LORD BEAVERBROOK GOING ON A HOLIDAY

Indicated That He Considers It A Good Time To Get Out of Politics

London, Dec. 18.—Lord Beaverbrook will sail on the Aquitania today for New York en route to Palm Beach. It is understood he will be absent two months, but his plans do not envisage a visit to Canada.

The departure at this time of one of the two big figures in the recently organized newspaper combine and the still more recent political overturn will cause some comment. Reasons of health are those officially given, but assumptions are not lacking that it is rather a strategic move in the game of high politics the Canadian newspaper magnate has been playing. It is thought that he is anxious to escape the "Baldwin" has been defeated as Prime Minister, he has not been defeated as Conservative leader, nor is he likely to be as long as the "Baldwin" movement.

There during the election remains as bitter as at present. The decision of the Conservatives to remain in office until ousted by a landslide was as much to spite the two newspaper magnates as to have the best out of strictly according to conditions. It is thought that Beaverbrook considers it a good time to disappear for a while from the scene.

NEW STYLE HOBO IS BUSTED; BUT HAS AUTO

Washington, Dec. 19.—The hobo who formerly rode into the switch-yards and hopped down from his side-door Pullman, has come up in the world. He now rides in an automobile but his pockets are still as empty as ever.

He was arrested by the police of the city of Washington, D. C., yesterday morning, when he was found in the act of stealing a car.

The hobo was a white man, about 30 years of age, and was wearing a dark suit and a light-colored shirt. He was driving a light-colored car.

The car was found in the act of being driven away from a garage in the city of Washington, D. C., and was being driven by the hobo.

RESIDENCE ROBBED IN DALHOUSIE

Home of Andrew Allan Broken Into and Large Quantity of Provisions Taken.

(Special to The Graphic) Dalhousie, Dec. 19.—One of the most recent robberies that could take place occurred recently on the outskirts of the shiretown.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Allan, who closed their home early in the fall, to spend the winter in Mountain Brook, where Mr. Allan is in the employ of Mr. Joseph Levesque, mill owner.

During their absence their house was broken into and many articles stolen, including a double barrel gun, axes, a good quantity of butter, a pair of salted salmon etc. etc. Keys belonging to the doors were also taken, showing that the thieves intended returning to the place.

Mr. Allan was in town today, but has no idea who the guilty parties are. He expects to find many things missing when he returns to his home in the spring as he just looked over the place hurriedly when he detected the robbery.

Citizen Declares Affair of This Kind Would Be Great Boost For Town

In conversation with the Graphic last night a prominent citizen and one who is always keenly interested in all new moves that appear progressive and in the town's best interests, declared that he thought Campbellton ought to hold a winter carnival here this season. "If the enterprise was properly conducted," he continued, "and made a real success through the hearty cooperation of citizens generally, it would be a great boost for the town. It would not be wise to attempt anything on too big a scale but at the same time it could be made something really good so as to attract visitors from all over the surrounding country."

In conversing with the above mentioned gentleman, we were able to inform him that a movement in this direction was about to be started. Plans for the proposed event are not yet complete but as soon as something definite has been arranged to work on a detailed announcement will be forthcoming.

The idea of holding a winter carnival in Campbellton is a splendid one and there is no reason why it cannot be made a success. Besides exhibition games of hockey with outside teams as an attraction, engagements with fancy skaters could be arranged for. An ice-meet on at least a moderate scale could also be staged and in these events keen interest could be aroused throughout the whole north shore by soliciting entries from surrounding villages and probably from Dalhousie, Bathurst and other places as well. Suitable prizes could be offered to the winners of the various events and there is no doubt but what this in itself would induce many out-of-town sports enthusiasts to be on hand. The annual carnival, with prizes offered for the best costumes, would naturally be one of the features of the event. The choosing of a Carnival Queen, a "Miss Campbellton" or a Miss Restigouche, could also be made one of the drawing-cards and indeed, something that would attract widespread interest. It might also be possible to have Miss Canada here for the opening and with the many other attractions that could be added there should be no difficulty in arranging for a splendid programme and one long enough to make the event a two, three or even four day affair.

Those who consider the idea of a carnival of this kind no doubt be enthused over the possibilities it presents for brightening at least one week of the

MANY WORDS OF COMMENDATION

Graphic's Xmas Edition Well Spoken of by Citizens and Readers at a Distance

The Graphic's Christmas Edition is always a feature, but, if we may be permitted to say so, this year's issue was the best ever. It comprised twenty-eight pages, with cover, making thirty pages in all, the largest edition of its kind published by weekly papers in the Maritime Provinces.

We have received many compliments from citizens, and one Bathurst gentleman phoned our office.

The following is one of the press notices which have appeared and is from the St. John Telegraph Journal: ATTRACTIVE SHEET ISSUED BY GRAPHIC—The Campbellton Graphic on Thursday last issued an attractive special Christmas number which reflects great credit upon the enterprise of the staff of the Northern New Brunswick journal. The ordinary white newspaper section of the paper is enclosed in a colored jacket, the front page of which portrays an attractive Christmas homecoming scene.

We again wish to thank the business men of Campbellton, who made the issuing of such a number possible.

STORE ROBBED HERE SUNDAY MORNING

Goods Valued at $350 Stolen From Berniers—Thief Sent Up For Trial

Appearing before Judge Matheson on Thursday in the local court on a charge of stealing a quantity of wearing apparel from the Berniers' furniture store at Dalhousie, William Slade, ex-convict at Dorchester penitentiary and formerly of Ontario, was sent up for trial and removed to the county jail at Dalhousie. The accused, who confessed to the charge, against him, will apply for speedy trial rather than wait for the regular semi-annual county court sessions in March.

According to information elicited at the preliminary hearing Slade broke into the Berniers' store about two o'clock on Sunday morning, gaining entrance through a basement window on the west side of the building which is used as a coal chute. From there, with the aid of an axe, he forced his way to the ground floor. Having been released from the penitentiary at Dorchester only a few weeks ago Slade was still attired in the garb supplied prison inmates on their release. Abandoning this drab apparel he attired himself in new raincoat, making ample provision for cold weather by donning two suits of underclothing, three silk shirts, two pairs of socks and a fur-lined overcoat with Persian Lamb collar valued at $250, besides a suit of this serge.

Long restriction to the dull colors of decorous prison habitations evidently whetted Slade's quite human desire for sartorial grandeur and he then chose to attire the other various requirements of a well-dressed man. Collar and tie were selected, the thief using matches to facilitate his choice of something nice. When a stick-pin which won his approval had been adjusted to his taste, Slade doubtless would have further enriched himself had he not been alarmed. Thinking he heard a noise in the flat above the store he made a hasty exit and boarded an east-bound freight at Andrew Street Crossing.

The theft was discovered on Sunday afternoon and Chief Adams was immediately notified. That official at once got into communication with the police of neighboring towns, in-

Miss Muriel Jobb Delights Hearers At Piano Recital In Ottawa

The many friends throughout this part of the county of the Rev. Frank L. and Mrs. Jobb, will learn with pleasure that their daughter, Miss Muriel, is rapidly distinguishing herself as a talented pianist at her new home in Morewood, Ontario and also in Ottawa where she is a student at the Canadian Conservatory of Music. While the Rev. Mr. Jobb was pastor of the congregation of New Mills, Miss Jobb, then a young, young, dispassionate pianist, made a highly enjoyable piano recital at the Canadian Conservatory on Friday evening. The distinctive interpretative ability, technical skill, coupled with charming poise and naturally graceful manner of the young performer completely won her audience.

The program, which was designated as belonging to the intermediate grade of the Conservatory, was ordered in such finished manner that the high standard of Miss Jobb's teacher, Mr. H. Puddicombe, was again clearly demonstrated. The program was as follows:

Prelude and Fugue C sharp Bach Sonata, Pathétique, Op. 37 Beethoven

Grave—Allegro di Molto e con brio—Adagio Cantabile Rondo Allegro On Wings of Song, Mendelssohn-Liszt Spinning Song, Mendelssohn Prelude, Op. 28, No. 6, Chopin Waltz, A Flat, Op. 34, No. 1 Prelude, Op. 33, No. 1 Regrets, Op. 53, No. 11 Hunting Song, Op. 53, No. 16 Habener La Fleuse, Irish Tune, Grainer Intermezzo in Octaves, Leschetizky

SEIZED "LIQUOR" IS BUT PLAIN WATER

Bangor, Me., Dec. 19.—The fact that water is seized at the Bangor Exchange, formerly the St. James Hotel, isn't evidence enough to warrant conviction in Judge Butterfield's court here, regardless of the stringency of the law.

