Love a Conqueror

WEDDED AT LAST.

CHAPTER XLVIII.

"I reminded her of them, poor child, in her misery," Sir Hugh continued. "You know how I drove her to Dumfries and passed there as her husband; the little note which was such conclusive evidence in my favor she wrote me, quite unaware how greatly it would tell against herself. I knew, and Latrelle knew, that when we left the inn she was my wife by the laws of Scotland; but she, I need hardly tell you was as ignorant as a child of what had been done. When I left her at the Court, I put my lips to her cheek with a laughing little speech which she did not understand but she shrank from me with a little cry of pain which made me feel ashamed and furious at once. Then I went away. The accident I met with prostrated me for weeks, and the preparations for your marriage went on; and when I could spare Latrelle to go and see what was doing, the wedding day was fixed, and I had— Yes, I know that the rest need not be told; but Stuart, if I could have undone it then, I would. Great Heaven, shall I ever forget Shirley's face when she shrank from me? I think I saw then for the first time the heinousness of the sin I had committed."

He fell back upon the pillows, faint and exhausted, and Guy brought water and bathed his temples and raised him on his arm, as tenderly as a woman would have done, and, as he revived, he looked up and smiled faintly into the grave eyes.

"Those were not happy years," he continued brokenly; "how could they be? How could the poor girl be happy with a man whom she could not respect? She failed in none of her duties; but I know how she suffered. How often have I watched the misery on her face when she thought herself unobserved, and the tears which lay upon her cheeks when she had cried herself to sleep! Never, until you had spoken to her, had she treated me with anything but coldness; and I could not complain. I knew that I deserved even worse at her hands. My poor Shirley! And then you came back, Guy, and you forgave me so nobly and so generously, and after a time you induced her to think more gently of me and to forgive me. That night at Easton—ah, shall I ever forget it? She told me that she had forgiven me, that she would try—poor darling!—to be a better wife to me; and I cried like a child to think that there might be happy days in store for us both—thanks to you."

"Dear old Hugh—poor fellow!" "I had deserved to be miserable. Guy. Even now my punishment has not equalled my sin," he said pitifully. "Let me continue. I had dismissed Latrelle as soon as Shirley came to Maxwell. She was ill for weeks, as you know. Think, old fellow, how sad it was for one who loved her to know that the illness was all caused by him! When she was better, we went abroad, and I heard no more of Latrelle for some time. I had paid him liberally for aiding and abetting my villainy—I must call it so, Guy—there is no better word—and he was spending the money and enjoying himself; but a couple of years after he reappeared, demanding, rather than begging, assistance. Several times I gave him sums of money; but at last, wearied with his importunity, I refused. He then threatened me; if I did not accede to his demands, he would publish the whole story of the Scotch marriage and my treachery, and disgrace me. I have always been a coward, Guy. I was a coward then. Again and again I gave him money, at times large sums, and he grew more and more insolent when he saw the cowardly wretch with whom he had to deal. His letters and constant reappearance made my life miserable. I hoped that you, and perhaps Shirley herself, might be induced to think that the marriage had not been a voluntary act, and that I had been ignorant of what I was doing. I was maddened by the fellow's threats and insolence; and when I told him to do his worst, the world

The Call of the Blood

Amongst the scientific revelations of the last few years, perhaps the most marvellous and far-reaching is the discovery of the function exercised by the white cells of the blood. For years it had been known that in addition to red cells, which carry air to all the tissues of the body, the blood contains millions of tiny white cells.

But no one could determine their purpose until the great scientist, Metchnikoff, discovered that these white cells are the police of the body. He proved that in all healthy bodies, when they are attacked by disease germs, runs through the blood and tissues, summoning the white cells in defence against the foe. At once, by some mysterious provision of nature, their number is increased—sometimes fourfold—and a veritable battle commences within the body, the white cells attacking and devouring the foreign germs, and the issue of the battle being life or death as the white cells of the blood or the invading germs prevail. The success of Virol is due to this fact. The food substances used in Virol include those that are known to increase the number and stimulate the activity of these wonderful little cells of the blood.

It is by the blood that food is carried to every tissue of the body, but still more it is by Virol that the blood—and these soldiers of the blood which, during almost any illness, die and have to be replaced by millions daily—are maintained and fed. The wonderful changes brought about in people fed on Virol are explained in this way, and it is for this reason that Virol is used in such large quantities in all the hospitals and sanatoria of the country.

When your health is failing or your powers are impaired, take Virol regularly three times a day, a teaspoonful after meals. Above all, give Virol to anyone, adult or child, who is wasting, or from a weak condition of health is liable to cold or illness. Virol may be taken in warm milk, and can be obtained of all Chemists and Stores.

Virol, the food which replenishes the blood with the white cells that conquer disease.

would not believe him, he said that the world would believe you, and that you would make it public. It was just at this time that he went to Easton, and it was you who casually mentioned having seen him passing the hotel. I knew then that he had followed me. Late that night, when I was alone on the balcony, feeling grateful—Heaven knows how grateful—for the wondrous happiness which seemed to be opening for me, and he passed again, looked up and accosted me. I went down to him, and he renewed his entreaties and threats, and, fearing that my new-found happiness would be destroyed by his means, I agreed to meet him the next morning on the cliffs.

"Hugh, rest now," Guy entreated, as he saw the exhaustion and faintness which Sir Hugh struggled against so bravely. "You shall tell me the remainder another time." "There may be no other time for me," he said sadly. "The best thing I can do is to die and leave her free and perhaps Heaven will let me do it. No; let me tell you now; and then, when you know all, I will rest. You remember," he continued, after a long pause of weakness, "how we started together—shall I ever forget Shirley as she stood on the balcony that morning?—and how, as we walked across the beach together, I tried to thank you for what you had done for me. I never loved you as I loved you then, Guy. Even in our boyhood, when we had been such friends, you had never been so dear to me; and I stood and watched you out of sight, and sat on the rocks waiting for him. When he came, I saw at once that he was prepared to be insolent, and I resolved to be firm with him. I had brought with me two hundred pounds in gold and notes that Pears had brought me down a day or two before, which I intended to give him as a last bribe. He was in a most insolent mood; he had left the inn in the neighboring village where he had been staying, saying he would not return, and he made up his mind to speak to you. But even the taunting words and insults were no excuse for my anger. I turned upon him at last, and lifted the stick—your stick, old fellow, which I had asked you for for a keepsake—oh, how sorry I was for that afterward!—and struck him. He fell immediately to the ground, and never spoke afterward. I had—oh, merciful Heaven, I had killed him on the spot!"

Sir Hugh covered his face with his trembling hands, and lay back, shuddering violently, the cold dew gathering on his forehead, his whole frame shaking with horror and anguish. Guy, scarcely less agitated, could hardly utter the few words of consolation he strove to speak; and there were a few moments silence ere Hugh Glynn resumed the pitiful story.

"Heaven knows I had no intention to hurt him," he went on, with an accent of unutterable sadness; "and when I saw him lying there, I had no thought but that he was stunned or had fainted. I knelt down by him, and did all I could to restore him, but of course, in vain. Then, when I realized what I had done, when I found myself a murderer, with the stain of blood upon me, I went mad, I think I had but one idea—to escape; and then a horrible notion entered my head. If I could disgrace him enough— Oh, Guy, Guy!"

