A Message was delivered by the Gentleman Usher of the Black Rod:

Members of the House of Commons:

His Honour the Deputy to His Excellency the Governor General desires the immediate attendance of Honourable Members in the Chamber of the Honourable the Senate. Accordingly, the Members went up to the Senate Chamber, when the Speaker of the Senate said:

Honourable Members of the Senate, and Members of the House of Commons:

I have it in command to let you know that His Excellency the Governor General does not see fit to declare the causes of his summoning the present Parliament of Canada until the Speaker of the House of Commons shall have been chosen according to Law, but this afternoon at the hour of three o'clock His Excellency will declare the causes of calling this Parliament.

PRAYERS.

Mr. Speaker communicated to the House the following letter:

GOVERNMENT HOUSE OTTAWA

16th May, 1963.

Sir,

I have the honour to inform you that His Excellency the Administrator of the Government will arrive at the Main Entrance of the Parliament Buildings at 3.00 p.m. on this day Thursday the 16th May, 1963, and when it has been signified that all is in readiness, will proceed to the Senate to open formally the Twenty-sixth Parliament of Canada.

I have the honour to be, Sir, Your obedient servant,

ESMOND BUTLER,
Secretary to the Governor General.

The Honourable

The Speaker of the House of Commons.

A Message was delivered by the Gentleman Usher of the Black Rod:

Mr. Speaker:

His Excellency the Administrator desires the immediate attendance of this Honourable House in the Chamber of the Honourable the Senate.

Accordingly, Mr. Speaker, with the House, went up to the Senate Chamber, and Mr. Speaker spoke to the following effect:

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY:

The House of Commons have elected me their Speaker, though I am but little able to fulfil the important duties thus assigned to me.

If, in the performance of those duties, I should at any time fall into error, I pray that the fault may be imputed to me, and not to the Commons, whose servant I am, and who, through me, the better to enable them to discharge their duty to their Queen and Country, humbly claim all their undoubted rights and privileges, especially that they may have freedom of speech in their debates, access to Your Excellency's person at all seasonable times, and that their proceedings may receive from Your Excellency the most favourable construction.

The Honourable the Speaker of the Senate then said:

Mr. Speaker:

I am commanded by His Excellency the Administrator to declare to you that he freely confides in the duty and attachment of the House of Commons to Her Majesty's Person and Government and, not doubting that their proceedings will be conducted with wisdom, temper and prudence, he grants and upon all occasions will recognize and allow their constitutional privileges.

I am commanded also to assure you that the Commons shall have ready access to His Excellency upon all seasonable occasions, and that their proceedings as well as your words and actions, will constantly receive from him the most favourable construction.

And the House being returned:

Mr. Speaker reported that the House had been in the Senate Chamber, and that he had, in their names and on their behalf, made the usual claim of privileges, which His Excellency had been pleased to confirm to them.

Mr. Pearson, seconded by Mr. Chevrier, by leave of the House, introduced Bill C-1, An Act respecting the Administration of Oaths of Office, which was read the first time.

Mr. Speaker reported that, when the House did attend His Excellency the Administrator this day in the Senate Chamber, His Excellency was pleased to make a Speech to both Houses of Parliament, and to prevent mistakes, he had obtained a copy, which is as follows:

Honourable Members of the Senate:

Members of the House of Commons:

I welcome you to the first session of the twenty-sixth Parliament of Canada.

I am honoured today to act for His Excellency the Governor-General, whose place in the respect of the Canadian people is second only to that of Her Majesty the Queen and whose early recovery to full health is sincerely wished by us all. I know that all members of this Parliament would wish to join in expressing to Her Majesty the sentiments of loyalty which were recently conveyed to her by the Prime Minister.

You are deliberating the course of our country in times of great change throughout the world. These are times that test old virtues. They are times that open up new opportunities. Familiar ways of thought and action are becoming less certain guides. Many old paths are no longer open to us. The task before us is to seek out, with wisdom and imagination, those new paths that will lead us surely forward.

As Canadians we can work with hope. Our country has a proud history. Now there are expanding opportunities open to us. But they depend on our overcoming serious problems. It is only with courage and perseverance and hard work that we will achieve the better life that is within our power, for ourselves and for our children.

Our progress is the work of all the people. In a free country, we are all responsible. The determination of my Ministers is that the Government through its policies will contribute the leadership, the purpose, the decision that are its responsibilities to the people.

The character and strength of our nation are drawn from the diverse cultures of people who came from many lands to create the Canada that is ours today. The greater Canada that is in our power to make will be built not on uniformity but on continuing diversity, and particularly on the basic partnership of English-speaking and French-speaking people. My Ministers are determined that the partnership shall be truly equal. For that high purpose they are establishing, in consultation with the governments of the Provinces, a commission charged to study, thoroughly but urgently, how the fundamentally bicultural character of Canada may best be assured and the contribution of other cultures recognized.

To make us a more united people, the Government will in all things strive to strengthen and to give new direction to our Canadian confederation. It will foster the spirit of co-operative federalism, fully respecting the rights of the Provinces while safeguarding and extending the equality of opportunity which properly belongs to all Canadians in all parts of our country. In these purposes, as in others, my Ministers will seek frequent consultation with the governments of the Provinces.

The principles of Canadian external policy are those of the United Nations Charter, to maintain peace with justice and respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms; and to promote the welfare of all peoples by international co-operation. My Ministers will seek solutions to international problems by diplomacy and negotiation. In particular, my Ministers will strive to lessen international tensions and halt the arms race by seeking measures of controlled disarmament, including a treaty to end nuclear tests under reasonable safeguards.

Meantime, my Ministers believe that there is no alternative to the maintenance of the defences of the free nations as a deterrent to war. In particular, a strong North Atlantic Treaty Organization, including adequate defence on the North American continent, remains essential to Canada's security. For this purpose, the armed forces of Canada should have available the modern weapons necessary to perform effectively the defensive tasks which Canada has undertaken in the alliance. Next week, we will take pleasure in welcoming to Ottawa the Ministerial Council of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. My Government is convinced that on the foundation of the present alliance a true community of the Atlantic peoples will one day be achieved.

In recent weeks the Prime Minister has had friendly and constructive discussions with the Prime Minister of the United Kingdom and with the President of the United States of America. By such visits and other means the Government will continue to improve political and economic relationships with other countries. It is my Ministers' intention to assist in enhancing the unique value of the Commonwealth partnership in international relations.

Canada's economic progress is vitally dependent on vigorous economic expansion throughout the world. We must expect continuing rapid changes in international trading relationships, changes that face Canada both with problems of adjustment and with new opportunities. My Ministers believe that the nations can best achieve economic progress through policies that steadily reduce the barriers limiting trade. It is equally important to pursue active policies for the economic development of the newer nations, for the expansion of trade in primary commodities at reasonably stable prices, and for the improvement of international payments.

Canada will take a constructive part in trade and other economic negotiations. In order to increase employment and production in Canada, it is the purpose of my Ministers to expand Canada's export trade, to strengthen our payments balance with other countries, and to ensure increasingly high confidence in our economy and currency.

Steady work is the basic need on which men and women depend for the well-being of themselves and their families. Unemployment, on the serious scale of recent years, is therefore the most urgent of our domestic problems. To provide the many new jobs that are needed every year, we must create new industries. The fiscal and monetary policies of the Government will give priority to the encouragement of soundly-based industrial expansion.

Provision will be made to assist labour and management to make manpower adjustments required by technological and other industrial changes. The special assistance for technical training will be extended in cooperation with the provinces.

Other measures will be put before you to assist in increasing production and employment in Canada.

You will be asked to provide for the early establishment of a Department of Industry, which will foster industrial expansion and provide a central point to which industry can look for consultation, stimulus and assistance. It will be proposed that, within the new Department, there will be established an Area Development Agency. This agency will work with the provincial governments and other organizations to co-ordinate programmes for parts of the country where, because of chronic unemployment, a special thrust for development is needed.

Amendments to the Atlantic Development Board Act will be proposed, to strengthen the Board and to provide for a capital assistance fund through which it can promote basic projects in the Atlantic region.

You will be asked to establish a Municipal Development and Loan Board, through which municipalities may obtain, with the approval of the provinces, loans and grants to carry out projects which will increase employment and improve services. Amendments to the National Housing Act will also be proposed.

A measure will be placed before you to establish a Canada Development Corporation, by means of which Canadians can more readily direct their savings to the building of new Canadian industries and to increasing the Canadian ownership of existing industries, which is one of the important objectives of the Government.

A measure will be placed before you to establish an Economic Council of Canada, in order to assist the Government, industry and labour to develop means of ensuring in Canada the highest possible levels of employment, of efficient production, and of sustained growth for our economy.

My Ministers will pursue constructive policies for the development of Canada's great resources for the benefit of Canadians.

The Government will undertake discussions with the government of British Columbia and with the United States, aimed at securing action on the development of the Columbia River.

A new Department of Agriculture Act will be placed before you, to provide for two Ministers in order that the needs of agriculture in both eastern and western Canada may receive closer attention. My Ministers will institute new programmes to make farming as a whole more stable and more prosperous. They will strive to expand markets for Canadian farm products both at home and abroad, with special attention to dairy products.

The Government is initiating consultation with the Provinces to work out a programme for national fishery development. My Ministers intend to secure the establishment of a twelve-mile limit for the use of the Canadian fisheries, taking proper account of treaty and historic rights.

You will be asked to continue the existing payments to the railways, pending the approval of long-term measures concerning transportation. You will be asked to provide additional assistance for the completion of the Trans-Canada Highway.

My Ministers have undertaken to establish a comprehensive system of contributory pensions. The new pensions will be co-ordinated with the existing provisions for old-age security, for the purpose of enabling all Canadians to retire in security and with dignity. While the arrangements required for this great advance in the social security of our people are necessarily complex, the legislation submitted to you will be designed to make the new pension plan operative as soon as possible.

Legislation on unemployment insurance is under consideration and in the meantime you will be asked to ensure that the fund is sustained to meet the claims on it.

The redistribution of electoral districts is overdue. You will be asked to authorize the establishment of a Commission to undertake this important task.

A change in the Citizenship Act will be proposed to ensure full equality of rights for all Canadian citizens wherever they were born. Immigration policy will be reviewed.

Members of the House of Commons,

You will be asked to appropriate the funds required for the services and payments authorized by Parliament.

You will be invited to establish a special Committee of the House to examine defence problems.

It will be proposed that the Standing Committee on Privileges and Elections review the Canada Elections Act.

You will be asked to agree to the establishment of a Committee on Procedure, over which the Speaker will preside, with the aim of strengthening Parliament and making it more effective.

Honourable Members of the Senate,

Members of the House of Commons,

In addition to the measures already specified, you will be asked to consider other legislative proposals.

May Divine Providence guide you in your deliberations.

On motion of Mr. Pearson, seconded by Mr. Chevrier, it was ordered,— That the Speech of His Excellency the Administrator, delivered this day from the Throne to the two Houses of Parliament, be taken into consideration at the next sitting of the House.

Mr. Pearson, a Member of the Queen's Privy Council, delivered a Message from His Excellency the Governor General, which was read by Mr. Speaker, as follows:

On motion of Mr. Pearson, seconded by Mr. Chevrier, it was resolved,—That a Special Committee be appointed to prepare and report, with all convenient speed, lists of Members to compose the Standing Committees of this House; the said Committee to be composed of Messrs. Caron, Churchill, Knowles, Leboe, Pickersgill and Winkler, and that the provisions of Standing Order 65(1) be suspended in relation to the number of Members thereon.

The Joint Committee met once during the last session, on December 4, 1962, to review Library matters.

The publication of the "Selected Additions List" was continued and a new edition of the leaflet "How the Library of Parliament Can Help Senators and Members" will be distributed shortly.

From September 1st 1962 to April 30, 1963, our staff answered 2,579 reference questions and circulated 14,567 books and periodicals. During the same period, 10,737 volumes were catalogued and classified, which brings to 192,424 the number of volumes recatalogued since the fire of 1952.

We are happy to report that Dr. Leonard W. Brockington, C.M.G., Q.C., has presented the Library with a first edition of Johnson's Dictionary in four fine volumes.

As directed by the Joint Committee at its meeting of December 4, 1962, the Parliamentary Librarian has arranged to have Professor P. B. Waite of Dalhousie University accept the major responsibility for the compilation of an adequate Hansard for 1867-1874 as a Centennial Project of Parliament. It is hoped that work may begin in June.

The list of "Subject Headings" used in our French language catalogue was completed this year and is being published later this month by the Queen's Printer. We derive considerable satisfaction from the fact that members of our staff have made such an important contribution to Canadian librarianship. Although many have contributed to make this publication possible, we wish to pay a special tribute to Mr. Guy Forget, Head of the French catalogue, who directed and coordinated the efforts of his colleagues with such success. We regret to report that Mr. Forget, who has served the Library so well for thirteen years, has resigned his post to accept a senior appointment at the library of Laval University.

We are also sorry to report the loss to Laval University of Mr. Rosario de Varennes, Assistant Chief of the English catalogue, who was with us for almost ten years. Two other members of our staff left recently: Mr. Rosaire Choquette, retired after thirty-two years of service, and Mr. J. F. Cooke, Clerk of English Periodicals, was transferred to the Hansard Index and Reference Branch of the House of Commons.

Respectfully submitted,

Erik J. Spicer, Parliamentary Librarian.

No. 3

VOTES AND PROCEEDINGS

OF THE

HOUSE OF COMMONS

OF CANADA

OTTAWA, MONDAY, 20th MAY, 1963

2.30 o'clock p.m.

PRAYERS.

Mr. Speaker: Today, the Birthday of Her Gracious Majesty The Queen is being celebrated.

As has been customary now for some time, we, in this House, are showing our loyalty and devotion by continuing our work in Parliament.

As an expression of that loyalty and devotion, I would like to suggest, that, if the House so desires, I send, on your behalf, a Birthday message to Her Majesty.

Whereupon the said message was agreed to.

Mr. Pearson, a Member of the Queen's Privy Council, laid before the House,—Copy of a letter dated May 15, 1963, addressed by the Prime Minister of Canada to the Premiers of the Provinces, concerning bilingualism and biculturalism, together with a copy of the proposed terms of reference of a Royal Commission on Bilingualism and Biculturalism. (English and French).

By unanimous consent, the said letter and proposed terms of reference were ordered to be printed as an appendix to this day's Hansard.

STATEMENT BY MR. SPEAKER

Mr. Speaker: The House will note that there is a record number of bills, namely sixty-four, listed for introduction by private Members on today's Order Paper. I would like to compliment honourable Members on their interest and zeal in submitting such a great number of bills on the opening days of the session.

Some of the bills were considered in the past session and are being re-introduced at this time but there is also a substantial number of new proposals.

As a result of this flooding on the opening days, it is difficult, if not impossible, for the Chair to review the provisions of these bills to ensure that they conform to the practices and usages of this House. Indeed, copies of most of them will be coming before me for the first time later on in the sitting during the course of subsequent proceedings.

I have two suggestions which I would like to submit to the consideration of the House in order to provide the maximum of time for speeches from the several leaders which, by tradition, are made at this stage of the Address debate.

Firstly, the House might wish to consider the advisability of proceeding with the first reading of these bills with the understanding that each will be scrutinized between now and the time appointed for its second reading when any defects therein will be brought to the attention of the House. As honourable Members know, the order for first reading of a bill merely authorizes its printing and, after it has been printed and distributed, they too will be in a position to discuss any irregularity that may be found in the bill.

I should say that a similar suggestion was submitted to, and accepted by, the House by my predecessor which is to be found at page 30 of Hansard, October 1, 1962, and also by Mr. Speaker Michener at page 2382 of Hansard,

April 2, 1962.

Secondly, the House will appreciate that almost two hours or more may be required in order to introduce and give first reading separately to each of the bills listed for introduction in this sitting.

If the House is agreeable, I would suggest that, by "unanimous consent", the sixty-four bills listed for introduction be deemed to have been introduced, given a first reading and ordered for a second reading at the next sitting of the House, subject, of course, to my prior remarks as to the examination and regularity of each bill.

Accordingly, by unanimous consent, the following bills were deemed, by leave of the House, to have been introduced, read a first time, and ordered for a second reading at the next sitting of the House:

Bill C-2, An Act to provide for Pay for Statutory Holidays and for Pay for Work Performed on Statutory Holidays for Employees in Federal Works, Undertakings and Businesses.—Mr. Knowles.

—That the following be added to the Address:

VOTES AND PROCEEDINGS

OF THE

HOUSE OF COMMONS

OF CANADA

OTTAWA, FRIDAY, 7th June, 1963.

11.00 o'clock a.m.

PRAYERS.

RULING BY MR. SPEAKER

Mr. Speaker: At the opening of yesterday's sitting the honourable Member for Peace River (Mr. Baldwin) raised a question of privilege based upon the report of Wednesday's proceedings recorded at page 73 of Votes and Proceedings with regard to the motion for the production of papers in the name of the honourable Member for Winnipeg North Centre (Mr. Knowles). Honourable members will recall that I reserved my decision at that time.

As was suggested by the Minister of Labour (Mr. MacEachen) and by the honourable Member for Winnipeg North Centre during the discussion which followed, it would seem there are two points involved in the question raised by the honourable Member for Peace River. In the first instance there is a point of order in regard to the regularity of the proceedings on Wednesday last, and in the second place an alleged question of privilege.

Allow me to deal first with the reference made to the purported irregularity in procedure in the case under review. Paragraph (1), citation 70, of Beauchesne's fourth edition, reads in part as follows: "Points of order are questions raised with the view of calling attention to any departure from the Standing Orders or the customary modes of proceeding in debate or in the conduct of legislative business,..."

Paragraph 4 of the same citation reads as follows: "A point of order against procedure must be raised promptly and before the question has passed to a stage at which the objection would be out of place."

It is my view that it would be inappropriate for me to discuss at this time the regularity or otherwise of the procedure followed in this case last Wednesday since, as was stated by the honourable member for Winnipeg North Centre, "What happened yesterday, happened; we cannot turn the clock back.".

Perhaps I might make a further comment with regard to this point before leaving it. Standing Order 35 reads in part as follows: "No member may reflect upon any vote of the house, except for the purpose of moving that such vote be rescinded."

Now, a vote was taken and duly recorded in Votes and Proceedings of Wednesday last on this question. It seems to me that the last part of the discussion which took place yesterday was in contravention of the provisions of this Stand-

We come now to the second point which the honourable Member for Peace River designated as a question of privilege based upon the report of Wednesday's proceedings as recorded at page 73 of Votes and Proceedings for Wednesday last. The honourable gentleman referred to a ruling or a statement by one of my very worthy predecessors in 1961 concerning the practice of this House in regard to the acceptance of motions for papers under certain reservations. The honourable Member referred also to a motion which had been proposed on Wednesday last by the honourable Member for Burnaby-Coquitlam (Mr. Douglas) and which was accepted by the Minister Without Portfolio (Mr. Tremblay) subject to certain reservations, but which was recorded in Votes and Proceedings as adopted by the House without conditions or reservations attached thereto.

The honourable Member for Winnipeg North Centre also drew attention to three other motions which also were adopted on Wednesday last under certain reservations, but which also were not so recorded in Votes and Proceedings for that day. There is, I suggest, a notable distinction to be made between the question under review and the other precedents referred to.

1. In the four cases referred to, the Member proposing the motion accepted the reservation expressed in each case by a Minister.

2. I think this is the significant point, that the House concurred in the arrangement or agreement without dissenting voice.

3. In effect one must presume that arrangements were made, by unanimous consent, in all four cases.

4. In these procedures there was no division of opinion in the House and, consequently, no division of opinion should or could have been recorded in Votes and Proceedings.

Let us now return to the proceedings under review, and I must say at this stage that so far as I have been able to determine in the time at my disposal, we had an unprecedented procedure on Wednesday. In this case we had a division of opinion. The procedure was challenged and put to a vote. May I briefly review the procedure followed on that occasion.

1. When the motion standing in the name of the honourable Member for Winnipeg North Centre was called, the Secretary of State for External Affairs (Mr. Martin) intervened and expressed the government's reservations with regard to the production of certain papers.

2. After a number of interventions by several honourable members, the proposer of the motion, the honourable gentleman from Winnipeg North Centre, concluded as reported at page 689 of Hansard by saying:

"I understood that the Minister was prepared to let the motion pass subject to his reservation. Those are the words the Minister used, and I am prepared to accept the reservations he has now made. Obviously, if the return that is brought down is not satisfactory, I can ask further questions, but it seems to me that as the mover of the motion I have the right to suggest that I am prepared to accept the passing of it subject to the reservations the Minister has now made."

3. Thereupon the Chair put the motion in the following words: "Is it the pleasure of the House to adopt the said motion subject to the reservations or remarks of the Minister?"

Hansard reports what immediately followed, as follows:

"Some hon. MEMBERS: No.

"Mr. Diefenbaker: Not expurgated editions. Produce the record and that is fine.

"Mr. SPEAKER: All those in favour of the motion will please say 'Yea'.

"Some hon. MEMBERS: Yea.

"Mr. Speaker: All those opposed will please say 'Nay'.

"Some hon. MEMBERS: Nay.

"Mr. Speaker: In my opinion the 'Yeas' have it."

And more than five Members having risen, a vote was taken.

4. After honourable Members were called in, Hansard records the procedure as follows:

"Mr. Speaker: Order. The question is as follows: Mr. Knowles, seconded by Mr. Douglas, moves,—That an humble Address be presented to His Excellency praying that he will cause to be laid before this House a copy of any documents, communications, correspondence or other papers, dated since June 10, 1957, containing any commitments by the Government of Canada to accept or acquire nuclear weapons for Canadian forces.

—subject to the reservations of the Secretary of State for External Affairs. Those in favour of the motion, please rise.

"Mr. DIEFENBAKER: Mr. Speaker, if I might rise, I suggest that the reservations be included in the motion. It is very important those reservations be there because we are asking for the complete record not the expurgated record.

"Mr. Speaker: The suggestion of the Leader of the Opposition is interesting, but I do think the record speaks for itself and I think the minister should take his own responsibilities and not the Speaker. Therefore unless there is serious objection I propose to put the motion as I have read it. Those in favour of the motion will please rise."

To decide whether there is before the House a bona fide point of privilege, and this is the only question which is before me at this time, we must ask ourselves if the entry in Votes and Proceedings reflects the proceeding which took place in the House at that time. The entry at page 73 of Votes and Proceedings for Wednesday, June 5, 1963 reads in part as follows:

"And the question being put, the said motion, subject to the reservations expressed by the Honourable the Secretary of State for External Affairs, was agreed to on the following division:"

I submit after a careful scrutiny of the record, as reported in Hansard, it is my humble opinion that the entry in Votes and Proceedings accurately reflects the procedure on the motion proposed by the honourable Member for Winnipeg North Centre. That being so, I am regretfully unable to accept the submission of the honourable Member for Peace River as a bona fide question of privilege.

In terminating my remarks, may I offer a suggestion to honourable Members of this House. As several honourable Members pointed out during yesterday's discussion, it has been a practice for some years past not to record in Votes and Proceedings any reservations expressed by Ministers in regard to such motions. However, in the light of the altered circumstances that developed on Wednesday and again yesterday, the House may now be of the opinion that reservations by Ministers should be recorded in Votes and Proceedings in every case. It may be that the proposed Committee on Procedure would like to review the question and recommend a course of procedure for the consideration of the House.

Mr. Gordon, a Member of the Queen's Privy Council, laid before the House,—Copy of a letter, dated June 7, 1963, addressed by the Japanese Ambassador to the Minister of Finance, concerning voluntary controls on the export of certain products to Canada for the 1963 calendar year as set forth in the Annex attached thereto.

By unanimous consent, it was ordered that the said document be printed as an appendix to this day's Hansard.

Mr. Southam, seconded by Mr. More, by leave of the House, introduced Bill C-70, An Act to amend the Railway Act (Abandonment Moratorium), which was read the first time and ordered for a second reading at the next sitting of the House.

Mr. Howard, seconded by Mr. Knowles, by leave of the House, introduced Bill C-71, An Act respecting Indians, which was read the first time and ordered for a second reading at the next sitting of the House.

The House resumed debate on the proposed motion of Mr. Pearson, seconded by Mr. Chevrier,—That a Special Committee be appointed to consider matters relating to defence and to report from time to time its observations and opinions thereon; that the Committee have power to send for persons, papers and records and to examine witnesses; that it be empowered to adjourn from place to place; that Standing Order No. 67 be suspended in relation to the Committee; and that the Committee consist of 24 members to be designated by the House at a later date.

