NOTE AND COMMENT

The farming business is now coming to a point where it is generally recognized as the most prosperous business, offering the best future and the brightest prospects. That being so, there will be no trouble about keeping the boy on the farm for he will be keen to see that it is the best place to make money, gain the respect of his fellowmen and obtain that standing among men, which is the ambition of every right-minded boy. It is to gain these things that he has heretofore gone to the city: It is to gain these things that he will hereaf-ter stay on the farm and that will send the youths of the cities to join him. All he wants to know is as to what pays best in the sum of human happiness and comfort and success. It is now being demonstrated that in all these things the farm offers the best opportunity.

Farmers living in the beet growing sections of Essex, Kent and Lambton can congratulate themselves on being able to put in a crop that has so far not been seriously interfered with by the unprecidented amount of rainfall which we have had during the past six weeks and which has caused much anxiety among the farmers. In many section very little seeding of small grains has as yet been done and the season is now so far advanced that the prospects of securing a reasonable crop are very remote indeed. Sugar beets on the other hand can be planted over a much longer period than any other crop that can be grown in this section of Ontario, and while it is usually considered advisable to plant about the middle of May, if soil and weather conditions permit, still they may be sown as late as the middle of June and with excellent prospects of a paying crop. As a miss—and hit him later as an angry wife.

of the very heaviest crops grown in this section to be planted as late as the 20th of June, so that farmers who are growing beets need not get discouraged yet, at least so far as their beet crop is concerned.

Canadian Red Cross Twenty Years

The Canadian Red Cross Society was not prominently in the public eye before the outbreak of the present war, but none the less it has been in existence for 20 years, a period which covers almost half the life of the International Red Cross, which was founded in 1864.

The Canadian Red Cross was organized in 1896 by Dr., now Sur-geon General G. Sterling Ryerson, and was the first branch established in the Overseas Dominions of the Empire. It is also older than the American Red Cross.

In the United States at present a campaign is being conducted for Red Cross preparedness. No such campaign was necessary in Canada. Thanks to the forethought and the wisdom of its pioneer founders the Canadian Red Cross had built up an efficient organization.

It was incorporated by Act of Parliament in 1909, and is now the official channel between the Canadian Public of Canada, the British Red Cross Society and the Military Au-

The immense volume of work which the Canadian Red Cross has performed since the war, shows conclusively the value of Red Cross preparedness. For the future, every citizen should do everything in his power to enable the Red Cross to discharge its obligations toward our sick and wounded. The society although invested with an official status, received no income from the state. It relics altogether on public contributions.

A fish bisque is made from one cup-ful of cold fish minced very fine, one cupful of hot milk and a cupful of any white stock. The carcass of a chicken cooked slowly will yield an excellent stock for this purpose. The seasoning consists of a teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce, salt, a dash of cayenne and a teaspoonful of chopped parsley.

Put fish, seasoning and stock together in a pan. Mix one tablespoonful of flour and the same quantity of butter together and stir into the fish mixture. Cook and then stir in the boiling milk, adding a tablespoonful of cracker crumbs.

For Easter Week.
In the Easter parade this year silk waists will be prominent. Taffeta will probably predominate, but there will be suits of faille, silk poplin and gros de Londres. The checked and striped silks are popular. The silk suit is freely trimmed and is usually in demitailored or dressy effects. The skirt may be in tiers or have cascade draperles. Bandings of vervet give a rich fin-ish, and the ruchings are especially adaptable to silks.

Mr.W. A. McLean, formerly Commissioner of Highways, now Deputy Minister, in his report for 1915, states that there are in the province approximately 55,000 miles of roads. About 20,000 miles are well-graded earth roads; about 3,000 miles are surfaced with broken stone; and about 19,000 miles are surfaced with gravel. Many of the gravel roads are of inferior construction; nevertheless the proportion of surfaced roads is very credible to the municipal, organization of the province. Unfortunately the improvement is not uniform, and the gravelled roads and soft in the mohair and worsted are largely confined to those areas in weave, and the new Bolling green is which gravel has been plentiful; while other districts are devoid of material. surface improvement other than grading and drainage.

WHY HUSBANDS LEAVE.

What Statistics Show About Wife Deserters Why do so many husbands run cases of desertions he finds that the husband's action can usually be ascribed to one of the following causes: Ill health and peevishness of the Slouchiness of the wife either in her own person or in her housekeeping methods or both. The wife's habit of nagging or gossiping.

