Such A Little Pope.

By Charles Phillips—Special Correspondence N. C. W. C. News Service.

(Concluded.)

He seemed smaller still the next time I saw him. Because this time he sat on his throne—and he has to sit on the edge of it to keep his feet on the floor. Yes; this is quite true. But then, even a six footer would be dwarfed in that great towering scarlet chair set high on its dais in the Hall of Consistory.

It was on this same occasion that I first heard Pope Benedict speak. There was a surprise for any man who might have imagined there was frailty in the make-up of "such a little Pope." He is one of the most forceful and dramatic speakers I have ever listened to, and I doubt if there is his superior anywhere in the Church when it comes to delivering a moving, impassioned address. I shall never forget that allocation of Pope Benedict in the Consistory Hall.

He began, as is the papal custom, speaking from the throne. He was pleading for world peace, world adjustment, world justice. His voice grew clearer, stronger, his gestures more and more animated and eloquent. In the end he rose suddenly to his feet, swept away by his own emotion, first with his hands outstretched as if he would beg the whole world to hear him; then clasped those fine little elegant hands that had moved me so at mass as they were raised above the chalice—clasped and almost wringing in the fervor of his pleading. His face was alight, his dark eyes glowed, his voice vibrated through the chamber with an arresting power. It was an unforgettable moment.

But it had been only a few seconds before that I had seen quite a different light in the Holy Father's eyes, the light of humor playing over the pallor of his face with a memorable human touch in the midst of formal ceremonial. It was just flash, a sudden passing incident that may have escaped the eyes of many present, yet it gave a glimpse of Benedict the man. The new Cardinal of Cologne was kneeling at the pontifical throne to receive the sacred birsta. His master of ceremonies was placing the golden chain and cross about the neck of his Eminence. The chain stuck on the Cardinal's ear. The master of ceremonies tugged. The Pope, waiting to go on with the ritual, could not escape the wee comedy of it all. His lips twitched into a humorous smile; then his little hand went out and patted the new Cardinal on the shoulder, as if to reassure him against embarrassment.

After the ceremony, when the Pope passed about among the small group gathered for the occasion, greeting friends and acquaintances in the most informal manner, he always managed, it seemed to me, to turn the salute to his ring into a cordial handshake.

But it was the day of the public consistory when our new American Cardinal received the red hat, that the sight of Pope Benedict touched me most. It was then that he seemed to me most of all "such a little Pope."

He made his entrance that day into the great Sala Regia, rich with its famous frescoes, its Minardi's Liniment Relieves Neuralgia.

tribunes draped with precious tapestries, on the famous Sala Gestatoria, carried on the shoulders of the papal throne bearers, preceded, surrounded and followed by the Noble Guards, the Swiss Guards, the Palatine Guards, and with the great fabeli or pontifical fans heralding his approach. He wore a high gold mitre and was enveloped in a cope of scarlet cloth of gold, so rich and splendid that it beggars description. How tired, how worn, how little he seemed, away up there over the heads of the kneeling throng, on a level even with those in the upper tribunes—he who had barely come to the shoulders of his stalwart guards on Sunday morning! His arms drooped to his knees every few moments, then he moistened his lips. He was pale. But the same sweet agreeableness was in his dark eyes. He seemed to see everyone and to give each one individually and personally his blessing.

I felt that he looked straight at me, straight into my eyes. And there was that about him at that moment while I knelt for his blessing that made my heart utter a little prayer, not only to him but for him. That heavy cope, that great mitre, all the solemn accessories of ceremonial and ritual surrounding him, seemed to me symbols of his high weight and pressure of his high office. Yes, I prayed for him then. I think he wants, desires our prayers. He is such a little Pope, the burden is so terrible on him, the world so uncomprehending, apparently deaf to his pleading for peace and faith in God and Christian fellowship.

