> ESCAPED FROM DERRILL'S ISLAND.

New York, July 9 .- One of the Boer prisoners recently taken to Derrill's Island, Bermuda, from South Africa, was a stowaway on the steamer Trinidad, which arrived here to-day. His name is William S. Dupley. Last Friday he escaped by throwing himself into the water off the island. He floated about for hours, finally being picked up by two Bermuda fishermen, who took him to Hamilton. While there the authorities made a search for him, but he eluded his pursuers and induced two stokers aboard the Trinidad to stow him away in the coal

SHOT THROUGH THE HEAD.

Orillia, Ont., July 10 .- Eddie Robinon, the thirteen-year-old son of Chas. Robinson, was accidentally shot through the head and killed by a little companion here to-day. The latter was playing with a gun, and not knowing it was loaded, he pulled the trigger with a tragic result. Coroner Beaton decided that an inquest was unnecessary.

No Passengers killed but Many Trainmen Very Seriously

Injured. The Shock Was Terrific-Collision Occurred in the Yard at Notting ham, Ohio.

Cleveland, Ohio, July 9 .-- A special to the Leader from Nottingham, Ohio, says: One of the worst wrecks on the Lake Shore road in years occurred at 2.30 o'clock this morning in the centre of this village, ten miles east of Cleveland. The south-western limited on the Big Four from St. Louis, Cincinnati and other western cities, and which goes on to the Lake Shore tracks in this city, was ditched through collision with a portion of a freight train. Just what caused the wreck is not definitely known, but it is thought a portion of a freight that had broken in two had rolled on to the passenger track. No passengers were killed.

The dead are: Frank Anderson, engineer of the passenger train, of Buffalo, and O. G. McCullen, of Cincinnati, mail clerk.

The injured: William Elliott, Buffalo, fireman of passenger train, will probably die; W. M. Baker, of Colum-bus, mail clerk, injured on head and body; E. F. Loveless, Cincinnati, mail elerk, slight, and two unknown tramps, badly hurt.

The shock of the passenger coaches was terrific, and although the occupants were tadly shaken up, no pass-enger was hurt. When the front end-of the engine ploughed into the ground of the gully it became disconnected from the state. rom the other coaches that went over the embankment, and swirled sideways so that it pointed in the other direction. The mail car crashed into the tender, surrounding it completely. The engineer met his death by being pinioned under the engine. McCullen, the mail clerk, was crushed between the side of the car and coal tender. He was found with his head forced down between his knees. Two mail clerks, when they awoke to their condition, were able to extricate themselves from the wreck without assistance. At least one person is believed to be buried under the wreck. Two Nottingham doctors responded to calls for assistance. The roadbed and the two tracks were torn up for quite a distance, and the embankment will have to be repaired before the track can be relaid. The Lake Shore track is blocked east, and all trains are being sent over the Nickel Plate. The passengers of the wrecked train were taken to Cleveland over the Nickel Plate and wrecking trains are at work on the Lake Shore. so that it pointed in the other direc-tion. DEEM PEACE

Unless it Carries With it Independence is the Boer Position.

Entire Commando of Burghers Sur rounded and Captured-Large British Force in South Africa.

London, July 10 .- The British Government has issued further South African correspondence concerning the peace negotiations, which concludes with the text of the proclamation of Messrs. Schalkburger and Steyn, cabled by Lord Kitchener to the Government July 2, and read by Mr. Brodrick in the House of Commons the night of July 4. Messrs. Schalkburger and Steyn affirm in this proclamation that Mr. Kruger and the Boer deputation abroad make satisfactory reports; that peace would be worthess without independence; that no peace should be accepted whose price was the national existence, and that in the interests of the colonial brothers, the war would be vigorously pros-

A Cape Town despatch says :- Remngton's Guides, operating east of Edenburg, surrounded and captured a commando of twenty-two men, includ-ing the well-known Commandant INFORMATION WANTED.

The Cape Town Times, in its issue of to-day, contends that the time has ar-rived for a statement from the Colonial Government as to how it stands with regard to pending issues in the colony, especially as many circum-stances connected with the military administration justify the people in seeking the advice and assistance of the Cabinet. The Times advocates the early meeting of Parliament, if for no other reason than to save the charter. In conclusion it asserts that matters are drifting alike in a mili tary and a constitutional sense, and loyalists are entitled to know to what extent matters are drifting and to be told the reason why. Lord Stanley, Financial Secretary of he War Office, stated in the House of the War Office, stated in the House of Commons that there were last year 6,355 courts-martial in South Africa, affecting 8,330 persons. the Department of the Interior, has received a letter from Major Charlie Ross, the famous Canadian Scout, who is now in command of the scouts in South Africa. The letter was written from Pretoria on June 4th, and is in part as follows: "I received the rank of major, and also the D. S. O. I know you will be pleased to hear this. I can't give any idea when the war is going to end. NEW FRUIT LAW.

