WHAT THE WESTERN FAIR

Today is "Farmers' Day" at the Western Fair, and the occasion provides sex farmer is scarcely realized until one has visited the Western Fair. Let us see what the fair would be without the farmer. The above picture, drawn to a scale, accurately represents the relative size of the agricultural community and the urban community of Middlesex County. London, of course, is not included in the calculation. But even were London's 40,000 people added to the urban population of the county, the latter would still be dwarfed by the agricultural community by nearly 2,000 souls. According to the census returns of last year the rural population of Middlesex County is 65,065, while the dwellers in towns and villages number only 23,645. If London's 40,000 were added to these last figures, the total urban population would still be less than the rural. Great is the Middlesex farmer. Without his presence the Western Fair could close its gates; its usefulness would be to

Grand Stand Attendance Yesterday Was Unrenally Large and the Attractions Excellent

Not in many years has London, the hospitable metropolis of Western Ontario, entertained so many guests as Household Furniture, Piano, Etc. trary to the predictions of the ubiquitare at present within her gates. Conous pessimist, the Western Fair, far from having gone to seed, is a greater attraction for sightseers than ever. One had only to join in the rush for the exhibition grounds yesterday to become convinced of this. The day was the one set aside by the directors as "Veterans' Day," but the attendance wasn't confined to veterans. Not only was the city and Middlesex County well represented, but thousands came from every corner of Western Ontario. The Michigan Central Railway report having handled 500 people from St. Thomas alone, a circumstance which affords some idea of the enormous passenger traffic over the various railways yesterday. London is famed for the number and excellence of its hotels, but yesterday they were inadequate to accommodate the crowds applying for accommodation. In one Dundas street hotel alone forty cots were brought into requisition, and placed in the corridors, giving the place the appearance of an emergency hospital; but even with the aid of this expedient, applicants for lodgings were turned away. The experience of every hotel and boarding-house in the city was the The crowds which went to Queen's the exhibition is at its best in every experienced a bad defeat yesterday by

Through some stupid misunderstanding, the big gates of the exhibition grounds were not opened immediately upon the conclusion of the evening performance, the result being | which worked satisfactorily. It was a that thousands of people were caught in a dangerous jam at the turnstiles. The turnstiles are an excellent device for handling the crowds entering the the Western Fair. THE RING PERFORMANCE

Grand Stand Crowds Were Large and

Attendance First Class Yesterday's performance, as viewed from the grand stand, was quite as well put on and as well received as that of the day before. The crowds in the stands were very large, and very appreciative. The same programme of attractions was presented and gave general satisfaction. The races were the best yet seen and probably the best that will be seen. Looked at from a grand stand point of view the day was a decided success. A clever and exceedingly well-arranged act is the lightning change done by the four Oliphans, who appeared for the second time last night. The different sketches throughout their act are distinct oddities. Although "horseplay" mainly constitutes the act, it is put on in such mirth-provoking style that even the most stoical are provoked to laughter. While in itself alone the act is a capable one, it is the more appreciated because of the scarcity of humorous acts throughout the bill. The four Oliphans' sketch shows hard training, and the utilization of some very good talent.

In the evening, Prof. Hand's fireworks fittingly concluded the performance. Many new ideas have been thoughout out by the expert pyrotechnist since last fair, and this year's fireworks are the best ever from the big grand stands. Prof. Hand representation of a Boer war camp baing attacked by an armored train, and was most realistic, and probably the best arranged set-piece ever put on at they had ever seen.

Paddy R. Captain Brino got his mark on an American track last year and won many good races, so that it was expected that he would "clean up" on a bunch of horses, such as were entered in the free-for-all. Paddy R., by Sir John, went into the race, and by dint of good piloting at the hands of his driver, and good work on his own part, won the race in great fashion. The first heat was wen handily by The first heat was won handily by Prince Vale, a little horse which showed good mettle and proved anything but a "quitter." The succeeding heats were decidedly interesting, and, strange to say, were practically repetitions of each other. Captain Brino or Prince Vale would generally get away well in front and would their places until the end of the back stretch on the second half was nearly reached. Then Paddy R., a wicked-looking little gelding, would be seen to gradually glide along and steal past the other two. When the three had reached the head of the stretch, the fight began, each driver using his whip freely and shouting frantically. Paddy R. was always too fast for the others, however. He repeated his act three times and won the race.

The mixed race went to Gay Rex, a pretty little horse, who won in straight heats and practically outclassed the rest of the field. The race was tiresome owing to the large field and the numerous scorings which were necessitated.

FLOWER EXHIBITS MAGNIFICENT Horticultural Building Never Had More

Gorgeous Displays. The horticultural building is this year a veritable garden of beauty, with its banks of palms and flowering plants and tables laden with cut flowers of every description, to say nothing of the masses of glowing autumn fruits.

The chief exhibitors of cut flowers are Mrs. Burns, of St. Marys; John S. Welch, A. J. Roberts and Thomas Dawes, of Stratford; and J. C. Mills, Miss Partridge, E. Wells and Richard Fletcher, London.

Taken as a whole the display of cut flowers is unusually fine, better, indeed, than it has ever been before, although some kinds of flowers are not quite as plentiful this year, owing to the cool, wet weather. This is the case with the gladioli, which are not as good as last year, and is true also of the sweet peas, although the latter are remarkably good, considering the time of the year and the kind of weather we have had. But 'tis an ill wind that blows nobody good, and the weather that has been hard on the sweet peas has been very beneficial to the pansies, [Continued on page 5.]

Pension Came Too Late.

Muskegon, Mich., Sept. 16 .- For many years John Long, a farmer living near here and a prominent G. A. R. man had tried to get a pension, and finally gave up all hope. Last Thursday Mr. Long died at his home, and the first rural route delivery Friday morning brought him his pension of $12 per month and back pay for many years.

FREE TO MILLIONS

A Valuable Little Book Sent Free for the Asking.

