UNJUST TAXATION.
Taxation is the one great burden that every House-owner and Tenant is greatly concerned about. Many are continually at their wits end to know how to meet it. In fact, we are being bled white with taxation to-day, more particularly Unjust Taxation.
I have been approached by scores of voters the past fortnight concerning the new Assessment—the City's Form of Taxation. Properties are being rated at a time when values are temporarily inflated. This tax is being unjustly levied. I have heard of cases in which the taxes are about to be increased anywhere from 10 to 250%, others to remain as before. Why such discrimination? I have yet to learn of them being reduced; as it became Householders' duty to keep their homes clean and bright and take delight in decorating the exterior, thereby beautifying their locality and the city in general, that they are a mark to be feared for more taxes? The system is rotten, rotten to the core.
We are politely told by the Civic authorities that such is the Law; therefore you will agree with me that the Law should be amended. I pledge myself that with your help, that is, the help of every House-owner and Tenant in the city, that I will move an amendment to the Law. Voters just think of it, wages and salaries being throttled down, and city taxes soaring skywards.
Are you going to stand for it? You have the means; show your disapproval by voting for

CHAPTER XXIII. ACROSS THE STREAM.

It was Iris, Iris, everywhere, from her portrait in the picture gallery, to the very dogs in the stables, who had been wont to bound forward with delight at the sound of her voice.

He did his duty. He was lord and master of the vast place and he reigned no faintest do-nothing, neglectful master, but a careful and conscientious one.

If he had been going to deliver it up at a stated time, he could not have administered the vast estate more carefully. The farms were looked after, the grounds cared for, the presses kept up, the very house and furniture cared for, as if he had been a steward who would at some time or other, sooner or later, have to render an account to an exacting master. Yet, with all his strictness, the people soon learned to like, as well as respect, him.

There was a touch of pity and commiseration, as well as liking, in their attitude toward him, for it was evident to the most careless observer that Lord Heron was not a happy man.

Liver Pains

Pains under the shoulder blades tell of liver derangement. Other indications are sallow complexion, indigestion, constipation, biliousness and bilious headaches.

The quickest way to arouse the liver to healthful action is by use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Mrs. Wm. Barten, Hanover, Ont., writes:
"For some time I suffered from liver trouble. There was a hard, bearing-down feeling in my back which I could not get rid of. Some one advised me to try Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I did so, and found them excellent. The dragging feeling in my back disappeared and I felt much benefited generally. I have great confidence in Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and always keep them on hand for general use."

favorite spot with him, because there he was sure of being left alone, and he gave orders that no one was to disturb him.

Every word she had uttered was graven on his heart, and he could fancy that he could hear the tones of her voice as he walked in the little garden, which they had told him, was a favorite haunt of hers, and in which her presence seemed still to linger.

It is not given to ordinary men to love in this fashion; but Lord Heron was not an ordinary man. He had passed through his early youth untouched by passion; his heart had been asleep until a glance, a word from Iris had awakened it, and the love born that morning by the stream was a love which would last till death.

The country people were, not unnaturally, very much disgusted at the mood and manner of the wealthy Earl of Coverdale. They had, most of them, daughters to be married, and would gladly have seen one of them installed as mistress of Knight Revels; but to all their advances Heron Coverdale remained as irresponsive as the rocks against which the sea beats, or tide laps, in vain.

He returned their calls, or left a card, but the exchange of civilities ended there, and it was soon accepted as an unwelcome fact that the Earl of Coverdale desired—to be left alone!

About a couple of miles from the Revels was a small place, half-cottage, half-villa, called the Priory, and a great deal of curiosity and interest was excited when it was known that Lord Foyle had taken it, and that he and his daughter, the beautiful Lady Lillian, intended spending the summer months there.

Lady Lillian's health had not been quite so robust as could have been wished, it was said by some, while others declared that other reasons than those connected with health had brought them down within hail of the Revels.

The Priory was a pretty place, of two stories only; the rooms were not large, but they were pleasantly situated and turned to the south sun; there was a nice veranda, round the house, and plenty of flowers. Lady Lillian had found the rooms plainly, and rather barely furnished, but she had set to work, and, with the help of the local upholsterer and some things from London, transformed the "best parlor" into a charming little drawing-room full of nick-nacks, and sufficiently provided with easy-chairs and lounges, with some choice pictures and rose-colored curtains.

In this little room she sat, while two miles distant Lord Heron smoked his cigar on the terrace. Lady Lillian was dressed in a morning robe of pale-blue, edged with a creamy lace, which fell upon her hands and nestled round her throat, making them seem all the whiter by contrast.

A French novel lay at her feet, and a large bowl of roses stood on a table beside her.

Outside the open window, under the veranda, stood the Earl, smoking a cigarette. His thin, aristocratic face wore a calculating, and not altogether satisfied, expression, and under his half-lowered lids the hard, gray eyes shone with a restless, irritated gleam.

Evidently he had been holding a conference with the beautiful Lillian, a conference in which she had managed to obtain the advantage, for he flung the cigarette from him, with a strange compression of the lips, and said, as if resuming the conversation:

"I don't doubt your cleverness and tact, my dear Lillian, but I am afraid they will be of little use to you on this occasion."

"Thanks, papa! Cleverness and tact are always of use," she said, with a soft smile. "Talleyrand says that the emergency proves the man—he might have added woman."

"There is emergency enough now," said Lord Foyle, grimly. "As I think I have told you, Lillian, I am almost at the end of my tether! My man of business wrote to me to say that no more money can be raised, and that something will have to be done. He doesn't say what the 'something' is—for the best of all reasons, I suppose; because he doesn't know. This, however, is plain, that, unless you think there is a chance of succeeding in the object for which we came down to this forsaken hole—"

"Lady Lillian laughed. "Now, papa! You can't really be serious! If ever there was a lovely spot in creation, this is one, and you call it a forsaken hole!"

"I repeat, forsaken hole!" he retorted. "It may be lovely, but it is forsaken. A desert island might be beautiful enough; but I fancy that neither you nor I would find it much to our taste. There is no one down here to—"

"Play bacca-rah and cards with," put in Lady Lillian, with a smile. He flushed.

"I was going to add, but I spared your sensitiveness, to marry!"

THE CANADIAN SALT CO., LIMITED

Pure as Sea Breezes

"Thanks!" she said. "You are always so considerate, papa. But I think you are wrong; you forget Lord Heron."

He made a gesture of impatience. "Heron Coverdale!" he said. "No; I have not forgotten him. I know we came down here to—"

A faint flush stole over Lady Lillian's face, and her eyes flashed under her long lashes. "Give me a little longer, papa," she said. "I admit that Lord Coverdale is what the French call a 'little difficult,' but I don't despair. I'm sorry it is so dull for you, but couldn't you go up to town for a few days?"

"And leave you here without a chaperon?"

"Oh, I should be all safe," she said, with a soft laugh. "No one will run away with me."

He shook his head, and took out another cigarette. "I'll give you a little longer," he said, "but on the understanding that if he should not be persuaded to emerge from his retreat in a week, then we go back to town. After all, there are other fish in the sea."

"Yes," murmured Lady Lillian, "but if one has taken a fancy to a particular one."

Lord Foyle looked at his daughter incredulously, and with something as near a sneer as his refined nature would permit.

"Really? I had no idea," she laughed.

"You did not credit me with that awkward physiological curiosity—a heart?" she said. "Well, call it a whim, papa. But, whether it is that, or anything more serious, I have set my mind upon winning Lord Coverdale."

Then, after a moment's pause, she added, in a very low voice: (To be continued)

Own Your Own Home for Less Than You are Paying Rent.

For $600 cash down we build a nice plain 6 room $1,800 house and give 10 years to pay the $1,200 balance. Payments in principal and interest will average $14.40 per month for the 10 years, when payments cease and buyers own their own homes.

We build up to $3,500 house on this plan.
We accept $900 on a $2,700 house; the monthly payments for 10 years to own this averages $21.60 per month.

The actual rent on the $1,800 house is $4.40 per month, as $10.00 per month or $120 per year applies to paying the principal.

On the $2,700 house, payments on principal is $15.00 per month or $180 per year, rent therefore only $6.60 per month.

See the $2,500 bungalow we are now erecting on Mount Royal Avenue—$800 down and $20.87 per month for 10 years is the price to own this beautiful home. HIS RESOLUTE AGAINST HUGHES' PROPOSAL.
TOKIO, Nov. 28. After listening to addresses by a group of Tokio publicists who have held out for a greater naval ratio for Japan than proposed by the Hughes armistice proposal, a meeting in Shiba Park to-day adopted resolutions opposing the 5-5-3 ratio and favouring the abolition of fortifications in the Pacific Ocean. Vice Admiral Kozumi is quoted as saying that if the Japanese delegates accepted the sixty per cent ratio instead of securing security "the people will not only prevent them from landing at Yokohama but will appeal to the throne to reserve ratification" of the agreements reached at the conference.

