"The Quality Goes In Before the Name Goes On"

It seems next thing to strange that all the old traditions of bread baking should have been so uniformly maintained by these three great baking plants which have joined hands and interests to give the people still better bread.

Of course, the nearer the bakerman keeps to the idea of baking bread "like mother used to make" the nearer he keeps to the heart of the "family" -and the surer he is pleasing them.

And so it will be, for an amalgamation of interests to save operating expense, means no deviation from or "slackening" in the high quality standard set up for and reached in producing

JUNE BUILDING

Toronto Shows Slight Increase Over Same Month Last Year.

A list of the building permits compiled from the reports of 28 Canadian cities for the month of June, and published by The Financial Post, show a decidedly satisfactory increase over the same period last year, being equal to $4,233,475. Some remarkable figures in percentage of increase are shown by the list:

by the list: Moose Jaw leading with 700 per cent. The next five largest are: Kingston with 403 per cent.; Medicine Hat 393.8 per cent; Windsor 306.5 per cent.; Guelph 301.4 per cent.; and Sas-katoon 301.1 per cent. Other cities re-cording over 100 per cent. increase are Prince Albert, Calgary, Port Arthur, Regina, Halifax, and Hamilton. Toronto's percentage of increase was 3.1, representing in dollars and cents $71,890. Calgary was the only city with an increase of $1,000,000, followed by Saskatoon. Moose Jaw and Re-gina. Vancouver showed a decrease of $256,234. The aggregate record of the same

The aggregate record of the same cities for the six months ending with June is even more gratifying, showing June is even more gratifying, showing a total increase over the same period last year of $15,000,000. Calgary again heads the list with an increase of $6,-000,000. Vancouver comes next with $2,302,526, followed by Toronto, with $2,119,305.

Those studying conditions have con-childed that where a home is a good one in every sense of the word, no substitute can fill its place. Archbishop McEvay, the late archbishop of Tor-onto, believed in this strongly, and even years before his coming the authorities at Sunnyside acted on the principle. Accordingly where a setis-Despite all this however there is yet much to worry the Sisters with this great household on their hands. Havprinciple. Accordingly where a satis-factory home offers the children go to great household on their hands. Hav-ing no special endowments, they are like those who "live from day to day" with a'l the apprehension for the future that this implies, and the inability of getting much shead in preparation for the inevitable hard time. On the oc-casion of a recent visit, the hard time was present in the shape of an away-behind-the-times laundry with all that this entails to the ones who have to put in most of their working hours within its steaming and sweltering pre-cincts. The laundry is in the base-ment and the labor of washing and ironing for all the children and staff of the house under old-fashioned cor-ditions during the extreme heat of the it but remain wards until they attained their eighteenth year. back and looked after as before. Nine acres of land, surround the Orphanage, and while to the casual visitor the grounds and house seem so retired, to those who have lived there for some time things seem much changed to what they were in the past. At the time when the institution was established it was so far from the centre of the city as to almost class it with the country. Now the presence of the city's growth is upon it. New ditions during the extreme heat of the roads are opening about it on all sides Who addresses three meetings in and future years may insist on change Torouto to-day.

and future years may insist on change Meantime even the great railroads' corporations, usually considered soul-less, are kind to the orphan. "How much do you think you will have to take off our front," said one of the Sisters lately to a surveyor on the road. "Not an inch, not an inch if mossible." was the reply. And the possible," was the reply. And the Sacred Heart Orphanage remains inbecoming increasingly popular among the Jews, and has been heard by imtact, working out its mission of charnense audiences all over the United ity, and incidentally relieving, as do States all such institutions, our city fathers from problems that would otherwise press upon them, in addition to those In this connection a unique and plea sant situation has developed. The year 1910 was a banner one in the new capital issues thruout the world, according to the statistics of "Le Moniteur des Interets Materiels," "Le Moniteur des Interets Materiels," a Belgian financial publication which makes a yearly feature of the tabu-lation of issues for new enterprises. The total issues of new securities ran into upwards of twenty-six millions which constitutes what is a new world's record. The figures for the United States, which are given by the Belgian pub-lication at about $1,600,000,000, are ap-parently less nearly complete than "Le Moniteur des Interets Materiels," a Belgian financial publication which a Belgian financial publication of 30,000-ound new securities ran to in record time and with record comforts. The Lusitania of old, how-ever, was the name given during the Roman Empire to the gold-mining reg-ion, embracing western Spain, and Portugal. Roughly, Lusitania com-prised the drainage basins of the Mina and Sil rivers. Barently less nearly complete than In the days of the Phoenician em-which are given by the Belgian publication at about $1,600,000,000, are apprentity less nearly complete than howe for European countries, where the data are more readily accessible. Accepting these data as the most accurate available, it appears that the total issue during 1910 reached a value of about $5,110,000,000, as com-pared with a total for 1909 of about $4,750,000,000. When the deduction is made for insues for conversion or re-funding purposes, however, the dif-ferences in net new issues is some what reduced by the fact that con-versions were heavier in 1310 than in 1900. Net issues other than for con-versions were heavier in 1310 than in 1900. Net issues of new securities of 1909 of $4,270,000. JUNE BUILDING

