An Important Point.

All good housekeepers realize that fat is necessary for cooking, but that the digestibility of the fat must be considered first. Crisco, the pure sweet, vegetable shortening, supplies the necessary fat in a form which is digestible. As has been frequently remarked in connection with Crisco "It brings out the natural flavours of foods." There is no better shortening than Crisco, you will be delighted with its results in cakes and pastry. If you cannot secure Crisco from your grocery store, phone Gerald S. Doyle the local Distributor, who will tell you the nearest place to purchase it.

LADY LAURA'S RELEASE
—OR—
THE STORY OF A SPOILED BEAUTY.

CHAPTER XXVII.
"Well, what if it were?" he asked indifferently.

"You do not deny it?" she asked in return.

"I neither deny nor affirm it, Laura. I leave you to think and decide what you will. If you intend by all kinds of jealous fancies and absurd suspicions to spoil what might be a pleasant visit, you are at perfect liberty to do so. But let me give you a word of warning. You have seen only one side of my character as yet. Do not try me too far. The tragedy-queen business is a kind of thing I would not bear from any woman in the world, and, therefore, if you are wise, you will never repeat it.

In the fierce-spoken man whose face was livid with anger, whose eyes shone with a dangerous light, no one would have recognized the handsome, genial captain.

Where were the musical voice and the caressing manner that won the love and admiration of all women? An almost fiendish hate shone in his face, and his wife shrank from him as though he had struck her a blow.

"If you are wise," he cried threateningly, "you will not enrage me again!"

"You may be sure that I shall not do so," she replied, and swept from the room, leaving her husband ashamed of his victory.

CHAPTER XXVIII.
From that time the shadow deepened and the breach between husband and wife widened.

The captain avoided his wife, for her pale sad face was a reproach to him, and he knew well that his whole conduct was indefensible.

Day by day the coldness increased; but it did not interfere with the captain's enjoyment. He called at Lady Kinloch's as often as he thought prudent.

death. I must buy it, Angela; and it shall hang in my own room."

When the captain first saw the painting, he examined it with unusual interest and curiosity.

"A Woman's Martyrdom!" he said, when he had finished his inspection. "What a gloomy, terrible picture, Laura!"

"That is how women were tortured in olden days," she remarked, in answer to his observation. "It is managed differently now."

"What do you mean?" he asked.

"It is the heart that is racked and tortured now, not the body," she answered. "The best part of the woman is killed, the worst lives on—yet no one heeds or cares."

"If I were you, I should send that thing away," he said, ignoring her words. "It gives me the horrors to look at it."

"I am not surprised to hear you say so; but I shall not remove my picture," declared her ladyship decisively.

For a few days after that the captain did not seem so careless or so light-hearted. "A Woman's Martyrdom!" he repeated to himself over and over again. It was not quite pleasant for him, reckless as he was, to know that his wife regarded herself as a martyr; but he tried to convince himself that her martyrdom existed only in her imagination, and reasoned that fair-haired, fair-faced women seldom had much depth of feeling. He could not attend to all the wants and whims of his wife, and he felt that she thought to be well content. Still the matter weighed upon his mind so much that he spoke to Gladys about it.

"You see," he said, "I do not believe in sentiment—in fact, I hate it; but this makes me feel uncomfortable."

They were together on the new pier, the captain having met Miss Rane quite by accident. They stood by the rail, nothing before them but the wide, open expanse of sea.

dent, and he troubled himself about his wife just as little as possible.

The old gloom and melancholy returned to the unhappy woman, who, do as she would, could not tear her heart from the man she loved—could not love him less, although she knew that he was unworthy of her.

Then there came a new phase in her martyrdom, one that was most painful, when her heart and soul rose in rebellion against the cruel fate that was hers, when she cried to Heaven and asked why such torture and punishment fell to her lot.

There were hours when she would sit watching the sea, brooding silently over her sorrow, and then giving way to such bitter tears that Angela grew seriously alarmed.

The unhappy and slighted wife had not felt this keen rebellion against her fate before; now she was keenly alive to it.

Mother and daughter were walking one morning down the King's Road, and they stopped before a shop with a number of pictures in it. Lady Laura's attention was riveted by one of them. The subject of it was the martyrdom of a young and beautiful woman. Underneath it was inscribed, "A Woman's Martyrdom." Her ladyship stood gazing at it with fixed attention.

A woman, young and fair, with a veil of golden hair falling over her white neck and shoulders, lay fastened to the rack. In the background were the dark walls of a prison-cell, and the white body of the woman stood out against them in bold relief. Two grim executioners stood ready to begin their hateful task. In the corner, half hidden by the shadows, was a handsome man with a cruel, triumphant, evil face.

It was not the fair limbs bound so tightly, it was not the cruel deep lines made by rope or chain that drew Lady Laura's attention and kept it; it was the expression of unutterable pain on the face, the agony in the upturned eyes. What her history could be who should know? Why she was dying that terrible death none could tell. But it was plain to see that before the physical pain of her martyrdom had begun her heart was broken. Her ladyship seemed fascinated by the picture.

"Angela," she said, in a low voice, "I should like to buy that. I must have it for my own."

"It is a melancholy picture, mamma," returned Angela, who knew by instinct what her mother thought and felt.

"I must have it, my dear," she declared. "A Woman's Martyrdom! Angel, I have been thinking that, despite their smiling faces, most women are martyrs in one way or another. Some live and move with a dagger in their heart, others with a sword suspended over their head; but I live as the woman in the picture, fastened to the rack. That woman's martyrdom is more merciful than mine. When her executioners apply that instrument she will cease to feel any pain; and the ropes that fasten her delicate body are not so terrible as the weight that drags at my heart. She will die quickly; but I must live on while suffering torture. Angel, is every woman's life a martyrdom?"

"No, mamma," she answered gently. "Think how happy you were when my father was alive. Think how happy and beloved you would be if he were living now."

"I must have the picture, Angel," repeated Lady Laura. "My dear, I am the woman fastened to the rack; and there is one who sees all my pain and smiles over it. But in the picture of my martyrdom it should be Gladys Rane who stands by the rack ready to apply the instrument!"

"Oh, hush, mamma! I cannot bear to hear you say such things; it breaks my heart. Do let me persuade you not to buy the picture. It will fill your mind with melancholy thoughts whenever you look at it."

"No," she said, dreamily. "It will be to me a realization of my life and death. I must buy it, Angela; and it shall hang in my own room."

When the captain first saw the painting, he examined it with unusual interest and curiosity.

"A Woman's Martyrdom!" he said, when he had finished his inspection. "What a gloomy, terrible picture, Laura!"

"That is how women were tortured in olden days," she remarked, in answer to his observation. "It is managed differently now."

"What do you mean?" he asked.

"It is the heart that is racked and tortured now, not the body," she answered. "The best part of the woman is killed, the worst lives on—yet no one heeds or cares."

"If I were you, I should send that thing away," he said, ignoring her words. "It gives me the horrors to look at it."

"I am not surprised to hear you say so; but I shall not remove my picture," declared her ladyship decisively.

For a few days after that the captain did not seem so careless or so light-hearted. "A Woman's Martyrdom!" he repeated to himself over and over again. It was not quite pleasant for him, reckless as he was, to know that his wife regarded herself as a martyr; but he tried to convince himself that her martyrdom existed only in her imagination, and reasoned that fair-haired, fair-faced women seldom had much depth of feeling. He could not attend to all the wants and whims of his wife, and he felt that she thought to be well content. Still the matter weighed upon his mind so much that he spoke to Gladys about it.

"You see," he said, "I do not believe in sentiment—in fact, I hate it; but this makes me feel uncomfortable."

They were together on the new pier, the captain having met Miss Rane quite by accident. They stood by the rail, nothing before them but the wide, open expanse of sea.

Gladys looked at him thoughtfully. "There are so many forms of martyrdom," she observed, quietly. "If it is a question of real suffering, I think my pain is greater than Lady Laura's. She has you; I am alone."

The thought of his wife's suffering had not occasioned Vance Wynyard a moment's regret; but at the thought of Gladys' pain his heart ached.

"Does your wife really love you?" asked Gladys—"love you with all her heart?"

"I believe she does," he replied. "I am sorry for her, then," said Miss Rane. But with his words there crept into her heart a deeper jealousy of the fair-faced woman who had the only claim to his love.

One morning, when the band was playing and the pier was unusually crowded, Captain Wynyard escorted his wife and step-daughter to the pier-head.

Having found seats for them, he proceeded to move about among the crowd.

Whilst thus wandering aimlessly his attention was attracted by the conversation of two gentlemen standing near him, one of whom uttered his wife's name.

"Lady Laura Wynyard—the one with the golden hair. All the town is talking of her beauty."

Forty-Four Years in the Service of the Public—The Evening Telegram.

Millions of Tiny Magnets

Although iron is the commonest metal known, and the most important, it has some very mysterious aspects. With the exception of one or two other metals, such as nickel, which are but faintly magnetic, iron is the only known metal with powers of magnetism.

(An ordinary piece of iron is itself nothing more or less than millions of tiny magnets. Every atom of iron is a tiny magnet with its own north and south poles. But we do not notice it because all these tiny magnets are higgledy-piggledy, as it were, and neutralise each other's magnetism.)

When a piece of iron is made into a magnet, all these tiny magnets are brought into line. That is, the north pole of one tiny magnet joins on to the south pole of the one next to it, and so on. Thus, all the little bits of magnetism are added together and make one powerful magnet.

