They say according to the prices the manufacturers are now quoting, these coverings would cost them all this to land.

They show a big range of Block and Floral Patterns, as they have the manufacturers of three different makers, viz.: Congoleums, Feltoleums and Neponsets, and show the best patterns of each make. These are much better than cheap Floor Canvases, of which the cheapest to-day is about $1.00 per yard.

This is mainly because the basic material for Chean Floor Canvas is Burlap or Brin, and the immediate demand for that is tremendous. It is estimated that for the making of sand bags and the wrapping of foodstuffs, etc., for the Army, that the British Government calls for sixty million square yards per week. Therefore the price of brin has more than doubled. But Blair's are trying to help you all they can on prices, therefore re-

MARRIAGE INCREASE.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30. A London cable to the Tribune tolay says: Munitions and war have converted London into a city of honeynoons. First it was the khaki-clad oldier encouraged by the Government's promise to provide for the bride while he was away at war, who caused the increase in the marriage rate. Then the munition worker, prosperous in dollars as he had been in peace, decided to share his hitherto undreamed of wages with a life partner. Clerks who had vawned over marriage license books in the dull nonths that preceded the war, suddenly discovered they were overworked. Cherry ribbons and glossy hats appeared in ever-increasing lines at the wedding offices, until the assistants made pitiful appeal to the May-5,800 marriages were registered in the city, and although the rate has dereased somewhat this summer, love is gaining again with the advent of Of the good and the great, autumn. Miss May Furlong.

Than Miss May Furlong there is nobody who has the interest of the Newfoundlanders more at heart. When in London she ferrets out, in the most miraculous manner, party upon party of our soldiers, and entertains them in a regal style at one of the best London hotels. She visits the wounded, and does what she can (which is generally a lot) to help them; she distributes her bounty with a generous hand, and not only this but her cheerful presence leaves everybody she comes in contact with as cheerful as beyond. She is the spirit of food. comes in contact with as cheerful as herself. She is the spirit of goodwill and what is perhaps most remarkable about her is that she gets as much enjoyment out of those she entertains as do the most have a she contact and the state of the tertains as do the guests out of her. Miss Furlong has the art of making people happy down to a fine point— and especially soldiers. The only time that Miss Furlong is disturbed is when people try to thank her for her kindness. It is then she gets in-dignant, so it is wiser to say nothing. I have heard Miss Furlong say, "Boys or for help. During 1915 more than there are great things you can do What a noble statement to a lad: Though his years be but few, If he keep himself true He can march in the queue

THE PRICE.

Britain alone of the belligerents publishes the full list of her casualties. The number for September is sadly heavy, and ber is sadly heavy, and nearly the same as that for August, being in the neighbourhood of 120,000. This means that many, very many, brave men have gone to their death. Among them must be a good number of fellow Colonials—Canadians, Australians and others, but the great majority are our British brothers. We cannot always accept these figures unwayed, and impersonally, counting moved and impersonally, counting them mere statistics, military fac-tors. Reflection brings the truth to the mind and a great sadness to the heart. It is the terrible price of its all. Britain made up her mind long ago that it must be paid, and pays it unflinchingly. But she is nursing a terrible vengeance upon those who terrible vengeance upon those who have made it necessary.

Commanders in chief note these figures carefully and compare them with those they can ascertain concerning the enemy, for the comparison is of the greatest value. They are in dire truth vital statistics. They must be read into the whole situation together with all the other contributory parts, and in spite of their heaviness they give us good ground for hope. While September's casualties among our troops have been as great as August's, the results they have bought are very much greater and of more effect. And this, we have good reason to believe will continue in increasing proportions. There are several reasons for it.

First, the Allies are now attacking defences of greatly less strength than those that first confronted them. Stories from the front, the occupation of the high ground and the rapidity of the late advances bear witness to this important fact. Secondly, and as a consequence, these defences and as a consequence, these defence can be taken at less cost to the at can be taken at less cost to the attack. Note the comparatively small losses sustained by the forces that took Thiepval and Combles. Thirdly, there remains no doubt that the Germans have rushed troops in great number to the East, and to effect this must certainly have thinned their lines in the West. They intend to retire there sooner or later, and with the intention of retreat comes the inthe intention of retreat comes the in-evitable demoralisation of the troops, who feel that they fight a losing bat-much force the argument that by retiring to a shorter line the Germans will increase their powers of resistance, an argument which is almost a nightmare to some observers. For the Germans will lose heart, 'morale' as it Germans will lose heart, 'morale' as it is called, by any retirement. More than that, they will lose men. If their entire forces could be transported at once to a shorter line, undoubtedly they would be stronger; but an intermediate process is necessary that will prove awkward. The Allies have fine prove awkward. The Allies have fine loss of fallen loss of fallen. cavalry in great numbers; they will be heartened by victory as the Germans will be depressed by defeat; the railway system as a whole will not greatly assist the retreating armies, hidden some souvenir which would be a college now and a pride hereafter to them of any teries which was wateriord bridge on Friday. Wateriord bridge on Friday wateriord bridge on Friday of the Lady Davidson an eral members of the Ladies' I tion Committee were present.

