The Count was a brilliant talker, I found, a polished man of the world, and much as I loathed him, I had to confess that the journey passed pleasantly enough.

Though, but it was not beneath the trees, and over grew better so I thought, though much, it was my companion's praises of the inn at Vornau and the liquor to be had there, that added to my thirst. Not a breath of wind was stirring, and a myriad flies added to our discomfort.

At last Vornau came in sight, the place of our parting, and with a shout to me, von Wogen, who had been drinking to my enjoyment, turned to his horse and dashed forward as he gave his horse the reins.

He disappeared at a head of the path. Leisurely we toiled up the stony track and turned the corner to see the Count already arrived at the inn, and the landlord setting a table beneath the shade of a neighbouring tree. Bread, cheese, fruit and two flasks of wine were upon the board.

As I glanced at the sun; it was high overhead. "What is the hour?" cried I to the landlord, who was watching our setting forth.

"An hour after noon, Excellency," he replied, doing his best to hide a smile.

"Donner wetter," growled I, as I pulled myself into the saddle and the grey plunged in the stony track.

"I had meant to return by the stony road, but the shade of the forest path was tempting, and into the shadows I plunged, the hussars following me with many a curse for awkwardness of their steeds. Blundering behind me they came, and I cursed them in my turn for lack of horsemanship, cursed them in English with here and there a Gaelic oath to their great astonishment, and they held me drunken as were they.

Never shall I forget that ride, though to tell truth I could recall no single incident of those dozen miles. It lives in my memory as some nightmare vision in which I and two others astride enchanted steeds scoured a trackless forest to gain a castle upon a rock in a valley where I dwelt my heart's desire. So far as I can remember, one of my troopers fell from his horse by his fellow, once my grey stumbled and recovering itself, spurred madly, a mile down that stony path.

Was it the heat of the day, the strength of the liquor I had drunk, the men could not have drunk less than a gallon between them as they confessed, a gallon of von Wogen's saying—that had set my brain reeling? By mischance we overtook Inel by a good mile, though whether the bridge path led, I knew not, and had to force a way through a growth of young beech and firs the Rhonan ere gaining the highroad.

At length Rohn came in sight, Rohn and its mighty eagle, and for some reason, I know not wherefore, I was blind for sleep, for the glare of the high-road, and all I longed for rest.

In the matter of His Excellency the Count and the Countesses? he replied. "Devil take the Count," cried I. What was the Count to me, so long as my wife lay 'twixt him and Rohn? "And the Countesses?" inquired Karl Knecht, paying no heed to my ill-humour.

"The Countesses? What of them, man?" "His Excellency has not yet returned," broke into a peal of laughter. "I forgot for the moment that it was to a subordinate that I spoke, may I never set eyes on him again, and their Excellencies, the ladies?" I turned on him, white with rage. What ailed the man that he must pester thus? "The Countess?" I cried.

and a knot of children had gathered beneath the trees. I rubbed my eyes as it dawned upon me that I had been asleep. I rose clumsily, knocking my scabbard against the leg of my chair, the children turned at the noise to gaze at the Austrian, evidently a sight rare enough in Vornau, and at the same instant I became aware of what it was that had hitherto claimed their interest. On the ground beneath the tree, but to a patch of sunlight, lay my troopers, sound asleep. I was annoyed, but could scarce blame my men for following the example set them by their captain.

Heaven knows, my eyes were heavy as I started at my heels, and I thrust at yet, my head swimming. A cur with my foot, nearly stumbled and can remember wondering if the pesky ants set me down for drunk. Whatever my state, there was no disguising that of the troopers.

"Rouse, ye lions, cried I, as they looked up at me blue-eyed and flushed with sleep. They recoiled to their horses, staring stupidly at the child, as if doubtful as to where they were.

I glanced at the sun; it was high overhead. "What is the hour?" cried I to the landlord, who was watching our setting forth.

"An hour after noon, Excellency," he replied, doing his best to hide a smile.

"Donner wetter," growled I, as I pulled myself into the saddle and the grey plunged in the stony track.

ladies dead, and buried or fled, or what, thou fool that thou plaguest me."

The honest face of my corporal grew grave in an instant. "May it please thee, the Countesses of von Rohn rode away with the Count von Wogen some two hours before noon, with a couple of the men for escort. The men returned alone an hour ago in obedience to the Count's orders."

My brain had grown clear in a moment, though as I listened to his simple tale, my tongue seemed tied. "And the others?" I cried, breaking in upon his speech. "The others?"

As yet they have not returned." (To be Continued.)