It was learned when John Hughes, alleged bar tender at Charles H. Milan's new hotel, was arraigned and discharged on a warrant regarding unlawful deposit of intoxicating liquor. An analysis of the liquid at the University of Maine showed that it was water and not alcohol, as alleged by the officers who raided the hotel.

NEW WHITE WAY
The new street lighting system in Moncton is now in use, having been turned on for the first time Saturday evening at five o'clock.
Thirty-one standards have been erected along Main street eastward from the east subway. Each standard carries a 600 candle power nitrogen lamp backed by a double dome reflector with transparent fixtures. The standards are somewhat higher than those of the old white way on West Main street, but they are adapted scientifically with regard to the greatest effect, and are placed in step formation on either side of the street 50 feet apart.
With this present lighting system, Moncton has now the best lighted Main street in the Maritime Provinces.

ENDS LIFE IN CHURCH GALLERY

Manchester Man Climbs to Golden Gallery and Shoots Himself.

London, Dec. 18.—Thos. Smith, a variety agent of Manchester, drew a revolver in the Golden Gallery of St. Paul's Cathedral a few days ago, high above London, pressed the trigger and fell with a bullet wound in the head.

Launch-time crowds were in the streets, and the carrying of the man down the steps of the Cathedral and his swift despatch to the hospital created a great sensation.

He had entered the Cathedral alone, and after walking round the altar, bought a ticket for the Whispering Gallery, to which he ascended with a number of other visitors and an attendant. Then he took another ticket, and passed on—one of a little group—to the Golden Gallery, which runs round the base of the lantern above the great dome and commands a wonderful view of London.

There was nothing whatever in his manner or bearing to excite suspicion or comment, and he remained in the gallery after the other visitors had descended.

Suddenly there was the sound of a shot. An attendant rushing into the gallery, and there found Mr. Thos. Smith, still living. By his side was a revolver from which one cartridge had been fired.

The public were at once cleared from the upper parts of the cathedral. Meanwhile, the police undertook the difficult task of carrying the man down the narrow, winding staircase. This was a matter of some time and difficulty.

MILL FELL INTO RIVER
The Miramichi river undermined the Seacane Lumber Company's mill at Woodville, Northumberland Co., and the whole plant, with the exception of the boiler and power house, was precipitated into the channel of the river when the dam above the mill gave way recently.

REMEMBER THE NEEDY
Amidst the hurry and bustle of the weeks gift shopping and the gaiety of the Yuletide season let us not forget those less fortunate upon whose Christmas in comparative luxury a duty devolves to contribute to any that may be in need. We do not know of any serious cases but there may, indeed, be a few of which we have no knowledge.

Each year, with the arrival of cold weather, disturbing facts are brought to light. Cases are disclosed where dire need exists. This year as last there are, no doubt, a few similar instances. It is to be hoped that welfare workers and others who can find the necessary time despite the many demands of the season, will not forget to make an effort in this connection.

If few cases are disclosed so much the better. But neglect might be the cause of some poor children spending a drear and cheerless Christmas. The local Salvation Army are already preparing for their annual effort in this Christmas work and it might be well for all other societies—unless they are familiar with present conditions—to join forces with the army. This religious body are constantly on the alert in work of this nature and combined efforts would naturally tend to eliminate the possibility of overlapping of effort.

In being asked to contribute towards this purpose many may contend that there are cases which are unworthy of assistance. This may be true. Improvident spending in better times may be the cause of the plight in which some find themselves but if there are children to suffer, it would be a crime to neglect them. That there may be impostors is true, but if each case is carefully looked into the efforts of those who help can be made well worth while.

A CHRISTMAS MESSAGE

The Christmas Season with its feasting and merriment is with us once again. We see its influence reflected from the many happy faces as they pass us by. There seems to be a subtle magic in the air that is expressed by a heartier handclasp and a warmer welcome.

What a joyous glad some ring there is to that good old-fashioned wish of 'Merry Christmas,' that we get from our friends.

'The same to you and many of them,' we cheerfully answer back, with a sparkle in the eye.

For Christmas is the one seabickerings and cares of business and fills our hearts with human love and understanding and sympathy; and poor indeed is he whose heart or purse does not respond to its magic call. Truly at this season, 'The Bethlehem Message,' is a living inspiration.

We feel we cannot better express our feelings and wishes to our many friends in more fitting words than those of poor crippled Tiny Tim in Dickens' delightful fantasy, 'A Christmas Carol.'

'God Bless Us Every One.'—Ex.

A CHEERING STATEMENT

In a rather heated discussion of political matters the Moncton Times endeavors to prove that all the hard times, if there have been any, suffered by Kent county were caused by the Liberal administration. In fact it goes out of its way to say that all the people who, in recent years, have gone away, have gone to the United States. This is not true, as many of them have located in other parts of Canada, and are not lost to our Dominion.

It is true that some have been attracted to the United States but these, we are glad to learn, are returning home.

The Moncton Transcript takes its contemporary to task as follows:—

'Our morning contemporary stresses the fact that many Maritime Province people have gone to the United States to take advantage of the abnormally high wages which for a time were offered there. It very neatly ignores the fact that a great number of these men have returned. That is a fact that cannot be denied.

For example, one of the boats running between Boston and the Maritime Provinces recently brought back on one trip alone more than thirty Maritime Province men who had gone to the New England States a year ago. They had found themselves out of work and declared that they were glad to get back. We all know that American contractors cannot continue to pay from $14 to $27 a day to plasterers and bricklayers. They do it for awhile and it was natural that hundreds of Maritime workmen should be hurried there by such high pay. Eventually, as contracts were fulfilled, the builders and others refused to undertake new work on that basis with the result that in one week in New York State more than $100,000,000 worth of construction work was postponed. Times across the border are not nearly as good as they were six months ago, and the next year is bound to see the return of thousands of Canadians to their own country, British Columbia which lost in much the same way as the Maritime Provinces, is also getting back its former sons in much the same way as the Maritime Provinces.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The trade of Canada showed a large gain in the year ending Nov. 30, and this applies both to export and import trade. It is a healthy sign.

This is one of the children's days. The closing exercises of the schools before the Christmas holidays afford an opportunity for parents to visit the class-rooms and take note of the progress of the young people in their studies. Too few parents take advantage of the opportunity, but for the children it is a day of days.

It is a firm moral truth that revenge and wrong bring forth their kind; that the sheer destruction of a great entity like Germany could not fail to react on her destroyers in the most far-reaching ways—moral, political and economic—and that if any of the victims in the late war seeks security, it is through assuagement, and not through the jack-boot, that alone it may be found.

Good Suggestions.

Mr. Rush—Say there, attendant, I'm a busy man and can't wait any longer. Tell the doctor if I am not admitted in a minute, I shall get well again.

Dr. Rush—Ah! good morning! Step right in at once.

CAMPBELLTON MAY HAVE A WINTER CARNIVAL

long winter months and no doubt everybody will be in favor of the proposed undertaking. That is not the point however. Mere acquiescence will add no momentum to the move. Whether the enterprise makes any headway or not will depend entirely upon how much active interest is aroused among the people.

A successful winter carnival would obviously be a splendid means of advertising Campbellton and bringing outside people into our town. Besides the many other points it has to recommend it, a successful affair of this nature would undoubtedly tend to stimulate business at both our stores and hotels during a quiet part of the year when all of us welcome activity in that line.

Albert LaBelle Now Sales Mgr.
For Salada Tea Company
At Montreal.

The Christmas Season has brought cheerful news to the home of Hon. G. H. and Mrs. LaBelle. Their son Albert, who since he received his discharge from the militia at the close of the great war, has been in the employ of the Salada Tea Company of Montreal, as travelling salesman, was last week, on his return from a business trip for the firm, to St. John Moncton and New Glasgow, promoted to the responsible position of Sales Manager of the firm, with headquarters in Montreal.

