HOLDING THE WINDERSON

Religious Miscellany.

Beyond the River. Time is a river deep and wise : And while along its banks we stray. We see our loved ones o'er the tide Sail from our sight, away, away. Where are they -- they who now return No more to glad our longing eyes?

They'se passed from life's contracted bourne Toland unseen, unknown, that lies Beyond the river, Tistid from view; but we may guess How beautiful that realm must be, For gienmings of its leveliness In visions granted, oft we see, The very slouds that never throw Their veil upraised for mortal eight.

With gold and purple tintings glow, Reflected from the glorious light Beyond the river. And gentle airs so sweet, so calm, Steal sometimes from that viewless sphere; The mourner feels their breath of balen, And soothed sorrow dries a tear. And sometimes list'ning care may gain Estraneing sound that hither floats,

The echo of a distant strain Of harps and voices, blending notes, Beyond the river.

There are loved ones in their rest! They've crossed Time's river-now no mo They need the hubbles on its breast; Nor feel the storms that sweep its shore. But there pure love can live, can last-They look for us their home to share ; When we in turn away have passed, What joyous greetings wait us there, Beyond the river.

Where to Leave our Troubles.

BY THE REV. JOHN TODD, D. D.

Down again to the earth the swift angel flew, with difficulty. On his breast lay a great bundle. It was evident it was very heavy and very opon it was written, ' Cast in all thy cares, for he careth for thee.' The writing was in letters of light, large and plain. The poor man put his trembling hand into the bundle and took out a handful, marked, 'Auxieties for my poor wife.' Slowly and tremblingly he cast it in. Then he took another, marked Distress for my orphan children.' He threw that also in, and his load was lighter. Once more he took up another parcel, marked 'O my aged father and mother!' Slowly he dropped it into the sack. Then he seemed to be frightened at what he had done, and tried to reach down and take back his severburdens. But no! the hand withdrew the sack, and he could not take them back. Then his breathing became soft and easy, his face lit un with smiles, his heart beat with hope, and he died is peace and joy, 'casting all his cares on

The Great Transition.

O what a contrast does every departing sain experience as he passes by death from time to eternity; from this world, with all its cares and sorrows, to the bliss and glory of the heavenly inheritance! However "meetened for their inheritance," however " wrought for the sailsame thing," yet the transition from the extreme of weakness and suffering, from the overwhelmtal strife, late the sudden brightness and perfect -so spily did the richly green meadows on the vent and long pleading at the throne of grace. ing abasement and rending struggle of the morrapture of the heavenly vision, and this, too, i a moment, in the two kling of an eye ," such a transition it is impossible to deserthe, for the

At one moment filled with the deep consciousness of imperfection and manifold infirmities; the next standing upblanable and unreprovable in the sight of God! At one moment racked by pain and wasted by disease; the next putting forth the vigor of immortal youth! At one moment what all must pity; the next what all must envy! At one moment surrounded with tears and sighs; th next with smiles and acclamations! At one moment lamented by mortals; the next greeted by angels and the spirits of just men made perfect! The public career of Mr. Thornton is to be traced chiefly in connection with the literary department of the Church's service. Born of highly respectable parents in Huddersfield, and brought up with strong hereditary attachment to Wesleyan Methodism, he discovered at a very early age a predilection towards its ministry, and having received an admirable education, he began at an early age to call sinners to repentance. His ministry commenced in the year 1830, and after eleven years spent in important charges in the paual pastoral and Circuit duty, he was appointed in 1841, Classical and Mathematical Tutor in connection with the Theological Institution, a position which he filled for eight years. In 1849, he was transferred to the Conference Office as junior Editor. On the death of Mr. Custry, which occurred in less than two years fairer this appointment, Mr. Thornton became which occurred in less than two years short Editor, a position which he filled for eight years. To the worthy Citizensof Canada. RE WARNED IN TIME.

A LL parties purchasing my Pills and Ointment for their several complaints are respectfully warned against purchasing either Pills or Ointment, purporting to be my preparations, that have a United Stamp around the boxes or pots. There is no treaty between the people of the States and the Home Government, therefore a U. States Stamp does not protect my preparations. There are no stamps uppa my Canadian style of Pills or Ointment, coming from the United States. I rely only for protection on the water mark in the book of directions around each box or pot. Before you purchase them, see that there are no Stamps upon the low of Pills or Ointment. Purchase none that have United States Stamp on.