LONG LIFE IN SOUR MILK

Chicago, April 1.—Samuel Fallow, bishop of the Reformed Episcopal Church and founder of Christian Psychology—a combination of faith cure and medicine—now in his sixtieth year, believes that men ought to be in their prime at eighty and live to be 120 years old. Here is the explanation he gave tonight. Drink sour milk or pure buttermilk two or three times a day. Avoid too strenuous living. Go to bed early and get up, with the rising sun. Take plenty of exercise of a kind not associated with your usual employment. Only rigidly the laws of hygiene. Keep a clear conscience. Love God and be square with your fellow men. Drink some more sour milk. The Bible says, "I am indebted for my material to three sources:—1. The newly published book by Prof. E. Metchnikoff, a French scientist. 2. Science in general. 3. Metchnikoff is one of the professors in the Pasteur Institute in Paris, is the greatest exponent in the world of the theories of Bacteria. It is his business to hunt up diseases and their remedies. In a new book he has pointed out that the reason men do not live to a great age is because under modern conditions the arteries harden with advancing age, due to deposits of calcareous substances. He has shown that the bacteria in the milk, the principle, he says, is an acid which attacks the bacteria and the arteries and vaccination for other ailments. Metchnikoff declares that sour milk or pure buttermilk should be drunk twice or three times a day. He has added to the lives of aged persons, and he declares that also others would do so. Now in the old testament, just after the flood, the prophet of God said: "and the days of man are 120 years." It is centuries later that the psalmist said: "and the days of man are three score and ten years." Research has proved that the multiple of aged persons is six. That is, they ordinarily live six times the length of the average man. Multiplying that by six gives us 720 years. This is the natural life according to the laws that govern the animals of the lower world. It is only three and a half—that is, 375 years. This is not natural and the reason is that man stands by the natural law and that man take the proper precautions until too late. The rates of the average Chicagoans for reaching 120 years of age, by temperance, suppression of vices and expansion of bad habits.

CANADIAN NEWS IN GREAT BRITAIN

Mr. A. J. Dawson is Sanguine of the Success of His New Paper

(Montreal Witness, March 30.) Mr. A. J. Dawson, of the London Standard, who has been on a tour through Canada in the interests of the "Canada of Empire," a new weekly paper, published in Montreal, returned to Montreal today, with a very bright outlook on the future of his new newspaper in England.

He was warmly endorsed wherever he went, and every provincial government board of trade, transportation committee and other bodies, has given practical support to the scheme. He hoped before he sailed to get similar support from the Governments of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. Mr. Dawson mentioned incidentally that he found in Canada, and particularly in British Columbia, that the people were hungry for British news, and were very poorly served in this respect by the present news services. He intended to try to organize a service that would to some extent meet this want, as far as the Vancouver and British Columbia newspapers were concerned.

FOOLISH BOYS BLOWN TO BITS

Shawnee, Okla., April 1.—Boys playing near a half carload of giant powder and dynamite caps at the Missouri and Kansas stockyards became involved in a dispute as to whether the powder was good or bad. They determined to test it and applied a match. An explosion followed that was heard for miles. The car was blown into fragments and people passing were blown from their feet and across the road. Six people were seriously injured, one, Robert Gray, a negro child, having since died.

WILL VISIT AUSTRALIA

Melbourne, April 1.—Alfred Deakin, Prime Minister of Australia has received a cable message announcing that the United States battleship fleet, which will be divided into two squadrons of eight warships each, will arrive here September 1st, and will stay for ten days. The fleet will arrive at Sydney September 13, and will remain there ten days. The armed cruisers however, will not visit Australian waters. Mr. Deakin has called Washington that it is the desire of other Australian states that the fleet would visit Perth, Adelaide and Brisbane.

GOVERNMENT AXE FALLS ON OFFICIALS

Ottawa, April 1.—"It is my duty to inform the house," said Sir Wilfrid Laurier on the orders of the day being called, "what action has been taken by the government on the report of the civil service commission. The house is aware that on two previous occasions I stated that the report, in so far as it concerned the department of marine and fisheries called for consideration and action by the government. My honorable friend, who is in charge of that time as far as the report of the civil service commission is concerned, has been engaged for some time in investigating his department, so as to determine in what respect it could be reformed. In the discharge of that duty one of the officers of that department was suspended by him some few weeks ago."

The Axe Falls. "Since the report of the commission has been laid on the table my colleagues have come to the conclusion that he should also be put under suspension two other prominent officers. It is only just to the deputy minister of that department that I should say in this connection that on two previous occasions he tendered his resignation and that matter is in the hands of the minister for consideration."

