THE Phantom Lover.

(By the Author of "A Bachelor Husband.")

"I telephoned Micky and asked him to come and make a fourth," she admitted.

Esther flushed. She looked up eagerly.

"And—is he coming?"

June shook her head.

"No, he isn't," she said with overdone indifference. "He said he'd got an engagement already, but between you and me and the doorpost," she added darkly, "I don't believe it! I think he just didn't want to come."

"Oh," said Esther faintly. "I expect he has a good many engagements," she added after a moment.

June said, "Humph!" She recalled the curt manner of Micky's refusal, and wondered if there had been a more serious rupture between himself and Esther than she was ever likely to hear about.

"So we shall have to make up our minds to enjoy ourselves without his distinguished company," she said airily. "I dare say we shall be able to manage quite nicely. Esther, aren't you going to wear your fur coat?"

"My fur coat!" said Esther rather unsteadily. "It's not mine."

She was taking from the wardrobe the shabby jacket she had worn the first night she met Micky; it looked more shabby and unsmart than ever, but she was going to wear it whatever happened.

She was smarting with humiliation. She had offered Micky her little olive branch when they parted two days ago at Charing Cross, and this is how he had accepted it!

"If he's trying to pay me out, I suppose it's only what I deserve," she thought miserably, and yet it did not seem like Micky to deliberately try to wish to hurt or humiliate any one.

She did her best to push the shadow aside. She tried to laugh and talk with June as they went off to meet Mr. George P. Rochester.

He was a big, bluff man, with a hand-clasp like the grip of a bear, and a frang that could be cut with a knife.

They lunched at a restaurant which she had never heard of, though June seemed quite at home. There were several people at other tables, whom June knew, and Esther felt very out of it all, and unhappy.

It was a good thing she had refused to marry Micky, she thought with a sort of anger. She knew none of his friends and nothing of the life to which he had always been accustomed. She did not realize that it was the knowledge of her shabby coat that was afflicting her spirits more keenly than anything.

June's clothes were not new, but they had an unmistakable "cut" about them, and Rochester was exceedingly well dressed.

He talked to June a great deal. Once or twice he tried to draw Esther into the conversation, but, seeing that she wished to be let alone, he soon gave up the attempt.

He was certainly a most friendly person—one would have thought that he and June had known one another for years. Before lunch was ended he had invited himself to tea for the following afternoon.

"That's Yankee push if you like!" June said when he had gone. "Give me a Yankee every time to make things go!" She looked at Esther excitedly. "Do you know," she said, "I've a great mind to try and persuade that man to come into partnership with me."

Esther laughed.

"I should say he'd suggest it himself if you give him another day or two," she said dryly. She wandered listlessly round the room.

"I shall have to make up here at the end of the week," she said suddenly. "It's impossible to go on living here, and letting you pay my rent and my food bill. I owe you more than I can ever repay already."

"If you talk like that I'll—I'll kill you!" said June in a rage. "You don't understand what friendship means. Micky has tried to teach you, and so have I, and all you do is to throw it back in our faces. . . . O Esther, don't!"

Esther had turned away and covered her face with her hands.

"I know you think I'm ungrateful and horrid," she said brokenly. "But how would you like to be in my position? I haven't a shilling of my own in the world—the things I've been wearing since I came here are paid for by . . . oh, you know! I hate to look at that fur coat and my new frock. You talk to me about being proud and obstinate; well, I can't help it, you must go on thinking it, that's all; I'd rather die than take anything more from any one. I kept myself before, and I will again. . . ."

"I don't mean to hurt you—I'm a perfect beast," June declared in remorse. "But it does seem such a shame."

Esther raised a flushed face.

"We can't all have money and be independent," she said hardily. "But I think you might try and understand how I feel about it."

"I only know that I'm dying to help you, and you won't let me," June said grumpily. "Lord! where is my cigarette case? I shall swear or do something worse if I can't smoke."

She went out of the room, and Esther heard her go clattering up the stairs. There were tears in her eyes now, but she brushed them angrily away; after all, what was there to cry for! It was only that she had got to go back to where she had left off that New Year's Eve when she first met Micky; everything was just as it had been then, save that she was the poorer now by the loss of a dream.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

June's friendship with Mr. George P. Rochester grew apace.

"Micky's introductions are always a success," she told Esther. "And Micky likes him too—awfully! Mr. Rochester is round at Micky's rooms nearly every night. They're ever such pals!"

"Are they?" said Esther. The mention of Micky's name always seemed to make her heart queer. She wondered if June knew why he never came to the house now, and what she thought about it all.

In her own mind she was sure that Micky had cast her off, and the knowledge left her with a sense of desolation.

She never spoke of him unless June did so first, and she tried never to think of him. But Micky was a personality not to be lightly dismissed from memory, and he haunted her thoughts waking and sleeping.

"If I could only get some work," she told herself, "it would be better. It's so dreadful having nothing to do."

She had applied to Eldred's unsuccessfully—she had eluded the narrow stairs of the agency a dozen times only to be met with rebuff.

"You refused an excellent post I offered to you," she was told jolly. "I am not likely to be able to find you such another."

June coaxed her into helping with the "swindle."

"If you don't I'll have to pay some one else to do it," she declared. "And oh, Esther, don't be so proud!"

So Esther gave in. She filled the little mauve pots with the perfume and fastened on lids and labels till her head swam.

Sometimes Mr. George P. Rochester came to help—at least he called it "help"—but he did very little actual work, as he was always too busy looking at June and talking to her.

"Has he suggested the partnership yet?" Esther asked one night.

June flushed rosy.

"Don't be absurd," she answered, and something in her voice woke a little note of fear in Esther's heart.

"Was she to lose June too? Was there to be nothing left for her in all the world? Her hands shook as she went on mechanically filling the row of little mauve pots.

"Esther," said June suddenly, "how long is it since you saw Micky?"

There was a little pause, then Esther said constrainedly, "I've never seen him since—since we came back from Paris."

She waited a moment.

"Why?" she asked with an effort.

"June kept her eyes bent on her work."

"Because I haven't seen him myself for nearly a week," she said slowly.

"And I hear—I hear that he's running round with that Deland girl again."

She did not dare to look up as she spoke, and she went on quickly, "Of course it may only be gossip—but I've tried to correct herself, "tells me that Micky took him to their house to dinner last night."

June raised her eyes guiltily, then suddenly she pushed the laden tray from her and ran round to Esther.

"Oh," she said impulsively, "it's only—only you could have made yourself care for him."

She put her arms round the younger girl's unresponsive figure.

"I want you to be happy too, so badly," she went on earnestly. "I didn't mean to tell you yet, but I must somehow. George—Mr. Rochester—she broke off, laughing and crying to gether.

"The man's a perfect disgrace," she protested. "I told him so, too! I've only known him three weeks, and—and—she raised her tear-drowned eyes to Esther's face. "What can you do when a man that size kisses you?" she demanded.

Esther had to laugh.

"Why, do what you did," she said. "Kiss him in return."

June wiped her eyes and laughed, and shed more tears.

"I never meant to marry any one," she said severely. "But the dreadful creature seems to want me so desperately badly. I'm really utterly miserable, only—"

"Oh June!" said Esther.

"So I am! At least!"—June looked up and suddenly laughed. "I'm not," she said. "I'm a wicked liar! but oh, such a gloriously happy, wicked liar!"

"And it's all entirely due to me," Micky said when June rang him up the following morning to tell him the news.

"I introduced you! What do I get out of it all I should like to know?"

His voice was playful, but June took him seriously.

"O Micky! if you could only be as

If Your Complexion Is Marred

by clogged pores, pimples, blackheads, freckles or roughness, gently smooth the face, on rising, with Cuticura Ointment on the end of the finger. Wash off in five minutes with Cuticura Soap and hot water, using plenty of soap, best applied with the hands, which it softens wonderfully, and continue bathing a few minutes. Finally dust on a few grains of Cuticura Talcum, the most fragrant and healthful of Talcum Powders.

happy as I am," she said eagerly. Micky laughed.

"I wish you were horses, my dear," he said sentimentally. "But don't worry about me, I'm all right."

"Then, will you come to dinner to-night? No, not at the boarding house! We'll go to the Savoy—just to celebrate. We four!"

"We four!" said Micky sharply.

"Yes—I shall bring Esther, of course."

There was the smallest possible pause, then Micky said:

"I'm sorry, but I've another engagement. I promised the Delands, to go with them to the Hoopers' dance," and rang off in a huff.

Micky hung up the receiver and turned away. He was sorry to disappoint June, and yet he had not the smallest intention of meeting Esther. If she had wanted him she would have sent a note or a message—but she did not want him! More than once she had said that she hated him—it was time to learn that she meant what she said. Micky's pride had got the upper hand at last, and he would rather have died now than make the smallest overture to the girl at whose feet he had once been willing to grovel.

Driver came to the door.

"A parcel, sir. Shall I bring it in?" Micky answered absently.

"All right."

Driver went out of the room. After a moment he came back with a square box which he set down on the table.

"Shall I open it, sir?" he asked, as Micky did not speak.

Micky started.

"Yes; oh, yes—open it. What the dickens is it? I haven't ordered anything."

Driver said that he did not know—that it had been left by a messenger. He untied the knotted string with neat precision, and rolled it into a ball before he removed the paper.

Micky walked up to the table and lifted the lid with faint curiosity.

"A fur coat," he said blankly. "A fur—He stopped. For a moment he stood staring down into the box, then he let the lid fall over it again.

"All right—you can go," he said. Driver walked to the door stoically, and Micky went back to the fire.

