you. But allow me to congratulate you now. I hope this event will bring you much happiness."

It was curious, thought Sydney, for her mother, who all too evidently grudged this division of income, to speak of it to strangers, but she must have done so. And taking this as an omen of pleasant feeling between them, the girl thanked Lady Comyngham with warmth, and hoped she might use the change so that no one would have to repent it.

"Very, very becomingly said," approved the countess, giving Sydney's shoulders a coax with her whip. "I trust you'll prosper, I'm sure, though these matters are dreadful lotteries. As I've told my girls."

"When the earl came into his fortune, I suppose," thought Sydney, answering with such an air of unshakable security, "I hope there's not much of the lottery in my case!"

hat the countess, for all her fifty years' ups and downs, would not dishearten her with any more wisdom of experience.

"Oh, well, well," she said ("Stand till, Spit-fire!"), "I presume this has been looked forward to so long by all parties that you feel safe of each other, and sure of everything going light. Make my felicitations to—oh," she cobs took violent umbrage at an approaching wheelbarrow, "these reatures won't let a woman speak! Good-bye, Miss Alwyn," as the pair unurted off. "Come to Oakleigh one Saturday—both of you."

"Leonora too," mused Sydney, and all wondering whether success could attend that lofty scheme of her mother's, which by now she understood, though no confidence on the subject was extended to her.

On that point Mrs. Alwyn's hopes were now in the zenith of hopefulness, for Mr. Duvesne had been among the first callers after their return. Ostensibly he came to thank her for certain weekly doles supplied

FEELS LIKE A NEW WOMAN

As Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Dispelled Backache, Headaches and Dizziness.

Piqua, Ohio.—"I would be very grateful if I failed to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound the praise it deserves, for I have taken it at different times and it always relieved me when other medicines failed, and when I hear a woman complain I always recommend it. Last winter I was attacked with a severe case of organic weakness. I had backache, pains in my hips and over my kidneys, headache, dizziness, lassitude, had no energy, limbs ached and I was always tired. I was hardly able to do my housework. I had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound on one other occasion, and it had helped me so I took it again and it has built me up, until now I feel like a new woman. You have my hearty consent to use my name and testimonial in any way and I hope it will benefit suffering women."—Mrs. ORPHEA TURNER, 431 S. Wayne St., Piqua, Ohio.

Women who are suffering from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

They please the Cook

Because they save so much time and trouble,—because she can invent new dishes with Oxo Cubes, and give quickly an unusual zest and flavour to old ones.

from The Dale to an old couple in his parish—Mrs. Alwyn's smallest light never wasted a ray for want of being set on a candlestick—but the delighted mother marked how he reported progress of his rectory, and lamented to Leonora that it was not half what he wished "for a lady." Would she look it through some day with Mrs. Alwyn and her sister? Would she tell him how it could be improved? "Of course," gazing about the handsome Dale drawing room, "it was nothing like this. The old building and Miss Villier's perfect taste"—Mrs. Alwyn credited Leonora with every suitable shape and shade on the premises—"had made this unmatchable. Honestly, The Dale ought to be part of the Oakleigh estate, but he supposed the absent owner would say 'no' to that."

Hereupon his hostess had returned that she in propria persona was proprietor of The Dale now; she had completed the purchase of her brother. And she hoped never to part from it except to her elder daughter, so, unluckily, the place must be burdened with her Leonora.

"And a great improvement the burden will be," said Mr. Duvesne, allantly. "Pray don't imagine I had my intention of robbing these parts when I made my selfish suggestion 'ust now.'"

With which the young clericus had glided from the topic Mrs. Alwyn fondly hoped he was approaching information of a recent domestic event, interesting, of course, to intimates only. His sister, Lady Avena Massey, was the happy mother of a little son, successor to four sisters, the first grandson of the family, a young man who had caused as much stir at Oakleigh Place as in his native Staffordshire home.

"My mother," said the Honorable Edward, laughing, "has been fussing over silver mugs, and the girls have been stitching at some white garment long enough for a grown-up ghost, and the people at Barnes have been sending up gifts most glaringly useless to a fortnight-old baby—"

Aloneness.

By BETH CAMERON.

"About himself," each individual in that mass is just wrapped up in himself and his relationships as you are in yourself and your relationships.
 You touch elbows with your next-door neighbor, and yet you two are actually as far apart as the planet Mars and the earth. The isolation of souls is a wonderful and solemn thought that sometimes takes possession of me.
 No matter in what close physical and intellectual intimacy with other human beings we may live, after all, the soul, the core of us, is remote. Souls are like planets. Each moves in its own orbit, and under normal conditions no other planet can possibly come near it.
 It is this wonderful how closely great love can bring two individuals together, and yet is it even more remarkable how far apart it still leaves them?
 By social converse, by intimacies, by confidences, by herding together, in wedlock, in families, in clubs and society, we hide our aloneness from ourselves. And yet it still exists. And now and then in some rare moment of reflection and analysis it rises to confront us.
 "Under the last wrapping each soul alone in a crowded world"—somehow it's a rather appalling thought, isn't it?
 So let's forget it—till the next time.

Fads and Fashions.
 The yoke is a new note in skirts. Cotton dresses have boleros of silk. Entire frocks are seen among the new blouses.
 The mushroom hat for the little girl is the thing.
 The silk coat appears in brilliant or sombre colors.
 Separate coats have a decided flare at the hips.
 One tailored suit must not be of the severe type.
 Gilded peacock feathers are being used on millinery.
 The block foulard with white coin spots is glowing in favor.
 Pretty hats for little girls are fashioned of flowered crepe.
 Tulle frocks for little girls are trimmed with soutache braid.
 Some of the new handbags have square tops and round bottoms.
 Small black and white checks are predominant in the spring suits.
 There are many jeweled combs and pins for the evening culture.
 For spring and summer, capes are going to be immensely popular. Collars and cuffs of figured linen appear on suits of serge and poplin.
 Bodices are extremely simple in line, while skirts grow more elaborate.
 Many of the new silk coats have circular flounces joined to the straight hems.
 Smart afternoon and dance dresses are made of white crepe de chine.
 The feather pompon is a very important feature in the millinery this spring.
 Some of the new sleeves define the wrists by clasping them with a ribbon.
 Make your waists full at the back and front if you would be in fashion.
 The canoe buckle is made in special size and design for shoes and slippers.

