"The Least Exertion Tired Me," Writes Mr. Benoit

Lack of the proper constituents in the blood is the cause of anemia. This may result from disease or run-down condition of the system. The symptoms are, pallor of the skin and mucous membrane, palpitation, weakness, languor, etc. Anemia is sometimes the forerunner of consumption. Everything should be done to build and tone up the system. Carnol relieved Mr. Benoit of anemia. He says:

"I had been feeling weak and depressed. The least exertion tired me. I had no appetite. If I got a few hours sleep at night I was lucky. I wanted to rest all the time. My nerves were on edge. The slightest thing irritated me. In fact, I was suffering from anemia. Finally I decided I would see my friend, Mr. H. H. Page, the druggist, and see if he could do something for me. He recommended me to take a Course of Carnol (six bottles). After I had taken the fourth bottle I was a different man. I could eat, sleep and do a heavy day's work without feeling tired. I also bought some bottles of Carnol for my mother-in-law and she was greatly benefited. Carnol is sold by all good druggists everywhere."

CHAPTER XXXVIII

Miss Adeline Cleveland.
Madam:—Fortunately for me, and perhaps also for yourself, I returned to look for your maid, immediately after our painful (2) interview, and most indorse the opinion of the appreciative Jean. The acting on your part was superb! I had been completely deceived by it, and congratulate you upon your versatile powers. Needless to say, I shall not be as Arundel House any more, and henceforth, if we meet again, it must be as strangers. The money I owe to you will be repaid as soon as I can possibly raise the necessary amount. Your faithfully,
NOEL CAMPBELL.

Miss Cleveland read this through, then indulged in a paroxysm of rage. "Fool! Fool! I have lost him, and by my own stupidity! Recall is now impossible. All is at an end, except—vengeance!"

Her eyes blazed, and the last word came through her clinched teeth like the hiss of a snake!

CHAPTER XXXIX

Arrived at his club, Noel Campbell wrote the letter to Miss Cleveland which appears in the concluding portion of the foregoing chapter. Having posted it with his own hands, he dined at a restaurant, and afterward walked to Ludgate Hill station, whence he took a train to Dulwich.

"To think," he said to himself, "that I was very nearly making that woman my wife! And, yet, it is quite possible that she would have made me a good wife in the eyes of the world. A handsome woman, an affable and modest hostess—a woman who would have prized me as a valuable possession, but whose nature is as cold as ice. A clever woman, who can act many parts, but worldly, diplomatic, and unamiable!"

On the whole, he considered that he had had a very remarkable escape, and congratulated himself upon it.

When he had turned away from Miss Cleveland's boudoir, with her last dramatic words ringing through his very soul, "Dear God, let me die!" he felt wretched and bewildered. He felt that he was a pitiful rascal, and believed that her love for him was deep and sincere. He went away, but came back again, and was of course amazed by what he saw and heard. Though his vanity was wounded, he could have shouted for joy! He shook the dust of Arundel House from his feet forever! He was free—free as air!

He left the train at Dulwich, and walked sharply until he came to the Barry road.

It was now quite dark, and after assuring himself that he was not being followed, he entered one of the fore courts that face most of the houses in that would-be respectable locality.

He rang a bell, which was responded to by a middle-aged woman, and was promptly admitted.

"Is Mr. Markham in?" he asked.

"Yes, sir," replied the woman, who was the housekeeper.

"Then tell him that I desire to see him. I am Mr. Ernscliffe; you remember me, do you not?"

"Certainly, sir. You are the gentleman who rented the house furnished from Mr. Maraden, my master; that is, who has gone on a business trip to America, and you paid two months' rent in advance."

The idea of forgetting the identity of a man who had paid two months' rent in advance seemed an impossibility to the housekeeper.

Noel was shown into a plainly-furnished sitting-room, and the woman went in quest of the person called Mr. Markham.

In a very few minutes a modest tap was heard at the door, followed by an apologetic little cough, and Sir John Sterne's valet, fidus Achates entered.

"Good-evening, Mr. Ernscliffe," he said. "I see that you received my telegram, and I am very glad that you have come."

"How is your master, Markham?"

"Sensible, sir, quite sensible, and it is that which frightens me, though he is too weak yet to remember anything. He knows me, and that is about all; but he asked for Miss Clara this afternoon, and I'm in terror for fear he should let something out before the doctor and that meddling old woman. Of course, when he gets his natural self anybody will be able to see with half an eye that he isn't my brother. Any news, sir? Ah! I wouldn't have that villain of a nephew of his find out that he was in England for words. What we should have done but for you, sir, I really don't know, when that fit took him within an hour of the time we were due to board the City of Richmond. And how you came to be in Liverpool is a wonder to me."

"Markham," Noel said, gravely, "I heard from Miss Sterne that her father was going abroad upon a wild-goose chase, and I kept a watch upon him, and followed you to Liverpool."

"Yes, sir, on behalf of that scoundrel of a nephew of his, but you soon saw which was the villain, eh?"

"Yes, Markham, I did. And now, I have a little surprise for you," Noel went on, "but I will preface this by a piece of good news; I can prove that Sir John is innocent of the crime of murder. I have an assurance of Castlemon in writing. He is in England. I am not sure how Captain Campbell died; it may have been in a duel with Sir John, but in a few days I am promised a full and complete history which will entirely exculpate your master."

"Oh, Mr. Ernscliffe, God will reward you for this!" cried Markham, quite forgetting his dignity, and seizing Campbell's hand, he kissed it warmly. "Everything is for the best, after all, and when Sir John was stricken, and I saw you, I gave all up for lost."

"Now for my little surprise," Noel went on, still in the same grave tone. "Markham, my deception has gone on quite long enough. I am Noel Campbell!"

"No, sir! Oh, don't! No larks, please!" cried the valet.

"What I say is simple truth. Ernscliffe is a professional name I adopted some years since. I am Noel Campbell, and I have very properly been punished for permitting an unscrupulous lawyer and others to act in my name. I was so bound up in the business of my profession, that I did not care to be troubled, even to be consulted. I gave my lawyer carte blanche, and knew positively nothing of what was going on until it was announced by my mother that I should soon be master of Blairwood. I then emerged from my shell and began to think. I heard much that appalled me, but unknown to any one, and still believing that Sir John was a few degrees blacker than the King of Inferno, I determined to see him and help him out of the hands of his persecutors."

"But your letters, sir—your awfully cruel letters?" Markham said.

"I never wrote them," Noel told him, sternly. "They were forged. You will learn all very soon, Markham. My great desire is to restore Sir John to perfect health—to prove to him that we have both been the playthings of several schemers, who will soon be buried in the ruins of their own—"

"Mr. Markham!" interrupted the housekeeper, "here's your brother out of bed, and coming downstairs!"

The valet ran to the door, and was astounded to see his master carefully guiding himself along the banister rail. He was partially dressed, and his face was livid with fear.

"What does this mean?" he demanded, huskily.

"I have been betrayed! Markham, explain this. Infernal surgery, I thought that we were aboard the City of Richmond, and see that we are somewhere in the neighborhood of London. I can tell by the very odor of the air!"

Both Campbell and Markham hurried to his assistance, for he had paused half-way down the stairs, and was only keeping his feet by the greatest difficulty.

Bullet Wound in Temple

Man is Found at Foot of Cross in St. Paul's Dome.

London, Nov. 23.—(Associated Press).—Suffering from a bullet wound in the temple a man was found yesterday lying in the Golden Gallery which runs around the dome below the cross. The man was still alive when discovered. The police cleared the public from the upper part of the edifice and rushed the man to a hospital where it is stated he will probably die.

A revolver from which one shot had been fired, was found in his possession, but his identity has not been established and nothing is known of the circumstances of the tragedy enacted at the foot of the cross on one of the world's most famous sacred edifices.

(Later)—The man found yesterday at the foot of the cross in St. Paul's dome with a bullet wound in his head, later identified as J. Tysoe-Smith, of Manchester, died in hospital. It is believed that business worries had caused the man to take his own life.

GIVING ADVICE.

