Died To-Day

J. S. Cartwright, Master in Chambers at Osgoode Hall, Toronto

[Canadian Press Despatch.] TORONTO, Nov. 12.—J. S. Cartwright, master in chambers at Osgoode Hall since 1903, died at his home here this morning.

Mr. Cartwright was a brother of the Deputy Attorney-General, John R. Cartwright, K.C., and was a cousin of the late Sir Richard Cartwright.

He was born at Kingston and was educated at Rugby, England. He married on June 1st, 1866, a daughter of the late Hon. William Cayley, who died in 1899, and was married secondly to a daughter of George A. Young.

THE LATE REV. ROBINSON HAMILTON

DAMAGING EVIDENCE AGAINST JAMES TAYLOR GIVEN TO-DAY

Movements of Taylor on Night of Murder Effectually Traced by Vigilant Officers of the Crown---Justice Kelly Says to Defence Counsel Harley "Use Every Means to Give Prisoner a Fair Trial"---Dr. Ashton Gives Strong Evidence Against Prisoner.

James Taylor, on trial for murder, when Mr. Harley was asked by the Judge to act as counsel for the accused, was taken out to have a conference with that gentleman.

His Lordship remarking that fair play was the essence of British justice, told Mr. Harley to exercise every possible means on behalf of his client.

Taylor did not seem to be at all troubled over the fact that his presence in the dock yesterday afternoon, marked the near approach of the time when he would know his fate.

He slept well last night and partook of a hearty breakfast this morning. Since his incarceration in jail, he has had no relative, or any acquaintance call upon him. He is evidently absolutely without friends.

At the trial two men are in attendance, who are said to be his half brothers.

The proceedings to-day opened at 9.30. Prior to that hour, some had congregated at the Court House seeking to gain admission, a thing very difficult to achieve save by those having business, and members of the jury panels.

The doors are closely guarded, and when the Grand Jury withdrew yesterday afternoon there was such a dense crowd on the main stairway that their egress was difficult.

The Sheriff gave orders the stairs to be cleared and to be kept that way.

To Plead Not Guilty. When Mr. Harley entered the court room, he was asked by a Courier man as to what course he had decided upon, and replied, "A plea of not guilty will be entered."

"Well, the Crown will have to prove their case."

"How about your witnesses?" "We haven't any. I may put the prisoner in the box—it all depends on the nature of the testimony."

As His Honor gave his decision in another case, his finding occupying some minutes to deliver, it was ten o'clock before the Judge announced "King versus James Taylor."

Prisoner presented the same downcast aspect, and after taking his seat in the dock, had a brief chat with his counsel.

Prisoner was told to stand up, and Clerk Hewitt read the indictment for murder, with the query, "Are you guilty or not guilty?"

Prisoner—"Not guilty."

Mr. Hewitt not hearing, asked him again and prisoner responded "Not Guilty" in a loud voice.

Address of Crown Counsel. Mr. Drew, Crown Prosecutor, in addressing the jury dwelt upon the serious nature of a duty which they must discharge without fear or favor.

James Taylor was charged with the killing of a young boy. On the morning of the 9th of September last the body of young Dawson was found on Blossom avenue near Cainsville, horribly mutilated and frightfully hacked.

Council gave the details of the long list of wounds. The night before prisoner got a horse and rig from Mr. Anguish's barn and drove away with this little boy. He returned about nine of ten alone. Blood was seen on his hands. Asked where he got it he said at the pork factory—a place in an entirely opposite direction.

When arrested and asked as to the blood on his clothes he made contradictory excuses. Asked where his knife was he told where he had thrown it. Same was also covered with blood. These were briefly the facts and he would not further take up their time.

The horror connected with the killing of that poor lad was almost unexpressed, but they must not feel feeling away them, but only reach a finding on the basis of facts as given in the evidence. Both he as counsel and just as jury men must seek for justice and justice alone.

Roy Miesner. He resided on Blossom Avenue. He remembered the morning of Sept. 9th. He was hauling hay to Cainsville. When near Mr. Tuttle's he saw a body lying in the ditch with the throat cut and other injuries. This was at 7.45 a.m. The body was six or seven feet from the travelled part of the road.

The clothing was disarranged. He told Mr. Clarke of Cainsville of what he had seen. When he returned along the road the body was still there with a blanket over it. He remained until the Coroner, Dr. Ashton came. There had been no removal of the remains in the meantime. Constable Merrill was an officer on hand.

Cross-examined—The body rested about three quarters of a mile from Cainsville. Had never seen the prisoner before.

J. H. Clarke. He resided at Cainsville. He was told of the seeing of the body, and he went right down with a Mr. Johnston. The middle portion of the body was exposed, the clothes having been pulled up and lowered. There were many stabs and cuts. He phoned High Constable Kerr of the discovery. The body was that of a boy not over 13.

George Merrill. He lived in Onondaga, and was a retired farmer and also constable. He recalled the morning of Sept. 9th. He had business that morning up near where the body was found. He was along between eight and nine o'clock. He first passed by with a team; then he afterwards turned back and took charge. Two other men were then at the spot. The body was lying face upward with middle portion exposed from the knees to the upper part of the chest—as high as the clothes could go. He counted thirteen stabs in the breast, in addition to a cut throat. He acted in the matter with High Constable Kerr, and the Coroner took charge of the body.

Cross-examined—He did not know at first whose body it was. He learned later when identification was made. He described in detail the stabs. They were all through the chest and lower down, and evidently made with a knife.

Did it look like the work of an Indian? "Crown Counsel—"I object." Objection sustained.

Dr. Raphael. He was Coroner there. First heard of the finding of the body of a boy about 8 o'clock on Sept. 9th. He was telephoned for and went to the spot. There were three or four people there at the time. The body was on the right hand side of the road coming from Brantford. The jacket was open, the trousers down to the knees and the upper clothing pushed up as high as possible. The witness described in minute detail the terrible list of the injuries. The head had been almost severed. He discovered cigarettes in one pocket and a piece of letter paper. The articles produced he identified as the same as taken from the clothing.

He did not know the boy. Mr. Harley asked some questions in cross examination. The body was lying where anybody could see it. There had apparently been no attempt at concealment. He considered that the cut on the throat was the first to cause death. A closer examination of the remains led to this as the conclusion. He had never seen a body before similarly mutilated.

His Lordship: Doctor, have you any idea how long a time existed between the death and the finding of the body?

Witness: Not less than four or five hours and not more than 12 or 14 hours.

Mr. Hartman. He was in the cigar and tobacco business. He knew the prisoner, saw him on Sept. 8th in his shop on Colborne street. He bought a quarter's worth of cigars and a box of cigarettes.

What Brand? "The Players." The Players.

Similar to this box taken from the dead boy's pocket? Yes, sir.

The purchase was made between 7 and 8 o'clock. Cross examined: He knew prisoner to see him. He had never been employed by him.

Notice any particular thing about the prisoner when in your store? Yes: he had on a new suit of clothes.

Any sign of drinking? No. Ever see him under the influence of liquor? No. And you sold him the box of cigarettes? No; my father did.

Then what do you know about it? I heard him ask for the brand. Re-examined: He had on a blue suit. Prisoner asked his father (the Mayor), how he liked his "new suit."

