Sweet Eva!

CHAPTER XI.
To Eva the next two weeks flew. She was too busy to think much. She only knew that life was a wonderful happiness, with hours all too short and fleeting.
She saw Philip often now. He came and went as if he were already one of the family.
"Of course, as you're getting married in such a hurry, you young people," Mr. Dennison said once, "you'll have to wait to get your house in order (till the honeymoon's over. You can come and stay here for a time if you care to."
"My mother will be delighted to have us," Philip said quickly. He felt that too much of his father-in-law would drive him mad. He was a constant reminder, an ever-present witness to the things he had done and of which he knew he would be everlastingly ashamed.
"Of course, we will do whatever you prefer," he said to Eva.
"We can talk about that later on," she answered.
She could not really believe that her wedding day was so near. Though nothing else was ever spoken of she felt that it must be someone else's wedding for which such elaborate preparations were being made, and not her own at all.
Everything was ordered, even the wedding cake and her own bouquet.
Philip had proved himself wonderfully cognisant of what a bridegroom supposed to do. He was, perhaps, too anxious to do everything expected of him. He was desperately afraid that he might fall short of the standard of perfection set up by tradition and generations of bridegrooms. He had loaded Eva with presents. He had given her a most expensive diamond ring, and was surprised that she still wore the one he had first given her.
"It's such a shabby old thing," he protested.
"I like it best—I always shall," she told him.
Mrs. Winterdick was giving her much talked about dinner party two nights before the wedding.
Philip's best man was coming, and an aunt from whom he was supposed to have prospects, and everybody whom Mrs. Winterdick considered anybody at all.
"I shall be terribly nervous," Eva told Philip.
He laughed.
"I want you to meet Calligan. You'll like him—besides, you must know who's to be best man before the actual day."

A Stitch in Time

Quick action is the only hope when kidney disease appears.
There is a whole train of dreadfully painful and fatal ailments which soon follow any neglect to get the kidneys right. Among others are rheumatism, lumbago, Bright's disease, hardening of the arteries and high blood pressure.
In Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills you will find a treatment which is both quick and thorough.
Mr. C. E. Raymond, Lindale, Alta., writes:—
"I was a great sufferer from kidney disease and lame back for more than a year. A friend of mine one day told me of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and acting upon his advice I tried them. After I had taken one box I felt better, so I continued until I had used five boxes. By this time I felt as well and strong as ever, and an glad to recommend Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to anyone suffering as I did."

GERALD S. DOYLE.

"I was surprised, of course," Kitty said. She waited a moment, then she added, in a low voice, "You might have given me another chance, Phil."
It was clever of her to get that genuine ring in her voice, he thought, savagely. He loathed himself because against his will he found himself wanting to look at her.
Perhaps it was as well for him that he did not realize that Kitty was as nearly genuine at that moment as she had ever been in all her life. The surprise meeting with this man had probed the little bit of heart which she kept carefully hidden somewhere beneath her frills and furbelows. She wanted to cry and she wanted—more than anything—to surprise some sign of emotion in the face of the man who had once told her he loved her.
Philip looked at her with hard eyes. "You gave me a very complete dismissal," he said steadily. "I could do no less than take it. I told you if you sent me away then that I should not come back." He gave the handle another wrench, and this time the motor began to chug encouragingly. There were tears in Kitty's blue eyes.
"I was sorry directly you had gone," she said, in a low voice. "I was so sure you would come back the next day—I hoped so—I looked for you, Phil."
He laughed bitterly.
"You were so sure that you got up a flirtation with Peter Dennison," he said savagely. "If it's any satisfaction to you to know it, I did come back—like a fool! I ought to have known better. I went along to see you the next evening, and I saw you—in the hammock—letting that—boy—kiss you!" His voice was scornful. "That finished it for me."
Her tears were slowly fast now.
Philip glanced back at the house—fortunately they were hidden from view of the windows. He climbed into his seat.
"Good-bye," he said, curtly.
He felt that he would have given ten years of his life to have avoided this scene. He shut the door of the car with a little slam.
Kitty brushed her tears away. "You will never love her as you loved me," she said.
Philip looked at her and his heart contracted.
"No," he said, "I sincerely hope not." He drove off without another word. But his light-heartedness had gone.
Had he any right to marry Eva while this other girl still held his heart?
He knew her to be a worthless flirt, and yet . . . yet . . . He clenched his teeth in pain.
Nobody could account for love.
He wondered if he had been very rough and unkind. He hoped not. He made up his mind to keep clear of Appleby once he was married.
He knew that she was coming to the wedding. He would have given anything had it been possible to prevent it. Eva had asked her, and it had been impossible for him to object.
To stand at the altar with some one who was not Kitty, and to know that she was there behind him in the crowd in her own right, as if she were a part of the affair, he would not have done for weeks. Things were going to be all right, after all.
He had slowed the car a little to turn out of the gate, and as he did so a girl darted back just in time to avoid being knocked over. It was Kitty Arlington.
If the engine of young Winterdick's car had not, by some unkind freak of fortune, stopped at that moment he would just have raised his hat and driven on; but, as it was, the car came to a standstill just outside the gate, bringing the driver exactly abreast with the girl on the path.
She was looking very cool and dainty, as she always did, in a pale blue frock and a shady hat, and her little feet shod in the trimmest of high-heeled shoes.
Young Winterdick's heart gave a traitorous thump as he looked at her. It was impossible to avoid speech as he clambered out of his seat to restart the engine.
"Awfully hot, isn't it?" he said nervously.
"I like the heat." The blue eyes met his rather wistfully. There was a little silence. Philip had twice given the starting handle a gigantic wrench and failed to accomplish his object. He laughed in embarrassment; he was rather red in the face. Kitty watched him silently.
In her mind she was comparing him with Peter Dennison, and Peter suffered by the contrast.
He was only a strapping still, slim and boyishly built, whereas Philip was muscular and broad-shouldered—a man every inch of him.
"I ain't seen you for some time," she said, presently. "Not since that night you . . ."
He broke in hurriedly.
"No—you've been away, haven't you? The time passes so quickly."
"To you, perhaps," she said, slowly.
She looked away from him down the hot dusty road with a little sick feeling of jealousy.
"I only came back last night," she said again. There was another little silence, then, "I have not congratulated you," she went on. "I suppose I may?"
"Thank you. . . ." Philip straightened his back, took off his hat and wiped his hot forehead. If only the confounded engine would start!