That means that when a piece of iron is magnetised, its whole internal structure has been rearranged. Though no difference can be seen, as a matter of fact, when strongly magnetised a piece of iron increases in length, though of course to so little an extent that only the most accurate instrument can measure it. But if a bar of iron 720,000 feet long were strongly magnetised it would grow a foot in length!

When a bar of iron is suddenly magnetised or demagnetised, a faint metallic "click" can be heard in it. That is the sound of the iron atoms suddenly changing their positions.

If the bar be magnetised and demagnetised very rapidly, the friction inside of the atoms moving will make the bar hot. A piece of iron can be made nearly red-hot that way.

There is another interesting fact about iron. If it is heated above a certain temperature, which is about 700 degrees Centigrade, it is no longer capable of being attracted by a magnet.

When a length of iron wire, white hot, is suspended and then left to cool, this curious process can be seen with the eye. Slowly the wire cools and becomes a dull red heat. Then, suddenly it becomes brilliantly hot again without the aid of any outside heat at all.

This heat is caused merely by the iron atoms rearranging themselves again, and in the effort of doing so, developing an internal heat that causes a sudden rise in temperature.

Strange Burial Customs.

The disposal of the remains of the dead has always been an interesting study as every race from time to time immemorial has had some custom of its own peculiar in the eyes of modern civilization.

The recent opening of famous tombs has brought to light many strange customs of ancient Egypt. India has her own funeral rites. Japan's rites have been part of the national religion. Our own North American Indians paid special attention to the disposal of their departed friends. But nowhere are the customs more peculiar than those of China.

In the more remote sections of the fowery kingdom many of the ancient customs are being retained, just as they were centuries before Occidental civilization was ever thought of.

Those of the Ami who live inland from the Chinese coast follow what was evidently their original custom, as it is still that of the Palawan and the eastern Bunuan; namely, the burial of the dead, in a crouching position, underneath the hearthstone of the family home.

Gruesome as the custom may seem to Western minds—and unhygienic—it is accepted as a matter of course by the tribes among whom it exists, and the idea of its exciting horror in the mind of anyone else seems to them incredible and absurd.

The houses of the people who practise this peculiar form of inhumation are substantially built of slate; one or more slabs of slate being used as a hearth, on which a fire is kept always burning—or, during the dry season, smouldering.

When the death occurs of any member of the family, the body is bound with strands of coarse grass in a stooping or crouching posture. Then after the usual funeral ceremonies, both of wailing and of feasting, are concluded, the ashes are scraped from the hearth—care being taken, however, that the coals are kept "alive," for should these be extinguished, or grow cold, it would be considered an omen of evil, and would also "displease the Ottoto" of the dead—and the hearthstones are removed.

A deep hole is dug in the place from which the stones have been moved. This is usually filled with grass before the body is lowered into it. The personal belongings of the deceased are also placed in the grave, which is then filled in, the hearthstone replaced, and the fire rekindled. Then the life of the surviving members of the household goes on as before.

Pineapple sherbet is attractive served in orange-shell baskets and decorated with candied cherries.

Mince cold chicken, cook with lemon juice, cayenne salt and chopped olives. Use as a sandwich paste.

Counter-Proposals To Lausanne Treaty.

Many New Demands Made—Death and Destruction Follow Trail of Tornado—Peace Not Yet in Sight in Ireland—McTigue Wins Bout With Siki the Senegalese.

THE TURKISH SITUATION.

PARIS, March 18. — Bonhardt, former French Minister to Turkey, accompanied by a number of experts, will represent France at the preliminary conference of the representatives of France, Great Britain and Italy, which will take place in London, under the presidency of Lord Curzon, to study the attitude of the Allies to the Turkish counter proposals to the Lausanne Peace Treaty. The stand the Allies is expected to be determined inside of ten days. The general opinion here is that Turkey's counter proposals offer no dangerous obstacle to the conclusion of peace, provided the Turks show conciliation. It is remarked in Allied circles that the Turks in their reply not only have incorporated the last minute concessions made by the Allies, but have put forth new details which will be difficult of solution. The Turkish proposals concerning the stipulations. The Allies interpret the Turkish demands as placing foreigners in Turkey in a more disadvantageous position than those countries where special privileges to foreigners never existed, and insist on a distribution of the provinces. The detached provinces, which simultaneously claim a continuation of Turkish rights and advantages in these districts, including civil lists by demanding the application of the Turkish property laws to foreigners.

The Allies apprehend legal tangles, claiming that one result would be the inheritance of a foreigner's property by his brother instead of his son, as in western lands. Experts to-night also instanced Turkey's unexpected demand for possession of Castile, off the South Coast of Asia Minor, which has brought forth outspoken condemnation of the part of the Italians, present holders of the island.

A DESTRUCTIVE TORNADO.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 17. — Eighteen dead and approximately one hundred injured, and property damage estimated at between three hundred thousand and four hundred thousand dollars, made up the known toll to-night of the tornado which swept seven Delta Counties in Northern Mississippi last night, demolished the village of Savage and left a trail of property damage and dead and maimed in a dozen or more towns and farming settlements. Several hundred are homeless.

FORTY FRENCH SOLDIERS KILLED IN TRAIN WRECK.

BERLIN, March 17. — A report from Friburg, a Rhine town near Duisburg, says forty soldiers were killed and many wounded, when a French troop train collided with a freight so heavily that several coaches were telescoped.

THE SITUATION IN IRELAND.

DUBLIN, March 18. — On the eve of St. Patrick's day attention is naturally directed here to the status of the conflict between the Irish Free State and the Republican element. Up to the present all rumours of peace have proved unfounded. The fight is still apparently as lively as ever and opponents of the Government continue to claim they are winning, but the recent capture of military Republican chiefs in Ireland, followed by the wholesale cornering of their friends in Great Britain, evidently weakened the Republican resistance. The publication from time to time of DeValera's captured correspondence reveals him in a despondent mood. As the Republican ranks thin out the fight is becoming less a military adventure and more in the nature of a general attack on all the property; the idea apparently being that the Government will have to pay eventually for such loss and that these exploits will lead it to bankruptcy. The Government was never more optimistic than at present and its members never more determined to suppress the armed opposition. They claim they do not make war on any man's opinion, unless he backs it with a gun or the petrol can; but that against violence whether directed against officials, troops or private individuals, the government is inexorable. The captures in England and Scotland appear to have offered the Republicans an opportunity for propaganda as showing the willingness of the Free State Government to invite British aid. The Government is indifferent to these argumentative attacks; the ministers conceive their job is to save the Free State and they have abandoned altogether the conciliatory attempts made last year to retain or win the support of the Republicans. Draconic action is not confined to imprisonment and execution of irregulars. Whenever disorder exists counter measures are taken.

ANGLO-GREEK RELATIONS.

PARIS, March 18. — Efforts are being made to adjust amicably the partial diplomatic break between Great Britain and Greece, caused by the Execution, despite British protest, of former Greek Cabinet Ministers, last November.

BULGARIA'S REPARATIONS DEBT.

PARIS, March 18. — The long conflict over the settlement of Bulgaria's Reparations Debt to the Allies is expected to be terminated through the acceptance by the Reparations Committee of the sum of 550,000,000 gold francs, payable in 60 years.

FRENCH SOLDIER KILLED.

ESSEN, March 18. — A French soldier was shot and killed at the railway station here to-night. Three Germans have been arrested on suspicion, and a fourth German, who tried to evade arrest, was shot and wounded.

SPEEDY WORK.

HALIFAX, March 17. — The resignations of Councillors Geo. Cooke and James Cantwell, of Sydney Mines, were made valid here to-day in the Local Legislature by emergency legislation, which was put through the three readings in the House of Assembly, passed the Legislative Council and was assented to by Chief Justice Harris, as Administrator of the Province, within the space of an hour.

SIKI BEATEN.

DUBLIN, March 18. — Mike McTigue, Irish-Canadian-American fighter, is now world's light heavyweight champion and European heavyweight champion as the result of winning the decision in a twenty rounds bout with Batling Siki here Saturday.

Obituary.

WILLIAM THORNE (Torbay.)

The Grim Reaper Death visited the settlement of Torbay at noon yesterday, March 18, claiming for its victim one of the most respected residents, in the person of William Thorne. Mr. Thorne was in his 63rd year and was the husband of the late Elizabeth Thorne (nee) Miss Lizzie Martin of Catalina, who predeceased him some 11 years, and who before her marriage was one of Torbay's most popular school teachers. Mr. Thorne spent his early married years in St. John's, where he made many friends and later moved to Torbay, where by diligence and perseverance he became one of its most successful fishermen-farmers. He will be best remembered by his St. John's friends as doorkeeper at the House of Assembly during Legislative sessions, which position he held for many years. Deceased had been ailing for years past from some incurable malady, but bore his sufferings patiently, and death came as a happy release. Besides a host of friends and relatives, he is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Chas. Cedner and Mrs. James Martin, Torbay, and by four children, Richard residing at New York, Cecilia at St. John's, and Stanley and Isabella at home, to all of whom the sympathy of the community is extended. A loving one from them has gone. A voice they loved is still. A place is vacant in their home. Which never can be filled.

Just Folks.

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

THE SWING OF THE PENDULUM.
Two brothers, weary and tired of breath,
Helpless and old and gray
Into their cabin invited death
One January day.

And one of the men was sixty-eight
And the other was seventy-two,
But it seems that neither of them
Would wait
For death his work to do.

There stood a clock on the cabin floor
And, swinging to and fro,
They could see the pendulum through
The door
"And hear the seconds go."