When Archbishop Glennon pointed out in a recent sermon that the passing of the home menaced the national life of America, he sounded a timely warning. In placing emphasis on the importance of home life, he reiterated a doctrine as old as the Church itself—the need of modeling family life on the lines of the humble home of Nazareth. But the singular fact is that the world, whose present ways lead to the destruction of the home, recognizes, and always has recognized, the importance of the home as the keystone of the nation. Deprived by self-will of the sustaining grace of a sacramental state of matrimony, it has never been able entirely to deny the dignity of the married state. It has always accorded special recognition to the married man. It has granted him certain privileges, considered him entitled to special consideration in business affairs and in social life.

There was a reason, and it is fitting that good Catholics, whose boast is that they are good Americans, should consider this reason. The deference paid to the young married couple by their neighbors in the world is based upon the assumption that they will become heads of families—that they will give citizens to the State as the Catholic husband and wife give sons to serve it and souls to glorify God. Moreover, as heads of families they are expected to typify authority, law and order.

MILBURN'S LAXA-LIVER PILLS

gently unlock the secretions, clear away all effete and waste matter from the system, and give tone and vitality to the whole intestinal tract, relieving constipation, sick headaches, biliousness, coated tongue, foul breath, heartburn and all other troubles arising from a wrong action of the liver.

BEST FOR LIVER.

Mrs. D. C. Wright, 89 Johnston St., Hamilton, Ont., writes: "I cannot speak too highly of Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills, in fact, I would not be without them, as I think they are the best possible remedy for the liver." Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c. a box at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

The husband and wife who by their acts deliberately ignore these obligations, obtain, community respect and consideration under false pretenses. In these days of lowered standards the Catholic home must be a place of prayer and devotion. To the warnings of missionaries and confessors may be added the instinct of enlightened patriotism urging every Catholic husband and wife to stand proudly before their fellow-citizens, confident in the knowledge that, in avoiding the wrath of God, they have fairly won the respect accorded them.

Christians Are Killed

News has just come from Ichang, that twenty-nine Chinese Catholics have been put to death by a group of fanatical Chinese under a self-styled "Ta Han King" or the Heavenly Son of the Ta Han Dynasty. The massacre took place in a pagan temple in Shu Sha Win, a town on the borders of Hupeh and Szechen. The Christians were dragged from their homes and brought to the temple where, under threat of death, they were asked to offer incense to "The Living Buddha." They refused, and, like the early Christians, bravely gave their blood for Him who died for them. Three Belgian priests were reported missing, but two have been released. As yet nothing is known of the third.

This party, made up of bonzes (Chinese monks) was originally organized to rid the country of roving bands of robbers and ex-soldiers; but it has gradually developed from a political sect into an intensely anti-Christian mob.

BOILS AND PIMPLES ON FACE AND BODY.

Boils and pimples are caused by bad food, and there is only one way to get rid of them and that is to get at the seat of the trouble by using a good reliable blood cleansing medicine such as Burdock Blood Bitters. This preparation has been on the market for over 40 years, and is the most reliable remedy for all troubles arising from a bad condition of the blood. It removes all the impurities from the system, and will leave a clear, healthy skin devoid of all eruptions. Mr. Felix Bohard, 39 Dover St., Charlottetown, Ont., writes: "I was troubled with boils and pimples, and could not get rid of them. I had used different kinds of remedies and salves, and finally thought there was no relief. I used two bottles of B.B.B. and was completely relieved of all my boils on my neck, back and hips, and the pimples also disappeared." Price, $1.25 a bottle; put up only by The T. The Political See-Saw

The strategy of the opponents of sound Constitutional Government is now clear. It has developed out, and all hope of genuine leadership must be abandoned by the embittered Opposition. We wonder what the Hon. W. S. Fielding thinks about it all. Or is he considered? We doubt it. Our impression is that Mr. Ernest LaPointe and the Hon. Mackenzie King came to fatuous conclusions between themselves. The grand strategy is, in a word, to put up a straight LaPointe-King Liberal where there is a chance of winning, and where there is no chance to leave the field to the farmer candidate.

