For Daisie's Sak.

CHAPTER XXXV.
"GOD HELP US!"

"I don't like the look of you, Daisie. You've been falling steadily ever since you came here, ten days ago. I don't believe you've ever smiled since you came, and you don't eat as much as a bird. Now you don't feel well enough to rise from your bed, your face is red and feverish, and your pulse fairly frightens me. I'm going to send for Doctor Burns, and write for your husband to come."

"No, no—you must not let Mr. Sherwood know unless I should be dying, and—there's no such luck as that. The wretched are long-lived," bitterly. "But you may send for Doctor Burns, Aunt Alice, for I believe you are right. I am going to be ill."

She fell back among her pillows, shut her eyes, and seemed to sleep; then, before the doctor came, she had passed into delirious babblings. While she sat by the bed, watching her with the greatest uneasiness, she had a lucid interval, in which she begged him not to let Royall know of her illness.

"He is not strong, and the shock might kill him. You can take care of me," she said pleadingly.

But when she was quiet again, he whispered to her aunt and Annette: "But, good heavens, this is brain fever! I fear that she will die!"

CHAPTER XXXVI.
THE STRENGTH OF LOVE.

The anxious days came and went until Daisie had been ill almost two weeks, with scarcely a conscious moment; but still no word went to Royall Sherwood of her illness, because of the promise she had extracted not to let him know unless she was actually dying.

And, though the fever rose to its greatest height, and her delirious ravings made their hearts ache with the fear that she could not live, still the crisis had not come yet, and the letter was not sent.

There was no lack of skillful nursing, no lack of medical care, no lack of love, for Aunt Alice and Annette were her all their time; but it almost seemed as if nothing could hold Daisie back from the land of shadows to which she was hastening. She had no hold on life, because she was weary of it.

On that beautiful day when the sun came out so brightly, and the blue waves lapped the golden shore at Gull Beach, Doctor Burns thought he saw a subtle change in his patient, whether for better or worse he could not yet say, but he told them that the crisis would come that night.

"Had we not better telegraph Mr. Sherwood now?" he asked anxiously.

"No; I would wait the result of the crisis," Annette answered, so decidedly that he hesitated and gave in.

About sunset he came again, but he found no change in his patient, who still remained in the stupor that had fallen on her at noonday.

The trained nurse had gone out for a breath of fresh air, and Annette sat by the window watching the sunset lights upon the sea, her eyes sad and her bright face pale with anxiety.

Doctor Burns sat down at her side, and whispered abruptly:

"I have news for you. Royall Sherwood's Fifth Avenue residence was burned to the ground just before daylight this morning."

Annette gave a wild start of surprise, and he added:

"I read it a while ago in an even- ing paper—a telegraphic item."

Annette thought with horror of the helplessness of her patient.

"Up rose up in her throat, almost smothering her, as she gasped: "Don't tell me that Mr. Sherwood—"

"Forgive me for alarming you—I read your thought—he is safe."

"Thank Heaven!" she breathed, clasping her little hands in joy; and the doctor continued:

"He was saved by the heroism of a gentleman staying in the house, who carried him out through smoke and flame. In his arms. But here is the paper. You can read it for yourself. Very short, but I suppose the morning papers will give us full particulars."

The tears sprang to her eyes, almost blinding her, as she grasped the paper and devoured the short paragraph from New York:

The elegant Fifth Avenue house of the millionaire, Royall Sherwood, was burned to the ground this morning just before daylight, by a fire whose origin could not be discovered. Mr. Sherwood, who is a helpless cripple, must have perished in the flames but for the heroism of a Mr. Raymond, his private secretary, who carried his employer out in his arms through dense fire and smoke at the peril of his life, and sustained fatal injuries in the performance of his noble act.

"Oh!" gasped Annette; and there rushed over her memory the last words she had heard from Ray Dering's lips.

It was when they were leaving New York that day when Daisie had turned to him in the hall and begged him not to let Royall miss her, but to try to make him happy, he had answered so earnestly:

"Have no fears, dear madam—I will devote my life to him."

To Annette he had bowed, without a word, feeling that she preferred it so; but the sad, yearning glance of his fine dark eyes had haunted her painfully ever since.

"I will devote my life to him," he had promised; and in those two words, "fatal injuries," Annette read the story of that devotion.

Freshly, gladly he had sacrificed himself in atonement for the wrong he had unwittingly done Royall Sherwood in a moment of jealous rage and madness.

Something seemed to snap asunder in Annette's tortured heart, and she astonished the good old doctor by sinking back unconscious in her chair.

"Good gracious, what a nervous little thing!" he ejaculated, hastening to apply restoratives; and when she opened her eyes presently he exclaimed:

"Tut, tut! You are too tender-hearted."

"Oh, you do not know—you do not understand," shuddered Annette, leaning her little dark head against the windowpane.

At that moment the rumble of carriage wheels stopped at the gate drew her attention down into the street.

She started in wonder, and swept her hand across her eyes, as if to clear their vision, exclaiming:

"I must be dreaming! This cannot be reality!"

The old doctor was looking, too, and he blurted out, in amazement:

"Bless my heart! If that is not Royall Sherwood stepping out of the carriage, too, with two strong legs as limber as mine. It's a miracle!"

But their eyes had not deceived them. It was indeed Royall Sherwood, stepping with old-time grace and lightness, and Aunt Alice met him at the door and led him in.

They waited with bated breath five minutes, and they came upstairs together.

Royall Sherwood did not seem to see any one but the wreck of beautiful Daisie, lying so still and silent on the bed. He went and stood by her, gazing in horror at the wasted face and form, and the shorn head whence all the golden curls had been clipped away so as to apply ice to the burning brain.

"Can this be Daisie—my wife, Daisie!" he muttered, in grief and dread, and fell on his knees, his arms clasping the unconscious girl, his slight frame heaving with emotion.

They stood around in reverent silence till the storm of grief spent itself, and he looked up indignantly, crying:

"Why was I not told of this? How

The World's Finest Library

Facts About the British Museum.

There is a prevalent belief that the English are, as a race, indifferent to learning. Whether that be so or not it is undeniably true that England possesses in the British Museum Reading Room what is probably the finest library in the world.

This wonderful collection of books grew from small beginnings. It was in 1753 that Sir Hans Sloane bequeathed to the nation his books, manuscripts, objects of natural history, and works of art.

An Act of Parliament directing the acceptance of Sloane's offer provided also for the purchase of the Harleyan Library of Manuscripts and the incorporation of the two collections with the Cottonian Library, which was at that time housed in Dean's Yard, Westminster. In order to provide the funds and to secure a permanent lodgment for the books the Government raised by means of a lottery the sum of £100,000. Montague House, in Great Russell Street, was purchased as a suitable place for the reception of the libraries, and in 1759 the British Museum was first thrown open to the public.

Lamb's "Course of Reading." A reading-room was set aside for the use of students, but it does not appear that many availed themselves of the facilities offered there. Indeed, the late Lord Beaconsfield has left it on record that when his father, author of "Curiosities of Literature," first frequented the place, towards the close of the last century, his companions never numbered half-a-dozen.

One of the first visitors to the reading-room was the poet Gray. "I often pass four hours in the stillness and solitude of the reading-room," he writes to a friend in August, 1759.

