Here again we cannot stop to particularize, but must refer our readers to the prize list already published. Mr. Allan's collection is an exceedingly fine one, and it will be noticed that he has the largest proportion of prizes, compared with the total number of his entries, of any exhibitor in this department. Amongst others he took first prize for buff Cochins, dark Brahmas, black-red game, duckwing game, black-Polands, black Spanish, golden Polands, white Leghorns, Aylesbury and Rouen duckings, &c., &c.

A Warning. the fire on Saturday afternoon cannot fail to have forced on the attention of every onlooker the fact of the serious danger which threatens the town in the event of a fire breaking out in a large manufactory or in the midst of a crowded group of build-ings. The disagreeable truth can-not be put aside that after all the money which has been spent upon the tanks, the steam fire engine, the organization of the fire brigade, and the attendant expenses, we are still without any sufficient protection from fire. Why need we prolong this eventful history? The plotters being baffled by their plot being discovered and defeated the termination of our story comes naturally of itself, and no further incidents of any great interest remain to be described.

of any great interest remain to be described.

One event is, of course, eagerly anticipated by our readers—vis, the marriage of Philip and Annabel. Of course that took place in due time. Not immediately though—not quite immediately for certain things had to be done, and certain painful explanations made, ere the happy issue could be reached.

First, Annabel's health had to be carefully attended to. Her cruel imprisonment, with the physical privatations and mental anguish attendant upon it, had given a shock to her system which took considerable time to overcome. Her strength had been reduced; her nerves had been shattered; her whole being unstrung; and chese ravages required time to repair. And where do you suppose Phillip took her to recruit? To Rockstone? No; but to Mrs Dobson's, at No. 4 Banwell Row—to the old room, and the scenes of the old happy life which had been hers ere the night of that adventure in Woolman's Lane, from which had sprung all the experiences of good and evil which the past months had witnessed.