Toronto Shows Slight Increase Over Same Month Last Year.

A list of the building permits compiled from the reports of 28 Canadian cities for the month of June, and published by The Financial Post, show a decidedly satisfactory increase over the same period last year, being equal to $4,233,475. Some remarkable figures in percentage of increase are shown by the list:

by the list: Moose Jaw leading with 700 per cent. The next five largest are: Kingston with 403 per cent.; Medicine Hat 393.8 per cent.; Windsor 306.5 per cent.; Guelph 301.4 per cent.; and Sas-katoon 301.1 per cent. Other cities re-cording over 100 per cent. increase are Prince Albert, Calgary, Port Arthur, Regina, Halifax, and Hamilton. Toronto's percentage of increase was 3.1, representing in dollars and cents $71,890. Calgary was the only city with an increase of $1,000,000, followed by Saskatoon, Moose Jaw and Re-gina. Vancouver showed a decrease of $256.234. of $256,234.

The aggregate record of the same cities for the six months ending with June is even more gratifying, showing a total increase over the same period last year of $15,000,000. Calgary again heads the list with an increase of $6,-000,000. Vancouver comes next with $2,302,526, followed by Toronto, with $2,119,305

H EREWITH The Sunday World presents a political map of Ontario, colored according to the predilections of the 86 divisions of the province. In all probability this province will lose some of its voting strength in the house of commons when the representation is rearranged following the official announcement of the population, which will be in the course of a month or two. After the decennial census of 1901 Ontario lost six members. With the large influx of immigration to the Canadian west and the probable increase of the population of Quebec, which provides the unit of representation, Ontario must, surely, fall behind after the next redistribution.

By the B. N. A. Act of 1867 Quebec must always have 65 members in the commons. As the population of that province increases the unit which is arrived at by dividing 65 into the total Quebec population becomes larger. Therefore we in Ontario whose families do not increase as fast as those of the people of Quebec, expect that our numbers in parliament will show a falling off. The great west, by the same reckoning must gain.

On our map all the political subdivisions except Thunder Bay and Rainy River are shown. That one exception is omitted to enconomize space. It is red in complexion and is represented by James Conmee. All the rest of Northern Ontario, however, is blue, including the two Algomas, Nipissing, Parry Sound and Muskoka.

In the eastern section the four ridings of Prescott, Russell, Glengarry and Stormont cast their votes with the government. There is a strong French population here and probably they are influenced by the prevailing political sentiment in Quebec. Ottawa City, which is the only single constituency in Ontario which has two members, is also red. With the exception of South Renfrew, Kingston and Brockville, all the rest of Eastern Ontario leans to the Conservative party.

Coming further west there are but four patches of red till we reach York County. Prince Edward, West Northumberland, West Peterboro and South Ontario are represented by Liberals, but any one of these is fairly good fighting ground for both parties. From Toronto to Georgian Bay there are but two red seats, North York, proverbially Liberal, and East Simcoe, which was Conservative for some years, till 1908. The rest of Ontario to Lake Huron is pretty evenly divided.

The cities send eight Conservatives and three Liberals to the house. Toronto, of course, is all blue, with five members, and the two Hamiltons and London are also blue, while Ottawa, two, and Kingston are red.

The Conservatives have 50 members and the Liberals 36, a Conservative majority of 14. This is a slight increase over the Conservative majority in the last parliament.