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

WHOM DO YOU ROB?

Small illustration of a person in a hat, possibly related to the 'Side Talks' article.

Here is a letter that came to me recently:
"A woman came to my house looking for work, her husband being a member of the army of unemployed. I had no work and she asked if I could not at least give her some old clothes. She has a baby, her first, just going into rompers and she has no cloth to make, nor money to buy any."
"Like yourself I am a most' credulous person. I believed her. I still do. So I called up an acquaintance whose name I had about three years old to ask if she had any outgrown discarded things I could give the poor creature."
She Didn't Like This Catechism.
She put me through a catechism somewhat as follows:
"Are you sure she is worthy?"
"What do you exactly know about her, other than what she tells you?"
"Where did her husband work last?"
"Do you realize that it's quite possible for her to go around with this hard luck tale to impulsive people like you, collect old clothes and sell them?"
She ended by saying, "Yes, I have quite a few old things of baby Mary's and if you will look this woman up and can assure me she is all you claim I will be glad to help her."
"Now I can't understand that attitude. Suppose the woman were an impostor (although I doubt it, else she would not come back persistently as she does), wouldn't you rather run the risk of being taken in than feel that you had missed a chance to help in this day of awful unemployment? Especially when it means only old clothes that you cannot possibly use yourself."
"I wish you would write something on this subject."
I Think the Other Woman Was Right
As I wrote to my Letter Friend (I want you to know that I got her permission before I wrote this) I would be glad to write something on the subject only I should have to say just what she didn't want me to say.
I believe the woman who said "investigate before I give all these things away" was right.
Whom was she protecting by insisting on investigation? Not herself—she would give away those things sooner or later—but the worthy person who ought to get them?

Whenever we give carelessly we rob not ourselves but the people who ought to have been helped, and really deserved it.
No Excuse for Not Giving.
This is a lesson that I learned some years ago when I gave away, without investigation, a fairly large sum of money to a man who claimed that if he could get his family back to the country town from which they came he could get a good job. I gave him the money for railroad tickets for the family, and he promptly disappeared with it leaving the family to appeal for further aid. Then I investigated and found they were professional dead beats. I never forgave myself the waste of that money that should have helped someone who needed and deserved it. Henceforth I have adopted the rule of the Associated charities—if a person appealing for aid claims that there is immediate and painful want, give them temporary relief. Then investigate before giving more.

But understand one thing. This is not a justification for those who do not want to give and who excuse themselves by saying that the person may not be worthy. Better give unwisely than not at all. I simply mean that the best kind of giver gives the time and pains to insure wise giving, as well as the money or the discarded garments.

Mrs. Flathush: "How did you come to decide on a name for the baby?"
Mrs. Bensonhurst: "Well, we began at A, and thought of all the names beginning with that letter; then we took B, and so went through the whole alphabet."
"But the child's name is Alice, I thought."
"So it is. When we got as far as Z we went back and began all over again at A."

Star of the Sea Fishermen's Ass'n.

UNBROKEN FOR TWO THOUSAND YEARS. Dear Sir.—To-morrow (Sunday) a two-fold celebration will take place in connection with the Star of the Sea Fishermen's Association.

The Star of the Sea Fishermen's Association has an unbroken link further back than the time William the Conqueror was crowned King of England in 1066.

Only twelve months ago as I saw the fiery elements devastating the Hall of the Association in the city I thought of what the unbroken link went through in the ages past.

Yours truly, J. J. CONNOLLY.

The Union Jack.

Great public interest will be evoked by the news that the College of Arms is considering whether a change in our national flag will be requisite as the result of the creation of the Irish Free State.

The Cross of St. Patrick was introduced in the Union Jack in 1801, after the union with Ireland, as an emblem of that union. Should it be removed the appearance of the flag would be transformed. There would remain a red St. George's Cross with a narrow white edging and a white diagonal St. Andrew's Cross on a blue ground.

Our Local Pepys.

HIS DIARY.

I to wait on Mr. H. D. Reid and to have discourse with him concerning drivers matters. So to Water Street, and to see about the completion of the first edition of my journal, and to have appended to it, the signatures of those that I have had cause to mention in it at times. And all very pleasant and grant my request. To the Tobacco Factory, where meeting Mr. Hartnett, he to show me how cigarettes are made. But Lord, what a trial to my will, seeing that my vow to forego them is but a week old, nor can I break it for very shame's sake. On going home I find my wife in a great rage, being that the Banque will not honour the cheque I did give her, for there is no money to my credit, which is no strange thing. But my wife does not listen to my excuses. She will anything please her, so that for the sake of peace, I did give her a bill for twenty dollars. Truly did the prophet say that the ways of women passeth all human understanding. Hearing an alarm of fire, I to the scene and find it in a fish and chips shop on Duckworth Street, and a big blaze of fire. So to walk with my wife, but her talk always of dress, and I know not how to satisfy her, and yet keep myself free from the Debtor's Prison. For, much as I hear of those that live on what they owe, I have ever found it a thing of the utmost difficulty.

Week of Prayer.