Dislike for children on the wife's part. This statistician found that the strongest incentive to reconciliation in cases of family discord is almost invariably the child. He also found that very few wives are deserted who are-Physically well and mentally cheer-

The very interesting and valuable statistics which he collected prove that native American husbands are more prone to desert their wives than are

They also show that married life is the happiest when husband and wife are nearly alike in age, nationality, region, moral standards, temperament, health and physical strength.

New Use For Peanuts. Here is a new use for peanuts. Says doctor: "Eat a handful of peanuts before retiring. They quiet the nerves of the stomach." What do you think about that? Isn't that a rather inter esting sleeping potion? Then we are also told to eat them after each mea as an aid to digestion, provided they are fresh roasted. Bought salted pen nuts are good, but homemade ones are better. So easily prepared, it is a wonder more people do not try them.

GREAT SODA LAKES.

Britain Has Won a Great Prize From Germans in Africa.

The great soda lakes of German East Africa are one of the prizes to be won by the Allies in the present war. An important discovery, made recently in the centre of the African continent, was announced shortly be fore the war by Paul Kestner, the eminent engineer of Lille. . . To the east of the great Lake Victoria and about 250 miles from the shore of the Indian Ocean, is a lake with an area of about 25 square miles, formed apparently of a single mass of solid sesquicarbonate of soda, al-most chemically pure. According to Mr. Trowbridge, an English engin eer, who has explored it, soundings taken at various points of Lake Ma gadi found no bottom at nine feet Possibly the depth is twice, three times, or even ten times, as great as this.

Mr. Trowbridge notes that the lake is fed by many streams that bring to it water charged, and sometimes saturated, with carbonate of soda which shows that the real deposits is not the lake itself, but that there is somewhere another deposit of unknown, but enormous importance This is washed by waters that carry its soda into the lake under the boiling sun of the tropics, and then the water evaporates and deposits the Magadi, which is the lake just deseribed, is not on the German side of the line, but is English. The other side, however, boasts of several sodalakes that are even larger than this. One of them, Lake Natron, is larger than Lake Geneva. The Germans have planned a railroad connecting this lake with the coast and extending to Victoria Nyanza. The soda may thus be brought to Europe.

The Hampton Vine.

The famous vine at Hampton Court, which still flourishes despite the fact that its years number 148, is about to lose its keeper, Mr. James Jack, the man who has attended it and watched its growth for thirty-two years. He is now seventy-six years of age, and will carry into retrement the good wishes of thou-sands of visitors who have flocked to view his wonderful charge.

The great vine was planted in 1768 by "Capability" Brown, the famous landscape gardener of the 18th century, and though for a time it was feared that one of the most remarkable sights of the Palace grounds was gradually fading the grounds was gradually fading, the tree is now one of the finest in the kingdom—indeed, some experts say, "in the world"—and certainly it is the oldest under cultivation in that country.

Naturally the tree is well attended to, and the fruit in recent years has been remarkably good. About ten years ago a new house was built for the "plant," and since then the fruit has improved in a manner that has astonished experts. The vine now bears fine grapes of good flavor and color. It is well cropped, the number of bunches sent to the King at Windsor every year being more than 200. His Majesty graciously sends many of these bunches to hospitals, a gift that is always greatly appre-

It is interesting to note that a few years ago a dozen bunches of grapes from the tree were exhibited before the Royal Horticultural Society and gained the Hogg Memorial Medal for special excellence in culture. Two of the bunches weighed three pounds fourteen ounces each, and the whole twelve "scales" at about forty-two pounds.

Interviewing Derby.

Lord Derby makes a point of reeiving some of the press correspon dents at the War Office from time to time, and lets them fire questions a him with an entire absence of cere mony, albeit, though in the most good-natured fashion, he does exactly as he likes about replying directly to their queries. The impression which Lord Derby leaves with his inquisitors is one of extraordinary virility, coupled with quick-wittedness and buff good humor. He gives ness and bluff good humor. He gives ness and filling good number. The gives them many a laugh for their pains, if they do not leave him overweighted with information. For example, at the last gathering, when somebody asked him for his own estimate of the number of unattested men who would be available for military serwould be available for military serice, the Earl declined to name any

"If the Angel Gabriel came down with an estimate," said he, there are men in the House of Commons who would try to whittle it down!" And later, when one of the press-men asked. as a pendant to Lord

Derby's assertion that the Allies would ultimately give Germany "a hiding to nothing," on what front this hiding would be applied, the burly peer retorted, "I'm not sure, but I hope when we get them where we want them we shall turn them around so as to apply the hiding in the proper place."

