U. E. LOYALISTS SHORTHORNS SAYS LIBERAL MEMBER

White, of Victoria, Alberta, Says They Took to Woods to Avoid Fighting in the United States.

GRIND STILL GOES ON

Hughes, of King's, P. E. I., Blames Both Parties For Spending Too Much Money on Military Matters.

OTTAWA, March 8.—The house is plodding steadily thru the last day of its week-long sitting with little appearance of friction between the opposing camps.

At one o'clock this afternoon there were some half-dozen Liberals in their seats, and enough Conservatives to make up the required quorum.

There were two furies last night. One came shortly after midnight, when some practical joker rang the bell which announces the adjournment of the house.

Mr. Borden and others kept the talk going until ten o'clock this morning, when Mr. White, the Liberal member for Victoria, Alberta, took the floor.

Mr. White paid his respects to the U. E. Loyalists, who he described as a lot of "Shortorns."

Mr. Hughes, the Liberal member for Kings P. E. I., said this country was spending entirely too much on military matters.

Some Conservative member evidently told a good story to his colleagues and soon they were all assembled in a small group laughing boisterously.

Mr. Wilson wanted to know whether the government would compel the house to sit on Sunday.

Mr. Wilson spoke in French and English to the evident disgust of the unfortunate Conservatives who had to remain in the chamber during his speech.

Mr. Gorman of Welland, who followed, reminded the house that according to the ruling made by the speaker only one sitting of the house this week.

Mr. Gorman said the policy of the Borden government was imperial federation and an imperial parliament.

Mr. Gorman said the policy of the Borden government was imperial federation and an imperial parliament.

WOODROW WILSON'S CABINET IN SESSION

MACKENZIE KING IS NOMINATED BY N. YORK LIBERALS

"New Hope" Given Enthusiastic Reception by Market.

NO RACE APPEAL THERE

Stayed Out of Fight in North Waterloo on That Account—Ready For the Election.

NEWMARKET, March 8.—(By a Staff Correspondent.)—Led by the wailing notes of a pipe and the Aylesworth Liberal Association of King City, the Liberal delegates to the North York Liberal nomination convention marched from the Metropolitan Radial Station to the town hall this afternoon.

Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King decided it would pay him better to get dinner at the King George Temperance hotel and the paraders marched with-out "The Liberal Hope" in North York in line.

The meeting opened with ex-Mayor Urquhart of Toronto, Sir Alan Aylesworth, Hon. Mackenzie King, T. C. Robbette and a number of the prominent Liberals of the riding on the platform.

By this time the hall was so packed that even the doorways were crowded and space at the rear of the platform was utilized for part of the audience.

Compliment to T. C.

President Widdifield declared it quite possible that an election would take place before many weeks, and it behooved them to nominate a candidate to contest the riding in the Liberal interests.

As a compliment to T. C. Robbette, K.C., his name was put forward first by T. G. Legg of King and J. D. Davidson.

Hon. Mackenzie King was nominated by R. B. Davis and Jas. Cooper.

Mr. Robbette said he felt it his duty to stand aside and let one so much better fitted for the post than himself.

NEW PRESIDENT IS OUR FRIEND, AVERS BRYCE

British Ambassador to United States Brings to Ottawa Expression of Wilson's Good Will.

OTTAWA, March 8.—"Canada's relations with the United States never stood on a better footing than they do now," said British Ambassador Bryce, addressing the Canadian Club here this afternoon.

He added: "I called on the new president of the United States on Thursday and also on the new secretary of state and both expressed in terms that could not have been firmer, their desire to be on terms of cordial and hearty friendship with Canada."

The speaker told of a visit paid to Australia and New Zealand, the parts of the empire which he had not previously visited, last winter, and urged closer trade and travel relations between the Dominion and the Antipodes.

Mr. Bryce urged a closer bond of union between different parts of the empire and suggested that more Canadians should enter the civil services of India and Australia.

In closing the speaker referred to his approaching departure from the ambassadorship at Washington, and said that he expected he would pay personal, if not official, visits to Canada in days to come.

Premier Borden, who followed, echoed the imperialistic sentiments of the speaker.

The hall was packed for the meeting, which was brought to a close with cheers for the distinguished guest, Dr. Otto Klotz, president of the Ottawa Canadian Club, acted as chairman.

WHITNEY'S COUNSEL TO GUIDE BORDEN IN HANDLING BLOCK

Provincial Premier in Ottawa Consulting With Federal Leader Over Crisis—Opposition Determined to Force Election and the Result of Deadlock Is Uncertain.

(By Tom King.) OTTAWA, March 8.—Are we face to face with a breakdown of parliamentary government in Canada?

The close of the week finds a government, fresh from the people, with a majority of 45, utterly unable to carry on the business of the country.

The result of the present deadlock, for example, will be to prevent any revision of the Bank Act and to leave on the sidings unfinished business—the parcels post, the equalization and reduction of railway rates and other progressive measures, which were to occupy and should have occupied the attention of parliament at this session.

Today has seen the arrival of Sir James Whitney, who drove at once from the station to the prime minister's residence on Wurttemberg avenue.

What is to be the result of it all? Not unnaturally, it is expected that the government will soon take some forward action and seek to end the present deadlock by terminating the debate.

THREE MINISTERS ARE INVOLVED

Tancred Marsil Gives Some Particulars of Alleged Hochelaga By-Election Scandal.

MONTREAL, March 8.—The Herald today says: "The three ministers of Hon. R. L. Borden's cabinet will have to face direct charges in connection with the Hochelaga bye-election, was the declaration today of Mr. Tancred Marsil, one of the opposition leaders in the fight which resulted in the re-election of Hon. Louis Coderre last November."

"It had been rumored for some time past that the leaders of the opposition at Ottawa had in their hands affidavits concerning a startling political scandal. The semi-official note which was communicated to parliamentary reporters on Thursday announcing that the opposition was about to make some definite charges of electoral corruption against one of the ministers of the crown, has, it was said today, brought the matter to a climax."

"According to Mr. Marsil's statement today a 'well-oiled machine' had conspired to do with Hon. Mr. Coderre's victory in Hochelaga, and he described the alleged organization as follows: "The plans were skilfully laid. An able man who, I was told, had picked up experience in Saskatchewan, and a confederate hailing from the mountainous Laurentide regions, put their heads together and managed and financed the game."

"The speaker told of a visit paid to Australia and New Zealand, the parts of the empire which he had not previously visited, last winter, and urged closer trade and travel relations between the Dominion and the Antipodes."

"The figures in the alleged 'telegraphing,' Mr. Marsil declares, amounted to many hundreds. "It is a fact much, seeing that the whole election cost the ministerialists the trifling sum of $22,000," he said, adding: "The organizers are wondering now where the pile went to. Of course, the cost of living is increasing every day."

New Proposal For Gradual Widening of Street Brings Out Discussion of Sub-way Project.

If the new policy on the matter of widening Teraulay street is adopted an homologated line, maintaining a street width of 86ft., will be at once established from Queen street to the city limits, new buildings will have to conform to that homologated line, and in five or six years the widening of the street through can be carried out upon the most reasonable terms.

LONDON'S VIEWS OF FINANCIAL CONDITIONS

Critical Situation in German Money Market Occasions Alarm in Europe.

MAY RAISE BANK RATE

Financial Position Is Strained How Trouble in Berlin Was Aggravated.

NEW YORK, March 8.—(Special.)—The London correspondent of the Evening Post cables the following comment on financial conditions:

The view taken by financial circles here regarding the new administration and the president's address is that judgment must be suspended until some declaration of specific policy is made to congress.

All other considerations on our markets have been overshadowed by the developments at Berlin. With the recognized improvement in the Balkan situation, and the adjustment of a troublesome labor difficulty on one of the great European railways, it had been thought possible, early in the week, that distinct improvement in the stock exchanges might occur. But the German situation has checked such a tendency.

An Unfortunate Affair. The belief in best postal financial quarters is that the German Government's extraordinary program of spending $50,000,000 on fortresses and other new armaments leaked out prematurely. If so, the incident was most unfortunate.

How financial Germany regards it has been shown by the immediate efforts of the Berlin banks to borrow abroad, and to establish abroad, when ever possible, balances which might be utilized to draw gold. It is evident that the end of March quarterly settlements are looked forward to with real anxiety—not less so when half of the payment on the German loans must be made on the 27th of this month.

Bank of England Position. In connection with these efforts to secure credit balances in London, large realizations of stocks have been effected. Time will therefore be needed to digest this mass of securities suddenly thrown upon our market.

Reichsbank's latest return shows an outstanding circulation of 16,000,000 marks, a year ago, and that the German plans to raise abnormal sums for armament, combined with the similar tactics at once adopted by France, will, necessarily, reduce the probability of release of the continued hoarded money when peace in the Balkans is at hand. The current estimate of such hidden cash in France alone, is $30,000,000.

A rise in the Bank of England rate will be avoided if possible, but action in that regard will be determined by the German market's requisitions; for our own bank's reserve, in spite of the high 5 per cent. bank rate, is $1,500,000 worse than a year ago.

"ELATION DAY" IN DALE CHURCH

Settlement With Dale Estate Has Been Amicably Reached—Ten Thousand Is Given.

Today Rev. John D. Morrow of Dale Presbyterian Church, West Queen street, will announce to his congregation that a settlement has been made in connection with the Dale estate, under which the church will receive $10,000. The National Trust Co. has notified the Rev. Mr. Morrow of the settlement of the late Robert Dale which the estate of the late Robert Dale has been involved for a long time. As far as the courts are concerned, this lawsuit is still unsettled, but an amicable arrangement has been made whereby the Dale Church receives the very comfortable sum of money, which is so badly needed. The Rev. Mr. Morrow and his flock are naturally very much pleased.

CITY WOULD HAVE THEIR OWN LINES

Forest Hill Electric Promoters Told They Interfere With Annexation Schemes.

Promoters of the projected Forest Hill Electric Railway had a conference with Mayor Hocken Saturday morning and requested withdrawal of opposition by the city to the route of the road, promising that the charter would be turned over to the city when the city so desired.

Mayor Hocken declared that the city will oppose to the utmost the route of the road, the city having already incorporated in its extension policy the annexing of the territory the projected road seeks to serve, and the extension of the municipal street railway system to that district as population requires it.

The route of the projected road is from the head of Dunvegan avenue, up Forest Hill road, westward along Eglington avenue to a point one mile west of Dufferin street, up Dufferin street 2 1/2 miles, then across to street 2 1/2 miles and down Bathurst street the 2 1/2 miles to Eglington ave. Mayor Hocken pointed out that the projected road at Dunvegan ave. would be half a mile from the civic street car lines, necessitating passengers who transfer walking that distance. Also that at least double car fare would have to be paid; also that the city may possibly annex all the territory west of North Toronto and south of Eglington ave, westerly to the Don River and that the transportation lines in their report recommended that the street railway system serve the large territory south of Eglington ave.

How to Get Rid of Your Superfluous Hair

I Cured Mine by a Simple, Safe, Harmless Treatment Which Can Be Used at Home With Complete Success. Age and Severity No Obstacle.

Prominent Lady Offers to Tell Her Secret FREE

I am a woman who belongs to a family whose women members have been especially afflicted with Superfluous Hair. Before I was 25, I developed a horrid case of hair growth, which quite spoiled my life.

was said to have invented a new treatment which was reported to be a great success. I replied that I had tried so many things, but was not going to be humbugged again, but my friend pointed out that the inventor was a reliable PHYSICIAN of integrity and good position, and asked for his candid opinion. He tested it thoroughly and wrote me that he saw no reason why it should not be a universal success, as the Great English Chemist had undoubtedly saved the problem of REACHING THE ROOTS.

So I sent for the method and after some hesitation tried it. The result was indeed all my previous disappointments that I became a wonder of walking here annual success. I submitted the preparation to a friend and good position, and asked for his candid opinion. He tested it thoroughly and wrote me that he saw no reason why it should not be a universal success, as the Great English Chemist had undoubtedly saved the problem of REACHING THE ROOTS.

RAISE THE COIN BY SUBSCRIPTION

This Is the Suggestion of Hon. Jacques Bureau, Who Continues Six-Day Grind.

OTTAWA, March 8.—Hon. Jacques Bureau continued the six-day grind late this afternoon. He suggested that a good way to test public sentiment would be to raise the proposed grant of $35,000,000 by subscription.

Mr. Nantel: "Thirty-five million dollars." Mr. Bureau: "Thirty-five cents you mean." Mr. Lapointe: "He would send over a cart load of vegetables." Mr. Bureau made a somewhat savage attack upon the postmaster-general, the minister of inland revenue and the member for Hochelaga. Mr. Severyn recalled some of their nationalistic speeches of recent years. Mr. Nantel said, "had come to office holding fast to the coat tails of Mr. Monk; he should have left office with Mr. Monk."

MINING INTERESTS DEMAND ATTENTION

J. B. Tyrrell Complains of Parliamentary Neglect of the Greatest Industry in Canada.

"The mining industry at the present time is the largest industry in Canada outside of agriculture," said J. B. Tyrrell, the well-known mining engineer, on his return to Toronto from Ottawa Saturday morning. "It is increasing in every direction. The output from Canadian mines during the past year has increased about 25 per cent, and there is every possibility of an even greater increase during the present year. People have only just begun to realize the vast possibilities of the mining industry, which will be developed in this country within the next few years, and at the present moment the production of the mines is set to the production of the fisheries and forests, both together."

DR. FRIEDMANN IS NOT A FAKER

Director of People's Hospital, New York, Speaks in Support of German Physician.

NEW YORK, March 8.—(Special to Sunday World.)—Dr. Max Landeman, director of the People's Hospital, today came to the support of Dr. Friedmann in a statement that followed an evening passed with the doctor. "The doctor, who heads the hospital, said: 'I spent all of last evening with Dr. Friedmann, and my idea in whether or not he was a faker.' I am convinced that, no matter whether his serum has merit or not, he personally is not a faker."

NEW BUILDING FOR COMMISSIONS

Ontario Government Considering Erection of Quarter-Million-Dollar Structure—Part of Big Scheme.

It is understood that the Ontario Government will erect a large building, to cost about $250,000, to house the Hydro-Electric Commission and the T. and N.O. Commission. Nothing definite has been done, and no site has been chosen, but report has it that owing to the present cramped quarters of the two public ownership enterprises the government has decided to erect a separate building to accommodate them. Some time ago it was thought that both would be given room in the new north wing of the Parliament Buildings, but the Ontario Railway Board and education department were given quarters instead. In all probability a sum will be set aside for the new building in the supplementary estimates which will be presented to the legislature in a few days.

EUROPE IN STATE OF UNEASINESS

Reawakening of France Is Giving Satisfaction But Causing Anxious Times in England.

LONDON, March 8.—"There can be no doubt that there is at the present moment a good deal of uneasiness among thinking men in England in regard to the European situation," thus declares The Spectator, in a remarkable article, which appears to-day. The writer continues as follows: "The reawakening of France and the evidence of her power and alertness has given immense satisfaction in this country, but that satisfaction is tempered in many cases by anxious thought. There is a feeling here that France may find the temptation of 'now or never' too great for her, and may feel that her national interests demand that a European struggle shall be fought this year."

MAY SHOW MADERO ENEMY OF U. S.

Despatches Will Prove That He Made Strenuous Effort to Incite Anti-American Feeling.

MEXICO CITY, March 8.—During the closing days of the Madero administration it is asserted that the late President Francisco I. Madero made strenuous efforts to incite anti-American sentiment throughout the republic and in order to prove this provincial president Huerta's government is considering the advisability of making public the official telegrams and letters despatched by the late president.

The government it is said may also publish the orders given by Francisco Madero to General Huerta then commander of the federal forces. These letters show, it is declared, that Madero instructed General Huerta to use dynamite for the destruction of the public and private buildings between the national palace and the arsenal when the latter place was occupied by the rebels under Felix Diaz.

Among the other alleged orders given by Madero during the final moments of his rule is one in which it is said he directed the officers of the Mexican gunboats lying in the Port of Vera Cruz, to fire upon the American marines at the very moment when an attempt should be made to land forces from the United States war vessels, paying no regard to the expressed purpose of the American naval commanders, merely to protect foreigners. The execution of such an order would have meant the suicide of the Mexican naval forces as a single shell from the battleship Georgia, lying only two yards distant would have been sufficient to destroy each of the Mexican gunboats.

The report is current that a few days before his capture, Francisco Madero in desperation telegraphed to the state governors and Jefes Politicos throughout the republic stating that the United States marines had landed at Vera Cruz and that this foreign invasion demanded the loyalty of all Mexican citizens.

The reported arrival of Alfonso Madero at Washington, where it is said the details of the former Madero conspiracy were developed, has not been overlooked by the Mexican cabinet and it is said that the Washington government probably will be asked to exercise extraordinary precautions in order to prevent professional revolution makers in the United States from participating in the plans of the fugitive who are declared to be anxious to revenge.

Presbyterians Want Pres. Wilson

Keen Rivalry Existing Among Churches For Support of Heads of Nation.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—Keen rivalry has sprung up among the Presbyterian churches of Washington over the effort to enroll the membership of President and Mrs. Wilson during their four years' stay in Washington. So keen has the competition been that the president has declined up to this time to make any announcement of his affiliation. The same holds true in the case of Vice-President and Mrs. Marshall, who also are Presbyterians.

The several congregations engaged in the attempt to enroll the heads of the nation are the New Avenue Church; the Church of the Covenant and the First Presbyterian Church. The first named, because of its accessibility to the White House, is believed to have a better chance of winning in the race than have the others. Furthermore, a number of presidents have worshipped in the edifice, and for this reason it is popularly known as "The Church of the Presidents."

It was known today the president's family will attend services in the New York avenue edifice tomorrow, although no instructions had been given to the White House employees concerning arrangements.

THE SHAW STREET DUMP.

Editor Sunday World: I regret to trespass on the valuable space of your paper, setting forth this cesspool of filth, which has been and is a menace to the health of all citizens living near what is known as Shaw street dump.

This plague-spot is the receptacle of all kinds of carrion and rubbish of every description, known as garbage, of all grades. Thousands of tons of this filth has been heaped to this dump, and the stench from this mass of corruption, while undergoing the process of fermentation and decomposition, is almost unbearable. Strong pressure has been brought to bear upon the city council from time to time, to stop dumping carrion and all kinds of vegetable matter, and to put only ashes and earth in this dump, but the city council has a deaf ear to all entreaties of the suffering citizens who pay high taxes and are obliged to breathe the fetid atmosphere, alive with all kinds of death-dealing germs.