CLOSING SERVICE AT COCHRANE ST. CENTENNIAL CHURCH. T.C.M. Two services were held last night as a fitting finale to the Week of Prayer. At Wesley Church the speaker was the Rev. E. W. Forbes, and at the Centennial Church the speaker was the Rev. B. T. Holden, the topic, viz—That of "International relations and world peace" was the same at both churches. At the Centennial Church the music and staging were of a high order, and like all the previous services the impressions were edifying. Perhaps no other topic of the week had in it more direct interest than that of last night, because international matters and world-peace questions must be acknowledged as worthy of our best consideration. Hence the importance of what the speaker said. In beginning his discourse Mr. Holden said at once at home, and soon showed a good grasp of the subject. Basing his remarks on the writings of the prophet Isaiah, where the latter speaks of the nations coming together, and of warfare being past, the speaker said that the aspect of international relations should be reviewed in the two-fold sense of politics and religion; or of state-craft and morals. The various problems of the day had perplexing problems before them, and there was need of the best leadership. The late war had brought bankruptcy upon Europe; and as a result the European nations were unable to meet their financial obligations; nor could they purchase what they wanted. We should not glory in war. Heathen nations, such as Imperial Rome, did that, and with them war was the rule; but not so with us—it should be the exception.

War could not solve the disputes of the nations. The uncertainty of topics there is about one on the doctrine of Repentance. Rev. R. J. Power Monday night. The interview asked for by the Greeks, who had come to, or were at Jerusalem, was not granted. The moral and religious sides of it. Rev. R. E. Fairbairn, Wednesday The peoples spoke of the nations night. "That some one has said that coming together, and of destroying their implements of war by "beating their swords into ploughshares and their spears into pruning hooks." This signified the abolition of war; and the abolition of war is the only cure for war; and it is the cure as taught by Christianity.

Some people were ready to say that Christianity had failed. It has not failed. The trouble has been, and still is that the principles of Christianity have not been fully admitted into, nor fully applied to, our international disputes. Nations, yet deny the brotherhood of man. The problems of the Pacific and of the East, as well as of other peoples are all possible of solution if the vision of the prophet is applied. This vision meant the "parliament of nations," and the ushering in of that day of which Tenneyson wrote in his well known poem in Memoriam: "When the war-drum beats no longer, And battle flags are furled; In the parliament of man, The federation of the world."

NOTES ON THE WEEK. The interest in all the meetings and the attendance at them, was greater than for any one year for the past five years. The topics for prayer and the hymns selected were in keeping, and proved very helpful to all the people. Without doubt the various speakers made the best of their opportunities, and at every meeting there was much to be learned, and good impressions to be carried away. It was a good week, and both pastors and people will truly be the better of the reunions thus afforded, and of the influences exerted; and further good results should certainly follow. Among the outstanding statements of the speakers the following three are worthy of note namely: "Current topics" there is about one on the doctrine of Repentance. Rev. R. J. Power Monday night. The interview asked for by the Greeks, who had come to, or were at Jerusalem, was not granted. The moral and religious sides of it. Rev. R. E. Fairbairn, Wednesday The peoples spoke of the nations night. "That some one has said that the Church was being killed by "elocution." Rev. C. H. Johnson, Wednesday night. There is room for thought on these particular points.

In closing our notes we desire to thank all who helped us by kindly words, and to especially thank the Press for its great courtesy to us, and for the liberal space which has been granted our efforts.

AT WESLEY CHURCH. There was a fine audience considering that those who usually observe the Week of Prayer, residing in the Centre and East End of the City, would naturally gravitate to Cochrane Street Church, where the address was to be delivered by a stranger, Rev. W. B. Burden, the pastor presiding, and after reading of the scripture, and prayer, announced the subject, and Rev. E. W. Forbes as the speaker of the evening. Referring to international relations, in modern times, he pointed out that they were affected by press-ent day utilities such as the telegraph and the press despatches, how the markets, exchange, and public opinion were subject to constant change; how this instant contact produced in marvellous quick time immediate and far-reaching results, and how distance was becoming greatly contracted by rapid transition. It was proper that in all these problems, Divine guidance should be given over and over again when the aid of the Almighty had been sought. When the nation got to its knees in the Great War, the tide of battle was turned, and in the great questions of peace, Ireland, and peace for the world through disarmament, prayer was being answered; and as we were seeking more fellowship among the nations, and that governments may be dominated by the principles of truth, justice and service in their international relationships, so we should also pray that in industry, commerce and diplomacy there should be more fellowship, love, and unity, and all should pray both in churches and in the home that the important conferences of statesmen in session at the present time, may be guided to such conclusions as shall promote righteousness and brotherhood throughout the world. Mrs. R. Hor-wood very ably presided at the organ in the absence of Mr. Pratt, for which Wesley Church Minister and officials felt very much obliged.—A.W.M.

Belvedere Orphanage Concert. The concert given yesterday in the Aula Maxima, St. Bonaventure's College, in aid of Belvedere Orphanage, was attended by a large and appreciative audience. The affair was under the patronage of His Excellency the Governor and His Grace the Archbishop, the latter being represented by Mons. McDermott, V.G. The programme which included songs and recitations by well known artists was very pleasing. "The Banks of Newfoundland" rendered by an 8-year-old inmate of the Orphanage won much applause. A dust by two tots from the institution was a feature of the programme. The little ones, by request, were presented to the Governor who congratulated them on their performance. A candy table, in charge of Miss Margaret Furlong, helped to considerably augment the funds. The concert which was arranged by the Belvedere Ladies' Auxiliary, closed with the National Anthem.