Asked what he thought of the men who had contracted hasty marriages with the idea of getting into the later groups, his Lordship observed, "Ah! out of the frying pan-!"

Host Was Carried in Streets. An unusual spectacle for England was witnessed on the eve of Good Friday, when the Host was carried in Friday, when the Host was carried in a religious procession a short distance around Lincoln's Inn Fields, behind the church in Kingsway, London. A proposal to do this several years ago, when the Eucharistic Congress was being held in London, aroused such strong opposition that Archbishop Bourne, of Westminster, was requested to desist from carrying out the proposal.

LURE OF THE STAGE.

Greater Danger to Young Men Than

to Young Women.
I génuinely believe that the stage is place of greater danger to young men than to young women. This is a sur prising statement, you think? I defend it by saying that the actor is liable to fritter away his time. He plays a few hours a day, and for the remainder of the time he "rests." He doesn't need so much rest. He needs work and study, and if he doesn't have them there will be a rapid disintegration of character. There was never a truer adage than that concerning idleness and the location of the devil's work-

But girls can find and do find more to do. They nearly all sew. It is great economy of time and of purse for them to do so. Cloth is cheap, and if they can fashion it into blouses and lingerie and into simple gowns they are thereby the gainers. Girls are rather more ndustrious than men. I have noticed that the girls in a company employ their time well. They read and study. I have never known but one young ac tor-no, two-who studied.

The player should be a constant stu dent. He needs to know music and painting and sculpture and languages and literature. It requires a lifetime to learn all that he should know of the collateral arts.—Edith Wynne Mathison in Theater.

Cheerfulness and Cholera.

A cheerful disposition is held by some doctors to be the best protection against cholera. When this disease first visited Paris, in 1832, a notice was issued advising the inhabitants "to avoid as far as possible all occasions of melancholy and all painful emotions and to seek plenty of distractions and amusements. Those with a bright and happy temperament are not likely to be stricken down." This advice was largely followed, and even when cholera was claiming over a thousand weekly victims the theaters and cafes were thronged. The epidemic was in some quarters treated as a huge joke, and plays and songs were written around it. Rochefort wrote a play, "Le Cholera Morbus," which proved a big success, and another production on the same lines, "Paris-malade," also had a long run. The Real and the Pretend. Widespread artistic taste would have had a better chance to develop in this country if we had not been so much concerned with knowing what we ought to know and liking what we ought to like. The movement has caught those whose taste happened to coincide with the canons. It has perverted a much larger host who have tried to pretend that their taste coincided, and it has left untouched the jovous masses who might easily, as in other countries, have evolved a folk culture if they had not been outlawed by this ideal. - Randolph Bourne in Medical Dilemma. "What should one do," asks the young doctor, "when a patient comes in and diagnoses his own case exactly?" "In such a situation," explains the experienced physician, "you must use your best judgment of human nature. If the patient is one kind of man he will appreciate your agreeing with his diagnosis as showing that he knows as much as you do; on the other hand, he may go about and say that you don't know any more than he does.'

Bells have been employed in association with religious worship since the early days of Egypt. Cymbals and hand bells and small crotals served for the festival of Isis. Aaron and other Jewish high priests were bells of gold upon their raiment. In camp and gar-rison the Greeks employed bells. The Romans announced the hour of bathing by their melody. Copper and tin, the old composition, is still regarded as the best bell metal. Steel has been tried, but does not make a successful pell. Glass bells are mellow and beautiful in tone, but the material is too fragile. The one metal which is impossible is that which everybody imagines makes the best bell-silver.

The English admirals Penn and Ven-ables captured and held the island of Jamaica in 1655. The Spanish were entirely expelled in 1658. The capture was part of the effort under Cromwell to crush Spanish power in the West Indies. The whole island had been di-vided among eight noble Spanish families, who had so discouraged immigrants that the population in 1655, both white and slave, did not exceed 3,000.