Next week The Sunday World will print a political map of Quebec and at another time a similar map of the rest of the Dominion, the maritime provinces and the western provinces. In view of the political campaign which is expected to be fought this year these maps will be of considerable value to those citizens who follow the fortunes of the political parties.

And all thru that night of horror the gallant Britishers fought for the honor of the flag and glory of the empire. The buildings blazed around them, the Zulus harassed them with a hot fire from all sides, attacks came so frequently that they scarcely knew a breathing space, but when welcome daylight came at last, stout hearts and strong arms were still defending the line of biscuit boxes and grain bags. Then the enemy's fire ceased and his forces withdrew over the hills. Ten of the defenders had been killed and thirteen wounded, and when the ground round the barricades was patrolied it

At one of the plazza conclaves I heard an excellent rule for keep-ing young given. It was: Be much in the company of the young. That will make you think young thoughts, live young lives. And what we think on we become. A well-preserved beauty said: "I think a great deal about beauty. I always have it in the foreground of my consciousness. If I thought about ugly things continuously I know I would become ugly." One resolve the women of the piazza convention could make with profit: They might determine to smile more. The only way to know a car is to ride in it and try it out. Take your family out in it and let them find out how comfortable the rear seat is. Remember, that driving in the front seat, you do not notice the inequalities of the road as you would if you were in the tonneau. Perhaps you have noticed this. Be sure you get a good demonstration on this point. People tell us that the Warren is one of the easiest riding cars in the world. We think so ourselves. Try it, and see what you think. Incidentally, a demonstration will open your eyes to some of the other features of Warren cars that make them different, and very much better than any cars anywhere near the price.

THE CONTEST. The most popular and the most practical plan for Bible study, together with a prize Bible contest, is running in The Sunday World. In short, the Funday School Lesson must be read each week for 52 weeks, also the "Suggestive Questions," and the coupon should be cut out each week and signed, certifying that this has been done. Then any five of the questions that are indicated to be answered in writing must also be answer-ed, and at the end of the term the coupons and written answers, duly signed with name and address, must be delivered to this office. The prizes will be awarded according to the number of coupons sent in, and the merits of the written answers. You can get all the help you want with the written ans-were

A wedding was solemnized on Tues-day evening, July 11, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Lougheed, 323 Wilton avenue, when their eldest daughter Rebecca was united in marriage to Mr. Frederick Galster, by the Rev. S. H. Pickup. The bride, who was unattended, look-beautifully decorated with carnations, ferns and palms, the ceremony taking place under a bell of white carnations. The wedding march was played by Miss Mildred McClay, and appropri-ate solos were rendered by the Mesrs. Albert David and Sydney Atchison. The young couple were the recipients of many costly and beautiful gifts, including a piano. After their honeymoon they will re-side at 149 Beach Avenue.

By Lady-Duff Gordon ("Lucile") AM going to give you this week a few of the very latest fashion notes from Paris. The new skirt is to be straight and narrow, 'ut not the hobble.

The ...ew coats will be three-quarter length. Fringe is to be widely worn. All of the tailor suits and any other gowns which will permit f it will be thus trimmed.

All the waists are still high, quite as high in fact, as they ever were.

. mong the new materials, of which there are many, are fancy velvets that look like cordurovs.

The harem skirt is now admitted to be a complete failure. Even Poiret, who invented them, no longer attempts to make them up. Most of the sleeves are elbow length.

One of the newest features is the crinoline or "hoop skirt" sleeve. This sleeve is distended at the elbow with a little hoop of wire or whalebone.

Nothing could be in greater contrast to the small sleeves of the past season or so than this new conception. The sleeve is built out at the elbow to give a pronounced hall.on effect.

famous "Lucile" of London, and foremost creator of fashions in the world, writes each week the fashioa article for this newspaper, presenting all that is newest and best in styles for well-dressed women. Lady Duff-Gordon's new Paris en tablishment brings her into close touch with that centre of fashion.

This is the New Crinoline or Hoop Skirt Sleeve -a Little Wire Hoop Distends the Fabric.

The coat is in a draped style, bordered with fringe, which gives it a quaint, old-fashioned suggestion, and finished with a broad, flat fichu collar of white velour delaine. In addition to the fringe border, there is a hemstitched facing of white cloth surrounding the basque, back and front.

