At the Mouth of the Treacherous Pit

STORY OF LOVE, INTRIGUE AND REVENGE

CHAPTER XXXVIII

"Why should you add even one more dismal recollection to the sad memories of your life?" Gertrude asked, and Dolores gave up the wish.

They did not know, either mother or daughter of the sad work that was being done that night. It was as though half the town of Deeping were awake. Lord Fielden had given orders that every preparation for a funeral should be made at Fielden Manor. He asked Gertrude to promise that Lady Allanmore should not leave her room until the next day, when he would ask to see her. Never did man work with such energy—indeed he worked so hard that he almost lost sight of the reward in view.

When the shadows of evening fell, he went with a picked body of brave men. They had ropes and ladders and a litter, in case their search was successful. Three of the men had volunteered to descend the disused shaft.

They formed a weird group—the little crowd of men standing round the long-forgotten pit. The first thing that Lord Fielden ordered was that the mass of dead wood and creepers should be removed, and the mouth of the pit laid bare. It took some time to do this; and when it was effected, the men cried out in horror. A great, gaping chasm, black as night, yawned before them.

"It was neither more nor less than a death-trap," said Lord Fielden. "Covered in that treacherous fashion, I wonder that many others did not fall into it. It ought to have been walled round."

They soon discovered that there was no water in the pit; and then, amidst breathless silence, two men were gently lowered. The lookers-on stood round in grim silence, waiting for the signal their comrades were to give to be drawn up again. At last it came, and the men began slowly and carefully to draw up the ropes. When those from below reached the surface, the pallor of their faces showed weirdly in the torchlight. The leader, Robert Simmons, went straight to Lord Fielden. "My lord," he said, "it is there."

"What is there?" asked Harry, hardly able to control his emotion.

"The skeleton, my lord, of what was once Sir Karl Allanmore."

A solemn hush fell on them all. Found at last—he who had been lost and believed guilty all these years!

"I will go down with you," said Lord Fielden; and, in spite of all remonstrance, he carried out his resolution.

It was a terrible place, but not so horrible as he had imagined. The pit was very deep, and dark as night; but, to all appearance, there was nothing living in it—no rats, no creeping reptiles. The walls were dry and hard, if ever there had been water, it had long since dried up. Lord Fielden shuddered as he glanced around.

The three men standing by looked at each other in horror. Who was to be the first to touch what remained of the baronet? It lay a few inches from the spot, immediately under the opening.

"He must have been dead, I should think, when he reached the ground," remarked Lord Fielden.

With reverent hands he examined what had once been the body of one of the handsomest and kindest of men.

There was nothing repulsive about it. It was but a white and perfect skeleton. The clothes Sir Karl had worn were mildewed, and fell to pieces at a touch, the gold watch and chain were not broken, and one of the men noticed that the former had stopped at twenty minutes past nine.

"That must have been the time at which he met with the accident," said Lord Fielden.

It was noon of the day following when Gertrude asked her mother if she would go downstairs. Dolores, worn out with her sorrows, had slept the sound sleep of exhaustion; but Gertrude, lying by her side, had heard the solemn tramp of the burden-bearers, and knew what had been brought home.

"They have found him, mamma," said, gently, "just where he fell; and Harry says he must have died before he reached the ground, so that he could not have suffered much. It was only the intense agony of one moment, and then all was over."

Dolores grasped her daughter's arm.

"What is that?" she cried, trembling from head to foot. "What is it Gertrude?"

A QUEEN UNCROWNED

THE STORY IN THE LONE INN

CHAPTER I.

Over this door was a dapping sign, with an uncomfortable-looking female painted on it, who held a comb in one hand, and a small pocket mirror in the other, into which she was gazing with an expression of the most violent astonishment, evidently lost in wonder as to how on earth she had ever got there—as she very well might, indeed; for it was an uncomfortable, not to say distressing place for anybody to be, much less a mermaid. A striking trait about this lady was, that after beginning like any other reasonable Christian, she suddenly and impetuously, and without the smallest provocation, saw fit to branch off into a startling tail, which turned up so that the tip stood on a level with her head, and left her precisely in the shape of the letter 'U'. Under this extraordinary female was painted, in glaring, yellow capitals, "The Mermaid," and there was a popular legend extant, to the effect that the picture above was a striking likeness of one of those fishy individuals that had been captured by a former proprietor of the inn, while she was combing her sea-green tresses down on the shore. For the truth of this enrattling I am not, however, prepared to vouch in this authentic story, as I have only popular tradition for it.

Toward this inviting-looking dwelling, our two solitary travelers were betaking themselves, at a leisurely pace, each seemingly absorbed in his own thoughts. Captain Nicholas Tempest, having insinuated about half a yard of twisted tobacco into his mouth, was discharging right and left, with that benign expression of countenance men always wear when chewing the weed; and with both hands thrust in his trousers pockets, he swaggered along with an independent swag, that said, as plainly as words: "I'm Captain Nick Tempest, sir, and I don't care a curse for any man!" His handsome companion kept by his side, stepping carefully to avoid the mud, lest it should sully the shining brightness of his Spanish leather boots, and smiling slightly as he caught the contemptuous glances

TODAY I AM REAL WELL

So Writes Woman After Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Jameson, N. Y.—"I was nervous, easily excited and discouraged and had no ambition. Part of the time I was unable to sit up as I suffered with pains in my back and with weakness. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, both the liquid and tablet form, and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sensitive Wash for inflammation. Today I am real well and can do a routine house and do the work. I recommend your medicine to every woman who complains, and you may use my letter to help any one else. I am passing through the Change of Life now and I keep the Vegetable Compound in the home, ready to take when I feel the need of it."

ANGIE D. DAZEN, 202 W. Second St., Jameson, N. Y.

Often some slight encouragement may cause a general upset condition of the whole system, indicated by such symptoms as nervousness, headache, lack of ambition and general weakness.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will be found a splendid medicine for such troubles. In many cases it has removed the cause of the trouble.

Salvaging Sunken Ships

Between 8,000 and 10,000 ships, of which nearly 6,000 are British, it is estimated, are lying on the ocean bed. These sunken hulks are reckoned to account for about 15,053,785 gross tons, and their estimated value is $226,896,780—at pre-war shipbuilding rates.

With their cargoes, the ships below the sea are worth a fabulous amount—experts put the figures at $1,204,302,880 roughly.

There is need for the ships as well as their precious cargoes, to be raised, and there is small doubt that the salvage engineer will be kept busy for years hence.

Ships of less than 2,000 tons can usually be raised bodily by means of pontoons; ships above such a mark require often more ingenious handling.

Pontooning is employed whenever possible for salvaging sunken ships; the second method is for ships to be pumped and floated, which means that divers must go down, locate holes, and mend them with plates, before the ship is pumped free from water and raised again.

In a third method compressed air is used to force the water out of the ship at the bottom of the ocean.

An American has invented a salvage submarine which can have its door open below water without letting water into the ship. A European salvage company, too, have a patent underwater ship which carries several counted the shots which led up to the shooting in the woods bordering the Dutch Village Road, when officer Kennedy was seriously wounded. She had been standing near the officer when he fell, and although she had not been able to see her brother at the time, she said that she fired the shot which hit Kennedy. When the girl was apprehended her clothes were in ribbons from her hiding in the bush, and in this guise she appeared in court.

Belgium no Longer In Accord with France On Ruhr Occupation

Khartoum Garrison Reinforced as a Precautionary Measure.—Five Thousand Perish in Floods in China.—Sanguinary Fighting Between the Moors and French and Spanish Forces.

BELGIANS NOT SUPPORTING FRENCH.

LONDON, Aug. 13.—The Belgians are not supporting the French in their efforts to prolong occupation of the Ruhr. Premier Thomsen frankly says he does not want to continue holding Belgian troops in Ruhr, as Belgians are tired of the expense. German industrialists, especially dye manufacturers, are bitterly opposing the French demands for deliveries of dyes beyond 1930, and there are many other questions in connection with proposed deliveries of goods under report of the third committee which the big fourteen discussed vainly at this afternoon's meeting.

THE SOUDAN.

LONDON, Aug. 13.—The London newspapers this morning make a big display of the disturbances in the Sudan, which they attribute to conspiracy by interested persons in Egypt aiming to oust the British from the Sudan and establish Egyptian rule over it. An agitation to this end has been in progress for some months, the main organizers being, it is said, the White Flag Society of Cairo. It is recalled that the Egyptian Premier, Zagloul Pasha, told the chamber in June that Egypt would insist upon complete evacuation of the Sudan by Great Britain, and afterwards the British ministers announced in parliament that the British do so account would renounce their responsibility to the Sudan and the Sudanese. The editorial writers, while not believing that the present trouble will necessarily have serious consequences, foresee a possibly regrettable action in settling the Egyptian problem and even a conceivable cancellation of the impending negotiations with Zagloul Pasha. Editorial opinion strongly supports the Government in its Sudanese policy. The Times says "either to admit the Egyptian pretensions to the Sudan or leave the Sudan to the Sudanese would be inconceivable folly and inequity." The latest despatches from Khartoum and Cairo state that the actual casualties in the clash at Atbara were four killed and fifteen wounded, that no Egyptian troops were present, and that the troops who fired the shots were Sudanese Arabs, acting apparently without orders and under extreme provocation from the rioters. British troops and airplanes are reported to have left Cairo yesterday to reinforce the garrison at Khartoum.

FLOODS IN CHINA.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 13.—Millions have been rendered homeless and at least 50,000 persons have been drowned in devastating floods which are sweeping widespread areas of China and submerging thousands of villages. Thousands of refugees are pouring into Peking. It is impossible to get even an approximate estimate of the fatalities but 50,000 is said to be a conservative estimate. Unusually devastating floods with accompanying widespread destruction of property have been reported from various sections of China during the last few weeks. Late in July there were serious inundations in the province of Chihli and Sudan. On Saturday further floods were reported from Kwangai and Sinkiang, but it was reported that the loss of life had been up until that time comparatively small.