"Never he'll come," said the elder one;
"We have watched the years go by,
For something or other which we have Done
God will not let us die."

"He will strike to-day," said the younger;
"We shall sweetly sleep to-night,
And we shall not wake in the world
Of men
When to-morrow's sky grows bright."

Then he snatched the pendulum of the clock
As it swung there to and fro,
And raised it high, and with sudden
Shock
He dealt his brother a blow.

Three times three with that piece of brass
He hammered his brother down,
Then he hammered some poison from a Glass
And two souls quit the town.

When the morning came, through the cabin door
The startled neighbors pried,
And they found the dead men on the Floor
With the pendulum at their side.

"He did it with this," said a man in blue
To the pale and curious flock:
"He battered his head with a blow or two—
It's the pendulum of the clock."

But a wise man said who was standing near:
"They needn't have turned to crime,
That pendulum, had they waited here,
Would have finished them both in time."

"'T would have ended their lives with
His patient swing,
Ceaselessly to and fro,
For each of us dies 'neath the hammering
Of the pendulum's steady blow."

We know not when and we know not how
The summons to go shall come,
But the day shall be when we all must
Bow
To the swing of the pendulum.

Zoo Monkey Proves Darwinism.

HE LIKES PUBLICITY AND CAMERAS.

JIMMY, the baby rhesus monkey at the New York Zoological Park, loves publicity and sunflower seeds. Sometimes sunflower seeds are hard to get, as in the winter time, for so few farmers in Manhattan grow sunflowers these days. Vast acres in Manhattan formerly planted with sunflowers are now growing hops. However, if sunflower seeds are hard to get, publicity is not for Jimmy. That is due to two reasons. First, Jimmy's innate charm, which endears him to all reporters who differ with William Jennings Bryan on the Darwinian theory. Second, Jimmy has no press agent. Lacking sunflower seeds, Jimmy will always take publicity. It will be seen, ipso facto, that he had no sunflower seeds yesterday. The instant he saw The World's rhesus expert yesterday he set up a chattering. It might have meant anything. But it didn't sound refined.

"What do you think of New York's skyline?" asked the expert. Jimmy skinned the cat on the horizontal bar in his cage.

How nice it would be, the expert thought, if some of these visiting authors and actresses would do something interesting like that, instead of shooting the customary bias when asked their opinion on sky lines.

"What do you think of American women?" asked the expert. Jimmy walked the length of the bar with more skill than a rope walker.

How nice it would be, thought the expert, if some of these Europeans who say lovely things about American women before they've seen any would walk the plank.

"What do you—" the expert began with an idea of questioning Jimmy on—guess! Yes, Prohibition.

Jimmy gestured impatiently, jumped up on the camera, grabbed the bulb, and sat in front of the lens.

"He waxes his picture taken," said a bystander. The picture being taken, Jimmy made a gesture of contempt at the expert. It only made the expert like him the more. There is no hokum about Jimmy. He can have all the publicity he wants and the expert is sending for a barrel of sunflower seeds to give him as a valentine.

THE EVENING TELEGRAM

THE EVENING TELEGRAM, LIMITED, PROPRIETORS. St. John's, Newfoundland, Monday, March 19, 1923.

DUTIES AND REMISSIONS.

On Friday last certain comparisons were made in this column to a comparison of tariff rates on articles used by the fishermen in the present year and that of 1919, in which it was conclusively shown that the rates of duty under the Coaker-Squires administration are far and away in excess of those collected when Sir Michael Cashin held the Premiership and portfolio of Customs and Finance.

SQUIRES AND SUGAR.

It was announced with a great display of prominent headlines in the Government press last week, that the Government had decided to make a remission of the extra duty tax on imported sugar, the same to take effect on March 31st.

WHITEWASHING MR. COAKER.

The dear old Advocate makes a tremendous pother in its issue of Friday, anent the Vindication of Mr. Coaker in the matter of Fish and Salt. When it is noticed who the Commissioners are who thus whitewash Mr. Coaker, and complete his absolute vindication, and give him plenary absolution, verily "it is to laugh."

And these are the men who so liberally applied the brush. Again, it is to laugh

OPENING THE CAMPAIGN.

The Government organs feature a speech made by the Prime Minister at a recent banquet, and as usual turn it into a political channel. Perhaps that was the idea that Sir Richard had in mind when he few off the handle and indulged in language that would have been more appropriate on the political hustings than at a festive board, where courtesy and moderation should characterize the after dinner utterances of set speakers.

Publication Suspended.

It is quite possible that following to-day's issue of the Telegram, publication will have to be suspended for a few days, unless, in the meantime, a change in the weather occurs. The power plant at Petty Harbor, from which is generated the electric current used as motive power in this and other press offices and manufacturing premises of the city, cannot derive sufficient power from the turbines owing to scarcity of water supply to do otherwise than furnish light, and that only at certain diurnal periods.

Sealing News.

The sealing situation still remains unchanged. The ships got clear of the jam on Friday last, and good progress was made until noon Saturday, when they again became jammed. Several of the steamers reported a good sign of old seals yesterday. The ice is tight as far as can be seen. The following are the messages received.

THE TRAP SET

NOT TAKING THE BAIT!

Who's Who in the Government.

NUMBER 1. INTRODUCING HON. W. F. COAKER.

GENTLEMEN!—It is magic in his make up. True, he has not discovered the philosopher's stone, nor the secret of transmuting the baser metals into gold, but he has managed to turn prosperity into destitution and progress into stagnation by the operation of his 1919 Fish Regulations. After the ruin had been wrought he removed them, and subsequently took a half million dollars from the public treasury, without authority or sanction, with which to purchase fish from his supporters in Northern districts. The story of this raid on the exchequer is too well known to require repetition. Our fishermen—I don't think—guest, gentlemen, claims the Southside of St. John's for his birthplace, but at an early age he migrated to Dunnsage Island, in Green Bay, where he occupied his time in the study of ornithology, which being anglicised means, in general terms, the taming of gulls.

The R. W. Master, and officers of Lodge Tasker, No. 454, A. F. and A. M., were installed at High Noon on Saturday, the ceremony being performed by the D.D.G.M., S.C., Bro. Tasker Cook, assisted by D.G. Secy. Bro. H. E. Cowan, and D.D.G.M., E.C., Bro. J. R. Bennett. The new officers are as follows:—

Twillingate in Line.

The former Liberal Committee of Twillingate has taken a new lease of life under the Liberal-Labor Progressive Party. The secretary of the former, now elected chairman of the new Twillingate Committee, is no longer loyal to the Squires-Coaker combination, and we challenge the Advocate to truthfully contradict same. But it decidedly favors combined opposition under the leadership of J. R. Bennett. The unnecessary spring election, instead of Assembly being in session, is considered a big piece of deception and the game of bluff will not be swallowed by the electors of this district. The Squires-Coaker administration policy the past four years has ruined our country. Bennett must win.

Funeral Obsequies.

The funeral of the late George Axford Williams took place on Saturday (St. Patrick's Day) from his daughter's residence, Scott Street, interment being at the C. of E. Cemetery. The deceased gentleman was the fourth son of the late George Banks Williams, of Devonport, England, and having reached the ripe age of ninety years, was better known to the older generation of people of St. John's. He leaves four sons and two daughters, also two brothers, Mr. John Williams, Sr., of this city, and Robert of Texas, to mourn their loss.

Funeral Obsequies.

The funeral of the late Mrs. G. W. Gushue took place at 2:30 on Saturday afternoon and was very largely attended. The services at the house were conducted by Rev. T. B. Darby, Hammond Johnson and Dr. Fenwick. The well-known hymn, "My times are in thy hands," was very feelingly rendered, after which the silent cortege wended its way to the General Protestant Cemetery, where the body was interred, the Rev. H. Johnson officiating at the graveside.

Narrow Escape

MOTHER RUSHES TO CHILD'S ASSISTANCE. Mary, the little five year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hayne, King's Bridge, had a narrow escape from being burnt to death at her home yesterday morning at 11 o'clock, and as a result of the burns received, now lies in the General Hospital. It appears that while the mother was out of the dining room for a few minutes, the little one started playing with the fire in front of an open grate, and in an instant her dress ignited, and was soon in a mass of flames. The mother heard the child's cries, and rushing into the room, was horrified to find the little one all ablaze. With great presence of mind Mrs. Hayne quickly grasped a shawl, which lay close by, and wrapping it around the little girl's body, succeeded in smothering the flames, but not before the infant's face, arms and legs had been badly burnt. The child suffered untold agony from the burns received, all possible was done to try and relieve the pain until assistance arrived. Dr. Mitchell soon responded to a telephone call, and upon making an examination of the little girl's injuries, ordered her at once to the General Hospital for treatment. Last night she was doing as well as could be expected having slept several hours. Her injuries are not so serious as at first thought, and it is quite possible that her face will not be disfigured. The child had a most miraculous escape, and had it not been for the promptness of her mother, the accident would probably have terminated fatally.

The secretary of the former, now elected chairman of the new Twillingate Committee, is no longer loyal to the Squires-Coaker combination, and we challenge the Advocate to truthfully contradict same. But it decidedly favors combined opposition under the leadership of J. R. Bennett. The unnecessary spring election, instead of Assembly being in session, is considered a big piece of deception and the game of bluff will not be swallowed by the electors of this district. The Squires-Coaker administration policy the past four years has ruined our country. Bennett must win.

Funeral Obsequies.