LONDON COVERED IN FOG.
LONDON, Nov. 28. The fog now covering London is the worst in twenty years and has for four days affected a wide provincial area, disorganizing public and private transportation systems.

COMPLETING THE TRIANGLE.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 28. (By Ben Deacon, Staff Correspondent Canadian Press)—An indication came from an authoritative source to-day that a plan is under consideration for effecting an arbitration agreement between Japan and U.S.A. and it is believed the third side of the triangle would be filled in by effecting a compact of friendship and arbitration of all disputes between Great Britain and Japan to supersede the present treaty between the two countries.

POLICE BATTLE WITH STRIKE SYMPATHISERS.
NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 28. Two hundred and fifty policemen for an hour to-day battled with union sympathizers of striking waterfront workers. The battle extended over five blocks. Numerous arrests were made and many injured are in hospital.

DENIES STATEMENTS ATTRIBUTED TO BRILLAND.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 28. The Far Eastern Committee, after today's session, issued the following communique: "Chairman Hughes called attention to the damaging report abroad attributing to Premier Brilland statements offensive in character regarding the Italian army and suggesting that Italian representatives did not appropriately resent the statements. Mr. Hughes said the report was made out of the whole cloth, that Brilland had said nothing whatsoever reflecting upon the Italian Government or Italian Army. Viviani for France and Schanzer for Italy also expressed regret at the circulation of a canard calculated to injure the good relations existing between their countries. The committee unanimously concurred in Secretary Hughes' statement disposing of the unfortunate incident. The committee then unanimously adopted the report of the sub-committee recommending that in view of the Chinese Government's desire to secure the abolition of foreign postal agencies its justice be recognized except in leased territory or as otherwise specifically provided by treaties, and that the four powers having such postal agencies agree to their abandonment on condition that the Chinese Government maintain an efficient postal service and give assurance that no changes will be made in the present postal administration so far as the status of the foreign co-director general is concerned."

ABANDONING FOREIGN P.O.'S IN WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.
A resolution declaring for the relinquishment of foreign post office privileges in China was adopted to-day by the nine powers sitting as a committee on Pacific and Far Eastern affairs. January 1, 1923, was set for the abandonment of foreign post offices and was agreed to by all the powers except Japan whose representatives asked for time to hear from their Government.

The Need of Employment

(Harbor Grace Standard.)
Employment for the people is needed, and perhaps at no time for twenty years has there been greater need for the exercise of discretion and wisdom on the part of a government than there is at the present time. The curtailment of work at Sydney has been the chief cause of so many men being home and seeking employment. Other years scores of our young men found ready work at good wages at the Sydney industries, their earnings finding the way home for the support of the father, the mother and the other dependents of the family, and the earnings not only kept the family going but meant a great help to local trade and industry. Sydney being closed against the young men, they had to come home, and enter into competition with those who sought labor locally. Bell Island, too, gave scores of men ready work, and these, this year, had to go to Labrador or make an attempt to carry on the shore fishery. Both Labrador and shore fisheries were unproductive, the former through the low price of fish, and the latter through a poor catch, making the conditions worse. The work at Deek Lake and at Badger merely kept the families going while these works were going on. The combined effect of the four causes named has rendered conditions here worse than has ever been experienced since the year of the bank crash. The people are now face to face with a condition that makes governmental action necessary and imperative. It is no fault of the people in general that they are now in urgent need of employment. Conditions are exceptionally abnormal, and so the aid of a paternal government is urgent. In fact, some attention was necessary before this time. To find employment for the masses is acknowledged or admitted in other countries within the Empire, and it must be granted so in this island, especially as the people gave their means and contributed to the heavy calls made upon them during the Great War. Now that the occasion calls for action, there should be no hesitancy. The occasion is urgent, the need great, and the colony, even at the expense of the revenue for years to come, should face the burden and give help to men who to-day are in need of labor to provide their families with the wherewithal to keep them through the winter.

Wife's Recovery Was Wonderful
Newfoundland Man Is Amazed At Rapid Improvement in Health of His Wife.

"I have never seen anybody improve so much as my wife has in a short time! I can hardly believe my eyes when I look at her," said Patrick Connors, well-known citizen of Witless Bay, Newfoundland. "For twelve years my wife had been troubled with indigestion, and sometimes I have seen her gasp for breath as if she was about to die. These smothering spells frequently came on at night and I would have to prop her up in bed on pillows so that she could breathe. It's wonderful the way Tanlac benefited her. She has a splendid appetite now, everything she eats agrees with her and she has gotten her strength back, too. Tanlac is certainly one medicine that does everything they say it will do." Tanlac is sold by leading druggists everywhere.

REFRESHMENTS.

The Volstead law is on the books; it's there for keeps, I think; and wise men seek the babbling brooks when they would have a drink. For wise men know how to choose the laws that we'll obey; the ordinance forbidding booze has come, and come to stay; an epoch dry as dust has dawned, a juiceless age is born, and we must journey to the pond to get our morning rum. Oh, yes, in alley or in slum we yet may stain our breath, and buy a flask of bottled rum that's labelled Sudden Death; but who's so thirsty he'd elect to drink such booze, gadzooks! And who can keep his self respect, and train with low down crooks? The Volstead law is not a dream, it largely looms, like fate; and we must seek the crystal stream when we would irrigate. Good citizens are earnest guys who bow to all the laws, though they may think some are unwise, and full of fatal flaws. They say, "To all the laws we'll yield, as blithely as we may; if they are punk they'll be repealed, and if they're good they'll stay; and he who'd fout them is a chump, he bores us with his rhaps; and we shall journey to the pump to get our forty drops."

Don't Shorten Your Lease of Life.

A Month's Suffering From Dyspepsia or Constipation Shortens Your Life By Two Months.

The stomach is the motor of life—the fuel, the stomach is the laboratory where combustion and the resulting changes take place. Therefore, digestion is the indispensable function, the absolute necessity to keep up the "vital fire."

Any trouble of the digestive tract affects the entire organism, and if this trouble is allowed to continue for any length of time it brings on most serious conditions that may often result in death. That is why it can be said without exaggeration that a month's suffering from dyspepsia or constipation shortens your life by fully two months.

If you are suffering from loss of appetite, nausea, pains in the bowels, heartburn, sense of fullness or weight in the stomach, or any one of the numerous ills resulting from the poor functioning of the digestive organs, take one or two "Gastronals" after meals.

They will cleanse your system, purify your blood and generally tone your digestive organ. "Gastronal" is a new scientific discovery that is the specific in all troubles of the digestive tract. Each box contains 50 Gastronals, each one bearing its own name—see that you get full count. If your dealer cannot supply you, address remittance direct to Dr. J. O. Will Winter in Florida.

Passengers leaving North Sydney on the west bound express on the morning of Nov. 27 were Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Harris, daughter Mary, and Miss E. Buffett, of Grand Bank, Newfoundland, on their way to Florida, where they will spend the winter. Mr. Harris is one of the most successful merchants and ship owners in the ancient colony. In conversation with a representative of the North Sydney Herald he described conditions in Newfoundland as the worst in her history. There are wide sections, said Mr. Harris, "particularly on the West Coast, where once wealthy people are really feeling the pinch of want for life's necessities, a condition of affairs the direct result of a badly mismanaged Government. And this by no means is confined to any section of the once happy and contented colony, whose natural wealth is exceeded by few countries."

Ex-Pupils Organize.

Old Collegians Form Association.
The "Old Collegians Association" was formed last night at a meeting of ex-pupils of the Methodist College. The meeting, which was largely attended, was held in the McLELLIN Rooms; Mr. C. P. Ayre was in the chair and Mr. P. H. Hudson acted as Secretary. Those present included the Prime Minister and Lady Squires, Sir J. C. Crosbie, Hon. F. Steer, Messrs. C. R. Duder, R. F. Horwood and J. C. Pratt. A constitution and bye-laws were adopted and passed, and a meeting for the election of officers will be held next week. The object of the Association is the strengthening of unity amongst the ex-pupils of the Methodist College, and the advancement of the interests of the College and its present pupils.

Wireless School Opens Thursday.

So many boys are interested in wireless telegraphy that Mr. Southgate, the Canadian wireless expert, has decided to open a branch of the "British Radio Institute" in the city. The building formerly used by "The Frontiersmen," adjoining the C.L.B. Armoury, has been rented and carpenters are already erecting partitions, desks, benches, etc. The work is being rushed so that classes may commence Thursday Dec. 1. The position chosen is one of the best in the city owing to its height, and isolated position also the roof of the Armoury will be an ideal place for the erection of an aerial which will catch the vibrations produced by those powerful European stations over 2000 miles away. Mr. Southgate states that by far the most popular class is that to be held at night, which enables boys working during the day to study this interesting profession in the evening. It is most gratifying to know that our boys of St. John's are willing to study at night, after a hard day's toil, in order that they may qualify as radio operators, and sail over the seven seas. A living tribute to this Maritime nation of ours, which produces the finest sailors in the world.