In Quebec the farmer movement is to be ignored and fought to the death; in the other Provinces, flattered and cajoled. It is hard to see what is to be gained by these servile and humiliating approaches. But one inference is open: The LaPointe-King Group are prepared to hand the country over to the advocates of group-government rather than see a firm settled government at Ottawa. And these are the men we are asked to admire as Statesmen! Irrational hatred of the men who brought the Country through the most frightful experience of all human history, and whose after-the-war achievements are the admiration of the world, seems to be the motive swaying these would-be controllers of Canada's future destiny.

The foolish game of See-Saw is all arranged. In Medicine Hat it is Crerar's turn in the air; in Yamaska it was King's, and the poor farmer was left to plow alone. Sunbury was also a Crerar victory; but somehow miscarried. The idea is that where the Liberal has not the ghost of a show the vote is to go to Crerar or Morrison or Jimmy Simpson, or Drury, and where the farmer is hopelessly out of it, then the U. F. O. or the U. G. G. will slavishly "pluck" for the Anti-Conscriptionist-Liberal. But suppose while the Hon. Mackenzie King is up in the air, Crerar should suddenly slip off his end of the plank. We would solemnly warn the young man to look out for this; for we have a healthy suspicion that when it comes to leadership and forming a brand-new form of government, the Hon. Alex. Crerar has an idea that he can give the Quebec nominee spades and win.

Boost Your Country

We ask no pardon for advertising agitating to the exchange question. We do so because it overshadows all other questions and problems affecting us. If the people could only be made to realize the extent to which we are being bled through the operations of exchange between this country and the United States, the heather would be on fire, and every red-blooded man and woman would be willing to work tooth and nail with all their might and main to find the solution. Think of it for a moment! The discount of our dollar in the United States, now something like fourteen or fifteen cents means, that we have to pay more for that extent for the goods we buy from the United States, and for many of the goods produced in Canada, to the tune, in the aggregate, of at least two hundred million dollars a year. To get down to a concrete case which almost everybody can understand—every house-holder in Canada who burns hard coal has to pay between $1.50 and $2.00 more per ton by reason of this exchange. Just as you have to pay that much more for your coal, so you are paying, for the same reason, correspondingly more on nearly every commodity you purchase. It is an appalling condition of affairs.

What this country needs is a tremendous trumpet-call to arouse the people to a realization of what this awful exchange handicap means. The message should be set forth in thunderous tones from every editor's chair, from every platform, university, collegiate, school, club, from every assembly of men and women to produce more and more at home, and thereby render it unnecessary to buy so much from the United States. That is the only solution permitted us in view of the United States prohibitive legislation affecting our food products and in arriving at it, we will not only solve the exchange question, but we will solve the unemployment question, because increased production at home will mean increased employment to Canadian workmen.

Menace Of Free Trade

Talk of arresting our industrial progress can only emanate from men who do not consider conditions. Talk of uprooting our fiscal system and introducing free trade is nothing short of madness. The men who advocate free trade cannot really be serious. If they are, they either do not understand what they are talking about or they are selfish to the point almost of criminality. Free trade in Canada with protection in the United States would absolutely ruin this country, and do it so expeditiously that it would turn our hair grey in a night. The immediate effect would be that the hundreds of manufacturing plants established by Americans in this country, as branches of their own, would be shut up, because there would be no necessity to maintain them in operation. These Americans can manufacture cheaper in the United States by reason of their larger production there, and if they were able to send their products free of duty into Canada, it would be fully on their part to maintain their Canadian manufacturing establishments. Thus, in the twinkling of an eye the great manufacturing centre, comprising Windsor, Walkerville, Ford, Sandwich, which has been created by the establishment of scores of branches of United States manufacturing concerns, would be converted from a hive of industry into a grave. The same would be true of many of the thriving towns in the eastern township of Quebec; similar untoward happenings would take place in hundreds of towns throughout the country. Our Tariff brought these American industries over here, and the removal of the Tariff would automatically take them away.