The funeral of the late George Axford Williams took place on Saturday (St. Patrick's Day) from his daughter's residence, Scott Street, interment being at the C. of E. Cemetery. The deceased gentleman was the fourth son of the late George Banks Williams, of Devonport, England, and having reached the ripe age of ninety years, was better known to the older generation of people of St. John's. He leaves four sons and two daughters, also two brothers, Mr. John Williams, Sr., of this city, and Robert of Texas, to mourn their loss.

Funeral Obsequies.

The funeral of the late Mrs. G. W. Gushue took place at 2:30 on Saturday afternoon and was very largely attended. The services at the house were conducted by Rev. T. B. Darby, Hammond Johnson and Dr. Fenwick. The well-known hymn, "My times are in thy hands," was very feelingly rendered, after which the silent cortege wended its way to the General Protestant Cemetery, where the body was interred, the Rev. H. Johnson officiating at the graveside.

Narrow Escape

MOTHER RUSHES TO CHILD'S ASSISTANCE. Mary, the little five year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hayne, King's Bridge, had a narrow escape from being burnt to death at her home yesterday morning at 11 o'clock, and as a result of the burns received, now lies in the General Hospital. It appears that while the mother was out of the dining room for a few minutes, the little one started playing with the fire in front of an open grate, and in an instant her dress ignited, and was soon in a mass of flames. The mother heard the child's cries, and rushing into the room, was horrified to find the little one all ablaze. With great presence of mind Mrs. Hayne quickly grasped a shawl, which lay close by, and wrapping it around the little girl's body, succeeded in smothering the flames, but not before the infant's face, arms and legs had been badly burnt. The child suffered untold agony from the burns received, all possible was done to try and relieve the pain until assistance arrived. Dr. Mitchell soon responded to a telephone call, and upon making an examination of the little girl's injuries, ordered her at once to the General Hospital for treatment. Last night she was doing as well as could be expected having slept several hours. Her injuries are not so serious as at first thought, and it is quite possible that her face will not be disfigured. The child had a most miraculous escape, and had it not been for the promptness of her mother, the accident would probably have terminated fatally.

The Tragedy of the West Coast.

(From the Evening Telegram, Wednesday, Sept. 29th, 1920.)

In referring yesterday to the brighter and more promising aspect that has made its appearance, we were speaking of St. John's alone, and we would that the same thing could be made apply to the West Coast. There—and deplorable it is to be compelled to make the statement—there is no brightening up, neither is there any early prospect of such a condition visible. True, cargoes of fish have been allowed to sail from ports there, but these should have been away weeks if not months ago. Yet after all these cargoes are but made up of the fall and spring catches of fish. Very little summer fish are in them because the regulations, which prevented the cargoes from being marketed at the time when the West Coast ships its voyage, were enforced against their export, an enactment tying up the industry of the whole coast, for when shippers could not get their collection to meet it was obvious that they would not enter extensively into further purchases and have them tied up also. Thus there was no encouragement to fishermen to continue their avocation and the result was that they reeled up their lines, dried out their trawls and stared a gloomy future in the face.

In proof of this there is no need to go further than submit the gist of the correspondence between the people of Burnt Islands, district of Burgeo and LaPoile and Hon. W. F. Coaker, Acting Premier and Minister of Marine and Fisheries. Burnt Islands is essentially a fishing settlement. All its interests are devoted to the fishery, and its people were prosperous, industrious, and especially energetic in wresting their livelihood from the depths of the sea. Men owned the skiffs in which they fished and were independent in the sense that they could go whither they pleased for supplies. They were not bound to any merchant by debt or other obligations. They fished from January to December and the fruits of their toil made them comfortable and free from fear of the future. Many of them perchance had a little capital laid by in the event of an emergency and progress was the motto of the population. Let us see how the Fish Regulations have changed a thriving settlement into a place of despondency and gloom. Condition became so acute at Burnt Islands because of trade stagnation consequent upon the enforcement of the regulations that the people called a mass meeting, and at that meeting memorialized Mr. Coaker to the effect that the inalienable laws were being done by his enactments. This memorial contained the following:—

"The acute situation now prevailing has been hastened and aggravated by ill thought out rules and badly applied regulations, and we now find ourselves—ALONG WITH PRACTICALLY THE WHOLE DISTRICT—cut off from the means of existence. We have not AS A CLASS, sufficient means to enable us to fit out for fishing or to provide coal or other absolute necessities to carry on our work. Further, AS A CLASS, we are unable to pay our passages away to obtain employment elsewhere or to keep our families while we are away.

"This statement is not in the nature of a whim. IT IS A PLAIN STATEMENT OF FACTS AS THEY EXIST. We are not sleeping and do not want charity. We realize that regulations, which never should have been put into force before proper notice was given, have completely crippled our industry everywhere and throws us on our backs."

Such is the opening chapter of the tragedy within a tragedy,—that of Burnt Islands. In the next article other phases of the memorial and Mr. Coaker's reply thereto will be considered.

Newfoundland Actor at Majestic To-Night.

"THE SEA RIDERS" FEATURES NOTABLE CAST.

Quite a lot of enthusiasm has been aroused in the city lately, regarding the big Maritime Motion Picture Co. production, "The Sea Riders." A very important feature of this picture is that it brings out Michael Brennan, a St. John's boy who makes his initial appearance in motion pictures.

"The Sea Riders" is a six-act drama of the sea, the locale of which is staged on the Nova Scotia coast, with many of its scenes shot on our own Newfoundland coast, and this with its variety of excellent coast line should make this film an attraction of magnetic drawing power.

As there are quite a large number of our people, that are stockholders in The Maritime Co., a full house is assured. The cast of the film consists of Betty Bouton, Edward Phillips, Charles Eldridge, Edward Lawrence and last but certainly not least is our own Newfoundland boy, Michael Brennan.

From a 1918 Coaker Circular.
There is another gem from the same pen, as incontestable proof of Mr. Coaker's insincerity and incapacity, and it must be remembered to-day Mr. Coaker occupies precisely the same position with the Government as he did in 1918. Those who damned him he praises and those for whom he had the fulsome praise in that year he now nothing but abuse and contumacious.

"The crowd in St. John's," he writes, "will never aid us in any way, please note that Mr. Coaker is in the ranks of the Government. He is aiding him to carry out his policy of making peace in the streets of this city. To-day the fishermen control directly the Government. We came out on top because Crosbie and Cashin stood by us to the last breath, and though they have ceased and all sorts of influence to get them, they stood firm as steel hills."

ADMIRED BY COAKER.
When Messrs. Crosbie and Cashin of the firm of Signal Hill for Mr. Coaker's benefit, he had nothing for them but admiration. To-day the word in his extensive vocabulary is not strong enough wherewith to describe Sir Michael Cashin, who is set up as a most venal political character, and is the object of all the hatred of spite and venom that can be concentrated upon him. Such is the attitude of Mr. Coaker.

NOW CONDEMNED.
The present associates of the men whom he well, but are content to remain identified with him because it is their political book. The men whom he so scathingly damned in the past, from which the extracts have been taken, are hand in glove with him at the moment. That they are friends is open to much doubt, but political exigencies compel them to stick together, and to further their political unity to the detriment of this city, they are seeking re-election from the voters of St. John's West in two weeks' time. But the handwriting is on the wall; the Government has been delivered and the sentence will be carried out, when the day of polling is proclaimed.

Crowe Scholarships for Hospital.

MRS. LILIAN TULK AND MISS MARIE O'NEIL THE WINNERS.
The Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir—Mr. Harry J. Crowe, who has been intimately connected with the business interests in Newfoundland for a number of years, and who takes a deep interest in all matters pertaining to the welfare of our community, has presented to the St. John's General Hospital two scholarships of six hundred dollars each, to be used for the special training of nurses. These scholarships were won by Miss Lilian Tulk and Miss Louise O'Neill, who recently graduated with the highest marks of the class conducted by Miss Taylor, Nursing Superintendent, and Dr. Brown. The fortunate young graduates are now taking a post-graduate course in dietetics at the Bathurst Creek Sanatorium, and very cheerful letters have been received from them stating that they are working hard, are receiving very kind treatment, and are very happy in their new surroundings. Following the completion of their special studies they will return to the General Hospital, and give that institution the benefit of their special training.

The following is an extract from Mr. Crowe's letter to the Board of Governors:—
"I am very glad the matter has been decided, and shall note with interest the results of this experiment, which I hope will have very beneficial results. I am happy to be able to contribute in this small way to the welfare of the community, and to the noble work of your Hospital."

Mr. Crowe's generous and thoughtful gift will have far-reaching effects, and should greatly benefit the Hospital, and increase its usefulness to the general public, and the thanks of the community in general are due to Mr. Crowe for his beneficent gift.

The Board of Governors will be pleased if you will give the above publicity in your valued paper.

Yours very truly,
W. H. RENNIE,
Secretary Board of Governors,
General Hospital,
March 16, 1923.

SIDE TALKS.

By Ruth Cameron.

ON DEAD CATS.

I have a friend who is a beautiful housekeeper. Her home is always immaculate and in perfect order. It has to be, because if it is not, if there is a rug askew, if there are finger marks on the white paint, if the hearth is a bit untidy, she cannot be happy until she has corrected the defect.

Often when she is in great need of rest she will see something that ought to be done and instead of relaxing will wash a few windows or wash out the living room curtains or oil the floor.

She Sees Nothing Else.

When her husband begs her not to work so hard and to try to be content if things are not so perfect she says: "They bother me so that I can't rest. I can't see anything else in the room but those soiled curtains or those finger marks."