Glencoe Transcript: The old rat crept out of his hole, tried to break through the barriers that surrounded it, got severely drubbed, and sneaked back badly crippled and told the little

From the Bystander-An amiable German pastor has declared that it is the German soldier's duty to shatter the butt-end of his rifle on the enemies skulls." Either the Germans are now using rifles of an inferior make which break easily, or we are a harder-headed race than we have hitherto suspected

If at the close of the war, three or four hundred thousand soldiers are automatically thrown on the Canadian labor market, at a time, too, when the war industries for the same reason become extinct, and those men are without funds, and under the imperative necessity of curing employment at any price pove what is required to provide a re existence, the abnormal comstition will bring down the wages all classes already in civilian em-

They have a Memorial Day in the nited States for those who have iven their lives at various times in defence of their country. This year there were various touching tributes paid, notably at Washington and New York. It has been suggested that after the war Canada should have such a day, and it seems not a bad idea for the encouragement of of patriotism. Of more than 300,000 enlisted in the army of liberation nearly five thousand have already found graves in France and Flanders and Gallipoli. Their memories will be cherished in Canada. Should they be publicly honored in some such a way as the United States does those who have fallen in her defence?-Stratford Beacon.

Fault might well be found with the aborate fashions of women's boots Fork 22 to 23 Toronto elaborate fashions of women's boots this season, which appear to have been designed to use up as much kid and other leather as possible, and so to force expense upon wearers. Ten dollars is really a ridiculous price for a pair of street boots in war times, and it would be a healthy sign if Canadian women refused to be cajoled into such extravagance when heavy sacrifices and money are being paid for their protection. Attempts in some quarters to substitute canvass or cloth for uppers in the interests of are being completly frus trated by the daring stylishness of the foreign designers.

Durham Chronicle :- Still prices are soaring! A few weeks ago we spoke of paying $6.00 a pound for ink we formerly bought for $3.00. That was a sudden jar, but not quite as bad as the one we got on Tuesday when a representative from the hh house was here and asked us $15 a pound for the same ink. Fifteen dollars a pound! $11 to $11.50 a hundred, live weight, for hogs, recalls the time when, in Upper Canada, the price of dressed hogs went as low as $2, or 10 shillings currency, as it then was, per hundred, says the Georgetown Herald. This was in 1838, the winter of the Mackenzie rebellion. The same winter the farmer who told the writer of that experience drew oats fifteen miles to Galt and sold them for a "York shilling" (twelve and a half cents) a bushel, both pork and oats being payable in store goods. at more, on the average, than double present prices. A very poor quality of red flannel sold at a dollar a yard, and a very inferior quality of tea brought the same price per pound. As a favor the farmer was allowed enough to pay his toll on the way home, having been given credit on the way out. Do any of us do well to grumble at present day prices or conditions.

A SLIGHT MISTAKE

An Episode of Shakedown

By F. A. MITCHEL *************

The wild and woolly west is now a thing of the past. If gun play, public gambling and horse stealing are in vogue in any part of the United States we hear nothing of them. But the probability is that these things have died out before the advance of civilization and the consequent setting up of the church and the schoolhouse.

Before the dawn of this new condition, when all sorts of persons-good, and indifferent-were crowding into a country not yet abandoned by the Indian, when every man was expected to look out for his own interests, it is remarkable, in some instances laughable, what small things men would fight about.

In a settlement west of the Missouri river some forty years ago, where there was but one woman to a dozen men among the inhabitants, Cyrus Atkins was out beyond the borders of the town looking for stray cattle when up the road came a woman driving a rattletrap buggy. Whether she was fair to look upon is not a matter of certainty, for any woman not a fright was beautiful in the eyes of men who were constantly looking on their own sex only. Certain it is that this person driving toward the settlement was beautiful in Cyrus Atkins' eyes. "How do, ma'am," he said, putting his hand to his sombrero. "How do," was the laconic reply.

"Air you from the settlement?"

"Yes, ma'am." "Any chance for anybody to make a livin' for himself?"