Best Liniment of All
 Destroys Every Pain
 But Never Burns.
 "How thankful we are to get hold of such a wonderful household remedy as Nerviline," writes Mrs. E. P. Lamontagne from her home near Wetaskawin, Alberta. "In this far-away section, far away from a doctor or druggist, every family needs a good supply of Nerviline. Nerviline is the best of all. It destroys every pain, but never burns. We use Nerviline in a score of ways. If it's rheumatism, aching back, pain in the side, sciatica or stiff neck,—you can laugh at them if you have lots of Nerviline handy. For carache, toothache or cramps I don't think anything could act more quickly. For a general all-round pain remedy I can think of nothing more valuable and speedy to use than Nerviline."
 The above letter is convincing—it tells how reliable and trusty this old-time remedy is. Nerviline for forty years has been a household word in Canada. Scarcely a home in Canada you can find without Nerviline. Every community has its living examples of Nerviline which will cure pains and aches anywhere in the joints or muscles. It's penetrating, soothing, warming and safe for young and old to use. Get the large 50c. family size bottle; it's the most economical. Small trial size 25c. at any dealer's anywhere.

Vegetarians.
 By GEORGE FITCH.
 Author of "At Good Old Slawsh."
 A vegetarian is a person who will not eat his fellow animals. There are several kinds of vegetarians. One very plentiful variety is found in those European countries where the only way in which a peasant and laborer can get a taste of meat is to emigrate to America. Millions of people in these countries are vegetarians, eating meat only on feast days and living between times on whatever they can buy with the money that the government has overlooked.
 This country has many vegetarians but they do not go without meat, because they cannot afford it. Instead, they march scornfully past meat shops with their pockets bulging with money and buy hamburger steak made out of nuts farther up the street.
 It is easy enough to be a vegetarian if you are a European peasant. All you have to do is to eat what you can get. But in America it is a difficult task. The vegetarian has to make lamb chops out of cornmeal and roast beef out of peanuts. He lives on celery, beans, prunes, olive oil, parsnips, rutabagas and peanuts and grows so skillful in preparing them that he cannot tell them from the disgusting contents of the flesh pot. But for all that, he lives a hard life. Nothing is sadder than to see a vegetarian trying to make a full meal at a large dinner party on olives, dry bread and ice cream.
 The vegetarian does not believe in taking life and if he had his way, no animals would be killed for food. When we all become vegetarians a terrible catastrophe will overtake the hog. He will become extinct from starvation because no one will care to stuff him with 80-cent corn for charity's sake. We should not become vegetarians until Congress make an appropriation for the proper maintenance of all pigs until they die of old age.

When vegetarianism is universal we will also have to go without leather. However, those citizens who are fond of wearing shoes need not be alarmed. Thousands of shoes are sold today which assay 99 per cent brown paper and glue and they can hardly be told from the real article until it rains.

Lloyd George's Land Inquiry.

London, April 2.—The secret land inquiry appointed by Chancellor Lloyd George, issued a report today recommending that the local authorities throughout Great Britain be compelled to provide houses for workers to urban areas, and to promote transit schemes.
 It recommends also that the Government should insure a minimum wage and regulate the labor market with a view to decreasing the hardships of casual employment. Other recommendations deal with compulsory purchases and leasing of land. It is proposed that the expenditure be met by Imperial taxation to the extent of $25,000,000, and a local rate on site values.

A Magnificent Amount.

The performances at the Crescent Theatre on last Monday and Tuesday in aid of the Sealing Disaster Fund, were despite the inclemency of the weather, largely attended, and Mr. Lacey is to be complimented upon the large receipts secured for such a worthy cause. The sum of $84.40 was realized which has been handed in to the committee. Well done the Crescent.

Successful Opening of Nickel Theatre.

The Easter re-opening of the Nickel Theatre, yesterday was marked by record attendances illustrating once more that the Nickel is a very popular resort, both for old and young. The programme was by far the best ever presented there and Manager Kiley was warmly complimented on it. Mr. Walter McCarthy, the St. John's singer, who has appeared in the States with remarkable success, made his debut and received an ovation not often given to concert artists in this city. He sang that well known and charming love song, "In the Shelter of Thy Love" and at once captured the audience. It is a sweet song, and Mr. McCarthy made the most of it. His voice always rich and attractive has improved greatly by the training he received in America and he can be classed as one of the greatest vocalists that Newfoundland has ever produced. He was enthusiastically welcomed by his old friends. She sang the latest rag-time of New York entitled: "You'll Have to Get Out and Under." This song is all the rage in New York at present. Miss Gardner is as charming as ever and that her engagement here will be a success is a foregone conclusion. The pictures were the best procurable. "The Golden Hoard, or Buried Alive" is a two reel feature, acted in the Vitaphone Co.'s best style. "A Marriage of Convenience" is a thrilling social drama. "An Interrupted Honeymoon" and "His Wife's Relatives" are comedies. The program will be repeated this evening. The proceeds yesterday and to-day go to the Sealers' Disaster Fund. By attending you will help on the good cause.

"Pepita."

