Grand Opportunity For Farmers and Horse Owners.

Owing to the wastages of war, scarcity in the horse supply is in prospect for years to come.

The farmer was never presented with a better chance for turning his mares to good account, alike to himself and to the country.

There is little outlay until the foal is weaned. The mare can continue to do her allotted share on the land, and for many years the demand for an animal serviceable either for draught or carriage purposes will be greater than ever.

For the embodiment of quality and substance the horse breeder is referred to the Imported English Coaching Stallion

FIGURES DO LIE.

Prices are only Relative

REGAL ENGINES are the highest priced engines, yet they are the cheapest.

They are the highest priced engines because they cost more to build.

They are the cheapest engines, because they will last twice as long as any other engine.

They are also the cheapest engines because they save your time, and "Time is money."

If you shut your eyes to this real bargain in engines, you will be the sorriest fisherman who ever signed an order.

You will lose more money than you can afford to lose, and your oil bills will be twice as large.

REGAL ENGINES use less oil, have more power, run with less trouble and give more genuine satisfaction than any other engine on the market.

We are, in the near future, going to ask all cash for REGAL ENGINES, so buy one before we make this change, as we intend to make them the "Hall Mark" engines of Newfoundland.

We ship REGAL ENGINES complete with full book of instructions, and when once installed in your boat, any child can run one.

REGAL ENGINES are higher priced than other engines, but are the cheapest in the long run, because they run the longest.

Operations for the removal of the sunken wrecks Desola and Stella Maris will commence on Monday next in the vicinity of the Reid Newfoundland Co's pier. CHAPTER XXXV.
"Gold?" she murmured, with a sharp note in her sweet voice. He laughed.

"Yes, gold. I found it on a hillside, and not a few specks and grains but nuggets and slabs. What is the matter, dearest; are you cold?"
"No, no!" she replied, almost inaudibly. "Go on!"
"It is found so sometimes; and the lucky man who comes upon it jumps from poverty to wealth in a few minutes. Mary, I was like one possessed when I saw it, and thought of all it meant to me—and to you, dearest. I saw your sweet image hovering beside me, I could almost hear your voice, see the tears in your eyes, tears of joy—as I looked at the yellow heap that meant—ah, what did it not mean to me!—happiness and joy unspeakable. I knew, as I held a nugget in my hand, that I had won the prize that I had gained the right to claim you. Oh, Mary! some day I will try and tell you how I rushed to the hut and broke in upon my friend and partner. He took it coolly—poor fellow, he was in trouble that all the gold in the world could not lighten; and he had left it there, intending to leave it there till the crack of doom for all he cared. And I should have felt the same if I had been in his place, and Heaven had bereft me of the girl I loved."

He leant a little nearer to her, and touched the sleeve of her sealskin jacket with his lips; and though Mary knew that she should have drawn away from him, should have forbidden him to caress her, she could not move or speak.
"Well, to cut out the details—but you shall have them all some day, Mary—we worked our mine for some time as men work when every stroke of the pick, every turn of the shovel means solid wealth, until I could stand it no longer. We were rich, fearfully, tremendously rich already."

Nose Colds Run Into Catarrh
10 Minute Cure Is "Catarrhazone."

Doesn't Matter Where the Cold Is Catarrhazone Will Cure It
Don't sniffle and sneeze with a nasty cold—you can kill it in a jiffy by breathing in the healing vapor of Catarrhazone. It's the quickest, surest thing for colds ever known—simply knocks them right out. No medicine to take when you use Catarrhazone—you just inhale the richest of healing plency essences through a specially devised inhaler.—this medicated vapor is death to the germs of cold or catarrh. It heats and soothes the inflamed air passages, clears out phlegm, stops discharge, enables you to breathe freely.

There were prospective riches in the mine itself, riches almost beyond computation, and I felt that if I did not come back and see you, and tell you, I should go mad. I wanted you, Mary. They say that the possession of gold kills love; but it only increased and strengthened mine. I dreamt of you, I saw you standing beside me as I worked. My partner sometimes asked me why I left off, and what I was gazing at. It was the vision of you, dearest. And at last I said I must go, that I could stay away from you no longer. Another man might have resented my sudden resolution, might have argued with me; but Rayne—God bless him for the truest friend a man ever had!—yielded at once. We packed up our gold and carried it to Victoria. I've got to tell you about that journey, too, Mary, some day. What heaps I have to tell you—got it safe to London—it is in the bank cellars, Mary—and—here I am."

He paused for a moment, but went on, having scarcely got his breath.
"Here I am, dearest, to claim my love. I can go to your father now, not boldly—who would dare to ask for you boldly, Mary!—but with a clear conscience, with a fortune which counts as nothing when set against the priceless treasure I want of him, but one which may persuade him to give you to me. Does it all seem like a wild romance? Ah, that is what it has seemed to me until I saw you, heard your voice to-night. Sometimes I have started awake from a dream that the finding of the gold was only a dream, have started up with a cry, and have fallen back on my pillow, thanking God that it was the dream that was unreal, and that the gold was an actual fact."

His lips quivered as he said this, his voice shook, and his head drooped for a moment. Too sudden a joy has its pains and penalties as well as too sudden a grief.
She knew, and her heart throbbled in sympathy with every swift emotion of his, and her hand slid towards his; but suddenly she drew it back and shuddered. She was forgetting for a moment that she was going to slay this joy of his with a sudden stroke which would be all the worse, more acute and terrible for its being dealt by her hand.