"Then, I reckon, the wife 'ud have to do it for both." "Jist so." The woman, who had an independent air about her, whipped up her horse and left Mr. Atkins standing beside the road gaping after her. He was thinking that as soon as she got into the settlement, which was called Shakedown City-all settlements appended the word "city" to their name in that country at that time—she would be surrounded by half the men with offers of marriage. He hesitated whether to go on searching for his cattle or go back at once and put in his application. At that moment he spied one of his lost animals in the distance. This decided him, and he concluded to lose an hour or so in putting in his application for the sake of getting his

"There's a few married women in Shakedown. I know one of 'em that I reckon'll take you in."

"Where does she live?" "I'll show you." Mr. Dolittle walked along beside the buggy to a house where a frowsy woman was washing dishes, and the stranger said she would like accommodations. Since the reply was favorable, the applicant decided to put up there She said her stay would be short; but, although she was asked the cause of her coming and other questions, she proved close mouthed and gave no satisfactory answers. freckled, bowlegged chap like you. Both men put their hands to their hips, but at the moment Antonio Thibadeaux, who had come from Louisiana. passed by and inquired the cause of the dispute. When duly informed that a new and comely woman had come to town and each of the men proposed to claim her in marriage. Thibadeaux said to them:

"This town ought to be above gunplay in the streets by this time. no'the'n men are mighty uncivilized in such affai's anyhow. If you two men want to fight about a lady, why don't you do it in a fashion that would do honor to her instead o' mixin' her up in a common shootin' match?"

The rivals were evidently impress with this view of the case and asked how "them gentlemanly fights" were conducted. Thibadeaux said that he had participated in several, both as principal and second. If they desired it he would be happy to manage a meeting for them.

"Yo' see," he added, "if the lady hears that you have had a street fight about her she'll turn you both down. But if she hears that you have fought for her in a gentlemanly way she'll be much flattered, and the man that wins will have a tol'able good show."

This settled the matter. Mr. Thibadeaux took charge of the affair entirely, making all necessary arrangements, providing a second for each principal and sending to a neighboring town for a "sawbones." The time appointed was the next morning at 7 o'clock, the place to be where Cy Atkins had met the subject of the dispute. Mr. Thibadeaux said that in Louisiana, where he had picked up his knowledge of the code, it was considered bad taste to talk about such affairs, and they were usually kept secret. In this way a vulgar crowd was avoided, and if the fight was about a lady it was deemed more respectful to her.

A bit of gunplay in the street would not have necessarily called together a crowd, but such a novelty as a duel was sure to do so. It did not get out in Shakedown City that an affair according to the code, arranged by a prominent Louisiana duelist, was to take place, until late the night before the meeting. Consequently the lady who was to be fought for went to bed ob-livious to the fact that two men were to meet the next morning at 7 o'clock in mortal combat to decide which should give way to the other in an effort to obtain her favor. Indeed, hav-ing looked over Shakedown City and not being pleased with it, she had determined to make an early start the next morning for the place from which she had come.

The secret of the duel was divulged by one of the seconds at the Golden Eagle saloon about midnight, and most of those present organized small game to last till morning with the intention of adjourning from the sitting to the dueling ground to witness a real high toned shooting match as practiced in the state of Louisiana. Such an affair had never been known in Shakedown, and, though the citizens had heard of the code duello, their knowledge of it was very hazy.

About half past 6 each principal in the coming affair, attended by his sec ond, left his residence and proceeded to the ground. The master of ceremonies was accompanied by the surgeon, a recent medical graduate, who had gone west to establish a practice. but had never seen a gunshot wound in his life. At the same time a crowd emerged from the Golden Eagle saloon and tramped down the road. Arrived at the appointed spot, Mr. Thibadeaux marked off the ground, taking care that neither of the disputants was placed so that the sun would shine in his eyes. He made the distance thirty which, he said, was usual in such affairs. Each man was handed a revolver that had passed inspection by both seconds and stood ready for the to fire. Mr. Thibadeux said that dropping a handkerchief was the most approved method. But there were very few handkerchiefs in the party and they so solled as not to be surely distinguished by the principals. Therefore it was decided to drop a hat. Meanwhile a horse and buggy seen emerging from the town, and just as the seconds handed the principals their weapons the vehicle drew up in the road beside the battleground.

"What's goin' on?" asked a woman who was driving.

Mr. Thibadeaux, lifting his sombrero, advanced to her and explained that a duel was about to be fought about a woman.