Mr. J. M. Colton, their second son-in-law, Government Radio Inspector, who carried on the work in Montreal in Summer, and in St. John, N. B. in winter, has also been promoted and after this winter, he will be the Radio Inspector at Montreal permanently. This proposition would have been carried out early in the fall had Mrs. Colton and her little son been in real good health. As they had moved to St. John, after the long illness of the child, it was considered advisable not to give the infant a second trip. The Government kindly acquiesced to Mr. Colton's desire to spend the winter in St. John, in view of the illness of his little son, who is now improving nicely.

Happenings of The Week

As far as the part of Dalhousie is concerned, navigation has ceased. All light-keepers have been removed from the river and bay, although the light-houses are still in operation.

Latest reports from the Soldiers Memorial Hospital, Campbellton, indicate that two Dalhousie men, patients there, are improving. Patients will be pleased to see W. A. Simpson and Angus Fraser home for Christmas.

PLAN TO INVITE MISS CANADA

Move in Shiretown to Have Canada's Queen Attend Carnival.

Dalhousie, N. B. Dec. 17.—Some of our citizens have been suggesting to Mr. H. J. Truett, who is the proprietor of the Dalhousie skating rink, one of the largest in New Brunswick, and splendidly fitted with a grand reception room etc., to plan to have Miss Canada visit the North Shore of New Brunswick, during the early part of next winter. Our people who have visited St. John, N. B. and had the pleasure of meeting Miss Winnifred C. L. Blais, speak so highly of her, that many of our citizens would be disposed to make a financial sacrifice if necessary, to have the distinguished young lady, who has done such honor to our Province, attend a carnival in Dalhousie, and possibly Campbellton and Riverview citizens would join to make the demonstration a grand one.

MISS CANADA
Miss Canada, our fair and gracious Queen of the Year, is justly proud to claim these for her very own.

Our Legation President's duty is to glorify in the widespread renown.

CHORUS
All hail to thee Miss Canada!
Lead thou thy people ring out from these shores to thee art forevermore.

Dear to our hearts thou art forevermore.
Miss Canada, our first Darling Queen,
Design our hearts with beauty, love and grace,
True type of fair womanhood that makes our land rejoice,
Thy modesty and winsomeness will glory to thy folk.
(Signed) Mrs. Paul Seavey.

CONDITIONS GOOD IN DALHOUSIE

Outlook Very Favorable For Cherry Xmas And Prosperous New Year.

Dalhousie, N. B. Dec. 19.—The Christmas season with all its joys is with us once again. The little snow that fell last night seems to have put a smile on the people. The first sign of snow brought cheer into the hearts of the shiretown. It is no wonder for never before, were the streets in Dalhousie so well cleared for the holiday trip.

The citizens of our town will enter the Christmas week in cheerful mood, as the year 1936, which is now its end, has been a fairly satisfactory one. Dalhousie has not witnessed any great fire during recent months, no sickness of a serious nature. The year has been very successful. Several new houses have been built and our land-holders have seen to it that the houses of their tenants have been improved and repaired to be made comfortable for our cold winter. Every man who wished to work found employment during the summer, and the pay by our three mills, have been regular, consequently the laboring classes have been able to improve their homes, pay their rents and pay considerable on accounts of past obligations. With our increasing population the people of the shiretown knowing that the year 1937 is to be one of great progress for Dalhousie, will continue those who take delight in "knocking" the place to either friends or strangers to criticism in an honest and constructive way and not destructively.

In town meetings, we must add cheerfulness and cordiality. It all helps and helps to build up the town. It is an easy matter to make the town a better place.

We should all be proud of our little town. We cannot expect to keep pace with other towns that are situated on the main line of railway and otherwise well located geographically.

We have splendid advantages. In addition to what appeared in the last Graphic about our fine harbor, water and lighting system, we have our wide streets and new concrete sidewalks. The work done this year is a credit to our town council and to the veteran master Mr. John Dickie. The sidewalks on Adelaide and Brunswick streets cannot be surpassed anywhere.

SIR HENRY THORNTON'S PREDICTION
(Canadian Press)
Weather, Oct. Dec. 17.—Prediction that within the next three years the Canadian National Railway would be the finest transportation system in the world and no longer a burden to the people of the country, was made by Sir Henry Thornton, President of the Canadian National Railway, to a joint meeting of the Board of Directors of the Canadian and the Railway Club here recently.

Fighting the Storm

Below—One of the Canadian Pacific rotary snow plows, of latest design.

IN certain portions of Canada and the United States, the successful and regular movement of trains during the winter months often depends upon the use of special equipment, the purpose of which is to remove snow and ice from the tracks, and from the direct right of way. As a matter of fact, no railroad in Canada or in the northern parts of the United States could hope to operate without a complement of snow-fighting equipment.

In a study of snow-fighting equipment it is interesting to note that its development is very largely due to Canadians and to Canadian railways, although snow conditions in Canada are no more severe than those met with on roads passing over the Rocky or Cascade Mountains in the United States, or through the border States. The principal types of snow-fighting equipment may be generally classified as engine and pilot plows, which are attached to the engine front or pilot, push plows, self-contained units mounted on trucks and pushed by a locomotive, wing plows, spreader plows, machine plows which include the rotary machine, flangers, ice cutters and snow sweepers.

As far as can be ascertained, the first snow plow ever built was of the push plow type. As this plow derailed frequently, an endeavor was made to take advantage of the weight of the locomotive, and thus the engine plow was evolved.

The present rotary plow used on roads, which have to fight deep drifts, snow slides or other conditions beyond the capacity of push plows, is the result of a long evolution. These plows can work their way through deep cuts and slides where it would be impossible for any other type of plow to lift the snow.

These plows present a rather picturesque appearance when viewed from the front. The rotary plow, as was shown in a development of a revolving snow shovel, patented in 1889 by Mr. J. W. Elliott, a dentist, of Toronto, Ont. This elementary device was modified by Orange Jull, of Orangeville, Ontario, and the Jull rotary was taken up by the Leslie Brothers, also of Orangeville, who constructed a full-sized model which was tried out in the Parkdale yards of the Canadian Pacific in 1894. The success of this trial led the Leslie Brothers to have made for them a complete plow which was tried out by the Union Pacific Railroad during the winter of 1896-97. This plow was the forerunner of the modern rotary plow.

For many years the Canadian Pacific Railway has constructed its plows of steel. It was the first railway to build and use an all-steel plow, and the service given by this type has been mainly responsible for the all-steel construction of the modern rotary plow. The heavy steel plows, which are used at times, particularly in Ontario and through the Rockies, being now an impediment to traffic.

QUEBEC LEGISLATURE CONVENED TO-DAY

Officially Opened by the Lieutenant Governor at 2 o'clock.

Quebec, Dec. 17.—With numerous guests in attendance, including state and church representatives, and featured by unusual brilliancy, the 16th legislature of the Province of Quebec was officially opened this afternoon at 2 o'clock by the Hon. L. F. Brodeur, Lieutenant Governor.

Among those in attendance were His Excellency Cardinal Elie, the Lord Bishop of Quebec, Sir Lorne and Lady Gouin, Hon. Ernest LaPointe and Mrs. LaPointe, Monsignor Marois, Grand Vicar, His Grace Monsignor Gauthier, Archbishop of Montreal; members of the supreme court, representatives of the Bar, and various civic officials.

"SATURDAY, BATH NIGHT"

British Air Ministry Make Domestic Discovery!

Guiding into the ranks of domestic organization, the Air Ministry, in a report on atmospheric pollution, issued by a committee of the London County Council, has discovered that "in the suburbs of London, Tuesday is washing day and Saturday is bath night."

This remarkable contribution to scientific knowledge is more interesting as regards the process of investigation than it is in the result achieved.

On inquiry at the Air Ministry a London Mail reporter was unable to ascertain what method was employed by the experts of the Ministry to make the discovery.

Washing on the line, of course, would be detected at a medium altitude, but the flow of water from a bath pipe is neither conspicuous nor regular, and the problem of the withdrawal plug would puzzle the most experienced aviator.

Also, what, if any, effect these intimate domestic practices have on the pollution of the atmosphere is an unanswerable point. Further, professional washerwomen are at variance with the Air Ministry. They say that Monday is the day devoted to the weekly wash.