A later visitor was Charles Lamb, who came to the room to study the collection of plays which David Garrick bequeathed to the Museum. Writing to Bernard Barton on September 26th, 1826, he says: "I am going through a course of reading at the Museum. . . . It is a sort of office to me; hours, ten to four, the same. It does me good. Man must have regular occupation, that is used to it."

Over Four Million Volumes. Thackeray in early life made frequent use of the reading-room, and on one occasion travelled from Paris to London to obtain material for an article on French affairs, as he found the Bibliotheque du Roi practically useless.

In course of time Montague House proved too small for the numberless treasures which it contained, and the present building took its place. The existing reading-room was built in 1857 at a cost of £150,000.

The library contains over four million volumes, about twenty thousand of which, consisting for the most part of dictionaries, encyclopaedias, gazetteers, county histories, and other works of general reference, are ranged in shelves around the walls of the reading-room. These may be consulted without a form. In order to secure other works, however, the reader is required to consult the catalogue, fill in the library number of the book wanted, and hand the form to one of the assistants at the large desk in the centre of the room. The book is then brought to him by an attendant.

How to Become a "Reader."

The printed catalogue might almost be described as a library in itself. It consists of some eight hundred volumes, and it owes its inception, in its present form, to the industry and enthusiasm of Sir Anthony Panizzi, for many years Librarian to the British Museum. The first volume, containing the letter A, was printed in 1841, but immediately afterwards the printing of the catalogue was suspended for some years.

Under the terms of the Copyright Act of 1842, a free copy of every printed book, newspaper, or document printed in this country is required to be sent to the Museum. A similar order, by the way, is enforced with regard to the Bodleian Library at Oxford.

The use of the library is open to every qualified student who is not less than twenty-one years of age. Those wishing to become "readers" must apply to the Superintendent, stating for what purpose they intend to use the room—it is advisable to specify some particular branch of study—and enclosing a recommendation from a London householder. Tickets are granted for a period of six months, when they are renewable on application.

The Silent Room.

A visit to the reading-room is an interesting experience to the student of humanity. Here are gathered men and women from all climes and of all classes and conditions. Though the room is capable of accommodating four hundred and fifty readers—and there are generally not fewer than three hundred present—an atmosphere of profound silence envelops the place.

For some reason or other, the room appears to have a peculiar fascination for Hindus, and it is seldom that one does not find a sprinkling of Indian gentlemen engaged upon their studies. Ministers of religion, together with writers of books and journalists in search of literary "copy," make up, perhaps, the bulk of the readers. The late General Booth was a con-

Feels Like Brand New Man
Since Taking Tanlac, Says
King's County Man.

"Tanlac has not only relieved my troubles but has built me up twenty-five pounds and I am feeling like a brand new man," recently declared William J. Saunders, of Gondola Point, King's County, New Brunswick.

"For five years my stomach was in such a terrible condition that at times I could hardly retain a glass of water, and the little I did force myself to eat disgusted me up until I fairly had to fight for breath. I simply dreaded mealtimes because of what I knew I would suffer after eating, and ate so little that I fell off thirty pounds in weight and was so weak I could hardly do a lick of work.

"I frequently had headaches and dizzy spells when everything seemed to swim before my eyes and I would have to seize hold of the nearest object to keep from falling. I used to roll and toss on the bed for hours at night unable to sleep and in the mornings always felt tired and irritable.

"The very first bottle of Tanlac did me good and I have been picking up right along ever since. I now have an appetite like a wolf and can eat anything and never have a particle of indigestion. I said before I have gained twenty-five pounds in weight and I'm so much stronger that the day's work is a pleasure instead of a drudgery. I don't have those terrible spells of dizziness any more and I sleep like a log at night. Tanlac certainly is an A. I. medicine and I shall recommend it every chance I get.

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors; by Reg. Sullivan, Pouch Cove; Sound Island Store, Sound Island; Dennis Flynn, Avondale; J. J. O'Brien, Cape Broyle; J. W. Smith, Baine Harbor; W. A. Burdock, Belleoram; John Morey, Fermeuse; Mrs. Jos. Quinn, Renew's.—adv.

formed habitue, and some years ago, there was a Benedictine monk who was rarely missing from his accustomed place. Women readers are almost as plentiful as those of the male sex, and Tennyson's "sweet girl graduate" is to-day a familiar figure.—T. Michael Pope, in John's London's Weekly.

WORTH KNOWIN'.

Worth knowin', every one of 'em: The rich, the poor, the good an' bad; There's some as will have none of 'em. But few the real friends they've had. They pick an' choose so very much. Discardin' her, an' scornin' him. That they've completely out o' touch With Jane or Bess or Joe or Jim.

Why bless your life! in this here town I've lived for forty years or more, An' watchin' the folks go up an' down In daily march jus' by my door. An' for the drunkard or the mayor I've always had the same hello! There's not a one of 'em, I swear, But what it's been worth while to know.

I ain't inclined to pick an' choose, I've never had my nose too high Or trained my lips so they'd refuse A cherry word to passers-by. There's some do things I wouldn't do, An' some of 'em have stooped to shame. But here an' now I'm tellin' you They're all worth knowin' jus' the same.

Friends! Lord, I've found 'em dressed in rags, An' mighty queer to look at, too; The worst o' this town's scalawags Was one that I was glad I knew. The richest man was none too good, The meanest man an' then was kind, What matters cut of dress or hood If under it a friend you find?

Simple an' quiet, proud an' gay, Busy or lazy, dull or bright; All sorts of people, day by day, Have stopped an' treated me all right. An' take 'em as they've come an' gone, With all their faults of pomp an' show, I'll say this now: there wasn't one It did me any harm to know.

Rejected Lover's Crime.

Chaperoning her daughter at a public ball at the little Belgian village of Plawinne, near Namur, Madame Defurnaux was approached by a young man of the village named Leon Doby, who craved permission to dance with the girl. Always opposed to this young man's advances to her daughter, the mother turned him down; the daughter danced with somebody else, and, after the ball, mother and daughter returned home, where they occupied a common bed-chamber and retired to rest, leaving the window open.

Awakened about three o'clock in morning, the two women were terrified to see young Doby standing before them. He called on the mother to consent to him paying attentions to her daughter. The mother told him to go about his business; she would have none of him. Thereupon Doby pulled out a revolver and shot Madame Defurnaux fatally through the heart. A second shot, fired at the

The Association has been formed to build houses to rent. These houses will be let to tenants at reasonable rentals or will be sold to tenants on easy terms of payment.

Additional objects of the Association are: To remove tenants from houses which are unfit for human habitation to homes of health and comfort; to destroy all hovels within the city; to adopt a proper town planning scheme; to lay out modern streets with a perfect system of sanitation; and to rebuild certain sections of the city gradually so that workingmen can live with their families amid cheerful surroundings.

The proceeds of the sales of houses bought by tenants will be reinvested in Government securities to provide a redemption fund to pay off the Capital.

The programme outlined by the Company is to build one hundred houses during the year 1921. In order to carry out this work the Directors make an appeal to the people of Newfoundland to take up the necessary Shares without delay, so that arrangements can be made with Lumber Mills and Contractors for work to be done. The one hundred houses will be built on Merry Meeting Road, in accordance with a Town Planning Scheme, prepared by the City Engineer and adopted by the Municipal Council in 1919. The thirty houses to be built by the Company this year and now nearing completion, will give the public an idea of the class of house to be erected. A more suitable site for a garden suburb would be difficult to find, it being situated in the country and yet within ten minutes' walk of Water Street.