Dr. E. C. Ashton. Coroner, said, he had been called to the scene where the body was found by High Constable Kerr. They went out together. Dr. Raphael was already on the scene. He made a careful examination of the body. It was lying in a ditch. The body was partially bare with the trousers down. The doctor went into details with reference to the various wounds.

The throat was cut almost to the backbone, and that caused, in his opinion, death. The first wound apparently was a slash on one of the jaws. Another wound through the eye had penetrated to the brain. There were two wounds back of the right ear. On the body there were twelve stab wounds, two on each side had penetrated to the lungs or four in all. At least eight or nine cuts were on lower portion of the body.

A blue serge suit was here shown the witness, who identified it as the suit on which he had found the stains. The witness identified pieces of cloth which he had taken for examination. The heavier stains were not brittle. The cloth on which they were, was quite pliable.

What did that show? "The stains had been sustained sometime within 48 hours."

BISHOPS' CAMPAIGN APPEALS TO PEOPLE

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—A London cable to the Tribune says: The campaign started by the Bishop of London and the Bishop of Kensington against stage novelties of an improper character is receiving active support in the press. The Daily Mail announces that it will begin an investigation on its own account, and the Daily Express complains that London is suffering from the debasing influence of indecent entertainments.

The Bishop of London says: "It must be understood that it is in no spirit of prudery that I and the Bishop of Kensington have been acting, but we and all right-minded people in London are determined to prevent in a nominally Christian city a spirit which can only lead to degradation of the inhabitants."

Merchants Object To Itinerant Business Here

For Small License Fee, Transients Get Big Privileges—Around The City Hall To-day.

The merchant body of Brantford is making strong protest to the municipal authorities against the granting of a transient traders license. This is one spot the municipal authorities claim where the police should be on the job. Apparently it is one spot where they were not on the job.

Mayorality Talk. "I haven't heard a word about it, I haven't been approached at all," said Mr. Christopher Cook, when queried by the Courier this morning as to whether the report was true that he intended to run for Mayor in January. Mr. Cook left the impression that whoever circulated the report were reckoning without their host. Mr. Joseph Ruddy's name has also been mentioned. Mr. Ruddy was an unsuccessful candidate two years ago. He was out of the city to-day and could not be seen. Friends of Mr. Ruddy state that it is unlikely that he would accept the nomination owing to the duties of his office for the amalgamated starch companies, which require his services out of Brantford at frequent intervals. Others in touch with the mayorality situation this morning intimated that it would not be surprising if both, Ald. Spence and Suddaby were left in a straight fight.

The condition of the ground showed that the cut throat was inflicted early as there had been very little blood from the other wounds. They were quite likely made after the boy had passed away.

He made a subsequent examination of the body in the evening. He had Constables Wallace and Kerr with him. He then found another internal wound not previously noticed. He thought when he saw the body at 8.30 in the morning, death had not occurred for more than a few hours.

After the second examination he went to the police station. He got there about 9 o'clock. He knew that an arrest had been made.

Did you see Taylor? Yes, but not until 10 o'clock. Where? In a room upstairs. What were you there for? To examine suit of accused.

What color? Blue. Good repair? Oh, yes. Evidence of blood? Yes, of clots of blood on the two knees of the trousers. There had evidently been attempt to wash out the stains.

He cut out pieces of stained cloth for examination. Can you identify those clothes, doctor? A blue serge suit was here shown the witness, who identified it as the suit on which he had found the stains.

The witness identified pieces of cloth which he had taken for examination. The heavier stains were not brittle. The cloth on which they were, was quite pliable.

What did that show? "The stains had been sustained sometime within 48 hours."

Literary Meeting At Collegiate

The first meeting of the J.T. Form Literary Society of the Brantford Collegiate Institute, was held in J.T. on Nov. 7th. The meeting proved a great success in every way. Those on the committee were unable to procure a musical instrument for the occasion, but the meeting was none the worse for the omission. The chair was occupied by the president, Mr. George W. Moore, who proved himself to be a very able chairman. His address to the students opened the meeting. Then a very interesting and pathetic story of Capt. Scott and the South Pole adventures was read by Miss L. Bunnell, one of the teachers of the staff. Following this was a debate, resolved, that a conquered country should not adopt the language of its conqueror. The affirmative was upheld by Miss Nellie Brown and Miss Bonnie M. Longstreet, and the negative by Miss Connie Heddle and Mr. Saxon P. Chapman. This debate was the crowning feature of the afternoon. The judges were Mr. D. H. Coates, Miss Mathilda Dicky, and Mr. Will J. Mitchell. After some discussion the judges decided that the negative had scored one more point than the affirmative, and the debate was awarded to them. Following this Miss Gertrude Vanstone read a very entertaining story of the Courtship of a Brantford Boy. Next a recitation was given by Miss Daisy A. Westbrook, after which Mr. Francis A. Splatt gave a very good argument on "The British Parliament of To-day." Miss Westbrook gave another interesting recitation, which was followed by an address on "The Panama Canal," by Mr. Will J. Mitchell.

Miss Bunnell brought the programme of the afternoon to a close. The judging meeting will take place on Friday evening, Nov. 28th.

Good Pay

The man who pays his bills on time finds life a journey, most sublime; he has a minimum of care, the glad hand greets him everywhere, his every doormat there appears; the "Welcome" word, through all his years; and parents see he's in the swim, and name their babies after him, and lovely girls he round him finds, with "Birdal Chorus" in their minds. And when he's old, his whiskers, white, he's held up as a shining light; the young are urged to gang his gait and keep their credit clean and straight; and when he shuts his world-worn eyes, and kicks the bedclothes off and dies, deep sorrow does the town enfold, and all the bells in grief are tolled. When to the hereafter he is borne the people all turn out to mourn, and see that he is planted right and touching elegies are made. But he who doesn't pay his bills is always faced by grievous ills; the girls are camping on his trail to work him for a wedding veil, and people view him with disdain, and say he gives the town a pain. He slinks through life with furtive step, to dodge the sheriff or his dep.

Poor Old John!

John Pentland, Brantford, was charged with false pretences and sent up for trial. Pentland purchased a stick pin, five blankets and a tin tub, paying for them with a check for $11.25 drawn on the Royal Bank of Canada. There were no funds in that bank to meet the check. Pentland claimed that a "friend" had promised to put some money in that bank for him.—Hamilton Herald.

Wesley Mission Circle

The Mission Circle of Wesley Church met last evening at the home of Miss Muriel Ward, Eagle Place. There was a very large attendance of members and a very pleasant and profitable evening was spent. Miss Blanche Graham gave a paper on mission work among the French, and very interesting addresses were given by Mrs. Liddy and Mrs. Jewell. Several musical numbers were also given. The serving of refreshments brought the program to a close.

Balfour Street Guild

The Y. P. S. C. E. of Balfour St. Presbyterian church, met in the church last evening with a large number present. After the opening exercises, Mr. Roy Van de Car favored the society with a solo, which was very ably rendered, and accompanied on the organ by Miss Grace Raynor and Mr. McDonald on the violin. The topic under discussion was "Facts and Figures of the Temperance Question." Mr. John D. Dewar gave a most excellent talk on this subject. It is one that cannot be handled in one evening, but Mr. Dewar brought forth the best facts and figures he could lay his hands on. He also had charts, showing the difference in the returns of the money spent in liquor and other things, such as boots and shoes and clothing, etc. The liquor traffic always giving the smallest returns back to the working man. The aggressive spirit of Balfour St. Young People is resulting in five wide awake and interesting meetings, and augers well for bigger and better things in the future.