After further debate, the question being put on the said motion, it was agreed to.

A Message was received from the Senate informing this House that the Senate had passed the following bill to which the concurrence of this House is desired:

Bill S-7, An Act to incorporate The Pharmacy Examining Board of Canada.
—Mr. Mitchell.

The said bill was deemed to have been read the first time and ordered for a second reading at the next sitting of the House pursuant to Standing Order 103(2).

The House resolved itself into Committee of the Whole to consider a certain proposed resolution concerning the establishment of an Economic Council of Canada.

(In the Committee)

The following resolution was adopted:

Resolved,—That it is expedient to introduce a measure to provide for the establishment of an Economic Council of Canada and to define the duties thereof, to provide for the appointment of the chairman, directors and other members of the Council and for the payment of the remuneration of the chairman and directors and of certain other expenses of administration of the Council, to provide further that the Council may engage the services of such advisers and staff as may be necessary to enable it to carry out its duties and to provide further for other related and incidental matters.

Resolution to be reported.

The said resolution was reported and concurred in.

Mr. Pearson, seconded by Mr. Drury, by leave of the House, presented Bill C-72, An Act to provide for the establishment of an Economic Council of Canada, which was read the first time and ordered for a second reading at the next sitting of the House.

The House resolved itself into Committee of the Whole to consider a certain proposed resolution concerning the establishment of a Department of Industry and of an Area Development Agency, and progress having been made and reported, the Committee obtained leave to consider it again at the next sitting of the House.

(At 5.00 o'clock p.m. Private Members' Business was called pursuant to Standing Order 15(3))

(Public Bills)

The Order being read for the second reading of Bill C-6, An Act to provide for the Control of Consumer Credit;

Mr. Scott, seconded by Mr. Knowles, moved,—That the said bill be now read a second time.

And debate arising thereon;

The hour for Private Members' Business expired.

At 6.05 o'clock p.m., Mr. Speaker adjourned the House until Monday next at 2.30 o'clock p.m., pursuant to Standing Order 2(1).

ALAN A. MACNAUGHTON, Speaker.

No. 59-Mr. Martineau-June 7

That, in the opinion of this House, the government should give consideration to the undertaking of adequate and complete studies to determine the engineering and economic feasibilities of the Grand Canal proposal, and to initiating such negotiations as may be necessary with the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec and with the Government of the United States to ensure their fullest cooperation in this project, and that in particular the government consider:

- (1) The problems concerned with the regulation and conservation of the water levels, water flow and water quality on the Great Lakes, the St. Lawrence River, the Ottawa River, Lake Nipissing and the French River which are a matter of increasingly serious and frequently expressed international, national and provincial concern, particularly with regard to the prevailing low water levels on the Great Lakes and on the Ottawa River, making as one result only the practical extension of new navigation facilities on the Ottawa difficult to accomplish.
- (2) The hazards to some of these waters created by increasing industrialization and the resulting increasing demands for withdrawals and consumptive use, particularly on the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence system.
- (3) The effect upon the standard of living of the many and increasing millions of people involved in one way or another with the above bodies of water and the corrective measures of a positive nature that can be undertaken.
- (4) The proposal that certain substantial and renewable sources of fresh water be collected by cross channels on the James Bay watershed and then be diverted southward by the Ottawa and Great Lakes by step-pumping developed in economic stages as needs increased making use of the large potential of unharnessed hydro power in that area.
- (5) Ways and means to facilitate the early construction of the Ottawa River Seaway.
- (6) Ways and means to derive the largest possible benefits of a long term nature that may result from the implementation of the Grand Canal proposal, such benefits including the revenue from the sale of water to those who would withdraw or consumptively use it, revenue from new hydro power development for the proposed Canadian Power Grid, new opportunities for northern forest development, new low cost navigation facilities from Montreal to James Bay.

ECONOMIC REVIEW OF 1962

GENERAL

The normal cyclical recovery which had begun in the early months of 1961 slowed appreciably in the course of 1962. The western grain crop was better than average, in contrast to the 1961 crop which was not much more than half the recent average and this improvement helped to offset the effects of the slowdown in the non-agricultural sector. The Gross National Product in 1962 was about 8 per cent above that of 1961, but prices rose about 1.7 per cent and consequently the increase of G.N.P. in real terms was about 6.2 per cent on a year-to-year basis. From the fourth quarter of 1961 to the fourth quarter of 1962 (which covers the course of 1962), real non-agricultural output increased by about 4 per cent.

In the seven calendar quarters since the recovery began, and for which latest data are available, expenditures on goods and services both by persons and by provincial and municipal governments rose less rapidly than in comparable periods of the two preceding upswings. Investment, while stronger than in the rather weak recovery of 1958–1959, failed to provide the continuing stimulus to the economy which had characterized the 1954–1956 upswing. Two factors contributing to the current recovery were an improvement in the current account of the balance of payments and the already-noted increase in farm output, which was reflected in an accumulation of farm inventories.

Non-agricultural employment in both goods-producing and service industries increased until about mid-1962, and then showed no clear trend to the end of the year. For the year as a whole, non-agricultural employment was 3.5 per cent higher than in 1961. Agricultural employment continued to decline. The increases in employment took place throughout the various regions of the country, but were smallest (both in absolute and relative terms) in the Atlantic Provinces. For rather special reasons, the labour force grew at a much slower pace than in recent years. As a consequence, unemployment declined from over 7 per cent in 1960 and 1961 to just under 6 per cent in 1962.

Prices and costs rose slightly more in 1962 than they had in 1961. The decline in value of the Canadian dollar and the imposition of tariff surcharges at the time of the mid-year exchange crisis were contributing factors. At the same time prices and costs in other industrialized countries increased more rapidly than did Canadian prices and costs. As a result of this and the new exchange rate the Canadian competitive position improved.

The exchange crisis which developed during the spring of 1962 was accompanied by instability in financial markets. On June 24th drastic measures were taken to deal with the situation including the introduction of a fixed Bank Rate at 6 per cent, a major reduction in the money supply, and the imposition of tariff surcharges. Massive financial assistance was received from abroad. The flight of capital was halted and, after an interval, it was induced to return. As capital began to flow back, interest rates were reduced from their summer peak and by the end of the year were not as much as the rates in January.

The following sections discuss the above developments in more detail.

THE NATIONAL ACCOUNTS

NATIONAL INCOME AND PRODUCT

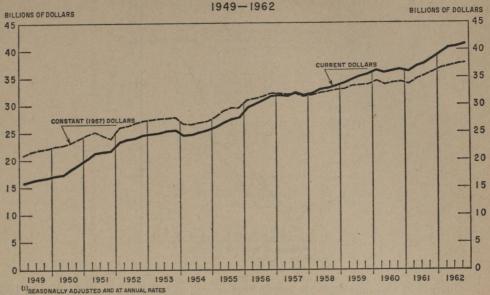

The Gross National Product rose from the first quarter of 1961 through to the fourth quarter of 1962. The expansion during 1961 was fairly rapid, as is typical in the early months of a cyclical upswing. By the end of 1961 the expansion began to moderate and throughout 1962 was less than during the preceding year. (See Table 1 and the accompanying chart.) In 1962, there was an improved agricultural output. As a result of drought conditions in the Prairies the grain crop in 1961 was far below normal, while in 1962 the western wheat crop amounted to 540 million bushels, about double that of the preceding year. Agricultural prices in 1962 were higher, and the combination of better crops and higher prices added about $400 million to the Gross National Product, which rose by 8 per cent. Prices were 1.7 per cent above 1961, while the volume of economic activity rose by 6.2 per cent. The accompanying chart and Table 5 show that since the beginning of 1961 the gains in the value and volume of output exceeded that of the immediately preceding upswing in 1958–1959 but were below those of 1954–1955. By the fourth quarter of 1962, the volume of non-farm real output was almost 10 per cent above the low point of activity in the first quarter of 1961 and had exceeded the previous cyclical peak by 9 per cent.

In 1962, output in the goods-producing industries was about 8 per cent above 1961. The increases in output during 1962 were considerably smaller than those which took place during the initial period of the upswing in 1961. Apart from agriculture, output in 1962 in other goods industries was between 6 and 7 per cent above 1961. This gain was distributed among all major industries. Manufacturing production rose by 8 per cent with durable goods production showing an increase of 11 per cent. Part of the explanation of this is the more volatile nature of durable goods production, with this group declining more rapidly in downswings and increasing more rapidly in upswings. Nevertheless, by the fourth quarter of 1962 output in durable goods industries was 12 per cent above the previous cyclical peak in the first quarter of 1960, while, as previously noted, non-agricultural output increased by 9 per cent during this thirty-three month period.

Output in the non-durable goods sector was about 5 per cent higher in 1962 than in 1961. There was almost no change in non-durable goods output in the course of 1962. In the year-over-year comparison, the largest gains were made in rubber products, clothing, textile, paper products, petroleum products and chemical industries. Other non-durable goods industries showed more moderate gains in the same comparison.

The forestry, fishing and trapping industries also showed year-over-year increases. The output and distribution of electric power and gas utilities rose by more than 6 per cent, or about in line with total real output, in the year-over-year comparison. In the construction industry, output was about $1\frac{1}{2}$ per cent higher in 1962, due mainly to increased activity in housing.

Mining output in 1962 was 8 per cent above 1961. The gains were somewhat uneven. Production of metals did not increase as much as other sections of the industry: there was some gain in copper output, while nickel output was very much higher in the first half of 1962 than in 1961, but fell below year-earlier levels in the second half in the light of inventory adjustments. Output of non-metallic minerals, especially asbestos, increased, as did output of fuels, notably natural gas and petroleum, where exports to the United States increased, along with domestic consumption. Iron ore output also increased, reflecting increasing foreign as well as domestic demand and the opening up of new facilities. Output of zinc showed some gain, while that of lead and uranium declined.

Output in the service industries rose by about 4 per cent in 1962, about in line with the average rate of increase in the past decade.

Turning to the flow of incomes in 1962, all major groups showed increases over 1961.

Corporation profits typically drop sharply during cyclical downturns and rise very sharply in the early stages of an upswing. Profits increased by 29 per cent from the first to the fourth quarter of 1961 and then maintained a fairly level rate of about $3.8 billion throughout 1962, which was 11 per cent above the average of 1961. In the fourth quarter of 1962 profits were close to $4 billion. The increases in profits may be attributed to expansion of output, relative stability of costs and the reduction in the exchange rate of the Canadian dollar.

(a) The book value of inventories is deflated to remove the effect of price changes and the derived "physical" change is then valued at average prices of the current period to obtain the value of physical change. The difference between this value of physical change and the change in book value is called the inventory valuation adjustment (see line 8, Table 1).

(3) Minor adjustments have been made to the figures of current receipts and payments shown in Table 29 to achieve consistency with the other component series.

Labour income rose to an annual rate of \$20.7 billion in the fourth quarter of 1962, almost 12 per cent above the first quarter of 1961. During this period, average hourly earnings in manufacturing rose by about $5\frac{1}{2}$ per cent while the length of the work week increased by one per cent. The number of non-farm employees was 5.5 per cent higher in the fourth quarter of 1962 than in the first quarter of 1961.

Rent, interest and miscellaneous investment income and net income of non-farm unincorporated business all increased in 1962.

Net farm income, which includes changes in farm inventories, showed a very large increase over 1961, due mainly to the big increase in the western grain crop. Net farm income averaged $1.4 billion, about 43 per cent above the low level of 1961. Farm cash income was maintained in 1961 by a substantial drawing down of farm stocks. In 1962 farm inventories increased moderately. Farm cash income in 1962 was 4.3 per cent above that of 1961.

NATIONAL EXPENDITURE

Since the beginning of the upswing in the early months of 1961, all of the major components of demand have shown some increase. Accompanying Tables 4 and 5 provide analytical detail of the components of Gross National Expenditure for the first seven quarters of upswing following the low points of activity in 1954, 1958 and 1961. These tables supplement and fill out the broad picture outlined in the chart on page 7. Table 4 shows how much the absolute change in the various G.N.E. components contributed to the total change in G.N.E. (and output). Table 5 shows the percentage change in the G.N.E. components for the relevant seven quarter periods.

As may be seen from Table 4, the most important contributors to the current upswing in demand have been consumer demand, exports, and outlays by provincial and municipal governments for goods and services (including large sums for capital outlays financed by the federal government). Business investment has played only a modest role so far, as the relative increase in non-farm business inventories has been smaller than in preceding upswings. Imports have supplied a much smaller amount of increase in total demand in the upswing so far, compared to earlier upswings, and domestic output has consequently been that much larger.

For the seven quarters since the upturn of early 1961, the increase in exports of goods and services has exceeded the increase in imports of goods and services. Because of this the economy has received a net stimulus from international trade since the beginning of the upturn. By contrast, in the first seven quarters of the two preceding upswings, the balance of international trade acted in the opposite direction.

Table 5 shows that the expansionary effect of the balance of payments in the current upswing has come about both from the export side as well as the import side. The increase in exports of goods and services currently has exceeded that of 1958–1959, although below that of 1954–1955. By contrast, imports of goods and services have risen less than exports in the current period, and by substantially less than imports in the two preceding periods. Some further analysis of this appears in the section on Balance of International Payments.

The role of fixed investment has varied in the first seven quarters of the three business upswings. In the current period, the increases in both housing and business investment have been greater than in the 1958–1959 period. This partly reflects the fact that, in this earlier period, adjustments were taking place following the high levels reached in the investment boom of the mid-1950's. Compared to the 1954–1955 period, investment in the current upswing has been a less dynamic force. That is to say, investment has increased at somewhat less than the rate of total output, whereas in 1954–1955, the increase in investment was substantially above that of total output.

Government spending on goods and services increased somewhat less rapidly during the current expansion than in the two preceding. The entire increase has been accounted for by provincial and municipal governments (although it should be noted that a substantial part of the capital outlays by these governments has been financed by the federal government).

The smaller relative increase in non-farm inventories in the current upswing has already been noted and is related, in part at least, to the ready availability of supplies, greater consciousness of costs of carrying excessive inventories, improved methods of inventory control and to the adaptation of business decisions to a non-inflationary environment. The larger increase in farm inventories during 1962 reflects the far below average grain crop in 1961 and the larger than average crop in 1962.

Consumer spending rose less rapidly in the current upswing than in the two preceding periods (Table 5) and accounted for a considerably smaller share of the total increase in G.N.E. than in 1958–1959 and about the same as in 1954–1956 (Table 4). In the seven quarters beginning early in 1961, consumer spending on both non-durable goods and, in particular, on durable goods (reflecting the latest upsurge in new car buying) increased more rapidly than in the 1958–1959 period, although less rapidly than in 1954–1955. In the current period increases in spending on consumer services were below those of the two preceding upswings. The slower rise in services is partly attributable to smaller price increases in the current period than in the preceding upswings.

Turning briefly to developments in 1962 alone, the same broad picture obtains as that described for the entire expansion beginning early in 1961.

Consumer spending rose moderately throughout 1962, with some variation by components. Expenditures on non-durables and services increased generally throughout the year, and following an increase in the first half of the year there was a decline in durable goods spending in the third quarter, due to a shortage of new model cars. For the year 1962 as a whole, new passenger car sales rose about 15 per cent to an estimated 504,000 vehicles. Sales of North American models rose about 28 per cent, while sales of European models declined by about 26 per cent.

Government expenditure on goods and services increased in the first half of 1962 and then subsequently declined, due entirely to lower expenditures at the federal level, as provincial and municipal expenditures rose in the final half of the year.

Housing outlays were higher throughout 1962, at an annual rate of about $1,580 million, 8 per cent above the 1961 average. Housing starts rose in the first half of the year and then following some decline remained relatively stable. For 1962 as a whole, housing starts were about 130,000, compared with 126,000 in 1961. Housing completions moved irregularly within 1962, and totalled about 127,000, compared with 116,000 units in 1961. The number of single dwellings started in 1962 showed some decline within the year, while multi-unit dwellings (e.g., apartments) showed some increase. Further comments on housing are contained in the section on financial developments.

Quarterly data on business fixed investment indicate that new non-residential construction declined slightly to the third quarter and then rose to about the annual rate of $2.7 billion in the fourth quarter, approximately the same as the 1961 annual figure. Investment in new machinery and equipment increased steadily to a rate of $2.8 billion in the last half of the year and for 1962 as a whole it was about 9 per cent above the 1961 annual average.

Non-farm inventories showed a small accumulation in the first half of 1962 and then were built up rapidly at an annual rate of $800 million in the third quarter. The following table shows that the accumulation took place at the manufacturing and retail levels.

Some of the increase in inventory holdings, which affected a number of industries, took place against a rising level of production in manufacturing, although the ratio of stocks to shipments increased somewhat. However, the rate of increase was too rapid to be accounted for by production needs alone, and some of the increase was undoubtedly related to the effects of the exchange emergency, which might have resulted in some anticipatory buying. By the early months of the fourth quarter, the rapid increase in manufacturing inventories came to an end, and for the fourth quarter as a whole, non-farm business inventories were being accumulated at a more moderate rate.

Exports rose in the first half of 1962, were steady in the third quarter, then rose again in the fourth. Imports, on the other hand, rose in the first half, were steady in the third quarter, then declined in the fourth quarter. The result of these movements was that the current account deficit (on the National Accounts basis) declined throughout the year from an annual rate of $1.0 billion in the first quarter to $0.9 billion in the second and third quarters, and to $0.4 billion in the fourth. A more complete analysis of the balance of payments is given in a subsequent section.

PERSONAL INCOME AND ITS DISPOSITION

Personal income for 1962 was 8.0 per cent above 1961, in line with the increase in Gross National Product. During the course of 1962, the expansion of personal income was slower than during the earlier part of the upswing in 1961. All of the major components showed year-to-year increases.

Among the components, wages, salaries and supplementary labour income rose throughout the year although at a diminishing rate. Farm income was very much higher in 1962 due mainly to a large grain crop following upon the small crop in the preceding year. Substantial payments by the Canadian Wheat Board raised farm income considerably in the second quarter of 1962. Income of unincorporated business in 1962 was 4.0 per cent above the 1961 annual average due to increases in net income from retail trade, construction, community services. Interest and dividend payments to persons fell slightly from the fourth quarter of 1961 to the first quarter of 1962 and then increased to the fourth quarter of the year. The increase during 1962 in transfer payments from government (excluding interest) reflected in part the increase in payments from the Old Age Security Fund, which more than offset the lower unemployment insurance benefit payments.

Personal disposable income followed somewhat the same pattern as personal income during 1962 and was 8.0 per cent higher than in 1961. Personal direct taxes at all levels of government (including, in addition to personal income taxes, succession duties, and miscellaneous taxes) were about 8 per cent higher than in 1961, while personal income tax payments rose 8.3 per cent from the first to the fourth quarter. Personal saving, i.e., personal disposable income less personal spending, increased from the first to the second quarter, and then declined to the end of the year.

For 1962 as a whole, personal saving, which includes changes in farm inventories, averaged 8.3 per cent of personal disposable income. Excluding the change in farm inventories, personal saving in 1962 was 7.8 per cent of disposable income, compared with 6.9 per cent in 1961.

SOURCE AND DISPOSITION OF SAVING

Total saving, which comprises the savings of the personal, business and government sectors of the economy, rose from $5.7 billion in 1961 to $6.9 billion in 1962. As noted in the previous section, personal saving rose by about $800 million, and a substantial part of this increase reflected the higher levels of personal income which, in turn, was affected by the sharp increase in farm net income arising out of the performance of agricultural output in the two years. The counterpart to this element in personal saving is included in the accumulation of inventories in the table on Disposition of Saving.

Another part of the increase in total saving in 1962 was accounted for by business gross saving in the form of larger undistributed corporation profits and capital consumption allowances. Table 12 shows the year-to-year change in corporation profits. As noted earlier, they showed a cyclical expansion, while dividend payments were moderately higher. As a result undistributed profits were higher. Business gross saving in 1962 rose 7.1 per cent over 1961. After paymants of dividends, undistributed profits increased by $201 million and capital consumption allowances increased by $216 million. The deficit on combined Government Account was lower by $135 million on a year-to-year basis.

As between 1961 and 1962, the additional savings were matched by larger outlays for housing, business fixed investment and inventories, and by a smaller deficit on current international account. In 1961, as previously noted, the low value of the grain crop reduced both personal saving and farm inventories. In 1962, the accumulation of inventories, both farm and non-farm, provided the largest single increase in the disposition of saving. Most of the increase in non-farm business inventories occurred in the manufacturing and retail trade sectors. More detailed comments on fixed investment and the current international account appear in other sections of this White Paper.

NATIONAL SAVING, BY QUARTERS, 1950-1962(1)

INVESTMENT AND CAPITAL EXPENDITURE

In the past few years, capital expenditures in Canada have amounted to about 22.0 per cent of Gross National Expenditure, a figure about in line with the earlier postwar years but below the levels and proportions of the period of the mid-1950's. The reasons for this changing level of capital expenditures are complex.

Canada entered the postwar era with an economy unimpaired by war damage, vastly extended in scope and depth, and capable of satisfying the needs arising from a conjuncture of factors, which led to high levels of investment. There were new industries and new skills to meet the accumulation of unsatisfied demand for consumer, social and industrial capital, as well as the needs of Europe and the rest of the world. The Korean War and the period immediately following brought with them new developments which gave additional emphasis to investment in Canada, particularly in resource areas. For example, world political developments, the increase in world commodity prices, the large scale stockpiling programmes and the high level of demand in the United States for industrial materials, all led to rapid increases in capital outlays and to the development of sources of raw materials in Canada.

The demands made on the Canadian economy led to sharp increases in imports of goods, services and know-how, and large numbers of trained immigrants entered the country to meet these greatly expanded manpower needs.

However, some investments by large scale enterprises, with strong financial positions, are often made with a very long time horizon and, because of this, some major classes of investment, over short periods of time, often tend to outstrip demand. In part this may be due to the over-optimism of some investors, at least in the short-run, and also to the excess capacity which results, from time to time, in a country growing up to its facilities. This has been the case in Canada over the past few years. Expectations have not been completely fulfilled as prices of primary products receded and alternative sources of supply were developed by other countries. Capacity was being added at a rate in excess of the current growth of markets, both domestic and foreign; as a result of all these factors, private business investment declined, both absolutely and as a proportion of G.N.E.

Adaptation to a different ratio of business investment in a country of vast spread and scattered resources requires a high degree of flexibility. The resources industries themselves were less affected, since they are by nature highly productive and, in any event, were favoured by strong market conditions. The manufacturing industries experienced greater difficulties. Their costs had risen as a result of the pull of wages and costs in the booming resource industries. Canadian manufacturing has always faced problems arising from the limited size of the domestic market. It can prosper only when it can capture larger markets by being competitive both at home and abroad. Rising costs compounded by a high exchange value for the Canadian dollar soon began to manifest themselves when the rest of the world restored its productive capacity.

Subsequent to 1957, business fixed investment declined, for reasons just described, about 15 per cent, and total investment moved downward to about 22 per cent of Gross National Expenditure. By 1962, the volume of total investment was still 7 per cent below that of 1957. On the other hand, investment in housing and social capital absorbed a fairly steady proportion of total Gross National Expenditure. (See Table 13.). Investment in housing and social capital represents between one-third and one-half of all capital expenditure and includes, in addition to housing, outlays by government departments, institutions (e.g. hospitals and schools) and municipal waterworks. Investment in housing and social capital responds to population growth and migration, urbanization, increases in educational standards, and new policies, among others.

Turning to 1962, total private and public investment amounted to $8,738 million, 6.9 per cent above the level of 1961. Increased fixed investment in agriculture, manufacturing, institutions and government accounted for most of the increase. Capital expenditures by private business enterprises rose by 4.9 per cent in 1962.

Capital investment in agriculture increased 12.6 per cent, largely reflecting additional spending from higher farm incomes. In mining, an increase in demand for durable equipment more than accounted for increased investment in that sector of 6.5 per cent. In the manufacturing sector, increases in primary metals, metal fabricating, petroleum and coal products more than offset lower investment in food and beverages, wood, chemical and chemical products.

Capital expenditures in transportation, storage and communication declined in 1962, reflecting divergent movements. Investment by telephone utilities increased by $48 million while air transport, warehousing, oil and gas pipelines were down by approximately $135 million, due, in large part, to the completion of some major projects in 1961. Railroad investment also declined somewhat in 1962.

