Pr s ... rian Anniversary Services

The anniversary services in the Wat-ford Presbyterian church last Sunday were well attended, the church being filled in the morning and overflowing at night.

The unveiling of the memorial tablet The unveiling of the memorial tablet to our fallen heroes, Sergt. Clayton O. Fuller, Gunner Russell H. Trenouth and Pte. Thomas Lamb, was a very impressive ceremony. A brief address was given by the pastor in which he pointed out the duty of remembering those who have rendered us so great service. The congregation stood and after the flag veiling the tablet had been drawn aside by Lance Corp. Leffrey C. Trenouth the Lance Corp. Jeffrey C. WATFORD, DECEMBER 12, 1919

MADE NEW RECORD.

Two Canadians Flew From London to Cairo.

How two Canadian airmen broke the flying record from London to Cairo is related in an interesting record of the frip which Lieut. Harry Yates of the Royal Air Force has for-warded from Egypt to his parents in Ottawa.

Lieut. Yates and Lieut. James
Vance of Toronto undertook the trip for the British Government on a few hours' notice.

Their mission was one of great urgency by reason of disturbed conditions in the near east and time was of utmost importance — hence the use of the airplane. They left the use of the airplane. They left London on the evening of June 21 and reached Cairo shortly after dark on the evening of the 28th, having broken the existing London-Cairo record by 10 1/2 hours. They spent two of the five days on forced landing due to petrol trouble so that their actual flying time for the three thousand miles was just three days. They averaged from two and one-half to three hours' sleep per night and one hot meal a day, and were very greatly fatigued at the jour-ney's end.

After their arrival and safe dehatter their arrival and safe de-livery of their two distinguished passengers, they were tendered a dinner by Brig.-Gen. Salmono, and complimented by Gen. Allenby. Lieut. Yates writes: "We both thought it was over several times. Two-thirds of the route is over to the water's edge, and a forced landing means a certain crash. We landing means a certain crash. We had three forced landings with petrol trouble; as luck would have it, it was my trick at the wheel on each occasion; the first (which aged me at least two years) happened just after we entered the Gulf of Corinth. There were mountains on three sides and the gulf on the fourth. I managed to get down into the bed of a torrent and actually got away with nothing worse than a broken tail skid; I thanked my lucky stars that I knew Handley-Pages as I do."

Casualties In Canadian Fights.

In view of gossip as to excessive casualties incurred to gain incom-mensurate results, it is interesting to study reliable statistics available covering the most recent great bat-tles in which the Canadian Corps was involved:

was involved:
Vimy Ridge: Frontage of attack,
7,500 yards, advance 10,000 yards,
German divisions engaged 10, guns captured 67, prisoners taken 7,000,
casualties, 20,000.
Amiens: Frontage of attack 8,500 yards, advance 24,000 yards, German divisions engaged 17, guns captured 196, prisoners taken 10,000, casualties, 11,000.

casualties, 11,000.

Drocourt-Queant: Frontage of attack 10,000 yards, advance, 10,000 yards, guns captured, 100, prisoners taken, 11,000,; casualties, 15,000.

Cambrai: Frontage of attack 2,750 to 14,150 yards, advance 30,000 yards, George divisions engaged. 000 yards, German divisions engaged 13; guns captured, 207; prisoners taken, 10,000; casualties, 15,106. Valenciennes: Frontage of attack 5,000 yards, advance 25,000 yards; prisoners taken, 2,000; casualties,

Remembering that there were but four divisions in the Canadian Corps, only two or three of which could be in the line at one time, note the number of enemy divisions engaged, the increased frontage of attack, advance, guns captured and prisoners taken, then contrast those facts with the decrease in casualties and it is possible to gain some just estimate of the Higher Command.

point of the deep V opening, and the outline is quite original. The ceinture is made of white skunk and the same fur borders the high Medici collar and petal cuffs.

