Earl Grey then took Col. Peters' driver and had it not been for the boards, it would easily have been the best drive of the day.

The party then took their carriages for the city hall.

His Excellency's Arrival.

His excellency was met at the depot by about 40 of London's most prominent citizens, including the mayor and aldermen, Hon. C. S. Hyman, minister of public works, and Hon. Adam Beck.

It was about 11:35 when the C. P. R. express pulled in with the viceregal car Cornwall, which bore the Governor-General and his party. Hon. Mr. Hyman at once entered the car, after which he introduced Mrs.

RACE DETERIORATION AND ITS ANTIDOTE.

Frederick Treves, the distinguished physician, was present the other evening at the Battersea Polytechnic, to witness a display by students in the women's gymnasium. He took occasion to say that it was almost impossible to exaggerate the importance of physical training. He pointed out that very great attenion has recently been paid to the physical health of the people, and a royal commission has reported on the question of the King and Queen of Spain is shown to Sir Frederick, however, is optimistic, and he does not think the report is so gloomy as some think; but in order that any tendency to degeneragiven to first-class physical training among women as well as among boys.

Battersea is the stamping ground of John Burns, the workingmen's leader, who is now a member of the British Government, and he spoke on the same occasion. He, too, looked on the bright side of things, and declined to accept the view that the deterioration of the race was so great as has had been alleged, or that Great Britain was "going to the dogs." At the same time, he admitted there were symptoms that caused uneasiness to those who rejoiced in the strong man, the healthy woman and the beautiful child. There were, he said, masses of the British people who lacked the robust strength necessary to the enjoyment of life, but that was largely due in part to insufficient food, and in many cases to good food badly cooked and better food wrongly eaten or eaten at the wrong time. Mr. Burns has a brighter vision of the future, however. The drink bill of Great Britain, he pointed out, is $30,000,000 less than last year, and $112,000,000 less than it was four years realm there are institutions by means Inspector Melville's arguments are of which boys and girls are protected sound. Has there not been considerable tendency, in recent years, for both revelations in beef and oil show that men and women to take their innocent sport vicariously? In Great Britain muck-making. there has been a growing leaning towards professionalism in almost every amusement. Men are paid to play for the amusement of assembled multitudes at football and even at cricket and golf. And so it has been in Canada. It was regarded as a great day by some persons when the old Tecumseh Baseball Club followed the example of its antagonists and obtained from the United States the services of Goldsmith, with his drop and curve pitching, and of Powers as catcher. But it was the good idea. The revised reports reach beginning of an era in professional ball the newspaper sanctums too late to be playing and of a degree of professionbeing of the young men of Too many of our youth, under the changed circumstances, were moved to take their sport by proxy, has been appointed chairman of the coming proficient in baseball or some salary of $6,000 per year. But anarchism has lifted its murderous hand the British royal family, and the question of harboring anarchists in England is being already raised. Parliament will anarchists from the country, and prohibit their admission; but this is a perplexing problem. The former chief of Scotland Yard, Inspector Melville, who had an unrivaled acquaintance with anarchists, claims to have prevented more than one crime on the continent by having anarchist leaders under his surveillance in London. He claims that the Scotland Yard authorities know when any of the tribe leave England. and are thus able to warn the continental police. If anarchists are to be treated in England as in continental countries, England may be no longer exempt from their baleful activities, as they will find some secret method of entering the country, or communicating with English sympathizers. There will be no advantage, either, to the continental police in a change of policy toward anarchism in Great Britain, if

RUSSIA AND REVOLUTION

[By W. T. Stead in the New York American.]

The French revolution dominated the nineteenth century. Will the Russian revolution dominate the twentieth? As the Japanese war was the prologue of the Russian revolution, so the Russian revolution may be the prologue to the reshaping of the world.

Thirty years ago I ventured the prediction that Moscow was destined to be the revolutionary stern center of Europe. The ashes af the Tulleries were hardly cold when I hazarded that forecast.