A few dishonest fruit growers and packers can seriously damage the reputation of Canadaian fruit in foreign markets. In fact such damage has been done in the English market, Many honest dealers have been made to suffer by the dishonesty of the few. The new Dominion Fruit Marks Act, which came into force recently ,is designed to prevent fraud in fruit packing by requiring that the name and address of the packer, together with the grade of the fruit, be marked on each closed package. The principal object of this regulation is to enable the inspector to keep tab on the packers and to trace any fraud in packing to the guilty party. The act requires that no fruit shall be graded as first class unless it fulfils these conditions: It must consist of well-grown specimens of one variety, sound, of nearly uniform size, good color, normal shape and not less than ninety per cent free from scab, worm holes, bruises and other defects, and properly packed. Not only must fruit for export be honestly graded and packed, but the fruit packer must deal fairly with the home consumer, as the following clause will show:

No person shall sell, or offer, expose No person shall sell, or offer, expose or have in his possession for sale, any fruit packed in any package in which the faced or shown surface gives a false representation of the contents of such package; and it shall be considered a false representation when more than fifteen per cent. of such fruit is substantially smaller in size than, or inferior in grade, to or different in variety from, the faced or ferent in variety from, the faced or shown surface of such package.

The fruit season being now upon us it is well for purchasers as well as packers to remember that the new law is in force.

BOER TACTICS.

The British army is making satisfactory progress in South Africa, and the end cannot be far off. And it is high time, for the Boers have degenerated into a pack of thieves and murderers. The correspondent of the London Mail, says Hamilton Spectator, has seen Boers go about among the wounded, shooting those in whom life was left. He complains that the censor refused to send this information in his regular dispatch, and that he was obliged to send it by mail.

The publication of this evidence by an eye-witness ought to destroy the last vestage of sympathy with the horde of robbers and murderers who are stealing and killing right and left throughout the country. There ought to be a day of reckoning for the fiends who thus disgrace humanity.

Commenting upon one of the Hamilton Times' "Trade" pipe-dreams, that fine old Liberal journal the Simcoe Rrformer says:

A fair sample of the Times man's dogmatic way of settling things. It may be quite true that it will not pay Canada to tax the raw materials that we bring in from the United States, but would it not be of advantage to Canada to so arrange our tariff that the millions of dollars worth of manu factures we import from there shall be made in our own country by our own work people?

And that is not the best the Reformer can do; for, replying to something in a Detroit paper, it says:

Not quite so fast, good friend. Your cute Uncle Samuel has over-reached himself this time. Not so long ago most Canadians would have thought equality, or there will be none at all Long and patiently did we strive to convince you that it would pay both To-day the cash surplus in is our turn to deal, and the game natural resources you are just com-ing to appreciate are ours, and we intend to make as much of them as we can. They will not be sold for a mess of pottage. Seriously speaking, we are commencing to think that ods and strict economy on the part of Canada is getting along quite well

Good! That is the way for Canadians to think and talk. Hurrah for Brer Donly!

A typesetting machine on a Toronto paper is in danger of prosecution for lese majeste. It calls the heir apparent the Duke of Pork.

The attention of fruit dealers is called to the act passed by the last session of Parliament adopting the United States standard apple barrel as the standard for Canada. This barrel holds 96.51 imperial quarts. The act provides a fine of 25 cents for each barrel used smaller than these dimensions. The object is to prevent fraud and to give our shippers an equal standing with those of the United States in the foreign market.

TAX DODGING IN NEW YORK

Millionaires of Manhattan Cheerfully Swear That They are Rea'ly Quite Poor.

Remarkable Statement by Morgan Carnegie, Rockefeller and Others ..

Chicago, July 10 .- A New York special to the Inter-Ocean says:

The surprising poverty of rich men and millionaires revealed in personal property tax lists, is strikingly illustrated in the returns made by the tax board in New York.

Pierpont Morgan, who is supposed to have made millions out of his recent operations, not to mention the wealth he had been previously suspected of having, has sworn that he has only $400,000 for taxing purposes. The great trust organizer evidently did not make anything worth talking about when he created the billion dollar steel trust.