"The house is aware that the report made certain very grave statements with regard to the honesty of the officials in that department. The matter is of such a serious character that the minister did not think it advisable for him to deal with that part of the report, but he has thought it advisable to recommend that a royal commission should be issued to deal with that part of the report of the commissioners in order to have the state of facts, which they say exist in the department, properly investigated. It has pleased the administrator of the government to accede to this view and to appoint as commissioner Walter Cassels, judge of the exchequer court of Canada. Now the report is a very broad and general one. I may simply remind the house that last year the government became aware that the civil service question was one which engrossed the attention of the government generally thought it advisable to appoint a commission of men who they had reason to believe to be absolutely impartial and disinterested, to look over this question and give them the benefit of their views. The house is aware that this commission has made a report which is pretty general and broad. Laurier Non-committal. Mr. Borden asked if the commission was to deal with the departments generally or solely with matters advanced by the civil service commission. The leader of the opposition also wanted to know if a matter of policy in regard to civil service that they would adopt a system of competitive examination by an independent commission. Sir Wilfrid Laurier said he would answer the first by bringing down the order in council appointing the royal commission. As to civil service reform it would be better that the members should have before them printed copies of the government made a pronouncement. The two officials who have been suspended are J. P. Fraser, commissioner of lights, and J. U. Gregory, Quebec agent. A. W. Owen, accountant, was suspended some time ago. Col. Gourdeau, deputy minister of marine and fisheries sent in his resignation this morning. He asks for six months leave of absence. Government Will Act. "It is the intention of the government to deal as soon as possible with the various questions brought to the attention of the country in this report. I cannot say that during the present session it will be possible perhaps to get to the bottom of all the questions that are mentioned in the report, but it is possible to proceed as far as and as speedily as it is possible to go during the present session. There is the broad question of civil service reform, as it is generally understood. I understand that the commission have made a general representation on this point, though, as far as I am concerned, I must say I have without more than to read the report, except as I have seen it in the newspapers. But there is this general recommendation, but every body of the commission have made a recommendation in that line, they have not embodied their views in the shape of a bill, as they did on the question of superannuation, for instance, and therefore the idea having been brought here without more than to read the report, it may require some time before a bill can be prepared on that line. All I have to say at this moment is that the intention of the government is to deal with the question and all the questions brought up by the report of the commission as speedily as it is possible to do so."

FATAL COLLISION ON INTER-COLONIAL

Moncton, N. B., April 1.—A bad wreck occurred at Derby Junction on the I. C. R. this afternoon. The Indian town branch train, in charge of Conductor E. S. Vye and a west bound special in charge of Conductor Chipman Dixon, of Moncton, crashed into each other head on, on the main line, killing instantly Brakeman Lamie, who was riding in the engine of the special. The wreck occurred at 14.20. The special had orders to cross the Indian town branch train at Derby Junction, but ran past the switch and as the branch train was pulling into the station at the time, both trains were completely wrecked. Brakeman Lamie was the only one killed, but several of the train men and one or two of the passengers were more or less injured, but none seriously. Conductor E. S. Vye of the Branch train had his jaw broken and was badly cut about the head. Driver A. McCabe in the branch engine had a bad cut in the left knee and was shaken up. Edward Doyle, who was at the throttle on the special train when he saw the collision was inevitable and escaped with a slight shaking up. C. D. Melanson, Moncton, fireman on the special, was hurt in the back but not seriously. Maloney, fireman on the branch train, escaped injury, as did also Conductor Dixon on the special. Alfred Jardine, of Indian town, a passenger on the branch train had his jaw fractured and head badly cut and otherwise injured, not seriously. Brakeman Lamie, who was killed, was riding in the engine of the special train and was buried beneath the coal and was crushed to death before he could be rescued. Lamie was eighteen years old, and had only been on the I. C. R. about two months. He is the son of Thomas Lamie, of Harcourt. Deceased is nephew of Geo. Lamie, conductor on the Dalhousie branch. The special train was the direct cause of the wreck, and Driver Doyle attributes the disaster to his inability to control his train. Some of the passengers on the branch train were slightly shaken up, but not seriously injured. The passengers included: Alfred Jardine, Indian town; Mrs. Cobb, Mrs. Jones, Elmer Parker, Parker's aid; J. Bryon, Bryon's aid; Thomas Siding; Hughes, Alex. Vye, Nelson; Victor Russell, Jas. Sullivan, Millerston; Victor McGinley, Chatham; John Paris Derby; Jas. Vye, Thos. Collins, Nelson. McCabe narrowly escaped death in the wreck on the Indian town branch last spring. Dr. Fodolin of Newcastle went out in an auxiliary and dressed the wounds of the injured men.

SERIOUS ACCIDENTS

Three rather serious accidents were reported yesterday afternoon and evening. Herbert Kealey, the five-year-old son of Charles Kealey of the west side, had his skull fractured by being struck by a street car. William Abbot, a steward on the steamer Corsican, was also struck by a street car and rendered unconscious. He was walking along the car track on Rodney wharf and did not hear the car coming. He was treated in Ingham's drug store and afterwards removed to the Corsican. A cut on the forehead and some bruises were sustained. Frank Ryan, the young son of Mrs. Mary Ryan, 49 Brussels street, was caught in the wheels of a sloven in Brussels street about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon and his thigh fractured.

extracted from him a promise that her son should reign.

When Mulai Hassan died somewhat suddenly, Ba-Hamed picked the younger prince not merely because he had sworn to support him but because he knew that his own power would be greater than if the older and capable Mulai Hafig came to the throne.