The breakup of the Russian Empire as it has hitherto been known can hardly fail to give a powerfud stimulus to the movement in favor of the formation of smaller states on the basis of nationality. The separatist movement in Hungary, like that in Norway, which has been held in check for years by the dread inspired by the existence of the Russian colossus on the eastern frontier, was left free to realize its ideals when the danger of Russian aggression disappeared. Norway is already lord in her own house. Hungary has already advanced far in the same direction. If Hungary becomes a sovereign independent state, Austria-Hungary disappears, and out of its ruins who can say how many nationalities will strive to attain their independence?

But the most immediately pressing question is whether the Russian revolution will lead to the resurrection of Poland. The Poles, who had a literaright limb, thus causing the patient to ture a thousand years before their Ruslimp. Now, Mr. Fresh, what would you sian conquerors, are an indestructible race. Poland was buried in the eighteenth century. Germany, Russla and Austria were constituted keepers of the tomb. But already the sentinels exceedingly do fear and quake, for there is an ominous stirring within the sepulcher, and no one knows but the Russian revolution may be the angel of the resurrection. Of course nothing may happen. The status quo may be re-established in Warsaw. But, on the other hand, events may take a revolutionary turn, and there is probably no capital in the world where the course of events in Russia is watched with such feverish anxiety as in Berlin. Alike in the east and the west of Asla, the extension of Russia as a powerful military empire will revolutionize everything. Between the east and the west it will be hardly less potent. For a century the dread of a Russian attack has been the bugbear of the Anglo-Indian. Only a year ago Mr. Balfour declared that the whole military system of the British Empire should be based upon the necessity of meeting a Russian attack upon India and its buffer state, Afghanistan.

In the near east it is impossible to predict with any confidence what will be the result of the withdrawal of the pressure which for more than a century has been constantly felt alike by word of the Czar was never heard without awe. The influence of the concert of Europe was fitful and spasmodic. That of Russia operated stead-"I met your wife at the card party ily like the force of gravitation. The withdrawal of that force will entail changes at present but dimly visible on the horizon. One possibility may, however, be hinted at. As long as the Czar remains on the throne the Kaiser will do nothing to embarrass his good friend and ally. But if a revolutionary Russia were to menace Germany by reestablishing the Kingdom of Poland, it at least is conceivable that the Sultan might be encouraged to use his German drilled forces to replace the cross by the crescent in Batum, Kars and possibly even Tiflis. The consequences of the Russian revolution will affect America most in China. The great yellow empire, with its 400,000,000 of subjects, was the prize for which Russia and Japan contended in the recent war. Korea and Port Arthur were but trifles. The dread of Japanese domination in China led Germany and France to make common How a Woman Drove a Man cause in ejecting the Japanese from Mr. Lipp-Tell me the truth now-do the mainland of Asia. What was it that caused Eliza Sturdyvant's heart to bound into her throat, and the color to recede from

Have you noticed the difference in the way they do things in Canadian athletics, and the way we handle 'em here? One Billy Sherring, of Hamilton, won the Marathon race at the Olympic games in Athens. He got back home Tuesday. When he returned he was made a present of an aggregate of something over $5,000 and a title to a house and lot. The Ontario Government took judicial recognition of the importance of his feat and appropriated $500 out of the treasury. The city council of Hamilton, Ont., did the

Then to top it all, the Dominion Government, benignant in the reflected glory of her plucky son, has appointed the racer to an inspectorship at a salary of about $750 a year.

All honor to Sherring! He deserved all he got. If you don't believe it go out and try to run 25 miles. Then recall that Sherring not only ran 25 miles, but raced the whole distance, and won from the best long-distance runners of the whole world-all for the glory of the Dominion of Canada.

Sherring won but one race. All along the route through to Montreal and team behind him were not hitting, s other towns he was greeted by cheering mobs, who surrounded his train, much as they do the Presidential special in the southwest.