Medical books are not always interesting reading, especially to people enloying good health, but as a matter of fact scarcely one person in ten is perfeetly healthy, and even with such, sooner or later sickness must come. It is also a well-established truth that nine-tenths of all diseases originate with a breaking-down of the digestion, a weak stomach weakens and impoverishes the system, making it easy for disease to gain a foothold. Nobody need fear consumption, kid-

Man Takes the Place of His Friend i Jail at St. Louis, Mo.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 17 .- A Damon Meet in President Baer's Office and Pythias friendship developed in the boodle scandals here on Monday. Charles A. Gutke, one of the five former members of the house of delegates, confined in the city jail on charges of bribery and perjury, was informed of the death of his 11-yearold son, who had been sick for some time. The father broke down and wept at the news. When informed of the boy's death, a friend, Delegate Edmund Bersch, out on bonds aggregating $45,000, volunteered to go to jail in place of Gutke for a few days, that the latter might be at home until after the funeral of his son. Judge Douglas gave his con-

STRAW HATS ON 'CHANGE

The Brokers' Annual Raid on the Trappings of Summer.

New York, Sept. 16.-Straw Hat Day, Sept. 15, historic in stock exchange annals, but which has in some years of warm September weather failed of observance, was celebrated with all its old-time vigor yesterday. More than 50 specimens of summer headgear, ranging from "genuine Panama made under water on the isthmus," to trophies which had cost a dime and come from push-carts, were taken from the members that wore them and destroyed. About an equal number of light summer office coats were torn into strips.

There was a lot of fun while the destruction was in progress. H. P. Frothingham, who probably has loaned more money in Wall street than any other money broker, lost a linen duster and a straw hat. B. M. Baruch lost a hat and nearly got fined by the chairman. J. A. Blair lost a light coat and Botanical Survey of the District-Growth of Dawson Exceptional.

Toronto, Sept. 17 .- George Anderson, trade commissioner of the Canadian Government to the Yukon, says: The output of gold during the five years since it was first discovered will amount to about $80,000,000. It is estimated by the best authorities of Dawson that the production this year will be from $11,000,000 to $12,000,000, which is $6,000,000 less than last year. I am not at all pessimistic," says Mr. Anderson, "about the future, as, with the improved methods of mining which are being introduced the output from the placer mines will continue for a considerable period, and if gold-bearing quartz should be discovered, of which the best men in Dawson are very hopeful, will give permanency to the camp, and a great impetus to the business of the district. "Canadian manufacturers and merchants are getting a fair share of the whole trade, in the neighborhood of three-thirds of the business. manufacturers of machinery have been very backward in looking after the trade of the Yukon. Within a small radius of Dawson there may be found more boilers, engines, pumps and hy-A meteor was seen at Stratford and draulic apparatus than probably anywhere else in the continent. The demand for such machinery will continue and would advise such manufacturers to make haste in securing their share of the trade."

VEGETABLES IN YUKON. Ottawa, Sept. 16 .- Prof. John Macoun, chief Dominion botanist, has returned from the Yukon, where he made special botanical survey of the district. He says the climate is little understood in the east. The growth of Dawson and for 200 miles south is exceptional. All vegetables grown in the east grow in the Yukon except po-tatoes and onions. As yet potatoes have grown large but not good, and onions have been a failure.

The Explorer Is on His Way Home-All on Board Well.

New York, Sept. 16 .- Herbert Bridgman, secretary of the Peary Arctic Club, has received a dispatch from Lieut. R. E. Peary, the Arctic explorer, dated Chateau Bay, Labrador. Lieut. Peary says in the dispatch that he is on his way home on the relief ship Windward, and that all on board are well. Peary sailed with his expedition to the north pole July 4, 1898. Mr. Bridgman left Lieut. Peary at Cape Sabine on the 29th of August,

The relief ship Windward left New York in July last to find the Peary expedition, and has evidently been successful.

A Lesson from Australia.

The state of Victoria, Australia, is facing a crisis, in which other governments may find a lesson. The ministry, in their attempt to make reductions in civil service expenditure, found the opposition in the Legislature so strong that they resolved on a dissolution and an appeal to the people. This is the culmination of the spendthrift policy pursued in all the Australian colonies. The Government of Victoria has been excessively paternal and disposed to lend crutches to a good many enterprises, which in other countries would be left to the unaided individual. One effect, undoubtedly, has been to cultivate a popular habit of looking to the state for aid or employment. The railways are owned and operated by the Government, a good principle, but liable to grave abuses in practice. It has created a large civil service, which has been able to wield a powerful influence in shaping legislation affecting its own interests. Many unprofitable extensions of the railway system have been also made to placate small municipalities, the Government, of course, having an eye to votes. While the country was prosperous, public funds were spent freely, and there was no general grievance. But these are hard times in Australia, and the Government of Victoria is feeling the pinch. The sober opinion of the state realizes closed, but against any policy of reis firm, and will no tion. This might be a bonanza for but it burns very nearly as well in an anthracite range as in one built for a market where only soft coal is used as ferently from anthracite, but the dif- putes. ference consists in the management of draughts and checks. In the feed door of every furnace there is a slide damper to admit air over the fire. When anthracite is used this is opened only if it is desired to deaden the fire and lower the temperature of the house. With soft coal it must be left open all the time. The great volume of gases evolved from it in the coking process, which is the first stage in its combustion, calls for more air than can be had through the body of fuel, and unless this is supplied above the fire the greatest value of the fuel is lost up the chimney in unconsumed gases. Too much air for good combustion can be admitted over the fire, but it is not likely to be the case if the slide damper in the feed door of a furnace built for anthracite is left wide open all the time. The draught opening in the ash husbands, as they always do. pit door, on the other hand, needs to be less widely and continuously open than for anthracite. With the same amount of bottom draught which it is customary to give hard coal, soft coal would simulate the combustion in a blast furnace and call for constant stoking. The householder must also remember that the check draught in nose, an' I've only got one. the smoke pipe, which with anthracite is usually kept open in moderate weather, cannot be opened much if any, with soft coal, or the house will fill with smoke. The best way is to leave it closed altogether. With the attention to these details, which reverse the customary practice with anthracite, a furnace may be run on bituminous coal so as to keep a house

It will be found difficult, if not impossible, to keep either a range or furnace fire over night with soft coal unless one has a watchman on duty to look after it. CELEBRATION AT ST. JOHN'S

Eternal sunshine settles on its head.

Harvest Festival Was an Enioyable Affair.

Orchard and Field.