Aerial Forest Survey

Flying has definitely established itself as an essential factor in the lumbering industry. The value of the airplane and seaplane and the practicability of their employment have been demonstrated well beyond the point of acceptance by lumbering firms of Canada. Since 1919, when the first experiments in aerial work were made, the usefulness of the air men on the force of lumber companies owning large timber areas has been considerably extended, and the companies employing planes are exceedingly well satisfied. One of the first duties of the air patrol of the forest is to detect fires. He is more often busy in survey work, however. The surveyor in an airplane can make survey maps of a lumber area in about a tenth of the time that would be required if he had to do it on the ground, and the results are many times more complete and accurate. A writer in American Forestry, Washington, describing the progress of work in Canada, cites the case of a rapid emergency survey made for a lumber company.

An instance of the value of this service to the company occurred during the summer of 1920, when word was suddenly received there would arrive on the same day a man with whom the company was negotiating for the purchase of a large timber area, but who had not been expected for several weeks. An official of the company was rushed over to the airfield and taken out over the territory. Five hours later, when the owner arrived, the company officials were able to meet him with a map of the country and far more accurate information about it than he himself possessed.

Logging bosses are taken over timber stands in the planes and in a few hours secure more information than they could have acquired in many weeks on the ground, and often a ground trip to the stand would itself take days or weeks. The logging chief of one company covered 850 miles over northern woods in twelve and a half hours, and at its conclusion stated that the information acquired was greater than could have been secured by years of travel on foot.

League Plans To Tackle Problem

Paris, July 18.—In accordance with proposals made Sunday by Rene Viviani, former premier of France, the disarmament commission of the League of Nations decided to appoint three sub-committees to tackle disarmament problems. One commission will take up the private manufacture and sale of arms, and recommend a system of international control thereof; the second will consider an international board for the interchange of military information, and the third will gather figures on the present state of armament and on the military and naval budgets of all nations. The three commissions will meet Monday for the first time. They are to report to the full commission early in September, and the full commission in turn is to report to the League assembly in Geneva.

The Duke Departs

The Duke of Devonshire departs with the sincere esteem and genuine friendship of the Canadian people. It is seldom that the personal representative of royalty in this Western-world Dominion, very conscious of its honor, has so completely won the admiration and respect of our people. Coming to us during the darkest days of the Great War, we at once discovered that here was no idly contented wearer of an honored title and an historic name. Here was a man—at a time when men were sorely needed in the pivotal places of the Empire.

The Duke has made it his first business, since he came amongst us to learn Canada. He will return to the Mother Country with a far more complete and detailed knowledge of our Dominion than most Canadians possess. He can sit down today and intelligently discuss the various sections of this broad and varied nation with the native-born who come from these sections, and it is only the simple truth that there are precious few of us who could compete with him in a comprehensive survey of the entire land. This should be of the greatest value to the Canadian people in the future. Wherever the Duke may be, he will be one of the foremost councillors of the Empire; and he will bring to any discussion of its policies, as they may affect Canada, a profound and sympathetic appreciation of our feelings, our difficulties, our domestic problems and our essential and unswerving loyalty to that Empire. He cannot be fooled by the vapors of noisy sectionalists or misled by the apparent strength of evanescent movements.

The Duke was a strictly constitutional Governor-General. In this regard, his official policy was in the highest degree satisfactory to the Ottawa Ministers and to the Imperial Government. There never was a hint of friction or criticism. But in his capacity as a British citizen, prizing his unparalleled opportunity to come into personal and mutually helpful contact with other British citizens resident in Canada, he did not allow the trappings of his office to hamper his movements. He felt that he was among friends and fellow-countrymen, and he acted always with that cordial good fellowship and unassuming bonhomie which are the passwords to confidence and the free and illuminating exchange of opinion.

The Duchess was in this field of his activities a tactful, winning, and gracious ally. She was one with her illustrious husband in desiring to know Canadians and to have Canadians know her. She felt, as he did, that we are one people. It would be impossible to overstate the value of her ardent co-operation and her quite unforced solicitude to meet the Canadian people and learn at first hand their attitude toward all the vital questions which make the moral web-and-woof of our common Imperial fabric.