This is the type of dress, writes a Paris correspondent, that all elegant women need in their wardrobes. It is sufficiently ornate to wear at a fashionable wedding, and yet it might with perfect propriety be worn at a restaurant tea, or for ordinary visiting. This idea of throwing on a picturesque satin dress over a brocaded or striped princess robe is very popular in Paris just now.

Materials Are Favored.

Worth is using these two materials with the best effects; so is Mme. Paquin and so is Doucet. I saw, recently, in Doucet's showrooms model dress very similar to that sketched, which was made of deep purple panne over gray and black brosilk, the latter material being traced over with silver threads. On the neck and sleeves there were narrow borders of sable.

Lace dresses are becoming quite a craze in Paris; black lace, cream lace and the two combined. We are drifting toward a revival of fussy evening dresses; elaborate gowns trimmed with flounces and with intricate draperies and loops or ribbon. We are in for a reaction in dress matters.

For a long time back we have been satisfied with evening dresses of severe outline, which one could hardly call evening gowns at all.

Await the Final Peace. Now we are rapidly blossoming out. As if by magic the big "Maisons" have suddenly produced exquisite and elaborate evening toilettes, though the Parisiennes insist that really decollete dresses will not come right into fashion until peace is really signed. All the same we are dancing gaily along the road with leads to such frivolities Mirror velvet and panne may be said to be the favorite materials of the present moment for afternoon dresses of elaborate order, and both these materials are mixed with silk jersey-cloth and with bands of handsome fur. Nearly all the more expensive models have rich embroideries on corsage or side-panel, and these embroideries are achieved in metallic threads, glittering beads, brilliant silks and chenille.

I have often seen all these com-bined on a single length of embroidery. Worth is showing some lovely velvet princess robes which have richly embroidered, very high collars and cleverly arranged draperies of fine silk jersey cloth which fall heavy and straight at the sides of the robe. One model which specially pleased me was in mole-gray velvet, with mole-gray silk jersey cloth side draperies and superb embroideries worked in silver threads and steel beads. There was a high Medici collar, covered with embroidery and bordered with mole-skin and the petal sleeves were very similar to those shown in our sketch.

 Rene Fonck Has Career

As a Brilliant Duelist

Unique Among the Airmen

♥HE most polished aerial duelist the world has ever seen is Lieut. Rene Fonck, conqueror of fifty-nine enemy airmen. Rene Fonck was only twenty years of age when the war broke out. He had intended to become a mechanical engineer, and was greatly interested in flying. He was a conscript of the class of 1914, and he joined the French colors on August 22, 1914, immediately taking up the flying course. He got his commission during the following year, but it was not until 1916 that he was assigned to Escadrille C. 47 at the front. Then his great career as a flier began. He had one narrow escape during the three years of aerial fighting that followed, but it was not due to the cleverness of an opponent. He was brought down very early in his career by fire from the ground, and on that occasion his machine was literally riddled with holes, but he succeeded in getting out of his bad plight uninjured. Rene Fonck is now called the "king of the air." Practically all the honors and decorations that Great Britain can confer upon a French aviator are now his. One must compare tor are now his. One must compare Fonck's exploits to those of other great aces to grasp entirely the signi-ficance of the fact that never in his ficance of the fact that never in his entire career has an opponent succeeded in hitting his machine with a bullet. After bringing down more than half a hundred enemy machines in single combat, after flying for upwards of a thousand hours over the German lines and engaging in scores of combats which resulted in no victory for either side, this adroit pilot has never received a single bullet from an opponent's weapon, even in the broad ponent's weapon, even in the broad sails of his airplane. Other men have thrilling records of narow escapes. The romantic Guynemer was shot down eight times and had his clothing riddled on various occasions. Others have come through the war with many wound stripes. Rene Fonck, alone of all the fliers, found no opponent who could even en-danger his safety.

Music In Bohemia.

Music In Bohemia.