The harvest celebrations at St. John's Church, London township, have been this year particularly happy and successful. The beautiful parish church, through a generous supply of harvest products, in the form of elegant flowers and rich fruits of the field and orchard, was profusely and tastefully decorated by several willing hands. The services on Sunday were largely attended and joined in heartily. Rev. W. J. Taylor, rector of St. Mary's, was preacher, and delivered two eminently practical and able discourses, full of wholesome lessons suggested by the occasion. Miss Kate Powell sang very effectively a sacred solo at morning and evening services, and the singing of the choir generally was excellent. Liberal thank offerings were made for local church purposes. On Monday evening a harvest musical festival was given by Mr. George Sippi and the splendid St. Paul's Cathedral choir. No less than 50 members, consisting chiefly of men and boys, with a good support of ladies.

were present and took part. In addition to hymns, responses, and canticles, which were sung with faultless precision, and sweetness, were four anthems - "O Saviour of the World," rendered with fine expression; 'But the Lord Is Mindful of His Own,' in which Rev. H. H. Tancock took solo Unto the Lord," a pure harvest song and given in bright tones, and "The Sun Shall be No More Thy Light,' admirably joined in by the whole choir. Besides these were such sacred solos as "Abide with Me," by Mr. Danks; in the Riverside Hospital at Buffalo, "The Plains of Peace," by Mrs. Hungerford; "Lead, Kindly Light," by Mrs. Sippi, and "Face to Face," by Mr. Hungerford, all much appreciated for their beauty. The duets, "The Lord Is My Shepherd," was sung by Mrs. Sippi and Mrs. Hungerford, and encores marked attention from the large and reverent congregation. The fes tival closed with Faber's grond hymn, "Hark, Hark, My Soul," in which the congregation joined with the choir members of St. John's choir afterwards treated their honored guests to refreshments in the town hall. The fruits and other products used on the occasion were afterward sent to the Home for Aged People.

IT LAYS A STILLING HAND ON PAIN.—For pains in the joints and limbs and for rheumatic pains, neuralgia and lumbago, Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil is without a peer. Well rubbed in, the skin absorbs it and it quickly and permanently relieves the affected part. Its value lies in its magic property of removing pain from the body, and for that good quality it is prized.

there is this year. The phiex, stocks, zinnias, petunias and dianthus pinks A. Simmers, seedsman, of Toronto, has a very large exhibit of beautiful cut flowers of every kind, purely for exhibition, and not for competitive purposes, and there are also some very fine out flowers offered in competition for the special prize offered in this department by the London Horticultural Society. With the exception of the cannas there is a better exhibit of flowering plants than ever before, the entries beng more numerous and the quality of the exhibits being much better. The exhibit of palms, ferns and ornamental leaf plants is not quite as large as formerly, but there is such a marked improvement in quality that it more than counterbalances the deficiency in quantity. There is a very small quantity of made-up work, although Messrs. J. Gammage & Sons have some very beautiful designs, a din'ner centerpiece being particularly worthy of no-The exhibit of ornamental

BUTTER-MAKING COMPETITION Interesting Feature of Fair Which Attracted Much Attention.

The room in the dairy building which the butter-making competition took place, proved quite insufficient to accommodate the number of people who desired yesterday to see the best butter-makers in Ontario operate their churns.

This is one of the new features of the fair. It proved a grand success at the Industrial Exhibition, Toronto, and promises also to be a source of great interest to visitors at the Western. It will in any case be one of the best educative features of the fair to best educative features of the those interested in butter-making. Miss Miller, of Guelph, who charge of the home dairy department of the Western Dairy School at Strathroy, superintended the competition, and the commencement made a instructive and practical remarks upon points necessary to observe in the manufacturing of fine butter.

There were seven competitors yes-Mrs. Green, Loyal; Miss Hueston, Mayfield; Miss Stewart, Hampstead; Miss Hunter, Rockton; Mrs. Hoder, Dutton; Mr. Rogers, Kinsdale, and Mr. Weeks, of Guelph. Each was supplied with a complete set of utensils required, and all being allotted an equal amount of cream, proceeded to transform it into butter ready for the market by his or her own particular method.

In awarding the prizes the judges take into consideration the practical work and the quality of butter produced. One hundred points were allotted for practical work, distributed as fol-For preparation of utensils, 5; straining and coloring cream, 5; granular butter, 5; washing and salting, 10; working butter, 15; neatness and cleanliness, 20; exhaustiveness of churning, 10; attention to details and general knowledge, 10. For quality of butter, 100 points were also obtainable—45 for flavor, 25 for grain, 15 for color, 10 for salting, 5 for package.

Very keen interest was shown by the spectators at all stages, and there were eneral expressions of approval at the manner in which the competition was carried out.

The contest was continued this morning and afternoon, under the same conditions, and on Thursday afternoon It will be further continued. The names of the prize-winners will be made known directly after the close of the competition on Thursday.

Fine Assortment of Implements.

The farmers of Western Ontario should not think that their visit to the Western Fair and to London is complete until they have examined the splendid stock of farm implements shown at the exhibit of the Sylvester Manufacturing Company, of Lindsay. An examination of their goods will show to interested parties that their exhibit is a very complete one. They have hoe drills, shoe drills, broadcast seeders, springtooth cultivators, of the exhibition they have been so famous stiff-tooth cultivator and ribwithered that they have not been worth looking at. The object of the society in making this large exhibit Besides their gasolene engines, this company is exhibiting the largest line of cultivators and seeding machinery ever shown by one firm at the Western Fair. Their Dale Pivoted Land Rollers Society is certainly the most beautiful are especially worthy of notice, and will interest in particular every agriculturalist.

Thousands Were Refreshed.

During the course of the exhibition east end of the building and were refreshed with a delicious cup of hot cocoa served in dainty little cups by the neat and obliging young ladies who preside over the exhibit, under the direction of Mr. J. B. Whaley, courteous representative of the firm. Mr. Whaley has a complete stock of every line of goods manufactured by the Cowan Company, and will be de lighted to show his stock to all interested. The Cowan Company has one of the prettiest and most attractive booths in the building, and those who are wearied with looking at the many varied sights of the fair, cannot do better than drop in at the Cowan booth and have a cup of rich, refreshing cocoa. They will find it a sure panacea for headache and the tired feeling and a most delicious beverage.

Heintzman's Fine Pianos.