The Comic Opera Pepita which had been in course of preparation for several months, came off at the Casino Theatre last evening before a full house. It is a long time since local amateurs attempted operatic work here, and the younger generation were somewhat on trial in the production of Pepita. Since the old days when Mr. Fulton and the city vocal talents engaged Gilbert and Sullivan's productions we have travelled far educationally and it is only natural that we should do better work. The public expected a treat last night and they were not disappointed. The motif was simple, the music bright and lively, the singing was clear, sweet and effective, and the orchestral work was full, rich and true. The ensemble of gorgeous colouring in the choruses was one of the most effective and dazzling stage productions ever seen here, and the bright and charming faces of the chorus took nothing from the picturesque display. The defects in the performance as a whole were few and some of them may be rectified. The entrances and exits of the chorus were not effected with the precision that they might have been, but it is stated that this was due to the narrowness of the exits. The female voices predominate too much in the choruses and five or six more male voices would even up the work better and make all the difference in the world. These are defects that may be remedied, but there are certain handicaps to successful operatic work that can never be overcome unless the construction of the Casino is altered. Built as a Hall for ordinary meetings, and the science of acoustics was never considered during the construction of the building, and it is only through very strong voices that can be heard from the stage. The chorus which had to stand back on the stage waste more than half its volume of their vocal sweetness on the desert ceiling. The principal actors and soloists who stood to the front of the stage could do themselves no wrong justice. These defects we will of course have to put up with until we get round to a regular Opera House by and by. But with all the disadvantages the production pleased the audience as the applause at intervals testified. Miss Strong and Mrs. R. C. Grieve on whom fell the principal female roles were in excellent voice and the acting which their parts involved was very natural, graceful and effective. Mr. Cecil Cliff and Mr. Goodridge have long since taken front rank amongst local amateurs and they never did better work than they did last night. Professor Blackall is one of our oldest amateurs. We expect him to please and last night he did not disappoint. He has the faculty of creating the most laughter when he is serious. Mr. Bernard took every inch of advantage of the part assigned him. He has a splendid voice and his elocution and gesturing are perfect. Mr. Jack Cliff is a handsome and impressive figure in any costume and he looked the part of the Prince last night. Mr. Hazel carried his sword like a little man and looked every inch a warrior bold. The orchestral work was without a flaw and the great credit is due both Professor Ailsh and the musicians for the excellent work done. In closing a word of praise for Messrs. J. M. Padden and H. A. Anderson, and T. H. O'Neill, who managed the opera. Each in his own department did excellent work, as the success of the whole testifies. The Opera will be given every night this week and also a matinee on Wednesday afternoon.

On receipt of the message Deputy Colonial Secretary Jervis also wired the operators at the places mentioned and acquainted the people, asking them to have a look out for the missing man and render any assistance necessary.

FRIENDS INDEED!

It is gratifying to find that the response to the appeal of the fatherless and the widow bereft of their support in the gales of a fortnight ago are meeting with such a ready and generous response. At the present time, it is impossible to state the number of orphans who will need support or for what length of time they will need it; nor can it be stated how many widows will need assistance or in what degree of straitened circumstances they find themselves. We know definitely how many seafarers of the crew of the Newfoundland perished at the ice, and we know that quite a number of the survivors are still in the hospital, and that there is a likelihood of some of them being maimed from the effects of frost bites. As to the Southern Cross there were 173 souls aboard, and it is now a fortnight ago since she was reported off Cape Pine. The S. S. Kyle has been searching for some 10 or 11 days and the S. S. Fiona for about a week. At the time of writing no sign of the ship is reported. Under these circumstances we are constrained to face the situation and to prepare to make provision for her loss. The full toll of the loss amount to some 250 breadwinners, who in all probability were supporting 1,000 members of their families. The demands are great and the response is hearty. Yesterday we gave the names of the collectors who have been appointed to make a house to house canvass and to afford an opportunity to all who can contribute towards helping the sufferers. We are also pleased to note that a committee composed of representatives of the various societies and unions will meet to-night and arrangements will be finalized for the rest of the city. Among our friends abroad we find that Montreal is taking a foremost place in sending aid. Toronto has also done much, and indeed Canada has proved a friend in very deed as a friend in need.

St. Michael's Church.

There were three celebrations at St. Michael's on Easter Day that at 11 o'clock being choral The Easter anthems were sung as the Introit. The anthem at Evensong was "Christ is Risen" (Goss), and the sermon was preached by the Rev. Canon Bolt. The service was concluded with the Te Deum. Notice was given that the collections next Sunday will be for the Sealing Disasters Fund.

Thank You Little Ones.

Dear Sir—We thought we would like to help some of the children of the poor seafarers, and on Saturday afternoon, we and some other little girls, had a concert and sold dolls' clothes and candy and got $6, which we are sending to you for the Seafarers' Fund.

Acting Premier's Letter of Thanks.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir.—On behalf of the Government and the people of the Colony, I desire to express, through the medium of your columns, the warmest thanks to all persons who, in any way, assisted in the work of tending on the sick and caring for the dead in the recent and sealing disaster. In carrying out the arduous duties, a most pleasing feature was the efficient service so readily and willingly rendered, as a result of which the various matters were carried out satisfactorily, without any hitch or disagreement whatsoever. The valuable services so graciously volunteered, the self-sacrifice on the part of all the workers, and the complete absence of any marring note, all show a community of sympathy that shone as a gleam of gold from the background of sadness and sorrow.

The St. John Ambulance Brigade, Overseas, Newfoundland District, did splendid work under the superintendence of Dr. Cluny Macpherson, assisted by Superintendent Reeves, No. 1 (C. L. B.) Division, Dr. William Roberts, Divisional Surgeon, No. 2 Nursing Division, Dr. G. N. Murphy, Divisional Surgeon, No. 3 Division, and other members of the Brigade, with a number of volunteers.

Lieutenant-Colonel MacDermott, of H. M. S. Calypso, furnished for service with the St. John Ambulance Brigade, a stretcher party which rendered valuable aid.

The four City Brigades—C. L. B., C. C. C., M. G. G. and Highlanders and the Legion of Frontiersmen were represented by squads and performed most efficient work.

Inspector General Sullivan, assisted by his officers and the police, maintained order and regulated matters so that the workers were not hindered in their duties in any way by the crowd of sympathetic citizens who gathered round the Institute Building.

The thoughtfulness of the Reid Newfoundland Company is to be commended, by the sending of their covered express for use in connection with the removal of the sick seafarers, as well as for the placing at the disposal of the Government in connection with this disaster, the special trains for the conveyance of the bodies and the steamer Kyle for the search of the missing Southern Cross.

To the Director of the King George V. Institute the special thanks of the Government and people are due for so willingly placing their magnificent building, with its splendid resources, at the disposal of those who had this sad business in charge. I am sure that we all appreciate very highly this kind action of the Institute authorities.

To Mr. Jones, Superintendent of the Institute, and his willing staff of employees, warm thanks must also be tendered for their self-denying efforts to assist in every way possible. The unique facilities possessed by the Institute were placed absolutely, at the disposal of the workers, and, under Mr. Jones's able supervision, no delay or inconvenience of any kind was experienced.