MOROCCANS DEFTY FRANCE.

CUTA SPANISH MOROCCO, Aug. 13.—Moroccan rebels are reported to have broken through the French front between Fez and Taza, after defeating and routing the French troops at Cuarga in the French zone in Morocco. The rebels were in command of Caid Kusaifa Bagadi.

THE REVOLT IN NORTH AFRICA.

MELILLA, Aug. 13.—News of heavy fighting in both the Spanish and French protectorates of Morocco is contained in despatches reaching Tetilla from the interior of the country. The most sanguinary encounter is reported to have been between the French colonial forces and Moorish rebels. The Moors are said to have captured three blockhouses and forced the Frenchmen to withdraw. French reinforcements have been ordered from Algeria to aid the besieged French troops. Spanish native troops, commanded by Abdel Malek, also have engaged in fighting with the rebels who are reported to have suffered losses of more than 100 men in killed and wounded. The rebels are declared to have been completely routed. Among the casualties are two prominent chiefs of the Kabyle and Beniugui tribes, two Caid of the Beni Urraguel tribe and a brother of the chief of the Kialu tribe.

LATEST FROM MOROCCO.

MADRID, Aug. 13.—The military directorate to-day issued a communique saying that news from Morocco was not satisfactory, that enemy natives had surrounded another position in the line, and that Spanish troops needed reinforcements. Heavy fighting in both Spanish and French Morocco was reported from Melilla yesterday. Messengers from the interior indicated that the Spanish troops were holding their own but that the rebels had broken through the French front between Fez and Taza after defeating French troops at Cuarga.

NEW SPANISH PARTY.

MADRID, Aug. 13.—The Military Directorate is engaged in drafting a constitution for the Patriotic Union, a new political party, which is hoped will replace the directorate and the civilian government in Spain. Generals Hermosel Calvo and Sotelo and other persons close to the Military Directorate have been conferring frequently of late in an endeavor to reach an agreement as to the proper foundation upon which to build the new party, and also for the purpose of organizing a provisional executive council to take over the reins of the party. The holding of a national convention is announced at which a constitution will be ratified and permanent officers elected.

RADIO TAKES THE PLACE OF PREACHER.

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 13.—A radio loud speaker has taken the place of a minister for the first time in Sweden on the island of Utö in the Stockholm Archipelago. The congregation after having taken part in the service broadcasted from Stockholm were enthusiastic in their praise of the new scheme, since their island, especially in the winter time, often cannot be reached, owing to bad navigation conditions.

SANTOS, Brazil, Aug. 13.—According to official figures obtained by the municipality, the death list of Sao Paulo during the recent outbreak there aggregated 1106.

MEXICO GREET'S SOVIET RUSSIA.

MOSCOW, Aug. 13.—Full diplomatic relations between Mexico and Soviet Russia have been resumed, as the result of negotiations carried on by representatives of the two countries in Berlin.

SWISS BAR SOVIET RUSSIANS.

LONDON, Aug. 13.—The Swiss Government, it is announced by the legation here, has issued an order forbidding citizens of the Russian Soviet to enter the Swiss Republic.

PRINCE ARTHUR FOR INDIAN VICEROY.

LONDON, Aug. 13.—Prince Arthur of Connaught is spoken of as the next viceroy of India. It was learned here to-day, Lord Reading, the present incumbent will probably finish his term of office, 12 months of which have now expired.

AVIATOR RETURNS.

STROMNESS, Orkney Is., Aug. 13.—Lieut. Locatelli, the Italian aviator, shortly after eleven o'clock this morning, continued his trans-Atlantic flight in the wake of the United States army aviators; but after being out less than an hour Lieut. Locatelli returned to Stromness. He had found the fog conditions so as to make it inadvisable to continue.

PROF. SMIDDY FOR WASHINGTON.

DUBLIN, Aug. 13.—Desmond Fitzgerald, Minister of Foreign Affairs for the Irish Free State, announced to-day in the Dail that the Free State Government had received notification that Professor Timothy A. Smiddy would be acceptable to the United States as Free States representative at Washington. He added Professor Smiddy would be given his credentials without delay.

THE BOUNDARY QUESTION.

DUBLIN, Aug. 15.—President Cosgrave introduced in Dail Eireann this afternoon, a Bill, similar to that presented in the House of Commons, for legally setting up a Boundary Commission under Article 12 of the Free State Treaty for delimitation of the Boundary between Ulster and the Irish Free State. The Bill also is for the purpose of ratifying President Cosgrave's agreement with the British Prime Minister.

ECUADOR MAY ENTER LEAGUE.

GENEVA, Aug. 13.—Ecuador is expected by the League of Nations officials to apply shortly for membership. That country, in a communication accompanying the frontier arbitration protocol between Ecuador and Peru which the former sent to the League for registration, emphasized that the document was registered in fulfillment of Article 18 of the League covenant, although Ecuador is not a member. This is the first Treaty Ecuador has filed with the League, and provides a method for the settlement of a century old dispute. It would create delegation in Washington to negotiate with the President of the United States, acting as arbitrator.

HALIBUT TREATY SIGNED.

OTTAWA, Aug. 13.—Formal ratification of the Halibut Treaty, bearing the signature of King George, has been received from London by Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice. Mr. Lapointe signed the Treaty at Washington, on behalf of Canada. A handsome binding in dark blue and gold enclosed the papers which will be exchanged for formal ratification of the United States. TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

AUSTRALIA NOT BOUND BY ANGLO-RUSSIAN TREATIES.

MELBOURNE, Aug. 13. Replying to a question in the House of Representatives to-day, Premier Bruce said Australia was not bound by the commercial treaties recently entered into by Russia and Great Britain.

EVACUATION OF THE RUHR PRESENTS FURTHER DIFFICULTIES.

LONDON, Aug. 14. After two conferences lasting five hours, the French and German delegates to the International Conference, to-night still were deadlocked on the question of time to be allotted for military evacuation of the Ruhr, and it was decided that Premier Herriot, FRANCES, Chaqcelor Marx, Germany, Premier Theunis, Belgium, and their associates would meet again at 9 o'clock to-morrow morning in another effort to reach an agreement. Louis Loucheur and several other French political leaders are in London in conference with M. Herriot and the German delegates. These men have induced the French Premier to stiffen up his policy, as he seems more adamant in his contention that a year's time must be left for evacuation, than when he returned from Paris on Monday. During to-day's conferences the French and Belgians waived the claim to maintain their Nationals on German Railways. Agreements also were reached on the amnesty question and other minor matters. At the conclusion of the conference this afternoon, M. Herriot said, "we are in the midst of negotiations which are progressing normally and which will be continued to-morrow." The Germans were not so calm in their estimate of negotiations, which Foreign Minister Stresemann regards as being in a critical state.

FLIERS PLANNED TO LEAVE ICELAND THIS MORNING.

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, Aug. 13. Lieut. Lowell Smith and Lieut. Eric Nelson, the United States round-the-world fliers, intend to hop off to-morrow morning at 8 o'clock for Angmagalik, Greenland, if weather conditions are propitious. To-night they were rather bad. The Navy patrol craft Reid and Billingsley left Reykjavik this afternoon to take their stations along the course over which the airmen will fly towards Greenland. They were followed at 2 o'clock this evening by the United States cruiser Richmond, the flagship of Rear Admiral MacGruder, which will take station 150 miles off the Iceland coast to await the passing of the fliers and then will proceed to Southern Greenland. The plane of Lieut. Nelson which had been on shore for several days for overhauling, was successfully put back in the water at 4 o'clock this afternoon. The machine is said to be in perfect condition for the next hop off.

CAIRN UNVEILED.

ANNAPOLIS ROYAL, N.S., Aug. 13. An eleven-foot-high Cairn, made of stones collected from the shores of Annapolis Basin and erected by the historic Sites and Landmarks Board of Canada to mark the site of the first port of "habitation" of Port Royal, was unveiled at Lower Granville, near here this afternoon with appropriate ceremony, under the auspices of the Annapolis Royal Historical Association.

MOMENTOUS DECISION AWAITED BY CONFERENCE.

LONDON, Aug. 13. The Reparations conference to-day expected to receive the momentous decision of the German, French and Belgian delegates on the Ruhr evacuation problem, a solution of which is necessary before the negotiations for putting the Dawes plan into effect can be favourably concluded. An announcement that the decision would probably be forthcoming to-day was made to the conference heads yesterday by Premier Herriot of France.

THE LONG HOP WILL BE ATTEMPTED BY U. S. FLIERS.

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, Aug. 13. Uncertainty over the plans for the next stage of the American Army world flight has been ended by the arrival at Angmagalik, Greenland, of the supply ship Gertrude Rask, which has been locked in the ice off the coast for several days. The vessel reported weather conditions at Angmagalik perfect and Lieut. Lowell H. Smith and Eric Nelson, with their mechanic, to-day were busy preparing for the flight to Greenland Bay, which conditions permitting, will be attempted to-morrow. The arrival of the Gertrude Rask assures the flight following the scheduled route. During her imprisonment in the ice and the consequent inability of the expedition to assure refueling and provisioning at Angmagalik, various alternatives were considered, including the hazardous one of landing at sea and taking on petrol from the United States ship Raleigh, but these plans are now happily abandoned. The distance to Angmagalik, which is on the eastern coast of Greenland, is roughly five hundred miles, and considerable ice is reported lying in the intervening waters, but the harbor is calm

Alaskan Dance Hall De Luxe in "The Siren Call"

MAJORITY BIG FEATURE OF NEW IRVIN WILLAT PRODUCTION

Those who believe that the dance hall-gambling resorts of Alaska and the far north are all of rough hewn construction, entirely lacking in the gorgeous and elaborate, will be surprised when the truth is revealed in a mammoth casino setting built for Irvin Willat's new production for Paramount, "The Siren Call," featuring Dorothy Dalton, which will be on view at the Majestic theatre to-day.