"Ye olde firme of Heintzman" is to the fore this year, as ever, with their famous pianos of the most elegant design and workmanship. The Heintzman piano has undoubtedly the purest, richest and fullest tone of any piano at the exhibition, and no one could make a mistake in selecting one of their instruments.

Mr. Albert Jordan, organist of the First Methodist Church, has purchased the magnificent Baby Grand of Spanish mahogany, which is on exhibition at the fair. Mr. Jordan is in distinguished company, for the Heintzman piano is used by the most eminent artists in Canada and by all the best musicians in London;

Mr. J. A. Croden, the courteous manager of the London store, is in charge of the exhibit, and is always delighted to show visitors his splen did stock of instruments. A talented pianist, from Detroit, has been specially engaged for the exhibition, and renders daily the choicest selections of the latest popular music. The Heintzman piano is a delight to both ear and eye, with its volume of pure, rich tone and its chaste design and elegant workmanship in all the most beautiful of polished woods. No one should miss this handsome exhibit.

James Wright & Co. An extremely attractive and well-arranged exhibit is made in the transportation building by one of the most enterprising of London's houses, the James Wright & Co. This firm are wholesale dealers in carriage hardware, etc. They occupy a large space boiler manufacturers, of this city, are at the south end of the hall, where they running the machinery hall with one will be glad to meet their old friends is evinced by the increasingly large and make new ones. They are exhibiting a full line of carriages in the white, ING AUTOMATIC ENGINES of 60 | ready for the paint, a very complete h. p., with first class economy and display of carriage woodwork of all kinds, and a fine array of paints, lamps, dash rails, plumbers' goods, and all the other articles which go to make up their stock. James Wright & Co., in making this magnificent exhibit of their goods, have shown the same spirit of enterprise as has characterized the firm ever since its organization. Another example of it is shown in their branching out to new and finer quarters. Visitors to the city cannot have failed to notice a number of handsome new buildings erected in this city; but all will acknowledge that the home of James Wright & Co. at the corner of King and Clarence streets. which they will occupy shortly, is second to none of them. Carriages Attract Attention.

A magnificent array of carriages and cutters of all kinds is shown by Messrs. John Campbell & Sons, the widelyknown manufacturers, of this city. Their display includes coupes, spiders, surreys, both light and heavy, a full line of traps—Lennoxs, King Edwards, boulevards and Kennilworths—Mikados, phaetons, buggies and spindles. Among their cutters they show speed-ers, Gladstones, solid comforts, and piano box sleighs. Besides these the company has a fall line of all their output at their works on King street, west of the market, where they will be pleased to show customers and visitto 500 h. p. A number of sales have been made of this latter style of late in the Dominion. They will be open show rooms, which are second to none this is just what has happened with erica. every night during the fair.

Mr. J. J. Callaghan, general manager of the Nordheimer Company, is in charge of the exhibit and he and his staff of assistants are ready to show every courtesy in their power to visitors to the fair.

Gammage's Beautiful Flowers.

Undoubtedly one of the most beautiful exhibits in any building in the fair is that of J. Gammage & Sons, in the horticultural building. This well-known firm has a magnificent display of cut flowers, palms, flowering plants and exquisite made-up designs.

Gammage's greenhouses are not only a household word for all that is most beautiful in floriculture, but their fame has gone forth all over the continent. Orders reach them daily from the Atlantic on the east, the Pacific on the west and the Gulf of Mexico on the south. Saturday Mr. Gammage received an order from Nathey, Mississippi, today from New Brunswick while they now have a very large trade in British Columbia, and ship plants with great success right to the coast. The greenhouses belonging to the Gammage firm are the largest in this part of the country, and employ a great number of skilled hands. Their floral trade has grown from year to year until now the industry is of great importance. Over 700 tons of coal are consumed yearly in producing the requisite amount of heat for the delicate hothouse blossoms which are brought to such perfection in the Gammage greenhouses. The large number of red tickets on the exhibit in the horticultural building is one of the least of the signs which testify to the excellence of the Gammage productions. They have some of the handsomest and most artistic designs in dinner centerpieces, funeral pieces and every other variety of made-up work. These, with the wealth of cut flowers and the number and variety of plants on exhibition, unite to form one of the most pleasing and attractive exhibits to be found in any part of the fair.

Experts Approve of It.

The interest shown in the exhibit of the Toronto Roller Bearing Company number of mechanical experts, and particularly men engaged in the equipment of steam and electric railway plants, who, after careful examination of the roller bearings, strongly indorse them. In support of the claims made by this company, some remarks made by Prof. Souther, mechanical expert, of Hart ford, in a lecture delivered before the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, on "Power and Its Transmission," may be quoted. On page 229 of Industrial Canada Prof. Souther says: "It is not now realized by the maker that, although theoretically the ball bears in points only, as a matter of fact a ball under a load seizes an appreciable surface for contact. That is, it compresses the metal until a surface proportional to the load is found. Consequently the larger ball acquires this surface with less indentation of metal. It is apparent, therefore, that Dr. Chase's Ointment of oil over all the working parts on huilding, but it conveys only a slight the larger ball bearing will outlast the maller, all other things being equal.

> The difficulty herein described, which is inevitable with all ball bearings under weight, whether large or small, is successfully remedied by the bearing shown by the Toronto Roller weight to be carried.

Prof. Souther further adds, on page 231, in speaking of applying ball bearone of the most interesting on the ings to railway and street car service: 'The dimensions must be large, balls two-thirds diameter of the axle, with proper emergency journals, and end thrust cushioned." This would on an ordinary four-inch axle make an outside boxing of about 15 inches in diway, supplied by the Toronto Roller side box, therefore rendering their apvery easy matter.

Prof. Souther further speaks of the taking care of the end thrust on rollers correct weight of the enormous bar of and keeping rollers from getting out of line as the chief difficulties in the way of the successful use of rollers. Never having seen the Henderson Roller Bearing, the strong points of which are the successful overcoming of these difficulties, Mr. Souther is not in a position to pass judgment upon it, and any reference which he might make to the relative merits of bearings in general would be made without a knowledge of the facts in this case. Other expert mechanics, however, who have examined the Henderson Roller Bearings carefully, have declared that "these difficulties have been removed, and the roller bearings made a complete success.' As a proof of the practical character of this bearing, it may be mentioned that several railways have requested that they be applied to their systems as early as possible.