Pretty good picking, my masters; seven straight winners in one day! And that is what Associate Judge Francis Nelson accomplished on Friday. Surely this as nearly as possible constitutes a record. It is also the best possible evidence that the races were honest throughout and true to form. Such a coup could not possibly come off were it otherwise; nor would it be likely to happen were the conditions other than perfect, which they were on the day in question .- World.

Sir Thomas Lipton has not change d his mind about having another try at the America cup. He intends, however, to play all the fine points of the game, and will not send over his challenge until the last moment permissible under the rules. This will give the American yachtsmen less time for preparation and will more nearly equalize the condition. The America cup has come to be something of a mania with Sir Thomas, and his friends declare he will keep on challenging until he se nds across the winning boat.

It looks somewhat strange to see the heading, "Baseball" in the London sporting papers. It is there, though, and it looks much as though it was there to stay. The football contingent has taken up the game with enthusiasm, and the games which have been played so far have attracted paying crowds. To an American used to watching professionals at home the games are not to be called brilliant expositions of the great American game, but it may be said safely that many of the Britishers who have gone into the new game show really remarkable aptitude and will develop into good players.

The teams are yet weak so far as the batteries are concerned. The Englishmen have not yet mastered the curve ball, while few Englishmen have developed sufficient nerve to brave the perils which attend the life of the backstop. Americans are in demand for these places.

Every day additional clubs are being formed and additional games being played. It is hardly likely that any attempt will be made this season to systematize the game or to play for a championship. By next season, however. the "fans" are confident that the gam e will have been put on a proper basis.

When Willie Shields got down to New York from Toronto on Tuesday he told the folks at Belmont Park that waiting orders beat Kinleydale in the race at Woodbine on Victoria Day. "If Kinleydale had been properly ridden," said young Mr. Shields, "he would not have been licked by Minnie Adams and Inferno. Kinleydale is not the horse this season he was last year, when, you will remember, it was almost impossible to get him to break. He would lag back at the start, and after beginning to run, it was difficult for him to keep up with a fat man until he had traveled at least a half mile. This season he is as eager as Balzac used to be. He is on his toes at the start of every race and he goes tearing away from the barrier swallowing the bit. The only thing to do with such a horse is to let him have his head and tiptoe his company. Kinleydale's rider was instructed to hold him in check and let Minnie Adams make the pace the other day. He choked the colt to death."

Strongly Backed—Barrel Won on Tongorder.

Toronto, June 2.—Three favorites, Anna Smith, Moonraker and Martin Doyle, the second choice, Frank Somers, and the long shots, Lady Vera and Tongorder, won the races on closing day at Woodbine Park. The Abbott in the second race, the Bennett entry in steeplechase, were the beaten favorites, and of the three only the jumper finished in the money.

The weather was fine, though rain sprinkled at times. The track was fast, and Lady Vera made a new mark for the five furlongs, 1 minute flat, while Tongorder equaled Minnie Adams' Summary: Stolen bases—G. Arthurs, W. Marthurs, Gillett. Sacrifice hits—Hosie, eighth. eighth.

GREENBAUM MAY CAUSE TROUBLE

Alleged Thief Threatens to Fight Canadian Authorities Over His Arrest.

Because he was arrested on Amerian soil by Canadian detectives, Jacob Greenbaum, the man who was arrested at Detroit, on Friday, and brought to this city on Saturday night, to stand trial on a charge of stealing silk from a local wholesale, threatens to cause trouble over his extradition. He threatens to appeal his case to the United States courts, and it is feared that complications may arise. It appears that Greenbaum stopped at a Windsor hotel on Friday morning, after having made arrangements to have his trunks sent to Niagara, with the evident intention of crossing the line at that point. In some way or another Greenbaum found out that the London officers were in Windsor, and immediately made for At the Opening of New County the Detroit side of the river. He got onto a ferry, and, as he thought, was getting away in fine style. But the authorities followed him to the ferry. They found that he had bought a ticket, but could not find him on the boat. They were about to give up the chase, thinking that he had only bought the ticket