Gowns.

The new crinoline sleeve seems to be quite popular essential to the design. There is no doubt that the fringe trimming is going to be a very popular fad, if not a furore. Everything for Autumn is to be loaded with it. Even silk trimmings are to be ravelled out at the edges, and plaited-another notion of the sixties, by the way.

Before I conclude the list of novelties, I must make mention of some most convenient little guimpes made of the finest linen lawn and cut in kimono style, their rounded curve about the neck being outlined with a more or less elaborate design of hand embroidery. The sleeves are quite short and the career of the little garment itself is in fact very brief, as it is just held in beneath the bust by an encircling draw.string.

Its object in life is to make, more universally becoming than they could otherwise be the many gowns and "jumpers" whose corsage cut in an almost decollete fashion would bring a hard line of dark serge or suiting next to the skin. And when said fabrics are thus treated, and worn, too, in the day time, the contrast of an exquisitely white and youthful throat is absolutely essential to their success, so that where this is not possible the wearing of one of these new guimpes is to be recommended as it will bring a relieving band of white into the scheme with much resulting benefit to the wearer.

So much for generalities; and now for some gowns which I have been making during the past week for two of our society leaders; one, which I have named The Hidden Garden," is of marguisette in the soft green of leaves massed together in the cool depths of a wood, and lining this filmy fabric is silk, in that gray blue which one sees in Summer mist at evening, this latter and lovely coloring being brought into outward prominence just between the tunic and the underskirt. The silken embroideries on corsage and tunic also blend the most subtle shadings of green and gray and blue, and floating at one side is a scarf of gray chiffon. The mist deepened and materialized, you see!

On the corsage the semi-transparency of the green marquisette merges eventually into a still more elusive softness of gray and then of flesh-pink chiffon, just faintly visible through this filmy veiling are inner and dainty details of cobwebby lace, threaded through with nattier blue satin ribbon and other lace tinted to the gray blue coloring. And it is on this that the "hidden garden" blooms out-clusters of little flowers -blue and pink and mauve, with foliage of tenderest green, all caught together with loops of silken ribbon, which introduce the first and only touches of definitely, bright colorings-emerald green, mauve and rose. Quite a contrast is the other afternoon gown of Chinese yellow satin charmeuse, whose little turn-over collar of embroico. 3d lawn and lace falls into a chemisette of flesh pink chiffon, over which the charmeuse is caught together by a fine cord of gold with tassels of purple and blue. Another ornament which figures prominently-and I think prettily, too-on the corsage is a tassel of silver and blue and pearls, both, remember, having that gorgeous golden yellow for background.