There are others whom I could name in this connection, and a host of willing and capable volunteers who assisted in various ways, and to whom heartfelt thanks are due for the services rendered, in many cases unobtrusively, but with a sincere desire to help in time of sorrow. All classes of the community, irrespective of creed, politics or social position, vied with each other in the efforts to give assistance and relief to the suffering and reverent care to the dead. There was no jarring note, no selfish grasping for advantage, no desire for personal exploitation—all were actuated by a common sympathy and an earnest desire to help their brother men. I can only repeat that the warmest thanks of the Government and of the people of the Colony are hereby tendered to all those who so nobly and willingly gave of their time and their services in the dark hour of our sorrow.

Yours faithfully,
J. R. BENNETT,
Colonial Secretary.

The splendid three reel drama, "The Beaten Path," the big feature at the Crescent Picture Palace last night, surprised the large audiences that attended. The vocalist, Mr. Sydney Ernschaw, made his debut in his rendition of "My Rose of Old Kildare," and won rounds of applause. His pleasing baritone voice will make him a great favourite and the management is to be complimented on securing the services of such a talented artist. He is the genuine performer. He has travelled with many big productions and is a great dancer. Last night his American buck and wing dance brought down the house. This funny little man never does his part alike twice. He is original in all he does and imitates no man. The specialty of Warren and Molloy was another big feature. Tommy Levene needs no describing, he is a whole show in himself. "The Battle of Too Soon" is what it claims, a real night's amusement. CAPT. A. KEAN (Continued).
When I dropped the Newfoundland's crew at 11.40 there was a pecking snow but little or no wind from S. E. I told George Tuff to take the bearing of his ship, which he did with me from my bridge compass. She was then due S. E. I saw her quite distinct, I thought he also saw her but he seems not to have. Tuff said to me I think we will have weather but it is very soft. I told him I thought it would be mild, it's a very fair glass. Tuff then told his crew to get out as quick as possible if they had finished their dinner. Then we got back and began picking up our seals. About 1.30 the wind increasing to a fair breeze with snow falling faster, I got a message from the Florizel that I was to look after her men, he would look after mine, as some of his men were on the ice near where I picked up the Newfoundland crew. Shortly after some of his men came on board and their ice-master, Robert Nesworthy, told me they were all there 5 or 6. I told them to stay on board until we met the Florizel later. Between 2 and 3 the wind pitched in a flurry, which is unusual with a S. E. wind, with blinding snow storm. As the storm came on we blew the whistle constantly and moved slowly along N.W. towards our men, picking up a pan here and there when I got word from the Florizel that she had three of our watches on board, but George March's watch is missing. I told him to come to me slowly, keep the whistle going. I will do same towards you. About 5 minutes after getting the message we picked up March and all save 3 of his men. They reported these 3 men lay a short distance away, one had fallen in the water and could not get along very well. Three or four minutes after we had all our men except what were on the Florizel. Soon after we got to that ship and exchanged crews. This was about 3 p.m. As soon as I got my crew from the Florizel I turned in search of the Newfoundland's crew, concerning which I had but two thoughts, and that they had fallen in with seals and were paning too long, in that case they would make for us, as I had told Tuff the ice was small and good to travel over and he knew all about the bad. If they were coming to us we will have them sure, as I knew Tuff would follow the line of carcasses that would bring him amongst our flags. Kept our whistle constantly blowing and picked up a pan of seals occasionally. About six o'clock I saw a flag ahead which looked blacker than ours, went near enough to see it was the Florizel's flag, and that I was in exactly the position as when I picked up the Newfoundland's crew. By this time the ice was packed so tight that we had great difficulty in moving and could not turn. The wind had veered two points, being then about E. S. E., kept whistle blowing but felt certain Tuff could not have come to us, or he would have reached us then, kept whistle blowing until 8, when I was sure he had not stopped paning but left in time to board his own ship and felt sure he was on board of her. The second thought I had was that I had the time when my barrelman reported the crew having left their vessel at 9 a.m. they got on board my ship at 11.20, during which they had walked over very heavy ice. I took them clear of that big ice and thought if they only took 2 hours 20 minutes to walk 4 1/2 or 5 miles, they could without trouble walk from the Stephano's flag to the Newfoundland, but unfortunately, as I learned afterwards, that the crew had left the Newfoundland at 7 instead of 9 as I had been informed. I account for my barrelman's mistake as because the men must have been on high ice when he saw them, and coming in line with their ship's bow, it appeared to him. I judged the Newfoundland to be about 3 miles from us when I put her crew down, but not more than 2 miles in big ice. My ship was jammed from 8 o'clock Tuesday night until 9 Wednesday morning.