"The Devonshires" will take with them to England, and wherever the call of duty may carry them in the great days to come, the best wishes and the firmest confidence of every corner of Canada. They do not return to London as the escaped social lions of a few seasons at Ottawa, with a casual official visit to some of the other centres of Canadian society; but as the familiar friends of Canadians in every Province and in every walk of life. They will not be remembered amongst us as "a name," but as personalities; and they will be remembered long. Montreal Star.

Canada Leads

Camp Borden, July 26.—Squadron leader J. L. Gordon, D. F. C., of St. Lambert, Quebec, has assumed command of the Canadian Air Force at this station. Training is progressing very favorably and the flying records for the past year disclose some figures which speak well for the efficiency of the unit. The C. A. F. took over the aerodrome in July, 1920. Nearly 400 officers have benefited from "Refresher" courses and more than 950 airmen have learned the mechanical and other duties incidental to aviation to date. During this period many types of aircraft have been in the air for 8,410 hours on duty, including photography, test flights, wireless work, transport, and emergencies and flying instruction. Approximately 280,000 miles have been covered, and only two fatalities have occurred neither of which was traceable to any faults in the machines.

Explorer Will Show Esquimaux "Movies"

Halifax, N. S., July 20.—Dr. Donald B. MacMillan's exploration schooner Bowdoin will not sail from Halifax harbor in the second leg of her cruise to Baffin Land until the weather clears. Interested visitors aboard the Bowdoin today asked the explorer what he proposed to do with a motion picture machine and some 20,000 feet of film, educational, humorous and serious. He explained that when they turned off the lights near the Arctic circle, he was going to run a "nickel" for the Esquimaux, using convenient snow banks as screens. The Bowdoin took on extra cargo today in the shape of a large doll donated by a club of Halifax children for the "little frosty Eskimo."

From Maritime Province points there is connection by Ocean Limited with the Continental Limited daily, and by the Maritime Express daily except Sunday. The Maritime arriving daily in Montreal at 7.40 affords the most direct connection, but passengers by the Ocean Limited will have the advantage of a day spent in Montreal. The Maritime arriving at Levis at 1.50 p. m. affords connection with Train No. 11 leaving Quebec daily for Cochrane at 5.00 p. m. This train makes connection at Cochrane with the Continental Limited, so it will be seen there is really a choice of two distinct routes.

There is also the through service to the Pacific Coast by train leaving Toronto daily at 10.30 p. m., via Sudbury, Port Arthur, Fort William and Winnipeg. Connection for this is made by the Ocean Limited to Montreal, and the Grand Trunk International Limited to Toronto. Particulars of these splendid rail services to the west will be explained by all C. N. R. ticket agents, and folders and illustrated matter may be obtained by application to any of the City Ticket Offices or by writing the General Passenger Department, Moncton, N. B. At least $150,000,000 of the loss can be accounted for by the immediate failure of the hay crop and the decrease in cereals, and a loss of $50,000,000 brought about by the fact that in many sections of the province the farmers will be forced to sell their cattle at a very low price.

Merchant Ships

New York, July 22.—Five of the largest and finest steamships in the United States merchant marine, which had been chartered to the United States Mail Steamship Company, were seized tonight by representatives of the United States Shipping Board because of an alleged violation of contract. The seized vessels, all former German liners, are the George Washington, America, Susquehanna, President Grant and Agamemnon. The Shipping Board representatives were accompanied by United States Attorney Wm. Hayward and United States Marshal Thomas D. McCarthy. A representative of the Shipping Board and a Deputy United States Marshal were left on each ship.

Failure of the steamship company to pay rentals which, in the aggregate, up to the time of the seizures, would amount about four hundred thousand dollars, is given as the principal reason for the Board's action by Elmer Schlesinger, its general counsel.

Four other vessels, also under charter to the United States Mail Steamship Company, which are now on the high seas, will be taken over by the Shipping Board as soon as they return to United States ports, Mr. Schlesinger added.

The seized ships are valued at approximately $25,000,000. No resistance was offered to the seizure.