"Gore's Casino," as the place is known in the story, is a large interior, which occupied one-half of the largest enclosed studio stages at the Paramount studio. Adjoining the main casino is a hotel lobby setting. At the rear center of the casino is a stage, where the dancers and entertainers perform. At the left of the stage is a colossal stone fireplace, as wide at the side of an ordinary room. Next to the fireplace is the bar.

On either side of the large hall are boxes, in the nature of private compartments, where the dancing girls and the fur-clothed habitués of the place wine and dine and revel. Bizarre decorative gilded filigree work adds glamour to the general interior. It is in this casino that some of the most colorful scenes of "The Siren Call" are enacted. Miss Dalton plays the role of Charlotte Woods, a dance-hall girl, a type of role similar to the one she played in "The Flame of the Yukon," the memorial picture by virtue of which she became a screen favorite almost overnight. David Powell and Mitchell Lewis have the principal male roles.

The "Times" Says "We Reap as We Sow"

"As nations sow so shall they reap," says the Times. "In this country, up to half a century ago, the encouragement of the oldest and most important of all the industries was preferred to the development of others of more recent growth. Since that day the health and prosperity of agriculture, the industry that was sacrificed in the supposed interests of the rest, has steadily declined.

"England, alone of all the nations of Europe, has failed to realize the urgent necessity of maintaining its agricultural population. Between 1875 and 1907 the acreage under wheat declined by more than 50 per cent.; the displaced workers on the land were driven to emigrate, or to flock into the towns, with the fatal result of swelling the volume of unemployment to unheard-of proportions; and the British Isles became less and less self-supporting in its supplies of home-grown food.

"Before and after the war the process of rural depopulation has steadily continued, and it hardly lies in the mouth of Mr. Lloyd George, who was lamenting this fact recently, to blame anyone else for a period of unusually vacillating agricultural policy. In 1913 only 7,000,000 of the 35,000,000 acres of wheat consumed in the United Kingdom were produced at home. Last year there was a further reduction of 400,000 acres in the acreable land under cultivation. In the autumn the Prime Minister was informed by a representative agricultural deputation that unless something was done for the relief of British farmers the time must come when they could no longer afford to raise cereal crops. Nothing has happened in the intervening months to improve the situation, and all that the present Government have so far attempted to do for the relief of agriculture is to propose machinery for increasing the wages of the agricultural labourer. It is still the case that the country may be exposed to the risk of starvation in time of war, and the farmers, in time of peace, to the prospects of bankruptcy and a consequent inability to pay any wages at all.

"Meanwhile, with no apparent expectation of help from the hand of man, British farmers are carrying on, as best they may, the attempt to supply the rest of the population with food, and themselves and those who work with and for them with the means of living."

As to this year's harvest, the Times says:—

"In the case of wheat, from the point of view of the nation's food the most important crop of all, it is expected that the harvest, though some days later than usual, will be slightly better than last year. But, good harvest or bad, the fact has still to be faced that the supply of wheat falls far short of that proportion of the national needs which should be our objective."

Mistakes We All Make

Popular Fallacies Explained and Corrected.

The next time you hear someone say that the sun shining on a fire in a grate will put it out, tell him he is wrong. Just as we cannot see the stars or planets by daylight, the contrast between the sunlight and the bright sunlight is not so great as between the sunlight and the dim light of the dull day; hence the fire appears to be burning less brightly when the sunlight is on it than it really is.

This is one of the many interesting facts mentioned by Mr. A. S. E. Ackerman in "Popular Fallacies Explained and Corrected." Another cherished illusion which the author shatters is that the bracing effect of the seaside air comes from the ozone. The researches of scientists have proved this to be a mistake, since ozone is never present except in air more than 8,000 feet above sea-level. The small attributed to ozone really arises from decaying seaweed.

Moths Don't Eat Clothes.

A mistake which many housewives make is that an inverted egg-cup placed in a pie collects the juice or gravy and prevents it boiling over. The reason for placing an egg-cup in a pie is to hold up the crust.

Rooms warmed by gas-stoves are not unhealthy. Neither do they dry the atmosphere unduly, but care should be taken that the stove is not too powerful for the size of the room.

Moths do not eat clothes.

This is done by the grubs that develop from the eggs the moths have laid.

The bagpipe did not originate in Scotland, but can be traced in ancient Persia and by inference in Egypt, Chaldaea and ancient Greece.

It is also a fallacy to believe that gravel soil is healthier to live on than a clay soil. As a matter of fact, when gravel has been rendered foul by infiltration with organic matters, it becomes "a very hotbed of disease."

That Tortoise Tale.

Turning to the animal kingdom, it appears that owls do not avoid daylight, that cats see no better at night than other animals, that tortoises placed in gardens do not believe that they will eat up slugs and other garden pests do nothing of the kind, but feast themselves on the good garden stuff.

Ostriches do not bury their heads in the sand when pursued. A black roof to a dog's mouth does not denote purity of breed, and a beaver does not use his broad, flat tail as a trowel. Moles are not blind, although their sight is not brilliant, and monkeys rarely, if ever, have fleas.

If ever anyone tells you some story of an exciting fight he had with an alligator, take his remarks with a grain of salt. For alligators do not attack man. They are, too, found only in the rivers of China and North America. Crocodiles are man-eating, and it is confusion between the two species which leads to the mistake.

A Bathing Belief.

Adders, again, are generally supposed to be deaf. "As deaf as an adder" is a well-known simile. The sight and hearing of snakes as a class are poor, but adders are no more deaf than any other snake.

Cancer is not hereditary; brimstone and treacle is not good for children in the spring or at any time; and the good old linseed poultice beloved of our grandmothers is no good so far as the linseed is concerned (a sponge would do as well), the only virtue in it being hot water with which it is mixed.

A mild winter is healthier than a cold one, and therefore a green winter does not necessarily fill the churchyard. It is a popular belief that it is bad to bathe in cold water when you are hot, but this, it would appear, is not so. "On the contrary, it is better to bathe in cold water when the body is warm provided no time is lost in getting into the water."

Curved Junctions for City Streets

New System Said to Promise Fewer Accidents.

(Montreal Daily Star).

A new departure in street plotting has been decided upon at the City Hall with a view to "making Montreal safe for traffic," and plans have been prepared whereby restaurant street intersections will be replaced by curved junctions.

It is estimated that the building line will be thereby set back from 30 to 50 feet, thus giving approaching traffic on cross streets an opportunity of becoming visible this distance from the intersection.

ing put into practice on Gouin Boulevard, where it is traversed by Levesque street, and will be followed in all new street lines.

In future, where new streets are being opened or old ones extended, or where lines are being set and subdivisions made, the committee will recommend none except where curved intersections have been provided for.

In drawing up plans for the extension of Hochelaga street, the city engineers are utilizing this principle, and there will be no more right angles, but rounded crossings instead.

"Benefits accruing from adoption of this scheme are stated to be numerous. In the first place, corners will be more spacious, receiving the addition of several feet on four corners. As the building line will have to be squared within this curve, buildings will recede from the crossings several feet, leaving a clear perspective in every direction.

In this manner, pedestrians will be able to note the approach of motor vehicles at twice or even three times the present radius, and traffic at intersections will be less liable to congestion and blocking.

Investors and Their Losses

"Wide areas in France, Belgium and elsewhere were devastated by the war," says the Scotsman. "Immense destruction was wrought to property of all kinds. Then came the peace. Sanity demanded that with peace should come reconstruction. The immense sacrifices that had been borne for the sake of destruction were again necessary in the work of reconstruction. Curiously enough, no one seemed to realize this. Instead of sane, sober efforts at restoring the vast values that had been destroyed, the world was seized with the strange delusion that it was immensely richer as the result of the war. We all thought in terms of money instead of in terms of value. We overlooked entirely the fact that the more money we received the less we were able to obtain for it.

A Tragic Boom.

"In this country the delusion took the form of an orgy of financial destruction. There was a 'boom.' Everything apparently became worth twice its previous value. A new class of promoters came into being. They sought the country for business propositions capable of flotation as public companies. They offered to the owners fabulous sums in money, and then repaid to the investing public on the basis of largely on those offers. A new section of the public had learned for the first time the rudiments of investment. Immense sums had been raised for war purposes.

"Millions of people held stock for the first time in their lives, and with the removal of the dread of war they were thoroughly enjoying the new experience of being capitalists. They all easy victims to the delusion. Stock and shares were poured upon them in what appeared to be a never-ending stream. vast combinations of erstwhile prosperous businesses were formed on the basis of the hugely inflated value of money. Hardworking manufacturers, shipowners, and merchants, who by personal efforts and influence had built up solid businesses, were unable to withstand the temptation of selling them for two, three, or more times their worth. It was a time in which anything could be sold to the public. Bankers, industrialists, investors, and speculators were getting rich quickly.

The Awakening.

"Then the warnings commenced to sound. Economists began to preach the futility of fortunes that existed only on paper. Bankers began to get nervous, and called in their too easily granted loans. The bubble burst. To-day, after three years of travail, we are still endeavoring to repair the financial ruin caused by those two years of delusion. Millions and millions of capital paid cheerfully and hopefully for stock and shares in all kinds of amalgamations and combinations have simply vanished. Company after company has gone through the saddening process of reconstruction in the endeavour to bury decently the huge deficits that have piled up, and restore once more the former earning capacity of the assets they own. Within the past few days we have seen one great company endeavoring to wipe out over $11,000,000 of capital; $4,000,000 goes, in the scheme proposed to the shareholders of another company. Almost equally large amounts have gone in other instances.

"We are a sporting race, and, generally speaking, we take our losses with philosophy. That philosophy is tinged, however, with the smarting feeling that behind the long list of failures and lost millions stand rows of promoters and vendors whose profits have been commensurate with the losses sustained.

"In one or two notable cases the vendors have voluntarily stepped in and shared the losses. In many other cases, however, both promoters and vendors have their profits safely stowed away in gilt-edged and other stocks. In more than one case vendors have repurchased their business at a fraction of the price they received."