Child Welfare Work

Child welfare work which is regarded by health authorities as the chief factor in reducing the infant mortality rate in New Zealand below that of any other country in the world has now been introduced in Australia, where a similar desire for improvement in health conditions for children is anticipated. Of the results already achieved an Australian official writes: "Fifteen years ago the death rate among children under one year was the same for both Australia and New Zealand—about eighty in one thousand. By 1921 the death rate in New Zealand had fallen to forty-seven, while the Australian rate stood at sixty-nine. In New South Wales, which has the New Zealand system, the rate is now very little behind that of New Zealand. Our latest statistics show that since 1904, when the infantile death rate was 101.7 in 1,000, we have reduced it until it stands at 54 for 1922. Therefore, in New South Wales we now have only seven more deaths of children under one year of age per thousand than they have in New Zealand. The decline in the infant mortality rate in New South Wales has been very rapid since the introduction of the baby clinics in 1914. These provisions of similar agencies, such as our welfare centres and training schools for nurses—where the Plunkett system is vogue in New Zealand is being taught—have materially assisted in bringing about this most desirable decline."

Horrible Form of Torture

Execution on the wheel was a horrible mode of putting to death by torture formerly in use in Europe. A condemned criminal was first fastened to two pieces of wood in the form of a St. Andrew's cross, with his legs and arms extended, and had an hour or his shirt and thighs and of the fore and upper arms broken with blows with a bar of iron. After the he was attached to a small carriage wheel balanced on a stake, and allowed to suffer in this position till his limbs, sometimes several days after the breaking of his limbs. Later the punishment was so far mitigated that the criminal was put to death by a final blow on the breast, spine or neck before being exposed on the wheel, and sometimes he was strangled before even the breaking of his limbs took place. The torture was last used in Prussia about 1211.

Mushrooms and Spirits

Never take bananas with your whiskey, says a Scottish authority. And to take whiskey, brandy, or gin with mushrooms is asking for trouble. Here is another curious point about mushrooms. They must never be cooked twice. Freshly-cooked mushrooms are good and wholesome, but if one forms part of a stew and the stew is left to cool and then reheated, the mushroom becomes poisonous. Mushrooms are a valuable food. In this respect they beat potatoes and onions, and come next to beef and mutton. A mushroom contains three and a half per cent. of protein, a potato only two and a half per cent. One very strange mushroom is to be found in the British Isles—the fly-blown agaric, common in the Highlands of Scotland. It is very beautiful, but poisonous. One specimen is said to have made a man intoxicated for a whole day.

A Windfall

A windfall for Dundee charities has been left by a London Scot, G. Gardiner, who left $125,315. Mr. Gardiner expressed the desire to be buried in an inexpensive and unostentatious manner in a white coffin in All Saints Cemetery, Aberdeen. He left $50,000 to various charities, and sums to employes and others. Of the residue of his property he left two-fifths to the Dundee Orphan Institution, two-fifths to the Dundee Working Boys' Home, and one-fifth to the Institution for Training Homeless and Destitute Boys in the training ship Mars or other training ship standing in the river Tay.

Thistles Edible

In Scotland, despite the "Wha daur meddle wi' me!" motto, the national emblem is often devoured by hungry youths. The thistle head, having been cut off, is shorn of its down, and the centre eaten like a cone, which it somewhat resembles in taste and consistency.

Lifeboats

One day a man named Weather was out walking when he was struck by an old woman to help her lift a can of water which had fallen from a broken wooden bowl.

The boy was standing on the surface of the water, and as he talked to the woman, Weather turned it righted itself. Amused by its antics he repeated the performance; then it struck him that he had made a wonderful discovery. The result of his chance meeting was the self-righting can which was patented by him on the lines of the broken bowl.

What he had discovered was that anything made of floating material and shaped like one half of a bowl could float only with its convex surface downwards. A boat made of these lines cannot remain upside down for more than an instant when it is struck over by a wave.

PLAYERS PREPARE FOR THE SEASON

Local Tam Met Tuesday—Manager For This Winter Not Yet Announced.

At a meeting held Tuesday evening the local hockey squad took further steps towards re-organizing the team for the coming season. So far it is not announced who is to be the manager this year or whether or not the team's business will be taken care of by one or a managing committee of two or more. It is understood that both Moncton and Chatham will enter teams in the northern section of the league, so the possibility of a hitch in this connection is no longer likely.

It is not definitely known whether the local senior squad will operate independently or join up with the Athletic Club but this will no doubt depend upon the outcome of the Club's campaign for members and financial support. If the drive is not successful the club of course will have no advantages to offer the hockeyists and until the drive is over no definite proposition can be offered. However, whether the local team starts the season's activities independently or not it should receive liberal support from all sides.

For reasons, familiar to the hockeyists concerned, the schedule has not yet been published but this will appear in a week or so.

WILL ESTABLISH WEEKLY PAPER
A weekly newspaper to be known as the St. John Saturday Night is to be published in St. John and will make its first appearance on December 20. The publishers, The St. John Saturday Night Publishing Co., announce that their purpose is not to turn out a large newspaper but to establish a small weekly which they hope to make interesting and instructive, especially from a civic standpoint taking definite stands upon subjects of vital interest to the citizens of St. John. Most other cities in Canada have weekly newspapers, which do not attempt to usurp the field of the dailies in giving news when it is news. The publishers, when asked about this proposed weekly, said that a policy which would govern the paper's activities would be outlined in the first issue. Ralph G. McInerney has resigned from the staff of the Telegraph Journal to assume the managing editorship of The St. John Saturday Night.

FEDERAL POLITICS

While the Toronto Mail and Empire is asserting that Parliament should be summoned early in the new year to deal with the sales-tax, which it denounces with great vigor as a most oppressive measure, the Ottawa Citizen looks for a late beginning of the session at Ottawa. It says: "Indications point out to a late session of parliament this year. There will be no announcement about it until after New Years and it will be well on in February before the convocation is called together, while there is even talk that it may be only in March. The government this year will not go to parliament until it is ready with its programme, and in preparation of that conditions such as the illness of the minister of finance operate for delay. It will probably be a rather strenuous session because, apart from the character of the deliberations, is the fact, once re-distribution is passed, a new election is always in the potential background, and the disposition is to store up political powder for the fray. A late opening will mean a session running into the hot weather unless by chance the balmy atmosphere of late passages winter next July."

A good deal of importance is attached to the result of the Kent by-election. The Citizen says it is very important for the Government to hold Kent, and the Progressive leader has expressed the view that it loss would mean a general election next year.

It is quite plain that the Conservatives intend to make the coming session a fighting one, and there is certain to be a strong demand from their side of the house for a higher tariff on some lines of manufactured goods. Reports in Montreal and Toronto papers of speeches made by manufacturers are a clear indication that they want more protection.

A Great Tribute to a Great Canadian

A new photograph of the LATE LORD SHAUGHNESSY, taken shortly before his death.

THE death of Lord Shaughnessy, which increased the loyalty he always inspired in those who were associated with him, brought back into the public mind something of the history of those days, immediately following upon Confederation, in which Canada took her first strides towards nationhood. He was one of the last of that remarkable group of pioneers with imagination to see Canada's potential future and the force of character to give it such a start towards realization as did the building of the Canadian Pacific Railway. Great men all, Lord Shaughnessy was as great a nation builder as any, but his personality test no thing of its humanity as his greatness became more widely recognized.

The tribute paid his memory by the Canadian Pacific Railway, is a just appreciation by one who knew him as intimately as another man could. Mr. Beatty said:

"The death of Lord Shaughnessy has removed from Canadian life its most outstanding figure. Public men have come and gone, and their respective merits as I think have been duly appreciated by the people of this country. But in no single instance, so far as my observation goes, has one man combined the achievement, the mentality, the force of character and the human qualities of generosity, charity and consideration for his fellow-men in the same degree as the late Chairman of the Canadian Pacific Railway."

"Always in as a strict disciplinarian, but his discipline was impersonal, and his warm Irish disposition reflected itself in numerous

UNHAPPY FATE OF VERDUN.

Gate of France Is Now Only Mere Shell.

Verdun was the gate of France before the war. Now it is a shell. More than a quarter million French soldiers were killed around it; yet the city that saw so much may never be rebuilt.

Other French cities that were shattered by war are being rehabilitated. Verdun, being rebuilt by a rich Hollander in memory of a French soldier friend who died there in 1916. But Verdun was not merely destroyed; the occupation of the city was swept away by the war.

Verdun in times of peace thrived on the possibility of war. It was considered the key to France from a military standpoint, and thirty thousand soldiers were garrisoned there. These soldiers had to be fed, and had to spend their pocket money somewhere. So the soldiers supported the city of 21,701 inhabitants.