Everything shown in this exhibit was collected along the line of the Canadian Pacific Railway, and everything bears witness to the excellent farming possibilities of the land through which the railway passes.

Mr. Dockrill, son of the traveling passenger agent of the railway, is in charge of the exhibit, and displays the utmost courtesy in answering the numerous questions put to him by visitors to the fair. The work which the Canadian Pacific Railway Company are doing towards assisting in the development of the magnificent country west of Sault Ste. Marie and east of the Rockies is commanding the attention not only of all Canadians, but of the people of the United States and Great Britain as well. The elaborate display which Mr. Dockrill has arranged a the fair is one of the least of efforts in this direction. The C. P. R was never such a power for the development of Canada as it is now, nor did they ever before make such good use of their opportunities than they are doing this year. Take, for stance, their laborers' excursions to the West. Were it not for their assistance in this regard, the farmers of Nanitoba and the Northwest would suffer the loss of millions of dollars. which in turn would have a far-reaching effect upon the Dominion at large. The C. P. R. has held three of these excursions this year from London alone, and have taken 15,000 strong Ontario men out to the great West to harvest the marvelous crop with which that favored land has been blessed This is a matter of the utmost im portance to the welfare of Canada a large, but the great questions of the West with which the C. P. R. is grappling is not confined to one matter. One of the greatest is the question of getting the crops to the market after they have been harvested. The transportation question is a momentous one, and by their ambitious efforts the C. P. R. has practically solved i The company has not spared any ex pense in doubling its tracks, providing new rolling stock, and building immense elevators in which to store the grain and then remove it to the markets in the east. Canadians realize that the Canadian Pacific Railway are doing great things for the country

Samples are given away to all visitors that everybody may have an opportunity of tasting this refreshing and nourishing beverage. The directors of the firm include such prominent men as W. H. Lever, of the great Sunlight Soap firm, and Mr. Alfred Robinson, of Toronto, ex-president of the Lever Bros.

COARD MEETING.

The meeting of the board which was held this morning was taken up with a small quantity of routine work. The awarding committee presented their report, which was adopted. After maka very careful investigation, they decided upon the most meritorius exhibits, and awarded them the sold medal cards, silver medal cards and diplomas.

BEAUTIFUL FUR DISPLAY

Something About the Extensive Stock of Spittal, Sabine & Co.

Visitors to the Western Fair who have seized the opportunity to make winter purchases, have been greatly impressed and delighted by the beautiful stock of furs and skins displayed by the well-known firm of Spittal, Sabine & Co., whose warehouses are on the north side of Dundas street, between Richmond street and the market lane. It is doubtful whether a more extensive or beautiful collection of manufactured fur goods and uncut skins has ever been exhibited before in the west. It is, indeed, something that no visitor to London can well afford to miss, even whether he be inclined to purchase or not. The assortment is so varied and the material so rich, in both skins and manufactured sight. Every one of the fur-bearing animals which have been made to contribute to the pleasure and comfort of mankind, is represented in this arge and well-displayed stock. The advantage of being able to inat once apparent. The intending purchaser can, after having selected variety which pleases him best, order it cut to his measure and made into any style of garment his fancy may dictate. There is such a wide fur garments, that such an arrange-

Experts Declare This Year's days, and comments upon the fine quality of the birds shown are heard on all sides. An amusing story is told at the grounds about the effect which the poultry show is having on some of the residents in the neighborhood of the park. A citizen who lives near there has complained to the directors of the crowing of the roosters, which, he says, disturbs his slumbers. The director with whom the complaint was lodged assured him that the Western Fair had. no patent method of preventing roosthat way. He said that something would have to be done, as he could not sleep. He threatened to get up a petition to have the nuisance abated. It is a moot question now with the directors whether it would be better to conciliate the gentleman with a pass or post up notices stating that crowing by roosters is strictly prohibited.

Must Be Maintained.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Sept. 17.-President Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor, in a statement issued today, takes a hopeful view of the strike situation. The statement follows:
"At this time it is impossible to say exactly when the strike will terminate, but after careful inquiry into the situation at the mines I am convinced that the struggle will end by agreement. The wage-earners and the general public are generously contribut-ing to the aid of the miners. It is essential that this aid be extended and "If the manhood of the miners is to be maintained, they must at least have bread for their wives and little ones, as well as for themselves. The de-clared attitude of the president of the anthracite railroads has not apparently changed. Despite this fact, I am fully convinced that the strike will end through agreement, with improved conditions for the miners, and the union maintained. A CORRECTION.

To the Editor of The Advertiser; Will you kindly allow me space to correct a statement made in yesterday's Advertiser to the effect that on Sunday evening last I issued a challenge to the atheists of the city to public debate on the question of the existence of God? My remarks have been misunderstood. I simply challenged successful contradiction of the statement that every professed atheist has at some time in his life, and under some conditions, experienced an unshadowed and irrepressible conviction that there is a God. JUSTICE LOUNT REFUSES TO DISMISS GRAHAM CASE

The Graham-Kilbourne murder case, ham, followed Mr. Meredith. He pointafter occupying the attention of the ed out that Mrs. Clark, by making the court for a day and a half, went to same statements as she the jury early this afternoon. The defense was surprisingly short, only two witnesses being called. One was Dr. called upon in the endeavor to have a Graham, the male prisoner, who took crime committed. There was only her the stand on behalf of the female prisoner, Mrs. Mayo, and positively denied the performance of an operation upon her. The only other witness was a "not guilty" in the case of Dr. Grayoung man, whose evidence tended to refute the statement made by Mrs. Clark to the effect that she had looked into Dr. Graham's office through a window opening on the lane, and there seen Miss Kilbourne and Dr. Graham. DR. GRAHAM'S TESTIMONY. The first witness called for the defense was Dr. Graham, the male prisoner. He was called, explained Mr. Meredith, on behalf of the female pris-oner, Mrs. Mayo. Dr. Graham, on being sworn, said that he had been practicing for 33 years, the first 18 years being at Newbury. He was for years reeve of the village, and as such member of the county council. 1887 he removed to London and has since practiced here.