Glendale, Cal., Aug. 12 (A.P.)—Francisco Arballo, an Indian, credited with being one of the oldest men in the world, died near here recently at the age of 121. He fought through eight wars and had many other adventures. He came to California 63 years ago.

France Also Lacks Cooks

PARIS, Oct. 8 (A.P.)—It is not true, as many foreigners seem to believe, that domestic servants are plentiful in France. Here is an advertisement found recently in a French newspaper which proves that the servant problem is very real over here.

"Wanted, cook for family of two. Wages $25.00 a month. Husband will do the washing, wife will clean the rooms."

AMEND OR REPEAL THE ACT

In the short session which is drawing to a close there has been little time to consider many matters which call for the attention of the Legislature.

For twelve months we have been constantly referring to this matter, and it was promised that the necessary alteration would be made in the Act during the present session.

We would call the attention of the Minister of Justice to this measure and suggest that he give the matter his attention, in order to ascertain whether in this connection also it is not possible to give a square deal to all.

Our Chief Highway Almost Impassable

A late start was made this year in road repairing, and apparently there is also to be an early finish. If such is the case, it is to be regretted, as it simply means greatly increased expenditure later on.

Splendid work was performed in many sections last year, and the surface on the Petty Harbour Road is an excellent illustration of what our road builders can accomplish.

This road is used by practically every motor car driver and by a very large number of farmers who daily visit the city at this time of the year.

and Placentia Bays. As it is subject to harder usage than any other road it follows that a greater amount is required for its upkeep.

The blame for its present condition cannot be laid at the door of the Roads Commission. They have given good service willingly and for the most part without any remuneration, but it is impossible for them to provide good roads without funds.

A Few Figures for An Idle Hour

The birth rate in this country is falling off, according to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, while marriages are not as plentiful as they were. For instance the birth rate in 1920 was 26 per thousand of population. In 1921 it stood at 26.3 per thousand and in 1922 it was down to 23.3. We also note that the birth rate is higher in New Brunswick than in any other Province mentioned, while at the foot of the class stands British Columbia. It may be mentioned in passing that Quebec for some reason or other does not make a report on these matters to the Dominion Government so is not taken into consideration.

It is also to be noted that New Brunswick stands at the head in the matter of infant mortality, 106.4 per thousand, while British Columbia is lowest, 66.3 per thousand. Of all the children born in this country in 1923 the males numbered 80,184 and the females 75,934. The reason for this we will leave to those who understand more about such matters than we do.

When it comes to marriages old Ontario tops them all with 8.3 per thousand of population, while Prince Edward Island is down at the foot with 5.2 per thousand, the reason being do doubt because so many Islanders leave their native Province for other parts of the country during their earlier years. However, all along the line the marriage habit appears to be falling off, for while there were 51,078 in the eight provinces under consideration in 1921 there were 47,511 in 1922 and 49,056 in 1923.

It is to be noted that June still lives up to its reputation as the marriage month, though September gives it a good run for second place, while as usual the low month is March. Who would want to be married in March anyhow.—Saturday Night.

Legislative Council

OFFICIAL REPORTS.
TUESDAY, AUG. 12.

House met at 4 p.m. pursuant to adjournment.

Hon. Mr. Morine moved first reading of Bill respecting Salaries of Civil Servants.

Hon. D. A. Ryan wished to bring to the notice of the House the inconvenience caused by closing of the Postal Telegraph Offices in the Outports at 6 p.m. During the summer months there are more messages sent between 7 and 8 o'clock than at any other time, and although he has repeatedly brought the matter before the House, it has not been done. He suggested that Mr. Morine would take the matter up with the Government as it was of great importance to business all over the country.

Sir P. T. McGrath said it was easy to understand why the Postal Telegraph didn't pay when the Government had not paid for a long time. He suggested that the Government should not be reluctant to grapple with the matter because a strike was threatened.

In Canada a similar state of affairs had arisen a few weeks ago, but the Government quickly disposed of it. The Government should not be deterred by this sort of action but should take prompt action.

Hon. Mr. Morine thanked Hon. Mr. Ryan for bringing the matter forward and assured him that it would be immediately considered by the Government. He undertook to say that he understood his colleague if before tomorrow morning the order did not go out. This might be a very good opportunity, as far as a strike was concerned, to reduce the staff that was already twice too large. This service was one that required saving in, and it had already engaged the attention of the Government. Very drastic reforms were necessary, and a strike took place it might be all the better for the Government, so that these drastic reforms might be carried out. Mr. Morine thanked Mr. Ryan as to the period he thought the offices should be kept open, and was informed from the first of May to the end of the year.

House went into Committee on the Bill, Hon. Mr. Cook in the chair.

Hon. Sir Patrick McGrath proposed printing the House some figures to show how the cost of the Civil Service had grown within the past ten years.

In 1914 the total of Salaries paid to civil servants was $780,000. It was now $1,800,000, or an increase of over one million dollars. Coming to the Postal Telegraphs' Department we find that the salaries paid amount to $200,000, and in the Post Office Department $300,000, or a total of $500,000, while the revenue collected only amounts to $400,000 altogether.

The increase in these two Departments amounts to 320 per cent, while the increase in the Customs Department for the same period is only 28 per cent.

These figures, he thought, made a strong case for a complete revision of the civil list on efficient lines, and the sooner it was done the better it would be for all.

Hon. Mr. Morine took the position that in this country these services had never been looked on as money making, but as public conveniences. The receipts and distribution of mail were not an indication that such of- fice was not a paying institution. With regard to the increase in the salary list this was another case where figures were not to be taken at face value. The billions of dollars did not represent any better pay in view of existing circumstances than in 1914, as the increased cost of living might be more than 100 p.c. The increased cost may not show up proportionally, the reason was that the individual with $500.00 a year in 1914 was further advanced than the man to-day receiving $1,000.00 a year.

Hon. D. A. Ryan offered the opinion that not one-third of the Telegraph Offices were self-supporting. Many of these offices could be substituted by telephone service, and if the Government intended to save money they would accept his suggestion. So far as he had learned, some of the people in Bonaville District went further than asking for ordinary telegraph communication, they asked for and were given Marconi stations. In his opinion the trouble was that too much taxation was unnecessarily placed on the few, and old and young were being daily driven from their homes to enrich foreign countries.

Hon. Mr. Gibbes fully agreed with Mr. Ryan that telephone service would serve in many places where telegraph service is at present being used. To transfer from one to the other, however, was a matter that required serious thought. In his opinion it was feasible to put the whole of Conception Bay under telephone service, and with better results than under telegraph service. He did not, however, agree that because a telegraph station was not a paying concern that it should be abolished. If it were a public utility and only gave benefit a few it served the purpose intended and could not be considered as a waste.

Hon. Mr. Morine agreed with the remarks of Hon. Mr. Gibbes. The idea that every telegraph station should pay was wrong in principle. The benefits secured should count. Reading of the latest marvellous discoveries of Marconi in relation to wireless communication suggested to him that at a no later date would there be no need for telephones or telegraph systems, but instead the radio would take the place of both; science would take the place of losses, that present systems cost. As a matter of fact, or as he had read, Marconi had, during a recent experiment, been clearly heard in conversation with a friend in Wales, while he himself was on a yacht near Australia, and that not on a high powered station but on a light powered, so that he had announced high powered stations will be done away with, and the cost of the service reduced some 90 p.c. In a short while he anticipated that a man's fiancée in America and her love in Asia could converse without the slightest question as to who was speaking and with absolute secrecy as to their conversation.

Hon. Sir P. T. McGrath thought we should be a good deal older before such expectations would be realized. More than twenty years ago he was with Marconi at Signal Hill when the latter received his first trans-Atlantic signals. He met Mr. Marconi again last year in London and heard Marconi discuss his ideas. He was not quite sure, however, that all said by Mr. Marconi would come to pass so quickly. It would be just as well to wait a while.

The Committee reported the Bill without amendment, and by unanimous consent it went through the third reading and was passed.

Hon. President read a communication from H. E. the Governor granting leave of absence to Hon. S. K. Bell; also messages from the House of Assembly accompanying and requesting concurrence in the Loan Bill, Bill respecting Tax on Goods Bill, Bill respecting Tax on Agriculture and Bill re Encouragement of Agriculture; also a message from the Assembly requesting concurrence in amendment to Council's amendment on Printing and Stationery Bill. On motion the Council agreed to this amendment.

On motion of Hon. Mr. Morine and with the unanimous consent of the House the Bill respecting Tax on Goods went through all its stages and was passed without amendment.

With the unanimous consent of hon. members the Bill entitled "An Act to amend the Revenue Act, 1906," was read a first and second time.

The House went into Committee of the Whole on this Bill. Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill without amendment. The Bill was read a third time and passed.

In moving the first reading of the Bill entitled an Act for the Encouragement of Agriculture, Mr. Morine stated that the object of the Bill was to do away with two abuses—(1) the appointment of a so-called commission which may have known something of everything else, but which knew nothing whatever about Agriculture; and (2) the seed business, which had been taken out of the hands of those who originally carried on this trade, and turned over to this Department, so that this section of the Department had been turned into a seed shop. The Government, Mr. Morine continued, not wishing to make two bites of a cherry decided to repeal the whole Act.

The Bill passed its second reading. The House went into Committee of the Whole on this Bill and reported having passed same without an amendment.

The Bill was read a third time and passed.

By unanimous consent the Bill respecting Certain Expenditure to be made under the Loan Act of 1923 was read a first and second time.

Hon. Sir Patrick McGrath asked what had been done in connection with the laxity in the public service as disclosed by the Hall Walker report. Had any changes been made, and if so, what different procedure prevailed.