As to the course steered and the distance run while the Newfoundland's crew were at dinner as recorded by some evidence, it is not easy for men to know these things when they were below and could not see. In connection with the Newfoundland witness read the following clipping from the Telegram on Monday 6th inst.—
"From stories gathered from the survivors of the Newfoundland's crew at present in the King George Institute, it is plain the question arises whether Captain Abraham Kean is to be held morally responsible for the great loss of life among the men sent out by the Newfoundland on March 31st. Was there an error of judgment by Capt. Kean, who sent men away from his ship to join their own some miles away? Did Capt. Kean blunder as many a man may do, and can it be proven that there was reasonable expectation of an approaching storm at the time when he sent those men away? When it comes to mere judgment by the senses as to coming bad weather, of course there is always a difference of opinion even among the most sagacious, or weather wise. But then the Captain of a ship has mechanical aid to his judgment. He has his barometer and thermometer to warn him. Did Captain Kean consult those instruments, and what were his grounds for expecting moderate weather to continue long enough to permit those men to rejoin their ship? How did he interpret the reading of the instrument? These are questions that must be probed."
AFTERNOON SESSION.
CAPT. A. KEAN (Continued), commenting upon the Telegram's article said he did not think the article was written because of any ill feeling on the part of the Editor or Proprietor of the Telegram against him, but must have been from survivors some comments as to his action, but whether publishing it before any evidence was taken is doubtful. To his mind the article could have but one effect on those whose friends were lost, and if there was blame on my part, they could only consider me a monster in shape of human. I want to remark as to my connection with the barometer and thermometer to which reference is made. I am fortunate from the fact that for the first time since I commanded a steamer the log was written by a man other than myself. Mr. Martin, Chief Officer of the ship in summer, wrote the log for me. After reading the article I asked Mr. Martin for his log and whether he had marked the reading of the barometer. He always did, and that day particularly, turning to the log I copied the reading of barometer and thermometer for March 31st and 2nd and 3rd April as follows: On March 31st, at 5 a.m. the barometer was 29.75, at noon 29.50, at 10 p.m. 29.40, which was the lowest register during that storm. The thermometer at 10 p.m. was 16 above zero. On April 2nd the barometer registered 29.30, the thermometer 39 above, so that on April 2nd, a fine day, the barometer was ten tenths below what it was on March 31st. On April 2nd, 20 10th lower than the day before, and at 4 p.m. on that day it was 28.95 with far less wind than we have here today. I have had considerable experience with a barometer, my earliest recollection being of one in my father's house. So far as the seal fishery is concerned the man who watches his barometer and only puts men on the ice when a fine days is indicated, he will soon have no ship with a barometer to watch. Scores of times during 28 years' experience, a barometer indicates good weather when we have had stormy, and often stormy when it was very fine, and unless for an exceptional high or low glass I would pay but little attention to it. With an exceptional high or low glass if we had men to go on ice out of sound of whistle, we would charge the men to be very careful. When crews are working seals near the ship would tell men if weather became thick and unusual, extra signals would be given. Have put men on ice in as bad weather as any man out there, subjected to as great risks, but up to date never seen a dead man, or one with a broken limb on board my ship. The article states that at noon, an hour after the men left my ship, the storm was on, or that this was the weather where the Beothic was. This would be no proof, if true, that we had such weather, for my experience on the coastal boat shows that often a storm of wind with rain or snow, at times hours ahead of a place only a few miles away. When I ordered the Newfoundland's men out on the starboard side of the ship it was because we always order men out on the lee side, because the ice is likely to be loose on the windward side, and a captain taking his ship into ice would order his men out where the ice was tightest. The seals these men were going to lay over on our starboard bow. There is more reason on board the Stephano for directing the men as to which side they shall go over, because from the stem of the ship to the first ladder is 38 yards, from the last ladder a distance of 52 yards. The only motive I had in ordering the men over the starboard side was to save them time and exertion, and I never treated the Newfoundland's crew any different to what I have always treated my own men when sending them out on ice. Should I forget to say which side I would soon hear from the deck which side, and no captain would want his crew to get over on the port side if the seals were on the starboard. (Witness's attention was drawn to the evidence that the Newfoundland's crew had to cross the Stephano's bow to the port side.) My ship's course was S.S.E. when I stopped. The seals to which I directed the men lay on my starboard bow. When I put the men on the ice I saw no seals on my port bow, but sent them on my starboard bow. After the crew got away I went full speed ahead with a port wheel, which would mean that in a short time they would be on my port bow, but that would be because the ship had turned. I have, after looking back, concluded that only one act of mine that day could have saved the unfortunate men, and that would be total indifference to them. If I had attended to my own work instead of going back for the Newfoundland's crew; if I had paid no attention to them, let them have their long tramp for nothing, they would probably have reached me between one and two, when they would have remained. I acted, however, with the best intention and motive for the men. By going back I was lessening their journey, by giving them food I was strengthening them for their work, and by taking them two miles nearer their own ship I thought they would be able to pan some seals and get aboard their ship before night. Wednesday morning the weather was very rough and the ice very tight. We made no attempt to do anything till late in the morning, when we went and picked up one of the Florizel's pans, and sent a message to her saying I have picked up your pans, you pick up what you see of mine and keep tally of them. Why do you coddle Corns?

Why soak them and pare them? It brings only brief relief.

Blue-jay will stop the pain instantly. It will end the corn completely, and in 48 hours. It is doing that to a million corns a month.

The chemist who invented Blue-jay solved the whole corn problem.

Apply it, and the corn is forgotten. It will never pain again. Gently the Blue-jay then loosens the corn, and in two days the corn comes out.

No pain, no soreness, no annoyance. And that corn will never need treatment again.

Old-time methods will not do this. Let no one claim they will. But Blue-jay does it, and has done it for sixty million corns.

Prove this to-night.

The Newfoundland Disaster Enquiry Before Judge Knight

During the day we picked up a few of our pans, but could not see much for stormy weather and wheeling of the ice. We picked up 8 or 10 pans and stopped at night a little to the N.N.W. of our position at 10 the night before. On Thursday a.m. the Newfoundland was about a mile and a half from us, about S.E. Shortly after daylight I learned that the Newfoundland had her ensign up. I told my men to run up our ensign, because I thought he would think me anxious about his crew, and run up his flag to let me know it was all right. I then found he had a ball up also to attract attention, but we could not see it. Shortly after the flags were hoisted down and a distress signal run up. We were jammed very tight, and I sent two men aboard to find out the trouble, going into the barrel and saw the distress signal. Shortly after the men came back and told us the same news, and that nine of his men were coming. I ordered my crew up, gave them stimulants, food, and every requirement obtainable, and told them to go to the Newfoundland for instructions. The Bellaventure was west of us. I wired and asked him to look out. The captain wired that he had two survivors on board, and reported a large number of men dead. When I got Capt. Rendell's message and knew where the men lay, I commenced butting to get my ship's head towards them, endeavoring to get men towards the Bellaventure, where they went. Shortly after I saw one man walking down who was conveyed to my ship, but much worse for all his exertions. I think he was Patrick Heary. Communication with Captain Rendell showed that all had been dead that I had suggested. Captain Rendell did noble work in connection with the rescue that day. We got our other live man over a distance of two or three miles, his name was Simon Trask. We also got two dead men, one Eli Keim, the other I don't know. We were all day getting about six miles with the heaviest butting I ever had, and then made for the Newfoundland, but could not reach her until after daylight Friday, when I went on board, got her articles, a list of the living on board; and then went on the Bellaventure, got a list of survivors there, with those on my own ship, transferred the dead to the Bellaventure, and sent my doctor on board the Bellaventure. There were 77 dead. The Newfoundland did not have wireless this year, but had four years ago. I think the tragedy would have been averted if she had wireless.

Capt. Wes. Kean watched his men until they got on board my ship, and then went below. He did not notice our actions afterwards, but thought if there was any quantity of seals I would put his men in them, and put up his crew for the night. With wireless I could have kept him informed, and he would have been looking for his crew, and by fires or other signals they might have seen on board that night, or I could have reached the other ships and all would have searched next morning.

