A Great Intrigue,

Mistress of Darracourt.

CHAPTER XXXI.

"I am glad," she said, simply; "for now it is time for me to say 'good-by!'"

"Good-by!" he repeated, dully. "Why?"

"I am going," she said, with downcast eyes. "There is no occasion for me to stay any longer. You are not nearly well, but—but you can get on without me, I think!"

He was silent a moment.

"Where are you going?" he asked.

"I am going to look for another situation," she said. "I am going to be a governess, I hope."

He stretched out his hand.

"Wherever you go, you will take my heartfelt gratitude with you," he said, in a low voice. "You have proved yourself a pearl among women, Miss Verner. Words are poor things when one has to offer them in payment for such services as you have lavished upon me. I think that it would have been better to let me die, if I meant dying, but I know that I owe you my life!"

"Do not say anything more," she said, faintly. "Good-by."

"You will send me your address?" he said. "I should like to know that you were well and happy, to get an opportunity of thanking you more fully than I can do now—"

"Yes, I will let you know," she said. "Good-by." Then she stopped and drew the coverlet over his chest; and as she did so it seemed as if her strength and resolution forsook her, for, trembling violently, she fell on her knees, and burying her face in the clothes, broke into low, choking sobs.

Harry turned pale, and put his hand on her arm.

"Miss Verner—for Heaven's sake!" he murmured, brokenly.

"Oh, forgive me!" she sobbed; "forgive me! It is wicked and foolish; but I am tired and—upset, I think!"

Then she raised her face, and clasping her hands, looked at him imploringly.

"Oh, Harry, don't send me away. Don't let me leave you yet. You are not well enough. Tell me to stay. I cannot bear another should take my place; here where I have sat and watched your dear face hour after hour. Harry, don't scorn me, I cannot help it; I must tell you the truth. I love you, Harry! I love you! Have pity on me!"

He looked at her, and his face worked. Then he put his hand on hers and drew it toward his lips with that touch of chivalry which marks the patrician.

"My poor girl," he murmured. "Scorn you! Have pity on you! What do you take me for? Am I a monster of ingratitude and insensibility? Miss Verner—Marie—if I could believe that this was something more than pity for a man whose life you have saved—"

"Pity! Ah!" she breathed—"oh, the shame of it will kill me, but—Harry, it is true—I love you!"

"Not another word," he said, hastily. "It is I who should speak now. Miss Verner—Marie—will you be my wife?"

She seemed to be too overwhelmed with shame to speak, and he went on: "Will you be my wife? I will try to be worthy of your love. You know how much I have suffered—how battered and bruised a heart it is that I offer you; but I will forget the past. Stay—for her fingers had closed on his hand tremulously. "I am a poor man; worse, I have no legal name to give you"—his voice faltered and his face flushed—"there is a shadow on my life—"

She rose and bent over him.

"Now it is for me to speak," she murmured. "There can be no shadow, let it be what it may, that can darken my love for you. Your wife! Ah, Harry, if you knew what music those words awaken in my heart—"

And, stooping still lower, she kissed him, and stole out.

Scarcely had the door closed between them, than she threw the mask aside.

A wild look of triumph glittered in her eyes, and her face flushed.

"I have won!" broke from her lips. "I shall be the Marchioness of Merle!"

CHAPTER XXXII.

The next day Harry got up. He was still weak, but he was able to crawl to the yard, and there received such a welcome as only rough men accord to a fellow man whom they have grown to admire and respect.

"By George, it seems like old times again!" exclaimed Mr. Doyle, upon whose arm Harry leaned. "I swear the yard hasn't seemed the same since you've been cooped upstairs there. And as to the business—phew! That comes of depending upon another man so much. You see, I've got so used to consulting you in everything that turned up, that, by George, I was quite lost when I couldn't go and say, 'Look here, Harry, how's this to be?'"

"I hope I shall soon be of some use again," said Harry.

"Use! Rather! Why, the look of you is a credit to the establishment! I tell you, sir, that there have been so many inquiries after you as if you had been a duke! Why, even the dogs seemed to miss you, and I had to give two or three of 'em a lickin' for howling round the window!"

There were several round Harry at this moment, and he stopped and patted them.

"Where is Miss Verner?" he asked presently. "She has not been here to-day?"

"Oh, yes, she has," said Mr. Doyle, with a wink. "She saw the doctor and heard how you were, and then went back to her room. I say, I hope I didn't offend you yesterday in what I said?"

"No," said Harry, his pale face flushing. "No. You were quite right. Miss Verner and I have become engaged."

Mr. Doyle stopped short, and emitted a triumphant whistle.

"No! By George, I'm as pleased as if I'd sold a screw for a hundred guineas, and got the money—"

"Which would make you heartily miserable," put in Harry, smiling.

"Going to be married!" went on Mr. Doyle. "Well, I never was more delighted—" then he stopped abruptly, and his face fell. "But I suppose I shall lose you, eh, lad? That's rather rough on me! I didn't think of that," and he looked so rueful that Harry's heart was touched.

"Why should you lose me?" he said, gently. "You shall not unless you like. If I am of any use—"

"Look here!" exclaimed the good fellow, enthusiastically. "Why should we part, you and me? We understand each other, don't we? I should think so. There is many a father and son that don't get on better—ay, half as well. Look here, Harry, if the place is good enough for you, why not live at the cottage? It's big enough for us all—and if it ain't I'll turn out. I dare say you won't mind my dropping in occasionally; you'll let me smoke a pipe in the chimney corner, eh?"

"We will live at the cottage, my wife and I, on one condition," said Harry, "and that is that you make it your home and join with us in our attempt at housekeeping."

Mr. Doyle was delighted.

"Now," he said, fervently, "I have not a word to say against the match, and I wish you every happiness."

"Thank you," said Harry, in his grave way. "I know I have a friend in you; the only friend I have in the world," he said, quietly.

"Excepting the young lady you're going to marry; don't forget her, you know!"

"I don't forget her," said Harry. Then Mr. Doyle insisted upon his going into the office and sitting down, and while he was sitting there Marie Verner came in.

She started a little at sight of him, but she seemed rejoiced that he should be down again, and they sat and talked for a little while, and he told her the arrangement that he and Mr. Doyle had come to.

"You know," he said, in his quiet way, "that I am a very poor man, Marie," and he smiled.

She pressed his hand and glanced at him.

"Does it matter?" she murmured. "Poor or rich, so you will love me, I am content."

"Well, I am very poor," he said, lightly.

She was silent a moment.

"Should you like to be rich?" she said, presently.

He was looking through a window at a horse exercising in the yard, and had forgotten that she was there, and it was with a start that he turned to her.

"Should I like to be rich?" he said. "I don't know. Why do you ask?"

"Oh, only to make conversation, as the French say," she answered, lightly; "and now you must go upstairs. You look tired, Harry, and if we are not careful we shall have you laid up again."

The days passed, and with each day Harry's strength increased, and drawing upon that grand reserve of health which he had stored up, all unconscious that he should ever need it, he regained his old robust health, and, seeing this, Mr. Doyle was for hastening on the wedding.

"It seems a bit lonely, Harry, now she's gone," he said; "after all, no house can be called completely furnished without a woman, can it? What's the use of her being in lodgings by herself, and you and me existing like a couple of crusty bachelors. Make a match of it, Harry, and let's settle down."

Harry received this request coolly and indifferently. If he were to marry Marie Verner, it was just as well, perhaps, that he should marry her at once. So he asked her.

She affected a little surprise, and lowered her long lashes, and he did not guess how her heart leaped at his words.

"Isn't it—very soon?" she said, timidly.

"Is it?" he responded, simply. "You shall do as you like, Marie."

She crept a little closer to him, and looked up into his face as only an accomplished actress can look; as she had looked up at Mr. Sinclair's.

"Very well," she said; "but it shall be as you like."

A day was fixed within a fortnight. It was to be a quiet wedding, as a matter of course—no bridesmaids, no festivities. Mr. Doyle was to give away the bride, and the happy pair was to take a week on the Continent. Then they were to settle down in the cottage.

Mr. Doyle insisted that it was too shabby a place for so handsome a couple, and one day gave Harry a check for a hundred pounds.

"Just to get a few things to liven it up a bit, lad!" he said, coaxingly. "Now, don't look grave; it's my house, you know, and I can spend what I like on it. Look here! if you don't go and buy the things—you and Miss Marie—I'll start off to an upholsterer and buy 'em myself, and a pretty mess I shall make of it!"

When Harry told Marie of the good fellow's generosity and showed her the check, she stared, and then laughed—laughed so long, and with such a strange look, that Harry was puzzled.

"It is a tremendous sum of money," she said, checking herself suddenly. "Wouldn't you like to pay it back some day, Harry?"