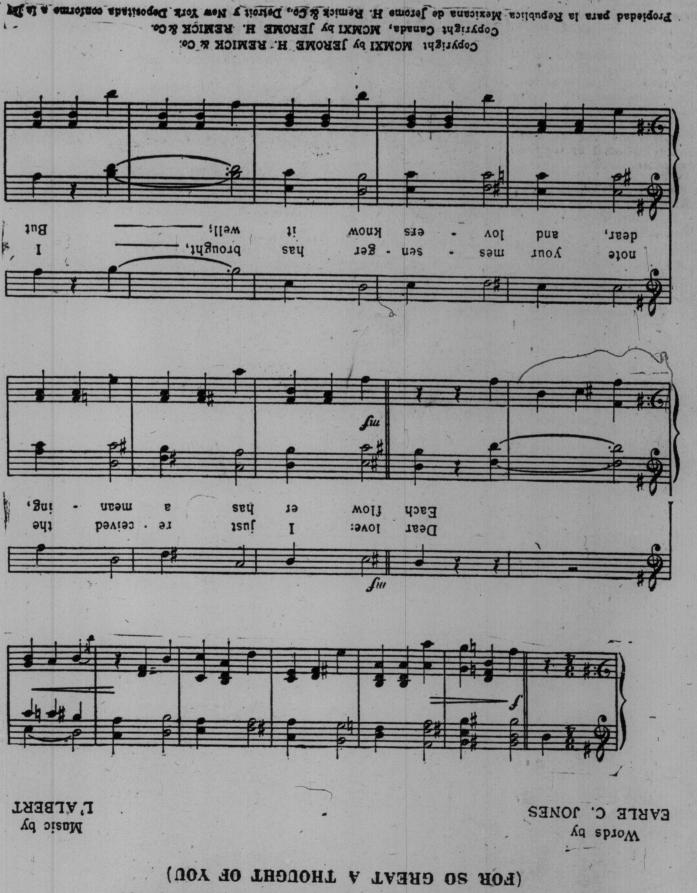

For the rest the satin is broidered with birds and blossoms in gold colored and faintly green silks, and on the waist there is folded a sash of queer blue and gold tissue, with borderings of mauve and pink shot with gold, all these tissues being brought together too, in the series of little choux which fasten the sash at one side, the other being drawn into a flatly looped bow, from which fall long ends of cloudy gray chiffon fringed with gray silk, through whose soft strands there comes the occasional shimmer of an inner fringe of gold.

The tunic of this gown is cut quite short above the knees in front, but at the back fails to the edge of the slightly trained skirt, and on it the self-colored emdery again puts in an appearance, all the contrast of color being reserved, you will note, for the corsage.

A JEWELED ROYAL SCARAB FOUND IN THE QUEEN'S PALACE WHICH MAY HAVE BEEN WORN BY THE BIBLICAL CANDACE

HE ancient and famous City of Merce, capital of the Kingdom of Ethiopia, has been unearthed and explored. Its existence had bccome legendary. The ruins lie in a desolate region between the Upper Nile and its tributary, the Atbara.

The City of Merce derives its greatest claim to fame from the fact that it was the capital of Candace, Queen of Ethiopia, who was the first sovereign to become converted to Christianity. She sent her high treasurer to Jerusalem, who was there baptized, as related in Acts, chapter VIII., verses 27-39:

"And he (Philip) arose and went; and behold, a man of Ethiopia, of great au-thority under Candace, Queen of the Ethiopians, who had the charge of all her treasure, and had come to Jerusalem for to worship.

"And they both went down into the water and Philip baptized him."

The treasurer returned to Queen Candace in the far-distant land of Ethiopia and in consequence of his report she became a Christian, with all her people. The fact is attested by a Christian Church of her period, which has just been found by the explorers. That was within a few years of the Crucifixion and four hundred years before Constantine, who made Christianity the official religion of the Roman world, was converted.

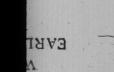

The exploration of Merce has been conducted by Professor J. Garstang. Thebuildings and objects found varied in antiquity from ancient Egyptian times to the Roman imperial period. Articles of gold and silver recovered were alone worth many hundred thousand dollars. It was

There was nothing else to do. Within the cab Edna was sobbing violently—so violently that she was totally unable to reply to the ques-tions Lathrop addressed to her. Her emotion was partly assumed; but, too, partly real, for she was now hysterical from the excitement of the part she had played, and she believed that in overtaking Lathrop as she had she had saved him from prison. Nevertheless, she still strove to enact her role. "Oh! Morris" she scaped chloring

