 before purchasing a baking powder that may possibly contain injurious ingredients. Many food scientists claim that baking powder containing alum is unsafe for use in food. The mere fact that some brands of baking powder have the words "No Alum" on the label is not sufficient proof that they are what they are represented to be. Our chemists find a good many have "No Alum" on the outside but large quantities of it inside.

The Old Marquis

The Girl of the Cloisters

CHAPTER XXIX.
 A NYMPH OF THE WOOD.

"Perhaps I may," she said, smiling still. "But surely Lord Fane doesn't know the character of this horse!"

Lord Claxtone laughed aloud, then blushed.

"Why, it's his own horse! He has ridden him scores of times. The brute broke his leg and arm once, but Fane swore that he would master him, and when he got well he did!"

"It"—said Edith, and her pale face flushed slightly—"if I were a friend of Lord Fane—I mean a close friend—I should try and persuade him to give up the idea of riding the horse, and I would not rest until I had also got him to kill it!"

Lord Claxtone laughed.

"You don't know Fane as well as I do, Miss Drayton, that's evident. At any rate, nothing on earth would dissuade him from riding it" now. He knows that all of us have or will back him and the horse, and it would be a point of honor with him to ride the ree!"

"Quite so," asserted Lord Combermere. "Fane's the soul of honor. Look at his conduct over that Flyaway! He must have lost thousands over that. Refused to make himself safe even for a penny. Oh, he'll ride the brute, now he's promised to do so, if it costs him his life!"

Edith Drayton shuddered behind her sunshade. Like a flash of lightning she saw Clifford Revel's motive. "If it cost him his life!" Could there be any doubt that Clifford Revel hoped that the horse would vindicate its name and prove the assassin of the man who stood between Clifford Revel and the marquise?

Yet, what could she do? As she sat there, shuddering and burning by turns, she knew that they had spoken truly; that no man nor woman could turn him from his promise, from his word of honor. If ever she had hated Clifford Revel, she hated him at this moment.

A storm of dread and doubt and perplexity raged in her heart as they galloped through the beautiful shady lanes, now touching the banks of the silvery Thames, now winding through pine woods, and then climbing some steep and tree-crested hill.

They stopped at a small village to change horses, and while the grooms did their work with swift, deft movements, Lord Combermere mixed a champagne cup and insisted upon the ladies partaking of it.

Then they were off again, with the excitement of a fresh team and the refreshing cup. Lady Debenham woke up and grew talkative, Lord Combermere tried his hand at the horn, and all were enjoying themselves immensely, excepting the general, who found his work cut out for him by the fresh and skittish horses, and Edith, upon whose soul sat darkly the vision of Lord Edgar riding the horse named Assassin.

With several squeaks, with his reins in a fearful jumble, with the perspiration standing in huge drops, and with an inaudible thanksgiving, the general drove the coach into Pangley, and pulled up, safe and sound, at the door of the ivy-colored inn.

"Here we are!" exclaimed Lord Combermere, cheerily. "Now, ladies, I hope you're prepared to rough it. It will be quite the truly rural, you know! Claxtone, will you give Mrs. Drayton a hand?" And poor Claxtone, who had been fondly hoping that he might be permitted to assist Edith, turned obediently and as cheerfully as he could to her mamma.

Chatting and laughing they entered The Moorhen, and were met by the anxious and smiling landlady who, with a snow-white cap and apron, dropped innumerable courtesies, and led them into the best room.

"You got my telegram, I suppose?" said Lord Combermere.

"Yes, my lord," she said, "and I've done my best. I'm sorry—leastways for your sake, my lord—that some of my rooms are occupied. A young gentleman and his wife it is—"

"Oh, never mind!" cried Lord Combermere, pleasantly. "We shall do. Do not disturb yourself, Mrs. Jones, and I hope we sha'n't disturb them. Newly married, eh?"

"Yes, my lord," assented the landlady; and you won't disturb them at all. They are out nearly all day, and won't come home till dinner-time."

"When we shall all be gone. All right. Now, ladies, follow Mrs. Jones, and by the time you have got your bonnets off we will have luncheon ready; eh, general?"

The hampers and wine cases were carried from the coach into the parlor, and the cloth was soon laid. Lord Combermere was a capital caterer, and in addition to the dishes which are beloved by men, he had brought some sweets and an iced pudding for the ladies' delectation, and he and the general assisted—or imagined they did—in the arrangement of the table.

"Now, I call this a sensible way of doing things," said Lady Debenham. "I must say—to speak candidly—that if there is one thing I hate more than another, it is an ordinary picnic."

"Quite right," assented the general. "So do I. Had too many of 'em in service. I've picnicked on roast camel and moidy biscuits in Africa, and bear's hams and grasshoppers in America, also on stewed boot leather—that was in the Crimea—and I'm satiated with picnics. No, give me something decent to eat on a table, and a chair to sit on while I eat it, and I'm content."

"Now, you are to make yourselves comfortable, and we gentlemen are to wait on you," said Lord Combermere. "Clax, I'll get you to open that bottled beer, and give the general a glass to begin with. We must keep him in good form, or he won't be able to drive us back. Miss Drayton, will you sit here? Lady Debenham, you are expected to carve that ham."

It was very enjoyable; Edith would have been happy but for that carking care which never left her heart for a moment. But she could smile and laugh with the rest, and no one guessed how far her thoughts were from the scene—certainly not the young marquis, who enjoyed the felicity of sitting beside her, and who waited upon her with the devotion of a devotee for his goddess.

"This is one of the jolliest days I ever had in my life," he ventured to confide to her.

"It isn't over yet, Clax," said the general, who had overheard him. "There is plenty of time for you to fall into the river. You've ordered some boats, haven't you Combermere?"

"Yes," said his lordship. "And there's plenty of time to be pitched off the coach! Eh, general?"

There was always a certain amount of amiable chaffing between these two, the general affirming that Lord Combermere, who considered himself quite an up-river man, knew nothing about a boat; and Lord Combermere retorting by declining to believe that the general would ever learn to drive a four-in-hand properly.

Amid much laughter at the mutual good-tempered raillery the party left The Moorhen and strolled toward the River. They found some boats all prepared, and the usual verbal confusion arose on the question of who should brave the watery element and who should remain on dry land.

Most of the ladies, though they declared their ardent love for the water, remarked that they should only be in the way in the boats; and in the end Edith and one or two of the other girls got into a skiff, and the marquis and Lord Combermere took the oars.

"We'll row up the river to the island—it's an awfully jolly place. Clax, just see if they have put some champagne in, will you?"

It was a lovely afternoon, and the river looked at its best; from either bank the golden poplars and dark-robed yew trees towered toward the skies. Soon they reached a lock, with

WOMEN FROM NORTH, SOUTH, EAST, WEST

Recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as a Reliable Remedy for Woman's Ills.

Spokane, Wash.—"I want to recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for women's ailments as it helped me so much during middle age."
 —Mrs. MARY-BA CONNOR, 1027 Mansfield Avenue.

Ahliene, Texas.—"For almost a year I was unfit to do my work as I suffered so from female ills. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound restored my health after physicians had failed."
 —Mrs. E. E. OWENS.

Rockville, Conn.—"I suffered so long from female ills I was blue and melancholy. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound restored my health after everything else had failed."
 —MARY WIRZ, 3 Chamberlain St.

Oakland, Cal.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound gave me such relief during Change of Life, I wish every woman could know about it. I surely praise this great remedy for women's ills."
 —Mrs. MARY S. ABSELY, 1709 Dover Street.

The reason Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is so successful is because it contains the curative, strengthening properties of good old-fashioned roots and herbs, which act directly on the female organism.

its tumbling weir, over which the water rolled and frothed like silver in the sunlight; and presently they "made," as Lord Combermere put it nautically, the island.

There was an exclamation of delight from the ladies.

"Why, it is fairyland!" said Edith, forgetting in the pleasure of the moment her secret sorrow.

"Frettiest place in England!" declared Lord Combermere. "Now, Clax, help me to take the cushions out of the boat, we'll make a divan for the ladies under the trees."

They seated themselves in this "divan," as his lordship called it, and the marquis was made happy by being allowed to manufacture the champagne cup; then the two gentlemen lighted their cigars, and they were all very happy and quiet for a few minutes. At the end of that time some impulse prompted Edith to remark that she should like to see the weir, which stood at the further side of the island, and Lord Claxtone sprang to his feet, begging to be allowed to escort her.