A Presentation

A very pleasing event took place at the T. H. and B. freight office last evening, when Mr. Earl Stark, who recently severed his connection with the company was presented by the members of the office staff with a merschaum pipe and cut glass ash tray. On behalf of the staff Mr. C. S. Wood read the address and Mr. H. C. Thomas, the agent, made the presentation. Mr. Stark although taken completely by surprise responded in a short but eloquent speech of thanks.

TO PUNISH THE CARELESS HUNTER.

The ever-constant danger attendant upon hunting in the woods is prompting the idea of penalizing those who are responsible for accidents resulting therefrom. It is contended that human life should not be at the mercy of the careless or indifferent man with a gun. Hunters, being human, are, some of them foolish, reckless, and careless. When in the woods and on the "qui vive" looking for something to shoot, some hunters will fire at whatever comes into sight and find out what it is afterwards. Few old hunters have not had at least one narrow escape from death. There are men to whom the thought of what death means to a fellow being, to his family and friends does not make an appeal strong enough to prompt them to take care at the dangerous moment. Anybody who can get a license can go into the woods with a gun, and there is no way to prevent the going of those whose presence there is a menace to everyone else within gunshot of them. While they are using the lash to impress certain individuals deemed worthy of punishment in the courts of law providing punishment for silly and careless hunters does not seem out of place.

It is to cope with such carelessness that a law providing for the punishment of hunters who shoot men in the woods in mistake for deer has been placed upon the statute books of Saskatchewan.

Every person who while hunting, or apparently hunting, any game, shoots at or wounds any other person whether by accident, mistake or otherwise, under circumstances which would not constitute a crime under the provisions of the Criminal Code of Canada, shall be guilty of an offence and liable to a fine of not less than $500 or more than $1,000, and in default of payment of said fine, to a term of imprisonment of not more than six months, and any license under this act which may be held by the said person shall be revoked and cancelled, and no such license shall for a period of ten years after such conviction be issued to such person.

The Saskatchewan attempt to cut down the unnecessary loss of human lives by punitive legislation will be watching. If the experiment proves successful other provinces will probably imitate Saskatchewan. If those who go into the woods looking for deer in the Western Province take greater care because they know mistaking a human being for a deer means a heavy fine or imprisonment, the law as stated above will have given its worth.

BY WAY OF CONTRAST.

The Macdonald election has been declared null and void, counsel for Mr. Morrison, the candidate elected at the bye-election last year admitting that the friends of the respondent had been guilty of corrupt practices to such an extent as to justify voiding the election.

This is the aftermath of the fierce election which was fought a year ago last month in the Manitoba constituency, and it appears to justify the assertion that the bitterness of the campaign raised feelings which were not to be stopped by acts in opposition to the election law. As a result, the fight will have to be fought over again, and this time we hope to see the Conservative candidate elected without any suspicion of illegal acts. The Borden Government and its policy ought to be quite sufficient to appeal to the electors on, without the use of influence which in the end react against the party using them. In this instance, Macdonald could probably have been easily won without anything illegal being attempted; the success of the petition against the Conservative candidate adds some strength to the Opposition, which, on its past record, is a finer artist at the game than ever the Conservatives were.

However, Mr. Morrison has admitted the indiscretion of his supporters, and another election is to be held. This was the sensible thing to do under the circumstances, but how differently the Liberals act. For over a year now they have successfully avoided the hearing of a petition against the Liberal candidate in Richelieu, every available method being used to prevent the issue coming to trial. In the general election of 1911 P. J. Carlin was elected in Richelieu by 734. Rather than defend his election in the courts he admitted corruption. At the bye-election held over a year ago Carlin was returned by about 350. Another protest was entered and the Liberals have successfully delayed the trial until now a Supreme Court has thrown out their objection, and the case must go to trial. It is believed that Carlin will pursue the same course as in 1912, and the seat will be again vacant.

Here are two cases by way of contrast. The Globe has a good deal to say about "Covering up Corruption," referring to Macdonald. What does it think about Richelieu, and the Liberals who are endeavoring to prevent even a corner of the curtain being lifted to show how the Richelieu seat was held for the Liberals. It is quite evident that Vigilance Committees are required in quite a few constituencies, though the Globe cannot see beyond Macdonald.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

Borden Club, Zip! Bang! Bing!

What have you done with your summer savings?

Welcome again to His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught.

The Borden Club is quite healthy, with everybody pulling for its enlargement.

Not even the Canadian lakes, let alone the air of the universe, have been conquered by human ingenuity.

The Tammany Tiger can at least go into seclusion and sharpen its claws, now that it has seen its shadow.

It seems reasonable to suggest a new platform for the Liberal party before it is necessary to get to work obtaining a new party.

We agree with those Liberals who demand a new party platform. The policy of drift at present pursued by the Opposition is a poor one.

Hon. Winston Churchill made it clear in his speech at the Guildhall that there can be no let-up in the British naval building—Britannia must rule the waves. Meanwhile the Liberals of this country will take care to see that Canada does not render any assistance.

Two prominent Conservatives were acquitted in Toronto of forging tickets for a Laurier demonstration. This is a bit surprising; it would be very strange indeed, if a good Tory wanted to go to a Grit gathering so bad that he would forge a ticket to enable him to do so.—Guelph Herald.

"Away out in their estimates," is the Expositor heading, or something to that effect regarding Hydro Electric. The cupola corner was away out in its estimates on several occasions, when it thought Brantford people didn't want cheap power. The Expositor should eliminate its knocking on this public ownership enterprise, a success everywhere in the province.

"It is said that the Crown will pay the expenses of Mrs. Beemer who has been acquitted on a murder charge at Woodstock. The Mail and Empire sensibly states that it is a cruel injustice that innocent people should be called upon to spend their own money in proving their innocence, and it is to be hoped that a precedent will be established in the Beemer case that will be generally followed." So says the Guelph Herald. In regard to James Taylor of Brantford, the Crown is also paying his expenses, but it remains to be seen whether it is for an innocent or guilty person. No matter as to innocence or guilt it is just British to accord a fair trial.

Was Stranded.

Mr. E. G. Simpson, traveller for the Brantford Starch Works, was a passenger on the Steamer "Alberta," plying between Port McNicol and Fort William. The boat was stranded in White Fish Bay, but Mr. Simpson arrived safely at Fort William this morning according to a wire received at his office here.

Mr. Morrison has admitted the indiscretion of his supporters, and another election is to be held. This was the sensible thing to do under the circumstances, but how differently the Liberals act. For over a year now they have successfully avoided the hearing of a petition

Damaging Case Against Taylor

The condition of the cloth at the trouser knees indicated dampness. The blood clotted pieces of cloth were identified by witness one by one and handed to the clerk of the Court.

The inside of the left coat sleeve was stained with blood—the defendant examined under the microscope. There were no other particular marks on the coat. Other portions of the clothing were also stained but he did not think it at the time necessary to go any further in the matter.

Saw prisoner in a small room of the court room.

Did you examine him?
Yes, sir.

What did you do?
When I first went I spoke to the prisoner and turned him so that anything he might say could be used against him. I then told him that I was about to examine him physically.