He became conscious of her silence, and looked up at her.
"Speak to me, Mary, dearest! Just tell me that—that you are glad. Of course I know; but I want to hear you say it."

"I—I am glad," she said, hoarsely. He laughed.
"When I've taken you home I'll go back for your father, and we'll come back together—they'll forgive me at home when they know where I've been, when I've met. Rayne will tell them. Mary, dearest, I can scarcely believe that I'm sitting near you, that I can touch you with my hand. Put your hand in mine, dearest! I cannot kiss you—the man—but if you will take your glove off for a moment—"

Her pale face went whiter and her eyes closed.
"I—I cannot!" she said, in a hoarse whisper. "It—it is not my own—now."
He looked at her, not understanding in the least, looked at her with a faint, questioning smile.
"Not your own?" He laughed softly. "No, it's mine now, mine—mine! And can't a man do what he lives with his own?"
He looked at her, looked wistfully at the sweet lips, as a man gazes who has been waiting many weary months for the kiss that shall repay him for his waiting. Then they were passing through the Hatherley gates at the moment, and the light from the lodge window fell upon Mary's face—he was startled by its pallor, but more by the agony in every line of it.

"Mary!" he said in a low voice. "What is the matter? Are you ill? Tell me, dearest!"
As he spoke, he put his left arm round her; but she drew away from him, shrinking as far into the corner of the phaeton as possible.
"Mary," he asked, amazed and startled, and with just the shadow of a terrible fear and doubt crossing his mind, "what is it? Have I said—done anything?"
"No—no!" she responded, with a sob catching her voice and almost choking her. "Oh, how can I tell you, how can I? It is cruel—cruel! Edward"—she faced him with sudden resolution, the resolution of one driven to bay and facing the death which he has brought on himself—"Edward, it—it is too late."
"Too late!" he echoed, dully. "What is too late? I don't understand. For God's sake, Mary, don't—don't keep me in suspense. Explain! It—it is torture—what has happened, why do you look at me like that—speak to me in this way?"
"Can you not guess?" she said, almost inaudibly, with her hand at her throat, as if she were suffocating. "Oh! must I speak plainly—can't you spare me? Oh, God! have pity on me—and him!"
The prayer was only breathed, as such prayers are, but he caught it. His hand gripped her arm, and his face, white as her own now, was near hers, his eyes bent on hers as if he would wring the truth from her.
"What do you mean? Speak! Mary, you—you have not—Ah, no! I had your promise, and you are too true—too true!"
"My promise!" she wailed.
"Yes," he said, sternly. "You have kept it, Mary? Come to me!" The groom had got down and was walking up the gentle rise in the avenue—walking in fear and trembling. "Come to me!" He dropped the reins and held out his arm. "You are mine—you belong to me!"
"No, no!" she gasped.
"No! What—what do you say? If not to me, then to whom? Wait! hold on!" he cried, hoarsely, for he read her answer in her face. "Give—give me time!" he fought for breath, and stared before him, his teeth set hard.
"Now, then—quick! Put me out of the misery of suspense. You say that you are not mine. Is it true? My God! it can't be true that you have been false to me!"
Her head fell, and she covered her face with her hands.
"Yes!" he stammered, dully—"yes, false to me! Mary—you! Oh! I must be mad! I must be dreaming? Who"—he could scarcely go on—"who is it?" he asked at last, hoarsely.
"Lord Ratton!"
He started, and turned on her.
"Your promise! You have broken it!"
Her lips formed the "No," but it did not leave them. Of what use to remind him that she had promised not to marry Lord Ratton "if she could help it"? Better to let him think her

The Lusitania Finding.

LONDON, June 18. Referring to the conclusion of the Lusitania inquiry, Griffith, of the High Commissioner's Office, stated that while not presuming to anticipate Lord Mersey's finding, he believed that the trend of the evidence was sufficient to indicate that the intending litigants for compensation would do well to consider carefully before suing the Company.

Indicted for Perjury.

NEW YORK, June 18. Gustave Stahl, the German reservist, who swore in affidavit, which was submitted to the State Department by the German Embassy, that he saw guns aboard the Lusitania, was indicted for perjury to-day by the Federal Jury.

French Gains.

PARIS, June 18.—(Official). In the sector north of Arras, a violent artillery duel has taken place to-day. Our front remains unchanged. We hold all the ground we have captured. In Alsace we have fortified the positions which we took yesterday and continue to make progress here. Our advance parties at the end of the day reached the outskirts of Metzeral. We have advanced along both banks of the Fecht. We hold under our fire the enemy's communications between Metzeral and Munster. Further prisoners, machine guns, and a very large quantity of war materials, notably rifles and cartridges, have been taken by us. There is nothing to report concerning the situation on the remainder of the front.

Sir John French Reports.

LONDON, June 18. A report from Sir John French was given out here to-night: The fighting on the northern and southern portions of our front has been throughout June 16th, in co-operation with the attack of our ally at Arras. East of Ypres all the German first line trenches, which were captured, remained in our hands, in spite of two counter-attacks, which were repulsed with heavy loss to the enemy. We were, however, unable to gain those of the enemy's second line of trenches, which we had occupied in the morning. East of Festubert, as a result of a further attack on the afternoon of the 16th, we made a slight advance, and judging by the number of dead in the German trenches entered by us, our artillery fire was very effective.