Something must be done, and done quickly, or large numbers of citizens who are suffering the torments of the lost, must appeal to the local legislature for powers of legislation to stop this crying nuisance. Talk about "Swat the fly!" This putrid, rotten hole breeds thousands of flies, and where are the inspectors, to report; and if they do, whom will they prosecute? The offender is the corporation of the City of Toronto, health department, et al, who allow this nuisance to save a few paltry dollars. Health is everything to every citizen, the greater blessing that mortals can possess. Essex School, with its hundreds of little children, must live and breathe this awful stench.

Health department, wake up! City council, wake up! Do not assume the garb of the village council. The big City of Toronto wants pure water and pure air for health's sake, and will pay for it. Let the superintendent of the council, who is virtually servant of the citizen, spare not the money, for health's sake, and do away with this disgraceful and stinking nuisance.

WHITNEY'S COUNSEL TO GUIDE BORDEN

delivered yesterday, was entertaining, full of fire, and not without convincing logic at the same time.

Ex-Postmaster-General Lemieux, who followed the Red Deer statesman, always speaks smoothly and pleasantly, and a stranger unacquainted with the real situation in parliament, had been in the gallery, would scarcely have suspected that Mr. Lemieux was talking against time. No one has been so successful, however, in killing time without the appearance of effort, as Hon. Jacques Bureau. The Hon. Jacques has the shrewdness of the habitant with the sharpness of the Yankee, and is equally at home in Three Rivers, Quebec, and St. Paul, Minn. He speaks colloquial English, but with an accent after he has been away from Ottawa for a number of months. Having always been good-natured and unassuming when in office, he has lost no friends by ceasing to be the solicitor-general.

It has long been a mystery what are the duties of the solicitor-general, and many suspect that he has none. The office, at any rate, has remained vacant since the Hon. Jacques tendered his resignation, not because it was impossible to replace him, indeed, several of the legal gentlemen among the Conservative members of parliament are said to be willing to take over the solicitor-generalship at a moment's notice. However that may be, it is certain that Mr. Bureau amused himself, entertained the house, and did his trick at the wheel most successfully on Wednesday last. He inveigled government supporters and even members of the government into controversies, which used up time, without drawing upon the prepared speech which Mr. Bureau had in his desk. He all but succeeded in drawing the prime minister himself.

Mechanical Performance.

Generally speaking, however, it may be said, without unfairness, that the opposition has been dull, and that the whole performance of the week has seemed to be mechanical. There is, after all, no issue between the parties to stir the very stones to mutiny. It was different with the little band of Irish members, supported by Charles Stuart Parnell, who defied the two great parties of Britain, and reduced the house of commons to a state of impotence. The Liberals in the present struggle are playing politics, and no doubt obstruction would continue upon some other issue, were the naval bill to be temporarily laid aside.

What, then, is to come?

This is not the first time that the minority in the house of commons has declared itself master. We need not go back to 1886, but can easily find more modern instances.

In 1908 the government was forced to virtually abandon its bill to amend the Election Act, and in 1911 it was forced to appeal to the people because, even with a large majority of supporters, it could not compel a vote upon the reciprocity agreement. To say that the Conservatives did not obstruct two years ago is little short of ridiculous. The obstruction was, perhaps, less violent, but that was because there was no effort on the part of the government to drive parliament. If Sir Wilfrid Laurier had it to do over again, he would probably try to force thru reciprocity with an iron hand. Perhaps he could not succeed. Certainly he could not, without amending the rules of the house.

Must Change the Rules.

The Borden Government, therefore, faces the necessity of so changing the rules as to make it possible for the house or speaker to "terminate debate, and force a vote, although many members may insist upon speaking further. Closure was introduced in the British parliament in 1892, but only after a long struggle, and in the case of the British parliament it must be remembered that although the Conservatives of that day bitterly denounced the closure they were to a large extent in sympathy with the government's determination to curb the small minority of Irish members who had made the house of commons ridiculous. Mr. Speaker Brand in 1891, upon his own responsibility and without any rule of the house to justify him, enforced a practical closure by ordering a vote with twenty Irish members vainly clamoring for recognition from the chair. He justified his action, however, upon the ground that practically the entire house desired to vote. He would not have taken any such action had there been simply a mere majority of the members demanding a vote.

Nevertheless, to hear many people saying that Mr. Speaker Sproule, Deputy Speaker Blondin or whoever may preside over the committee of the whole should exercise some despotic powers and bring to an end a deadlock apparently created for the mere purpose of obstruction. There were some who thought that the ruling of Major Currie, which was not sustained upon appeal by the house Minister, was a first step towards drastic action by the chair. But it must be remembered that while the speaker has in theory unlimited powers and is free from interference by the courts it would be political suicide for his party to exercise this power under circumstances which would not compel the approval of practically all the people of Canada.

Even the speaker in Canada, like the speaker in England, a quasi-judicial officer holding his office for life and placed high above the ebb and flow of the political tide his action in any emergency might command more general acquiescence and respect. But with us the speaker is, after all, scarcely less a member of the government and of the dominant party than a cabinet minister. He must, indeed, lean backward in the administration of his office, to escape the charge of partisanship. It is well enough to say that the speaker or the deputy speaker of the day should ride on the whirlwind and direct the storm, but what would have happened two years ago had Speaker Marcell and Deputy Speaker McIntyre undertaken to blindfold the opposition and to have declared the reciprocity agreement carried and seventy or eighty Conservative members upon their feet demanding the right to speak? There would probably have been a riot in the chamber and there would have been an outcry amounting almost to revolution, throughout the country.

What was sauce for the reciprocity goose in 1911, the Liberals say should be sauce for the naval gander of 1912. Sir Wilfrid Laurier and forced to choose between closure and an appeal to the country. He chose the latter course and went down to defeat. Had he chosen the other alternative could he have forced closure and reciprocity thru parliament? Perhaps he could and perhaps he could not have done so. Now Mr. Borden has been brought to a similar fork in a road. Those who are nearest to him say that he will not go to the country; will he be able to force closure, supply and the navy bill thru parliament?

The British Precedent.

It may be of interest to recall the address made in the house by Mr. Speaker Brand in refusing to permit further debate in 1881 before any closure rule had been adopted by the British parliament. We learn from his diary that before taking this action he conferred with Mr. Gladstone, the leader of the government, and Sir Stafford Northcote, the leader of the opposition. He, therefore, had behind him almost the entire house and the ruling was directed against a handful of Irish members. He spoke as follows:

"The motion for leave to bring in Protection of Person and Property (Ireland) bill has now been under discussion for about five days. The present sitting having commenced on Monday last at 4 o'clock and continued until this Wednesday morning, a period of forty-one hours, the house having been frequently occupied with discussions upon repeated dilatory motions for adjournment. However prolonged and tedious these discussions, the motions have been supported by small minorities in opposition to the general sense of the house. A crisis has thus arisen which demands the prompt interposition of the chair and of the house. The usual rules have proved powerless to ensure orderly and effective debate. An important measure recommended in Her Majesty's speech nearly a month since and declared to be urgent in the interests of the state by a decisive majority is being arrested by the action of an inconsiderable minority, the members of which have resorted to those modes of obstruction which have been recognized by the house as a parliamentary offence. The dignity, the credit and the authority of this house are seriously threatened and it is necessary that they should be vindicated. Under the operation of the accustomed rules and methods of procedure the legislative powers of the house are paralyzed. A new and exceptional course is imperatively demanded; and I am satisfied that I shall best carry out the will of the house and may rely upon its support if I decline to call upon any more members to speak, and at once proceed to put the question from the chair. I feel assured that the house will be prepared to exercise all its powers in giving its effect to these proceedings. Future measures for insuring orderly debate I must leave to the judgment of the house. But I may add that it will be necessary either for the house itself to assume more effective control over its debates or to entrust greater authority to the chair."

RICHARD OLNEY FOR GREAT BRITAIN

Ex-Secretary of State Offered Post of British Ambassador.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—President Wilson has offered to Richard Olney of Boston, secretary of state in President Cleveland's cabinet, the post of ambassador to Great Britain.

Some doubt was expressed today whether Mr. Olney would accept the post, because he is 74 years of age and has had an exceptionally active life.

The announcement from Washington that President Wilson had offered the post of ambassador at the court of St. James to the author of the famous Venezuela note to Great Britain, took Richard Olney as well as his intimate friends, by surprise.

Mr. Olney said: I have received no such offer and I doubt the accuracy of the report.

Mr. Olney was born at Oxford in Massachusetts, Sept. 15, 1838, and his last public service was as secretary of state in the cabinet of President Cleveland, which office he held from June 19, 1895, to the expiration of the Cleveland second term, in 1897. He has been occupied since with the practice of law in Boston.

He Wants to Know.

Mayor Hocken states that he is not yet prepared to say the city will oppose the International Light and Power Co., the incorporation of which has just been announced. He is investigating the interests of the company.

JURY DISAGREE IN DARROW CASE

After Deliberating For Thirty Hours the Jurors Cannot Agree and Are Discharged.

LOS ANGELES, March 8.—After deliberating since 8:30 o'clock yesterday morning the jury that tried Clarence S. Darrow on a charge of jury bribery reported at 2 o'clock today that it could not decide whether the former chief counsel for the McNamara brothers was guilty, innocent and were therefore discharged.

The instructions asked by the jury concerned points relative to the credibility of the testimony given by an accomplice, who, in the present case, according to the contention of the prosecution, was Franklin, formerly Darrow's confidential agent, and a convicted bribe giver.

The instructions also wanted more light on the legal principle of a reasonable doubt.

Judge Conley gave the jury a typewritten copy of the instructions which he had already read to them, which declared the testimony of an accomplice could not be credited unless it was supported by corroborative evidence. As to reasonable doubt, they must not convict even on corroborative evidence if they believed there was reasonable doubt of guilt.

Lives Two Years With Broken Neck

Eighteen-Year Schoolboy Just Discovers Serious Injuries.

NORTH ADAMS, Mass., March 8.—Oliver Roberts, an eighteen-year-old schoolboy, has just discovered that he has probably been going about with a broken neck for the last two years. He was hurt playing football, and recently a physician found that the sixth cervical vertebra, apparently was fractured, several inches of the upper part of the spine out of place, and the first rib in the right side drawn up at an angle by the pull of the muscles. Roberts had felt no injury until lately, when a painful lump formed at the base of the right side of his neck. An X-ray examination disclosed conditions in accord with the doctor's diagnosis.

OTTAWA PAPER SAYS ELECTION

Free Press Forecasts Dissolution of Parliament on Monday—Borden Favors Appeal.

OTTAWA, March 8.—The Free Press (Liberal) publishes a sensational front page story this afternoon forecasting the dissolution of parliament on Monday. The article is in part as follows:

"On Parliament Hill this morning there is a strong belief that a general election is imminent and that the dissolution of parliament will take place within a few days. It is even suggested that when the house convenes tomorrow night it will be for the last time, for the reason that it will be out of existence on Monday.

"The arrival of Sir James Whitney from Toronto this morning for consultation with Premier Borden strengthens the belief that the prime minister has decided to appeal to the country.

"As stated yesterday, Mr. Borden has personally been in favor of a general election. He has been restrained from bringing one on by Hon. Robert Rogers and his friends, who prefer short shod methods rather than risk loss of office. Recently, however, Mr. Borden has shown a disposition to act independently of the Rogers crowd, whose good faith he has now abundant reason to doubt. The premier is opposed to the introduction of a closure in the heat of a great controversy. He thinks it would be un-British, and the only alternative in view of the determined attitude of the Liberals is therefore a general election.

"The fact that the senate yesterday adjourned until March 27 is no obstacle to dissolution. In 1911 Earl Grey dissolved the house on a Saturday morning, on the advice of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, without any warning to the commons, which had sat late the previous night and also the senate was not sitting."

TWENTY CASES OF SMALLPOX

Exeter Has Epidemic of Disease First Thought to Be Chickenpox.

EXETER, March 8.—Smallpox has broken out in twenty Exeter homes. What was thought to be chickenpox has been prevalent for the last two months, but suspicious were first aroused as to the disease being smallpox, in the case of Reginald Taylor, 12 years of age, son of ex-Reeve John Taylor.

On Thursday Dr. McNally of Owen Sound, district health officer, was called. He in turn sent for Dr. Bell, provincial health officer, Toronto, who, after consultation, pronounced it smallpox. It is supposed the disease was brought here by a young man who recently returned from Manitoba.

Four Die in Flames

HUNTINGDON, Que., March 8.—Henry McConville, aged 35, and three children, aged 9, 10 and 12 years old, were burned to death in a fire which broke out last night in the house of Olivier Robidoux, Mr. and Mrs. Robidoux were able to escape from the flames with a two-year-old child which was sleeping with them. McConville was Mrs. Robidoux's father. It is believed that the fire was started by an overheated stove.

FOUR-CYLINDER CARS OF THE FUTURE.

How far will Americans go in the manufacture of six-cylinder cars? Many engineers have come out with the assertion that motor car construction of the future will lean more and more heavily toward the six, but this opinion is not shared by R. C. Hupp, of the R-C-H corporation, and a power in the automobile world. He says: "I do not think anyone is warranted in coming out with any sweeping statement that six-cylinder cars will predominate America. Indeed, after months of investigation of the problem with many men in a position to be posted up to the minute on the subject, I am more strongly than ever convinced that the four-cylinder is due for a long and increasing popularity."

"Recently I was discussing the problem with a foreign engineer who has been associated with one of the oldest and strongest European firms. This man declared positively that European engineers were forsaking the six in favor of the four. His assertion is substantiated by the display in the Paris Salon. In this big European exhibition were exhibited 231 four-cylinder cars and 20 six-cylinder cars. I do not think this is anything against the six construction, but rather that it is more a testimonial to the developments that have been made in fours, for as a leading automobile paper puts it—'Improvements in the flexibility of the four, and increasing cost of fuel are important factors against extension of the six.' So, notwithstanding the popularity attained by the six in America, there will be a large and ever-increasing demand for an efficient four-cylinder car as long as automobiles are built.

"The matter of economy in fuel consumption is always going to be a most important consideration for the man purchasing a moderate priced car, and arguments in favor of the four in this line are almost limitless."

Cyril Scott In "Value Received"

The attraction at the Alexandra Theatre next week, with usual Thursday and Saturday matinees, and a special matinee on Good Friday, will be Cyril Scott, in a new play of today, "Value Received," written by Augustin MacHugh, author of that popular farce, "Oliver 666." The play is under the management of William A. Brady (Limited), who has sent us "Bought and Paid For" and "Bunty" this season.

The play tells the story of a young bank clerk, who is forced by his ambitious wife to live beyond his means. The awful "Moloch" of the city gets in their veins, and they are headed for destruction. To keep up the mad pace, the young clerk steals from his bank to play the stock market. He loses and is about to commit suicide, when a friend interposes and points a way to success and freedom from suspicion. The idea is to steal a lot of money with which to cover his margins, going on the supposition that one might as well be killed for a sheep as a lamb.

The clerk makes $300,000 in the transaction, but his better nature will not allow him to touch the money. His wife is not proof against the temptation, however, and leaves him, but later her better nature, too, asserts itself and she returns to her husband to be forgiven.

The money is then used to found a home for crippled children.

Mr. MacHugh has written a very interesting arrangement of the last life of the city, and its devastating effect on certain nations. Prominent in the supporting company will be found Miss Ruth Shepley, Frank Patton, Mabel Mortimer, C. Norman Hammond, Jennie Dickerson, Frances Carson, Wallace Erskine, Fred Sullivan and Marjorie Graham. The settings are in keeping with Mr. Brady's reputation and show apartments in New York, a fashionable hotel, and a farm in New Jersey.

S. A. Easter Parade.

The Easter festivities will be fittingly celebrated by the Salvation Army in Toronto. The Massey Hall band, consisting of Good Friday morning, and Easter Sunday afternoon.

A prominent feature of the Good Friday parade will be the participation of the entire staff of officers and city forces from University avenue through the downtown streets to the Massey Hall.

The military authorities have consented that the Army should use the parade ground for the muster of the band, and while this is being formed, the massed bands, of about 200 musicians, will give a monster serenade.

Symphony Orchestra Closes Its Season

Program Presented Nothing New, But Old Numbers Were Given With Renewed Vigor.

The closing concert of the Toronto Symphony Orchestra was somewhat marred by the non-appearance of Xavier Scharwenka, the pianist engaged for the occasion. The orchestral program, however, was a good one, tho tho it embraced nothing new. The opening number, the Tchaikovsky, "Pathétique" was played with fine effect, insinuating color and sentiment. The third movement in particular was highly satisfying and the Adagio Lento possessed many moving qualities. After the short intermission Mr. Weisman gave a fluent and delicate reading of "A Midsummer Night's Dream." Mendelssohn's "The Hebrides" Nutcracker Suite, five movements, a march and the first violin, was again a very popular number. It is fresh, buoyant and humorous and is not lacking in the masterly workmanship, and its performance was even more vigorous and sprightly than when played in the past season. The List, Liszt, opus No. 2, was given with emotional fervor, mature musicianship, dignity and breadth, the players invariably responding to the slightest wish of the conductor.

After the concert the management were tendered a banquet by the members of the orchestra, at McConkey's, when the good tables provided for the occasion were whittled by a copious flow of wine and good fellowship. Mr. Frank E. Blachford, first violin, was the toastmaster. Speeches were made by Mr. C. Cox and others; and it was early the next morning before the gathering dispersed.

Vocal and Piano Recital.

The vocal recital given at the Toronto Conservatory of Music last Wednesday evening by Mme. Kathryn Innes-Taylor, soprano, and Miss Grace Smith, pianist, proved very interesting to the large audience present. The program covered an extensive range, including, voice songs by Schumann, Franz, Debussy, and Liszt. Lighter and LaFarge, the piano, numbers by Bach, Chopin, Rameau, Loebly, Schutt and Chopin. Mme. Taylor was at her best, her artistic and characteristic interpretations giving distinctive style to each individual number. The English songs, "I'm Loving Celia," and "Have You Seen a White Lily Grow," were beautifully sung. Here, as always, the songs were always delightful to listen to. Miss Grace Smith once more demonstrated her skill in the piano, her playing of the most accomplished and versatile pianists we are privileged to hear in this city. The Bach fugue in C minor, The Carnival of Misgony, by Schutt and the short selections revealed her as mistress of many moods, and bearing an artistic and finely finished distinction, individual in character, respect to Bach, Beethoven, Chopin, and Mrs. Gerard Eaton, the well-known accompanist, gave excellent support in the vocal numbers. The date of the next concert is fixed for March 26, when the program will comprise compositions of Bach, Beethoven, Chopin, for the piano, and old and modern French songs and a group in English.