Did you do so?
Yes, sir.

Were his hands dirty?
They had been recently superficially washed.

How were the nails?
They had been cut back to the quick.

Any blood on the hands?
I did not find any. Then I asked for a knife with a thoroughly clean blade which, further cleaned, by rubbing it with a piece of white notepaper.

What then?
I scraped from under the nails the ingrained dirt, sealed the particles up and later examined them.

With what result?
The particles were full of red blood corpuscles.

Beyond any question?
Yes, beyond any question.

What about the body of the prisoner?
There were no marks of blood or of violence. The body was clean and I should say had fairly recently been washed.

How did the prisoner act?
He was very cool and self-possessed until I asked for the knife, to scrape his finger nails when he commenced to shake. It was quite noticeable. I asked him why he was shaking, and he replied that he was cold.

What did you think was the cause?
I thought it was nervousness, although it is only fair to state that the room was cold and his clothes open.

Stains on the Knife.

What happened next?
About ten minutes after 12 o'clock that same night I was phoned by the police to say that Taylor had made a confession, and had told where the knife was.

Consent—Never mind referring to any confession. What next?
I went with the police in an automobile to the pumping station. We jumped out and started looking for the knife. I think Taylor was along, but don't know.

Who found the knife?
I did; happened to stumble across it in some high grass.

Is this the knife?
Yes, sir.

Did you examine it?
Yes.

What did you find?
I found that one side of the knife, a white handled one, had been fractured. There were no stains on the bone. I found the fractured evidence of blood in the junction between the block and the blade.

What was your next step?
I compared the blades as to size and shape with the wounds and found them to correspond. The smaller blade was stuck and hard to open. When he pried it up he found comparatively fresh blood stains on each side of it.

Why do you say recent?
Because that blade having been excluded from the air, the blood was fresher. The marks were quite distinct.

Anything else?
Yes, the whole appearance of the made it look as if it had been carefully washed with the exception of the small blade.

Cross-examined—Did you know accused?
Yes. Treated the family, two children dying within 48 hours.

jumped out and knocked him down cutting my hands in doing it.

The witness examined by Mr. Harley stated that the prisoner washed his hands. The witness stated that he had seen the prisoner drunk more than once. The witness saw the prisoner take a drink from a 25c flask about 11 o'clock. He did not see him take a drink before he went out. He did not know whether he had been drinking or not before he went out.

The witness examined by Mr. Drew stated that he had known Taylor 14 years and he had at one time lived with witness before witness died. When the witness first knew the prisoner, the prisoner had been employed carrying out in a moulding shop, and was a good workman. The witness did not notice any blood marks on the clothes. At the time he lived with him he was a very hard drinker, and only acted queer when drunk.

Another Employee.

John Butler said he was employed by Mr. Anguish at the time of the murder. He knew the prisoner, and saw him the night before the murder on the street about 7 o'clock. He next saw the prisoner in the Clarence street barn. He had a horse and informed him he was going to see her.

He drove away from the Clarence street barn and young Dawson was not with him. He drove into the barn about ten o'clock the same night. The witness did not notice anything about Taylor that might be suspicious. He had heard one of the men ask "What's the matter with your hands?" Taylor replied, "I got into a fight in West Brantford. A man grabbed my horse. I said he saw the prisoner the night before but did not know who he was. The witness had sold the clothes Taylor wore. He had disposed of the clothes just a few days before the crime.

The witness did not know Dawson. He had only seen the prisoner twice on the night before the murder. When Taylor came back to the barn, he had seen blood on the back of the prisoner's hands. He accounted for the blood by stating that he had got into a fight.

to where the body lay. A close examination was made by himself and others. After investigations they heard that the boy Dawson was familiar with Taylor.

What did you do?
Arrested him.

What date?
On September 9th. I had in my hands his coat which I got at his boarding place. He admitted it was his clothing. There were blood stains on it.

Didn't see Taylor in the house, but coming out of an alley at the rear of house.

Give any warning when arrested?
Not that time. He said he got the clothes from a man named Kelly. I said there was something wrong about the clothes and he would have to go to the station. He went quietly.

Sergt. Wallace Tells of Confession.

Stated that he first heard of the killing of young Dawson shortly after 8 o'clock on the morning of the 9th of September. He visited livery stables and auto garages to ascertain what rigs had been out the night previous. Later he and others went

SPORTING COMMENT

BY FRED LANCE

Wanted, a franchise promoter for class D ball in Brantford.

The fences at Agricultural Park will be immediately moved in when class D ball is secured.

One reason why we don't like class D ball is that one rainy Saturday might break up the league.

Canadian League magnates are out to make a grand batting average during the winter.

One thing is certain. Brantford Park Commissioners won't build a $20,000 stand this year for Class D ball.

Brantford fans are greatly cheered by the news that they are to get class D ball with Woodstock, Guelph and other live towns.

In Hamilton last year, baseball was so popular that our tail-end Red Sox played to more people in Brantford, and yet we're to get class D here.

A Columbus conference will settle the question whether Brantford fans are to starve for good ball next year or not. It is Columbus who discovered America.

Canadian League ball class C has been such a success in Brantford that it is to be sold out hokus hokus to some American city. Incidentally

MUCH UNCERTAINTY RE PLAYERS' FRATERNITY

Many Delegates to National Association Snowbound at Cleveland Yesterday

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 12.—What action will be taken by the convention of the National Association of Baseball Leagues on the demands of the Players' Fraternity was a matter of conjecture here last night. Some magnates, who attended the opening session of the convention yesterday, were of the opinion that the demands would be referred to a committee if they made their appearance on the floor of the convention, while others expressed the belief that the demands would not be presented.

Twenty-five leagues out of 43 holding membership in the association were represented at yesterday's meeting. When delegates snowbound at Cleveland, arrived it is thought that thirty baseball organizations will be credited with voting power. The convention will begin actual work to-day. President M. H. Sexton of the National Association presided.

Secretary Farrell's roll call showed one or more delegates present from the following leagues:—American Association, International, Pacific Coast, Western, Southern Association, Texas, Central, Canadian, New England, New York State, Three I., North-western, South Atlantic, Virginia, Wisconsin-Illinois, Southern Michigan State, K. I. T., Nebraska State, New York-New Jersey and California State.

Sessions of the National Board, which has 167 cases to hear, were commenced this morning soon after the arrival of Chairman Farrell, and it is thought the docket can be cleared by Thursday night.

President Barrow and several club owners of the International League last night discussed informally with American Association magnates the proposal for all teams of the two leagues to play post-season games next year. It is said that the plan will probably be given a test.

Ottawa and Argos At Toronto Saturday

The Gate Will be Divided After Expenses are Taken Out.

HAMILTON, Nov. 12.—Arrangements were made here yesterday at an executive meeting of the Inter-provincial Rugby Union for the play off of the tie game between the Argos of Toronto and Ottawa. The game will be played on the Haddock field at Toronto on Saturday, with J. B. McArthur of Toronto and Eddie Phillips of Ottawa, as officials. McArthur will referee one half of the game and umpire the other. The clubs will split the receipts evenly after the expenses are paid.