"What woman?" "One that came to town yesterday, ma'm." "Well, what has she got to do with it?" The matter was briefly explained to

During the conversation the princi-pals stood looking at the lady, recognizing her as the person about whom they had quarreled. The crowd, too, turned their faces from the disputants and gaped at her.

"See here, you galoots over there!" she called. "You don't want to fight about me. I got a husband and three children. And if I was single I wouldn't marry either of you. My husband's sick, and Hilton, where we live, is run down. I come over yere to see if there was a better chance to make a livin'. I wouldn't live in the town if you'd give it to me, and I wouldn't marry any man in it if I was single. So there! Git up, Sal."
And, giving her horse the whip, she passed on down the road.

The duel was called off, all adjourning to the Gold Eagle saloon, where the principals shook hands and called on all present to nominate their pizen. Then Mr. Thibadeaux, calling the crowd's attention by an ahem! said:

"Gents, I move that a committee be appointed to go to Hilton and represent to the lady the advantages of this place, which she has turned down, and assure her that if she will remove here with her family she will be taken care of. Since the committee must be provided with funds, I propose a collection.'

The proposition resulted in the removal of the family named to Shakedown City, where they were provided for till the husband recovered his health and in time became a promient citizen of the town.

The presence in Shakedown City of the lady, her husband and her children was a subject for ridicule of her two admirers, and they left the town.

MYSTERY OF A DREAM.

Me Heard True When Asleep and

Heard True, Too, When Awake. "In one of the East Indian border wars there was engaged an officer of high repute, the member of an ancient county family," says Mrs. Mayo in "Recollections of Eifty Years." One night the laird, its head, started from his sleep, exclaiming:

"There's the shot that has killed my brother!

"His wife told him it was but a dream. He must have given an anxlous thought to his brother before going to sleep.

"The next day the laird and his wife were in the garden directing their gardeners when the laird suddenly exclaimed:

"'Do you hear the bagpipes?"

"No,' answered the lady. 'I can hear nothing. I am sure there is no sound.' "'Strange,' said the laird, 'for I can even hear what is played. It is Flowers o' the Forest Are A' Wefe

"A few hours later came the telegram reporting that the brother had been shot down by some border warrior and over his lonely grave the men of his regiment had played the pathetic air whose mysterious echo seemed to have reached the laird."

Blowing Flowers. When amateurs speak of flowers "blowing" they are not using a mere vulgarism. They are speaking real old English. In the early tongue the verb "blowan" was used to indicate opening of flowers. Instead of "blow" being a corruption of "bloom" it is the other way about. "Blossom" comes from the same root.

The modern wife placed two plates with knives, forks, spoons and tum blers on the dining room table and took two paper napkins from a drawer, laying one beside each plate.

Then she lighted the gas stove, opened a can of soup and placed it in a skillet to heat. Next she opened two cans of vegetables and a can of salmon and heated these. She cut six slices of baker's bread and quartered a baker's pie, placing everything on the table, together with butter, salt, pepper and a pitcher of cold water.

If it is a headache, a backache, a sensation of irritability or twitching and uncontrollable nervousness, something must be wrong with the head or back, a woman naturally says, but all the time the real trouble very often centers in the organs. In nine cases out of ten the seat of the difficulty is here, and a woman should take rational treatment for its cure. The disorder should be treated steadily and systematically with Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

For diseases from which women suffer "Favorite Prescription" is a powerful restorative. During the last fifty years it has banished from the lives of tens of thousands of women the pain, worry, misery and distress caused by these diseases.

AN ENCHANTED PRINCESS.

Once there lived a poor woodcutter and his wife in the middle of the forest. He had three sons called Edward. George and Albert. The two eldest were thoughtless, but good natured.

One day Edward, the eldest, said to his father, "I am going out to make my fortune, father, and when I have made it I will come back." His father let him go sadly. On the Albert said "Yes" gladly. So he followed her, and at last they came to a grand castle. When they went in no oody was there. Then the princess said: "Tonight you will be tortured by invisible beings. You will see only their hands and feet, out don't say a word, and in the morning I will come. This will happen for three nights, but on the third day the castle will be yours."