"Don't let Miss Drayton go too near!" called out Lord Combermere as they started.

"I'll take care of Miss Drayton, you may depend upon it!" retorted the lad, boldly.

"I am depriving you of your well-earned rest, Lord Claxtone," said Edith as they made their way through the irregular avenue of trees.

"I wish I could say how very much I prefer to—accompany you than sitting idly there," he said, with a flush.

They reached a little open meadow running to the river bank, and came upon the weir; and Edith stood gazing at it in an abstracted mood, through which Lord Claxtone's voice broke fitfully and unmeaningly.

"Where was Lord Edgar now?" she wondered, and as she thought of what the answer must be, "With the fair girl whom he loved," a great wave of bitterness and pain flooded her heart, and she turned pale and sighed.

"Are you tired?" asked the lad, earnestly; his eyes had been fixed on her face, though she had forgotten him.

"I think I am, a little," she said, with a start. "The sun is not here in the open."

"And you have not brought your sunshade? How careless of me to forget it! If you will sit down and rest, I will run back and get it."

"Do not trouble," she said, half-heartedly, for she longed to be alone.

"I'll go at once," he said, obeying her tone rather than her words, and he set off.

She sat listening to the falling water for a few minutes; then, growing restless, rose and strolled onto the weir bridge; half unconsciously she crossed it, and found herself on the opposite bank, in the midst of a small plantation, which seemed so quiet and peaceful that she wandered on, still communing with herself, still asking the ever-recurring question, "Where is he?"

Suddenly she remembered young Lord Claxtone and his quest, and with a sigh turned to retrace her steps. As she did so she became aware of two persons who were strolling down a narrow path that led through the plantation to the river. Not caring to be seen alone, she drew back, and leaning listlessly against a tree, waited for them to pass.

Suddenly, so suddenly that the blood rushed to her face, she heard Lord Edgar's voice, and saw that it was he, and—yes, the girl who was leaning upon his arm, with her face turned up to his with rapt, loving gaze, was Lela Temple!

For a moment the sky seemed to grow all aflame to Edith; a hot wave of jealousy swept over her soul; white and motionless she stood, her hands clinched, her lips caught in her teeth, trying to regain self-possession; for she knew that they might see her, that she might have to speak and to smile as if nothing was the matter.

It was a moment of agony, but there was one of intense anguish in reserve for her.

"Shall we go back, dearest?" she heard Lord Edgar ask; "or would you like to go on to the weir?"

"One moment on the weir," replied Lela, and her voice, sweet and musical though it was, smote like some horrid discord on the listener's ear.

CANADA'S BUDGET—REDUCTION IN FAVOR OF FARMERS.

OTTAWA, June 5.

Sir Thos. White delivered his budget speech to-day. In his tariff proposal he referred to the fact that under the Customs' Tariff War Revenue Act, 1915, a British preferential tariff rate of five per cent. and an intermediate and general tariff rate of seven and a half per cent. was imposed with certain exceptions. We propose, he said, to wholly repeal this British tariff rate of five per cent.; further we propose to partially repeal the intermediate and general tariff rate of seven and one-half per cent. by making it no longer applicable to the following classes of articles: foodstuffs, linen and cotton clothing, woollen clothing, boots and shoes, fur caps and fur clothing, hats, caps, hoods and bonnets, gloves and mitts, collars and cuffs, hides, skins, leather harness and saddlery, agricultural implements, petroleum oils, mining machinery and bituminous coal. Sir Thomas announced that provision will be made for a reduction of five cents per pound in the British preferential intermediate and general tariff rates on roasted or ground coffee and three cents per pound under the British preferential tariff on British teas. Provision will be made for the free importation into Canada of wheat, wheat flour and

CANADA'S BUDGET—REDUCTION IN FAVOR OF FARMERS.

OTTAWA, June 5. Sir Thomas White delivered his budget speech to-day. In his tariff proposal he referred to the fact that under the Customs' Tariff War Revenue Act, 1915, a British preferential tariff rate of five per cent. was imposed with certain exceptions. We propose, he said, to wholly repeal this British tariff rate of five per cent.; further we propose to partially repeal the intermediate and general tariff rate of seven and one-half per cent. by making it no longer applicable to the following classes of articles: foodstuffs, linen and cotton clothing, woollen clothing, boots and shoes, fur caps and fur clothing, hats, caps, hoods and bonnets, gloves and mitts, collars and cuffs, hides, skins, leather harness and saddlery, agricultural implements, petroleum oils, mining machinery and bituminous coal. Sir Thomas announced that provision will be made for a reduction of five cents per pound in the British preferential intermediate and general tariff rates on roasted or ground coffee and three cents per pound under the British preferential tariff on British teas. Provision will be made for the free importation into Canada of wheat, wheat flour and potatoes from countries which do not impose a Customs duty on such articles grown or produced in Canada. He announced an alteration in the rates on soda ash from five per cent. under the British preferential tariff and seven and a half per cent. under the general tariff to a fifth of a cent a pound under the British preferential tariff and three-tenths of a cent a pound under the general tariff. There will be provision for specific instead of ad valorem rates of duty upon pig lead, zinc, spelter and copper ingots, including the seven and a half per cent. war duty production. Sir Thomas said the proposals would provide for a total production under the general tariff from 27 1/2 per cent. to 15 per cent. on cultivators, harrows, horse rakes, seed drills, manure spreaders and weeder, and from twenty-seven and a half per cent. to seventeen and a half per cent. on ploughs, wind mills, portable engines, traction engines for farm purposes, horse powers and threshing machines, separators. All parts and appliances are included. Provision is made for a total reduction from thirty-two and a half per cent. to twenty per cent. on hay loaders, potato diggers, fodder cutters, grain crushers, fanning mills, hay tedders, farm or road rollers, post hole diggers, swaths and farm waggons. In the case of cement, the war customs duty will be repealed and the general tariff rate reduced to eight cents per hundred pounds or a reduction of two cents from the general tariff rate. The total estimated loss in revenue, Sir Thomas placed at $17,000,000, and owing to the reduction in the total volume of imports due to diminishing purchasing power during the current year and probable decline in prices as well, he said the expectation was there would be a total loss in customs revenue for the present fiscal year of at least $25,000,000. To partially offset this loss and close the gap of the deficit of $15,000,000, between revenue and current expenditure, a heavy increase in income taxation was proposed. Sir Thomas anticipated in the future all corporations shall pay ten per cent. on their net income, in excess of $2,000. In the case of individuals it is proposed that the normal rate of four per cent. shall be levied on all incomes exceeding $1,000 but not exceeding $6,000, in the case of unmarried persons and widows and widowers without dependent children and upon all incomes exceeding $2,000 but not exceeding $6,000. In the case of all other persons a normal tax of eight per cent. will be imposed upon all incomes exceeding $6,000. The surtax will commence from $5,000 instead of $6,000 and shall increase by graduation applying firstly to incomes between $5,000 and $6,000 and to every $2,000 between $6,000 and $100,000. Upon incomes in excess of $100,000 increased rates are levied. The Business Profits' War Tax will be renewed for the current calendar year so as to make it apply to accounting period ending on or before December 31, 1919. The rates of the Business Profits' War Tax will be as follows: Any business having a capital of $25,000 and over but less than $50,000, profits in excess of 10 per cent. to be taxable at 25 per cent. thereof; a business with a capital of $50,000 and over exempted from incorporated companies, seven per cent. other than incorporated companies 10 per cent.; profits in excess of exemption but not exceeding Orders Is Orders. (From the Boston Transcript.) Strict orders had been given at a children's masquerade in Auckland that no adults were to be permitted to enter. Everything went well until an excited woman appeared and demanded admittance. "No adults, ma'am," said the constable. "You can't go in." "But I must go in," persisted the woman. "My little girl is taking the part of a butterfly and she's gone without her wings." The constable wrinkled his forehead and tried to think if any official regulations covered a case like this. "Orders is orders, ma'am," he said at last. "We'll have to let your little girl go on as a caterpillar."

POWDER EXPLOSION. WILKESBARRE, June 5. From 75 to 100 miners were killed and many injured here to-day when a car of black powder attached to a train of cars on which the men were riding exploded. An electric motor drew the cars, and when the trolley wire broke sparks ignited the powder.