Mr. Morine in answering said that owing to the many things which the Government had had to deal with, and to the Legislature being in session, it had not been possible to take steps to acquire further into matters. The Government would much prefer, he added, having Mr. Hollis Walker undertake the enquiry into several departments because of the satisfactory manner in which he conducted the enquiry a short time ago, but Mr. Walker considered it unwise to come. Enquiries were being pursued, Mr. Morine stated, by the firm of Reid, Son and Watson, and many things were being brought to light and a great deal of effective work done. He was of the opinion that the enquiry into the Department mentioned should not be in the nature of that conducted by Mr. H. Walker or by a commission, but rather an enquiry into the system by chartered accountants. The enquiry by Mr. Walker had, by showing up much of the looseness, sharpened everyone. Mr. Morine thought, and he believed that nothing was being carried on in this department which was not strictly regular.

The Bill went through all stages by unanimous consent and the House adjourned till to-day at 4 o'clock.

Mix Up Contents of Egg Without Stopping Growth.

OUTCOME OF RECENT EXPERIMENTS CHANGES VIEWPOINT OF ZOOLOGY, PROF. GAMBLE REPORTS.

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 11.—The introduction of experimental methods into the field of zoology has changed the viewpoint of this science, in the opinion of F. W. Gamble, D.Sc., F.R.S., Professor of Zoology at the University of Birmingham, who outlined his views on the makeup of animals in his Presidential address to the Zoology Section of the British Association today. Taking as his topic, "Construction and Control in Animal Life," he pointed out that in recent years, students of zoology have come more and more to the viewpoint that animal life is a series of changes, and not a fixed state of affairs, as was at one time supposed.

"The changed attitude is the result of experimentation in the study of living organisms," Prof. Gamble stated. "This line of attack has brought to light many curious and unexpected facts.

"For instance, it is possible to cut the minute eggs of some animals into pieces, and each piece will develop into a perfect animal. Conversely, two eggs may be made to fuse together, and the resulting animal is normal.

"The contents of the egg may be disarranged without untoward effects on the individual that is formed from it."

"How can we explain these apparent inconsistencies?" Dr. Gamble asked. By what means can the egg thus grievously maltreated, still produce a properly formed animal?"

He suggested that the answer to the riddle was indicated by the work of Professor C. M. Child of Chicago, who has found in the embryos of many animals a "metabolic gradient," to use his own name. This theory indicates that the parts of an animal are living at different rates. One part, usually the head, is developing faster than any other region, and dominates other parts which are living more slowly in proportion to their distance from the head.

This decrease in vital vigour is the "gradient," and it is called "metabolic," because "metabolism" is used to describe the chemical processes of the living body.

The speaker explained that in the early stages there is only one such gradient extending throughout the length of the growing animal. Soon, however, other secondary gradients begin to branch off from the main one, some in connection with the formation of the muscles, others with the budding limbs and so forth, but all are directly or indirectly under the control of the dominant region.

"In this way it is possible to explain how an animal can develop normally from an egg that has been experimentally disturbed, provided that in some way a dominant region can be established.

"This is done naturally by the act of fertilization when the male germ-cell on penetrating excites the hitherto passive egg at one point, and this point becomes the dominant region from which the first formed gradient arises."

This "gradient hypothesis" serves to co-ordinate a very large number of observations in a rational fashion and it suggests also fresh fields for experiment.

"Intimately connected with this problem of control is the phenomenon of senescence, or growing old," said Prof. Gamble. "All animals with a complex system of gradients are fated to suffer a gradual slowing down of their vitality, which is the process of ageing. This is the penalty of high organization, and although by rhythmic periods of partial rest the organs of the body stave off the evil day, sooner or later the machinery becomes clogged and finally stalls.

"In some lowly forms, notably the flatworms found in every ditch, simplicity of organization carries with it a vast power of renewing youth. Reproduction is a simple cross division of the long body into two, after which the front half forms a new tail and the hind region a new head, and in place of the original parent are two offspring. During the formation of the new head a peculiar process called "dedifferentiation" occurs—the tissues and organs of the body become less visibly complex, they become to all appearances younger, and the behaviour of the animal shows that they are in fact younger. Thus the newly-formed individual, though by origin part of an old animal, starts life as a veritable youth, and the onset of fatal old age can be indefinitely postponed."

Such a balance between growing old and a renewal of youth, the speaker suggested, can be extended from the individual animal to the animal in relation to its surroundings. "Just as the tail end of the fatworm, released from the dominating influence of the parental head, becomes young in its isolation, so a population of animals isolated by some circumstances of its surroundings may balance ageing against growing younger so delicately that during the passage of aeons it remains unchanged. The living Lampshells of the Fiji Islands are identical in appearance with shells from the oldest rocks, so exact has the balance been for untold centuries."

The Professor explained that in the more fully developed animal the gradients have become visible as definite structures devoted to the business of controlling the operations of the body, and he discussed the nerves and brain from this angle, as he considered them the most highly evolved organization that has originated from metabolic gradients. Prof. Gamble concluded that the principles being discovered by workers in the field of biology should be utilized to a much larger extent than is now the case in human thought and endeavour, because man is a biological creation and is subject to biological laws, even in the problems of government and civil life.

Australia Increases Navy

MELBOURNE—(A.P.)—Of the two cruisers provided for in the government's defence programme, one is to be built in Australia at an approximate cost of $9,500,000. The other, built in England, cost about the same. The programme probably will include two submarines at a cost of $1,150,000 each.

BE LENIENT WITH FOLLY.

Be lenient with folly!
Old age, severe and grim,
Let youthful hearts be jolly;
Thrust not your melancholy
On miling her or him;

Time was your heart, as theirs are,
Was tuned to mirth and song;
But now it knows what cares are
And trouble's years are long.

Be lenient with laughter!
Old age, by duty bent,
For Time, the burden-graffer,
Shall bud his cares soon after,
And youth is swiftly spent;
When you were young you mocked them

Who bade you change your ways;
When you were young you shocked them
And danced away your days.

Be lenient when they blunder!
Old age, correctly trait,
Let not your temper thunder
And weep their pleasures under,
Leave that to Time and Fate;
For once your heart, as theirs are,
Went leaping all about;
But now it knows what cares are
And they shall find that out.

Ambassadors Don't Pay Rates

Ambassadors enjoy many privileges. For instance, no ambassador can be legally compelled to pay rates or taxes in the country to which he is accredited.

In 1909, Bethmann-Hollweg, then German Ambassador in London, took a riverside residence at Walton-on-Thames, where he used to spend his week-ends.

The rate collector sent in his claim in due course, but Bethmann-Hollweg declined to pay, and the Treasury, to whom the Walton authorities appealed, upheld him in his refusal.

Similarly, an ambassador cannot be sued for debt, nor can he be legally arrested for any crime whatsoever, and this privilege extends also to all his servants.

In 1908, the magistrate sitting at Marylebone Police Court felt himself obliged to discharge a footman charged with a criminal offence on his pleading that he was an ambassador's servant.

MATCHMAKING.

I s o m e times lecture to my pieces, a b o u t their divers love affairs, but do not fear their plans to piece—the final choice is rightly theirs. Much grief is caused by old g r a n d daddies who I n t e r f e r e with love's young dream, informing maidens that their laddies don't fit in any nuptial scheme. When my niece, Jane, considered wedding Augustus Charles Upjohn DePugh, I told her she would find the sliding as tough as housewife ever knew. "For he's a sluggard and a waster," I cried in tones like sounding brass; "he is a prodigal and taster of thorned joys that cut no grass." She did not heed my solemn warning, she laughed to scorn my counsel true, and on a bright and smiling morning she married A. C. U. DePugh. And his success is most amazing, he wins in all he undertakes, so that his neighbors all are gazing in wonder at the smoke he makes. My niece is now a happy woman, a gladder one you'll never see; and she'd be something more than human if she refrained from joshing me. "Oh, had I fallen for your warning," she sometimes murmurs when we meet, "some other girl would be adorning my husband's home on Easy street." I shudder when I'm contemplating the mischief that I tried to do by thus denouncing and berating Augustus Charles Upjohn DePugh.

Wedding Bells

BARTLETT-BURTON.
 A quite but very pretty wedding took place in St. George's Church, Brigus, on Saturday, 9th inst., at 9:30 a.m., when Miss Annie Bartlett, youngest daughter of Capt. Moses Bartlett of Brigus, and Francis Eric Burton, son of Frank Burton, Esq., of London, England, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony. The church was beautifully decorated for the happy occasion. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. H. V. Whitehouse of Salsout Cove. The bride was given away by her father. Miss Alice Bartlett, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid and Mr. Fred Brown of the Western Union Cable Co. of Heart's Content, best man. The bride looked charming in a gown of blue silk with hat to match. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses and carnations. The bridesmaid's dress was of brown crepe de chene with hat to match. She carried a bouquet of sweet peas and carnations. After the ceremony the happy party motored to the home of the father and mother of the bride where the wedding breakfast was served, after which Mr. and Mrs. Burton left for St. John's by motor. Their future home will be at the Azores, where Mr. Burton is engaged as electrician with the Western Union Cable Co. The bride was the recipient of many valuable and useful gifts and telegrams, testifying to the high esteem in which she is held.

SUBSCRIBER.

Harbor Grace Notes

There passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. R. O'Brien, Strickson's Hill, on Friday morning last, Mrs. Bridget Carry. Mrs. Carry celebrated her 101st birthday in February last, and was the town's oldest resident. This venerable lady was born at Milltown, Mill May, County Clare, and came to Newfoundland in 1860, with her husband, who was for many years attached to the Police Force here. Mrs. Carry was confined to her home only for the last year, and to her bed but the past few months, having been possessed of remarkable strength and vitality. Besides her daughter, Mrs. O'Brien, she also leaves one son, Michael, in the United States, and several grandchildren, to all of whom we extend sympathy. The funeral was held on Friday afternoon, to the R.C. Cathedral. And, after life's long eventide, she was laid to rest in the cemetery on the hill. For her we add a fervent requiescat in pace.

Mr. Harry Murrell, teller at the Bank of Nova Scotia, left on Saturday en route to Little Bay Islands, to spend his vacation with his parents there.