So she would not even keep the fur coat! She cared so little for him that she must needs send back his paltry gifts. What a fool he was to care—what a fool!

Driver, coming back for a moment, stopped petrified in the doorway. Micky was standing by the mantelpiece with his face buried in his arms.

Odd and Interesting.

The Automobile Club of Southern California, which has a membership of seventy thousand, is behind a State-wide movement to punish by arrest motorists who discard lunch boxes, tin cans, bottles and other trash alongside the highways.

Mark Hanna Young and Gladys Beck Bukey, of Louisville, Kentucky, applied for a marriage license on the thirtieth of this month. Young is the thirteenth son in a family of twenty-one and Gladys is the thirteenth daughter in a family of thirteen children.

Center Lodge, A. F. and A. M., of Fresno, California, recently witnessed six brothers and a nephew, occupying all the stations from master to junior steward work the Master Mason's degree upon a seventh brother.

Merely to obtain practice at climbing had overcome, the fifteen-year-old boy ascended a suspension cable of Brooklyn Bridge with the skill of a sailor until he reached the tower—three hundred feet above the water. Arraigned on a charge of disorderly conduct, he was remanded to the Children's Court.

In Chicago careless motorists who park their cars over thirty minutes, in violation of the city ordinance, and then chained and locked to one of the electroliers along the boulevard. An officer leaves a card, which informs the owners that he will be glad to release the car—after the owner has arranged to appear in court the next morning.

Nearly 200 gramophone needles, pieces of tin from a sardine box and a pen nib, were found in the stomach of a girl who was operated on at Harrogate, G.B., Infirmary. When, suffering intense pain, she was seen by the family doctor; he found that she had swallowed a piece of tin. X-rays revealed a solid mass of foreign matter about the size of a match-box. The medical men were surprised at the little perforation of the internal organs. As some of the needles were rusty and others bright it is assumed they were swallowed at intervals. She has been discharged from the hospital cured.

Details of the reconnoitering of the trans-Atlantic liner George Washington, which is the largest American merchant vessel ever to fly the American flag, are announced. The cost will exceed $1,000,000. When refitted the steamer will have accommodations for 3,000 passengers. The swimming pool is to be the largest ever installed on a steamship. The installation of 3,000 art fabrics has been made possible as the result of an anti-rolling device. A moving picture theatre with seats for 300 is being provided. There will also be a cafeteria open day and night. The George Washington, which was seized from the North German Lloyd's Line, is to be the flagship of the United States Mail Steamship Company.

With his neck broken as a result of being thrown off a load of hay when his horses bolted on the road, Alonzo Vanclief, aged forty-five, of Mabon Corners, Ontario, is alive. Mr. Vanclief can neither swallow nor talk. His legs, however, are not paralyzed. The victim of the strange accident landed on his head, and when discovered in the road was taken to the emergency hospital at Tilsonburg. It was discovered that two nerves which control the ability to speak and swallow had been crushed and the X-ray revealed the neck broken. Mr. Vanclief is being fed with milk through a tube. His head has been placed in an iron splint. It is doubtful if he will live very long.

The Answer Indirect.

One of the most annoying persons to run against is the man or woman who, when asked a plain question, does not give a plain direct reply. It is not as though they were unable to reply. They could—if they would. Here is an example from real life.

"I say, Brown, have you seen my umbrella?"

Brown's possible replies are two. He has seen it, or he hasn't. But he is an "indirecter"—a user of the "outer" system. So his first reply is:

"It won't rain to-day, old chap."

"It may not. But have you seen my umbrella?"

"My dear fellow, I've a gamp of my own. D'ye think I—"

"I don't. But have you seen my umbrella?"

"If you were like me, old chap, and always put it in one place, you'd know where—"

"Yes, yes. But have you seen it?"

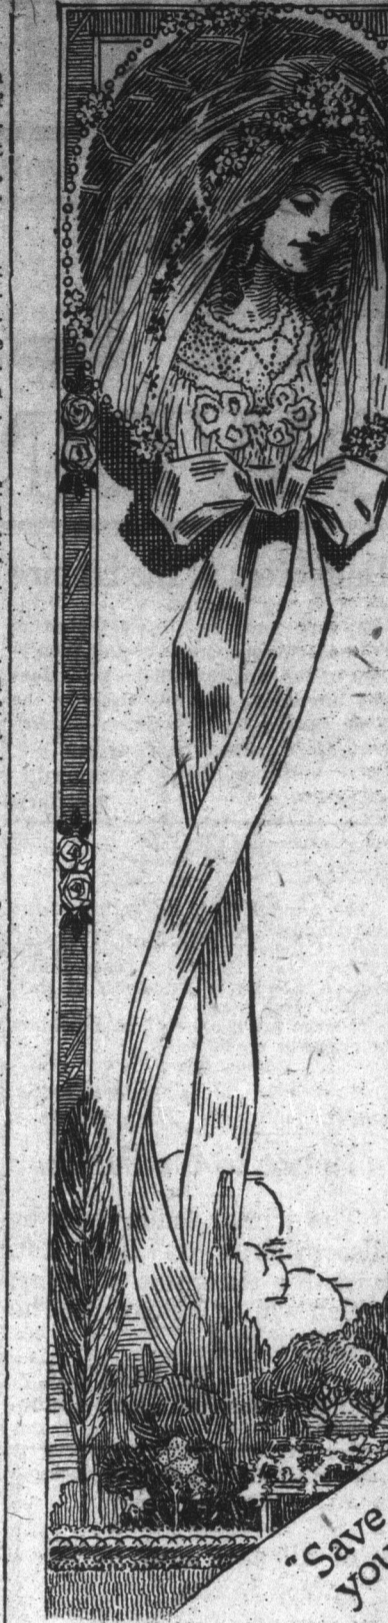

"Anybody with eyes in their head could find it."

"Have you seen it?"

And then, a last, the real reply comes.

Some wives, too, suffer terribly from "indirectitis." Asked by a husband where, say, a muffer is, they will reply: "What do you want a muffer for?" That is followed by: "Didn't you put it on last Sunday?" and "Isn't it the hall?"

Life would be much smoother, time would be saved, tempers not frayed, and nerves prevented if those who suffer from indirectitis would cure themselves of the disease.

SHE came into it perhaps 60 years ago, she enriched it with all the romance of youth, the experience of maturity and, thanks to its wonderful preservation, she was permitted to spend the evening of her life amid the old familiar walls.

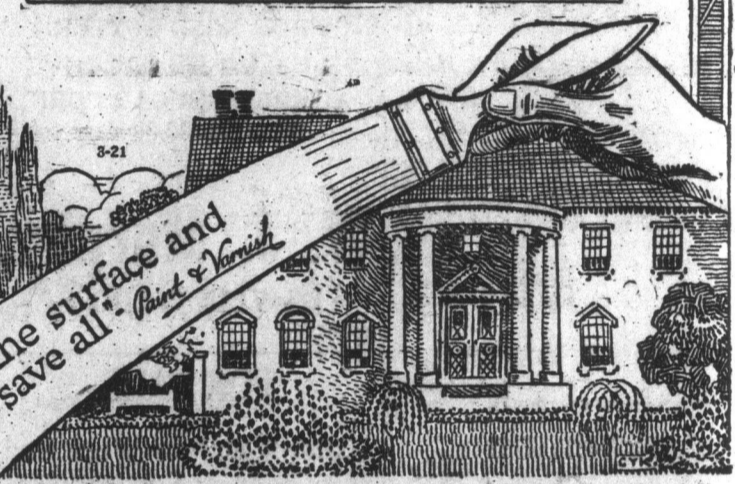

And to-day it still stands—a trifle old-fashioned in architecture perhaps—but in every essential, a home rich in memories and a silent tribute to the wisdom of protection against decay.

THE OLD SOLEMN PARLOR.

I want to see 'em romping on the rug and on the chairs.

And I rather like to fancy that the home we keep is theirs;

I like a house that's ready for the things they want to do.

Not one that's stiff and solemn where the furniture is new;

Let 'em hang at the piano, let 'em go it as they choose.

There is nothing here so costly that it wasn't bought to use.

There was once a house I know of. Where the parlor door was locked. And if youngsters stepped inside it all the grown-ups there were shocked.

And if sticky little fingers touched a table or a chair,

There was always trouble bawling, for all things were sacred there; And back then I made my mind up that when I were older grown, There would be no solemn parlor in the house I called my own.

Let 'em climb the chairs and rockers, let 'em wear 'em out in joy. Let the tables and the sofa show the thumbprints of a boy.

Let a little girl make merry in whatever way she will. And though furniture grows shabby, I will gladly pay the bill.

For I'd rather chairs are battered, than their hearts should know a bruise.

And I want no grand piano which the youngsters cannot use.

Jumps Off Brooklyn Bridge.

Daniel Carone, twenty-six years old, of Mount Vernon, N.Y., on April 19 jumped from the Brooklyn Bridge, landed right side up and is as well as he ever was. This is the second time Carone has leaped from the exact spot made famous by Steve Brodie, and he says he would just as soon take the leap every morning before breakfast.

Carone, who has jumped from the London Bridge, the high bridge at Glasgow, Scotland, and from other high bridges, took the leap as the result of a wager that he would make the jump and remain feet downward all the way to the water. On his last jump, on June 13, 1915, Carone turned twice in the air. He made the leap feet downward this time and won the wager.

Fads and Fashions.

Dinner gowns are without sleeves, but they are cut rather high in the neck.