Strangely enough, victory for France brought poverty to Verdun. No longer is it a battle zone to be guarded. The locality of possible conflict is far to the east. Only a few hundred soldiers now are stationed in Verdun.

So Verdun must turn to some other business than taking care of soldiers. It would do so willingly if it had factories. Other cities that had factories demolished by the German guns will see them rebuilt. The treaty of peace calls for reconstruction of devastated regions from money received as reparations. But only buildings of the type destroyed may be rebuilt at public expense. Thus Verdun, which needs factories must build garages with the public money it receives. It does not need garages, and so its problem seems incapable of solution.

Begged His Ink.

When Thomas Cooke died in London, England, a mob threw cabbage-stalks at his coffin. Were they right? He left nearly $500,000 to the local almshouses. Yet he was one of the most degraded of men, according to some people. He was the son of an itinerant fiddler of Windsor, before life as a porter, obtained employment in the Excise, and worked there with eight shillings in his pocket.

Very soon he ingratiated himself into the good opinion of the confidant of a rich brewer, who died. Cook persuaded the widow that the only chance she had of keeping the fortune together was to marry himself. This she consented to do, and Cooke became a wealthy man.

His eccentricities, which were really cloaks for his meanness and his frauds, were regarded as a freak of nature, and, as Cooke seemed worth cultivating, presents of geese, turkeys, horses, wines, and other things rained upon him.

He begged his ink from offices. When he became ill he dressed himself in rags, and beseeched physicians to take pity on his poverty.

Oil From Beechnuts.

Measures were taken by the Minister of Agriculture in Holland not long ago to increase the supply of edible oils in that country by increasing full use of the domestic beechnut crop. It is estimated that between 2,000 and 2,500 metric tons of these nuts may be collected if every effort be made, and that from this amount of raw nuts 300,000 to 400,000 kilos of oil may be obtained. This would afford a valuable addition to the stocks of edible oils in the Netherlands.

Owners of private lands from which beechnuts are gathered receive compensation at the rate of 5 per cent. of the value paid to the gatherers, and they also enjoy the right to enjoy cattle masts, prepared from the pulp of the nuts from their property at 50 florins per 100 kilos.

Dancing "Pumps."

Why are evening dress shoes called "pumps"? Before the French Revolution the French dictated the world's fashions for men as well as for women. When special "indoor" shoes were first made—shoes meant to be worn indoors only—they were worn solely on ceremonial occasions by very wealthy people. The ordinary man still used the same shoes indoors and out.

These special shoes might be compared with the elaborate Court Dress of to-day, since they were worn by the same class of people on similar occasions.

The French term for an occasion of great ceremony was pompe, the same word as our pomp and circumstance. And so the special shoe for a pomp came to be spoken of as Pompe, which was in the course of time have turned into Pumps.

Kick the Bucket.

Did you ever hear the expression "Kick the bucket." It arose in the days of the great gold rush to California and Australia in 1849-51. Many unfortunate seekers after gold, losing their all in an unavailing effort to find the precious "dust," committed suicide. The suicide tied a rope to a beam in his hut. Then, standing on an upturned bucket, he would adjust the other end of the rope round his neck. When all was ready he simply kicked the bucket from under his feet.

Queer Cargo.

The queerest cargo ever taken overseas by a British steamer was that recently discharged at a Moroccan seaport. It consisted of two million gallons of water, required for the use of the Spanish troops who were fighting in Morocco. A shipwrecked in the Mediterranean, the coast near by being strewn with "false gold" of all descriptions.

He Wondered.

A Scotch doctor, who was attending a laird, had instructed the butler of the house in the art of taking and recording his master's temperature with a thermometer. On replying to the house one morning he was met by the butler to whom he said: "Well, John, I hope the laird's temperature is not any higher today." The man looked puzzled for a moment, and then replied: "Well, I was just wondering that myself. Ye see he died at two o'clock."

EDITOR'S MAIL

Campbellton, N. B.
December 18th., 1923

The Editor,
The Campbellton Graphic.

Dear Sirs:

I have noticed a certain newspaper item published in the Campbellton "Tribune," which states that I, the undersigned, was found guilty of selling liquor in the Police Court at the Town of Campbellton on the twelfth day of December.

With reference to this item, I wish to state that I was not found guilty of peddling liquor, and as a matter of fact have never been charged with such an offence. I admit I was tried before Police Magistrate and charged with an offence contrary to the provisions of the New Brunswick Intoxicating Liquor Act, but the charge which was laid against me was for having liquor in my possession other than in the private dwelling-house in which I reside. To this charge I plead guilty, and wish to state through the columns of your valuable paper that the report as published in the "Tribune" was not correct, and that I object to this item being circulated throughout the length and breadth of the country, as the report above mentioned clearly insinuates that I was guilty of boot-legging.

It has been called to my attention that some people are allowed to walk the streets of your town with liquor in their possession, and so plainly visible that the inspectors could not help but notice the bottles sticking out of their pockets, and yet no information are laid against such offenders against the N.B. Prohibition Act. At the same time I was arrested and held in the jail for having a bottle of whisky in my possession in a room in a hotel here, where I was neither disturbing or making a nuisance of myself. Surely such an act as practiced by this inspector upon me is hardly fair when they allow other cases to go un-noticed.

Thanking you for the space for the publication of this letter, I remain
Yours very truly,
Warren A. Kenny

BRITISH EMPIRE EX.

Stupendous Undertaking — Largest Buildings Nearing Completion.

Both the King and the Prince of Wales are taking a personal interest in the British Empire Exhibition, and the acceptance of the presidency by the prince has influenced many of those who were at one time inclined to be lukewarm in their support. These and other facts about the steadily growing city of Wembley were told recently by Sir James Stevenson, the chairman of the board.

"The past three months," said Sir James, "have been strenuous days, but have made a tremendous difference to the appearance of the grounds at Wembley. Most of the buildings are now under way, and every day sees some definite progress in one direction or another. It is hoped that the Palace of Engineering and the Palace of Industry, the two largest buildings in the Exhibition, will be completed soon. So far we have been content to say that the Exhibition will be open in April. Before long we hope to settle the day of the month on which the opening ceremony will take place."

"I want to say quite frankly," he added, "that the Wembley enterprise is nothing whatever to do with questions of economic policy. It is an exhibition first and last, and will be an Empire show window. It is a stupendous undertaking. Its representative character is as yet but dimly appreciated by the great mass of people. Never before in the history of the world have the manifold activities of a nation been so fully presented."

Cancer Experiments.

The cause of cancer is, in the opinion of medical authorities, nearer solution owing to recent experiments carried out by Dr. A. H. Drew, a member of the staff of the Imperial Cancer Research Fund. Cancer tumors have been cultivated and actually made to live in the laboratory, and it has been possible to study the power of the cancer cells. Dr. Drew used a special saline solution, and it produced cure of human tissue.

Scottish Deer Come High.

Deer stalking in Scotland was in full swing earlier than usual this season, signs being in good condition and more forward than is customary. The rule upon which deer forest rentals are based, thirty pounds per stag, will give a good idea of the large amounts that leases pay for forests. Not more than a stipulated number of stags (and hinds) may be shot, and when it is remembered that the season at most lasts a couple of months, deer stalking is pretty dear sport. Of course, many forests are let at an inclusive rental, for deer, grouse and fishing, but it may be taken as a fact that every stag brought down in a Highland forest costs the lessee something like $250 all told.

Scottish Housing Statistics.

Scottish housing statistics, dated schemes to July 31, 1923, accounted 21,651 new houses being completed. The following figures have just been made public. Permanent houses completed, 18,614; temporary houses completed, 665; reconstructed houses completed, 101; houses completed under the private subsidy scheme, 2,371. There are 3,395 houses at present under construction in connection with housing schemes carried out by local authorities and public utility societies. The total amount paid by the Scottish Board of Health in respect of the 2,371 houses completed under the private subsidy scheme is $2,722,850.

Not Guilty.

An old negro went to the office of the commissioner of registration in a Missouri town and applied for registration papers. "What is your name?" asked the official.

"George Washington," was the reply.

"Well, George, are you the man who cut down the cherry tree?"

"No, sub, I ain't de man. I ain't done no work for nigh on to a year."