UNEMPLOYMENT.

There can be no denial that much—far too much—unemployment exists in Newfoundland today. Equally it cannot be denied that it is the prime duty of the Government to find work of sorts for all the people who are in needy circumstances. And we believe that in the present instance the Government is using every endeavour to get the situation in hand. But the expense of territory covered by the arrangements made to date does not include all the sections in which the populations require immediate relief. And it is imperative that some plan be formulated, some scheme of employment adopted, whereby all those—and their names is legion—will be assisted without being pauperised. There will, obviously and certainly, have to be discrimination in the selection of those for whom work is found, whether in the vicinity of their own particular community or farther afield. For it would be manifestly unfair and unjust to give employment to the man known to have money in the Savings Bank, and refuse it to the unfortunate individual whose family is starving and who is not in possession of a red cent. That is where caution will have to be observed, and discretion used. The actually indigent family man must first be assisted. There can be no getting away from that. He has the first claim on all employment instituted by the Government itself, or by others backed by a Government promise.

We understand that the cutting of pit props will be the chief undertaking for the relief of the distressed, and that certain contractors, under agreement with the Government, will employ as many men as their complement to cut, calls for. That may be all right in its way. But who is going to supervise the labor lists? Who is going to see that the impoverished man will receive the first labor notes of engagement? It may not be possible to get so close down to detail, but it is possible and feasible to select the men, so to be employed, from those who are greatest in need. Then on the other hand there are districts in the island in which there are no timber growth suitable even for pit props, therefore for the inhabitants of such, employment of another kind will have to be found. Winter is not approaching; it is here, and cases of destitution everywhere are mounting in numbers daily. Relief work must be found for all. This is imperative. It is the one need of the hour. The clamorous voice of the people is calling for work. In many places on the South West Coast applications for Poor Relief are becoming numerous, because of the fact that there is no work, and fishing is not in its former years. We have no intention of writing anything calculated to embarrass the Government or to cause any prejudice against them in their desire to provide something for all who are in straitened circumstances. The labor undertaken is, heret-lean, but decisions have to be made swiftly otherwise distress can neither be averted nor relieved.

Notice to Correspondents

The Editor has no time to correct mistakes or make incoherent English out of the oft-petrids of correspondence that comes by mail and hand to his office. Probably if we published verbatim the numerous letters we receive, the writers thereof would depend upon us with a club or a more lethal weapon. Hence we have decided—believing in the principle of Safety First—of not attempting to correct any correspondence sent in, excepting in so far as it trenches upon the law of libel. Will correspondents please accept this as our last intimation, and refrain from sending us communications filled with spelling, grammar, and of questionable grammar. Were we to publish, exactly the screeds of various people who seek to gain publicity by their contributions, the whole printing staff would go on strike. Therefore please copy the editor, remembering that he has neither time nor leisure nor yet inclination to make grammatical, etymological, or orthographical corrections to the illiterate communications of cosmopolitan correspondents.

Intercessory Services.

Will Unveil Memorial.

The Methodist Guards Comrades are holding a Church Parade to Cochrane Street Centennial Church on Sunday morning next. The purpose of the parade is the unveiling, in the church, of a tablet to the memory of their departed comrades. A large number of members, will, it is expected, turn out and the parade should be the biggest in the history of the Association.

Robbery Reported.

News of the robbery at the station at Harbor Grace was received by mail yesterday. The thief, who belongs to St. John's, broke into the railway station on Saturday night, and ransacked the cash drawer, getting away with five dollars in loose change. He was captured later and was brought before Judge Oke yesterday morning. Sentence was deferred until a report on the prisoner's record could be received from St. John's.

Laid to Rest.

The funeral of the late Mr. B. C. Brehm took place this afternoon from his late residence, Circular Road, and was largely attended. The deceased being a veteran of the Boer and Great Wars, a guard of honor from the G. W. V. A. under Sergt. Major Peckham, with a firing party and buglers, headed the cortege. A guard of honor from Avalon Lodge, 776 A.F. & A.M., of which the deceased was a member, also attended. The bier was draped with the Union Jack, the dead soldier's cap and his Mason's apron being laid on it. Beautiful wreaths also adorned the casket. Undertaker Lawrence had charge of the funeral arrangements and interment took place at the General Protestant Cemetery. At the graveside, Rev. Mr. Johnson of Cochrane Street Church officiated.

Rotary Club Holds First Regular Gathering.

PRINCIPAL SPEAKER ALL THE WAY FROM MALAYSIA.

The first regular luncheon of the Rotary Club was held at the Green Lantern Restaurant, Theatre Hill, at 1.15 p.m. to-day, when twenty-two of the original twenty-four Charter members responded to roll call. Of the two absentees, one was ill, the other out of the country. This we think a most remarkable showing and one which will take a lot of beating. Several guests were present among them being Mr. H. H. Banks from Malaysia, who has been putting in a well earned holiday in shooting over the Grand Lake country; Mr. H. M. Stewart of the Canadian Bank of Commerce; Mr. C. T. James, representing the Evening Telegram, and several others belonging to various trusts and professions. Everybody was exceedingly appreciative and the evening was a most enjoyable one. The second and third acts an exhibition of classical dancing of the Louis XIV. period was given by Misses Lydia and Lisbeth Miller, dressed in the elaborate court attire of that age of color. The steps of the dancers were the perfection of rhythm and grace and captured the audience, entirely, having to respond to an encore.

But the play itself was the thing, and the characters, well known in historical and dramatic art, were, universal favorites from the rise of the curtain. The thread of love runs all through the play, and in the end the villain is foiled and two happy hearts united. A strong vein of comedy not unmixed with pathos is also uncovered, and in the hands of such exponents as Miss Minnie Vigniers, (Philopena Popover) Miss Molly Horan (Yennie Yensen the Swedish Maid), Mr. P. F. O'Grady as Rowdon Crawford and Mr. Gordon Muir as Major McNatt. In the harking back scene, the whole cast participated including Miss Scott (Miss Margaret Ryall) Miss Hatkins (Miss Lydia Miller) Tessie (Miss Lysbeth Miller) Irene Stanford (Miss Nellie Miller), Arthur Figg (Mr. Karl Trapnell), Mrs. George Jackson (Mrs. Boggs (Harriet Cole) Mr. Darling (Mr. W. Wallace) Peter (Mr. J. H. Jardine) John Grate (Mr. Jack Hickey). The chorus at this juncture were very much appreciated as were the japes and jokes of Deacon Dubbs. Miss T. Power, A.T.C.L., was the accompanist, and the C.C.C. Band under Capt. Bulley deluged the performance with several new specialties. The performance will be repeated to-night, and considering its excellence no less than the cause for which it has been put on, another capacity audience will be in attendance. It is up to you.

Poultry Judge Here.

Judge Frank Jackson, Assistant Collector of Customs at North Sydney, arrived by train last night and is staying at the Balsam. Mr. Jackson is here in connection with the Annual Poultry Show which opens at the C. B. Armoury to-morrow night. As he is due to leave by Thursday's express the work of judging the winners will start this evening. There are some 700 birds entered for competition.

C. L. B. C. Notes.

AN INTERESTING LETTER.
An interesting letter which contains some little known information concerning the early days of the C.L.B. in Newfoundland, was received recently from Mr. F. H. Crossman of Number 85 in the C.L.B. and has vivid recollections of the happy time he spent as a member of the Brigade. He joined up in 1895, when the Brigade had its Headquarters at the Old Butterine Factory in Hoyleslowen. He was with the Brigade when it first went under canvas, at the Orphanage Grounds, Topsail, and recalls the first tramp from Hoyleslowen to Topsail. He says "I also look back to the annual outing at Bally Haley on the Queen's Birthday; it certainly was a day of pleasure, even if we did do a couple of hours skrimishing, physical drill, or bayonet exercise. It is almost ten years since I visited St. John's. I was fortunate in being there at the opening of the Armoury on Harvey Road and took part in the evening parade with the Old Comrades on the night of the dedication." Mr. Crossman remembers with pleasure, the old officers of the Battalion and the enthusiasm which they put into their work. He also speaks of the tin whistle band, the forerunner of the splendid Brass Band of to-day. Mr. Crossman hopes to be able to visit St. John's within a few years and to renew his connection with the C.L.B.

There passed away this morning at his home, Victoria Street, after a long illness, a well-known citizen in the person of Mr. Philip Brown. The deceased, who is in his 76th year, suffered from a stroke of paralysis received about a year ago. For a long number of years he held a responsible position with the firm of A. & F. Goodridge. "Deacon Dubbs."