The Loss of the Lila Boutillier. A recent issue of Lloyd's Weekly Summary contains the following item in reference to the Lila Boutillier abandoned last month whilst bound from St. Mary's to Oporto. The crew were rescued by the French steamer Ariadne and landed at Dakar on the West Coast of Africa: "London, Dec. 14.—H.M.S. Thunderer reports that at 4 p.m. on December 3rd her course was altered to close and sink a schooner reported abandoned and on fire in lat. 49.07 N. long. 19.40 W. At 6.30 p.m. the schooner was sighted, still burning but at 7 p.m. when about 5 miles off the fire suddenly extinguished, and on reaching the vicinity the war vessel's searchlights failed to reveal any signs of wreckage and there is no doubt that she sank." The above vessel was the Lila Boutillier.

Two Buildings Guttled By Fire.

Father Rescues Child From Burning House---Fireman Overcome By Smoke.

Fire last night partially destroyed the house and shop on Puckworth Street, owned by Mr. A. J. Stacey. The building was completely gutted. Two adjoining houses were badly damaged by fire, water and smoke. These are the laundry of Yuen Lee and the residence of Mr. M. Walsh. The total loss cannot be estimated as yet but will run into many thousands of dollars, very little of which is covered by insurance. The origin of the fire is unknown.

ALARMS CAUSE CONFUSION.

The fire was first discovered by Mr. Stacey, who keeps a "fish and chips" shop. He noticed smoke issuing through partitions in the hallway and had an alarm sent. This was shortly after 8.50 p.m. Four customers who were in the shop at the time hurriedly departed when they saw the smoke. Mr. N. J. Vinicombe, M.H.A., who was passing, with a police constable ran to the nearest box, and rang in an alarm from Box 15, and the Central and Eastern Fire Companies immediately responded.

FATHER RESCUES CHILD.

In the meantime, flames had broken out all over the shop, which was burning fiercely. In a room upstairs Stacey's five months' old child was sleeping and the father immediately made his way to it. Mrs. Stacey was not home at the time. Entering the room, Stacey snatched the child up in his arms, but found he was unable to reach the street by way of the door as the fire had cut off the sole alternative. Rushing to a window in the rear of the building, he smashed the glass with his hands, heedless of the cuts he received, and jumping through the hole, he landed on the roof of the back kitchen, he climbed down the remaining distance to the ground on a ladder, bearing his precious burden in his arms. Stacey was badly cut and had his hair singed.

FIGHTING THE BLAZE.

When the firemen arrived the blaze had assumed serious proportions. The whole Stacey residence was a mass of flames, and the fire was eating its

DAMAGE CAUSED BY FIRE.

As soon as it was humanly possible, firemen entered the top floor of Stacey's house and attacked the flames from the inside. While engaged in this work, Fire Constable Baker of the Central Station was overcome by smoke fumes and had to be carried to the neighbouring surgery of Dr. G. N. Murphy, for treatment. He did not fully recover consciousness for a considerable time.

As the walls of Stacey's residence remain standing, and besides losing his shop, he and his family are left homeless. Yuen Lee's laundry was badly damaged by smoke and water. All the laundry which was there ready for delivery has been ruined. The furniture and other belongings of the Thorne's have also suffered a great deal of injury. Four cats were found suffocated in the rooms, but a dog survived the blaze. The unoccupied building to the West of Stacey's was damaged by the fire, as was also the house and shop of the Misses McCourt, next door. Yuen Lee has no insurance on his property. The other fire sufferers are only partly insured.

Claim for Damages.

Lloyd's Weekly Summary of Dec. 16th, states that the British auxiliary vessel Harmony has taken legal action against the British schooner Little Princess for $5000 damages sustained. It will be remembered that during a recent storm the vessel's stern in the Harbor of St. John's were driven from their moorings when the damages were supposed to have been sustained. The Little Princess is owned by Capt. A. Keane.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

WILL VOTE TO-DAY.

LONDON, Jan. 6.
The Daily Eireann in Dublin has decided to vote to-morrow on the ratification of Anglo-Irish Treaty, says a Central News despatch. It is reported that Eamonn De Valera, in seeking re-election will do so with a Cabinet of his own thinking. His remarks were construed to mean that he would offer for re-election.

KAY'S EXPERIENCE.

DUBLIN, Jan. 6.
A. B. Kay, London Times correspondent, who was kidnapped here Wednesday by armed men and taken to Cork, where his release was ultimately secured through the agents of Michael Collins, returned to Dublin this afternoon. He has not been harmed in any way.

CHECKING THE MENACE.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.
Consultation of submarine questions was conducted to-day by the five powers' naval committee, with the adoption of the final Root resolution, declaring the submarine commander who, with or without orders from their Government, violated existing international law on submarine warfare, to be guilty of piracy.

JAPANESE STATESMAN DEAD.

HONOLULU, Jan. 6.
Marquis Okuma, former Premier of Japan is dead, according to a cable received by a Japanese language paper here.

A CHURCH DEMAND.

TORONTO, Jan. 6.
The Catholic Church is making three important demands on the Ontario Department of Education. They are, first, division of corporation and public utility taxes, giving Catholic schools their share; second, separate high schools, and third, a share of provincial grants to primary education.

ECCLIASTICAL SEPARATION.

LONDON, Jan. 6.
The first step has been taken for the severance of the Anglican Church in Australia from the Church of England, after a three days debate in Sydney, the Times Australian correspondent cables. The Anglican General Synod, which represents the whole Commonwealth, affirmed the principle of complete independence for the Anglican Church in Australia as a National Church in the sense contemplated by the thirty-nine articles.

AN ARMY OF GANGSTERS.

BELFAST, Jan. 6.
An inquest on nineteen victims of shootings here, Police Inspector Nixon to-day said there were 7,000 men of gangster type in Belfast, armed with revolvers, part of whom he thought came from U.S. Until these men were disbanded he did not see any remedy for the present menace. Coroner Graham declared there was a Bolshevik organization, whose object was to plunder and create strife between Catholics and Protestants.