For a few moments there was no sound in the room but the uncontrollable weeping which broke from the baronet and rent his weak frame with terrible sobs; Guy's face too was hidden—he was trying to shut out the awful scene which the words conjured up. It was indeed an awful one—the dead man lying with his face upturned, the sky overhead, the sea beyond, and the murderer trying to escape the results of his crime. If it might so be called.

"You know how well I succeeded," continued Sir Hugh, when he could speak. "I took off his coat and put mine on him; the clothes he was wearing had been mine once—I saw that directly. I put my ring on his finger, and all that I had about me which could lead to recognition I put into his pockets, and then I left him there. I never imagined but that it would be thought an accident; and I did it with an awful calmness which I think of sometimes now and wonder at. My one thought was to escape. I shrank with an unutterable horror from what was before me if I gave myself up, although now I can see that I ought to have done so. I had plenty of money—that was one difficulty removed; and I walked to the nearest station, carrying the bag Latrelle had with him, and took a third class ticket for London, which I reached late that night—that terrible night. Do you remember the storm? Will you ever forget it, Guy? The next morning my first action was to disguise myself effectually," he went on, after a long pause. "With money, in London, it was not difficult; and then I took quiet lodgings in a part of the town where I had never been in the old days; and for a time I remained there, ill and weak with a nervous fever, during the continuance of which, however, I was never light-headed. Strangely enough, I had no fear of pursuit; I knew the poor fellow would not be missed, and I felt sure that the body would be taken for mine. One day—the very first time I was able to read a newspaper—to my inexpressible horror, I saw what a mistake had been made—what a terrible mistake!"

He had become very faint and exhausted during the last few minutes, and his voice had sunk so low as to be almost inaudible; but he was so anxious to finish his story that Guy had not sufficient strength of mind to prevent him and make him rest. Raising himself gently, he gave him some more of the restorative which the doctor had left with Shirley, and, supported in Guy's strong arms—for it was easier for him to breathe thus—he resumed his story.

If Constipated or Bilious—Cascarets.

For Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Sluggish Liver and Bowels—They work while you sleep.

Get a 10-cent box. Take a Cascaret to-night to cleanse your Liver, Stomach and Bowels, and you will surely feel great by morning. You men and women who have headache, coated tongue, can't sleep, are bilious, nervous, upset, bothered with a sick, gassy, disordered stomach, or have backache and feel all worn out. Are you keeping your bowels clean with Cascarets—or merely forcing a passageway every few days without salts, cathartic pills or castor oil?

Cascarets immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the constipated waste matter and poison from the intestines and bowels.

Remember, a Cascaret to-night will straighten you out by morning. A 10-cent box from your druggist means healthy bowel action; a clear head a cheerfulness for months. Don't forget the children.

Harbour Grace Notes.

Last night's downpour of rain took away quite a lot of snow and ice, and to-day the welcome sight of the wheels were again to be witnessed.

Mr. George Lee Whiting left for St. John's by this morning's train where he will join the S. S. Newfoundland and proceed to the ice in her in the capacity of fireman.

Mr. Edward Parsons, M. H. A., returned from St. John's on Saturday evening to spend Sunday with his family. He left for the city again on Monday morning.

Mrs. Henry Gosse passed away yesterday at the residence of her son-in-law, Mr. George T. Gordon, after a long illness.

Miss Mary Cole, aged 24 years, died on Saturday and was buried in the C. of E. Cemetery yesterday.

Would the person who picked up a large key on Victoria Street, Harbour Grace, some time ago, please communicate with your correspondent who will tell them the name of the owner.

Mr. A. Rogers, who had been to St. John's a few days on business returned yesterday afternoon.

Hammond is Champion.

Hammond defeated Roberts in the wrestling match at the C.L.B. Armory last night and thus won the feather-weight championship of Newfoundland. The bout was an exciting one and was witnessed by a large number of spectators. Before the main contest, A. Hennebury and "Kid" Keats, and the Marshall Brothers gave interesting exhibitions which resulted in draws, no falls being secured. The gold medal offered for the feather-weight championship goes to Hammond, who has been challenged by R. Marshall. Mr. S. Cullen acted as referee.

HEALTHY AND UNHEALTHY LIGHTING.

Gas, it may be said, vitiates the atmosphere. True. But it also helps to purify it. Its purifying power is greater than its vitiating power. Electricity does not vitiate, nor does it purify. Hear what three eminent men have said—

Much evidence has lately been adduced to show that gas is more useful than the electric light in promoting efficient ventilation of air. It is for this amongst other reasons that gas is being frequently substituted for the electric light. The latest example is, perhaps, the Society of Medical Officers of Health, which has recently installed gas on its premises, after experience with the electric light.—Dr. Jameson B. Hurry.

He would merely add that no member who had experience of their meeting room under the old conditions could deny the improvement that had taken place since gas had been substituted for the electric light and the new system of heating and ventilation had been installed.—Dr. Reginald Duffield, before the Society of Medical Officers of Health.

I have in my mind's eye, at the moment, a hall which, in the old days, was lighted by gas, and in which a large audience could, with comfort, sit through an hour's lecture, or with pleasure through a three hours' dinner, but which, with the march of civilization, had its illumination changed from gas to electricity, the latter being applied with all the latest refinements to effect the lighting under the best conditions, with the result that any large gathering within its walls leads to a state little short of asphyxiation.—Victor B. Leveque, Professor of Chemistry at the Royal Naval College, Greenwich.—nov.17

SEVERAL ABOVE.—Seven Syrians arrived here by the S. S. Digby yesterday and will in future reside in the city.

Committees.

By GEORGE FITCH, Author of "At Good Old Swash"

A committee is a cold storage warehouse for business.

There are over ninety million committees in this country of one kind or another. They hold several meetings each per year. At these meetings enough talking is done to sweep the entire state of Texas with a devastating cyclone of carbon dioxide. Sometimes a committee will also do some work but only when there is nothing more to talk about.

Committees are a great convenience. It would be impossible to end any business meeting without appointing a committee, for in this case the meeting would have to do the business itself. After a man has managed a few hundred public meetings, he can't get his furnace banked at night in his home without appointing himself a committee to attend to the matter and report at some future meeting.

There are many kinds of committees, including executive committees, committees of the whole, committees of one, finance committees and standing committees. There are also legislative and congressional committees. The business of these last two committees is to sit on new legislation with all the fervor and patience of a hen trying to hatch a granite door-knob. After a man has served on legislative committees for a few years he can't attend to his furnace at home at all. He refers it to a committee, kills the bill and his wife has to do it.

Committees are composed of two parts—the chairman, who does the work, and the members, who get their names in the newspapers. The committee habit has the nation firmly in its grip and the only way to avoid being appointed on a dozen a year is to attend all possible meetings and refuse in a loud, impressive tone of voice on the plea of important business affairs.

A MODERN INSTANCE.

It was something like a ringworm on his head, or rather at the back of the neck, just below the hair, and seemed inclined to spread. Washing with antiseptic solutions, and the use of common ointments scarcely availed to prevent its getting larger. He was puzzled. Then he saw an advertisement of Zylex and Zylex Soap, and decided to use them. Procuring a box of Zylex and a cake of Zylex Soap he washed the part carefully, and applied the ointment freely. The result was marked almost from the first. In a few days the spot had disappeared, and everything was as well as ever. Now he uses Zylex Soap regularly and keeps a box of Zylex always handy.