WANT ALIENS EXPELLED. WINNIPEG, June 5. Mayor Gray was informed to-day that a parade of several thousand soldiers intended to march to the Trades and Labor Council, force an entrance if necessary and demand that all aliens be ousted from Winnipeg. The soldiers objected to remarks made yesterday by James Duncan, a Seattle Labor leader. The Mayor counsels caution. The city to-day took over the distribution of milk and arranged for bread distribution if necessary.

A TRIBUTE TO SEAMEN. LONDON, June 5. (Via Reuter's.)—One of the greatest days of the Peace Celebration in London will be the tribute on the Thames to the Mercantile Marine, when 1,300 boats, manned by merchantmen and decorated with flags, will form a pageant from the Tower Bridge to Chelsea. It is hoped that on this occasion all London will be singing, led by choirs of 50,000 trained voices located along the river embankments. Thirty bands have been arranged for, and the decorations of the shores, bridges and string of barges will be of a kind never before attempted in the history of the Thames.

Three Little Scraps of Islands.

Admiral Sims, on his return to the United States, paid a glowing tribute to the British Grand Fleet, which, he said, was the foundation-stone of victory. He spoke for an hour, ably, convincingly, and wittily, and regretted that most of his countrymen even now did not realize that "those little scraps of islands, whence the Pilgrim Fathers sailed, had accomplished a world's work for the life of which one might search history in vain; and they had been doing it three years before the United States came into the war."

Boiled Devilish, Please

The Fishing Gazette:—There is no accounting for tastes, and that is being shown every day in the week in some sphere of life. In the fish industry, one has only to turn to those persons whose chief delight is to gorge themselves with a dish of devilfish. Some persons call it devilfish; in the east it is sometimes classed as sea-cat, while in the waters of the Gulf of Mexico, where it is sometimes taken in large quantities, it is called octopus or octopel. It makes very little difference what the name may be, the fish is considered a delicacy by Italians, Greeks, Japanese and Chinese. Five or six years ago devilfish sold in Vera Cruz markets for about 35 cents a pound. Now, with the additional high cost of living, it is bringing higher prices, sales during the present week being made at 75 cents a pound, wholesale. Who says fish is high in price when the devilfish brings more money in the wholesale market than any other variety outside of Kennebec salmon when it first comes to market?

A New Coat of Arms.

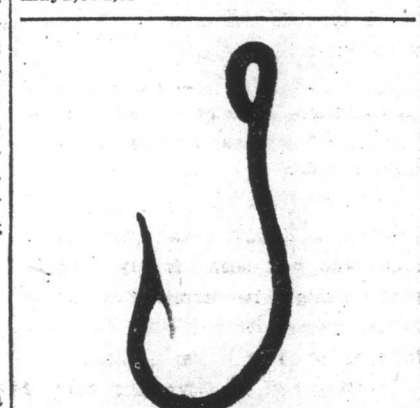

The Canadian Government is considering adopting a new coat of arms for the Dominion—one which shall represent all the provinces in the Confederation. The present coat of arms is representative of Ontario, Quebec, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick only, for those were the original provinces; and since it was adopted, in 1858, Prince Edward Island and British Columbia have entered the Federation, Manitoba has been constituted, and finally Saskatchewan and Alberta have been carved out of what were the Northwest Territories. When a design emblematic of these nine provinces has been chosen by the committee and approved by the Government it will be submitted to the Royal College of Heraldry in England to be registered. A royal warrant declaring it the official arms of Canada will then be issued.

An Epic Adventure.

(From the London Advertiser.) It would be a simple matter to prove that Hawker's hop was foolish and unnecessary. Christopher Columbus, when he took a famous chance, came in for a lot of criticism and ridicule. His proposal to search out the unknown west was called silly, unessential. The same charge, in a large degree, might be laid against Peary, Amundsen, Stanley, Scott, Shackleton, and the others who overcame appalling obstacles and barriers of nature, but these men nevertheless have won imperishable fame and honor, not so much for what they discovered or proved, as for their spirited defiance of death and danger. Their ventures, whether they were successful or not, are an eternal inspiration to endeavor and achievement. Amongst these heroes who have blazed the way to fresh conquests of nature, Hawker and Grieve will hold a place in the front rank. Like Scott's tragic dash across Antarctic wastes, Hawker's attempt to leap the Atlantic will remain an epic adventure in the memory of men, his dauntlessness a shining demonstration of the indomitable spirit of the race.

Closing of Legislature.

SPEECH FROM THE THRONE.

Yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock the 8th Session of the 23rd General Assembly of Newfoundland was closed with the usual ceremonies, and in the presence of a large gathering of citizens.

Drawn up in the Square fronting Colonial Building were detachments of the Royal Newfoundland Regiment, Terra Nova Constabulary, with I. G. Hutchings in Command, Field College Corps C. L. B. and Newfoundland Highlanders. The C. L. B. Band was present and played the National Anthem, as His Excellency the Governor, accompanied by Capt. J. Hamilton, Private Secretary and Lieut. Baird, A.D.C. and escorted by Head Constable Noseworthy and Sergeant Savage (Mounted Police) arrived, the general salute being given and acknowledged.

At the entrance to the Assembly the Governor was met by Hon. the President of the Council, and conducted to the Throne, those in attendance being the Sheriff, A. D. C.'s, Lieuts.-Col. Rendell and Bernard of the Regiment, Commander and officers H. M. S. Britton, there being also present the Judges of the Supreme Court and Judge Morris of the Central District Court. Following the assumption of the throne by His Excellency, Black Rod was commanded to summon His Honour the Speaker and members of the Lower House to the Bar. On their appearance, the Speaker, W. J. Higgins, Esq., read a joint resolution from both branches of the Legislature in appreciation of the services of our soldiers and sailors during the war, and requested His Excellency to submit the same to the proper authorities.

The Governor very feelingly acknowledged the token of appreciation, and referred fittingly to the many gallant deeds of our heroes in khaki and blue, regretting that their gallantry and nobleness had cost so many precious lives. He promised not only to forward the resolution to the local authorities, but as well to those across the Atlantic, who already had shared in the appreciation offered.

His Excellency next read the following:

SPEECH FROM THE THRONE.

Mr. President and Honourable Gentlemen of the Legislative Council:

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the Honourable House of Assembly:

The circumstances in which this session of the Legislature is closed are entirely different from those which were anticipated when I opened it on the 2nd April. The events which led to the change are so recent and well known that it is unnecessary to refer to them further; but they have enabled my new Ministers to put forward some measures of pressing importance.

The assiduity with which you have discharged your Parliamentary duties enables me to release you from sessional attendance after the completion of a large amount of legislation of importance and usefulness.

Many of the matters which have engaged your attention within the past two months may be considered as of great moment to the future of Newfoundland, and I sincerely hope that the results of these enactments may prove of commensurate advantage to the community.

It is gratifying to find that the financial credit of the Dominion abroad stands so high that it proved possible only a few days ago, to raise the greater portion of the Loan, for which provision was made by the measure to which I have already given my assent, on terms more advantageous than any previous Loan in its history. It must be equally satisfactory to the people to know that the results of the fiscal operations for the current year give promise of a Surplus of Revenue of nearly two million dollars, while the decision to place this to the credit of the Treasury as a Reserve Fund for emergencies in the future cannot but commend itself to the judgment of all prudent citizens.

It is common knowledge that the recent condition of the Railway has raised a serious question as to the duty of the Government in respect of it. There has been a great deal of exaggeration in the public press but the questions raised are full of difficulty and it has so far seemed to my Ministers wiser to study the matter during the present summer and leave a new House of Assembly to deal with it after the elections.

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the Honourable House of Assembly: I have to thank you for the liberal Supplies which you have been pleased to grant for the Public Service. They shall be dispensed with all the economy compatible with the efficiency of our institutions.

Mr. President and Honourable Gentlemen of the Legislative Council:

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the Honourable House of Assembly: Once more I take occasion to welcome back most heartily our sailors and soldiers from their service overseas. These gallant fellows, having secured a future of good citizenship in the safe peace their valor has done so much to establish, deserve not only our best thanks, but also every material consideration we can afford them. Their deeds will illumine the pages of history for all time. In this hour of rejoicing, however, let us not forget their comrades who did not return, those who died that we might enjoy the security of to-day. Our hearts turn to them and to those loved ones who mourn their absence, and our prayer should ever be that we may prove worthy of the great heritage they fought so bravely to preserve for us.