The increased investment in institutional services was entirely accounted for by larger capital investment in educational institutions which rose by $193 million compared with 1961. Outlays for technical and vocational schools accounted for a large part of this increase. Capital expenditures on housing were up 8.2 per cent in 1962 reflecting the completions during the year of housing starts that had been made in increased numbers in late 1961, and supplemented by an increase of 4.5 thousands of units of housing starts.

Capital expenditures in government departments rose 5.1 per cent in 1962. Increases in departmental outlays of provincial and municipal governments more than offset reduced investment outlays at the federal level.

REVENUE AND EXPENDITURE OF ALL GOVERNMENTS*

Computed on the basis of the National Accounts definitions, expenditures in 1962 by all levels of government rose 7.0 per cent over 1961. Since revenues increased by 8.6 per cent during the same period, the deficit for all levels of government declined from $905 million in 1961 to $770 million in 1962. In the third and fourth quarters of 1962, the total deficit was running at an annual rate of $694 million, consisting of a federal deficit of $250 million and a deficit at provincial and municipal levels of $444 million.

In analyzing developments in 1962, it is necessary to keep in mind the new federal-provincial tax collection arrangements, which affected the levels of revenue and expenditure of the Federal Government and the revenues of provincial governments. As a consequence of the introduction of the new tax collection arrangements in the first quarter of 1962 and the continuation in that quarter of transfer payments to the provinces under the former tax rental agreements, the federal deficit in that quarter was irregularly high and the position of provincial-municipal governments was correspondingly affected.

^{*} The following section discusses those government transactions relevant to the National Accounts. As a result the Statistics differ from those shown in Public Accounts. Table 18 indicates the reconciliation between federal deficit or surplus for purposes of the National Accounts and the comparable figures appearing in the Public Accounts.

To compare on a national accounts basis government expenditure with Gross National Expenditure (which measures the expenditures on goods and services), it is necessary to limit the comparison to government outlays on goods and services (as distinct from outlays for transfer payments, etc.), since the former are the government outlays directly included in the Gross National Expenditure account. Transfer payments by government are reflected, of course, in the income of the personal sector.

In 1962, expenditures on goods and services by the three levels of government represented 19.1 per cent of the Gross National Expenditure, virtually unchanged from the proportion of 19.3 per cent in 1961, and slightly above the proportions of 18.6 per cent in 1960 and 1959. The slight increase since 1960 has been attributable to provincial and municipal governments. Since 1952, when the buildup in defence expenditures raised the proportion of government expenditures to Gross National Expenditure to approximately 18 per cent, the rise in government expenditures on goods and services has been very slightly in excess of the growth in Gross National Expenditure.

Within the total, expenditures on goods and services by the Federal Government in 1962 represented a smaller share of total expenditures than in 1961. Defence and non-defence expenditures of the Federal Government were fractionally reduced while the proportion at the combined provincial and municipal levels was somewhat higher.

(2) Preliminary.

These expenditures on goods and services in the government sector of Gross National Expenditure include outlays by all levels of government on construction and capital equipment which, over the past several years, have represented a relative constant share, approaching one quarter of all government outlays on goods and services. In 1962 capital outlays by the provincial and municipal governments (partly financed by federal assistance) increased and accounted for some of the increase in total provincial and municipal expenditures on goods and services.

At the federal level, revenues increased during 1962, following a decline in the first quarter which reflected the new tax collection arrangements. Revenues from direct taxation on persons were generally up, in line with increases in labour income and other personal income. Tax accruals on corporations were generally level throughout 1962, in line with the movement in corporation profits following a first quarter decline which was again attributable to the tax collection arrangement. Withholding tax revenue was somewhat higher in 1962. Federal Government investment income moved irregularly during 1962, and was higher on a year-to-year comparison. Indirect taxes increased moderately in the first half of 1962 and then rose sharply in the third quarter, mainly due to increased custom duties, following the imposition of import surcharges on June 24, 1962, and subsequently levelled off in the fourth quarter.

Turning to federal expenditures in 1962, there was a decline in total outlays from the second to the fourth quarter. The decline was the result of a number of different movements. Outlays on goods and services increased from the first to the second quarter due to irregularly high defence outlays. In the third and fourth quarters federal outlays on goods and services declined, reflecting in part the reduction to more typical levels of defence spending and in part the reduction in budgetary expenditures, as part of the emergency measures announced in June.

Federal transfer payments to persons rose 5.3 per cent in 1962 mainly as a result of acreage payments to western grain producers, and an increased rate of Old Age Security payments.

Transfers to provincial and municipal governments declined from the first quarter to the second, then increased again in the third and fourth quarters. As previously noted, the last payments under the former tax rental agreements were made in the first quarter of 1962. In the third and fourth quarters, increases were related to payments under the Hospital Insurance and Diagnostic Services Act and the Technical Assistance and Vocational Training Act. (These latter transfer payments are reflected as outlays on goods and services by provincial and municipal governments.)

Turning to provincial and municipal government revenues, these increased in 1962. The new tax collection agreement resulted in higher direct taxes received by these governments. Revenues were also higher from retail sales taxes and real property taxes.

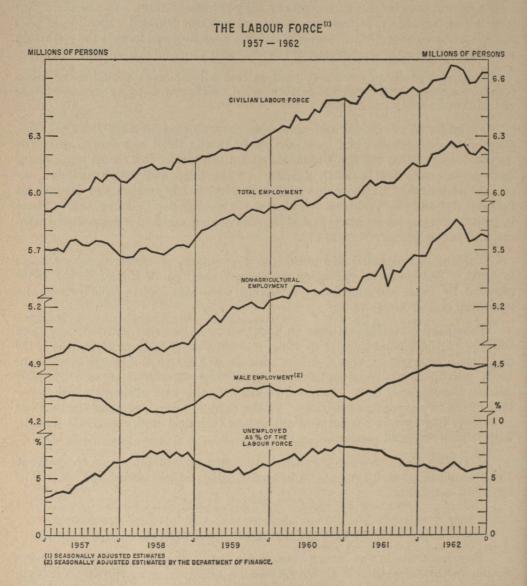

Provincial-municipal outlays on goods and services rose substantially from the first to the second quarter of 1962, and then more moderately in the third and fourth quarters. From the first quarter of 1961 to the fourth quarter of 1962, provincial-municipal outlays on goods and services increased by $708 million, about 17 per cent. As noted in Table 5, this rate of increase was below that of the two preceding upswings. In the current period, some of the increase in outlays has been in the form of outlays on technical and vocational schools, with federal financial assistance.

Transfers to persons by provincial-municipal governments rose throughout 1962, owing to larger payments to hospitals, educational institutions, as well as for social assistance.

EMPLOYMENT AND EARNINGS

Developments in the labour market for 1962 followed a pattern somewhat similar to that of economic activity. Based on comparisons of yearly averages, there was an increase in employment in both goods- and service-producing industries. On a year-to-year basis, total employment increased by 168,000 persons, about 2.8 per cent. The increase during 1962 itself was much smaller and, as measured by the change between the fourth quarter of 1961 and the fourth quarter of 1962, amounted to 100,000 persons, about 1.6 per cent. This slowdown in employment gains after mid-year is evident from the accompanying labour force chart. At the same time, the total civilian labour force grew at a much slower rate than in recent years as many would-be entrants remained out of the labour force. As a result of these developments the rate of unemployment in 1962 averaged below that of 1961, 5.9 per cent compared with 7.0 per cent. The unemployment rate moved between $5\frac{1}{2}$ and $6\frac{1}{2}$ per cent during 1962, and ended the year at about the annual average. This high rate of unemployment was considerably above that of the earlier postwar Canadian period, and well above that of most other industrialized countries.

As in 1961, the year-to-year increase in employment was more than accounted for in the non-agricultural sectors and there was some further decline in agricultural employment. Ontario and Quebec accounted for more than half the total increase while employment in the Atlantic provinces, the Prairies and British Columbia also rose.

Note: Figures may not add due to rounding.

The increase in employment in 1962 over 1961 was accounted for by 109,000 males and 59,000 females. The increase in male employment was associated with the manufacturing and construction industries, particularly the former where employment averaged 52,000 higher in 1962 than in 1961.

The increase in manufacturing employment brought employment in the goods-producing industries (excluding agriculture) back to the 1957 level. Average employment in the goods-producing industries, except agriculture, had declined between the peak year 1957 and 1960. Increases in manufacturing employment since 1960 have offset lower levels of employment in forestry and mining. By contrast, the service-producing industry has shown more consistent annual increases since 1957, though the rate has slowed in the past two years.

The growth of the labour force although still larger than in most other industrialized countries has slowed down during the past two years from the rate in immediately preceding years. Two features predominate in this situation. First, the net gain from migration has been significantly smaller and second, there has been a marked increase in prolonged school attendance. From 1956 to 1960, the population of 14 to 19 years olds increased by 276,000, while the labour force in this age group rose by 61,000. In the two years ending December, 1962, when the population growth in this age bracket was 157,000, the labour force in this age group grew by only 14,000. As a result, the participation rate in the labour force (i.e. the percentage of an age group working or seeking work) for these younger people continued to decline. The drop was particularly noticeable in the participation rate for males which fell from 43.0 per cent in 1960 to 39.6 per cent in 1962. For the same reason there was a similar, though less pronounced, decline in the participation rate for males in the 20 to 24 year old group.

There was little change in the male participation rate in the group of prime working age, 25 to 64. The participation rate for females, however, continued to rise, though at a slower rate, with married women accounting for the increase.

To place developments in the labour market in proper perspective it is helpful to compare the current position with the period immediately prior to the business upswing, after removing seasonal influences. Between the first quarter of 1961 and the fourth quarter of 1962, 138,000 persons were added to the labour force, a smaller amount than in preceding periods. Non-farm employment increased by 267,000 persons, which exceeded the growth in total employment because of a decline in farm employment. Consequently, the rate of unemployment dropped from 7.7 per cent of the labour force to 5.9 per cent between these two periods.

1Q 1957	1Q 1958	3.6	6.7	4Q 1959	5.9	+2.3	-0.8

The change in the unemployment rate in the last two years is in contrast with the experience of the preceding upswing. As the following table shows, unemployment has fallen more since the beginning of the current business upswing than it did in 1958. After seven quarters of expansion, rates of unemployment are below those at the preceding peak of business activity in the first quarter of 1960. By contrast, after a similar period of time in the preceding upswing rates of unemployment were above those of the previous peak. The difference in behaviour of unemployment is mainly attributable to the much smaller increase in the labour force in the current period. From the first quarter of 1958 to the fourth quarter of 1959, employment increased by 4.3 per cent, and in the current comparable period, it rose by 4.2 per cent. The labour force, on the other hand, grew by 3.4 per cent in the earlier period, but by only 2.1 per cent from early 1961 to the end of 1962. Comparisons with preceding peaks were affected by the slower growth in the labour force in the current period, as well as by a larger increase in employment. An analysis of unemployment behaviour based upon its own specific turning points yields roughly comparable results.

The 1962 rate of unemployment of 5.9 per cent is high compared both with the earlier Canadian postwar period and with other countries.

It is difficult to make comparisons of unemployment figures between different countries, since the statistical measurements differ. For example, Canada and the United States take sample household surveys, which cover the entire population. Swedish statistics are based upon those relating to members of unemployment insurance funds, while British data are based almost entirely on a count of registrants at employment exchanges and youth employment offices. Accordingly, meaningful international comparisons have been hard to come by. However, since the publication of last year's White Paper, a United States Presidential Committee* has computed unemployment rates on a roughly comparable basis, according to the U.S. concept. For 1960, the year for which the calculations were made, the rate in Canada was much above that of other countries. The comparative figures before and after adjustment are as follows:

PRICE TRENDS

From the beginning of 1961 to the end of 1962 the price of foreign exchange in Canadian dollars rose by about 9 per cent. In this period, the consumer price index rose by 2.1 per cent, the general index of wholesale prices by 4.5 per cent and the implicit price index of Gross National Expenditure by 2.7 per cent.

As might be expected, the major impact of the price rise has been on goods and services with a high import content, but the domestic price of export commodities whose price is set in world markets has also risen, for example, wheat, nickel, copper, newsprint and petroleum. Apart from the decline in the exchange rate, prices after June, 1962 were affected by the imposition of the temporary surcharges. Approximately three-quarters of the 2.1 per cent increase in consumer prices in 1962 took place in the latter half of the year.

A report recently published by the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development shows that the increase in consumer prices in other Western industrialized countries over the past 10 years has generally been higher than in Canada. In the comparison found in Table 20, taken from the Report, Canada is shown amongst the countries having the smallest increase in the industrialized western world.

There has been an improvement in Canada's competitive position over the past decade. The Canadian experience, as indicated in the accompanying chart on manufacturing, has been one in which wage rate increases have been relatively modest while output per man hour has continued to rise about in line with the average rate of increase achieved in the postwar period in Canada. By contrast, wage rates in some of the Western European countries have recently been rising rapidly while productivity gains have slowed as operating rates have approached full capacity. Wage and other costs per unit of output have shown sharp advances in some of these overseas countries. Table 21 presents some of these findings. These statistics reflect only prices valued in domestic currencies. Recent exchange rate adjustments sharpen these trends.

LABOUR INCOME, COST PER UNIT OF OUTPUT AND REAL OUTPUT IN MANUFACTURING

Generally speaking, prices in the current business upswing have so far risen less than they did in the comparable period of the upswing in 1958. The following table shows changes in the price levels from the low point in activity in the first quarter of 1961 and from the previous peak in the first quarter of 1960 to the fourth quarter of 1962. It makes similar comparisons with the preceding upswing in 1958. The table shows that, except for the wholesale index, prices have risen to a lesser extent than in the preceding period.

Table 24 shows that prices in the aggregate rose somewhat more in 1962 than in the preceding year. However, apart from those categories more directly affected by the lower exchange rate (imports and exports of goods and services and the index for new machinery and equipment where the import content is high), the increases were relatively small and of somewhat the same magnitude as those which have taken place in the past few years.

⁽¹⁾ Price indexes of these sectors are measured mainly by elements entering into costs (materials and labour purchased) rather than final selling prices, and generally it has not been possible to allow for changes in productivity. Over short periods of time, these cost indexes are not likely to vary to any extent from indexes of actual selling prices. Over longer periods, it may be that these cost deflators overstate price increases.

The consumer price index for 1962 averaged 130.7 compared with 129.2 for 1961, an increase of 1.2 per cent. The index moved from 129.7 in January, 1962 to 131.9 in December, with the major portion of the increase occurring between March and August. As Table 25 shows, increases in the food and services indexes were the major factor in the rise of the total index. Like the total index, food prices showed the greatest increase between March and August. Part of this rise was seasonal, particularly in the third quarter, but the lower value of the Canadian dollar and import surcharges were also moderate contributing factors.

Of more significance, however, were special circumstances affecting the price of beef, and to a lesser extent pork. Drought conditions in the western provinces in 1961 reduced the volume of feed which forced the premature sale of feeder cattle and a drop in hog production. At the same time a strong U.S. market for beef developed and, in 1962, a reduced supply and a strong demand forced meat prices up.

The increase in the services index in 1962 was of the same magnitude as the increase last year and much smaller than the increases recorded prior to 1961. As in recent years, the largest increase took place in services other than housing. In turn, higher fees for medical, dental and optical care were important factors and raised the health and personal care index by 2 per cent.

The wholesale price index, which is heavily weighted with export and import goods, responded, as was to be expected, to the lower exchange value of the Canadian dollar. The general index in 1962 was 2.9 per cent higher than in 1961 and marks the largest year-to-year increase since 1956. The largest increases occurred in prices of raw and partly manufactured goods with the other selected groupings each rising by about 2 per cent. It appears that wholesale prices reached their peak in the third quarter of 1962 and have subsequently levelled out.

BALANCE OF INTERNATIONAL PAYMENTS

GENERAL

The year 1962 was one of varied and divergent movements in Canada's balance of international payments. The current account, in the first two quarters, showed deficits of much the same amounts and much the same pattern as in 1961, although, typically during a business upswing, rather larger deficits, particularly on trade account, might have been expected. In the third quarter the trade account was substantially worse than the year before reflecting, at least in part, exceptionally large orders for imports placed in the previous quarter in the expectation of renewed depreciation of the Canadian dollar. In the fourth quarter, the trade balance improved as sharply as it had deteriorated. By this time a lower exchange rate and emergency import surcharges were exercising their effects. The trade balance for the year as a whole was about the same as it had been in 1961.

The non-merchandise account in 1962 was chiefly influenced by a change in the pattern of travel expenditures, especially in the second half of the year. The lower exchange rate, reinforced by a sharp reduction at the time of the exchange crisis in the customs-exemption for returning Canadians, was no doubt the main cause of an improvement of some $110 million over 1961. Nevertheless, the total current account deficit for 1962, at $848 million, remained very large.

While these developments were taking place in the current account, there were shifts of very large and disturbing amounts in the capital account. In the first quarter of the year the substantial net capital inflow, which for many years had financed the large current deficits, dried up. Thus the current deficit for that quarter had to be paid for by drawing on reserves. In the second quarter a substantial net outflow of capital developed which, together with the current account deficit for that quarter, had to be paid for by further drawings on reserves. The downward pressure on the Canadian dollar in the exchange market, which had been heavy in January and February but had relaxed in March, was renewed in April after the announcement of a General Election. For the rest of that month the "floating" exchange rate continued to be defended at a level of approximately 95 cents (U.S.). On May 2 a new "par value" of 92.5 cents was declared with the concurrence of the International Monetary Fund. Despite this, the downward pressure soon re-emerged and gathered strength, reaching a climax following the indecisive results of the Election on June 18. On June 24, the Government announced a series of drastic emergency measures.

Thereafter, net capital inflow started again and the reserves rose. However, in the third quarter the capital inflow was induced largely by the maintenance of stringent financial conditions which were out of keeping with the economic requirements of the country, and much of the capital came on a short-term basis. A renewed inflow of long-term capital began towards the end of the third quarter and was enlarged in the fourth so that, by the end of the year, the reserves (apart from borrowings of $300 million from the International Monetary Fund), were nearly $200 million higher than they had been at the beginning. Much of the long-term capital inflow took the form of borrowings, but a substantial part also took the form of "take-over" purchases of Canadian businesses by interests abroad.

Detailed comments on these developments follow.

CURRENT ACCOUNT

The existence of substantial current account deficits, and of appropriate net capital inflows to finance such deficits, is acceptable in a country like Canada at times when the economy is booming, when labour and plant are fully employed, and when substantial additions to the country's stock of productive capital equipment justify some recourse to outside sources to support the general expansion. But such deficits, and such net capital inflows, are clearly incompatible with a condition of high unemployment and lack of vigorous capital investment.

Table 27 shows the main structure of Canada's current account deficits from 1955 to 1962.

From the peak deficits of 1957 and 1959, of about $1.5 billion in each case, there has been a gradual improvement; but the improvement is not yet as large as the remaining deficit. Moreover the non-merchandise deficit, much of which is made up in any year of obligations arising from earlier capital imports, actually continued to deteriorate until 1962.

Turning from longer-term to cyclical patterns, it may be noted that the behaviour of the current account in the business expansion that took place between 1961 and 1962 has not been typical. Instead of deteriorating, the current account showed some improvement. Although most of this improvement was in the final quarter of the year, it is nevertheless true to say that, through the year, the business situation was receiving more stimulus from the current account than would be considered normal at such a stage in the cycle.

The following table indicates the changing proportion of imports to Gross National Product in the years from 1949 to 1962. In addition to the cyclical pattern which it suggests it also shows that the proportion of our Gross National Expenditure which is associated with imports has been showing a gradual decline.

In 1962 the price of imports rose substantially more than other items in the national expenditure because the devaluation affected the price of imports directly. Accordingly, the volume increases in imports in 1962 were less than the value increases. The accompanying chart shows the volume of imports of goods plotted against the index of industrial production, which covers a substantial part of the volume of real output in Canada. It can be seen that, apart from cyclical movements which affect both industrial production and imports, the trend of production has been upward, while the volume of imports has not changed significantly for many years. Toward the end of 1962, industrial production was more than 20 per cent above 1956, while import volume was about unchanged. Among the categories of imports contributing to the relative decline, two of the most striking were fuels and lubricants and construction materials, steel and pipe.

Merchandise exports have grown over the last six years by about the same percentage (32 per cent) as has G.N.P. The increase has been fairly well diversified, with exports of farm and forest products showing less increase than metals and minerals, chemicals and fertilizers. As the following table shows, a very substantial increase has been recorded in the category of "Manufactured and Miscellaneous" which includes machinery of all types, automotive items, aircraft, whiskey, textiles, etc.

Turning to developments in 1962, there was an expansion in both exports and imports of merchandise. In 1962 exports of goods increased by 8.1 per cent in value above 1961. Nearly one-half of the increase in the value of exports was attributable to higher prices, a reflection of the change in the foreign exchange value of the Canadian dollar. About one-half of the gain was accounted for by increased shipments of iron ore, crude petroleum, aluminum, nickel, lumber and timber and woodpulp. Declines were registered by uranium ores and concentrates and wheat. Exports of manufactured goods also showed a significant increase. The gains were more than accounted for by shipments to the United States; shipments to other countries were below those of 1961 due to inventory adjustments and other factors.

Within 1962 merchandise exports (on a seasonally adjusted basis) rose sharply from the first to the second quarter, were steady in the third quarter, then again rose sharply in the fourth quarter. From the beginning of the business expansion in the first quarter of 1961 to the fourth quarter of 1962, merchandise exports increased by 17 per cent.

Merchandise imports in 1962 rose 8.6 per cent over 1961. On a quarterly basis, the 1962 annual level had almost been reached by the first quarter of the year, where it stayed throughout the year, except for a temporary increase in the third quarter. Some, at least, of the third quarter increase was related to deliveries of goods ordered, for anticipatory purposes, about the time of the unsettled exchange situation in mid-year. As in exports, nearly half of the increase in imports was ascribable to higher prices, resulting from the change in the exchange rate.

During 1962, imports of industrial materials, automobile parts, non-farm machinery and electrical apparatus were prominent among the commodities which were higher than in 1961. More than three-fourths of the increase in merchandise imports in 1962 came from the United States.

There were significant changes in the geographical distribution of merchandise exports during 1962 compared with 1961. On a balance of payments basis, the very large trading deficit with the United States was reduced while the surplus with the United Kingdom increased somewhat and the surplus with other countries was reduced.

Turning to the non-merchandise account in 1962, the most significant development was a smaller deficit, compared with the corresponding period in 1961. Changes in the balance on most major components were relatively small, but there was substantial improvement on travel account.

The third and fourth quarter 1962 reductions in non-merchandise payments were reflected in all categories. The sharpest reductions occurred in the outflow of interest and dividend payments which declined from an unusually high second quarter level, in payment for miscellaneous current services and in Canadian residents' travel expenditures abroad.

The improvement that took place in the travel account in the third and fourth quarters of 1962 was all with the United States. During 1962 there was a rise of $75 million in expenditures in Canada by visitors from the United States together with a reduction of $39 million in spending by Canadian travellers in the United States, following the further depreciation of the Canadian currency in May and the sharp reduction in June in the allowances for duty-free tourist purchases by Canadians.

The following table indicates the pattern of the deficit on travel account.

CAPITAL ACCOUNT

Table 34, which shows annual totals for capital movements, tends to mask some of the more extreme developments which occurred in the course of 1962, and largely cancelled themselves out. These developments which, in the first part of the year, involved net capital outflows and were reflected in the exchange crisis at mid-year, still show some of their effects in the twelve-month totals ending December 31, 1962: the outflow arising out of trade in outstanding Canadian stocks was the first since this series has been classified separately, while the capital outflow arising out of trade in foreign securities was the largest in the postwar period.

The summary table shows that in the first quarter of 1962 the customary net capital inflow ceased and was replaced in the second quarter of the year by a substantial capital outflow. It was not until the third quarter of the year that a net capital inflow was resumed. The shift from the second to the third quarter amounted to almost one billion dollars, much of it representing a "swing" in short-term capital movements.

Throughout 1962, the flow of direct investment remained inward. In the past ten years direct investment in Canada has varied between about $400 million and $650 million, depending upon a variety of factors including the phasing of particular new capital formation, refinancing operations, or acquisition by foreigners of existing Canadian concerns or interests. These financial operations were considerably larger in 1962 than in 1961. Inflows from direct investment declined somewhat from the first to the second quarter, then rose substantially late in the third and in the fourth quarter to the highest levels in six quarters. Industrially, the largest inflows were to the petroleum and natural gas industry and iron ore projects.