Demand Statement.

LONDON, June 18. The Christianian correspondent of the Reuter Telegram Co. sends the following: The press to-day demands a clear statement of the Government's position regarding the German submarine activity. The Morgen Bladet says that if the Government persists in leaving its attitude doubtful, Parliament must make its voice heard.

London Budget.

LONDON, June 18. Although disagreeing in details both the German official statement, on the one hand, and the French and British communications on the other, indicate that fighting is progressing in the Arras sector and at the northern and southern parts of the short British front, and is as desperate as any that the western theatre of war has developed. The area of hostilities is tiny compared with the sweep on the Galician front, where the Austro-Germans are still driving forward, but the last few days have brought much hand to hand fighting. The British and French are striving to hold the trenches gained, while the Germans, with a preponderance of machine guns, are promptly initiating counter-attacks. Each side dwells on the losses of the other and each emphasizes its gains, all of which have been costly. It is not so much as measured by distance, it is too early to say whether this means a serious advance, or a mere attempt to break through, but it is patent that they are on the offensive. In the east, the Austro-German forces are not only nearer Lemberg, Galicia, but claim to have driven the Russians further across the frontier of Poland in the vicinity of Terebniv, as well as penetrating further into Rensarabia. The battle of Lemberg is now raging along the fortified creek line, where it is predicted the Russians will give a final and stubborn battle to save the capital. The British press, pending such time as the Russians may withdraw their resistance, is finding solace in the reports of the colossal human sacrifices which the Austro-German drive through Galicia entailed. It is claimed that the Russians, even if forced to re-

Methodist Centenary.

We have already pointed out that we are in a week of centenaries. Tuesday last was the Seventh Centenary of the signing of Magna Charta on the famous field of Runnymede, Wednesday was the centenary of the overthrow of Napoleonism, and Friday was the centenary of Waterloo, which marked its complete overthrow. These centenaries are more particularly interesting as most of Europe is on this centenary engaged in a struggle of the same kind, though of a more intense and terrible a character. Britain obtained command of the seas just as she and her allies have obtained to-day, and they were engaged in a task against militarism brought to a vicious pitch of efficiency just as is the case to-day. The armed uprising of barons and people against a feudal king and his forces in 1215 was a fight for free institution in England, just as the fight in Europe to-day is a fight for free institution against the supremacy of a military caste. Curiously enough there is a parallel between the Free Church movement and the struggle for Magna Charta, in which a great ecclesiastic, Stephen Langton, was a leading figure. One of the first provisions, the first if our memory serves us right, was that the church should be free from interference by the feudal king. Stephen Langton, Cardinal and Archbishop of Canterbury, was the leader of this movement, just as the great churchman, John Wesley, was the great leader of the Methodist movement. To-morrow and Monday next has been set apart to commemorate the centenary of the establishment of Methodism in St. John's. On Monday next the Rev. Dr. Bond will deliver an oration in honor of the occasion, in Gower Street Church.

Supreme Court.

(Before the Full Bench.)
FRIDAY AFTERNOON.

The King vs. Dewey Day.—After recess yesterday the Court opened at 2.40 p.m., when His Lordship the Chief Justice proceeded to charge the Jury. In an address that lasted forty minutes, His Lordship defined the position of the Court and the Jury in such cases, and emphasized the responsibilities of each. He defined the law on murder, for which the prisoner at the bar had been indicted. He also defined the crime of manslaughter, and explained clearly the position of the Court with regard to prisoners under sixteen years of age, who might be convicted of either crime. He pointed out that the Court did not inflict capital punishment on persons under sixteen, but such persons upon conviction may be detained at His Majesty's pleasure. He cited an instance of some fifty years ago, when a boy who killed another by throwing a stone at him, was convicted of manslaughter before Chief Justice Brady, and sentenced to a short term of imprisonment. He then reviewed the evidence brought forward by the Crown, and commended Mr. Higgins, Counsel for the accused, for the able defence put forward for his client. The Jury retired at 3.20 p.m. to consider the verdict. They were recalled at 3.25 p.m. and addressed again by the Chief Justice, who explained to them that though the indictment was for murder, they were to bring in a verdict in keeping with the evidence, and were empowered to consider the indictment as manslaughter if they thought fit. They retired again and after forty-five minutes' deliberation returned to Court and announced through their foreman, Mr. James Branscombe, that they had found the accused guilty of manslaughter, and wished to make a strong recommendation for mercy. At Noon To-day Sentence was delivered by the Chief Justice, as follows:—

SENTENCE.