A great deal of cut-out embroidery is seen on the sheer summer frocks.

A charming hat of gray fallie is trimmed with two tones of ostrich culices.

Blue-and-white foulard and white serge are combined to make a very smart suit.

A plain black satin coat has monkey fur at the bottom and around the sleeves.

A dark blue chiffon gown is trimmed with grape-like bunches of tiny blue petals.

Canton crepe dresses have Vionnet panels at the sides, giving a wide effect at the hips.

Collar and undersleeves of white hemstitched organdie are worn on a black tulle frock.

The short, puffed sleeve is worn as much as the plain strap over the shoulder for evening.

A dress of red swiss dotted with white is edged with sawtooth points of navy blue organdie.

Even bathing suits show the fashionable hip extension in the form of flaring side pockets.

Taffetas are trimmed in tulle of a matching shade. French blue and jade green, being favored.

Flame color, rose, geranium, scarlet and cerise are used for facings, trimmings and embroideries.

U.S. Advocates More Discussion.

Thinks Talking Will Bring About Agreement -- German Reparations Confab Lengthening Out -- Cardinal Logue Sounds Warning to Ireland -- France Ready For Single Action.

U. S. HOPEFUL.
WASHINGTON, April 29. The United States Government still is hopeful that the reparations controversy between Germany and the Allies can be settled by discussion. This was learned authoritatively to-night after the whole situation had been discussed by President Harding and Cabinet and Secretary Hughes had conferred with Jules Jusserand, French Ambassador and Signor Ricci, Italian Ambassador. Upon what administration officials based their hopefulness was not disclosed as there is maintained absolute silence as to the character of the information exchanged with the Allied Governments and also as to the views of the United States on the proposals. It became known however that neither Great Britain or Italy had finally rejected as a basis for possible discussion the German offer. France and Belgium were understood to hold that the proposals as such were unacceptable but apparently their informal replies to Hughes were of such a character as to cause officials here to believe that the door had not been closed to further consideration of settlement by discussion. The impression gained here to-night that the next formal move in the controversy would await the outcome of the meeting at London to-morrow of the Allied Supreme Council.

present new proposals after as before occupation.

DELAY IN ACTION.
LONDON, April 29. The French occupation of the Ruhr District of Germany will not begin as early as was expected this week. Details of the plans formulated by Marshal Foch will be discussed to-morrow by the Supreme Allied Council, but it appeared probable to-day that the march into Germany's richest coal and industrial region, if ordered, would not be initiated until late next week. Advances from Berlin have reflected a readiness on the part of the German Government to make new proposals in place of those sent to Washington for possible despatch to the Allies.

FRENCH OPINION.
PARIS, April 29. A growing certainty that Germany will submit modifications to her reparations proposals in an effort to ward off occupation of the Ruhr region by France prevails generally in French official circles. There is a feeling however that the present German Government will not go far enough to make its offer acceptable in diplomatic circles. Substantial views expressed in newspapers are the occupation of Ruhr doubtless will be approved by the London conference of Premiers and actual military movements may be expected sometime next week.

IT IS FOR WASHINGTON TO ACT.
LONDON, April 29. Published reports that Premier Lloyd George as presiding member of the Supreme Council is inviting the U.S. to send a representative to-morrow's meeting here were denied to-day at the official residence of the Prime Minister. "Such an invitation has not been issued nor is it contemplated," it was said. "It is for Washington to take the initiative step. The door is open for U.S. participation as it always has been."

CARDINAL LOGUE'S WARNING.
BELFAST, April 29. Cardinal Logue, Primate of Ireland, speaking at Colnoe, County Tyrone, yesterday, warned the people against commission of any crime. According to reports the Cardinal said a great many persons, both in Ireland and England, including some with influence, were making every effort to establish peace, and he knew for a fact that if the Irish people abandoned crime they could obtain anything that was necessary for the country.

FOREST FIRE.
SARANAC LAKE, N.Y. April 29. Fire sweeping the outskirts of Lake Placid, to-day called out virtually all residents in the vicinity to fight flames which were headed toward Grand View Hotel. The firemen of Saranac Lake were notified to be prepared for a momentary call. Dense clouds of smoke were rolling toward this place. Much damage was feared unless the fire fighters soon got control of the situation. The forest flames were halted finally by five hundred volunteer fire fighters at the edge of Lake Placid village. All the schools were dismissed and places of business were closed while the fire trench which eventually stopped the flames was being dug.

THE KNOX RESOLUTION.
WASHINGTON, D.C., April 29. In a spirited debate, the Senate to-day proceeded toward a vote on the Knox Peace Resolution arranged for late to-morrow with both friends and foes conceding its adoption. Opponents of the resolution predominated again in to-day's discussion which also developed a break in Democratic ranks when Senator Reed of Missouri made a lengthy address in support of the resolution.

PRINTERS UNION STRIKE.
WASHINGTON, D.C., April 29. Hope for a settlement by national agreement of the disputes between the printing trade unions and employers over wages and hours, was abandoned to-day by Secretary Davis after a series of separate conferences with both sides.

DUE NOTICE INSISTED ON.
PARIS, April 29. Lloyd George would consent to the occupation of the Ruhr District of Germany only after an ultimatum granting a certain amount of delay had been sent to Germany, says the London correspondent of the Daily Mail to-day.

LINER ASHORE.
BLOCK ISLAND, April 29. Three hundred passengers to-night were taken off the Portuguese steamer Mormago which ran aground on the west side of Block Island in thick fog this morning while bound from Lisbon to New Bedford and New York. "Women and children first" was the rule, and the mine sweeper Greb started for New Bedford with 144 of them. She was followed closely by the destroyer McGalls with 160 other passengers. It is planned to transfer the remaining 148 passengers to-morrow morning. An effort to float the vessel will be made at high tide to-morrow afternoon.

A VISITOR IN THE FRENCH ARMY.
PARIS, April 29. An epidemic of gripe of somewhat serious proportions, has prevailed for some time in the French army garrisons and has especially affected the class of nineteen-twenty-one. The disease was communicated by enlisted men who came from regions where the epidemic has been prevalent and its development was favored by lowering of temperature. The War Ministry in a note issued to-day says the epidemic now seems to be decreasing in intensity.

AIRSHIP EXPEDITION.
EDMONTON, April 29. An aerial expedition to the Arctic coast is now the aim of J. M. Larsen, the New York Monoplane man, who has returned from his preliminary air trip to Peace River. His plans at first announced for scouting flights to oil fields and thereabouts have been enlarged to this much more ambitious exploration scheme, and arrangements are being made accordingly. Larsen who has returned to Edmonton for the present will go home to New York in the course of a few weeks and will come back again in time to fly north early in July.

Unparalleled.
For audacity and brazenness, nothing in the History of Newfoundland can compare with the unparalleled impudence of the Reid, Greenwood Co., whom, we understand, intend requesting the Government to become sponsors for their project to the tune of ONLY TWENTY FIVE MILLION DOLLARS with interest at five per cent per annum which means an additional One Million Two hundred and Fifty thousand dollars per year. The first action of the Assembly, should this proposal be submitted, must naturally be the passing of a vote of censure on the promoters of this Company for their effrontery in insulting the intelligence of the members of the Government.

Reviewing but a few of the "bubbles" which have from time to time been sprung on the public, we find that within intervals of about five years, we have the National Products Ltd. bubble, the fairly recent, million dollar hotel bubble, the "around the island" Sanatorium bubble. The only things that seemingly were not bubbles were the many arbitrations which cost this Country Millions of Dollars, and the present notorious scheme, whereby, coincident with Government control of the railway, Reids separated their public utilities and formed them into individual limited liability companies such as the St. John's Light and Power Company, the St. John's Dry Dock Co., etc. etc. In this way the Government is left with the railway only, as security for the two million which they have spent on it.

There, will no doubt, in the future, as at present arise many such "hot air" schemes, apparently aimed at acquiring large concessions of Newfoundland's natural resources, and our people will have to be always on the alert to frustrate these wily attempts. As a business man, I do not see why Reid, Greenwood Co., cannot raise their capital in London without a guarantee from our Government, if their proposition is a sound business one, and not one that is "in the air."

With regard to their project employing five thousand men, Morris gave us the same old story in connection with the National Products scheme. It certainly would be much sner for the Government to obtain twenty five million dollars if they can get it, and employ five thousand men in developing our coal areas, installing hydro-electric plants to give the public cheap light, heat and power etc. History repeats itself, and there is evidently an itching for another arbitration.

The public are not going to stand for any questionable proposition which may be brought forward in future. Our present chaotic condition, brought about principally through incompetency, has brought public patience to the danger point.

Party Before Principle.

Members of the Government have never missed an opportunity of protesting their independence, and declaring vehemently their adherence to principle, but when the real, actual test was put to them, they failed to measure up to the standard set by themselves, and sacrificed their boasted independence and principle to party expediency, thus repudiating the sentiments of the people whose servants they are, and showing that their personally vaunted spirit of courage could not stand the strain placed upon it. As was expected, notwithstanding their heroic attitude a few days ago in the House of Assembly, the members of the Government voted solidly against the amendment to the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne delivered at the opening of the Legislature, the said amendment, in substance, being a request that the Fishery Regulations be abolished. The surprise was, not that the Prime Minister and Northern representatives voted against it, but that Western M.H.A.'s should align themselves in the hostile ranks, seeing and knowing all the evil wrought their constituents by the operation of the Act for which the amendment of the Leader of the Opposition asked repeal. Heroic little gentlemen were the four from Burin, Fort-Beauport and Burgeo and La-Plage. They set party above their districts and expediency before their duty to their constituents, and fell into line against the repeal of the "Act regulating the exportation of Salt Codfish," when the word of command was issued. Small concern it was to them that their districts had been brought down to the verge of ruin and destitution by the imposition of this Act, for which in the true interests of Newfoundland repeal was requested. They did not dispute or oppose its passage last year, neither would they register their opposition to it when the opportunity offered. But perhaps they will redeem themselves later by voting for the Government's own Bill, and thereby create a shining example of consistency, for which they are sure to receive the thanks of the grateful voters in the three constituencies named.

