NOT GENERALLY KNOWN. Bits of Information Which Nearly All of us Have Forgotten. Each time we reach the end of December says Chambers's Journal, we should think with satisfaction that we have got over the most dangerous month, since in this country more deaths are said to occur in December than at any other time of the year.

this is the country in which we are told suicide is less prevalent than in any other which speaks volumes for Pa's other heartedness. It has been noticed how women mostly commit suicide by drowning, and men by shooting. By the way, suicide is less common amongst miners than any other class of people; and self-destruction, strangely enough, is said to be most prevalent amongst soldiers.

Each person in this country sends on an average forty-four letters yearly through the post, which only lets twenty go astray out of every million letters which go through it. It may not be uninteresting to mention that one person in every nine is left-handed, or that clergymen come next in number to mechanics under the head of inventors.

"Oh, dear," she moaned, as she clutched him frantically. "A kitterpaller! You know, George! A paterkiller!" "Oh!" said George, with evident relief, and he proceeded to brush the future butterfly away.

MEAL TIME

Diners Used to Be Eaten at 10 in the Morning.

It is believed by some that it (the word dinner) originates from a corruption of the word dicker, indicating the time at which, in the old Norman days, this meal was taken.

The mere idea of having dinner at the barbarous hour of 10 o'clock in the morning would, in all probability, send a modern chef into a fit, yet it was at this early time that persons of quality, both in this country and France, partook of the meal.

The Romans, in the time of Cicero and Augustus, took an early breakfast, from 3 to 4 in the morning, a luncheon at 12 or 1 o'clock, and a dinner at 3 o'clock.

South Africa may sometimes be nearly as hot as India, but there the hunter, though a sybarite by temperament, must be a Spartan by training.

The air may be hot, and the work has been hard, but he seeks the wagon at sundown, empty and raving.

Haris and Gordon Cumming dwell rather on the killing of the game than on the eating of it.

According to Humboldt, the massive pinions of the bird enable it to soar over all the summits of the Andes, to circle for hours in those regions of low pressure, and thence on a sudden to descend to the seaports.

This agreement of observers is now broken as far as concerns Mr. Whymper. He weakens the authority of Prof. Orton's statement by remarking that the Pacific is at least 120 miles distant from the gorges of Chimborazo.

As a matter of fact, it is said the condors seldom or never descend to the seashore in Ecuador, though they undoubtedly do so elsewhere; while, so far from surpassing man in the heights that they attain, Mr. Whymper, who had repeated opportunities of observing them sailing to and fro, not above but far below his snow-girt encampment, was persuaded that their habitual range did not rise above 16,000 feet.

THE EDITOR'S WOOLING.

BY HELEN FORREST GRAVES.

The editor had lighted his cigar just as the level light glimmering through his by no means immaculate "sanctum" windows indicated that the glorious orb of day, somewhat obscured in fog and metropolitan smoke, was about to disappear behind, not exactly the western hills, but what came to the same thing in a city, the western roofs and chimney tops.

Karl Rubens, the editor of the Weekly Whizzer, was a tall, bright looking man of thirty years one of those individuals whose very face and features indicate that they are born to conquer destiny.

As we said before, Mr. Rubens was just drawing the first fragrant inhalation of his imported Havana (Karl was particular in his choice of his cigars), when the door opened softly, and a beautiful young lady rustled in; a young lady whom he had met a score of times in the gas-lighted drawing-rooms of "society," whose beauty he had worshipped afar off, and whom he unconsciously associated in his mind with diamonds, pearly silks and tulle draperies.

"Am I interrupting you, Mr. Rubens?" she asked, softly. "Interrupting me? Not in the least in the world; in fact, I feel very much honored by your presence, take a chair."

Blanche Anisale was very handsome, with azure eyes and bright, chestnut-brown hair, while her complexion, although rather pale, was clear as ivory, and her features were as delicate as if she had been a Greek girl in the days of old Praxiteles.

"On are wondering what brings me here," she said, half-smiling. "Whatever it is, I can but thank the opportunity," Karl answered, with prompt gallantry, although he could feel the tell-tale blood rising to his cheek.

"I have got a little story to tell," went on Blanche, producing a neatly folded packet, "which I have worked very hard upon, and if you would kindly look at it, and give me your unprejudiced opinion."

"Certainly," said Karl, recovering his self-possession, and bowing as he took the packet. "There are some verses, too," said Blanche, reddening, "and a little essay or two, written as spicily as possible. Shall I come to-morrow to get your opinion?"

"I will not trouble you to come to this un fashionable locality, if you will allow me to call and see you."