To live in a suburb of this sort with pure air, plenty of space around the house, and modern interior sanitation and improvements is to ensure health for the residents who will realize to the full the advantages of good living. In a Garden Suburb children thrive, they grow up vigorous in mind and body; their daily association with trees and flowers, birds and all the manifold delights of nature develop in them a love of all things beautiful and a better understanding of life.

We appeal to the public to subscribe the Capital without delay for the erection of one hundred houses to be built and ready for occupation before the end of the year 1921.

Household Notes,

Wrap oysters in half glass of bacon, fastened with wadgen (tooth-picks). Brown on both sides. Do not forget to shrink goods before making up, and to set all colors in cotton goods before washing. Candy should be made on a cool, dry day and allowed to harden in a cool, dry place. Never put into the refrigerator. On the handy shelf in your kitchen keep a glass jar for odd nails and tacks. Below, on a nail, hang a small tack hammer. Cabbage for salad should be shaved fine, soaked in cold water for two hours, drained, dried and dressed with French dressing. Window shades can be colored to harmonize with the room. Use one of the ready-made preparations. It lengthens the life of the shades. Old cloth dollies decorated in dull blue are very attractive for summer service, and do not have to be washed: simply wiped with a damp cloth. Make your own syrups for waffles and pancakes: they are delicious when made of fruit juices, and are much cheaper when made at home. The approved method of making French dressing is to put all the ingredients in a bottle with a glass stopper, and shake thoroughly just before serving.

W. P. A. and the Children's Hospital.

At the meeting held yesterday afternoon in the Grenfell Hall, Lady Horwood presided and regretted the absence of Lady Harris, who has shown such interest in the Child Welfare Movement. She pointed out the object of the gathering was to enable the public to pronounce upon the proposal that the W.P.A. should avail themselves of the generous offer of Sir E. R. Bowring and open Waterford Hall as a Children's Hospital. The proper upkeep of the exterior will also be undertaken by Sir E. R. Bowring. Before taking up the project the W.P.A. met fifteen doctors of the city twelve of whom spoke and were anxious as to the great need of the hospital, but did not think Waterford Hall suitable, particularly for surgical cases. Sir E. R. Bowring offered to sell the Hall and provide a building in town if the W.P.A. kept it filled to capacity. He was acquainted of the doctors' opinion that the Hall was better than no hospital at all and agreed to run one in a smaller way. Despite the generosity of Sir E. R. Bowring and promised aid of the Government, a large sum will be needed to keep the institution going. The object now was to find out what the public were willing to do. The welfare work is going on well, but if the Waterford Hall idea could be taken up was the question to be decided. The Hall requires a lot of repairs and better system of lighting. Miss Haslam, who is in charge of the Child Welfare Work, pointed out that a resident doctor, probationers, a cook and other help would be needed at the Hall. The water service is unsatisfactory and a new furnace and kitchen range were necessary besides improvement in ventilation. An hospital is badly needed as 20 children died in August, whose lives might have been saved in such an institution. One objection to the Hall is that it is too far away for doctors to visit in their daily work as they would wish to do to see the results of their treatment. Some conveyances would also be needed in connection with the Hall. It was thought the water supply might be improved by connecting with the new main running to the Lunatic Asylum. Mrs. McKeen pointed out that if the hospital were in town the doctors would give their services free, and Mrs. Earle thought their opinion should be taken. Miss Haslam felt accommodation was needed for fully 100 children, and it would be unwise to spend money on the Hall as it is now. Mrs. A. Macpherson moved that Sir E. R. Bowring be asked his opinion as to new site and building on up-to-date lines. Mrs. E. B. Mitchell thought the children might be moved for a time as a trial from the Le-Marchant Road Hospital to the Hall. Miss Haslam felt the working classes would contribute generously to such an institution as mainly their children would be treated there. After some further discussion it was moved by Mrs. H. Macpherson, seconded by Mrs. H. Rendell and carried, that Sir E. R. Bowring be asked to defer the disposal of the Hall for a short while until the cost of a site and building to contain 25 beds in the city is being ascertained. Mrs. A. Macpherson, Miss Haslam, Mrs. H. Rendell, Miss Furlong, Mrs. McKeen, and Dr. Wilson were appointed a committee to undertake this work.

Dear Sir,—Mr. William McCarthy of Corner Brook, Bay of Island, caught a salmon on hook and line, on Wednesday last, weighing 61 lbs. As far as I can learn here, this is a record for the Humber River, and I would like to know if it has ever been equalled. There has not been a salmon of equal weight caught here in a net I am told. The length of this fish was 4 feet, 6 1/2 inches. Yours truly, OWEN BROWN. Humbermouth, Sept. 20th, 1920.

Labrador Report.

RYAN'S BAY TO THE FARMYARDS.
The Marine and Fisheries Department is in receipt of the following report from Hopedale sent by Capt. George Barbour of the S.S. Wren. The message was dated Sept. 10 and says: North to Ryan's Bay, and our report is: Number of schooners north of Okak, 41; average per schooner, 300 qtls. South of Okak to Framyards, 132 schooners, average per schooner, 200 qtls. Total average per schooner, 224 qtls. Total catch to date $3,700. On our way south good fishing was done at Mugford Tickle, also fair fishing at Nanatuck, Mugford Hr., Cut Throat and Framyards; other places not much doing. At Framyards most of the schooners have left for home well fished. While on this trip weather has been stormy and has caused much damage to traps, a number of which have been lost, especially at Framyards. Yesterday and to-day, the 9th and 10th we have had a gale from the North with thick sleet and snow, and the land has now the appearance of winter. Stormy weather has greatly handicapped the fishermen who claim that had the weather been good, prospects were favorable for a fair fishery. This report is as near correct as it is possible for us to get up to date of Sept. 1st. This report only takes in schooners which are within our route. About Framyards we make no report. There may yet be a good bit of fish got, although there are now several schooners on their way home, some well fished, others not getting enough to hang on for.

Gas Company's Loss.

Minnesota City Will Raise Rates.
Brainerd, Minn., is without gas service as the result of an accident to its gas plant, together with inadequate repairs. The loss to the plant amounted to about $8,000. Owing to its record of losses due to low rates for gas, according to President A. G. Whitney, of the Brainerd Gas and Electric Co., it would be impossible to raise the money needed to make repairs. It is expected the city will consent to a rate of $3.25 for gas until commodity prices come down sufficiently to warrant a reduction. In the course of a public meeting on the subject of a gas supply it was shown that the company has lost $42,601.70 since August, 1919. The number of consumers is approximately 700.—The "Gas Record" Sept. 8, 1920.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

DO WE NEED TO GUARD AGAINST TOO MUCH SAFETY?

There is something that I want very much to say to-day and yet am almost afraid to say. Suppose I put it in the form of a question—Don't you think there can be such a thing as too much of the safety first spirit?

We have been carried along in the last few years on a high wave of this safety first idea. We have been urged to guard ourselves from this infection and that germ, to clean our teeth with antiseptic tooth pastes half a dozen times a day, and wash our hands with antiseptic soaps before we touch food, and sterilize the slightest cut, and spray our throats against the germ that lurks in our neighbor's sneeze, until it seems to us as if we may perhaps be in danger of putting too much attention on the whole subject of health, and need a safety first movement away from that.

How About Your Childhood?