At the time Mrs. Mayo came to his office in October last, witness said he was suffering from diabetes, having lost over 130 pounds of flesh in a short time, 80 pounds of it being lost in three weeks. Mrs. Mayo, then Miss Kilbourne, came to him and asked him to perform an operation, but he refused. Witness swore positively that he had committed no unlawful operation upon Miss Kilbourne. She engaged witness to attend her during her illness, and he, wishing to make sure of his pay, asked her to sign a note for $25, which he judged would cover the extent of his bill of $6 for confinement and $1 for each visit. Should the bill be less than $25, he would only take the amount of the bill: should it be more than $25, Miss Kilbourne would pay the additional amount. This Miss Kilbourne assented to as a reasonable arrange-Dr. Graham described his subsequent visits to Miss Kilbourne's bome, the calling in of other physicians, and Dr. Graham said that he had secured a judgment against Mr. and Mrs. Clark on a bill for medical attendance. He refused to answer a question as to the nature of the trouble for which treated them, as he claimed it would be a breach of professional ethics. Judge Lount excused him from answering the questions. This closed the

Mr. Clute cross-examined Dr. Graham closely, but failed to elicit any startling statements from him.

THE DEFENSE CLOSED. The next witness was Wm. Saunders, son of the proprietor of the blacksmith shop which adjoins the lane south of Dr. Graham's office. He swore that the lower part of the doctor's office window was covered with a curtain, while there was a fence in front of the window, which prevented those passing in the lane from seeing into the office.

To Mr. Clute the witness said he had never tried to look into the window at night, and could not say whether a view of the office could be obtained under the circumstances. "That is the case for the defense, your lordship." said Mr. Meredith. as to the statements made to her by Mrs. Mayo, in relation to Dr. Graham

"I have no further evidence to offer," said Mr. McEvoy, representing Dr. Graham "I have no evidence to offer in reply," said Mr. Clute. Counsel for the prisoners again formally submitted that the cases should be withdrawn from the jury. "I cannot withdraw it," said Judge

Mayo, began his address to the jury shortly before 11:30. He opened by ferring to the course pursued by the crown prosecutor as one fair to both the prisoners. He took issue with Mr. Clute's statement that the British method of choosing a jury was the most perfect on earth. Mr. Meredith said he considered the British system as very much equivalent to throwing dice for a jury. He preferred the United States system, where the jurymen may be asked if they have formed any opinion as to the case in hand. He referred to the serious nature of the crime charged against the prisoners, and asked if the jury were willing to send the prisoners to the gallows on the testimony offered. There were only the two alternatives for the prisoners. They must be pronounced not guilty by the jury and so go free, or they must be sentenced to should the jury pronounce them guilty. Mr. Meredith then referred to the evidence of Mr. and Mrs. Clark and dwelt on the damaging admissions made by them and their reluctance to answer the questions asked of them. He characterized Mrs. Clark's evidence as that of an accomplice and an abandoned woman. He contrasted the evidence for the crown with that of the defense. Dr. Graham, a respectable professional man, enters the box and gives his evidence clearly and in a straightforward manner, denying all asking simple justice for his clients and a verdict of "not guilty.

testimony to support the charge, and even that testimony could not, by the rules of evidence, be used against Dr.

ADDRESS FOR THE CROWN.

Mr. Clute opened his address on behalf of the crown at 12:20. Life, he said, is the gift of God, and may not be taken without just cause. The jury in such a case as this is to determine whether the facts of the case, as presented by the crown, are consistent with the innocence or guilt of the persons charged. The jury, in rendering a verdict, are not responsible for the results to the persons charged. They themselves are responsible for those results. Mr. Clute reminded the jurors that they were performing the most solemn duty which British citizens are called upon to perform, and he asked them to approach it in the proper spir-it. Mr. Clute then reviewed the evidence offered by the crown, and marshaled the important points. In con-clusion he spoke of the sanctity of intant life, and the growing disregard of it. It rested with the law to stop the spread of this evil. He asked for a verdict in accord with the facts set forth by the crown. Lount announced that he would charge the jurors at 2 p.m., on the reopening of the court, An ad-

MCARTHUR TRIAL THURSDAY. The trial of John McArth charge of manslaughter was set for Thursday morning, to allow the civil suit of People's Loan Company vs. Stanley to be disposed of at the con-clusion of the Graham-Kilbourne case.

JUDGE LOUNT'S CHARGE. Judge Lount commenced his charge to the jury immediately upon the opening of the afternoon session of the assizes. He first reviewed the law in the case and pointed out what constituted the crime charged against the prisoners. If Dr. Graham committed the operation, as alleged by the crown, then he is guilty of the crime charged. If Mrs. Mayo was a consenting party. then she is equally guilty. His lord-ship charged the jury to weigh the evidence carefully, and to give the prisoners the benefit of any doubt which might exist in their minds, for if the prisoners were found guilty the only course open to the judge would be to sentence them to death. He himself had no power to change the sentence, though the executive authorities of the nation might see fit to do Judge Lount said he deemed it proper to speak first of the case of Dr. Graham. If the jury found Dr. Graham not guilty, then they must of necessity find the same verdict in the case of Mrs. Mayo. If the case against Dr. Graham fell through, then the whole case must fall through, for the female prisoner could not be guilty if the male prisoner is innocent. All the evidence given by Mrs. Clark were not in the least to be considered as evidence against Dr. Graham. No prisoner can be convicted unless upon the evidence of a sworn witness. The only way in which Mrs. Mayo's state ments could be used against Dr. Graham would be by putting her in the box and submitting her to examination in chief and cross-examination. The statements reflecting upon lar. possible fabrication. Mrs. Mayo may not have been telling the truth in the statements repeated by Mrs. Clark as having been made to her by Mrs. Mayo. Then, Mrs. Clark may have misunderstood the statements made to her by Mrs. Mayo, or again, Mrs. Clark untrue story. If the jury distrust Mrs. Clark and disbelieve her story, then the prisoners must be found not guilty, as without Mrs. Clark's story as a foundation the crown's case is absolutely gone.