For the past two hundred years almost every inusical generation in Europe has counted among its stars a Bohemian—either with a genuine Slavic spelling or a German or Germanized name. Bohemia certainly has the right to be proud of the fact that one of Gluck's teachers, the Prague monk and hymn-writer, Bohuslav Tchernohorsky, was of Czech blood, and that the influence of the famous pianist, Johann L. Dussek (1761-1812), was equal to that of Clementi, while in invention and ideality he surpassed the great Italian composer.

Frantishek Shkroup (1801-1862), the composer of the first original Bohemian opera, in his "Where Is My Fatherland?" anticipated the glory and joy that came to Czecho-Slovakia in December, 1918. The Czech national movement found, however, its first real centre in the National Theatre, which was opened in Prague in 1862, and Bedzhich Smetana (1824-1884) set the bail rolling by writing his famous opera, "Branibori v. Czechach" ("The Brandenburgs in Prague"), Smetana, the founder of the Bohemian School of National Music, took not only the subjects of his principal compositions from the history of the Bohemian people, but also nationalized the department of orchestral music.—Family Herald.

Headon, who went overseas with the original Fourth Battalion as a private, brought back a document which he received from a committee of Plymouth citizens, accompanied by a ten-pound note. His privilege to go ashore from his ship before disembarkation was due to his need of a dentist's services. Stepping first from the first small boat to reach shore, he was immediately taken in charge by the committee, driven about the city and given the time of his life. All memory of toothache and thought of a dentist was banished from his mind, and he was replaced on the small boat. He was presented with a sealed envelope containing the "First Contingent" document and bankpote, which under instructions he did not open until his return to the troopship.

Headon served 26 months in France and Belgium before being wounded.

A Canadian ten-cent piece is worth only 9c and a Canadian dollar worth only 9c and a Canadian dollar only 92c in many cities of the United States. This is almost double the discount lately insisted upon by American takers of Canadian money. The adverse exchange rate of 5 per cent. was serious enough. Eight per cent. suggests a determination on per cent, suggests a determination on the part of at least some American bankers or merchants to put the screws on this country. The United States is in a position to exact this discount largely because Canada made enormously greater war sacrifices in proportion to its strength than did the American Republic. The war caused the Dominion to run into debt with the republic and that debt is increased every month that Canadians buy more from the United States than the Americans buy from them. Patriotic Canadians should take this fact into consideration when they do their shopping.

Every time a man or woman in this country buys an American-made, instead of a Canadian-made article, the plant to increase the agyerse

HUMANIZE EDUCATION.

Famous Canadian Gives Advice to the English.

Very gently does Sir William Osler, the famous Canadian doctor, suggest to the members of the Oxford Classical Association that what their cult of the humanities needs chiefly is to be humanized. No man ever praised the Greeks more devoutly. "The name of Hellas stands no longer for the name of a race, but as the name of knowledge; or, as more tersely put by Maine, 'Except the blind forces of nature, nothing moves in this world that is not Greek in origin.'" Yet, though president of the classical association it is a second the classical association, it is as a scientist that he speaks to these hu-manists—as Regius, professor of medicine; and he thrusts his charge home with masterly skill. To them the humanities mean only history, literature and philosophy; to the Greeks science was of equal importance. And in its relation to the humanities the science of the Greeks has a very special meaning for the world of to-day.