Herr Luigi von Kunits, the violinist, gave an address in the Unitarian Church last Sunday on "Beethoven—the Hero As Musician." After a short characterization of music in its distinction from the other arts, and in its pronouncedly spiritual nature, he gave a sketch of the average type of an ordinary musician, and described his various shortcomings—not veryattering to hear for, on psychological, social and economic grounds. This was then contrasted by the striking examples of Beethoven's great music, and especially by that of Beethoven who, in his art as well as in his life, towers like a hero above the rest. His strong perseverance in his work and his immortal success, in spite of all adverse outward circumstances, we may draw the most vital and telling lessons, no matter what our own vocation may be. In conclusion Beethoven's religious creed was mentioned, a pantheistic conception of the Deity, of whose creative agency within himself he was so lucidly conscious in his highest moments. The address was scholarly, instructive, entertaining, and of large audience left the church feeling that they had communed with one who dwelt in the high places of art.

IN THE GREAT DOT PUZZLE CONTEST
A Genuine Contest for WISE HEADS!
SOLVE THIS PUZZLE

Something we all have Something we all wear
Something we all like to have Something we all do

The above 4 lines of circles containing dots represent the name of 4 different things described after each line. What are they?

HOW TO SOLVE THIS GREAT PUZZLE

Each circle of dots represents 1 letter of the word and the number of dots in each circle determines its relation to the alphabet. For instance: A is represented by 1 dot because it is the first letter in the alphabet, B is represented by 2 dots because it is the 2nd letter in the alphabet, C is represented by 3 dots because it is the 3rd letter in the alphabet. Now, with these simple instructions and a little patience you can soon have the puzzle solved. To give you a little assistance the 1st letter of the first word is M, because the circle contains 13 dots and M is the 13th letter of the alphabet.

After you have found the solution write your answer neatly on a piece of paper with your name and address and anything else you wish to say about the contest and send it to the address below. If one would follow the taste of the seventeenth century one will find in the Louis XV shown in the bottom corner of this engraving a very perfect reflex of the art thought of the day when the influence of Louis XV., that gay monarch, was paramount.

The brilliancy, the ornateness, the lines, the scroll found in the artistic case of this style Louis XV are all familiar to the rooco period. It is a very beautiful piano—one of the finest in the Heintzman & Co. Art Series of Uprights. The tone of this piano is a delight to every true musician.

Drop us a post card, naming Toronto Sunday World, and we will be pleased to send you booklets descriptive of our "Upright Beauties."

Welcome Awaits Great Irish Tenor

Foremost Singer of Ballads and Folk Lore Songs Will Be Here Soon.

Not for some time has the coming of a noted concert artist to Toronto created so much interest as the approaching visit of John McCormack, who is recognized as the foremost singer of ballads and folk lore songs of Ireland, now before the public. As this will be Mr. McCormack's first visit there is little doubt but a brilliant and loyal welcome awaits him here. When McCormack gave a recital in Boston a few days ago, the Boston Globe, after referring to his beautiful rendering of several operatic selections, said, in part: "At last came the plain and homely fare of the Irish folk-tunes. Mr. McCormack sings them more as a discus than a singer. He likes to use a confidential half-voice in them; he turns each phrase as neatly and exactly as the were whispering it into the listener's ear; and meanwhile his eyes and his face are twinkling with the humor, the sentiment, or usually the mixture of both, behind. In a moment the twinkling is in his tones; next it is dancing in the ears and the fancy of his audience. Then at last he is John, the good old John, the John whose Irishry not all the Mozarts and Lalos and Leoncavallos in the world can down, or all the Italian opera houses from Covent Garden to the Tivoli much diminish. Yes, Mr. McCormack's concerts are like no others." The date of Mr. McCormack's concerts will be announced in a few days.

Young Canadian Robbed in Paris

Winnipeg Real Estate Agent Loses All While Being Shown the Sights.

PARIS, March 8.—A curious story was told recently to the Paris police by a young Canadian, Mr. James Huntly of Winnipeg. He is a real estate agent by profession. After a short stay in London, he arrived, he said, at the Gare St. Lazare, in Paris, on his way to Nice. He intended to remain only one day here. He says that he put his baggage in the cloak-room at the station, got a check for it and went for a stroll. Opposite Cook's, on the Place de l'Opera, he was accosted by a guide, who offered to show him Paris. He agreed, and got into a taxicab with the man. After showing him several points of interest, the guide proposed to show him the Apache quarter and drove him to a house in a slum. He does not know where it was. The guide took him into a room on the first floor, furnished with a table, a chair, a cupboard—nothing else. The guide opened the cupboard and offered Mr. Huntly a drink, which he accepted. As soon as he had emptied his glass he fell asleep and knows nothing of what happened to him until he awoke up late in the afternoon on a chair in the Madeleine Church. His pocketbook had disappeared. There were, he said, 20 $10 bills in it, several papers and the check for his baggage. The trunk had been taken away from the cloak-room, presumably in a motor car. The charity organization of the British embassy sent Mr. Huntly back to London.

WHY JACKSON CARS HAVE FOUR FULL ELLIPTIC SPRINGS

"Many of the people who look over our cars," says the Jackson Car Co. of Ontario, who represents the Jackson Automobile Co. in this territory, "ask us why we use four full elliptic springs. The use of other types is so general, that the prevailing idea seems to be that they provide all the spring action that is necessary or desirable in a motor car. If you stop and think for a moment, you will remember that the earliest-riding carriages are fitted with full elliptic springs all around. So, in the case of the Jackson, we have simply taken the carriage builder's idea and applied it to our cars. It is a fact, too, that the full elliptic spring equipment gives an action 23 to 100 per cent. greater than other types commonly used, and the action is easier and softer. This equipment is quite unusual, so the questions we get on the sub-

Take Off the Fat Where It Shows

Most women suffer much humiliation because of great quantities of fat, so located that, no matter how they dress, everybody sees that they are abnormal. This is the day of the slender figure, and fat women are simply not tolerated either in business or social affairs. Women may not know it, but men when they see a fat woman pass them on the street or in public places make all manner of sympathetic remarks about her. They do not mean to be unkind or to seem unmanly, but it is natural for a man to dislike fat on a woman. Where fat shows the most there is where it must be removed, and as quickly as possible. This season's dresses seem to be made for the fat woman's misery, and the slender woman's delight. They expose all the charms of woman and her ugliness as well. Exercise and diet will not remove fat. This has been proved. The famous Marmola prescription which has met with such phenomenal success and has so many of our society women as its sponsors, is now being sold in tablet form to meet the demand of the public for this style of treatment. These little tablets go into your system just like food. They stop the stomach and digestive apparatus from producing fat and reduce the fat upon the body at the rate of about 12 to 15 ounces a day. They are harmless and can be carried in your purse and taken even after you have indulged in a hearty meal away from home. They are sold at all drug stores at 75 cents a case, or if you prefer you may write the Marmola Company, Farmer Bldg., Detroit, Mich.

Banish Those Ugly Pimples

Skin Cleared in a Short Time By Stuart's Calcium Wafers, the Greatest Blood Purifier Known.

Pimples, blotches, skin eruptions of all kinds, are simply the impurities in the blood coming to the surface. All the external treatment in the world won't do a particle of good unless you Clean your Back and Face of Pimples purify the blood. And there's nothing so humiliating as a face that's all "broken out" and spotted. Stuart's Calcium Wafers will clear the most obstinate complexion because they go right into the blood and remove the cause of the trouble. The blood is cleansed of all impurities and foreign substances and these are quickly eliminated from the system. You'll notice a wonderful change in a few days—you will hardly know yourself in a week. And Stuart's Calcium Wafers are absolutely harmless to any one. Their ingredients are just what a physician prescribes in most cases of skin eruptions and poor blood. These wafers are put up in a concentrated form, which makes them act quickly and thoroughly. Begin taking Stuart's Calcium Wafers today and then look at yourself in the mirror in a few days, and find all those awful pimples, blackheads, acne, boils, liver spots, rash, eczema and that muddy complexion rapidly disappearing and your face cleared like the petals of a flower. You can obtain Stuart's Calcium Wafers at any drug store at 50 cents and there is no reason why any one should be disgraced by pimples or any other skin eruption.

Gertrude Hoffmann At Alexandra Theatre

"Broadway to Paris" to Be the Attraction During Easter Week.

Almost incessant activity is typical of the new Gertrude Hoffmann revue, entitled "Broadway to Paris," which is coming here direct from the New York Winter Garden, will be seen at the Royal Alexandra Theatre, Easter week, with matinee Tuesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday. The humor of the dialog is in the hands of Barney Bernard, who is said to be equal at all times for fun-making and the rest of the entertainment is left to the large company of spirited young people supporting the versatile star. The performance opens with an introductory series of monologs, in which several of the principals appear before the curtain with excuses for the lack of the plot, and with the extension of plausible reasons for everyone of the onlookers to enjoy the pleasure of the moment and to forget the highway drama. In the second act of the piece Miss Hoffmann gives an elaborate version of the Spring Song Dance, remembered as part of her act here two years ago. Animation, music and dancing are said to be never lacking in the piece, and one of the features is greatly enjoyed is the excellent dancing by the very good-looking and very young girls of the dancing contingent. An especial hit is also made by ten of the young men of the company who, appearing as chorus girls, sing a burlesque chorus girls' number entitled "The Merry Merry Maidens of the Old Front Row."

MENNONITE PREACHER FOR 70 YEARS

BERLIN, Ont., March 8.—(Special.)—Rev. John McNally on Friday celebrated his 70th birthday. He was ordained a Mennonite preacher seventy years ago. His wife, who died three years ago, lived to celebrate their diamond wedding.

LARGEST CHURCH IN P.E.I. BURNED

St. Dunstan's, at Charlottetown, Built Six Years Ago, and Just Free of Debt, Is Prey to Flames.

CHARLOTTETOWN, P. E. I., Mar. 8.—St. Dunstan's Roman Catholic Cathedral, the largest church in the province, was destroyed by fire this morning. The loss is estimated at $300,000. The fire, which is supposed to have been started by an electric light wire behind the altar, broke out at 12:15, and, fanned by a strong breeze, rapidly spread thru the church and also attacked the Bishop's palace, where, however, it was kept under control. The church was built six years ago and Bishop O'Leary was to have celebrated the wiping off the debt on it at a special service on May 13.

Society at the Capital

Mrs. Mowat Biggar and Mr. Sydney Woods, of Edmonton, Alta. were guests for a few days at the Chateau Laurier last week. Lieut.-Col. and Mrs. J. Lyons Biggar entertained at a large and most delightfully arranged reception for the various members of the army service corps, who were in the capital for the military conference last week. Mrs. H. M. Aml, presided at the tea table, which was lovely with pink sweet peas in profusion, and she was assisted by Miss Grace Drayton, Mrs. Scoble Howard and Miss Violet Biggar. A large number of the sterner sex were present, and a great many out-of-town visitors also, some of them being Major and Mrs. Lafferty, of Quebec, Major Stewart of Montreal, Major Simpson, Col. and Mrs. Nelles, Major Sadler, Col. and Mrs. Clarke, Capt. Anderson, Capt. Scott, Col. Dodge, Capt. Harris, Major Desrosiers and Major and Mrs. Robertson. Miss Jessie Cassels was the young hostess of a very bright luncheon given in honor of her cousin, Miss Isabel Caswell of Toronto, who was Miss Mildred Lamb's guest, and is now visiting Miss Gwen Herridge. The latter entertained at a small tea in honor of Miss Isabel on Monday afternoon. Miss Grace Morrison of Hamilton, is the guest of the Misses Idington. Mrs. J. Lyons Biggar entertained on Tuesday at a luncheon, and on Wednesday Mrs. Martin Burrell was the hostess of a luncheon given especially for seasonal guests in town. Mrs. Fred Carling entertained at a large luncheon on Friday. Mrs. Ernest Fellowes of Calgary, who has been the guest of her sister, Mrs. Reiffenstein, for some weeks was the guest of honor at a very charming luncheon given at the Chateau Laurier recently by Mrs. Joseph Bravin. Covers were laid for twenty guests in the Tudor dining-room, and the table was beautifully arranged with quantities of pink carnations. Mrs. Fellowes was also the special guest of Mrs. T. Ellery Lord at a very enjoyable luncheon at the Country Club. Mrs. Geralf Bate was the hostess of a bright luncheon early in the week when covers were laid for twelve at a table charmingly decorated with Killarney roses and deep purple hyacinths. Another delightful luncheon of the earlier part of the week was Mrs. William Perley's, when those present were Mrs. George E. Foster, Mrs. Martin Burrell, Mrs. Robert Rogers, Mrs. W. T. White, Mrs. W. B. Scarth, Mrs. Lyman Duff, Mrs. McLeod Stewart and several others. Mrs. Robert Rogers and Mrs. W. T. White have sent out invitations for a musicale to be held in the house of common reception rooms on Monday, March 10. The Hon. R. L. and Mrs. Borden entertained at a dinner recently, when their guests included the following: Hon. the Deputy Speaker of the House of Commons, and Madame Blodin, Mr. J. A. Armstrong, M.P., and Mrs. Armstrong, Mr. H. H. Stevens, M.P., and Mrs. Stevens, Mr. Wm. Sharpe, M.P., and Mrs. Sharpe, Mr. G. H. Baker, M.P., and Mrs. Baker, Mr. Arthur Meighen, M.P., and Mrs. Meighen, Miss Laura White and Mr. Honore Achin, M.P. Mrs. Charles Kingsmill entertained at a charmingly arranged luncheon on Wednesday in honor of Mrs. R. L. Borden. Another of the perfectly appointed luncheons given recently was Mrs. W. C. Edwards, when the table was beautiful with pink sweet peas and lily of the valley, the guests including Mrs. R. L. Borden, Mrs. Frank Cochran, Madame L. P. Pelletier, Mrs. Alfred E. Frapp, Mrs. E. J. Chamberlain, Mrs. W. G. Buchanan of Lethbridge, Mrs. W. B. Northrup, Mrs. H. A. Davis, Mrs. H. K. Egan, Mrs. W. H. Aml and Madame Rodolphe Lemieux. Hon. Jufford and Mrs. Sifton, who have been travelling in Europe for the past three months, are sailing for Canada on March 9. Mrs. Denton, of Toronto, has been their guest in London for several weeks past. The skating party at government house, which had been arranged for Saturday afternoon last, and on account of the stormy weather, could not take place, came off on Monday afternoon, when a very large number availed themselves of the invitation of their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, and a most enjoyable few hours were spent on the ice by the many skating enthusiasts of the capital. Unfortunately the Princess Patricia was suffering from a cold and could not appear, but the other members of the viceregal household were present, except, of course, Her Royal Highness the Duchess, who has not sufficiently recovered her usual health to appear in public. Her Royal Highness received the guests. The new rink-house is a great improvement, and a much appreciated innovation is the ice path connecting the large and small rinks. Tea was served during the afternoon in the pretty tea room upstairs, which was very prettily decorated with flags and a profusion of cut flowers and plants. DUCHESS WILL NOT PAY TAX. LONDON, March 8.—The Duchess of Bedford, the strongly opposed to military tactics, has refused to pay the property tax for the prince's skating rink in London, of which she is the owner, as a protest against the government's treatment of the woman suffrage question.

MONEY STRINGENCY ACTS AS EFFECTIVE CURB ON MARKET

Public Hold Aloof, Pending Clearer View of Conditions—Germany Bids For Money in New York—The Wall Street Situation.

The money stringency continues the leading factor in the Canadian stock exchanges. Traders have been able to convince themselves that many securities are cheap, but the paucity of funds for speculative purposes has acted as an effective check, and prevented anything like a recovery worthy of the name.

Prices are Resilient. The most inspiring feature at the moment is the fact that there are indications of investment buying and that prices are showing some resiliency. In truth, there is an absolute scarcity of stock offerings and the rapidity with which prices are raised on any sign of a sustained demand plainly evidences the favorable technical position of the market.

The Course of Brazilian. Brazil has moved within a very narrow range during the last few days, and there has been a marked falling off in trading in the security. Meanwhile the major portion of the recent movement in the shares sold up in the neighborhood of par, has disappeared. It is true that the tremendous gains which are being shown in the earnings of the company are proving inspiring to "the street," but for the time being, traders are inclined to adopt a stand-off attitude regarding the outlook.

The Wall Street Situation. Erickson Perkins & Co. had the following review of conditions in Wall Street: The money situation is now uppermost in the minds of bankers and everybody interested in the markets.

of England's ratio of reserve to liabilities this week is the lowest in 13 years for this time of the year. Germany is making a strong bid for loans in our market at 6 1/2 to 7 per cent. This may draw considerable gold during the next week. The bureau of supplying Argentina is also placed upon our shoulders.

Money Exigencies. The purpose is merely an intimation of what may happen. It may reduce the surplus of the New York banks still lower—in fact, produce a deficit, unless deposits and loans are radically reduced. The United States is in excellent shape to stand demands on it from abroad. It may be called on to supply 10,000 or 20,000,000 more gold to Europe and Argentina, but we cannot be certain as to just how much will go.

So far trade has kept remarkably well and the change in the government has been attended with no evidence of the depreciation of sentiment. President Wilson's inauguration address was conservative and convincing and went far to remove any apprehension that business might slow down because of political conditions.

Trust Busting Again. The purpose of the new administration are not yet fully defined but there is no reason to doubt that they will be along lines which have already been foreshadowed by the utterances of Mr. Wilson. That he will "restore, not destroy" is very reassuring, and should be borne in mind whenever Wall street gets the "blues." There is a feeling in some quarters that the new president will prove much more conservative than some of his campaign utterances indicated. He realizes the rights of business as well as those of the masses, and will not allow either to take advantage of the other.

The Outlook. A great deal of misinformation is current regarding the propositions which designating persons are making for probing the Standard Oil case. It would appear the attorney-general, and not the courts, determines such matters. It will be recalled that one effort was made to reopen the Tobacco case and it was turned down by the court. New evidence will be required to inaugurate fresh proceedings.

The way in which the steel trade keeps up is certainly a remarkable phenomenon. Equipment purchases are at an unprecedented rate, showing confidence in the railroads in the outlook. Railroad traffic is equally remarkable. Noteworthy statements for January were put out this week. Whatever unsettledness may be brought about by the tariff issue, we should believe in mind that the principal companies have enough orders booked to carry them through the summer, by which time the special session of congress will doubtless be over. Money will work firmer. Time rates are notably stiffer.

STRAIN UPON WORLD'S GOLD STOCKS IS VIEWED AS AN OMEN OF EVIL

Credit Has Outrun Gold Reserves and Serious Situation Confronts the Financial World—Eminent Authority Discusses the Possibilities and Prospects For the Future.

—By Charles A. Conant—32 Liberty St., New York.

It is an omen of gathering clouds on the financial horizon that, in spite of the great production of gold in recent years, there is complaint of deficient bank reserves all over Europe and of gold hoarding in France and Germany. With desperate fighting taking place in Turkey, with the peace of Europe threatened, and with Mexico apparently entering upon a new chapter of disorder, it is not surprising that bankers are everywhere comparing their reserves with their liabilities—and seeking to corner some of the elusive metal which used to be denominated by its enemies in the silver debates as "coward gold."