To everyone's surprise, Mulai Hafig accepted the situation without a murmur. He was the first to kiss his brother's hand and swear allegiance. Until recently he kept the oath rigidly. In fact, despite his capacity for war and business, he is by preference a scholar and a dreamer.

At the present minute he has on the point of publication a volume of verses in Arabic, and an Arabic grammar of which he is author on the press in Cairo. It will be his thirteenth published work. He did not want to be Sultan.

He has kept the south in subjection, it is true, since he was made Caid of Marrakesh, but he has done it almost without taking up arms. Through his emissaries he has fomented the quarrels and jealousies of the tribes and their chieftains, and so have secured the peace and ease for himself which he so much desired.

When the sheiks and ulamas at last compelled him to accept the title of Sultan and to declare war on Abdul Aziz he enrolled the most powerful of the southern chiefs in his cabinet and asked them what they were going to do. He put this question up to Si-Tahib-Tazi, whom he made Minister of Finance. There seemed to be no answer in sight when the miraculous happened.

One evening as he entered his harem after a discouraging session of his councilors, Mulai was intercepted by an aged woman. She had been one of the favorites of his father, and she now occupied the high position of Arifa, or grand mistress of the harem.

She excitedly declared that the day and the hour had come. Anyhow, she was old and was soon going to die, she could keep a great secret of state no longer.

She led the wondering Mulai to the barred door of the Sulphur Chamber, and told him to go boldly in, assuring him that he would find more than sulphur for the holy war, sulphur being only an Oriental metaphor for the real fighting material. Mulai opened the door and went in.

There were thirty iron-bound chests arranged along the walls, all covered with the dust and rust of twenty years. He opened the first; it was full of gold coins. He opened the second and it was the same.

They were all full of gold coins—Spanish doubloons of twelve different mintings, ranging in date from Charles III, in 1777 down to Ferdinand VII, in 1850. The contents of the chests varied from four to five thousand doubloons, worth about $75 apiece. The total is calculated at about 20,000,000 francs or $4,000,000.

At the time when Mulai Hafig was reveling in this great wealth, Abdul Aziz was trying to pawn his jewels in Paris and getting no higher offer than $240,000 on them. The first use Mulai Hafig made of his money was to equip 10,000 men in highly colored uniforms with vivid reds, greens and blues in imitation of the Mokhazis or guards of his brother.

He also bought cloth to make tents, and vast supplies of ammunition for the excellent Martini-Henry rifles, of which he discovered several thousand forgotten in the army of Marrakesh. He also had put into service order several batteries of Creusot guns and forty Carmet guns, which his brother bought some years ago and abandoned to neglect, not to speak of a dozen Hotchkiss mitrailleuses which Caid Maclean brought from England.

Since his discovery of the money, everything has prospered with Mulai Hafig. M. Vaffier-Pollet prophesies that he will gather the whole country under his rule, first defeating Abdul Aziz and then Raisuli, the Rogni and Bon-Amama, all of whom are now practically exercising independent rule in their districts.

Fresh tea is all-important. Ten weeks after being picked in the tea gardens of the Island of Ceylon (the finest tea-producing country in the world) "Salada" reaches you. The flavor of tea consists in an essential oil which deteriorates rapidly with age. In order to preserve the delicate flavor of "Salada" Tea it is packed in sealed lead packets (never sold in bulk), guaranteeing you a superior tea, in flavor, quality, purity and economy in use.

As a measure of precaution on account of ill health, Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria will abstain from taking part in the customary Holy Week ceremonies, which include the washing of the feet of the poor.

MULAI HAFIG'S TREASURE.

(The New York Sun)

The great conundrum of the situation in Morocco for months past has been the question where Mulai Hafig, the pretender, or the son of the South, as he is called, got the money to finance his revolt against his father Abdul Aziz. Germany has been at pains to give assurances that she did not do him any, and it is certain that neither France nor her allies furnished it.

The mystery appears to be solved by a key which M. Vaffier-Pollet, an old time French naval officer, has brought out from Marrakesh, and which reads like a tale out of the Arabian Nights. According to his narrative, Mulai Hafig found or rather had revealed to him a hidden treasure amounting to 20,000,000 francs, about $4,000,000, and he used it to finance his revolt.

There was a room in the old palace at Marrakesh which had remained bolted and closed since the death in 1894 of Mulai Hassan, the father of the present rivals for the throne. It was a remote, unfrequented corner of the rambling structure and a sort of superstitious awe had grown up regarding it.

It was in this harem, so it was effectually protected from masculine enterprise. Female curiosity was repressed by the vague tradition of curses that would fall upon any one who violated the precincts before the appointed day and hour, for on the fast-drawn door studded with iron nails was the inscription: "Kasin el Kébril Alant el Jehad, which being translated means 'Magazine of sulphur for the Holy War'."