What Osler says of "Greats," the world-famous school of literae hu-maniores, is doubly true of classical instruction in Canada. "The moving forces which have made the modern world are simply ignored. Yet they are all Hellenic, all part and parcel of the humanities in the true sense, and all of prime importance in modern education." To the student in Greats, Aristotle is known as author of the "Metaphysics," "Politics" and "Poetis," but not as a scientist. Yet, as was pointed out to Perwin and as was pointed out to Darwin and admitted by him, "the principle of natural selection" was shadowed forth by Aristotle. "In biology," says Osler, "Aristotle speaks for the first time the language of modern science, and indeed he seems to have been and indeed he seems to have been first and foremost a biologist; his natural history studies influenced profoundly his sociology, his psychology, and his philosophy." studied scientifically "the problems of heredity, of sex, of nutrition, of growth, of adoption and of the structure for dity, of sex, of nutrition, of growth, of adaptation and of the struggle for existence." Though encyclopedic in his interests, he was a specialist in embryology unrivalled for 2,000 years. His discovery of a "special mode of reproduction in one of the species of sharks" waited until the nineteenth century to be confirmed. Yet Osler searched the examination Yet Osler searched the examination papers of the school of literae hu-maniores through the past decade and found no reference to Aristotle and found no reference to Aristotle as a scientist. Other cases are almost as striking. Lucretius had views of "the origin of the world and the origin of man" which are up to date with the most modern thought; and his conception of "continuity in the workings of nature" are "unmatched among the ancients or moderns"; yet the fact is similarly ignored in the school of literae humaniores. The the school of literae humaniores. The inevitable result is a failure to grasp what is fundamental in history and philosophy, man's relation to the orimal force of humanity and to the universe. There is another side to the picture, the professed scientist. "The extraordinary development of modern science may be her undoing. Specialism, now a necessity, has fragspecialties them The worker loses all sense of pro portion in a maze of minutiae. Applying themselves early to research, young men get into backwaters, far from the main stream. They quickly become hypercritical, and the small-er the field the greater the tendency to magalocephaly. From over-spe-cialization, scientific men are in a more parlous state than are the humanists from neglect of classical tra-dition. The salvation of science lies in a recognition of a new philosophy —the scientia scientiarum which Plato describes: 'Now, when all these studies reach the point of intercommunion and connection with one anmunion and connection with one another, and come to be considered in their mutual affinities, then I think, and not till then, will the pursuit of them have value.'" Osler accordingly proposes a modified honor school in which the principles of philosophy are to be dealt with in relation to the sciences, and in which science is to be illumined by the introduction of literary and historical studies. "Sciliterary and historical studies. "Science will take a totally different position in this country when the knowledge of its advances is the possession of all educated men."

Many minds are to-day moving to-ward a similar concention of the ward a similar conception of the truly cultural education. As a satir-ist of modern classicism pointed out, the Greeks had not the slightest sus-picion that they were ancients. In each passing century those who un-derstand them best think of them most nearly as they thought of them-selves when they walked and talked on the Akropolis. To us of to-day they are most modern when we fol-low their tentative observations in science, their inspired guesses as to the moving forces in this world ma-chine, and eke them out with our fuller correlation of facts, our ever enlarging and solidifying theories as to man and his place in nature.

Camp Honeymoon

By IZOL'A FORRESTER

(Copyright, 1919, by the McClure News-paper Syndicate.)

"Well, it's seven miles from Nowhere, sure enough," Dell declared with a sigh, after they had climbed the trail for three hours, and still the camp on Mirror lake lay far ahead of them. "I don't care, though. The farther the better, and I hope we'll never see a white man all the time we're here."

Wah-tonah, the guide, heard, and ever changed his expression. If the white women who camped on the lake chose to think nobody else cared to camp there likewise, it was not his fault, nor his duty to instruct them. Two weeks before he had climbed the same trail with the three men who wanted to be where there were no women. One had been very ill. One was his brother and helped him over the rough places along the trail. The other sang much. His voice rang out in the wilds like some clear-toned bird call. The guide remembered, too, that he had been like the old hero hunters to look upon, tall and slim and strong, and he had laughed much and cheered the other two.

There was no fear that they would meet unless the curling smoke of the camp fires betrayed them to each other, but Wah-tonah felt his conscience was perfectly clear in the matter. They each had a whole side of the lake to themselves. If they would stay on their own sides there would be no trouble. And here he had a happy thought. Gravely he looked at the three; the one too fat, the one too thin, the one with the hair like sunlight and eyes like deep water in shadow. He did not know their names, but this one he liked best, so he addressed her. "Too much bear on lake," he told "Not where you go. All good there. Too much bear other side lake." "We'll stay right on our own side, thanks, Wah-tonah," Beth said prompt-"Anyway, we're all pretty good shots."