An effort was made to arrive at some agreement for the play off game between the Argos and Ottawa, which would be necessary in case Ottawa defeated the Argos on Saturday. It was suggested that the game be played at Toronto, Kingston or Montreal, but no agreement could be reached, and it was decided to leave the matter in abeyance until Saturday night, when another meeting of the executive will be held if necessary. Dave Tope represented the Argos, Ross Binkley and Smirle Lawson, the Argos, and Eddie Phillips the Ottawa Club.

Kid Egan Gets $13,500 Damages in Court Suit

Former Manager of Jeffries and Fitzsimmons Fight in Old Case.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—Joseph Egan, better known as the Kid, who once was manager of James J. Jeffries, got a verdict of $13,500 in the Supreme Court from a jury before Justice Weeks in a suit for $100,000 against a magazine. The suit was based on statements in an article by Richard Barry, alleging that when the receipts of the Jeffries-Fitzsimmons fight at San Francisco in 1902 were divided Egan tried to walk away with more than his share.

The chief witnesses for Egan were Jeffries and Fitzsimmons, who toured the country under his management after the fight. Jeffries, whose testimony was taken on the coast by commission, denied that any money was missing when it was counted up, or that any one called Egan a thief at

NEW YORK WON FROM CHICAGO Mathewson and Benz Pitch Great Ball for Their Teams

OXNARD, Cal., Nov. 12.—The Giants got a fair start after Snodgrass had been presented with a watch by admiring friends and fellow citizens, and defeated the White Sox yesterday. Both Matty and Benz pitched great ball. Score: White Sox 2, Giants 3.

Carpet Ball

Borden No. 1. Carpetballers were defeated last night, the Beavers doing the trick in a hard fought game. The Beavers led for the first four ends and when half time was reached the Eastwarders were 15 down.

The Beavers settled down and nibbled away and at full time were four to the good. The Beavers play W. O. W. Friday night and another hot game should be in order. The score was:

Beavers. Borden No. 1. L. Mears G. Brayshaw A. Stewart G. Winegardner R. Lyle..... J. Winegardner | Skip..... 67 Skip..... 63

A great game of carpetball was played between the K. O. T. M. team and the Liberal National team on the latter's floor on Monday evening, resulting in a victory for the Liberals by a score of 90-88. E. Crabtree, J. Howie and Ellison were the Liberal team.

Misquoted by Baseball Writer, Says Stallings

Denies Saying American League Is 30 Per Cent. the Stronger.

BOSTON, Nov. 12.—Manager George T. Stallings, of the Boston Braves, has been misquoted by a baseball writer, who, under a Detroit date line, caused Stallings to say that he thought the American League was 30 per cent. stronger than the National. This report had wide circulation in the South, and Manager Stallings in a letter to the office of the Boston club makes the following denial:—

"The writer of this article made it appear that he was at the world's series. Now, I left for my plantation at Haddock, Ga., on the 4th of October, and saw no newspapermen. The statement attributed to me is the work of some feather-brain with a distended imagination. It is a lie, pure and simple, and I wish to nail it to the wall. There are pirates in all business, and this is the work of a bushwhacker in the newspaper business."

Home Run Baker Belongs in Outfield

Clark Griffith Says Mack's Star Is Not a Third Baseman.

"If I had Frank Baker of the Athletics," said Clark Griffith, during a fanning bee, "I would play him in the outfield—that's where he belongs—not on third base.

"Baker is not a good third baseman. He fights the ball and is so awkward that I often wonder how he ever tags a base runner without getting his legs cut off."

According to the Old Fox, a grievous mistake has been made by Connie Mack all these years, but as long as the Trappe terror continues to wallop the ball for .300 or better, Mack will hardly bother looking around for another third sacker.

"Understand me," added Griff, "I don't say that Baker is not a good ball player, but Mack has spoiled a natural outfielder by making him over into a third baseman. I only wish we had him in Washington. I would stick him right out in one of the garden patches, and I'll wager all I've got that he would prove a sensation."

PARIS MURDER MYSTERY PARIS, Nov. 11.—For two weeks past the Paris police have been searching for the scene of a supposed murder, but their search has been in vain. A woman in charge of an apartment house in Passy, answering the ring of a telephone bell a fortnight ago, heard screams for help, and the cry that murder was being committed. A policeman was called and he listened to the end of the supposed tragedy. The cries became fainter and fainter and there seemed to come the sound of a falling body.

In the meantime repeated questions "Who are you?" and "Where are you?" remained unanswered. Suddenly the connection was cut, and all efforts at the telephone exchange to trace the call failed.

All players, reserves, and committee of the Dufferin Rifles football club are requested to meet in the Armories on Thursday night at 8.15 p. m.

I.O.F. Protest

Foresters Who Joined Before 1899 Unite on Action.

TORONTO, Nov. 11.—At a meeting held last evening in the Broadway Hall on Spadina Avenue to discuss the lien put upon the policies of the Foresters who joined the I. O. F. previous to 1899, it was decided to secure legal advice as to whether or not the books of the I. O. F. could be audited by a man appointed by the pre-members of 1899. The counsel who is to be engaged may also take the case to the government and probably ask for an investigation into the affairs of the Independent Order of Foresters, especially on the financial side. A committee of seven members was appointed to confer with counsel and decided on his advice as to what is the best method to adopt.

Two score odd Foresters who joined the order previous to 1899 took the above action last evening and the hat was passed around to collect funds to pay the expenses of the meeting and the lawyer.

NO REPORTS RECEIVED PORT ARTHUR, Ont., Nov. 11.—Up to 10 o'clock this morning no reports had been received, by wireless or otherwise, of any steamers in distress on Lake Superior as the result of Sunday's big storm. There was no boat or wreckage or any members of a crew either on the rocks or the mainland. To-day the weather is mild and calm.

No. 4—Back View of No. 3, Showing the Slight Dip Downward in the Waist Line.

It is impossible to indicate the exact placing of the fashionable waist line this season. Sometimes it is up under the bust at Empire height, sometimes a little lower at Directoire depth; again, it is placed at the rather long waist line of a decade ago.

In any case it is large. No attempt is made to draw belt or girle in tightly; it often encircles the figure in a manner that would be called sloppy were it not so artistically done.

There is no doubt that if one is long bodied the high waist line is most becoming, for it covers this defect. On the other hand, if a woman is long in proportion from the waist down a high waist line makes the figure very ungraceful and like a clothespin. So it is fortunate that with these various waist line placings one is able to choose this winter whichever is most becoming and still remain in style as long as there is no tightening of girle or belt.

The sashes that encircle this season's dress models are delightfully varied. Moire sash ribbon with fringed ends is used on many imported models. Sashes of chiffon or tulle, matching the gown in color, will have elaborately beaded embroidered ends deeply fringed. Sometimes they look more like scarves when they are only about a yard and a quarter long; in this case the girle is made of the material and its scarf is simply hung or tied over it, dropping in the most effective place in each particular dress. In either this or the previous manner of placing the embroidery repetition of it is not needed on the whole. In fact, it is more striking if it is omitted.

A large looped bow of tulle is often posed like a big butterfly at the back of an elaborate afternoon or evening gown, even when the girle is of a different material. Satin and moire girles tie high up in front under the bust in loops, with or without the long, ornamental ends.