The feeling has been growing in me for some time, but the thing that crystallized it was reading in a safety first article that 25 per cent of all slight cuts became infected. Is it possible that that is not an exaggeration? Would it be possible for any statistician to really know about anything like that?

When I was a child I was forever cutting and bruising and banging myself; the cat scratched me, I fell down on the concrete and barked my knee most hideously, I tore my legs on berries when I went berrying, I cut myself on broken glass, and never in all my childhood did I have any serious trouble with any of these minor abrasions. I don't suppose I was an exceptional child. I wonder what the statistician would say about all the childhood cuts that these are typical of?

Not long ago I saw a mother worrying and fretting over a tiny cut in a child's hand that no mother of my generation would have noticed. She had, as I happened to know, been reading this variety of safety first article.

Too Much Prevention.

True, an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure, but it seems as if some people used at least a pound of prevention to save them from the chance of having to use a pound of cure.

Many doctors feel that a large per cent of indigestion is caused by nothing except too much thought as to whether this or that is going to agree with one. Wonderful cures have been wrought by getting the patient to stop thinking so much about his digestive processes and let them work in the peaceful unconscious way Nature meant them to.

Of course no one would advise that the simple laws of health should be neglected. One comes back in this, as in everything, to the old Greek motto—"Nothing in Excess." In other words, don't let the wave of safety first publicity carry you too far, don't get an obsession on the subject—or, like the man who got one devil out only to make room for seven more, your last state will be worse than your first.

Household Notes.

When you wish to dry your hair in the sun after a shampoo, pull it through a crownless broad-brimmed hat.

Medium-weight Turkish toweling is excellent used for dishcloths. It is more expensive, but worth the difference.

An excellent hair shampoo may be made by saving small scraps of white soap and melting them to a jelly. Flour and sugar sacks are well worth saving; they may be used for dish towels, breadcloths and cheese-bags.

Perhaps there are holes in your tinted walls. Fill them with plaster of paris mixed with a little coloring matter.

Protect the edges of your knives by a pocket arrangement. Silver should never be simply thrown into a drawer.

Cut up left-over cooked carrots, turnips and beets. Mix with celery and French dressing, and serve with cold meat.

Cook turnips in unsalted water until transparent. They will be coarse and indigestible if cooked in salted water.

Mrs. Bocker—"Rather; I've had two husbands, three landlords, and four cooks."

Bridget O'Flynn—"Toimes have changed, indeed." "Tis true fur yes! O! used to cook fur women that O! wouldn't play bridge wid nowadays."

"How unworthy I am of you, dear," he murmured as he held her close. "Oh, Fred," she sighed, "if you and father only agreed on everything the way you do on that, how happy we would be."

"Isn't Miss Priscilla Knowitall a professor in that girls' college any more?" "Oh, no; she's gone way up in the world since she was there. She's getting a cook's pay now."

"Any malaria around here?" inquired the stranger. "I dunno," answered Uncle Bill Bottletop, very cautiously. "Did you come prepared with any special medicine for it?"

Each time a preserve jar is emptied, wash, scald, put on its lid and return to the preserve closet ready for use.

DISEASES AND REMEDIES.

I've tried all kinds of remedies which are supposed to cure disease, and there are some which give relief from anguish, faintness, pain and grief. Pills will drive away the pain, and leave you feeling safe and sane, but only for a while, be sure! There is relief, but there's no cure. The dark green pains will all come back and make your weary sinews crack, and smoking, slide along your bones until you fill the night with groans. Beware the pills, whatever their hue, the green, the purple or the blue, which lull you for a little while, and seem to urge a hopeful smile. For when the aches come back again, as they will come to pillfed men, they'll climb your tendons and your thews, and they'll have spikes upon their shoes. There's but one cure for fleshly ills, and that cure's not disguised as pills. The Good Book tells of one old gent who 'neath his maladies was bent; he often to the doctors stept, "and with his fathers then he slept." And that's the only cure I know for all life's miseries and woes; just cast away the juice of squills, the porous plasters and the pills, the trusses and the liver pads, and go and slumber with your dads.

Newfoundland's Political Merry-Go-Round.

A correspondent from the codfish zone writes: "If Canada wants an Irish problem all she has to do is to get Newfoundland into Confederation. The political dog days down here last the year round." This was meant by way of commentary on the latest political embroglio in the most ancient colony, which involves His Excellency the Governor, Sir Charles Alexander Harris, K.C.M., and his chief adviser, Hon. Richard Anderson Squires.

The Prime Minister is, comparatively speaking, a new comer in office, having defeated the Cashin regime at the polls some months ago. It appears that there were demands in Hon. Mr. Squires' political fold that the conduct of the members of the preceding Government should be investigated. When the Governor was approached on the matter, he remarked, no doubt in bitterness of soul, that from his knowledge of political conditions in Newfoundland during the past two or three years he would consider it disastrous to the interests of that country abroad if such an enquiry into the conduct of some of his late advisers were held.

This remark was necessarily confidential, but the Prime Minister did not seem to appreciate that governmental principle and later, when speaking on a public platform, cited the Governor's words in support of a diatribe of his own against his political opponents. Following the amenities of Newfoundland politics his veracity was questioned and he followed up his speech with an affidavit giving the Governor's words in greater detail. His Excellency is therefore placed in a pretty predicament, although he has so far chosen to ignore the matter. Since he only mentioned "some of his late advisers" the demand is made that he give names and separate the sheep from the goats. Then the question is raised, why, if he was convinced of the sinister nature of some of these late advisers, did he not invoke the Crown prerogative to dismiss them from office? Newfoundlanders are sticklers for constitutional points, and they carry the argument even further. For instance, a Cabinet (it is argued), is one and indivisible, and one Cabinet Minister is responsible for the acts of all so long as he remains a member of the ministry; ergo, all members of the Cashin Government are guilty of conduct that would be disastrous to Newfoundland's reputation abroad if ventilated. And so the argument goes on ad infinitum.

It would appear that His Excellency, who was obviously actuated by a desire to end the carnival of political recrimination which has been in progress for some years, by suggesting that the Prime Minister lay-by-gones be by-gones, has unintentionally got himself inextricably mixed up in a partizan affray, and will be a storm centre until the next political mare's nest is discovered.—Saturday Night, Toronto.

A story is told that Mr. Rockefeller was once asked by a lady why he did not get Sargent to paint his portrait. "Oh, no," was Mr. Rockefeller's reply. "It would spoil my record." "Record? What record?" inquired the lady in astonishment. "Well, 'I've never been done in oils yet,'" answered the famous oil king.

Friday, September 24, 1920.

Where Will It End?

The Fish Export Regulations, the Cull Regulations, whereby the standard of a 1920 enactment is applied to the grading of 1919 and 1920 fish caught and cured before the issuance of instructions, the Sugar Regulations, all point with minatory fingers toward the financial abyss toward which Newfoundland is being hastened.

We believe that no one desires to be unnecessarily doleful, but it is being forced upon all that there are gloomy times ahead. Every sign on the business horizon shows evidences of this.

Having reference to an article in yesterday's Telegram captioned "Discrimination," giving the text of the measure for the furnishing of Bonds by American fish buyers in Newfoundland, we are in a position to-day to state that the sum of the Security Bonds demanded from United States purchasers of our staple article has been set at the following rates:

The most recent development in the European fish buying markets, is the determination or decision, of Italy to have nothing more to do with Newfoundland fish, a decision which leaves the Dominion in a worse quandary than ever.

of our total catch. Can they be found, and if so in just how long a time? As the financial situation stands at present, no firm or number of firms can afford to carry over in stores such a huge complement of our products.