I think she thinks that is a virtue. I don't think it is a fault. Or rather I should say a misfortune.

Not to be able to see anything in her beautiful room except one small defect. Poor foolish woman! How much of the joy she misses out of life by closing her eyes to the beautiful and opening them to the unbecoming!

There is an old story about Emerson and Carlyle to this effect: Emerson had been making the trip up the Thames and was very enthusiastic about it. He was talking to Carlyle about its beauty and the old cynic remarked dryly:

Quite Enough.

"Did she see the dead cats, Ralph?" Whereat Emerson replied simply: "No, Thomas, I did not see the dead cats."

That was all but it was enough. Of course Emerson didn't see the dead cats when there were beautiful shores and boats and a sunset to see. And of course Carlyle didn't see the sunset when there were dead cats around. That was the essence of both of them.

If you are going to see dead cats everywhere in life you will be no happier than poor Carlyle was.

But if you can look across the dead cats to see the sunset you will have some of the serenity and content that was Emerson's.

Where One Ought to See Them.

Of course there are people who don't see the dead cats when they ought to see them because it is their job to remove them.

But there are more people who see nothing else even though they have no idea of doing anything about removing them.

The friend of whom I spoke not only sees the dead cats in her own home, when she ought to close her eyes to them and rest, but she also sees them in other people's homes.

If you let them, dead cats will dominate your outlook on life. But why let them?

Household Notes.

SHERLOCK.

There is a dead man on the floor, some party slew him with an ax; official sleuths, some three or four, are getting down to carpet tacks. Alas their methods are no good, they were cut out for the truth, while baffled cops sit down and weep. Year after year we read the tale of Sherlocks keen and Hawkshaws blind; and still the criminals in jail were put there by the Hawkshaw kind.

Cash Prizes in Aid of Forest Conservation.

Frank J. D. Barnjum, of Annapolis Royal, N.S., and Montreal, who recently awarded $5,000.00 in prizes for the best treatise on the most practical methods of preserving Canadian timber from further destruction by the budworm and other insect pests which have recently caused such great losses to our forests, has now offered $2,000.00 in prizes for the most convincing argument in favor of prohibiting the export of unmanufactured wood from Canada. One thousand dollars of this will be paid for the best argument written in the English language and $1,000.00 for the best in French, in the following manner: Five hundred dollars to the winner of the first prize in each language; $250.00 to the second; $150.00 to the third, and $100.00 to the fourth. The competition is open to all residents of Canada. The essays must not exceed 600 words in length. The competition will close on March 15th and no entry will be eligible bearing postmark later than that date. Entries should be addressed to Frank J. D. Barnjum, New Birks Bldg., Montreal, Que.

Mr. Barnjum is a strong advocate of the policy of retaining Canada's timber supply in the country for the protection of Canadian industries and for the benefit of our own people and one of his purposes in instituting this competition is to start more people thinking and also obtaining Government action on what he regards as Canada's most vital problem, namely forest conservation.

Strange Ceremonies in the Tower.

Within the ancient walls of the Tower of London, Britain's greatest State prison, are carried out ceremonies which date back to days when London was a very different city.

Sharp at eleven o'clock at night the outer gates of the Tower are closed. After then nobody can pass the Guard without giving the countersign. This word, changed every day, is sometimes forgotten by one or other of those quartered in the Tower. The rule is the same for everyone, and they have to sleep outside!

At the same hour a warder, accompanied by two "Beefeaters," locks up the inner gates and carries the keys to the house of the Major of the Tower. As this small procession tramps along towards the major's quarters it passes the Guard at the main gate.

Suddenly the ancient walls re-echo with the challenge, "Halt! Who goes there?" The warder bolts with the reply, "Keys!"

"Whose keys?" shouts the sentry. "The words 'King George's keys' come out of the darkness.

At once the sentry, satisfied that all is in order, proclaims, "Pass, keys, all's well." The Guard turns out, presents arms, and shouts with one voice, "God save King George."

Once the keys of the Tower are deposited in the major's room the inner gates of the stronghold are never, under any pretext, opened until the morning.

In one sense, indeed, the Tower is the kernel of the British Empire. For therein lie the Crown Jewels, the outward and visible sign of the Monarchy dear to the heart of the British people.

No Living Thing Seen on a Dying Island.

Strange Freak of Nature in Puget Sound Noted for Growth of Wonderful Trees.

(From the Portland, Oregonian?) A freak of nature, proving of more than ordinary interest, is a good sized island in Puget Sound, which is apparently dying from old age. It was observed last summer that every fir and cedar tree on the island was dead.

THREE E-E-E FOOTWEAR

EASE ELEGANCE ECONOMY

For business girls who must be well turned out, and—especially—well shod, Three E-E-E's Footwear will prove invaluable, alike for its splendid wearing qualities, its refined elegance and the modest price that puts it so easily within the reach of the very moderate purse.

Made by ARCHIBALD BROS.
Harbor Grace

About the water's edge vegetation appeared withered and a thin vapor hung over the island during the day. Never inhabited, and about 100 acres in extent, the island has for years been noted for its growth of wonderful trees.

Firs three feet in diameter grew so thickly as to make travel through them almost impossible. Both cedar and alder flourished. The ownership of the tract has been in litigation for years and the timber could not be logged.

Now there is not a living thing on the island. Not a crow rests on the dead tops, and as boats pass, an occasional crash tells of the falling of a great tree.

Scientists who have visited the island in the last few months believe the land has soured. The growth of trees and vegetation has been so rapid and dense as to exhaust the humus in the soil.

Another theory is that the soil rests on a rock base and the rootlets of the plants have come into contact with the brine of Puget Sound to such an extent that the salt has burned out the plant life.

National Count

There is scarcely a day in the whole of the country which has not seen the power of the public mind. The public mind is a very potent force in every country. It is the only force that can bring about a change in the Government. It is the only force that can bring about a change in the laws of the country. It is the only force that can bring about a change in the habits of the people. It is the only force that can bring about a change in the character of the nation.

THE HOUR OF TRIUMPH

But the hour of triumph is not yet come. The die is cast. The present Government is a failure. It has failed in every respect. It has failed in its policy, in its administration, in its conduct. It has failed in its treatment of the people, in its treatment of the foreign nations, in its treatment of the world. It has failed in its treatment of the future of the country. It has failed in its treatment of the honor of the nation.

THE NEW SYSTEM

The pumper is a very important piece of machinery. It is used for pumping water, for pumping oil, for pumping gas, for pumping anything that can be pumped. It is a very important piece of machinery in every industry. It is a very important piece of machinery in every business. It is a very important piece of machinery in every profession. It is a very important piece of machinery in every walk of life.

National Bankruptcy Is Now At Hand.

Country All But Involved.

There is scarcely a public department in the whole of the Dominion which has not been touched by the wave of extravagance which has run riot since the advent to power of the present Government. The public funds have been depleted in every conceivable manner—exorbitant charges for work, for supplies, for public services, for all that has enriched the friends of Government and impoverished the country. No man knows better than Mr. Sturges that this is true. Every member of the Government knows it is true. Nearly every member of the Government has shared in the spoils. But the day of reckoning is at hand. The participants have become emboldened by their immunity from exposure. They have held their heads high, flaunting the wrong-doings in the face of the public. They have revealed in their conduct the manipulation of public funds, the transposition of Government accounts, the overboard every penny they went to the country on, the way they have violated every principle they made to the contrary; they have pursued a policy every opposite to that which they professed before the country in brazen and unblinking defiance of the public.

member the words uttered by Sir Robert Bond when the political party which now controls our affairs launched its great policy replete with promises of great things for the off-jacket man, and for horny-handed labor. A policy to dazzle and delude the masses. The glamour has passed, and their trade qualities are near at hand. The Colony is living and has been forced to live for the past five years on expedients, expedients which all financial authorities condemn. We speak not of productive loans which would be utilized to awaken and assist the development of the natural resources of the country. We speak of loans which go under the name of floating debt, temporary loans to meet current obligations which sound finance would bring in to the compass of current revenue.

RECKLESS POLICY.

The present policy of the Government of adding to the already heavy burden of national debt which past reckless financing and prodigal expenditure have placed as a mortgage upon the poverty of the country and the industry of the people, must inevitably and in a two-fold calamity—beggary of the people and bankruptcy of the State. Our public debt is roughly FIFTY MILLION DOLLARS. Isn't it time to cry halt to the carnival of waste, that is being daily enacted under our very gaze? Newfoundlanders rallied to the clarion call on previous occasions and the manhood of Terra Nova will, we feel sure, on Polling Day heed the voice of their country. Newfoundland expects every man this day to do his duty. The choice of fate rests with the voters and to them is entrusted the future fate of their native land.

BENNETT & BETTER TIMES.

New Fire Apparatus.

A triple combination fire fighting apparatus recently purchased by Inspector General Hutchings, arrived by the Rosalind on Saturday. The machine, which is manufactured by American La. France Co., New York, is designed principally for use in port, but is a marked improvement over the familiar steam fire engine. In appearance the new apparatus is similar to the chemical and engine, imported two years ago. The parts, excepting the pump, are similar, and interchangeable, thus obviating the necessity of having on hand more than one set of parts for all three machines. A very engineer, Mr. Starr, came by the Rosalind, and a few hours after he is in port, brought the machine, under its own power to the Central Fire Hall. He will remain for some days, and, in the meantime, test out the pump to see everything is satisfactory.