We have given careful consideration as to the punishment called for in this case and in doing so have been influenced by the finding of the Jury and the strong recommendation to mercy made by them on the prisoner's behalf. Having regard to the charge delivered by us to the Jury and upon which their verdict has been founded, we must inter that they have accepted in its entirety the evidence of the accused as to the circumstances under which the crime was committed. In other words, that upon the evidence they have found, as a matter of fact, that the accused employed a rifle which he had reasonable grounds to believe was not loaded. Under the terms of the charge they could not have otherwise returned a verdict of manslaughter. We consider the evidence on the facts by the Jury as binding upon us and that our application of punishment should be regulated by that finding. We have also taken into account the fact that the prisoner is under the age of sixteen.
In order that the gravity of the offence should not be lost sight of because of the lightness of the sentence we take occasion to point out that the rash and reckless use of firearms is in itself criminally culpable and carries with it liability for all the consequences which naturally result. That the rifle used by the prisoner was in itself a deadly weapon is conclusively shown by the tragedy which occurred. Had it been unloaded, though no homicide would have resulted, yet the prisoner would have been justly censurable for a reckless act in frightening those at whom it was directed by pretending that he was about to discharge it at them. It is not permitted that human life should be placed in jeopardy in this way even though the person using the firearms may have reason to believe that they are incapable of inflicting injury and may have only intended to frighten and not to injure. When persons indulge in such conduct they are held liable to the fullest extent for the consequence of their acts.
The sentence of the Court is that you, Frederick Edward Day, be imprisoned in the Penitentiary in St. John's for the term of six months from the date of your commitment, with hard labour.

Mr. Bryan Appeals

To German-Americans to Aid in Maintaining Peace.

Washington, June 12.—Former Secretary Bryan in a statement issued to-day urges German-Americans to aid in maintaining peace between the United States and Germany. He appeals to them to endeavour to influence the German Government to take no steps that would lead in the direction of war. Mr. Bryan also tells the German-Americans first, not to suspect President Wilson of not being neutral and friendly toward Germany, because he is both; second, that the President is desirous of peace, and that it is their duty to aid him in maintaining it; and third not to attempt to connect the negotiations now in progress with Germany with those in progress with Great Britain, because the cases are different.

Thousands of Italians Called to the Colors

Arrive at Rome from Canada and the United States.

Rome, June 12.—Several thousand Italians who have been recalled to the colors, or who plan to volunteer for army service, arrived yesterday from Canada, and the United States, and were received with bursts of enthusiasm from the crowds.
Some of these recruits, although Italian subjects, according to Italian law, were born in America and do not speak the Italian language. Others already had been here to fight in the Libyan war and are anxious to utilize the experience which they acquired then. Many more are expected.

32 Doctors and 75 Nurses

From United States for Service with British Army.

Chicago, June 12.—Thirty-two physicians and seventy-five nurses, comprising the Chicago unit for service with the British army, made preparations to-day to leave to-morrow for New York, whence they will sail on Tuesday for England. The physicians will receive commissions in the British Royal Army Medical Corps.

Baseball.

By CY TOLL.

Why baseball is easily the most popular of all sports is because of its inherent uncertainty and the fact that it appeals to all classes.
To play the game well one must have good judgment, quick perception, courage, and catching, throwing and running powers.
The introduction of the game here was very successful, and the increased attendance at each game is the best proof of this.
Last Wednesday's game between the Cubs and Wanderers was the most exciting ever pulled off here, and was a surprise to the fans who were present. Those who missed it have been kicking themselves ever since.
The game for next Wednesday afternoon is between the Red Lions and the Shamrocks.
The latter, who won the Champlionship Pennant last year, have enlisted the support of several of the Bell Island players who previously played in intertown games, as owing to enlistments there are quite a few green and white uniforms awaiting new players.
The Lions are better than ever, and the game next Wednesday should be the best for the season.

Obituary.

Placentia has lost a good citizen in the person of James Clancey, who passed away on Wednesday, June 3rd. Deceased was one of the good old stock, possessed of many noble qualities, kind, frank and many. Stricken with that dreadful plague consumption, he bore his sickness with cheerful submission and was always ready to meet the final summons to his eternal home, where there is no returning. Deceased was a member of the Star of the Sea Association. He was also caretaker of the Star Hall for seven years and a half. He attained the ripe old age of 73 years. He reared a most talented family of seven daughters and three sons. He leaves behind him a good wife, five daughters and three sons to mourn the loss of a good and kind husband and loving father. To the sorrowing family we tender our sincerest sympathy. SMPATHIZER.

At the City Hall.

The Chairman, Messrs. Harris, McNamara, Ayre, Bradshaw, Mully, McGrath, Morris, Anderson and Withers were present at last night's meeting of the Civic Commission.

James Murphy, Pennywell Road, again complained of the unfenced property near his residence. The matter will be attended to.

W. F. Butler wrote the Council in congratulatory terms re the spreading of oil for dust laying, and suggested that a further quantity be spread on Waterford Bridge Road. This road is not in fit condition to receive the oil, and in the opinion of the Board will have to be repaired first.

E. G. Consens, Manager of the Mercantile Cooprage, asked that the Council procure the services of the dredge to remove some silt near the public wharf, Job's Bridge. The Government will be written on the matter. Levi Froude submitted plans of proposed dwelling off Pleasant Street. The Engineer will enquire into the site before permission can be given.

Mrs. B. Browne applied for permission to make repairs to house on the corner of Holdsworth and New Gower Streets. The matter was referred to the Engineer.

Mrs. P. Grouchy, Barnes' Road, applied for permission to repair houses on Adelaide Street. These buildings are situated within the "fire zone" and the Engineer will be asked to report before the application can be considered.