Blanche Anisale went away, leaving an intangible little scent of attar of roses behind her—and the sun dipped down behind the chimney tops, and the sanctum became dark and gloomy all at once.

"Fiddlers!" was the brief yet significant reply. Karl rubbed his nose with the end of his pen-stick, evidently a little disappointed. "You think they won't do said he."

Feed all grain in straw, pins, needles, or gravel, making the hens work for their food. Give all the fresh air you can during the warm hours. See that they have water at least twice a day. Shovel away the snow in front of the house and let hens out-of-doors.

A ROMAN PEAST.

Enormous Sums Spent to Provide a Single Dinner.

As exemplifying the pitch to which Roman epicureanism was carried, and indicative of a truly barbaric nature, a dish consisting of the favorite songsters of the air was requisitioned at immense cost to satisfy the insatiable craving of one of the Emperors.

Where land is of high value, this is a practical solution of the problem of profitable stock keeping. Land that is worth too much to be given up to permanent pasture may be sown to such crops and fed off two or three times in a season, and thus earn a good interest.

Quality and feeding value of our different grasses and fodders, depending upon the period at which harvested. Farmers should study this matter, and save every crop just when at its best.

In buying feeders, purchase if possible such as are eight to twenty-four months old. Then you will get the greatest gain at the least cost, and it will be most profitable to buy early—say in September—and get them started on grass before winter sets in and compels exclusive grain feeding.

One of the things to buy now is a good young, pure bred bull. Prices are ruling so that these are within the reach of every one, and some breeders will shade values in order to reduce stock at this season.

FATTENING STOCK.

As the weather grows cooler, the stock of all kinds that are to be fattened for market should begin to have extra feed. But while one eye keeps a lookout for the market prices of meat and grain, the other should watch the thermometer, and at least twice a day both eyes should examine the animal and the feed trough or manger.

Another thing not known by all farmers, although it should be, is that cattle and sheep will fatten faster when they are having a grass feed, not too rank, in the pasture, upon the same amount of grain, than they would upon dry hay, or rather they can eat, digest and assimilate a larger amount of grain when having a little green.

Having lived his paper life and achieved a paper fame and paper wealth, he will retire to paper leisure and die in paper peace. There will be a paper funeral, at which the mourners dressed in paper crapes, will wipe their eyes in a paper handkerchief, and the preacher will preach in a paper pulpit.

They were discussing families, and one was up in which there were several girls. "Where's Allie?" asked the lady who had been away for some years.

Do not put them under your pillow at night, and be careful to keep the frames straight, otherwise the lenses will not be true and your sight will suffer accordingly.

Lakelet.

Law mill is expected to get up again on Wednesday to saw up residue of the logs.

Mr. Smith expects to have his mill in Clifford ready for work by the end of '92. His property here will be disposed of at a reasonable figure.

Lakelet sent forth its share of representatives to the Fordwich fair on Saturday. All got home that night save Mr. Haskett, who spent Sunday down south and returned on Monday. Our boot man, Mr. Halladay, gave further evidence of his adaptability in that line by his tasty display there. We do not know how many opposed him, but he got the prize.

Mr. Carlton's business still keeps increasing. Since coming here the success which has attended him has surpassed his own expectations. His ability as a mechanic is unquestioned, and his genial disposition and obliging manner has won the confidence of the public, the result being the undivided patronage of all in this vicinity and many who are more remote from Lakelet than other places.

Those who are out of employment would doubtless get a job at apple packing from Mr. Dulmage for some weeks. He has a couple of gangs out now but fears many of the apples will be destroyed before he can attend to them. Mr. D. says the profits on each barrel amounts to very little, yet from the enormous quantities bought the total will amount to a considerable sum.

Prof. Munro, a phrenologist, will lecture here on Thursday night. We know he will not make a "pile" here as most of the people are non-believers in such a practice. It is the general impression that after examining many of the heads in the burg, there will not be found twenty-five cents worth of good in them.

The good Templars of Fordwich are expected at Lakelet on Saturday night to visit the I. O. G. T. here. We trust the Fordwich contingent will not disappoint our crowd.

Mr. C. Horton took his first trip for the mail on Saturday. Mr. Halladay, the old veteran, retires after serving in the capacity very faithfully for 28 years. For a time the former part of his career he worked a week, then twice, then three times and for the greater number of years could be seen leaving the burg six days of the week at 12:30. Our expert mathematicians on close and correct reckoning say that during his term he has travelled 41,400 miles. If after serving the same length of time, our new man has made so few enemies; has made so few mistakes and looks so hearty as Mr. Halladay, we think he has attained that of which any one should be proud.