It is a bit funny to witness the distress of our esteemed contemporary the Advocate. It does not yet believe that the Fishery Regulations are going to be wiped off the slate. At least that is the impression left by a perusal of its leading article on Thursday. Still harping on the one string, which must be worn pretty thin, and near the breaking point now, our worthy friend, the editor, serves up a rehash of all his previous articles in favor of the Fishery Policy of the present Government. The same old platitudes, the same old arguments, the same old catch cries. If the Regulations were all that the Advocate says of them, and did so much good for the fishermen, how comes it that their political parent, the Minister of Marine and Fisheries is now piloting a Bill through the House to kill them? If the records of trade show that the Regulations have proven of decided advantage and benefit to Newfoundland why repeal them? Why remove the Act from the Statutes? If they were good last year, and saved thousands of dollars to the fishermen, why would they not be of equal worth this year, and do better service? If the Northern fishermen benefited by them, in 1920, why betray these men in 1921, by the abrogation of the Act? But the question is—Has the country at large profited by the carrying out of these regulations so soon to be numbered with other dead laws? What of the huge quantity of fish remaining in Newfoundland unsold, most of it in the stores of the exporters, but considerable parcels in the stores of fishermen, who can neither sell it for cash or barter it for supplies. Altogether there are some four hundred thousand quintals of dry fish in Newfoundland of the 1920 catch, and prospects for disposing of all this at an early date are nebulous indeed. The Fishery Regulations governing export, and price fixing killed our Brazilian market, antagonized Italian customers, and forbade Americans to come to the country and purchase. Thus three of our finest purchasers were put out of the running, the result being that a huge sum of money is tied up in unsaleable stocks, the most of which would have been consumed long ago had sane counsels been accepted. The Advocate can sing a requiem over the passing out of the Salt Codfish Exportation Act. No one will lament its demise; unless it is those who looked upon it as a gold mine, out of which to get rich quick, but unfortunately for them—and for the country, which is infinitely worse—the mine was "salted."

The Salt Situation.

The letter from the Auditor General in reply to a question of Sir Michael Cashin, which we publish below throws still more light on the Salt Scandal, although there is yet a lot to be learnt. It appears that this salt was paid for with a cheque issued by the Deputy Minister of Finance under instructions, without any Minute of Council. Furthermore, some weeks after the matter had been under discussion in the House, $4,400 was paid into the Treasury on account of the salt by the F.P.E. Instead of clearing up the matter the Auditor General's latest explanation emphasizes the necessity of a full enquiry into it. This letter was written under date of April 27th, and is as follows:

Auditor General's Office, St. John's, Nfld., April 27, 1921.

In reply to Sir Michael Cashin's question I beg to state:

(a) The Deputy Minister of Finance gave me in July last, I think, the information contained in my special report to him. I wish to say that he said nothing beyond that nor anything that would in any way influence me in the direction of the conclusion at which I arrived. The information I gave is all that I received up to the time of writing my report, save that on several occasions when I asked Mr. Keating if anything had been repaid on this cargo I received a reply in the negative. If my conclusion was wrong the blame is entirely mine. I can only repeat that at the time I wrote my report I was honestly convinced that the statement I made was correct.

(b) The payment for the salt was made by a cheque on the Surplus Trust Fund. Mr. Keating was instructed to draw a cheque to cover the cost of the salt. It was paid into the Bank of Montreal to cover the cost of the salt ex S.S. Tuckahoe. I did not become aware of this payment until after it was made.

(c) There was no Special Warrant issued in connection with this matter.

(d) The sum of $4,400 was received on the 18th instant in the form of a cheque of the Fishermen's Protective Union. It was deposited in the Bank of Montreal on the same day by the Deputy Finance Minister to the credit of the Surplus Trust Fund.

Brotherhood Movement.

ADDRESS TO YOUNG PEOPLE. A splendid congregation greeted Rev. W. Williamson in Gower St. Church last evening. His addresses to young people and in the interest of young people and parents were among the finest and most telling that he has yet given. Before the main address of the evening he told the story of the Hall of Heroes, which was given especially for the benefit of the boys and girls present. He led his hearers in turn from the first room in the Hall where the Heroes of Battle were to be seen, to the higher rooms where the Heroes of Truth and the Heroes of Love were to be found. On the steps ascending to the first room were inscribed the words: "It is sweet and beautiful to die for one's country." Here were found such names as the Roman Horatius and the great Lord Nelson. Then in the next room, reached by steps on which were inscribed the words: "The strongest man in the world is the man who can stand alone." Among the Heroes of Truth, the boy visitor found the names of Daniel, true to the faith of his fathers amidst the temptations of a strange land. But in the highest of these rooms to the stairway to which were engraved the words: "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friend," were found the greatest heroes of all, the Heroes of Love, and supreme among them all, the hero of all the ages, Jesus Christ. It was a telling story and made a strong appeal to all the hearers, old and young. After reading a number of passages of Scripture Mr. Williamson spoke to the parents present on the responsibility resting upon them for the religious training of the boys and girls in their homes. The immense importance of sympathy and understanding of the religious enquiries of childhood and of patient dealing with the parents of children was urged on all the hearers. The superiority of preventive work among the young to repressive or reform work among those of later age was strongly set forth. The speaker closed with a beautiful story of the mother of Rev. John McNeill, Scotch Evangelist, and her prayerful care of the children in her home, and was convinced of the fact that, were there more fathers like the patriarch Job, and more mothers like Mrs. McNeill, there would be stronger churches in every land and fewer broken hearts and ruined lives. He urged on the men present their duty to the boys of their churches in taking up the work of Sunday Schools, teaching, and to the boys of the city in providing places, where boys could meet for social purposes and be taught to play as well as in the churches taught to pray.

A Lucky Strike.

A well known gentleman of the city, who is a holder in "Dome" Stock, now stands in about $60,000 as a result of a well known gentleman in question is holding his stock awaiting further advances and he is optimistic of making a big thing. A message received by him this morning stated that a recent find of gold at the mines has been estimated to be worth 12 million dollars, or three times the capital of the company operating it.

Football Notes.

At the annual meeting of St. Andrew's Football Club, which took place last evening at the Lyman Club, were elected for the coming season. Captain—James Young. Vice Captain—Thos. Carmichael. League Delegates—Lynn Campbell, Sec. Treasurer—S. K. Lumsden. Selecting and Management Committee—D. McColl, J. Nell, R. E. Innes. The Fieldian practice set down for to-night has been postponed. The Fieldian team has a new practice ground just north of St. George's Field. It is a great improvement on the old ground and the team's football will probably be all the better for it.

I hear that R. H. Tait, who played for the Saints last year, and J. Paterson who turned out for the Highlanders will this year play with the Fieldians. Both of them are old boys of Bishop Field College.

The Star team meet to-morrow morning for the purpose of electing their officers for the coming season. The Briton will, I believe, enter a team again this year and they may perhaps give a better account of themselves than they did last year.

Rev. E. H. Fletcher, the Fieldian's secretary, will be here in England in June.

If the nine teams at present in the League were to play the same number of games as last year, at least will be necessary to decide the championship. Whether such a large number of games can be got off in a season is doubtful when one considers the treacherous nature of our climate.

The League will be calling a meeting shortly and several important matters will come up for discussion. Now that there is no shortage of funds efforts should be made to put St. George's Field in good condition. It is in anything but good shape now.

Police Court.

Given a Chance.—A man was charged with being drunk and disorderly in his own house. His wife gave him in charge. A constable said he heard the defendant using bad language to his wife. His Honour threatened to send the man down if he appeared again, but gave him a chance this time and discharged him.

A Domestic Quarrel.—A man was charged with assaulting his wife. Mr. T. P. Halley appeared for the defence. The plaintiff tried to get into the kitchen of her home yesterday morning and her husband first refused to let her in. Then, he dragged her into the room and threw her down on her back over a tub of water. She had a two year old child in her arms at the time. Her husband then left the room and came back with a chair but he put this down and caught plaintiff by the hair. She, however, seemed well able to take care of herself for she knocked down the accused and pulled his hair. Mr. Halley put his client in the box and he told another side of the story. He said his wife threw him across a couch and he thought she was going to do away with him and called out "murder." She then threatened him with a shovel. He had marks on his face where his wife had hit him. S. J. Digby lay on his side and said in his mind of the defendant's guilt. He fined him $10 or 20 days and ordered him to give bonds for his future good behavior. His prisoner said he would rather go down.

ANARCHISTS ARRESTED.

Department of Justice Agents, late to-night, raided a Bleeker Street apartment and arrested two men on charges of criminal anarchy. Three wads of literature, said by the agents to be of a radical nature and several revolvers found secreted in mattresses, were seized. In the literature seized, Government Agents declared they found circulars similar to those which have been circulated in various cities throughout United States, calling for overthrow of the Government on May Day.