ECONOMIC CONFERENCE.

CANNES, Jan. 6.
The Allied Supreme Council decided to-day to hold a European economic conference at Genoa during the first fortnight in March. United States will be invited to participate, and this is regarded as amounting to recognition of the Soviet Government.

CLASSED AS PIRATES.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.
The five power contract to impose age old penalties of piracy against naval commanders who violate the accepted laws of naval warfare, was approved yesterday by the Ammunition Committee of the Washington Conference. It completed a formula for apprehension of submarine terrorism at sea.

ANOTHER SENSATION.

DUBLIN, Jan. 7.
Six hundred Irish volunteers, were stopped and searched by Ulster special constabulary and members of the Royal Irish Constabulary, who seized a number of revolvers and a quantity of equipment. Eleven of the volunteers were arrested and taken to Omagh barracks. The incident has created a sensation in Dublin.

SINN FEIN VOLUNTEERS.

BELFAST, Jan. 7.
Reports received here describe the Irish soldiers held up near Dromore as Sinn Fein volunteers.

IT WOULD BE.

BELFAST, Jan. 7.
Cardinal Logue, preaching here, described affairs in Ireland as critical and declared that a split among the Irish people would be a greater scourge than war.

A MODERN SAMSON.

BELFAST, Jan. 7.
Commenting on De Valera's action in Dal Eireann, the Evening Telegraph says, "In fingering his resignation at the head of Dal members, De Valera undoubtedly effected a sort of coup d'etat. Like Samson he laid hold of the pillars of Dal, bowed himself with all his strength, and pulled down the whole house of cards, burying himself in the debris. Ireland stands to-day humiliated before the world. The proceedings of Dal have been simply the protracted bear garden, passing from one stage of unseemliness to another. Is not the attitude of Ulster in refusing to go into such a parliament, or submit its destinies to such hands, abundantly and completely justified?"

KAY PAYS TRIBUTE TO CAPTORS.
LONDON, Jan. 7.
That he published news concerning the Irish Army, which had not been authorized, and that the views put forward by him did not represent the views of the army in Cork, was the charge formulated against A. B. Kay, correspondent of the London Times in Dublin, at a military court of enquiry held in a lonely homestead in a remote part of Cork, to which his captors took him from Dublin, after he was kidnapped Thursday. Kay states that when he arrived in Dublin he learned that Chief Liaison Officer Dalton had proposed to offer himself as a hostage to the British Government for Kay. A tribute is paid to the courtesy of his captors by the correspondent.

DEPRECATION.

DUBLIN, Jan. 7.
Acute suspense and anxiety over chances for peace prevailed in Ireland to-day, as a result of De Valera's unexpected action, yesterday, in offering his resignation as President of the Irish Republic. De Valera has long held, and still holds such an exceptional position in the estimation of Irish people, that none among them was willing to doubt his sincerity, but general regard for him did not prevent many expressions of regret at the course he had taken. In the view of the supporters of the Peace Treaty his action has gravely imperilled the chances for peace. It was the opinion of several of the members that a vote on the Treaty would be taken before seven o'clock to-night. The Freeman Journal says "attempts by men of good will will reach a decision, by agreement in Dal yesterday, failed. De Valera could not accept proposals of an unofficial committee. Instead, he faced Dal with a new move of his own. His position, he declared, had become impossible. His attempt to include his own personality and claims, and shelve discussion of the Treaty failed, as it deserved to fail. If there is any impossibility about the position of De Valera, it arises from the fact that he has set himself to defeat the manifested will of the Irish people." The Irish Independent says "Mr. De Valera said very properly that he could not allow personal considerations of any sort to have anything to do with the situation, and then dramatically announced his resignation. His strongest opponents never questioned. Mr. De Valera's sincerity. Advocates of the Treaty, however, felt that resignation was, whether so intended or not, a step calculated to prejudice the main issue in Dal, and before the country and indeed was tantamount to asking for a vote of confidence. If his reason for resigning was good yesterday, it was equally good the first day the Dal met. The subsequent withdrawal of the resignation is in itself proof that it was not a matter of urgency."

Cut Head Off Wife.

TO STOP CHRISTMAS SPENDING.
Because his wife was wasting money on Christmas cards and other trifles in the way of Yuletide remembrances, Peter Smith, a Chicago construction foreman, drawing $72 a week, cut off her head with a 16-inch butcher knife and then telephoned the police to come and get him: When the officers arrived they found on a table, spattered with blood, a half-dozen Christmas cards the woman was about to address. There were also some inexpensive trifles, wrapped, evidently for children of her acquaintance. She also had been doing some busy work. One of the cards, vivid with her own blood, was addressed to "My Dear Husband."
Smith discussed the tragedy. He said he and his wife had been quarrelling for a week over her "extravagant" tendencies. He claims she took the knife to bed with her for protection against his threats to beat her; that he took it away from her, after a hard struggle and severed her head. Her hands and arms are badly cut and lacerated, showing she made a hard fight for her life.
"Kill me, please," said Smith, as the officers led him to the police station. There he repeated his version of the affair. "Why did you kill her?" asked the desk sergeant. "Oh, we were arguing over Christmas money. She was spending too much on these cards and things. She was too extravagant—practically threw money away."
Police authorities believe Smith is demented, and insanity probably will be his defence when he is brought to trial.

Seismic Disturbances.

NO CONNECTION BETWEEN THEM.