But there is apparently to be nothing by way of relaxation or modification. On the contrary it appears that the determination of the Government is to crack on, even if the sticks are carried away. The demand of the Advocate, editorially, in its issue of yesterday, inspired, if not actually written, by Hon. W. F. Coaker, that censors be placed in the offices of newspapers for the purpose of controlling (suppressing) all utterances and comments relative to fishery matters, is of the very latest type of Prussianism.

Excessive Bond (age). Having reference to an article in yesterday's Telegram captioned "Discrimination," giving the text of the measure for the furnishing of Bonds by American fish buyers in Newfoundland, we are in a position to-day to state that the sum of the Security Bonds demanded from United States purchasers of our staple article has been set at the following rates:

Road-Making Machinery. A portion of the new Road making machinery imported by the Road Commission was used yesterday on a very bad section of the Topsail Road, near Dunns, which was practically impassable for the past week.

Prohibits Importation of Sugar. The Governor in Council has issued a proclamation prohibiting the importation of sugar into Newfoundland. It is explained that as the Food Control Board has kept retail prices down to a considerable extent for the past six months, control must be continued until stocks of sugar imported by the Board are sold.

C. L. B. Cadets Sports.

FINAL, POORLY ATTENDED. The remaining items on the C.L.B. Sports programme were run off last evening before a small gathering of spectators. The object of the sports and of excellence of the contests should have warranted a larger gathering.

Charged With Attempted Murder.

The Supreme Court on Northern Circuit, will have a case of attempted murder to try at Bonavista. The accused is a young man, resident of that town named March. The particulars gleaned are: That being of an irritable disposition, he was having some words with his mother over a pair of boots, when taking a gun from a rack he pointed it and fired at his mother, and entering through the wall of an adjoining room, shot his brother in the hand.

Emigration Continues.

THOUSANDS LEAVING DOMINION. Beginning with the close of the trap season the exodus of the best of our manhood has continued in ever increasing numbers and for the past week by S.S. Kyle, no less than 355 passengers crossed the Gulf to seek employment in Canada and the U.S.A. Upwards of 2,000 young men and their own country, the majority perhaps never to return.

The Difference.

It will doubtless have been noted by readers of the Telegram the difference in the spelling, adopted by most of the Canadian papers, of the name of the Lord Mayor of Cork, now in Brixton gaol, and who has been on a hunger strike for over forty days, and that used in the local press. MacSweeney is the Nationalist spelling, while MacSwiney is the correct Sinn Fein orthography.

THROWS DOWN SMILIE.

THE AUSTRALIAN NAVY.
MELBOURNE, Aus., September 23. Australian naval estimates just issued provide for an expenditure of £2,266,000, as compared with £2,000,000 before the war. The personnel of the Australian fleet is given as 6628. Before the war the Australian naval man strength was 3337.

A SECOND CHAPTER.
NEW YORK, Sept. 23. After a week had passed without investigators being able to solve the mystery of the Wall Street explosion the police were presented to-day with another mystery of who placed a package of dynamite in Reid Avenue elevated station in Brooklyn, this morning. The package was found by a policeman doing strike duty on Fulton Street line, which is operated by the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company. He soaked it in a bucket of water and then carried it to Fire Headquarters in Brooklyn. Later it was taken to a laboratory in Manhattan for analysis. Accounts differ as to whether a splintering fuse was attached. Some officials reported that Patrolman Santelli who found it stamped out a fuse.

Civic Commission.
WEEKLY MEETING.
The Regular Weekly Meeting of the Municipal Commissioners was held last night. Chairman Gosling and Commissioners Mullaly, Morris, Peet and Devine were present.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

The following matters were dealt with by the Commissioners:

Deputy Minister of Finance acknowledged receipt of the Commission's cheques for $35,242.62 being half year's interest on the City Debt and contribution towards Fire Department.

C. H. Henderson, Secretary St. Andrew's Church Committee, asked attention to drains Harvey Road. These are being already attended to.

Mr. R. E. Innes asked that houses west St. Clair's Home, LeMarchant Road, be numbered. The Engineer will look into the matter.

Inspector General Hutchings forwarded a communication stating that it would be undesirable for the Commission to give a permit for the erection of a cooperative between LeMarchant Road and Murray St., as it would increase the fire hazard of that locality.

Decided a fight be placed at junction of Franklin Ave. and Gear St., as requested by the residents.

Engineer is to visit C. E. Orphanage to certain connections regarding additional water supply.

Mrs. Flynn, Suburb Street complained of damage through water drainage. The Engineer was instructed to investigate.

Hon. Jno. Anderson, Secretary Dominion Co-operative Bldg. Association Ltd., asked that street line be given Nunery Field, as the Association were considering the erection of more houses. The Engineer will see Mr. Anderson and arrange matters.

Mr. P. J. Summers forwarded communication in reference to proposed street between Franklin Ave. and Gear Street. The Council intends to allow Mr. Fitzpatrick to open this new street, plan of which may be seen at the City Engineer's Office.

Residents of College Square and Colonial Street protest against erection of a garage in this locality. Permission was given for this erection at last meeting and the Commission does not see any reason to alter decision.

A petition was received from a number of Cab owners protesting against the closing of the city streets during the remainder of the season, as it was dangerous to their horses. The best possible will be done and streets of the steeper grade not closed.

Mrs. T. Parker was granted permission to repair dwelling subject to the approval of the City Engineer.

The application of Mr. Marshall to build stable Quill Whid Road was not acceded to as the Commissioners consider same undesirable in the locality referred to.

McCartney & Clayton on behalf of Arre & Sons Ltd., submitted a plan of Compressor. Request acceded to, subject to the approval of City Engineer.

W. L. Woods was granted permission to erect concrete stand for garage purposes; conditionally.

The following plans were approved: P. J. Summers, Freshwater Road; Hy. Lilly, Bannerman St.; A. Faulkner, LeMarchant Road.

Plan submitted by Joseph Soper, New Gower St., was deferred for more particulars.

All plans submitted for approval in the future must have block plan showing surrounding buildings or same will not receive consideration.

The work of grading and making certain improvements on Central St. are to be proceeded with.

Reports received from the City Engineer, Health Officer, Plumbing Inspector, and other Departments' Heads were tabled and with the disposal of other routine matters and the passing of pay rolls and bills the meeting adjourned at 11 p.m.

Never a corn on millions of feet nowadays

Do you know that millions of people who use Blue-jay keep entirely free from corns?
If a corn appears it is ended by a touch. A Blue-jay plaster or a drop of liquid Blue-jay is applied.
The corn pain stops. Soon the whole corn loosens and comes out.
The method is scientific, is gentle, easy, sure. Old-time harsh treatments are supplanted by it with everyone who knows it.

It is made by a world-famed laboratory, which every physician respects. It is now applied to some 20 million corns a year. You can see that corn troubles are fast disappearing.
Then why pare corns and keep them? Why use methods which are out-of-date? Try this new-day method. See what it does to one corn. You will never forget its quick and gentle action. Your druggist sells Blue-jay.

Single-Handed Ships That Have Sailed The Seven Seas.

(By Arthur S. Hildebrand, in the New York Post.)