The wide sash that encircles the figure high in front and drops in the back to hip depth is not quite as new, but it is not by any means out of style, drawn into a slight backward movement in one of the latest Parisian dresses where the waist line is very high the sash is placed above the waist line, its lower edge touching it. Both a sash and a belt were worn on one very simple yet smart afternoon gown having a dark velvet blouse and a lighter Jaevsyn skirt. The upper belt was of metal passementerie, the lower of satin tied in front with two big loops that hid the closing of the upper belt. There are sashes, too, that tie with no regard for the regular girle, which is of the gown's color and very narrow and simple. The sash in this case crosses in front at or near the gown's belt, it drops very low behind, tying in fanciful fashion. Two views of one of the latest Paris models are shown in No. 1 and No. 2.

The peignot contour is given to the skirt by the way it is draped and the waist line is placed at its natural depth. The new Chinese style touch is very evident in this gown—its sash embroidery and the panel-like lapping on the sleeve. Of the new black and yellow combination, the gown is black satin, the oblong panel on the front and the sash ends are embroidered with Chinese junks and flags dress of diaphanous textures, and now, to be lighter than the gown fabric, need to be of cobweb weight and sparkling lightness.

And they are. Imagine the finest cobweb glistening with dewdrops that catch and reflect the light in a thousand scintillating points, and you have an example of one of the modern lace flouncings for evening gowns. One of these new demure flouncings is made up of milleries of intricate, down to the bottom from the back-ground, and the beehive design is traced by crystal beads. The demi-flouncings, which are half skirt length, are the very thing for the demurely elegant that are wired along the edge to make them stand out, and the flouncings, half that width, are used for the skirt ruffles.

Metal laces, too, promise to have a great vogue, judging by the Paris importations that have arrived in New York so far. One of these lovely patterns looks like nothing so much in the world as frozen lace. The mesh of silver or steel, very open, more like a gauze than a tulle, has a hand run pattern of round crystal beads.

Perhaps the most striking effect in these metal laces are the dull metal meshes and designs outlined by "glaze" or "lame" is a very brilliant glistening silver or gold thread that looks like polished wire, but is as flexible as the rest of the lace, of course. The mesh is generally wrought or Brussels, with large flower patterns in closer mesh. One lovely Callot gown has one of these hand laces used as a second robe and longer tunic on a laundrie robe, and the gold lame lace shows faintly

All velvet hats are not black by any means. Dark blue stands first in ultra fashionable millinery, the de-ner-brown next, while dark green and old blue go with matching suits.

Evening hair ornaments are as picturesque as possible, often with a barbie Paris touch that borders on the theatrical. Little feather palms have rhinestone stems and ornaments. Caps made of crystal and colored wooden beads have chin straps and chapeus. Brilliant bands of jewelled net have tassels that drop over the ears.

Lace Flouncings for Tunics and Ruffles.

ACES of all kinds are very fashionable. While real laces, classic in design, will always have the respect due them, they are not best used in small quantities to-day, excepting by wealthy women, for it would take a small fortune to trim one of the up to date dresses with them.

Fashion, however, does not demand real lace for the new "tunics" and winter models. Laces are imitated marvelously to-day, even to the uneven threads. Charmingly demure flouncing that, genuine, would be worth $75 a yard is $4.50 in the imitation. Besides, other laces in lace have come in vogue. Ruffles, flouncings, tunics and filly trills are high fashion, adorning through the short tunic and brilliantly below. Lace is both white and tinted, as, for instance, the new French ceru shades, which are already more fashionable than white in Paris. Some of these ceru mesh flouncings are of the most delicate fineness. Light as a cobweb, and in some cases to-day, even to the uneven threads. monseleine drops below it and also forms the short sleeves that are turned back in a point to make attractive cuffs.

Velvet Popular for Autumn Millinery.

VELVET certainly holds first place in autumn millinery, though plush and fur are also used. Most hats are made over frames, even those solid untrimmings, and the shapes are particularly becoming, as the head enters well into the crown. A barrette is used to raise the hat up to a becoming angle on the head. The fur most used on tailor made is yellow fox; after that one sees white fox.

HURRY up with a bottle of Kuntz's Old German, said the man from New York. "It's worth a trip to Canada to get a drink of this corking brew. There's nothing like the 'Old German' flavor in the United States, you know. Perhaps because the 'Old German' process of brewing is so very costly. The Cash Intrigue

By George Randolph Chester
(Copyright, 1909, by the Bobbs-Merrill Co.)

It was already passing her. The bank was very steep at this point. Next the top she slipped, and he was compelled to throw his arm hastily about her. She let her shoulders rest flippily back in his embrace and allowed him to drag her dead weight up over the little rise, and Kelvin almost cursed himself aloud, for again he had found that contact more than pleasurable. "After all"—Phillip brought himself back to the future with a jerk—"No entanglements with women." That had been the one warning motto he had set for himself, and he must observe it if he would accomplish his boundless ambitions.
Mrs. Rensselaer, puffing from the exertion of being dragged up the bank by Herbert, turned to that young man with severity. "Herbert," she admonished him, "really I think you are neglecting your opportunities most shamefully. It is within your reach to make the name of Rensselaer precisely what it used to be."
"With Miss Breed's money," commented Herbert with ill-concealed disdain. "If I loved her or if she herself were capable of love it would be different."
"You are perfectly absurd, Herbert," she insisted. "Lillian is the richest girl in the world. After she's married her little eccentricities, impossible in a girl, will only enhance her charm. Let me be perfectly frank with you. This girl, while she thinks she has her mind set upon Phillip Kelvin, really wants a husband. I scarcely dare whisper her into society unmarriageable—she would disgrace us all. But a strong man, such as you, could marry her, master her and make her content, and she would be most preposterous."
"I want to work, to carve out my own fortune as Kelvin has done. I am not so clever as he. I could not make a million in five years, as he did, but I could try, which, if you only knew, is a great satisfaction. Instead of that you make me stop work. You give up practically your whole income to keep me an idler at a few good clubs in New York. I don't see how you can consistently object. You are yourself accepting a salary."
"Herbert," she exclaimed, "I am a guest here, and I may I repeat by Mr. Breed is the income from investments which he has made for me."
"He laughed. "Ten thousand dollars," said he, "and on that Breed pays you dividends of ten thousand a year. It's money, nothing else."
"How erude you are!" she protested. "How do you know that Mr. Breed does not make 100 per cent on the money I gave him? How do I know? I tell you, you are ungrateful."
As they entered the house Elsie White, who had been gathering flowers for Lillian's room, went up on the porch, where Rollins met her and stopped to chat with her for a moment.
"If you must know," Rensselaer said, "there is an illustration of why the thought of Lillian is so distasteful to me. That's the kind of girl I want to marry."
"Lillian's maid" his aunt exclaimed. "Herbert, you are really past belief."
"You needn't worry about her. I don't want the particular one, and if I did I couldn't have her. Her eyes see no one but Phillip."
"Do you mean to say that if you went to this girl of no class whatever and offered her the Rensselaer name she would refuse you?"
"She certainly would," replied Herbert promptly. "To her position means but very little, love means much, and she is beautiful enough to command love."
"She handsome," reluctantly admitted his aunt, "but rather vulgarly healthy, don't you think?"
"God is vulgar in a good many things he does," replied Herbert wearily, "suits and flowers, for instance. Dreadful loud colors he uses sometimes!"