Russell Sage, who is credited with having about as much loose change as any man in Wall street, was deeply hurt when the tax collector charged him with having personal property worth $1,000,000. He solemnly swore he had only $400,000.

Senator Depew, with his customary retiring disposition, refused to stagger under the burden of owning $325,-000 worth of property and stocks, and said all he could call his own was

Seth Low was under suspicion for half a million, but he said he did not own a cent's worth and so he was wiped off the lists. Helen Gould and Frank Gould are in the same impoverished condition as regards personal property, Owing to Bradley-Martin's expatriation his per-sonal-property fortune, placed at $200. 000 by the assessors, has been used up entirely in courting royalty.

John D. Rockefeller was satisfied not to be accused of owning more than $1,000,000 and let that figure stand on tax books. Morris K. Jessup, who helped to dazzle the London merchants when the American millionaires overran Eng-land recently, swore off $400,000 of the half million of stocks and bonds the tax man thought he owned. EVEN CARNEGIE DODGES. Founding libraries has been a heavy drain on Carnegie, and his munificent gift of $5,000,000 or more to New York put the assessors in a kind mood toward the generous Scotchman and they let him off with a $1,000,000 rec-

James Stillman, the Standard Oil bank president doesn't save much of his salary, and when he was charged with being half a millionaire he proved that he had only $50,000, in the usual way.

Juaging from the personal property assessments the Vanderbilt family has a corner on that kind of wealth in New York. Between them, the various descendants of the old ferryman have cared well for the money he left. Frederick W. and George W. admit they both have $2,000,000 worth of personal property. W. K. pleads guilty to being owner of $1,000,000, and the others to about the same amount between them.

For the first time this year, Richard Croker allows his name to stand on the personal tax books. His assessment is for only $25,000, though he lost $62,000 on horse racing at New-market last week. John F. Carroll got his assessment of $30,000 cut to Corporation Counsel John Whalen has been reduced from an estimate of $25,000 to $5,000. Comptroller Coler has allowed his original assessment of $20,000 to stand. J. Sergeant Cram, of the dock board, has acknowledged to $1,000 out of an assessment of $15,000, while Dock Commissioner Mur-

HEADS FOR FIGURES.

FEATS OF MENTAL ARITHMETIC THAT PUZZLED THE SCIENTISTS.

Two Untaught Phenomenons, Ignorant on All Other Subjects, Who Could folve Offhand Difficult Problems In Mathematics.

Jedediah Buxton, an English farm laborer, was an untaught mathematical genius. Although his grandfather was vicar and his father schoolmaster of the parish in which he was born, yet Jedediah, either from natural incapacity or from preoccupation with his arithmetical pursuits, never even acquired the rudi-ments of learnin, either could not or would not so much as learn to write and was content to work as a farm laborer to the end of his days. But at a very early age he appears to have had an intuitive perception of the relative proportions of numbers, and to this subject he devoted the whole of his attention. His method was so much his own that he seems to have been quite unacquainted with the common rules. On one occasion, having been required to multiply 456 by 378 and having done it as quickly as one of his examiners could do it in the ordinary way, he was asked to work the sum audibly, in order that his method might be discovered. It then appeared, curiously enough, that he went to work in a very coundabout was. First he multiplied the 456 by 5, which produced 2,280; this he again multiplied by 20 and found the product to be 45,690. Of course, he might much more readily have achieved this result by simply adding two naughts to the multiplicand. This he evidently did not know. However, he next went on to multiply the number he had now arrived at by 3, which gave him the sum of the multiplicand multiplied by 300, and it then remained for him to multiply it by the remaining 78. This he effected by the awkward process of multiplying by 15 the 2,280, which was the product obtained by his first multiplication of 456 by 5.

The product thus obtained he then added to the 136,800, which was the sum of 456 multiplied by 300. This produced 171,-000 as the sum of 456 multiplied by 375. It remained for him, therefore, to multiply the original number again by 3 and add the sum of it to 171,000. And by this certainly rather cumbrous process h found the product of 456 multiplied by 878 to be 172,368.

Jedediah had no more general knowledge than any average peasant boy of 10 years of age and showed no memory for anything but figures. He was sometimes asked when he returned from church if he could repeat the text or any part of the sermon, but he could never remember a single sentence. In 1754, when he was 47 years of age, Jedediah walked to London to see the king. He was entertained and exhibited to the Royal society, but he left London without a regret and return-ed cheerfully to his farm work.