"I'll give you a ship," said Capt. Preece—and Capt. Slocum, hoping for a fine new steel bark, his mind going back, no doubt, to the old days when he was the last to take in his royal in great gales south of the Horn, followed his friend up the Acushnet River into the fields. A mast was sticking up into the sky—a weathered spar, sprung by long use, with rigging slack and frayed ends of rope trailing. "There she is!" said Capt. Preece, pointing to the sloop Spray, laid up in the meadows a mile from the sea to end her days in dreams of blue water.

There was nothing to suggest billowing royals in the aspect of the mast of the Spray, but to a sailor, especially if he has been ashore for years and is hungry for the sea, a mast is a mast, and makes promises. To a sailor a ship is a ship, and there is delight in him in patching and tinkering and messing about with wood and hemp and canvas, whether the ship be little or big. Capt. Slocum rebuilt the Spray, though she was more than ninety years old and had been given up for a ruin. Timber by timber and plank by plank he replaced the old with the new, until the old Spray, rising from the bones of her dead self, shaking off the idle years of dreaming, was fit for sea.

Those who passed by and paused to watch the progress of the work asked if it would pay. Was the old sloop worth it? The broad, powerful bow of the new Spray, rising up above the meadow, was the answer to that. To a sailor a ship is a ship, and will always pay.

The Spray made possible a great last chapter to a career of voyaging, a worthy climax for a long and adventurous life, when she took her captain alone around the world.

The Spray was about 36 feet long and displaced somewhat more than thirteen tons. She was wide and powerful, strongly built, with a broad, flat floor to sail on, a hard turn of the bilge to hold her up when the wind blew and a long keel to keep her steady on her course. By some standards she was ugly; her bows were round as an apple, her stern as square as the end of a barn, her mast was stumpy and her heavy bowsprit ran out above her figure-head like the trunk of a tree. But beauty is virtue, and the Spray was a perfect craft for deep-water voyaging.

Almost casually Capt. Slocum set out from Gloucester, Mass. His chronometer was an ancient tin clock with only one hand, his stove an improvisation of a cabin lamp, his tender a Bank dory cut in two, with the end boarded up, resembling a bathtub. He had no patent windlass, no bronze blocks, no screw steerer, no polished binnacle. He sailed "by guess and by God." He let her go from Yarmouth, N.S., full and by, around Cape Sable, with the wheel lashed for Gibraltar, and hit it end on. Sailors can do such things. A month

Islands That Are Born.

There was recently another bad earthquake in the Aleutian Islands, which lie west of Alaska, and a new island was born.

It was the third island to rise in these waters within little more than a century. On May 1st, 1796, the Russian admiral, Bognosof, was off this coast when a terrible darkness fell, and fire rushed out of the ocean with a mighty, roaring sound. Next day was seen a black island, three miles round and five hundred feet high, with the sea boiling all around it.

Soon it began to decrease, and to-day there is only a little of it left. In 1883 there was another convulsion, and a new island rose close to the remains of the old one. A year later the first landing was made upon it by British officers. It was still very hot, and about eight hundred feet high. It soon began to shrink, and to-day is less than half its former size.

Fifty Feet Below Water.

Expedition Island, off the north-west corner of Australia, was thirteen miles long, and famous for its beauty. It was visited as lately as 1882. To-day it has disappeared, and is now fifty-feet below water.

In 1693, Torca, a large and beautiful island in the Indian Ocean, began to smoke. The centre sank in, leaving a lake of raging fire, and the people took to their boats in terror. Presently the whole of Torca had vanished, and to-day its remains lie hundreds of feet below the surface of the sea.

The most famous of disappearing islands is the fairy-island of St. Brendan, which was said to lie to the south-west of Ireland, to be frequently seen, yet to vanish when any mariner sailed towards it.

That there was once such an island is clearly proved by its mention in an old treaty in which the King of Portugal ceded certain islands to Castile. Among these islands is mentioned St. Brendan.

Crowning a Pagoda.

A curious festival was held not long ago in Mandalay, the chief town of Burma. A new pagoda dedicated to the Buddhist religion was to be completed by the placing of a huge crown or thi upon its summit, more than 300 feet above the ground.

To witness the ceremony came Buddhists from Indo-China, from the Himalayas, from Laos and Chan and Siam. Warriors from Katschin, sorcerers from Mot and people from other places made a medley of languages like that at Babel.

On a street corner would be seen a barber pulling a customer's tooth. On another corner a Mohammedan bird dealer sold caged paroquets to Buddhists who piously set them free. At every modern booth one could buy ice cream, soda or tea. Mandalay was a gorgeous spectacle and the new pagoda was the centre of it.

Every pagoda has at its summit a thi or cap, the placing of which is often a herculean task. The one now to be raised weighed several hundred pounds and consisted of a gilded ball and crown and a great spindle above it.

To get it to the top an inclined plane of bamboo scaffolding, like a huge toboggan slide, had been built, and was decorated with silk flags and umbrellas. Up the inclined plane the heavy cap was slowly pulled. Six days were required for the ascent and a seventh to fasten it in place.

Would any man or woman in this city refuse to give some small help to a little orphan child who has neither father or mother to provide for him? NOT ONE.

On Sunday next the unselfish Sisters of Belvidere Orphanage are asking the Catholic people of St. John's to help a little in the upkeep of who must have food to eat and clothes to wear --- the bare necessities of life. But a few close friends of the Institution who know of the reticence of those good ladies and their dislike of publicity, have jointly arranged to extend this appeal to no matter what class or creed, who would deem it a pleasure to do something for those helpless little orphans!

Could any father or mother, remembering the sheltering care given to their own dear ones, refuse to give an extra dollar to the upkeep of these little ones?

Labor's Rights And Labor's Duties.

The thinking world has come to recognize that Labor has certain rights and generally it has come to the conclusion that those rights must be granted. The old idea that God intended a certain class to be forever hewers of wood and drawers of water while another class lived in perpetual ease and luxury, is not well received to-day. Men have come to the conclusion that a righteous God can have no favorites, and they reason rightly that the distinctions to which we have referred are purely man-made mistakes, and must be remedied by man himself.

There was always a recognition of the rights of Labor, but of late that recognition has been much more comprehensive than in former days. This is a matter of necessity as civilization has become more and more a very intricate and complicated affair, and individual effort has given place in an ever-increasing degree to co-operation and specialized toil. Civilization seems to demand this change, and it should not object to pay the price for it. If left alone machinery will enslave man and it cannot be allowed to do so. If left alone greed for wealth will destroy the multitude, and religion and humanity alike must interpose.

A Real Danger.

Labor has a right to remain free and this right must be defended. There is no danger of a return to old-fashioned slavery, but there is a real danger of the new-fashioned kind, which binds men with fetters of fear, and poverty, and ignorance, and insists that only so can they be made to do their share of the world's toil. The fear that makes men cringe before their employer simply because he holds their lives, and those of their families at his mercy, this fear is not consistent with human freedom, is not conducive to political progress, and is a breeder of revolution, and as such it must be done away. Labor has a right to insist that if a man is able and willing to work he should not be dependent for continued existence upon any man or any set of men. Labor has a right to freedom of speech and freedom of action, and there must be no intimation from any quarter, high or low, that such freedom will mean loss of employment or industrial blacklisting. The employer who insists upon perfect freedom of action in threatening or dismissing his employee, is an enemy of our present civilization and the worst foe of the employing class. Labor has a right to freedom.