"I should, indeed!" he said, "and we will; though a hundred pounds isn't so easily saved."

The check lay upon the table, and she flicked it with her finger, a bright, unnatural light gleaming in her eyes.

"If we should ever be rich, I mean very rich, this will amuse us to look back upon, won't it?"

Something in her tone jarred upon him.

"Amuse" is scarcely the word," he said, gravely.

"No," she said, then her lips curved. "Never mind, we've made up our minds to be poor, haven't we? And now let us go and spend it," and she dragged him off to Oxford Street.

This was not the first time since their engagement that her manner had puzzled and startled him. There was a restlessness, an impatience, which seemed to indicate that she was waiting for something. Once they were walking in the park, and a tall, over-dressed man passed them so close that he pushed against Harry so that he turned to remonstrate, but the man was looking the other way, and before Harry could speak he felt Marie Verner clutch his arm.

Published by Authority.

Under the provisions of "The Stamp Acts, 1898-1914," the following Rules and Regulations respecting Stamp Duties, in substitution for those of date September 15th, 1914, have been approved by His Excellency the Governor in Council.

JOHN E. BENNETT,
Colonial Secretary,
Department of the Colonial Secretary,
October 6th, 1914.

1. Every instrument shall be stamped on its face, when possible.

2. Cancellation of stamps shall be made by the person cancelling, writing, printing or perforating his name or initials with date across stamp.

3. Bills of Exchange, Cheques, Promissory Notes, Bills of Lading, Shipping Receipts, and Charter Parties shall be stamped and the stamps thereon cancelled as follows:—

(a) Bills of Exchange, Cheques and Promissory Notes drawn or made in the Colony by the person signing the same; provided that in the case of a cheque on a Banker, the Banker to whom it is presented may, if it is unstamped, stamp the same and cancel the stamp.

(b) Bills of Exchange, Cheques and Promissory Notes drawn or made outside the Colony by the person in the Colony into whose hands any such bill, cheque or note shall come unstamped before he in any manner negotiates or pays the same.

(c) Bills of Lading executed outside the Colony by the Consignee in the Colony into whose hand any such Bill of Lading may come before he in any manner negotiates the same.

(d) Bills of Lading executed in the Colony by the shipper. Provided that if any Bill of Lading is presented to any person or Company for signature unstamped, such person or Company may stamp the same and cancel the stamp.

(e) Shipping Receipts by the shipper. Provided that if any Shipping Receipt is presented to any person or Company for signature unstamped, such person or Company may stamp the same and cancel the stamp.

(f) Charter Parties by the person in the Colony last executing the same.

(g) Charter Parties executed wholly outside the Colony by the person in the Colony into whose hands any such Charter Party comes unstamped before he in any manner uses or takes any action upon such Charter Party.

4. The person upon whom the obligation to stamp and cancel any instrument is imposed by these Rules shall be deemed to be a person issuing an instrument, and, if he fails to stamp such instrument with its proper stamp, or to cancel such stamp, he shall be liable to the penalties imposed by Section 22 of the Act 61 Victoria, Cap. 14, entitled "An Act respecting the Payment of Certain Fees and Charges by Stamps."

5. Any Rules and Regulations which may have been heretofore made under the provisions of "The Stamp Acts, 1898-1914," are hereby rescinded.

NOTE.—Copies of "The Stamp Act" and of the foregoing Rules and Regulations may be obtained from the Banks, Stipendiary Magistrates, the Departments of Justice, Finance and Customs, or the Colonial Secretary. oct8.41

LONDON GOSSIP.

DISCHARGED SOLDIERS AND THEIR FUTURE.

LONDON, Sept. 23rd, 1914. King George is taking great personal interest in the provision of a scheme to ensure that when the troops return after the war there be ample work provided for the time-expired men, and that none shall be left in poverty after they have served their country. There is a proposal under consideration at the present time for a committee to be formed almost immediately by the Government to decide what alterations are necessary in the present scale of pensions in order to ensure that no man or those dependent upon him shall have to undergo that semi-starvation that has been so often the case in the past, especially if he has lost a limb or is otherwise permanently disabled; and the King has offered to preside over this in person if necessary. The scheme, when produced, is expected to be far-reaching, and to include a system of State-aided emigration to our self-governing colonies, with a free grant of land when they arrive there for those who desire to take up farming or stock raising. For this purpose it will be necessary to enlist the support and co-operation of several of the colonial governments.

THE WAR AND THE PLATFORM.

Platform speeches by members of the Government on the war have been comparatively few, and though fighting has been going on now for nearly seven weeks it was only on September 23rd, that Lloyd George answered the call which has been made in newspapers so diverse as the "Observer" (an extremely Conservative weekly) and the "Nation" (extremely Radical and Liberal) and made a recruiting speech. He was received at the Queen's Hall with enormous enthusiasm, and in his own particular vein he was at his best. His great gift for bringing things home clearly and forcibly to the minds of simple people was illustrated in many passages in his speech, and it ended with an outburst of really high eloquence into which his mind never fails to pour in moments of emotion. His reference to the losses in action was rendered doubly touching by the fact that his Chairman, Lord Plymouth, has lost his son since the beginning of the campaign. It would be hard to find two speeches addressed, and successfully addressed, to the same object so different as those of the Prime Minister and Lloyd George. The second speech which Mr. Asquith delivered at the overflow meeting at Edinburgh September 18th, read at its close as if it were a translation from one of the speeches in Thucydides.

CONTRACTS FROM ALLIES.

It was inevitable that if our commercial machinery could be kept going we must receive orders for goods needed by our allies whose industry the war has paralysed. That is a huge advantage both to ourselves and to France and Russia which we owe to our not having a conscript army. I hear that from the present moment onwards we are likely to reap a rich harvest from this advantage. Large contracts coming from the French and Russian Governments are pending, and some of them, I understand, have already been made. They are for the supply of all kinds of war material—clothing, arms and ammunition. I have been informed to-day that the Russian Government have an agent here distributing orders for an immense quantity of overcoats, a million was the number mentioned—to be delivered by the end of October. This great demand for manufactured goods will necessitate a vigorous attempt to get adequate supplies of raw material. It is understood that the Government are already engaged in efforts to secure these. Such a movement once well started should do much to set going again the creaking machinery of international exchange, and if the war continues to go well for us, the prospects for employment during the winter months will be very much improved. People who are old enough or have sufficient acquaintance with economic history will know that we enjoyed a similar commercial advantage during the Franco-German war.

THE WOMEN'S EMERGENCY CORPS.

One of the first blows against German trade has been struck by the Women's Emergency Corps, which has started a number of unemployed women on the business of making wooden toys for the Christmas market. I saw some of the women at work in the Little Theatre yesterday, and was astonished to observe the dexterity they had acquired in a few days. The Women's Emergency Corps is a remarkable product of the times. Formed to prevent overlapping of the numerous schemes to relieve distress among women caused by the war, the corps is doing invaluable work in directing relief effort into the proper channels, and especially in preventing voluntary effort interfering with the paid labor market. The Duchess of Marlborough, Lady Cowdray, Lady Abercromby, Miss Lena Ashwell, Miss Flora Annie Steel, and other well known ladies are closely associated with the corps. Supported as it is by the women's organizations of the country, it is proving itself in a hundred ways a many-sided instrument of helpful co-operation with the authorities. It is, for example, prepared to find a paid substitute for any man who enlists, such substitute binding himself to leave the job on the man's return, and generally to stand in the role of friend to the man's dependents. Adjustment of this offer to individual cases is not always easy, but satisfactory arrangements have been made in a number of cases, and clerks, shopmen, gardeners, and others have found themselves freed for the war and comforted in the knowledge that their jobs and dependents were secure.

THE POLES AND RUSSIA.

There was an interesting demonstration of a political result of the war in London on September 20th. A procession of Catholics which marched from Kingsway Chapel to Westminster Cathedral included a Polish political section. There is, of course, a community of Poles in London, and in the early days of the war one came across several additions to it—ladies who had travelled from Poland out of the way of the fighting. The most interesting circumstance in the demonstration is not that members of the Polish community should take part, but that they should carry the flag of the White Eagle. It is the first time they have done so. This is a direct consequence of the Russian Government's manifesto to their compatriots. It must seem like a dream to people of this long suffering race to have an assurance of both national unity and autonomy at the same time.

Are You Droopy, Tired, Worn Out!

Here is Good Advice to All Who Feel as if Their Vigor and Life Had All Oozed Away.

This Condition Can be Quickly Cured by a Good Cleaning Medicine.