Another untaught arithmetical genius, Zerah Colburn, whose abnormal development raises an interesting problem, was the son of an American peasant. He was brought to London by his father in 1812, when 8 years old, when he was examined and his peculiar powers were tested by Francis Baily and other skillful mathematicians. It was found that, although he was so ignorant of the ordinary rule of arithmetic that he could not perform on paper a simple sum in multiplication or division, yet he could mentally mul-tiply any number less than 10 into itself successively nine times and give the results faster, than the person appointed to record them could take them down. He multiplied 8 into itself 15 times, or, to use technical terms, railed it to the sixteenth power, and the result, consist-ing of 15 digits, was found to be right in every figure. This was astonishing enough, but he was able to do things even more wonderful. When asked what number multiplied by itself gave 106,929, he answered, before the original number could be written down, that it was 327. And, again, when asked what number lied twice into itself gave 68,-836,125, or, to put it technically, what was the cube root of that array of figures, he replied with equal facility and prompt ness that it was 645. The mathematical experts who were examining the bo found that it was impossible to find the cube root of these nine figures, in the shortest and most convenient way, in less than three or four minutes.

But what most surprised the mathema-ticians was that he could almost as readily answer questions for which they had not been able to provide any systematic procedure themselves. For instance, he was asked to name two numbers which, multiplied together, would give the numher 247.483, and he immediately named 941 and 263, which are said to be the only two numbers which will do so. And when asked to name a number which would divide 36.083 exactly he unhesitatingly replied that no number would do so. If any of our mathematically mind-ed readers will address themselves to this problem, they will find that it will give them at least a quarter of an hour's stiff calculation before they can assure them-selves that 36,083 is what is called a orime number, or a number only divisible by itself and unity, a solution which this child was in some mysterious way able to see immediately the question was proposed to him. Colburn, like Buxton, seems to have had a method of his own, but he con-stantly declared that he did not know how the answers came into his mind.

"God put these things into my head," he said on being pressed for an explanation, "and I cannot put them into yours." Jed-sdiah lived to the age of 65 with no more ediah lived to the age of 65 with no more general knowledge or stock of ideas than a child of 10, and he kept his extraordiaary calculating faculty to the end. But Zerah, the general culture of his mind improved, found his special power to fade away. Francis Baily was of ophon that Zerah Colburn's feats indicated the existence of certain properties of numbers which mathematicians had not yet discovered. But it is perhaps equally possible that they indicated capacities of the human mind which had hitherto been undreamed of.—London Globe.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription Doubles a Mother's Joys and Haives Her Sorrows.

It does this by a pre-natal pre-paration in which the mother finds herself growing stronger instead of weaker with each month. Instead of nausea and nervousness, there are healthy appetite, quiet nerves, and refreshing sleep. The mind's content keeps pace with the body's comfort. There is no anxiety, no dread of the approaching time of travail. When the birth hour comes it is practically painless, the recovery is rapid, and the mother finds herself abundantly able to nurse her child.

WHY EGGS WENT UP.

The Man From the Country Explains All About It. the woman in the suburbs objected on economical principles to paying ore for eggs than she had paid a week before, she held a joint debate on the subject with the man from the country who supplies her. There was just the suggestion of an edge on her tone as she respectfully asked him why eggs should be cheaper the latter part of April than the early part of May.

"Hens is hens." he replied, and it sounded as if he was talking by rote. "You can't tell nothin bout them; nothin 'tall. I hain't sayin anything fur or ag'inst the female sect, explainin which I will say that I'm livin with my third wife an say that I'm livin with my third wife an I wouldn't make no afferdavid now that any one of 'em was alike. Far's I been able to calkerlate, every woman's a vari'ty jist in herself. An hens, as fur as I been able fur to observe is all members of the same sect, but dif'rent. Now, I got a hen what don't seem to have no object but fur to fight the cat. All the layin she does is a layin fur him, an when he she does is a layin fur him, an when he gits in sight there's the doggondest row ever you see. There's another hen in the lot is allus lookin fur"—

"Bet what's all this got to do with the price of eggs? I don't want the history of your hennery. I'll pay you what I paid last week, and not a cent more."
"But I'm tryin to explain. If a hen is fightin cats, understan, or detectin chicken hawks or 'lowin any outside issue fur to occurry her mind she's yet layin any to occerpy her mind, she's not layin eggs.
That's plain 'nough. She's not layin eggs.
That's where the immuter'ble law of supply an deman' comes in. Ask your man 'bout it, he'll understan'. Fur instinx, if 30 hens outen 100 is not occerpled by business, there is less eggs 'an if they was all producin. Them as eats their plant. The spring plant will be moved entire from Owen Sound, but the machinery for making the axles will be purchased new.