Have you such spots? Then use Zylex. You will soon forget that you have had any skin troubles. At all druggists. Zylex, 50c. a box; Zylex Soap, 25c. a cake.—Feb 26, 1914.

Considerable anxiety is being felt for the safety of the Blanche Curry which was driven off during the storm of February 7th. Experienced mariners consider that if the vessel ran for Barbados or the Azores she would now be heard from, as it is only 26 days since she was reported off Cape Race.

NOTE OF THANKS.—I wish to make public acknowledgment of the kind and practical treatment I received from Doctors, Sisters and Nurses alike, while at the General Hospital. Everything that one could desire, in such a time was done for me. We can hardly overestimate the value of such an institution to our city and country with such an excellent staff of Doctors and Nurses, etc. Also many thanks to thoughtful friends who visited me while ill. Stomach Troubles and Weakness of Kidneys Cured by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

There is an enormous amount of suffering from liver and kidney derangements and stomach troubles that could easily be avoided by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. If you could only realize the scores of everyday ills that arise from a sluggish condition of the kidneys, liver and bowels you would not be long in giving this medicine a trial.

Mrs. Edward Stewart, New Richmond West, Que., writes: "I want to tell you how thankful I am for using your Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for stomach troubles and backache caused by weak kidneys. I was unable to wash my clothes for over two years on account of my back being lame. I read the Almanac and began using these pills. Two boxes made a complete cure. I can do my own washing and other work now, and want to say to lady friends that they do not know how much I appreciate Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills." 25 cents a box, all dealers or Ed. Note of Thanks.

Dear Mrs. Tobin—I am instructed by our Committee to tender the Ladies' Committee our very sincere thanks for the services rendered by them at our annual "At Home."

Owing to the very severe and stormy weather which prevailed during the week that the event was held, the work of the Ladies' Committee must have been more than usually arduous, but the success which crowned their efforts, will, in a measure, repay them for their toil.

Narrow Escape From Drowning.

—James Aspell, fireman on the s.s. Erik, fell overboard yesterday and narrowly escaped drowning. He was coming ashore from the ship on the plank used as a gangway, when he slipped and fell in the water, his head coming in contact with some ice, which inflicted an ugly wound in his forehead. He was rescued by George Hookey and Detective Sergt. Byrne and taken to the police station, apparently lifeless. Dr. O'Connell was summoned, and for a couple of hours, worked before Aspell showed signs of consciousness, after which he slept for some hours before being sufficiently recovered to proceed to his home on Plymouth Road.

The Honor of the House.

Yesterday afternoon, before the Order of the Day was taken up, Mr. Kent asked the leader of the House if he intended to move the House into privilege to take up the charges made against Mr. Cashin. He accepted the denial of Mr. Cashin, and that being so, the author of the slander should be summoned before the House, the matter investigated immediately and the Minister vindicated promptly. Sir Edward Morris said the Government courted an enquiry, and so did the Minister, but his solicitor had advised him to seek his remedy in the Court and such an enquiry would prejudice his case. We regret that that the leader of the Government did not accede to the invitation of Mr. Kent. It is a cardinal principle that the House of Commons is guardian of its own honor, and so it should be with the House of Assembly.

But it has been decided otherwise, and we regret that decision, for it would have afforded a prompt and immediate means of a full vindication to the Minister. While on the subject of the honor of the House, we cannot refrain from expressing the opinion that an assembly incident in which a member and restrained members from wandering from the question before the chair and introducing irrelevant personalities, and whilst we are on this subject, we must add our tribute of appreciation to the Speaker, who has shown much tact and good judgment when untoward incidents have arisen. Mr. Goodison acted with firmness last night, and we admire him for it. He uses a velvet glove to cover an iron hand.

Finger Crushed.

John Whelan, seaman on the s.s. Ethie, met with a painful accident while the ship was lying at Placentia yesterday, his right hand becoming entangled in the donkey winch, with the result that his fingers became badly crushed. The accident happened at 11 a.m. yesterday, and immediately after the occurrence Whelan was taken to Dr. McDonald's surgery where the fore finger of the right hand was amputated and the young man was taken to his home. Later the doctor upon visiting him found it was necessary to send him to Hospital, and he arrived by last night's train, accompanied by his father. The train was delayed owing to the bad condition of the road and did not reach the city until 3 a.m. to-day, and as a consequence Whelan suffered a great deal on the journey.

His Mother's Song.

Large audiences witnessed the splendid programme at the Crescent Picture Palace yesterday afternoon and last night. The two-act feature "Soul to Soul" was a stirring drama that called forth much interest by the spectators. The three comedy pictures, "John Bull," "The Bachelor Hanger," "The Bachelor Maid" and "The Bold Bad Pirates" created much laughter and amusement. The last picture "Insect Life" was also up to the mark. The same bill will be repeated this afternoon and night. On to-morrow the week-end change "His Mother's Song" will be the feature, and don't forget that a special matinee for ladies and children will be given Saturday afternoon.

S.U.F.

The two young ladies, who so successfully catered to the wants of the officers and members of King George V. Lodge, at their Soiree, Dec. 30th, 1913, were on the 4th inst. presented by the Lodge with two silver brooches, neat and handsomely designed, the following inscription being written thereon: "Compliments of S.U.F. King George V. Lodge, 1913." A deputation was formed to see to the presentation, consisting of W. M. Bro. Rev. A. Shorter, P.M., Bro. Lookout, Bro. Purser and Bro. Secretary. The ladies were asked to meet the above deputation in the Parish Hall, which they did, and Bro. Rev. A. Shorter, as spokesman, made the presentation and delivered the undervalued address. Others of the deputation also made short speeches expressing their gratitude for the good work the ladies had rendered. The ladies then replied with words of appreciation and thanks and wished King George V. Lodge every success.

The following is the address delivered by Rev. A. Shorter, on behalf of King George V. Lodge, of the Society of United Fishermen:

February 4th, 1914.
To Miss L. Best and Miss S. Pike:
Ladies—It is with feelings of much gratification that I address you this evening, in pursuance of the delectable duty which has been imposed upon me by the officers and members of King George V. Lodge of the Society of United Fishermen. That duty is to act as spokesman of the present deputation in giving utterance officially and personally to the hearty appreciation in which the Lodge holds your kind offices as rendered on parade day, the 30th of December last, and to beg each of you to accept the accompanying souvenir of that happy occasion as a small token of the sincerity of the Lodge's gratitude and good-will.

Arduous as the services referred to undoubtedly were, we cannot but recognize that they were rendered with ungrudging heartiness and zeal, and we trust that these tokens, humble and inadequate as they may be intrinsically, may yet serve to recall some pleasant memories, and to assure you of the esteem and honor of which they are designed to be the tokens.

Girl's Nerves Fully Restored

Was Never Able to Obtain Lasting Benefit, Until Dr. Chase's Nerve Food Was Used.
Too many girls grow up with weak, anaemic bodies and exhausted nervous systems. Indoor life and too much application in school are sometimes the cause.
The blood needs enriching and the nerves need strengthening by such treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. This food cure is doing wonders for many thousands of girls whose parents had almost despaired of their ever developing into strong, healthy women.
Mrs. J. Bagnall, 295 Woodville avenue, Toronto, writes: "My daughter suffered from nervousness since childhood, and any medicines she tried did not do any lasting good. We read in the papers about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and my daughter used it with wonderful results. This treatment has built up her system and so has strengthened the nerves that she feels like another girl."