THE NEW MACHINE. The pump is capable of delivering 120 gallons of water per minute at 120 lbs. pressure at the pump. The fire can be taken from any source, as hydrants, ponds, rivers, reservoirs or harbor. Like the chemical hose trucks, the engine is of horse power. When used at a fire transmission is changed from pump to pumping. In addition to the pumping outfit, the car carries a 100-foot tank and hose, twelve hundred feet of 2-1/2 inch water hose, 20 feet of 1-1/2 inch hose, and all the necessary fire fighting tools. It has electric lights, searchlight, siren and automatic bell. In use along the waterfront it will supply three extra streams of water, so that its usefulness may be readily realized. The motor driven trucks will almost completely do away with the horse vehicles. During the present year the chemical and hose truck is expected to answer all calls up to the beginning of March. MERRYWEATHER ENGINES. The Merryweather, horse-drawn steam fire engines, which are superseded by the recent importations, first came to the country in 1885. They are of English manufacture. One, the Terra Nova—now at the East End Fire Hall was a first prize winner in an exhibition before it was purchased. Its first service here was at the Roper's walk fire, which occurred shortly after its arrival. It was also used at the 8th July Fire, 1892, being employed during the early stages of the conflagration in pumping water from the reservoir on Cookstown Road. In 1895, when Inspector General McGowan organized the present fire stations, he imported two additional engines. One of these, found to be too large, was exchanged for a smaller machine, the "Gem," which is now at the Central Fire Hall. The other engine is at the Cookstown Road Reservoir. These early fire engines have seen much useful service, and are still in commission. Being fitted with sled runners they are ever kept in readiness to respond in case the motor driven apparatus cannot move out on account of snow.

Drowning Fatality.

BATTERY RESIDENT LOST LIFE WHILE SHOOTING. BODY RECOVERED THIS MORNING.

Charles Vatcher, a resident of the Battery, aged 21 years and married, was drowned near Small Point on Saturday morning, through the upsetting of a boat in which he was gunning. It appears that the deceased, with Albert Vincent, Alan Driscoll, and Frank Lowe, left their homes Thursday morning and proceeded to Skerry's Cove, situated about two miles from the Narrows, where they put up in a shack. On Saturday morning the birds came to land and Vatcher and Lowe shot down several which fell in the sea. The men got in their small boat, and rowed off to pick up their bag. Coming up alongside, Lowe, who was in the bow made a grab at one of the birds but missed, and as it passed by the stern, Vatcher tried to get it, but overreached and in doing so upset the boat, throwing the two of them in the water. Vatcher was a good swimmer, but the shock must have killed him as he made little attempt to save himself, and quickly sank from view. Lowe could not swim a stroke but managed to hold on to the overturned boat. Driscoll and Vincent, who witnessed the accident from the shore, put off in their boat and rescued Lowe. Nothing whatever was seen of Vatcher. The matter was reported to the police and Rev. C. H. Johnson being made acquainted with the sad happening, broke the news to the family of the deceased. Yesterday morning the Hugh D. went to the scene of the drowning, taking along five boats from the Battery as well as some 25 men of the settlement, together with their trawls and other gear, but up to last night did not succeed in locating the body.

BODY FOUND. This morning a boat containing W. Barrett, Dan Driscoll, J. Critch, H. Field, A. Bellman and A. Vincent was successful in the search. The body was located at a distance of about 50 fathoms from land. The remains were brought to Job's wharf at 10 o'clock this morning, afterwards being prepared for burial by Undertaker Carnell.

Obituary.

MRS. MAURICE POWER.

It is with feelings of deepest regret that we record the demise of a very esteemed and highly respected young wife and mother, Mrs. Maurice Power, Macartney, who on Feb. 14th, died at St. Clare's Hospital, St. John's. Her sudden departure came as a shock to her many friends, more especially to her mother, and devoted husband, who had a week previously placed her in the hospital under the kind care of the nursing sisters. The operation which they had hoped was to restore her to normal health, being unsuccessful, she resignedly passed to the realm of the Great Beyond, whence no patient returns, and where the sick and weary cease from troubling. The coffin remains, which left St. John's by S.S. Cabot, was landed at Trepasser. The journey of many miles, overlaid, on an unbroken road, with intense frost, was very trying to her mother, and husband, who accompanied all that was mortal of their beloved ones to Mosquito, Col. last, to have her laid to rest in the little cemetery, near her childhood home. The deceased was in her 28th year, and was the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Body, whom she leaves to mourn, also a devoted husband, a child, of three years and one brother, Cassinier Duddy. To these, and to a host of sorrowing relatives and friends, the community offers its sincerest sympathy, and for the soul of the dear departed a fervent requiescat in pace.—COM. ### Those Resolutions.

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir.—I noticed in the Advocate an article from Southern Bay, signed "Two Chums," re the visit of the United Fishermen delegates. Also one from Princeton by Samuel Prince and S. J. Prince. The first letter is scarcely worthy of notice as it was obviously written by jealousy. The second can scarcely be regarded as reliable as neither of the two men who signed it were present at the meeting. It may be of interest to these people to learn that twenty-six voters signed the resolutions. Yours truly, W.M. QUINTON. Princeton, B.R., Feb. 28th, 1922.

JOHN J. LINNEHAN.

The funeral of an old and respected resident of St. John's, Mr. John J. Linnehan, took place at St. Joseph's on Monday, March 13th, when the mortal remains of John J. Linnehan were committed to Mother earth. The deceased was a worthy descendant of some first settlers, a hardy fisherman, and an independent planter of the Alla Goodridge & Sons firm. His remains were brought across the Bay on the ice, and was followed by twenty horses and sleighs, conveying a large procession of people, which showed the esteem in which the deceased was held. He was noted for his hospitality and charity, his motto was "Love your neighbour as yourself," and his passing to his reward called forth a "God rest his soul" from all who heard of it.—COM. ### Hydro Power Shortage.

MILD WEATHER NEEDED.

Unless mild weather sets in the Hydro power to the city will be out of commission within a week or so, and householders who have no gas installations will have to go back to kero lamps and candles. This is the second time within two years that the city has been faced with this condition of affairs. The present shortage of power is due, according to the officials of the St. John's Light and Power Co., to the unprecedented frosty spurt and absence of rain. All the ponds from which the power is derived are coated with a three foot deck of ice and it remains for nature to unlock the door of frost which the ice has closed. Ice has been issued to-day, stating that at midnight the station would close down until 5 p.m. Tuesday and until further notice power would be supplied for lighting purposes only. Uses of electric light from the University Electric Plant, near Conception Bay are in a more fortunate position than people in the city. Besides receiving their current at about 50% less, their service has so far been interrupted. An official of the Company informed the Telegram this morning that so far they have not curtailed one inch of power to their 3,000 light and 80 power customers, although owing to similar conditions such as exist here, they have been obliged to take precautions and conserve their energy where possible. By the end of 1922, when the company completes an additional power plant, the St. John's transmission lines will be run to St. John's. The plant at Seal Cove is now under construction and when completed the Company will have about 2,000 extra horse power for distribution.

B.I.S. Annual Parade.

FREE STATE FLAG CARRIED.

The annual St. Patrick's Day parade of the Benevolent Irish Society, which took place on Saturday, was probably the largest in the history of that organization. The weather was ideal, although the walking was not so good as it might have been owing to the mild spurt. At 9:15 some four hundred members assembled at the Hall, where they were addressed by the President, Mr. W. J. Higgins who, after extending congratulations, announced that the customary telegrams conveying good wishes had been exchanged with the charitable Irish Societies of Boston and Halifax. He also announced the receipt of similar messages from Capt. L. C. Murphy, President of the Star of the Sea Society of Bell Island, Rev. W. C. McGrath, formerly of St. John's, but at present of the Chinese Mission in Ontario, and Mr. W. B. Comerford, the 1st Asst. Vice-President, who is at present at Quebec. In each case acknowledgements had been made. The members then formed two deep with the Society's flag in front, and the Irish Free State flag in the centre and proceeded via New Gower and Hamilton Streets to last Mass at St. Patrick's Church.

ELOQUENT SERMON.

The sermon of the day was eloquently delivered by Rev. Fr. Kennedy and was in part as follows:—In the unsearchable designs of God all things are premeditated. The waiting of the seedling by the summer breeze is as truly an object of Divine solicitude as the creation of an archangel for in both cases Divine power is exercised. Yet although the interests of Providence are universal it is evident to human minds that God's concern is more emphatic and His benevolence more pronounced in some of His dealings with creatures.

Mary the ever-blessed mother of Christ, was given as an example of one called by God to a position of supereminence dignity and importance. But none the less truly than the Queen of Heaven has every soul a providential task. In the eternal designs of God every soul has qualifications divinely allotted for one certain work. Sometimes by divine commission beforehand, sometimes by history's record afterwards we clearly discern the special Divine mission of a man. In the case of St. Patrick, Apostle of Ireland, there were not wanting antecedent indications of a special Divine designation for an all important service and even these indications lacking, the critical records of history leave no room for doubt that St. Patrick was a man chosen for a work of immeasurable import and of eternal consequence to Christianity.

The precise nature of St. Patrick's mission was explained, viz. to unite the people of Ireland to the mystic Body of Christ, the Catholic Church. The Catholic Church as the mystical Body of Christ was composed of all those who received interior influence from Christ. The human nature of Christ inseparably united to the Divine nature defined by the Divine personality was the source of all graces coming to the members of the Mystical Body. Like the waters of a lake conveyed down the hillside to refresh the multitudes dwelling beneath so were purifying streams of grace conveyed from the soul of Christ to the souls of men through certain channels. In the case of the Irish people those channels to conduct the saving waters of truth and virtue were St. Patrick, his assistants and successors. Such was the prophetic fancy of Isaac—"You shall draw waters with joy out of the Saviour's fountains" (Is) and Our Lord Himself speaking to the Samaritan woman said—"The waters that I will give him shall become in him a fountain of water springing up into life everlasting."