Your experience is probably somewhat similar to that described by Mr. J. T. Fleming in the following letter from his home in Lebanon: "I think I must have the most sluggish sort of a liver. In the morning my mouth was bitter, and that foul, soft feeling that tells you, 'No breakfast needed here this morning.' A cup of coffee would sort of brace me up, but in two hours I was disposed to quit work, all energy having oozed out of me. Snapper was my only good meal, but I guess I didn't digest very well, for I dreamt to beat the band. A friend of mine put me wise to Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I think they must have taken hold of my liver, perhaps my stomach, too, because at the very start they made things go right. Look at me now—not sleepy in the day-time, but hustling for the mighty dollar and getting fun out of life every minute. That's what Dr. Hamilton's Pills have done for me—they have rebuilt and rejuvenated my entire system." To keep free from headaches, to feel young and bright, to enjoy your meals, to sleep sound and look your best, nothing can help like Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c. per box, five for $1.00 at all druggists and storekeepers or post-paid from The Catarthosone Co., Buffalo, N. Y., and Kingston, Canada.

I hear that the London Poles are also petitioning the Government to allow out on parole any Polish soldiers who may be among the German prisoners whom our armies have captured.

THE ATTITUDE OF ITALY.

At the outbreak of the war there were not a few critics of the situation who were disposed to regard the assertion of neutrality by Italy, as—in the words of one of them—"a put-up job." It was suggested that Germany and Austria were anxious that Italy should remain neutral in order to keep open a back door for supplies if the war should prove of long duration. Most of them who took this view have probably found ample reason since to abandon their suspicions; but if they had not the immense demonstration in Rome on September 20th in expression of the popular sympathy with Great Britain and her allies must have gone far to disabuse them of it. It would have been strange if the general attitude of the Italians had been otherwise. It takes more than two generations—as Germany has found in Alsace and Lorraine—to efface memories as bitter as those which the Italians have of Austrian rule in Italy, when Gladstone, visiting Naples, wrote of it: "This is the negation of God erected into a system of government." The experiences of Belgium under the German occupation may well have contributed to quicken their own recollection of a time when in certain provinces every man found with a weapon was killed, and women were flogged in the market place of Brescia, with Austrian officers looking on. The part played by Italy in the Triple Alliance has been as much under compulsion as by her own free will, and it has been from first to last a costly business to her. There can be little question as to the sincerity of her neutrality, or as to the direction which her activities would take if the neutrality were broken.

Vigoro! A SPRING TONIC.

The latest medicine on the market is the Great French Tonic VIGOROL. Every home should have it. VIGOROL tones the whole system. Run-down men and women can be made strong and healthy. It tones you at once. That tired, dragging, sleepy feeling is removed, and you become bright and cheerful. The blood is purified, pimples and blotches are removed and a clear skin is the result, and life becomes worth while. Do you need toning up? Well, then get a bottle of VIGOROL at all drug stores.

44,000 Canadians are Under Arms.

Ottawa, Oct. 5.—There are 44,000 Canadians under arms at the present time, according to a statement made by Col. Hughes, Minister of Militia, to-night. These include the 33,000 men now well on their way to England. The 1,000 men who relieved the British regiment at Bermuda, and 10,000 who are engaged in defence at Halifax, Quebec and the various garrison points throughout the Dominion. In addition, the Minister avers that there are 200,000 men drilling as Home Guards.

Great Work of the Allies.

Mr. Maxwell, correspondent of the Daily Telegraph, characterizes the secrecy and despatch with which the new wing of the Allies has been developed as amazing. It is indeed truly amazing. It will be remembered that the German army by overwhelming forces and reckless sacrifice of men, hacked their way through Belgium and northern France to the River Marne. This had been done by September 6th. At that time the outlook was dark. The advanced guard of the Germans had penetrated in the near neighbourhood of Paris both on the West, the North, and the East. British marines were sent to Ostend to hold that port if possible, as it was threatened by advance guards of Germans. The main depot of the British at Havre on the mouth of the Seine seemed untenable, and transports were busily engaged in removing supplies from Havre to a port further south in a zone safe from German attack. The Government of France had vacated Paris and taken up quarters at Bordeaux in South West France. The news expected was about the beginning of the siege of Paris. There were, however, saving features of the situation, the line of defence on the East of France between Verdun and Belfort, based on the fortress of Verdun, Tours, Epinal and Belfort had not given way. There were abundance of troops only to hold these fortresses and the lines between them, but to beat back the German advance there and particularly the serious advance of Germans and Austrians in the neighbourhood of Belfort. Another feature of the situation was that the German blow which had been swung back on the pivot Verdun south of the Marne to the Great Morin was not broken, nor in any way enveloped, thanks to the brilliant service of the British forces under General French. It was soon discovered that the German strategy to cripple France had failed, and then commenced the rebound. The Germans were driven back over the Grand Morin, then over the Petit Morin and on to the Marne. Here a great battle took place, which resulted in the defeat and driving back of the Germans to the main line of defence on the Aisne. In ten days this had been completed. The French Commander-in-Chief, General Joffre, and the British Commander-in-Chief, General French, both recognized that all had been done in the way of frontal attack that was humanly possible. Their main tactics had to be directed to holding the lines from Compiègne to Verdun and from Verdun to Belfort, and to finding another way out. In spite of fierce attacks by the Germans at Soisson, Craonne, Berry au Disc, Vienne la Ville, Varennes, Forzy, Verdun, Troyon, St. Mihiel, and in the neighbourhood of Toul and Belfort, the allies have more than held their own, and at a number of places the positions of the allies have been moved forward. The attempts of the Germans to break through and crumple up these lines were frustrated. But all the time another line was being developed, a line running north from Compiègne. This line now extends to the Belgian frontier north of Lille, and against it the Germans have been directing their main attack, but without material success. This line is

AMAZING WORK OF ALLIES.

LONDON, To-day. William Maxwell, telegraphing to the London Telegraph from France, says the rapidity and secrecy with which the Allies' left flank has extended their line of attack are amazing. It reaches as far north as Arras. The significance of this movement has not escaped the Germans. They recognize that the front of battle has been changed suddenly and the most dangerous attack they have to meet is no longer from the south but from the west. To meet this danger the Germans have been making desperate efforts to drive a wedge into the line at Laingny and envelop the Allies' northern flank in the neighbourhood of Lille. The attempt has failed, because the French no longer fear "Black Maria" or "Whistling Rufus" or any of these machines which the Germans have substituted for men, because the French fought for days and nights with a valor, stubbornness and skill worthy of the best traditions of a martial race and because of (exclusion by censor). With this change of battlefront on the west has come a new activity south. Here at North Soissons we have at last begun to advance and the advance has been made under conditions that would surprise the Germans when they learnt them.

SUBURB BURNING.

LONDON, To-day. Borgehant, the suburb of Antwerp, is burning, according to a despatch from Amsterdam.

BOMBARDMENT OF ANTWERP.

LONDON, To-day. The bombardment of Antwerp has been terrible, says an Ostend despatch to Reuter under date of Thursday. "The Germans threw incendiary bombs," the despatch adds, "with the result that many parts of the town between the railway station at the south and the Palace of Justice are in flames. It is rumored here that the Germans have been repulsed on the left bank of the Nethe." A Taube aeroplane flew over Ostend at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

BELGIAN GOVERNMENT AT OSTEND.

LONDON, To-day. A despatch from Ostend, dated Thursday, says the German army occupied the southeast of the semicircles of the third fortified line of Antwerp. The Belgians have made several sorties on the left bank of the Scheldt. The Belgian Government is completely installed at Ostend.

TWO FORTS SILENCED.

THE HAGUE, To-day. The bombardment of Antwerp's inner forts and the outlying part of the city started at 12.30 on Thursday morning. At noon the city was burning in four places. It is reported that the inner forts Numbers 4 and 6 have been silenced. The exodus of panic was. It is reported that the dykes have been opened.

FISHING BOAT BLOWN UP.

COPENHAGEN, To-day. A German fishing vessel has been blown up by a German mine in Laangeland Belt, on the North Coast of Denmark. The captain was killed and the rest of the crew were saved.

FIGHTING AT LILLE AND GHENT.

LONDON, To-day. A correspondent at Antwerp of the Central News, under date Thursday, sends the following: "The German effort towards the north of France with a view of fixing a wedge between Antwerp and the allies has been nearly destroyed. Hard fighting is occurring around Lille and south of Ghent. Prisoners have been taken to Dunkirk and Ostend, and a German aeroplane has been destroyed."

ALLIES' AEROPLANE INVADES GERMANY.

LONDON, To-day. According to a Central News despatch from Amsterdam, another aerial raid has been made by the allies on Cologne and Dusseldorf, both important German Zeppelin airship bases. The telegram follows: "A despatch from Cologne states that hostile aeroplanes threw bombs at the Zeppelin Langars at Cologne and Dusseldorf on Thursday afternoon. The former was uninjured, but damage was inflicted at Dusseldorf.