B.I.S. PLAYERS IN SPLENDID FORM

As always, when the famous B.I.S. players are to hold the centre of the stage, an appreciative and theatre-filling audience is sure to be present. This was again demonstrated last night at the performance of "Deacon Dubbs," a rural comedy-drama in three acts with not a dull moment throughout the full time of its production. Even the intervals were enlivened by special features, a clever monologue of a movie-fan by Miss Angela McGrath being one of the most noteworthy. Between the two acts Mr. Trapnell contributed two vocal numbers between the acts, receiving appreciative applause. The Southern Melodies of Messrs. Jardine, Wallace and Hickey, the inimitable and unsurpassable trio, were rapturously received by the house, and they had to respond over and over. Between the second and third acts an exhibition of classical dancing of the Louis XIV. period was given by Misses Lydia and Lisbeth Miller, dressed in the elaborate court attire of that age of color. The steps of the dancers were the perfection of rhythm and grace and captured the audience, entirely, having to respond to an encore.

Will Coaker Resign?

DELEGATES LEAVE FOR CONVENTION.
Will Coaker resign his department at the opening of the F.P.U. Convention which will take place at Port Union to-morrow? This is one of the questions which is interesting citizens generally. There seems some reason to believe, however, that the Minister will hold on to his portfolio until February at the request of the Government. In the meantime, the Convention promises to be an interesting one, as many subjects will come up for discussion, chief amongst which will be Co-operative Trading. The following delegates left by the express to-day for Port Union—Messrs. Hibbe (Fogo), Jennings, Samson (Twillingate), Hallyard (Trinity), Scammell (St. Barbe), and Bugden (Parish). Several friends of the delegates went along and Mr. J. R. Smallwood, who is covering the convention for the Advocate, also joined the merry throng.

Burglar Remanded.

CAUGHT IN THE ACT.
A burglar who was caught breaking into the house of Mr. F. H. Woods this morning was remanded to the Penitentiary by Judge Morris this morning. At an early hour Mr. and Mrs. Woods, who live on Duckworth Street, heard a noise in the office underneath their room and proceeded to investigate. They found the premises were being ransacked and Mr. Woods ran for the police while her husband remained behind to look after the marauder. Sergeant Keefe, and Constables Efford and Curran were quickly on the scene and captured the burglar who made a desperate effort to escape. Entrance to the office was made through a near window in which the glass had been broken.

HIS DIARY.

November 28th.—A dull day, and little or no news to note. The town talks of a manufacturer's agent being to come out as councillor, and with him, some other gentlemen; all of excellent qualities; which is, I hope, true. Comes Brown with whom I did hold discourse, and he tells me how Mr. Coaker, that is Minister of Marine and Fisheries, will not resign his department until February, and this, by the request of the Government. This day, I did renew my vow about cigarettes, that I shall smoke no more of them, until a week, which will, indeed, try me sorely. My wife and I, having a good breakfast, went to dinner with great content. With my wife to Bridge with Mr. and Mrs. Green, where, as before, the women did chatter loudly, on their discourse of dress and such things, whereas I, being more amused than annoyed, in smoking one pipe in the day and left them to it. And so, home and to bed in high good humor and did this night put on my green bed suit with the yellow spots, which I do prize highly, seeing that it is the only one of its kind, as well it might be.

No Money—No Vote.

BUSY TIME AT THE CITY HALL.
According to the Municipal Act no one is allowed to vote at the forthcoming Civic Elections, and the Council intend to adhere strictly to the letter of the law and their slogan is "no money, no vote." Ample time is being given all those in arrears to pay up and if any find they cannot vote on Polling Day, they have only themselves to blame. The voters' list are now practically ready and will be presented to the Colonial Secretary to-morrow.

Co-Operative Marketing

N.F. TRADE CONDITIONS RETRO-GRADING.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—I wish to state that my letter re co-operative marketing of fishery products, which appeared in your issue of the 22nd instant, in conjunction with the letter from Mr. A. B. Morine on the same subject, was a pure coincidence, and was not pre-arranged as some of your readers seemed to think. Mr. Morine's letters on this important subject are full of information, and are a valuable contribution to a proposition which is now receiving more serious consideration by business men than at any time in our history. If Mr. Morine while advocating co-operative marketing had resisted the temptation to mix politics with his argument, his letters would have had even greater weight.

I also wish to congratulate the Evening Telegram on its broad minded policy in opening its editorial pages to a discussion on such a subject, in an honest effort to supply much needed information. Since these letters appeared scores of business men have stated their approval of the scheme in general. The fact that the foreign markets have quickly obtained possession of almost our entire catch at their own price has resulted in putting Newfoundland back to the conditions which obtained thirty years ago, and has reduced business to a track and basket system, which means that very little cash is in circulation, and Departmental stores, small retail merchants, manufacturing concerns, and the Government, which are not directly connected with the fish business are being "squeezed." It is generally admitted that the fish exporters have made good money this year, but even they are realizing that the best profit is the profit made in trade with a prosperous people, the result of good wages and a living price for fish and other products. Otherwise profits on fish are swallowed up in bad debts, overhead expense, and the compulsory sale of goods below cost of production. Some people are inclined to think that the road to prosperity lies only through low wages. I prefer to work for the other end of the problem, by maintaining fair wages through increased returns from our exports. Newfoundland loses much by her geographical isolation from the rest of the world. Consequently we are very conservative, and twenty years behind the times, in methods—commercial, municipal and national.

The modern methods of co-operative marketing successfully practiced in Canada, the United States, and Europe are practically unknown in Newfoundland, and all the information obtainable from reliable sources should be supplied. The Advocate's present effort is much appreciated. A Co-operative Association, with a Board of Directors composed of representatives from each electoral district in Newfoundland, and including the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, with an Executive of five and a general manager such as A. E. Hickman, Sir J. C. Crosbie, or other equally successful fish exporters, would inspire confidence and insure success. Such an association could, and no doubt would, ensure Standardization by operating curing plants in all the important bays, and buying the fish green from the fishermen. I would therefore suggest that the F.P.U. Convention arrange with the Fish Exporter's Association of the United States to receive a delegation from the Convention to discuss co-operative marketing of fish. Mr. Coaker's well-known ambition to place the fishery business of the country on a sound basis should make such a meeting possible, with the probable result that an expert such as Mr. Sapine would be invited from California to advise on local conditions. This is a time when all petty jealousies, political or otherwise should be withdrawn for the good of the people and the country at large. Thanking you for space. Yours truly,
WM. WHITE.

GARLAND—Soldier Candidate for Councillor.

THE TRUTH TO THE TAXPAYERS

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,— Believing that the best policy to place before the taxpayers is the TRUTH, and that the present is not the time to consider improvements, which can only be carried out by further taxation or increasing the Municipal debt by further loans, I propose placing some facts before you.

The revenue of the Council last year was $379,682, expenditure $377,236, leaving a balance of $2,457.

The estimated revenue this year is $350,597.50, expenditure $349,736.24, leaving a balance of $861.26.

The yearly interest paid on Municipal loans is over one-fifth of the total revenue of the Council.

The Civic Board in the spring of this year further increased the debt of the municipality when they raised a loan of $150,000 at 6 p.c. interest per annum, and through their misconceived policies and blunders they have left us a yearly heritage of a further debt of $9,000 payable in interest.

If you do not want further taxation, or a recurrence of the wasteful expenditure of this year, vote for me, and I will do my utmost to protect your interests and thereby effect certain economies in the present revenue that can be used for the improvement of the city.

JAPAN WANTS SEVENTY PER CENT.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 28. To safeguard properly the interests of the Japanese Empire, a ratio of seventy per cent. in the tonnage of capital ships is necessary. Admiral Kato, Japanese Chief Naval Advisor, with the Japanese delegation to the Conference, told the press last night.

FISH CATCH INCREASED.
OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 28. Canada's catch of sea fish during October, totalled 489,696 cwts, valued at $1,466,000, compared with 431,724 cwts., valued at $1,348,000, for October 1920.

STANDING ALONE.
BELFAST, Nov. 28. Tyrone County Council decided today to ignore the Northern Local Government's Board, when transfer of services occurred. It also decided to have no communication with British Local Government Board.

CECIL SPEAKS.
LONDON, Nov. 29. Alluding in a speech at Leithworth, last night, to a suggestion that the Washington Conference might develop into a close association of nations in the future, Lord Robert Cecil, for the League of Nations was actually in working order, and that it would be "worse than madness to abandon it for the hope of putting anything in its place, unless we know exactly what it is." He thought it would have been better to postpone reparations payments until Europe recovered its industrial prosperity, and added "everybody should cease looking at these questions with a view to the future, but in fact I see little sign of any new way of approaching any of our problems."

THE FRENCH PRESS.
PARIS, Nov. 29. French newspapers of all parties, in view of the discord between France and Great Britain, coupled with the Italian display of hostility, emphasize the urgent necessity of a frank face to face talk between the Allies, in order to reach a genuine and lasting understanding. The Journal Des Debats which, seldom pleads the British cause, strongly criticized Mr. Briand for failure to reach an accord with Great Britain on the Angora affair, before going to Washington. "France," says the paper, "in having the Premier proclaimed the greatest orator in the world by incense bearers, but prefers statesmen, who can battle affairs to the satisfaction of all." Nearly all the papers endorse Mr. Briand's attitude at Washington.