When Mulai Hassan died Abdul Aziz was but 16, foolish and sensual. The grim M. Grand Vizier, Ba-Hamed made him king, and ruled for him for some years.

The boy Sultan had access to the harem, but he never seems to have troubled his head about the Sulphur Chamber. Ba-Hamed couldn't get into the harem, and he had never heard of the room which his mad master had closed up years before he had died.

But Abdul Aziz spent hardly any time in Marrakesh after his accession. He took up quarters for good in Fez, where, as was easier to get pianos, music boxes, and other expensive European toys, he passed at Marrakesh 400,000 francs

AS WELL AS A GREAT GAME BASEBALL IS A VAST INDUSTRY

On Tuesday, April 14, the baseball cover will be torn off and the National and American Leagues, the majors, will open the season of 1908 in eight cities. When the statement is made, conservatively, that the cost of putting on this big baseball show for one season approaches more than $2,000,000, the stupendous business proposition baseball has become may be realized. Besides being the greatest sport in the world, baseball is one of the country's big industries. At least thirty leagues in addition to the major organizations are in operation, and it is safe to say that fully $12,000,000 will be spent before the various pennant races are concluded. That the expense of the big leagues does actually total more than $2,000,000 annually is easy to prove. A conservative approach has been given figures proving that the statement is not exaggerated. His figures, which are probably below those of some others, are taken as an average. Beginning with $10,000 a year for ground rent, stands, club house and the cost of putting the ground in good condition amounts to $40,000. In the National League this year the club will travel about 9,500 miles, which at two cents a mile, for Southern trip means an expenditure of 5,000 at the lowest estimate. Each club plays seventy-seven games away from home, which means as many days in hotels at a rate which averages $3 a day per man, totaling $4,600. Meals and berths on trains will cost another $1,000. The average salary list of the players of a major league club is $50,000. A manager will get $5,000 and a business manager $3,000. Each year the clubs draft or purchase players from the minor league teams. This averages three pitchers, $2,500; one catcher, $1,000; two infielders, $2,000; two outfielders, $2,000, which makes a total of $7,500, a modest estimate indeed in this day of hot rivalry and fancy prices for young players. Each club orders fifty dozen balls, at $15 a dozen, and frequently fifty dozen is not enough, but this number costs $750. Having calculations upon twenty men the two sets of uniforms alone cost $650, and the shoes round it up to $1,000. Trainers get from $800 up. All this expense, up to $130,000, to get back. To balance the books 200,000 fans must pass through the gates at an average

New York Society Girl to Wed

MISS PAULINE LEROY FRENCH.

Newport, R. I., March 30--Miss Pauline French, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Amos Tuck French, and niece of Mrs. Alfred G. Vanderbilt, will be married to Samuel Wagstaff here on Tuesday, May 5. The ceremony will be performed in St. John's church and the wedding breakfast and reception will be given at Harbor View, the summer home of Miss French's grandmother, Mrs. Francis O. French. These details are similar to those of the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred G. Vanderbilt, the places of the ceremony and the reception being identical. The hour will be the same and some of the other features also will be alike. Miss French, who has spent much time here with Mrs. Vanderbilt for the last two years, is here now with her mother making arrangements for the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. French are spending the winter here with Mrs. French's mother, Mrs. Stuyvesant Leroy.

COSTS SOME MONEY TO RUN SALOON IN ONTARIO OR MASS

High License with a Vengeance in Ontario Towns and in Chelsea

Chelsea, April 2--Liquor dealers will pay dearly for licenses in Chelsea next year. Prospective dealers were astounded yesterday to learn that the new board of license commissioners had made heavy increases in the charges. The new prices are more of a series of heavy legal reverses than of a series of heavy legal reverses than, yesterday afternoon, Mr. Justice Britton handed out a judgment quashing the high license by-law passed in the town of Collingwood in January. By this measure the license fee is reduced from $2,000 to $200. The quashing removes from beneath the prohibition party one of the planks upon which they have so strongly relied, namely, that municipal councils were possessed of the power to enact a license fee which would enable them to do so. He Lordship holds that no such result was intended by the legislature in making the law. The principle ground for this conclusion, he finds in a judgment given by Chief Justice Sir John Robinson in the case of Dartmouth, in which it was held that a council might not pass a by-law reducing the number of licenses to one, as such an action amounted to total prohibition, and therefore was an attempt to evade the provisions of 76 Victoria chapter 184 section 4. Applying to the present law and facts instead of those of 1854, when Sir John Robinson gave this decision, Judge Britton observes that he is forced to a similar conclusion in regard to the by-law now at issue. "Even if the majority of the electors approve," he continues, "it is a by-law of the council, and if tainted as in my opinion it was, he improper motives, at the beginning and in passing it, it can not be made good by a majority of the electors sanctioning it." He therefore quashes it with costs.