To free your skin from blemishes —the right way
ASK a skin specialist why it is that your skin is continually breaking out with disfiguring little blemishes. He will almost certainly tell you that this condition comes from an outside infection.
Authorities on the skin now say that skin blemishes are generally caused by bacteria and parasites which are carried into the pores from outside, through dust and soot in the air. By the following simple treatment, you can gradually but thoroughly free your skin from blemishes:
EACH night just before retiring, wash your face with Woodbury's Facial Soap and warm water, finishing with a dash of cold water, and dry carefully.
Now dip the tips of your fingers in warm water and rub them on the cake of Woodbury's until they are covered with a heavy, creamlike lather.
Cover each blemish with a thick coat of this and leave it on for ten minutes.
Rinse your face thoroughly, first with clear hot water, then with cold.
Supplement this treatment with the regular use of Woodbury's Facial Soap in your daily toilet, to keep the new skin which is constantly forming free from blemishes.
Get a cake of Woodbury's today, at any drug store or toilet goods counter. A 25-cent cake will last for a month or six weeks of this treatment and for general cleansing use. The Andrew Jergens Co., Cincinnati, New York and Perth, Ontario.

West Coast Fishery Report.
The following is the report of the Sub-Collector on the fishery from Rose Blanche to Harbor LeCout: Total number of quintals landed to date, 7,340; and for the week ending April 28th, 900 qts. The number of skips fishing is 56, no bankers. The bait supply is fresh herring caught at Connoire. For the week the weather has been fine and fish as plentiful as ever. The report of the Sub-Collector adds, "Our fishermen still have difficulty in selling their fish; no person appears to want to purchase. The Atlantic Fisheries Co. is not taking much—only from a few boats that are later going salmon fishing. Many of our boats are now fitting out for halibut fishing. Halibut seems to get a ready market with good value, 10 cents per lb. paid for it here. Many of our fishermen are abandoning cod fishing and going elsewhere to look for employment, as the outlook at present is not bright. There are no merchants here now who care to go into the fish business to any extent."

Gloomy Conditions in Sydney.

Conditions at the Sydney steel plant do not show any signs of improvement at present. The 16-inch mill which has been rolling a quantity of small rails for export, will complete the present contract on Thursday. No further orders for this class of rails have been secured, and unless something turns up between now and that time in the shape of additional orders, the mill, which is giving employment to some 45 men, will be compelled to close down. The rod mill is working part time at present, but how long it will be able to continue is not known by officials. One blast furnace and three open hearths are operating at present. The mill mill is also closed down, while the shops are working half time.—N. S. Herald.

Obituary.

ALEXANDER SCOTT.

A pang of regret will be felt in many a breast throughout Newfoundland when it becomes known that at 4 o'clock yesterday morning the summons came to Mr. Alex. Scott at his home in the United States. And yet perhaps those who know him best will experience least surprise; as that eager, enthusiastic spirit would require a constitution of iron as the agent of its activities, instead of a clay tenement. As no word of his illness had reached St. John's the call must have been comparatively sudden. Mr. Scott came from Scotland to Harbor Grace as a young man and entered the business firm of Paterson & Foster. During his stay there two events occurred which affected his whole life. One was the meeting with Miss Mary Bambray, who later became the sharer of the joys and sorrows of his life and who has survived him; and the other, was the great religious decision which transformed the worldly young man into a devoted Christian; the Presbyterian into a loyal Methodist, and an earnest church worker. From Harbor Grace he moved to St. John's and linked up with the business firm of Goodfellow & Company. Later he established the business on New Gower Street which still bears his name.

From the time of his conversion until his death, Mr. Scott was an enthusiastic Christian worker. In Gower Street Church he found a sphere of service in the Sunday School, the Class Meeting, and in the public services as a local preacher which claimed his most ardent devotion. But his influence extended far beyond Methodist circles, the Young Men's Christian Association at that time functioning in the city, Temperance Reform, and indeed every kind of service for the welfare of man found in him a friend and supporter. The activities in noble service which characterized his life in Newfoundland were continued in his new home in the great Republic, with entire abandon. And now the last task is over, the last battle fought, the last victory won and his coronation day has come. To his noble, devoted widow and two sisters, one a widow, who mourn his departure, the sympathy of a large circle of his friends and admirers will be extended.

Personal.

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Taylor and Master Bruce Fraser arrived from Montreal by the Sable I. this morning.

Mr. E. V. Spry who has been on an extended visit to Canada and the States returned by the Sable I. this morning.

Mrs. Dugald Munn who has been visiting friends in Montreal returned by the Sable I. this morning.

Miss Louise Orr, who is now at Boston, was operated on for appendicitis on Saturday last. A late message says that the patient is doing well and that Mr. and Mrs. Orr will probably leave Boston on Sunday for St. John's. The friends of Mrs. Malcolm Short, of Hant's Harbor, will be glad to know that she is progressing favorably from her recent operation at the Southcott Hospital, and hopes, under the excellent care received, soon to be able to return home.

Give Us Decency.

The opening of navigation has naturally directed the thoughts of our people on this coast to the coastal transportation the coming season. We have so often referred to this matter that there is very little further for us to say except to confirm all that we have previously written on the matter. It is a well known fact that the steamers that have plied on the route from here to Battle Harbor for some years have with but one or two exceptions been altogether inadequate and unfit for the service. Only those who have witnessed the conditions can have any conception of their frightfulness. We therefore urge in the name of common decency that some effort be made for the improvement of this service. A steamer of the Glencoe class is what the service requires and demands. We spend money in order to induce tourists to come into the country and then provide them with filthy transportation and subject them to the most revolting indignities. These people will not risk a repetition, neither will they recommend to their friends and club associates. There are our own people. Certainly they are entitled to something better than to be subjected to cattle conditions for days at a time. This service has outgrown in traffic the provisions made for it in the railway contracts of 1898 and 1901, but instead of keeping the service abreast with the traffic, it has been allowed to retrograde until to-day the conditions have become unchristian and inhuman.—Western Star.

A Bottle of Whiskey.

ITS INTRINSIC VALUE.

If the drinkers of whiskey ever consider the intrinsic value of their Upple the result must be distinctly sobering. There has been a good many prosecutions in London recently of hotels and restaurants for giving short measure or exceeding the legal maximum price. The manager of a music-hall was summoned and some interesting facts were mentioned in the course of the evidence. Whiskey as retailed in "small" or "large Scotch" over a bar works out at $5.20 a bottle—which is, at the maximum price, which is also, of course, the minimum. This would not show a bad profit if the bottle were bought by the retailer at the same controlled price of $5.00, at which it is sold to the private purchaser. But it is not. In the same evidence it was stated that the bottle, which might be legally dispensed, little by little, for nearly $5.20, was bought by the music-hall for $2.40. Presumably that is the regular wholesale price of most proprietary brands of whiskey. An interesting calculation can be made. Distillers have frequently explained that out of every $2.00 for a bottle of whiskey, $2.10 goes direct to the Government in taxation. At $2.40 per bottle to the retailer, that leaves 58 cents to cover distillers' overheads, cost of bottles, packing and distributing charges—and the value of the whiskey. It looks as though 12 cents would be a generous estimate of the real value of a bottle of $3.00 whiskey.—COM.

Editor Evening Telegram

Dear Sir,—Please allow me space in your esteemed columns to make mention of the concert held here in the Orange Hall on the evening of the 26th inst. under the auspices of the Methodist Church in aid of the new parsonage. The performers, who had given sacrificially of their time and energies in preparation for the event, were greeted by a large audience representing all parts of Alexander Bay. The affair throughout was a marked success, every item of which was listened to with rapid attention; the vocal and musical talent was one of the special features of the evening and evoked complimentary remarks from not a few. Immediately after the concert cocoa and cake were served in neat style by the ladies and gentlemen of the occasion, who left no stone unturned to make the social hour as pleasant as possible.

The proceeds amounted to about $85, which, considering present financial stringencies, is more than encouraging. This money goes to help dissolve the debt on our new parsonage. We venture to predict that when the above entertainment is repeated, it will attract as large an audience as it did the past time.

Thanking you for space, Mr. Editor,
Yours truly,
A. R. E.

MINARD'S LIME for DIS-TEMPER.

TRINITY.

A few weeks ago I called attention to old Harmony Division, Sons of Temperance, and the splendid part he played in the efforts to raise the moral standard in Trinity by endeavouring to save men from themselves in connection with what then was our greatest curse—the licensed liquor shops. Since that article appeared I have received several endorsements of the sentiments expressed, and the position claimed by me for Harmony Division. In my article, I have also been headed a manuscript volume of the minutes of the meetings of Harmony Division, from June 3rd, 1872 to September 14th, 1874. I have read the volume several times, with the deepest interest, for it brought back to my memory many happy hours, and several details of the work that I had forgotten.

At the first meeting recorded in the book, Mr. Benjamin Miller was W.P., and Mr. S. J. Maidment was R.S. Mr. Jasper Lucas was Inside Sentinel for years, and Dr. Robert White was B.G.W.P. from beginning to end, whilst I was glad to find my own name running all through the records of these years. The Division, as a human means of grace (like the Divine means) was not intended to make men do right, but to help them to do right. That it was a help to several men in those days, I doubt not, and the good results, of course, in proportion to the individual efforts to do right. In order to give a general idea of the work in which the Division was engaged during those two years of records, let me mention the names of some of the men who were members at one time (or several times) in addition to those I have already referred to: William Crocker, Thomas Christian, John Maidment, Nathaniel Morris, Henry Gardner, William Gardner, Charles King, George Tavernor, Fred Oakley, Frank Knight, Archibald Stewart, Kelson W. Pittman, James Gent, Thomas Green, George Lockyer, Robert W. Grant, Heber Maidment, John Cutler, Richard Churchill, Thomas White, William Moore, John White, Samuel Pittman, John Grant, George DeGrih, James Mayers, Andrew White, et al.