With the return of the World from the paths of war and desolation we have manifold reasons, far removed as we are from the theatre of hostilities, to be grateful to a merciful Providence, who so bountifully dowers us with the treasures of sea and land, and to whom we now look with humble confidence to bestow upon us, as upon the rest of the world, the inestimable benefit of a just and lasting peace.

In bidding you farewell, at the close of what will be the last session of the present Parliament unless extraordinary circumstances intervene, I sincerely pray that the blessing of the Almighty may rest upon your collective and individual endeavours for the advancement of the true interests of Newfoundland.

The Man Who Banished Corns

Blue-jay was invented by a scientist of distinction, by a man whose lifetime has been spent in the study of surgical dressings.

This is a master's method—correct, complete and efficient. And the millions of people who know it, never think of enduring a corn.

All in One

The first step is to stop the pain. This is done by removing all pressure—by the soft protecting ring marked A.

The next step is to gently cause the corn to disappear. This is done by the remarkable B & B Wax, which no corn can resist.

This bit of wax—marked B—is centered on the corn. It cannot spread. So, unlike old-time methods, it acts on the corn alone.

C is rubber-coated adhesive. This snugly wraps the application, protecting everything.

You apply this Blue-jay in a jiffy. The corn stops at once. The wrapping is comfortable and you forget it.

In two days you remove it and the corn can be lifted out. Only rare corns need a second application.

This is the scientific way, the easy, sure and right way to end corns. You will never return to any wrong method when you try a Blue-jay once.

Try it tonight!

Germany's Commercial Offensive.

Germany's official week of national mourning to impress the world with a display of utter dejection at the revelation of peace conditions excited amusement in some quarters, while in others it has merely added to the contempt for absurd and clumsy posturing that has made Berlin ridiculous ever since the war began. Some shrewd observers, however, point out that with all the maudlin melancholy that characterizes the Germans from Count Brockdorff-Rantzau down the Teuton authorities are very busy at their old game of propaganda, and trade penetration in foreign countries, notably in Spain, South America, the United States, Holland, and Switzerland. Many concerns are said to be sailing under false colors by doing business as an enterprise not of German ownership. That Germans are active in propaganda in the United States we are assured by various French journals, and in the Paris Liberte General Taurieb, who commanded the 37th Division of the French Army in a brilliant manner, is quoted as warning the French Government and people against German efforts to keep up constant friction among the Allied and Associated Powers. The general made this statement after two months' travel in the United States, during which time he was able to disprove the allegations of Germany against France, but he admits there is always left a modicum of doubt in the mind of the credulous. His opinion is that it is necessary for the French to use every means at their command toward a perfect understanding between the people of the United States and of France as a bulwark against the insidiousness of German rumor, report, and suspicion. A Madrid correspondent of the Paris Matin advises us that whereas there were 20,000 Germans in Spain in 1913, in 1918 there were 100,000, all busy in an effort to colonize the country.—Literary Digest.

RUTH CAMERON

"I like her so much better than I used to," a friend said to me of a mutual friend whom she had seen after an absence of several years. "she's improved a great deal."

"In what way?" I asked. She reflected a minute, evidently trying to analyze the change. "I think," she said finally, that if I had to express it in one word I should say she was more self-contained."

I like that word "self-contained" and I like what it connotes. Don't you?

Some of the Things That Word Means.

It means so many things. For one thing it means that one learns not always to speak out the minute one has a thought, if that minute is not the right minute. One learns instead, to keep the thought or emotion inside one's self until the right time for voicing it comes.

The person who is self contained also learns not to make snap judgments. Instead, he holds the facts in solution inside himself and lets them gradually crystallize into judgments.

Consuming Your Own Smoke.

There is a fine phrase which I read many years ago and which has come to me often to remind and encourage (what a big influence such chance phrases have on our lives—tell me yours someday). It is "Learn to consume your own smoke." It means, I take it, to be self contained in respect to burning up your own worries and ill humors and impatience inside yourself and making strength of character out of them instead of belching them forth as smoke of complaint and irritability to darken the landscape.

She Kept None of Her Thoughts or Emotions In.

The other evening I happened to be sitting on a hotel veranda while two young girls of eighteen and their boy friends were playing ping pong.

One girl, while quite pretty, has never been very popular, boys flock to her but tire as easily. The other girl, though plain, is one of the most popular girls in the town. After watching that game I understood at least one reason for what had puzzled me before. For the pretty girl tired me even in my casual position as spectator by her manner. She laughed, talked and moved continually, she was perpetually apologizing for taking a ball that should have gone to her partner, every time she missed a ball she said, "Sorry," every time any one made a good shot or a bad one she had some comment to make. Not one of her thoughts or emotions were kept inside herself, they all flew to the surface.

If the other girl missed a ball, she let us take it for granted that she was sorry, she played without the other's swift, jerky motions (but quite as well); she talked little, often making a smile do duty for an answer. In short she was poised and self contained.

Of course this virtue like any virtue may be carried too far and become unnatural reticence and self repression. But how many do you know who err on that side?

Experience Should Teach.

Influential interest at Versailles are attempting to "save Constantinople" for the comfort of the Moslem population of the empire engaged in the treaty-making, forgetting evidently, that the saving of Constantinople in times past perpetuated conditions in the Near East that had much to do with the recent world war. More than forty years ago Great Britain kept the Turk in Europe for imperial reasons, and it has paid for it dearly since then.—New York World.

Paintings on the Cheap.

Brushes Will Soon Be Obsolete. The greatest spring cleaning on record is going on. True, all through the war households have swept and washed as usual, but since paint was scarcer than sugar—and dearer—the usual spring painting has been left undone, and now everyone is trying to do four years' painting in one.

When one talks of painting one always thinks of a pot of paint and a brush. The brush, however, except as a tool for the artist, is fast going out of fashion. In all big workshops, in railway sheds and shipyards, painting is done by compressed air.

The spraying plant is not expensive. $25 to $40 covers the spraying apparatus, air compressor and all, and sprays don't wear out like paint brushes.

By the use of the spraying machine one man can do the work of ten with brushes, and so cleverly made are the new device that a skilled man can paint a sign, a show card, even a picture, as well as do all sorts of decorative work by means of the spray, with fine nozzles.

COMMON CARE.

Rain and shine and joy and woe
Everybody here must know;
No one ever went through life
And escaped the touch of strife;
No one ever lived and died
But has had his courage tried
And has suffered grief and pain
Care's as common as the rain.

Yesterday I shed some tears,
And the joy of all the years
Seemed to me was fading fast
But to-day the storm has passed.
I am smiling once again,
Peace has driven away the pain
From the heavy clouds of doubt
I have seen my sun shine out.

In the hospital to-day
One there was whose face was gray,
Gray with anxious care, and he
Pitifully looked at me
As he paced the corridor
With his eyes upon the floor.
What he suffered well I knew,
I had walked and waited, too.

I had lived those hours of care,
Paced, as he was pacing there.
But a day or two before
I had walked that corridor
And it struck me as a blow
That a common thing is woe!
Day to day some hearts are torn
By the cares that must be borne.

Hawker is a Hero.

Washington, May 29.—"Hawker is none the less a hero because he failed to fly from Newfoundland to Ireland," said Major Gen. Charles T. Menoher, Director of Air Service. "He displayed the daring and skill required for the attempt. It will not be long before a plane makes a successful flight across the North Atlantic. Hawker's experience will be highly valuable to others and to him if he makes a second attempt."

Gen. Menoher said that for the present the army air service is not considering a transatlantic flight. "We would do well to first fly an equal distance over land without stop," he said.

Greek Wedding Customs

At the marriage in London of Mr. Asquith's daughter to Prince Antoine Bibesco, Secretary of the Roumanian Legation there, the old Greek marriage rites were followed. It was a singularly pretty wedding, performed in the old Greek church and surrounded with the romance of Greek happiness as expressed in Greek symbols. Some of the rites were the blessing and exchange of the rings, drinking from a golden cup, and encircling the wedding table by holding hands round it. In the limousine of the bride and bridegroom were two white doves bearing love messages on ribbon of the colours of Roumania.