To the Judge—The distance travelled by the Newfoundland's crew was by no means abnormal. When seals are scattered or lie in a narrow string if a ship is jammed, and the crew commence work a mile off, it would only be the work of two or three hours to work three or four miles away from the ship, but if the ship can move will work towards crew and provide dinner for them at noon. In my experience I have known men to be 5 or 6 miles from the ship when they left to come on board. The saving of seals to come to the Newfoundland would depend on the weather. A fine day they would try to get on board by 8 or 9 at night, otherwise be left. Almost every year whole watches working from their own ship board others for the night. This spring the Beothic had nearly 100 men of her crew on the Florizel one night.

To Dr. Lloyd—The captain of the Florizel only knew that I had taken the crew of the Newfoundland on board on Tuesday, but did not know that I had put them on the ice after seals. I had no message from him expressing any anxiety for the Newfoundland's crew, but when I went up to take my crew from the Florizel he called out "Did I have the crew of the Newfoundland on board, because if I had to tell some of them on board." We were close together at that time. The only message I sent to the Florizel was my last message in the evening on Tuesday in which I stated that I had carried the Newfoundland's crew and had placed them on a spot of seals (live) within three miles or four miles of their vessel, and that I had no doubt whatever about them reaching their own ship. That was the only message on that point that I had sent that day. I did not receive any message of enquiry on that point from the Florizel on Tuesday. There were no messages whatever on this subject sent or received by me on Wednesday at any time. I did not send out any messages on Tuesday evening after I had burnt down telling any other ship that I had been looking out for the crew of the Newfoundland, on the chance that they had been coming towards me, and that I had not come across them. I never expected to see them coming for me, but I did it as a matter of precaution for fear that they having stayed too long among the live seals and knowing that they would have to walk over the heavy ice to their own ship, they might prefer to come towards us because they would have a line of carcasses, and dogs, which would enable them to find us better, and I felt certain that over the ground that I covered and at the slow speed which I had gone, that if they had come towards me I could not have failed to have got them. I was then alongside the heavy ice at that time. The wind was E.S.E., blowing from the heavy ice towards me in the smaller ice. As a matter of fact the currents have more effect with the ice than the wind. On that night the smaller ice was packed tighter on the heavy ice than earlier in the day. Owing, no doubt, that the small ice extended in to the land, and a gale of E.S.E. on that big ice had a tendency to pack with the small ice and the big ice all together. My reasons for staying where I did on the evening of Tuesday on the plan marked 5 a.m. March 31st, where I burnt down for the night, being practically the place where I burnt down the previous night, was that I got as near to the edge of the big ice as possible and I wanted to keep as far to the windward as possible so that the sound from my whistle would be heard to leeward, and as near to the edge of big ice as possible, because I knew that if they were coming for me they would either follow the lines of carcasses or follow the edge of big ice, and I knew that no practical man would hold on panning seals after 2 o'clock that evening. If he had made for his own ship he would certainly have got on board of her as I thought. If he was waiting for us he would be bound to get the sound of our whistle. The big ice was an impassable barrier at this time. If I had thought that the Newfoundland crew had not reached their ship I could have reached the spot where I had dropped them off near the seals, but no further. Had I got there I could not have done any good because these men had gone long before that and got their own ship. If I had gone down to where I dropped the Newfoundland's men near the Stephanos' flag and kept my whistle blowing and followed up the edge of the heavy ice, and came apparently less than a mile from their morning track, they would not have heard the Stephanos' whistle.

Capt. Kean's examination was not concluded when the enquiry adjourned at 6 p.m. It will be resumed this afternoon.

The One to Own if You Can Own But One.

That is what a critical user of a "Globe-Wernicke" cabinet says of his equipment. Another says "It leaves nothing to be desired." Another says "So complete, yet so compact." Another "Perfectness as a fitting arrangement." Another "It is really indispensable." Another "A surprising advance in handling records." Another "A welcome improvement in office conditions"—and so on. The extensive sale of "Globe" filing cabinets in St. John's is by no means remarkable as the abundant evidence that it is on merit alone that these devices have earned such generous appreciation. For certain when you become a user you will be well contented with your adaptable and reliable outfit. Mr. Percie Johnson has your catalogue ready for the asking as well as other necessary details.

Elliston Mourns Her Sons.

Elliston is indeed plunged in mourning, for eight of her bread-winners, who but a few weeks before had gone forth in the full vigor of life now sleep in the little churchyard on the hill. Bitter was her sorrow as she laid them there. But the all-wise Controller of events will know how to comfort her—He who binds up the broken-hearted will be able to sustain her in the hour of her greatest affliction. Even in her sorrow her heart goes forth in sympathy to others who are in like manner bereaved.

A memorial service was held in the Methodist Church on the day when Reuben Crewe and his son Albert John, Benjamin Chaulk, Noah Tucker, Charles Cole, Alexander Goodland, William Oldford and Samuel Martin were laid to rest.

The Pastor, Rev. T. H. James, chose as his text, "Comfort ye, comfort ye, my people, saith your God." Isaiah 40th chap, verse 1, and endeavored to bring through God's messages, comfort to the heart-stricken people before him.

The main points of the sermon were as follows:—

(1) Some refuse comfort in the hour of their affliction, eg. Jacob and David; but generally speaking mankind in all ages have been glad to receive comfort. Lamech called his son's name "Noah" meaning "rest" or "comfort"; saying "This same shall comfort us concerning our work and our toil." Isaac was comforted after the death of his mother, Jacob, after the death of his wife, David, after the death of his son. The Jews came to comfort Martha and Mary concerning the death of their brother.

(2) God is the great source of comfort. The whole Trinity is engaged in the blessed work. God is the father of mercies and the God of all comfort. Jesus came to bind up the broken-hearted and comfort all that mourn. Isaiah 61st chap., verse 1-3; Luke, 4th chap., 18-20; John 14, 16, and 16-7. God can comfort through human agency. (Telegrams from former pastors and sympathizing friends were read.)

(3) Temporal blessings also a source of comfort. Abraham from his tent door saw strangers coming and entertained them with a "morsel of bread." The pastor was glad to say that in Elliston, the "morsel of bread" was brought to the newly-made widow and fatherless children.