It is a very disquieting phenomenon, that confidence in the stability of the monetary system should be sufficiently impaired in such countries as France and Germany to lead to private hoarding of the yellow metal. Obviously, what is feared is such a general clash of arms among the great powers as has not taken place since the Napoleonic wars, with the natural effect of the suspension of gold payments by the great state banks and a moratorium for commercial obligations.

The ratio of gold reserves to the amount already mentioned before to credit was rendered more acute by political dangers. In some quarters, the growing paucity of gold has been ascribed to the great absorption of the metal by British India. Taken by itself, however, it is doubtful if this influence would have been seriously felt but for the abnormal expansion of credit and the rise of commodity prices. The present annual production of gold is roughly $450,000,000, of which about $100,000,000 is absorbed by India. If British India should take regularly $100,000,000 per year, it would still leave available for monetary use in Europe and America $200,000,000, which is nearly twice the annual rate of gold production 22 years ago and fully equal to the annual increment available for monetary uses several years later.

Over-expansion of Credit. The real difficulty seems to be that the influx of the new gold in London and other financial centres has been such a stimulus to the money market that the demand for credit has outrun the increased reserves created by the new gold. A rise of prices throughout the world averaging from 15 to 25 per cent. would in itself create an increased demand for currency in retail transactions and for pocket money, which may be assumed to be roughly in proportion to the rise of prices, other things being equal, whether one accepts the quantity theory of money, or the crudest form of accounts for the effects of an increased gold stock by the mental somersaults of a Laughlin.

Absorption of gold as a reserve against an increase of currency for small transactions is not quite the same thing as an increase of gold in reserves against deposits, because the latter represents more fully the increase in the demand for credit caused by industrial expansion and the creation of new enterprises. It has been the proud boast of the controller of the currency, recently, that total banking liabilities in the United States have so expanded that the increase has been about 18 billions to 24 billions in four years, or at the rate of nearly 7 per cent. per year. This is the average rate of increase of the gold stock of the world available for monetary uses, and although the United States seem to have obtained more than their pro-rata share of the new gold money, credit is straining at the leash of deficient reserves.

Even the most sanguine will hardly claim that four years have shown an increase in the annual rate of production amounting to 27 per cent.—that is, that the number of yards and pounds of goods produced have increased in this ratio. Whatever the real ratio of increase has been, it has been magnified and reduplicated by the increase in the price of goods, and the result is higher terms in money.

Good Cause for Alarm. If credit is straining at the leash of deficient reserves from such causes, is it rather a cause for alarm and taking serious account of it, than for forever increasing faster than gold reserves are the time must come when under our inelastic currency system—that borrowers will be up against a bank wall, their loans will be called in, and their enterprises will become defunct, and enterprises which have been sailing, with all sails set and themselves battling with the waves of a financial hurricane.

The financial world at home and abroad has to face a serious credit situation in the near future, which will only be rendered a little less acute, and probably not entirely exorcised, by the smoothing of "the wrinkled front of war" in Europe and on the Mexican border.

THE "BOOBY" BROKERAGE OFFICE

For several years it has been generally supposed that "plans" were forever done with in Wall street, but only the other day word was received that in Lower Wall street is one of the most complete "booby" brokerage offices that has ever been conceived. Here are a suite of offices that the visitor is in a very busy brokerage house. Telephone conversations, where the clerks are giving dummy orders to dummy sales and dummy purchases, and everything to make complete the delusion that the visitor is in a very busy brokerage house. Telephone conversations, where the clerks are giving dummy orders to dummy sales and dummy purchases, and everything to make complete the delusion that the visitor is in a very busy brokerage house.

CHINESE LOOM UP AS STEEL KINGS OF ORIENT

Western Manufacturers Will Have to Face Their Competition—Japs Are Copyists.

It is said that within a few years the Japanese will be dangerous competitors of manufacturers, especially the steel lines. This may be true, but it is not in accord with the views expressed recently by a well-travelled man, who, several years ago spent some time in China and Japan. He said: "The Chinese, to my mind, are of more real value in the mechanical world than the Japanese. The latter are poor originators, but good copyists. The Chinese are inventors, and the Japs seize upon an invention and copy it."

Another instance of which I was reminded was that of the case of a Japanese inventor, who had invented a new kind of steel. This was made to look exactly like the American machine. It was supposed to represent, and that also had the name of a well-known American manufacturing concern printed on it. The Japs are just as good as the Chinese, and are excellent mechanics and exceedingly original. I would say that it is the Chinese who will have to watch—not their neighbors."

SAYS SPECULATION HAS BEEN OVERDONE

Canadian Banking Partner Deplores Over-Expansion Throughout the Dominion.

Speculation in Canada has become a thing of the past, and it is necessary to cope with it as an actual evil, says the local member of a Canadian banking firm. The growth of the country has been wonderful, but it has not kept pace with speculation. The possible development of a strain, which in the next 80 years has been capitalized, and the building has been put up into speculation for such purposes within the life-span of the growing generation and the advancement in land values and rents, and the taking of land out of needed use, are the chief factors in the expansion of living. Among those who have realized the danger of this speculation is the Canadian Pacific Railway, which has taken steps to sell its lands only to settlers.—Wall St. Journal.

INITIATING THE NEW STOCK BROKER

Ceremonial Didn't Hold Patch to Central American Revolution.

Not long ago a man who had lived in the American tropics for a number of years was made a member of the Consolidated Stock Exchange of New York, and, coincident with his admission, was initiated in the good, old-fashioned way. That is to say, he was pushed, shoved, pelleted with papers and generally "horsed" all over the place, when he first made his appearance on the floor.

Asked afterward how he liked it, he replied: "That's nothing; I've been through three Central American revolutions."

RAILROADING IN THE GOOD OLD DAYS

In considering the ever-growing plaint of railroad managers over the increasing cost of materials and supplies, it is worth a thought of what they used to pay in the pioneer days of transportation. In 1870, the cost of the construction of the Northern Pacific line, the first rails used cost whether or not they were worth it.

GEO. W. PERKINS ON MILLIONAIRES

At Los Angeles, George W. Perkins had this to say about great millionaires: "I am not thinking about making money so much as about achieving success. But they are being initiated by the crowd in their quest for money, not as men seeking to utilize their forces and intellect along lines to which their abilities are best adapted."

STOCKS ARE HELD IN HANDS OF PUBLIC

That is Answer to Riddle or Why They Are Not Offering Freely.

NEW YORK, March 8.—Again the question is asked in Wall street: "Where are the stocks?" Even the traders are at a loss for an answer. They would like to say they are in the hands of the commission houses, and each commission house would like to say that they are in the hands of every other commission house, but that their other accounts are in excellent shape, and their loans down to a perfectly safe basis.

The traders have no stocks, and the commission houses have only a few. Then where are they? Let the statement issued the other day by the Pennsylvania Railroad help to enlighten the inquirer. That one company has now upwards of 75,000 stockholders, the number having increased largely in the past two or three years. The stocks are in the hands of the public, who are not carrying them on margin, but have paid for them one share, two shares, all sorts of lots, large and small, but all paid for, and held for investment.

POOR PICKINGS FOR WALL ST. BROKERS

Hard Luck Story of a New Member of the Exchange.

NEW YORK, March 8.—An outside broker, who bought a seat on the exchange last year and paid $70,000 for the privilege of trading in the sacred precincts, is bemoaning his fate. Aside from a loss of $25,000 in the value of his board equity, his engagements he has with the brokerage house of which he is a member allows him a drawing account of somewhat less than $10,000 annually, with an interest in all profits over a certain amount. Since his appearance on the board his expenses have increased 25 per cent., and he has only received the limit of his drawing account, and the business he has done really does not warrant his getting that percentage. "This does not include the 5 per cent I might make on the $70,000," he added, dolefully.

SYNDICATES AFTER PETE LAKE CONTROL

That there is active competition for the control of the Lake Cobalt, there seems to be no doubt. Several brokers have the matter in hand, but at the moment no one can supply syndicates, either English or American, with a majority of the stock of the company. Holdings of Peterson Lake Co. are widely scattered, but it is stated that one broker now advertising for offers on the shares from individual holders, has a large block of stock under his control, and that it will not be long before he will have a majority. This would put him in shape to make a definite proposition to anyone of the competing syndicates.

MARKET OPERATOR SAYS STOCKS ARE SELLING BELOW COST OF PRODUCTION

NEW YORK, March 8.—One of the big market operators sitting in his office in sound of Trinity's chimes was asked his views on the market. His views were requested because of his known ability to take decided market stands at high or low price levels; stands which have proved his judgment correct on more than a few occasions. "I believe securities are below the cost of production," said he. "And that means that new securities, whether taking the form of stocks or bonds, cannot be sold in competition with securities already issued and selling at present market prices. The result has been a leasoned profit, and an increased consumption, as always occurs."

THE OLD, OLD STORY

NEW YORK, March 8.—A Republican advocate of moderate downward revision of the tariff on some manufactured articles in this country, and a staunch supporter of tariff reform for Great Britain, quotes the following experiences as an object lesson to both countries: "While residing temporarily in Belfast, Ireland, I had occasion to purchase a hammer and went to Riddle & Co. in Donegal Place for that purpose. It was shown a Birmingham made claw hammer of the description I wanted, price one shilling, and also another—American make—precisely similar in every particular, a copy of the British article, which had the American manufacturers' trade marks stamped both upon the steel head and the wooden handle. "Some months later, when in Washington, D.C., and had occasion to purchase a claw hammer, as the one I bought in Belfast had been mislaid. For the purpose I went to Barber & Ross on G street, a house of the same relative standing as Riddle & Co. of Belfast for its make. The two hammers are now before me, both of the same make, similarly stamped, and so alike they cannot be distinguished. On one freight was paid from this country to Belfast, a good could not be obtained for less than 150 per cent. more. The moral is obvious."

LONDON, March 8.—The monetary stringency here and on the continent was responsible for further depression on the stock exchange today. Consols fell another eighth and Berlin sold Canadian Pacific Paris favorites and home rails, however, were fairly maintained. American securities opened quiet and a fraction higher. Fear of a poor New York bank statement induced realizing in most of the list and the market closed with prices ranging from 1 1/2 to 3 1/2 below yesterday's New York closing. Money was scarce and discount rates were firm and higher.

JEFFRIES WANTS SOME EASY COIN DROPPING HOPES

Retired Ex-Heavyweight Champion Thinks He Can Whip Them All—After the Easy Money.

COME BACK IN JULY

Cherokee Tom Jones Announces That Jeff is Seriously Considering a Return to the Ring.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 8.—That Jim Jeffries will again attempt to "come back" was the positive statement made tonight by "Cherokee" Tom Jones, manager of Ad Wolgast.

"Jeff" quit drinking over six weeks ago," said Jones, "and has been talking with many of his close friends about the advisability of his re-entering the ring.

"Jim considers the white heavies of today more or less of a joke and is confident that he can beat any of them with a full week's training. I have offered my services as manager to Jeffries, and he is seriously considering the proposition. Jack Jeffries is urging the big fellow to get back in the game and grab some of the money in sight. I hope to handle Jim for a July Fourth match in San Francisco.

Jones adds that his heavyweight protegee, Jack Lester, has been matched to box Charley Miller before Eddie Graney's Club in San Francisco, on March 28; advises that he has also taken the management of "Bull" Young, another heavyweight, and states that he will go north tomorrow night to complete the details of the return battle between Wolgast and Tommy Murphy.

THE BALLPLAYER

Notes by Soccer

That great cup game between Sunderland and Newcastle United will not be replayed during the course of this week. On Saturday the near and distant rivals were unable to arrive at a definite issue after one of the most exciting games ever seen at the stadium. The replay will take place at Newcastle. In the Scottish competition there was also one that threatened to become a classic. Dundee v. Clyde and these two will renew their battle at Glasgow on Saturday next.

Aston Great.

Bradford on their own ground found Aston Villa in such rampant form that they simply could not do anything to stop them. When the end came the "Villians" had rattled up five goals to their credit. It was a most brilliant victory and Birmingham is all smiles today at the prospect of "a come-back" coming to the club.

Homebats Fall.

On their own grounds it was odd-odd that Everton and Manchester City qualified for the semi-finals, but all calculations were upset by the pluckiness of their less-favored opponents. Both bringing off the surprise of the season. Blackburn's defeat is the more surprising of the two and it is quite clear that the Rovers have gone down the hill, and that the Shea-Simpson combination, of which so much was expected, has failed to work. It is a big feather in Burnley's cap. Oldham's victory over Manchester is also endorsed by Saturday's win at Goodison Park, and all is now going in Liverpool's favor.

Celts Beaten.

How are the mighty fallen! Celtic, the favorites for the Scottish Cup, are laid low, and that at the bidding of Hearts, who along with Falkirk must now be regarded as rivals for the trophy if in the ballot for the semi-final to be made on Tuesday evening they are not fated to meet each other. Falkirk just got home in front of Dumbarton, and no more, and the result may be said to be most creditable to the "Sons of the Rock" than to the "Bairns." Raith Rovers for the first time in their history have reached the semi-final stage, and in line with that account going up in price on that account.

Well Done, Pensioners.

West Bromwich Albion got a setback at Stamford Bridge, where Chelsea beat them 2 to 1. The Pensioners were such a check to their progress. Both Manchester teams won their games, that of the United being the more noteworthy, seeing it was accomplished at Nottingham. Liverpool once more defeated, this time at Tottenham. Derby and Bolton shared the points between them.

A Big Score.

There is nothing notable about the results of games played under the auspices of the Second League, unless it be the huge score which Fulham overcame Stockport.

Care Needed.

Queen's Park Rangers will require to be careful. They were only able to draw with Portsmouth, and Millwall, who had a glorious victory over Bristol Rovers, are now at their heels in the race for the Southern League honors. Swindon and Brighton had both excellent wins.

Rangers Lead.

A change has taken place in the top position of the Scottish League. Celtic held it for a long time, but they are now displaced by Rangers, who lead by one point. Hibernians were surprised by Motherwell, but the other results were according to form, as the Morton were hardly expected to fall at Airdrie by such a large score.

PHI DELTA TURN TABLES ON ZETS

Frat. Societies Play Good Hockey at the Arena

Phi Deltas revenged themselves Saturday afternoon at the Arena, when they turned the tables on their conquerors, Zeta Psi, of a week ago, by defeating them by the score of 6 to 4. The game was replete with exciting incidents connected with real hockey and several others that were superfluous. At half-time the winners had doubled the score and were leading by 4 to 2.

Every man on the team displayed flashes of speed that threatened to give him a swollen head from the cheers he received, on a sudden bump against the boards or with some over-portion of his anatomy. The game ended with the black, yellow and gray coming like a house afire. Both goaltenders were easily a la Nicholson, so to speak. The teams:

It has been decided to bring down Childs, the midgeet goal-keeper of the Woodstock team, for the trophy may play part of the game at the Arena, alternating with Rupert Laird, the Toronto Canoe Club star.

The return game will be played at Orilla on Friday night.

BROTHERS AND SISTERS ARE CHAMPIONS, SAYS THE FINN

Hannes Kolehmainen Declares His Whole Family Have Won Athletic Fame at Home—Can Only Speak Few Words of English.

"It's harder to learn your language than to win your races and records," said Hannes Kolehmainen, the world's greatest runner.

Hannes can speak only a few words of English, but thru an interpreter he gave a full description of his athletic career and laid great stress on the fact that his entire family is made up of champions and that clean, wholesome living has been the secret of their success.

He has three brothers and one sister, and all of them have won their prowess in athletic competitions. His brothers are William, Tatu and Carl. His sister's name is Mari.

William is well known in this country, having defeated the world's greatest professional distance runners in many races. Tatu is a champion in the middle distance events he has won fame in several European cities. Mari is a champion on skis—can skate like a professional and can run 100 metres faster than any girl in Finland.

Hannes is twenty-three years old; Tatu is twenty-six; Carl is twenty-seven; Mari is nineteen and William is twenty.

From the time they were seven years old they began their athletic careers, not on the track or field, but in competition for prizes or glory. For the fun of it they took up skiing in the national pastime of their country. At this they all quickly won reputations of being the best of their age in the vicinity of Knopio, their native city.

Not content with local fame, they traveled to other towns and cities of their country to try their skill, speed and endurance against the champions. From each journey they returned victorious. Then they set to work in an effort to hang up some records. To do this they knew they must train.

They did. They practiced with the skis when weather permitted. When there was no snow or ice they spent their spare moments running. This was in an endeavor to gain the speed and endurance for their winter sport.

It was while training for the winter sports that they learned they could run fast and far. They had read of great runners in other countries and studied the times made by the different champions. They ran and timed themselves. So good were their trials that they decided to try their hands at the running game. But there were not athletic meets in their town. Skiing, skating and sleighing were the only sports in their city.

But they knew their ability and were bent upon displaying it. With this object in view they began saving their money to carry them to other parts of Europe. By 1907 Hannes, Tatu and William had saved enough money to carry them to an athletic meet two hundred miles away. The feature event was a Marathon race. Without any special preparation and with only enough money to pay their railroad fare—only way they set out for the games.

For the Marathon race 102 prominent European distance runners had entered. They entered, too. They knew nothing about the intricate points of the game. They had no special style. But they knew they could run twenty miles and they started with the pack.

They must run and run and when the distance had been covered there was only one man in front of them. They walked 200 miles back to their homes. But before they had reached the outskirts of the town they were halted. Some one had learned of their plight and a public subscription was taken up. People who saw their plucky races contributed and enough was raised to pay their fare back to Kuopio.

The following year all of them trained hard in an endeavor to make the Olympic team that would represent their country, but none of them were selected. Two years later William came to this country. When he arrived here he was considered a fourth rate runner. He had plenty of endurance, but that was all.

He competed in several professional races, but earned little fame or gold. Then Lawson Robertson, the famous coach of the Irish-American Athletic Club, took hold of him. Robertson changed the Finn's style completely, and in less than a year developed him into one of the best professional distance runners in the world. Before he had time to win great fame here William sailed for home. He wanted to train his brothers and show them what he had learned here.

In two months William developed Hannes into such a great runner that Hannes went to the Olympic games and won every distance race on the program in record time. After the Olympic games they came to this country. For months after his arrival Hannes did no training. He ran a few races, and his natural ability to run carried him to many victories.

This month he began to show his best form, with the result that he has established new records for 2 miles, 3-1/2 miles, 4-1/2 miles, 5 miles, 7 miles, 7-1/2 miles, 8-1/2 miles 9 miles, 9-1/2 miles and 10 miles. His five-mile record is his best. He traveled that distance in Madison Square Garden last Wednesday night in 24 minutes 29-1/8 seconds, the fastest time ever recorded for a five-mile race. And he did this a few hours after he had smashed the three-mile indoor mark at the Thirtieth Regiment Armory.