More Attempts.

Canadian Aviator and U. S. Aviator to try.

New York, May 28.—Capt. J. Erroll Boyd, Canadian aviator, who although shot down by German anti-aircraft guns while flying over Zebruggen, managed to avoid capture by guiding his plane into Dutch territory, where he was interned October 2, 1915, announced himself here to-day as an entrant in the race of the London Daily Mail's $50,000 non-stop trans-Atlantic flight prize. Capt. Boyd said he will leave for Newfoundland by the middle of June.

Chicago, May 28.—Ruth Law, aviator, before leaving for New York to-day announced that she plans to attempt a trans-Atlantic flight within six weeks. She will use a new Curtiss land biplane equipped with two Curtiss-Kirkham motors of four hundred horse-power each, and will be accompanied by James Lamont, her mechanician.

In Memoriam.
WILLIAM LUNDRIGAN.
It is with deepest feelings of regret and sympathy, that we chronicle to-day, the death of one of our most highly esteemed and respected residents, in the person of Mr. William Lundrigan at his home in Peter's River on Monday morning May 19th, 1919. Although deceased had reached the old age of eighty-four, yet his death came unexpectedly, as he succumbed to his pangs after but one week's illness. "Uncle Bill" (as he was familiarly called by neighbours around) was regarded with sentiments of affection and esteem, by all who had the pleasure of knowing him. He was one of those old type of fishermen, who could thrill the feeling of his listeners, with the rehearsal of some old time experiences; as well as amuse them with a comic story. He had a great love for books and there was no happening great or small, foreign or local, escaped his notice, and it was a pleasure alone to hear him relate such events. For many years he acted as guide to the sportsmen, who visited Peter's River and he was a help to all travellers, his aid will be sorely missed, as his house was open to one and all who came his way, and wherever he could assist a fellow man he was never found wanting. Deceased was a good living man, and when news of his death was circulated, men knew a kind, helpful spirit had passed away, for his kindness was everywhere displayed, and he was everywhere respected, and he was a resident in Portland, Maine, besides visiting many other places on the American Continent. Mr. Lundrigan leaves to mourn him a wife, three daughters—Mrs. Harding and Mrs. Boncha living in U. S. A. and Mrs. Captain William McDonald at New Bridge, Salmon Falls—three sons, John, William and Alphonso, also residing in U. S. A. and Tobias, and an adopted son, Alphonso, at home, besides several grandchildren, and a large circle of friends and relatives. To one and all the sympathy of the community is extended.

Newfoundland Politics.

For some time there have been signs that Newfoundland's war government was not as happy a political family as it might be, says the Montreal Gazette. Lord Morris resigned the premiership as a result of conditions personal as much as political, it seemed, and Sir William Lloyd undertook to carry on. The cessation of the war removed the cement that held the section together, and when Sir William Lloyd returned from the Peace Conference it was to preside over a divided political family. At the beginning of April it was stated that an immediate dissolution of the legislature and a general election had been resolved on. A sudden change was made in the programme, but it was not followed by satisfaction. Sir Michael Cashin, the minister of finance, precipitated the crisis. He made his budget speech last week and presented a record creditable alike to the government and the colony, and that should have helped to strengthen public confidence. The conditions, however, making for disruption, however, Mr. Coaker, who has been strong with the fishermen, was a disturbing influence also, and Sir William has thrown up the responsibility that goes with the premiership. In Newfoundland, though there are no marked issues separating the parties, the feeling runs strong and the discussions are warm if not broad. An election will clear the atmosphere and probably do no harm to any but personal interests—Sydney Record.

Neptune Disabled.

Messrs. Job Brothers and Co. have received a message from the Captain of S. S. Neptune advising that ship's main shaft is broken. The steamer's position is 30 miles S.E. of Straits Belle Isle. It is understood that the vessel will be sent to the rescue unless the former can get in touch with S. S. Thetis by wireless from Cape Race.

The Neptune was bound to the Straits harbors with summer fishing crews and left Trinity a few days ago.

Small Quantity, Better Quality.

The Bay St. George Spring herring fishery is over and is the smallest in twenty years, being only about six thousand barrels, less than half of that of last year. The fish were plentiful, but the fishermen got together, a correspondent writes us from Sandy Point, and decided not to handle any more than they could put away in good shape, so as to ensure a good pack. Consequently some of them packed only a quarter the quantity they had provided for—Western Star.

White Lights of Peace.

(From an English Paper.)
An endless chain of blazing lights from John O'Groats to Land's End will flash their welcome message of "Peace; good-will on earth" on the day officially fixed for the celebration of peace. The lofty crags of the Grampian range will pass the news, Scafell Pike will catch it up and send it south in a fire of glory till the Devonshire peaks answer; and, finally, out to sea mariners of the Cornish Coast will know the measure of Britain's triumph. In a house where Wordsworth lived and in a room which Coleridge used as a study, Canon H. D. Rawnsley, hon. secretary of the Central Committee of Peace Celebration, Beacon and Bonfire, told me how Great Britain will be lit up with flares on Peace-night. "And the red glare on Skidaw roused the burghers of Carlisle," he quoted from Macaulay's "Armada." "Just as our beacons," said Canon Rawnsley, "in time of peril told in red the approach of danger, so every height on Peace-night will burn the white light of safety. I have received from local peace celebration committees over 600 applications from every part of the United Kingdom for Dover flares, rockets, handlights, which have been put at the disposal of the public by the Admiralty and the War Office." Not only in Great Britain but throughout the British Empire flares will be lit, the Overseas Club co-operating and organizing a chain of fire around the British Empire and in British communities in foreign land. From the shores of far-flung Alaska to the southernmost peak of New Zealand the signals will herald the dawn of a new world.

PRESENTATION TO GUESTS.
At the Casino Theatre, last night the G.W.V.A. extended a hearty welcome to Mr. E. R. Morris, O.B.E., and Regimental Sergt-Major MacKay, M.S.M. The entertainment took the form of a smoking concert, which was very enjoyable, and the various performers were warmly applauded. In the interval between the concert parts, the executive came on the platform, and President Mitchell invited the guests to come on the stage, which they did, amidst great applause. Capt. L. C. Murphy addressed the meeting, in which he paid tribute to Mr. Morris's great kindness to the maimed and wounded in the wards at Wandsworth Common, and spoke feelingly of Sergt-Major MacKay, and the regard in which he was held by the boys in the regiment. "We couldn't bring over Newfoundland to MacKay," said Capt. Murphy, "so we brought MacKay to Newfoundland." President Mitchell then presented Mr. Morris with a handsome set of antlers, and Sergt-Major MacKay with a mounted white coat. Mr. Morris acknowledged the present and gave the meeting a message from Col. Sir Bruce-Porter, who said that he never wanted a better group of men under his command in the hospital than the boys from the Ancient Colony. Sergt-Major MacKay made a very happy speech, in which he expressed pride of the regiment. He joined "Ours" in Edinburgh Castle in 1915, and during his service with them for four years and 75 days, he had seen many of their fine qualities. His speech made a fine appeal, and was full of sincerity. The right note was struck when the C.L.B. band played "Auld Lang Syne," and "Will you no' come back again," when the audience rose en masse and cheered lustily. A very impressive feature of the evening was the silent tribute paid to "absent friends" when the whole gathering stood to attention at the request of the President. Lieut. Bert Noseworthy acted as accompanist, and the full programme is appended:

Disorderly Streets.

During the last couple of nights, there has been much disorder on New Gower Street and much more drunkenness than usual. The latter has been more evident than in prohibition days, and whether the misguided men are indulging in dope or the other kind, it is impossible to say. The police, however, hold that the dope is playing the heavier part, and frequently are eye-witnesses to many of our young men consuming it. One of the fiends arrested a few days ago, said he had been drinking essences for two weeks, and had spent a large amount of money in their purchase. It is high time that the promiscuous selling of such be stopped, and the police given sufficient authority to act in the premises.

Regimental Dinner.

On Tuesday night the Warrant Officers and Sergeants of the Royal Nfld. Regiment and their friends will tender a dinner to Regimental Sergt-Major MacKay at Smithville, when it is probable covers will be laid for 250 guests. Invitations have been issued to many who have been connected with the formation and conduct of the regiment locally and the event promises to be a big one in the annals of the regiment.

