Germany About to Erect Barracks Along the French Frontier.

THE BULGARIAN DIFFICULTY.

Russia Refuses to Take Part in a Conference — Serious Floods and Loss of Life in Queensland—Gladstone to the Electors of Liverpool —The Pope and German Affairs.

London, Jan. 28, midnight.

A Denial.

The commanders of the French forces on the frontier deny the rumors that Germany is making extensive war preparations.

Floods and Loss of Life.

Serious floods have occurred in Southern Queensland. Fifty-eight persons were drowned, and much damage done to property.

"Barrack for Barrack."

Germany has made arrangements to at once erect barracks at various points along the French frontier, "thus answering France" as the despatch from Berlin giving the intelligence says, "with barrack for barrack."

Some Hard Language.

Mr. O'Brien, in a speech referring to Mr. Chamberlain's condemnation of the "plan of campaign," said Mr. Chamberlain's life during the past year had been a lie, and that his turning against his friends made him equal to an assassin.

A Revolution.

News has been received of a revolution among the inhabitants of the Maldid Islands, in the Indian Ocean. The Maldives became incensed at the result of the failure to remove certain grievances. They invaded the palace, deposed the Sultan and installed his nephew in his place.

A Nationalist Demonstration.

A Dublin despatch says:—Bands of music and crowds of people assembled outside Kilmainham Jail this evening and serenaded the Nationalist Moroney, who was imprisoned for refusing to testify in his bankruptcy case, arising out of the adoption of "plan of campaign."

Rivalry Caused the Fatal Panic.

The Secretary of the Hebrew Dramatic Union, under whose auspices the performance of the "Spanish Gipsy Girl" was being played in the hall at Spitalfield, when a cry of fire caused a fatal panic, testified before the coroner to-day that the panic was caused by the Secretary of a rival club.

A Letter from Gladstone.

Mr. Gladstone has written a letter congratulating the Liverpool electors in their success in their "struggle against the personal and official influence of Mr. Goschen, the intervention of Marquis of Harlington and the belief of our antagonist that we seek to sever the Union. "On the contrary" says the letter, "we desire to convert the Union into one of cordial and perpetual affection instead of one of force.'

The Danish Elections.

The elections for members of the Folkething were held to-day throughout Denmark. Most of the former Deputies were re-elected. The result in 22 districts is uncertain as yet. The party of the Right gained two seats, and Copenhagen returned a Right Deputy from every division excepting one, where the votes have not yet been counted. Two Socialists returned at last election were defeated. All the Ministers seeking re-election were successful.

The Bulgarian Throne.

The Novoe Vremya says Russia will abstain from offering any opinion as to the suitability of the Duke of Leuchtenberg as a candidate for the Bulgarian throne until she is convinced that the other powers will approve of him. The same payer says the Duke of Leuchtenberg was fully qualified to fill vacancy as Prince Nicholas of Mingrelia. A Constantinople despatch says:—Russia refuses to join a formal conference on the Bulgarian question. When a settlement has been effected the Ambassadors will meet to give a concrete expression of their decisions.

The Pope and German Affairs.

The Frankfort Gazette has a dispatch from Rome saying that the Vatican is surprised at the assertion of members of the Prussian Government relative to the attitude of the Pope. Prince Bismarck, the dispatch says, promised the Pope the complete abrogation of the May laws in return for the Vatican's influencing Centre oratory to vote for the Septennate. To this proposition the Pope responded that he was unable to interfere, but that he had caused the leaders of the Catholics to know that he would be pleased if members of the Centre were found voting for the Septennate, consistent with their political duty.

Public Alarm Renewed.

A Berlin despatch says:—At a court reception at Berlin to-day Emperor William informed the assembled officers that 72,000 men of the reserves would be called out immediately and be drilled in the use of the new repeating rifle. This announcement, taken in connection with the reported words of the Crown Prince Frederick William, at the same reception that the situation was still serious renews the public alarm. With regard to the summoning of reserves, Emperor William, in his conversation with army generals at the Court reception to-day, said:—"This action will produce loud rumors of war, but there will not be war. The reserves will be called out only to accustom them to new weapons.