GERMANS IN DARDANELLES.

LONDON, To-day. A despatch to Reuter from Athens, says it is asserted there that German officers have placed 42 millimetre guns in the forts of the Dardanelles and the Bosphorons.

GENEROUS GIFT TO BELGIUM.

MELBOURNE, To-day. At the opening of the Federal Parliament to-day, the Government announced that Parliament would be invited to make Belgium a free gift of half a million dollars in recognition of her sacrifices.

ITALIAN MINISTER OF WAR RESIGNS.

LONDON, To-day. General Grandi, Minister of War in the Italian Cabinet has resigned, according to a Rome cable to the Reuter. The resignation was the result of criticism concerning the administration of his department.

BRITISH VICTORY NEAR SOISSONS.

LONDON, To-day. A Times correspondent south of the Aisne, says: "At one centre, and that most important, the British victory of the River Aisne is now complete. The Germans have evacuated their trenches leaving in some of them many soldiers who died from severe vibration (?). They left two of their heaviest guns in the quarries, heavily cemented in position. Two salient events marked the part of the fighting of which Soissons was the centre. First the capture by the Allies of Fort Conde after a siege of 16 days. Second, a remarkable slaughter by the British in the last of a series of German attacks. It is agreed that the Germans have dealt severe havoc to the allies around this position. Their success was due wholly to the spy system. The allies soon found out that the Germans were able to diagnose their movements readily and substituted a systematic search for offenders. They captured several spies, one of them a woman, who used electric flash lights from a window. It is not altogether true that the Battle of the Aisne is over even now, but in the past few days considerable areas have been deserted by the Germans and a wedge of allied forces thrown forward."

ST. PIERRE BULLETIN.
PARIS, Oct. 8.—(Official.)

To our left, north, the enemy has not progressed at any point, and even fallen back at places, especially north of Arras, where the engagement is developing favorably for us. Operations of both cavalrys extending nearly up to the sea coast. In the region of Roye the enemy is still in force, but we have retaken nearly all the positions we had previously abandoned. North of Aisne the enemy's line is getting gradually thinner. At the centre, Rheims and on the River Meuse, nothing important. On the heights of the Meuse between Verdun and St. Mihiel, the Germans are still holding St. Mihiel and a few northern positions, but on the other hand, have fallen back north of Hatton Chatel. In Woerwe district, violent attacks made by them west of Apremont, have failed. To our right in Lorraine and the Vosges, there is no change. A German aeroplane flying over St. Denis suburbs near Paris, threw three bombs this morning. The first wounded three persons, and the others did no damage.

Russia.—On the front of Eastern Prussia, the offensive continues. Fierce fighting is going on, on the frontier, west of Suwalki.

my has to retire from its position along the River Aisne in France.

THE SITUATION AT ANTWERP.
LONDON, Oct. 8.
Grave views of the situation are taken by the authorities, wires the Antwerp correspondent of the Daily News. The great guns have told the tale. The fighting around Antwerp has been a battle of Krupp's against men. Every day and night the fighting has continued with deadly effect upon the forts, while shrapnel and shells have made many of the trenches untenable. As fast as the Belgians were compelled to withdraw from a position, the Germans moved up and occupied it. The Belgians fought bravely and stubbornly with their infantry, and frequently they repulsed the Germans, but these repulses meant the removal of artillery attacks by the Germans with eventual retirement of the Belgians. In their present position the Germans, even with their second largest guns, are able to reach the city. The correspondent of the Chronicle in Antwerp, under date of Wednesday, takes a contrary view. He says there is an air of quiet confidence that the Germans will never capture the city. Numbers of forts are still holding out with great stubbornness, and the threatened bombardment is a desperate measure to try and force them to capitulate in order to save their city from damage.

FRENCH OFFICIAL REPORT.

PARIS, Oct. 8.
The following official announcement was made in Paris this afternoon: First, on our left wing in the region of the Department of Nord, the enemy has made progress at no point; he has moved back, particularly to the north of Arras, where fighting is developing under conditions favorable for us. The operations of opposing forces of cavalry are developing at the present time almost as far as the sea coast on the north. Between the Somme and the Oise in the vicinity of Roye, the enemy is still in force, but we have retaken a major part of the positions we were obliged to give up to the north of the Aisne. The numerical strength of the German troops seems to have diminished. Second, in the centre between Rheims and the Meuse there is nothing to report. On the heights of the Meuse between Verdun and St. Mihiel, the enemy has drawn back to the north of Hatton Chatel. He still holds St. Mihiel and some positions to the north of St. Mihiel. On the right bank of the Meuse in Woerwe district, the violent attacks delivered by the enemy in the west of Apremont have failed. On our right wing in Lorraine and the Vosges, there has been no change. In Russia along the frontier of East Prussia, the Russian offensive continues very spirited, fighting taking place on the frontier to the west of Suwalki.

THE ANTWERP BOMBARDMENT.

LONDON, Oct. 8.
Antwerp was subjected to furious bombardment throughout last night, and shells from the German guns were falling early this morning.

AUSTRIAN BATTALION ANNIHILATED.

LONDON, Oct. 8.
A Rome despatch states that a message from Budapest announces the almost complete annihilation of an Austrian battalion of Czechs, in a fierce encounter with Russians during the latter's advance on Maramoros Sziget. Every soldier in the battalion was either killed or wounded, it is said.

ZEPPELINS ACTIVE.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 8.
During Wednesday night, no fewer than six Zeppelins flew over Amsterdam, dropping bombs in all directions. The extent of damage done is not known, but one bomb damaged the Palace of Justice.

CANADIAN TROOPS ARRIVE IN ENGLAND.

SOUTHAMPTON, Oct. 8.
Three ships, belonging to the Cunard line, anchored in port here with the first contingent of the Canadian troops. Other vessels with Canadian troops are expected. The city is full of staff officers and steamship officials, who will supervise the transportation of the troops on the next stage of their journey.

INDIAN TROOPS IN FRANCE.

PARIS, Oct. 8.
The British Indian Army is said to be rapidly becoming acclimatized. The French generals, who inspected their artillery, cavalry, infantry, engineers and ambulance auxiliary corps, describe the army as splendidly equipped. The people of the French cities where the men are quartered are favorably impressed with the solemn courtesy of the Orientals. They never enter cafes, or accept hospitalities. All the men, except the Gurkhas, are great in stature. There is scarcely a man under six feet, while some are giants. More than half the Indian Army are white troops, who are regarded as the flower of the British Army. Transport and artillery supply wagons were brought with the troops from India. Herds of goats that furnish milk supply are pastured near the camps. The principal sustenance of the Indian soldiers is wheat cakes, which they themselves bake.

PREPARING SECOND LINE OF DEFENCE.

ANTWERP, Oct. 8.
The unexpected fierceness of the German attack on Antwerp, which it is reported is being made by five army corps, has given rise to the opinion among the higher military officers here that Germany intends to establish a second line of defence running from Antwerp to Brussels, Namur and Metz, upon which it may be possible to retreat in case the German ar-

Review of the World's Supply of Growing Timber

INCLUDING NEWFOUNDLAND AND LABRADOR.

By THOMAS J. FREEMAN.

Part II.

Getting back to Newfoundland and its Dependency, Labrador, we find in Newfoundland (exclusive of the land held by the A. M. D. Company, the Reid Newfoundland Company, and a few small pieces held by the Anglo-American Telegraph Company and the fisherman's reserve, or three mile limit around the coast) 11,520,000 acres held under license by various owners. Newfoundland Labrador contains an area of about 100,000 square miles. Of this area licenses have been issued by the Newfoundland Government to various holders to cut timber off an area of about 65,000 square miles. As much of this land, principally in the Northern section contained only scrub timber of no commercial value. It was afterwards dropped by its owners. However, just now 35,000 square miles, or 22,400,000 acres being held by various owners under license.