Miss Lizzie Griffin, of J. Max Cron's employ, left town on Friday for St. John's, to enter the General Hospital, where she will undergo treatment for throat trouble. Miss Griffin has a three week's holiday and will spend part of the time at her home, Conception Harbor.

Miss Nellie Dwyer, who had been in Boston the past two years, arrived by the last trip of the Digby, on a two months' visit to her parents. Miss Dwyer has been engaged at nursing while in Boston. Her many friends are glad to see her again at the home town, and trust that her visit will be an enjoyable one.

The 2nd Inter-Town Tennis Tournament was played at Bell Island on Wednesday last, between a team from the Aero Tennis Club, Hr. Grace, and Bell Island. The result was a win for the latter team, taking three events out of five. The party went out by the Pawnee, and returned again Thursday morning, having spent a very pleasant time.

S.S. Meigs, Capt. Burgess, called here on Saturday en route to Labrador, and left port again shortly after.

Schr. Florence, is at present on dock, undergoing extensive repairs.

Friday next, being Lady Day, will be observed in town as a whole holiday, instead of the usual Wednesday.

Miss Agnes Langmead, who has been visiting town the last three weeks, the guest of Miss Stella LeDrew, returned to St. John's on Friday.

Rob Roy Opens at the Nickel

PICTURE COST A MILLION DOLLARS TO MAKE.

The latest sensation in the film world, Sir Walter Scott's spectacular romance, Rob Roy, opens at the Nickel to-day.

Scotland has furnished many heroes to the annals of romantic adventure, but of all of them, none has so captured the public imagination as Rob Roy MacGregor, island chief and outlaw.

Opening with the picturesque details of how Rob Roy was made chief of the MacGregor clan, it goes on to show how, with his characteristic impetuosity and audacity, he almost literally whisked away the beautiful Helen Campbell from under the veges of her wealthy and powerful admirer, the Duke of Montrose, and carried her into the hills to make her Helen MacGregor. To show his appreciation of this exploit, Montrose, through his bailiff, James Graham of Killearn, cunningly laid plans to secure evidence against Rob as a thief, by which he succeeded in getting an order for the attachment of the MacGregor property at Invernauld, and burnt the whole lot down. Rob was simultaneously proclaimed an outlaw and thereafter hunted by the Montrose men, he kept his family and himself alive by making periodical raids on the Duke's property. These guerrilla tactics resulted in the Duke making still greater efforts to catch Rob, and eventually, through kidnapping the outlaw's eldest boy Graham succeeded in trapping his master's enemy. The MacGregors tried to escape whilst being carried across a swiftly flowing river and when his body was recovered it was taken to Invernauld for ceremonial burial. The funeral of Rob Roy provided the Duke of Montrose and his henchman, Graham, with the biggest surprise of their lives, and developed into a terrific fight, for the possession of the fort the Duke had built on the ruins of Rob Roy's home.

SIDE TALKS.

By Ruth Cameron.

THE GIFT OF PLEASANTNESS.

Most of us like to do things for those whom we love. Sometimes we let this liking carry us too far. So far that we take our gifts out of our own hide. So far that we give them things, but fail to give them the greater gifts of love and tenderness and pleasantness.

I went the other day to a birthday party which a friend of mine had gotten up for her husband. She had a very dainty table and lovely things to eat; and clever place cards with rhymes on them were at each place.

"I stayed up till one o'clock last night writing those rhymes," she said; "and I got up at five this morning to make those little cakes. And I didn't get them frosted till half past six to-night. I just had to rush to get dressed. And I've been sitting up after Dave went to bed for weeks working on those shirts I made him."

That Ready-To-Cry Tenderness.

She had deep circles under her eyes. She looked tired and acted it. There was that nervous tension in her manner, that ready-to-cry-at-anything tenderness that every husband knows. We could all feel it. It permeated the gathering to such an extent that despite the clever rhymes and the dainty cakes it wasn't what I call a successful party.

I think it would have been far more successful if she had bought some simple, inexpensive cakes, some simple cards, and used the time she saved that way to rest herself and prepare to be a happy hostess.

A Stalled Ox And Nerves Withal. "Better a dinner of herbs where love is than a stalled ox and hatred withal," said the psalmist.

I often think of that verse when I attend some festival where the effort of preparation has spoiled the capacity to enjoy.

Of course there wasn't any hatred at the birthday party but there was that tenseness and nervousness and half suppressed irritability that can spoil a party just as effectively.

Christmas is a star example of the stalled ox and nerves withal.

We Also Finish A Good Disposition. We sit up the last few nights before Christmas to finish just one more present, plan just one more dainty touch, write one more letter, send one more batch of cards; and we also finish just one more good disposition. So that Christmas finds us filled with peace and good will but with nervousness and tenseness.

Things alone cannot make any festival a success whether the things be a stalled ox, or a perfectly cooked turkey, or hand painted place cards or a gold table service. The atmosphere must be right. When it's difficult in the excitement of preparation to keep your eye on this fact, just try to remember some previous occasion that has been spoiled because you were too tired to enjoy or make others enjoy it.

It is better not to iron small, fine pieces of table linen, but to pin them to a flat, clean surface to dry.

The Death Clock

There is a strange old legend of Hampton Court that when Henry VIII's astronomical clock stops, somebody who has long resided in the palace will die.

This old clock stopped recently, and the old legend was recalled, mostly with sceptical smiles. But a few hours afterwards, Miss Jane Cuppage, who had long lived at the palace, died.

There are said to be one or two other instances within living memory of the clock foretelling a death in the palace.

The clock stands in the courtyard opposite the entrance to the State apartments. It tells those who can read it the hour, the month, the day of the month, the position of the sun, the number of days since the beginning of the year, the phases of the moon, and the time of high water at London Bridge.

Another mystery of Hampton Court is the presence of an elusive scent in a certain room. No one can account for the scent, but it has lingered in this chamber since time immemorial.

Open-Aid Parliament

The Manx Parliament, or Tynwald, which met recently, claims to be the oldest legislative assembly in the world, having been founded in the year 938 by a certain King Orry.

It is held on Tynwald Hill, an artificial mound constructed of soil brought from each of the seventeen parishes in the island. The measures passed there obtain the force of law in Manxland, after receiving the Royal Assent.

The ceremony, which includes the enthronement on his chair of state of the Lieut.-Governor, is stately and impressive. Unfortunately, however, its solemnity has been somewhat marred of late years by crowds of "trippers," who flock to it as to a fair.

Your Good Friend—the Banker

LITTLE-KNOWN DUTIES HE WILL PERFORM FOR HIS CLIENTS.

Are you making the fullest possible use of your bank? Probably not, because only one man in a hundred knows what such a concern will do for a customer.

A bank will always take charge of securities and boxes. If the securities are shares or stock, it will collect the dividends on them, and when they are bonds it will cut off and present the coupons. Some people, though they leave bonds at their bank, call there a few days before the coupons are due, and cut them off with their own hands. But this is unnecessary. A bank will, of course, do everything needed, and credit the value of the coupon to your account.

Boxes in which plate, jewellery, and so on are stored may be deposited at your bank either temporarily—as during your summer holiday—or for an indefinite period. For this service also no charge is made.

Insurance and Investments.

Your bank will also make any periodical payments for you. Subscriptions to clubs and associations, any annuity which you are allowing, rates and taxes falling due when you are away from home, servants' wages while you are on holiday—these and other disbursements will be made by your bank without any trouble on your part.

Important payments of this class are insurance premiums. As everybody knows, many people have suffered heavy losses through neglecting to pay premiums in due course, with the result that the policies have lapsed. The moral is: Give your bank instructions to pay your premiums. You will then be safe in any event. For if it neglects to do so—unlikely contingency—it, and not you will have to bear and loss in consequence.

Stocks and shares, too, will be bought or sold for you by your bank either at the current price of at a price specified by you. If you fix your price, your order is passed to the bank's broker, who executes it as soon as market conditions permit.

As a rule the cost of such a transaction is the same through a bank as if you dealt directly with a stockbroker, the bank and its broker sharing the usual commission. But sometimes a bank charges a customer a few shillings on its own account. Always, therefore, ask to see the broker's note, and refuse to pay more than the total, if you are requested to do so.

Note, further, that advice on investments, though it does not come within the province of a bank, will usually be given by it in an informal way.

If, moreover, you are going to stay in a town, you need not run risks by taking much money with you, as your bank will open a credit for you there. This will not cost you anything, unless your bank has no branch in the town, in which case a small commission will be charged on each of your cheques.

Should you live in the provinces, your bank will issue for you drafts payable at its head office in London or at its London agents. These may be very convenient in some cases. A draft can be used for sending money to a person who has not a banking account. A tradesman, too, will send goods immediately on receipt of a draft for their value, whereas he is prone to hold them till a cheque is cleared.

Finally, bear in mind that you can obtain passports, circular notes, and letters of credit from your bank. This is a long list of the services it will do you for the asking, and yet it is not exhaustive. Some customers even have letters addressed care of their bank, which they also utilize to the utmost in connection with references. Others resort to it for such an out-of-the-way commodity as sweepstakes tickets.

A Fish Story

With a rather glassy expression in its eye, a giant swordfish dominates the entrance to the New Zealand Pavilion at Wembley. But the swordfish is not complete. Half of its 'sword' is detached and hanging on a separate hook in the enormous case. Thereby hangs a tale. In Russell, a sleepy little harbor of North Auckland, New Zealand, where there are more islands than inhabitants, you can get some of the finest king fishing in the world.

Not so very long ago some Maori-land fishermen hooked this giant in the bay. He thrashed in the water like a whirlpool, and then, when he saw the launch, he strained every muscle and swam for it like a torpedo. His sharp sword, two feet in length, penetrated the planking about nine inches, and the launch had to steer to shore for repairs. When it came to the landing, the fishermen found that the fish had gone away leaving ten inches of his sword in the boat. A month afterwards, a party of New Zealanders were fishing in the bay and they landed the identical fish whose sword had been caught so long before. Since fish stories are doubted, one can only point to the New Zealand Pavilion and to the severed sword, next to the ten-foot three-inch fish, and say that the proof of the story is here, in the seeing.