Hurrings and Radio.

Herrings if they could talk would not bias the radio. Used by herring on the Swedish coast for following the course of the fish, it brings the boats home sooner with fish.

FRUIT SHORTCAKE
1 cupful flour, 3/4 teaspoonful baking powder, 2-4 teaspoon salt, 1-2 to 1 cup of milk.
Use the method for mixing biscuits. Divide the dough in half and roll each half the size and shape. Place one layer on a greased pan, butter slightly, and place the other layer on top of the first, bake fifteen minutes in a hot oven. Split the cover with crushed fruit. Place the oranges or cranberry sauce on top and cover with fruit. Strawberries, raspberries, or fresh or canned peaches may be used.

Mix the sugar, cornstarch, salt, and spices, and sift them together three times. Add cold water to egg white, and beat slightly, but not until foamy. Put nuts into a coarse strainer and dip up and down in the egg white. The object of this is to have a very thin coating of eggs while completely covering the nuts. Drain. Place a small amount of the sugar mixture on a sheet of paper and roll the nuts in it. In a shallow pan put a quarter-inch layer of the sugar mixture. On this arrange the coated nuts so they do not touch each other. Cover with the sugar mixture. Bake in a very slow oven for three hours. When the nuts are done every portion should have a thin coating of the sugar mixture, and the nuts should be very crisp and dry.

The Christmas Holidays
We are again approaching the Season which is endeared to us all by so many tender recollections, from earliest childhood the remembrance of Christmas festivities are indelibly stamped upon our memory. No other holiday, however important, has been able to vie with it, or to afford so dear a place in our affections. Nor does our interest in the holiday grow less with the passing years, on the contrary, it seems to increase as time adds responsibilities to our lives. This surely is true of no other festival which we celebrate. There must therefore be a well established cause for such a remarkable circumstance. The first and probably the greatest reason is the spirit of utter self-forgetfulness in which it is observed. All our plans are made with a view to the pleasure or enjoyment of others. We are thus unconsciously exemplifying the spirit, and life of

Let Science Direct The Making of Your Menus

In these modern days there is so much said about the right and wrong ways of feeding the family that the old-fashioned housewife, and perhaps the very modern one for that matter, may well be in doubt as to just what is best to buy.
High or low cost of food products selected should not be the cheap factor in the choice, but what will keep the family fed for the human machine at the highest point of efficiency. There must be a certain amount of vegetables, fruits, meats or meat substitutes, bread or cereal, some fat, sugar and milk, even if things are scarce.
Protein, fat and carbohydrates must be made to yield 3,000 calories per day per man. This may sound like Chinese puzzle to the uninitiated, but it is not really so complicated when reduced to suggestions as to how best results may be brought about in arranging the family meals each day.
Beginning with breakfast, we should see to it that each member of the family gets a portion of fresh fruit or fruit juice or carefully stewed fruit, as a cereal with a little milk or cream on it and a dusting of sugar. Then should come eggs in some form with buttered toast, bread or muffins. These are necessities. Of course, a bit of creamed potato or bacon may be added if desired. If fruit in the ways suggested is not at hand, then a tart fruit jelly may be substituted occasionally.
For dinner, a good soup, broth or chowder or else raw clams or oysters may form the first course. Follow this with a meat or fish dish, allowing at least a quarter pound portion per person. With the main dish, potatoes in some form and at least one other vegetable should be served. A good salad of lettuce, cabbage or cooked vegetables, dressed appetizingly, should follow the main course and in turn be followed by a short cake, pudding, custard, or other nourishing sweet, or else with toast, crackers, cheese and a bit of jelly. Supper or luncheon if the meals are reversed as they are in most cities, where the men cannot get home for the mid-day meal should include a

Do Your Xmas Cleaning Early
Every housewife has been through the experience of cleaning holiday dishes and silver at the last moment because they were forgotten until needed. Let us turn over a new leaf this year and clean them beforehand just in case they may be needed.
Take an odd morning and get out all the extra silver, for instance. Wash it all in hot soapsuds made of silver soap, then dry and clean it with a good paste or powder. When fast brush to remove any powder it has been rubbed with scalding water, dry it on lint-free cloth, then polish it with a dry diamond, using a soft brush to remove any powder or paste that may be left in ornamental designs. Finally, rub the things with your own warm, dry fingers, so to it that all those men that like to be "neat" are handed over as perfect. As the case may be, don't think it is clean, then take it out and discover what is soiled on all the folds from dust and at the same time have to do it up.
The next day clean the silver on the top shelves—just wash with some soap water and set them away. They will look as ready when the guests come. All the glassware should be washed another morning, and tumblers and water glasses should be washed, polished and returned to the shelves. The tea-cup and saucer should be washed in white, soapy, luscious water, using a lint-free, glass-cleaning cloth. Wipe, then on another clean cloth and polish them with a soft dry chamois. Should water bottles and cruets need washing, put a little vegetable washing powder and warm water in them and let them stand for a little while before washing. This will cleanse and brighten them within. Should they be stained or discolored, place some potato parings with a little water in the cruets and let it stand. Small pieces of soapy brown paper or small pieces of coal with warm water will do for the same purpose, soaking them around every little ware. If these simple things fail to cleanse, then try a little muriatic acid in the water. Coppers and brasses may be rubbed with a flannel cloth that has been wrung out of hot water, with a small amount of a very strong vinegar or vinegar a teaspoonful of salt and enough flour to make the paste. This will

Croup at Night

No longer causes alarm
WHEN the child seems croupy in the evening apply Vicks VapoRub over throat and chest. It usually cures a slight attack. If croup comes on without warning, use of Vicks often brings relief in 15 minutes—cures rough breathing, subsides the hoarse cough. Vicks is ideal for all children's cold troubles—it avoids so much dosing. Just as good for grown-ups' colds, and for cuts, burns, bruises, stings and skin itching.

VICKS VAPORUB
Over 17 Million Jars Used Yearly

vegetable soufflé or salad, plenty of bread and butter, perhaps also a cheese of some kind, and milk cocoa or a fruit drink for those who do not take tea or coffee. Then a light dessert of jelly and cake, fruit tart or custard may follow.
If the man of the family takes his luncheon, see that he has lightly-buttered bread sandwiches with fillings of meat minced with onion, fish with chopped peppers nicely seasoned, or sliced chicken with mayonnaise, lettuce and tomato, or some other tasty combination of the right sort. A lot of excellent potato salad adds variety occasionally, or a vegetable or fruit salad carefully prepared and dressed. Also, an attractive sweet such as cake, fruit pie or tart, and maybe a bit of cheese should be included.
Now all this does not sound difficult nor is it extremely technical. Of course the ideal food for children, and for grown-ups also, is milk. But for some reason most of us outgrow our taste for milk, so that it is sort of punishment if we are obliged to take an undue amount instead of the solid food we like better. Doctors and chemical scientists make us feel as though we were terribly complicated machines, yet it is so easy to keep well and happy if we are properly fed.

Money in Books.
The romantic discovery of $1,000 in bank notes, hidden between the pages of an old catalogue, was made lately by an English bookseller.
The widow of a well-known London cornmer, who died some time ago, decided to sell some of her husband's books. Amongst them was Arnold's "Strategic Instrument," which appeared to be nothing more than a catalogue, and was therefore marked as such. A second examination, however, showed that the catalogue was a list of the notes, which were very small, had been used as a box, together with the aid of a clear box.
The curious book was fitted with a glass box, and in order to make certain that no trace was visible within, the book was torn.
It held several pieces of paper, which proved to be bank notes, and to be the work of a very clever forger.
After the box was opened, the notes were found to be the work of a very clever forger.

FOR DARBY AND JOAN.

Homes for Aged Men and Women in England.
"A Darby and Joan" home for old age pensioners is to be opened. Applications have already been received by the Salvation Army from old folks who want to end their days in this new settlement.

Major Tucker told a London Chronicle representative that the premises secured near Tunbridge Bridge Wells will be ready by the end of the year.

This scheme is a development of the "Eveside" homes for women at Clapham, Sydenham, Hampstead Garden City, Fegwell Bay, Thorpe Bay and Manchester, which the Army have been carrying on for 12 years.

The number of poor old folks living together in pitiful circumstances, whose hearts would be broken if they were parted in little realizations. Major Tucker showed one letter, written in a delicate, educated hand, from an old man, aged 74, who for many years had lived with his wife in rooms.