Several of those men took the pledge to help themselves; others did it in order to help some one else. After a very serious discussion it was decided to admit ladies as visitors to the meetings; and Miss Harriet Crocker was the first to avail herself of the privilege. I notice by the minutes that Mr. Nathaniel Morris joined the next night. At the last meeting recorded in this book, September 14th, 1874, Nathaniel Morris was W.P., and Samuel J. Maidment was R. Scribe. At the same meeting Thomas White was initiated. The large majority of those whose names I have given, have gone to their rest, and eternity alone will reveal all that they owe to Harmony Division, No. 2, Sons of Temperance, Trinity.

Matthew Roman lived in Trinity a hundred years or more before the days of prohibition, when rum was bought by the puncheon and sold by the quart, and his normal condition was "not-too-sober." In those days the way of the transgressor was often hard, and Matthew often transgressed. At this time the most humiliating means of punishment in Trinity were "the stocks." They were set up opposite the old Church gates, and were often in active service. Matthew often passed them on his way home, and he always did so on the opposite side of the road, muttering as he passed by—"with his eyes on the massive padlock that was more for use than for ornament: "You villains! I hope I shall never have more than a passing acquaintance with you; the ugly looking villains that you are. Bad luck to you!"

The time came, however, when Matthew presumed upon the clemency of the Magistrate—Thomas Drawbridge, and his status passed from "not-too-sober" to that of "sober sometimes." Mr. Drawbridge, who had been keeping his eye on Matthew for several days, and finding him drunk on Sunday morning, decided that nothing less than the stocks would teach him a lesson. To the stocks Matthew was reluctantly led, by Dickie Anderson, the Constable, early on Sunday morning; and when he sat down on the block, and placed his feet in those ugly holes, and heard the key turn in the big padlock, and then saw the key disappear in Dickie Anderson's trousers pocket, he felt that no words could express his humiliation, and he hung his head in abject silence.

The order given to the Constable was, to keep Matthew there for two hours, from eight o'clock till ten on Sunday morning. Upon further consideration, however, Mr. Drawbridge decided that he would clinch the lesson by keeping Matthew there till the people came out of church at one o'clock; so he sent the following note to Dickie Anderson: "Keep Roman in the stocks till one o'clock." Mr. Drawbridge's writing was hard to read, especially by the Constable; so being still in the vicinity of the stocks when he received the note, and knowing that Matthew was a scholar, he took the note to him to read. Matthew took it, and though he saw at a glance what the instructions were, he pretended that it was difficult for him to read them. With a very serious look, Matthew read very slowly: "You are—you are—to release—to release, Matthew Roman—to release—to release, Constable was not slow to carry out the orders as given, and within a few minutes Matthew was a free man. Not content, however, with his freedom, instead of going home, he went down to Garland's, and walked up and down very slowly and stately several times before "the big house" where Mr. Drawbridge lived, and from the dining room window of which, Matthew knew that Mr. Drawbridge was watching him. Then Matthew went home, and was sober for two consecutive days.

St. George's Day has come and gone once more, but apart from a better display of bonfire than usual, there was nothing of a general public nature to indicate that Englishmen and Englishmen's descendants in Trinity, were either thankful for, or appreciative of England's patron Saint. There were a few expressions of individual efforts to be consistently loyal, and I believe that from those expressions will flow better things next year. It was refreshing to see one man's shop, not only closed, barred and bolted, but also, placed before the main entrance was his large black advertising board, and on it was written in bold letters: "This is St. George's Day." That man is a "brick," and his name is George.

It was left to Trinity East and Port Rexton to do the proper thing on that day. Some years ago, when Canon Field was rector there, he taught the people to keep St. George's Day—by attending Church. The people responded to it, and St. George's Lodge, S.U.F., led the way. The day has been observed in this way ever since; but this year the good example spread to the members of the L.O.A. Lodge at Port Rexton, and arrangements were made for a joint procession through the parish, ending with a service at Christ Church.

In the absence of a rector, Canon Lockyer consented to conduct the service, and to speak to the congregation on the origin and meaning, and teaching, of St. George's Day. At 3 o'clock the Church was filled to overflowing, with a reverent and devout congregation, and seldom has it been our privilege to take part in such a hearty rendering of the Church's Evensong. A sermon on the life and work of St. George, from the text: "The Dragon Shall thou tread under thy feet" (Ps:91:13) was listened to with great attention, and I am sure that the actions of the people during the day (in church and out) and the lessons learnt in church, have caused them to realize the fullness and appropriateness of those broader expressions of loyalty to the memory of St. George, and to the person and throne of King George. The future celebrations of England's Patron Saint at Trinity East and Port Rexton are thus assured, on even a grander and more religiously loyal scale than heretofore. We thank the Governor-in-Council for having proclaimed the day a public holiday, and next year, please God, we hope to see a more general expression of courteous compliance with His Excellency's proclamation, than was given to it this year in Trinity and other places. Ho! St. George for Merrie England; and God Save King George!

When I wrote last week of a concert and tea that netted $50 for Church repairs, I mentioned that it was held at Trinity; but the linotype man made it Trinity.

Mrs. Sarah White, who is living with Dr. Cross at Brooklyn, B.B., paid a flying visit to Trinity last week. She will return for permanent occupation of her property in Trinity in the near future. She will be glad and so will me.

Our heartfelt sympathy goes out to Mr. James Lavender, of Trouty, whose wife was suddenly called to her rest a few days ago. Mrs. Lavender was a Clifford of Trouty, and the mother of three children—one, now a married daughter, and two young men at home. She was a woman, in several respects, above the ordinary, as a wife and a mother; and her home was all that only such a person can make it. She will be sadly missed in connection with Church work in Trouty, for the Church to her was her "Father's House," and to work for it, and its extension was one of the pleasures and privileges of her life. May she rest in peace.

One of the guests at Garland Hotel last week was Private Clarence Gooby, of Elliott's Cove, Random. Mr. Gooby enlisted for service on April 28th, 1918. After three weeks training in St. John's he was sent with the 1st Newfoundland Regiment to Arr, Scotland, where he put in two months' additional training. He then went with the regiment to the Base and its extension in France, and saw his first

Mr. Baxter Peckham, of the Royal Bank staff at Marytown, is spending his vacation at his home, Trinity East. He began his training in the Bank at Trinity, and his friends are glad to see him looking so well.

The passing of Canon Smith has removed one, than whom no one was fonder of, or more deeply interested in Trinity. Though born in King's Cove, we honoured ourselves by claiming him as a Trinitarian, and he never so far as I know, disputed our claim—knowing as he did the spirit in which we made it. He was my private encyclopedia to whom I referred, when in doubt as to the details of some event in the far past history of Trinity, and he never failed to supply the information. The fact that he always read my notes on Trinity and often thanked me for them, was the greatest compliment that could be paid to me as an adver-

Upon his return to Ypres he was wounded the second time and again sent back to England. The armistice was signed whilst he was in the hospital in England. After two months in connection with a Battalion at Winchester, he was sent back to St. John's, where he was given his discharge, and he is now on the pension list.

Military Funeral.

In common with our brother veterans, we mourn the passing of a gallant comrade in ex-Sergt. William P. Phelan, who answered the final bugle call yesterday morning. His funeral will take place from his late residence, 48 King's Road, at 2.30 p.m. Sunday. The Sergeants of the Royal Newfoundland Regiment have made arrangements to give their brother comrade a military funeral. William Phelan, known familiarly to all his friends as "Dinky" and "Tick," was a prince of good fellows and a gallant gentleman. He went overseas early in 1915 with "F" Company and fought in all engagements up to Beaumont Hamel, when he was badly wounded. The effects of his wounds weakened him physically and he contracted tuberculosis. He fought against the disease with great spirit, and never gave up the struggle until the last moment. A gun carriage is being arranged for and will be drawn by 15 sergeants. Pall bearers will be furnished from amongst his immediate soldier friends. It is the wish of the Sergeants' Committee in charge that all ex-service men, including officers and sergeants, will attend and pay respect to their dead comrade. It is hoped that a band will precede the funeral procession, also a bugler to sound the Last Post at the graveside. May he sleep quietly, and may the earth rest lightly upon him in the Vale of Shadown.—COM.

Strike Probable.

L.S.P.U. MEET TONIGHT.

As matters stand at present in the labour situation, it seems very probable that a strike will be called on Monday unless some arrangement between labourers and employers can be made to-day. A meeting of the Employer's Association was held yesterday and it was decided that their previous decision regarding the 1919 scale of wages should stand. Since the meeting held on Wednesday night last the L.S.P.U. have not considered the situation beyond sticking to the decision made on that night to reject the employers' offer. They intend, however, to meet to-night when they will further consider the proposals which have been laid before them.

Building Committee

WILL MEET AT MOUNT CASHEL.

The Mount Cashel Building Committee will meet at 2.30 p.m. to-morrow at Mount Cashel to discuss some very important matters in connection with the progress and extension of the work during the last two years. The new part of which is the home of the Brothers, is now practically completed and occupied and some outside buildings have also been erected. At to-morrow's meeting every member of the Building Committee should attend.

She Suffered for Twenty-two Years

NOW SHE PRAISES DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Madame Georges St. Laurent Advises All Who have Bright's Disease to Use Dodd's Kidney Pills and Get Satisfaction.