"The test of the validity of the by-law in question," he says, "must depend upon the good faith of the council in passing it. If it was passed in the bona fide exercise of the power given to the council, the by-law should stand, notwithstanding the apparent unfairness of being allowed to have a tavern license in a city of 300,000 for $1,200 and compelling a man who wishes to keep a tavern in an outlying town to pay the sum of $2,500 or even a larger sum for the privilege. "There is no technicality about this. It is the broad question on its merits. If this by-law prohibited, says the judge, that a majority of the electors might accomplish that which was only intended to be done by a three-fifths majority, this was not the intention of the Act. His Lordship continues that liquor selling under license was a lawful business, and that a council must protect the rights of the minority as well as the wishes of the majority. The Liquor Act, it is consolidated was the result of years of experiment and a careful watching of the trade and of the lines with all sorts of offenders. The Act had fixed for Collingwood a fee of $450 and for the largest cities 1,700. If $450 was not enough, something between the two would be reasonable. Instead of that, so far as was presented in the argument, the

"COLUMBIA" ASKS FOR A DIVORCE

Boston, April 1--Mrs. Ida M. Leslie, artist's model, who posed for the figure of Columbia in the Mayor Collins memorial group was court Tuesday to ask a divorce from Frank P. Leslie. The Collins memorial monument by Kitson, the sculptor, is to be dedicated this summer, and it is to be placed on Commonwealth avenue near the entrance to the Fenway. The figures represented are Columbia and Erin, surrounded by a host of the late mayor. A large platform runs around it, containing seats. Wearing a large black picture hat, tall-or-made dress and black furs, Mrs. Leslie cut anything but a pathetic figure as she recited her stormy married life. In fact, she took a humorous view of it, and had court room spectators and even Judge Pierce himself laughing at some of her sallies. After she separated from her husband she began to send him "foolish postals," she called them, just to "josh him." One of these sent by her from Portland, Me. "I've run away from my lord and master, I've not run so fast I cannot run faster." About this point in the testimony a group of boys and girls entered the court room. They took up two whole benches. Judge Pierce ordered them to leave the court room saying: "The divorce court is no place for the young."

Mrs. Leslie, now living in Philadelphia, said that she was a model employed by scores of the most prominent New York, Boston and Philadelphia artists. She is 20 years old and was married in 1906. "There seemed to be a halo over our married life for the first three weeks," she said, "but only a month had gone when he began to drink liquor to excess and otherwise treat me cruelly." "The whole extent of your husband under the influence of liquor--was he muddled?" asked her attorney. "That's it, exactly; he was muddled," she replied. Atty. John R. Murphy, counsel for the husband, looked up over his glasses. His eyebrows came together, and he asked: "What on earth is muddled?" "That is a slang phrase for half drunk," she said, with a laugh. Judge Pierce took the case under consideration.

THROW AWAY LINIMENTS

Here's the Prescription to Cure Rheumatism.

Liniments only reach the skin and the muscles directly under the skin. Now, liniments can't cure Rheumatism. They simply deaden the nerves for a time. When the effect wears away, the pain returns worse than ever. If the bowels do not move regularly--if the kidneys are strained or overworked--if the skin is dry or itchy--the blood is sure to be filled with impurities or uric acid. This uric acid is changed into uric acid which is the poison that causes Rheumatism. Now, the only possible way to cure Rheumatism is to prevent uric acid from being formed. Logically, the only way to do this is to keep kidneys, bowels and skin in good working order, and prevent the stomach from being too acid. And the only way to do this is to take "Fruit-atives." These marvelous tablets of fruit juices and tonics act directly on the stomach, eliminating uric-acid, kidneys and skin--and put them in perfect condition. That is the only secret of their great success in curing rheumatism, sciatica and lumbago. 50c a box--6 for $2.50. "Fruit-atives," Limited, Ottawa.

HE WILL NEED ALL HE GETS

Prince de Sagan Will Need Anna Gould's Money to Square His Creditors as He Owes $6,000,000

Paris, April 1--"He has wasted his whole patrimony, and is in debt to the extent of $6,000,000. Not one cent of his mother's money will ever come to him; it is all going to his creditors." The foregoing statement was made by the Marquis de Castellane, father of Count Boni, the divorced husband of Madame Anna Gould. The person referred to by the marquis was Prince Helie de Sagan, who is at present in America trying to win the consent of the Gould family to his marriage to Anna Gould. The marquis further said: "Monsieur de Sagan is not admitted to any honest home in France." Count Boni himself refused to make any statements except to say that he thoroughly despised the American press, which had vilified him for fifteen years. "It has misinterpreted my acts, garbled my words, distorted my motives and raised abuse and falsehood upon me," he said. It is believed in New York that Madame Gould will marry the prince even in spite of the inflexible opposition of Count Boni, the head of the family. The position taken by George Gould is strongly supported by his brother Edwin, but it is generally believed that Anna will wed the prince in spite of all opposition, just as she married Count Boni more than a dozen years ago. It is likely to be several weeks before there is a decision in the romance. Mme. Gould will wait until the last in hope of her brother's consent. If she secures this they will likely be married in New York. If the family opposition continues they will return to Europe and be married there. That they will eventually be married is declared to be no longer a question.