The Cab Stand Committee submitted their report. They suggested that the cab horses, when standing for hire should be farther apart than heretofore, and that they be placed at regular distances from one another along the north side of Water Street from Prescott Street to Queen Street. The following resolution was submitted and will be fully discussed at the next regular meeting of the Board:—"Whereas under Section 152 St. John's Municipal Act, the Council is empowered to make Rules and Regulations respecting cabs and cab stands;

Be it Resolved,—It shall not be lawful for any cab driver seeking employment to place his cab within 25 feet of any other cab also waiting employment. All persons violating this regulation shall be liable to a fine of Two Dollars, or in default of the same to imprisonment for five days on conviction before a Magistrate at the suit of any Police Constable, who shall be entitled to receive one-half of the fine so imposed."

Tenders for plumbing under the "Small House Act" were awarded Messrs. Stevenson and Mills, respectively.

With the adoption of reports from the various departments, and passing of pay rolls, the meeting adjourned at 10 o'clock.

MUNICIPAL COLLECTIONS.

The municipal collections for the week just closed amounted to $1,628.76 as compared with $10,827.48 for the corresponding period last year. The excess of last year's collections over those of this year is accounted for by the fact that $9,257.75 was collected for coal taxes during that period. ASK FOR MINARD'S AND TAKE NO OTHER.

Latest of German Submarines Real Marvels of Terror

The Americans are just now talking about the plans for their seagoing submarine, the Schley—of a thousand tons displacement and twenty-one knots' speed. This craft, however, does not appear to be greatly superior to the German submarines now raiding innocent commerce off the coast of Britain.

One of the German U boats that are believed to have been lurking off the Irish coast has been described by the skipper of the collier Fulgent that was sunk by her. She was of the latest type, painted grey, over 400 feet long, carried six torpedo-tubes, showed no number, and carried a powerful gun on deck.

These details correspond to those of a submarine of the U35 type. Such a vessel is as long as a modern destroyer, and must displace about 1,000 tons. In effect she is a sort of submarine cruiser. The Palaha was sunk in the Bristol Channel by one of these later U boats.

Have Wide Radius. These vessels can keep the sea for many weeks without having to take in supplies of any kind. Their effective radius is about 4,000 miles. In other words a modern German submarine could go from Liverpool to Newfoundland and back, or an equivalent distance from a German naval base, such as Zeebrugge.

Their surface speed is supposed to be from eighteen to twenty knots. When submerged, it is considerably less, probably about ten or twelve knots.

According to the German naval Press the latest U boats are fitted with double-acting Diesel oil engines of a thousand horse-power or more. These engines are as simple and run as smoothly as the marine steam engine, and are easily controlled.

Large stores of oil are carried in oil-tanks, fitted outside the hull. It is thought to be safer to carry the oil outside. These external tanks are also believed to add to stability of the craft and to make it much less cranky at sea.

As the oil is drawn off from these tanks, sea-water is admitted as ballast. Thus the oil-tanks co-operate to some extent with the diving tanks. On the surface the submarine, with her conning tower, upper decks, quick-firing gun, two wireless masts, sharp prow, and free-board, looks not the least like the conventional submarine, but a form of gunboat.

When submerged, the two hatches are closed, the wireless masts folded down, the oil engines stopped and the electric motors run from accumulators, started, the air pressure in the boat raised, the water-pumps set going to fill the ballast tanks, and the diving planes adjusted.

In the latest type of boat, though not in the earlier, the whole operation takes less time to achieve than

CARE OF THE HANDS. All hands cannot be beautifully shaped, but they can be well groomed, and this at once proclaims the gentlewoman. Many pretty, tapering fingers are disfigured by nail biting and it is always a shame to allow this habit to continue.

Even a young child's nails should be manicured as soon as the biting habit begins. If the nails are well shaped and smooth, the cuticle pushed back and kept free from hang nails, there will be much less tendency to bite them.

The nails should always be filed, not cut and the cuticle should be pushed back a little each day. A tiny, delicate edge of cuticle should always be left at the base and sides of the nails, as this was intended by nature to keep the nails shapely.

When the cuticle is gently pressed back each day, the little white half moon, at the base of the nails which adds greatly to their beauty is revealed. The shape of the nails should conform to the shape of the finger ends, and extend slightly beyond. A good flesh dot, rubbed into the backs of the hands two or three times a week will prevent wrinkles, and keep the hands plump.

To remove a glass stopper from a bottle, put a few drops of oil on the stopper and let it stand. Then turn firmly in the neck of the bottle.

lar, ten dollars, a hundred, for that matter, but you could not equal Nerviline, either in strength, quickness of action, or permanency of relief. If you think this too much to say for Nerviline, try it, and be convinced. If you receive from Nerviline even a little less relief from pain than this advertisement induces you to expect, you can get your money back. The only pain remedy in the world sold under a guarantee is Nerviline—surely it is safe to try it. Nerviline is sold by druggists everywhere 25 cents or 50 cents a bottle.

resolutely keep the price down to cover an ordinary profit and the rest would have followed suit.

Instead, we know that sugar which sold at $3.75 when war broke out advanced in a few weeks to 10 and 11 cents. Surely this was not absolutely necessary?

The fact that our principal flour and provision merchants prosper is in itself sufficient proof that whatever losses they have to bear, the gains more than compensate.