The only evidence against Dr. Graham was Mrs. Clark's statement that Miss Kilbourne had visited Dr. Gra-ham's office, had come away in an apparently sick condition, and had received money from Mayo to pay Dr. Was this, asked the judge. sufficient evidence upon which to con-

"It does not feel quite right. Please get me some water, Rich," she murmured

He sprang to do her bidding, and when he came back with it he found that she had fainted dead away. He called Mrs. Allen in terror, and she was almost as much alarmed as he; but upon applying restoratives, Audrey soon recovered consciousness, though she lay for a long time afterward looking very ill and miserable.

Later in the evening she seemed more like aerself, and said to Rich:
"My fainting turn interrupted your story, dear. I want to hear more. Tell me about the lady—describe her to me."
Rich regarded her curiously.
He could not help thinking it strange that the gentleman should have manifested so much emotion upon hearing her name, and that she, too, should have been so overcome upon learning about him. But he answered:
"She had black hair and such lovely

him. But he answered:

"She had black hair and such lovely dark eyes—they were so beautiful, only very sad. Her face was thin and very white, as though she had been sick a long time; and then she had such a sweet, gentle way, and spoke so kindly to me. Aunt Audrey, I think, next to you, she is the lovellest lady I have ever

And he-the gentleman-what was he "And he—the gentleman—what was he like?" Audrey asked, with averted eyes. "He was tall and large, with brown hair and eyes, and very handsome; but he had a kind of grave way that made me a little shy of him, though he was very kind and gentle with his wife."

Audrey's lips quivered and a sigh broke from them, but Rich did not seem to head if had a splendid horse," he went on, with animation. "I think it was the finest one I have ever seen, and he did look so grand when he reared upon his hind legs and pricked up those silky ears of his. But where did you meet this Mr. Halstead, Aunt Audrey?" he suddenly questioned, remembering that she had not yet acknowledged the ac-she had not yet acknowledged the acquaintanceship.

Audrey hesitated.
Should she tell the boy the sad story of her life? He was wise and considerate beyond his years, and his tenderest sympathies would be hers.
But somewhow she shrank from giving voice to it. Sometime she meant to tell him all about it; tonight, however, she lid not feel quite equal to it; her strength bim all about it; tonight, however, she did not feel quite equal to it; her strength had already been severely taxed by learning that her old-time lover had been so near her. So she merely answered: "When I was a young girl, and my parents were living, I spent a few weeks I New York, and went a good deal into Pociety, and I am quite sure that this "Ir. Arthur Halstead is the same gentleman whom I met at that time. I afterward heard of his marriage to a Miss Ida Montrose, but I have never seen him since. I am very glad, however, that you lent them such manly assistance today; and I am glad, tog, that they know you are my boy," she concluded, fondly. "Now," she added, after a moment of silence. "I am going to send you away: "Now, she added, after a moment of stience. "I am going to send you away; for I wish to get all the rest I can, so as to be fresh again tomorrow morning. Good-night, Rich; you are such a com-fort to me."

fort to me."

She drew him down to her, and kissed him on his lips and forehead, and then, with a smile and a fond pat on his cheek, she sent him downstairs to Mrs. Allen, who, she said, must be lonely.

But as soon as the door closed after him she buried her face in her pillow, with a heartbroken sob.

"So near and yet so far," she murmured. "I cannot bear it even now, after all these long years; and if it were not for that dear boy, the future would seem almost unendurable to me."

She still had the card which Rich had given her, and laving it beneath her cheek, she fell to sobbing as if her heart were breaking. "I am weak, weak." she cried. "to love a man who is the husband of another; but I cannot help it—I gave myself to him for all time in those sweet old days. Oh, Arthur! Arthur! we made a lifelong mistake—or, rather, I made a great mistake; I never should have yielded to papa; I ought to have considered our mutual happiness, and not tried to right one wrong by committing another. Yet it is folly and weakness to grieve so wildly at this late day."

But Audrey Waldemar was not a weak woman, notwithstanding she had broken down so completly upon learning that Arthur Halstead had been so near her that day.

She fought her grief out by herself—that day.

She fought her grief out by herself—fought with her regrets, her longings and her undying love, until she gained the victory and came forth from her chamber the next morning her own lovely self once more. She was a trifle paler than usual, but as sweet and calm as if no tempest of grief had swept over her, bowing her proud spirit to the very earth. But the peaceful quiet and the enjoyment of that mountain retreat was over for her; a strange restlessness took possession of her, and only a few days later she informed Mrs. Allen that she had decided, after all, to act upon her suggestion and take a trip up through the Canadas, and then return to New York. Accordingly, a week from the very day on which Rich left Arthur Halstead and his invalid wife, they left the green hills of Vermont and turned, their steps still farther north.

They proceeded to Quebec, where they spent two or three days, and then took a steamer up the St. Lawrence to Montreal.

On the steamer they found a large She fought her grief out by herself-treal.

On the steamer they found a large On the steamer they found a large company of tourists, and among them Audrey was delighted to meet a couple of friends, who were traveling with a party of young people about Rich's age, or a little older.

There were four young ladies from fourteen to eighteen, and two lads of fifteen or sixteen, and they were as gay and happy as it is possible for young people to be.

"It will be so nice for Rich." Audrey "It will be so nice for Rich." Audrey said to Mrs. Allen, "for he has never had much society, and I shall accept Mrs. Campbell's invitation to join their party; their plans are very nearly the same as ours, and it will be pleasanter for us all."

party; their plans are very nearly the same as ours, and it will be pleasanter for us all."

There were also on board the steamer two characters who afforded considerable amusement to the more aesthetic pleasure-seekers about them.

They were Mr. George Washington Starkey and Miss Martha Ann Starkey, of Starkeyville, Maine.

The former was about fifty years of age. He was tall and large of frame, with an awkward manner and gait. His face as very plain, but expressive of boundless good nature, and he had a scant supply of hair and no beard. His dress consisted of a pair of light trousers, a long-taled black coat and vest, a stand-up collar, and a tall hat.

THE ALDBOROUGH MURDER

King Held Responsible by the Coroner's Jury.

The Prisoner Was Not One of the Barnardo Boys.

Rodney, Ont., Sept. 17 .- The inquest nto the death of James William Freeman was concluded yesterday, when the jury, after a few minutes' deliberation, brought in the following verdict:

"That the said James William Freestart at that, and asked, in a queer tone start at that, and asked, in a queer tone at the drive barn of D. B. Freeman, in were well."
"That was strange," Audrey replied, county of Elgin, from a gunshot card, Rich, so that I may know his card, Rich, so that "It is in one of my pockets." he returned, beginning to hunt for it. Freeman that he whipped King, the accused, with a gad one day last June, in the field on his farm, because of persistent neglect of duty. The preliminary examination will likely be held in St. Thomas.