New York. (Canadian Press Ltd.)
—Theories that some scientific relationship might exist between concurrent volcanic activity reported during the month from Mexico, Argentina, Chile, Italy and Japan are discredited by geological authorities. Dr. Edmund O. Hovey, geologist of the American Museum of Natural History, and a recognized authority on volcanoes and earthquakes, said the areas of disturbances were too widely separated to have any connection. "The eruptions reported," he said, "are from volcanoes so far apart that any relationship is only a presumption. It is beyond belief that the same cause could exist in each case." J. Edmund Woodman, Professor of Geology in New York University, took the view that volcanic eruptions, occurring almost simultaneously in different parts of the world are merely coincidences. "I believe, however, that concurrent eruptions in Alaska and in the Andes mountains of South America have a certain relationship," he added. "There is mountain building going on in many parts of the world, and there are times when we have a series of disturbances extending for instance, from the tip of Canada to Cape Horn. Doubtless the same mighty forces have a hand in each of such eruptions, and this might account for simultaneous outbreaks in Chile and Mexico, but would have no bearing on similar disturbances in Europe or Asia."

PROBABLE RELATIONSHIP.

The theory of Professor Woodman regarding a probable relationship between disturbances in the same general range of mountains, as for instance the great divide extending down the western edge of North and South America, is strengthened by reports received from Buenos Aires, describing eruptions in the Andes, and following within a few hours other reports of disturbances from Mexico. The activity in the Andes resulted in considerable damage to the villages of Osorno, Union and San Pablo, while the Mexico disturbance natives in the vicinity of Mexico City. Following due south on a meridian of longitude the South American cities are some 1,800 miles east of Mexico City, yet lie in what geologists term the same range of strata. The causes and effects of eruptions in this particular range, however, are not necessarily found in strata across the Pacific Ocean, or deep under the Italian Peninsula. Great internal heat, geologists point out, might begin generating in one locality, and cast its influence over strata bearing a direct relationship or directly connected by gigantic fissures or channels miles under the earth's surface, while volcanoes such as Vesuvius and Etna are believed to receive their energy from sources quite local to their bases.

On the Road to Logy Bay

Tell me not of far lands, with their castles tall and hoary,
With their monarchs and warriors,
And wondrous works of art,
O, I will sing of my land, with its simple fishing story,
And of a place that's very dear to many an honest heart.

You will find a road which winds its way into a little village,
To the East of St. John's City where I often took my way;
Where combined with fishing there, the toilers work at tillage,
'Tis a pleasant walk in summer on the road to Logy Bay.

Sure the brooklets by the roadside, clear as crystal they are gushing,
There are groves of spruce and alder to be met with here and there;

And the buttercups and daisies, and the wild rose sweetly blushing,
What heavy spots in other lands with this spot can compare.

There you'll see the blackbird and the tiny little sparrow,
As they troll love notes, in the fields of new mown hay—
And many a swain was smitten I am sure by Cupid's arrow,
When out upon a ramble on the road to Logy Bay.

Most hearty will your welcome be, if there you should be meeting,
With the men or women, who beside that place reside;
'Tis "good morning" and "God bless you," Or, it is the soul's true greeting,
A thing unknown, uncared for by the art of flimsy pride.

Foreign lands may boast of art, of castles tall and hoary,
New York may sing about the lights "along her old Broadway";
More dear to one, is my land with its simple fishing story,
And in summer time to ramble on the road to Logy Bay.

Pleasant Reminiscences of a Popular Play.

Dear Sir—It is with pleasure I read in the Telegram last evening that the B.S. have decided to reproduce "Under the Gaslight." It is many years ago since I first saw it staged with the Misses Bride (now Mrs. John Baxter) and Kitty Jordan and Messrs. Tom O'Neill and Phil Moore in the leading roles. The others I cannot remember but the scenes spoken of in your article in yesterday's edition (videlicet the wharf scene and the track scene) I remember quite vividly. The first night it was played, the late J. C. who was then a very prominent Government official left his seat and coming right up to the front of the stage in the old B.S. Hall leaned over the footlights and said in a very audible voice "Tis the completest thing I've ever seen" and then turned round and nodded to the audience as if to solicit their approval of his pronouncement. Another funny incident to occur was when Snorkey was tied to the track and the young lady locked in the baggage room, the noise of the approaching train made the whole audience stand on their feet with excitement. In the midst of it, a young chap who is now the leading figure in one of our fraternal organizations was so carried away that he cried out to the heroine "Get an axe—get an axe!" "Under the Gaslight" is a splendid drama and I am sure all the "old timers" like myself will turn out with anticipated pleasure to see it. I thank you, Mr. Editor, for permitting me to use up so much of your valuable space, but the mere mention of the name carries me back to days of happy hours and pleasant memories, gone, alas! to return no more.

Yours truly,
L. F. M.
Jan. 6, 1922.

Perhaps the victory shall not come to me,
Perhaps I shall not reach the goal I seek,
It may be at the last I shall be weak
And falter as the promised land I see;
Yet I must try for it and strive to be
All that a conqueror is. On to the peak,
Must be my call—this way lies victory!
Boy, take my hand and hear me when I speak.

There is the goal. In honor make the fight.
I may not reach in but, my boy, you can.
Cling to your faith and work with all your might,
Some day the world shall hail you as a man.
And when at last shall come your happy day,
Enough for me that I have shown the way.

Hodder Declares He Can Do Twice As Much Work Now

Grate's Cove Man So Weak He Couldn't Work—Is Now In Fine Shape.

"I'm a believer in Tanlac, for it not only restored me to health but also keeps me in first-class trim," said Eli Hodder, Grate's Cove, Bay de Verde district, Newfoundland. "When I first began taking Tanlac I was in a weak and run-down condition and hardly able to work. My stomach had been out of order for several years and I had reached the point where I actually dreaded to eat anything. Tanlac proved to be just what I needed and soon had my stomach in excellent condition. My strength and energy came back and I was able to do twice as much work as I had been doing before. If I ever feel myself getting under the weather I immediately take Tanlac and it acts almost like magic. It certainly delivers the goods."