I've lived next door to B. H. Barr since 'Lisa crossed the sea and our affection naught could part—a thing beyond all price; and when he planned to buy a car he asked for my advice. "The Roorback car is what you need," I said, and meant it all; "it has the pep, it has the speed, its upkeep cost is small; since you have asked me for my advice, the Roorback has the call." He bought a Roorback car that day, nor grumbled at the cost; and now he stops me on my way to tell me I'm a frost; it is no good, that blamed old dray, from bumper to exhaust. It is a pittance and a snare, it has no pep or kick, the way it wallows everywhere just makes his apron sick; some day, he says, he will get square, and pay me for that trick. We have no pleasant visits now, when dusk is all around, but gloom is thronged upon his brow, his laughs do not resound, and often I can hear him cuss in lingo five or three, and as he talks amid the muck his wrath is sad to see. Oh, never more shall I advise the man who'd buy a boat; let other self-complacent guys themselves to that devote, let other neighbors put him wise and sound the helpful note.

Canned Salmon Preference

After a long period of darkness a ray of light sheds itself upon the British Columbia salmon canning industry. For the last few years competition from the Japanese and Alaskan packs in the British market has proved an almost overwhelming handicap due to cheaper production and, which must not be minimized, methods of co-operative marketing adopted by our competitors as against expensive individual marketing on our part. MINARD'S LINIMENT
FOR NEURALGIA.

New Economic policy being framed by Premier Baldwin of Great Britain, promises to give protection to Empire products which do not come into serious competition with domestic production. It happens that canned salmon falls in such a category. The Old Country is not a producer, but it is a big consumer. On the other hand, Canada is a big producer and the retention of the British market is rendered difficult by foreigners. It is stated in the press that London proposes to raise a tariff of ten shillings a hundred pounds against canned salmon produced within the Empire, which means that Canadian producers would have a straight handicap of $2.50 a case, normal exchange, to overcome certain other advantages of competitors. Of course there is a big question involved in revolutionizing Great Britain's fiscal policy, but for the sake of Empire cohesion and to make the great commonwealth of nations sufficient within itself it is to be hoped that the principle of according preference in the British markets to the products of the Dominions will be sustained.

The salmon canners have very wisely selected to exhibit at the British Empire Exhibition and they should be advised to tackle the job with the utmost earnestness. They should avail themselves of every means to recognize the market and derive home the advantage which tariff preference will afford. They have been seeking legislation in the Parliament of Great Britain to require marking on all tinned salmon, so that British consumers may be given an opportunity to choose between Empire and foreign goods. While that may be yet desirable it would seem that the appeal of lower cost would be much more impressive. A certain proportion of the Canadian salmon quoted lower than the population may trouble itself to choose is inevitable. While speaking of the British market for canned salmon it is proposed to remark upon the opportunity of other lines of fish. Judging by exports from the Old Country there is need of imported fish. The North Sea is not yielding its remarkable volume and the nation's appetite has been whetted for fish. The British Empire Exhibition, from April to October, 1924, offers an excellent opportunity to introduce our commodities to houses interested in the development of foreign business. It would do well to investigate the matter.

Inter-Allied Commission Assume Control of Biebrich.

U.S.A. will not Participate in a Restricted Enquiry—Britain's 18,000,000 Voters will Decide the Issue on Thursday—Earthquake Causes a Panic in Italy.

NOTING AT BIEBRICH.

MAYENCE, Dec. 1. Noting at Biebrich, near Wiesbaden on Friday in which six persons were killed and a number wounded, caused the Inter-Allied High Commission to take over the Civil Administration of the City, and French troops to disarm the local police and assume their duties. A Republic was proclaimed at Biebrich on Thursday without disturbance, but on Friday large crowds assembled before the City Hall and the German police, fighting their way out, killed three outright and three others died from wounds.

EARTH SHOCK IN ITALY.

LONDON, Dec. 1. A severe earth shock was felt in the Abruzzo District, Rome Province, during the night, says a News Agency despatch from Rome to-day. The tremors threw the inhabitants into a panic.

ANXIOUS TO HAVE U. S. A.

PARIS, Dec. 1. The French Premier, M. Briand, is described in all the news papers as being anxious to bring the United States either officially or unofficially into the two enquiries authorized. Along with the invitation sent Secretary Hughes by Colonel Bristow, was an inquiry if there would be any objection to Washington to the separation Commission inviting prominent U. S. financiers to participate in an investigation in case the U. S. Government did not desire to designate members of the Commission.

UNITED STATES WILL NOT PARTICIPATE.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1. The U. S. Government still is unwilling to participate in the restricted inquiry into Germany's finances, and has so informed James A. Logan, U. S. observer with the Reparations Commission in Paris.

THE BRITISH ELECTORATE.

LONDON, Dec. 1. The electorate of Great Britain totals eighteen million voters, including nearly eight million women, an increase of 100,000 since the general election last year. There are 565,000 voters going on in 115 of these a Conservative faces a Liberal, in 109 a Conservative faces a Labor candidate and in 52 a Liberal faces a nominee of the Labor Party. There are 249 triangular fights, and in 48 ridings the issue is further complicated by the incursion of miscellaneous candidates.

THREE DAYS MORE.

LONDON, Dec. 1. Great Britain's opposing political armies of protection and free trade have had their final resting in preparation for the three strenuous fighting days before Thursday next, when approximately eighteen million electors in England, Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland will go to the polls for the third general election since the war. All forecasts of results have been extremely cautious, and even these political prognosticators who seem certain that the present Government will be returned are not at all sure that its majority in the House will be sufficient to put through its programme of tariff reform, the issue which brought about the dissolution of Parliament and the appeal to the electors. On general lines the return of a Conservative Government with a workable majority in the House of Commons means the beginning of a tariff wall around Great Britain. Victory for the Liberals means Great Britain will continue as a free trade country with the magnetic personality of Lloyd George dominating the Cabinet. If the unexpected should happen and the Labor Party be victorious, it would mean that the rule of the historic parties which have alternatively governed Great Britain for two and a half centuries would end, and Westminster would house its first Socialist House of Commons.

IRISH LOAN SUBSCRIBED.

DUBLIN, Dec. 2. It is estimated that seven million pounds of the Irish Free State loan of ten million pounds was subscribed during the week which has elapsed since opening the subscription. This calculation is based mainly on the results in Dublin and it is believed that when all reports are in the loan will have been over subscribed.

A MEXICAN REBEL.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 1. Gen. Romulo Figuero, chief of military operations in the State of Guerrero, has occupied the Government buildings and taken a rebellious attitude toward Governor Rodolfo Neri. According to press despatches from Inguila, General Figuero has declined to accept a transfer to a different post. He was charged last month with causing the deaths of a dozen armed citizens at Tel Pola Pan.

RUSSIAN 'DESPERADO' SENTENCED BY CHINESE.

HARBIN, Dec. 1. For the first time in history the Chinese courts have condemned a white man to death. This sentence was the result of the trial of the noted desperado Korniloff, an educated Russian of good family, who is charged with several murders and robberies.

Dawn, with the flush of the radiant morn— A rosebud unfolding its petals bright. The tremulous breath of a babe newborn. The wonderful advent of life and light.

Noontide, the glory, and mystery of life— The rose in full bloom, and man in his prime. Voices of pleasure, ambition and strife. And thro' all the footsteps of passing time.

Night, with its forces of grandeur and gloom— The soul going peacefully back to God. Rose-petals falling—the darkened room. The weary at rest 'neath the quiet sod.

SIDE TALKS.

THE BEST KIND OF ANTIQUES.

Is it a good or a bad thing to have the habit of idealizing your friends?
I used to think it was a beautiful thing to have the temperament to attribute virtues and gifts far above the actuality to the people whom one likes.
And I used to be pleased when people of that temperament endowed me with charms and perfections I could never otherwise hope to have.
I am not so sure now that it is the happiest thing either for the idealizer or the object.

They Find Her Out.

An old friend of mine is the type which particularly attracts idealizers. She used to like it at first. But this is what she says now:
"I wish I didn't affect people that way, because when they find out that I'm not really as nice as they think I am, then they don't like me at all. I've just been through it again with that girl I met on my vacation.
"I told her at the beginning that I wasn't half so nice or so clever as she seemed to think I was, but she said that was just my modesty and she wouldn't believe me. And now I can see that she's beginning to find me out and she blames me. They always do, no matter what you tell them."
"But won't it be all right, now that she sees you as you really are?" I probed.