Apart from special financing by a corporation in the second quarter amounting to $125 million, and a Government of Canada borrowing abroad in the fourth quarter, new security transactions in 1962 resulted in a net inflow of approximately $150 million with most of this inflow occurring in the fourth quarter. Trade in outstanding Canadian bonds and debentures yielded a net inflow, most of which occurred in the third and fourth quarters. Net sales were made up mainly of Government of Canada direct and guaranteed issues and were on balance entirely to the United States as there were repurchases from residents of overseas countries. It will be noted that the yield spread between Canadian and United States long-term government bonds was considerably wider in the third and fourth quarters, after the exchange crisis, than before it.

Transactions in outstanding Canadian stocks, on the other hand, led to capital outflows in each of the four quarters of 1962, amounting in total to $116 million. The sales of Canadian stocks were largely accounted for by overseas investors; there was only a modest capital outflow to the United States arising out of these transactions.

Proceeds from new issues of Canadian securities sold to non-residents in 1962 amounted to $708 million. As previously noted, this includes $125 million involved in the refinancing of external liabilities, which took place in the second quarter, and the Government of Canada 25-year external borrowing. Apart from this, proceeds from new issues sold to non-residents were, quarter by quarter, somewhat below the same period in 1961 until the fourth quarter of the year.

A capital outflow of $79 million took place in 1962 in the form of net purchases of foreign securities; all but $14 million of this occurred in the first half of the year. The bulk of the outflow was in United States securities.

Official transactions in 1962 (apart from special international financial assistance) yielded a net inflow of $122 million. Most of this represented advance repayments on outstanding intergovernmental loans of $67.6 million in July by France, and of $32.1 million by the Netherlands in October.

In the course of 1962 there were some very large and very sharp movements of short-term capital. In the first quarter of the year, there was a relatively small outflow, followed by a large outflow in the second, all of which was more than offset by a very large inflow in the third quarter and was followed by a smaller inflow in the fourth quarter of the year. The shift between the second and third quarters amounted to an extraordinary $677 million, of which about $500 million represented Canadian-owned bank balances and other short-term funds in foreign currencies.

Canadian dollar holdings of foreigners yielded capital outflows in the first and third quarters of the year, and capital inflows in the second and fourth quarters. They included a small increase in foreign holdings of Government of Canada Treasury Bills and a decline in deposits as the following table shows:

Non-resident holdings of finance company and commercial paper increased in all four quarters of 1962, with inflows amounting to $28 million, $25 million, $35 million and $52 million in successive quarters.

Quarterly movements of Canadian-owned bank balances and other short-term funds in foreign currencies in 1962 were respectively +$49 million, -$245 million, +$257 million and +$17 million (plus equals an inflow, minus equals an outflow). The second quarter outflow and the third quarter reversal were unprecedented in size.

On June 24, 1962, the Canadian authorities arranged for $1,050 million in credits in foreign currency, as part of a programme of emergency measures. Of this total, $400 million represented a stand-by credit with the Export-Import Bank of Washington. The remaining $650 million of foreign exchange (equivalent in value to $707 million Canadian) was in the form of a $300 million drawing from the International Monetary Fund, a reciprocal currency arrangement entered into between the Bank of Canada and the Federal Reserve Bank of New York for $250 million, and a similar arrangement with the Bank of England for $100 million. Subsequently, as the situation improved, these arrangements were reduced or eliminated. The stand-by credit with the Export-Import Bank was reduced by $250 million in September and eliminated entirely in December. The reciprocal currency arrangement with the Federal Reserve Bank of New York was reduced by $100 million on October 31, by a further $75 million on November 30, and eliminated on December 26; as each reduction took place a similar amount was placed on a stand-by basis. The arrangement with the Bank of England was also reduced in steps on these dates and eliminated on December 26.

Official holdings of gold and foreign exchange were subject to wide movements in 1962. During the period when the Canadian dollar was under heaviest pressure there were also substantial "forward" transactions.

As for the movements in the exchange rate, it will be recalled that, from the end of June, 1961 to September, 1961, the Canadian dollar settled at about a 3 per cent discount on the United States dollar. In October, however, an upward pressure on the Canadian dollar emerged. In resisting this pressure, the Exchange Fund accumulated $186 million of foreign exchange in October. By the end of that month, the Fund held $2,111 million.

CANADIAN DOLLAR IN UNITED STATES FUNDS AVERAGE NOON RATES

Toward the end of 1961 and in early 1962 pressures in the opposite direction developed and the rate began to move downward, reaching a 5 per cent discount on the United States dollar in February where it was held through March and April. Some $32 million of exchange reserves were used up in November, $23 million in December, $134 million in January, $175 million in February, and $35 million in March. However, following the announcement of a General Election in April, heavy downward pressures re-emerged. The official reserves declined by $114.6 million in April, while the exchange rate was still held at a level of approximately 95 cents (U.S.).

On May 2, 1962, with the concurrence of the International Monetary Fund, the Government declared a "par value" for the Canadian dollar, fixing it at a rate of one Canadian dollar equal to 92.5 cents (U.S.), with the normal one per cent margin either way. A short lull in the market was followed by renewed downward pressure on the exchange rate which gathered force late in May and through June, reaching a climax following the indecisive results of the General Election. By June 24 the "spot" position of the official reserves had fallen to about $1,100 million and in addition there were outstanding substantial forward sale contracts.

On June 24, the Government announced its emergency measures, the exchange market settled and exchange reserves began to increase. At the end of June, official holdings totalled $1,809 million, including $650 million arising out of special international financial assistance. Between June 30 and year end, reserves rose to $2,539 million, despite repayment of $350 million of special international financial assistance.

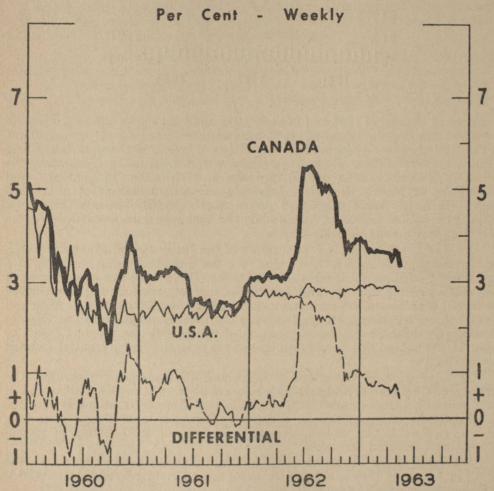

The value of the Canadian dollar in U.S. funds averaged about 91.9 cents (U.S.) in June, and then subsequently strengthened in July to 92.7 cents (U.S.). It closed the year at 92.8 cents (U.S.).

FINANCIAL DEVELOPMENTS

MONETARY AND FOREIGN EXCHANGE CONDITIONS

During the first few months of 1962 the continuing cyclical expansion in economic activity was financed without much change in general credit conditions. Yields on long-term government bonds drifted gradually lower during this period and by April, 1962 were under 5 per cent. The yield on three-month Treasury Bills rose around the end of 1961 from about $2\frac{1}{2}$ per cent to 3 per cent but thereafter showed only minor fluctuations through to late April 1962. Interest rate differentials between Canada and the United States, which had narrowed considerably in mid-1961, declined somewhat further in the early months of 1962. The total volume of funds raised through net new issues of securities in this period was appreciably less than in recent years. However bank loans continued to expand. Early in 1962 the expansion began to be accompanied by a gradual decline in the banks' holdings of liquid assets.

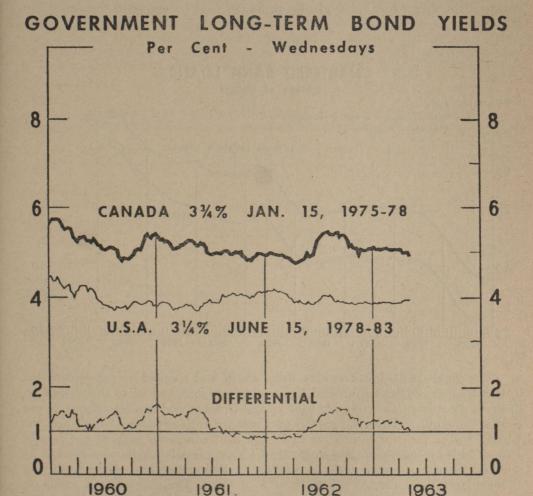

In late April and May the wave of selling on the New York stock market initiated similar movements in other markets, including Canadian. At about the same time downward pressure on the Canadian exchange rate intensified, and on May 2 the Government announced the introduction of a fixed rate of Can. $.925 = U.S. $1.00. Early in May Treasury Bill yields in Canada began to rise fairly rapidly and by mid-May a general upward movement in interest rates was under way.

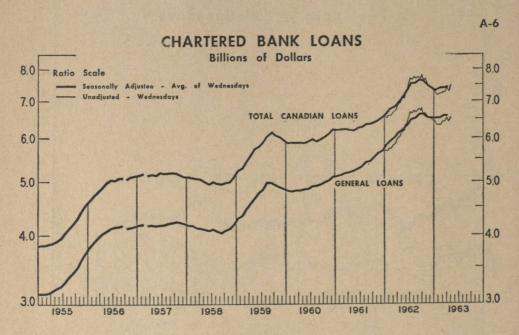

From early May to late July the Government Purchase Fund acquired $113 million in long-term bonds to cushion the fall in prices. In a period of little more than two weeks in June, when bond prices were declining rapidly, the Bank of Canada bought some $150 million of short-term bonds for cash.

Pressure on the Canadian exchange rate came to a climax in June and emergency measures were introduced to protect the value of the Canadian dollar. These measures included re-introduction of a fixed Bank Rate at the high level of 6 per cent. During the period of the crisis and for several weeks after there was a complete absence of new security offerings and short-term yields moved to levels higher than those on long-term securities. On July 3, the prime lending rate of the chartered banks was raised from $5\frac{1}{2}$ per cent to 6 per cent.

During the summer the banks were faced by a situation in which the more-than-seasonal increase in the demand for loans which had been occurring in the spring was continuing, while their cash reserves were falling. At the same time there was a strong demand by the general public, including industrial and financial institutions, for securities that, at substantially reduced prices, were offering very attractive yields. The banks sold substantial amounts of securities, and their total assets, together with their deposits, shrank accordingly. The reduction in the public's holdings of deposits shrank less rapidly, however, because the Government was using funds, accumulated from earlier sales of foreign exchange, to bring up the offerings of foreign exchange that were now being offered as "flight" capital returned to Canada.

As the emergency measures took effect, and the massive financial assistance from abroad assured the defence of the Canadian dollar at its declared par value, financial markets began to recover, monetary policy eased and interest rates declined. Bank Rate was reduced to $5\frac{1}{2}$ per cent on September 7, to 5 per cent on October 12, and to 4 per cent on November 13. The total money supply declined to early September and then began to increase. Total liquid assets of the chartered banks also increased. The proportion of total bank assets held in the form of government securities, day-to-day loans, cash and other liquid assets, which declined from 37 per cent in early 1962 to about 29 per cent in September, rose subsequently to 34 per cent by early 1963 where it levelled out.

The yield on 91-day Treasury Bills, which had reached $5\frac{1}{2}$ per cent earlier in the summer, fluctuated around 5 per cent from mid-August to early October, dropped sharply to about $4\frac{1}{2}$ per cent in mid-October and again to about $3\frac{3}{4}$ per cent in November. The yield spread on Treasury Bills between Canada and the United States declined to around $\frac{3}{4}$ of 1 per cent compared with $2\frac{1}{2}$ per cent in July. Yields on long-term Government of Canada bonds which were around $5\frac{1}{2}$ per cent in the summer declined slightly in September and more rapidly in October and November to a little over 5 per cent. The difference in yields on long-term government bonds between Canada and the United States declined to about 1.2 per cent, compared with 1.5 per cent in July and 0.9 per cent in late 1961 and early 1962. In mid-November the prime lending rate of the chartered banks was reduced from 6 per cent to $5\frac{3}{4}$ per cent.

The period since September 1962 has been characterized by the reappearance, on a significant scale, of Canadian security offerings in New York. In September it was announced that negotiations had been completed for the private sale to five life insurance companies of U.S. $250 million in Government of Canada 25-year External 5 per cent Bonds. The proceeds were received in two equal instalments on October 15, 1962, and January 3, 1963, and were used to reinforce Canada's official reserves of foreign exchange. The Government of Canada's external issue was followed by an appreciable volume of security offerings in the United States market by Canadian provinces, municipalities and corporations.

Total net new borrowing by Canadian individuals, firms, and governments through the banking system and the bond and stock markets amounted to an estimated $3.2 billion in 1962. This was only slightly higher than the amount raised in 1961. The demands for particular types of funds during the course of the year were affected by the disturbances in the financial and exchange markets. Some detail for each level of government and the private sectors is provided in Table 39.

New cash raised from banks and security issues by corporations and other private borrowers in 1962 appreciably exceeded the amounts raised in either of the preceding two years. Reflecting the upward swing in the business cycle, private borrowers had sharply increased their net borrowings from $380 million to $544 million from the first to the second half of 1961. During the first half of 1962 there were special influences which caused their rate of borrowing to accelerate to a total of $1,033 million, practically all of which was concentrated in the second quarter. Private borrowing was about 25 per cent higher in this quarter than in any previous three-month period. Much of the private borrowing was in the form of bank loans.

The swollen level of bank loans during the summer was partly associated with the continued expansion in the economy. In addition there were other influences which probably contributed. In the period leading up to the exchange crisis, expectations of a further fall in the value of the Canadian dollar probably led to advance buying of imports and remittance of earnings abroad. Some corporations and governmental bodies postponed security issues because of unsettled conditions in the stock and bond markets and relied instead on bank loans. Some bank borrowers may have anticipated tighter money conditions, and engaged in precautionary borrowing.

The decline in private borrowing from $1,033 million in the first half of 1962 to $488 million in the latter half, probably reflected, in part, the reversal of the above temporary influences together with the effects of reduced business inventory accumulation towards the close of the year.

Overall borrowings by governments were sharply lower in 1962 than in 1961. The distribution of borrowings between the two halves of the year was opposite to that described above for the private sector. The uneven distribution of borrowings by the Federal Government accounts for most of the concentration of total government borrowings in the second half of the year.

The pattern of federal financing was sharply distorted by foreign exchange developments during 1962. In the first half of the year large scale liquidation of exchange reserves by the Federal Government provided it with funds to maintain unusually large cash balances at the chartered banks, and at the same time appreciably reduce the total amount of marketable government bonds outstanding. On June 24, one of the emergency measures announced was that the cash resulting from the sale of foreign exchange since the beginning of the 1962–63 fiscal year—about $600 million—would be earmarked for future purchases of foreign exchange by the Exchange Fund Account.

In the course of rebuilding the exchange reserves the Federal Government drew down its cash balances at the chartered banks from July to early November raising new cash from securities market again. In the second half of 1962 the Federal Government raised $1,158 net million from sales of Canada Savings Bonds and marketable securities to the public, net new security issues in the capital market and from net sales of securities held by Government accounts.

Following the mid-year financial instability the Federal Government's first public financing operation on August 1 took the form of a straight refunding. An issue maturing on June 15 had been paid off out of government cash balances, some of this issue having been handled previously by an advance refunding with the Bank of Canada. Included in the August 1 refunding was the sale of $120 million in 18-year bonds. This was the first long-term issue since the C.N.R. issue in late 1960.

In September the Federal Government raised net new money from the securities market for the first time since March. At each weekly auction of Treasury Bills from September 6 to November 1, it sold $15 million more than the amounts maturing, raising a total of $135 million in new cash. A further $82 million in new cash was raised from domestic debt operations on October 1. The debt management operations from December 1 to January 1 constituted, on a net basis, a refunding of existing government debt.

The average term to maturity of Government of Canada and C.N.R. market securities was steady at about eight years during the first seven months of 1962. It lengthened to eight years and two months in August, reflecting the issue of 18-year bonds and lengthened again in December to eight years five months, reflecting the fact that almost all the holders of the $5\frac{1}{2}$ per cent Government of Canada bonds due April 1, 1963 exercised their option to exchange them by the end of 1962, into an equal par value of $5\frac{1}{2}$ per cent non-callable bonds due April 1, 1976.

The yield to maturity offered on the 1962 Series of Canada Savings Bonds, announced on September 14, was high, and sales were large. The bulk of the proceeds from the sale of Canada Savings Bonds became available to the government in November, and accounted, as in previous years, for a sharp increase in government cash balances in that month. The net sale of Canada Savings Bonds during 1962 provided the Government with $540 million in new cash compared to $486 million in 1961, $382 million in 1960 and $317 million in 1959. Individual purchase orders for the 1962 Series up to March 31 numbered almost 1,667,817 of which 674,894 were made under the Payroll Savings Plan at factories, offices and other places of work. The average amount of the 1962 Series bought by each person under the Payroll Savings Plan was $343.

HOUSING FINANCE

Housing starts totalled 130,000 in 1962, an increase of 3.6 per cent from those in 1961. Expenditures on residential construction rose 8 per cent to a total of $1.6 billion. This represented 3.9 per cent of Gross National Expenditure in 1962, the same as in 1961, but somewhat less than in previous years, reflecting in part the decline in net family formation.

There were important shifts during 1962 in the composition of housing starts, by type, and in the sources of financing for residential construction expenditures. Starts of rental dwellings increased noticeably while starts of dwellings for home-ownership declined slightly. The proportion of rental dwelling starts to total starts increased from about 37 per cent in 1961 to about 41 per cent in 1962. Partly associated with this trend was an increase in conventional mortgage lending and a shift away from financing under N.H.A. (See Table 40.)

N.H.A. lending activity in 1962, including institutional and direct C.M.H.C. loans, was below the previous year. The decline was particularly marked from June to November and was associated with a temporary narrowing in the spread between the maximum N.H.A. interest rate of $6\frac{1}{2}$ per cent in 1962 and long-term bond yields.

In 1962 C.M.H.C. conducted further auctions of insured mortgages from its portfolio as part of its continuing actions to promote a secondary market in mortgages. Sales totalled $48 million compared to $40 million in 1961. On December 6, 1962, the Government announced the establishment of a $100 million re-discount facility as a further step in the development of a secondary market for N.H.A. mortgages. C.M.H.C. will make funds available as a lender of last resort to N.H.A. approved lenders. Total loans to any one company may not exceed three times its paid-up capital or $5 million, whichever is the smaller.

CONSUMER CREDIT

Personal expenditures on goods and services increased 5.2 per cent in 1962 compared to 4.1 per cent in 1961. Sales of new automobiles featured prominently in the increase. In 1962 consumer credit extended by banks, finance companies and retail stores rose by 8.7 per cent or $296 million compared to 6.0 per cent or $192 million in 1961.

During the year there were divergent trends among the main lenders. The sharp increase in chartered bank consumer credit levelled off after mid-year, after allowance for seasonal influences, then started to rise again at the close of the year. Instalment finance company loans stopped declining early in 1962, followed a level trend during most of the year, and then towards the end of the year started to pick up. The small loan companies accelerated the previously moderate rate of increase in their loans in late 1961 and continued in this trend throughout 1962. Credit extended by retail stores rose moderately in 1962.

REVIEW OF GOVERNMENT ACCOUNTS

1. INTRODUCTION

This Part of the Budget Papers presents in a concise manner a review of the accounts of the Government of Canada for the fiscal year 1962–63. The figures used are preliminary and will vary to some extent from the final figures when they become available on the closing of the books. The government's fiscal year ended on March 31, but in accordance with section 35 of the Financial Administration Act the books must remain open for some time after that date to take into account all payments up to and including April 30, originating in and properly chargeable to the fiscal year 1962–63 and to record various adjusting entries.

When Parliament was dissolved on February 6, 1963 the Revised Estimates and Supplementary Estimates (A) and (B) for 1962–63 had not been passed by the House of Commons. At that time Appropriation Acts had been passed authorizing the expenditure of only ten-twelfths of the estimates, and the remainder of the payments for the fiscal year were made under the authority of Special Governor General's Warrants issued on February 8, 1963 and March 4, 1963 in accordance with section 28 of the Financial Administration Act. It is not expected that the books for the fiscal year will be closed until a Special Appropriation Act is passed by Parliament, covering the Special Governor General's Warrants and authorizing certain accounting adjustments that remain to be made.

2. HIGHLIGHTS OF GOVERNMENTAL FINANCIAL OPERATIONS DURING 1962–63

This section outlines the budgetary and non-budgetary transactions, the operations of the old age security fund, and the debt transactions during 1962–63, and the cash position as at March 31, 1963.

The following table summarizes the budgetary and non-budgetary transactions for the fiscal year and indicates how the budgetary and non-budgetary transactions, including changes in unmatured debt, affected the government's cash balances. More detailed explanations of these transactions are given in subsequent sections of this Part.

Budgetary transactions

The revenues and expenditures as forecast in the budget speech of April 10, 1962 and revised on October 22, 1962 and the actual figures as now estimated are shown in the following table:

Revenues

The budgetary revenues for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1963 amounted to \$5,876 million. This is \$54 million or almost one per cent less than the revised figure of \$5,930 million forecast on October 22, 1962, and \$146 million or $2\frac{1}{2}$ per cent more than the total of \$5,730 million collected in the fiscal year 1961–62.

Tax revenues accounted for $126 million of the increase over the previous year. The yield from personal income tax was $48 million less than in 1961–62 due to the provincial tax collection agreements which came into effect on January 1, 1962, offset in part by a higher level of incomes during the year. The yield from corporation income tax was $19 million less than the 1961–62 collections also due to the provincial tax collection agreements offset in part by higher corporate profits in 1961. Receipts from the sales tax were $46 million more, from customs import duties $111 million more (due to special surcharges imposed by the government in order to bolster the foreign exchange reserves) and from excise duties $19 million more than the comparable amounts in 1961–62.

Non-tax revenues accounted for $21 million of the total increase in revenue. Post office revenue was $9 million higher, receipts from other non-tax revenue were $8 million higher and returns on investments were $4 million higher than the previous year.

Expenditures

Budgetary expenditures in the amount of $6,585 million in 1962-63 were $85 million or approximately 1.3 per cent higher than forecast on October 22, 1962 and $64 million or approximately one per cent more than total expenditures in 1961-62.

Expenditures for defence again constituted the largest item, amounting to $1,602 million or 24 per cent of the total expenditures, compared with $1,650 million or 25 per cent in 1961-62.

Civil or non-defence expenditures amounted to $4,983 million, an increase of $112 million over the corresponding total for the previous fiscal year. There were increases of $179 million in expenditures of the Department of Labour (including an increase of $171 million in technical and vocational training assistance) and $83 million in expenditures of the Department of National Health and Welfare (including an increase of $53 million in the government's contribution under the Hospital Insurance and Diagnostic Services Act) and decreases of $158 million in the expenditures of the Department of Finance (including a decrease of $266 million in fiscal, tax-sharing, subsidy and other payments to provinces due to the lapsing on December 31, 1961 of the 1957 tax-sharing agreements, offset in part by an increase of $79 million in public debt charges) and $53 million in expenditures of the Department of Agriculture (including decreases of $40 million in the prairie farm emergency fund deficit and $40 million in payments to western grain producers due to the fact that no provision had been made for such payments for the 1962-63 crop year, offset in part by an increase of $50 million in the net operating loss of the agricultural stabilization board).

More detailed explanations of budgetary revenues by source and expenditures by classification and department are given in section 3 of this Part.

Deficit

On the basis of these preliminary figures the deficit for the fiscal year was $709 million compared with the deficit of $570 million as forecast on October 22, 1962, and the deficit of $791 million in 1961-62.

Non-budgetary transactions

A net amount of $758 million was required during the fiscal year to finance non-budgetary transactions (excluding unmatured debt transactions). Non-budgetary disbursements and charges totalled $1,898 million and receipts and credits, $1,140 million. Requirements for disbursements and charges were: $943 million for advances to the exchange fund; $614 million for other loans and investments and working capital advances; $41 million for temporary loans to the old age security fund; and $300 million for other non-budgetary disbursements. Amounts available from various receipts and credits were: $385 million from non-interest-bearing notes payable on demand; $499 million from the net receipts from various annuity, insurance and pension accounts; $162 million from repayments of loans, investments and working capital advances; and $94 million from other non-budgetary sources.

Old age security fund

Pension payments from the old age security fund totalled $734 million in 1962–63 compared with $625 million in the previous fiscal year. The increase of $109 million was largely the effect of the increased rate of payment (from $55 to $65 per month) effective February 1, 1962. The full impact of the increased expenditure resulting from this increase was not reflected in the 1961–62 totals as they were in effect for only two months of that year whereas in 1962–63 they were in effect for twelve months. As there was a balance of $2 million in the fund at March 31, 1962, the excess of $43 million of pension payments over receipts was financed by temporary loans from the Minister of Finance in the amount of $41 million. These loans were outstanding at March 31, 1963.