By deducting 33 1-3 per cent. from the above holdings for barrens and poorly timbered land, we find the net areas of Newfoundland and its Dependency Labrador stand in forest area thus:—

Newfoundland ..... 7,640,000 acres
Labrador ..... 14,933,333

Total ..... 22,573,333 acres

In estimating the quantity of cord wood to the acre, the wildest guesses (regardless of mathematics) are being resorted to. The following simple method as taken from Scribner's Lumber and Log Book, may be found convenient: "Measure out four square rods of ground, that is 33 feet each way and count the trees, averaging the cubic contents as near as possible of the trunks, and adding one fourth of this for the limbs. Then as 128 cubic feet make a cord, and the plot is one fortieth of an acre, the result is easily reached. Fairly good timber-land should yield a cord to every four square rods. A tree two feet in diameter and 30 feet high to the limbs will make a cord of wood if it is growing in close timber and the limbs are not heavy. If limbs are large and spreading, such a tree will make 1 1/2 cords. A tree one foot in diameter will make one-fourth as much as one twice the diameter. In estimating, it is necessary to remember this fact: The estimates given to the Department of Agriculture in the United States are as follows:—Several counties in Maine 30 to 40 cords per acre. In New Hampshire, average yield 20 to 40 cords per acre. In Vermont the forest yields 25 to 50 cords per acre. In Rhode Island about 30 cords per acre. In Connecticut sprout lands yield about 25 cords per acre every 25 years. In New York 30 to 60 cords per acre. In Delaware well set second-growth woodlands yield 30 to 40 cords to the acre. In Maryland 30 to 40 cords. In Oregon, however, the yield of the evergreens and oaks is perfectly astounding, some counties being estimated as high as 300 to 600 cords per acre.

It would be difficult to estimate an average of marketable cord wood to the acre for such large territories as Newfoundland and Labrador. Meantime, the writer has written expert opinion from two recognized authorities in the United States that Newfoundland has great possibilities in store for the future as a pulp manufacturing country, and that our forests will yield for pulp wood a very high per centage. In some places where they examined they found the per centage from 40 cords to 70 cords to the acre, and in other places for saw logs above the ten inch measure from 2,000 to 7,000 feet in the acre, that is for well-wooded sections.

In order to arrive at some basis of our national forest wealth, I am safe in computing (after allowing 33 1-3 per cent. for barrens, marshes and young timber) an average of 7 1/2 cords and 1,000 feet board measure per acre for Newfoundland, and 5 cords and 500 feet board measure per acre for Labrador.

NEWFOUNDLAND,
7,640,000 acres:
57,300,000 cords at $1.00	per cord .....
7,640,000,000 ft. B.M. at	$2.00 per 1,000 ft. B.
M. ....	15,280,000
LABRADOR,
14,933,333 acres:
14,933,333 cords at $1.00	per cord .....
7,466,666,500 ft. B.M. at	$2.00 per 1,000 ft. B.
M. ....	14,933,332
Total valuation .....	$182,179,908

An English cord of wood is 8 ft. by 4 ft. by 4 ft. Total 128 cubic feet. The number of pieces in a cord of wood varies greatly according to the size of wood cut. For the guidance of parties interested in this industry the following scale may be of interest. A cord of wood averaging 4 1/2 inches in diameter takes 174 pieces; 5 1/2 inches, 122 pieces; 6 1-5 inches, 100 pieces; 7 1-10 inches, 82 pieces.

A cord of wood peeled one summer and shipped the following winter or spring weighs about 3,000 pounds, while unsharked wood comes near 3,800 pounds per cord.

It is calculated that 3,000 square miles of forest is being depleted every year to provide sleepers for the American railways. For a single sleeper for instance, five times as much timber is wasted as used. Then, again, the wastage by frequent destruction by forest fire is enormous. The average loss in the United States from destruction of this source is computed at $5,000,000 per annum. St. John's, Nfld., Oct. 1st, 1914.

Indigestion, Gas or Sick, Sour Stomach.

No Indigestion, Gas, Sourness or Upset Stomach if you'll take "Pape's Diapiesin"—Try This!

Do some foods you eat hit back-taste good, but work badly; ferment into stubborn lumps and cause a sick, sour, gassy stomach? Now, Mr. or Mrs. Dyspeptic, get this down: Pape's Diapiesin digests everything, leaving nothing to sour and upset you. There never was anything so safely quick, so certainly effective. No difference how badly your stomach is disordered you will get happy relief in five minutes, but what pleases you most is that it strengthens and regulates your stomach so that you can eat your favorite foods without fear.

Most remedies give you relief sometimes—they are slow, but not sure. "Pape's Diapiesin" is quick, positive and puts your stomach in a healthy condition so the misery won't come back.

You feel different as soon as "Pape's Diapiesin" comes in contact with the stomach—distress just vanishes—your stomach gets sweet, no gases, no belching, no eructations of undigested food, your head clears and you feel fine.

Go now, make the best investment you ever made, by getting a large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapiesin from any drug store. You realize in five minutes how needless it is to suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia or any stomach disorder.

Love and Art.

At Nickel Theatre, Big Programme This Evening.

The week-end programme at the Nickel Theatre which will be given this evening is up to the usual standard. There are six different subjects including two two-reel pictures. "The Other Girl" is a beautiful love drama which is especially interesting to all, particularly the young folk. It tells of a young man, Frank Nixon, who loves a poor girl, Ruth Thomas, but his mother is anxious for him to marry Alice Williams a girl of high social standing. There are a number of very pretty scenes. Do not fail to see it as it is one of the finest given in St. John's for some time.

The other two-reel film is a war picture entitled "Devotion," by Wm. H. Clifford. There is an excellent plot in this great drama. "Low Caste Burmese" shows many queer characters of Burmah. Sandy and Shorty are in their element at the Nickel to-day when they capture an escaped convict.

"Rambles in Old France" is an interesting travelogue giving the best of French scenery. The great French actors of the Pathe Freres will supply the comedy.

Mr. De Witt C. Cairns will sing his Grogwell song this evening. The extra picture matinee for children takes place to-morrow afternoon. Send the children and let them have a good time.

31,500 Canadian Troops Fill Thirty-One Ships.

ELEVEN WARSHIPS CONVOY.

Montreal, Oct. 3.—A correspondent has sent from Rimouski the following description of the departure of the Canadian troops from Quebec:—

"Thirty-one ships were required to carry the men, guns and horses and the supplies of the overseas expeditionary forces. To convoy that number of ships a fleet of 11 vessels was requisitioned, the whole movement being the largest and most important ever effected on the Atlantic. It was carried out in a splendid manner. The movement from Valcartier was effected in fine style and the embarkation and sailing followed as a part of a well ordered plan. The movement of 31,500 troops and 800 horses was the biggest war action that Canada has ever undertaken and it was performed almost faultlessly.

"The movement from Valcartier started with the mustering of the left half of the 12th battalion, which was sent to Quebec to perform guard duty and ended with the departure from camp eight days later of the right half of the same battalion. The troops that moved in took possession of the wharves and the breakwater, and when they disappeared one day the red coats of the 87th regiment replaced the khaki suits of the men of the twelfth battalion. In this eight days the division had moved out of Valcartier. Horses, artillery and transport waggons came over the 18 miles of road while the troops were sent by train.

"It had been intended to march all the men to Quebec, but the weather was vile and plans were hastily made for the movement by train. It required five days to transfer the various units, an average of 10 trains moving away from the camp each day. The trains ran directly to the breakwater and the transfer to the ships was promptly made. As the ships were filled they moved off down the river to anchorages previously agreed on and there met the naval convoys; afterwards the great fleet set out to sea.

"There was little of the picturesque in all this business. There were no cheering crowds; in fact comparatively few people knew anything of what was going on."

Fishery Reports.

Oct. 3rd.—From T. Soper, (Channel to Port aux Basques)—No traps but 21 dories and skiffs and 2 boats are fishing. The total catch is 902 qtls. of codfish and 36,000 lbs. of halibut with 60 qtls. and 500 lbs. for last week. Prospects are very poor. The prevailing winds are N. and N. E. Sept. 25th and 26th were the only days any skiffs were out owing to the scarcity of bait and hence the reason of no better results for last week.

Oct. 3rd.—From F. W. Power, (Oderin)—The total is 1,320 qtls. and for last week 30. Eight boats, 16 dories and skiffs are fishing. No bankers or schooners have arrived. Prospects are very poor but squid has been fairly plentiful the last two weeks. The weather is very rough with gales from S. E. to N. E. The boats returning from St. Mary's grounds report cod very scarce but dogfish numerous.

Oct. 3rd.—From T. McCarthy (Renews to Seal Cove)—Prospects are very poor and there is a great scarcity of squid. The catch to date is 2,400 qtls. with 50 for last week. Ten boats, 22 dories and 33 skiffs are still fishing.

Police Investigating.

The police are still investigating the burglary that occurred at the premises of a licensed publican, on Monday and Wednesday nights last and are expected to make a few more arrests in addition to the three men who have been already arrested.

charged with stealing ten dozen bottles of stout, and remained for eight days. Const. Tobin deserves great credit for the way he is working up the case. On Wednesday night he was laying in ambush when he caught a man trying to force open the bond store of Thomas Wall, Water Street West. Tobin arrested him and later look into custody two other men. It was on Monday night that the stout disappeared.