"Won't you like that better?"
The Friendship Takes Cold.
"No-o," she said thoughtfully. "In the first place she won't like me as well as she would if she had just seen me as I was 'to start with, because she will have a sense of conservatism, and of being cheated no matter how hard I tried not to cheat her. And besides I can't help feeling the difference in her manner."
"It's like going into an east wind after you have been in a very warm sheltered spot. One is apt to catch cold and the thing that catches cold in this case is the friendship. And sometimes it dies of it, too. I know that sounds unreasonable, I ought to be pleased at the change instead of feeling the cold but I can't help it. I do feel it. What I want is for people to like me moderately at first and keep on liking me."
I had always thought as a child I should like to be the type of person that people have crushes on, but evidently that felicity has its reverse side.

"A real friend," someone has said, "is a person who knows all about you and loves you just the same."
I don't believe it would be easy to find a better definition.
And it applies to being a friend as well as having one.
Don't ride your new friendship too hard. Don't expect too much of them, and they will have a chance of becoming the finest kind of antiques, the kind that are truly worth a great price—old friendships.

Pauline Thurston and Fritz Bruch IN CLASSY DANCES AND MUSIC.

Dances that will appeal to the multitude and a musical programme that will fascinate all has been prepared by Miss Thurston and Fritz Bruch for this week at the Majestic Theatre. The dancer will be seen in two lively Spanish Dances. Gorgeously costumed she will offer for the first time in this city a turn which evoked much comment and praise on the American stage. Pauline Thurston's interpretations have become exceedingly popular and she will give the people of St. John's this week an opportunity of witnessing a series of bewitching and snappy dances that will certainly add to her popularity. Fritz Bruch will commence the week with a series of musical numbers which will further demonstrate his mastery of the Cello and his ability to entertain. His decision to entwine his classical numbers with old-time favourite songs will be appreciated, and a treat is in store for those who will have the good fortune to hear him render the always and ever popular, "Drink to me only with Thine Eyes." Mr. Bruch's rendition of "The Rosary" and other well-known numbers last week invited repeated encores. In addition to the superb dancing of Pauline Thurston and the presentations of Fritz Bruch, a film picture which was sought for and secured only by the first-class theatres and leading play houses in America will be shown, "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford," starring Sam Hardy, Doris Kenyon, Diana Allen and Norman Kerry. "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford" is based upon the play as produced by the renowned George M. Cohan. It is unnecessary to go into the details of the Wallingford stories which have made millions laugh, but to use the words of "Contemporary Arts" will say positively guaranteed as the good-all-around, crookedest yarn that ever tickled the ribs of the world! A yarn for the hundred million folks who itch, at times, to speculate.

FORTUNATE WINNER.—Mr. Leo Brown, Cabman, we are informed, is the lucky winner of the Model Poultry House, first prize in the Poultry Show lottery.

ANNUAL MEETING.—The annual meeting of the St. John's Curling Association takes place in the Curling Rink at 8 o'clock to-night. Following the election of officers, several important matters will be dealt with, and it is hoped that a large number of members will be in attendance.

The Feast of Illumination

Chanukah, known as the Feast of Illumination and by other titles of similar intent, will be celebrated in Jewish circles for eight days, beginning on the evening of December 2nd, and ending December 10th.

The following descriptive notice of the Chanukah Festival is issued by the Educational Tract Commission, composed of representatives of the Central Conference of American Rabbis and of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations.

The origin of this festival dates from the stirring historical events connected with the uprising of the Maccabees in the year 165 B.C.E., when Antiochus Epiphanes, the Syrian King, sought to enforce his religion on the subject peoples of his vast domains. Under the banner of the Amoneans as they were called, Mattathias, a priest of Modin, a suburb of Jerusalem, and his sons rallied a small band of followers who rebelled against the Syrians. Warfare ensued and by miraculous victories the few and feeble overpowered the mighty army sent out against them by the Syrian tyrant.

In the year 165 B.C.E. Judah, the Maccabee, and his army re-entered the Temple at Jerusalem and purified the altar by removing the defilements that had been offered thereon by the Syrians. In commemoration of this event the festival of Chanukah was instituted by Judah with the approval of the elders of the congregation of Israel. When the fire had been kindled anew on the altar and the candle sticks lighted, the dedication of the altar was celebrated for eight days. Torches were lighted and processions formed. Lights were also kindled in all households.

This festival has appeared to the imagination of the people of Israel for centuries. Many legends are preserved recounting the miraculous intervention of Providence in behalf of Israel. The story of the discovery of a cruse of undefiled oil which when kindled burned for eight days, thus assigning, as it were, the period which the festival was to be observed, is one of those legends. The martyrdom of Hannah and her sons is another. Rather than submit her sons to the degradation of pagan worship she was forced to witness their torture and was herself finally slain for refusing to yield to the threats of the oppressor.

The feast of Chanukah is celebrated to-day in a spirit of rejoicing. Following the precedent of centuries lights are kindled in the homes. One candle the first night, increasing the number till the eighth. In home and religious school an effort is made to remind the present generation of the fervor of their illustrious ancestors who placed God above all and fealty to His law as the greatest consecration to which man could be dedicated.

To the Jewish people of this generation Chanukah reaffirms their abiding faith in God's justice. For it is in and through history that God's justice is revealed. Thus the Jewish people feel that God must prevail since it is He who breaks the bows of the mighty men and sends with strength those who stumble.
There is no special service in a Synagogue to celebrate this day but there are additional scriptural readings and a special prayer that is recited on the Sabbath of the festive week of Chanukah in which the worshippers recall the mighty miracles and victories wrought in their behalf in the days of Mattathias and his sons.

Thus Chanukah voices the hope that eventually the valor of the few, championing justice and truth, will prevail over the hordes who are striving to instill race-hatred, selfishness and violence among men. All Jewish people trust that as in the days of old when a small band overpowered a mighty host, so the few who now cleave unto God will in the later days be victorious over the many who are strong and firmly entrenched.

AT HOME.—Mrs. George Davey will be "At Home" to receive her friends on Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons, Dec. 4th and 5th, at her residence, 31 Victoria Street.—dec1

A Record to be Proud of INSURANCE ONE OF THE BUILDINGS OF CIVILIZATION.

A burst of flame from a manarod roof in Boston started a fan-shaped conflagration in the autumn of 1872 which destroyed 776 buildings in the mercantile district. This fire left twenty-six Massachusetts insurance companies insolvent, with losses totaling $30,000,000 and assets of about half that amount. Four New York companies likewise collapsed.

But again The Liverpool and London and Globe, sustaining more than half the total loss of the foreign companies, paid its claims promptly and in full.

Here were thirteen crucial months within which The Liverpool and London and Globe suffered losses totaling nearly five million dollars, caused by the Chicago fire and the Boston fire, plus the ordinary losses of that period. All of these losses were paid as adjusted, promptly and without discount.

When San Francisco was singled out by the elements as the scene of a great tragedy, The Liverpool and London and Globe was again permitted to draw vigorously upon its reserves in an hour of extraordinary need. The disaster, which occurred in April, 1906, destroyed almost the entire city, and was followed by a fire that lasted for three days and caused the loss of 1,500 lives, with an estimated damage to property of half a billion dollars.

San Francisco, practically the product of the gold boom which began in 1848, was thus helped back on her feet by the insurance company which began its career in the United States in 1848, in the same year. From an even start, the one had grown into a great city and the other into the business partner of towns and cities throughout the nation.

Such was the havoc caused by this disaster, and in the sudden face of those terrific losses, it is not to be wondered at that delays in the settlement of claims were almost universal. About $285,000,000 of insurance was involved, and this was carried in some 230 companies.

Of the 230 insurance companies involved in the San Francisco tragedy, it may be noted that only five companies paid all claims in full upon adjustment, without cash discount, except a few whose losses were nominal. One of these five companies was The Liverpool and London and Globe.

Standing in the background, but ever in readiness to act in its appointed capacity if and when the moment came, The Liverpool and London and Globe Insurance Co. was ready when San Francisco's evil hour struck.

With the coming of Spalding's Guide, with its list of rules for basketball awaited by the layman the annals of other times.
The outstanding club year's code are those personal touch. Their steadily increasing of the player against a committed to attempt while this change in situations might have it is felt that the "four personal foul" rule check upon the consequently the adopted.
When a personal foul player against whom committed must attempt a throw; a substitute is permitted, unless the free throw is in the time is permitted. Free throws after are few under the year that any player attempt them, as for the purpose of the questions and answers provided in Spalding's feature of the G.