WEIRD THANKSGIVING CEREMONY.
On recovering from a serious illness, a Tamil Hindu sometimes makes a vow to do something entailing discomfort and pain to himself as a sort of manifestation of gratitude combined with self-sacrifice and self-abasement. These vows take different forms, such as rolling over an over a hard metal rod, lashing himself bare being lashed on the back or wearing a hair shirt, but walking over live coals is the means most commonly chosen by the devotee, this being very often accompanied by other forms of self-torture. The particular day in the year reserved for the paying of these vows is the occasion of a religious ceremonial which is known to outsiders as the Fire Walking Festival. Tuesday, July 19, was festival day this year and the Hindu temple was crowded. The Tamils present were not those of the coolie class only. There were shopkeepers, traders, merchants, clerks, and the number of cars outside testified to the wealth and position of some of those present. A little after 5 o'clock in the afternoon the image of the goddess to whom these vows are paid was brought to the temple in procession, those who had vows to pay being among the immediate escort. Place was made for these as the procession entered the temple grounds and approached the "fire." The fire consisted of a bed of live coals about 18 feet long and 6 feet broad. Although it was not glowing—water having been thrown over it from a little trench at one end—still one felt the heat some feet away. The first man to get over carried a "pagoda" on his head weighing about twenty pounds. He danced over the coals in slow, measured steps. This method was followed by the others also. There was no stepping over the coal gingerly. Each foot came down as if its owner trod a cement floor. The "fire" was not "walked" over once, but three times. As each person led the coals he made a circuit of the temple and then entered it. The first man to get through the ceremony, dropped at the temple door as he gave up his "pagoda."

JOSEPHINE'S GEMS.
There was recently sold in New York a pair of earrings which Napoleon gave to Josephine in 1800, when the first Consul's star was in the ascendant and Josephine and he were still living happily together. They were her favorite earrings, and in most of her portraits by David and others, she is shown wearing them. Napoleon himself chose them, and his choice of jewels, as in all things, was that of a master. They consist of two great pearl-shaped emerald pendants, surrounded by diamonds. All the stones are excellence very pure and beautiful. Even after their separation the former Empress wore the jewels, and at her death they passed to the family of Eugene Beauharnais, her son, by her first husband, who died on the guillotine in the revolution. After the restoration the Beauharnais family settled in Austria where they were ennobled. In the history of their adopted country they have played at times a conspicuous part, but as with other Austrian families, the war and its aftermath has forced them to sell some of the most treasured family possessions. Among them were these earrings. When the news of the prospective sale was first known in Paris an endeavor was made by some to buy them for the Louvre at the price of 600,000 francs, as which they were valued—much more than Napoleon paid for them. A private subscription, however failed to raise the amount, and as the public treasury is too low at present for the purchase of art treasures, these historical gems were lost to the Louvre.

SOME WIRELESS PROBLEMS.
Not the least of several curious problems which are being investigated by scientists, according to an expert at the Marconi House, in London, England, is why it is so difficult to send messages across Spain from west to east, when to send them from north to south is a comparatively simple matter? Wireless messages received at Soler, in Northeast Spain, from points further north are perfectly intelligible. Yet those sent from stations west of Soler are rarely, if ever, received clearly. The suggestion has been made that mineral deposits in the mountains absorb the wireless waves, but this hardly satisfies the experts, who want to know why, if this theory is correct, it does not apply to messages sent from other directions. Another puzzling feature about wireless is the way in which it is affected by sunrise and sunset. Signals received in England from America during the day are invariably clear. At sunrise, however, they are barely distinguishable many not being received at all. Similarly, wireless waves sent out from Paris sunset behave in a most erratic fashion. At one moment a message may be quite plain; at another it may fade away almost entirely, so that the receiving apparatus often fails, so to speak, to grasp it. Still more extraordinary is the behaviour of wireless in some parts of the Pacific. Operators in ships carrying sets capable of sending messages a thousand miles, often find the range of their transmitters extended to an almost uncanny degree. Signals sent three or four thousand miles by instruments normally capable of sending them only half that distance are frequently received. So far no one seems to be able to give a satisfactory reason for this. The effect of daylight and darkness on wireless form another subject for investigation. Ships out of touch with land during the day often find that they can satisfactorily transmit messages at night, even though—and this is a curious fact—they have travelled many miles from land in the meantime.

CHEER UP AT FORTY.
Any man (or woman either) whose business or professional career is felt by him to be a success, arises on the morning of his fortieth birthday in a despondent mood. He is apt to look upon himself as a "has-been" and believe that the future has nothing bright in store. It might be well for such a man to cut out and preserve for occasional reference the following: At forty Ulysses S. Grant later President of the United States, was idling about the streets of Galena, Ill., with no occupation and was generally regarded by the prosperous citizens of that town as a worthless sort of a person. It was not until Caesar was forty-two that he became a general and began one of the most illustrious military careers in history. At forty-seven Handel produced no great musical work, and it was not until he was fifty-six he wrote the immortal "Messiah." At forty-nine Oliver Cromwell was seriously contemplating emigration to America as a farmer. At forty both Dryden and Scott first became known as authors. At forty-six, after an heroic struggle against penury, Dr. Samuel Johnson succeeded in publishing his Dictionary, of the English Language. At forty John Bunyan first received his license to preach, and he was forty-seven before "The Pilgrim's Progress" began to appear in print. And the Salvation Army was not founded by William Booth until he had reached the age of forty-nine.

What Will They Find Seven Miles Down?

Difficulties encountered in deep-sea sounding are disclosed by a marine engineer writing in The London (England) Daily Mail.

Deep-sea sounding of late years, he says, has become a very exact science. When a ship is thousands of miles from land the real work begins. To sink a lead to a quite shallow depth is the easiest thing in the world. But when it comes to working in miles, sailors are brought up against a very different problem.

Even to-day nobody knows exactly where the greatest depth exists, for the simple reason that no instrument at present invented can reach the bottom in the deepest parts. A theory accredited by scientists is that below a certain depth solid matter refuses to sink, because the pressure of the water is so great that specific gravity is overcome.

It is widely held that when ships sink in the deepest parts of the ocean they never reach bottom, but float about suspended in the water at a depth below which their weight is not sufficient to take them. The greatest depth which has been sounded up to the present is just over five miles. But it is thought that parts of the ocean are perhaps four times as deep.

In this branch of nautical science wonderful instruments are used. Attached to the leads of the sounders, which weigh seventy pounds and are suspended on piano wire, are specially constructed cups, which close automatically and bring up samples of the ocean's bed. They are provided with a dial, upon which the depth touched by the leads, is at once recorded, and are in use in all ocean-going cable ships, which must of necessity determine of what the ocean bed consists.

Time after time ships working in far seas have seen no record of solid matter reached by reading the sounder dial, because the leads are not sufficiently heavy to reach bottom.

All records may very soon be broken by the Shackleton expedition to the Antarctic. The grab-sinker, which they will use can be employed at a depth of seven miles. What will be found nobody can say. All existing theories may be exploded, but it is certain that some interesting data will be forthcoming.

Naturally, deep-sea sounding is essential from many points. Fog is the seaman's enemy. Sounding must be taken to avoid disaster. Formerly the leads used were smeared with tallow. Many interesting specimens were brought to the surface, but nothing is known of the flora and the fauna that exists at these depths hence the constant attempts to discover better sounding apparatus.

GIVE COWS FOR BRIDES.
A Basuto girl is looked upon by her father as his bank, for when she reaches a marriageable age, the bridegroom will have to hand over a specified number of cattle before he can take her from her father's hut.

There is little of love and romance in a Basuto's girl's marriage. This is not to say that she has no feelings or does not bear the call of romance. Like every girl in this world, these things come into her life and she thinks and dreams as we all do.

But there is no wooing or winning and none of the beauty of realized young dreams for her.

The man who wants her does not consult her—she has known her and she has probably pleased his eyes, and so the dusky Hendrik goes to the father and says he wishes to marry Maluma.

The matter is then discussed by the heads of the family and their relations, and the girl gets to know of the coming marriage only by a chance word that may drop here and there.

Generally the principal point of discussion among the heads of the family is how many cows and sheep are to be handed over to the father by the bridegroom as "lobola" (a marriage dowry) for the girl.

This being arranged—usually a payment of so many cows down and so many to be handed over later—the girl is informed that Hendrik is to be her husband for better or for worse—generally worse—and whether he be quite an old man or a young man Maluma has to sacrifice herself and go, as she is told.

The young natives living nearer civilization have discarded the old customs and marry without "lobola."

The marriage takes place in a native church. The wedding party and the guests are all dressed in European clothes and they return from the church by wagon to the hut of the girl's father on his master's farm, where sheep have been slaughtered and much Karri beer made; and dancing and singing go on continually for two days.