Value of Institute to Sealers.
Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—Permit me space thro' the columns of your valuable journal, to say a word in praise of the King George Institute, and also a word in favor of the affable Superintendent, Mr. Jones. Having had thirty years' experience in the seal and cod fisheries of Newfoundland, and having, during that period, kept in touch with some hundreds of fishermen, I think that I am in a position to say that I had felt keenly the requirements and attractions which is now afforded them at the institution, especially at this season of the year. It brings the men together, sir, and rids them of the wiles and temptations which may betwixt their path. I cannot too highly praise the noble efforts shown by those in charge, for the comfort and pleasure of the sealers, and on their behalf, I wish you to give publicity to this brief note.
I remain, Sir,

Obituary.

BERNARD DOWNEY.

All hearts went out in sympathy to the bereaved parents, when on Wednesday midnight, the grim reaper visited the home of Mr. Bernard Downey, and claimed from the happy home circle, their darling child Bernard. He was a bright little lad of nine summers, and always wore the bloom of health until he contracted a cold in early winter. Seemingly he quite recovered and attended school for a few days to the delight of teacher and pupils, with whom he was a general favorite. But again he was missed from the frolicking group, being laid off with another attack, and within a few weeks his parents realized that his weakened constitution could not hold much longer. On the night of the 25th they watched him calmly pass into the hands of his Creator. Not only will he be missed from his parents' fireside, but the little hearts of his schoolmates and companions will be saddened when they see his vacant place in the schoolroom and miss his fun and laughter in their games. His loving and gentle disposition endeared him to old as well as to the young, who came to offer consolation to the grief-stricken parents and follow the little remains to the graveside. It is our sincere prayer that Mr. and Mrs. Downey will be consoled, knowing their dear child is enjoying the bliss of that Home of Love where pain and suffering are unknown.—Com. Colinet, Feb. 28th, 1914.

Entertainment at College Hall.

The Girls' Guild held a very successful entertainment at the College Hall yesterday afternoon, which was largely attended. The programme consisted of vocal numbers by Misses Storey and Herder, piano selections by Miss Horwood and Mr. Christian; a reading, "The Bells," by Rev. W. H. Thomas, and a sketch in which Misses Dorothy Ayre, Knowling, (2), Macpherson and Squires took part. The several items were received with enthusiastic applause and at the close tea was served by the Guild members. The proceeds, which were quite satisfactory, will be devoted to the College funds.

Personal Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Feder went out by last evening's express to Holyrood where they will spend their honeymoon.

Capt. Kehoe, chief officer of the S. S. Nascope, left by last evening's express on a brief visit to his home in Harbor Grace.

ROUGH TRIP.

The S. S. Riverdale, Capt. Richardson, which arrived in port yesterday morning short of coal, reports very stormy weather on the Atlantic. The Riverdale is 33 days out from Aberdeen to Philadelphia, and has on board a cargo of iron ore. On the way across her boats were swept from the davits, her bulwarks smashed and the deck fittings badly damaged. The Furness White Co. are the agents, and will look after her coaling and repairs, after which she will continue on to Philadelphia. The Riverdale is a steel screw steamer of 4,206 tons, gross and was built in 1900 by the Sunderland Ship Building Co., Ltd., for J. Little and Co., of Glasgow.

The Avalonian Magazine for March.

We thank the publisher of The Avalonian Magazine for an advance copy of the current issue. This is the third appearance of The Avalonian and it is growing in literary value from month to month. It is now 100 page size and contains 89 pages of solid reading matter by local and foreign writers. The articles are of particular value, especially Carl Snyder's whose contribution will doubtless interest many who study transportation problems. There are two splendidly written local serial stories, entitled, "A Fatal Adjourment" and "A Permanent Situation," both of which should appeal to all lovers of fiction. As far as a reading magazine is concerned The Avalonian should meet with a hearty response from those who are interested in home literary productions and we bespeak a good sale for it.

Deprecate Discussion in Public Press.

Editor The Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—I have read, though I can hardly say with pleasure, the articles which have appeared lately in your columns signed "Catholicus Anglicanus" and "Shimri" and one in last evening's issue signed "Interested" and without intending to be egotistical I think I voice the sentiments of a good portion of the community when I say that the public press is not the place for such discussions; because, though they may be of a little interest to a portion of the members of the Church of England, which name our church is commonly called and known by in this country, they are of practically no interest whatever to the general public.

If those correspondents cannot agree on the various matters they are discussing why do they not go to His Lordship Bishop Jones or some of the clergy, any of whom no doubt would be pleased to put them right, or if they must have a public discussion why not use the Diocesan Magazine, which is a Church of England publication and act the columns of the public press.

We must all remember we live in a small community and most of us number amongst our personal friends those who have different religious views to ourselves, but that makes no difference to our friendship as we are all free to believe as we wish and such articles only tend to start a spirit of sectarianism which we all deplore when articles on the subject appear in our daily papers.

Thanking you for space and assuring you that I am only writing this from the standpoint that religious discussions ought to be kept out of the newspapers.

I am, yours truly,
A HUMBLE MEMBER OF THE CHURCH OF ENGLAND,
St. John's, March 4th, 1914.

Live Seals.

Editor The Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—Just a suggestion, hoping to be met with in a friend spirit by the parties interested, would suggest that Messrs. Bowring Bros., Ltd., who so generously donated the Bowring Park to the city would place a few live seals in the river; they would be a source of interest and pleasure to our citizens as tourists the coming summer.

Hoping I am not intruding.

Marshall Bros.

At the House

Petitions were presented by Messrs. Clift, Clapp, Downey, Higgins, Halfyard, Stone, Jennings, Coaker and Beveraux, in relation to various public matters.

Following the tabling of the Municipal Accounts and the reading of Bills amended by the Legislative Council, the question of privilege came up.

Mr. Kent referred to the article that appeared in the Daily Mail. He accepted the denial of the Minister of Finance, and that whilst the author of the article should be given to understand that men occupying responsible positions should not have their honesty impugned, he said there was another phase to be considered and that it was due to the dignity and integrity of this House that the charge he immediately investigated. He would, therefore, ask the Prime Minister, as custodian of the House, what action he proposed taking.

The Prime Minister entirely concurred with the Leader of the Opposition, but the question was, would it be desirable now to have an investigation in view of instructions having been given by the Finance Minister, to issue a writ of Habeas Corpus.

Mr. Lloyd—He endorsed the expressions of the Leader of the Opposition and pointed out that the article reflected on the honor of the Minister, Government and particularly on this House. The charges made are in regard to the financial proposals of the new tariff which are now before the House. Personally he considered them utterly unworthy of belief. Still the dignity of the House should be looked after and every circumstance investigated, before the House went on with the Budget. Even if there was going to be a libel suit it would be better that the honour of the House and of the Government be sustained immediately.

The Minister of Finance—He would be glad to have an investigation, but he had been advised by his solicitor that such a procedure would prejudice his case.