A Living Wage.

And Labor has a right to a living wage. The feeling to-day is that this means not only the necessities of life, but also some of the luxuries. Labor has a right to a comfortable home, suitable and sufficient recreation, constant and efficient medical attention, and provision for old age. If he objected that certain industries cannot afford this, then the answer is that the nation cannot afford these industries. If it be contended that a living wage will mean inability to compete with the underpaid workmen of other lands, we answer that if other nations can afford to degrade their workmen Canada cannot, and will not. And we cannot lose sight of the fact that the civilization of a country and its wage-rate are very closely connected. If Canada is to have a high civilization she cannot pay a low wage. But equally as important as the rate of wages is the matter of education, and this is even more fundamental. If any country is to advance it must stress the education of its people. We realize that this means sometimes revolution, but it means at least well-regulated and wise revolution. What the world needs to-day is not less light, but more; not inability to grasp intelligently the issues of the day, but ability to reason out our problems to a satisfactory answer. We need books; we need manual training; but above all, we need wise and progressive teachers, who love the truth and follow ever after righteousness.

Proper Share in Govt.

And Labor has a right to its proper share in the government of this country. We do not favor class representation very much; but if it be the only alternative to class non-representation, then we see no way out of it. A man has no right to be in Parliament simply because he is a blacksmith or a cooper, but on the other hand he has no right to be shut out because of this fact. Of course we shall be told that in this country one man has just as good a chance politically as another; but while this may be true, theoretically, practically it seems to work out mostly to the exclusion of poor men from our legislation. If this be not true to the facts we shall be glad to know it. One thing we have a right to insist upon and that is that the men who do the work of our country shall be represented in our legislatures by brother workmen, not necessarily fellow craftsmen, but still men who understand their needs and who in the legislature and out of it shall be in the completest and most intelligent sympathy with the toilers of the country.

Honest Work For Honest Pay.

We have argued for the rights of Labor; we should like to emphasize also its duties. There is growing up in this and other lands a belief that a man should seek to make as good a living as possible with the lowest possible minimum of toil; and we have a right to insist upon the old, old truth that men must labor. Labor is essential to the life of the race, equally so to its development, and is necessarily fundamental to civilization. There is an idea abroad which is finding some favor with unthinking men that labor is really a necessary evil, and men should do as little as possible. This is surely a mistake and one which, if persisted in, will have disastrous consequences. We believe in the short-hour day in relation to all; but we believe also just as firmly in an honest day's work for a full day's wage. There has been a tendency to insist upon increasing the wage and decreasing the output. This may easily bring us disaster. If Labor has its undoubted rights it also has its equally undoubted duties, and one of them is that it work faithfully and honestly.

Making Harder Toll.

A man is known by his work, and the man who shirks his share of honest toil is making it harder for some other men. If our shoemakers refuse to make shoes then the rest of us must go barefoot. If the blacksmith and the machinist refuse to toll, then our machine shops must close and the world would stagger back to its old methods of toll. If our farmers refuse to raise grain or cattle, the world must starve. And even if those workers do not refuse wholly to toll, but simply curtail production by twenty or thirty per cent, then there will be twenty or thirty per cent. less shoes, and machines, and grain, and the race will be the poorer by that much. We are all members of one body and if one member fails all the rest will suffer.

The One Solution.

Now this is not nearly so popular as the insistence upon the rights of Labor, but it is just as true, and we fear that in certain cases it is just as necessary. Capital in the past has insisted upon this duty of Labor, and has failed to insist upon its own, and the moment a man begins to talk about the duty of Labor we are apt to suspect that he has some secret sympathy with the old-fashioned individual who worked men like machines until they were worn out and then threw them away. But we are arguing not from the point of view of the capitalist, but from the point of view of Labor itself. If Labor is to live and live comfortably, then Labor must toll; and if one class of Labor insists upon its rights and forgets its duties, other classes of labor will suffer for it. We used to face these questions in all honesty and all fairness, and we can solve them only as we proceed in the true spirit of Christian brotherhood. We are looking forward to an era of co-operative effort in all industry, but that effort can only succeed if each individual is willing to do his share. This is a duty laid upon us alike by humanity and religion. The work of labor can only come to its own by honest work and hard work.—The Christian Guardian.

British Miners' Strike Inevitable.

Only Eleventh Hour Surprise Can Prevent It---Reprisals Taking Place in Ireland---Price Cutting Has Commenced in Chicago.

SIX CONSTABLES KILLED.
DUBLIN, Sept. 23. An official report issued at Dublin Castle this evening shows that the attack Wednesday on a motor lorry containing six policemen, near Lahinch, was more serious than was previously announced. Six Constables were killed, while soldiers, who fired on their assailants, assert that they saw four of them drop. The police allege that their assailants used dynamite bullets and that the wounded were fired upon and killed.

THE BEGINNING OF REPRISALS.
LONDON, Sept. 23. As a reprisal for the shooting of police near Lahinch, says a dispatch to the Central News from Ennis, a party of uniformed men during the night, set fire to 18 houses in Milltown, Malbay, Lahinch and Ennis town and three civilians were shot dead.

PRICE SLICING IN CHICAGO.
CHICAGO, Sept. 23. Price cuts were announced to-day by Sears Roebuck & Co. and Montgomery Ward and Co., two of the largest mail order houses in the United States. Sears Roebuck's reductions range from 20 to 60 per cent, and those of Montgomery Ward & Co. are from 10 to 20 per cent. Some of Sears Roebuck cuts are: sheeting 45 per cent, standard muslin 60 per cent, automobile tires 25 per cent; women's shoes 20 per cent; men's overalls 40 per cent; jumpers 10 to 20 per cent. Although no radical cuts in food were announced, prices in sugar, rolled oats, prunes and a few other articles were reduced from 5 to 10 per cent.

NO DECISION REACHED.
LONDON, Sept. 23. This was a day of conferences. First, the Triple Alliance, composed of the Miners' Railway Men and Transportation Workers met as one body. Then there were sectional meetings, and finally another joint meeting, lasting until midnight. Many of the leaders favored conciliation and further negotiations with the Government, but so far as the miners were concerned the majority decided to endeavor to get what they desire by means of a strike. This policy having been adopted, it remained for the Triple Alliance to decide what, if any action, the Railway and Transportation Workers should take to support the miners. There were many speeches, but the long conference could not reach a decision.

A High Freight.

The skipper of the four-masted schooner George W. Elvey, which pulled into Voight's wharf to unload her cargo of coal, received the sum of $23,000 before departing from New Campbellton last week. This amount represented the amount of his freight on 1,100 tons of coal that are on board, and which was intended for a port in Holland or France. When the vessel cleared from New Campbellton her destination was at either one of the aforementioned places, but being obliged to put in to North Sydney, where her cargo heated, and after a survey it was ordered to be unloaded here, the vessel's voyage ends here, according to the charter. Which makes the freight paid to the owners of the schooner one of the richest freights ever earned by any craft sailing out of these waters in many years.—North Sydney Herald, Sept. 21.

Lord Mayor Worse.
LONDON, Sept. 24. MacSweeney was in a very exhausted condition this morning, according to a bulletin of the Irish Self-Determination League. He spent a bad night, and had severe pains in the head, said the bulletin.

S.S. Schem is due here to-morrow morning from Liverpool.