MADEIRA COMPARED TO ST. HELENA.

(Associated Press Service.)

Banishment of trouble-making former monarchs to islands of the sea, far from their one-time dominions, is an uncommon procedure but precedent for the plight of former Emperor Charles of Austria-Hungary, who has been exiled to Madeira, is found in the historic case of Napoleon I, who passed six years on St. Helena in the South Atlantic, 700 miles from the nearest land, a prisoner more than a century ago. St. Helena is not only much smaller than Madeira but, compared to the latter, is as "a devil's island to paradise." Five-sixths of its area is devoid of vegetation and, aside from an army garrison, there are no big towns or other evidences of life. Madeira, five times the size of St. Helena, is an ocean garden spot. Funchal, its city, has a population of more than 20,000 and the island, one of a group of four owned by Portugal, produces some of the most famous wine and faces in the world, as well as an abundance of fruits, grains and sugar. Oregan is mainly used for agriculture, instead of draft horses and other farming methods are primitive. Less than two per cent. of the people can read and write. The Portuguese military garrison is very small and Charles, Zita and their six small children, if the Allied powers permit, may have every freedom except an unchaperoned ocean voyage. Napoleon was guarded day and night by soldiers.

In Touch With the World.

Madiera, the Portuguese word for "forest," is directly in the Atlantic ocean trade routes. St. Helena, a British naval coaling station, often doesn't see a ship for days. Madeira is a port of call and thus is kept in daily touch with the outside world. The island, 400 miles west of Morocco, has a temperate climate. It is 12 miles wide and about 35 miles long and elliptical in shape. Three other islands nearby complete the Madeira group. They are Porto Santos which, with Madeira, have a population of 170,000 and the Desertas and Salvagens, two smaller islands of volcanic origin. The latter are uninhabited rocky formations jutting out of the sea. After the collapse of the Central Powers in 1918, Charles and Zita sought refuge in Switzerland where, for three years, they lived with their children. Last March the former Emperor attempted a coup d'etat by crossing the Swiss border and reaching the town of Steinamanger, Hungary, where with prominent monarchists he planned to enter Budapest. The plot failed and Charles returned to Switzerland. Again, on October 22 last, despite his "word of honor" given to the Swiss authorities that he would attempt no further escapades, the former monarch and his wife, during the dispute over Burgenland, flew in an airplane from Lucerne to Cedenburg and ultimately reached Raab, Hungary, where Charles was received by an armed party of royalists.

Ousted From Hungary.

In a sanguinary effort to enter Budapest, the Carlists were defeated. The former Emperor and Empress were captured and, finally, at the behest of the Little Entente, placed aboard a British monitor in the Danube. On November 3, the ex-royal pair sailed for their future home in the mid-Atlantic. On November 4 the former Emperor, who had persistently refused to renounce his hereditary "rights" was dethroned and the Hapsburg dynasty was ousted from Hungary by a law passed by the Hungarian National Assembly.

Napoleon's Bitter Experience.

Napoleon's banishment in 1814 was no less bitter. The former Empress Josephine had died and his living consort, Marie Louise, with her son, the little Prince of Rome, had gone from Fontainebleau to Vienna following the Emperor's abdication. Meanwhile the Allied powers had ceded to Napoleon the island of Elba in the Mediterranean, and there as a "sovereign" he might have passed the rest of his life in peace and tranquility. Eleven months of retirement, however, sufficed to spur him to escape and new adventures. He had been brought to Elba aboard the British warship "Dauntless" on April 20, with royal dignity and consideration. On the night of February 26, 1815, with 1,000 followers he slipped out of Porto Ferrajo and then began the famous "One Hundred Days" in which he sought to regain the throne of France. He gathered strength in men and guns as he crossed the Alps and marched on Paris, but his reign as a "constitutional monarch" was of short duration. Great Britain, Russia, Austria and Prussia declared him an outlaw and raised 150,000 troops to crush him. The last battle of Waterloo the following June saw the end of his power.

The former Emperor threw himself upon the mercy of the British, falling in an effort to flee to the United States. He made overtures to Captain Matland of the warship "Bellorophon," who took him to Plymouth, England, pending disposition of his case by the Allied powers. It was finally decided to send him to St. Helena and there, guarded by a strong British force, he landed on October 17, 1815. For six years he lived in practical solitude, writing his memoirs and monographs on military campaigns and political affairs, dying on May 5, 1821, of a cancer which had been aggravated by deep periods of hatred and depression. The British General Wilkes, the first governor of St. Helena, proved too lenient with Napoleon and "too amenable to his influence," and, as a result, was displaced some years before the Corsican's death, by Sir Hudson Lowe.

Giant Magnet to Salvage Ships.

Fishing with submarine magnets for allied ships which strew the bottom of the North Sea and the English Channel may be attempted on a large scale if an invention recently placed at the disposal of the British Admiralty proves to be practicable in deep-sea salvage operations. It is believed that the device may recover much of the loss in steel and metals caused by the submarines. It is also probable that it may, to some extent, replace the deep-sea diver.

The "submarine electro-magnet" is octagonal in shape with a width between the opposite sides, two and a half inches in depth, weighs 700 pounds and is strong enough to lift sixteen tons of metal. In salvage work three magnets will be employed simultaneously, in order to get a good hold on the larger section of armor plate.

Gigantic searchlights will first be turned on the wreck, and after the vessel has been blown to pieces by explosives the magnets will go down to search for anchors, chain cables and pieces of metal. The power will be sufficient to raise all fragments of metal, even though they be encased in wood.

The mechanical diver's possibilities were demonstrated recently at an exhibition at the Albert docks, Silver-town, attended by representatives of the British Admiralty, the port of London authority and the salvage and ship-building companies. Into thirty-six feet of water were thrown several steel girders weighing two-ton, some gas cylinders and other metallic objects.

Swung by a crane, the magnet dived and to the amazement of the witnesses, came up with the steel girders glued to its under side. The operation was repeated until the last piece of metal had been raised.

At one stage of the demonstration there was lively competition between a human diver and the diving magnet. The steel-railway switch, owing to its peculiar shape, could not be located until a diver had gone down and placed the magnet in contact with the rail. "The magnet is not intended to supplant divers," said Mr. Neale, head of the Neale Magnet Construction Company, in charge of the development of the invention. "It will be of value

Fishermen! Here's the Boot for You-"Excel"!

"EXCEL"

The Fishermen's Friend

All fishermen know from experience what happens to ordinary boots when used in fishing. You've seen how salt water seems to take the life out of rubber and how the uppers crack and the soles wear through in a surprisingly short time.

The "EXCEL" is a different and better kind of boot. It has been made especially to stand up under the unusually hard use a fisherman's boot gets.

The rubber and fabric in "EXCEL" boots are of the very highest quality. But it is the special method of curing, under tremendous pressure, that makes the "EXCEL" so wear-resisting. The pressure forces the layers of rubber and fabric together so that they are actually "one-piece", without losing the least bit of the life or resiliency of the rubber. Salt water has practically no effect on "EXCEL" boots. The UPPERS remain pliable and weatherproof, and resist the drying-out action of sun, heat and extreme cold far longer than other boots. Consequently they don't crack anywhere near so quickly. The SOLES are almost wear-proof, because they are made like an Auto Tire, with 8 plies of rubber and fabric welded by tremendous pressure into a "tire-tread" sole that rivals an automobile tire for toughness and durability.

strain. There is not a single feature but what has been proved necessary and desirable by tests of severest use. Your own experience will tell you that a boot with these features simply must be a better boot.

Study this picture. Learn these features. Remember them when you compare "EXCEL" boots with ordinary boots. And remember, too, that very important point which the picture cannot show, namely, that "EXCEL" boots are cured under tremendous pressure, which leaves the rubber pliable, weatherproof and wear-resisting. It is only by the use of this tremendous pressure combined with highest quality materials that the best results are obtained.

"EXCEL" Boots are sold by all reliable dealers from Coast to Coast.

HOW WE WOMEN ARE GOING TO HELP.

Speaking of hoopskirts which I did not long ago, one of the most interesting news items that I have seen for weeks said in effect this:

That the movement to have women lengthen their skirts is not merely a whim of fashion leaders. That behind it are the interests of big business men all over the country.

And why should big business men want women to lengthen their skirts? Is it in the interest of morality, which we are so often assured suffers from short skirts (it has always seemed to me that only the most delicate of morals would be injured thereby.)

A blessed instead of a vicious circle. Not at all. It is because these few inches more of cloth on the end of women's skirts would mean the manufacture of millions of yards of cloth, and that manufacture would mean starting up of idle looms and mills all over the world. And that would mean employment where there is unemployment, the capacity to buy here that is now lacking, which would start the blessed circle of employment—more idle mills starting up, more capacity to buy where that is lacking and so on. Like the picture of the little girl holding the tin of someone's cleaning powder with a picture on her tin of a little girl doing the same thing. It always fascinated me to think how far that

WEEKLY REPORT FROM THE BELL ISLAND CADETS.