(4) God can comfort through His Word. The psalmist said, "Remember the Word unto thy servant upon which thou hast caused me to hope." This was the pastor's comfort in his recent heavy affliction. Again when through genuine repentance of saving faith, the Gospel is received, the darkness scattered, the burden removed, the love of God shed abroad in the heart, the pardoned penitent can exclaim with Isaiah, "O Lord, I will praise Thee. Though Thou wast angry with me Thine anger is turned away and thou comfortest me."

(5) God can comfort through his ministers; the prophets Ezekiel and Isaiah were a comfort to the children of Israel; Timothy to the Thessalonians and Titus to Corinth.

(6) God can comfort his people through one another. 1 Cor., 14th chap., verse 3.

(7) God can comfort with the hope of meeting our loved ones again. Thess., 4th chap., verse 18.

(8) God can comfort with the hope of heaven. John 14th chap., verse 1.

After the close of the service the "Dead March in Saul" was played, and as the sweet solemn tones of the grand old march pealed forth, the congregation stood with bowed heads in reverence to these brave souls called home.

Many strong men shed tears as the long procession wended its way to the graveyard and consigned to kindly Mother Earth all that was mortal of their loved ones. Father and son, who slept their last long sleep in each other's arms, now sleep side by side in the one grave.

And there let us leave them—leave them to the infinitely merciful God who has led them through the deep waters safe home—safe home to port.

—G. J.

Building Healthy, Happy Youngsters

Thoughtful parents are finding out that a child's strongest hold on future success and usefulness is a strong body and healthy brain.

Body and nerve tissue, as well as brain cells, are formed from the food one eats.

It is clear, then, that to feed right generally means to be right.

Grape-Nuts

is made of selected wheat and malted barley, and contains all the rich nutriment of these greatest food grains, including the vital mineral salts (Phosphate of Potash, etc.) in just the right proportion, as grown in the grain.

When Grape-Nuts is selected, the greatest building food in the world is put to work, and the various parts of the body—bones, muscles, nerves and brain—can take up the particular kind of nourishment that each requires.

Grape-Nuts is an ideal food. It is scientifically baked, easy of digestion, and comes ready to eat direct from the tightly sealed package—fresh and crisp.

Children like the delicious flavour and thrive on Grape-Nuts.

Divorced Life

By Helen Hesong Fuesler

A Voice from the Past.

Marian had married Frank after a brief courtship, largely as a matter of convenience. She had met him during her second year at the State University. Twelve months later she yielded to his ardent importunations and married him.

The death of Marian's father and mother had thrown her at the age of sixteen on the hands of her only brother, Wellington. He lived in Seattle, where he dealt in real estate, and sent her monthly remittances to cover her expenses at boarding school, and later at college. In the midst of her college career, Wellington married, and announced with regret that his own heavier expenses would no longer permit him to furnish her with funds. He advised her to find work as a teacher, but she hated the idea and quickly dismissed it.

Such was the background of Marian Whthrop's decision to marry Frank Dething. He worked for one of the largest wholesale hardware concerns located in the state's largest city and had given her glowing assurances of swift promotion in his business. He wooed her with fervent letters. She liked his looks, manners, clothes, and the way he made love, and one blustering day in January they were secretly married.

They moved into a pleasant apartment house, and began the struggle to pay in monthly installments for the feathering of their nest. The first romantic glow of the tender adventure began wearing away and by degrees the youth's infatuation with his wife began to vanish, as is so often the case after muffled jingling of the wedding bells. His income advanced from $1,000 to $2,000 a year during the first year of their married life, but there it stopped abruptly. The golden future she had thought him capable of encompassing began receding from her visions. The monthly deluge of unpaid bills caused quarrel after quarrel, and led more than once to scenes upon which she based the charges of cruelty in her ultimate petition for divorce. Love soon fits out of the window in the face of an income incommensurate with the craving to spend invariably so when the marriage is one primarily for convenience.

Also, flocks of memories haunted the unhappy wife, memories of the genuine love she had felt for Bert McDonald, a law student at college. Had the web of circumstances not lifted her out of the path of her true inclinations, she would have waited for his establishment in the practice of law, and become his wife. She had always known that he cared deeply for her. She knew that when the time came, he would want to marry her. In time she had grown to regret poignantly the sense of panic which had driven her the other way. Musing over her misfortunes, she clothed Bert McDonald with all the attributes of the ideal, the perfect.

Musing over her misfortune, she clothed Bert McDonald with all the attributes of the ideal.

Since her divorce, he had come persistently into her thoughts. She wondered what had become of him, whether he ever thought of her any more.

One day she was called to the telephone. It was he. She thrilled. His voice went through her, carrying with it a strange, wild happiness, an excitement, a feeling of fluttering expectation. He was in the city for a few days on business, he told her. He asked whether she would accompany him that night to the theatre. Her senses swam as she accepted. The years which had intervened since she had seen him seemed to fade into a dim and troubled moment's dream. Once more the future, which had been gray and hopeless, blazed with radiant, blinding promise.

To be continued to-morrow.

GRENFELL HALL MEMORIAL SERVICE.

A large number attended the memorial service held on Sunday evening in the Grenfell Hall, including many men from the ships lying in the harbor. The service was conducted by the Superintendent, Mr. W. H. Jones, based his address upon Phil. 1:20: "Our conversation is in heaven," etc., and was listened to with rapt attention. The speaker pointed out that this life was connected with the future, the one could not be separated from the other, and he instanced the seasons and nature to illustrate this. The present life is to the future life as childhood is to mankind, spring to autumn, seed-time to harvest. At the close, Mr. Spry who had presided at the organ, played the Dead March in Saul, all present standing.

Special to Evening Telegram.
NEW YORK, April 13.—The four gunmen convicted of the murder of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler, died in the electric chair this morning.

NEW YORK, April 13.—None of the gunmen electrocuted to-day mentioned the name of Police Lieut. Becker, who was convicted of the murder of Rosenthal. One of the gunmen confessed his guilt.

SYDNEY, April 13.—On application of Frank Haynes convicted here recently of the murder of Ben Atkinson and sentenced to be hanged on May 8th, a revision of the case by the Crown has been granted.