Is the woman of to-day gradually losing her distinctly teminine figure owing to her increased interest in masculine sports? Will the tendency among women to adopt mannish habits mean the extinction of the "female form divine," with its graceful curves and lines? These questions are brought into prominence by a statement made by a well-known doctor on the "physical conformation of women." "Open air and atbletic sports, more rational dresz , and education more like that of men," he says, "have cotrained the pronounced physical char-acteristics known as feminine to dim-insh, and made the female figure or like that of the male. Law in The Etude, is bas-ed upon a sketch by Moritz von Schwind. Schubert's hair was brown with a reddish tinge, his eyes were gray, his complexion was remarkably delicate and rather pale; the shape of his skull indicates a racial origin from the Alps. Beethoven's face was perhaps the one most like Schubert's put his hair and eyes were decidedly farker. It is worth noting that Beeth-oven's eyes were said by some of his contemporaries to be brown, while by others-and this is perhaps more prob-able-they were deciared to be blue. No little stress is laid upon the fact that he bore a more sympathetic ex-pression than that which generally ap-pears in most of the portraits by which he is judged at the present day. His nose was small and slender, which al-so does not correspond with the com-mon idea of him. His face was pit-ted with scars of smallpox, from which he suffered in early life. is issued. This is an official publi-cation compiled under the direction of the committee on printing and an of-ficial editor. It is an invaluable hand--book containing the names of all the leading government officials in Wash-ington and a good deal of other useful information as well as the biographies of every member of the senate and house, and it is this section of the book that entitles it to be ranked as a hum that entitles it to be ranked as a hum-orous work, altho its purpose is sup-posed to be serious. The biographies of members are written in the third person, but as a matter of fact they are autobiographies, and the only func-tion of the editor is to harmonize a few of the fundamental rules of grammar that genius or statesmanship so often ignores. If the editor has even a glim-mer of humor he must enjoy his job." ignores. If the editor has even a glim-mer of humor he must enjoy his job." Mr. Low then goes on to poke fun at the biographies, the naivete of which. he says, is delicious. Thus George Konig, a Democrat from the City of Baltimore, says that "he is married and lives with his wife," a concession to public opinion which perhaps en-titles him to distinction in a land of titles him to distinction in a land of easy divorce. Solomon Francis Prouty is a new member from Iowa, and evidently wants his fellow-members to know that he is worthy to be among them, for he emphasizes the fact that "he won the first prize in oratory in the oratorical state contest in Iowa in 1876, and won second prize in orator: in the Inter-State contest held in Mad-ison, Wisconsin, in 1877." As the prin-cipal function of a congressman is to talk, the champion orator should be made welcome. So Mr. Low contin-ues, making fun of the whole range of story. Statistics have proven that it is the same in Canada; yes, and the same in Toronto. Walk thru sundry districts of this city and you will find children swarming. Stop and listen and you will hear the gibberish of an unknown tongue. Walk thru other congressmen. SCENE: A Museum in the Near Future. Dr. Leo (looking at stuffed skin of Roosevelt: "I say, professor, that's a rare specimen; beautifully stuffed. Where did you get him?"

Professor Rhino: "Oh, I caught him in a jungle near Washington, D.C., when I was over there for big game recently. This species is getting very scarce and shy now. When I at last succeeded in impaling him upon my horn, he squealed out something that sounded like "De-e-e-lighted!"

THE SOLID IRON FLYING MACHINE

ERE is a picture of the new Clement-Bayard monoplane, a flying machine made entirely of steel, no wood, silk, paper or other material about it.

This is worth looking at, it is a picture of the life that is to come here.

The flying machines of the future will all be of steel or of some other, perhaps lighter, metal. It is marvellous to think how quickly progress

It is marvellous to think how quickly progress has been made since the days of the flying machine which was a non-controllable bag of gas The Metal Machine Is the Machine of the Future, and Will Solve the Flying Problem.

human race of the future will do all its long distance travelling. The big airship will rise rapidly to the desired height, far above all the little disturbances of our lower atmosphere, and then start off on itsjourney around the world, or part way around. It might easily be imagined that some of the great ships would permanently stay at those great heights and not come down at all. Their engines always moving enough to counteract gravity would make descent to earth, with the large and expensive landing places, unnecessary, if that were desired.

It took the world many hundreds of centuries to change from the ship made of wood to the ship made of iron, and only a few years give us the solid iron air machine.

When iron ships were first talked of, everybody, except a few that were scientific, laughed and said it was ridiculous to talk of an iron ship, for of course, AN IRON SHIP WOULD SINK.

If an iron ship floating on the comparatively substantial surface of the water seems marvellous, how much more marvellous does the flying machine of iron appear floating and sustained on the shifting air currents.

Yet that flying machine of steel will be THE FLYING MACHINE OF THE FUTURE, and the only one.

The near future will see great machines with powerful engines, carrying a thousand people or more, going through the air at fright, ful speed, the human freight protected by glass and metal walls, and supplied at great heights with air of proper density, which will make the travel of to-day seem childish and pitiful.

These machines of the future will fly at the rate of hundreds of miles an hour, and undoubtedly in the end surpass one thousand miles an hour, if that be desired.