Mr. Kent—He did not think it would prejudice the Minister's case in Court and contended that a Committee of Privilege should investigate the matter in as much as it would vindicate the dignity of the House.

Mr. Lloyd disagreed with the Premier that any enquiry made by the Legislature would prejudice the case.

Mr. Kent—An enquiry ought to be made and the surrounding circumstances disclosed; as when the decision of the court is reached the House will be prorogued, and therefore an immediate enquiry was imperative.

Mr. F. J. Norris thought it questionable as to whether the House had any right to deal with the matter. Mr. Grimes upheld the position taken by Mr. Kent, and that a Committee of Privilege should probe the matter first.

Mr. Coaker said the writer of the article, he was informed, was given the information by a clerk in the employ of Bowring Bros.

Mr. Clift was of the belief that the honour of the Minister was not only affected in his private capacity but as a member of the House. The Committee of Privilege should not be left stand over because of an action in the court. One thing has nothing to do with the other. He did not believe the charge made, but thought it was the duty of the House to deal with the charges before going on with the Ways and Means.

The Minister of Finance—He was advised by his solicitor that the case should be heard in the courts.

Mr. Clift—It is a pity the Minister did not consult his solicitor before he mentioned it in this committee.

Mr. Lloyd insisted that the matter should be enquired into at once. Are we to understand that the Premier absolutely refuses to go into Committee of Privilege, or are we to go through Ways and Means in charge of a Minister who has charges hanging over him. He thought the course should be advised and a mistake on the part of the Minister. It was common talk on the streets that the extra duties particularly on tobacco and liquor would be levied. That, however, might not be due to any leakage, but to an intelligent anticipation of where the Government would place the extra duties.

The Colonial Secretary—He objected to Dr. Lloyd's remarks, because of the inference they contained to the effect that the duties on tobacco, etc., had leaked out through the Executive. He believed that the supposed rumours were the result of surmise.

Mr. Kent asked the Premier if he would press for an investigation.

The Prime Minister—He did not agree with Mr. Kent that a mere suspension of the charge would not affect the House, and that as the trial before court would be public there was no need of an investigation.

Messrs. Stone and Halfyard also spoke along the lines of Mr. Kent. The House then went into Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. Clift gave an incisive address pointing out that the changes in the tariff were opposed by the whole country. Details of his speech will appear later.

Messrs. Jennings and Halfyard dealt with the question of increased taxation from a fisherman's point of view.

On resuming, Mr. Halfyard and Mr. Grimes spoke on the new tariff, effectively showing in detail how it affected the fishermen, as did Mr. Jennings.

Mr. Coaker spoke along similar lines and read from statements tabled in the House all those who got arbitration fees in connection with the railway and read of sums paid to the N.B. Produce Company on account of coastal contracts and to Moore & Co. for plumbing.

Mr. Moore in the course of his remarks, stated that his firm had obtained the contracts by tendering lower than other firms.

The Premier delivered a lengthy answer to Mr. Kent's criticism of the Budget. One of the points raised was in the balance of trade. That it was adverse he did not believe it. The exports of fish were largely undervalued. He supported this contention by the fact that the Premier's collector of Customs, in which the latter pointed out the unreliability of the value furnished to his department by exporters.

Mr. Crosbie then got up to speak his remarks were brimful of personalities directed at the senior member for Bonavista. He said he had been branded by the Advocate as a scoundrel and rascal and was now going to defend himself. Continuing his tirade he said he was never before the Supreme Court on a criminal charge and asked the Minister of Finance to make provision for women who were not provided for by their husbands. Here Mr. Kent interjected and said: "Mr. Chairman what relevancy have these reflections to the question before the committee?" The Chairman ruled against Mr. Kent, in favour of the relevancy of these remarks and extended to Mr. Crosbie the latitude he desired. The Chairman then appealed to the committee as a whole to over-rule the decision of the chairman. The Opposition stood up to record their votes against the ruling. The Government members remained at their seats. Continuing Mr. Crosbie heated the bush about an investigation that was made regarding the correctness or otherwise of the finances of a civil servant. At this stage Mr. Coaker retorted: "You haven't the courage to say what you mean, you are contemptible clown." These words were then taken down by the clerk and speaker Goodson, having called order read the words uttered and asked the Hon. member for Bonavista to give an explanation. The latter said that personal insinuations and reflections thrown at him by the member for Bay-de-erde provoked the expressions used. The speaker then said that such had not been reported to him and asked the member for Bay-de-erde if such was the case. Mr. Crosbie said he never mentioned the name of any member. The speaker was asking Mr. Coaker to retract when Mr. Lloyd stated that the expressions used by the member for Bay-de-erde were understood for the senior member for Bonavista. The Speaker then inquired from Mr. Crosbie if he had so intended Mr. Coaker to cast reflection on him. Thereupon Mr. Coaker withdrew his unparliamentary expression and an unedifying incident closed with some exchanges between the two members of a more conciliatory nature.

Cable News.

LONDON, To-day. By a substantial majority the Commons put on record its desire that the Government reconsider its refusal to officially participate in the Panama Pacific Exposition and agree to participate.

MONTREAL, To-day. Asked regarding the rumor that he had been offered the position of High Commissioner in London, Mr. Thomas Shaughnessy said he had nothing whatever to say relative to it.

LONDON, To-day. The Chronicle which enjoys in large measure the confidence of the Liberal majority declares that, despite assertions to the contrary, the Government has no intention of dissolving during the present year, that ministers anticipate finishing a full five year term. The Government according to the Chronicle will introduce to-day for their first readings during the present session the Irish Home Rule Bill the Welsh Church Disestablishment and plural voting Bills, and expect to carry all through before the expiration of its present term of office. Tremendous interest is being taken in the Premier's proposed statement for Monday on the Irish Home Rule Bill. Seats in the Commons are already being held at a premium. All factions believe the Premier will offer the Ulster counties temporary exclusion from the Act.

Scotia's Earnings.

For the year ending December 31st, the Nova Scotia Steel and Coal Company earned in round figures $1,256,000. After providing for the interest on the first mortgage 5 per cent. bonds outstanding and the sinking fund in connection with the same issue there remained a balance of considerably over $900,000. As there is outstanding $3,000,000 of debenture stock bearing 6 per cent. interest, this is equal to more than 5 times the amount necessary to pay the interest on the debenture stock.

We offer for sale in lots to suit purchasers a block of Nova Scotia Steel & Coal 6 per cent. debenture stock at 98 and interest.

Furnishing One's Mind.

By RUTH CAMERON.

Molly, the little stenographer lady, had just returned from her first visit to a new friend of hers who is a great traveller. We had all been much interested in this friendship as we always are in any good thing that comes to one of us, and we wanted to hear all about the visit.

"I suppose her home is full of beautiful things from all over the world," said the Lady-Who-Always-Knows-Somehow, "she and her husband are such great travellers."
Molly considered. "No," she decided, "there were a few things from abroad, but not many."
"H'm," said the Author Man's wife, "I should think they'd like to have something to show for all their globe trotting."

"Something to show for it," flashed Molly. "Who said they hadn't? They've got plenty to show for it, only it isn't just bric-a-brac and souvenirs in their house, it's in their minds. They've furnished their minds, that's what they've done, and they're the best furnished minds I ever visited."