One Man Killed

Seranton, Pa., July 22.—One person was killed and 27 were injured, three of them seriously, when the Lackawanna limited, one of the fastest trains on the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western railroad, was wrecked at Glenburn Station, 12 miles west of this city. The train was bound from New York to Chicago.

All the injured were given first aid by physicians and nurses sent on a relief train from here. The most serious hurt were brought to Seranton hospitals, those with minor injuries being sent to Binghampton, N. Y.

Charles Coolbaugh, Seranton, engineer of the wrecked train, was so badly scalded that he died within two hours. As the engine left the rails, taking the baggage car, mail car and two day coaches filled with passengers along with it, a freight train travelling east at a rapid rate crashed into the wreckage.

All four tracks were blocked, delaying traffic for several hours. Close examination of the roadbed in the vicinity of the wreck, railroad officials said, showed the cause was caused by an inch and a half nut which had been dropped or placed on top of the rail. The flattened nut was found near the point where the locomotive left the track, while the imprint of it was plainly discernable on top of the rail.

The train, which was running 50 miles an hour at the time, ran over the ties nearly 200 feet before it toppled over.

Among those reported injured was Thomas Oddie, of Toronto.

January Carnival of Economy FOR OUR

The old year took away, for ever, we hope, the old burden of war prices. For months conditions have been working toward the great climax that brought the remarkable merchandise that is here assembled for this our greatest January Carnival of Economy.

The results came in two ways: 1st. The drastic lowering of prices on our own stocks, down to the new low basis, and often far below it—to double your interest in January buying in our store.

2nd. We have combed the markets—taking utmost advantage of the opportunities created by far sighted manufacturers who were ready to co-operate with us in presenting to you now the lowest prices that will be possible, for the next six months, at least.

We can just see the delight of our Customers when they see the splendid assortment of goods, in every department of our store, and then realize that prices are away down to the bottom, where it is a pleasure to buy things.

Many Manufacturers have ACCEPTED LARGE LOSSES. We shall forgo a large part of our profits on the new goods and accept large losses on our own mark-downs—to inaugurate this first New Year under the New Management and

THE MOST STIRRING JANUARY PRICE-UPSET THAT THIS COMMUNITY HAS EVER KNOWN.]

No matter what you need or desire, now is the best time for months to come to buy it. Some of the reasons are told on this page; but scores of others are here that can get no mention today, even in this broad space.

Inscribed to Dr. Wales, Andrews East, Que.

Where the little river swerves, By a hundred shoredland curves, And complaining on its way, At the rocks that would delay, Fill the woods that line its path, With the booming of its wrath. Where the blackbirds come to lave

In the shallow, troubled wave, Dipping from the bridge, and then

Back onto the bridge again, To and fro, while the air rings With their ceaseless jargonings.

Where the opening spaces show Shadowed heights, and heights aglow, Tilth and pasture, and the charm Of the quiet secluded farm, Such as Horace sang when he From the city's yoke was free.

Where the travelled road runs past,

Where your pleasant lot is cast, Many glimpses this green recess In these woods whose loveliness Spreading wide on every hand, Is the glory of this land.

O, today it seems to me I have strolled thro' Arcady; That my secret ways have gone By the woods of Avalon; Found the Apollonian fire In this land of heart's desire.

Tell me, where do mortal eyes O, a fairer paradise Fix their gaze, or tell me where Earth breathes a serener air?

Where has beauty built a shrine Lovelier, or more divine?

A Little Child Shall Lead Thee

(Concluded)

Eileen noticed his little attentions and prayed to God that He might direct her. Each read the other's thoughts and one bright May morning he modestly asked her if at some future day, she would consider him worthy to be her spouse. Eileen blushed like the crimson rose in her convent garden and after many prayers for light and direction, she consented.

Arrayed in the same spotless gown which she wore at graduation, she was quietly married with a nuptial Mass in the little country Chapel at Saint Stephen's. No happier couple were ever joined in holy wedlock.

All went well, each happy in the company of the other, enjoying the comforts of a snug little home.