BASKETBALL GUIDE OUT.
With the coming of winter, the leading Guide, with its revised guide of rules for basketball, is as eagerly awaited by the players and fans as the annuals of other seasonal activities.

The outstanding changes in this year's code are those which deal with foul play. There has been a steadily increasing desire to require the player against whom a foul is committed to attempt the free throw. While this change under former conditions might have increased fouling, it is felt that the uniform use of the "free personal foul" rule will be sufficient check upon this tendency, and consequently the change has been adopted.

When a personal foul is called the player against whom the foul is committed must attempt the free throw or throw; a substitute may not be inserted, unless the player entitled to the free throw is injured so that he must leave the game, when a substitute is permitted.
Free throws, after technical fouls are few under the change made last year that any player is permitted to attempt them, as formerly. An appendix to the rules, in the form of questions and answers, is also provided in Spalding's Guide. Illustrations, as usual, comprise an interesting feature of the Guide.

Our Montreal Letter.

BECOMING EXPERTS AT ROBBERY

The number of hold-ups and robberies of late in Montreal is alarming, and makes one shudder to think that in broad daylight you may be the next victim. Those who engage in such work, have everything remarkably well planned, and timed, and make good their escape in autos. The city is being overrun with such scoundrels. Fur stores, jewelry stores, tobacco stores and even the Quebec Liquor Commission stores—all receive a visit in the early hours of the morning from the "bad men," who generally make big hauls, and get away with them. Saturday nights get away with them. Saturday night grocers have big sums of money on them get waylaid at the point of the revolver and robbed of their cash. It is the reign of Bolshevism starting with a vengeance. And the hand of the law is missing when such things are in operation, or arrives too late to be of service. The thugs are certainly bold and defiant, and not afraid to tackle the most difficult proposition, to stand in front of the Windsor Hotel, break a big plate glass window and rob a fur coat worth $700. The army that works such robberies must be large, for the gang works in different parts of the city almost simultaneously. If the citizen and his property are to be protected, better police protection must be given, even to the extent of having extra men put out at night with the use of automobiles and motor cycles. The Metropolitan of Canada is fast becoming the rendezvous for successful looters.

Word has been received in the city that two of our foremost hockey players in the persons of Messrs. Bert Tait and Thomas Payne, now in Boston, have signed articles to play with the B.A.A. Hockey team, champions of the American League. They are now undergoing training in the gym and are looking forward to their first work-out on the artificial ice surface in the Boston arena on Saturday next. Five of last year's team have been selected to represent U.S.A. in the Olympic hockey fixtures at Paris.

S.S. Westerman Buffeted By Storm.

HAD BULWORKS CARRIED AWAY AND DECK STARTED.

With her decks smashed and bulworks carried away the S. S. Westerman left port this morning under her own steam and berthed at the Rod Cross pier. The Westerman, Capt. Mulatte, left here in ballast Friday evening bound to Montreal. Shortly after leaving the Cape, a heavy S.W. wind was encountered and progress was slow. When about 335 miles from port in the vicinity of St. Pierre, a N.W. gale was run into. At 5 a.m. Saturday morning the ship was in the height of a blizzard. Tremendous seas swept the decks carrying away the tanks, bridge railing and everything movable. About 60 feet of bulworks on the port side were smashed in, and every moment it appeared as if the ship would swamp as the wooden decks were giving away under the weight of breaking seas. After about a half hour buffeting, during which the pumps got smashed, the navigator, Capt. Blouin, decided to run before the storm. The ship was successfully brought around, but on the way to port conditions did not improve and the crew experienced a trying time. Capt. Mulatte sustaining severe injury to his leg. All were glad when port was reached this morning. The Westerman will have to be repaired here, and the job will be extensive as the deck has gone down about six inches.

The Necessity of a Forest Policy.

How many readers of our journals ever pause to consider that the paper on which the news is printed represents a vast source of wealth to the country? How many visualize this paper as spately trees; as rivers that formerly ran free to the ocean, but are now turned to account in the form of herculean power; as man power that hitherto was not utilized to the full for several months of each year?

This piece of paper is the tangible proof of the successful establishment of a Newfoundland Manufacturing Industry. It is the foundation upon which the town of Grand Falls is built, and upon which another hive of industry is in course of construction at the mouth of the Humber. As the potential wealth of our forests, our water power, our shipping facilities, and the skill of our workmen become better known in the outside world, paper making gives promise of becoming a close rival of the fishery industries. We must not, however, imagine that we can neglect to prosecute the latter to the full. They have been in the past, and they are to-day, the mainstay of our prosperity; and future generations of Newfoundlanders will find in the harvest of the sea that wealth and stability which have enabled the Island to survive disasters and weather storms successfully.

In view of the facilities that we possess for manufacturing pulp and paper; in view also to the limited acreage of our forest areas, and in view of the inroads that are being made upon them, we must decide upon a definite policy with regard to our timber resources. Those countries which hitherto manufactured on a large scale and now find their supply of raw material inadequate are searching round for other worlds to plunder. Are we going to allow them to enrich themselves at our expense? Are we going to be satisfied to remain mere hewers when we can be manufacturers? To quote an instance: in 1922 Canada exported pulpwood to the value of $10,000,000. Manufactured in Canada, this would have represented to the country over $50,000,000. Look at the question from another point of view: the capital invested in the pulp and paper industry in Canada amounts to about $380,000,000. It gives employment to over 38,000 people to whom are paid in wages $23,000,000. At the rate that the timber is being depleted, it is not a difficult matter to estimate how soon the supply available in Canada will be exhausted unless conservation is insisted upon. It has been clearly demonstrated that the best method of conservation is by forbidding exportation of the raw material and by limiting the cut of timber to the amount required for home requirements. It is the only way to maintain this industry.

What applies to Canada applies in a far greater measure to Newfoundland, where the forest areas are by no means illimitable, as writers have been pleased to describe them in the past. It is useless, however, to expect Governments to consider this question seriously, until public opinion has awakened them to their responsibilities. That is the duty of to-day's generation, if we wish to pass on to our children the wealth with which Nature has endowed us.

Masonic Service at C. of E. Cathedral

Yesterday the Masonic Fraternity brought to a close the celebration of the 75th Anniversary of St. John's Lodge, by attending Divine Service in the Anglican Cathedral. Forming in procession at the Temple, the Fraternity marched to the Cathedral under the banner of the Lodge. The service which had been specially arranged was in the nature of a thanksgiving. The prayers were recited by Rev. Canon Bary and H. L. Pike, and the lesson was read by Rev. Canon Bolt. Taking as his subject "Dreams and Visions, and your young men shall see visions," (Joel 2:28) the Rev. A. T. Turk, the Chaplain of St. John's Lodge, delivered a eloquent and stirring address. At the conclusion of the service His Lordship the Bishop pronounced the Benediction.

On returning to the Temple a vote of thanks was extended to the Rev. Bro. Turk, the Rector, Churchwardens, Organist and Choir. In the absence of the former, the Rev. Canon Bolt briefly replied. The collection, which was in aid of the Permanent Marine Disasters' Fund, exceeded sixty dollars.

The Globe's Humor

The following paragraph appears in a recent issue of the Toronto Globe: "A Newfoundland statesman with the suggestive name of Cashin, says the Ancient Colony may sell the Labrador Coast to Canada if a satisfactory price is offered."

A Graceful Tribute TO A MINISTER BELOVED.

At Gower Street Methodist Church last night a notable event occurred, one that was not alone graceful in its inception, and gracious in the manner of it, but a faithful interpretation of the affection and veneration of the congregation for their aged pastor of the years gone by.

Standing away from the pulpit desk the Rev. Hammond Johnson spoke of last Friday having been the 35th anniversary of the birth of the Rev. Dr. Cowperthwaite, and inasmuch as it had been impossible for the large majority of the congregation to extend personal greetings to the beloved pastor, suggested that in the name of all he would greet him from the pulpit which he had so often occupied, and around which for Dr. Cowperthwaite, as well as those present, so many hallowed memories centered.

Then, returning to the desk to which the acousticon is attached, in happy phrases he spoke words of greeting and congratulation, conveying in apt and grateful terms the love and devotion of the congregation, and their united prayer for his health and happiness.