A mysterious murder or suicide occurred in Winnipeg on Sunday. Olive Bell, aged 22, was found dead with a gunshot wound in her body. W. Smith, who shot his wife and his child's throat, was lynched at Dunsmuir, Cal., Friday evening. He thanked the crowd for doing it.

SARA LORD BAILEY,
The Great American Elocutionist, will give an entertainment in the Town Hall here, on the evening of Thursday, Oct. 20, under the auspices of the Galt Brass Band.

She is a lady of prepossessing appearance, pleasing voice and exceptional ability and culture.—Prof. HARE, Ladies' College, Whitty.

"Miss Bailey is certainly one of the finest elocutionists of the age."—Seaforth Sun.

"She made it felt that her unique personality was potent to thrill, to charm, or to convulse with laughter."—Carleton place Canadian.

"No elocutionist has so pleased the fancy of a Galt audience as did Sara Lord Bailey. She proved herself equally at home in the humorous as in the tragic selections."—Galt Reporter.

"In her humorous selections she carried her hearers in spasms after spasms of Roistering laughter."—Peterboro Examiner.

* * "Miss Bailey combines strong dramatic instinct with exquisite finish of art."—Ed. L. McDOWELL, Prof. Elocution, St. Louis University.

"No one of our graduates has met with so great popular success as Miss Bailey."—MOSSES TRUB BROWN, Principal of Boston School of Oratory.

"She has become a favorite with Toronto audiences."—World.

"Miss Bailey's rendering of 'Life for Life' has never been equalled in Toronto."—Empire.

"She has seldom, if ever, been excelled in Toronto."—Globe.

"Few elocutionists who have visited this city from the United States could be considered her superior."—Toronto Mail.

Some people adopt a paper bordered by a black band fully half an inch in width. To say nothing about good taste, which may not be considered under the circumstances, the use of such paper is entirely too con- spicuous. It obtrudes your grief upon every- body, and makes a display of it. The mat- ter is wholly personal; it is not necessary to proclaim it to the world.

In the wearing of rings and jewellery, a lavishness of display is often noticeable. This also is bad form, being a parade of mere personal wealth. Rings and jewels are all right if worn in moderation, but true refinement never indulges in excesses of dress or ornamentation. It is this over- doing of things that leads to difficulties, even as too much study may weaken your eyes or destroy your health, thus preventing for a time at least further acquirement of knowledge. In speech, also, superlatives are too often used, and they serve to awaken distrust. Absolute perfection is indeed rare, and exaggeration plays a great part in modern life. We think too much of our own importance, or talk too much of ourselves. We dwell too much upon fam- ily or society, and lend a fictitious value to absolutely empty things. The use of su- perlative words often tends to destroy the impression that we wish to convey, simply because we overdo things. A light curb, a little thought regarding things of this life, seems to accomplish the end much better than going to any extreme, however strong- ly you may feel.—Harper's Bazar.

The Spring Hosiery. Hosiery is another important subject just now to the woman who wants to look well this spring. The esthetic young woman is revelling in the Doucheuse stocking, a dainty and delicate affair, made of fine white silk with high instep of lace insertion. The stocking, between the stripes of insertion, is embroidered with white silk. Stockings with colored silk tops and high insteps of sandal lace are something new. So also is the Grecian stocking. This has a black silk boot with colored tops and fancy clock- ing at the side. Another very popular stocking delight in wearing is the "Mas- cotte." It has a black silk boot, colored top and lacing at the side. The spring shades for the tops of stockings are a delicate Nile green called cigale. Argent, which is a grayish tint; perse, which blends on the lilac, and eglantine, which is in reality nothing but old pink, are high in favor.

Queen of Washerwomen. The queen of the Paris laundress has been chosen. Her name is Mlle. Henriette Delabarre. Her office is to ride in a triumph- al car at the fete through the streets of the city. The correspondents say that she was chosen entirely with a view to artistic effect, being a young girl of sixteen, fair- haired, pale and of placid and ingenious countenance. She has been chosen queen by the universal suffrage of the laundresses of Paris. She was educated by the sisters of St. Vincent de Paul at one of their schools, where she was remarkable for humility and obedience. They are not at all pleased at her election, which they fear will be her ruin. The washerwomen are subscribing to buy artificial lilies and other white flowers wherewith to decorate the vehicle which will serve as a throne to their most gracious young sovereign.

Clever Woman. Maude Thomas, a Newnham student, is a successful lecturer on dressmaking in girls' schools for the Surrey County Coun- cil.

Julia E. Bulkley, principal of the Plain- field Public School system, has been ap- pointed dean of the Women's College of the new University of Chicago. She is a woman of remarkable executive ability, a writer on educational subjects, and has travelled extensively in this country and abroad.