I know that prices fluctuate altogether beyond our control, but my protest is against our merchants taking the utmost farthing in the way of profit. They eagerly voice the excuse that they suffer on a declining market but they do not sit down and realize what large gains they very often make; they throw the responsibility on the fluctuations of the market and the fact that they possibly may have a loss another time makes them take every advantage a rising market may bring, without thought to the reasonableness or unreasonableness of the profit.

A volunteer, if he thought of his life, would elect to remain away from the front of the battle, because the chances of losing his life are more at the front. But he has the feeling of patriotism that makes him indifferent to chance, and does his duty without regard to gains or losses. Is it too much to expect that in these times of war and taxation our merchants should sacrifice business opportunities to serve the common good? The volunteer gives his life for his all. Can we do less than offer our business to the Empire? The volunteer's pay is not the object of his life. Should merchants make profit the object of their lives?

SUPPLY AND DEMAND.

"Importer" says that Supply and Demand will regulate the prices of all commodities. That is, he acquiesces in the ruling of prices by a few men who hold control of any commodity, say flour, who base their demands on the large or small stock in the world of flour and the probable desire of the people who need it. If there is a big stock of flour, in order to get clear of it, the price will be made low. If there is a small stock of flour, the price will be made high, because there are people in the world who can afford to pay a high price for flour and there would be just enough flour for these people. So that it resolves into a case of "one man's necessity being another's opportunity." If there is a demand for anything, the price will go up; the holders, seeing that others need it, will make them pay the utmost for it. If there is plenty of a thing, the price will be low because there is enough to go round and to ask a big price would leave a lot unsold.

Now that is what is called "Supply and Demand." That is what makes sugar and flour go up. Can you make it square with Christian ethics? Does it not "rob the poor because he is poor?" "He that oppresses the poor to increase his riches shall surely come to want." When you come to think of it, is not this law of Supply and Demand disgraceful to the human intellect?

If I had a barrel of apples that I was selling at 12 cents a dozen, and I found that there was not another apple in town and immediately raised the price to 50 cents a dozen I would be doing exactly what the controllers of provisions do.

It is this law (?) of supply and demand that is bringing the co-operative societies into being, and making the ordinary individual talk of "revolution." There is enough of the produce of the land to feed everyone comfortably and day by day the time is drawing nearer when the people as a whole will take the matter of distribution of the world's food into their own hands, and out of the hands of the comparatively few men that control it at present.

The law of Supply and Demand puts the poor man down and keeps him down, and there is no more disgraceful record of the human intellect than the principles which embody it, and which the business world has taken to its heart.

FOR PROHIBITION.

The Russian Minister of Finance says: "Even if I desired to remove the prohibition (of vodka) I should not now be permitted to do so. The people would refuse to allow this evil thing to come upon them again."

The net profit from vodka sales is stated to be more than one-fourth of the total revenue of the Russian state. Russia sacrificed it all. The result is that crime has everywhere diminished. Saving bank deposits rapidly increase. The Treasury Comptroller said that $2,910,000 was deposited last December, as against $70,000 only in December 1913. The Russian Finance Minister says: "I am relying on the fact that the suppression of the vodka traffic has increased the productiveness of our people at least one-third."

"If it is a small sacrifice to give up wine, give it up for someone else's sake; if it is a big sacrifice, give it up for your own sake."

THE THOUGHTS OF THEOBALD.

SUBMARINES.

It was away back in 1596 that John Napier, of Merchiston, spoke of "devices of sailing under the water, which he hopes to perform." An attempt was made in James II's reign to row a boat under water. In 1774 a man was drowned in Plymouth Sound in a submarine boat which he had invented and about the same time Bushnell, of Connecticut, and Robert Fulton made other unsuccessful experiments. In 1887 a boat was constructed with a displacement of 243 tons. When it was intended to submerge her, her funnels were stowed and water-tight scuttles were fitted over the apertures. Under the water the fires were extinguished by means of steam and superheated steam then became the motive power. The sinking was effected partially by the admission of water, and completely by means of two vertical screws, which worked in apertures in the vessel's bottom, and pulled her down to the desired level. Then the next year boats were driven by electric accumulators. A little later Holland, in America, brought forward his submarine and his type has since been adopted by the United States Government, and in 1900 the British Government also ordered six boats designed on the same plan. These boats carry three torpedoes and have an explosion tube forward, and when they are submerged they are driven by electricity at a speed of 7 knots. The British Government also built a class of vessel which has a displacement of 300 tons, of 13 knots and a radius of action of 500 miles. This great War has shown how deadly dangerous these small craft are, and how powerless are giant steamers against their insidious attacks. They are guided by the periscope, which is placed about twelve feet above the deck and it is only when this is above water that they can see their whereabouts. Consequently when in action the lives of

The Wet Canteen.

Temperance workers among the women of Ontario are circulating a strongly worded petition among the wives and mothers in Canada asking that the Premier, Sir R. Borden, and his Government, shall use their utmost endeavours with the Imperial authorities to have the sale of alcoholic liquors discontinued among our Canadian soldiers.

The petition sets forth that "the Canadian Government, through the Minister of Militia, Major-General Samuel Hughes, promised that alcoholic beverages would not be furnished to our Canadian soldiers in the canteens, saying to our Canadian mothers that if they would give consent to their sons to enlist, he would guarantee that they would return home as clean and as manly as when they went. On this definite understanding mothers withdrew their objection to the enlistment of their sons, and in many instances themselves became efficient recruiting agents."