The transactions in the account during 1962-63 compared with those for the previous fiscal year were as follows:

	Fiscal year ender 1963 (preliminary)	ed March 31 1962
	(in millions of	f dollars)

part by temporary loans from the Minister of Finance.		19
Balance in fund		2
Temporary loans outstanding at fiscal year end	41

Debt transactions

During 1962–63 the gross public debt increased by $1,904 million to $24,812 million due to an increase of $1,016 million in unmatured debt and $888 million in other liabilities. The increase in unmatured debt was the result of the government issuing securities amounting to $4,385 million (excluding the refunding of treasury bills which mature weekly) plus an adjustment of $10 million due to revaluation of securities (issued in prior years) payable in London and New York, and redeeming or converting issues in the amount of $3,379 million. During the same period the government's net assets increased by $1,195 million to $10,875 million. As a result, the government's net debt was $13,937 million at March 31, 1963, the increase of $709 million being equivalent to the budgetary deficit for the fiscal year.

Cash position

The government's cash position was $403 million lower at March 31, 1963 than it was at March 31, 1962. The budgetary deficit of $709 million plus the amount of $758 million required for non-budgetary transactions was financed by increasing unmatured debt outstanding in the hands of the public by $1,064 million and by drawing down Receiver General cash balances by $403 million.

3. THE BUDGETARY ACCOUNTS

Total revenues were $5,876 million for 1962–63, $146 million more than the total for the previous year. Total expenditures were $6,585 million, an increase of $64 million over the total for 1961–62. The deficit for the fiscal year 1962–63 was $709 million compared with $791 million for the previous year.

Federal-provincial tax-collection agreements

The receipts from personal and corporation income taxes and the payments to provinces were lower in 1962-63 than in the previous year due to the lapsing of the 1957 tax rental arrangements. Under the 1957 tax rental arrangements, the obligation on the renting provinces to abstain from the imposition of personal and corporation income taxes was to lapse on December 31, 1961. Under the new arrangements the former renting provinces have all imposed personal and corporation income taxes effective January 1, 1962. The Government of Canada, in place of the tax rental arrangements, offered to enter into tax collection agreements with the provinces whereby Canada would undertake to collect. without charge, the provincial personal and corporation income taxes at rates determined by the provinces, provided that the provincial personal income tax was expressed as a percentage of the federal personal income tax payable and the provincial corporation income tax employed a definition of corporate taxable income identical with the federal definition. To facilitate the imposition of the provincial income taxes, the Income Tax Act was amended in the 1961 session of Parliament (1) to reduce the federal income tax payable by individuals resident in the provinces by 16 per cent in 1962 and by a further one per cent in each subsequent year until the deduction amounts to 20 per cent in 1966. and (2) to reduce the federal tax rate on the taxable income of corporations earned in the provinces by 9 percentage points. Canada has entered into agreements to collect the personal income tax, with all the provinces with the exception of the Province of Quebec, and to collect the corporation income tax, with all the provinces with the exception of the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec. With the exception of Saskatchewan and Manitoba, the provinces which have entered into tax-collection agreements have imposed personal and corporation income taxes equivalent to the federal withdrawal. The Provinces of Manitoba and Saskatchewan have imposed personal income taxes at 22 per cent rather than 16 per cent of the federal tax payable and 10 per cent rather than 9 per cent of the taxable income of corporations.

Under these agreements payments are made monthly to the provinces based on estimated receipts. When the actual amounts of the returns are established, usually in the month of December following the fiscal year-end, adjustments are to be made with the provinces.

Tax on personal incomes

The personal income tax was again in 1962–63 the largest source of government revenue. The yield (excluding the old age security tax) was $1,745 million or 30 per cent of all budgetary revenue, $48 million or 3 per cent less than the 1961–62 collections. However, in addition to the federal revenue of $1,745 million, $252 million was collected on behalf of the provinces under the new federal-provincial tax collection agreements. This compares with the situation in 1961–62 when all income taxes (with the exception of $37 million which had been collected for the provinces) were credited to federal revenue and payments were made to the provinces and charged to budgetary expenditure. Therefore, although the government's books reflect lower receipts of personal income taxes in 1962–63 when compared with 1961–62, there was actually an increase of $204 million in personal income taxes collected due to higher levels of employment and incomes during 1962.

The tax on personal incomes levied under the Old Age Security Act and credited to the old age security fund amounted to $274 million.

Corporation income tax

On January 1, 1962 the system, whereby the federal government made tax rental payments to certain provinces and charged these to expenditures, was changed so that the provinces' share of corporation income taxes is collected by the federal government and is remitted directly to the provinces without being included in federal revenue or expenditure. In addition to the federal revenue of $1,183 million (excluding the old age security tax), $65 million was collected on behalf of the provinces. Although the government's accounts show lower collections of corporation income taxes of $19 million or 2 per cent when compared with those of 1961–62 there was actually an increase of $46 million in collections. The increase was due to higher corporate profits for the calendar year 1961 on which collections of corporation income taxes in 1962–63 were largely based.

Provincial corporation income taxes collected by the federal government are remitted to the provinces in accordance with agreements between the federal government and the provincial governments. A more detailed explanation will be found at the beginning of this section on tax revenues.

In addition to the above, the tax on incomes of corporations levied under the Old Age Security Act in the amount of $115 million was credited to the old age security fund.

Taxes on dividends, interest, etc., going abroad

Revenue in this category is derived from taxes withheld on payments of dividends, interest, rents, royalties, alimony and income from estates and trusts paid to non-residents. Collections for 1962–63 were $129 million, an increase of $17 million over the comparable total for 1961–62 reflecting higher dividend payments in 1962.

Excise taxes

Revenue under this heading includes collections from the general sales tax and other special excise taxes.

From a revenue standpoint the sales tax was the most important tax levied under the Excise Tax Act. Receipts therefrom (excluding the old age security tax) were $806 million, $46 million or about 6 per cent higher than in the previous fiscal year.

The tax on sales, levied under the Old Age Security Act, in the amount of $302 million was credited to the old age security fund.

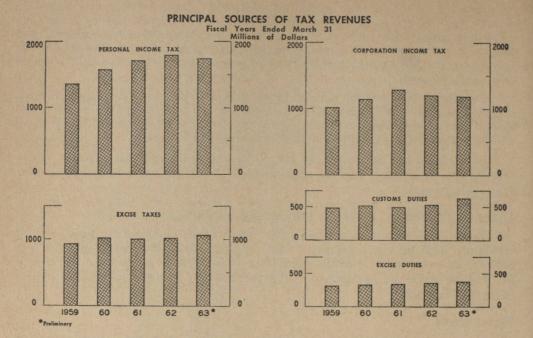

Excise taxes levied under the Excise Tax Act, other than the general sales tax, were $260 million, a decrease of $3 million from the 1961–62 total of $263 million. The main changes were an increase of $9 million in the excise taxes on tobacco products and a decrease of $14 million in net revenue from the excise tax on passenger automobiles. In 1961–62 the excise tax on passenger automobiles amounted to $25 million and refunds due to the repeal of the tax effective June 21, 1961 totalled $11 million resulting in net receipts of $14 million.

Customs import duties

Customs import duties were $645 million for 1962–63, an increase of $111 million over the comparable figures for 1961–62. This increase was due in large part to the surcharges which were in effect in 1962–63.

Excise duties

Excise duties are levied on alcoholic beverages and tobacco products. (Additional taxes on tobacco products are levied under the Excise Tax Act.) Net receipts in 1962–63 were $382 million compared with $363 million in 1961–62. Gross receipts of $221 million from taxes on alcoholic beverages and $166 million from taxes on tobacco products were partly offset by refunds and drawbacks totalling $5 million. Comparable amounts in 1961–62 were $207 million, $160 million and $4 million respectively.

Estate tax

Revenue from this source was $87 million for 1962–63, an increase of approximately $2 million over the total for the previous year.

Other taxes

Revenue under this heading was $100 thousand, slightly higher than for 1961-62.

(2) NON-TAX REVENUES

Non-tax revenues totalled $639 million for 1962-63, an increase of $21 million or approximately 3 per cent over the comparable total in 1961-62.

Receipts from Crown corporations were $207 million in 1962-63, a decrease of $2 million from the total in the previous fiscal year. The main changes were a decrease of $11 million in the Bank of Canada profits and an increase of $8 million in receipts from the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

Other loans and investments yielded $104 million in 1962-63 compared with $99 million in 1961-62. The increase of $5 million was due mainly to increases of $8 million in interest on Receiver General deposits with the chartered banks, $3 million in the earnings of the exchange fund account and $1 million in receipts from the purchase fund account that was established during 1961-62 to assist in the management of the public debt, partly offset by decreases of $4 million in receipts from the securities investment account and $3 million in interest on loans to the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

Post office revenue

Gross post office receipts totalled $223 million but authorized disbursements from revenue for salaries and rent allowances at semi-staff and revenue offices, commissions at sub-offices, transit charges on Canadian mail forwarded through and delivered in foreign countries, etc., in the amount of $30 million, brought net revenue to $193 million. In 1961–62 gross receipts were $214 million, authorized disbursements were $30 million and net revenue was $184 million.

As costs of operating the Post Office Department during 1962–63 (excluding the $30 million charged to revenue) were $189 million, net revenue exceeded net expenditure by $4 million. However, in making this comparison, it is to be noted that the total shown for post office revenue does not reflect any payment for the franking privilege covering parliamentary and departmental mail or for certain miscellaneous services provided for other government departments and agencies, nor does the total shown for operating expenses reflect any charges for premises occupied by the Post Office Department or for certain accounting and miscellaneous services provided by other departments.

Refunds of previous years' expenditures

Refunds in 1962-63 of expenditures made in prior years were $22 million, an increase of $4 million over the comparable total for 1961-62.

The Department of National Defence received $9 million, of which $1 million was refunds on defence contracts resulting from cost audits and $2 million in respect of contracts with the United States Government for the supply of defence equipment under an arrangement that when Canada places contracts with the Government of the United States, payments of estimated costs are made to the United States Treasury. If these estimated costs are revised or, if there are reductions in the contracts, the United States Government refunds the excess payments. The Department of Finance received $6 million mainly due to a refund from the Province of Ontario in connection with succession duty payments under the tax rental agreements. The Department of Trade and Commerce received $1 million due to a refund from the Eldorado Mining and Refining Limited of expenditures in 1961–62 under a contract between Eldorado Mining and Refining Limited on behalf of Her Majesty and Macassa Gold Mines Limited for the purchase by Her Majesty of uranium concentrates.

Services and service fees

Revenues of $46 million were received during 1962-63, an increase of $3 million over the previous fiscal year.

Approximately 83 per cent of these fees was collected by the following four departments: $15 million received by the Department of Transport, including aircraft landing fees of $6 million and marine steamers earnings of $4 million; $13 million by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, mainly for police services to provinces and municipalities; $6 million by the Department of Agriculture, of which $4 million was for services in connection with the inspection, weighing, storage and elevation of grain and $1 million for race track supervision; and $4 million by the Department of National Health and Welfare, due mainly to reimbursement of $3 million by the provinces for treatment of Indians in federal government hospitals.

Proceeds from sales

Receipts from this source totalled $26 million for 1962-63, approximately the same as the total for 1961-62.

Included in this category were receipts of: $10 million by the Department of Defence Production, of which $8 million represents amounts from the sale of surplus Crown assets (after deducting certain agency fees and transfers) and $2 million under agreements of sale of Crown assets; $5 million by the Department of Public Works representing the proceeds of the sales of properties by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation; and $5 million by the Department of National Defence, mainly from sales of materials and supplies and from sales of meals.

Privileges, licences and permits

Revenues in this category were $25 million for 1962-63 compared with the 1961-62 total of $23 million.

Included in this revenue were $10 million received by the Department of Transport, mainly for rentals, concessions and radio licence fees; $4 million by the Department of Northern Affairs and National Resources; $2 million by the Department of the Secretary of State, mainly for patent fees; $2 million by the Department of Public Works for rental of public buildings and sites; and $2 million by the Department of National Defence, of which $1 million was for rental of quarters to armed forces personnel.

Bullion and coinage

Revenues in this category of $9 million were derived from the operations of the Royal Canadian Mint and consisted mainly of a net gain on coinage. Small amounts were also obtained from gold refining charges, handling charges and gain on gold refining.

Premium, discount and exchange

Premium, discount and exchange transactions for 1962-63 resulted in a net expenditure of $10 million, compared with a net revenue of $2 million in 1961-62.

The change from a revenue to an expenditure item was due to the change in accounting policy of revaluing securities payable in New York and London at the official parity rate rather than recording the loans in the government's books of account at $1 U.S. = $1 Can. and £1 = $2.80 Can. The official parity rate at March 31, 1963 was $1 U.S. = $1.08108 Can. and £1 = $3.027 Can.

Other non-tax revenues

Other non-tax revenues amounted to $7 million for 1962-63, approximately the same as for the previous fiscal year.

B. EXPENDITURES

Budgetary expenditures for 1962–63 amounted to $6,585 million, an increase of $64 million over the 1961–62 total of $6,521 million.

Does not include pension payments out of the old age security fund not charged to budgetary expenditures in the year in which they were paid.

(1) DEFENCE EXPENDITURES

Defence expenditures which consist of expenditures of the Departments of National Defence and Defence Production were again the largest category of government budgetary expenditures. The total of $1,602 million for 1962-63 was approximately 24 per cent of the aggregate budgetary expenditures of the government for the year and was $48 million less than the total of $1,650 million for 1961-62, when outlays for defence were 25 per cent of total expenditures.

National Defence

Expenditures of the Department of National Defence were $1,573 million in 1962-63 compared with $1,626 million in 1961-62.

Expenditures for naval, army and air services at $1,423 million were $72 million less than the 1961–62 total. There were decreases of $3 million for naval services and $69 million for air services.

Direct charges to mutual aid during 1962–63 were $25 million compared with $11 million in 1961–62 and consisted of procurement of equipment for mutual aid and Canada's share of NATO military budgets and infrastructure costs.

Expenditures for defence research and development in the amount of $42 million were $1 million higher than in 1961-62.

The government's contribution to the Canadian forces superannuation account of an amount equal to $1\frac{2}{3}$ times the contributions of permanent services personnel was \$58 million, an increase of \$2 million over the total for the previous year.

Administration and general costs were $25 million compared with $23 million in 1961-62.

Defence Production

The expenditure of $29 million in 1962–63 for the Department of Defence Production (including expenditures in respect of Defence Construction (1951) Limited and Canadian Arsenals Limited) was $6 million more than in 1961–62.

Outlays of $8 million in connection with the government program instituted in 1959-60 of supporting selected defence development programs to sustain technological capability in Canadian industry were $4 million more than in 1961-62. Expenditures of $2 million in respect of the procurement of capital equipment and works by Canadian Arsenals Limited and the programs under which assistance for the establishment of production capacity and capital assistance is given to private contractors, Crown plants operated on a management-fee basis and Crown corporations undertaking contracts essential to the defence program were approximately the same as the corresponding expenditures in the previous fiscal year.

Administration and general costs were $19 million in 1962-63, $2 million more than in 1961-62.

Cash outlays for defence

In addition to these budgetary expenditures for defence, there are certain other cash outlays which must be considered in assessing the full effect of the defence program on the economy of Canada.

Section 11 of the National Defence Act provides that materiel, not immediately required for the use of the Canadian defence forces or the Defence Research Board, may be sold to such countries and upon such terms as the Governor in Council may determine. The proceeds of such sales in 1962–63, amounting to $1 million, were credited to a special account to be used for the procurement of replacement materiel. Cash outlays from this account during the fiscal year were also $1 million. Consequently the balance in the account remained at $1 million at March 31, 1963.

The Department of Defence Production also makes cash disbursements for the procurement of materials for use in the manufacture of defence equipment which are not recorded as budgetary expenditures. For purposes of accounting and control, these amounts are charged to the defence production revolving fund and are treated as assets on the books of the government until they are billed to the Department of National Defence or sold to defence contractors for use in the manufacture of defence equipment. During the year 1962-63 purchases of $43 million exceeded proceeds from sales of $30 million by $13 million and the assets of the fund increased by an equivalent amount, resulting in a balance of $41 million in the account as at March 31, 1963.

The following table summarizes the cash outlays for defence for the past two fiscal years.

Agriculture

Expenditures of the Department of Agriculture were $234 million for 1962-63 compared with $287 million for 1961-62.

The increase of $50 million in the net operating loss of the agricultural stabilization board was more than offset by decreases of $40 million in the deficit of the prairie farm emergency fund and $40 million in payments to western grain producers.

The 1962-63 net operating loss of the agricultural stabilization board was $72 million compared with $22 million in 1961-62. The increase was due mainly to a payment of $42 million for the stabilization of the price of butter for which there was no comparable payment in 1961-62.

The decrease of $40 million in payments to western grain producers was due to the fact that no provision had been made for such payments for the 1962-63 crop year. The expenditure of $100 thousand in 1962-63 was for completion of payments required for the 1961-62 crop year.

The Prairie Farm Assistance Act, c. 213, R.S., as amended, provides for a levy of one per cent to be deducted by all licensed purchasers of grain, the amount so deducted to be transferred to the Board of Grain Commissioners for deposit to the credit of the prairie farm emergency fund. Awards are made under the provisions of the Act to farmers in the spring wheat area in accordance with crop failure conditions provided for in the Act and are payable from this fund. Advances by the Minister of Finance to the prairie farm emergency fund to cover the years deficit, in the amount of $7 million, were charged to budgetary expenditures. The comparable amount in 1961–62 was $48 million.

Atomic Energy

Budgetary expenditures in respect of Atomic Energy of Canada Limited and the Atomic Energy Control Board totalled $63 million in 1962-63 compared with expenditures of $35 million in 1961-62, an increase of $28 million.

During the year under review $37 million was paid to Atomic Energy of Canada Limited for its research program, $3 million more than in the previous fiscal year. Of this total, $29 million was for current operations and maintenance and $8 million for the construction or acquisition of buildings, works, land and equipment.

In addition, the undepreciated capital cost of the NRU reactor will be charged to budgetary expenditure upon parliamentary approval and loans to Atomic Energy of Canada Limited were reduced by the same amount. As loans amounting to $13 million were made to Atomic Energy of Canada Limited during the year, this brought the total of advances covered by obligations or shares of the company to $53 million at March 31, 1963.

Administration expenses of the Atomic Energy Control Board and grants for research and investigation with respect to atomic energy were $1 million, approximately the same as for the previous fiscal year.

Canadian Broadcasting Corporation

Payments of $81 million were made by the government to the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation during 1962–63, an increase of $3 million over the total for 1961–62.

Grants for capital requirements including the replacement of existing capital assets of the radio and television services were $7 million, slightly higher than in 1961–62. Grants in respect of the net operating requirements of the radio and television services totalled $72 million, $2 million higher than in the previous fiscal year.

Outlays of $2 million for the international broadcasting service were approximately the same as in 1961-62.

Citizenship and Immigration

Expenditures of the Department of Citizenship and Immigration were $66 million for 1962-63, an increase of $1 million over the total for 1961-62.

Outlays for the Indian affairs branch were slightly higher during 1962-63 due principally to Indian welfare and Indian economic development.

Expenditures of the immigration branch were also slightly higher than in the previous fiscal year whereas outlays for the citizenship and citizenship registration branches were approximately the same.

External Affairs

Expenditures of the Department of External Affairs amounted to $85 million for 1962-63, a decrease of $11 million from the total of $96 million spent in the previous fiscal year.

The principal changes in expenditure as compared with 1961–62 were decreases of $8 million in the grant to the Colombo plan fund and $6 million in contributions to international organizations, and increases of $2 million for representation abroad and $1 million for assistance to other countries.

The decrease in contributions to international organizations was due to the fact that expenditures in 1961–62 included an amount of $6 million for the United Nations Congo Ad Hoc account for which there was no comparable expenditure in 1962–63.

Finance

Expenditures of the Department of Finance totalled $1,354 million in 1962-63, a decrease of $158 million from the 1961-62 total of $1,512 million.

The main changes were a decrease of $266 million in fiscal, tax-sharing, subsidy and other payments to provinces and increases of $79 million in public debt charges, $10 million in premium, discount and exchange and $7 million in grants to universities.

Public debt charges

In 1962–63 public debt charges were again the second largest item of budge-tary expenditure. These charges, which consist of interest on the public debt, the annual amortization of bond discounts and commissions, the cost of issuing new loans and other costs incurred in servicing the public debt, were $918 million or 14 per cent of all budgetary expenditure compared with $839 million or 13 per cent in 1961–62.

Interest on public debt in 1962-63 in the amount of $882 million was $79 million more than the 1961-62 total of $803 million. Interest of $709 million on unmatured debt was $66 million higher than in 1961-62 reflecting the increase in unmatured debt and in interest rates. Interest of $173 million on other liabilities was $13 million higher due mainly to increases of $6 million in respect of the public service superannuation account and $5 million in respect of the Canadian forces superannuation account.

Other public debt charges at $36 million were approximately the same as in the previous fiscal year.

When considering the magnitude of these public debt charges and the burden they place upon the public treasury, it must be borne in mind that a substantial portion of the debt is attributable to, or is invested in, productive or earning assets. Therefore, in calculating the net burden of the government's annual interest charges, the income derived from loans, investments and other productive assets must be taken into account. For 1962–63 this income amounted to $311 million as shown in the non-tax revenue section under the heading "Return on investments". This amount deducted from the gross total of $882 million for interest as shown in the above table leaves a net amount of $571 million compared with a net of $495 million in 1961-62. Measured as a percentage of the net debt the burden of the net annual interest charges was 4.10 per cent in 1962-63 compared with 3.75 per cent in 1961-62.

Fiscal, tax-sharing, subsidy and other payments to provinces

Payments to the provinces during 1962–63 for statutory subsidies, payments under the federal-provincial fiscal arrangements and tax-sharing arrangements, and the transfer of a portion of income tax receipts from certain public utility companies were $275 million compared with $541 million in 1961–62.

Charges to budgetary expenditures in 1962-63 in respect of the above payments were $266 million less than in 1961-62 due to a decrease of $480 million in payments under federal-provincial tax-sharing arrangements offset in part by payments of $218 million under new federal-provincial fiscal arrangements.

Under the 1957 tax rental agreements, the obligation on the renting provinces to abstain from the imposition of personal and corporation income taxes was to lapse on December 31, 1961. As the Government of Canada did not offer to renew tax rental agreements, the former renting provinces have all imposed personal and corporation income taxes effective January 1, 1962. The Government of Canada, in place of the tax rental agreements, offered to enter into tax collection agreements with the provinces whereby Canada would undertake to collect, without charge, the provincial personal and corporation income taxes at rates determined by the provinces, provided that the provincial personal income tax was expressed as a percentage of the federal personal income tax payable and the provincial corporation income tax employed a definition of corporate taxable income identical with the federal definition. To facilitate the imposition of the provincial income taxes, the Income Tax Act was amended in the 1961 session of Parliament (1) to reduce the federal income tax payable by individuals resident in the provinces by 16 per cent in 1962 and by a further one per cent in each subsequent year until the deduction amounts to 20 per cent in 1966, and (2) to reduce the federal tax rate on the taxable income of corporations earned in the provinces by 9 percentage points. Canada has entered into agreements to collect the personal income tax, with all the provinces with the exception of the Province of Quebec, and to collect the corporation income tax, with all the provinces with the exception of the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec. With the exception of Saskatchewan and Manitoba, the provinces which have entered into tax collection agreements have imposed personal and corporation income taxes equivalent to the federal withdrawal. The Provinces of Manitoba and Saskatchewan have imposed personal income taxes at 22 per cent rather than 16 per cent of the federal tax payable and 10 per cent rather than 9 per cent of the taxable income of corporations.

Under these agreements payments are made monthly to the provinces on the basis of estimated receipts. When the actual amount of the returns are established, usually in the month of December following the fiscal year-end, adjustments are to be made with the provinces.

The additional grant to Newfoundland, which in previous years was paid under the Newfoundland Additional Grants Act, is now included in the payment under the Federal-Provincial Fiscal Arrangements Act.

Statutory subsidies at $24 million were unchanged from the previous year.