Annie Crosby Emery has received from Bryn Mawr College the European fellow- ships of 1892-93. Within the next two years four new fellowships will be offered by the college, besides the European fel- lowship, which belongs to the graduating class.

What is Certain to Be. Although just at first so many of the bonnets and hats seem elaborate, it is cer- tain that simpler and plainer styles will be shown a little later on, and they are oftenest what is wanted. Small straw bonnets not unlike the old-fashioned cottage shape will be worn, and a simple ribbon of flower trimming is all that they require. Although heavy veiling is shown the lighter veils will be used, especially with bonnets, and now just remember this, the summer is long and sunshiny, and so don't be in too much of a hurry to get a bonnet that will grow tiresome and faded long before the golden days are over.

French Women Journalists. The two most noted women in French journalism are Mme. Adam and Mme. Severine. The former is well known to English-speaking people as well as French, both as a journalist and as a woman of let- ters. Mme. Severine is said to possess a prodigiously facile pen and to be "kindly, eminently democratic, wearing her heart upon her sleeve, nothing of a blue-stocking, and having the gift of tears to exaggeration." In addition to this she is the best pupil of Victor Hugo. Mme. Yver occupies a unique place in French journalism as a reporter of police cases.

Favorites of Fashion. The favorite hats for spring seem to be the large round chip affairs, which are stylish and exceedingly becoming. A very pretty one, which is much admired, has the crown trimmed with a white silk scarf laid in folds, pierced here and there with jeweled pins. A soft white silk butterfly bow trims one side of the hat. Towards the back and falling over the hair is a bunch of white ostrich tips; the tiniest of white curly tips cover the brim as a trim- ming.

The Beauty of the Royal Family. The beauty of the royal family of Eng- land is said to be Princess Marie, eldest daughter of the Duke and Duchess of Edin- burgh. The young lady will be present at the first drawing room of the season.

Dunning Letters That Came.

The charming blonde who presides at the registered letter window of the postoffice threw up her dainty hands with surprise a few days ago when a gentleman walked up to the window and, upturning a big grip, dumped its contents before her. There were 470 letters to be registered. Such a task had never before fallen to her lot. Her appeal for help brought the chief of the division, who provided help in the shape of three assistants for her, and the pile was soon disposed of. The man stood by until the receipts were given him.

"The fact is," he explained, "I am secre- tary of a fashionable club, and it's the most difficult matter in the world to make them pay up. I send hundreds of bills, and when I speak to members about it it's always the same story, 'I never got the bill, old fel; certainly I'll pay up. Just send me a bill and I'll see that you get it.' There are 470 delinquents in the club, and I'll be sure they all get their bills this quarter."

The responses have already begun to come in in a way that foretells the entire success of the scheme.—Philadelphia Record.

Had a Familiar Sound. "What is the name of the young man that's coming to see Claribel?" asked Old Spudd, looking up from the "Stocks and Bonds" column of his newspaper. "I think I've heard it, but I have forgotten it."

"It is one you certainly ought to remem- ber easily enough," replied Mrs. Spudd. "His name is Oliver Cromwell."

"My memory, madam," said Old Spudd, looking fixedly at her over his glasses, "is as good as yours. Cromwell is the name of that merchant down in Hamilton that claimed I cheated him out of $37.40 in 1873 on a consignment of eggs. You can't fool me on names!"

One Little Point. The professor had talked to the class an hour and a half on the question of the tariff.

"There is one little point still unsettled in my mind, professor," said one of the pupils, a thoughtful young man whose in- telligent face and close attention had great- ly pleased the instructor. "It is this: Who finally pays the tariff on imported goods—the foreign manufacturer, the importer, or the consumer?"

The professor sat down profoundly dis- couraged. That was the precise point he had been trying to explain.

Odds and Ends. Many watches make five beats per sec- ond, 300 each minute, 18,000 every hour, or 432,000 per day.

Patsy Sears, of Howard County, Indiana, aged 108 years, has been a church member a hundred years.

The average mortality of unmarried men between the ages of twenty and twenty-five is 1,174 in every 100,000, while that of married men is only 597.

Hats, Boys! Raise your hat, boys, when you meet a girl or woman or elderly woman that you know, be your acquaintance with them ever so slight. Take off your hats, boys, whenever you enter a house, be it the home of poverty or wealth. For thus will you prove yourselves to be possessed of the spirit that distin- guishes the true gentleman.