Mr. Polson, who was the gentleman probably most instrumental in inducing the Dowsley Co. to come here, says that the factory will be in operation as soon as possible. The Wm. Gray & Sons' factory will be making from $2000 to $10,000 buggies per annum by 8,000 to $10,000 buggies per annum by next year, and they will take a good part of the output of the Dowsley factory. The establishment of William Gray & Sons is so large now, as to attract other manufacturers here, and that is why the tanning factory desires to come.

Mr. Polson has another factory which he expects to induce to locate here as soon as the terms as to the establishment of the tanning factory here are agreed upon.

The Subject now Before the Council o the Board of Trade is one of Local Interest.

IMPORTANT

The response to a call from the secretary, for a meeting of the City Board of Trade last night, was not taken to revive this useful adjunct to our municipal government.

The question to be discussed was that of obtaining evidence to place before the railway committee missioner of the Dominion Government, who has intimated his willing ness to visit this city and gathe such information as he can obtain to lay before his superior officers respecting the unjust discrimination that is being practised in the rates that are being charged local shippers as seriously affecting the trade in Canada. This has become so burdensome that representative manufac-turers have asked for this commission. If our local shippers, who are directly interested in obtaining an equitable rate, are not sufficiently active to the importance of getting active to the importance of getting this evidence together they certainly cannot expect the general public to interest themselves, and for this reason it was surprising that many of our heaviest shippers were absent.

Another attempt, however, will be made to get the evidence before the council of the Board in the next few.

Copyright 1901, by Thomas P. Montfort

Why, howdy, Pap Samp parture from Beckett's Mill. Though four years had passed since that time, Sim had never returned, and the people of Possum Ridge were no wiser as to his whereabouts than they had been the day he left. A large reward had been offered for his arrest, and the officials, stimulated by the hope of earning the money, had made strenuous ef forts to locate him. But it had been all in vain. Now and then there had come reports to Beckett's Mill to the effect that Sim had been captured; but, as is usual with such reports, it always turned out a case of mistaken identity. Pap was wondering where Sim could have gone to hide himself so completely and whether he was still among the living. He was wondering, too, whether if Sim still lived he would ever return to Possum Ridge and if he returned what would be his fate. It was with such thoughts as these the old man was busy when he was suddenly aroused and shocked by some one close to him saying quietly:

"Why, howdy, Pap Sampson?" Pap started and looked quickly around, and, his eyes falling on a bearded, sun tanned face, his mouth fell open and he stared in stupid amazement for almost a minute. Then he rubbed his eyes and stared again. "Lord a-massy!" he exclaimed at last. "Am I dreamin, or is that r'ally calling these things and noting Pap's Sim Banks?" "It is r'ally Sim Banks, Pap," the other replied; "what's left of him any-Pap was down off the fence in the twinkling of an eye, and the next moment he had Sim by the hand, shaking it with a heartiness that was almost painful.

"Great land of Goshen!" he cried. "Who'd 'a' thought it? Lord a-massy! It's shore old Sim, ain't it?" "I guess it is, Pap. Are you surprised to see me?" "Surprised to see you! Why, Lord, I wouldn't be no more surprised if the sky was to drop. But think of the devil an he's shore to make his appearance, as the old sayin goes." "Were you thinkin of me?"

"Jest been a-sittin thar on the fence a-wonderin whar you'd gone an what had 'come of you an if I was ever a-gwine to git to see you any more. I was jest a-gwine over them thoughts when you moughty nigh skeered the life out of me by speakin to me that a-way. Land, don't hardly seem like it can be you, Sim."

"Don't it?" "Shore it don't. But whar you been all these years?"

"I've been to the war, Pap." "Great day in the mornin! You ain't been fightin into the army, have

"Yes, I've done some fightin." "But you wasn't killed, bless the Lord." "Not quite." "He came next thing to it, though," Sim's companion volunteered.

"Is that so?" Pap cried. "Waal, I'll be smitched! You come moughty nigh gittin killed?" "Yes, I had a pretty close call once."

"Great land! Tell me all 'bout it, won't you, Sim?" "Yes, but first you must tell me somethin, Pap. How is Loueesy?" "Lord, ain't I a great old fool, a-runnin on here that a-way, never a-thinkin 'bout what you'd nat'rally be jest a-dyin to know? Loueesy's well." 'Where is she-up at the old place?" "La, no! She ain't lived thar sence ou went away. She's down at town."

"What is she doin down there?" "She's workin in a store to earn he Sim was surprised.