St. Josephine, Gaspe Co., Que. April 30.—(Special)—Dame Georges St. Laurent fits a well-known resident here, never tired of singing the praises of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"For twenty-two years," Dame St. Laurent states, "I suffered from Bright's disease. I spent a lot of money and tried many remedies without getting any lasting benefit. To-day I am a different woman and I give Dodd's Kidney Pills the credit."

"I recommend everyone suffering from Bright's disease to use Dodd's Kidney Pills. They will get satisfaction."

Bright's disease is one of the most serious forms of kidney disease. It has been successfully treated with Dodd's Kidney Pills, as Madame St. Laurent's case shows. But the better way is to guard against such diseases as rheumatism, dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease by using Dodd's Kidney Pills when the kidneys first get out of order.

Ask your neighbors if Dodd's Kidney Pills are not the greatest of all kidney remedies.

The Association has for its object the bringing of the men and boys of the congregation in closer touch for their mutual benefit, and for this purpose Athletic, Program, Social visiting and membership committees will be formed. ON THE LEVEL, HASN'T JEFF A SILLY SENSE OF HUMOR.

—By Bud Fisher.

For years I have never considered my stock of household remedies complete unless a bottle of Minard's Liniment was included. For burns, bruises, sprains, frostbites, or chilblains it excels, and I know of no better remedy for a severe cold in the head, or that will give more immediate relief, than to inhale from the bottle through the nasal organ. And as to my supply of veterinary remedies it is essential, as it has in very many instances proven its value. A recent experience in reclaiming what was supposed to be a lost section of a valuable cow's udder has again demonstrated its great worth and prompts me to recommend it in the highest terms to all who have a herd of cows, large or small. I think I am safe in saying among all the patent medicines there is none that covers as large a field of usefulness as does Minard's Liniment. A real trust in good for man or beast.

For Constipation

—the Modern Method of Treating an old Complaint

Nujol works on an entirely new principle. Without forcing or irritating, it softens the food waste. This enables the many tiny muscles in the intestines, contracting and expanding in their normal way, to squeeze the food waste along and out of the system.

It is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take. Try it.

500 Million Years Old.
Abbe Theodore Moreaux, director of the observatory of Bourges, in an article in La Revue du Ciel, declares the world to be 500 million years old, instead of 50 million, the opinion of other astronomers. Abbe Moreaux also thinks that man existed for tens of thousands of years instead of six thousand based on figures in the Bible. He says the belief of German scientists that human beings have existed for four hundred thousand years has no basis in fact. The Bible's six thousand years are an invention of the translators and copyists. Life, Abbe Moreaux says, has existed on the earth for at least 240 million to 260 million years, although it has not been human life. He says the moon was not once part of the earth, but was a sun that once aided in warming the earth.

He Feels Fine in the Morning Now, Says Bouthillier

Montreal Man Always Gets Up Ready For Big Day's Work Since Taking Tanlac.

"In a few weeks Tanlac had me feeling like a brand new man, and I can truthfully say it is the best medicine I have ever heard of," said E. Bouthillier, of 76 Grand Pre St., Montreal.
"I was in such a run-down condition before taking Tanlac I could hardly look after my work. My appetite was so poor I had to force myself to eat, and my stomach was so disordered that even this little bit caused me all kinds of distress. My kidneys bothered me a lot, too, and my back hurt so bad that when I stooped over and straightened up it felt like it would break in two. I had splitting headaches, and became so dizzy I could hardly stay on my feet. I was weak and nervous, was losing weight and strength, and felt drabby and worn out all the time.
"Well, to make a long story short, Tanlac has rid me of all these troubles, and built me up several pounds in weight besides. That tired drabby feeling is all gone, and I get up mornings after a good night's sleep ready for a big day's work. I have the very best of an appetite, and eat just anything I want. Tanlac is a medicine worth knowing about, and I believe it will help any one suffering like I did."

Names and Phrases.

The Scotch origin of many North of Ireland families is shown by the common words in use. Both speak of a burn, but in both Scotland and Ulster the phrase we stream is much likely to be heard. Kye is the Canadian cattle.

A bundle of hay or straw is a bottle, and a manure heap is a midden. This latter is current throughout the north of England.

A girl may be referred to either as a cutty or a wench, a boy as a weechal or gossoon. An Englishman refers to a short clay pipe as a cutty. The country lane in which the three may be found is a looney or loaning.

When he speaks of a sleigh a North of Ireland means a sledge; what we call a sleigh he calls a sled.

Among other words are tod for fox; hoam for river-meadow; stour for dust; strabour for porridge or cereal—this word is not unknown in many parts of Canada; fat for scone, when for a lot or a quantity.

The use of the word kitchen is peculiar. Kitchen is that part of a dish which dresses the meat. Meat is kitchen to potatoes and butter to bread. They have a saying, when a good thing is overdone, that butter to butter is no kitchen. "No kitchen" by itself means humble fare.

In certain parts of India tigers and lizards' skins take the place of the Bible of Christian countries, and the penalty of breaking the oath is that in one case the witness will become the prey of a tiger, and in the other, that his body will be covered with scales like a lizard.

The Mohammedan takes an oath with his forehead reverently resting upon the open Koran. Taking the book in his hands he stoops, slowly bowing his head until it touches the book.

Over a narrow skirt of plaid gingham is worn a pelum blouse of colored linen bound with folds of the gingham.

G. BROWNING & SON.

Commander's Curious Conveyance in Battle.

On April 30, 1745, at Fontenoy, in Flanders, now part of Belgium, a victory was won by the Roman Catholic supporters of the Pretenders, or male descendants of James the Second as claimants to the British throne against the Protestant Hanoverians or descendants of a grand-daughter of James the First. The conquerors on this occasion were commanded by Maurice, Count de Saxe, an illegitimate son of Augustus the Second, King of Poland, but created a marshal of France in 1743, he having gone to Paris in 1720, and entered the French army. He was a man of great size and strength; fearless, self-controlled, and famed for his ingenuity and dash; but the circumstances under which he regulated the army at Fontenoy were very remarkable; especially as notwithstanding his condition, he won the battle against William Augustus, second son of George the Second, King of Great Britain and Ireland. Military officers and soldiers have been conveyed by various means to and on the battlefield, from very early times by chariots (Exodus xiv. 23), until the end of the nineteenth century as cavalry or horse-soldiers; and now in the late European war, in wagons or vans, called Tanks. But at the battle of Fontenoy, Count de Saxe was carried about in a wicker bed, for he was a great sufferer from dropsy; could not sit on horse-back, except for a few minutes, and had a lead bullet in his mouth all day to mitigate the intolerable thirst. He died of fever on November 21, 1760.

Desestructive Fire From Small Outbreak.

On April 30, 1911, at least a quarter of the town of Bangor, Maine, in the United States, was destroyed by fire, which started in the evening in a hay-loft, and driven by a strong wind, got quickly beyond control. The financial loss was very great, being estimated at £1,200,000, but it was a remarkable fact that only three lives were lost, one of these persons being killed by the fall of a wall. During the height of the conflagration the firemen blew up numerous buildings with dynamite in a futile attempt to arrest the flames. Business houses, schools, theatres, were quickly engulfed, and the adjacent towns brought their apparatus and assisted in fighting the flames, it was not until midnight, when heavy rain commenced to fall, that the raging conflagration was controlled. The burned area covered the Kenduskeag stream northward for two miles—the entire business section of the town being consumed. The flames had spread in the shape of a fan for a mile and a quarter into the best por- tion of the residential quarter. The scene after the fire was pitiable, hun- dreds of homeless inhabitants, men, women and children, sleeping in the streets in the pouring rain, no shelter of any kind being available, the churches, schools and all public buildings being in ruins, while there was scarcely a baker, grocer, or restaurant left standing. One hundred business buildings, two hundred and seventy-five residences, and seven churches were destroyed.

they abstained from milk, tea, and eggs. They took only two meals a day—at 10 a.m. and 8 p.m.
"The Fugitives," another sect, perpetually wandered from place to place. Marriage, the payment of taxes, and all submission to authority, were repudiated.
The "Douchoborts" were founded by a Prussian in the eighteenth century. He taught that we are all brothers and sisters, and forbade the use of the words "father" and "mother."
The "Merchants of Paradise" were derived from a peasant, Kornvald. He promised adulation from sinners in return for offerings in kind. First-class seats in Paradise were to be sold for ten roubles, and second class places for five.
Grigorief, another, "spiritual leader," taught that work is sin. "Work not," he said to his followers, "and all shall be yours."

"Merchants of Paradise."

Few realize the active part played by fanatical religious sects in the Russian revolution. All of them were opposed to war; most of them were opposed to private ownership of property.
Thus the Soutaievitz, founded in 1890 by a workman named Soutaiev, decided the clergy, the monks, the sacraments, and military service, and upheld the principal of communal possession of property. Private ownership, armies and war were to be abolished.
Soutaiev carried the text, "Judge not, that ye be not judged," to its extreme logical conclusion. On one occasion thieves stole some of his flour, which proved to be of inferior quality. Having discovered their identity, Soutaiev made them a present of some good flour in its place.
Another sect taught that "Truth and divinity dwell in your own conscience. Neither drink nor marry."
"The White-robed Believers" were strict vegetarians. They were forbidden to smoke or drink alcohol; and they abstained from milk, tea, and eggs. They took only two meals a day—at 10 a.m. and 8 p.m.

WHEN JOHN HENRY WAS NOT TO BLAME.