Continuing, it was stated that St. Patrick, his assistants and successors were instruments of this spiritual and superior influence. We would not expect St. Patrick to bring material blessings to Ireland. My kingdom is not of this world, said Christ. It is of a higher order, of a spiritual, supernatural constitution. The richest treasure ever brought back to Ireland by the pagan rovers of the time was Patrick the Briton slave. Not a hundred years from the time Patrick first set foot on Irish soil ships of the same mould sailed from ports bearing on their deck no longer pirate rovers but Christian missionaries to win souls to Christ. No longer sailing away with hearts filled with hatred and injustice they go in meekness and in love to evangelize.

St. Patrick taught the people of his day the lesson that Christ's kingdom is not of this world. That they learned the lesson well is proved by the zeal with which they devoted themselves to the practice of the evangelistic counsels of perfection. This is beyond compare the supreme test of a flourishing Christianity in any country. A widespread tendency to devote the will irrevocably to the practice of the Christian counsels, the prevalence of religious and clerical vocations and the fervour of religious men and women are certain indications that the kingdom "not of this world" is truly flourishing.

The wonderful productiveness of the monastic germ planted by Patrick and Bridget was prodigious. The marvellous development of monasticism in Ireland was described. Instances were given of famous Irish saints who less than a century after St. Patrick's death ruled Irish communities composed of thousands upon thousands of monks. This spoke well for the love of Christian perfection shown by newly converted people of Ireland. Leaving the world behind, in thousands they handed themselves together to practise the evangelical counsels of obedience, of chastity, of humility, of self-denial promulgated and exemplified by Our Lord Jesus Christ. Not one hundred years after the death of St. Patrick that pagan people of Ireland had become a race of Christian ascetics. Those pagan rovers who had terrorized the civilized world found their counter-part in thousands of holy hermits who, went into solitude to escape the noise of the world. Those ambitious chieftains who never even owed submission to mighty Imperial pagan Rome in all humility bowed their necks to the yoke of Christ's Vicar, imposed by his delegate St. Patrick. That same race which not a hundred years before indulged the lusts of the flesh as pagans now in thousands upon thousands renounced all pleasure to lead a chaste and celibate life. The glories and beauties of this spring-time of monastic life were indicated.

In conclusion he reminded his hearers they belonged to the same mystical body of Christ. They should imitate the example of whole-hearted religion given by heroic forbears. The Spirit of God has not weakened with the passage of time. Loyalty to Faith and the courageous and perfect practice of every Christian virtue were indicated as imperative duty.

At the conclusion of Mass the parade returned and to the stirring air of Irish music spiritedly played by the C.L.B.C., M.G.B. and C.C.C. Bands, proceeded along Water Street through throngs of spectators, up Cochrane Street and Military Road to Government House.

MAKES VICE-REGAL CALL.

Arriving at Government grounds the society was graciously received by his Excellency Sir Wm. Allardye. President Higgins in extending a hearty welcome to Newfoundland to his Excellency, Lady Allardye and the household said the custom of calling on the representative of his Majesty the King perpetuates a memory of 117 years ago, at which period the Society was founded. It was their privilege as the oldest society in Newfoundland to be the first to call in public on his Excellency. He was glad to be able to state that the philanthropic work of the founders of the B. I. S. was being carried on with ever-increasing vigor, as shown by the fact that over 700 people were now receiving an education at St. Patrick's Hall and Holy Cross Schools, under the guidance of the Irish Christian Brothers. Referring to conditions in the homeland President Higgins expressed the belief that by the time the next annual parade would come around, peace would be restored. He had faith that a race which had shown such determination would not fall down on the job of working out its own destiny. It was particularly pleasing for him to note that for the first time in the history of the society they had unfurled the old tri-colored orange blended with green by white, signifying the dawn of a new and unified Ireland. Cheers for his Excellency and Lady Allardye were then called for and given with a will.

THE GOVERNOR'S REPLY.

His Excellency, expressing himself as highly pleased at the visit on the anniversary of their patron, St. Patrick, said he hoped the work of the great Saint would continue to flourish and that the Society's Benevolent efforts on behalf of education would meet with continued success. Referring to conditions in Ireland his Excellency said he was glad to see in the parade the emblem of a united Ireland. At the conclusion of the address Lady Allardye appeared on the balcony and was greeted with cheers. His Excellency tendered refreshments to the officers.

RECEIVED BY THE ARCHBISHOP. The parade next proceeded to the Aula Maxima, where his Grace Archbishop Roche attended by the priests of the parish, received them. Expressions of loyalty to the Church and respect for the clergy were renewed by the President, to which his Grace replied thanking the Society for the visit and voicing his pleasure at receiving such a gathering. Cheers were given for the Archbishop and Clergy, the Christian Brothers and the preacher of the day. The parade then reformed and proceeded to the Hall. Before dispersing President Higgins thanked the members for attending the parade in such large numbers and paid a splendid tribute to the work of the different hands. A courteous recognition of the work on behalf of the Society by its Vice-President, Hon. J. D. Ryan, was paid that gentleman in the course of the parade by the Society stopping at his residence when the President extended the congratulations of the body and called for cheers for the ex-President. A similar recognition was extended Mrs. Higgins, whilst the parade was on its way to the Aula Maxima.

ROSALIND REPORTS UNPRECEDENTED ICE CONDITIONS. S.S. Rosalind, Capt. James, arrived in port at 8 a.m. Saturday, after a very trying passage from Halifax. Capt. James reports practically a solid jam of ice between the Cape and Nova Scotia. The Rosalind arrived off Cape Spear at 1 a.m. on Saturday, but owing to a terrific snow storm, was unable to make port until seven hours afterwards. Capt. James reports speaking to seven outward bound vessels. Some were under canvas and making good progress thru the floes. Others were trying to get on in reference to the schooner Gladys M. Hollett, the Rosalind passed her on Tuesday, 120 miles S.W. of Birin in clear water, and waiting a chance to make port. The Edith M. Cavell, which was provisioned by the Rosalind, is in very heavy ice, but in no danger. Capt. James says the trip was the worst experience he ever had with ice. To get near the outward vessels he spent six hours cutting out. The ice floes must also extend well to the Eastward, as during the storm the ship was put about 7 miles East of Cape Spear, and as far as could be sighted then, nothing but ice was visible. The following passengers arrived—Mrs. K. Merrill, Master R. Merrill, A. Noah, Mrs. A. Boyles and infant, Jas. and Mrs. Wylan, Herbert Ansel, Jas. Robinson, Mrs. J. R. Bennett, Allet Starr, H. Dickinson, M. Green, C. French, J. Champlain, W. Parsons, Walter White, Dr. Whitman Goodman, P. Park S. Ford, H. Ford, Mrs. W. Ford, Fred Harris, Jas. Cunningham, P. McLeod, B. Miller, Wm. Good and 8 second class. The Rosalind is due to leave again to-morrow.

The Prelate was consecrated by the Archbishop of Canterbury in Westminster Abbey in June last. On that occasion, Dr. Coady of Toronto, preached the sermon.

How Cork is Produced.

Cork is in great demand in all parts of the world, the yearly consumption amounting to about 150,000 tons. It follows, therefore, that cork is now a valuable commodity to deal in.

The material is used not only for making the familiar bottle stoppers, but in scores of other ways as well. Cork is used in the manufacture of helmets, life-buoys and belts, insulating material, linoleum mats and fishing floats; and in London alone there are over two hundred firms, whose business is connected with cork.

IRISH NIGHT AT METHODIST COLLEGE HALL.

Those who attended the Methodist College Hall on St. Patrick's night were given a rare treat of real Irish song. Although there were many other attractions on the same night, the spacious hall was well filled, and included in the number present was his Excellency Sir Wm. Allardycy, Lady Allardycy and Major Wilberforce-Bell. The affair was held under the auspices of the Columbus Ladies' Association, and the Newfoundland Gaelic League. The concert programme was taken by leading city artists, and one and all acquitted themselves splendidly, several encores having to be responded to. Those taking part were as follows:—Miss L. Shortall, I. Howlett, M. Rossiter, B. Gibbs, M. Kelly, T. Power, Mrs. C. F. Garland, Messrs. J. Canning, Leo Dillon, T. H. O'Neill, C. R. Duder, Master Teddy Meaney, while Messrs. Wallace and Lawrence, as "Gallagher and Shean" captivated the audience with excellent numbers. Miss Madge Meaney acted as accompanist. The comedy sketch, entitled "The Romantic Lover," under the direction of Major O'Grady, proved to be a rip roaring comedy from beginning to end. The cast consisted of Capt. O'Grady, the farmer; Miss Shortall, Paul's sister; M. Breatnach, a publican; Miss M. Ryan, his wife; and Mrs. B. Walsh, a neighbor. The scene was in the kitchen of Paul Mullane's house, the acting was all that could be desired, and they all performed their parts most creditably and naturally. The evening's entertainment proved to be an unqualified success in every way, and all those who took part are to be heartily congratulated. "Irish Night" in the Methodist College Hall concluded with the singing of "The Flag of Newfoundland."