It is a very reasonable request that the wives and mothers are making of the Premier of this Dominion. Apart altogether from any promise made by the Minister of Militia, the need of keeping temptation out of the way of the young men who volunteer for service at the front is an urgent plea from the standpoint of their moral welfare and their efficiency on the battlefield, that one is disposed to wonder why the Wet Canteen has not been abolished long ago. When Russia declares for prohibition, and France declares intoxicants to her soldiers, it is high time for Canada to insist that the "flower of her young manhood shall not be demoralized by the blighting curse of strong drink, and especially at a time when the Empire is in peril and can only be saved from overthrow by a great army of strong men who should not be allowed to impair their efficiency by drink."

There is no class in the Empire who are giving so much to this war as the wives and mothers whose loved one have gone to the front. It has cost them very dearly, and no consideration should prevent the Government from fulfilling its promise to secure the abolition of the Wet Canteen.—Ex.

In the Sunflower State.

From William Allen White's story of how Kansas "swore off" and of why the "swearing off sticks," in the Saturday Evening Post, we call the following facts:

Kansas consumes per capita per annum $1.25 worth of liquor for all purposes as against the average American consumption of liquor of $21.00 a head.

Forty-eight of Kansas' 105 counties did not send a prisoner to the penitentiary last year.

Eighty-seven counties did not send an insane patient to the asylums.

In fourteen counties no jury has been called in ten years to try a criminal case.

Fifty-three counties have empty jails.

Thirty-eight counties have empty poor-houses.

The Kansas death rate is 7 1-2 per thousand—the second lowest in America.

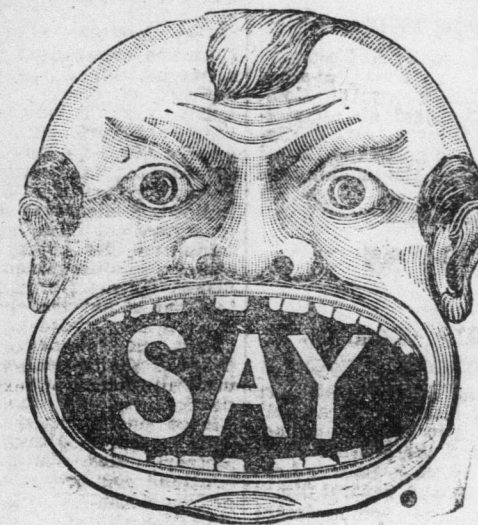

Bank deposits have increased in ten years from $100,000,000 to $230,000,000. The average holding taxable property is $1,666.92, the largest in America.

Kansas has decreased its state debt faster than any other state.

It has over 8,000 students in its colleges and in other educational institutions above the high school grade—more according to population than any other state.

It has 39,468 students in the high schools. "Thus, we find," says Mr. White, "that the state having the largest number of students in colleges, according to population, having next to the lowest death rate, and having the smallest state debt in proportion to its population, is the state in which the smallest average expenditure is made for liquor. Stirling Song by Welsh Choir of the members of the Gwyn choir, who were returning from tour in America. The 14 were to go to Wales by the Transylvania, but the fates decreed that at the last moment of the group should decide their passage to the Lusitania thus it came they crossed the Atlantic on the last voyage of the Gardner. Three of the singers for the change with their lives were G. F. Davis, the vocal Isaac Jones and Taranhis Dwyer.

Dewi Michael, the director of the singing, was one of those who the floating pieces of wreckage capsized boats together into a shift raft, by which many were kept near him and help built were G. B. Lane, Risca Wyn Gwyn Jones, Spencer Hill and Tom Smith.

"After we had been floating for some time," said Mr. Dwyer, "counting the singers' expenses and saving all we could reach of the members of our party singing, 'Praise God from Whom Blessings Flow,' and I don't ever heard it sung with such a cry, and as that would not be struck up 'Tipperary,' and the laughed. It was remarkable 'Tipperary' went. It seemed to us, and the tune was taken several people in other boats were floating about until it reached loud and clear across the water together it was a remarkable scene."

Dewi Michael later recalled strange fact that the last song by Mr. Davis, the beloved choir or of the choir, was "Down with aander."

Stirring Song by Welsh Choir, Survivors of Lusitania Gave Courage and Hope to Grief-Stricken Women in Boats.

English papers tell of the heroism of the members of the Gwent Welsh choir, who were returning from their tour in America. The 14 members were to go to Wales by the Cunarder Transylvania, but the fates had decreed that at the last moment nine of the group should decide to shift their passage to the Lusitania, and thus it came they crossed the Atlantic on the last voyage of the great Cunarder. Three of the singers paid for the change with their lives. They were G. F. Davis, the conductor; Isaac Jones and Taranial Hopkins.

Dewi Michael, the director of the singers, was one of those who bound the floating pieces of wreckage and capsized boats together into a makeshift raft, by which many were saved. The other singers who managed to keep near him and help build the raft were G. B. Lane, Risca Williams, Gwyn Jones, Spencer Hill and Preston Smith.