That night when Albert was reading ten pairs of hands and feet appeared and pulled his hair, pinched and kicked him and tore his book to pieces, but he never said a word. Next morning the princess came, and with her came a hundred attendants, whom he had made free by his watching. That night the same happened, and in the morning the princess came with 200 servants now. The third night passed, and still he did not speak, and in the morning the princess came with 300 ervants and embraced him She show ed him all the cellars full of gold. A few days after they were married, and after that Prince Albert went to his father's home to bring him to his castle. The brothers had come back penniless through their thoughtless ness. They all went to the castle, and the mother and father lived with Princess Marion and Prince Albert. The brothers married the sisters of Marion, who also had castles. They all cannot be washed first, and exposed to the sun and air. If the garment cannot be washed in water and we do not care to send it to the cleaner it should never be laid away dirty with spots of grease and food, because these are just the things that will attract the moth worm first. The little spot on the lapel of the overcoat, the slight dirt on the shield of a child's flannel suit, these are the places that Mr. Moth Worm goes for first. Materials which are not thoroughly washable in water should be given a bath in gasoline and thorough

Dresses trimmed with fur should never be laid away with the fur on them, but have the fur ripped off, cleaned in gasoline, brushed and placed in separate packages. In fact, all fur must be thoroughly cleaned, brushed and aired before being laid away. Moth balls and camphor paper have been used for a long time and are still

There are many other articles which we perhaps cannot lay away, such as tufted furniture, cushions, etc. The best plan is to spray them with gasoline or benzine, using a small atomizer or hand spray, or they can be very carefully sponged with a diluted soluof corrosive sublimate in alcohol made just strong enough to leave a white stain.

Light, air, low temperature and frequent inspection are the things necessary for perfect storage.

New Pasture Area. The pastoral industry in the northern territory of Australia has been established in various districts where there are natural permanent waters. and although profits have been small owing to the great distance from the markets, flocks and herds of sheep and cattle have increased until there are now, according to Mr. David Lindsay, leader of the Elder Scienti-fic Exploring Expedition, over 450,-000 cattle, 20,000 horses, 75,000 sheep, and 8,000 goats pasturing on, 107,406 square miles. The scarcity, of labor has proved a great drawback in the agricultural development of the territory. An experimental sheep farm has been established near the head waters of the Roper river and if success be attained, a large area of country which at present is only considered fit for cattle will be available; for this class of stock. The inland regions are remarkably healthy for stock, and Mr. Lindsay is of opinion that the opening of stock routes by providing water, the building of railways, and the opening of a new port at the mouth of the McArthur River on the Gulf of Carpentaria, will have the effect of turning a practi-cally unoccupied country into one of the most important sources of meat supply in the Empire.

Too Sympathetic for Detectives. A woman detective has received an appointment from the Bristol au-thorities. There is nothing amateurthorities. ish about the Bristol appointment. The new officer has received special training in police work, and although her duties will chiefly concern women and children her services will be utilized in solving all classes of crime and mystery. "Women," an authority explained, "are particularly adapted for work which comes outside the scope of the ordinary detective but unfortunately it is government. tective, but unfortunately it is sometimes unsafe to trust a woman with an important investigation where young men are concerned. They are swayed by emotion. They can't help it; it is their nature, and they have been known to fall in love with the man they have been set to watch."

Big Price for Flax.

Extraordinary prices were obtain-ed in North of Ireland markets for home-grown flax during the past season. At present it is one of the most profitable crops that the farmer can turn his attention to, and, owing to the existing state of the flar-growing countries on the Continent, a splendid opportunity is offered. Irish farmers of largely increasing their flax crops. Reports agree that for some years to come the crop in Ireland will remain a profitable one. Flax is needed in increasing quantities and the Irish output is entirely. tities, and the Irish output is entirely inadequate to the demand. Last year some growers in the North of Ire-land received as much as £50 per acre for the crop.

Claims Lambtons Are Best of all Men in Camp.

(London Advertiser)

Lieut.-Col. T. P. Bradley, officer commanding the 149th (Lambton) Battalion, is proud to be in command of what he insists is the finest battalion, physically, in No. 1 Military District. Lieut.-Col. Bradley is a doctor of medicine in private life, and in order to forestall the possible rejection of medically unfit men, he personally examined every man in his unit before bringing it into camp. He claims that his men are, as a whole, the best specimens physically that he has ever seen in one organ-

Outsiders who have seen the men from Lambton have also been enthusiastic in their praise. Many of the "Lambtons" are more than six feet in height.