Recently his wife died. She was 80, but he tended her to the last. "I am a poor lonely man, being half starved and worrying with a going to happen next," he wrote.

"My devoted wife two days before her death spoke to me and said, 'I want you, my dear Will, to bear up and be brave. My heart will be with you, so try and keep up our little home. I only want to live for you. I do not know how you will get along without me.'"

What worried him most was the terrible loneliness of his life. "I am left alone day after day, week after week. I am weary and miserable."

He has not gone without assistance, but how different might his case have been had there been a "Darby and Joan" retreat in which the couple could have taken refuge years ago.

Other cases have been investigated. One old couple have made an application whose ages are 75 and 83; another couple who have a cottage are afraid of being left alone, and they have no friends. There is a blind man of 70 without a friend in the world, whose one friend who looked after him for twenty years has died.

Daughters Sue Father.
Frederick Liver, a Lafayette county, Mo., farmer, is defendant in suits for remuneration for personal services filed by his daughters.
Edna Liver, 36, asks $10,000 as pay for $400 a year for the time she reached her eighteenth birthday.
Leona Liver, 34, asks $21,100 on the same basis, less $500 paid to her in cash in 1921.

Frederick Liver, who is 82 years old, originally owned a 40-acre farm near Ordor, Mo. The daughters say they were induced to remain on the farm and work on the promise that they would be paid and would be remembered in the father's will.

remove all dirt and stain. Then rinse the articles well in hot water.
If there is to be a dinner party, see to it that the dish-towels are in order and that there are plenty of them. Don't be forced to get new towels out in a hurry, for they are trying to use as they are stiff and take up little water. It is also a good idea to have some cheese-cloth squares to use. This plan saves the towels for the squares are really washed. See that the linens are fresh and clean, the fish-binders in order, and that there is a ball of asbestos cord on hand with which to truss the turkey. If you have asbestos gloves, your arms will not suffer from the oven heat while basting the bird or handling things taken from the hot oven.

Do What Mr. Buckingham Did

"Flu attacks the apparently strong as well as the weak. We believe, however, that if a person contracts flu, it is largely because he is run down. The person who enjoys good health is fairly well safeguarded against most diseases. Nearly everyone can enjoy good health by taking Carnol and keeping their system in a healthy condition. When your system is run down you leave yourself open to any disease. If you have had flu or your system is in a weakened condition, do what Mr. Buckingham did to regain his health. His letter tells how flu affected him and how he was restored to health:

"After the flu I was in a very weak and run down condition. I was tired, listless, had no strength and no desire to do anything. I had no appetite. I was nervous and depressed. I was losing weight. I read in the Calgary Herald that Carnol was good for all weak and run down conditions so I decided to try it. I used two bottles of Carnol and after taking them, felt strong and well. I consider Carnol the best tonic I have ever taken and have great pleasure in recommending it to others."—J. Buckingham, 621 14th Avenue, Calgary.

The existence of life on the planet Venus may be considered highly probable, according to Dr. Harlow Shapley, director of the Harvard Observatory. Venus, he says, is comparable to the earth in many ways, and it is likely that living organisms develop wherever conditions are suitable over a sufficient interval of time.

On no other bodies in the solar system, however, are conditions at all favorable for the existence of the higher forms of life. The average astronomical opinion is that low forms of organisms may exist on Mars, the high forms are very improbable, and that beings physically comparable with man are quite impossible.

Naval Base at Singapore

The recent action of the British House of Commons in appropriating something like 200 million dollars for the construction of a powerful naval base at Singapore, says the Army and Navy Journal, shows that Great Britain is fully alive to the necessity of securing for the navy free mobility in case of war.

According to an article in the London Times since the first Lord of the Admiralty announced plans for the naval base at Singapore, public attention has been directed towards that harbor, where miles of smooth water, protected by islands, lead up to the sheltered roadstead in which countless ships can lie untroubled by the storms and squalls which vex the tropical seas.

Round the harbor, chosen deliberately by the genius of Stamford Raffles a hundred years ago, there has grown up a great and fascinating city. It is the greatest trading centre of Middle Asia, and to it come innumerable native junks and sampans, bringing the tin and rubber of Malaya, and all the varied produce of the archipelago. There come also the larger ships from the China seas, with the silk, fruit, pottery, and rice of the middle kingdom, manufactured goods of Japan, and the vessels bringing meat and wool from Australia. This traffic has justified the wisdom of Stamford Raffles in insisting that Singapore should be a free port.

It is a wonderful sight to see the steamers surrounded by lighters and sampans crowded together a few hundred yards from the big wharves and great banking houses, and the ceaseless traffic to and fro, loading and unloading freight. One feels, as at every step one takes in Singapore, the curious combination of east and west. Here human labor is abundant, the overflow of overcrowded China. Boatmen, half-naked, with their wide basket hats, stand urging forward with absurdly long oars their craft, on the jaws of which are painted large eyes that they may see their way. The heavy labor of these hosts of coolies goes on alongside the most modern marine machinery, just as the rickshaws and bullock carts share the crowded streets with small and large motor cars.

At night when the great heat is over, one can watch this scene from the edge of the Padang, the great grass space running from the cathedral and the main hotels to the edge of the sea wall. Behind one is a dense crowd of Asiatics, and a small but dominant proportion of white-clad Europeans may be watching an exciting football match. The teams may be Europeans, Malay, Chinese, Eurasian, or mixed, and may speak any language from Portuguese to Tamil.

Boyle's Letter of Stevenson.
There has just been published in London, Eng., a boyish letter of Robert Louis Stevenson, in which he says, "I am a miserable, perverse, tremulous child's devil."
"I am changed to myself," he went on. "All my sham goodness—I mean all the cheerfulness and citizenship and sort of respectability that I had laid on is going away and away down the drain into everlasting space."
Signing himself "R. L. Mcdiot Stevenson, of Bedlam," he penned this hymn to nature:
"You must be very miserable, indeed, if you can be miserable in the open air. It stupides and wooms and amuses you; it is like some great healthy narcotic; and the visions are visions of green trees and men ploughing, and larks, and the golden morning clouds breaking and showing us the high blue sky beyond. After all, life is very livable under the blue sky. It is in houses mostly that the blue devil doth consort. Good bye. I am as fresh and jolly as the open air."

Isaak Walton.
Isaak Walton's little fishing cottage at Shallowford, not far from Norton Bridge railway station, about six miles from Stafford, is undergoing restoration. A restoration committee has been formed, who have purchased the cottage from the authorities at Stafford entrusted, under Walton's will, with its care. When the roof has been thatched, the windows will be glazed with small panes of glass in accordance with old pictures. The cottage as restored consists of six small rooms, three on the first and three on the ground floor. When the work has been completed, the cottage will present, as far as it is possible, a picture approaching that of the cottage in the days when Isaak Walton was in the habit of visiting it, and where tradition says he sheltered the persecuted Bishop Morley.

Repartee!
Of the stories about Whistler, the great artist and wit, the following is a good specimen, writes Edwin A. Ward, the well-known British portrait painter: "Whistler told me he was dining out shortly after his libel action against Ruskin, and was holding forth on the miserable methods of his adversary, when a lady who was sitting on his right expatiated with him upon the violence of his trade, saying: 'You perhaps are not aware that Mr. Ruskin is an uncle of mine?' 'Never mind, my dear madam,' ejaculated Whistler, 'we all have relations of whom we are more or less ashamed.'"

Queer Names.
The true name has several quaintly named occupations. "Piddling" is a good one, writes Edwin A. Ward. The first is a dealer in fresh second-hand goods, and the second a man who removes such things from fire and the third a man who deals with his feet.

The New Year.
Who comes dancing over the snow,
His little soft feet all bare and rosy?
Open the door, though the wild winds blow,
Take him in and hold him dear.
He is the wonderful New Year.
Open your heart, be it sad or gay,
Welcome him there and use him kindly.
For you must carry him, yes or nay—
Carry him with shut eyes so blindly
Whether he brings you joy or fear.
Take him, God sends him, this good New Year.