ROME, April 13.—It is officially announced that Italy is determined not to restore the Aegean Islands to Turkey unless she obtains railroad and other concessions in Asia Minor. Turkey has been notified that she cannot get back the islands on any other terms.

NEW YORK, April 13.—President Bowne, of the Singer Co., gave $500,000 to the Easter offerings of St. John the Baptist Cathedral, Sunday, which will be placed as an endowment fund to the Cathedral Choir School. Bowne's condition was that he be elected a member of the choir, which was done forthwith.

MONTREAL, April 13.—The $5,000 forwarded already through the Bank of Montreal, to the sealing Disaster Fund, will be greatly increased during the next few days. The Board of Trade is actively raising funds, and Saturday night the Newfoundland Society of the city met to arrange for further contributions.

LONDON, April 13.—Members of the United Free Church of Scotland are manifesting great diversity of opinion with regard to the attitude the Church should take in connection with the Irish question. Three columns of the Glasgow Herald are devoted to the matter. Officials of the United Free Church are being assailed by many correspondents as being unsympathetic towards their Ulster Presbyterian brethren. One writer declares Presbyterians have not properly realized the iniquity the Government is about to perpetrate on Presbyterians in handing over Irish Protestants to the dominance of the Catholic majority and the tender mercies of the Ancient Order of Hibernians. This style of argument is met by other members who charge that Conservatives are themselves prelate-ridden, and that when in power they forced the hateful educational act upon the Non-Conformists of England, and also opposed every democratic measure contributing to the welfare of the people.

Killing Time.

J. Johnson Jinks has wealth to burn, though not a kopeck did he earn. His father croaked some years ago and left him in forty kinds of dough, and he has basked in gilded ease since he was lower than your knees. And life to him is bleak and drear, and every hour seems like a year. He does not work like useful boys, but buys new cars and other toys, and wears of their when they're bought, for nothing seems to reach the spot. He travels here and travels there, and finds new boredom and despair; his only task is killing time, and that's a nuisance and a crime. There's naught on earth will take the kinks from out the soul of J. J. Jinks, because he never learned to toil, nor had to make the kettle boil. I'd rather labor in the ditch than to be useless and so rich. This world is but a poor resort for any overloaded sport who tries to purchase cheap renown with wealth his old man handed down. I'd rather have one silver penny, that I have earned, that is my own, than have a bundle in my till, awarded by some dead one's will.

THE GREATER QUESTION

At this season of the year for Farmers with up-to-date ideas is, what are the best means to use to get the best returns from the land.

Fertilizers must be used liberally if large returns are looked for. There are several good chemical fertilizers which may be recommended, but Sulphate of Ammonia has been proved to give the best returns, and is the most valuable and economical source of Nitrogen for agricultural purposes.

For vegetables, grass, and all leafy crops, about one and a half cwt. per acre is the best quantity to use, and this should be applied when the plant is making its growth, as well as before sowing the seed.

If a liquid manure is preferred, a ¼ oz. of Sulphate to one gallon of water should be used, and applied once a week for a month. This quantity should not be exceeded.

It is a good plan to reduce the Sulphate to a fine powder, and mix with four or more times its own bulk, for the purpose of diluting the manure, which is very powerful.

For potatoes the following mixture is strongly recommended:—
40 lb. Superphosphate.
26 lb. Fine bone meal.
10 lb. Carbonate of Magnesia.
15 lb. Sulphate of Potash.
21 lb. SULPHATE OF AMMONIA.

1 cwt. Apply at the rate of 10 to 11 lbs. to 43 square yards.

The use of Carbonate of Magnesia, in conjunction with Sulphate of Ammonia, is of great importance in potato culture.

For turnips use the following:—
66 lb. Superphosphate.
13 lb. Fine bone meal.
13 lb. Sulphate of Potash.
20 lb. Sulphate of Ammonia.

1 cwt. Apply at the rate of 10 to 11 lbs. to square yards.

Sulphate of Ammonia of excellent quality is now made by the St. John's Gas Light Company, and may be obtained on very reasonable terms.

Full particulars may be obtained at the Gas Works, or at the Board of Trade Building. Ask for special booklet on the use of Sulphate, it will be found of great value in securing the heaviest crops.

How to Keep Three Servants

Mrs. Knaoll was greatly puzzled—and not without reason. The fact is she happened to meet Mr. Newlywed one morning as he was rushing to catch his train, and ventured, with her usual solicitude for other folks' affairs, to hope that Mrs. Newlywed wasn't having trouble with her servants.

"Oh, no!" said Mr. Newlywed. "We have got three!"

"Then he dashed off, leaving Mrs. Knaoll gasping. Three servants, indeed. Why, it was common knowledge in Suburbville that the Newlyweds were anything but rich. How in earth, then, could they afford to keep three servants? Mrs. Knaoll felt forced to call on the bride that afternoon to make investigations.

On his return home in the evening, Mr. Newlywed was greeted with this question:

"John, whatever made you tell Mrs. Knaoll this morning that we keep three servants?"

John smiled.
"Well, don't we, my dear?" he asked. "It seems to me that we always have one going, one coming, and one here."

Food For Thought.

This is the cheapest food in the world. Fill your thoughts for a while with insurance, unless you are already covered. No thinking man neglects this protection. Thinking insurance means thinking of Peter Johnson—and his low rates—and is prompt payment of claims. Why not ask for terms?—adv.tft

From St. George's.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—We, the members of Independence L. O. L., St. George's, wish to extend through your paper our sincerest condolence to those who have lost their loved ones in the Newfoundland disaster.

It seems to us that in the presence of their great grief silence is the only suitable offering. One only hopes an comfort them in their sad hours—the hope of meeting in the Great Beyond.

"Hope springs eternal in the human breast."
Though the ways of the Omnipotent may be incomprehensible to mortal man, yet what He wills is best. Let us therefore who have the needs of the sorrowing ones to heart see that they are properly cared for, and although some may not be able to contribute very much to the "Disaster Fund" yet the "Widow's Mite" is just as acceptable as the millionaire's million when given willingly. May it be said of the whole island, "She hath done what she could."

With our united kind regards and deepest sympathy,
INDEPENDENCE L. O. L.
St. George's, April 11, 14.

P.S.—We shall be sending a subscription to "Disaster Fund" as soon as possible.—I.