Sometimes ago I wrote in criticism of the woman who could afford to have beautiful jewelry and fine clothes but could not afford to have the old folks come and visit her.

Whereupon a Letter P. 1 and suggested that it might not be the husband's fault at all but the fault of a woman who was willing to give her money for clothes and jewels but not for that purpose.

Now a third aspect of the case of the neighbor versus the woman who does not do enough for her family has come to me, and I herewith present it.

"Ever since I saw your article I have been tempted to write you, especially since one reader put the blame on the son-in-law."

According to the neighbors.

"Probably I feel more stirred up about it because I am one of the daughters who neglected their mothers" (according to the neighbors).

"When mother was no longer able to take care of herself the neighbors wondered why I didn't take her to my home but they said 'Probably John Henry isn't willing.'"

"Now the actual truth was that John Henry was willing, but mother wouldn't budge. I had a family, a husband and home duties. There was no reason except sentiment why she couldn't leave her home and come to me but she wouldn't come. 'It didn't matter what the neighbors said,' she said. Of course not—to her.

When she finally had to give in, she was so mad with me that, unless it was actually necessary, she never spoke to me again as long as she lived. And yet I did the only possible thing. My daughter, a young girl, said one day, 'Mother, when you get old, if you act as grandmother does I'm going to spank you.' I gave her my permission, and I hope she does."

That little picture certainly gives one food for thought, doesn't it?

Of course, old people aren't always right or generous, or young people always wrong or selfish.

In all these conflicts, inevitable in a world where two and three generations have to live and adjust themselves to each other, there is often wrong and selfishness and injustice on both sides.

It is the world's habit to call young people selfish, but there are old people who are just as selfish.

Just One Warning.

No one can be loved and honored without being lovable and honorable, even with white hairs to help.

Just one warning. When one is young one has so much to look forward to that one ought to be able to be extra tolerant and tender to those who cannot have many more earthly pleasures to enjoy. The old may have to conform to the young, for it is the law of life that the younger generation has the right of way, but in accepting this conformation where we have to, let's be as generous and forbearing as we can. And let's not forget that a matter of sentiment may be quite as vital as a matter of sentiment may be quite as vital as a matter of bread and butter.

GETTING BACK.

We're getting back to normalcy, a little at a time, the hoodlums fade, the Joneses flee, the grouch becomes a crime. This morning when I took my boat to have a bolt replaced, the workman sang a cheerful note, as to the task he chased. He crawled beneath my panting car and gave the bolt a slap, and smiled through all the crease and tar that clustered on his map. I handed him two iron men and when that sum was paid, he blithely said, "Please come again—I'm keen to get your trade." Some weeks ago I sought his aid—my horn refused to toot—and for my story of despair he didn't care a hoot. "I am not fixing things to-day," he said.

with haughty scorn, "and you may take your bus away and soak the doggone horn." I see a change of attitude in artisan and clerk, and with the old time pep imbued, the boys get down to work. And work's the cure for all the ills that jar the human tribe; it's better than the choicest pills the statesman can prescribe. Let's all forget the ancient sores, the ancient grist and pain; when all are busy at their chores, Old Normaley will reign.

Proverbs for Cobblers.

"I am going to take up cobbling," writes a disabled soldier, "and would like you to tell me all the proverbs bringing in the word 'cobbler' you know, as I think it might be useful to have them by me."

The first one that occurs to me is, "Cobblers and tinkers are the best advisers," but I should not use that for advertising purposes! Anyway, the proverb was composed before the war, and since the Government interested itself in our ale, the cobblers and tinkers may have changed their mind.

"Why that cobbler and cleft shall have work when others go without," is another old saying; while a couplet runs:

"The higher the plum-tree, the riper the plum;
The richer the cobbler, the blacker his thumb."

If these are not sufficient, the only other proverb I know is, "Without an awl the cobbler's nobody." Which is undoubtedly true.

MY COLUMN

(By the CUB-EDITOR.)
JEM GUMCHEW.

Our Magnificent Serial of the Wild and Woolly West—A Thrill in Every Letter.

Synopsis of Previous Chapters—Jem Gumchew, the Pride of Deadshot Gulch, whilst in quest of Sairy Snubba, who has been captured by Bad Bill Blood, the desperate desperado, falls over a cliff hanging on to the front axle of a Tin Lizzy, and is lassoed by the legs from above.

CHAPTER III (Continued).

They had been lassoed from above and there he hung, head downwards, holding on to the old car and his false teeth, like grim death. Slowly but surely he felt himself being drawn upwards, and after a seemingly interminable period, he found himself on terra firma. Before he had time to see who his rescuer was, however, he fell into dead faint and lost consciousness.

CHAPTER IV.

The Outlaws of Deadshot Gulch.

When Jem awoke from his faint he found himself in a most darksome, darksome, darksome place, indeed, that he could not see his own face before him. (Editor—"Possibly a good thing for his nervous system." Author, "Oh, how could you! Anyway he's a hero, what does his face matter?") Suddenly a door opened and a heavily bearded, long nosed man entered, holding a candle in one hand and a pea-shooter in the other. "Bad Bill Blood!" ejaculated our hero. "Yes," sneered the other, "Bad Bill Blood at your service." Jem attempted to spring at the villainous countenance before him but only to find that he had been firmly secured to an upright post with a steel cable. Bad Bill Blood came nearer and taking deliberate aim with his pea-shooter, hit Jem on the tip of his proboscis with a very hard pea. "I has yew at last, Jem Gumchew," snarled the desperate desperado, "and furtymore and howsomever I has got Sairy Snubba also and me and she be agin' ter be spliced." "Yew lies, yew vil'ub," shrieked Jem, and he attempted to spring at Bad Bill. The bandit put his hands on his hips and roared with laughter. (Editor—"But what did he do with the candle and pea-shooter?") Author—"Oh, he stuck the candle in his hat and the pea-shooter behind his ear. Don't interrupt!" "Har, har, har, har, har, and who will stop me, hey?" he roared.

By a superhuman effort Jem burst his bonds and sprang on the outlaw! (To be continued next week.)

MEA CULPA.

A city chap got very drunk
Upon St. George's Day,
And thought he'd try to do a bunk
As far east as Turkey.
But getting rather tired, he Decided to turn back,
And near Mount Cashel gates did see
An old man on a hack.

He tried to tear the old 'un's coat
And drag him off his cart;
He only got the old man's coat
Before they broke apart.
And that is why we found him here
In court the other day;
Defending him was Mister Ayre
Who said that he should pay.

The fine, if any were imposed
For his was all the blame;
For was it not he who proposed
That holiday which came.
On Good St. George's Natal Day
The fault, therefore, was his;
The accused on another day
Would not his hip up with—

THEY MIGHT WITH TRUTH—

A little girl was asked, upon her return home, how she liked the singing of the congregation in the church.

"I liked it very much, indeed," she said, "although all the people said it was bad."

"All the people said it was bad, what do you mean, my dear?"

"Oh, it was so bad that I heard the people praying, 'Lord have mercy upon us, miserable singers.'"

JOKELETS.

"Walter, I'll take my hat," said a gentleman at a party, who was about going home. "What kind of a hat did you wear?" "A bran new hat that I bought this morning." "Well, sir," said the waiter, "all the good hats have been gone more than two hours."

"Did Mrs. Graboona vote?"

"No, she failed to get the social recognition at the polls she considered her due."

"How was that?"

"Her cook was in line just ahead of her and refused to yield precedence."

When the King Opens Parliament.

There are a pair of gates in London that are kept permanently shut to conveyances every day of the year except one. These gates lead out of Dean's Yard, Westminster, into a lane that runs straight down to the House of Lords. They are only opened on the day on which His Majesty the King opens Parliament in person.

On that day His Majesty proceeds from Buckingham Palace in a wonderful old coach, drawn by jet-black horses. Whilst the King is on his way, Yeomen of the Guard still search the vaults under the Houses of Parliament to ensure the safety of the monarch and his Ministers.

When the Sovereign reaches the House of Lords guns are fired in St. James' Park. The moment of arrival is signalled by hand. Flag-signallers stand on the towers of the House of Parliament, and send their messages to other signallers on Government offices overlooking the park. From thence it is conveyed to the troops below.

Ministers await the arrival of the King outside the House, and then take up their position in the procession to the Lords. Usually a large number of peeresses attend as well.

Everybody stands, and it "hats off" for the Black Rod, when he passes down the central corridor on his way to summons the Commons, who enter a few minutes later at a rapid march—their pace is always quick—to hear the King's Speech.

The King's Speech is prepared by the Cabinet and deals with the international situation, and reviews the legislation it is intended to introduce during the next Parliamentary year.

Reid-Newfoundland Co., Ltd, Water Street Stores Dept.

FOR SALE AT A BARGAIN.
1 12-H.P. SEAL ENGINE, in first class condition.

Here are a few of its important points: No water pump is necessary, the circulation around the jacket causes a natural flow of water. The crankshaft is enclosed in a case which carries the lubricators to the bearings. The crank dome cover can be removed with half the bearings for inspection of piston and connecting rod, without dismantling the engine. The valve gear can be removed independently of cylinder, the head of which is below the water line. The water circulation is automatic. Each down stroke gives an oil drip on the connecting rod, thus supplying free lubrication. The fuel is controlled by an automatic inlet valve; once set by the regulator it requires no further attention.
After five minutes running of the engine the automatic timed ignition takes up the firing, being operated by a bulb, which becomes red hot and ignites the mixture at the correct moment by the plunger which admits fresh mixture to the bulb. It is of the four-stroke type and runs 300 revolutions a minute.