Sagona Gone North.

S.S. Sagona, Capt. Tavernor, reached Curling at about 5.30 p.m. on Saturday, says the Western Star of Jan. 4th. She got north as far as Port Saunders, where she had to steam through about ten miles of ice and then was unable to get into the harbor. At Bonne Bay there was a little slob ice making, but not much of any account. The Sagona left there at 1 o'clock Thursday and arrived at Lark Harbor that same evening. From Lark Harbor she proceeded to Middle Arm and took on board about a thousand barrels herring which she brought in here. The Sagona is scheduled to sail north again today. This, we understand, will be her last trip on this route this season. Upon her return here she will load herring for North Sydney. It was reported on Saturday that she will return to Humbermouth with a cargo of coal, and then take away another cargo of herring.

"Blundering Billy."

At St. Joseph's Hall on Monday night next one of the prettiest performances will be staged at St. Joseph's Hall, Holytown, for the benefit of the parish. Mr. T. M. White's Dramatic Co. will appear in a 3 act comedy drama entitled "Blundering Billy," while the specialties are left into the hands of Miss Ida Howlett together with the Mount Cashel-bags. After the performance a dance will take place, which will be given free to those attending the play, the music being supplied by four brass instruments. With such well known performers a unique presentation of a first-class entertainment is in store for all who attend, and as the tickets are at the Royal Stationery no doubt a capacity house will greet the performers.—adv.

Alconda in Collision.

S.S. Alconda, which was engaged during the summer carrying pulp and paper from Botwood to London for the A.N.D. Co., was in collision with two steamers, the Sagona and Bogota in the Clyde on December 14th last. The Alconda received serious damage, the Bogota had her rudder carried away, and the Sagona also received considerable injury. The Alconda was bound from London to Glasgow at the time of the accident, and is now undergoing repairs at Prince's Dock.

Not Corner Brook But Deer Lake.

The Humber Valley proposition is now engaging the careful attention of the Government, and we have every confidence that it will receive due consideration from every point of view. We understand the present plans provide for the erection of the works at the head of Deer Lake, instead of Brook as in original plan. It is also reported that shipping docks will be constructed at Cow Head or Summerside, and will be connected with the works at Deer Lake by a spur line of railway running north of Deer Lake and Humber River. No doubt in a few weeks the whole matter will come before the Legislature, when the public will have an opportunity to know just what the proposals are and the concessions asked for.—Western Star.

Mother, Why Don't You Take Nuxated Iron

And Be Strong and Well and Have Nice Rosy Cheeks Instead of Being Nervous and Irritable All the Time and Looking So Haggard and Old?—The Doctor Gave Some to Susie Smith's Mother and She Was Worse Off Than You Are and Now She Looks Just Fine

Nuxated Iron Will Increase the Strength and Endurance of Weak, Nervous, Careworn, Haggard Looking Women in Two Weeks' Time

There can be no healthy, beautiful, rosy checked women without plenty of iron in their blood," said a prominent New York physician recently.

It is the fact that doctors have found that women who are nervous, irritable, and haggard looking are usually iron deficient. Nuxated Iron is a distinctive medicine which not only increases the iron in the blood, but also builds up the nervous system.

What Is Your Answer?

Most have nerve food something to supply increased nerve force, the same as a starting gun must have been made to make new flesh and muscle. For centuries science searched for a nerve force food. At last a celebrated French physician brought to the attention of the Paris Academy of Medicine a remarkable product which contained the principal chemical constituents of active living nerve force, in a form which most closely resembles that in the brain and nerve cells of man. This wonderful product was later combined with organic iron and other valuable ingredients under the name of Nuxated Iron. It is a true artificial nerve force ready to be transferred into active living nerve force, the moment it enters the body, may now easily be had simply by taking two tablets of Nuxated Iron three times a day, with or after your meals. ORGANIC IRON, CONTAINED IN NUXATED IRON, IS LIKE THE IRON IN YOUR BLOOD and like the iron in spinach, carrots, lentils and apples. It not only quickly enriches the blood, but it also stimulates the blood to manufacture a greatly increased supply of new nerve force, so that Nuxated Iron not only feeds artificial nerve force directly to the brain and cells, but it indirectly increases the production of nerve force through the medium of the blood.

Rupee Hoarding.

SERIOUS FINANCIAL CONDITION IN INDIA.

London. (Canadian Press.)—Lord Chelmsford, former Viceroy of India, in a paper read at a recent meeting of the Royal Colonial Institute, dealt on "India and Some Problems," dealt among other things with the Indian habit of hoarding the rupee. Incidentally his lordship said he would not discuss the question of reforms but he was so confident that he had been right in his policy as those who differed from him were sure that he was wrong. With regard to the hoarding of the rupee, Lord Chelmsford said that in April, 1918, the problem was how to hoard the millions of rupees which had flowed into the treasuries. The success of the small-note issue, and the foundation of the Imperial Bank with its obligation to establish new branches throughout the country, he said were two of the outstanding features of recent Indian finance. It was to be hoped that the establishment of increased banking facilities throughout the country would diminish the tendency to hoard the precious metals, which was rife in Eastern countries, and was a legacy from anarchical times when there was no security. "Unfortunately, shortly before my time there," Lord Chelmsford continued, "there was a large bank failure in the Punjab which gave a rude shock to the public confidence. The prestige of the Government, should inspire confidence, and if it succeeds only in combating the hoarding habit, it will have done a great service, for it will thus bring into circulation and use the millions of rupees which lie buried and useless for the industrial development of the country. I mention only to regret the failure of our attempt to stabilize the exchange value of the rupee. The Secretary of State took the precaution to appoint a commission of undoubted expert strength to advise us in the matter in which the general public asked for action; and we in India acted on their advice. The result has been to enforce the lesson that it is wise for governments to abstain from attempting to exercise control in matters dependent on factors beyond their control."