The members of the Catholic Cadet Corps "C" Wabano Co., Bell Island, have proved themselves to be real in earnest in their present endeavours for the betterment of the Corps. For the past month over 200 members of all ranks have been doing all possible to "boost" ahead the Cadets, and by their own individual efforts have contributed largely towards placing the Brigade in the good condition it is today. Last week another dozen recruits came forward and over 200 attended their different sections. Several rejoined who had been on the Reserve list for the past three years.

Monday night witnessed the Brass Band held at practice under Instructor Murray, who had four more band recruits in attendance—Corps. Wm. Stone, James Dwyer; Pte. Jas. Dwyer and Sergt. Ed. Farrell, who have been transferred to the Band and who reported Monday night. On Tuesday the Senior Section outdid itself in point of attendance and discipline. Over seventy seniors paraded under Lieut. Gus Connors and 2nd Lieut. John Gunn, and after being inspected by Major J. M. Greene were dismissed early, when a Card Tournament was held for a valuable prize donated by Sergt.-Instr. Leo Power.

After a most interesting and exciting contest the prize was won by Pte. John King. These seniors meet every Tuesday during the winter when a series of Tournaments will be held. The Brass Band again practiced on Wednesday and Saturday evenings, when a full muster was present. Major Greene and Capt. J. Murphy also attended the practice, and expressed themselves pleased with the splendid progress being made. Great progress is being made on the Christmas Music, and the congregation of St. Michael's are in for a surprise at midnight Mass Xmas Eve, when Instructor Murray will have the Band make its initial appearance.

On Thursday evening the Ladies' Committee held their final meeting in connection with the big Dance for Friday and the annual Brigade Reunion for Saturday. Over forty ladies attended and the membership of the Ladies' Committee now goes over sixty. The President, Mrs. W. K. Murphy presided, assisted by her energetic Executive, Major J. M. P. T. Murphy, accompanied by Mrs. Greene addressed the ladies at length, and thanking them for their great work on behalf of the Cadets, and assuring them that the Officers and members appreciated their work. Their attendance on such a cold and stormy night augured well for the success of their Committee.

At Lance Cove the full platoon under Lieut. P. Stoyles was on parade Wednesday night, and after the usual exercises were gone through an interesting Card Tournament was held for a silver pencil donated by Major Greene. The prize was won by Sergt. John Kent. On Tuesday night Lieut. P. T. Murphy, accompanied by Mrs. Greene addressed the ladies at length, and Miss V. Murphy visited Lance Cove and formed a Ladies' Branch Committee, Miss B. Hammond taking charge of that branch, assisted by Mrs. Stoyles, Miss Kent, Mrs. Hammond, and other ladies.

The Drummers and Buglers practiced on both Thursday and Friday evenings, and Sergt. Instructor John Mansfield has this section in the pink of condition. Two more drums were refitted and used during the week. Capt. John Murphy and Lieut. Thomas Neary had the Junior Company to the total of seventy-five on Friday, and with the aid of their Sergt. Instructors much progress was made. At the Star Hall Friday the Big Dance was held, to which reference is made elsewhere. Suffice to say that due to the courtesy of the C.L.B. Band of "J" Co. voluntarily playing free of charge to assist the new Cadet Band, a large sum was realized. This great courtesy by the sister Brigade was greatly appreciated by the Cadets.

Sleuths Capture Smuggler.

DARING SKIPPER CAUGHT SECOND TIME.

When Capt. M. Mullins, of the little schr. Isma, which was seized several months ago at Port Morien for smuggling, told the customs official to whom he paid the $200 fine, that he had no intention of going out of the rum running business, he meant every word of it says the North Sydney Herald of Nov. 23.

After undergoing repairs on the slip here a few weeks ago, the Isma cleared at the Customs for P.E.I. Capt. Mullins was going to carry a load of spuds and other products of the farm. At least that was his avowed intention. Whether he did or not, makes very little difference. The Isma is now at Maindieu with the broad arrow adorning her sides.

The skipper of the little smuggler evidently was unaware of the fact that the fleet of revenue cutters were notified by revenue officer Angus Young, to whom Mullins previously boasted that he was going to continue in the business, to keep a sharp lookout for the Isma. Neither did the smuggler dream that he sounded his own death knell when he openly matched his wits against the revenue sleuths.

The episode ended yesterday morning at Maindieu when Mr. Young stepped aboard the Isma and placed her under arrest. Two hundred gallons of 40-overproof rum, roughly estimated to be worth $15,000, which were on board of the craft were also seized.

The schooner is now high and dry on the Maindieu shore, where she likely will end the rest of her days.

Preparing Rink.

During the past few days the management of the Prince's Rink have been busy getting the place in order for the winter sports. A foundation of snow has been laid and flooding has been done. With the continuation of frosty weather it is expected to have the Rink open for Christmas.

Dorcas Society Report, 1920-1921.

We are within two years of celebrating our one hundredth birthday, and we do not think the public will consider us unreasonable if we want to make them record years. The work of the Society has gone on quietly but steadily. We have a great many deserving poor on our lists, who look to us year by year for assistance, especially in coal. For many reasons it was thought best that such an old Society should become incorporated, and after consultation and on the advice of Mr. Herbert Knight, it was decided this should be done. The necessary papers were made out, and all work in connection therewith was very kindly done free of charge by Mr. J. A. W. McNelly, and we hereby tender thanks to these gentlemen for their sincere work. We also have to thank Mr. W. B. Fraser for again auditing our accounts; the Legislature for their annual grant, and the Evening Herald for publishing the report.

The Society is under the distinguished patronage of His Excellency the Governor and Lady Harris. The officers are as follows: President, Mrs. Pitts; Secretary-Treasurer, Mrs. Brehm; Committee: Mesdames Hutchings, McNelly, Hepburn, Hemmeon, Bolt, Macpherson, Marshall, Job, Paterson and Miss Mackay.

Hon. Secy.-Treasurer.

N. F. Trade with Canada.

President Associated Boards of Trade of Ontario Surprised and Disappointed.

President Elliott, President of the Associated Boards of Trade of Ontario, who it will be remembered, spent a few days in St. John's last summer, recently delivered an address to the Trade Meeting held in Brantford, Ontario, in which he referred to Newfoundland, which we have taken from the "Belleville Daily, Ontario."

VISIT TO NEWFOUNDLAND.

"Last August your President, accompanied by Mr. H. F. Ketcheson, ex-Mayor of the City of Belleville, had the privilege of visiting the ancient colony of Newfoundland, and were cordially received by the President and members of the St. John's Board of Trade.

During our three days' stay in that city, we were deeply impressed with its people and the prospects of an increased volume of business between that Dominion and the Province of Ontario. We learned that in the fiscal year 1918-19, the total trade was over $70,000,000, exports being $36,700,000, imports $32,300,000.

We were somewhat surprised and disappointed to learn that of the total turnover of $70,000,000, Great Britain's share was only $5,000,000, Canada's $15,000,000, while the United States had $23,000,000.

We believe that with a little effort, judiciously exercised on our part, a much larger portion of the trade of the Island could be secured for Canada, and especially for the Province of Ontario. Within the past two months several shipments of cheese and butter from this province have been forwarded to St. John's, and on arrival the quality was found satisfactory. Trade in canned goods could also be developed."

AT THE BAISSAW.—The following are guests at Baisam Place:—Mr. Thos. Kearley, Belleoram; Mr. Roy Spencer, Fortune; Capt. A. Burdock, Belleoram; Capt. W. H. Hollet and wife, Burin; Mr. L. Morgan, Grand Falls; Mr. Austin Maddock, Carbonear; Mrs. A. Valcher and child, Freshwater; Mr. Frank Murphy and child, Placentia; Dr. T. R. Dwyer, Grand Falls; Mr. R. Dwyer, Holbrook; Mr. F. E. Jackson, North Sydney.

MY COLUMN:

(BY THE CUB-EDITOR.)
ALL ABOUT BRIDGE.