We all laughed at Molly of course, but after the laugh was over there came a moment of silence, and I suspect we were all asking ourselves the same question. "How is my mind furnished?"

It's quite an interesting and startling question, isn't it?
How are our minds furnished? What pictures and possibilities that calls up!

I can see a mind full of the cheap and trashy furniture of thoughtless thoughts, worthless literature and tawdry ideals. The table is a veneered imitation of some expensive wood, the wall paper is too bright, and several of the chairs in which strength was sacrificed to showiness are beginning to drop to pieces.

Again I see a mind crowded with an unbecoming accumulation of narrow notions and unreasoning dislikes and outworn prejudices, like a house furnished in that unfortunate Victorian period when those ornate, hideous, ponderous and entirely unjustifiable atrocities of marble and horsehair and black walnut were "the thing."

And again I see the mind cluttered with the cheap bric-a-brac of useless accomplishments and superficial learning. There are too many meaningless pictures on the walls, too many cheap books on the table, too much useless and unbecoming bric-a-brac all over the room.

Let's have some pleasanter picture, you say? Very well, then. I see a mind well furnished with the plain, durable furniture of good common sense, solid ambitions and intelligent thoughts. Everything is simple and inexpensive, but beautiful in its simplicity and its perfect adaption for its use.

Again, I see a mind in which there are many beautiful things, both old and new. There is some fine old furniture of the age of artistic lines and stately simplicity, and there are some new things with the beauty of this age. Its owner has kept the fine ideals and the stately background of the old days, and added to them the outlooks and hopes and visions of the present.

How is your mind furnished?
You cannot, perhaps, choose just how your home of boards or bricks shall be furnished, but you can furnish your mind just as you will. And you can change it too, and refurnish it, and make it more beautiful and livable every day of your life.

Look in upon yourself and decide. How is your mind furnished? Is it the kind of mind people like to visit? Is it the kind of mind that is pleasant to live in? In short, are you satisfied with it?

Ruth Cameron

REDMOND'S PLEA FOR HOME RULE FOR IRELAND.

London, Feb. 12.—I was at the afternoon sitting of the house of commons yesterday. On Tuesday the King had opened parliament in state, and in his address had asked for good feeling in settling a question in which the hopes and fears of so many of his subjects were involved; and the reports say King George read this passage with deep feeling and emphasis.

When the commons had returned to their house and the consideration of the address, or rather, of an amendment to it, Mr. Asquith spoke, for the first time acknowledging the duty of his cabinet to take the lead.
He held out hopes that conference would provide a way out of the difficulty and to him Mr. Austin Chamberlain replied. Yesterday afternoon the debate was resumed. The house and the visitors galleries were full. The government was fully represented. Next to the square white head and florid face of Mr. Asquith was the younger and less forceful face of Mr. Birrell, the secretary for Ireland. Mr. Lloyd George, Colonel Seely, the secretary of war, came next, and the only prominent member of the government who was absent was Mr.

Winston Churchill. On the other side was Mr. Bonar Law, Mr. Walter Long one of England's great untitled landowners, and the representative of that class in the commons. Mr. Austin Chamberlain, and Mr. Balfour, just returned from the more congenial task of lecturing on theology at a Scottish university, Mr. F. E. Smith and Sir Edward Carson, the leader of the Irish Unionists.

Speakers Lacked "Beef"

Two speeches of the four I heard had any "beef" in them. The debate was opened by Sir John Simon, the attorney-general, who made an attorney's speech. He was followed by Sir Edward Carson, the head of the Ulstermen, the man to whom is owing the organized resistance to the Home Rule bill, and to whom, if all I can hear is true, and as Mr. Asquith acknowledged, is owing that resistance is organized and disciplined, and has not broken into a violence. He spoke with earnestness. Two points in his speech made an impression in the house. One, when he said: "it is not a question of concessions to Ulster. Ulster is asking to be let alone. When you talk of concessions what you really mean is what the minimum of wrong you can do to Ulster."

The other side again was silent when he charged the liberal party with insulting and jeering at Ulster; and there was a murmur of sympathy from his opponents as well as cheers from his friends when he said: "Don't force Ulster. Win her." He ended by saying that if the exclusion of Ulster was arranged for, he would go back to Ulster and consult his people. If it was not he would stand with them to the end in their resistance.

He was followed by Redmond, who after some controversial passages, said that he would shut no door to a settlement, and concluded in the following passage:

Mr. Redmond's Plea.

"Now I can assure the house that I never in my life spoke here, during the 33 years I have been a member of this house, under such a deep sense of responsibility. It is quite easy to indulge in recriminations in this house, and in the ordinary methods of party controversy, and it would have been, I do not say a congenial, but an easy task to me to have made an answer to the right hon. gentleman's speech, a speech of an entirely different character. But today I feel too deep a sense of the gravity and responsibility of my position to make any observations of that character. It is quite true that my protestations in the past of a desire to safeguard the rights and interests of Ulster have been met in certain quarters with derision and disbelief. It is true that my protestations of a desire for toleration between Christian creeds and for justice between all sections of a free people have been met in some quarters not only with incredulity, but with positive insult. I make to-day no retort whatever, but I say to the house of commons, and I speak from my very heart and soul, that I would cut my tongue out sooner than say one single word in support of the Home Rule for Ireland bill, if I believed it would mean the slightest injury to the lives, the persons, the properties or the religious convictions of any section of my countrymen. (Cheers.) I am willing, and not only willing, but deeply anxious, to remove every honest fear that may be entertained no matter how unfounded that fear may be, and hence it is I am quite willing to consider in the broadest and friendliest spirit any proposals the government may make in the earnest hope that the aspirations of the royal speech from the throne may be realized, and that in the end we may reach a peaceful and satisfactory settlement of this great problem upon which I believe in my heart and conscience not only the wellbeing of all classes in Ireland depend, but the future unity and strength of this empire. (Cheers.)

The Irish Secretary.

After some other speeches, Mr. Birrell spoke in admirable tone and temper, and was followed by Mr. Gray, Mr. Bonar Law, The Attorney-General, and Mr. Bonar Law. The debate ended with a majority of 78 for the Government in a house of 358.

There was some strain in the house throughout the debate. Interruptions were frequent, often ill-timed, and the courtesy of the principal speakers were not in harmony with the mood of the rank and file. This much has been gained. Mr. Asquith, as prime minister, has admitted the obligations of the government to take the initiative. Up to the opening of the house he had repudiated this obligation. Sir Edward Carson has clearly and definitely stated his position. Mr. Birrell has been conciliatory. The government has grasped the fact within the last few weeks that there is an Ulster question. Nothing was said yesterday afternoon to show that the Unionists had grasped the fact that there was a precedent Irish question, and that the results of disappointing the South would be as serious as those of coercing Ulster.

The man who sat next to me in the gallery, made the unnecessary explanation that he was Irish, and went on in a tongue that absence had not much modified: "I've lived twenty years in Essex, and I believe half of my neighbors don't know where Ireland is."
The politics being played about this question, led one to believe that a good many M.P.'s don't know what trishmen are.

The business of the The Eastern Trust Company is to administer Trusts. In this work it specializes, and it does no other. But no kind of trust is foreign to its scope or beyond its power to administer efficiently.