transportation. I have put them in direct competition with our own plants, and they are undebating me. I intend to let them have some large contracts at a price we cannot touch. Now I begin to have dreams."
"I don't see any difficulty in that," laughed Kelvin. "A man doesn't dream many dreams in the face of failure. It's success that brings dreams. I have dreams of my own. I have done a little thinking about those dreams of late."
"I know you have," interposed Rollins. "Somebody has been doing a great deal of thinking around here. At first I thought it was Mr. Breed, but now I know that he hires his thinking."
Breed himself was the first to acknowledge by a chuckle the truth of this remark.
"I used to have to do it myself when I was poor," he admitted, "but that is not the way to success. You can't get rich that way any more than you can by performing all your own manual labor. My success is built on an unusual ability to discover men who can think for me. But you two go ahead and exchange your dreams; I am interested."
"I have no objection to telling mine," said Kelvin. "I want to do a little trust busting."
"I've tried it, and that's why I'm here," laughed Rollins. "Trust busting, with its absolute control of every mile of railroad in the United States, is the easiest thing in the world. Raymer, Speed, Meiton Sears & Co. and all the others have been making life a burden to me. Strangely enough they don't want to be drawn and quartered."
"I hate them, every one," suddenly snapped Breed. "A dozen times they tried to gobble me up in the early days. I have their photographs, too, waiting to be checked off."
"We'll let you check them off by and by, but I'll take care of them first," said Kelvin, "they are cringing now, but it was a task. Even with all my experience I didn't appreciate the full extent of the private car graft. It was a colossal trick, serving merely as a disguise for excessive and absurd rebates."
"Yes, I stopped it," admitted Rollins, with a sigh, "and the next thing that happened I had all the big packers on my neck."
"The only way to forget the attacks of the packers," suggested Kelvin, "is to attack the other monopolies. Hamstring them the first stroke."

MAGISTRATE LICKS INSURANCE STAMPS

Says Objection to Do So is Very Absurd—Question of Principle.

A lady who objects on principle to affixing stamps to insurance cards had an amusing argument on Thursday with Mr. Fordham, the West London Magistrate. She is Miss Clare Hoskin, of Warwick road, Kensington, and she surrendered to her bail to answer the charge, remanded from the previous day, of failing to pay a servant's contribution under the insurance act.

The case had been adjourned to allow her to stamp the servant's card and pay 10s. 6d. costs. She had been brought to the court on a warrant, because she refused to answer a summons.
Miss Hoskin now said she had had stamps affixed for all the weeks the servant was in her employment, except a period of four weeks, during which the maid worked for her for nothing.
Mr. Fordham observed that as far as he understood the Act stamps must be affixed for every week in which a servant was actually employed, whether wages were paid or not. He added: "If you have any objection to putting the stamps on let me do it for you. I have no objection. I shall be happy to act as your agent."
Miss Hoskin accepted the offer, and handed the stamps and the card to the magistrate, who, amid much laughter, proceeded with mock solemnity to lick the stamps and affix them on the card.
"I am not a servant of the Government, and I don't see why I should collect their tax for them," objected Miss Hoskin. "It is a question of principle."
"Well," said Mr. Fordham, "there you have found a magistrate to do the work for you. Now there is only the matter of costs, 10s. 6d., and when that is paid I shall mark the case 'Withdrawn.'"
Miss Hoskin handed over the money, and Mr. Fordham then remarked, "Now I'll bid Miss Hoskin 'good-day.'"
The steamer Keyvise has reached Thorold with a load of sulphite pulp from Sweden.

Mrs. John Cabot Recommends Dodd's Kidney Pills to All Who Suffer from Backache, Headache and Nervousness.
WHITE HEAD PERCE, Que., Nov. 10.—(Special)—As a remedy for women Dodd's Kidney Pills hold an enviable place in the estimation of the people of Quebec, and Mrs. John Cabot, a highly-respected lady living here, adds her name to the long list of those who stand ready to tell of the good work they are doing.
"My trouble," Mrs. Cabot states, "started from a cold, and I suffered for six or seven years. I was already tired and nervous. I was greatly troubled with my back, and as time wore on neuralgia, rheumatism and Bright's disease added to my pains.
"I had dark circles under my eyes; I perspired freely with the slightest exertion, and my perspiration had an unpleasant odor.
"I could find nothing to relieve me till I started to use Dodd's Kidney Pills. I can heartily recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to all who suffer from headache, and nervousness.
"Nearly all women's troubles are caused by diseased or disordered kidneys. Dodd's Kidney Pills bring back youth to women by curing their kidneys."

STEAMER REGINA LOST, ALL HER CREW PERISH

Believed to Be Her Hull Which is Floating in Lake Huron--Victims Are Identified--A Vast Quantity of the Cargo Also Picked Up.

SARNIA, Ont., Nov. 12.—The ten bodies found at Port Franks yesterday are from the Canadian steamer Regina, which is evidently the unknown hull at Corsica shoal, off Port Edward. I have visited the scene and just returned, and this report is exclusive and absolute. I bear messages out from crew and village officials, all wires being down. The bodies of ten men have been found at Port Franks, bearing all indications of belonging to the steamer Regina. A battered lifeboat 25 feet long, marooned Regina containing two bodies, some Regina life buoys, beside the men, complete the proof. No trace of the Regina hull can be seen near, although a rumor is current that an unknown steamer was seen in the snow a mile off shore below Port Franks.

The American steamer, Northern Queen is ashore at the same point, but the crew are all safe, 19 having been already taken off. The boat is broken aft, and unless the storm subsides will be a total loss. When the party from Theford reached the shore at noon yesterday at Port Franks, at the mouth of the Aux Sables river, two bodies had already been found, bearing Regina lifebelts. Proceeding north they found within a radius of five miles eight more bodies. Two of these were found in the battered lifeboat bearing the name Regina. Three of these now lie at Undertaker J. H. Woodhull's morgue at Theford, and seven will be brought in to-day. Names of Victims. The following identifications have been made certain at this writing: Wilson F. McInnes, aged about 22; identified by letters from his mother, who resides at Johnston P.O., near Owen Sound. David Lawson, New Brunswick, identified by unmailed post card addressed to Harry Lawson, New Brunswick, name of Post Office obliterated, signed Dave, indicating the latter to be a brother of the addressee. The three men are strongly built sailors.

Strewn along the shore are great quantities of Canadian merchandise; baled hay from the King Milling Co.; Sarnia, hundreds of cases of canned goods from Hamilton, consigned to Port Franks and Winnipeg. A dozen oars marked Regina were picked up, indicating that a large crew had taken to the boat. From the scattered position of the bodies it is evident the lifeboat capsized far from shore. Some bodies had evidently only drifted in during the past few hours, and others are expected any time.

Stories of Survivors. A graphic story was told by members of the crew of the Northern Queen to our representative. Chas. J. Ryan of Buffalo, mariner, says the Queen went out from St. Clair River bound upward Sunday morning. When forty miles out, she had to turn back and at 4.30 Monday morning sighted Port Huron lights. She heard the fog whistle warning, and saw the Mathew Andrews aground in the path and headed back north. When well up she dropped anchor, but the anchor dragged and the bow landed on the beach Monday night at 7 o'clock. Coroner Dr. Clarke of Theford has not yet called an inquest but will make arrangements to-day. Magistrate Thomas Parkinson sent a message to W. A. Wiggins, official receiver of wrecks at Sarnia, and is deeply concerned over the possible pillage of articles of wreckage. The crew of the Northern Queen report passing a boat in distress while fighting the gale, but do not believe it was the Regina. The bodies of the men are badly bruised. Considerable sums of money, evidently paid wages, were on the bodies.