DE SAGAN'S HOME

The city of Sagan is in a flutter of expectation, and the drowsy old local sheets have actually contracted with a London news agency to keep them posted as to the progress of the prince's negotiations with the Gould family. The great ducal residence, Castle Sagan, built by Wallenstein, the foremost general of the Thirty Years' War, has been closed since March 21, 1898, when Helie de Sagan's grandfather, Duke Napoleon Louis, closed his eyes. The host of creditors of the former prince of Sagan, Helie's father, who had been lying in wait for years to swoop down on the duke's inheritance, took it bodily, fields and forests, houses and

Important to all Women Readers of this Paper.

Women are as subject to kidney trouble as men, which fact is often overlooked. Many women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease. If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they will cause the other organs to become diseased. You may suffer a great deal with pain in the back, bearing-down feelings, headache and loss of ambition. Poor health makes you nervous, irritable and less dependent; it makes any one so. But thousands of irritable, nervous, tired and broken-down women have restored their health and strength by the use of Swamp-Root, the great Kidney, Liver and Bladder Remedy. Swamp-Root brings new life and activity to the kidneys, the cause of such troubles. Many send for a sample bottle to see what Swamp-Root, the great Kidney, Liver and Bladder Remedy will do for them. Every reader of this paper, who has not already tried it, may address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and receive sample bottle free by mail.

Spears--Calhoun. A quiet, but pretty, wedding took place at four o'clock this afternoon at the home of the bride's mother, 31 Lennox street, when Miss Grace St. John Calhoun, youngest daughter of Mrs. John R. Calhoun, was married to Harry Campbell Spears, of the road staff of Manchester. The ceremony will be performed in the presence of about sixty relatives and intimate friends of the contracting parties, by Rev. W. W. McMaster, pastor of German street Baptist church. The happy couple will be unattended and the bride will be given away by her brother-in-law, George D. Pope, of Toronto. The newly wedded couple will leave by the evening train for Montreal, Toronto, and other Canadian cities, and will take up their residence here in the autumn. George Bernard Shaw has completed a new play on the subject of marriage. It will be staged in London shortly.

C. P. R. AGAIN FIGHTS TIME

New Train Between Toronto and Winnipeg to Cid Running Time

Montreal, Que., April 2--(Special.)--Readers of the opening of the new Canadian Pacific line from Toronto to Sudbury a new train service will be put on running direct between Toronto and Winnipeg which will make the run in 36 hours, cutting off nearly eight hours from the time that it has hitherto taken to get from one city to the other by the North Bay route. This was decided upon at a "time" meeting held at the C. P. R. headquarters yesterday afternoon to make arrangements for summer schedules. The new trains will be known as the "Toronto Limited" and "Winnipeg Limited" and will start running on June 15th, the same day that the new Sudbury line is formally opened.

ANARCHISTS IN CANADA. (Ottawa Journal.) People sometimes hear references to the gradual gathering of anarchistic elements at Montreal, without quite realizing what they mean. A dispute in the garment trade throws a light on the subject. A difficulty occurred between a Montreal firm of garment makers and their work people. Mr. Sam Landers, of Hamilton Ont., representative of the United Garment Workers of America, was sent down to the commercial metropolis of Quebec province to look into the matter. Being interviewed by one of the local papers he spoke of the difficulty of dealing with the alien element. "The unfortunate part of it is," he said, "that Montreal is a stopping place for a class of foreign workers from different parts of Europe, who come here imbued with all sorts of selfish or extreme socialistic notions. They want to get rid of capital and private property altogether, and when they get into our organization they sow the seeds of discontent, mistrust and suspicion, denouncing us for being too conservative, because we believe in arbitration and conciliation, and hold that the interests of capital and labor are identical. Because we will not advise violent measures they endeavor to get the members to withdraw and form a revolutionary organization whose aim is the abolition of private property. This has been the curse of our society, and we have had to suffer here on an average twice a year to try to root out these malcontents. Much as we regret it, there is at present being in wait for years to swoop down on the duke's inheritance, took it bodily, fields and forests, houses and a few weeks ago to lead a general strike." This statement will open the eyes of some people to the kind of material Canada has been paying big bonuses to immigration companies to bring into the country. These aliens "imbued with violent anarchistic or extreme socialistic notions," who "want to get rid of capital and private property altogether," are endeavoring to persuade the members of the trade organizations to withdraw and "join a revolutionary organization whose aim is the abolition of private property," are an undesirable element of the worst kind to have in Canada. There ought to be some way of keeping people of this sort out of the Dominion!