NOT A BARNARDO BOY. Toronto, Ont., Sept. 16 .- A. B. Owen, manager of the Canadian branch of r. Barnardo's Home, says that Chas. King, who is charged with the murder of James Freeman, near Rodney, has no connection whatever with the Barnardo Homes, and adds: "The statement that King belonged to the home is calculated to do a great injury to the immigration work in which the homes are engaged, and to reflect discredit upon the many thousands of Barnardo boys and men who are now settled throughout the Dominion. We have recently had a reunion of the old boys in Toronto. amongst those present being several who are at the present time holding most responsible positions, and the statement that the young man King was brought out by the Barnardo Homes is likely to bring discredit up-on them."

ENGLISHMEN WON.

London, Sept. 16.-Eddie Connolly. an American fighter, was defeated here last night by Tom Woodley, English, after eleven rounds of hard fighting, for a purse of $2,000 and the 144-pound championship. Up to the sixth round Connolly forced the fighting. In that round, however, the Engishman came back and nearly succeeded in knocking his man out. From that on Woodley took the lead and won easily. The bout was one of the flercest ever seen in the Wonderland Club.

TO STOP THE FIGHT. Louisville, Sept. 16 .- Attorney-General Pratt today filed suit for an in-

It is expected that a decision will be handed down promptly in order that the status of the contest may be determined at once. Should the decision be against the match, the fighters' attorneys say the case will be taken at once to the court of appeals and pushed through in ample time for the British and Germans Laugh at Pelletan.

His Bizerta Speech Classed With "After-Dinner Indiscretions."

Berlin, Sept. 17. - The German foreign office treats M. Pelletan's Bizirta speech lightly and is disposed to attach no more importance to it than to the after-dinner indiscretions of the French minister of war. Gen. Andre, a few weeks ago, of which the German Government took no official notice. At the foreign office it was said that as Germany had no political interests in the basin of the Mediterranean and as she never will have, what France is doing there does not specially affect her.

M. Pelietan's reference to the "barbarism of old Germany" is treated by the newspapers here with ridicule rather than indignation. London, Sept. 16. — What is designated as M. Pelletan's "new diplomacy" is not taken seriously in London. It is pointed out here that in the course of his tour the minister similarly referred to Germany and Italy, and semi-official French papers like the Journal des Debats, declare his sentiments are those neither of France nor of her Government. The London newspapers commenting on M. Pelletan's speech at Bizerta, quote his ingenious confession that he had not 'yet become accustomed to being minister" as sufficient to discount his utterances. Even in France M. Pelletan has always been regarded as an impulsive radical.

Discuss the Subject of Financial Re liof-Plans for Borrowing.

Montreal, Sept. 17 .- At the Union of Municipalities convention yesterday morning the question of financial relief for municipalties was discussed, and as the result the matter was re-ferred to the executive committee to draw up a plan for the purpose of borrowing on united credit, with the object of having the Provincial Governments first lend their sanction to the plan and afterwards secure the approval of the Dominion Government. Ald. Stroud, of Ottawa, introduced a resolution, which was adopted, which provided in the case of all franchises granted by the cities or towns to cor-

The Reason Why.

Berlin, Sept. 16 .- The only business transacted this morning at the Dominion Labor Congress was the ap-pointment of the standing committees and the consideration of the report of the special committee on revision of the constitution. They recommended a change in section 3, article 1, to de-bar, after Jan. 1, 1903, from congress representatives from Knights of Labor assemblies. The Knights and their friends put up a strong defense, but the recommended clause was adopted, the congress being opposed to dual

JUSTICE LOUNT REFUSES TO DISMISS GRAHAM CASE

Grand Jury Find True Bill for Manslaughter Against McArthur.

At the assizes yesterday afternoon good progress was made in the trying of the Graham-Kilbourne case, while the grand jury came to a decision in the Ninham case, bringing in a true bill on the charge of manslaughter. against John McArthur. In the former case the evidence for the crown was finished a few minutes after 6 o'clock. Counsel for the prisoners submitted that no case had been made out to warrant submission to a jury. Mr. Clute contended that there had been sufficient evidence adduced. Judge Lount's questions to Mr. Clute were of a tenor which led many to believe that he would at least withdraw the case of Dr. Graham from the jury. His decision, however, was that both cases should be submitted for the jurors' consideration, but he expressed the opinion that the case against Dr. Grahom especially was not a strong one. The wound was a fresh one, certainly not ten days old. Dr. Graham bore the character of being a reputable physician, said Dr. Wishart.

Dr. James Macarthur, who was also called in by Dr. Graham, gave similar testimony. He was satisfied that the wound on the child's head was caused at the time of delivery. Miss Patricia Murray, formerly lady superintendent at Victoria Hospital, and Miss Mary McVicar and Miss Agnes McDougall, nurses at the same in-

Dr. J. M. Piper was next called. Mr. McEvoy objected that Dr. Piper should not be allowed to testify, as he was the coroner who had conducted the inquest, and had sat in a judicial capacity on the case. Mr. McEvoy cited the Sternaman case as one in which a similar ruling had been made. Judge Lount overruled the objection. "Did Miss Kilbourne make any statement to you as to whether she ever visited Dr. Graham's office?" asked Mr. Clute. "Yes, once. I asked her in Victoria Hospital whether she had visited Dr. Graham's office. She replied, 'No, never; I never saw him till he came to

Mr. Mc-Evoy submitted that the case made by the crown was even weaker than that in the Kavanagh case, which had been taken from the jury by Chief Justice Meredith. (It will be remembered that Judge Lount was the counsel for the defense in the Kavanagh case.) Mr. Clute submitted arguments why the cases should go before the jurors. Certain facts had been established and certain inferences were to be drawn from the facts. Judge Lount, in giving his decision, said that the cases must go to the jury, though as far as Dr. Graham was concerned, the case did not strike him as a strong one. Judge Lount said he did not consider himself justified in withdrawing either case from the jury, as he believed that body competent to weigh the evidence on its merits.