Not Enough Wind.

(From the Farm and Home.)
Everything in the dear old village seemed the same to Giles after his absence of four years as a prisoner of war in Germany. The old church, the village pump, the ducks on the pipes while the women talked—it was so restful after the treatment he had received at the hands of the enemy.
Suddenly he missed something. "Where's Hodge's other windmill?" he asked in surprise. "I can only see one mill, and there used to be two."
The native gazed thoughtfully around as if to verify the statement. Then he said slowly:
"They pulled one down. There weren't enough wind for two of 'em!"

Across the World the wireless flashes fast,
They're found, our bold adventurers, at last!
Not yet the miracle... but for these men
The sight of home, the joy of love again!
Not yet they win the guerdon of success,
But ah! The World rejoices none the less!
For life and love and laughter—these are sweet;
And crowds that cheer you, glad young lips that greet...
And if another win to victory
And span that void of timeless timeless sea.
Yet ye have blazed the trail! High-hearted, bold,
Beyond the fear of Space and Depth and Cold,
Confronting Death in his most dreadful guise,
Such courage brings the tears to countless eyes!
It spurs our flagging spirit, lifts the will,
Renews our lagging faith and hope until
We, too, find haven, chance to start again,
And will to conquer with sword, wing, or pen...
Forever courage sows its deathless seed,
And they who venture ride a winged steed,
And all the World is braver for the deed!
—Elizabeth Newport Hepburn, in the New York Times.

At the City Hall.

The Municipal Council held its regular weekly session last evening. The Mayor presided and Councillors Morris, Tait, Brownrigg, Mullaly and Ayre were present. After reading of minutes, etc., the following matters were disposed of:
The Inspector General wrote that he had detailed Sergt. Long for duty in connection with motor cars the coming season.
The Inspector General also stated that the gasoline tank proposed to be installed by Mr. Dodd, Catherine Street, was of a satisfactory type. Permission was ordered to be granted for the installation.
The Inspector General also made some suggestions regarding the numbers of motor cars. It was ordered the Inspector General be thanked for the suggestions offered and that they would be adopted for next season.
The Solicitor reported on the resolution of the Council regarding provision for payment of half of the motor fees by parties living outside the district of St. John's. He said he was of opinion the Council could make such a resolution.
A letter was read from Justice Johnson on behalf of the Dickinson Memorial Committee asking for an option of the triangular open space at the foot of Garrison Hill for the erection of a memorial to the memory of Nurse Ethel Dickinson. He will be asked what area of land will be required for the erection of the monument.
The Secretary of the Gas Co. wrote stating that attention had been given to the gas lamp at the junction of King's Bridge and Circular Roads.
A petition was read from the residents of Barnes' Road, protesting against the proposed erection of a dwelling house in that locality.
The Secretary of the Nfld. Methodist Education Campaign Committee asked for permission to erect a bulletin board by the iron fence near the Post Office. Granted, as far as the jurisdiction of the Council extends.
A. E. Chown asked that a sidewalk be built opposite his house, 100 Le-Marchant Road. The Engineer was authorized to improve conditions here as far as possible.
J. J. St. John applied for permission to build a bridge over the drain opposite his residence, Freshwater Rd. The Engineer will see how the drain can be graded here, as bridges can not be allowed.
Plan of garage for E. Gittleton, Le-Marchant Road, was approved.
Approval was also given to plan of house for S. Penney, Quidi Vid Road.
J. C. Strong's plan of dwelling, Le-Marchant Road, was held over.
Thomas Drover submitted plan of Visitors See Ropewalk.

A visit to the Ropewalk was paid yesterday by Brothers J. A. Craig and R. M. McKay, the distinguished members of the I. O. O. F. who are at present in the city. They were shown through the plant by Messrs. J. H. Monroe and F. Alderice and were highly pleased with the work done there. To-day they will visit Bell Island accompanied by members of the local lodges.

New Relief For Constipation, "LES FRUITS"

Physicians agree that with the modern habits of living, constipation is likely to be always with us. They also agree that the constant use of any drug for the relief of constipation is exceedingly unwise—unwise for two reasons. First, a drug constantly used loses its effect and requires a constantly increased dose. Second, because the constant use of any drug is bad anyway.

So the cry is constantly going up from the constipated, "What can we do?" It will be interesting to a great many to know that an answer has been found in the re-discovery of a method which was used with great success by our Forefathers, and in Arabia far back in the twelfth century. The food is called "Les Fruits" because it is composed entirely of figs, dates, prunes, raisins and the leaves of each with the substitution of the Alexandra leaf for the raisin leaf. The taste is pleasant, if not to say delicious, and the effect is exceedingly satisfactory. Try it and be convinced.

Rescued As Boat Sank From Sight.

Thrilling Experience of Father and Son During Frightful Gale Last Week—Gallant Newfoundlanders to the Rescue.

Caught in the big storm which swept the Atlantic last week, a man named Furneaux, belonging to Rose Blanche and his son, had a thrilling experience and narrow escape from drowning last Saturday.

In the hope of landing Dr. Weeks, Mrs. Weeks and his daughter on board the Kyle at Port aux Basques before the steamer left for North Sydney, Mr. Furneaux and his son set out from Rose Blanche Friday, and after a very rough and trying voyage succeeded in reaching their destination in time to catch the Kyle.

The same day Furneaux and his son, in spite of warnings and protests of friends, attempted to make the return voyage to Rose Blanche. It was a nerve-racking experience for father and son until they were sighted by the little steamer Scotsburn, which arrived here Monday. However, owing to the turbulent seas which tossed the motor boat containing the two men about like chips in an angry sea, it was almost impossible for the crew on the steamer to make a rescue.

In the meantime, however, the schooner Brunhilda, owned by Mr. J. Davis, of Port aux Basques, hove in sight. All her canvas was in rags, and she was being buffeted about in such a manner as to lead the Scotsburn's commander to believe the craft would become a total wreck. None the less dismayed, the skipper of the schooner managed his craft in capital style, while some members of the crew succeeded in launching a boat and rowing to the aid of the two men in the little motor boat, which was rapidly filling and sinking. Before she took the final plunge, however, the dory from the Brunhilda reached the men and with much difficulty father and son were transferred and a short time later were safely on board the schooner.

The Scotsburn's commander stood by for three or four hours ready to lend what assistance he could to the Brunhilda, but thanks to sturdy Newfoundlanders and a skilful skipper, the schooner was successfully steered to a safe anchorage at her home port.—North Sydney Herald, June 4.

[The Mr. Furneaux referred to in the above is Richard Furneaux, Sub-Collector at Rose Blanche.]

Turned Laugh on Jokers.

We do not think of M. Clemenceau as the sort of man on whom practical jokes would be played, yet he was the victim of an elaborate jest some while ago—in pre-war times, needless to say—and he accepted the position with commendable grace.

A number of Parisians received bogus invitations to dine at the premier's house. Some were total strangers, and their grateful acceptance mystified M. Clemenceau until he realized the hoax.

He did not put them off. He ordered the dinner, and gave his guests a pleasant evening. Not until the evening was drawing to a close did he inform them that their invitations had been sent out by some one of whose identity he had not the remotest knowledge.

He Knew Better.

First Friend: "Hello, Jinks that's a bad cold you have. Soak your feet in boiling water and drink a pint of hot vinegar and treacle. It's a sure cure."

Second Friend (a few minutes later): "By Jove, Jinks, you ought to do something for that cold! Take a big dose of quinine—sure thing every time."

Third Friend (ten minutes later): "I say, Jinks, there's no use coughing yourself into the grave like that. Get a bottle of 'Cortiquik'—stop it in ten minutes."

Fourth Friend: "Got a bad cold, haven't you?" Jinks (after waiting some time): "Well, do you know a sure cure?" Fourth Friend (hoarsely): "No. There's no cure. Got a bad cold myself."

Juvenile Entertainment

An enjoyable entertainment was held at St. Mary's Hall, South Side, June 3rd, in which the following young ladies took part:—Nellie Boope, Madeline Whitten, Violet Moore, Helene Harvey, Florence Whiteway, Ella Snow, Laura Roberts, Susie Jones, Margaret Whiteway, Millie Benson, Alma Whitten, Ernest Boone, Gladys Whitten.