If Child is Cross, Feverish and Sick

Lock, Mother! If tongue is coated, cleanse little bowels with "California Syrup of Figs."

"Children love this 'fruit laxative,' and nothing else cleanses the tender stomach, liver and bowels so nicely.

A child simply will not stop playing to empty the bowels, and the result is they become tightly clogged with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sour, then your little one becomes cross, half-sick, feverish, don't eat, sleep or act naturally, breath is bad, system full of cold, has sore throat, stomach-ache or diarrhoea. Listen, Mother! See if tongue is coated, then give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the system, and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers give "California Syrup of Figs," because it is perfectly harmless; children love it, and it never fails to act on the stomach, liver and bowels.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

Better Be Wrong Than Positive.

By RUTH CAMERON.

"But I was right. I think that must be a hereditary quality. For my father says he is a search engine." Mrs. Gaskill, in "Cranford." "Better be right than president" is a familiar saying, and very comfortable for those of us who don't seem to have any immediate chance of becoming the latter, but it is not to be too implicitly accepted. It is, indeed, splendid to be always right, but if you want to be happy also, you mustn't let other folks know about it.

I know a girl who is witty, pretty and wise. And yet she is not especially popular. And the trouble is that she is altogether too right. She is right not only about her affairs, but about her neighbours, and she does not hide her light under a bushel. Far from it. She lets us all share in its effulgence. Of course we should all be grateful, and equally, of course, we are all the worse.

Such is the ingratitude of human nature! Indeed, I think if a list of the seven deadly sins against lovableness were made out, the sin of being always right and of letting folks know it—in other words the sin of positiveness—would head the list.

Of course the person who is always wrong is sometimes trying. Yet we seldom dislike him. In fact, I think we are apt to be fond of him. We correct his mistakes, we set him in the way he should go, we glow with our own superiority, and he shines in the reflected glances.

One of the inevitable results of positiveness is that when the person who is always right is wrong, everyone else is delighted. There is an old Roman proverb to the effect that a man will swim across the Tiber at midnight to carry the news that some supposedly honest man is a criminal. If this cynical estimate of human nature is true, a man would probably swim two or three times across the Tiber, to convey the good news that someone who is always right is wrong.

If positiveness is offensive in a man, it is doubly so in a woman. We expect a certain degree of positiveness in a man. It is part of the masculine temperament to be right. Before these degenerate days of feminism, every man was always sure of a small feminine circle which accepted his opinion as an oracle, and it will take more than one generation of feminism to shake men out of the complacency that engendered. But to paraphrase a familiar bromidium "It's bad enough to see a man positive, but oh a woman!"

All of which is perfectly natural. The prime need of woman is love, and since positiveness is the first of the seven deadly sins against lovableness, no woman can thus afford to alienate her own from her.

Facing Fresh Problems

"Three miles from the Inn," repeated Marian mechanically. She was drenched and dripping, after her escape with Challoner from the snagged canoe.

It was a quarter to twelve. A cool wind was blowing. The moon, which by this time had climbed high, regarded their plight with cold unconcern.

"Come," said Challoner forcefully. "I see nothing to do but to return to the Inn on foot. The walk will do us good. If we stand around in this condition, I'm afraid you'll catch cold. I hadn't counted on anything like a three-mile midnight stroll as a finale to our little outing. Luck was against us, and we'll have to make the best of it. Confound me for letting the canoe get snagged!"

"It wasn't your fault," protested Marian, objecting to her companion's self-condemnation.

"I should have been more careful," he insisted. "I thought I knew that channel like a book. Here's your coat," he said, picking up the garment he had thrown ashore before their desertion of the wrecked craft. "Fortunately it's dry. It will prove a protection against the wind, anyway," he added, helping her into it.

"It feels good," she said, drawing it around her wet waist. They had clambered upon that side of the river bank on which Placid Inn was located, so that the remainder of the journey was entirely on land, with nothing more in the way of obstacles ahead than a number of barbed wire fences, through or under which Challoner readily assisted Marian to clamber.

If proved a strange, weird, memorable journey to Marian, not soon to be forgotten. Marian had mercifully been spared a complete ducking, so that the feminine ignominy of drenched and disheveled hair was not added to her woes, as she strode homeward at the side of her escort. With his hand upon her arm, he steadied her as they proceeded over fields, through clumps of woodland, and across rough bits of pasture land.

"If the people at the Inn find out what's happened to us, we'll never hear the end of it," observed Challoner grimly. "If we can manage to slip in unobserved, it will be something to be thankful for. I wouldn't mind their rallery so much," he added. "I am thinking of you."

"The main thing is to get there," returned Marian with a shiver. "We'll contrive to run the gauntlet. I know of no night-owls at the Inn. They'll be all fast asleep when we get there."

"I hope so. I wish I knew of some way to repay you for all this horrible mess I've got you into. You've been delightfully brave and game through it all. You're a wonderful girl."

Challoner's words went through the other like warming, pleasant fires. Also, it came over her that in all probability if the same misfortunes had been befallen her under the auspices of any other man she had ever known, it was likely that she would have lost her equanimity completely. The transpired events, rough as they were, had drawn her closer to the man at her side. She also felt a certainty that the other's praise had been born no doubt of the knowledge that his wife would have acted very differently under the stress of these untoward circumstances.

At length, warmed and partially dried by their walk, they drew near Placid Inn. By the light of stars and moon, they could see it, silent and dark amid its setting of trees and sleeping lawns. They crept quietly across the veranda to the front door.

"Confound it, we're locked out!" whispered Challoner, turning to Marian, after trying the door. "Now what are we going to do?"

To-morrow—Locked Out of the Inn.

New Submarine Boat is Missing.

London, Oct. 5.—A despatch to the Central News from Rome, says: "A submarine boat, which had just been completed in a private shipyard near Spezia, on the Gulf of Spezia, has disappeared, and it is declared that a retired naval lieutenant, Angelo Bellini, who was in charge of her, has taken the vessel to some unknown destination."

"The submarine was out for trial in the Gulf of Spezia, and when she did not return a torpedo boat was sent to search for her. Lieut. Bellini, in a letter to the firm that constructed the boat, said he would furnish an explanation for the disappearance of the craft. He added that the crew of the submarine were ignorant of his plans."

FIGHTING MEN TO THE LAST OUNCE.

London, October 2.—The correspondent of the Daily Mail at Marseilles, in a despatch dated last Saturday, which was delayed by the censor, describes the landing of the Indian troops, who, he says, are all ardent for the cause for which the King and his Allies are fighting.

He says: "Fully a score of transports glided from the bay into the dock and moored at their appointed stations. It was an imposing sight, and, at the same time, a splendid tribute to the perfection of British organization."

"But the grand spectacle was yet to come. In almost as short a space of time as it takes to tell, the decks of this wonderful fleet of ships were alive with soldiers, and, in a matter of a few hours, the trying work of disembarkation had been completed without a slip."

"The French officers were amazed at the remarkable smoothness with which the operations proceeded, and were not slow in their expressions of profound admiration."

"The voyage from India had been made under excellent conditions, and the troops, who literally leaped ashore, were fighting men to the last ounce, hard, fit and ready. Had the word of command been given to march straight from the quay to the fighting line they were ready to go."

BEARDED GIANTS.

"Not a few of the Sikhs, black-bearded giants, were deeply concerned to know if I thought that the war would be over before they could get to grips with the common enemy, and it was a burden on their minds when I assured them there was absolutely no likelihood of anything of the kind coming to pass."

"Never has the port of Marseilles, used as it is to cosmopolitan crowds and the multi-colored habitants of Africa, witnessed a scene so kaleidoscopic as that presented to-day by the thousands of soldiers coming down seeming numberless gangways and along quays lit up by brilliant sunshine."

"All the troops are in khaki with very little—perhaps a green or white interwoven band in the headress—to distinguish one regiment or rather one cast from another. The stuff is lighter in texture and color than that used in the equipment of the home army, and imparts a smarter appearance to the wearer."

"The white officers who are in command are of the highest type of soldiers, and there was something notable and delightful in the officers walking through Marseilles with their troops, en route to the rest camps, when they might well have ridden."

"One very important fact that must not be lost sight of is that this great expeditionary force from the Orient is thoroughly trained according to the most modern ideas, and equipped with first class machinery of war. Everything has been brought from India, cannon, rifles, entrenching implements, sleeping rugs, tents, and the hundred and one necessities of an Indian army down to the praying mat."

"The scene in town when the troops marched through to the different camping grounds was unforgettable. Every man, woman and child in Marseilles turned out, and their numbers were swelled by people who had rushed from the surrounding country districts. In fact the streets were seething masses of highly excited humanity."

EXCITEMENT RAN HIGH.