The greatest flood in the history of the river and Elkhorn valleys, in western Virginia, except that caused by the drought of seven years ago, when a hundred lives were lost, now prevails. Hundreds of families are camping along the mountain sides, their houses being inundated.

Princess Mathilda, of Saxony, sister of King Frederick Augustus, met with a serious accident while riding in the meadows outside Dresden yesterday, her right collar bone was broken and her shoulder severely bruised.

Col. W. F. Cody (Buffalo Bill) is seriously ill at the Stratford Hotel, Chicago, suffering from a general nervous breakdown, caused largely by a recent attack of the gripe.

Ladies & Gentlemen, I will be a Candidate for ALDERMAN to Represent QUEENS WARD at the ensuing CIVIC ELECTION and kindly Solicit your Support.

Yours respectfully, HENRY DUNBRACK.

LATE LOCALS

Resolved, that wood is of more service to man than iron, be the subject of debate at the Every Day Club this evening.

The regular monthly meeting of the treasury board will be held tonight when the bills will be passed and routine business transacted.

William McIntosh will give an illustrated talk on "the animals found near St. John" in the Natural History rooms, tomorrow, Friday afternoon, at 4 o'clock. Free to children over ten years of age.

It is improbable that the civic assessment will show much of an increase this year over last year, as the time is rather short for the members of the new board to go over the city. There will be some increase, however, and next year it is expected the total assessment will be considerably larger than for some time past.

At a meeting of the Yarmouth, N. S., Board of Trade last Friday evening, R. S. Crawford urged that efforts be made to induce the D. A. Railway to put into Yarmouth and Digby at least, so as to conserve the interests of Yarmouth merchants having freight coming from St. John and the Upper Provinces.

The woman who died suddenly on Gollings street yesterday was identified as Olive Whittaker, formerly Robertson. She was about 50 years old, formerly resided in the United States, although she has previously lived in Halifax. In May last she left St. John for this city, and has been engaged as a domestic in a Grafton street house since that time.—Halifax Recorder, April 1.

The St. Andrews church Cadet Corps is being revived under the instruction of Major Magee of the 62nd Fusiliers, and had their first drill on Thursday night last when some twenty-five of the boys were on parade. The corps will meet in the school room of the church on every Thursday night at 7.30 o'clock. All old members will be welcomed and are requested to be present tonight.

Ald. McGowan had a narrow escape from an accident last evening. He was watching his men putting up some scaffolding signs on Henderson & Hunt's store at the corner of German and King streets. In order to get a better view, he was backing up over the crossing towards the north side of King street. He felt his foot give way and, looking down, saw that the asphalt had caved in, revealing a hole several feet deep with running water in it.

The dredge W. S. Fielding is now dredging the shoal places outside the bell buoy, and the material being dredged is being brought up and is being placed into the hopper of the dredge. The dredge then steams out and dumps instead of using the small scoops, which were not found satisfactory. The tug Kitchener left Tuesday night for Lunenburg (N. S.) to bring two of the large scoops which were brought down from upper Canada last year. Each has a capacity of 700 yards and will be attached to the dredge on arrival.

HARBOUR MATTERS. Owing to rough weather the dredge W. S. Fielding was compelled to abandon work in the harbor channel this morning. The dredge went out to the channel and was forced to come back to her wharf. The dredge Dominion has about completed her work on the west side and there is a possibility that she may be put at work below Sand Point in preparation for the building of new wharves there in the future.

The site for the new wharf to be built by the government at the end of the Clark & Adams structure is now about completed, and it only remains for the board of works to approve of the amended plans sent down by the minister of public works, for the construction of the wharf to be commenced.

Clark & Adams are making good headway with the construction of No. 6 wharf. It is now built up above high water mark and a large number of piles for the foundation of the warehouse have been driven.

ANOTHER BIG LAW SUIT THREATENED

Dominion Iron and Steel and Nova Scotia Steel Companies May go to Law Over Wabana Ore

Halifax, N. S., April 2.—(Special)—Officials of the Dominion Iron and Steel and Nova Scotia Steel Companies are in a little flurry of excitement over the prospect of a big lawsuit that may rival in magnitude the famous Dominion Coal-Steel case. The dispute has its origin as to the right of way in certain iron areas at Wabana and the present workings at Point Aconi. The Wabana ore deposit in question, it appears, only came to light after the transfer of the million dollar areas to the Dominion Iron and Steel Company 1 1/2 years ago, and both companies claim a special interest in them. The new seam lies above the present workings of the Nova Scotia Steel Company, those of the Dominion Iron and Steel Company being below them. While the Nova Scotia people are not yet putting forth any effort to develop the new deposit, they have nevertheless contended with the Dominion Steel Company that much of it is in danger of being rendered useless or at least difficult of development owing to the extraction of the ore immediately beneath. Hence the injunction to prevent the company from mining ore at that particular point. This is a question outside of Canadian jurisdiction and would have to be decided by the Newfoundland courts.