When I was asked to write about Bridge, I proposed to publish my articles in book form. Unfortunately, or perhaps fortunately, I gave your choice—I find that I shall not have the time to write such a book. I have a half a dozen pages of a book and I have consequently decided that this chapter will be the last one. Did I hear loud cheers? Well, I did. I can understand it for if you are half as bored from reading these articles as I am from writing them, you are in a pretty bad way and I have my sympathy. Another reason for cutting my "book" short, one that I am sure is that the Editor doesn't like Bridge. He prefers "auction" forty paces. A sad case of demerolization, did I hear some one say? But at all. Even Editors are human, and to secure a little relaxation from the stress and worries of the Editorial chair, they will even indulge in childish games. You'd be surprised if you saw how playful Editors are in their spare time. (Editor, You'll be surprised if you don't cut that stuff out.) But, the Editor as you see, has gently reminded me that I am, wandering. I set out to tell you something about Bridge, I shall start on bidding. There are two essential points about Bridge. One is how to bid, and the other is how to play. If you can't bid you can't play, and consequently you must hasten to acquire a knowledge of bidding. Some people bid on the strength of their own hand which is wrong. Bidding is generally opened by the dealer, and if he has dealt well, he knows just what his opponents have and he hasn't. He bids on the strength of this knowledge. If he hasn't got it, he oughtn't to bid. The dealer who is unable to get a decent look at all the cards as he serves them out, is worth his salt. Another mistake which many people make is bidding on the only suit they have. They shouldn't. They should start on one suit, whether they have it or not, and then on till they reach 30 trumps. This is an attempt to be funny. Its a good tip. Now as to playing. There are several types of players. There is the player who can recall every card out without an effort, the one who has to force himself to remember, the one who forgets the cards that are out and takes fifteen minutes to play one, and there is finally the player who throws down his cards without thinking about whether they are right or wrong. Personally, I prefer playing dummy. Its so much easier. Did I hear somebody there. I don't blame you. I'm bored enough to fall into the arms of morpheus myself. I'm going. Good-bye.

Some of our story writers are running riot with their similes. Here are a few we gathered in our recent reading:
"Her lips quivered like a light auto."
"He edged nearer to her until he was almost as close as the air in the subway."
"But his mind, like her face, was made up."
"Her hair dropped on her pallid cheek like seaweed on a clam."
"He gazed anxiously at her face, the way a person in a taxi gazes at the face of the meter."—Boston Transcript.

Former Efforts.
"Perhaps we have not always been as thoughtful as we might have been of our little sister colony whose rugged shore guard the entrance to the St. Lawrence. The people there were considered when the union of the colonies brought about the Dominion of Canada. Like the other small colonies they were shy, not too well acquainted with Canada, and looked askance at the sudden courtship and suggested hurried marriage with their big neighbor, who had so long ignored their timid advances. They stayed out. When Prince Edward Island and British Columbia joined, and the strangeness of new companionship had worn off in New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, Newfoundland was asked to come in and 'round off' the Union. This was in 1868 and the overtures were refused. Later on, when the Dominion was a great, growing and prosperous nation within the Empire, misfortune came to our sister. A terrible fire had almost exterminated her capital. This was not restored before disaster came in the form of a bank crash and ruin stared them in the face. With hearts full of anguish they came to Canada to talk over Confederation. In discussing terms with them at that time I am afraid our Government were too businesslike. Perhaps they

Without militia or military organization of any kind, she hurried into the conflict the best of her sturdy manhood and sent them to the other side. What she gave, too, was no widow's mite. Whether in the forlorn hope of the Gallipoli Peninsula, or in the sustained struggle of the Western front, the Allies had no braver man than the gallant Newfoundlanders. With the war over she finds herself with a terribly decimated population and a debt which to a small country is indeed staggering. We have given aid to Greece and Roumania. Blood is thicker than water and we must not forget the little sister at our gate. If she wishes to come in, or even thinks of doing so, she should be rescued with open arms. Her debt and her problems we can meet, much as we already have. I think every true Canadian will agree with me when I say "Come in and come at once!"

Physical Development.

CALISTHENICS.
To leap to a set height, take a position a short distance from the starting line, bring the arms upward and forward to their full reach above the head, the hands being closed and the feet together. Repeat this movement three times, and after the third time, at the same time, bending the knees until they project over and the toes, raising the heels, and bringing the weight of the body on the balls of the feet. THE YOUNG ATHLETE.
The mind is not any more tractable to cultivate than the body. For those just entering adult life physical training can change the entire structure and appearance of the body. It can improve, enlarge and make symmetrical every part of the physical organism. Follow a good system of physical training. Begin moderately, and it will desire the greatest possible improvement in the shortest space of time, exercising should last from thirty minutes to an hour daily. Thoroughly tire the various sets of muscles. If the resistance is too strong there is danger of becoming "muscle bound"—an inflexible condition of the muscles, incapacitating them for a quick graceful movement. Be persistent in your exercise and strong in your determination to reach the goal. Make it a pleasure instead of work. Look upon it as play. Study the movements of the muscles before a mirror as you exercise, and thus add to the interest. Be temperate and wholesome in habits and diet, cleanly in person and in morals. Above all, be a man—a real genuine, vigorous, courageous man. With a strong purpose towards the attainment of such an object, and with the mental environments and influences, congenial and pure, almost any young man can by combining physical training with these ennobling forces, closely approximate the realization of this perfect manhood.

WHAT A FATHER WANTS TO KNOW
You would take my girl away?
What is there that I can say
Save the things all fathers think
Seldom put in printer's ink?
Or the glory you may claim.
Or the fortune you may earn;
These are not my deep concern—
This I really want know,
Will you always love her so?
It is fine enough to tell
That to-day you're doing well;
I appreciate your skill
And I think some day you will Climb the ladder of success
To your lasting happiness,
But if all this should be had
And my little girl be sad,
I'd regret my whole life through
Having given her to you.
Will you always love her so?
That is what I want to know.
Will you comfort her and stay
At her side from day to day?
Knowing she must bear your name,
Will you shield her from all shame?
This is the burden on my mind,
Will you thoughtful be and kind?
All that matters is to know
That you'll always love her so.

Wrangel's Mysterious Army.

A Military Smbad The Sallon Riga. (Associated Press.)—Charges that Great Britain had already transported a number of General Wrangel's followers from Constantinople to Vladivostok, together with rumors that the British were collecting large forces of "White" Russians in Bombay and Bagdad, are contained in a statement sent out by the Russian official news agency. Aboard a British military transport which has already arrived at Vladivostok, states the agency, are 788 Russians, of whom 600 effectives are in British uniforms, and formerly served with Wrangel's or Denikine's forces. Soviet Russia, according to the agency's report, energetically protests against this act as menacing to the Far Eastern Republic, and charges that Great Britain which, in Lord Curzon's note, accused Russia of breaking their agreement, is herself violating the agreement, by openly assisting the enemies of the Far Eastern Republic.

PERPLEXING TO ALLIES.
What to do with the thousands of Cosack and other Russian troops under the command of General Baron Wrangel who were thrown out of the Crimea by the Bolsheviks and took refuge in and near Constantinople, has been one of the puzzles which has perplexed the Allied governments in Europe. In April last it was reported that Wrangel had asked the French Government to convey his men to Vladivostok. The Soviet Government of Russia has been suspicious that the forces would be used somehow against the Bolshevik government and during the past summer the official Russian new agencies have put forth several reports that these troops were to be shipped to Vladivostok to aid the new anti-Bolshevik government there or to take the field in Siberia against the Soviet government of the Far Eastern Republic with headquarters at Chita. One of the reports was that Japan had agreed with General Wrangel to move his troops to Vladivostok and that the Russian Soviet Government had lodged a protest against it. Since coming out of the Crimea, thousands of Wrangel's troops have been living in huts in extreme poverty on the Gallipoli Peninsula, and the Island of Lemnos in the Aegean Sea, sustained by the hope that some time their services would be needed to re-establish a new government in Russia.

Lightkeeper Ill on Belle Isle.

Mr. J. Thomas, formerly wireless operator of Fogo, who is now in town, reports having received a telegram from Belle Isle stating that his father, Michael Thomas, who has charge of the lighthouse, is seriously ill. Arrangements were made to have the S. S. Prospero proceed there and have him transferred to St. Anthony Hospital this trip, but on account of weather conditions she was unable to land at the island, and it is expected that she will make an effort the next trip. According to a later message received, the patient is gaining a little and good hope of recovery is expected soon.

How fine cooks make cream soups to-day

Let Your Grocer Be Your Milkman

After eating a rich cream soup somewhere, do you sigh and say to yourself "if I could only afford to use real cream, I could serve soup like that, too!"

The chances are that the soup you would like to duplicate was not made with cream at all. For many fine cooks have learned a culinary secret that makes of cream soups a banquet dish at every day cost.

The secret is—make them with Libby's Evaporated Milk.

For twenty years Libby has worked to give a finer and richer milk to consumers. Their plans were far-reaching. First they sought out the finest pasture lands in America. There they encouraged the breeding of splendid milk herds and the use of all the appliances and practices of scientific dairying. And there they established their milk condenseries so equipped as to assure absolute purity and cleanliness.

At those condenseries the whole milk from the fine herds, with the cream left in, is canned for you. Half the moisture is taken from it by evaporation. Nothing is added to it. So you have in this milk just the rich, pure product of the finest cows, but with twice the food value, twice the butter fat, of ordinary milk.

This milk makes cream soups so smooth, so rich, so mellow that they taste like the soups made by extravagant cooks.

Used in coffee, this milk gives a creamy richness at half the cost of cream.

Try it in your favorite recipe where cream or milk is called for.

Your grocer has it or can get it for you.