"The excitement of the high strung Latins rapidly spread to the Indians, and it was an unique experience to see hundreds of martial warriors, bearded men, whose hair was shot with gray, and beardless youths, jump a yard high in the air for sheer joy. Old women fought with the men for the honor of shaking hands with the bronzed soldiers, and young girls threw sweet smelling flowers in their path, or pinned pink roses on their tunics and turbans, and even stuck them into the Indian's long hair. In response, the dark Eastern eyes beamed their great content, and rows of white teeth flashed from laughing mouths."

"By evening they were all encamped in the picturesque park with rocky heights, reminiscent of their far-away hills, around them, and in the moonlight groups of Marseillaise stood at adjacent roads watching, with unflagging interest, the strange Eastern rites of these magnificent fighting men from Britain's great Dominion."

Prince of Wales Fund $15,000,000.

London, Oct. 5.—The Prince of Wales' Fund has reached $15,000,000 and the Prince has issued a letter expressing his thanks for the generous contributions.

"I trust," he says in the letter, "that the portion of the fund which will be applied to the relief of civil distress may, as far as possible, flow into productive channels, such as assisting schemes for the male and female employment, and perhaps industrial training, for it is repugnant to me, as it must be to the recipients that assistance should be distributed in the form of doles."

All First Class Druggists Sell Salvia Hair Tonic

SALVIA destroys dandruff in ten days. The roots of the hair are so nourished and fed that a new crop of hair springs up, to the amazement and delight of the user. The hair is made soft and fluffy. Like all American preparations SALVIA is daintily perfumed. It is hard to find an actress who does not use SALVIA continually.

THE COST OF EUROPE'S WAR. (A Reflection.) The ink is dry, the thimble long, the burst, and Europe—millions long. Has mustered for the fight: With mighty armaments of war— More deadly than were ever before— They march in martial might.

But who can bode the Nations' fate? Or who the cost can estimate. Of such a mammoth strife? No human kind can surely know Nor tell its price, in waste and woe And loss of human life.

The treasure spent, per day, in gold, Is fifty millions, we are told; But this is, off so small— Not worthy of a passing thought— Compared with that which will be wrought By sword and cannon ball.

Already, shot and bursting shell, Their tragic tales begin to tell. Of death and partings sad— And those at home, with hope and fear, Are waiting latest news to hear From many an absent lad.

The Nations' bravest, noblest, best— The youth beginning manhood's quest Will strive each battle-field; And thousands more upon the sea, Obeying Duty's stern decree, Their youthful lives will yield.

And fathers who have said "Good-bye," With husky voice and tearful eye— Will home return no more; With blood-stained uniform their blood, 'Neath plains the thund'ring guns had ploughed, They'll sleep till time is o'er.

No odds how goes the battle-tide, Or how much spoil by either side Is wholly gained or lost. The orphan in its helpless needs, The mother in her widow weeds Must play, in part, the cost.

Oh, "God of Nations!" haste the day— This is the "CRISIS" all who pray— When this "POLL" we shall cease; When o'er those lands where terrors reign, And vultures prey upon the slain, Shall fly "The Dove of Peace." —Henry S. Erb.

Bible Class Meeting. The semi-annual meeting of George Street Adult Bible Class held last night was largely attended. A number of the class are now amongst the Newfoundland Regiment. The election of officers resulted as follows:—

NOTE OF THANKS.—Miss L. Cole, Mrs. G. Winslow and Constance Devine and wife for messages of sympathy.—adv.

Shannahan Visits Tucker.

Mrs. Tucker is heard on the "Thanking Epidemic." Delaney, the Cute Man and myself strolled up to Tucker's last night. On the way up we discussed the "War News" and Delaney said "I would make a fellow man to be around here now when so many courageous men were fighting for our liberties at the front."

What's the use of your gabbing? says the Cute Man, what's the use of your feeling mean? why man-a-liv, says he you wouldn't be taken for wadden' for a gim? Of course, says he, in the next batch that "sent over," they may not be so particular, and after a week on dock you may be considered good enough.

We were bound for Tucker's, and as Mrs. Tucker was very sick, Delaney was "sent in" to buy half a dozen oranges which we intended giving her. Strange thing, says Delaney, "is always oranges that fill the bill when a fellow visits a sick person though I never heard that they possessed any curative qualities."

When we arrived at the domicile of Tucker, that free and independent opened the door. He was "in his shirt sleeves" which signified he was "in for the night," and looked like a man that had lost a purse containing the summer's wages of a hard-working, industrious, sober man.

Good night, boys, says he, I'm glad ye are come up for I feel kind o' lonely. We stepped inside without any more frills and found our old friend, Mrs. Tucker, propped up in a rocking chair with a bandage around her head that covered one eye completely.

Sorry to see you so bad, says Delaney, as he approached the chair like a cat stealing on a fly, we would have been up before only you know the way things are down town, why a fellow hardly knows what day he's got.

What did the doctor say was wrong with you, man, squeaked in the Cute Man; what did he order you for? Mrs. Tucker gazed reluctantly out of the left eye at the Cute Man; she never believed in his sincerity and now she seemed to still have her doubts. She raised herself up a bit and told us she was pretty bad; here Delaney handed her the bag of oranges. Mrs. Tucker took them and smiled. Do you know, says she, oranges always remind me of Thanking the Hospital Staff and Thanking people for wreaths. Hero she called Tucker who was raking the fire, and summoned him to her side. Look here, Tucker, says she, my spurt of sickness may be long or short, I may come through all right and I may die, but if the latter happens then I want you to take timely warning and carry out my instructions to the letter.

Tucker gazed in bewilderment, and asked her did she think she was bound for the other shore, then he wiped away a tear.

That question I cannot answer, says she, we mortals have not the future, but if I do pass in my checks, I publish no notes of thanks to this one and that one for kindness. Insert no fifty cent advertisement thanking people for wreaths; it makes "my blood boil" to see it. Why can't they send a note thanking these people if they want to thank them, says she, why should we parade people's names through the papers because they did the good Samaritan to you while you were sick; can't these people go to their houses and thank them?

And then says Mrs. Tucker you will see some of the notes of thanks that run like this:—We desire to thank Mrs. Downey, Mrs. Kelly, Mrs. Dawson for their many acts of kindness; and also, Lady W. V. S. Topnotcher for her unremitting attention during my illness. The high-toned lady, says Mrs. Tucker, always comes in for an extra share of talk. Thanking the nurses in the Hospital, too, gets on my nerves, says Mrs. Tucker, "it's dreadful stuff to read when you're not feeling well. Why, says she, the next thing we'll have to do is this game, followed up is to send a note of thanks through the papers to the coal merchant who sends you up a half ton of coal for three dollars and eighty cents. One is as much entitled to a newspaper thanking business as the other. When I go, says she, thank no one through the papers. If you want to thank 'em go to their homes and thank 'em personally. Don't jaded the public with your private business and don't insult the people who act in a Christian manner by sticking their names in the papers. Remember now, says she, in a newspaper, and if ye break my command I'll haunt ye till the hour of yer death.

A Daring Voyage.

From Capt. Churchill, of the schr. Success, now at North Sydney comes the story of a daring voyage who is making a passage from Gloucester, Mass., to Wood's Island, Bay of Islands, alone, in a 14 ton boat. In a letter to Mr. T. Carter, of A. S. Reindell & Co.'s office, Capt. Churchill says that on Saturday last in latitude 45.41 N., long 57.34 W., he spoke the little 14 ton craft, Harry M. Johnson, of Yarmouth. The little vessel was 14 days out from Halifax, where she had put in for shelter on the way from Gloucester to Bay of Islands. The only occupant of the boat was a Frenchman, whose name, Captain Churchill was unable to find out.

When sighted by Capt. Churchill, the lone mariner had been nine days without practically any food. The captain of the Success gave him some food, also a chart, and the course to St. Pierre, which was the nearest land. He asked to be reported which Capt. Churchill did on reaching North Sydney on Monday last. When the schooner left the little craft, she had a fair wind to St. Pierre, and it is believed he reached that port safely.

McMurdo's Store News. FRIDAY, Oct. 9th, 1914. Have you seen our new five-cent Soap? It is far and away the best five-cent Soap we have seen. Made in England of pure materials, and well dried, nicely perfumed, emollient and softening to the skin, it is the simplest five cents worth to be had. Assorted in several popular kinds—Glycerine and Cucumber, Brown Windsor, Carnation, Parma Violet, and Butterlick, it compares a variety, not usually found in the cheaper classes of soap. But indeed it is not a cheap class of soap, but only a low priced one. Why not try it? Price 5c a cake.