The performers owe many thanks to the people who helped to make the affair successful, and particularly to Rev. A. B. S. Stirling, for his kind attendance, and to his little girls for their welcome donation, which was received with thanks.

The proceeds amounting to $32.76 will be given in aid of the new piano for St. Mary's Hall.—Com.

White Book by Rote.

A German Catechised.

Q. What caused the war?
A. England's fear of our commercial supremacy.

Q. But had England, dominating the world, anything to gain by war?

A. She wanted to crush us before we took her markets from her.

Q. Who started the war?

A. The menace of Russia mobilization in the East, which caused us to declare war immediately.

Q. Why the invasion of Belgium?

A. Because she was not neutral.

Q. Had Germany promised not to invade Belgium?

A. She forfeited her rights by her treachery.

Q. And therefore you outraged the land and its people?

A. Yes. Perhaps there were exceptional unfortunate incidents. But war is war.

Q. What of the sanctity of contract?

A. We broke no contract, unless compelled by expediency (Notwendigkeit) or reprisal.

Q. Was the U-boat a reprisal?

A. Yes. England's blockade was starving our babies.

Q. Does international law recognize the legality of the blockade and the rights of neutrals?

A. That makes no difference. Our people needed food. Besides, the Lusitania carried contraband.

Q. What of the hospital-ships?

A. I know nothing about them.

Q. What of aerial bombardment?

A. The French started it.

Q. Do you realize Germany's position in the world to-day?

A. We are hated, I suppose. The world has been fed on Allied propaganda. In Germany we know the truth.

Q. Do you know why you are hated?

A. Because we are feared—and we are feared because our bravery and our skill withstood the world for four years, because our industries are the most highly developed and our energy the greatest.

Q. What caused you to lose the war?

A. America's entry.

Q. Why did America enter the war?

A. To secure the payment of her loans to the Allies.

Q. Is there no other reason?

A. I can think of none.

Q. Could the Americans have been idealists, or were they fools?

A. Perhaps both—the two are closely allied.

Q. Why did President Wilson distinguish between Prussian rulers and the German people?

A. Because he did not understand the situation.

Q. Was America the sole cause of Germany's defeat?

A. No. We might have stood against the world save for internal dissension.

Q. What caused that?

A. Bolshevism, taught by Lenin and Trotsky in Russia.

Q. Were they not German agents at one time?

A. Not at all. And I tell you further that apart from any individual factor the real cause of our defeat was our own stupid good nature. We were too generous, and our enemies took advantage of our good-heartedness!

The Enemy Received His Reward.

(From News of the World.)

History knows no more dramatic hour than that in which Count Brockdorff-Rantzau and his colleagues faced the delegates of the Allied nations at Versailles to receive the reward of Germany's crimes. In that fateful moment the end was reached of the long road of blood and tears, and the juxtaposition of victors and vanquished brought home to the imagination something of the full meaning of what we have won and what the enemy has lost. In the Terms of Peace summarised elsewhere the outlines appear of the New World mapped out for the generations to come by the Peace Conference. The problems to be solved imposed upon the representatives of the Great Powers a task besides which that which fell to the lot of Metemrich, Castlereagh, and Talleyrand in 1815 was a simple affair. The moment Germany declared war it became a mathematical certainty that defeat would mean the destruction of the Hohenzollerns and the ruin of their Empire. No other punishment could fit such a crime. The nations, lacerated with woes beyond utterance, would, given the power, tolerate no foe by measure with the Prime Movers in the Calamity of Calamities. By the sword the necessary power was won, and the Peace terms satisfy public expectation in the matter.

Don't judge Floor Covering by its price alone. Floor Covering at $1.50 per yard isn't always cheaper than Floor Covering at $2.50 per yard.

FOR INSTANCE

If the $1.50 covering wears out in 1 year and the $2.50 covering gives 3 years' wear, you can see that the $1.50 covering actually costs $4.50 per yard over a 3 year period, and is really costing you on this basis MORE than twice the cost of the Floor Covering which gives 3 years' wear and which cost you only $2.50 per yard.

CONGOLEUM, the guaranteed Floor Covering, costs less in the long run.

Decide for yourself,—do you want a cheap imitation which you will need to renew next year, or do you want Genuine Guaranteed Congoleum which costs a little more, looks better and lasts longer.

Annual Collection.

Belvidere and Mount Carmel Cemeteries.

Once more Time has run its cycle, and as announced from the altars on Sunday last, the annual collection for the Belvidere and Mount Carmel Cemeteries will be taken up in all the churches at all the Masses on Sunday next, 8th inst. We are well aware that it is unnecessary for the Telegram to remind our Catholic friends that their well-known generosity will be called upon, as we are certain that it will be granted as liberally and as heartily as it has been from time immemorial in every good cause. During the past year much has been done to repair and beautify the Cities of the Dead—Belvidere and Mount Carmel, but much remains to be done, and all those improvements will necessarily incur expense. The Committees are untiring in their efforts to meet all requirements, and all their services are rendered cheerfully and voluntarily. What greater duty devolves upon the whole of us than to beautify the resting places of our dear departed? It is almost a certainty that many of our fellow-countrymen and women with their children will visit our shores during the coming summer, in fact, we are informed that arrangements by the Newfoundlanders in the United States and Canada are now being formulated and carried out to accomplish that end. Then it is only natural to suppose the first place they will visit after their welcome by their relatives in St. John's, will be the cemeteries wherein lie interred the remains of the dear departed, their ancestors, brothers and sisters, relatives and friends. They were prevented from doing so the past four years owing to the Great War. Strangers will also come amongst us, and they will bring back with them the fact that Newfoundlanders are second to none in paying every tribute to their departed friends who rest in peace in either of the two cemeteries. In due course the announcement will be made as to the dates when the annual Masses of Requiem will take place in Belvidere and Mount Carmel, respectively, and as the time is getting short, it is possible that the energetic and courteous caretakers will require assistance in their efforts to repair and beautify the grounds, and this will necessarily entail expense, so that it behooves our good friends to make a supreme effort and make the annual collection for 1919 a record one. We are certain they will.

Westminster Gazette: Cologne did not quite dispense with its carnival in spite of the British occupation; but the experience of those of the revelers who transgressed the bounds of the permissible were picturesquely unpleasant. A lady whom the military police had to arrest in her ball dress was sentenced to clean 30 pairs of military boots before she went home. Her proposal to send her servant to execute the task on her behalf was rejected on the ground that it was not her servant who had violated the regulations; and she was kept busy with the brushes and the blackening until the dawn of day. Thirty dancers were also brought in and while the ladies were locked up their partners were condemned to do certain fatigue duties in the way of street cleaning in their festive attire.

The Nanceys.

From the nethermost lip of land,
Out over it—green, gray, grim—
They have faded from tumbling strand.
Specks melting down to the rim.
They've vanished like notes in air—
Dreams, prayers, kept flight with them
In the void and the vastness there—
Brave wings would hemispheres hem!

"Hopped off"—in their toylike craft,
Cloth wings and a motor heart;
Yet who'd call them derring-draft,
As they venture a virgin chart?

Loud their husky engines roar,
Sing their struts, as their cockpits
sway;
Stout, swift—but, o'er ocean's floor
What drifting midgits they!

Cavour's Work for Italy

Camillo Benso, Count di Cavour, who died on June 6, 1861, was pre-eminently the Statesman in that group of remarkable men whom the regeneration and the unity of Italy were achieved. Born in Turin, of an ancient Piedmontese family in 1810, he was thirty-six when he founded "Il Risorgimento," a journal of moderate constitutional views, and, four years later, he became Premier of Sardinia. For the remainder of his life he wrought and thought for Italia Irredenta. First, by causing Sardinian intervention in the Crimean War, he made it possible to introduce the Italian question at the Paris Congress of 1856. Later he negotiated an alliance with Napoleon III, and the resultant war between France and Austria flattered for the moment his fondest hopes. But disappointment came, when Napoleon hastily concluded the Peace of Villafranca, by which Venice was left to Austria. Cavour signed office in protest, but returned in 1860, and secured the inclusion of Parma, Modena, and Tuscany in Victor Emmanuel's dominions, although, to appease France, he was forced to acquiesce in the cession of Nice and Savoy, the original home of the Italian reigning house. In the following March the States of Central Italy acknowledged Victor Emmanuel's sovereignty, and Garibaldi freed the Neapolitan and Papal States. Rome alone stood outside the limits, as it was to stand until nine years after Cavour's death, when the Franco-German war compelled Napoleon III. to withdraw the French garrison from the Papal City. Cavour thus was not spared to witness the consummation of his efforts, but at least he died in the reasonable certainty that the completion of his work was inevitable, and that within a brief period as History measures Time.