It is also elaimed that the unit is the best behaved in camp. The sec-ond night after it arrived in camp here, lights were out, and not a sound was heard after 10.15 p.m. This is considered rather remarkable in view of the fact that the men had just moved into a new town, where they might have been anxious to see the sights.

County Council

Sarnia, June 9.—After passing through the regular form of Council proceedings this morning at the court-house the County Council held what turned out to be the most heated discussion of the session, when Reeve Dawson, of Dawn Township, moved, seconded by Reeve McLaren, of Plympton Township, that no action be taken in reference to the grant of $1,200 to the 149th Lambton Battalion, which was requested by Lieut-Col. T. P. Bradley, of that battalion. The wordy battle lasted over an hour until it was finally adjourned until the afternoon session.

was many adjourned until the alternoon session.

The Council has already given the 149th $3,000 for recruiting purposes, which they have spent, with an overdraft of $182.32. In making the request Col. Bradley stated that they needed some $1,400 for the purchase of horses for the officers in the long list going to make up some $4,000 that they still had urgent need of. In making a rough estimate of what the battalion has had in the way of money from the whole County of Lambton, it has been tound that something over $10,000 has been actually given to them and now they are after $4,000 more. The councilors became quite heated, the most of them taking a contrary side to the request.

Late this afternoon the Council decided not to make the requested grant of $1,200, and they also decided not to pay the overlight the overdraft.

June 10th.—The June session ended today at noon. No business of considerable importance was transacted outside of the third reading of some 25 by-laws, providing grants for the coming season's work, and many of the institutions throughout the county. When the by-law for the $500 grant to the Benware family came up for the third and final reading there was another hot and lengthy discussion, but when the vote was put it was carried by a majority of

The by-law for granting a sum of money for repairing the Florence road, which was turned down yesterday while the Council was in committee, was reconsidered and the blank was filled in with the sum of $100. The bylaw for fourthing money to remove the rubbish with the sum of $100. The bylaw for furnishing money to remove the rubbish from the Aux Sable River, where it is the boundary between Middlesex and Lambton counties, was made for $125, which was considered to be half of what the work would cost.

Annual Report of Merchants Bank Shows Very Rapid Growth

Assets Now Exceed 96 Millions, Owing to Growth of Deposits and Note Circulation. Very Strong Liquid Reserves, Including large Holdings of Government and Municipal Secruities. Commercial Loans Rising Slowly.

The balance-sheet of the Merchants Bank of Canada at the close of the last fiscal year, on April 29, accounted tor assets of a total valuation of $96,361,363, being more than ten millions in excess of being more than ten millions in excess of any previous statement, from which it would appear that it will not be long before the bank passes the hundred-milliondollar mark. This increased volume of business is due to the great confidence reposed in the bank by a constantly-growing clientele, and to the saving disposition of the community. The fiscal year saw the Merchants Bank's interested bearing deposits increased by five ed bearing deposits increased by fiv millions, its non-interest deposits by 4 millions, its note circulation by over millions, its note circulation by over a million.

Against these public liabilities the bank holds unprecedentedly large liquid reserves. Cash and equivalent items, not including call loans, amounted to more than 20 millions, while call loans and holdings of high-class government, municipal and other securities bring up the total of liquid resources to the figure of $40,960,486, or exactly 50 per cent of public liabilities. This liquid reserve compares with $32,086,572, or about 44 per cent., in 1915 and $24,923,404 or about 36 per cent., in 1914, before the war. While the demand for commercial accomodation, by way of current loans, had begun to improve again, the growth in this item during the year did not do much to restore it to pre-war dimensions, current loans in Canada are now $48,-835,565, against $47,401,858, in 1915 and $53,003,673 in 1914. Frofits for the year were $950,715, which sufficed to the parameters of the million.

$53,603,673 in 1914. 2
Profits for the year were $950,715, which sufficed for the payment of the heavy war tax of the Dominion Government, the patriotic donations, an appropriation of $150,000 for contigencies, and the usual dividend of 10 per cent., leaving a small balance to add to accumulation surplus. Considering the prevailing reduction in available commercial business and considering the heavy cash holdings this is very satisfactory. The investment of a large sum in highly productive securities, with the renewed growth of commercial loans offers prospect of considerable improved profits for the current year. the current year.

The Directors and The General Manager are to be congratulated on the policy of caution and wisdom followed.