"To earn her livin?" he repeated.
Pap nodded his head. "What's become of all the land I left her?" Sim asked. "It's thar jest as it was. She ain't never teched a foot of it." "Why?" "Said it was your'n an she didn't deerve it." Sim paused a moment, then said:

"An Melvin?" "Lord!" Pap exclaimed. "Don't you cnow?" "No. Did he an Loueesy"—
"No. He was killed the day you

A queer expression came to Sim's face, an expression in which surprise and relief were blended. "Didn't you know 'bout him bein from home sence I went away, an don't know anything that has happened. Who killed him?"

The man who came with Sim looked quickly up and appeared to wait eagerly for Pap's reply. It was then Pap noticed for the first time how pale and emaciated that man was. "Who killed Melvin?" Sim repeated

"I don't know," Pap answered. "The next mornin after you left Jim Thorn found the dead body in your woods with a bullet hole through it. He had been killed several hours then." "And nobody knows who done it?"

Pap shook his head. "Was nobody suspected?" The old man turned away and began to thump his cane against the ground, but he made no reply. Sim saw that Pap's action meant something, and he began to put a few things together. He remembered that he had gone into those woods with his gun about the time the killing must have occurred and then had disappeared. He remembered also the threat he had made that day in Mrs. Mann's wheatfield. Re-behavior, he was quick enough to suspect the truth. Pale, but firm, be said: "Pap, was anybody suspected of kill-The old man hesitated still, but finally he replied: "Thar mought 'a' been, Sim; yes, I'm afeard thar mought 'a' been. But, Sim, I ain't never suspected nobody." "I know, Pap. But who did the others suspect?" Again Sim's companion leaned eager ly forward and seemed to await Pap's reply. After a short pause the old man said slowly:

"You know, Sim, thar's allus some people ready to suspect anything bad of a body if they've got a ghost of a reason. I-le's go on home, Sim. guess you must be tired an hungry." "No, Pap, not now. You must tell me the truth."

"Oh, Lord, Sim, I can't tell you no more." "Yes, you can tell me who

I don't think it." Sim had known what was coming, but Pap's admission was a hard blow for all that. His head drooped, and an expression of bitter pain came over his features. Pap saw and understood and, placing his hand on Sim's shoulder, said consolingly:

"But I don't b'lieve it. Sim, an nobody'll ever make me b'lieve it for a minute if they sw'ar to it on a stack of othles never.

The old man's act and words did Sim good. It was a great comfort to know that he had one true friend at least. "I know, Pap," he said, "that I can always trust you. You'll stand by me to the last."

"That's what I will, Sim, 'cause I know you're not guilty."
"An thar's others." Sim said. "Thar's Sam Morgan an Jason Rob-

Pap raised his hand instantly, and a beam of pleasure lighted his face.
"No, Sim," he interrupted, "don't you say that. Loueesy don't b'lieve it an never has b'lieved it. When she first heard you accused, she said it was a lie, an she's stuck to it from that day to this." "Thank God!" Sim cried fervently. "If she don't b'lieve it, I don't care what anybody else thinks." "She don't, Sim. I'm tellin you the God's truth. She don't. An now we've said enough for this time, so le's go on home." But Sim did not move, and he had become deeply thoughtful. After a lit-

"I don't know what I had best do. This is all so new an unexpected to me that I can't jest see my way clear. If I stop here, I'll be arrested."

In his excitement Pap Sampson had forgotten this, but he knew it was true. If Sim's presence in the village became known, he would certainly be arrested, and then the gallows, or at least the state prison, would no doubt await

"You had better hide somewhere until night," he said anxiously, "then go away again. That is the best you can do now." But Sim deliberated a long time, then said slowly: "Maybe you're right, Pap, but I don't know. A body may as well be dead or in prison as to be a wanderer on the earth, with neither home nor friends an always in dread of somethin. No matter what anybody says or thinks, I'm innocent."

"I know it, Sim: I know it," Pap said assuringly. "But, then, courts mebby won't see as we do." "Maybe not, Pap," Sim replied after pause, "but I'm innocent, an I'm goin to stay." "But think, Sim, of" -"I have thought of it all, Pap. I'm goin to stay an face it out."

Then Sim's companion, who had listened intently all this while, spoke up again. Laying his hand on Sim's arm, he said earnestly: "And you'll never be hurt, Sim. Never so much as a hair of your head shall be touched." Pap Sampson looked at the speaker doubtfully. "How do you know that?" he asked. "It doesn't matter how I know it," the other answered. "I know it, and that is enough."