Eileen's Crucifix hung in a most conspicuous place in their living room, and each morning and evening both knelt in prayer before the Image of their best friend.

Their happiness was complete when God blessed their union with a dear baby boy. Who can comprehend the joy of this happy couple. God alone knows. What a beautiful sight to behold when this virtuous mother taught her darling child to utter for the first time the holy Names of Jesus, Mary and Joseph. In all his little childish sorrows he went to his dear Jesus and told him all about them. How he loved to prattle his baby talk about his "Dood Desus" as he used to call Him.

Time flew on, like a peaceful river until one unhappy day, a simple word was said unintentionally. Charles hady took offence and vowed he would never enter the church again.

Imagine poor Eileen she talked and tried to reason with him. All was of no avail, his proud spirit was wounded and he would not relent. Eileen had noticed his failing before their marriage and had warned him of its fatal affects but he allowed it to grow until it seemed almost impossible to remedy it. He became so hardened that he told Eileen to take their cherished Crucifix from the wall, where it had hung for two years and had given them so much consolation in all their little troubles. "Oh! Charles," she pleaded, "don't be so cruel, don't ask me to remove the Crucifix. In a fit of anger, he pulled it from the wall, leaving his cozy little home and his heart-broken Eileen weeping sadly behind. Oh! what sorrow and re symptoms of a weak, torpid or agniant condition of the kidneys or liver, and are a warning it is extremely hazardous to neglect, so important is healthy action of these organs. They are commonly attended by loss of energy, lack of courage, and sometimes by gloomy foreboding and despondency.

"I was taken ill with kidney trouble, and became so weak I could scarcely get around, look motions without benefit, and finally decided to try Hood's Sarsaparil. After the first bottle I felt so much better that I continued the use, and six bottles made me a new woman. When my little girl was a boy, she could not keep anything on her stomach, and we gave her Hood's Sarsaparil which cured her." Mrs. Thomas L. W. Wallaceburg, Ont.

anguish filled her pure young soul!

When little Francis came in to, say his morning prayers, he missed his Crucifix and cried out, Where is my Desus, my dood dear Desus? Oh! mama go and find Him and my dear papa.

Poor Eileen knew not what to say. How heart-rendering it was to listen to her darling asking for those two whom she loved so much.

Time wore on, for years and no papa returned. Eileen was obliged to return to her work again, that she might be able to support her dear child and her self.

She soon noticed that her child had a vocation and earnestly prayed that the Good God would direct her Francis and that if it be His holy Will He would grant him all the graces necessary for his holy calling.

Never a day passed that those two pure souls neglected to pray for the missing link in this holy chain. God had His own designs, His ways are not ours.

When Francis graduated from school, he called his loving mother to his side and told her of his intentions, how he heard God calling him to preach to His sheep without a shepherd, in far off distant lands.

Naturally, the parting was hard, as was the parting of Jesus and Mary. Eileen accepted the sacrifice and blessed her darling boy a thousand times. She realized that he belonged to God, that he was only lent to her to guide and direct him to do God's Will.

After years of hard study, the happy day arrived, when for the first time he held in his anointed hands the Victim of our salvation. Oh, the joy of this youthful Christ, at this Supreme moment, when the Court of Heaven listened to those solemn words of consecration: "This is my Body, this is my Blood." When for the first time his dear mother received the Sacred Host from his hands, her joy knew no bounds.

After a few days of much needed rest at his dear home, he bade his loving mother adieu, to seek and to save those who were lost.

Dear Eileen returned to the Convent and Sister Catherine was there to receive her convent child as she always called her. She was of the greatest assistance to the good Nuns, being able to teach and to do many things for them.

After years of hardships and labor, Father Francis was preaching the last sermon at the men's Mission. He pleaded hard for one poor sinner who had strayed away from the Sheepfold and asked all present to plead with him to the Sacred Heart for this one erring soul. Blessing his hearers he left the pulpit.