A Unique Order. A bureau of press clippings in London has received the royal "command" to furnish twenty distinct sets of newspaper cuttings from every periodical in the world, so far as obtainable, referring to the death of Prince Albert Victor. The sets are to be pasted each in a separate album.

Why? "Riches have wings." At least, so people say; And yet, why is it that Thy never fly our way?

Stopping a Cough. It is said that coughing can go stopped by pressing on the nerves of the lip in the neighborhood of the nose. A pressure there may prevent a cough when it is beginning.

Intelligible. Tillinghest—I think I can get you a situ- ation as a government chemist. Winebiddle—Why, I never analyzed any baking powder in my life.

Wroxeter.

Work on the Presbyterian Church is being rapidly pushed. The carpenters have the structure about closed in and ready for the interior work. Lee & Co., did a very large trade on Show days as a result of printer's ink and cut prices.

First-class hemlock lumber for the low price of $6 per thousand at the Wroxeter Saw Mill.

Mr. Jas. Ireland was presented with a Past-Master's jewel by the brethren of Forest Lodge, A. F. & A. M., the other evening. This lodge has made much progress while Mr. Ireland was in the chair and the presentation was made in recognition of his services.

See advertisement in another issue.

DEATH OF JOHN DAVIDSON, JR.
eldom has such a feeling of sorrow pervaded Wroxeter as when the news reached here, on Tuesday forenoon, announcing the death of Mr. John Davidson, jr., which occurred at an early hour that morning at his residence at Paris. He had spent his holidays with his parents and friends here, and had left only a few weeks ago, apparently in the best of health, to resume his duties as second teacher in the Paris public school. Hardly had the school got settled down to work when he was taken ill with what proved to be typhoid fever, and in spite of all that medical skill and kind friends could do he passed away. Last week Dr. Smale, of Wroxeter, went to Paris to visit the young man, but even then the hopes of his recovery were faint. His remains arrived in Wroxeter on Tuesday afternoon, and the Masonic fraternity, of which he was a member, took charge of the funeral on Wednesday afternoon. There were about 70 Brethren present, Wingham, Brussels, Teeswater, Fordwich and Mount Forest being represented, besides a large attendance from Wroxeter lodge. D. D. G. M. Bro. Moore, of Wingham, officiated. The Order of Endeavor Society, of Paris, of which he was a member, sent a beautiful floral pillow, which, with an appropriately inscribed wreath from the Brethren of Forest Lodge and several bouquets from friends, was laid on the casket. The Wroxeter Royal Templars of Temperance also attended the funeral in a body as a last tribute to their departed Brother. The pall-bearers were Bros. Thos. Miller, Jas. Fox, Jno. W. Green, Jno. Barnard, S. Taylor and Jno. Ireland. As soon as he learned of the serious nature of his son's illness, Mr. Davidson started for his bedside at Paris, and remained with his boy until his spirit took its flight. The profound sympathy of the entire community goes out to the bereaved family who have lost a son and brother who had built up a superb character and whose personal brilliancy and well-known perseverance would certainly have given him a prominent place among his fellow men.

WROXETER FALL SHOW.

The Wroxeter Horticultural Society had to contend against very cold weather, and the sad funeral on the second day detracted considerably from the attendance, yet a very good show was held, though not up to some other years. The display of roots, fruit and grains was very choice and would have held its own in a much larger Show, but the Ladies' department fell short of the usual number of entries. The Hall looked very attractive on the evening of the first day when quite a number visited it. Gorrie Brass Band was present and enlivened the occasion. The show of live stock was a good one and much interest was taken in the work of the judges. The list of prizes will be published complete next week.

A fire in Buenos Ayres destroyed property to the value of $2,200,000. During September the C. P. R. sold 15,442 acres of land in the Northwest, realizing $50,057.

The profits of the Olympic Club of New Orleans over the recent prize-fights amounted to $42,650.

Dr. Ferguson, ex-M. P. for Welland, and Mr. A. Desjardins, M. P. for Hochelaga, have, it is understood, been appointed to the Senate.

Annie Scottmeyer, aged 5, fell into a kettle of boiling catsup at Cincinnati, Ohio, Saturday. The child was literally parboiled, and lived but a few minutes.

The Immense Slaughter of Hemlock Lumber

At the WROXETER SAW MILL

STILL CONTINUES and farmers intending to build next year would be acting wisely by laying in a stock of it, as many are now doing.

The price is but $6 per thousand.

If the lumber is FIRST-CLASS QUALITY. If you come to buy do not take a board that the slightest objection could be raised against, and your straightforwardness will be rewarded with ample satisfaction in the way of good, sound Hemlock. Now is your opportunity, remember! Grasp it! For the lumber is being sold faster than it is cut.