Household Notes.

Serve thinly sliced lemon and orange in glasses of chilled grape juice.

Green pepper cases, crisped in ice water, make nice containers for fish salad.

Every housewife should own a cooking thermometer and a sugar-meter.

Cones for serving ice cream can be made at home, of flaky sweetened pastry.

Weights should be lifted by crouching down and keeping the spine straight.

Scissors are handier than a knife for cutting the dough for a double-crust pie.

For the picnic lunch individual small pies or turnovers are nice and carry well.

It is safe to rinse almost any stain in cold water before treating it in any way.

To have an ironing board in the sewing room means a great saving of time and labor.

Serve fresh fruit salad in rings of lemon gelatine, and garnish with whipped cream.

A strip of cloth dipped in melted paraffin will temporarily stop a leak in a gas tubing.

Your ice will last longer if left-overs are cooled before they are put into the refrigerator.

Add a tablespoonful of lemon ice to each glass of chilled, sweetened tea and serve immediately.

Under the cotton pillow-slip for the baby's carriage bed, use a pillowslip of rubber sheeting.

There is a Difference in Electric Irons

OF the many electric devices which have been created to lighten the burdens of humanity, there is none in which there can be a greater difference of quality than in the electric iron.

One may be nickel-plated and polished just like the other, but the electrical elements which form the vital parts may be as different as day is from night. In Westinghouse electric irons these elements receive the same care and scrutiny as would be exercised in the making of any intricate electrical undertaking.

Whether it be intended for the home or the heavy tailor's iron, choose one with Westinghouse mark and be sure of its long service.

In the Realms of Sport

ST. JOSEPH'S REGATTA & GARDEN PARTY.

Closely Contested Races Feature Programme.

St. Joseph's Annual Garden Party and Regatta took place at Quill's Villa Lake yesterday afternoon, and although the weather was not all that could be desired, citizens of all classes and creeds were present, thus fully demonstrating the keen interest taken in aquatic sports. In the morning it looked as though the event would have to be postponed. The rain poured steadily for several hours, but when the weather cleared by noon it was decided to hold the day's sports.

Shortly after 2 p.m. hundreds of citizens wended their way to the Lakeside, but just before the first race was about to start, a heavy shower came down, and everyone scattered for cover, whilst probably thousands of people who were already on their way to the course, returned home again disappointed. The rain storm soon passed over, and ere long the sun shone out and the weather remained fine for the greater part of the afternoon. A strong wind from the Northward made conditions on the pond unpleasant for the oarsmen, particularly at the buoys, where there was quite a jolt, hence the time in all races was slow compared with that of Regatta Day. Nevertheless the races were well contested and many of the "wise ones" received a shilling tip in the betting. The programme of events and winners are as follows:—

AMATEUR

The crews lined up at the stakes, viz: Nellie R. (Howlett's) Cadet (Tobin's); and Guard (Feldman's). The race down the pond was very evenly contested, but upon turning the buoys the Guard secured a good start and came away about half a boat's length in advance of the Cadet, with the Nellie R. three lengths to the rear. The positions remained practically unchanged up the pond. The Guard crossed over first about two lengths ahead of the Cadet, with Howlett's crew several lengths in the rear. Time 10.32 1-5.

Guard—Y. Malone, cox.; T. Chalkley, stroke; A. Barry, H. Joyce, M. Chambers, A. Wight, R. Harvey.

ALL STAR RACE.

The participating crews in this race were the Truckmen who won the Governor's Cup on Regatta Day, rowing the Nellie R., Blackhead in the Cadet, and Portugal Cove in the Guard.

The Nellie R. took the lead from the start, and gaining a substantial lead, finished several boat lengths ahead. Blackhead and Portugal Cove rowed a very even race for second place. Time 10.34 1-5.

Nellie R.—L. Rodgers, cox.; T. Breen, stroke; W. Jones, P. Lowe, M. Dyer, J. Kenny, W. Tilley.

Four crews entered, viz: Cadet (Holy Cross); Red Cross (Scouts); Nellie R. (T.A.); Guard (Gaelic).

The race to the buoys was very close. The Scouts, if anything, were slightly in the lead. Turning the buoys in the Red Cross, shot to the front, with Holy Cross second, T.A. third, and Gaelic last. These positions were maintained up the pond. The Red Cross finished first, a length ahead of the Cadet, second. Time 11.06 4-5.

Red Cross—S. Goudie, cox.; R. Young, stroke; A. Stacey, J. Daley, L. Stacey, W. Hynes, C. Reid.

SENIOR FOOTBALL RACE.

Only three crews entered for this race. The C.C.C. in the Cadet did not lead to the finish. Time 10.13 1-5.

The winning crew was cheered heartily at the finish. It was a great victory for Kearsley and his crew. The Outer Cove crew, in true sportsmanlike manner, congratulated their opponents after proceeding to the dressing room. The winning crew were:—

Cadet—L. Rodgers, cox.; T. Kearsley, stroke; G. Clooney, H. Strangay, Kennedy, W. Martin, F. Burt.

The Committee then went to the marquee tent, where the prizes were presented to the winners. Rev. Fr. Pippy made the presentation, and congratulated the winning oarsmen on their prowess. Following the presentation, Rev. Fr. Pippy, on behalf of the Parish, thanked the Committee for their work which they had accomplished so successfully, the crew for enjoying the day, and all those who worked so unselfishly for the Parish.

THE DANCE.

At night St. Joseph's Hall was crowded to its utmost capacity. The dance proved a fitting conclusion to the day's festivities, and the Committee and all concerned are to be congratulated for their endeavours.

OLD COMRADES' RACE.

With the four Brigades participating in this race, it caused a big stir amongst those on the bank. The C.C.C. rowed the Cadet; M.G.C.A. (Guard); C.L.B. (Red Cross); and Highlanders (Nellie R.).

This proved to be one of the best races for the afternoon. The C.C.C. and M.G.C.A. crews went to the buoys together, with the C.L.B. close behind, and Highlanders slightly to the rear. Coming up the pond all four boats were putting up a pretty good race, and the result looked in doubt. Passing the Cadet boathouse the C.C.C. gained the lead, with the M.G.C.A. rowing a good second. The two leading crews put up a stubborn race to the winning post, and found the Cadet first, six strokes in advance of the Guard, second. The Red Cross followed a close third, with the Nellie R. a few lengths to the rear. Time 10.23 4-5.

Cadet (C.C.C.)—P. Brown, cox.; T. Breen, stroke; S. Madden, J. Tobin, J. Howlett, J. Kenny, W. Tilley.

CHALLENGE RACE.

The last event on the programme was the Challenge Race, between the Outer Cove Fishermen, and a crew from the City, stroked by Tom Kearsley. The contesting crews caused the greatest excitement amongst the fans, and seldom has there been so much interest taken. A neck and neck race was witnessed to the buoys, but upon rounding the buoys Kearsley's crew gained a slight lead and pulling away strongly, kept in advance of the Outer Cove crew the length of the pond. Passing the Committee tent, the Cadet was about a boat length to the good and rowing strong; maintaining that

Convent Schools Barred by Pope to All Protestants

ONLY ROMAN CATHOLIC CHILDREN CAN BE EDUCATED THERE IN FUTURE.

QUEBEC, August 6.—Non-Catholics will no longer be given the privilege of attending in Catholic convents in the Quebec diocese, probably throughout the province, and, most likely throughout America, according to a circular letter issued recently by Cardinal Bégin, Primate of the Catholic Church in Canada which bars non-Catholic pupils from such institutions.

This circular letter it is understood merely puts in force an existing regulation more or less applied by the Holy See preventing the admission of non-Catholics in Catholic convents, and though the order on hand only applies to the Archdiocese of Quebec where His Eminence has jurisdiction, it is understood that the same attitude may be adopted by the heads of the Church in Canada and probably throughout the whole world as the instructions emanated from Rome.

According to the doctrine of the Catholic Church there has always been a sentiment that there should not exist any close contact between children of different faith, it being the cause, it was said, of a decrease in the personal faith of one or the other party. However conditions in the New World may make complete rigid enforcement of the rule a matter of study and delay in many places.

While the effect will especially be felt in the convents of Montreal and Toronto if it is promulgated by the church activities of both cities where there were quite a number of Protestant pupils. Quebec will also be affected as there were a few American pupils of the Protestant faith following courses in Sillery convent, Bellevue convent, Merit and Ursulines convent. It appears that there will exist no exception, which may allow non-Catholics to enter these Catholic institutions. This exception is not provided for in the circular letter, but it was defined by one of the heads of the religious orders affected the Mother Superior of Sillery convent as follows:

"We have received a circular, which advised us that in future we are not allowed to receive non-Catholic pupils. It was understood that we would be allowed to finish the course of the year in progress, but from the end of June last, and now we cannot allow Protestant children to enter the convent."

"We only had a few and the only understanding we had was that they would follow the religious services conducted in the convent so as not to interfere with the discipline. We must say that this has been done in the past without any objection. At present the order is final and makes no exception."

"However, we have asked the religious authorities for a ruling in regard to the case when a pupil would enter the convent with the intention of studying our religion and might manifest the intention of becoming a Catholic. We have been answered that in such cases when the parents of the pupil admitted consented to state that they were inclined to believe that they might become Catholics we could admit them. In the past we never interfered with other Protestant pupils, and though some of them became Catholics this was not due to our efforts, but to their own feelings in the matter."

It is estimated that there must be several hundred American pupils affected by the order issued, and as in recent years there was a considerable number of Protestant pupils coming especially from the United States to study in Canadian convents, and in many cases, in the Province of Quebec, to perfect their French.—Montreal Star.

Thomas on Labor Government

LONDON, (Canadian Press)—J. H. Thomas Secretary of State for the Colonies, speaking at a banquet at the Guildhall, York, recently said the Labour Government of Great Britain was being criticized in some quarters because it was not sufficiently class conscious. In other words, the Hon. Mr. Chomondeley asks his servant if a telegram has come for him. Abdo's reply is: No, Master. Master not understood.