35-cents buys a bottle of "Danderine" at any drug store. After one application you can not find a particle of dandruff or a falling hair. Besides, every hair shows new life, vigor, brightness, more color and abundance.

The Beginning of Ballooning.

The first step towards the conquest of the air may be said to have been taken when the discovery of hydrogen gas by Cavendish in 1760, led to the suggestion that a weight might be raised from the ground by attaching to it a sphere filled with hydrogen gas. Yet it was not until 1783 that the brothers Montgolfier, sent up paper bags filled with heated air, an experiment followed in the same year by the first balloon, sent up unmanned, by Charles, of Paris. Early in December of the same year Mm. Charles and Robert ascended in a gas balloon, and two years later the first fatality occurred, Pilatre de Rosier being killed while attempting to cross the Channel. But already the Channel had been crossed. On January 7, 1785, Blanchard and Dr. Jeffreys made the transit successfully and landed in the forest of Guines, after an adventurous voyage. The substitution of coal-gas for hydrogen was made by Charles Green, who accomplished some 400 ascents, beginning in 1821, and to whom also the invention of the guiding-rope was due. For military purposes balloons were used first in the wars of the French Revolution, and it is said that Jourdan owed much of his success in the battle of Fleurus to information thus acquired. Since then they have figured increasingly in all wars, including the last and the greatest. The aeroplane, indeed, has proved a far more valuable adjunct to armies; but, nevertheless, balloons were found of much utility for purposes of observation, and, though eclipsed by the latest comers, by no means were ousted. Nor should the great developments of the present day cause us to depreciate those pioneers of the past who led man to the mastery of another element.

Trading With Germany.

British Glove Manufacturers Protest. A protective tariff against German competition was demanded by British glove manufacturers, who gave evidence recently, says the London Daily Mail, before a Board of Trade committee, appointed to consider applications under the Safeguarding of Industries Act.

Mr. W. Pinkham complained that fabric gloves and materials manufactured in Germany are being sold here at prices which, by reason of the rate of exchange, are below the prices at which similar goods can be profitably manufactured in this country. Producing some gloves, Mr. Pinkham declared, "I challenge any man who knows his business to say he has ever bought a case of German gloves to beat these, either in quality or in finish. Before the war the price was 16s. 6d.; to-day it is 32s. 6d., and 21s. 6d. for the cheapest. For the lower quality gloves the Germans are charging 6s. to 6d. a dozen less than English firms; for the higher quality the German prices are 8s. to 9s. less."

Mr. Frank Moore, a member of a firm of glove manufacturers at Leicester, said that up to 1919 they employed 190 hands but now they had only 20 to 30. The drop in orders was due solely to the rate of exchange. The English buyer had to buy German articles because if he did not his neighbour would.

Mr. S. Greensted, secretary of the North Devon Glove Manufacturers' Association, said many of their factories had been closed down, and falling a tariff which would permit trading on a fair basis, the remaining factories would be closed within the next year.

MOTHER!

Clean Child's Bowels with "California Fig Syrup"

Even a sick child loves the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup." If the little tongue is coated, or if your child is listless, cross, feverish, full of cold, or has colic, give a teaspoonful to cleanse the liver and bowels. In a few hours you can see for yourself how thoroughly it works all the constipation poison, sour bile and waste out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. Millions of mothers keep "California Fig Syrup" handy. They know a teaspoonful to-day saves a sick child to-morrow. Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.

Charles Dickens, Celebrated Novelist.

On Tuesday, January 7, 1812, Charles Dickens, afterwards one of the most popular of English novelists, was born at Portsmouth, but his father, who was serving in the Naval Pay-Office, was required soon to remove to Chatham, and in 1821 to London. This son, after a hard and lonely childhood, was placed in a lawyer's office, but wrote and reported for newspapers. "Sketches by Bos," in 1836, was his first published work; the following one was the famous "Pickwick Papers." He visited Italy and twice went to America; and being genial and generous, as well as business-like, his public readings and speeches proved very attractive. He established the "Daily News" newspaper, originated "Household Words," edited "All the Year Round," and his own published writings became permanently popular, including "Oliver Twist," "Nicholas Nickleby," "Master Humphrey's Clock," "Martin Chuzzlewit," "Dombey and Son," "David Copperfield." He wrote his "Child's History of England" for any of that age, and was writing "Edwin Drood" in his residence at Gad's Hill, near Rochester, in Kent, which he had bought in 1856, when he died there on June 9, 1870.

The Loss of Calais.

On January 7, 1558, Mary the First, who had succeeded on the English throne her only and half-brother, Edward the Sixth, son of Henry the Eighth, by his wife, Jane Seymour, lost Calais, which was retaken by the Duke of Guise. This daughter of that King was the next child in age, being the daughter of Katherine of Aragon, the first of his six successive wives. In 1557 there was a war between France and Spain, of which later country Aragon was part, and Mary

Not Guilty!

"Six months' hard labour! You ought to be ashamed of yourself!" thundered the judge to a meek-looking man standing with downcast eyes in court beside a woman, who had described how her husband had beaten her unmercifully. As the man was being led to the cells he managed to say: "Excuse me, I am not the woman's husband at all."

Who Would Be Strong?

The Roman soldiers, who built such wonderful roads, and carried a weight of armor and luggage that would crush the average farm hand, lived on coarse brown bread and sour wine. They were temperate in diet, and regular and constant in exercise. The Spanish peasant works every day and dances half the night, yet eats only black bread, onions and water melon. The Smyrna porter eats only fruit and sour olives, yet he walks off with his load of one hundred pounds.