The amount of public utility tax receipts for transfer to provinces in 1962–63 was $10 million, an increase of $4 million over the 1961–62 total. The 1962–63 payments represent the transferable portion of the income tax received from corporations whose main business was the distribution to, or the generation for distribution to, the public of electrical energy, gas or steam for the taxation year 1960.

Government's contribution to the public service superannuation account

In 1962-63 the government's contribution to the public service superannuation account (equal to the estimated current and prior service payments of individuals in 1961-62) was $51 million compared with $47 million in 1961-62.

Premium, discount and exchange

Premium, discount and exchange transactions during 1962-63 resulted in a net expenditure of $10 million, compared with a net revenue of $2 million in 1961-62.

This net expenditure was due primarily to the charge resulting from the revaluing of the government's outstanding debt payable in New York and London at the official parity rates rather than at the former rates of $1 U.S. = $1 Can. and £1 = $2.80 Can. The official parity rate at March 31, 1963 was $1 U.S. = $1.08108 Can. and £1 = $3.027 Can.

Fisheries

Expenditures of the Department of Fisheries amounted to $23 million for 1962-63, approximately the same as in 1961-62.

An increase of $1 million in expenditures of the Fisheries Research Board of Canada was offset by a decrease in outlays for field services.

Forestry

Expenditures of the Department of Forestry totalled $16 million for 1962-63, an increase of $2 million over the 1961-62 total.

Contributions to the provinces for assistance in forest inventory, reforestation, forest fire protection and forest stand improvement were $2 million higher than expenditures in the previous fiscal year and contributions to the provinces for assistance in establishing forest access roads and trails were slightly less than comparable expenditures in 1961–62.

Justice

Expenditures of the Department of Justice amounted to $34 million for 1962-63, compared with $33 million for the previous fiscal year.

Expenditures of the Office of the Commissioner of Penitentiaries for operation and maintenance of penitentiaries accounted for most of the increase.

Labour

Expenditures of the Department of Labour totalled $348 million for 1962-63, an increase of $179 million over the total for 1961-62.

Payments to the provinces under the Technical and Vocational Training Assistance Act were $207 million for 1962-63, $171 million more than comparable expenditures in 1961-62. This Act, which received Royal Assent on December 20, 1960, superseded the Vocational Training Co-ordination Act. The purpose of the act is to provide financial assistance to vocational and technical schools, and in connection with youth training projects.

Payments to provinces and in respect of Indian bands by the Government of Canada, of amounts not exceeding one-half of the cost of labour engaged on approved winter works projects, were $27 million, $3 million more than in the previous fiscal year.

Administration and general costs were $1 million higher than expenditures of $7 million in 1961-62.

Unemployment Insurance Act administration and government's contribution

Budgetary expenditures in 1962-63 (excluding the government's payment as an employer which is included in the expenditures of the Department of Finance) totalled $105 million compared with $102 million in 1961-62.

Unemployment insurance benefit payments are not charged to budgetary expenditures but are paid from the unemployment insurance fund which is financed by equal contributions from employees and employers, by interest earned on investments, and by the government's contribution of an amount equal to one-fifth of the combined employee-employer contributions. Further information in regard to the unemployment insurance fund is given under the liability category "Annuity, insurance and pension accounts".

The government's contribution to the fund for 1962-63 was $57 million and administrative costs $48 million; the corresponding amounts for 1961-62 were $56 million and $46 million respectively.

National Health and Welfare

Expenditures of the Department of National Health and Welfare for 1962-63 were $1,123 million, $83 million more than the total of $1,040 million in 1961-62.

Outlays for the national health branch at $423 million for 1962-63 reflect an increase of $56 million over the previous year's total. The increase was due primarily to an increase of $53 million in the government's contributions under the Hospital Insurance and Diagnostic Services Act.

During 1962-63 expenditures of the welfare branch in the amount of $694 million were $26 million higher than in the previous year, due mainly to increases of $11 million for family allowances, $8 million for old age assistance, $4 million for unemployment assistance and $3 million for disabled persons allowances.

Government's contributions under the Hospital Insurance and Diagnostic Services Act. The Hospital Insurance and Diagnostic Services Act, Statutes of 1957, authorized contributions by Canada in respect of programs administered by the provinces, providing hospital insurance and laboratory and other services in aid of diagnosis. In 1962–63 payments were $337 million compared with $284 million in 1961–62. The increase of $53 million was due to an increase in the cost of insured services to hospitals and the gradual increase in the number of insured persons.

The effective date of each agreement is as follows:—July 1, 1958 for Newfoundland, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia; January 1, 1959 for Nova Scotia and Ontario; July 1, 1959 for New Brunswick; October 1, 1959 for Prince Edward Island; April 1, 1960 for the Northwest Territories; July 1, 1960 for the Yukon Territory; and January 1, 1961 for Quebec.

Family allowances

Family allowances are payable in respect of all children under sixteen years of age, resident in Canada, with minor exceptions such as in the case of children of immigrants who must reside in Canada one year before an allowance is payable. The monthly allowance is $6 if the child is under 10 years and $8 in the age group 10 to 15. Children of immigrants receive family assistance at the same rate during their first year of residence in Canada from appropriations of the Department of Citizenship and Immigration if during that period they are under sixteen years of age.

Family allowance payments for 1962-63 in the amount of $532 million represented 8 per cent of total expenditures. The increase of $11 million over the previous year reflected the increase in the number of children in the eligible age groups.

Old age assistance, disabled persons allowances, blind persons allowances and unemployment assistance

Under the Old Age Assistance Act, the federal government reimburses the provinces by paying 50 per cent of the lesser of $65 monthly or the amount of assistance given by the provinces in the form of monthly pensions to eligible persons in need who are in the age group 65 to 69. (Under the Old Age Security Act, all persons 70 years and over who satisfy the residence requirements of the act may receive a pension of $65 per month from the federal government out of the old age security fund.) Similarly, the federal government reimburses the provinces under the Blind Persons Act for allowances of not more than $65 per month to blind persons in need 18 years of age or over by paying 75 per cent of the total payments, and under the Disabled Persons Act by paying 50 per cent of not more than $65 per month for allowances to disabled persons in need 18 vears of age or over. Payments in 1962-63 were $38 million for old age assistance, $20 million in respect of disabled persons allowances, $5 million for blind persons allowances and $96 million for unemployment assistance. Comparable figures in 1961-62 were, respectively, $31 million, $16 million, $4 million and $92 million.

The increases in old age assistance, disabled persons allowances and blind persons allowances were due mainly to amendments to the Old Age Assistance Act, the Blind Persons Act and the Disabled Persons Act which raised the maximum pension towards which the federal government would contribute from $55 to $65 per month effective February 1, 1962.

Under the Unemployment Assistance Act the federal government contributes up to 50 per cent of the cost of unemployment assistance paid by the provinces, subject to certain deductions as set out in the act. All provinces have signed agreements with the federal government. There was an increase of $4 million in contributions for 1962–63 over those for the previous year.

The following table presents a distribution of these payments to provinces for 1962-63:

In 1962-63 outlays for scholarships and grants in aid of research increased by $2 million. Administration and general costs also increased by $2 million and with a reduction of $2 million in expenditures for construction or acquisition of buildings, works, land and equipment, there was a net increase of $2 million over the previous year's total.

National Revenue

Expenditures of the Department of National Revenue totalled $79 million for 1962-63, $3 million more than in 1961-62, due mainly to increased costs of $2 million for district offices of the taxation division and $1 million for the customs and excise divisions.

Northern Affairs and National Resources

Expenditures of the Department of Northern Affairs and National Resources were $90 million for the fiscal year 1962–63, an increase of $8 million over the comparable total for 1961–62.

The main changes were increases of $9 million in outlays of the northern administration branch and $4 million in expenditures of the water resources branch and decreases of $2 million in expenditures of the national parks branch and $3 million in contributions to the provinces to assist in the development of roads leading to resources.

Post Office

Gross expenditures of the Post Office Department for 1962-63 totalled $219 million, an increase of $4 million over the 1961-62 outlays of $215 million.

Public Works

Expenditures of the Department of Public Works for 1962-63 amounted to $175 million, a decrease of $14 million from the 1961-62 total of $189 million.

	175.0	188.8	-13.8

Decreases in expenditures of $9 million in development engineering services, $7 million in harbours and rivers engineering services and $8 million in outlays for public buildings—construction and services, were partly offset by increases of $5 million in payments to the National Capital Commission and $4 million for housing.

The decrease of $9 million in expenditures for development engineering services was due mainly to a decrease of $5 million in contributions to the provinces under the terms of the Trans-Canada Highway Act and a reduction of $3 million in general outlays.

The decrease of $7 million in expenditures of the harbours and rivers engineering services was due mainly to a decrease of $5 million in outlays for acquisition, construction and improvements of harbours and river works and $2 million in costs of dredging.

Expenditures for public buildings—construction and services were $8 million less than the comparable figure for the previous fiscal year, due to decreases of $6 million in costs of acquisition, construction and improvements of public buildings and $2 million in costs of maintenance and operation.

Royal Canadian Mounted Police

Expenditures of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police amounted to $66 million for 1962-63, an increase of $5 million over the 1961-62 total of $61 million.

Payments as shown in the table represent gross expenditures; payments received from the provinces and municipalities for police services at $12 million were credited to revenue.

The main changes in expenditures were increases of $4 million for the land, air and training divisions and $1 million in higher outlays for headquarters administration and national police services.

Trade and Commerce

Expenditures of the Department of Trade and Commerce were $27 million for 1962-63, compared with the 1961-62 total of $40 million. The decrease of $13 million was due almost entirely to a reduction in the expenditures of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

The decrease of $13 million in expenditures of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics was due to: (1) the 1961-62 expenditures included $12 million in respect of the 1961 Decennial Census of Canada whereas the 1962-63 expenditures for this purpose were only $1 million; and (2) a decrease of $2 million in operating expenses.

Transport

Expenditures of the Department of Transport totalled $430 million for 1962-63, an increase of $20 million over the 1961-62 total.

Outlays for air services reflected a decrease of $14 million from the previous fiscal year due mainly to decreases of $7 million in expenditures by the civil aviation branch and $6 million by the telecommunications and electronics branch.

Expenditures for railway and steamship services, including charges to expenditures in respect of deficits of certain government-owned enterprises, were $89 million, a decrease of $7 million from expenditures of $96 million in the previous fiscal year.

The 1962 deficit of $49 million of the Canadian National Railways charged to budgetary expenditures was $18 million less than the comparable figure in 1961–62 and expenditures in respect of the construction of the railway to Great Slave Lake were $11 million more than in the previous year.

Expenditures of the Board of Transport Commissioners for Canada increased by $13 million, due mainly to an increase of $18 million in payments under the Freight Rates Reduction Act offset in part by a decrease of $4 million in the government's contribution to the railway grade crossing fund.

Marine services expenditures were $55 million, an increase of $6 million over the previous fiscal year. An increase of $8 million in expenditures for the Canadian marine services was partly offset by a decrease of $2 million in expenditures for the ship channel services—St. Lawrence and Saguenay rivers.

Outlays of the Canadian Maritime Commission at $31 million were $21 million more than in the previous fiscal year. The change was due mainly to increased payments of capital subsidies for construction of commercial and fishing vessels.

Deficits of government-owned enterprises charged to expenditure (other than the Canadian National Railways) were $8 million for the Newfoundland ferry and terminals, $4 million for Trans-Canada Air Lines, $3 million for the Prince Edward Island car ferry and terminals and $3 million for canals entrusted to The St. Lawrence Seaway Authority compared with $7 million, $7 million, $3 million and $3 million respectively in the previous year.

Non-active advances to the National Harbours Board totalled $5 million for 1962–63, approximately the same as in 1961–62.

Veterans Affairs

Expenditures of the Department of Veterans Affairs amounted to $336 million for 1962-63, an increase of $3 million over the 1961-62 total.

The net increase of $3 million was due mainly to an increase of $7 million for war veterans allowances, offset in part by decreases of $2 million in pensions for disability or death, $1 million in war service gratuities and re-establishment credits and $1 million in treatment and welfare services.

All Other Departments

Expenditures of the departments not dealt with individually totalled $50 million, an increase of $12 million over the total for 1961-62.

A. CHANGES IN PRINCIPAL LIABILITY CLASSIFICATIONS DURING 1962-63

The gross liabilities of the government increased by $1,904 million during the fiscal year. Increases of $1,016 million in unmatured debt, $496 million in annuity, insurance and pension accounts, $410 million in current and demand liabilities and $13 million in deferred credits were partly offset by a decrease of $44 million in deposit and trust accounts.

Current and demand liabilities

This category consists of obligations of the government payable currently or on demand.

TABLE 42 (in millions of dollars)

The net increase during the year was $410 million. The main changes were increases of $385 million in non-interest-bearing notes, $26 million in interest accrued, $7 million in outstanding post office money orders and $7 million in interest due and outstanding and a decrease of $4 million in matured debt outstanding.

The increase of $385 million in non-negotiable non-interest-bearing notes includes $380 million in respect of the international monetary fund.

Of this increase, notes in the amount of $12 million were issued due to revaluation of Canadian dollar balances in the international monetary fund and notes in the amount of $368 million were issued to replace Canadian dollars remitted to the Receiver General by the international monetary fund in accordance with the standing arrangements regarding the international monetary fund account No. 1 namely, that the holdings of the account in excess of one per cent of Canada's quota in the fund will be exchanged for non-negotiable non-interest-bearing demand notes from time to time as circumstances permit. This $368 million reflected two types of transaction (1) the Canadian borrowing from the fund (note issue of $325 million) and (2) the United Kingdom repayment of Canadian dollars to the fund (note issue of $43 million).

Deposit and trust accounts

Sundry funds deposited with, or held in trust by, the Receiver General of Canada for various purposes are recorded in these accounts.

There was a decrease during the year of $44 million due principally to the provincial tax collection agreements under which as at March 31, 1962 the federal government had collected $38 million, while at March 31, 1963 the provinces had received advance payments of $10 million in accordance with the federal-provincial tax collection agreements. This amount is recorded in the asset category "Other loans and investments". There were also decreases of $11 million in Canadian Arsenals Limited pension fund, $6 million in the United States of America deposit account and $4 million in contractors' securities. Partly offsetting these decreases were increases of $8 million in the Canadian National Railways account (representing that part of the 1962 income deficit paid from company funds and which will be repaid to the company when parliamentary authorization is received), $6 million in Crown corporations deposits and $2 million in guarantee deposits.

Provincial tax collection agreements went into effect from January 1, 1962 and further details will be found under the category "Other loans and investments".

Annuity, insurances and pension accounts

In this category are recorded the amounts to the credit of the various annuity, insurance and pension accounts.

Unemployment insurance fund

During the year receipts amounted to $348 million and included employees and employers contributions of $287 million, the government's contribution of $57 million and $4 million in interest from investments. As benefit payments amounted to $403 million there was a deficit for the year in the fund of $55 million compared with $118 million in the previous fiscal year.

The balance in the fund at March 31, 1962 of $78 million was reduced to $23 million at March 31, 1963 by the deficit in the fund for the year of $55 million.

As the commission's investment in bonds and accrued interest amounted to $12 million, the funds on deposit with the government were $12 million at March 31, 1963 compared with $15 million at March 31, 1962.

Government annuities account

The government annuities account increased by $26 million during 1962-63 representing the amount by which premium receipts of $34 million and interest of $47 million credited to the account by the government exceeded payments of $55 million to annuitants and beneficiaries.

Public service superannuation account

The increase of $137 million in the public service superannuation account was due mainly to the government's contribution of $51 million (equal to the estimated current and prior service payments of individuals in 1961–62) and interest of $66 million credited to the account. The remainder of the increase was due to the excess of employees' current and prior service contributions and miscellaneous receipts over benefit payments.

Canadian forces superannuation account

The Canadian forces superannuation account increased by $327 million during 1962-63. The increase included the government's contribution of $58 million which was made at the rate of one and two-thirds times the current and prior service contributions, payment of interest by the government of $53 million credited to the account and the amount of $17 million by which contributions by permanent services personnel for current and prior years' service exceeded benefit payments from the account. There was also a credit of $199 million to this account in 1962-63 to bring the balance in the account into line with an actuarial evaluation as at December 31, 1960 as calculated by the Department of Insurance. A contra entry was made to the asset account "Deferred charges—unamortized portion of actuarial deficiency in the Canadian forces superannuation account".

Old age security fund

Under the Old Age Security Act pensions at the rate of $65 per month are paid, without a means test, from the old age security fund to all eligible persons seventy years of age or over. Receipts of $691 million, consisting of $302 million from the 3 per cent sales tax, $274 million from the 3 per cent tax on personal incomes (maximum tax $90) and $115 million from the 3 per cent tax on corporation profits, were $43 million less than payments of $734 million from the fund. As the balance in the fund at the end of the fiscal year 1961–62 was $2 million, temporary loans of $41 million were made by the Minister of Finance to cover the deficit in the fund.

Undisbursed balances of appropriations to special accounts

This category records the undisbursed balances of appropriations to special accounts for which moneys have been appropriated by Parliament and from which disbursements may be made for authorized purposes in periods subsequent to that in which the appropriation was made. There was a net increase of $11 million during the current fiscal year bringing the balance as at March 31, 1963 to $126 million.

The increase of $14 million in the Colombo plan fund represented the amount by which the $42 million credited to the fund for assistance to countries in south and south-east Asia (and charged to budgetary expenditures) exceeded disbursements from the fund of $28 million.

The railway grade crossing fund decreased by $7 million during the year, representing disbursements of $13 million from the fund less an amount of $6 million voted by Parliament for this purpose which was credited to the fund and charged to budgetary expenditures.

The increase of $4 million in the national capital fund represented the amount by which the $9 million credited to the fund and charged to budgetary expenditures exceeded disbursements of $5 million.

Deferred credits

This category records amounts due the government in respect of which payment has been deferred. These are contra accounts to corresponding items under the following asset categories: "Loans to, and investments in, Crown corporations", "Loans to national governments" and "Other loans and investments". The balance at March 31, 1963 was $108 million, an increase of $13 million during the year.

There was no change during the year in deferred interest of $44 million on loans made under the United Kingdom Financial Agreement Act, 1946. This is a contra account to a corresponding item under "Loans to national governments".

Deferred interest in respect of The St. Lawrence Seaway Authority, which is a contra account to a corresponding item in "Loans to, and investments in, Crown corporations", increased by $16 million during the year to $49 million at March 31, 1963 and included $19 million capitalized at March 31, 1959. In accordance with Order in Council P.C. 1961–1863 dated December 29, 1961, interest payable on December 31, 1961 by The St. Lawrence Seaway Authority, as well as interest payable on December 31, 1962, has been deferred until December 31, 1963. On December 31, 1963 the total amount of interest so deferred, together with interest due on that date, will be computed as a single sum and is to be repaid in equal annual instalments calculated by amortizing the said sum, including interest at rates determined by the Minister of Finance, over a period of forty-six years.

There was a small increase in the capitalized interest on loans made to Northern Canada Power Commission. Advances are made to the Commission for various projects in the Yukon Territory and Northwest Territories and advances are also made pursuant to the Atlantic Provinces Power Development Act to the Provinces of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. Upon completion of a project accrued interest due is computed from, but not including, the date of each advance to the date of completion of the project and is set up as capitalized interest and added to the original amount of the advance to be repayable in thirty or forty (as the case may be) equal annual instalments.

Balances receivable under agreements of sale of Crown assets are set up as contra accounts to corresponding items under "Other loans and investments". Receipts of $2 million were in respect of outstanding agreements.

The government's equity in the agency account of Crown Assets Disposal Corporation is a contra account to a corresponding item under "Other loans and investments". This equity decreased by $1 million during the year.

The replacement of materiel account, established by section 11 of the National Defence Act, is credited with amounts realized from the sale of materiel that has not been declared surplus to requirements but has been authorized by the Governor in Council to be sold to other countries. The account is debited with disbursements representing amounts paid for the procurement of replacement material. The balance in the account at March 31, 1963 was $1 million, approximately the same as at the previous fiscal year-end.

The unclaimed cheques account is credited with the amount of treasury cheques (except those drawn on asset and liability accounts) which remain undelivered for certain specified periods subsequent to date of issue, pending claims therefor.

Unmatured debt

The unmatured debt of Canada at the close of the 1962-63 fiscal year amounted to $17,962 million, an increase of $1,016 million over the previous fiscal year-end total of $16,946 million.

B. Changes in Principal Asset Classifications during 1962-63

Total assets amounted to $11,421 million at March 31, 1963, an increase of $1,195 million during the fiscal year. As there was no change in the reserve of $546 million for losses on realization of assets, net assets were $10,875 million at the close of the fiscal year.

The principal changes were increases of $943 million in advances to the exchange fund account, $480 million in loans to, and investments in, Crown corporations, $209 million in deferred charges and $112 million in other loans and investments, and decreases of $421 million in current assets and $129 million in loans to national governments.

Current assets

Total current assets amounted to $825 million at the end of the fiscal year 1962-63, a decrease of $421 million from the 1961-62 total of $1,246 million.

Sinking fund and other investments held for retirement of unmatured debt

The balance of $22 million in this category at March 31, 1963 was approximately $3 million more than at the end of the previous fiscal year.

It should be noted that the purchase fund account which was established to assist in the orderly retirement of the public debt showed a nil balance at March 31, 1963. During the year government securities totalling $113 million were purchased and subsequently cancelled before the fiscal year-end. Full particulars of the securities purchased and cancelled may be found in section 6 "The Public Debt" further on in this report.

In 1962-63 the government advanced to the company $250 million for the retirement of debt in the hands of the public and $6 million for capital purposes.

In addition, to assist the Canadian National Railways to finance further capital expenditure during the year, the government purchased $19 million of 4 per cent preferred stock of the company. This stock is issued under the authority of the Canadian National Railways Capital Revision Act, 1952, in an amount equal to 3 per cent of the gross revenue of the company.

The government also provided the company with temporary loans of $41 million in respect of its 1962 income deficit. It should be noted that the 1962 income deficit of the Canadian National Railways was $49 million (of which $41 million was covered by temporary loans and $8 million paid from company funds) and on parliamentary authority will be charged to 1962–63 budgetary expenditures.

At March 31, 1962 temporary loans of $5 million were outstanding to the Trans-Canada Air Lines in respect of its 1962 income deficit. During 1962–63 further advances of $1 million were made bringing the total advances for this purpose to $6 million. Of these advances $3 million was repaid by the Air Lines and the balance of $3 million representing the 1962 income deficit will be charged to 1962–63 budgetary expenditures upon parliamentary approval. The government also advanced $5 million on account of the Air Lines 1963 income deficit which was outstanding at March 31, 1963.

Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation

Loans during the fiscal year were $249 million of which $198 million was for direct lending and limited dividend housing and $51 million for federal-provincial projects. Repayments were $153 million, of which $141 million was in respect of direct lending, $8 million in respect of federal-provincial projects and $4 million in respect of housing. The balance at March 31, 1963 was $1,798 million compared with $1,701 million at March 31, 1962.

Farm Credit Corporation

Loans to the Farm Credit Corporation amounted to $60 million and investments in the capital of the corporation to $2 million during the year. Repayments of $3 million brought the balance at March 31, 1963 to $269 million, $59 million more than at the previous fiscal year-end.

The St. Lawrence Seaway Authority

Advances to The St. Lawrence Seaway Authority were $7 million during the year resulting in a balance of $342 million at March 31, 1963. Deferred interest on these loans increased by $16 million during the year to $49 million and included $19 million capitalized as at March 31, 1959.

In accordance with Order in Council P.C. 1961-1863 dated December 29, 1961, interest of $14 million payable on December 31, 1961 by The St. Lawrence Seaway Authority, as well as interest payable on December 31, 1962, has been deferred until December 31, 1963. On December 31, 1963 the total amount so deferred, together with the interest due on that date, will be computed as a single sum and is to be repaid in equal annual instalments calculated by amortizing the said sum, including interest at rates determined by the Minister of Finance, over a period of forty-six years. This single sum and the principal sum of the loans made to the Authority now outstanding, together with the deferred interest capitalized as at December 31, 1959, shall be repaid in equal annual instalments commencing December 31, 1964 over a period of forty-six years except that on December 31, 1984 the balance of the said single sum and interest thereon then owing and the principal sum, together with deferred interest and any unpaid interest thereon, shall be paid in cash or by the delivery of an obligation or obligations of the Authority bearing such rate of interest and subject to such other terms and conditions as the Governor in Council may approve.