Manager Dougall of Merchants Mutual Line, Toronto, yesterday at Sarnia gave opinion that the boat at Corsica Shoal, which turned turtle is not the Regina. He could not be apprised of Regina disaster last night on account of the lateness of the hour. The rumor that the steamer Chas. S. Price had also been wrecked is traced to a letter found on one sailor, addressed car steamer Chas. S. Price, Marine Post-Office, Detroit. There is no other evidence connecting the Price with the tragedy. Two New Wrecks. The visit to Sarnia yesterday by Manager McDougall, of the Merchants Mutual Line, makes it practically certain that the overturned boat at Corsica Shoal is not the Regina. Manifestly there are two new wrecks thus disclosed by yesterday's find at Port Franks. The spot where the two wrecks occurred is one of the wildest on the Huron shore. Kettle Point and Cedar Point and Cedar Point jut out into Lake Huron, and Port Franks is the only point at which a boat could have been beached so close to safety as the Northern Queen was able to land. When landing the men in the lifeboat yesterday afternoon the boat overturned with two men in it, on a return trip to the ship, and one man made a noble assistance to his companion. Captain Crawford of the Queen and the first and second mates are still aboard, but the storm is abating. One of the men stated last night that while firing in the hold the water came up to his knees and the fires were out when the boat struck. The shock of the impact is believed to have broken the back of the boat in the words of the sailor. Men Lightly Dressed. The men whose bodies now lie at Theford and at points along the shore are lightly dressed, leading to the belief that at the last they had cast aside clothing to swim. Fred Jennings, proprietor of the Coldwell House, at Theford, was one of the party of three, including Dr. Clark and Mr. Woodhull, who went to Port Franks. The road is almost impassable and the locating of the bodies along the five miles of beach already traversed was very difficult. Late last night a wagon was hired to convey the other bodies from the beach to Grand Bend. Those nearest to Grand Bend were located by Mr. Bossenberry, of that place.

STEAMER WEXFORD WRECKED, FIVE BODIES ARE FOUND

Discovered Floating Near St. Joseph and Identified By Life-Belts--Vessel Carried Cargo of Grain and Crew of Twenty Men.

It is positive that the steamer Wexford was lost in Lake Huron, five bodies having been picked up on the shore between Kettle Point and Bayfield, bearing life-belts with that ship's name. It is also probable that another steamer has gone down with all on board, seven bodies having been found south of Grand Bend, Ont. This is thought to be the Chas. S. Price. A third vessel, the Edwin F. Holmes may also be lost, as considerable wreckage has been found five miles below Goderich, among it being a life preserver with that name painted on it. GODERICH, Nov. 12.—That the steamer Wexford of the Western Steamship Company, Limited, Toronto, was lost in the storm of Sunday, is evidenced in the finding of five bodies bearing the steamer's life preservers, at a point about twenty miles below here, or half way between Bayfield and Kettle Point. Two bodies, found in this morning along the shore by residents from the village of Blake, who after communicating with Coroner Dr. Campbell of Zurich, continued their search and found three more. Five more bodies are reported to have been found between Kettle Point and Port Franks strewn along the beach, but as yet their identity is unknown. Inquest to be Held. An inquest is to be held near the scene at 2 o'clock this afternoon, when an attempt at identification will be made by the owners of the vessel and familiar elevator men from here. Little Wreckage Found. Very little wreckage was found, other than an empty oil barrel and a stairway, which had been carried on top of the engine room, but the vessel, being of steel, would leave very little floating material to trace the disaster. No yawls have been reported. Description of Wexford. The Wexford was a steel vessel of 2,800 tons capacity, built in London, England, and brought out by the Western Steamship Company, of Toronto, carrying a crew of probably fifteen to twenty. She had been engaged principally in grain carrying, and was on her way down from Fort William to Goderich with a cargo of wheat for James Richardson & Sons. The last word received from the vessel was on Sunday.

thinking people of this country. The fact that steel cars would be desirable has never been questioned, but, as recently mentioned in this column steel cars never averted an accident, or a derailment, and until the Interstate Commerce Commission, which in reality is a representative body of the people in general, gives to the carriers of this nation the ability to build up their net earnings to such proportions as will more nearly care for their increasing expenses, it is evident that the theories of those men who have made a careful study of the present popular clamor for steel cars, are very nearly correct when they declare that the adoption of steel cars should come voluntarily.

Perhaps Tried to Reach Goderich. Nothing was seen of any vessel from this point all day Sunday, but it is reported by some residents that a steamer was blowing off here during Sunday night when the storm was at its height. It is thought that the Wexford was caught in the middle of the lake, and unable to make her way to shelter against the force of a sixty mile gale, turned before it, possibly attempting to make this port. From the location of the point where the bodies were found, and the direction of the gale, it is conjectured that the vessel foundered about ten or fifteen miles southwest of here. Could Not be Capsized Vessel. The report that it is the Wexford floating upside down near Port Huron can hardly be credited. The vessel would fill with water when she turned turtle, even before the grain cargo could flow from the holds. The bottom of the Wexford was painted red, not black, as that reported from Port Huron, and from the fact that she is only 270 feet long there would be little visible above the water. The finding of the bodies above Kettle Point indicates that the foundering occurred above the Point, precluding any possibility of the vessel floating over thirty miles down the lake in an inverted position. The E. F. Holmes Lost Too? A patrol despatched from here to search the shore south of this point reports finding a life-preserver with the name Edwin F. Holmes painted on it, about 5 miles down the shore. Considerable wreckage consisting of pilot house, window sash, doors, bottles, etc. would indicate this as of a comparatively new boat. The Holmes is about 400 feet long.

STEEL CARS VS. WOODEN CARS Cy Warman, author of famous railroad stories, said yesterday at the Board of Commerce banquet at Peoria, Ill. "To argue, to agitate, to demand the destruction of wooden equipment and the substitution of all steel railway cars, is as unfair, as unjust to the railroads, to the people who have invested money in the railroads, as would be a demand by Congress for the abandonment or destruction of all motor cars and the substitution of airships instead. It is equally inconsistent and silly to argue, whenever there is a railway wreck, that the loss of property, life or limb is due wholly to the fact that some of the people were killed in wooden cars. No man can say with any degree of accuracy, looking upon a wrecked train either of wood or steel equipment, just what would have happened if the equipment had been different. We have seen a wooden dining car caught between two steel sleepers, the former losing one corner, the latter crushed like beer cans that had been in a wreck. A man trapped in a steel car in a crash sufficient to wreck a steel underframe wooden car, would be caught in a steel trap and would have as much show as a mouse in a tomato can stepped on by an elephant. Three classes of men push this agitation for steel cars—steel men, irresponsible politicians and near statesmen and the great unorganized army of 'I should worry' who are required neither to furnish the $750,000,000 necessary to replace wooden cars nor to assure the investing public interest on their investment." Although the phraseology in Mr. Warman's statements is somewhat unusual, it is nevertheless quite in accordance with the general trend of sentiment which is overtaking the