Cable Notes.

Mr. Goschen has had the refusal of thirty Parliamentary seats.

The last series of eviction at Glenbeigh, County Kerry, commence to-day.

An official decree has been promulgated at Lisbon imposing heavy duties on imported manufactured tobacco.

A Dublin despatch says the people of Achill Island are preparing to repel the sheriff, who is on his way thither to execute fifty ejectment writs

Two thousand employes of Balckow, Vaughn & Co., iron masters and steel manufacturers, of Middlesborough, struck to-day. The proprietors threaten to close the works.

Advices from Vienna say the issue is expected of an official order prohibiting the exportation of horses from Austra-Hungary, it being feared that the closing of German markets to foreign buyers might result in an excessive draw upon the Austrain markets.

The Prince of Wales will visit Ireland in April and be present at the Punchestown races. He has taken Newlands, near Clondalkin, paying $5 000 for ten days' occupancy. This visit has doubtless been arranged by Lord Londonderry, and will give splendor to his viceroyalty.

The most promising of all the Jubilee schemes yet floated is a women's subscription of from a penny to a pound. This is being thoroughly organized on a system which will ensure every village in England being canvassed. The Queen herself takes more interest in this than in any other single plan.

The Committee of the Volkspartee has issued an address, in which it declares that the leading questions before the electors of Germany is the preservation of constitutional rights; that if the Reichstag admits the claim of the Government, that it has authority to fix military charges, the people will no longer have power to avert an immoderate increase of taxation and the creation of monopolies.

THE FISHERIES IMBROGLIO.

Conference Between Lord Salisbury and Minister Phelps—A Rupture not Probable—The Cruiser Middleton on the Watch.

London, Jan. 28.—Minister Phelps had an hour's conference with the Marquis of Salisbury to-day, at the Premier's request, to discuss the Canadian fisheries question. The conference was most cordial on both sides. Lord Salisbury expressed himself gratified at the general tone of the American press and people in the dispute, and he assured Mr. Phelps that England and Canada were equally desirous of an amicable adjustment of the whole case.

Washington, Jan. 28.—In the Senate to-day Mr. Frye read a telegram from Eastport, Me., stating that the winter school of herring had struck into the American shore, and that about twenty-five English boats and vessels were there fishing within the shore line, and that meanwhile the English cruiser Middleton was cruising between Eastport and St. Andrews ready to seize any American fisherman that might venture beyond the dead line.

New York, Jan. 28.—Secretary of War Endicott said here to-day he did not believe a rupture would take place with England.

THE GREAT STRIKE.

The Departure of Atlantic Steamers Delayed.

New York, Jan. 28.—The big strike remained practically unchanged to-day. The Britannic, of the White Star Line, was delayed 30 hours, and completed coaling with the assistance of the crew this morning, and started on her voyage to Liverpool. Much cargo was left behind. The steamer Helvetia arrived yesterday, but will not begin to discharge before to-morrow. The steamer State of Georgia was delayed 25 hours and sailed for Glasgow to-day. Of the Guion Line, the SS. Wyoming is being unloaded by non-union men, and will probably leave on time. The Cunard Line SS. Gallia is being coaled by sailors. The Inman Line SS. City of Chicago has about 200 non union men at work, and will leave on time. Of the Anchor Line, the steamer Devonia is doing fairly well, and will be able to get away the first of the week. She should leave to-morrow. Numerous other steamers are delayed on account of the strike. Representatives of the strikers say that if the present move does not prove effective orders will be given for other workers to quit. Regarding the new men they say that as fast as these are set to work they are to be organized and brought over to the union. Longshoremen employed by the New York and New England Railway struck this morning. In Brooklyn the strike is still in full operation.