Other Crown Corporations

Loans to the Export Credits Insurance Corporation increased by $20 million during the fiscal year, loans to the National Harbours Board by $14 million, loans to the Canadian Overseas Telecommunication Corporation by $12 million and loans to the National Capital Commission by $9 million. Loans to the Northern Ontario Pipe Line Crown Corporation decreased by $8 million, advances to Northern Canada Power Commission decreased by $7 million and advances to Atomic Energy of Canada Limited decreased by $13 million.

Loans to national governments

These loans totalled $1,211 million at March 31, 1963, a decrease of $129 million from the previous fiscal year-end balance.

The United Kingdom repaid $17 million of the $1,185 million loan made under the $1,250 million credit authorized by the United Kingdom Financial Agreement Act, 1946, reducing the principal to $1,013 million at March 31, 1963.

In 1957, the Government of the United Kingdom deferred the payment due December 31, 1957 of principal and interest on the above loan. The deferment was by an agreement between the Governments of Canada and the United Kingdom that was approved by a 1957 Act to amend the United Kingdom Financial Agreement Act, 1946. The agreement, which became effective April 29, 1957, permits the United Kingdom in lieu of any right of waiver hitherto existing to defer after December 31, 1956 seven instalments of principal and interest under certain conditions. Principal and interest due December 31, 1957 was so deferred. The first of any such deferred instalments is payable on December 31, 2001, and the others annually thereafter, in order. In addition, it permitted the instalment of interest in respect of the year 1956 to be deferred and provided that this instalment of interest so deferred shall be paid on December 31 of the year immediately following the year in which the last of all other instalments, including those deferred, is due. Interest at 2 per cent is payable on deferred instalments of both principal and interest.

Advances under Part II of the Export Credits Insurance Act to Belgium, France and The Netherlands to assist them in the purchasing of goods in Canada were reduced by repayments of $106 million during the fiscal year. The balance at March 31, 1963 was $131 million. In June 1962, France made an advance payment of $67 million covering eight annual instalments payable December 31, 1962 to December 31, 1969 inclusive and The Netherlands made a payment of $37 million in July 1962 covering eight instalments payable April 30, 1963 to April 30, 1970 inclusive.

Special loans to Colombo plan countries to finance the purchase of wheat and flour by them from Canada amounted to $21 million at March 31, 1963, $5 million less than at March 31, 1962.

Other loans and investments

The balance in this category was $1,105 million at March 31, 1963, an increase of $111 million during the fiscal year 1962-63.

Canada's subscriptions to the capital of international organizations increased by $34 million during the fiscal year due to further subscriptions of $8 million to the international development association, $7 million to the international bank for reconstruction and development and $6 million in working capital advances and loans to international organizations. The revaluation adjustments in the Canadian dollar balance in the international monetary fund accounted for an increase of $13 million.

Loans to provincial governments increased by $2 million during the fiscal year. This was caused by an overpayment of $5 million to the Province of British Columbia under the 1957 tax-sharing agreements due to the revisions of population figures as a result of the 1961 census. Repayment will be made by the Province of British Columbia at the rate of $175,000 per month.

As at March 31, 1963, under the federal-provincial tax collection agreements, payments in advance to the provinces exceeded the amount estimated as having been collected on behalf of the provinces by $10 million. As at March 31, 1962 the federal government had collected on behalf of the provinces $38 million which was recorded in that fiscal year as a liability in the deposit and trust category.

Under the 1957 tax-sharing agreements, the obligation on the renting provinces to abstain from the imposition of personal and corporation income taxes was to lapse on December 31, 1961. As the Government of Canada did not offer to renew tax rental agreements, the former renting provinces have all imposed personal and corporation income taxes effective January 1, 1962. The Government of Canada, in place of the tax rental agreements, offered to enter into tax collection agreements with the provinces whereby Canada would undertake to collect without charge the provincial personal and corporation income taxes at rates determined by the provinces provided that the provincial personal income tax was expressed as a percentage of the federal personal income tax payable and the provincial corporation income tax employed a definition of corporate taxable income identical with the federal definition. To make room for the imposition of provincial income taxes, the Income Tax Act was amended in the 1961 session of Parliament (1) to reduce the federal income tax payable by individuals resident in the provinces by 16 per cent in 1962 and by a further one per cent in each subsequent year until the deduction amounts to 20 percent in 1966, and (2) to reduce the federal tax rate on the taxable income of corporations earned in the provinces by 9 percentage points. Canada collects the personal income tax for nine provinces (Quebec excepted) and the corporation income tax for eight provinces (Quebec and Ontario excepted). With the exception of Saskatchewan and Manitoba, the provinces which have entered into tax collection agreements have imposed personal and corporation income taxes equivalent to the federal withdrawal. These two provinces have imposed personal income taxes at 22 per cent rather than 16 per cent of the federal tax payable and 10 per cent rather than 9 per cent of the taxable income of corporations.

In accordance with the provisions of the Federal-Provincial Fiscal Arrangements Act an agreement has been entered into with each of the provinces (Quebec excepted) pursuant to which Canada will collect provincial income taxes on behalf of the province and will make payments to the province in respect of the taxes so collected in accordance with terms and conditions as the agreement prescribes.

At the beginning of each fiscal year the Minister of Finance will estimate (subject to revision at any time) the amount of the payment that in his opinion is due to the province in respect of the year ending in that fiscal year and will make payments to the province, on the basis of this estimate, in equal monthly instalments. Any adjustment will be made not later than December 31 following the end of that year.

The agreements became effective on January 1, 1962 and the first monthly payment was made in April 1962.

Under the Veterans Land Act advances are made by the government for the acquisition of properties, buildings, materials, livestock, farm equipment and commercial fishing equipment for sale to qualified veterans of world war 2 and Korea under sale agreements which carry specified conditional benefits if the terms of such agreements are adhered to by the veteran. Advances during the year less the reserve for conditional benefits increased by $18 million.

Miscellaneous loans and investments were $47 million higher at March 31, 1963, mainly on account of temporary loans of $41 million to the old age security fund by the Minister of Finance.

Securities held in trust

This category records the security holdings of various deposit and trust, and annuity, insurance and pension accounts. Bonds and certified cheques held in connection with contractors' securities, included in the deposit and trust category, are also recorded under this heading. The balance at March 31, 1963 was $26 million, approximately the same as for the previous fiscal year.

Deferred charges

This category consists of the unamortized portions of actuarial deficiencies in the Canadian forces superannuation account, the public service superannuation account, the Royal Canadian Mounted Police superannuation account, and the outstanding balance of unamortized loan flotation costs. There was an increase of $209 million in this category during the year, bringing the balance at March 31, 1963 to $937 million.

Unamortized portions of actuarial deficiencies

These accounts record the unamortized portions of the actuarial deficiencies in the public service, the Canadian forces, and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police superannuation accounts which have been set up as deferred charges to be written off to budgetary expenditure upon parliamentary approval. These deficiencies are based on actuarial valuations made as at December 31, 1957, December 31, 1960 and December 31, 1961, respectively.

The increase of $199 million in the unamortized portion of the actuarial deficiency in the Canadian forces superannuation account is a contra item to a similar amount credited to the Canadian forces superannuation account. This was due to an actuarial revaluation of the account as at December 31, 1960 and brought the balance of the contra account to $525 million.

Unamortized loan flotation costs

This account records the residual balances of discounts, commissions, redemption bonuses and conversion premiums on loan flotations that have not been charged to budgetary expenditure. The balance as at March 31, 1963 was $131 million, an increase of $10 million over the previous fiscal year.

Cost of new loans issued during 1962–63 and charged to the account was $54 million, of which $15 million was in respect of treasury bill discounts to be charged to interest on public debt in 1963–64. Credits to the account were $44 million, of which $33 million was a charge to the budgetary expenditure item "Annual amortization costs", and $10 million, representing discount on treasury bills sold in 1961–62, was a charge to the budgetary item "Interest on public debt", and $1 million was an adjustment due to cancellations, exchanges, conversions and additional issues of existing loans.

Suspense accounts

The only item in this category is the cheque adjustment suspense account which reflects unadjusted balances in prior years resulting from the reconciliation of payments for redemption of paid cheques with the amount of those cheques as subsequently determined in adjustment of the outstanding cheque account.

Capital assets

Assets of the government such as land, buildings, works and equipment, etc., that are charged to budgetary expenditure at the time of acquisition or construction, are included in this category and are shown on the statement of assets and liabilities at a nominal value of $1.

Inactive loans and investments

Loans and investments which are not currently revenue-producing or realizable are recorded in this category. Included are the loans of $49 million to China under the Export Credits Insurance Act, $24 million and $7 million made to Roumania and Greece in 1919–20 and 1920–21 and advances of $15 million in respect of the implementation of guarantees (Ming Sung Industrial Company Limited).

Reserve for losses on realization of assets

There was no change in this reserve during the year, the balance of $546 million as at March 31, 1963 being the same as at the previous fiscal year-end.

C. INCREASE IN NET DEBT

The deficit of $709 million for the current fiscal year resulted in a corresponding increase in the net debt of Canada which amounted to $13,937 million at March 31, 1963.

5. THE CASH POSITION

The government's cash position is affected not only by the budgetary transactions but also by changes in the government's outstanding unmatured debt and other non-budgetary transactions. In 1962-63 there was a decrease of $403 million in the government's bank balances. This decrease was the result of the budgetary deficit of $709 million and net disbursements of $758 million for non-budgetary transactions offset in part by an increase of $1,064 million in unmatured debt outstanding in the hands of the public (after taking into account transactions in the securities investment account and the sinking fund and other investments account).

Non-budgetary receipts and disbursements relate to transactions which result in increases or decreases in the government's assets and liabilities and do not appear in what might be called the government's income account for the fiscal year nor do they enter into the calculation of the annual budgetary surplus or deficit. However, in considering the full scope of the government's financial operations and in measuring their effect on the government's cash position and their impact on the economy, non-budgetary as well as budgetary transactions must be taken into account.

The increases or decreases in the government's assets and liabilities have been described in detail in the section entitled "Summary of Assets and Liabilities of Canada". On the assets side the non-budgetary transactions consist, for the most part, of loans and advances to, and repayments by, Crown corporations and other government agencies and funds (including the old age security fund), national, provincial and municipal governments, international organizations, veterans and other borrowers. On the liabilities side they relate mainly to receipts and payments in connection with the many deposit and trust accounts, and annuity, insurance and pension funds held or administered by the government.

The preceding table summarizes both the budgetary and non-budgetary transactions for 1962–63 and indicates how they affected the government's cash position. For purposes of comparison the corresponding figures for 1961–62 are also shown.

As the table shows, non-budgetary receipts and credits for 1962-63 (excluding unmatured debt transactions) totalled $1,140 million while non-budgetary disbursements and charges (also excluding unmatured debt transactions) were $1,898 million, resulting in a net disbursement of $758 million. As the budgetary deficit was $709 million, $1,467 million required financing by an increase in unmatured debt or a decrease in cash balances. In 1961-62 there was a net receipt of $313 million from non-budgetary transactions and a budgetary deficit of $791 million resulting in $478 million having to be financed by an increase in unmatured debt or a decrease in cash balances.

Non-budgetary receipts and credits

Non-budgetary receipts and credits, as already indicated, amounted to $1,140 million in 1962-63 as shown in the following table:

Summary

In summary, as budgetary and non-budgetary transactions required financing in the amount of $1,467 million, and unmatured debt outstanding in the hands of the public (after taking into account transactions in the securities investment account and sinking fund and other investments account) increased by $1,064 million, cash balances on deposit with the banks decreased by $403 million.

6. THE PUBLIC DEBT

Gross and net debt

The gross debt of Canada was $24,812 million as at March 31, 1963. Unmatured debt (including treasury bills) in the amount of $17,962 million accounted for approximately 72 per cent of the total. The remaining liabilities, consisting of current and demand liabilities, deposit and trust accounts, annuity, insurance and pension accounts, undisbursed balances of appropriations to special accounts, deferred credits and sundry suspense accounts, aggregated $6,850 million or approximately 28 per cent of the total debt.

The net debt of Canada was $13,937 million as at March 31, 1963, an increase of $709 million over the net debt at March 31, 1962. Total liabilities increased by $1,904 million to $24,812 million and net assets by $1,195 million to $10,875 million at March 31, 1963.

Unmatured debt

The total unmatured debt of Canada at March 31, 1963 was $17,962 million, $1,016 million more than at the end of the previous fiscal year. The government's holdings of its own securities were $54 million, comprised of $32 million in the securities investment account and $22 million in the sinking fund and other investments account. This was a decrease of $47 million from the comparable figure at March 31, 1962 when holdings were $82 million in the securities investment account and $19 million in the sinking fund and other investments account.

The decrease in the securities investment account was due mainly to the maturing of treasury bills held in the account.

Securities in the amount of $113 million were acquired for the purchase fund, which was established in 1961 to assist in the management of the public debt. Purchases during the year were as follows:

\$20 million $4\frac{1}{4}\%$ bonds due September 1, 1972

\$37 million $5\frac{1}{2}\%$ bonds due October 1, 1975

\$ 4 million $3\frac{1}{4}\%$ bonds due June 1, 1976

\$ 8 million $3\frac{3}{4}\%$ bonds due January 15, 1978

$ 8 million 34% bonds due October 1, 1979

\$35 million $4\frac{1}{2}\%$ bonds due September 1, 1983

\$ 1 million $3\frac{3}{4}\%$ bonds due March 15, 1998

These securities were cancelled prior to the year-end and unmatured debt was reduced by a similar amount.

Of the total unmatured debt, $17,551 million or approximately 98 per cent is payable in Canada, $376 million in New York and $35 million in London. Securities payable in New York and London have been valued at the official parity rates of $1 U.S. = $1.08108 Can. and £1 = $3.027 Can., respectively.

Summary of security issues and maturities, redemptions, conversions or cancellations

During the year ended March 31, 1963, the government issued securities in the principal amount of $4,385 million of which $4,115 million was payable in Canada (excluding the refunding of treasury bills which mature weekly) and $270 million was payable in New York. Securities issued in prior years payable in London and New York were valued at the official parity rates which resulted in an increase of $10 million when stated in Canadian dollars.

Securities payable in Canada amounting to $3,379 million were redeemed, converted or cancelled during the year.

VOTES AND PROCEEDINGS

OF THE

HOUSE OF COMMONS OF CANADA

OTTAWA, THURSDAY, 13th JUNE, 1963.

2.30 o'clock p.m.

PRAYERS.

The House resumed consideration in Committee of the Whole of a certain proposed resolution concerning the establishment of a Department of Industry and of an Area Development Agency, and further progress having been made and reported, the Committee obtained leave to consider it again at the next sitting of the House.

[At 5.00 o'clock p.m., Private Members' Business was called pursuant to Standing Order 15(3)]

(Public Bills)

The Order being read for the second reading of Bill C-8, An Act to amend the National Harbours Board Act (Tisdale Grain Terminal);

STATEMENT BY MR. SPEAKER

Mr. Speaker: Before putting the motion for second reading of this bill, I desire to recall the statement I made at the beginning of the session when I issued a caveat respecting Public Bills introduced by Private Members. I said at that time that it was difficult if not impossible for the Chair to review the provisions of these bills to ensure that they conform to the practices and usages of this House and that the bills would be introduced with the understanding that each would be scrutinized before the time appointed for second readings and that any defects therein would be brought to the attention of the House.

The present measure, as stated in the explanatory notes, proposes that a public grain elevator be constructed at Tisdale, Saskatchewan, as a grain terminus for the national port facilities at Churchill, Manitoba.

According to subsection (2) of section 3 of the National Harbours Board Act, the board is "for all purposes of this Act, the agent of Her Majesty in right of Canada."

And further, according to subsection (2) of section 10 of the same Act, "all property acquired or held by the board is vested in Her Majesty in right of Canada."

The purpose of the bill is either to enlarge the powers of the board or to leave them as they are. In both cases, it is out of order.

I will deal first with the second alternative for, if the bill is useless, as I believe it to be, it should not be proceeded with.

The definition of a bill given at page 297 of May's sixteenth edition is as follows: "A bill is a draft of a legislative proposal."

In my view, according to our practice, a bill, to be acknowledged as such, or, rather, as a draft of a legislative proposal, must or may do one or more of four things, namely:

- (1) Alter or amend an existing law or laws;
- (2) Repeal, in whole or in part, an existing law or laws;
- (3) Enact a new provision or provisions of law;
- (4) Consolidate, in whole or in part, an existing law or laws.

Bill C-8 is intituled: "An Act to amend the National Harbours Board Act (Tisdale Grain Terminal)", and if it is to be considered as a legislative proposal it should alter the law which it purports to amend.

Does it do so?

In my opinion, it does not. This bill appears to be merely a statement that the National Harbours Board may deem necessary the construction, etc., of a public terminal elevator, and it accomplishes nothing whatsoever in a legislative way. It seems to me there is little doubt that this matter should be the subject of a notice of motion and not of a bill.

In the explanatory notes accompanying the bill, it is said that "this bill proposes that a public grain elevator be constructed at Tisdale, Saskatchewan,", etc. In my view, this bill does not propose that a public grain elevator be constructed at Tisdale but it states that the board may deem it necessary to construct such a grain elevator, and the word "proposes" in the explanatory notes cannot, in my opinion, be considered as a legislative proposal.

Now for the second point. If this bill really proposes to instruct the board to construct a grain elevator at Tisdale—which I do not believe it does—it is also clearly out of order, as would be a bill ordering the construction of branch lines by the Canadian National Railways, a bill instructing the Federal District Commission to acquire real estate, or a bill directing expenditures by the National Centennial Administration or the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, to refer but to a few of agency or Crown corporations.

In a decision rendered by Mr. Speaker Edgar on March 10 and 11, 1898, he stated inter alia: "While it is competent for a private individual, without the recommendation of the Crown, to propose an abstract resolution with reference to grants of money, I think this is not an abstract but a very concrete resolution providing and authorising the government to incur a specific expenditure."

If this were an authorization to an agent of Her Majesty to construct a certain public grain elevator, which, however, as I have stated, I do not believe it is, such an expenditure of money would have to be initiated by the government under the constitutional checks required by section 54 of the B.N.A. Act and the rules of the House.

On May 9, 1933, Mr. Speaker Black ruled that an amendment involving an expenditure which would be incurred by the Canadian National Railway, was out of order because the railway is owned by the government.

On March 9 and 13, 1871, Mr. Speaker Cockburn ruled a subamendment out of order when it asked the House to commit itself in advance to an expenditure of money as such a proposition should have originated in committee of the House and should have been preceded by a message.

To summarize, I believe this bill simply refers to powers that the board already possesses and to my mind the matter under consideration would be more properly the subject of a notice of motion rather than that of a bill. This measure enacts a pious wish and it is useless to instruct the board to build an elevator as the board already has the right to either build or not to built it.

I regret that in the circumstances I am of the opinion that there is probably justification for ruling this bill out of order.

And the House having given unanimous consent to proceed with a debate on the motion for second reading of the said bill, subject to the bill being withdrawn at six o'clock;

Mr. Rapp, seconded by Mr. Baldwin moved,—That Bill C-8, An Act to amend the National Harbours Board Act (Tisdale Grain Terminal), be now read a second time.

After debate thereon, Mr. Rapp, by leave of the House, withdrew the said bill pursuant to the agreement entered into.

The hour for Private Members' Business expired.

The Order being read for the House to resolve itself into Committee of Ways and Means (Budget);

Mr. Gordon, seconded by Mr. Pickersgill, moved,—That Mr. Speaker do now leave the Chair.

And debate arising thereon, the said debate was, on motion of Mr. Nowlan, seconded by Mr. Diefenbaker, adjourned.

VOTES AND PROCEEDINGS

OF THE

HOUSE OF COMMONS

OF CANADA

OTTAWA, TUESDAY, 18th JUNE, 1963.

2.30 o'clock p.m.

PRAYERS.

Mr. Sauvé, from the Special Committee on Defence, presented the First Report of the said Committee, which was read as follows:

Your Committee recommends that it be empowered to print from day to day such papers and evidence as may be ordered by the Committee, and that Standing Order 66 be suspended in relation thereto.

By unanimous consent, on motion of Mr. Sauvé, seconded by Mr. Temple, the said Report was concurred in.

The honourable Member for Winnipeg South Centre (Mr. Churchill) having raised a point of order to the effect that a certain entry in Votes and Proceedings of Monday, June 17, 1963, was in conflict with the Hansard report and did not indicate the subject-matter of the question on which a recorded division had been taken;

STATEMENT BY MR. SPEAKER

Mr. Speaker: In reply to the honourable Member for Winnipeg South Centre (Mr. Churchill), may I say at the outset, especially with regard to his final point, that the Journals reflect what took place in the House yesterday. However, I realize the general interest in this matter and I should like to make a short statement which, I hope, will be of interest and of use to the House.

It has come to my attention, especially through the honourable Member who has just spoken, that some doubt has arisen with respect to the terms of the question upon which the House divided yesterday. Obviously, we cannot turn back and alter any proceedings that took place yesterday, nor should any discussion in relation thereto be permitted at this time. As mentioned in paragraph 4, citation 70 of Beauchesne's Fourth Edition: "A point of order against procedure must be raised before the question has passed to a stage at which the objection would be out of place."

And, further on, Standing Order 35 states: "No Member may reflect upon any vote of the House, except for the purpose of moving that such vote be rescinded."

However, by consent of the House, I could say a few words in an effort to dissolve any confusion with regard to yesterday's proceedings which may now exist in the minds of some honourable Members, that is, if the House so desires.

Yesterday, as honourable Members will recall, the Right Honourable the Leader of the Opposition (Mr. Diefenbaker), asked leave to move the adjournment of the House under Standing Order 26 and stated the matter which he proposed for discussion.

A discussion then arose with regard to the urgency of the matter to be discussed. After contributions from several honourable Members, the Chair decided, in effect, that, as the matter could be discussed and voted upon in the course of the Budget Debate which would begin on Wednesday next, the proposal was not a matter of urgency of debate under the terms of Standing Order 26 as understood and accepted by the practice of this House.

At this point in the proceedings, the following is recorded at page 1240 of yesterday's Hansard:

"Mr. Douglas: I must regretfully appeal from your ruling.

"Mr. Speaker: Before the ruling is appealed, may I make one further short comment? My predecessors have many times in the past expressed the view that there is no appeal of a decision taken by the Speaker under Standing Order 26.

"In this regard, I refer honourable Members to a ruling made by my immediate predecessor on January 31, 1963, which appears at page 3297 of Hansard. Therefore, I am making a similar ruling."

It is at this stage in the proceedings that the difficulty arises.

It was my opinion that I had given a second ruling, namely, that there was no appeal of a decision taken by the Speaker under Standing Order 26. The honourable Member for Winnipeg North Centre (Mr. Knowles), as recorded at page 1240 of Hansard, then used the following words: "That ruling to which you have just referred, Mr. Speaker, was reversed by a vote of the House, and I submit that a decision of the House stands over the decision which was made by Mr. Speaker Lambert."

Since it is a well established rule that no debate is permitted on any ruling, the Chair interpreted the interposition of the honourable Member for Winnipeg North Centre as an appeal to the House from the second ruling.

It would appear to me that, in effect, the House yesterday was confirming a ruling that there could be no appeal of a decision taken by Mr. Speaker under Standing Order 26 and that such a decision of the House would be valid for the duration of the current session.

However, in putting the question to the House, the Chair stated that the appeal was from the honourable Member for Burnaby-Coquitlam (Mr. Douglas)—and thereby hangs our difficulty.

Some honourable Members may feel that they might have voted otherwise had the question been stated in other terms and, in reviewing the records, there may be justification for the taking of that position.

Notwithstanding the fact that it is not open to the Chair or or any other Member to review, alter, or even to interpret any prior proceedings, I would like however to proffer a suggestion for the consideration of the House at this time. Since the question, as put from the Chair may have been interpreted differently, it is my suggestion that yesterday's vote be considered as not being binding should a similar situation arise later in this session.

The House resumed consideration in Committee of the Whole of a certain proposed resolution to amend the Atlantic Development Board Act.

And the House continuing in Committee;

At 5.00 o'clock p.m., Mr. Speaker took the Chair.

[Private Members' Business was called pursuant to Standing Order 15(3)]

(Private Bills)

The Order being read for the second reading of Bill S-13, An Act to Incorporate Standard Trust Company;

Mr. Wahn, seconded by Mr. McWilliam, moved,—That the said bill be now read a second time.

And debate arising thereon;

The hour for Private Members' Business expired.

The House resumed consideration in Committee of the Whole of a certain proposed resolution to amend the Atlantic Development Board Act, and further progress having been made and reported, the Committee obtained leave to consider it again at the next sitting of the House.