"After we had been floating about for some time," said Mr. Hill in recounting the singers' experiences, "and saving all we could reach, some of the members of our party started singing, 'Praise God from Whom all Blessings Flow,' and I don't think I ever heard it sung with such feeling. Then some of the women began to cry, and as that would not do, we struck up 'Tipperary,' and then they laughed. It was remarkable how 'Tipperary' went. It seemed to cheer us, and the tune was taken up by several people in other boats which were floating about until it resounded loud and clear across the water. Altogether it was a remarkable experience."

Dewi Michael later recalled the strange fact that the last song sung by Mr. Davies, the beloved conductor of the choir, was "Down with Sal- amander."

"It was sung at the concert we had on the ship the previous evening," said Mr. Michael. "It is a strange coincidence that he should have been singing that song so near the time when he himself should be going down. He sang it well, too. I fancy I can hear his beautiful bass voice now." The proceeds from this concert on board the night before the Lusitania was torpedoed, amounted to $650, which was to go to the Seamen's Orphan- ases in Liverpool and New York.

Amazing Shots.

Marksman Who Won Victories With Difficult Feats.

Private Fulton, of the Queen's Westminsters, the crack shot who tied for the King's Prize last year at Bisley, recently shot from a range of 700 yards a German officer who was signalling to gun batteries from a window. He thus saved the lives of many of his comrades. It has been asserted that in warfare an expert marksman is little better than the ordinary soldier, but although this may be true in the heat of battle, there are occasions when the coolness and nerve of an expert rifleman may not only save his own life, but the lives of a hundred others. During the Indian Mutiny, Edward Ross, a Queen's prize winner, utilized his skill as a marksman to save a military station full of women and wounded soldiers from being sacked by natives. A strong body of rebels attempted to cross the River Gogra to attack the station, which had few unmounted men to defend it. Ross who had only just arrived at the station after a ride of eighty miles, on hearing of the threatened danger, hurried to the river bank, and with the aid of four sepoy dug a trench close to the only fordable spot. When the enemy appeared and manned a large flat boat in which to cross, Ross, with unerring aim, picked off the rowers, and forced the vessel to return to the other side. Again and again the natives made the attempt, but Ross, with a dozen rifles expertly loaded by his attendants, kept the enemy from crossing for three hours, when a body of British troops with big guns arrived on the scene.

At the siege of Lucknow, Sergeant Halliwell won the Victoria Cross for saving countless lives by picking off the natives who endeavored to man big guns which were placed in such a position that they could have poured a pitiless hail of lead into the town. The guns were placed on a roof close to the city, but Sergeant Halliwell determined that they should be silenced. Procuring the best rifle obtainable, he took cover behind a pile of debris, and with uncanny aim picked off the enemy clustered round the guns one by one. Hour after hour he continued his vigil his only change of position being to turn now and again upon his back to relieve his cramped limbs. At nightfall his comrades, crawling upon hands and knees, brought him food and drink. Eventually the battery was raided and blown up, much to the relief of the gallant sergeant, whose skill and bravery had kept it silent for days.

During the Boer war an Irish private on one occasion had a bet with his comrades that he could hit a tin can which a Boer in a distant encampment was drinking. The soldier won his wager, for from a range of 600 yards he knocked the tin from the Boer's hand. Later on the incident had an astonishing sequel. The shock of the bullet hitting the Boer's tin caused a crust to slip down his throat, which actually suffocated him.

K. of C. Lecture.

Mr. P. J. Summers, Grand Knight of Terra Nova Council, presided, and the Council Chamber was filled to its utmost capacity. The lecture was a most instructive one, and was followed with close attention by the large gathering present.

At the close a vote of thanks proposed by Mr. W. R. Howley, K.C., Advocate of Terra Nova Council, was tendered Bro. Rev. P. P. Sheehan by acclamation.

One of the prominent photo plays to be shown being the magnificent two reel production by the Kleine Eclair Co., entitled: "Trapped by Wireless," superb photography combined with first class acting and scenic effects. The balance of the programme will equal if not surpass any yet shown at the British Theatre which is daily gaining popularity.

"THE SEA GULL" AT THE CRESCENT PICTURE PALACE.

A most attractive picture program is being shown at the Crescent Picture Palace to day. "The Sea Gull" is an Indian romance produced by the Vitagraph Company, the photography of mountain and forest in this feature is truly wonderful. "When the Night Call Came" and "The Nurse and Counterfeiter" are two splendid dramas. "The Dogs of War" is a fine war picture showing the sagacity and usefulness of trained dogs in war time. The two comedies are very laughable; in all there are six pictures, truly a big show for little money. Mrs. Hannaford sings a nice catchy song and Mrs. Nurse plays an appropriate and classy programme of music. For a good show go to the

The last chance of the little ones to see a pantomime this season, and Bo Peep and Boy Blue is very delightful. It is the last day Mr. Ballard Brown and Miss Madge Locke will be among us, so rally round and give them a good send off. Last night Rosalie's could not find standing room for their patrons, so crowded out was the large theatre. The first prize was won by two dainty little ladies from Torbay. So popular has the contest become that there are often people from the outports to compete. The little ladies winning the prize were very clever, and played their musical instruments with great skill. Don't forget the big farewell matinee of Bo Peep and Boy Blue; a great big show.

"OURS" IN THE WEST END. As usual there was a good attendance last night at the ever popular little theatre, and the little singer was well received. The patrons of the cosy little house are always well assured of a good evening's amusement. Good pictures clearly shown, good music and a clean, comfortable little theatre.