He then requested the congregation to unite in singing two verses of the hymn "Blest be the tie that binds," the tones of which must have carried in unmistakable form to the aged Minister in his room the sincerity of the greetings and recognition of the regard in which he is held amongst those for whom in the days of his activity he laboured so zealously and effectively.

It was a pleasing and touching incident, and one which will long linger in the memory of those who were privileged to take part in it.—Daily News.

Rev. J. O. Britnell Receives a Living in England

The many friends here of Rev. J. O. Britnell will be pleased to learn that he has recently been appointed to the living of Marsh Gibbon, Bucks, Eng., by the Bishop of Oxford in whose gift the living lies. Rev. "A Wonderful Woman" TRIBUTE TO DAME MARGARET.

Yesterday's Good-Byes. "Daddy, mayn't I go and say good-bye to Di?"

Daddy nodded. "Yes," said little Ann, "and school-ma'am, Diana Davidson, put her arms around her neck, and kissed her good-bye.

All the friends of Diana and Daphne Davidson were at the wharf yesterday to hold streamers and string as the Euripides moved slowly out. Dame Margaret Davidson, sorrowful at parting, stood quietly by the side of her two small children, and waved a tearful adieu in farewell to the huge crowd which had gathered at the wharf.

As she passed up the aisle of castled hands, "Take off your hat; she's worth it," said a woman in the crowd to her male companion. And hats were doffed as the figure in black moved slowly up the gangway.

Every second woman on the wharf was in tears, and a few men rubbed their misty eyes. Dame Margaret's simple farewell, "Good-bye, all!" touched everybody present. "She's a wonderful woman," said a bystander.

The Lieut.-Governor (Sir William Cullen) and Lady Cullen were on board the Euripides till the final bell clasped, and many people who had been close personal friends of Dame Margaret were also present on the ship.

Shortly after 10 o'clock flowers commenced to arrive, and baskets of lilac and huge bouquets of roses and carnations kept up a winding rainbow of color to the cabins until the last minute before the gangway was removed. Dame Margaret's two cabins were filled with fragrant blooms, and chief among those was a wonderful display of lilac from the Exeter Red Cross Home.

The wharf was thronged with saddened people when the Euripides was well out in the stream, and only when the ship became lost to view did the crowd make its way up the hill—and home.—The Sun, N. S. W., Oct. 27th.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

600 PERISH WHEN DYKE BURSTS IN NORTHERN ITALY.

BERGAMO, ITALY, Dec. 3. Six hundred dead, three villages destroyed, and fifty square miles desolate. This is told of a flood from Glono Lake when the great dyke guarding it collapsed, releasing an irresistible flood of water which carrying all before it, swept from the hills down into the valleys a distance of fifteen miles to Lake Iseo which checked its devastating course. Bergamo Valley is to-day nothing but barren waste of mud and water, an area of death into which it was still dangerous to enter for some places there are water-filled depressions over a man's head. In this sudden mass burial of victims are lying mingled with debris of fallen trees, telephone poles, buildings and bridges. Thousands are homeless. Dessico Corna and Buegio were the three villages leveled. Of the five hundred people in Dessico only three escaped alive. The flood is thought to be the largest of its kind in view of the large volume of water let loose. Hundreds of houses were shattered so completely that the occupants must have died with no knowledge of the disaster that had befallen them. The dyke was an immense structure four miles long and thirty-five yards thick. Apparently it weakened where the ends are embedded into the mountain side. Torrential rains had prevailed, and were continuing Sunday making the situation more menacing for the survivors. The first warning of disaster came with ominous sound of the breaking of the dyke at eight Saturday morning. King Victor Emmanuel has departed for the scene and has sent a large donation of money to the survivors.

The pump is the invention of the late Dr. Henry L. Litch. It is estimated the invention has decreased the death rate from Diphtheria from 33 to 10 per cent.

TROOPS MOBILIZED IN MEXICO TO SUPPRESS REBEL.

George Street Methodist Church

MEMORIAL SERVICE BY REV. DR. BONDI

Yesterday was a day of days in the annals of George Street Methodist Church. From all parts of the city, Methodists flocked to assist in the commemoration of the fitting celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the church.

Many through varying circumstances are now attending churches, but for this day returned to the church of their childhood. One may say that earlier years were hardly a safe time to attend the church. The church was then a place of refuge, but had its evening services at the morning or evening sessions. And no person who attended would have left the solid old building without a feeling that it was good to be there.

The grand old hymns of the church were sung by the choir of the George Street Methodist Church. Our fathers and grandfathers used to sing, and they were led by a choir of whom had heard when it was first dedicated to the service of the Almighty.

Dr. Bondi was the preacher at the morning and evening services. At the former, he took as his text "The Church and Kingdom" and delivered the following address: "The church has sent me into the world and I also sent them into the world."

They then sent me into the world and I also sent them into the world. They then sent me into the world and I also sent them into the world. They then sent me into the world and I also sent them into the world.

They then sent me into the world and I also sent them into the world. They then sent me into the world and I also sent them into the world. They then sent me into the world and I also sent them into the world.

They then sent me into the world and I also sent them into the world. They then sent me into the world and I also sent them into the world. They then sent me into the world and I also sent them into the world.

It almost immediately had a large and interesting Sunday School. Its class-meetings were many, largely attended, and regularly maintained, and were mighty factors in the personal and corporate spiritual life of the membership.

Its two week-night services—a preaching service on Tuesday evening and a prayer meeting on Friday evening—were largely and regularly attended. Four or five of the leading business men of those days were hardly ever absent from these week-night services.

Whoever came or went they were on hand to take their part in the carrying on of the spiritual as well as of the financial phases of this church's work.

And so, through the half century, that beneficent work has gone on. Fathers and mothers have passed away, sons and daughters have taken their places. There have been ups and downs of course, but there have been expansion, enlargement, development, increase of facilities, increase of influence.

FACING THE FUTURE. The main question for us to-day, however, is not retrospect but prospect, not backward but outlook. We have glanced at the way in which this church has discharged its obligations to its congregation and its community during its fifty years of history. What of its task during its history to come? What of its task to-day? Well, its task is that which is common to the Christian church as a whole.

And while that task has many aspects many angles, it is, after all, a very simple one. John Wesley, you may remember, in his blunt way, thus put it to his "helpers" as he called his preachers. "Your business is not to preach so many sermons, or to take charge of such and such circuits; your business is to save souls."

Was that narrow and prosaic and unphilosophical? or was it a broad, full and profoundly scientific dictum to be applied to, and given heed to, not alone by ministers but by churches? "Your business is to save souls." What else if not that? What more if that be secured? One of the most incisive and philosophical of American preachers put truth into an oft quoted epigram. "The soul of all improvement is the improvement of the soil."

God that cannot be seen, much less entered into except by birth from above, a birth of the spirit bringing peace and power, a divine dynamic energizing a new nature, a new viewpoint, a new life, The Kingdom of God, the rule of the Divine in the human heart, coming "not with observation, essentially 'righteousness and peace and joy in the Holy Ghost,' inevitably, irresistibly, self-propagating, 'catching,' as the doctors say, and creating a divinely wrought, divinely inspired, divinely sustained ethical society, beginning with the Kingdom of God in the individual soul the sweet sufficient oneness with God in purpose and method, the love of God shed abroad in the individual, irradiating individual character and conduct, developing heart and intellect, absorbing the interests, intriguing the enthusiasm, controlling the whole outflow of effort in every direction. That is the ideal. That is the only reality. That is what has saved the world up to the point to which it has been saved at all. That is what must save the world in all the multitudinous ways in which we recognize that it still needs saving. That, and that alone, is the programme of the Gospel of Christ. And the Gospel of Christ is the power of God unto salvation, the ethical regeneration of human society in all its interests, in all its relations, in all its activities.

Listen to Dr. Schweitzer once more: "It is only in this struggle to become ethical that man comes to possess real value as a personality." And yet again "A new Public Opinion must be created privately and unobtrusively. The existing one is maintained by the Press, by propaganda, by organization, and by financial and other influences which are at its disposal. This unnatural way of spreading ideas must be opposed by the natural one, which goes from man to man and relies solely on the truth of the thoughts and the hearer's receptiveness for new truth. Unarmed, following the human spirits' primitive and natural fighting method, it must attack the other, which faces it, as Goliath faced David, in the mighty armour of the age."