BE SURE.

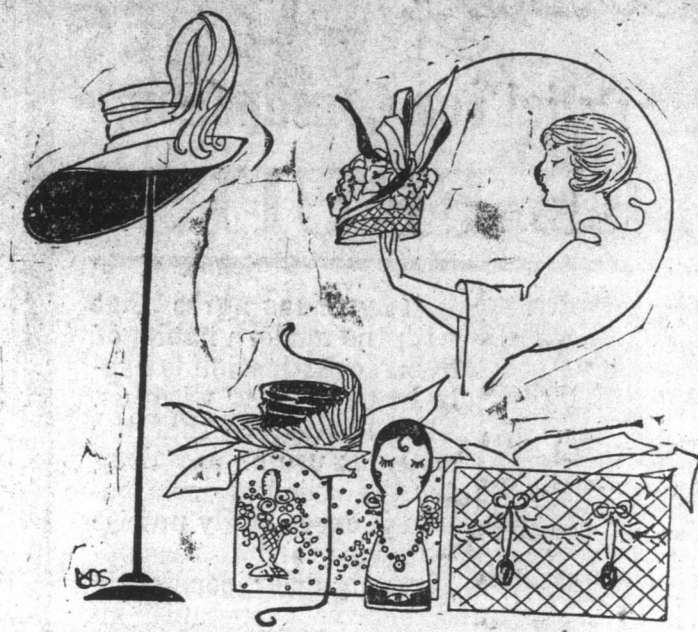

WALT MURPHY

Be sure the voters want to hear you before you rise to make a speech; alas, the weary people near you don't always tell how bored they feel. The world is full of desolation and broken hearts and ruined homes, because of wind and declamation of stale remarks and quoted pomes. Be sure your neighbors like canned singing before you start the graphophone, or some one may be moved to fling a brick, a clinker or a stone. Far better is the evening quiet that's undisturbed by crated song, than insurrection, strife or riot kicked up by music maddened throng. Be sure you never are infringing on other's rights, where'er you do; for human happiness is hinging on keeping this sane course in view. Be sure your neighbors like your chickens before you turn the sweet things loose, or they'll be angry as the dickens, which is another word for dance. That man is to his sex a credit, this woody world he much adorns, whose course, though swiftly he may read it, encroaches on no human corns. Be just to others as you waddle along the pathway you pursue, and men will say you are a model, and name their infants after you.

Household Notes.

It is seldom a good thing to wash flannel-covered comforters at home—the laundries do it better.
Rickrack braided sewed on the edges of the ruffles of children's undergarments will save wear and tear.
Soak nuts in hot water before cracking and the nuts will be much more likely to come out whole.
If roses are starved and otherwise neglected they are more apt to be attacked by insects and other pests.
Instead of grating cheese or the rind of a lemon, pare it off carefully and put it through the meat chopper.
Mix the batter cakes in a wide-mouth pitcher. It is easier to pour the batter cakes than it is to dip them.

"I Wonder If It Would Help Me"

"NEARLY every place I go I hear someone talking about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. My friends advise me to try it, and yet I never have.

"I wonder why.

"Perhaps it is because I have suffered so much from nervous trouble and found so little benefit from the use of medicine.

"But they tell me that the Nerve Food is different. They say that it is not a mere relief from pain, but a restorative treatment, which will build up the depleted nerve cells and make me well and strong again.

"Goodness knows I have suffered enough from headaches, sleeplessness, hysteria and dread of the future. I want to get away from all this.

"Why cannot I enjoy life like other people do? Perhaps I have not tried to get well. Perhaps I have been discouraged, and thought there was no use trying.

"Well, I am going to begin trying right now, and Dr. Chase's Nerve Food will have a thorough test in my case.

"The future has been all black to me. I have thought at times that I would lose my mind. But while I have been suffering and worrying others have been cured, and I can now see my mistake.

"If Dr. Chase ever had a faithful patient I shall be one, and believe that his Nerve Food will do for me what it has done for so many thousands of others."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50c a box, 6 for $2.75, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. The portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M.D., are on every box of his medicines.

Napoleon as News Controller.

Modern governments employ trained journalists to praise them in the public press. Napoleon Bonaparte tried a different scheme. He was his own propagandist and assumed all the duties and responsibilities which are nowadays delegated to a committee. But what a sad failure! At the beginning of his career he made no attempt to hide his intentions. "A Sovereign," he stated, "must confide public opinion and use it to his own advantage." Twenty years later, an exile on St. Helena, he dictated a few sad words of commentary: "My son will be obliged to rule with the help of a free press." Whatever his original ideas upon the subject, the great Emperor could not put these ideas into practice until he had been appointed commanding general of the French armies in Italy in the year 1796. It was a time when freedom of the press ran riot in revolutionary France. Deprived from the restrictive laws of the old regime, every political party, every political leader, printed a little news-sheet of its own.

Napoleon wrote often to the directors and asked that steps be taken to protect his reputation. The Paris press, so he argued, was helping the Austrians and the Sardinians, and something must be done to counteract this evil influence. He suggested the foundation of an official newspaper, reflecting the opinions of the French Government. The directors listened patiently, failed to answer the letters of their commander-in-chief, and did nothing, until General Napoleon, in despair, began to print his own newspapers. In the year 1797, the Courier de l'Armee d'Italie appeared in Milan. A few weeks later it was followed by La France vus de l'armee d'Italie.

The next year Napoleon transferred the scene of his activities to Egypt. As soon as he reached the shores of the Nile, the Courier d'Egypte appeared, printed in Cairo, originally in the French language, but soon followed by editions in Arabic for the benefit of the native, who must be impressed by the glory and fame of the foreign conqueror. From that moment on Napoleon is master of the printed word in his adopted country. After the coup d'etat of XVIII. Brumaire the freedom of the press was a dead issue in France. On the 17th of January of the year 1800 Napoleon restricted the number of newspapers that were to be printed in France to exactly 12. The others were suspended for an indefinite period of time.

Not contented with his fame on the field of battle the great general fought his quarrels on paper and concentrated his efforts upon a single sheet, the Moniteur. This journal was not a new enterprise. It had made its first appearance early in the year 1789 as an independent newspaper. After 1801 it became the defender and expounder of the Napoleonic theories of government and administration. It printed the official decrees and the official announcements and was to be found on the table of every Imperial office-holder. When a serious question was before the public, Napoleon himself wrote or dictated editorials and articles. As a source of inspired information the paper was never surpassed, not even by the kept press of Bismarck.

A little later the ruler of the French found himself in a bitter fight with the French cardinals and finally with the Pope. Then he started a publication strictly for home consumption, the Bulletin de Paris, followed shortly afterward by the Journal des Cures, which first appeared at the precise moment when all other clerical journals were suppressed.

Wherever the Emperor went he was followed by copies of his inspired newspapers. When the snow of the Russian plains and the tenacity of the Russian armies had turned his glorious Moscow campaign into complete failure, he hastened back to Poland, and from Wilna and Warsaw tried to influence French public opinion by short and crisp notes telling of his plans for the future and lying gloriously about the actual conditions of the present. Not until he had left French soil did his activity as a newspaper man cease. And when he returned from Elba he resumed his work as unofficial editor-in-chief of the old Moniteur. For 100 days Europe was obliged to read this official organ if it wished to know what the hated Corsican had to say upon all subjects from war to the administration of museums and the final destiny of conquered provinces.

The suppression of news was maintained at all hazard, but even Fouché and his spies could not prevent the ultimate spread of the truth. And two days before his death (May 8, 1821) Napoleon confessed that he had been wrong. "I tried to give France liberal ideas, but I failed. In the beginning I felt that I was obliged to suppress news. Afterward it was too late"—a commentary which ought to have served as a warning to all who have since flattered the French Emperor by an imitation of his most unsuccessful and disastrous methods.