While Hannes gives a lot of credit for his success to his brother William for coaching him, he places the lion's share of the credit to his clean living. He does not smoke or drink; he exercises regularly and sleeps regularly and much. He believes in eight hours' sleep, with plenty of rest besides.

He and all the family are vegetarians, but only he and William adhere to vegetarian diet religiously. Tatu, Carl and Mari eat meat once in a while. Hannes and Mari always believe in abstaining from meat. He explained that vegetarians are always hungry, with the result that when they get plenty of energy in a long race their craving for food is less than that of a person who eats meat and is seldom hungry.

Hannes lives at the home of Frank Keto, at No. 323 Forty-third street, Brooklyn. From there Hannes attends school. Every night when he is not racing he attends the public school at Forty-second street and Fourth avenue.

He is determined to learn the English language. He says it is hard to learn, but that he will continue to go to school until he masters it. He says he wants to know it perfectly—to speak it grammatically—and that school is the only place to accomplish this.

The little champion says he likes America and all American things and people. He objects to only one thing. That is to the official allowing people to smoke during a race. He says that the smoke in Madison Square Garden and the Thirtieth Regiment when he raced at those places last week prevented him from running faster.

Hannes is the tallest of the family. He weighs 155 pounds and is 5 feet 6 inches in height. William is 5 feet 6 inches, Tatu, 5 feet 4 inches, and Mari is also 5 feet 4 inches.

When William is engaged in a professional race Yrjo Kolvisstoin, a native of Kuopio, acts as his trainer. Hannes says it is impossible to smash a record every time he races and that it is unfair to the public to say that he can. He hopes to smash Shrubbs' one-hour record at Buffalo on March 1, and if he is still in condition he will try for the two-mile mark at the Indoor Championships at Madison Square Garden on March 5.

He adds that Jean Bouin of France and Abel Kliviat of the Irish-American A. C. have proved his worthiest opponents.

Next Battle Will Be Great. There will be another match, of course, and between you and I and the gate post it will be as acceptable to San Francisco, followers of the game as any bout that could be arranged. They, the followers, know what to expect him in a case of footworker, and fighter, but of two fellows who box alike and who will be assiduous in their efforts to harm each other a couple of Kilkenny cats from bell to bell.

Just who would be favorite in another match I wouldn't undertake to say. Sitting in the press benches after the crowds had swarmed into the ring, the thought came to me that Wolfgang would probably render a much better account of himself with a longer spell of training. I felt that Murphy had fought to his last ounce, and that it would scarcely be possible for him to improve on his Washington record.

After that again I learned that Wolfgang also had sustained an injury to his arm during the break-neck mill-fight. It might show some foggy. But, with many others, I admitted that the time had not come for placing this youngster Wolfgang with the best.

It looked bad for Murphy for several rounds. This was while Wolfgang, with fine judgment and notable smashing force, kept sending in rib punches that both looked and sounded as the most effective.

Wolfgang, tired from his own efforts and the indomitable fighting spirit of the Harlem lightweight, which, possibly flagged slightly in some of the cruel rounds between the thirteenth and the seventeenth, asserted itself again. The pace which had been fierce throughout, became feverish and the concluding rounds found Wolfgang forced to fight the way that suited Murphy best. It all ended with the men as fairly entitled to equal credits as any pair of horses that ever raced level muzzled under the wire, albeit the two Wolfgang was palpably the more tired.

NAUGHTON THINKS A. WOLGAST IS FIT COMPANY FOR ANY

Frisco Writer Praises Ad's Work in the Murphy Bout—Changed His Tactics Quickly.

TOOK GOOD BEATING

Harlem Tommy Hammered Him For Nine Rounds—Finished Strong and Gave Blow For Blow.

(By W. W. Naughton.)

SAN FRANCISCO, March 8.—After seeing Ad Wolgast in action with Tommy Murphy, sporting men of thoughtful turn have come to the conclusion that even if Wolgast has "gone back," he is still fit ring company for anything of his weight that walks in two shoes.

It is doubtful if Wolgast, in his palmiest days could have stood the stress of as blizzardy a bout and shown less signs of fatigue. It was an affair to test the mettle of the most rugged fighters, let alone one whose vitality was supposed to have suffered thru an appendicitis operation.

As a result of it, it is not likely that the possible effects of Wolgast's hospital experience a year ago will enter so much into the discussion about chances when he stands forth to fight again.

If he does the square thing by himself in the training line, and is then defeated by Willie Ritchie, Joe Rivers or Tommy Murphy, as the case may be, there will scarcely be a disposition on the part of the sporting public to attribute the reverse to a "doughing" away of Wolgast's fighting ability. The verdict I'm thinking will be that Wolgast simply met his master, and that the same master would have beaten Ad probably at any time in his career.

Great Recuperative Powers. When the suspicion exists that a pugilist has "gone back," those looking at him in action naturally expect to see him "blow up" when well hammered, and carried along at an unusually fast pace. Well, Wolgast tided over an experience of that kind in the Murphy affair, so that even if he lacks the dash of anti-appendicitis days, he retains his power of recuperation in a marked degree. And as long as nature comes to a man's aid as quickly as she did in Wolgast's case, it is sheer nonsense to believe in his "going back."

For nine rounds Murphy jabbed and jolted Wolgast until the ex-champion's face was not fair to look upon. Ad was well peppered around the ribs, too, but it was the face that Murphy used as a target in the main. And the action that was crowded into every round of the nine was sufficient to keep the watchers' eyes popping.

It took Wolgast the better part of nine rounds to decide that in quick spasms of fighting where short-arm uppercuts were the blows used, he was running a poor second to the Harlem lad. The writer watched the men closely in all the breaks, and saw that Murphy was sending in two punches to Wolgast's one. Taking the men's faces as scores of inches apart, it was easy enough to substantiate a claim of this kind.

When Ad made up his mind Murphy had it on him at matching the wildcat changed tactics in a flash. Instead of being all too ready to fight shoulder to shoulder, and root until split out by the referee, he kept himself, and put every ounce of energy he boasted into body punches.

Changed His Tactics. The effect was immediately. It showed in the look of suffering that came in Murphy's eyes. It showed in the way Murphy's seconds began to urge their man to "hook with him" instead of piling in open-mouthed; and it showed in the change in Wolgast's appearance. He had found a way to stand off mercurial Murphy, and from being the swollen faced, and probably discouraged underdog, Wolgast took on the snappy eye, and the look of the fellow who is gaining the upper hand.

It looked bad for Murphy for several rounds. This was while Wolfgang, with fine judgment and notable smashing force, kept sending in rib punches that both looked and sounded as the most effective.

Wolfgang, tired from his own efforts and the indomitable fighting spirit of the Harlem lightweight, which, possibly flagged slightly in some of the cruel rounds between the thirteenth and the seventeenth, asserted itself again. The pace which had been fierce throughout, became feverish and the concluding rounds found Wolfgang forced to fight the way that suited Murphy best. It all ended with the men as fairly entitled to equal credits as any pair of horses that ever raced level muzzled under the wire, albeit the two Wolfgang was palpably the more tired.

Cassinignol, the champion of France, a three-game series of 500 points each, to be played on April 7, 8 and 9. The games will be played in Paris and will be at 18.2 ball line. Hoppe has not been in France since 1907 when he won the world's title from Maurice Vignaux. At that time it was reported that the French police told the American players to leave the country, as they had been playing in the academies where heavy gambling has been going on in connection with the games.

THE RIGHT KIND OF A NAME GOES A LONG WAY WITH ANY TYPICAL HIBERNIAN COP

NEW YORK, March 8.—Billy Nolan, manager of Willie Ritchie, the champion lightweight prize fighter, fresh from the coast and unaware of the New York regulations about smoking in the subway, puffed vigorously at a large, black cigar in the Times Square Station, the other day until a cop accosted him.

"What d'ye mane be shmokin' that cigar here?" demanded the cop, searching the tail pocket of his coat for something. "OUII summone yez to co-o-rt!" He produced a legal-looking document and drew a fountain pen from his pocket.

"What's yer name?" he demanded, fixing his victim with a stern, official glare.

"Nolan, Sir," was the respectful response. "William Nolan."

The cop's official glare met a steady look from Nolan's blue eyes. It was a deferential and regretful look. It was all of that and more. It was almost a sad look.

The cop's hand holding the official paper fell to his side. The paper went back into the cop's coat-tail pocket. The cop removed his helmet and mopped his brow with almost an air of embarrassment.

"Well, begorra," he said, "it's a lucky thing fur you yure name's Nolan. Ol' thought yez wur wan o' thim fresh ginks."

Whereupon he accepted the mate to the cigar and moved on.

Hamilton Team In Eighth Place

TOLEDO, Ohio, March 8.—In the American Bowling Congress tournament none of the 32 teams competing last night in the two squads rolled high enough to make any change in the standing of the five men teams. The Overlands of Toledo lead in the five men standing with 2992; Hudson Stars of Newark, N. J., second with 2946, and Sir Cliftons of Chicago, third, 2942.

The Brunswicks of Hamilton, Ont., are in eighth place with 2882.

Corbett Looks For an Easy Win For the Britisher—Should Enforce the Clean Break—Eddie McGoorty on the Downward Path—Burns to Stick to Bantam Class.

By James J. Corbett, Former Heavyweight Champion of the World.

Written for The Toronto Sunday World.

NEW YORK, March 8.—With favorable laws on the statute books boxing in New York ought to be in a flourishing condition. Yet there has been a remarkable scarcity of first-class attractions at local clubs this winter. For some reason or other there has been a woeful slump in the calibre of contests. Evidently there is something radically wrong with the manner in which the game is conducted in the neck of the woods.

It was thought when the Frawley bill passed that a new era had dawned for pugilism and that a revival of the sport would follow that of the good old days of the Horton law. For a while the game did thrive but of late there has been a regular pugilistic famine—inspired far as stars of the ring are concerned.

Some writers contend interest in boxing has waned and point to the fact that a number of smaller clubs have surrendered their licenses with the explanation that there is no profit in the promotion of the sport. But it is observed that whenever a promoter arranges a card that appeals to the sports attendance is limited only by the seating capacity of his club. This indicates it is the dearth of good attractions that is responsible for the seeming lack of interest in local exhibitions of the manly art.

Only One Attractive Bout.

For example look over the cards offered the fans the coming week. At least fifteen clubs have arranged programs in the greater city and of the entire lot the only attractive looking match is the Bombardier Wells-Gunboat Smith exhibition at the Garden Friday night. And if for one will not be greatly surprised if that develops into a one-sided affair. However, the fact that the contestants have shown ability of a high order is a guarantee that the big arena will be packed, and at fancy prices, and in addition the general sluggish condition of the pugilistic market is not due to lack of public interest in the sport, but to failure of promoters to cater to the wants of boxing. New Yorkers are liberal patrons of boxing, but they want the best talent obtainable and until matchmakers take steps to improve the class of exhibitions there is no chance for a boom in local fistie affairs.

With regard to the Wells-Smith match it looks to me from what I have seen of the men that the American is outclassed. Of course, there is always an outside chance for a hard hitter of the Smith sort to put the haymaker over, but if Wells hasn't gone back since last summer he ought to have little to fear on that score. Smith relies entirely on his swatting power to win his battles and like all sluggers is forced to get himself in order to put the desired heft into his punches. Against the clever Wells Wells is probably as hard a hitter as his opponent and his speed and cleverness should enable him to beat Smith to the punch. It's a sure thing that if he hits the Gunboat as hard as he punched Al Palzer the bout will end inside of a round or two. Few can stand the gaff as well as O'Rourke's giant.

Panned the Referee.

Billy Joh, who is to preside at the match, has come in for considerable criticism lately for failing to enforce the rule calling for clean breaks in several contests, and I would advise the Bombardier to have a heart-to-heart talk with both Smith and the referee before beginning hostilities. The Gunboat has flagrantly violated this rule on more than one occasion and is not above resorting, I am sorry to say, to foul methods whenever he thinks he can get away with it.

Naturally my sympathies are with the American, but I want him to win fairly or not at all.

The proposed ruling by the New York Boxing Commission to compel club owners to refund admission money when advertised bouts are called off at the eleventh hour should have a clause inserted forcing boxers to live up to their contracts unless sick or disabled.

The Empire A. C. had a fairly attractive card arranged for last Wednesday night, but the Cross Brothers, Phil and Leach, who were to play star parts, left for New Orleans without warning and rather than offer a substitute program the promoters were forced to abandon the show entirely. The club owners are certainly entitled to legislation which will protect their investments in this extent.

Leach Cross boxes Joe Mandot in the Crescent City Monday, and it looks as though he had undertaken a big job. On the dope he will be lucky to break even. Mandot is one of the topnotchers in the lightweight brigade

YOU MAY SERVE COSGRAVES BEERS

IN YOUR HOME

Because you are sure that they are pure.

So far as purity and selection of materials are concerned the Cosgrave Brewery Co. take even greater precaution than the American Food Journal says is taken by the brewers of the United States. While this article does not apply in every detail to the brewers of Canada, it does apply so far as purity is concerned.

Why Beer is Pure

The brewers of the United States use the greatest care in the selection of materials, so that only substances of absolute purity and wholesomeness are employed. In order to insure that it is the uniform practice of brewers to submit their brewing materials to skilled technologists for examination and analysis. It is also absolutely necessary that the utmost care and cleanliness be observed in the brewery in order that the complex processes which the materials undergo before the process of brewing is completed may not be disturbed. It is well known that the slightest infection will cause such disturbances in fermentation that the resulting beer would be unpalatable and unsalable, and therefore they are compelled to exercise the utmost cleanliness in all the processes.

Unlike most other industries the brewing of beer is, and has been for half a century, under the constant surveillance of the Government. Every barrel of beer manufactured in the United States is produced under the very eyes of the Government officials, and the books, provided by strict regulations of the law and the Internal Revenue Department, show the Government officials every constituent element which enters into the manufacture of every barrel of beer sold to the American consumer.

The brewers of the United States brew a cleaner, more wholesome and more uniform product than those of any other country in the world. It is unquestionably the most popular manufactured beverage in the United States, and from its production the Federal Government realizes an income of $2,000,000 a year, which income is growing at the rate of six per cent. annually. Burns Still a Bantam.

Frankie Burns, the Jersey City boxer, has decided to stick to the bantam class in the future, and has issued challenges to Johnny Coulon, Kid Williams and Eddie Campi. For a while Frankie intended to try his hand at the featherweight limit, but found he had to give away too much weight to hold his own with the best boys, and that neither money nor glory is to be gained by boxing the dubs. Burns made his debut as a feather with Johnny Kilbane at one of the local jobs last summer and his showing was very creditable considering the handicap in the matter of poundage.

Bedient Promises to Be Pitching Leader

Detroit, March 8.—One of the best prospects for leading pitchers of the American League this year is Hugh Bedient. The youngster had a good season last year and was almost as big a factor in the pennant winning of the Red Sox as was Joe Wood. He rounded out the pitching staff, and the Tigers' honor of being the recipient sensation of the year.

Is Eddie McGoorty Done?

Has Eddie McGoorty shot his bolt? Judging from recent performances the Oshkosh man has lost the form which made him the favorite for the mid-dewight title stakes. The last time Mac fought in New York he could do no better than a shade on Freddie Hicks, who is no great shooaka as a boxer. Last week Gus Christie, a Milwaukee youngster, recently graduated from the amateurs, put it all over the "coming champion," if reports are correct.

In my opinion McGoorty made serious inroads on his stock of vitality when training for the match with Mike Gibbons and it is possible he has not completely recovered from the ill-effects of over-training at that time. The conditions called for 158 ringside and, anxious to save his forfeit, Eddie trained too fine, entering the ring at 155 pounds, which explained his lack of aggressiveness. At the finish of the contest McGoorty was exhausted and had Gibbons not waited until the tenth round to get on the job I honestly believe he would have stopped the Oshkosh star before the limit had expired. This may sound ridiculous to those who did not see the match, but I think Mike missed the chance of a life time that December evening.

PROFIT-SHARING: HOW LABOR WILL ABSORB CAPITAL

OUR artist gives his impression of the day in the future when the employer of labor will banish industrial dispute by sharing his profits with the men who help to build his fortune. Indeed the day is here, but the system, unfortunately, has not been universally adopted.

It will come as a surprise to a great many people to read that in Canada there were no fewer than 148 trade disputes during the year 1912. These strikes involved 41,326 work people and caused a loss of no less than 1,990,600 working days.

The above figures which were supplied by the labor department are bad enough, but they sink into insignificance when compared with the figures published by the British Board of Trade. In England during the first eight months of 1912 there were 501 disputes, involving 1,340,206 employees and the loss of 39,208,600 days.

These figures lead one to wonder when this unrest is going to cease and whether there is a remedy. A great many people have brought forward methods to prevent strikes in individual factories with more or less success, but no one has yet conceived a scheme whereby trade disputes would be entirely dispensed with.

The nearest attempt to solving the great problem, however, is the method introduced by the South Metropolitan Gas Company of London, England. As long ago as 1889 Sir George Livesay, chairman of the company, brought forward a proposal which was to give every employe an opportunity of acquiring a financial interest in the company. This was done by a system of profit sharing which provides for the payment of a bonus on all wages—one-half of which is payable in cash and the other half is invested in ordinary shares in the company. Under the scheme no fewer than 5,656 employees of the company are shareholders with a holding of over $1,500,000. In addition to this the workmen have power to elect three directors to safeguard their interests.

Since Sir George Livesay introduced this over 300 companies have tried schemes of similar nature, but nearly half of these proved failures, and were consequently abandoned. Of the companies where the idea proved successful the most notable was the famous "Sunlight" Soap Company. This company provided that all employees who had been in its service for over five years be given partnership certificates with a face value of ten per cent. of their annual wage. These certificates receive interest at the same rate as the ordinary shares, less 5 per cent. Thus if a dividend of 10 per cent. is declared the holders of the partnership certificates are entitled to 5 per cent. interest on their yearly wages. In this way the workers have had no less than $250,000 distributed among them in the way of dividends.

Another company to adopt the profit-sharing system is Armstrong, Whitworth & Co., where the employees are allowed to deposit 10 per cent. of their wages with the company. This deposit carries a fixed interest of 4 percent. In addition to this a bonus is declared at the end of each year equal to half the difference between the 4 per cent. and the dividend paid to the common shareholders, which amount is added to the employees' deposit accounts.

A more successful system was that introduced by Messrs. Clarke, Nicholls & Coombs, the Clarinco Confectionary Works. Their scheme is that all profits over and above the 6 per cent. allowed on the ordinary shares are divided equally between the work people and the shareholders. In this way over $50,000 has been distributed among the employees in addition to the usual weekly pay roll.