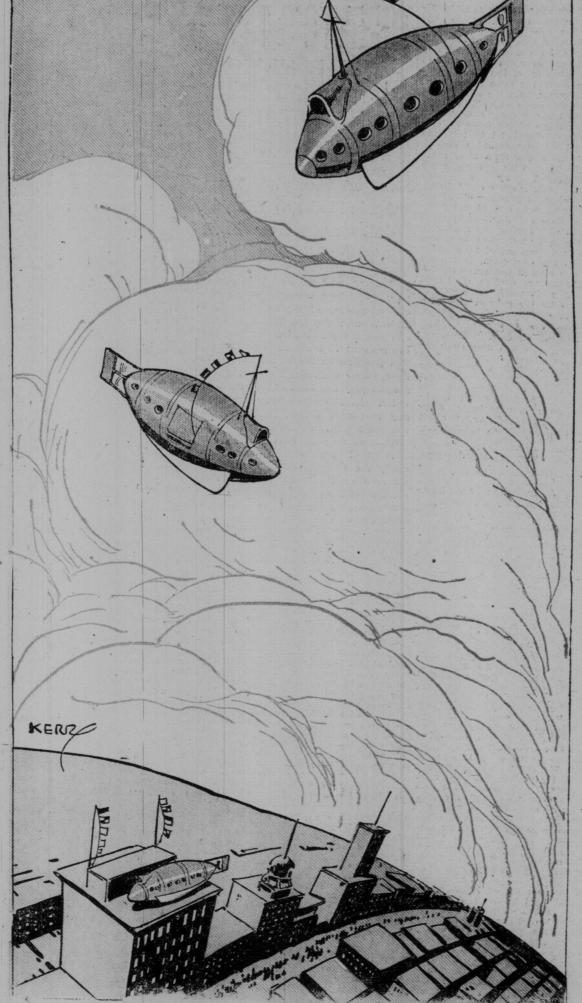

Going at such terrific speed, with engines of wonderful power, the high winds and powerful gales that we talk of now will seem ridiculous.

The great steel flying machine of the future will care no more for a gale of wind than the great iron steamship, one thousand feet long, would care for the little waves of one of our inland lakes. The winds will be considered not at all. And the flying machines will go and come at will, to rise and fall, paying to the winds as little attention as a yoke of oxen going across field by sheer weight and muscle.

The big flying machines of the future will are nothing for wind or air currents of any sort as enemies, but will utilize the natural currents of air as allies.

You know, perhaps, that when you rise six miles above the surface of the earth the wind always blows gently toward the East, our atmosphere at that height going with the movement of the earth, which turns eastward on its axis. Up at that six mile height there are no storms, no gales. The wind always blows gently from east to west six miles above us.

And up in that constant attended at the

We have already seen the imperfect flying machines of to-day leave the deck of a man-o'war, fly away, and come back again.

It is possible that the large around the world flying machine will take on and send off passengers by smaller aeroplanes. You can imagine a great machine carrying a thousand or more passengers hovering for a moment above a big city. The conductor calls "Passengers for New York get out here, next stop Liverpool." Those that want to go to New York step aboard a small aeroplane, or into the car of the parachute, and come down to see their friends, and tell how things were going on in China when they left there the evening before.

Remember that this is not nonsense; it tells you exactly what the human race will see, and before many years.

It tells of the day when all of the human beings on this planet will be one race, one nation, one family. The flying machine, making custom houses impossible, and war too frightful to think of, will bring the nations together.

When William the Conquerer went to England there were twenty-two different governments, nations and kingdoms in Great Britain. When the steel flying machine shall have been for a few centuries really a success, there will only be one government, one nation, on this whole earth, and that will be the nation and the government of justice.

You can't police the sky. Before long the police work will end, and honesty will make it unnecessary.

In centuries to come the wealth, the power and the education of the human race will have made this planet of ours what it really ought to be, and no longer what it is to-day, a quarreling cage of monkeys, cheating wherever possible. Men will live on mountain tops and work in the valleys, like the eagles, and men's minds will live in the high places also, above the mud and the meanness of the past.

Fish That Tumble Upward. The pressure of the water at a cer-tain depth below the surface of the sea is enormous, and the fish that live there are, in consequence, liable to a strange form of accident. If, in chasing their, prey or for any other reason, they rise to a considerable distance above the floor of the ocean, the gases in their bodies become ex-panded and their specific gravity is greatly reduced.

greatly reduced. Beyond a certain limit the muscles are not strong enough to drive the body downward, and the fish, becom-ing more and more distended as it goes, is gradually killed on its long and involuntary journey to the surface of the sea the sea.

The deep sea fish, therefore, are exposed to a danger that no other animal in the world are subject to—that of tumbling upward.