Do you see your calling my friends of George Street Church. There are to-day as ever the two hostile camps—the camp of Israel the people of God, the camp of the Philistines, the foes of God and man. The fight which has gone on from the beginning is raging to-day more bitterly than ever. The place of the local church, the local congregation, in the great struggle is the place of the platoon in the great battle. That is the Church Universal. Your part here in this city, here in the West End of this city, is the raising up of the highest ethical standard of principle and conduct on the part of every man and woman and child among you by reception of and obedience to the recreating spirit of the Living God in ordinary everyday life, and in filling the years to come with ever increasing positive, practical, personal value and usefulness to this community, this city, this country, this world.

Are the days of the heroes gone by, that we should indifference? At our ease, and scoff at the times? Forward! The age demands men. Shoulders to shoulder. And then let the loud cannon roar thunder on thunder. Let the fierce battle rage onward and upward and under. The greatest of conflicts is ours. It calls for the greatest of powers; God help us to save men's souls!

In the evening, preaching from the 2nd Epistle of Paul to Timothy, chap. 2, verse 2, the reverend gentleman took for his subject "Playing the Game according to the Rules." The sermon was essentially to young people, but older people could take heart the lessons taught. The game was the game of life. The rules were laid down 3,500 years ago in the decalogue. There had been no change in the rules since, but about 2,000 years ago they had been epitomized in two rules. "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind" and "Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself." There had to be loyalty to the captain and loyalty to the team. There was no go as you please in the game. No rules were as strict and invariable. And the prize was not wealth or position or riches but "to live in all good conscience before God."

At the conclusion of the evening service the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered to a large and devout assemblage.

Death being due to heart failure. The deceased for a number of years was inspector of the Sanitary Department, the duties of which he performed up to the very last. Christian Brothers' Collection

The Annual Collection for the Christian Brothers was taken up yesterday, and showed an increase of $115.18 over that of 1922. After last Mass the collectors assembled at the Monastery, where J. C. Pippy, on behalf of the Chairman, Hon. J. D. Ryan, who could not speak because of a cold, announced the total amount. Mr. M. Bambrick, W. E. Brophy, and Rev. Bro. Egan handed in the collections made in St. Patrick's, St. Joseph's and Mt. Cashel respectively, and spoke eloquently of the interest manifested in the Educational work of the Brothers. Rev. Bro. Aherin in thanking the collectors and through them the subscribers congratulated all on the magnificent spirit which prompted such a generous collection. He referred especially to the importance of the education of the child and showed how the parents shared the responsibility of moulding the young character. He also referred to the valuable assistance of the press in making the collection a success. Speeches were also delivered by His Worship, Judge Morris, Dr. V. P. Burke, W. J. Higgins, Esq. and C. J. Cahill Esq., all of whom spoke warmly of the great blessings of Religious Education. The collection is made up as follows:—

Table with 2 columns: Year (1922, 1923) and Amount. Rows include Cathedral, St. Patrick's, St. Joseph's, Mt. Cashel, and a Total.

AT HOLY CROSS SCHOOLS.

A goodly number of the parishioners of St. Patrick's assembled in Holy Cross schools after last Mass on Sunday, to learn the result of the collection in aid of the Christian Brothers, and all present felt greatly pleased when Chairman Bambrick announced that the amount collected was two thousand, four hundred and eighty eight dollars, an increase of fifty seven dollars over last year's total. Rev. Brother Egan, on behalf of the Brothers, expressed his deep appreciation of the splendid response made by the people of St. Patrick's and said the amount realized surpassed their expectations. The Rev. gentleman delivered a very interesting address, dealing with education and the work and progress of Holy Cross schools, during which he paid a beautiful tribute to the memory of the late Brother O'Bannigan. Speeches were delivered also by Messrs. M. Bambrick, John J. Doyle, Joseph Fitzgibbon, John Barron, Michael Healey, J. J. Rossiter, J. J. O'Keefe, James Jackman, J. M. Spears, M. Galgaly, L. O'Keefe, R. J. Power, and Fred O'Brien. All the speakers referred to the part played by the press in lending their columns to those who wrote appeals, and for the kindly references made to the collection by the Editors. A formal vote of thanks being proposed to the press it was carried unanimously.

Obituary.

JOHN CUMMINS. It is with feelings of sincere regret that the Telegram has to publish to-day, the passing of an esteemed and well known citizen in the person of John T. Cummins, Manager of the Stores Department of the St. John's Light & Power Company. About three weeks ago the deceased was taken suddenly ill by an attack of acute appendicitis and before surgery could accomplish its task of relief, peritonitis set in and left him in a critical condition. Upon being removed to Hospital a very difficult operation was performed, when it was found that the disease had gained serious inroads on his system. He lived through the terrible ordeal which he underwent and showed slight signs of improvement; but on Friday morning last complications appeared, and although everything possible was done to alleviate his sufferings, he gradually weakened, death following yesterday morning at 5.30 o'clock. The late Mr. Cummins was the son of George and Mary Cummins, formerly of Lower Island Cove. For a number of years he held a lucrative position as first clerk and assistant to Mr. H. Crawford, the purchasing agent, Reid Nfd. Company. About three years ago he was promoted to the Stores of the St. John's Light and Power Co., of which he had full control up to the time of his death. He was a conscientious and industrious worker, popular with everyone with whom he came in contact, and his co-workers and associates, who knew him best, will be grieved to hear of his passing. He leaves to mourn a father, mother, wife (nee Miss Beatrice Goodyear of Carmanville), four little children, besides three sisters, to whom the sympathy of the community will go out in their hour of bereavement. The late Mr. Cummins was a prominent member of the Methodist Guards' Comrades Association.

"Most Human Picture I Ever Saw" That is What Montague Glass, Who Wrote Some of His Titles, Said of Goldwyn's "Hungry Hearts" After First Seeing It.

Animals Very Wild Quite a lot of trouble was experienced with a shipment of cattle which arrived on Saturday by S.S. Canadian Courier. Several of the animals were very wild and no person could be found to assume the responsibility of driving them through the streets. It was suggested that three of the most unmanageable should be killed on the wharf. This suggestion was acted upon and a humane killer which has lately been imported by Mr. M. Tobin was procured. After the animals were killed they were removed to a slaughter house to be dressed. Inspector Barter of the S.P.A. was present and supervised the slaughter.

Rumored of Merger of Power Companies It is rumored that the Royal Securities Corporation of Montreal are negotiating a merger of the power companies of which the Messrs. Reid and Murphy are the heads. It is understood that options held have been taken up and the probabilities are that a new company with Mr. R. J. Murphy as head will be formed to operate the street car and electric light service of the city. Hon. J. J. Murphy and Mr. R. J. Murphy, who have been in Montreal for some days are returning by express this evening.

Winston Churchill's Career.

is ov. 30. (Canadian Press).
 —One of the most picturesque figures in the political life of the United Kingdom in recent years is Rt. Hon. Winston Spencer Churchill, Liberal candidate in West Lothian. He suffered a temporary eclipse in the general election of Nov. 15, 1922, when Edward Scrymgeour, prohibitionist, defeated him in his old constituency of Dundee, Scotland. Churchill began his parliamentary career as a Conservative, his first seat in the House of Commons being for Oldham in 1900. Unlike his distinguished father, the late Lord Randolph Churchill, Winston seemingly cared little for party names, and in 1906 he was returned to Parliament as Liberal member for Northwest Manchester. Two years later he was elected in Dundee as a Liberal and he continued to hold that seat until his defeat last year. Since 1906 Winston Churchill has occupied the following posts in the British Ministry: Under-Secretary of State for the Colonies, President of the Board of Trade, Home Secretary, First Lord of the Admiralty, Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, Minister of Munitions, Secretary of State for War and Secretary of State for Air. He was in the Asquith Government and in the Lloyd George Coalition Government.

Churchill's defeat in Dundee by the prohibitionist candidate Scrymgeour, was one of the features of the last general election. His cleverness, courage, dash, self-confidence and assertiveness failed in the fight against the prohibitionist. He went down before "Red" Scrymgeour who had been regarded in Dundee for twenty years as a joke, and by the largest poll ever recorded for any Scottish candidate. Scrymgeour's majority was 10,334. Scrymgeour had unsuccessfully opposed Churchill on a number of occasions previously, always a prohibitionist candidate, but in the 1922 contest he had the women of Dundee at his back and won. This was his sixth fight with Churchill in a period of over fourteen years. The story of these battles was told with classic severity in the figures published just after the big political battle of 1922. They showed Scrymgeour's progress up the steep hill from a beginning of only 835 votes in 1908 against Churchill's 7,079, to the summit of his ambition last year with more than 30,000 votes against Churchill's 20,000. These six contests had been marked by the gradual step-down of Winston Churchill and the slow, laborious step-up of Edward Scrymgeour. The six elections followed one another with short intervals, except the last one, which came after a lapse of four years.