Similar systems of profit-sharing have been introduced into Canadian business institutions and one firm, Messrs. W. J. Gage & Co., of Toronto, reports that the system which it has in its factory has worked with very beneficial results. The idea, which was introduced by Mr. Gage in 1894, is to share a part of the year's profits among its employees in the way of a bonus which consists of one week's wage to the men who have been in its service during the past twelve months, and two weeks' wage to men of two years and over, while the managers of the various departments take a percentage of the profits derived from their respective departments. The company has a further proposition, whereby employees are permitted to buy stock in the company at a certain fixed price. During 1912 the company distributed $6,000 among its staff, irrespective of the dividend on the stock holdings which carry the same interest as the common stock holders.

Whether this scheme carried out on a universal scale would solve the problem is uncertain, but it is certainly a step towards peace between employer and employe as has been proved by the firms that have tried it.

A writer in "The World's Work" describes his experience of the astonishing success of industrial profit-sharing. In the future he says labor is to rise still higher. The joint stock form opens the door to the participation of labor as shareholder in every branch of business. In this, the writer believes, lies the final and enduring solution of the labor question.

The Carnegie Steel Company made a beginning by making from time to time forty-odd young partners. Only one was related to the original partners, but all were selected upon their proved merits after long service. None contributed a penny. Their notes were accepted, payable only out of the profits of the business. Great care was taken to admit workers of the mechanical department, which had hitherto been neglected by employers. The first time a superintendent of one of the works was made a partner it attracted attention, but as they kept on admitting men who had risen from the ranks as mechanics, they found it more and more advantageous.

The Filene Stores of Boston, a shareholding company employing seven to nine hundred men, has gone farthest of all in the direction of making its employees joint owners. The capital stock is held only by employees, and is returned to the company at its value, should the employees leave the service.

"Canada and Sea Power"

With the effort to remove war and the causes of war and introduce that reign of universal peace which will bring with it the Parliament of Man, the Federation of the World, there is complete sympathy at least among those that believe in the advancement of civilization.

No recent book has been more provocative of thought and discussion than Norman Angell's "Great Illusion" in which he sought to prove—may indeed be said to have proved—that even a successful war can bring no benefit to the conquerors.

With very much of Mr. West's book there will be little or no disagreement, but many will refuse to follow him to the full extent of his argument which indeed he does not himself carry to its logical conclusion.

But it is only fair to Mr. West to let him speak for himself on the European situation as applied to Canada. He says: "Since it is so plain that the conditions of the present time are unlike those of any preceding age; that the trade and the industrial connections of the great nations are fast becoming so closely interwoven that a war will inflict as much injury and suffering upon the aggressor as upon the nation attacked, we are not to conclude that aggressive wars are now impossible?"

- 1.—The establishment of a Canadian navy will involve an increase of taxation upon the Canadian people.
2.—That if a navy is built in Canada it means the creation of vested interests in the form of war industries yielding large profits derived from the increased taxes.
3.—That the products of these industries are largely an economic waste, and to the extent of that waste are an impost on the products and profits of the toilers working for the peaceful necessities of mankind.

It is suggested that Canada could use the surgeon's knife on the disease we are dealing with. Canada has in her own hands the means of bringing about an armistice of sufficient duration to enable the great naval powers to pause and contemplate the depth of the precipice before them.

Mr. West has written a very suggestive book and one which it is good to read, whether or not always in accord with his views. He has collected a great mass of facts and figures and many quotations from other writers on the subject with which he deals.

TAKING A SHOT AT EVERYBODY

The Emergency

A great many Liberal papers lay stress on the statement that there is no emergency to warrant the building of three Dreadnoughts to help dispose of a possible enemy of the British Empire in the North Sea.

If the emergency has been dispelled and Germany has stopped her program of navy competition, in all probability this change has been brought about by the alacrity with which the overseas Dominions sprang to the assistance of the Mother Country.

Improved German Farming

Germany was losing more than a million of her sons and daughters every year, simply because her soil could not support an increased population.

But Germany went to work and in 20 years has increased her wheat yield from 29 (which is more than our average) to 40 bushels an acre.

How to Fight Consumption

The Grand Duchess of Hesse has hit upon a novel scheme for propagating the knowledge of how to fight consumption. On her recent visit to a hygiene exhibition at Darmstadt she saw some match boxes with printed instructions on the reverse side what to do and what not to do in order to avoid the spread of tubercular contagion.

The Situation at Ottawa

Under the rules of parliament the opposition can indefinitely obstruct the business of the country. We have today at Ottawa a body of men who have apparently set their faces against the program of the administration and unless the rules are revised there is nothing to prevent them talking and talking until a crisis develops which may send the house of commons back to the people for re-election.

If the hints that have been sent out from Ottawa can be relied on the Borden Government may attempt to introduce a form of closure. Canada is possibly the only civilized country in the world which allows its legislators practically free scope in debate.

In the lifetime of the Laurier Government this situation developed more than once. The Conservatives opposed certain measures to such lengths that the government was without money on several occasions.

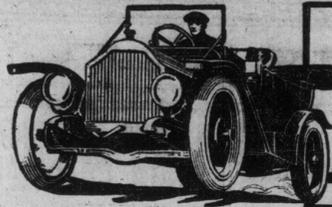

The long life of the Laurier Government had seriously weakened it and the opposition was correspondingly strong; but we have today a government that is fresh from the people, elected on September 21, 1911, and it had only begun to bring its policy before parliament.

But even should it be shown that the emergency has disappeared we cannot get away from the fact that the proposal to spend $35,000,000 on three of the most powerful fighting ships in the world is one that must appeal to those Canadians who believe that we certainly owe Britain a great deal for the free protection that we have enjoyed for so many years.

INTERNATIONAL MOTOR BUSINESS

Interesting Comparison of the Imports of the Dominions From Motor Manufacturing Countries.

By G. W. in The Motor, London.

G. W. in The Motor, London, discusses the amount of motor car business done by the United Kingdom with continental and other countries, with the United States and with the dominions overseas.

Foreign chassis imported into Great Britain are completed with bodies, tires and accessories, and exported, being entered as complete cars of British manufacture. The number is variously estimated and includes all makes of chassis.

The total imports of the dominions amount to four and a quarter millions of the United States, and of this amount, two millions are the imports from the United Kingdom, Canada, and the interstates of Oceania. Of the two and a quarter millions the United States supplies one and three-quarter million, three-fourths of this being business with Canada. Proximity and familiarity with the local conditions and similarity of tastes account largely for the amount of business done for Canada has now quite a respectable motor business of her own, having exported during the year under notice motor cars to the value of nearly a quarter of a million sterling. Excluding the special American and Canadian competition, it will be seen that the United Kingdom enjoys the greater amount of the custom of the dominions. This is a position of considerable advantage to the British manufacturer, for the greater the area over which his products are spread the wider is the knowledge of their value, and the greater the number of persons to whom he can introduce innovations and new ideas connected with the equipment of the motor carriage.

All of the dominions do not give an opportunity of discovering what is the average price of the cars, chassis, and bodies imported. So far as is possible, the figures have been ascertained, and it is interesting to note that the exports of the United Kingdom maintain a high price com-

How much do you pay per mile for gasoline? The R. C. H. Motor was designed especially to take the car farthest on a gallon of gasoline.

Over in Europe, where gasoline is twice as expensive as in America, fuel economy has been the biggest question for automobile engineers. They found after exhaustive tests that a motor of small bore in proportion to stroke gave the best mileage per gallon of fuel.

European standards were carefully studied in designing the R. C. H. Motor, which has incorporated many of the best ideas of European engineers.

Some very careful tests have been made of gasoline mileage at the R.C.H. factory. The average of many of these tests showed at a speed of ten to fifteen miles per hour, 27.7 miles per gallon were obtained; at fifteen miles per hour, the mileage per gallon was 24.2; at twenty-five miles per hour, the mileage was 27.2.

Let us demonstrate to you these and other great features of the R. C. H.

MOTOR TRUCKS MONEY SAVERS

B. St. John Tells Why Horses Are Rapidly Giving Way to Motorized Hauling Service.

There are two things that guide a business house in the purchase of a motor truck. They may be called the cardinal principles in motor truck buying. Briefly stated, these are: "Can we use motor trucks to advantage?" and "Which truck should we buy?"

B. St. John, Manager Canadian Alco Branch, gives these points:

"In order to employ motor trucks to advantage, the truck must be a means of saving money. One way of saving money over horses is by lower cost of operation and upkeep. As an example, the average estimated daily cost of operating a two-ton truck is $16.32, taking into the reckoning every item of expense such as gasoline, oil, and interest on the investment; depreciation, garage, labor and so on. By comparison for a two-horse team the average daily charges have been estimated at $3.50. A two-ton truck has the capacity to replace two, three, or four teams, so it is a simple matter to see what the saving may be by motor trucks.

"A motor truck that supersedes three teams effects a further saving in labor, and enables the business house to reach out and get business beyond the horse zone. In short, it provides a flexible system of delivery.

"Consider further the limitations on horse teams. In the summer, and in rush seasons, periods when motor trucks run along as usual, the sizzling heat, or the cold, horses get stuck in the snow. Horses face these conditions consistently in the face of their investment in their times. They do not lose in efficiency or life at the end of the day.

"On Sundays or holidays when motor trucks may be idle, they are at most no expense, but horses at their giving, consuming feed without giving in service.

"All these are pertinent factors in the dollars and cents consideration of the horse and motor truck. The evidence today is against the horse. The horse is too slow, too expensive and virtually a drawback in the transportation department of the progressive business house.

"Little wonder is it, therefore, that the leaders in the business world are adopting the motor truck as the successor to the horse. It has got to the point where department stores, coal dealers, movers and grocers for example, are using motorized delivery trucks. They count trucks as one of their biggest talking points. One contractor, large coal house, charges off one-third of its investment in trucks to advertising, so important an asset does it consider the trucks as a getter of business, a moving advertisement in its progress. Its up-to-dateness and its ability to keep delivery promises with customers.

In every line of business the leaders are buying motor trucks and selling their horses.

"Moreover, these purchasers are not one-time buyers, the best proof that they are satisfied with the investment. They would not have added to their equipment unless they were satisfied with the superiority of trucks over horses. The experience of these contractors is the way to others.

"The method to determine whether in a particular case a motor truck can save money over horses, and how much is to put experts to work. That is to put in a word, the charting of the horse methods. The saving possible to effect by trucks may run all the way from 15 to 40 per cent. in a year, depending on the nature and volume of hauling done by a firm.

From this it may be seen that motor truck salesmanship is far removed from motor car salesmanship. Men or companies don't buy trucks for the pleasure element. It is a business matter, and cents consideration, just the same as the purchase of a piece of factory machinery."

Growth of Motor Truck Business

This year, Chicago's motor truck show was undoubtedly the largest and most valuable exhibition of this kind ever held, according to C. R. Norton, truck sales manager of the Packard Motor Car Company. Speaking of the growth of the truck business, Mr. Norton gave out some figures showing the proportions to which the industry has grown.

"Our 1913 exhibit in the First Regiment armory, represented a cash value of $30,000, or about one-tenth of the entire show. Few persons not actively engaged in the motor truck business realize the magnitude of this industry, or the extent of its growth during the last five years.

"Manufacturers, merchants, and other business enterprises have invested upwards of $12,500,000 in over 4000 Packard heavy-duty trucks and light, commercial vehicles, many in daily service on the city streets and on country roads of the United States.

In the express and transfer business alone, we have sold 141 motor trucks over $1,000,000 worth of trucks, while 105 brewers operate Packard trucks, aggregating a valuation of more than $800,000. These represent only two of the 162 lines of business to which we have sold heavy-duty equipment.

Motorcycle Gossip

Conducted By A. N. B.

Wonderful as was the interest and development of the motorcycle during 1912, the advance promises to be still more pronounced during the present year. The increasing popularity of the side-car is the most noticeable feature, and at the recent motor show these handy little cars drew, if anything, more attention than the motorcycles. As it is practically impossible to enjoy riding in large cities now without a free engine attachment of some description, the manufacturers are offering numerous changeable speed gears and variable pulleys on their 1913 models, or which may be fitted to the older mounts if so desired. While the English dealer is experimenting these attachments, the American dealer is going strong on spring frames and shock absorbers which are certainly a necessity on the American and Canadian roads. The kick-start is also becoming popular, as it enables a rider to start his engine while the machine rests on its tires, instead of having to raise it to the stands. The gasoline question is becoming so serious that motor enthusiasts are discussing the possibility of finding another fuel to take its place. Nothing definite has so far been evolved, but it is to be hoped that before another year something important will develop in this direction.

The fact that 1913 is to be the greatest motorcycle year in all history is being further demonstrated by the interest now being shown in the transcontinental lecture tour of J. Leo Sauer, under the auspices of the Federation of American Motorcyclists. Mr. Sauer's first meetings were in Washington, Baltimore, Richmond and Norfolk, where his speeches on the relation of the F. A. M. to its members, and his general discussion of motorcycling conditions, were listened to with interest.

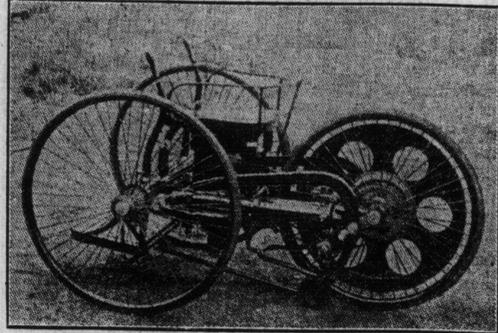

The Toronto Motorcycle Club held another progressive luncheon for members last Friday night, and the usual good time was enjoyed by a good-sized crowd. The next regular business meeting will be held this coming Wednesday, March 12, and a large attendance is requested to receive the thirty-five new members who applied for admission to the club at the recent motor show.

The Silent Motorcycle.
Since the London Local Government Board has ordered that motorcycles must be made silent, the English manufacturers have been working on silencers. The recent trials naturally aroused considerable interest, and the results were most gratifying. The standard silencer produced under the direction of the Auto Cycle Union was the most successful, on the hill trials, but two competitors in the speed trials exhibited silencers which caused the machines to which they were attached to travel faster than with the open exhaust. This test actually exploded the theory that an engine has more power with the exhaust open, and in future the adoption of a proper silencer will make the motorcycle more popular with the general public.

Another Newspaper "Saved."
A motorcycle came to the aid of an Elgin, Ill., newspaper recently and furnished the power by which the paper was printed. Elgin had been the scene of a severe sleet storm which tore down all the electric wires, and necessitated shutting off the electric power in order to avoid possible accidents. The newspaper had no power with which to print its daily paper, and the publishers were in despair until suddenly the motorcyclist appeared. He attached his motor to the printing press, pedaled a few times, and it was "off." At practically the usual time that evening the citizens of Elgin were reading their evening paper.

Will Prove Cleanliness.
The Salt Lake City Motorcycle Club is planning a big celebration for St. Patrick's Day. Early in the evening there will be a motorcycle parade, headed by the city's motorcycle policemen. Every machine will be decorated in the favorite color of the Irish saint. After the parade there will be a dance in the club rooms, and the members of the club expect to bring their lady friends to the dance on their motorcycles, just to show that one can motorcycle "dressed up."

THE FIRST SELF-PROPELLED PETROL-DRIVEN BRITISH VEHICLE. The petrol-driven vehicle, fundamentally as it is known today, was evolved in London by Edward Butler. His vehicle was a tri-car, and was devised in 1833.

The Salt Lake Club has also made arrangements for a carnival to be held on Memorial Day, and later they will have a hill-climb.

A Terror to Smugglers.
For a long time opium smugglers have operated along the United States boundary, and were able to pass over the border in automobiles and escape. The practicability and economy of the motorcycle in other departments has now caused the government officials to try it in this field also, where it is daily many times more than "earning its living." One customs detective alone at Blaine, Wash., has seized $15,000 worth of the contraband drug within a comparatively short time. The speed and reliability of the motorcycle, together with the fact that it goes undisturbed over roads where most helpless, has made it a source of terror to smugglers.

Motorcycles On the Farm.
The motorcycle is gradually creeping into general use on the farm, and is rapidly becoming invaluable to the progressive farmer, especially in times of emergency. Recently on an Ohio farm an important piece of machinery gave up in the midst of some rush work for which the farmer had called in a number of extra laborers. The farm is located some five miles from town, and in an outdoor it appeared that everything must be held up for several hours while someone went to town for repairs. However, as quickly as the extent of the break was ascertained, the son of the house appeared with his motorcycle and in an instant was speeding toward a repair shop. In less than half an hour he was back with the necessary parts, and in a short time everything was in working order again.

Another incident showing the value of the motorcycle on the farm, happened in the same community. A farmer boy had met with an accident and was bleeding to death. The farmer telephoned the doctor to come immediately. He then thought of the time it would take him to drive from town and decided he could not get there in time to save the boy, if he drove his horse and buggy. So he was again telephoned and told not to start for the farm, but to be ready and some one would call for him. The other son then jumped on his motorcycle and was able to get back in time to save his brother's life.

It is said that one out of every eight farmers in Indiana owns a motorcycle.

1910 Stepping Along in Canada

In the Fall of 1910 we bought out the Durham Rubber Company's Factory at Bowmanville, lock, stock and barrel, and turned it into a Goodyear plant.

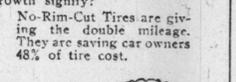

That was less than three years ago. Ever since, we have had factory extensions on our own hands. The growth of our tire sales has called for unusual growth at our factory. These figures tell the story:

Floor space, 1911, 26,000 square feet	Floor space, 1912, 89,000 square feet
No. of Employees, 1911, 89	No. of Employees, 1912, 596
In 1911 we made, 1,37,750 Tires	In 1912 we made, 51,000 Tires

Our present output is 500 tires per day.

When men watch tire mileage so closely, what does this rapid growth signify?

No-Rim-Cut Tires are giving the double mileage. They are saving car owners 48% of tire cost.

Use and Abuse of Motorcycle

President of Federation of American Motorcyclists Thanks Sunday World.

Editor Sunday World: Your editorial of February 16 on motorcycling has come to my attention, and, as President of the Federation of American Motorcyclists, I want to thank you for the good words you have spoken for the use of the motorcycle, and not for its abuse.

There is a right way and a wrong way to do everything—and riding a motorcycle is no exception. We recognize the fact that the man afoot has rights, as well as the motorcyclist, and it is our desire that each be properly observed.

The Federation has no sympathy for or for the "speeder," who hurries himself thru the streets on roads, imperiling the life and limb of all who may come before him. It stands for law and law observance; for courtesy and gentlemanly conduct; and it is bending every energy in these directions.

The objects of the Federation of American Motorcyclists are to encourage the use of motorcycles, and to promote the general interests of motorcycling to ascertain, protect, and defend the rights of motorcyclists; to facilitate touring; to assist in the good roads movement; and to generate and administer the sport of motorcycle racing and other competitions in which motorcycles engage.