But she remembered what he had said. After the second week at the camp one day she had swung out into the woods to pick berries, and there came a suspicious crackling in the underbrush. Watching keenly, she heard the slow, heavy movements of a body pushing its way through, and before she thought twice she had slung her rifle to her shoulder and sent a good shot straight at the moving bushes. Almost instantly there came a good, neavy broadside of strong language, and Beth sat tight on a log, longing to laugh and only glad the shot had not taken effect.

Out from the woods came her "big ame," six feet two, dressed in khaki, and frankly furious. At sight of her he stopped short, stared and then laughed with her.

"Well, you did clip my hat," he said ruefully, showing the two neat holes through the peaked crown. "Do I look like a bear?" "You acted just like one," said Beth. "How was I to know. Wah-tonah, our guide, told me there wasn't a soul up here but us, and there were bears on the other side of the lake."

"The cheerful liar!" exclaimed the intruder. "He took our whole outfit up there a month ago, and knew we were going to stay, and he's been up with supplies twice since, and never told us anybody was here but ourselves.

"We've got a dandy camp down on the shore in that little curve where the pine grove is. Probably he didn't te' us about you because—well, my aunt's with us, and Dell, that's her daughter; Dell's just had a really terrible experi-She is completely disillusioned, and the engagement's broken, and we came up here to try and make her forget. She had heard of the lake from him, and always wanted to come, I be lieve."

"Isn't that too bad!" Stanley settled himself beside her sympathetically. "May I help pick berries, too? Maybe we can fix up a truce whereby I'll trade fresh fish with you for huckle-berry pies; how's that? I'm dying for a whole pie. We're not much on cooking, any of us. There's Frank Carmaybe you've heard of him, awfully clever fellow, scientist at Columand his brother, Hal. I roomed with Carter during our post-grad, years and when he had to come up here with Hal. I told him I'd stand by. been pretty sick; nervous breakdown and worry."

"Halbert Carter?" queried Beth, eag-The man?"

"Yes, the one Dell was engaged to and they were to be married this fall, and she went to visit a girl friend, Madeinine Collier, and she found out he'd been engaged to her. toc."

"Well?" Stanlog tried to look seri-"But he had told Dell she was the only girl he had ever loved.' "Didn't that prove it, when 1 'd found out the other was a mistake?

"I don't know." Beth looked aw: from him over at the waters of the "I suppose to men engagements are just happenings, but perhaps they don't realize there are girls who are different, who really do believe in-"

"What?" "Why, in romance, don't you know," She flushed a little, but went on, feeling she was pleading Dell's cause against one who was an infidel in the faith of loving. "It was an awful shock to her to find out he had been all through a real engagement before. Madelaine told her she had even started her trousseau.'

"It may do her good to tell her"his tone took on a quick sternness as he stood up-"that Hal's absolutely smashed up over her silly nonsense. He loved her completely. He made us bring him up here because it seemed they had planned to spend their honeymoon here in camp—"
"That's what Dell told me. I must get back, or they'll miss me." "Let's try and tie up these ends of. comance again, you and I," he said.

"And don't think me an infidel. I believe, too, in love at first sight." She ran back down the overgrown path to the camp with his words ringing in her ears and a guilty load on her conscience. But the secret of the other campers was as safe with her as with Wah-tonah, and when she coaxed Dell to take a long hike with her she never betrayed the plan Stanley had laid out. He was to bring Halbert halfway round the lake, up to the rocky point where the pines were and leave him there to rest just when Dell would find her way up the narrow trail. The two conspirators waited down at the base of the cliff. They had known each other now for two whole weeks, and when Dell and Mrs. Cameron had marveled at the fish Beth caught she only smiled happily. There was too much at stake to give the secret away.

"How long shall we leave them up there?" asked Beth, hopefully.

"Till they come down. If there had been any trouble she'd have come flying back the minute she saw him. It's all right. I'll bet a cooky they get married up here and chase us all away," he laughed up at her. "I've had a corking time, haven't you? I wonder if you still believe that?" "What?"