The Eastern Trust Company never speculates. It invests. It depends for its prosperity upon the efficiency of its management of its clients' business and upon the security of its investments.

The Eastern Trust Company executes the office of executor or administrator with unexampled efficiency, and its usefulness in this field is becoming rapidly more availed of.

In Halifax, Nova Scotia, again, The Eastern Trust Company has just been chosen to administer the estate of Captain William Fleming, which is valued at more than half a million dollars.

The Company now administers many estates which in value amount to several millions of dollars. Particulars will appear in later advertisements.

A Wonderful Discovery.

An eminent scientist, the other day, gave his opinion that the most wonderful discovery of recent years was the discovery of Zam-Buk. Just think! As soon as a single thin layer of Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or a sore, such injury is insured against blood poison! Not one speck of microbe has been found that Zam-Buk does not kill!

Then again. As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a sore, or a cut, or to skin disease, it stops the smarting. That is why children are such friends of Zam-Buk. They care nothing for the science of the thing. All they know is that Zam-Buk stops their pain. Mothers should never forget this.

Again. As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or to a diseased part, the cells beneath the skin's surface are so stimulated that new healthy tissue is quickly formed. This forming of fresh healthy tissue from below is Zam-Buk's secret of healing. The tissue thus formed is worked up to the surface and literally "casts off" the diseased tissue above it. This is why Zam-Buk cures are permanent.

Only the other day Mr. Marsh, of 101 Delormier Ave., Montreal, called upon the Zam-Buk Co. and told them that for over twenty-five years he had been a martyr to eczema. His hands were at one time so covered with sores that he had to sleep in gloves. Four years ago Zam-Buk was introduced to him, and in a few months it cured him. To-day—over three years after his cure of a disease he had for twenty-five years—he is still cured, and has had no trace of any return of the eczema!

All druggists sell Zam-Buk at 50c. box, or we will send free trial box if you send this advertisement and a 1c. stamp (to pay return postage). Address Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

Tales Of The Workers.

"I will not go into the terrible shock it was to us who had never had any trouble. After a few weeks our uncle told us gently that father's affairs had been very much involved and that when all the debts were paid we should have only about three thousand dollars. We should have used this money to finish our college work, but we took no one's advice, and following our own inclinations, we went to New York to make a serious study of painting. We really wanted to go to Paris, but we thought it wiser to take some training in New York, earn some money, and then go to Paris.

"To New York we went, and not in any haphazard way, either. We had made inquiries as to living expenses and as to the best art school, which we joined. We lived economically and worked hard. We expected a little element of romance or charm in our school life, but we found it very humdrum; the only difference was that instead of working with books, we were working with charcoal, pen-and-ink and brushes. We made friends among our fellow students. There were people of all grades of talent, from Edwin McMaster, one of the pupil-teachers, who has since become a well-known illustrator, to Harry Edwards, in whom we were interested because he had the same name as ourselves, who wanted to be a sculptor, and who had so little talent that we wondered someone didn't tell him so.—Maud Radford Warren, in Woman's World for February.

TELLS WHAT DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS DID FOR HIM.

He's Back at Work Again, After Suffering from the Pains, Nervousness and Depression that Only Kidney Disease Can Bring.

Point Alexander, Ont., March 4. (Special).—Mr. D. A. Francore, a well-known and popular young farmer, living near here, who has been a sufferer from kidney disease for some time past, is back at work again, and he says without hesitation, that his cure is due to Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"I was always tired and nervous," Mr. Francore says, in speaking of his illness. "I suffered from headache and neuralgia, and my sleep was broken and unrefreshing. My eyes were puffed and there were dark red circles around them.

"My muscles would cramp. I felt heavy and sleepy afterwards, and I was depressed and low-spirited, while shortness of breath and dizzy spells served to make life yet more miserable for me.

"I was always thirsty; my limbs were heavy; and I had a dragging sensation across the loins.

"My symptoms led me to believe, I had kidney disease, and I started to use Dodd's Kidney Pills. I have taken eight boxes in all, and I am very grateful for the benefit I have received from them."

If the disease is of the kidneys or from the kidneys, Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure it.

Casino Theatre

SHOWS THE SEALFISHERY.

There was a large attendance at the Casino Theatre yesterday afternoon and last evening, all being anxious to see the picture of the sealfishery. It was watched with interest. The other pictures were splendid. "The Last Blockhouse" is a two reel film telling of pioneer life in America and a number of settlers being killed by Indians who abducted a young woman. "A Signal of Distress" and "The Three Bachelors' Turkey" proved most popular. This evening the pictures will be repeated.

Do Long Breaths Hurt?

DANGEROUS PLEURISY ALWAYS BEGINS THIS WAY.

Speediest cure is Nerviline.

Ouch, that stab-like pain in the side is like a hot knife blade in the ribs! Probably got overheated—cooled too fast—now there is congestion, tightness, such soreness you can't draw a long breath.

This is the beginning of Pleurisy. Pleurisy is far too serious to neglect a single instant.

Quickest relief will come from a vigorous rubbing with Nerviline. This trusty old pain reliever will fix you up in no time—will take away the congestion—make you well just as it did Mr. Samuel St. John's, of Stamford, who says:—"In running to catch a train last week I became much overheated. I put up the train window and rode that way in order to get cooled off. In an hour my side was so full of pain and my breathing hurt so much that I thought I had pneumonia. I always carry Nerviline in my grip and at destination I rubbed my side thoroughly three times. The warm penetrating effect was soon noticeable and I quickly got relief. Nerviline I consider saved me from a serious illness."

Any sort of a cold can be quickly broken up with Nerviline which is a marvel for reducing inflammation, for relieving congestion in the throat and chest, for curing stitch in the side, lumbago, neuralgia, sciatica or rheumatism. Nothing more soothing or powerful. The 50c. large family size is the most economical. Small trial size 25c. at dealers everywhere.

Office Holding.

A man holds office for a while, and bleeds and dies in flossy style, but save our bulwarks from decay, and then upon a fateful day he finds he is an also ran—the office job has dumped the man. And does he then gird up his loins, and say: "I'll go and chase the coins as in the sunny days gone by, ere I began to bleed and die"? Ah, no! He's done with useful toil; you will not see him till the soil, or curdy down old Dobbin's legs, or scratch around to find the eggs. He will not plant the corn in May, or bale the fragrant, juicy hay, or herd the humble bumble bees. The office germ is in his brain, and all your pleadings are in vain. He has no use for sweat-earned kale; he'll camp upon the Party's trail, where all the deers have-been-throws, and beg of handouts from the strong. He'd rather have some dinky job swarded by the "statesmen" mob than ornament his native town by holding same position down. You learn a lot of tricks and guile, you lose your grip on things worth while, to useful work you close your eye, when once you've learned to bleed and die.

The State of Our Country.

Editor The Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir—As men fought in ancient days for the love of "God and Country," so now, but with almost increased vim do our present day politicians fight with all the powers of their warped minds and partizan imaginations for self vanity and the dollar. It is not necessary to peruse the chronicles of other nations to find this state of affairs. "Hurry begins at home." Let us look deeper than the surface and see the causes of our can representative and rulers. What do we find inside the very polished appearance of our country's Government? Attention for just a few moments, dear reader, and I will tell you.