We know that, as an association, we can "promote the general interests of motorcycling" only thru law observance, courtesy, and a realization of the rights of others. These ends we are striving to attain.

In the last two years the membership of the F. A. M. has increased from less than 16,000 to practically 20,000—and it is growing larger every day. The motorcycle, as a vehicle, has made a place for itself in pleasure as well as in business. It has come to stay. But, if we have our way, it will be respected, and held in belief as well as a useful position in this motor-driven age.

I dislike the open muffler "flap" cordially—and so does the F. A. M. I believe there is only one place for speeding—and that is on a carefully constructed race track. There the rider alone takes chances. And, thru regulation, restriction, and supervision of the F. A. M., these are reduced to a minimum.

R. J. PATTERSON, President Federation of American Motorcyclists, Pratt, Kansas, March 1.

Family Secrets.

The case had reached a critical stage. Even the judge seemed to awaken to a live interest in the proceedings, for the most important witness was about to be cross-examined. "So you are the lady's maid?" began the relentless barrister.

"Yes, sir."

"And where were you at 7 o'clock on the evening in question?"

"I was in my lady's room, sir."

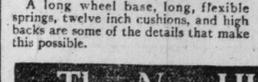

"For what purpose?"

"I was dressing my lady's hair, sir."

The barrister leaned forward and spoke slowly and impressively. "Now, think," he said. "I want you to be very careful in answering this question: Was or was not your mistress in the room at the time?"—Argonaut.

Three Hundred Miles a Day and No Fatigue

Think of riding 300 miles a day over ordinary country roads and doing it with a degree of restfulness such as is not experienced even in a railroad train.

That is easily obtained in HUDSON automobiles, for they represent the skill and experience that 45 expert engineers have combined in their production.

A long wheel base, long, flexible springs, twelve inch cushions, and high backs are some of the details that make this possible.

The Smoothness of the Motor

But this would be insufficient to assure hours of riding comfort, for a smooth, perfectly operating mechanism is also essential. A motor that pulls steadily without jerk and without vibration is just as important as are big wheels, resilient springs, ample tires, etc. That is another point that the engineers responsible for the New HUDSON have been able to incorporate in this car.

48 Engineers Build HUDSON Cars

Remember the importance of that statement. These men were trained in 97 European and American factories and have had a hand in building over 200,000 cars. They combined their experience and skill in perfecting the new HUDSONS.

What better assurance could be offered than that these men who possess about all the knowledge that has been gained in automobile building have joined in saying, "The New HUDSONS are the best we know."

Snuffy the Cabman Returns This Week

Dave Marion and His Famous Burlesquers at the Gayety Theatre.

The patrons of the Gayety have seen many other burlesque shows this season, but starting Monday the attraction you have all been waiting to see puts in its annual appearance, that is, Dave Marion and his Famous Dreamland Burlesquers.

This year's production is one of the largest that Mr. Marion has ever offered to the theatregoers. This season a two-act musical comedy, entitled Pousse Cafe, is being presented. There is no more popular actor-manager in the field of popular burlesque than is Mr. Marion. The favor he enjoys is due not only to his individual and amusing qualities as a comedian, but also in his originality and cleverness in writing the dialog and music in his production and to a liberality in staging that secures entertaining results equaled by none of his rivals. In his latest offering he has surpassed his previous achievements in devising novel stage pictures and in giving a varied interesting performance.

No audience would take kindly to any production in which Mr. Marion figures unless he appeared in his familiar but always laughter-spurring characterization of snuffy the cabman. His portrayal of that excitable man-on-the-box gives the usual measure of pleasure.

Mr. Marion has not made the mistake, however, of trusting to himself and a few other principals, to keep spectators interested in his show. All the members of the company are clever and willing workers and the consequence is that no dull moments interfere with the enjoyment of the production.

Secure your seats as far in advance as possible, or you may be one of the many that will not be able to get them.

Lost Her Plumpness And Then Her Role

How Katherine Manning Joined the "Mind the Paint Girl" Company.

In the second act of "The Mind the Paint Girl," the Pinero comedy, in which Miss Billie Burke is to appear at the Princess Theatre this week, there is shown a supper party and dance given in the foyer of a London theatre after the performance, in honor of the "principal girl" whose birthday it is. All the "girls" of the company are there, and so are the "boys," their attendants. One ex-girl has come back for the occasion, bringing her hen-pecked old husband with her. She has acquired a new rather say, she has lost the "figure" that used to attract the "Johnnies." She's not fat—just plump.

When Charles Frohman organized the company to support Miss Burke in the play, he engaged Miss Jeanette Lowrie to play the part of the

Gertrude Quinlan in "Top o' the Mornin'"

Foremost Character Actress in America as "Jerry" O'Donnell.

Miss Gertrude Quinlan, who comes to the Alexandra Theatre this week as leading lady in Henry W. Savage's production of "Top o' the Mornin'" is admittedly one of the foremost character actresses upon the American stage. She has to her credit a number of impersonations which by reason of their uniqueness, force and character appeal, will live in the history of the contemporary stage. Among the best remembered of these is the part of the boarding-house-ex-girl, Miss Lowrie, he considered, was of just the right degree of plumpness. But soon after the play began its run in New York, Miss Lowrie's friends began to whisper in her ear that she was getting well, just a bit too plump. That worried her. Then she heard of a new way to "reduce." She tried it. And the result was beyond expectations. It wasn't long before she had begun taking tucks in her dresses, and very soon she was as slender as any "girl" in the bunch.

Mr. Frohman dropped in to see a performance. As soon as Miss Lowrie appeared, he sent for the stage manager.

"Tell her she'll have to put back her flesh," he said.

The stage manager carried the order to Miss Lowrie.

"I won't," she said. "I'd sooner give up the part."

So Miss Katherine Manning is playing the part now. Miss Manning does not like to exercise, and, besides, it's a very good part.

Pollard Juvenile Opera Company

Famous Australian Organization Coming to the Grand Opera House Next Week.

One of the really novel bookings of the season at the Grand will be the appearance of the Pollard Juvenile Opera Company, which is now upon its fifth world-tour, coming all the way from Australia, where the Pollard system had its origin. Many companies of child performers have endeavored to imitate the Pollards of recent years, but it remains for the originals to furnish the greatest amount of pleasure to theatregoers.

The Pollard Juvenile Company, which will visit this city, is composed of some of the cleverest of the different companies of the past six years and as the tour is to comprise visits to every principal city on the globe, the management has used particular care in the selection of the personnel.

The repertoire of the company will include a number of musical comedies and operas which are new to this vicinity, and each has a scenic production worthy of the term, grand.

Among the members of the present company who have made names for themselves here on previous "Pollard" visits, are Teddy McNamara, Queenie Williams, Willie Pollard, Eva Pollard, May Pollard, Nellie McNamara, Dottie Brown, Daisy Wilson, Leslie Donaghey, Fattie Hill and many others. Like Maud Adams, Mrs. Pleske, Mme. Meiba, Henry Dixie, Mabel Tallafiero, Corinne and a score of other stars who began their stage careers as children, the Pollards are growing up and each member is above the

Look at the list of entertainers: Pat White, Henry and Frances, Barrett and Bell, Charles Falk, and 24 of the most handsome and shapeliest chorus girls in musical comedy. The attraction will be the big sunburst of the burlesque and musical field. The farces which the management claim to present are the classic of their kind. Opening with a one-act musical comedy of song, merriment and mirth, entitled "Casey in Society," the closing musical comedy, "The Union Men," is said to be the most dazzling production ever attempted by a musical comedy organization in its entirety. The performance may be termed a quick action of laughter, song, and fun of the vintage of 1913, and there is always cause for laughter, through the long and varied program.

The Dantean Art of Robert W. Chanler

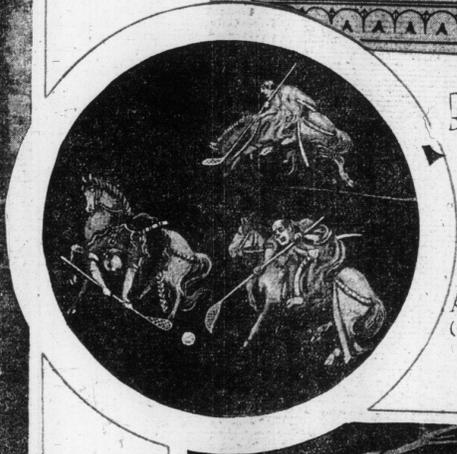

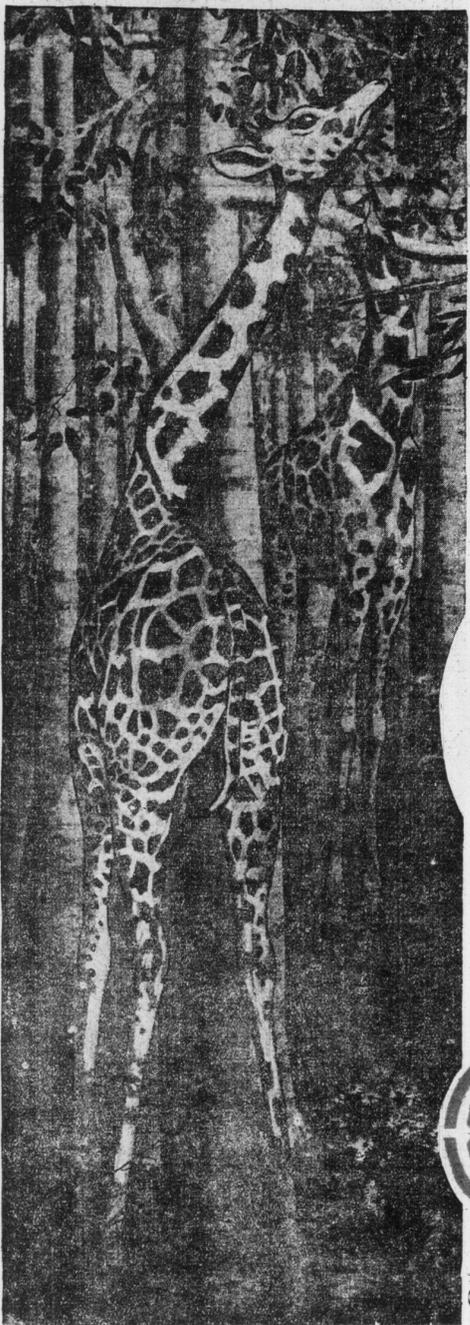

ROBERT WINTHROP CHANLER, member of the most original family in New York, is an artist of much originality. Mr. Chanler, it may be recalled, is a descendant of the original John Jacob Astor. His brief matrimonial romance with Mme. Cavaleri interested New York immensely. One of his brothers is John Armstrong Chaloner, the former husband of Amelle Rives, and other members of the family are almost equally interesting.

Mr. Chanler calls his work the Dantean art applied to animals. As Dante showed his reader a series of different classes of human beings suffering for their sins, so Mr. Chanler paints groups of animals suffering and struggling. His paintings are of great size, and suitable for mural decorations. Some of the most remarkable of them are shown on this page.

He has painted an enormous group of writhing snakes for Mrs. Charles C. Rumsey, formerly Miss Mary Harriman. He has decorated the bathroom and bedroom in Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney's home with deep sea scenes. One of his masterpieces displays the gaping jaws and hideous, scaly bodies of alligators crawling among coconut trees. Several of his paintings use gigantic snakes with remarkable decorative effect.

For Henry Clews, Jr., he is painting a novel screen. Each panel on one side is covered with peacocks and other rare birds. They convey an impression of joy and brilliancy. On the other side of the screen you find gaunt, ghostly birds stalking through a gray waste amidst groups of human skulls. You can take one side or the other, according to your mood.

One of his most effective works exhibits tall giraffes wandering among tall, straight trees.

Cupid in a Quandary

By Nell Brinkley

CUPID is in a quandary these days—with all the advice that has been given about Mistresses and Maids. Sometimes he is tempted—and does advise his clients—to take the little Maid, in preference to the daughter of the house, who lords it over the shrinking girl who waits on her.

And cupid knows not whether to advise his client proud house or the Maid who waits so demurely to take for their own the Daughter of some

KIT'S COLUMN

Copyrighted. There is something very alarming in the attitude of the Militant Suffragettes. They are exceeding all bounds and are most surely alienating any existing sympathy with their cause.

Both Robbins—author, you remember, of "My Little Sister"—utters a plea in defence of Militant Suffrage. I find in more an excuse or apology than a plea. The article starts with a reminder of how long women have tried peaceful measures with hopefulness and persistence, you could not win the vote. Tired and despairing, at last the women took the law between their own hands and set out to smash things.

Plea or Apology

Will Get the Vote

Now—apart from all this I believe that women will get the vote, and I hope they will do half the good with it that they promise. There are conditions in Britain which make imperative either the giving of the franchise to the women, or making vast and important legislative reforms on their behalf.

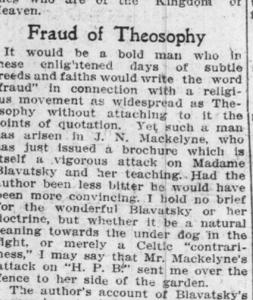

Childishness

It has often been said that it is good to keep the heart of a child in the grown-up or elderly body. But it is a different matter when it comes to grown-up and old people imitating the manners and habits of the child.

Fraud of Theosophy

It would be a bold man who in these enlightened days of subtle creeds and faiths would write the word "fraud" in connection with a religious movement as widespread as Theosophy without attaching to it the faintest qualification. Yet such a man has arisen in J. N. Mackeyne, who has just issued a brochure which is itself a vigorous attack on Madame Blavatsky and her teaching.

Dr. Rachael R. Todd. A pretty name, isn't it? So appropriate does it seem for anyone who loves flowers, and writes about them, that one was tempted to suggest that it be taken as a nom de plume; for flowers and sunshine always go together.

There is something else, too, that not infrequently goes with flowers, and that is music. So one was not surprised to learn that Dr. Todd plays the violin, and was at one time a member of the orchestra conducted by Mrs. Adams, now of the Toronto Conservatory.

Hard Work and Hobbies Usually Go Together—A Woman Physician Who Spends Her Spare Moments in Her Garden. By Margaret Lillis Hart.

In looking about one discovers that it is always the hard workers, whether men or women, who have hobbies. The collector of coins is probably a man who works the allotted number of hours—day, and expends whatever he can spare over and above what it takes him to live. In buying the coins, which he gathers, merely for the gratification of looking at them. The real lovers of opera or classical music of any kind, are most of them the hardest students to be met with, and the women who work among the flowers are, in almost every case, close workers along other lines.

Dr. Rachael R. Todd. She has never found even the slightest opposition on that score, and never from her men co-workers has she received anything but the greatest courtesy, and, when possible, assistance. A little story in connection with her hospital work slipped out quite incidentally, so it will slip in here, just in the same way. Dr. Todd, who she forgets to be professional—why do we so often associate professionalism with what the children call a "long face"—is very prone to laugh a good hearty laugh. On one occasion, at St. Michael's Hospital, an old lady from the land of silver tongues and sweet words, called her, and asked her how she was. "Sure, I wanted to speak to you," she said, "because it does one good. You are always laughing. I call you Dr. Sunshine."

GALLEGHER---A NEWSPAPER STORY

charge, and to have the individual himself sent to jail.

Gallegher's knowledge of the allegories, terms of imprisonment, and various misdoings of the leading criminals in Philadelphia was almost as thorough as that of the chief of police himself, and he could tell to an hour when "Dutch Mack" was to be let out of prison, and could identify at a glance "Dick Oxford," confidence man," as "Gentleman Dan, petty thief."

There were, at this time, only two pieces of news in any of the papers. The least important of the two was the big fight between the Champion of the United States and the Would-be Champion, arranged to take place near Philadelphia; the second was the Burbank murder, which was filling the space in newspapers all over the world, from York to Bombay.

Richard F. Burbank was one of the most prominent of New York's railroad lawyers; he was also, as a matter of course, an owner of much railroad stock, and a very wealthy man. He had been spoken of as a political possibility for many high offices, and as the counsel for a great railroad, was known even further than the railroad itself had stretched its system.

At six o'clock one morning he was found by his butler lying at the foot of the hall stairs, with two pistol wounds above his heart. He was quite dead. His safe, to which only he and his secretary had the keys, was found open, and $200,000 in bonds, stocks and money, which had been placed there only the night before, was found missing; his secretary was missing, also. His name was Stephen S. Hade, and his name and description had been telegraphed and cabled to all parts of the world. There was enough circumstantial evidence to show, beyond any question or possibility of mistake, that he was the murderer.

It made an enormous amount of trouble, and unhappy individuals were being arrested all over the country, and sent on to New York for identification. Three had been arrested at the Westchester Hotel, and one man just as he landed at Sidney, Australia. But so far the murderer had escaped.

We were all talking about it one night, and an unhappy individual was being arrested all over the country, and sent on to New York for identification. Three had been arrested at the Westchester Hotel, and one man just as he landed at Sidney, Australia. But so far the murderer had escaped.

"I shouldn't be surprised to meet him out walking, right here in Philadelphia," said one of the staff. "He'll be disguised, of course, but you could find him again by the absence of the trigger finger on his right hand, which is missing, you know; shot off when he was a boy."

"No, he won't," said Gallegher, with that calm impertinence that made him dear to us. "He'll dress just like a gentleman, he will try to look as little like a gentleman as possible."

"What fight? Why, the fight?" returned his companion, with the slow contempt of superior knowledge. "It's run into the suburbs and on to New York.

It was in front of this station that Gallegher, dressed in a suit, brushed past Gallegher and hurried on to the ticket office.

He held a walking stick in his right hand, and Gallegher, who now palpably scrutinized the hands of every one who wore gloves, saw that white gloves were on the man's hands. He stood out in almost a straight line with his palm.

Gallegher stopped with a gasp and with trembling all over his little body, and his brain asked with a throbbing if it could be possible. But possibilities and probabilities were to be discovered later. Now was the time for action.

He was after the man in a moment, hanging at his heels, and his eyes moist with excitement.

He heard the man ask for a ticket to Torredale, a little station just a bit ahead of Philadelphia, and when he was out of hearing, but not out of sight, purchased one for the same place.

The stranger went into the smoking-par and seated himself at one end of the table, and Gallegher took his place at the opposite end.

He was trembling all over, and suffered from a slight feeling of nausea. He guessed it came from fright, not of any bodily harm that might come to him, but at the probability of failure in his adventure and of its most momentous possibilities.

The stranger pulled his coat collar up around his ears, hiding the lower portion of his face, but not concealing the resemblance in his troubled eyes and close-shut lips to the likeness of the murderer Hade.

They reached Torredale in half an hour, and the stranger, who had been quickly struck off at a rapid pace down the country road leading to the station.