"Who are you, an what do you know 'bout this affair?" Pap ques "My name is Thompson, and I am Sim Banks' friend. I have been his friend since that day he saved my life at the risk of his own." "That was nothin," Sim said. "Anybody would have done all I did." "Anybody would have rushed into that hall of shot and shell after our men had retreated and carried wounded comrade off the battlefield to save him from the enemy? You'll never make me believe any such thing. Nobody can ever make me believe that there's another man in the world besides Sim Banks who was brave enough to have done it." To be Continued.

TO PURIFY THE BLOOD OLD COACHING DAYS

HOW ENGLAND IS SEEN

Bousands of People Annually View th Scenery of Great Britain From a Box Sea ...Make Money for Their Owners,

Every year about 4,000 people, mo ly Americans and Australians, "averse the whole of Great Britain in imitation old-fashioned coaches. This quite 10,000 Americans alone booked up in advance complete booked up in advance complete tours in this way, and yet very few indeed of our own countrymen even know that one coach is now so linked with an other throughout the whole of the Eng-lish provinces that the railway can be almost totally ignored.

The revival of coaches some years ago ended in a dead loss to those who ago ended in a dead loss to those who undertook it, for the very good reason that things were done on the most lavish and uncommercial scale. Nowadays nearly every coach running from a London hotel is a source of handsome profit, for nearly all the coaches are un as commercial speculations as well as for pleasure. When a good route is chosen they cannot be a failure, for the reason that before they start a certain number of persons living along the line of road guarantee to make or new for so many commerce. make or pay for so many journeys

But this about all that is known on the subject by most Englishmen, though thousands of Americans write, months in advance, asking that a complete coach route may be devised for them throughout England.

them throughout England.

The coaching agent interviewed for the purpose of this article declares that at the end of each of the four seasons past from three to four thousand persons have returned to America and to our colonies who have SEEN THE WHOLE OF ENGLAND, and a good part of Scotland and Ireland, from well-appointed coaches that took them from inn to inn, and he further avers that he is understating rather than exaggerating when he says that quite 10,000 persons have already had these rail-ignoring journeys ar-ranged for them this year.

It appears that no coaches running out of London are anything like as certain of regular and paying patronage, apart from guarantors, as are those which start from hotels chiefly affected by Americans, and often enough every place in these is booked up weeks beforehand. Among a certain set of high-class provincial he el keepers the idea spread two seasons ago that a univer-sal system of coaches that would completely cover the provinces, link by link, would add a zest to a form of travelling that had already shown signs of a tremendous and wholly un-expected revival. As a consequence a great many more coaches have been added during the last season and this, and it is declared that there is scarcely one of these that does not pay well when efficiently managed.

In New York and other American cities, in Melbourne and Sydney, in all the great London hotels favoured by English-speaking visitors from abroad, regular parties are made up and the different seats are assigned by ballot or amicably arranged for, and for this parameter thousands of seats of plans. purpose thousands of sets of plans have been lithographed. These are obtainable at English hotels and from certain agents, and are sent to hotels and clubs abroad. This making of coach plans is said never to have been is is said never to have been heard of from about the "forties" till the beginning of last season.

Never within the memory of any living coach-builder have so many new vehicles after old models been constructed as during the peat two years. structed as during the past two years, and it may be recorded that one firm alone has orders for fourteen vehicles of a type that at no distant date were only worth the price of old wood and

A TALKING MOCKING BIRD

Songster That is the Wonder of a Georgia

A mocking bird belonging to Mrs. Wm. Neill has actually been taught by her to talk. It is very interesting indeed to hear it utter the words that have by persistent and painstaking afforts been taught it, says the Augusta, Georgia, Herald. The bird's cogaomen is Charlie, and it has a reputation that is envied by mocking bird swners. It mimics every noise it hears if it is repeated a number of times, and can repeat all the call whistles that the boys of the various cliques and the boys of the various cliques and clans use as signals.

Mr. Neill used to own a dog, and their favourite call for the pet animal was "Hear, hear, hear, hear," and a short whistle; and repeated. Now the bird Charlie can call that dog as distinctly as any person might. It sery clearly says "Hear, hear (whistle); hear, hear," etc.

While living at the Planters' hotel Mr. and Mrs. Neill were frequently treated to a cat serenade, and the bird learned to mimic them to a surprising degree. Now that they are residing treated to a cat serenade, and the bird learned to mimic them to a surprising degree. Now that they are residing in presumably a catless neighbourhood, they are often fooled by the bird, who can mew so much like a cat that one is loth to believe that the sounds save from the bird's throat unless actually standing near the cage.