Our little Island is fast becoming a prey to avaricious men, and losing its old-time independence and pride. Our country is on the eve of financial ruin and disgrace. Newfoundlanders will soon realize it but too late. It doesn't require an omniscient being to see the end of all Sir Edward's vagaries. Can you not, fellow-countrymen, enquire into the state of your country? Upholders of the People's Party as you so name yourselves don't be prejudiced because your paws were greased before the elections. Wake up now. Better late than never, although your waking up may not and cannot save the country. The end is inevitable. Confederation starts us in the face and in a few years will claim us for its own. Those who have fought steadfastly under the old Liberal standard will have the consolation of knowing that they at least were not responsible for their country's disgrace.

It is true that Sir Robert Bond went slowly in his policy but he worked with the motto that always gets there eventually, "slow but sure." He was the man for the people, although in later years people did not realize it. I will quote one instance of which I am accurately informed.

A few years ago when the Bond Government held power Sir Robert wanted to enter into an agreement with the United States by which Newfoundlanders would have the right of "free entry" for their fish into the latter named country in return for the privilege granted American fishermen of fishing in the waters of Bay of Islands and the vicinity. The Americans would not consent to Sir Robert's proposal, and in order to force them into an agreement he passed the law that Newfoundlanders could not fish for Americans unless shipped by the latter three miles outside the Heads. This law was commonly known as the "Three Mile Limit." Of course Bond naturally expected that the Newfoundlanders would back him up in this matter as they should have done, but American rum and American bribery were too plentiful at the time and the Bay of Islanders were persuaded that Sir Robert sought only to down them all and leave their homes without the bread-winners. This is what Sir Robert Bond had to contend with. Is it any wonder then that he retired? And, again, is it any wonder that a crafty politician like Morris can hoodwink the people so easily?

The Government of Newfoundland is in a pitiful even hopeless state of chaos. We must, to use a common expression go on the bum; gain. Time and time again have we been obliged to go borrowing. Poor Richard said, "He who goes a borrowing goes a sorrowing." Who knows but this is our little Island is fast becoming a the proverbial last straw that will break the camel's back. Newfoundlanders profess to be proud that they belong to Britain's oldest Colony and how do they show it? They elect as representatives a set of rogues and allow themselves to be talked into a policy which every rational man must condemn. It is indeed a lamentable state of affairs and still more lamentable that we must wait four years before we can remedy it. Morris began at a fast pace and he has had to keep it up. It is the "pace that kills" and will eventually bring our country to Canada's door in a bankrupt state, knocking for admittance.

The tide of emigration is at present very great. In a few years time it will have increased to alarming proportions. The cause is quite apparent and needs no explanation.

This is a poor man's country and it is the poor man who deserves consideration when new Bills are to be introduced and new laws established. The Tory candidates have a knack of persuading the illiterate population and many of the literate as well, that when returned everything will be made to suit the particular circumstances of each separate individual. They go around smiling benevolently on rich and poor alike before the elections, and when once returned, verily they are the types of whom Shakespeare speaks in the following words:—

"But when he doth obtain the utmost round He then unto the ladder turns his back, Looks in the clouds, scornning the base degrees, By which he did ascend."

This is the return we get for electing such members, and it is only after the elections are over that we find how much mistaken we have been. We vow that never again will we vote for this member or that party, but when four years have elapsed and these same deceivers (to put it mildly) come around again with bright promises and brighter money, all our grievances are forgotten and we vote again for the man who we know is simply using us as stepping stones to riches and fame. Truly, "money talks" and if our Liberal candidates had squandered the revenue, they would doubtless hold the voters, they would doubtless hold the position now occupied by Sir E. P. Morris and his colleagues. But they didn't and all honour to them. They played the game like men to a finish and lost fairly and squarely.

The election of the junior Tory member for Placentia and the turning down of a man like Sullivan, would make one exclaim with Antony:— "Oh justice thou art fled to brutish Beasts and men have lost their reason."

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana, March 4. A disastrous fire occurred at New Amsterdam, south of this city, when many business houses in the town were destroyed.

WASHINGTON, March 4. President Wilson will personally address a joint session of Congress on Thursday, advocating the repeal of the clause in the Panama Canal Act which exempts American coastwise shipping from payment of tolls.

HALIFAX, March 4. A presentation of a silver cup was made by Mayor Bligh to Capt. Inch of the Volturo, this afternoon. Lieut. Governor McGregor was present, and spoke. Capt. Inch's ship, the Principe, arrived from Rotterdam this morning, more than a week overdue.

PITTSBURG, March 4. Capt. Von Stahl, chief of works at the Shrapnel Tube factory of the Puffilo armament works was brutally murdered to-day, by one of the foremen. The murderer then threw himself into the electrical machinery and was crushed to death. There was a strike at the works, and the Captain's attitude to the strikers is the supposed cause of the tragedy.

NANTES, March 4. At Basbrriage en Landreau, a boy named Rideaux, aged 15, who was employed on trial as a vine-cutter became angry, during a discussion with his employer, and seizing an axe, cut the man's throat from ear to ear, killing him instantly. The murderer then entered his employer's house, where he killed his employer's mother and three children. Rideaux admitted in court all the accusations.

LONDON, March 4. The Pall Mall Gazette says that the temperate and restrained language in which Sir Edward Grey referred to the murder of Benton will have the approval of all Englishmen. Its moderation will not, however, disguise the depth of feeling. Every reasor of moral and international right requires of the United States the punishment of Benton's murderers without delay. Civilization stands flouted and Britain outraged, whilst the application of the Monroe doctrine is paralyzed and mocked. Sir Edward says much to emphasize the gravity of recent events, but little to relieve the disquiet. The Westminster Gazette and Standard agree with Sir Edward that the only policy is to await reparation when circumstances permit.

LOUISBURG, March 4. Frozen in the ice-pack, drifting at the mercy of the ocean currents off the coast of Cape Breton, out of coal and water, and short of provisions such is the predicament of the steamer Easington, long overdue at this port. Yesterday afternoon near Gaudin Cape, in a badly used-up condition were picked up some of her men with their hands frozen as a result of their experiences in an open boat. In the morning the Captain of the Easington resolved to send the first officer, and three of the crew out in a dory, in the endeavor to locate Gouin Island, and, if possible, to report the steamer's predicament. Dense fog, which prevailed, prevented them from locating the light, and also from returning to the ship, thus leaving them exposed in an open dory at the mercy of the elements to face the biting storm among the drift, sea and fog. It was in that condition, benumbed with cold and almost exhausted, that the men were rescued. Assistance will be sent the steamer.

MELANCHOLY WOMEN Should Profit by Mrs. Hurley's Experience—Her Own Story Here Told. Eldon, Mo.—"I was troubled with displacement, organic inflammation and female weakness. For two years I could not stand on my feet long at a time and I could not walk two blocks without enduring cutting and drawing pains down my right side which increased once a month. I have been at that time purple in the face and would walk the floor. I could not lie down or sit still sometimes for a day and a night at a time. I was nervous, had very little appetite, no ambition, melancholy, and often felt as though I had not a friend in the world. "After I had tried most every female remedy first, without success, my mother-in-law advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did so and gained in strength every day. I have now no trouble in any way and highly praise your medicine. It advertises itself."—Mrs. S. T. HURLEY, Eldon, Missouri.