LADIES COWAN MISSION ENTERTAINMENT.

The Cowan Mission entertainment held in the Methodist College Hall on St. Patrick's afternoon in aid of the Old Ladies Home was well patronized. The affair was held under the distinguished patronage of his Excellency the Governor and Lady Allardycy, who occupied special seats in front of the platform. Major Wilberforce-Bell and Hon. Robert Watson were aides, and Lady Winter also occupied a seat with the Vice-Regal Party. A particularly good programme had been prepared for the occasion, which proved to be one of exceptional enjoyment to all. The sketch entitled "Sarah's Young Man" was staged by such well known performers as Mrs. H. Outerbridge, Mrs. H. LeMessurier, Miss Edith Cleary and Messrs. Harold Knight, Hubert Rendell and D. Bate. For twenty minutes the audience were treated to an excellent bit of comedy, fun and laughter. The various performers played their parts splendidly and received hearty applause from the gathering. The second sketch entitled "The Backward Child" proved very amusing. Mrs. H. Outerbridge and Miss Edith Cleary who figured in the taste kept their audience in good humor from beginning to end. During the interval Mrs. (Hon.) W. R. Warren rendered two very pleasing solos, which added greatly to the success of the evening. The ladies of the Cowan Mission Circle greatly enhanced the sum realized by the sale of Candy during the afternoon. The singing of the National Anthem brought the entertainment to a successful conclusion.

"CHILDREN" A SPLENDID SUCCESS.

The celebrating of "Children" by the members of the Benevolent Irish Society took place in the Society Club Rooms on St. Patrick's night. The affair which took the form of dancing, cards, and concert, was attended by over 200 couples, the spacious rooms being filled to their utmost capacity. Promptly at 8 p.m. the evening's amusement commenced. The Prence's Orchestra in attendance opened the proceedings with a real Irish selection, and from then until midnight, the hearts of everyone were gladdened, and there was not one dull moment throughout the performance. All those responsible for the arrangements are to be congratulated. The dancing programme consisted of 15 numbers, interspersed with songs and recitations, while Mr. W. J. Higgins, K.C., the President of the Society delivered a very interesting address on "Ireland." Those who contributed to the programme were as follows:—Vocal Solo, Mr. Leo Dillon; Recitation, Mr. T. P. Halley; Vocal Solo, Mrs. B. A. Norris; Vocal Solo, Mr. J. Canning; Dust, Messrs. Wallace and Lawrence who gave a splendid rendition of Messrs. Gallagher and Shean. The recitation by Master Gerald Martin, "Fishermen All," was cleverly rendered, and proved to be the hit of the evening. Master Martin is a son of Mr. Michael Martin. After the programme had been completed, supper was served by the Ladies' Auxiliary, the catering being all that could be desired, and everyone present spoke encouraging words on the splendid arrangements as carried out by the ladies in this department. "Children" for 1923 proved to be a most enjoyable function, and one which will be remembered for some time to come, the affair terminated at midnight with the singing of God Save Ireland, which was joined in by the entire gathering.

HOLY CROSS SCHOOLS.

St. Patrick's Day was fittingly celebrated at Holy Cross, and easily took a foremost place in the list of successes as held elsewhere. A capacity audience attended the performances, both afternoon and evening. The afternoon programme consisted of vocal selections, dances, and a couple of Irish playlets. Each item was thoroughly enjoyed. At night a real old time Irish Re-union was held. The card tournament was largely patronized, the prize winners being:—Master Sam Healey, Messrs. Howlett, J. Whelan, P. Mullins and Mr. Green. The affair terminated shortly before midnight.

AT THE STAR HALL.

The entertainment in the Star Hall on St. Patrick's Day was largely patronized. In the afternoon upwards of 200 kiddies were given an enjoyable time. The Ladies of the Auxiliary provided games for their amusement, while an excellent spread was done full justice to by all. At night the grown-ups indulged in dancing, the music being supplied by the Star Jazzola Orchestra. The affair was a huge success from every standpoint.

LADIES' T. A. SOCIETY.

The T. A. Ladies' Auxiliary had full houses on St. Patrick's afternoon and night. A card party was held during the afternoon when 130 players took part. The attendance was even larger than anticipated, and extra accommodation had to be provided. The card game proved very exciting. The first prize, a $2 gold piece, and fifty tickets of the Society Sweepstake went to Mrs. E. Kavanagh; 2nd, prize Mr. P. Hickey, a pipe, while Mr. Dan Wall won the boogie prize. After the card games terminated, teas were served, after which dancing was held and continued until 11.30 p.m. The dance music was furnished by Mickell's Orchestra. The tricky dance numbers proved to be the hit of the evening, and a special prize was awarded to Mrs. H. Pedigrew. The affair lasted till midnight and was voted a huge success.

AT THE AULA MAXIMA.

A bridge party and auction forty-five tournament was held in the Aula Maxima on Saturday afternoon in aid of St. Bon's new rink. The affair was promoted by lady friends of the college and these are to be congratulated on their efforts. A large sum was realized. Teas were served during the afternoon. At 8 p.m. a delightful Concert was held in the Aula Maxima when another large audience filled the spacious room to its utmost capacity. The first part of the programme consisted of songs by Mrs. B. Norris, Misses. A. Murphy, M. Ryan, B. Gibbs, Messrs. J. Canning, G. Neary, P. Doherty, L. Dillon, R. Sullivan; Recitations by Misses K. Fraser, M. Keegan, Dennis O'Neill Primus, Mrs. J. R. Croft, Master G. Martin, and J. Bradshaw. A comedy sketch, entitled "The Heather Glen" by the pupils of the College was heartily enjoyed by all.

AT COCHRANE ST. LECTURE HALL.

The Ladies' Aid of Cochrane St. Church held a sale of work in the Lecture Hall of the Church on Saturday afternoon. The stalls contained very useful and dainty articles which were quickly bought up by the many purchasers. At 5 p.m. high teas were served. At night an enjoyable concert was held, the Rev. C. H. Johnson, Pastor of the Church occupying the chair. The following city artists contributed numbers:—Mrs. A. W. News, Piano Solo; Duets, Misses. Bowden and Thistle, Miss Bishop and Mr. Darby; Songs, Miss McKay and Mr. P. Doherty; Piano Solo, Little Miss News; Reading, Mr. C. Newbury. The concert was a splendid success, and a most enjoyable evening was spent by all.

AT ST. JOSEPH'S HALL.

On St. Patrick's Night in St. Joseph's Hall a large audience attended the concert and play. The following contributed selections:—Songs, Mrs. T. Malone; Misses. M. Doran and M. Goodland; Messrs. T. Kent, P. Doherty, T. Doherty, J. Baxter, E. Peters; Recitation, Miss Mercedes Malone; Dancing, Miss Doran and O'Keefe. The playlet, "The Great Diamond Mystery" completed the programme. The various parts were ably portrayed by Mrs. T. Kent, Messrs. J. C. Pippy, P. Doherty, T. Kent, P. Smith, and J. J. Madigan. The promoters of the affair are to be heartily congratulated on its success. Misses. Kitty Furlong and Mollie Doran acted as accompanists during the evening.

ST. PATRICK'S HALL SCHOOLS.

An entertainment consisting of concert, comedy drama and music was given to the pupils by the All-Ireland Club of St. Patrick's Hall Schools on Friday. A capacity audience greeted the versatile performers and every item was thoroughly enjoyed. In the leading concert numbers, Masters. E. Hogan, A. Wilson, W. Maher and R. Coady excelled. The leading roles in the comedy sketch were sustained by Masters, J. Maher, E. Russell, C. Allen, J. Marshall and M. Doherty. An address from Master H. Brown on the Patriotic and National significance on the Festival was fully in keeping with the spirit of St. Patrick's Day. The proceeds will be devoted to the athletic activities of the boys during the coming summer. These boys have thus by their own efforts pre-financed their games for the year.

L.O.A. SOCIABLE AND CONCERT.

The sociable and concert held in Victoria Hall on St. Patrick's night under the auspices of the L.O.A. L.O.A. No. 1282, was largely attended and proved to be an unqualified success. The Hall was festively decorated for the occasion and the ladies who looked after the tables, catered to the large number in a creditable fashion. Mr. Sam. R. Penney, W.M., occupied the chair. Following the chairman's remarks, a short address was given by Sir Richard Squires. The following ladies and gentlemen contributed numbers: Oello Solo, Hon. A. W. News, accompanied by Mrs. News; Musical Selection by G.L.B. Band; Piano Solo, Mr. A. Walker; Reading by Miss Smith, Mrs. Simmonds, Mrs. Osbourne; solos by Miss Brown, Messrs. H. Chaplin, C. Hammond and Mrs. Bator; Dialogue—"Mind Your own Business"—Messdames Simmonds, Osbourne, Martin, Ruby, Percy and Hann. The various items were well rendered and received with hearty applause.

"FACING THE MUSIC."

The performance of that delightful light comedy "Facing the Music" at the Casino Theatre on St. Patrick's night was exceptionally well rendered by Mr. Karl Trapnell and his talented troupe. The hall was filled with an appreciative audience who showed their pleasure by their applause as the humorous situations were brought out by the talented artists. The Mount Cashel Band under Mr. Arthur Bulley, played Irish airs between the acts in a masterly manner. Songs were delightfully rendered by Mrs. G. Christian and Messrs. Canning and Trapnell, while the Misses Campbell in an Irish dance and Messrs. Wallace and Lawrence as Gallagher and Shean captivated the audience by their clever impersonations.
