THE HAPPY DAY.

Oh! memr'y brings us back again To many a green and lovely spot, And echoes many a soothing strain, Perchance by others long forgot; Some gentle link enchains the heart, Some thought officets the pleasing ray; And thus when meaner things depart, We live again-the happy day.

Oh! is there one who hath not felt. That elea amid a life of pain, to scenes there were, where he hath dwelt,
He would not wish to know again? Though dark solversity hath gloom'd The flowers that seem'd in youth so gay; He never can forget they be som'd Once-once upon some happy day.

When first I meet some valued friead, When first I breathed love's tervid vow, When first my spirit learn I to blend.
With one who loves me dearly now;
When first I saw my infant smile, Though time speeds on his rapid way, These memories shall my heart beguile, And call back many a happy day,