Reprisals May Occur.
DUBLIN, Sept. 23. General Sir Nevill MacCreedy, commander of military forces in Ireland, in an interview to-day denied that the reprisals for the assassination of police, taken at Balbriggan, by the Black and Tans, and elsewhere by the regular police or military, were actuated by any set policy formulated by the Government. He declared, however, that if the guerrilla warfare of the Irish Republican Army continued, the situation might become such that reprisals would be necessary.

The Inevitable Expected.
LONDON, Sept. 23. The coal situation to-night is very grave, hopes, entertained earlier in the week of an amicable settlement, not having been realized. Interviews between the Government and Miners' representatives have had no result, and unless there is some eleventh hour surprise, a strike will commence on Saturday, which may involve all transport workers as well as miners.

Better at Evening.
LONDON, Sept. 23. The Lord Mayor of Cork is somewhat less exhausted by evening, says a bulletin issued by the Irish Self-Determination League at 8 o'clock to-night. Pains in his head, from which he has been suffering for two days, have abated. He is still conscious.

Leagues for Premier.
PARIS, Sept. 24. Georges Leygues, Minister of Marine, in the Clemenceau Cabinet, has accepted a call to the premiership under Millerand. Leygues will also act for the foreign minister.

Better Keep the Plant.
LONDON, Sept. 24. Workmen at Orlando shipyards, Leghorn, Italy, have refused to return the plant to its owners until paid for their time on strike.

Valuable Waste.
OTTAWA, Sept. 24. At a banquet given here by the Department of Marine and Fisheries to the delegates of the International Association of Fish and Game and Conservation Commissioners, W. A. Found, referring to the waste in Canadian fisheries stated he estimated that three hundred thousand tons of edible fish are thrown away annually.

Wall Street Explosion.
Mr. Jas. J. McGrath, B.L., received a letter, which we print underneath, from his nephew, Jim McGrath. The latter works with the Wall Street Journal and his office is situated on the corner of Wall and Broad.
New York, Sept. 16, 1920.
Time—3:25 p.m.
Dear Uncle Jim.—Great excitement around this section to-day, the whole district of Wall Street was shaken and thrown into consternation at exactly 12:31, noon. I had just left the office and was on Broad Street when there was a great explosion. We all looked in the direction of the sound and saw the smoke coming up from Wall Street right on the corner where the building of J. P. Morgan & Co. is located. Of course we were all scared stiff and a regular panic existed. The glass in all the buildings was broken by the terrific concussion and the latest reports that we have on our ticker is that there are at least 24 dead and approximately 200 injured. The offices of J. P. Morgan & Co. were wrecked completely, the Stock Exchange building was likewise torn up and all the neighbouring buildings lost all their windows. You can imagine what it was like, ambulances and private cars and the Fire Brigade.—the explosion also caused a fire. Everywhere you looked you could see some one bleeding and Broad Street was literally covered with glass—and big plate glass at that. The theory advanced as the cause of the explosion is that it was a conspiracy to wreck J. P. Morgan's place, and the means used were an old horse and wagon that drew up in front of J. P. Morgan's offices on the Wall St. side. There was about a hundred pounds of nitro glycerine and a bomb in the wagon. The bomb was timed to go off at 12:30 sharp and so it did. There was nothing left of the horse or wagon. This is only a supposition and nothing certain yet. It couldn't happen at a worse time as all the people were out at lunch. Will let you know further soon. Guess this is a real up affair anyway I am slightly excited. My office is about 100 yards from Morgan's place and in the same row of buildings as the Stock Exchange Building.

"We hear complaints of certain grocers in the city who sell Flour by the stone which they put up themselves, that they are giving the purchaser a very inferior grade of flour, so much so that the bread baked 'is hardly edible.'—Extract from local paper.

Why take chances--when every worth while Grocery Store always has in stock "Windsor Patent" in the 14 lb. linen bags--for your protection?

Coste a little more, but it's certainly worth it.

BEWARE OF DECEPTION

Statistics show that when egg albumen is used as a constituent of baking powder, the amount so used is too small (usually 15/100 of 1%) to affect the quality or effectiveness of the baking powder containing it, and when so used, is plainly for the purpose of fraud. Intelligent buyers will not permit themselves to be deceived by the water glass test.

MAGIC BAKING POWDER
contains no alum or egg albumen and is guaranteed to be composed of the ingredients printed on the label--and none other.

Diocesan Synod Proceedings.

THURSDAY, Sept. 22. AFTERNOON SESSION.
The House was called to order at 3.30 by His Lordship the Bishop, who read the opening prayers.
The roll having been called, the House proceeded to business.
Minutes of yesterday's session were read and approved and signed.
Canon Bolt presented the report of the Ordination Candidates' Fund. On motion the report was received and adopted.
Rev. T. E. Loder, Grand Falls, moved second reading of Bills to amend Chapters I, VII and IX. of the Constitution and Rules.
Mr. Loder explained that the bills were interdependent, and therefore he wished to have them taken together. The aim of the bills was the alteration of the status of a voter or speaker at a parish meeting, making the monetary standard $3.00 instead of $2.00, and making residence in a parish or mission for a full year necessary before speaking or voting. House agreed.
Rev. T. E. Loder moved the House into Committee of the Whole to consider the matter.
The House went into Committee.
The House in Committee agreed to the amendments proposed.
Mr. Loder moved that the committee rise and report the bill passed. Agreed. Committee rose.
Mr. Loder gave notice that he would on to-morrow move that the bill be read a third time and passed.
Mr. H. S. Hayward moved the adoption of the Report of the Diocesan Board of Religious Education. On being duly seconded, it was agreed.
On motion the House adjourned at 5.30.

NIGHT SESSION.

The House resumed at 7.30, the Lord Bishop presiding. Prayers were read by the President. Rolls were called, and the Synod proceeded to business.
His Lordship read a letter from Rev. Canon Kuhring of St. John, New Brunswick, who visited Newfoundland this summer in the interest of the British and Foreign Bible Society, expressing to the Bishop, Clergy and Laity of the Church in Newfoundland a sense of his gratitude for the many kindnesses received during his tour of nearly a month in Newfoundland.
His Lordship intimated that inasmuch as many other important matters have yet to be considered he would request outport clergy and lay delegates to try and remain in St. John's over the coming Sunday, and that as Bishop he would excuse the clergy from any obligation that they felt they should return to their parishes and mission before Sunday.
His Lordship also read an emission from his charge delivered at the beginning of the session. In reference to the death of George H. Davey and of his real and valuable services as a son of our Church, His Lordship for the Mother Church of which he was churchwarden, his sympathy for our orphanages, his bequests to the orphanage and to Diocesan and Parish funds, witness to the largeness of his heart and the sincerity of his devotion to his Church.
Mr. Brian Dunfield moved the House into Committee of the Whole for the discussion of the debate on the Resolutions on Education. Agreed.
The House went into Committee.
The discussion on the Resolutions continued until midnight, the following members taking part therein, viz: Revs. A. E. Butler, T. E. Loder, Canon Bolt, J. T. Hiscock, H. V. Whitehouse, Canon Bayly, Canon Smart, Dr. Pacey and Messrs. Reginald Dowden, Aaron Stone, R. R. Wood, S. D. Blandford and M. G. Winter.
At midnight, on motion, the committee rose, reported progress and asked leave to sit again at 7.30 to-morrow.
The Committee rose.
On motion the House adjourned, the Bishop pronouncing the Benediction.