Gallegher gave him a hundred yards' start, and then followed slowly after. The road ran between fields and past a few frame-houses set far from the road in kitchen gardens.

Once or twice the man looked back over his shoulder, but he saw only a dreary length of road with a small figure splashing thru the slush in the midst of it and stopping every now and again to throw snowballs at belated sparrows.

After a ten minutes' walk the stranger turned into a side road which led to only one place; the Eagle Inn, an old roadside hostelry known now as the headquarters for pointers from the Philadelphia game market, and the battle-ground of many a cock-fight.

Gallegher knew the place well. He and his young companions had often stopped there when out chestnutting on holidays in the autumn.

The son of the man who kept it had often accompanied them on their excursions, and the boys of the city streets considered him a dumb lout; they respected him somewhat owing to his inside knowledge of dog and cock-fights.

The stranger entered the inn at a side door, and Gallegher, reaching it a few minutes later, let him go for the time being, and set about finding his occasional playmate, young Keppler.

Keppler's offspring was found in the woodshed, and Gallegher, with his napkin in his hand, Gallegher explained breathlessly that he had located the murderer for whom the police of two continents were looking, and that he believed, in order to quiet the suspicions of the people with whom he was hiding, that he would be present at the fight that night.

to come off here tonight. You know that as well as me; anyway your sports' editor knows it. He got the tip last night, but that won't help you any. You needn't think there's any chance of your getting a peep at it. Why, tickets is two hundred and fifty a piece!"

"Where's it to be?" whistled Gallegher.

"In the barn," whispered Keppler. "I helped 'em fix the ropes this morning, I did."

"Gosh, but you're in luck," exclaimed Gallegher, with flattering eagerness. "Couldn't I just get a peep at it?"

"Maybe," said the gratified Keppler. "There's a vinder with a wooden shutter at the back of the barn. You can get in by it, if you have some one to boost you up to the sill."

"Sa-a-y" drawled Gallegher, as if something had just hit him, and he reminded him. "Who's that gent who come down the road just a bit ahead of me--him with the cape-coat? Has he got anything to do with the fight?"

"Him?" repeated Keppler in tones of sincere disgust. "No-o-h, he ain't no sport. He's queer. Dad thinks. He come here one day last week about ten in the morning, said his doctor told him to go out 'en the country for his health. He's stuck up and cuffed, and he wears gloves, and takes his meals private in his room, and all that sort of ruck. They was saying in the saloon last night that they thought he was hiding from something, and Dad tried to try him, asks him last night if he was coming to see the fight. He looked sort of scared, and said he didn't want to see no fight. And then Dad says, 'I guess you mean you don't want no fighters to see you.' Dad didn't mean no harm by it, just passing it on a joke; but Mr. Carleton, he calls himself, got white as a ghost an' says, 'I'll go to the fight willing enough, and begins to laugh and joke. And this morning he went right in to the bar-room, where all the sports were setting, and said he was going to see to see some friends, and as he starts off he laughs and says, 'This don't look as if I was afraid of seeing people, does it?' but Dad says it was just bluff that made him do it, and Dad thinks that if he hadn't said what he did, this Mr. Carleton wouldn't have left his room at all."

Gallegher wondered how this man figure stepped out of the window, and the excitement of seeing a noted criminal run down, and of getting the news to the paper, and to that one paper alone.

From that moment the sporting editor sank in Gallegher's estimation. Mr. Dwyer sat down at his desk and scribbled off the following note: "I have received reliable information that Hade, the Burbank murderer, will be present at the fight tonight. We have arranged it so that he will be arrested quietly and in such a manner that the fact may be kept out of all other papers. I need not point out to you that this will be the most important piece of news in the country tomorrow."

"You're etc."

"MICHAEL E DWYER"

The sporting editor stepped into the waiting cab, while Gallegher whispered the directions to the driver. He was told to go first to a district-messenger office, and from there up to the Ridge avenue road, over Broad street, and on to the old Eagle Inn, near Torredale.

It was a miserable night. The rain and snow were falling together, and freezing as they fell. The sporting editor got out to send his message to the Press office, and then lighting a cigar, and turning up the collar of his great coat, curled up in the corner of the cab.

The sporting editor led Gallegher into his library and shut the door. "Now," he said, "go over all that again."

Gallegher went over it again in detail, and added how he had sent for Hefflingger to make the arrest in order that it might be kept from the knowledge of the local police and from the Philadelphia reporters.

"What I want Hefflingger to do is to arrest Hade with the warrant he has for the burglar," explained Gallegher. "And to take him on to New York on the owl train that leaves Torredale at one. It don't get to Jersey City until four o'clock, one hour after the morning papers go to press. Of course, we must fix Hefflingger's heels keep quiet and not tell who his prisoner really is."

"My boy," he said, "you are an infant phenomenon. If I can pull the rest of this thing off tonight it will mean $5000 reward and fame galore for you and the paper. Now I'm going to write a note to the managing editor, and you can take it around to him and tell him what you've done and what I am going to do, and he'll take you back on the paper and raise your salary. Perhaps you didn't know you've been discharged."

"Do you think you ain't a-going to take me with you?" demanded Gallegher.

"Why, certainly not. Why should I? It all lies with the detective and myself now. You've done your share, and done it well. If the man's only be in the way now, you'd better go to the office and make your peace with the chief."

"If the chief can get along without me, I can get along without the chief," said Gallegher, hotly. "And if I ain't a-going with you, you ain't to go, and you don't, and I won't tell you."

"Oh, very well, very well," replied the sporting editor, weakly capitulating. "I'll send the note by a messenger, only mind, if you lose your place, don't blame me."

Gallegher wondered how this man figure stepped out of the window, and the excitement of seeing a noted criminal run down, and of getting the news to the paper, and to that one paper alone.

From that moment the sporting editor sank in Gallegher's estimation. Mr. Dwyer sat down at his desk and scribbled off the following note: "I have received reliable information that Hade, the Burbank murderer, will be present at the fight tonight. We have arranged it so that he will be arrested quietly and in such a manner that the fact may be kept out of all other papers. I need not point out to you that this will be the most important piece of news in the country tomorrow."

"MICHAEL E DWYER"

The sporting editor stepped into the waiting cab, while Gallegher whispered the directions to the driver. He was told to go first to a district-messenger office, and from there up to the Ridge avenue road, over Broad street, and on to the old Eagle Inn, near Torredale.

"Wake me when we get there, Gallegher," he said. He knew he had a long ride, and much rapid work before him, and he was preparing for the strain.

To Gallegher the idea of going to sleep seemed almost criminal. From the dark corner of the cab his eyes shone with excitement, and with the awful joy of anticipation. He glanced every now and then to where the sporting editor's cigar shone in the darkness, and watched it as it gradually burnt more dimly and went out. The light from the shop windows threw a broad glare across the ice on the pavements, and the lights from the lamp posts tossed the distorted shadow of the cab, and the horse, and the motionless driver, sometimes before and sometimes behind them.

After half an hour Gallegher slipped down to the bottom of the cab and dragged out a lap-robe, in which he wrapped himself. It was growing colder, and the damp keen wind swept in thru the cracks until the window frames and woodwork were cold to the touch.

An hour passed, and the cab was still moving more slowly over the rough surface of partly paved streets, and by single rows of new houses standing at different angles to each other in fields covered with heaps and brick kilns. Here and there the gaudy lights of a drug store, and the forerunner of suburban civilization, shone from the end of a new block of houses, and the very gate post of an occasional policeman shined in the light of the lamp post that he hugged for comfort.

Then even the houses disappeared, and the cab dragged its way between truck farms, with desolate looking glass-covered beds, and pools of water, half caked with ice, and bare trees, and interminable fields of stubble.

One or twice the cab stopped altogether, and Gallegher could hear the driver swearing to himself, or at times he heard before the stationer, Torredale. It was quite deserted, and only a single light out at a swath in the darkness, and showed a portion of the platform in the rain. They walked twice past the light before a driver disappeared into the shadow and greeted them cautiously.

"I ain Mr. Dwyer of the Press," said the sporting editor, briskly. "You have heard of me, perhaps. Well, there shouldn't be any difficulty in our making a deal, should there? This boy here has found Hade, and he has reason to believe he will be among the spectators at the fight tonight. We want you to arrest him quietly, and as secretly as possible. You'll have to give up your papers and your badge easily enough. We want you to pretend you believe you believe in this burglar, do you come over after the fight, will do this, and take him away without any one so much as suspecting who he really is and to whom he really belongs. The stationer train that passes here at 1.20 for New York, we will give you $500 out of the $5000 reward. If, however, you other paper, either in New York or Philadelphia, or anywhere else, knows of the arrest, you won't get a cent. Now, what do you say?"

The detective had a great deal to say. He wasn't at all sure the man Gallegher suspected was Hade; he began dancing around it, and indulging in such a remarkable series of fistic manoeuvres with an imaginative adversary that the unimaginative detective predictably backed into a corner of the barn.

We had so many office boys before Gallegher came among us that they had begun to lose the characteristics of individuals, and became merged in a composite photograph of small boys, to whom we applied the generic title of "Here, you," or "You, boy."

We had had sleepy boys and lazy boys, and bright, "smarty" boys, who became so familiar on so short an acquaintance that we were forced to part with them to save our own self-respect.

They generally graduate into district-messenger boys, and occasionally return to us in blue coats with nickel-plated buttons, and patrolled us.

But Gallegher was something different from anything we had experienced before. Gallegher was short and broad in build, with a solid, muscular broadness, and not a fat and dumpy shortness. He wore perpetually on his face a happy and knowing smile, as if you and the world in general were not impressing him, and you as you thought you were, and his eyes, which were very black and very bright, snapped intelligently at you like those of a little black-and-tan terrier.

All Gallegher knew had been learnt on the streets; not a very good school in itself, but one that turns out very knowing scholars. And Gallegher had attended both morning and evening sessions. He could not tell you who the Pilgrim Fathers were, nor could he name the thirteen original states. He knew all the officers of the two-and-a-half-cent district, and he could distinguish the clang of a fire-engine's gong from that of a patrol-wagon on an ambulance fully two blocks distant.

He rang the alarm when the Woolwich Mills caught fire, while the officer on the beat was asleep, and he was Gallegher who, in the "Wharf Eats," when they used to stone each other to their hearts' content on the coal-warves of Richmond.

I am afraid, now that I see these facts written down, that Gallegher was not a reputable character; but he was so very young, and so very old for his years that we all liked him very much nevertheless. He lived in the extreme northern part of Philadelphia, where the cotton and woolen-mills run down to the river, and how he ever got home after leaving the Press Building at two in the morning, was one of the mysteries of the office.

Sometimes he caught a night car, and sometimes he walked all the way, arriving at his little house, where his mother and himself lived alone, in four in the morning. Occasionally he was given a ride on an early milk-cart, the newspaper delivery boys, with their high, pointed papers still damp and sticky from the press. He knew several drivers of the milk-carts, and he would follow the streets at night looking for belated passengers—and when it was a very cold morning he would not go to bed until he had got into one of these cabs and sleep curled up on the cushions, until daylight.

Besides being quick and cheerful, Gallegher possessed a power of amusing that was delightful even to the free soidan attained by the ordinary mortal. His elocution on the city editor's desk, when that gentleman was upstairs fighting for two more columns of space, was always a source of innocent joy to us, and his imitations of the comedians of the variety halls delighted even the dramatic critic, from whom the comedians themselves failed to force a smile.

But Gallegher's chief characteristic was his love for that element of news generally classed as "crime."

Not that he ever did anything criminal himself, but the cotton and woolen-mills rather the work of the criminal specialist, and his morbid interest in the crimes of all sorts of characters, his knowledge of their motives, their present whereabouts, and their past deeds of transgression often rendered him a valuable ally to the police reporter, whose daily feuillets were the only portion of the paper Gallegher designed to read.

In Gallegher the detective element was abnormally developed. He had shown this on several occasions, and to excellent purpose.

Once the papers had sent him into a Home for Destitute Orphans which was believed to be grossly mismanaged, and Gallegher, while playing the part of a destitute orphan, kept his eyes open to what was going on around him so faithfully that the story he told of the treatment meted out to the real orphans was sufficient to reach the unhappy little wretches from the individual who had them in his

He gave Gallegher his card, and after Gallegher had read it, and had discovered who the visitor was, he became so demoralized that he was absolutely useless.

"One of 'em' men," was a much more awe-inspiring individual to Gallegher than a member of the cabinet. He accordingly seized his hat and overcoat, and leaving his duties to be looked after by others, hastened out after the object of his admiration, who found his suggestions and knowledge of the city valuable, and his company so entertaining, that they became very intimate, and spent the rest of the day together.

In the meanwhile the managing editor had instructed his subordinates to inform Gallegher, when he condescended to return, that his services were no longer needed. Gallegher had played truant once too often. Unconscious of this, he remained with his new friend until late the same evening, and started the next afternoon toward the Press office.

As I have said, Gallegher lived in the most distant part of the city, not many blocks walk from the Kensington railroad station, where trains ran into the suburbs and on to New York.

It was in front of this station that Gallegher, dressed in a suit, brushed past Gallegher and hurried on to the ticket office.

He held a walking stick in his right hand, and Gallegher, who now palpably scrutinized the hands of every one who wore gloves, saw that white gloves were on the man's hands. He stood out in almost a straight line with his palm.

Gallegher stopped with a gasp and with trembling all over his little body, and his brain asked with a throbbing if it could be possible. But possibilities and probabilities were to be discovered later. Now was the time for action.

He heard the man ask for a ticket to Torredale, a little station just a bit ahead of Philadelphia, and when he was out of hearing, but not out of sight, purchased one for the same place.

The stranger went into the smoking-par and seated himself at one end of the table, and Gallegher took his place at the opposite end.

He was trembling all over, and suffered from a slight feeling of nausea. He guessed it came from fright, not of any bodily harm that might come to him, but at the probability of failure in his adventure and of its most momentous possibilities.

All Such Corns

Can be Ended in Two Days

Apply a little Blue-jay plaster. Right from that moment the corn becomes comfortable. Then the B & B wax begins to loosen the corn, and in 48 hours the whole corn comes out.

The chemist who invented Blue-jay studied corns for years. And his method is now employed on a million corns a month. No pain, no soreness, no discomfort. The way is gentle and results are sure. Don't pare corns. Don't apply liquids. Don't use ancient methods in these scientific days.

You can end the corn forever in this simple modern way. Try it on one corn.

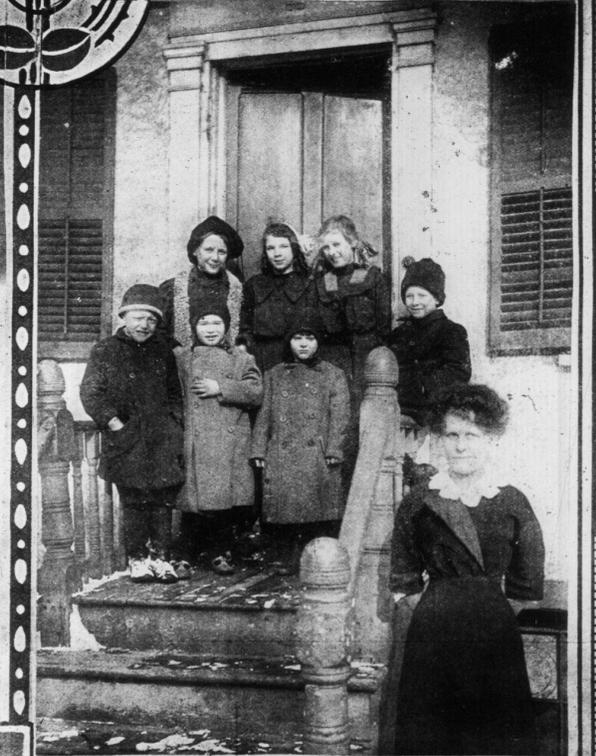

A in the picture is the soft B & B wax. It loosens the corn. B stops the pain and keeps the wax from spreading. C wraps around the toe. It is narrowed to be comfortable. D is rubber adhesive to fasten the plaster on.

A FAMOUS LITERARY FAMILY.

The instantaneous success of the dramatization of "The Common Law," Robert W. Chambers' impressionistic novel, which will be at the Grand Opera House this week, brings to mind the fact that the name of Chambers is a brilliant one in the world of letters. It is doubtful if there ever have been so many famous authors by any one name as can be found among the literary men of note named Chambers. As far back as 1750 Aphraim Chambers was a writer of stories with heart interest to make them read all over. In 1800 Sir William Chambers started London with his masterpiece, "Oriental Garden," while only a few years afterwards an entirely different William Chambers, the founder of Chambers' Institute in Scotland, wrote a book on American slavery, the proceeds of which amounted to one hundred thousand pounds, which sum he donated to restore the Cathedral of St. Giles, at Edinburgh. In 1850 Charles Julius Chambers of Bellefontaine, Ohio, gave to the American public a series of novels, of which "A Mad World" and "Rascal Club" are the best exponents. A few years later Edward Thomas Davies Chambers, editor of the Quebec Daily Chronicle, began to put out a series of books which made him famous in the Dominion of Canada. Two brothers, Robert Chambers and William Chambers, who began in Edinburgh, Scotland, as booksellers in 1870, launched out as writers; Robert Chambers' masterpiece being "Vegetables of Creation," while William has a number of works credited to him. George Frederick Chambers, who died in London, in 1890, was a writer of scientific works, like those of Jules Verne, and his novels en-

HERBERT McLENNAN OF ST. EDMOND'S ANGLICAN CHURCH CHOIR.

IRENE SUMMERLY, PEARL ABBOTT AND MARGUERITE CHAFFEE, WITH "THE COMMON LAW," AT THE GRAND THIS WEEK.

Joyed quite a vogue with the middle classes. Another Chambers, who gained fame was Talbot Williams Chambers, a New York clergyman, who in 1896 wrote "Memoir of Theodore Frelinghuysen." Last, but by no means least, comes Robert W. Chambers, the author of "The Common Law," a work of fiction which for popularity has never been rivaled, and which commands the greatest recognition achieved by an American author in the last decade. Robert W. Chambers was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., in 1875. His first work of any importance was called "The Quarter," which appeared in 1893. Following that closely came "The King in Yellow" in 1895, "The Red Republican" in 1894, "A King and a Few Kakes" in 1894, "The Maker of Moons" in 1895, "Oliver Lock" in 1896, "The Mystery of Choice" in 1896, "Lorraine" in 1896, "Ashes of Empire" in 1897, "The Haunts of Men" in 1898, "The Cambic Mask" in 1899, "Outsiders" in 1899, "The Conspirators" in 1900, "Cardigan" in 1901, "The Man in Arms" in 1902, "The Maids of Paradise" in 1903. It will readily be seen from this and his succeeding novels, with which readers are familiar, that Mr. Chambers is one of the most prolific authors alive today.