Two Girls Shot; One Likely to Die.

London, Ont., Nov. 23. (A.P.)—Two girls were wounded, one probably fatally in a shooting affray at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. George Cook, York Street, early to-day, to the alpine Durston, 18, of Watford, received two bullets in the abdomen from a gun in the hands of Clarence Topping, 23, her sweetheart, and Viola McNaughton, 19, her chum, was pierced through the chest with a bullet from the revolver of Police Constable Walter Harpur who was on the scene at the time and whose shot was directed toward Topping.

Both girls were rushed to Victoria Hospital. Miss Durston, though wounded seriously, is expected to recover, but no hope is entertained for the recovery of Miss McNaughton. Doctors believe that the bullet may have pierced a lung.

Topping was placed under arrest by police Constable Harpur and removed to police headquarters. In police court this morning he was remanded or a week pending the outcome of the wounds. Unrequited love and jealousy, it is believed, was the motive for the crime.

Topping, according to Mr. and Mrs. Cook, left their home after 2 a.m. this morning after his suit had been rejected by Miss Durston. Love for another prompted her to refuse his pleadings. Topping returned at 10 minutes to seven and asked for his sweetheart. He was advised to leave and forget his love affair with the girl. Topping, however, refused to quit the house and the police were called. Constable Harpur arrived a few minutes later but before placing Topping under arrest, Cook again advised the rejected suitor to leave the house in peace.

Good Memory of This Manager Caught Forger.

CHEQUE ARTIST REVEALED HIS IDENTITY WHEN HE SMOKED.

How did you know that check-passer was an impostor? This query was placed before a wide-awake bank manager, who had just been the means of capturing a check forger and passer. The latter had succeeded in passing his spurious checks in a number of business houses in the city on the same day he tried to stage the same stunt at the bank agency over which this banker presides.

The plan of action of the criminal was in a preliminary inspection of a city or town, to locate a business man well known to the banking element in the community as a sound man of business, with ample credit. The game was then to impersonate this man at various banks in the city and contiguous communities. That this scheme worked effectively is evidenced by the ease with which the forger secured no less than five hundred dollars in one day by means of the forged checks.

It was his habit to make the checks payable for small amounts, not over thirty-five or forty dollars per check as a rule, although occasionally he made them out from sixty to one hundred. So thorough was his investigation on entering the city or town he had chosen that he often spent a week in seeking the man he finally impersonated. He studied the characteristics of the man, dressed exactly similar, affected the same mannerisms, and the same mode of speech, and otherwise aided in the impersonation. He also familiarized himself with the names of the bank tellers and managers.

On the day he was to make his swoop on the banks in the city he had selected to "work" on this occasion, he first made sure of the non-presence of the business man he intended impersonating, by ordering his confederate to call for the business man at the latter's place of business in a motor car, and take the merchandise to the country on a pretence of selling some rural property at a ridiculously low price. Needless to state the property was not owned by the confederate, the place chosen being usually unoccupied. The confederate usually found something wrong with the car that required repairing, thus delaying the return trip.

When the forger entered the bank and presented the check the manager happened to be discussing an overdraft with the accountant. The man with the check nodded to the manager, calling him by name, and also greeted the teller similarly. The check passer then lighted a cigarette, accepted the money thirty-five dollars in all—and withdrew. But the manager happened to think that only a few weeks previously the business man had delivered himself of an attack on cigarettes and stated that he had not smoked cigarettes in fifteen years.

Galvanized into action, the manager rushed to the telephone and summoned the police. The patrol, containing two bluecoats arrived, and the police ordered to trace the man, who had then a handicap of fifteen minutes. The manager accompanied the policeman and ordered a stop made at another bank. There the check passer was apprehended as he was making his exit, following the successful passing of another thirty-five dollar check.

Had it not been for the keen observation and retentive memory of the manager of the first bank visited, the individual with the checkered existence would have secured about five hundred dollars and made his departure from the city. The confederate would have followed.—W. J. McN. in Financial Post.

TORONTO.—(Can. Press)—From the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research of New York city, Hon. Dr. Forbes Godfrey, Minister of Health and Labor, has secured the release for use in Ontario of that latest medical product, trypanamide, for the cure of general paresis or syphilis of the brain.

In announcing before the Royal Academy of Medicine last evening his successful negotiation for the use of the new discovery in Ontario, the Minister stated that he was establishing a clinic at the Ontario Hospital for Mental Diseases and, as soon as the Department could obtain additional supplies of trypanamide, he would open similar clinics at Kingston, London and other centres.

Using the Sun

Daily Chronicle—The caprices of our climate rarely permit of a long summer—why, then, hesitate to resort to so simple a device as extending dates to the uttermost limits, if by so doing we prolong it? We look forward to enjoying some really fine weather in the latter half of September and the beginning of October, and experience has shown that rarely have we been disappointed. But if summer time excludes these desirable periods people are deprived of opportunities for holiday-making and for open-air recreation in the evenings. They are thus shut indoors, and compelled to work during hours of sunshine, while during hours when they are free from work they cannot take recreation in the open air because there is no longer any daylight.

hustle and the busy give-and-take of life are not without dangers. Unless controlled and co-ordinated the results, two observers believe, are movable minds, and a fleeting vision. There are some who think that schools and colleges have been thus affected and have tended to substitute quantity of information for quality of thought. looseness in detail for clearness in conception, and doubtless some have. Serenity in the individual is a rather certain indication of poise and there is never an excess of that.

A Remarkable Woman

A true story of "Mother" Williams with the Willing Hand and the Brave Heart. Battered bravely on with Fate against her. Though poor and often in want herself, she helped others in their hour of need.

(Written for the Evening Telegram.)
I've paid close heed to the ways of men.

I've observed what the world calls luck.
I am silently marveled, now and then,
At the potent power of pluck.
And this is a bit of truth I hail,
A sentence that's worth one's head:
The man who is always afraid he'll fail
Doesn't stand much show to succeed!

It's a wonderful feeling—this absolute trust and faith. More than once I have saved many a person from despair. And don't you know, when you do really let go of things and do honestly believe that the world's all right, and that your own will come to you, it does. When a thing is made successful, we pronounce it an opportunity. When a thing fails, we call it a lenon, or bad luck. Opportunity lies in your head and in your heart. The truth of the last sentence was brought home to me here lately, when I met an old lady of 72 years, whose full name was Mary Bridget Ann Williams, but is better known by the name of "Mother" Williams.

Mary Bridget Ann Williams was born in the city of Toronto seventy-two years ago, being the daughter of Henry Williams, who handled the real estate holdings of Dr. Bethune, a prominent physician of Toronto, for many years. At the age of three and a half, Miss Williams having lost her mother in death, accompanied her father on a tour of Europe that included a stay in Ireland and a four years' stay in London ere their return to make her home in Montreal, where Miss Williams became a well-known and successful teacher of music, and it is with great pride that she points to several of the present-day celebrities who received their fundamental teaching at her hands.

While attending mass at St. Anna Church, Montreal, in 1887, Miss Williams' father was stricken with heart failure and died in the church, from which he was later buried. In 1888 Miss Williams left Montreal for New York where she supported herself by her music for a few years. Then Fate became unkind to her. She was no more patronized as a music teacher, and advancing age was creeping on her, being reduced almost to penury, she faced the cold world with "the willing hand, the brave heart," and trust in Divine Providence, to succeed and she did.

Against the brief remembered past, With days of varied sun and shade, I weigh the future, how'er vast,
One mind alone the whole hath made.
Why should I fear the unknown, when The Present shows God's care for me,
And if the Past was good, why then I'll wait the best that is to be.

Just think of it, a woman of 67 years standing in front of Shanley's at Times Square on early morning until evening selling newspapers. The people came ten blocks to buy her papers, and with each sale was added the fervent prayer, "God bless you, str." The "Billboard," a weekly theatrical Digest and Review of the Show World, speaking of "Mother" Williams says:

The chances are that we could not have given her any special thought or attention had it not been for the managing editor of The Billboard, who had been attracted to her and her means of eking a livelihood in all kinds of ways.