Week End Show. The big week end show advertised by the Crescent Picture Palace to-day is one of the best programmes ever presented by this popular Picture house. "The Half Breed Parson," a two-reel war feature produced by the Bison Biograph Company is a splendid Indian Picture; the Bison are famous for producing Indian subjects and this is one of their best.

"Hearts and Crosses" is a dramatization of O. Henry's story and is a very fine western picture. "Self Accused" features Wm. Stuy as a detective in a drama of the underworld. While the comedy element is well sustained in "Supper for Three."

Mr. Frederick Knights sings "In the Days of '49," this song is taken from the western musical melodrama: "The Flower of the Ranch," and made a tremendous hit in New York when first produced. Don't fail to take in this great show at the popular Crescent.

Mizard's Liniment Co., Limited. Yours very truly, VILANDIE FRERES. A special meeting of the Importers' Association was held at the Board of Trade Rooms yesterday afternoon to consider the question of opening the stores at night during the fall. The meeting was largely attended, and those present expressed the opinion that, owing to the general depression in trade caused by the war, the amount of business to be done would not warrant the opening of the stores. It was thereupon decided to close the stores at 6 p.m. daily, except Saturdays, until the end of the present month. A meeting will then be held to consider whether they will open at night in November or not.

Under the regulations drawn up at the last annual meeting of the Association, the stores should open on Monday night next, if trade conditions were normal.

Bankers Got Saving Trips. We learn from passengers who came by the s.s. Kyle yesterday that the banking schooners which went to the Labrador coast on their final trips have done fairly well on the whole. All have got saving trips but there are no large catches. Since the beginning of October the weather has been rough and a consequent hindrance to the setting of trawls. When the Kyle was coming south the majority of the bankers were ready for home.

The proposed visit of Miss Seabury, who was coming here from the States to establish branches in the outports, has been cancelled owing to the women being at present engaged on patriotic committees. The possible members are now busy making articles of clothing for the wounded at the front. It is hoped, however, that the nearby outports will be visited by some of the local body to enquire into the possibilities of establishing branches in these centres.

The report of the committee who visited the Penitentiary on the third Sunday of September was read, and also that of the committee in charge of the annual outing held at Forest Pond in July last, after which the meeting closed.

Serpentello. THE BOYLESS LADY AND THE FROG MAN. The most wonderful act before the public to-day, will open an engagement at the Rossley Theatre on the 19th inst. Serpentello, the lady without bones in the most wonderful feats of contortion. The clever little woman was one of the features of the Barnum and Bailey Circus; all St. John's remembers Dave Nicholson, the frog man, who was the greatest drawing card for a single performer ever in any theatre or circus. After his engagement here he married Serpentello, and now the act together is simply marvellous, and besides contortion they are equillibrist, balancers, rising trapezes, horizontal dancers. Their nickel plated electrical apparatus is a sight in itself. Admirers of young Nicholson, the frog man, will be delighted to welcome him and his lovely young wife Serpentello, the boneless lady.

British Naval Biplane. FLEW OVER GERMAN LINES. London, Oct. 5.—The Morning Post publishes from Antwerp the following despatch dated Friday:—"I witnessed to-day from Liere a most interesting aerial engagement, if engagement is the proper word for a flight under heavy shell fire. A little after four o'clock a British naval biplane rose out of Antwerp and headed for the German lines between Wilhebroeck and Heyndonck. These machines fly with almost incredible swiftness. This one passed a motor car going in the same direction as easily as a swallow passes a sparrow. "As soon as the British aeroplane got over the German lines it came under the fire of German guns especially designed to attack aviators. Two of these guns engaged the aviator. They fired ranging shells which, on bursting, left a thick trail of black smoke. These shells apparently were fired with a difference in elevation of five hundred feet, and were designed to ascertain the elevation of the aeroplane, but the aeroplane seemed to shape its course so as to avoid passing near the smoke balls which were in any case at a greater height than itself.

Taken as Spy Saved by West Point Ring. Philadelphia, Sept. 30.—A West Point class ring worn by Capt. Frank F. Avery, of Washington, a retired United States Army officer, and a passenger on the American line steamship Dominion, which arrived at this port to-day, saved him from imprisonment as a British spy while in Munich. According to Capt. Avery, soldiers arrested him on the street and took him to military headquarters. Through an interpreter, Capt. Avery renewed his protests, which did not receive much attention until the inspector noticed the American officer's West Point ring. The German's manner changed instantly. Captain Avery quickly established his identity. The German officer said he had visited the United States and had visited the military academy. He was treated so courteously there, he said, that he was only too glad to reciprocate to an American officer. The inspector then pinned a badge on Capt. Avery's coat which enabled him to go wherever he desired in Munich.

MINARD'S LINIMENT CURES GOUT IN COWS. In cutting fur, always lay the skin upon the table, skin side up, and cut with a sharp knife, through the skin only. Then pull apart gently. Never wash windows while the sun is shining on them, otherwise they will be cloudy and streaky. Also wash the inside of the window first.

MINARD'S LINIMENT CURES DANDRUFF. People are doing more reading to-day than ever before, and it is very important to those who wear glasses that they should be properly fitted. If you have any trouble or are in doubt go to THOMPSON, the Eye-sight Specialist.—sep19,1f

War News.

CONDITIONS UNCHANGED.
PARIS, Oct. 9.—(Official.) The situation remains stationary. Fierce fighting is taking place in the region of Roye.

PARIS, Oct. 9.
It is rumored that Emperor William has offered the Iron Cross decoration and 85,000 marks to the first man entering Antwerp. For twenty hours the Germans made scarcely any advance. They bombarded the village of Lutih fiercely, but the Belgians held their places until it was in flames, before they evacuated it. Near Termonde the Germans are still fighting desperately to cross the River Scheidt. Latest news says that they have not yet succeeded. The Germans are pressing forward on the east. They have crossed the River Nethe on the east, and are only held at bay by the desperate efforts of the Belgians. This offensive movement is said to have cost the Germans 20,000 men. On the south in the region of Contich and Willebroeck, German attacks appear to have been brought to a standstill.

ANTWERP IN SORE STRAITS.
LONDON, Oct. 9.
While the immense armies of belligerent Europe are engaged in a death struggle along lines hundreds of miles in extent in battles, which, for numbers engaged and fierceness and stubbornness, have no precedent in history, the intrepid little army of Belgium is making a last stand behind the forts of Antwerp, one of the strongest fortified positions in the world. For the moment at least the struggle around the chief port of Belgium attracts the most attention, for the result of the engagement there must have a considerable effect on the bigger battle between Anglo-French and German forces which now extends from the Swiss frontier right across France almost to the North Sea. The Germans, who, while attempting to get across the River Scheidt, southwest of the city, made their main attack from the east, succeeded some days ago by the aid of their big 16-inch siege guns, in breaking the first and second belt of forts. According to their own account they defeated the Belgian army and captured a number of guns. Last night shells began to fall in the city itself, and from reports coming through Holland, the railway stations, the Palace of Justice and several oil tanks have been damaged. At the same time six Zeppelins and dirigible balloons flew over the city, dropping bombs, but it has been impossible as yet to ascertain what damage they have done. The towns of Holland are already crowded with refugees, and the Mayor of Rotterdam has sent out warning that there is no more room there for the harassed Belgians, while steamers for England are crowded with people flying from German shells. Five German army corps are taking part in the siege of Antwerp, which is defended by the Belgian army. The outer forts, like those of the other fortresses which have fallen since the war began, have not been able to withstand the fierce big guns, but the Belgians are still hopeful that with the newer forts, a flooded area and a mobile field army they may be able to save the city until assistance comes by the defeat of the Germans in France.

BRITISH CASUALTY LIST.
LONDON, Oct. 9.
An official casualty list of British officers, issued last night, reports one officer killed, three died of wounds, six wounded and two missing. A list was also issued under dates Sept. 15, 16, 18. This included 57 Non-Com. officers and men killed, five died of wounds, 270 wounded, 625 missing. The missing belong chiefly to the Connaught Rangers and Royal Cameron.

ANOTHER RUSSIAN VICTORY.
ROME, Oct. 9.
A despatch from Petrograd says, Russians have driven the Germans from Vioclawek, Russian Poland, 35 miles southeast of Prussia, and have fortified themselves within a few miles of the fortress of Thorn. The German left wing in Poland, according to a despatch, is said to have been partly enveloped.

Sulphate of Ammonia.
St. John's Gas Light Company.
Dear Sir,—I have analyzed a sample of Sulphate of Ammonia made at your Works, and I found 20.5 per cent. of NITROGEN, Sulphates of Ammonia, and Nitrate of Soda are the two principal Nitrogen manure. Sulphate of Ammonia is less soluble than Nitrate of Soda, consequently it is a safer manure to use during a wet season.
Yours truly,