2. In what ways does the federal Department of Labour try to ensure that the prevailing labour rates, hours of work, and other conditions of labour that are in effect for the type of work specified in the locality concerned, are actually up-to-date?

3. Has the federal Department of Labour received complaints from either contractors or trade unions or any other organizations in the past eighteen months about this particular problem, outlined in question 2, and, if so, what are the organizations, and on what date did they make their representations?

By Mr. Robichaud,—A Member of the Queen's Privy Council,—Order in Council P.C. 1963-390, dated March 9, 1963, authorizing the Manner in which Fishing Bounty may be distributed for the year ended March 31, 1963, together with a Statement of such payments for the said year, pursuant to section 4 of the Deep Sea Fisheries Act, chapter 61, R.S.C., 1952.

VOTES AND PROCEEDINGS

OF THE

HOUSE OF COMMONS

OF CANADA

OTTAWA, THURSDAY, 20th JUNE, 1963.

2.30 o'clock p.m.

PRAYERS.

Mr. Gordon, seconded by Mr. Pickersgill, moved,—That the House do go into Committee of the Whole at its next sitting to consider the following proposed resolution which has been recommended to the House by His Excellency:—

That it is expedient to introduce a measure to further Canadian participation in the development of industries and undertakings in Canada, to increase Canadian participation in the ownership of undertakings in Canada, and generally to further the development of the resources and industries of Canada; and for such purposes to establish an investment company, to be called the Canada Development Corporation, with a share capital structure whereby the largest possible numbers of Canadians may directly and indirectly invest capital in and profit from the ownership of Canadian industries and undertakings and the development of Canada; to authorize the guarantee by Canada of certain obligations of the Corporation; to provide for the approval by the Minister of Finance of issues of guaranteed obligations of the Corporation; to provide that the total liabilities of the Corporation outstanding at any time shall not exceed one thousand million dollars; and to provide further for other related and incidental matters.

Resolved,—That the House do go into Committee of the Whole at its next sitting to consider the said proposed resolution.

The House resumed debate on the proposed motion of Mr. Gordon, seconded by Mr. Pickersgill,—That Mr. Speaker do now leave the Chair for the House to resolve itself into Committee of Ways and Means (Budget).

And on the proposed motion of Mr. Nowlan, seconded by Mr. Diefenbaker, in amendment thereto,—That all the words after the word "That" be deleted and the following substituted therefor:

"this House regrets that the Minister of Finance by failing to maintain the constitutional practice of the essential secrecy of the Budget has seriously weakened public confidence;

"That in general his proposals will endanger and curtail the expansion of the economy;

"That the imposition of a sales tax on certain building materials and machinery and apparatus to be used in manufacture or production is to be condemned as a retrograde and inexcusable action; and

"That the proposals purporting to bring about desirable control by Canadians over the Canadian economy will fail by their very nature to achieve that objective and will result in deterioration of Canada's international relations."

V 28-11

A point of order having been raised by the Right Honourable the Leader of the Opposition (Mr. Diefenbaker), prior to the announcement by the Clerk of the House of the result of the foregoing division, to the effect that "if a Member of the Commons who has heard the question put does not vote, and the attention of the Speaker is directed to the fact, the latter will call upon him to declare on which side he votes; and his name will be recorded accordingly".

RULING BY MR. SPEAKER

Mr. Speaker: I might say immediately that when the Right Honourable Leader of the Opposition (Mr. Diefenbaker) raises these interesting matters I am always impressed at first with the experience of the Right Honourable gentleman and his knowledge. However, he referred to Bourinot and the citation to which he referred involved an incident many years ago. Sir Erskine May's Parliamentary Practice, 16 th edition, page 434, refers to the British House of Commons and says: "Practice in the House of Commons.—A similar rule formerly obtained in the House of Commons, but in session 1906, in connection with the changes made in taking divisions which have been already mentioned, the House agreed to a new Standing Order—now S.O. No. 33—which provided that a Member might vote in a division although he had not heard the question put, and that a Member was not obliged to vote although he was in the House when the question was put."

Then dealing with a very similar situation, Mr. Glen, as reported in the Debates of the House of Commons for September 28, 1945, page 542, said: "Mr. Speaker, this question has always been somewhat confused in this House of Commons. The honourable Member for Cariboo (Mr. Irvine) spoke of an incident which occurred at a time when he was a Member of the House. He has pointed out that on that occasion the matter was brought to the attention of the House and that the honourable Member in question was requested to record his vote." This is the important part: "A year ago when we were dealing with a revision of the rules this matter was considered carefully by honourable Members of the committee. At that time they did not think they should make a recommendation to the House in this connection. The position I always took when I occupied the Speaker's Chair was that an honourable Member who was in the House should record his vote; but if he did not do so the Chair had no power to compel him to do so." So, in accordance with previous precedents, I must regretfully reject the suggestion.

Returns and Reports Deposited with the Clerk of the House

The following papers having been deposited with the Clerk of the House were laid upon the Table pursuant to Standing Order 40, namely:

- 3. What were the amounts spent in each province through the Farm Stabilization Board for these years?

Mr. Beer, Parliamentary Secretary to the Minister of Agriculture, presented, —Return to the foregoing Order.

Mr. Balcer, from his place in the House, asked leave under Standing Order 26 to move the adjournment of the House for the purpose of discussing a definite matter of urgent public importance, and stated the matter to be:

"the statement made yesterday in the Quebec Legislature by the Premier of the Province of Quebec, the Honourable Jean Lesage, in which he vehemently denounced as a very serious infringement upon provincial autonomy the proposed federal assistance to municipalities, and various other bills or resolutions submitted to the House by the government."

RULING BY MR. SPEAKER

The matter I have to decide is a motion for the adjournment of the House made for the purpose of discussing a definite matter of urgent public importance under Standing Order 26.

"'Urgency' within this rule does not apply to the matter itself, but it means 'urgency of debate', when the ordinary opportunities provided by the rules of the House do not permit the subject to be brought on early enough and public interest demands that discussion take place immediately."

That is citation 100 (3) of Beauchesne's Fourth Edition.

"The reason for allowing such a motion for the adjournment is to afford Members an opportunity for discussing a definite matter of urgent public importance which it could do in no other way..."

That was a decision of Mr. Speaker Black, as reported in Journals of the House for March 31, 1931, page 50.

"The urgency of debate is something that has to be considered... In my experience it has never happened in the House that while the Speech from the Throne was being currently debated a motion for the purpose of discussing a definite matter of urgent public importance under the new Standing Order 26 was agreed to."

That is a quotation from Mr. Speaker, taken from Hansard for January 11, 1956, page 20.

Also, during the debate on the Address on January 20, 1956, there is the following statement by Mr. Speaker, as reported at page 343 of Hansard:

"...whenever there is a debate like the one currently going on, which gives the opportunity to honourable Members to discuss a wide range of subjects, motions such as this one have not been allowed." Then, in Hansard for June 27, 1961, I read this at page 7105, Mr. Speaker Michener having expressed a similar view with regard to a motion under Standing Order 26 during the Budget Debate. He said: "It seems to me that it is a matter which could very readily be debated in the Budget Debate..."

Later on on the same page he added: "I accept the proposition that this is an urgent and important public matter to which the Leader of the Opposition draws attention. It is a definite matter of public importance. However, that is not the criterion in determining whether Standing Order 26 should be applied. The criterion is whether there is an opportunity to debate this matter in an effective way."

Mr. Speaker Michener concluded his remarks as follows, as reported at page 7106: "...I am not satisfied that there is not ample opportunity to put before the House and the government all the considerations that apply to this important matter in the debate which will follow immediately after the calling of the Orders of the Day. Therefore, with regret—" and I should like to use these words myself—"I cannot accede to the request of the—" honourable Member for Three Rivers (Mr. Balcer).

Whereupon the Honourable Member for Three Rivers (Mr. Balcer) stated that he desired to appeal to the House from this decision.

Mr. Speaker ruled that, in accordance with decisions given by previous Speakers, a decision in regard to the question of urgency of debate under Standing Order 26 could not be appealed to the House.

Thereupon the Honourable Member for Three Rivers (Mr. Balcer) appealed to the House from the ruling that there could be no appeal from a ruling by the Chair under Standing Order 26.

And the Members having been called in;

And the question being put by Mr. Speaker: "Shall the ruling of the Chair, on the appeal to the House of the Honourable Member for Three Rivers (Mr. Balcer), be sustained?"—It was decided in the affirmative on the following division:

VOTES AND PROCEEDINGS

OF THE

HOUSE OF COMMONS OF CANADA

OTTAWA, TUESDAY, 2nd JULY, 1963.

2.30 o'clock p.m.

PRAYERS.

Seven petitions for Private Bills were presented in accordance with Standing Order 70(1).

Mr. Chevrier, a Member of the Queen's Privy Council, laid before the House,—Copy of Order in Council P.C. 1963-993, dated June 27, 1963, concerning the transfer of certain powers, duties and functions relating to civil emergency planning, under the Public Service Re-arrangement and Transfer of Duties Act, from the Prime Minister and the Minister of National Health and Welfare to the Minister of Defence Production; effective July 1, 1963, and amending the Civil Defence Order, 1959, made by Order in Council P.C. 656 of May 28, 1959.

Mr. McIntosh, seconded by Mr. Rapp, by leave of the House introduced Bill C-79, An Act to amend the War Veterans Allowance Act, 1952, which was read the first time and ordered for a second reading at the next sitting of the House.

Pursuant to Special Order made Thursday, June 27, 1963, the Order for the House to resolve itself into Committee of Supply being read for the first time in accordance with Standing Order 56(2);

Mr. Gordon, seconded by Mr. Pickersgill, moved,—That Mr. Speaker do now leave the Chair.

And the question being proposed;

Mr. Diefenbaker, seconded by Mr. Nowlan, moved in amendment thereto, —That all the words after "That" be struck out and the following substituted therefor:

"this House regrets that the government by its failure to clarify many doubts and uncertainties in some of its economic policies has created and continues to create confusion and chaos in various sectors of the economy, thereby contributing to a lamentable slowing down of expected expansion and growth."

A point of order having been raised by the Secretary of State (Mr. Pickersgill) to the effect that the amendment was out of order in that it sought to introduce a motion, the purport of which was similar to that disposed of during the debate on the Budget.

RULING BY MR. SPEAKER

Mr. Speaker: I have before me the wording of the motion which the honourable Member for Digby-Annapolis-Kings (Mr. Nowlan) moved at the time of the Budget Debate. In particular, paragraph two of that motion reads: "That in general his proposals will endanger and curtail the expansion of the economy;"

The Secretary of State (Mr. Pickersgill) raises a very fine distinction, and Bourinot's Parliamentary Procedure, 4th Edition, at page 420, says in part: "The ordinary rules of debate are applicable on this occasion; for instance, a matter already decided by the House, or of which notice has been given, or which stands upon the orders of the day, cannot be discussed;"

The distinction is a very fine distinction indeed. The motion moved by the Leader of the Opposition (Mr. Diefenbaker) and seconded by the honourable Member for Digby-Annapolis-Kings (Mr. Nowlan), while being very close to the Budget motion, does contain a certain element that has to be considered, namely: "that the government, by its failure to clarify many doubts and uncertainties in some of its economic policies—" If we were not about to discuss the Budget at some future time this motion would stand on its own feet. Therefore, in the present circumstances I feel that the benefit of the doubt should be given to the opposition in this case and that the motion is in order. The amendment as moved reads: "this House regrets that the government by its failure to clarify many doubts and uncertainties in some of its economic policies has created and continues to create confusion and chaos in various sectors of the economy thereby contributing to a lamentable slowing down of expected expansion and growth."

May I say in closing that I hope we will be sticking to the "many doubts and uncertainties", rather than indulge at this time in a Budget Debate.

And debate arising on the said proposed amendment;

Mr. Douglas, seconded by Mr. Knowles, moved in amendment to the said proposed amendment,—That the amendment be amended by striking out all the words after the word "government" and by substituting therefor the following words:

"has failed to introduce the kind of economic planning that would promote economic growth and full employment, and more particularly has failed to institute a large-scale program of housing and public works, to create more effective consumer demand, and to introduce a system of parity prices for primary products."

The Deputy Speaker (Mr. Lamoureux) ruled the subamendment out of order on the ground that it was irrelevant to the main amendment as it introduced a new question not covered in or related to the amendment.

Whereupon the honourable Member for Burnaby-Coquitlam (Mr. Douglas), appealed to the House from the decision of the Chair.

And the question being put by the Deputy Speaker: "Shall the decision of the Chair be sustained?"—It was decided in the affirmative on the following division:

VOTES AND PROCEEDINGS

OF THE

HOUSE OF COMMONS

OF CANADA

OTTAWA, TUESDAY, 16th JULY, 1963.

2.30 o'clock p.m.

PRAYERS.

The honourable Member for Winnipeg North Centre (Mr. Knowles) having raised a question of privilege at yesterday's sitting;

RULING BY MR. SPEAKER

May I refer to the question of privilege raised in the House yesterday by the honourable Minister of Justice.

In the July 15th issue of Hansard, at page 2167, the honourable Minister of Justice is reported as having raised a question of privilege in the following words:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise on a question of privilege. On Friday the honourable Member for Winnipeg North Centre (Mr. Knowles) rose on a question of privilege, as reported at page 2121 of Hansard, which I think I can summarize. I quote:

'My point of privilege is that what we now have is precisely what we had last June. We have the government construing that the Financial Administration Act or regulations made under it gives them authority to do something which the act itself says cannot be done. The Financial Administration Act says that no appointments by the Treasury Board can be made under it.'

The honourable Minister of Justice then went on to say:

"The honourable Member's statement in this respect is not correct. If honourable Members would look at section 5(2) of the Financial Administration Act they would find it provides that the Governor in Council may authorize the Treasury Board to exercise all or any of the powers, other than powers of appointment, of the Governor in Council under the Civil Service Act, the Civil Service Superannuation Act, the Defence Services Pension Act, and Parts II to VI of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police Act.

"The action taken was not under any of the foregoing Acts, nor was it an "appointment". Section 39 of the Financial Administration Act authorizes the Governor in Council to make regulations with respect to the conditions under which contracts may be entered into, and it was pursuant to these regulations that the contracts were made. Section 5(2) of the Financial Administration Act has no application whatever to the present situation."

Thereupon, Hansard reports that the honourable Member for Winnipeg North Centre stated the following:

"Mr. Speaker, on the question of privilege may I suggest that what I indicated on Friday was that the opinion in the name of Mr. Driedger tabled by the Prime Minister indicated that though it was purported that these arrangements were made under the Government Contracts Regulations in accordance with section 39 of the Financial Administration Act, they do not come within the terms of the Government Contracts Regulations themselves, as Mr. Driedger himself pointed out.

"It seems to me that since we have had a question of privilege and a counter question of privilege raised in connection with the subject, the matter should be gone into. I therefore move, seconded by the honourable Member for Burnaby-Coquitlam (Mr. Douglas):

'That sessional paper No. 39B be referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections for study and report'."

At this juncture, I suggested that the motion might be allowed to stand until today in order to ensure that there was a prima facie case of privilege involved in the assertions of the two honourable gentlemen.

I do not propose at this time to review the authorities and their comments on the nature of parliamentary privilege, but I would refer the attention of honourable Members to May's 16th edition, pages 42 and 43, Bourinot's Parliamentary Procedure, 4th edition, page 37, and also to Beauchesne's Parliamentary Rules and Forms, 4th edition, beginning at page 93.

The question of privileges of this House is a wide and complex subject and in trying to cover that subject in a few words can be a hazardous exercise. However, recognizing the risk that may be incurred in doing so, I would suggest that, stated briefly, a question of privilege is a question relating to the rights, security, dignity, and freedom of the House as a whole or of its Members individually, and to the conduct and honour of such Members.

If my summary of the authorities be substantially sound, I find no support in any of them for the contention of the honourable Member for Winnipeg North Centre that a prima facie question of the privileges of this House is involved in his assertions or in his motion.

It seems to me that what we have is, in essence, a dispute between two honourable Members with regard to the legality of certain actions. In other words, I suggest that the matter could be raised as a grievance on a motion to go into Committee of Supply or at some other appropriate occasion.

In this regard may I refer honourable Members to paragraph (5) of Citation 104 of Beauchesne's 4th Edition.

Since there is in my opinion no question of privilege involved, I cannot give the honourable Member's proposed motion precedence over the business set down for today.

Mr. Asselin (Notre-Dame-de-Grâce), from the Standing Committee on Banking and Commerce, presented the Fourth Report of the said Committee, which is as follows:

Your Committee has considered the following bills and has agreed to report them without amendment:

Bill S-8, An Act respecting Quebec Fire Assurance Company.

Bill S-22, An Act to incorporate Fidelity Mortgage and Savings Corporation.

Bill S-20, An Act respecting General Mortgage Service Corporation of Canada.

Bill S-13, An Act to incorporate Standard Trust Company.

Mr. Gordon, a Member of the Queen's Privy Council, laid before the House, —Copy of Treasury Board Minute T.B. 610452, dated July 9, 1963, approving Civil Service rates of pay of certain existing and new classes, effective October 1, 1962. (English and French).

The House resolved itself again into Committee of Ways and Means.

(In the Committee)

The following resolutions were adopted:

VOTES AND PROCEEDINGS

OF THE

HOUSE OF COMMONS OF CANADA

OTTAWA, THURSDAY, 18th JULY, 1963

2.30 o'clock p.m.

PRAYERS.

STATEMENT BY MR. SPEAKER

Mr. Speaker: I have a short statement, dealing with a question of procedure, which I think it would be in order to make at this time. As appears in Votes and Proceedings of yesterday, the honourable Member for St. Paul's (Mr. Wahn) presented the Fourth Report of the Standing Committee on Miscellaneous Private Bills which read as follows:

"Your Committee has considered Bill S-15, An Act to incorporate The Good News Broadcasting Association of Canada, and has agreed to report the preamble thereof not proven on the grounds that the Committee feels that it would not be appropriate in the circumstances outlined to the Committee to issue a federal charter."

Thereafter, as reported in yesterday's Hansard at pages 2292 and 2293, the honourable Member for Parry Sound-Muskoka (Mr. Aiken) proposed the following motion:

"That Bill No. S-15 as reported be referred back to the Committee on Miscellaneous Private Bills for reconsideration."

Mr. Speaker intervened at that point to suggest to him that the proper time to move such a motion would be during the Private Bills period if the Bill was then before the House. Later on, the honourable Member for Parry Sound-Muskoka stated that under the rules, especially Standing Order 110, this Bill would not be placed on the Order Paper and this would prohibit the Bill in question being placed upon the Orders of the Day during the Private Members Hour. At this juncture Mr. Speaker suggested that the matter be postponed until today to give him the opportunity of going into the matter.

May I be permitted to say that I have considered the matter and to reiterate that it was not the proper time for the honourable Member for Parry Sound-Muskoka to propose his motion to refer back the Bill under Routine Proceedings, as he did yesterday, since the Bill had first to be placed upon the Orders of the Day by special order of the House. In this connection, Standing Order 110 applies.

In looking at two precedents relating to similar instances—the first in 1931, at page 552 of the Journals and at page 3824 of Hansard; the second in 1958, at page 401 of the Journals and at page 3329 of Hansard—it will be seen that a motion should be moved and adopted under Routine Proceedings in order to place such a Bill upon the Orders of the Day for consideration, and the motion to refer the Bill back to the Committee is dealt with at its proper place when Private Bills are taken up during the hour for Private Members' Business.

Mr. Aiken, seconded by Mr. Enns, moved,—That Bill S-15, An Act to incorporate The Good News Broadcasting Association of Canada, the preamble of which has been reported as not proven, be placed on the Order Paper for consideration later this day.

After debate thereon, the question being put on the said motion, it was agreed to, on division.

Mr. Howard, seconded by Mr. Knowles, by leave of the House, introduced Bill C-89, An Act to amend the Corporations and Labour Unions Returns Act (Pension Funds), which was read the first time and ordered for a second reading at the next sitting of the House.

The House resolved itself into Committee of the Whole to consider a certain proposed resolution to establish the Canada Pension Plan;

And the House continuing in Committee;

At 5.00 o'clock p.m., Mr. Speaker took the Chair.

By unanimous consent, Miss LaMarsh, a Member of the Queen's Privy Council, laid before the House,—Statement, dated July 18, 1963, respecting The Canada Pension Plan. (English and French).

A Message was received from the Senate informing this House that the Senate had passed Bill C-74, An Act respecting the Department of Industry, without amendment.

[Private Members' Business was called pursuant to Standing Order 15(3)]

(Private Bills)

Mr. Wahn, seconded by Mr. Winkler, moved,—That Mr. Speaker do now leave the Chair for the House to go into Committee of the Whole on Private Bills (pursuant to Standing Order 54(1)); which was agreed to.

The following bills were considered in Committee of the Whole, reported without amendment, read the third time and passed:

Bill S-11, An Act respecting The Evangelical Lutheran Synod of Western Canada.

Bill S-18, An Act to incorporate Baptist Convention of Ontario and Quebec.

Bill S-19, An Act to incorporate The Union of Slavic Churches of Evangelical Christians and Slavic Baptists of Canada.

Bill S-20, An Act respecting General Mortgage Service Corporation of Canada.

Bill S-13, An Act to incorporate Standard Trust Company.

Bill S-12, An Act respecting Ukrainian National Federation of Canada, was considered in Committee of the Whole, reported with amendments (as made in the Standing Committee on Miscellaneous Private Bills) and considered as amended.

By unanimous consent, the said bill was read the third time and passed.

Bill S-25, An Act respecting The Board of Trade of Metropolitan Toronto, was read the second time and referred to the Standing Committee on Miscellaneous Private Bills.

The Order being read for the second reading of Bill S-28, An Act to incorporate Allstate Life Insurance Company of Canada;

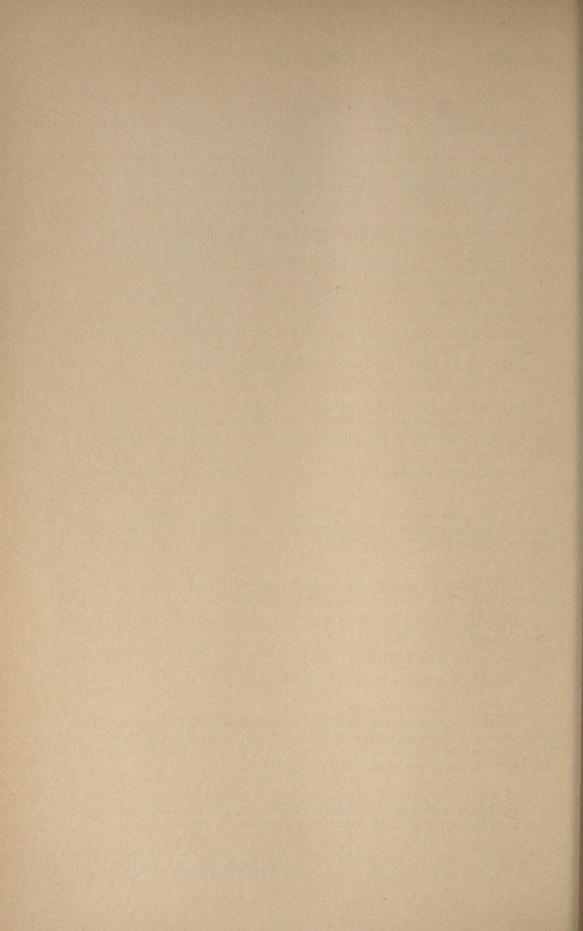

Mr. Ryan, seconded by Mr. Roxburgh, moved,—That the said bill be now read a second time:

And debate arising thereon;

The hour for Private Members' Business expired.

The House resumed consideration in Committee of the Whole of a certain proposed resolution concerning the establishment of the Canada Pension Plan, and progress having been made and reported, the Committee obtained leave to consider it again at the next sitting of the House.

At 10.05 o'clock p.m., Mr. Speaker adjourned the House without question put, until tomorrow at 11.00 o'clock a.m. pursuant to Standing Order 2(1).

- 23. That for the 1962 and subsequent taxation years the manner of taxing a bankrupt corporation, a bankrupt individual and a trustee in bankruptcy be revised and in particular
 - (a) that the trustee be deemed to be the agent of the bankrupt person for all purposes of the Act;
 - (b) that section 63 of the Act not apply in the case of any income of the trustee from dealing in the property of the bankrupt person or from carrying on the business of the bankrupt person;