The managing editor directed us to do something for the old lady and as promoter of circulation for The Billboard in New York City we suggested that she become a sales agent for The Billboard and make her sales during the day instead of at night.

Acting on our advice the old lady became sales agent for The Billboard and the first week sold eight, and it was all we could do to get her to continue, but continue she did until to-day her sales average 40 weekly.

As a self-appointed guardian we titled her "Mother Williams" and by that title she has become a Broadway character known to everyone in the show business from the largest to the smallest producer of Broadway shows and their many players; likewise the police, for it is known to all of them that "Mother Williams" is on personal speaking terms with Commissioner Richard Enright, and more than one cop is indebted to "Mother Williams" for her intercession with the commissioner in their behalf, especially as it refers to the maintenance of the "Police Fund" and the candles that "Mother Williams" burns at the Church of the Sacred Heart of Jesus, for her proteges are innumerable.

Many a heart-sick girl with her head bowed in grief at her misfortune has been stopped by "Mother Williams," who sent her on her way with sufficient money to tide her over until the long sought for engagement was secured. The same is applicable to actors, for on more than one occasion we have seen "Mother Williams" slip them change, and from what she says she has never had cause to regret it, for they have come back and made good the money she loaned them, for with her it's always "just a little loan until you sign up." Five years ago the little old Irish lady did not know one producer or actor from another or what "sign up" meant when she heard it, but to-day she probably knows more and is known to more producers and actors than any other woman in the country, for few if any on Broadway ever pass by without a word of greeting for "Mother Williams" and a "God bless you" from her.

She praised the Chorus girls, and said they were "the Angels of Broadway." It was her proud boast to have heard all the stars, including John McCormack, Chauncey Olcott, and Frisco O'Hara. When told that she had to attend the vaudeville shows at the Columbia Theatre at first she was shocked, but added with a trinkle in her eye "any decent Irish woman can go to see them dancing and hear them singing and enjoy the funny things they do." She oftentimes attends the operas and national concerts.

"Great thoughts and noble, pure and bright—wisdom flashes of the soul—
illumine the chambers of the mind,
And chase the gloomy shadowings
Of darkness that may be felt."

Her greatest ambition was before she'd join the "silent majority," that she'd visit the graves of her father and mother at Montreal and Toronto. The management of the Billboard acquiesced to her wishes and arranged for a two months' sojourn in Montreal and Toronto.

Bruce Noble theatrical passenger agent of the Canadian Pacific Railroad, arranged for "Mother Williams" transportation, her cars while in Canada, and accompanied her on the train from New York City.

Prior to her departure "Mother Williams" was given a farewell party in the offices of The Billboard and presented with a solid silver rosary by the staff, which she wears around her neck and takes great pride in showing to strangers.

During her stay in Montreal she stopped at Ryan's Hotel and the theatrical people gave her a good time. She visited her father's grave at Cafe des Neiges Cemetery and after forty-five years found it in excellent condition with the exception of a little repairing that she had to have done to the base of the tombstone. Before leaving Montreal she said to me, "I don't know how to thank all the good friends that I have met here. I had a wonderful time. Good-bye and 'God bless you, str.'" At Toronto she visited her mother's grave for the first time and returned to New York feeling happy in the thought that she had done her duty to the memory of her dear departed parents. With the shadows creeping near, she'll soon sing her "Nunc Dimittis," being conscious that she fought bravely on to the end, that she gave good measure and running over, and that she "will not pass again this way," that her name will be cherished by many, leaving an example worthy of imitation, and that her trust in God never grew weary, and was never unshaken.

"Thou, Thou art all—the only Love that liveth,
The Friend of Friends that ne'er stood faintly,
When all were gone I felt Thee close beside me,
And heard Thy voice when no one else replied."

Thou, Thou art all! Why should I tear or falter?
Thy staff hath comfort lent this many a year,
Smiling, I take the road beneath the shadow
Let none who watched me shed, one bitter tear!"

Its bearings are entirely bronze and brass; its gears are bevelled and machined so that gear meets gear without a whisper, and when its finely-tempered Steel springs expand, the action is as regular as the swinging of a pendulum, and as quiet as the ticking of a finely jewelled watch.

The New Motor is provided with an oiling system easy to reach and unfailingly effective. Each motor is run for hours, thoroughly tested and inspected before it goes into its cabinet.

The New Columbia has an automatic start and stop. A brand new patent feature for your convenience. The motor starts when the tone-arm is moved over to place the needle on the record. The record stops revolving automatically when the music stops, no matter what the length of the record! You can put on a record and go upstairs or into the next room, finish the dance, or keep your comfortable seat, knowing that when the music stops the record will no longer revolve. In 10,000 times, by actual test, it has never failed to operate.

The New Columbia Grafonola differs from all other machines because it has a more refined, mellow, resonant quality of tone. The things you didn't like about talking machines have been eliminated. There is no nasal noisiness nor strident screechiness in the tone of the New Columbia. It is absolutely true to international pitch.

The New Columbia Reproducer faithfully reproduces all ranges of vocal and instrumental tones. It plays all records better. Records played upon it do not have that occasional blare of excessive vibration or rattle known to talking machine experts as "blast." A patented, exclusively Columbia, spring "Shock-absorber" on the new Reproducer, takes up all excessive vibration, and eliminates that defect of yesterday's machine.

The New Columbia has a patented Tone-control. Each model (including the beautiful consoles) has the "Organ-pipe" tone control leaves, which throw the tone freely and fully instead of straining it through interrupting fabric or lattice-work.

Hear a New Columbia to-day in our Store. It will be a revelation to you to hear how beautifully and truthfully the New Columbia reproduces the music you love. Let us play for you the music you love best, vocal, orchestral or dance selections. Observe the glorious purity of tone. Notice the entire absence of annoying "shrilling." Compare the rendition with that of any other instrument. Your most critical tests will convince you that the New Columbia has actually eclipsed all previous talking machine achievements. YOU WILL WANT ONE FOR YOUR HOME.

OF LAWLESS SPIRITS IN DISCUSSION AMONG SMUGGLERS.

St. John's, Nfld. (A.P.)—The lawless spirits who have served in a year to work changes in the personnel of the St. John's Smuggling Association, Ltd., the unregistered, unincorporated organization of highlanders dare the risks of running a "rum row" from the ships that come to the harbor. The "rum row" has started again. With the approach of the holidays there are five steamers and three schooners anchored out there. Last January there were fifteen at one time, and small smuggler boats swarmed about them.

The smuggler boats are not so far away and there are left but few of the lawless spirits who carried on their extensive smuggling of last year when "rum row" was first started off Ambrose Lightship, and a dozen are gone. Six are still the bodies of four on the sea off the Hook, and two, upon whom the law has set a price, are without a country but do not still remain in the illicit trade. Their places have been taken by others, but their going and the manner it took a deal of the darlings, and of the bragadocio, from their hides. There is no more widespread unloading of whiskey cases on small docks in the Strathmore. There is no more daylighting up of boats by the runners. Extensive protective measures such as equipping of the larger "scout" boats with radio to maintain communication with the shore, have been taken. The rum and ale are at night in a post-room or night lunch-room, but there is none of the loud brag of last year, none of the bragging such as "We brought in 100 cases to-night" or "To 'blazes with the agents."

The "Blackie Dan," the biggest and best of all the smuggling crew is gone down with his feet which say one night was struck by a pound shell from a Government gun. And "Whiskey Will," the big one whose defiance of the Government agents always was outspoken, was shot in the head. His boat capsized in the heavy sea when he was running from a coast-guard. Two others fell overboard while dumping their gear as a fast coast-guard boat sped toward them. The half dozen now in jail talked much and were taken one night to the mainland. "Jim Dandy," the tall, slender fellow who was Jim's first venture as a runner, and it was successful, for the highlanders, eager to paralyze their comrade, untied his boat first, and he has gone back for another year before Christmas, with "star" for their plum puddings and Tom and Jerry.

Fresh, pure sweet and wholesome, that is Crisco—the ideal cooking fat. Every home should use Crisco. It is colorless and smokeless and gives marvelous results in cakes and pastry.

What this country needs is not a new birth of freedom, but the old-fashioned $2. tower berth.