"Love at first sight." Above them there came a whistle, then a hail from Hal. "Don't answer yet," he began.
"They won't miss us a bit. Didn't you know the first day we met that-"They're coming down," said Beth.

"I know it's all right." He took her two hands in his and forced her to turn to him. "I've never even asked a girl to marry me before," he said, "and here you won't even listen to me. I'll throw you over my shoulder and carry you back to camp if you don't answer me. She laughed up at him teasingly as Dell and Halbert came in sight together.

"I'd love a honeymoon in camp, too," she said.

BIRD SAVED LOST BATTALION

And for That Reason "President Wilson" Has Been Cited for the D. S. C.

The carrier pigeon that saved the 'Lost Battalion" was a visitor here the other day with the third assistant secretary of war.

This winged messenger, named President Wilson, is the sole survivor of a basket of signal corps pigeons that attempted to carry messages from the "Lost Battalion" to headquarters. For this service the war department has cited it for the Distinguished Service cross. In action it had its left leg

The official citation of President Wilson follows:

"During the operations of the tanks in the St. Mihiel offensive, one big blue bird, known to his trainer as President Wilson, working from the tanks, carried messages of importance with such rapidity of flight as to call forth commendations from the signal officer of the first corps. Transferred to the Meuse-Argonne sector, with station at Cuisy, President Wilson again proved his mettle. It was on the morning of November 5, the big blue, with his leg shot off, arrived at his loft. His flight, the second on this front, was made in 21 minutes, over a distance of 20 kilometers. Particuarly creditable was the performance of President Wilson because of the fact that he homed in a heavy rain and fog. A powerful bird, of wonderful vitality, the big blue recovered quickly, and today graces the Hall of Honor of the American pigeon service. President Wilson is officially designated as U. S. A. 18, 16374, b. c."-Philadelphia Led"Apostle Spoons."

"Apostle Spoons."

These spoons, also called "gossip spoons," were gilt spoons given by the sponsors or "gossips" to a child at its christening. They were so called because each spoon had a figure of an apostle on the handle. Wealthy people gave the whole Twelve Apostless of the spoon had a sport of the spoon had a spoot of the spoon had a spoon ha tles; those of less means and gener-osity gave the Four Evangelists; while poorer persons had to be contented with one, bearing generally the figure of the donor's or of the child's patron saint. There is a capi-"Everyday Book," copied from one in possession of the author. It is noticeable that each apostle seems to wear a broad-brimmed hat—the hat being in fact a plate of metal which was put on the head to pre-serve the features from injury, and which is to be seen on all genuine apostle spoons .- Family Herald.

> By Putting the Grain-Grinder and Cutting-Box in Shape.

It Pays In Time and Money to Overhaul Farm Machinery—Hints on Knife Adjustment—How to Estilished, we find many of them whose previous market was the small-town local dealer, with his uneconomic method of marketing eggs. Such circles are now receiving, in spite of their distance from the central market, wholesale prices while unorganized points nearer often receive lower prices. mate the Speed of Pulleys.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

IME in farm work will be saved by systematically overhauling the implements and machinery. This should be done after the season's work is Use tends to disorganise machinery: the fixed parts become loose through vibration, wear, stress, and strain; bearings, gears, joints, all bright and moving parts are attacked by rust, particularly if left out in the weather; oil holes and grease cups become clogged with gummed oil, dust and trash. this accumulated matter should be scraped off and the parts wiped down with a rag saturated with kerozene; afterward covered with a coating of grease or oil as a protective measure against the devasting action of rust To render efficient service and to pre-vent possible accidents these ma-chines should be kept clean, properly adjusted, and run at correct speed

The grain grinder shaft and bearings should not be allowed to become gummed up with oil and dust: the burrs or plates should be renewed when worn. In replacing them see that they are attached so that they do not wobble, and that the sieves are free from rust, chaff, sand and gritty matter. All running parts should be kept well oiled.