Mr. Neill used frequently to amuse himself by saying to the bird, "Tommy, don't," and sometimes, "Now, Tommy, don't," and sometimes, "Now, Tommy, don't," The bird has learned to say it now as distinctly as Mr. Neill himself.

On one of the chimneys of the house adjoining where Mr. and Mrs. Neill reside is a bonnet, and when the air is stirring that bonnet turns as the wind changes direction, with a hideous creaking. The other day Mrs. Neill, whose room windows face the chimney, heard the creaking, and was just about to abuse the bonnet, when she discovered that the mischievous bird was making the noise.

The bird can crow like a rooster

The bird can crow like a rooster and cackle like a hen. It often lures the inmates of the house to the front door by imitating the postman's whistle. It can also mimic the policeman's whistle—in fact, there are very few familiar sounds that it has not tearned.

Mrs. Neill once owned a bird that could whistle two familiar waltzes. She would whistle them for it just prior to retiring, and in the morning again the tunes were whistled, until the little bird learned them perfectly. It is very remarkable to hear a mocking bird utter words, and it is doubtful whether there is another besides the one owned by Mrs. Neill that anjoys that reputation. It requires tonsiderable pains to teach the bird, and certainly a great amount of ingenuity and skill, Mr. and Mrs. Neill prize the bird very highly.

Instead of re-garding this as a deformity they seem to think it a natural feature of physical development, and tourists passing through the valleys are sometimes jeered by the goitrous inhabi-tants, because they are without this offensive swelling. Thus a form of disease may become so common that it is regarded as a natural and neces-sary condition of life. It is so, to a large extent, with what are called diseases of women. Every woman suffers more or less from irregularity, ulceration, debilitating drains, or female weakness, and this suffering is so common and so universal that many women accept it as a condition natural and necessary to their sex. it is a condition as unnatural as it is unnecessary. The use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription strengthens the delicate womanly organs and regulates the womanly functions, so that woman is practically delivered from the pain and misery which eat up ten years of her life—between the ages of fifteen and forty-five. "Fa-vorite Prescription" makes weak wo-men strong and sick women well.

June 10. - The bye-elec in this city yesterday for the hoice of a representative in the Local Legislature, resulted in the defeat of Darch, Socialist, by Leys, Liberal, by a majority three times the total vote polled for the socialist candidate.

The polling was conducted very quietly. There were almost no elec-tion rigs, and no committee rooms. The not so much as a scrutineer to watch their interests. There was practically no concern felt in the result. The re-turn of Col. Leys was anticipated by everybody. The vote polled was ex-ceedingly small.

Following are the returns:- Darch-524. Leys-2,179. Majority for Leys, 1,655.

THE SMALL VOTE. A comparison of the vote polled at the last election shows how very small was the polling yesterday. In 1898 the total vote was 7.870—5,167 more than in the bye-election. So that only a third of the voters of three

REAL RUMPUS

Woodstock all 7 orn up Over a Dispute Between the Principal and Two Teachers Woodstock, July 10 .- The education al interests of Woodstock have not been aroused to their present state of excitement in many years, and the trouble that is now at hand has been caused by the action of the Collegiate Institute Board in dismissing two of their best teachers, in the persons Mr. A. A. Stephenson and Capt. C. F. Errett, on the grounds of insubording ation. These two gentlemen were dismissed by the board in a summary manner that has not met with publ favor. The teachers were not given a hearing, the principal's word alone being taken. As these two teachers were considered among the best in the service of the board the Collegiate scholars have circulated a petition praying the board to reconsider its decision. The petition is being largely signed, and on every hand the board is criticised. The matter was referred to in one of the city pulpits on Sunday, and the board strongly denounced. From present indications an favor. The teachers were not give on Sunday, and the board strongly de-nounced. From present indications an investigation will be demanded. An-drew Pattullo, M. P. Everything for Summer Wear

From crown to toe-everything a civilized man wears is here except shoes.

Most garments sold in the store are made in our own factory. Well made they must be, or the factory would not have grown so steadily from a small begin-ning—would not be able to pay the best wages and provide spacious, airy workrooms for its employeesbut these things go with good work as naturally as growth goes with sunlight.

Otner lines of garments and furnishings we buy, but our own ideas—and yours—are often worked into them. When you think of it, it takes about as much technical knowledge to buy right as to make the article yourself. Between making and buying, this store has gather ed for you the finest all-round collection of summer wear that Chatham men have ever been invited to choose from. If a thing is seasonable, sensible and stylish, we're showing it. Test us.