New British Seaplane.
A new seaplane, capable of firing a torpedo weighing three-quarters of a ton at a very high speed has been successfully tested on the Humber. This new naval terror has been constructed to the orders of the British Admiralty. The machine can travel to its objective at one hundred and forty miles an hour and maintain a speed in the air of one hundred miles an hour. A special piece of elevator controls the machine so as to sweep down almost vertically to deliver the torpedo. It is a great speed process, a very difficult target to anti-aircraft gunners. Sink under the barrage was a dummy torpedo, which was over more than thirty minutes before it was hit.

Influx of Tourists.
Tourists in Edinburgh were so numerous this season that many could not find accommodation in the hotels. English tourists who journeyed in motor cars and the night before last arrived in the city and found no accommodation. They were obliged to stay in the houses of friends and relatives. The hotel managers were very busy and many guests were compelled to refuse accommodation. They were obliged to stay in the houses of friends and relatives.

A Stone Which Weeps.
Truly awful is Pyrie Castle, Aberdeenshire, Scotland, the ancient home of Lord Leith. It possesses a secret chamber which has not been opened for centuries; a "Green Lady" ghost, which appears when misfortune or death threatens the family; and, built into the wall, a "weeping stone," made famous by Thomas the Rhymer, which weeps in wet weather and dries its tears in fine.

CARDINAL BEGIN'S PRONOUNCEMENTS

Lascivious Dances, Improper Plays and Pictures, Etc., Condemned.

Quebec Dec. 17.—In a pastoral letter and synodal decree of his Eminence Cardinal Beaudry, read in all Catholic churches of the city today, lascivious dances of all kinds are prohibited under pain of grave disobedience, while the fabrication and clandestine importation of intoxicating liquors are prohibited. The synodal decree on dancing, which was read at the same time as the pastoral letter, is as follows:

"We strongly condemn those dances which are lascivious, either themselves—such as the tango, the fox-trot, the camel-trot, the shimmy, the two-step, and others of the same kind, regardless of the name they bear, or in the manner in which they are danced—such as the waltz, polka and others, which commonly are lasciviously danced now. We strongly condemn these dances as directly proximate occasions of sin, and we expressly forbid them throughout the whole diocese, so that if anyone, which may God forbid—should dare to indulge in these dances, or all of which his children and servants indulge in them, or permit them to be danced in his house that person would commit a grave sin of disobedience."

CATCHING WITH MUSIC.

Classical Music and Gramophones Attract Rodents Into Traps.

The use of music with animals is well understood in the East, where the music is played to attract the animals to traps. Now it is suggested that gramophones could be installed in every house and barn, for it is said that the sweet strains of a Guards' band, the trill of a siren, or the top notes of a Cuckoo have a magical effect upon both milk and egg production, and that the hen who comes to roost remains to lay.

But even pleasure has its drawbacks, and what is most to the cow and the Buff Orpington in death and destruction to the rat and the mouse.
For instance, it is reported that the musical mouse-trap is extremely deadly, and that anyone bent on clearing his house or barn of these destructive rodents should not set a trap which can do nothing but wait for the coming of its prey, but one which can play, say, a Bash fugue or a waltz.

It has been found that the tinkling strains of music attract mice irresistibly, so that they wander gaily into the trap, thinking, evidently, that it is a concert arranged on their behalf. There are cases recorded of half-a-dozen being caught at once.

Dog's Nerve in Human Arm.
A dog's sciatic nerve, preserved in a bottle in a surgery, has been grafted into the shattered arm of a man.

The surgical miracle was described at a session of the Congress of the International Society of Surgeons in London. Dr. Gossel, of Paris, told how the patient came to him with an arm apparently useless and hopeless. It had no feeling and no power of movement.

A bottle on a shelf in the surgery contained the second-hand nerve of a dog, kept in spirits. The surgeon made a present of it to the patient and fixed it in its right place. In six months the patient returned to the arm, and in less than a year the patient could move it.

Photographs of grafted nerves in various stages were shown on the screen. A triumph in war surgery was exhibited in the persons of two young soldiers. Each had an arm bone smashed about the elbow. When the bones were mended it was found in each case that the hand hung powerless.

London was taken from the front of the wrist and put at the back, and the men proudly exhibited how well the wrist, hand, thumb and fingers could be moved. The operations were by Mr. Rowley Bristow, of London.

WEATHER TO ORDER.

World's Meteorologists Working at Puzzle of Rain-making.

Many scientists believe that the sun is not far off when we shall be able to control rain-clouds, forcing them to break up in rain over an area selected by us, and not by whimsical Mother Nature.

The latest theory is that rain-clouds can be "exploded" by electrified sand scattered down on them from airplanes.

This theory has lately been put into practice in the United States by Dr. Warren and Dr. Bancroft, of Cornell University. These two scientists have conducted experiments over a period of eighteen months, and have met with a considerable measure of success.

Before electrified sand was used many other methods of bursting clouds had been tried. High explosive shells had been fired into them, sulphuric acid and liquid air had been sprayed on them from balloons and airplanes. These methods are now regarded as obsolete.

It is anticipated that the electrified sand method will produce rain from an "immature" cloud—a cloud that is not sufficiently condensed to dissolve into raindrops.

The "immature" cloud is the despair of farmers. On a time of drought, these big clouds will drift over, full of rain and yet unable to break up in a shower.

In fact, the hotter the sun the less likelihood there is of the huge cloud dropping rain, for only a drop in temperature can effect the requisite condensation. The electrified sand produces artificially what a drop in temperature would produce naturally—a rainstorm.

So far only the light clouds that drift at levels of from 3,000 to 10,000 feet have been tackled. The great dark storm clouds that pile up, bursting with rain, have not yet been experimented on, for they are heavily charged with electricity, and dangerous to tamper with until more is known of rain-making.

With a perfected method we could produce a healthy rainfall in the Sahara, over which masses of water, never condensed sufficiently to make rain, continually float. We could also keep specific areas, such as a sports ground, an airfield, a city, free of rain by breaking up approaching clouds outside the area to be kept dry.

Good Night by Telegraph.
Telegrams sent at the night letter rate, which would be to be sent for the price ordinarily charged for ten, contain sundry kinds of messages, but there is one thing always included, says a telegram operator, and that is the words "good night."

"Few persons," he explained, "can think of enough important things to say in a telegram to make up fifty words even if the night letter be only of a social nature, such as a man away on the road would send to his wife. After he has told her that he arrived safely, that business was good, that he is well and happy and the family are there is nothing left to say. Wires of this sort usually run around forty words and it doesn't cost any more and it adds rather a homely touch to the wire that probably the wife will like."

Colors for Mourning Vary.
The colors used as badges of mourning vary in different countries. In this country, as in Europe, the ordinary color for mourning is black. In China, as with the ancient Spartan and Roman woman, it is white; in Turkey it is blue or violet; in Egypt, yellow; in Ethiopia, grey.

Some have attempted to trace the associations which caused the adoption of the various colors to natural causes. Thus black, which is the privation of light, is supposed very aptly to denote the privation of life; yellow is the color of leaves when they fall and signifies that death is the end of all human hopes.

In the East, to cut the hair was considered a sign of bereavement; among the Romans, on the contrary, it was deemed a mark of sorrow to let it grow.

The Metric System.
The metric system is proceeding slowly as regards its adoption in English-speaking countries. One suggestion which was made at a luncheon given in New York on May 6 by the Metric Association was that the conduct of international trade is at present hampered and confused by the circumstance that the content of the British gallon is greater than that of the American gallon. The recommendation was made that both Governments should abandon their standards and adopt in their place the liter as the common unit of capacity—Scientific American.

Kind of a Mean Shot.
A small-town constable in an east-coast town hailed a motorist. "Haven't you been reading the signs along the road?"

"Yes."
"What do they say?"

"Fifteen miles through town."
"You should have slowed down," declared the official. "One sign inside our town limits. You admit the signs are plain enough?"

"Yes," replied the motorist. "But why don't you label your towns?"

One of the Canary Islands possesses a rain-tree of the laurel species which sheds a copious shower of pure water from its foliage every evening.

Shipper a Dutch Word.
Our word "ship" is a variety of the Dutch "schip." In old days English people called the ship "schip."

While in Holland the mariner was called the "schipper," or, as we pronounce it, the skipper. Since there could be only one sailor in command, the shipman or the skipper gradually came to mean the Master Mariner.

In the days when New York and Cape Town were Dutch colonies they were the greatest sea ports. Blake and Clendinning Shovel swept their fleets off the coast, but they left their word skipper in our sea terms to remind us of their ancient glory.