While he was praying in the Sacristy an old lame man staggered to the spot where the Mission Father was pleading with our Divine Lord for the return of his erring father. The aged man embraced his only child, weeping bitterly, begging forgiveness and placing in his son's hands his coveted Crucifix, "his 'Dood Desus,' which he had always with him since that sad and lonely night, when in a fit of anger he actually dragged it from its resting place.

Surely at that moment there was joy in heaven and God had heard and answered the many prayers of years which had been waited on angels' wings to His Throne in heaven.

After a confession of many years with heart-felt sorrow, this poor prodigal found peace in his Father's House. "Francis, my baby boy, he exclaimed, "you have haunted me every moment of my life, your image was ever before me, I could not chase you away, you lingered by my side, you held me by the hand, you led me here tonight, my darling baby boy, surely 'A Little Child Has Led Me, prepare me for my last journey, I am going home.' Before another sun-set, Charles Hadley was with his God. Dear faithful Eileen, after years of penance and mortification, passed from this world of sorrow to the joys of Paradise to receive the reward which awaits those who suffer patiently for the love of the Sacred Heart.

Father Francis is still on the Missions, praying for the lost sheep and begging his faithful ones to pray for those who are dead to the Master's voice.—The Pilot.

Convicts in penitentiaries show a higher average of intelligence than the general population, Dr. Herman Adler of the Cleveland Foundation's Justice Survey told members of the Cleveland Academy of Medicine at a recent meeting. Repeaters, men returned to the penitentiary time after time, show a higher average of intelligence than those who learn their lessons the first time, Dr. Adler said. All of which emphasizes the old story that education based merely on the development of the intellect to the neglect of the training of the will, does not make men better or society more moral. Moral character can be developed only with religious training, insists the Echo. Reason and experience, Washington reminded us, forbid us to expect that national morality can prevail where religious principles are excluded.

Dear Sirs—Since the start of the Base ball season we have been hindered with sore muscles, sprained ankles, etc, but just as soon as we started using MINARD'S LINIMENT our troubles ended. Every baseball player should keep a bottle of your liniment handy.

Yours truly, W. E. MCPHERSON, Secretary Armstrong High School Baseball Team.

HEART WAS SO BAD COULDN'T DO HOUSEWORK.

When the heart becomes weak and the nerves unstrung, it is impossible for a woman to look after her household or social duties. The least little exertion or excitement leaves her in an exhausted condition and not fit to do anything. Women would be wise, if on the first sign of any weakness of the heart and nerves, they would take a course of MILBURN'S HEART and NERVE PILLS.

Mrs. Daniel Besanson, Loganville, N.S., writes:—"As I was troubled with a weak heart for nearly two years I am writing to tell you what your great remedy, Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, has done for me. My heart was so bad at night I could not sleep, I would take smothering spells, and was so weak I could not do my housework. I tried two doctors, but got no results. A friend advised me to try your pills. I used six boxes and am completely relieved. I think they are the best remedy for heart trouble there is."

January Carnival of Economy FOR OUR

The old year took away, for ever, we hope, the old burden of war prices. For months conditions have been working toward the great climax that brought the remarkable merchandise that is here assembled for this our greatest January Carnival of Economy.

The results came in two ways: 1st. The drastic lowering of prices on our own stocks, down to the new low basis, and often far below it—to double your interest in January buying in our store.

2nd. We have combined the markets—taking utmost advantage of the opportunities created by far sighted manufacturers who were ready to co-operate with us in presenting to you now the lowest prices that will be possible, for the next six months, at least.

We can just see the delight of our Customers when they see the splendid assortment of goods, in every department of our store, and then realize that prices are away down to the bottom, where it is a pleasure to buy things.

Many Manufacturers have ACCEPTED LARGE LOSSES. We shall forgo a large part of our profits on the new goods and accept large losses on our own mark-downs—to inaugurate this first New Year under the New Management and

THE MOST STIRRING JANUARY PRICE-UPSET THAT THIS COMMUNITY HAS EVER KNOWN.

No matter what you need or desire, now is the best time for months to come to buy it. Some of the reasons are told on this page; but scores of others are here that can get no mention today, even in this broad space.