In the Kit of everyone is likely to be greatly assist the retreating armies, hidden some souvenir which would be a college now and a pride hereafter to running as it does generally parallel a solace now and a pride hereafter to their lines; and when they do reach those at home.

Please press on the Commanding the line assigned to them, it will only be after great losses and to find the Allies enjoying the like concentration for the renewed attack that they have some through your office. for the renewed attack that they have acquired for the defence.

It must never be forgotten that the end will come through Germany's exhaustion of men, and in no other way. No line that she can take up is so short as to compensate greatly the losses that she is suffering and will suffer in larger numbers in the process of taking it up. We have yet seen no great retirement on this front. It will come soon, and may well be turned from a retreat into a rout, from a tactical manoeuvre into a crushing disaster. Germany may not even be allowed to hold her new line, but find it immediately pierced and be driven back to another without pause. All this is possible, and, in view of the increasing drain upon her resources in every direction, even No line that she can take up is resources in every direction, even probable. Viewed in this way, our losses, terrible though they are, may well be a source of encouragement, in that they must have their correspondence in the ranks of the enemy, who can so much less afford them.

Rev. Dr. Jones Preaches on the Present Crisis

Yesterday was a big day for th eople of St. Thomas's Church, who urned out in large numbers at both morning and evening services. At Matins the Lord Bishop of Newfoundland occupied the pulpit and delivered a most inspiring and impressive address. So powerful and yet so simple were his words that the smallest child in the large congregation listenday with deep interest. At Evensone child in the large congregation listen-ed with deep interest. At Evensong the Rector, Dr. Edgar Jones, was the preacher, taking for his subject: "What is the Church Doing in the Present Crisis?" For upwards of an hour the preacher pointed out the many great things the Church was doing in the Great War, and likewise her weaker points, the one confronting the other. The Church at the ing the other. The Church at the present day was on trial, and the question is, what are we doing in the way of prayer or intercession to strengthen her arm? It is a well-known fact, said the Rev. Doctor, that our parks and public highways have within the past two years become places where immoral scenes occur nightly and that the fair name of our city stands in great danger. What are we doing as Christians to save it from disgrace? Under the Divine

ANOTHER BREMEN STORY.

Another report of the capture of the German merchant submarine Bremen reached official cifrcles here to-day from unofficial, but usually reliable sources. According to this account, which was given credence by some higher military officials, the Bremen was seen three weeks ago at the big British naval station at Rosyth on the east coast of Scotland, having been captured in one of the steel nets recently used with success by the British against underwater craft. More than 70 subs are said to have been taken or destroyed by nets. In spite of the report of the Bremen's captures here agents in this country are apparently escapted without damage, they killed so the report of the Bremen's capture of the Bremen's capture and bigger type. On Sept. 2 only two persons suffered than 13 were injured.

The docket was fairly large to-day, udge Hutchings presiding. The first o grace the bar was a "John Collins," who apparently needed one to straight-en himself. He was let go on deposit-ing $1. After a small amount of other routine business was disposed of, the names of two boys, aged 11 and 15, respectively, arrested for larceny were called from the sinners' seat. The oldest lad worked in the employ of the elf to be barred in and at night escap ed through a window, getting away with three watches and an offertory box, containing some money for the Red Cross Fund. On Friday night the same lad in company with the younger boy, broke into the store of the Martin Hardware Co., and stole a revolver. Both pleaded guilty. The ringleader was sentenced to three months' imprisonment and the younger lad was let go on his foster father signing bonds for him to be of good behaviour in future.

Michael Connors, who was charged with assaulting two young women on are reported as planning to bring a number of foreigners who are now denumber of foreigners who are now detained in concentration camps in this country to Bucharest, where they will be lodged in places most exposed to attack.

ally rude, but he seemed to enjoy the insulting boorishness to which an underbred Prussian junker treated me on every possible occasion. He was an aide-de-camp of the Grand Duke of Baden, who was the soul of courtesy, and I am confident that Hindenburg, who evidently resented my presence on his staff, got the arrogant junker to "make things hot for me." I was in no way impressed by Hindenburg's ability. He struck me as a typical Hun-tall stout and coarse, and, like most Germans, a huge eater and drinker. I was told that on one occasion the officers of his staff were discoursing on poetry in his presence and comparing the merits of Shakespeare, Schiller and Goethe. After listening impatiently for a time the general could stand it no longer and thus admonished them: "Meine Herren, I have never risked making myself weak by reading poetry, and I strongly advise you to follow my example."

Saturday, Sept. 23rd, saw the Grand Falls Gardening and Industrial Society hold its first exhibition

This Society was formed during the past spring with the purpose of creating a deeper interest in gardening, and that the town might become better able to supply itself with vegetables during the fall and early winter months. With this end in view, many who hitherto had not had gardens were supplied with material by the Anglo-Nfld, Dev.