Every working mechanism of the cutting box should be carefully examcutting box should be carefully examined and all trash and gummed oil removed from flywheel shaft, feed rolls, bearings and gears; guards and shields placed in position and securely fixed; the feed rolls should move freely up and down and the safety devices in working order. Attend to the cutter knives, have them properly ground and correctly adjusted to the ground and correctly adjusted to the flywheel in relation to the cutter bar; if too far the fodder will not be properly cut; if too close to the cutter bar the draft of the machine is in-creased, the knives acting as a brake on the flywheel, dulling both knives and cutter bar. Used with a blower it is important that the proper speed be developed as the fan can only create sufficient blast by running fast enough to force air through the pipe at a rate of 9 to 10 thousand feet at a rate of 9 to 10 thousand feet per minute. Speed is an important factor in operating these machines for efficient service, not only as to the amount done, but also as to the quality, or the amount of work accomplished, but most manufac-turers state in their catalogues the speed at which the machine should travel. The operator should figure out the size of the pulley to attain the speed required.

The rule for speeds of pulleys is the diameter of the "driving" pulley multiplied by its speed is equal to the diameter of the "driven" multi-plied by its speed: or D X R = dXr in which "D" is the diameter of the driving pulley multiplied by "R" its speed, and "d" the diameter of the driven pulley multiplied by "r" its speed. If we know three of these items we can easily figure out the

The driving pulley is the one that causes the belt to move.
The driven pulley is the one that is moved by the belt.
Possibly a farmer may have on hand an engine rated 2 h.p., speed 400 revolutions per minute with an 8-inch pulley. He buys a grinder without considering what relation its speed bears to that of his engine. When the grinder is hitched up to the engine it does not deliver the capacity expected of it. This promiscuous buying and want of forethough in purchasing machinery is cuous buying and want of fore-though in purchasing machinery is responsible for a great deal of trou-ble and dissatisfaction. More at-tention should be given in this re-gard when buying additional mach-inery for the farm. We'll suppose that the grinder bought is rated 2,000 to 2,500 R.P.M., 4 inch or 5 inch pulley; capacity per hour 3 to 10 bushels depending on the condition of the grain.

Relating this grinder to the engine, we find, taking the above formula that B8 x R 400 -d4 x r - 8 x 400 - 800

R.P.M., but the manufacturer's rat-R.P.M., but the manufacturer's rating calls for 2,000 to 2,500 R.P.M.
Hence the grinder is delivering only two-fifths of its rated capacity or something like 1 1-5th bushels per hour. To get the required speed the driving pulley on the engine should be 20 inches in diameter, worked out as follows:

DxR 400-d4 x r2000-4 x 5-20" pulley. or the speed of the engine with an 8-inch pulley should be 1,000 R.P.M. worked out thus $D8xR-d4 \times r2000 - \frac{4\times1000}{8/2} - 1000 R.P.M.$ This method applies also to finding the speed and size of pulleys of the cutting box.—Prof. Jno. Evans, O. A. College, Guelph NEARLY 3,400 KILLED.

There are about fifty Egg Circles in the province, ranging in membership all the way from four to 400. The story of all these egg circles and others which have failed would give an almost complete picture of how co-operation should, or should not be carried on. In reading over the names where the circles are established, we find many of them whose previous market was the small-town

In Ontario last year, the lives of 3,380 persons were claimed by consumption. This is all the more terrible because most of them might have been saved had they been helped in time.

Here is a case in point. Several years ago a man came to the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives. He had been on Active Service in Africa, where hardship and exposure had broken down his health. Suspicious of his symptoms he sought our aid. A short time ago he wrote:

he wrote:

This is not an isolated case, for many others have been restored to health and anxious families. It takes much money to carry on the work. Your gift, for whatever amount, will be gratefully received.

In regard to the Eastabrooke and Thompson case, I have been told that Mr. Eastabrooke has been telling that Thompson's paid him $12 which is a talse statement. Eastabrooke withdrew the case, paying his own costs, also the costs of summoning and serving of the defendents. It looks as though Mr. Eastabrooke was ashamed when he had to resort to such deceit.