Mr. Thomas made no apology for the Government. The Government, he said, had killed for all time the bogey of Labour's unfitness to govern, they had demonstrated that men in the humblest of circumstances could do as well as other people. They had also demonstrated that people could have a Labour Government in this country without seriously interfering with the stability or confidence in the country.

Of course, he and his colleagues of the ministry had not given them the moon. Of course they had broken some pledges. It was very easy to say the Government would recognize Russia. From the day he took office he has said he would recognize Russia. Every member of the Government was in the same position. They not only wanted to recognize Russia, but they wanted that country to be part of the community of Nations. But, let them make no mistake. If they said to him they were going to hold Russia up as an example for democracy of this country, then he was going to fight to prevent anything of that kind coming into this country.

The power of the railwaymen and all other trade unions would be a great and magnificent power if they used it wisely and well, Mr. Thomas said. Their power carried with it responsibility, and he begged them not to lose sight of that fact. That was the intelligent way to bring about reforms in Great Britain.

Mr. Thomas made no apology for the Government. The Government, he said, had killed for all time the bogey of Labour's unfitness to govern, they had demonstrated that men in the humblest of circumstances could do as well as other people. They had also demonstrated that people could have a Labour Government in this country without seriously interfering with the stability or confidence in the country.

Telegraphic System in the East

LONDON, July 23.—(By Canadian Press)—A correspondent of the London Times, in a somewhat caustic letter commenting on the slowness of the telegraphic system in Turkey, says, Turkey is advancing in civilization, and may soon hope to reach the stage of India in the middle of the last century. A new item in the Times of July 12, tells how the American airmen reached Constantinople two hours before the telegram announcing their departure from Aleppo.

In 1863 there was performed in Calcutta a play entitled "The Dawki Bungalow." In it the Globe trotting Mr. Cholmondeley asks his servant if a telegram has come for him. Abdo's reply is: No, Master. Master not understood.

COOPER-PARSONS.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized in the G. of E. Cathedral at 5 p.m. yesterday when Mr. Robert Parsons, third son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Parsons, Goodview Street, led to the altar Miss Bessie Eleanor Cooper, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cooper, Duckworth Street, this city. The bride, who was handsomely gowned in a dress of ivory crepe de chene, wreath and veil, and carrying a beautiful bouquet of carnations and sweet peas, entered the church leaning on the arm of her uncle, Mr. George Buchanan. She was attended by Miss Helen Paul and Mrs. A. Anderson, while Mr. Herbert Parsons, brother of the groom, ably performed the duties of best man. The ceremony was choral and was attended by a large circle of friends and relatives of the contracting parties. Rev. J. Brynton officiated. Following the ceremony the happy couple, with a large number of guests, with motor cars at their disposal, motor to Smithville, where a reception was held. A sumptuous repast had been provided by the Misses Furlong, and when this had been done full justice to, songs and speeches were the order of the evening. Rev. J. Brynton in a very happy speech proposed the health of the bride and groom, which was very fittingly responded to by the groom. The party then dispersed to the spacious ballroom adjoining where a dance was held to the splendid strains of the Imperial Orchestra. The evening was much enjoyed and passed altogether too quickly. At 10 p.m. Mr. and Mrs. Parsons, amidst showers of confetti and receiving the congratulations of their many friends, left by motor car for Topsail, where the honeymoon will be spent. The bride received a large collection of presents, included in which was a cheque from the Imperial Mfg. Co., where she was employed for a number of years. The Telegram with their many friends joins in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Parsons many happy years of wedded bliss.

Mr. Thomas made no apology for the Government. The Government, he said, had killed for all time the bogey of Labour's unfitness to govern, they had demonstrated that men in the humblest of circumstances could do as well as other people. They had also demonstrated that people could have a Labour Government in this country without seriously interfering with the stability or confidence in the country.

Empire Cotton

London, July. (By Canadian Press)—The British Empire can produce all the cotton required by the Lancashire mills, according to a statement made recently in Manchester by Lord Derby at a gathering of members of the British Cotton Growing Association. The ideal of independence in respect of the raw material required to keep the mills going, he said, was not an unrealistic dream, but one that in time might mature.

British successes in the line of cotton growing, Lord Derby said had been mainly in Uganda, the Sudan and Nigeria. By the end of last year, he continued, the British grown cotton crop amounted to 178,000 bales, valued at $3,500,000, all from fields of cotton growing that did not exist 20 years ago. Three millions of that sum were paid to the natives of Uganda. This year their manager was sanguine that they would get 250,000 bales, and in 1925 more, especially from the Sudan, Iraq and India. Other factors besides money were required, among the most important desiderata being the more rapid railway development of the Dominions and Colonies, and this was a field in which governments could give help.

Latch-Key Lore

Most of us, when we use a latch-key in entering a house, have no thought of the historical significance of the action. Yet the latch-key has a symbolism entirely its own. Examine the images of the Egyptian deities in the British Museum, and you will notice in the hands of some of them a cross with a circular handle. It represents the Ankh, or key of life, one of the oldest of all religious symbols, denoting the power to open and close the doors of heaven. The key had a magical meaning for the Greeks and Romans. Their gods were often given the title of Key-bearer, as for example, Janus, the god of gates, who was supposed to unlock the doors of war and peace. In early Christian history the symbol of the key was associated with St. Peter, with his two keys of gold and iron. In the Middle Ages the key was used to assist in the identification of guilty persons. If, for example, a thief had been committed, a key was laid on the open page of a Bible, when it was supposed to move towards the culprit. Wedding rings had their origin in the key presented to the Roman bride by her husband, as a sign of her authority in his household.

"Spoofs" That Spread

FACTUAL JOKERS WHO HAVE TALKED CONTENTS.

Some time ago the story went round that someone mysterious had favoured the local M.P.—giving two pounds to every ex-vice man in the district and the hall and public libraries were being by application for the honorary details of the distraught officials and every one heard the story, was it not much too good to be true?

One of the greatest spoofs on record actually came true after a lapse of twenty-five years, when the R34 was sent the Atlantic. The joke was perpetrated by Edgar Allan Poe, the "Raven" man, although his membership of the spoof was only long after.

A Hoax That Came True.

In 1844 the New York "Sun" carried the sensational headline: "Atlantic Crossed in 'Days' 'Triumph of Mr. Monk's Flying Machine'!"

People fought for the paper, and they had secured a copy, read and detailed account of the crossing of the Atlantic in a steerable balloon, written by Harrison Alsworth, the editor, author of "Jack Sheppard's Trip to Ride to York," accompanied by four friends.

The balloon was minutely described, extracts were printed from the story which Alsworth was supposed to have kept on the way across, and the whole story looked as reliable as the real story looked when everybody was reading the story of the R34. In fact, it took New York's daily facts to realize that it had been hoaxed by a man with a Jules Verne imagination.

From the sublime to the ridiculous, from an airship to a lead-pencil!—everybody at St. Martin's-le-grand, and eventually in the small village post office, was laughing at the time ago at one of the nearest spoofs ever perpetrated.

Of course, rules, regulations, specifications, new instructions are a daily occurrence in a big Government department, and the post office excels in this respect. One morning a notice was widely posted, perfect official style, giving a series of orders and almost instructions to put a point on a pencil!

The pencil-sharper was told to hold the pencil in the left hand, or in the right hand if the holder was left-handed, and then, with the right, or as the case may be, to draw the line of a penknife smartly across the wood in a diagonal direction, cutting about three-quarters of an inch from the end—and so on.

The "Professors" Did Well.

There was a delicious final paragraph: "The question of the disposal of the residual lead now presents itself. Do not blow this away recklessly as some have been observed to do, carry it to the nearest waste-paper basket, and deposit it therein." Officers of post office officials resented it as "official," but were surprised that it was only "a bit of lead."

Halley's Comet was responsible for the nearest zhitcken raid on record, the professors of the Electric Institute of Montclair arrived at the township of Towaca, and distributed leaflet setting forth that the Institute would give prizes for the best description of the comet which would first visible to the naked eye about the following morning. A free prize in drawing was also offered the student.

By 2 a.m. everybody was either on the way to Waukshaw Mountain or on the way up, and there was a similar exodus from the near-by hamlet of Willamette. The crowd stayed up there until 4:45; then, as the morning dawned, it occurred to the townsfolk that they had been hoaxed. No comet appeared, and, angry and shivering, they rushed down hill to their residences, if only they could lay hands on those two "professors."

But they never did. Instead, the "professors" had laid hands on the chicken and rooster in the two workshops. The total bag was estimated at nearly 1,300 birds.

Fourteen SILK Hats.

Recently a Paris magistrate was seized by the recorder of a young girl from the Latin Quarter whom he had "run in" for some skylarking. For hours a procession of women and curts arrived in the street where the magistrate lived, bringing the goods and chattels dumped at his door were six pianos, two hundred bottles of cod liver oil, half hundredweight of cabbages, and 14 silk hats. Among the tradesmen who, by special request were a coroner, an undertaker, a tattooer, and an embalmer.

When following a recipe, remember that less sugar is needed if candied fruit is used instead of fresh.

Breaking Up The Home!

You can hardly blame this man for what he is doing,
as he is evidently suffering from an attack of Indigestion.
It would be much cheaper for him to purchase a bottle of some good Stomach Mixture.

Stafford's Prescription A

would certainly help this man, and any other who would feel like doing the same thing.
The usual symptoms of Indigestion or Nervous Dyspepsia are as follows: Uncomfortable feeling about Stomach after eating, Headache, Nausea, Acid and Bitter Eructations, Langour and Depression of spirits, Irritability of Temper, Tenderness over Pit of Stomach, Bad Taste, Loss of Appetite, Constipation, etc.
If you have any of the above symptoms try a Bottle of STAFFORD'S PRESCRIPTION A, and we are certain it will cure you. You can purchase a trial bottle for