A MINERS' STRIKE IMMINENT.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Jan. 28.—There is more or less excitement here this evening among workingmen over a rumor that a general strike of miners will be ordered, possibly on Monday. Delegates from all the Local Assemblies in the coal region met here to-day and this evening in secret convention. It is understood the strike will be called in response to an appeal from the striking coal handlers, asking miners to come to their rescue. The feeling among Knights is that the struggle for their rights must be fought out now, as the triumph of the coal companies would mean the demoralization of their organization and loss of confidence in it by the laboring classes.

An Exciting Scene at a Revival.

East Saginaw, Mich., Jan. 28.—At the revival meeting at the Methodist Church last evening a lady had a bad fit, and piercing screams startled the whole immense audience, which nightly throngs the church. It took four strong men, amid considerable excitement, to carry her down stairs to the parlors of the church. She shrieked all the way down and struggled fiercely. One gentleman was kicked violently in the face. The revival has been in progress two weeks and 400 conversions are reported. Five churches are represented.

Frozen to Death.

Elk Rapids, Mich., Jan. 28.—Thomas Palmer, better known as "Uncle Tom," was found frozen to death yesterday in a field a few miles north of here. He left the farm house for Robinson's wood camp the evening before, and evidently became bewildered and lost his way. He had St. Vitas' dance, was unable to work, and was an object of charity. The thermometer was above zero at the time.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

OFFICIAL STATEMENT REGARDING THE FISHERIES QUESTION.

The Government will Maintain the Rights of Canada, with Every Desire to Conciliate the United States—Discussion Regarding Evictions in Ireland—The Debate on the Address Resumed.

London, Jan. 28.—The subject of dispute between the United States and Great Britain in regard to the Canadian fisheries, was brought up in the House of Commons this afternoon. Sir James Ferguson, Parliamentary Secretary of the Foreign Office, in answer to inquiries, said the Government had been conferring with the Government of the United States on the question. The Canadian fisheries, he said, were very valuable, and the Government had followed the policy concerning them which had been adopted by preceding Governments, and would maintain the rights of colonists, with every desire to conciliate the United States. The Government were unable at present to narrate the whole course of the negotiations with the United States, but could state that despatches had been received which were of a pacific character, and afforded material grounds for hope of a final settlement of the dispute.

THE IRISH EVICTIONS.

Mr. Fryen (Liberal) asked the Government what they had done to prevent the burning of dwellings from which tenants had been evicted at Glenbeigh, Ireland. He also asked whether Gen. Buller had tried to obtain concessions on rent for the tenantry in Ireland.

Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, Chief Secretary for Ireland, replied that General Buller had not interfered until some seventy evictions had been executed, when he tried to influence the mortgagees toward greater leniency. The Government said he had no legal right to go further than this. "There is," continued the Chief Secretary, "one real remedy, and that is to remove these poor people from the poverty-stricken districts." (Cries of "Shame!" "Shame!" and "No!" "No!")—"with their own free will," went on the speaker.—(Cries of "No!" "no!" "never!" "shame,")—"to some other place in Ireland. A great and prolonged uproar here ensued.

The Speaker interrupted the proceedings at this point, and notified members that cries like "shame!" would be rigorously suppressed.

Sir Michael Hicks-Beach then said.—"All I wished to say was that the very poor people living in poverty-stricken districts should be removed to other parts of Ireland, or else where they could live in prosperity and comfort." (Conservative cheers.) If those who take an interest in this matter desire to promote such a settlement I will be most delighted to give every aid in my power to any action they may combine on to bring it about."

William Redmond (Parnellite) asked:—"Does the Government approve the action of the authorities in burning the houses at Glenbeigh?"

Sir Michael Hicks-Beech—"It is not my business to express my opinion on that point." (Conservative cheers.)

The subject was then dropped, and the debate on the address in reply to the speech from the throne was resumed.

DEBATE ON THE ADDRESS.

Mr. Saunderson (Conservative) made a vigorous attack upon the Land League which, he said, had manufactured the present crisis in Ireland. It ought to be crushed if Ireland was to be made contented and happy. The object of the "plan of campaign" was to overthrow the authority of the Crown. He believed the "plan" had more or less commended itself to Mr. Gladstone.

Mr. Gladstone shook his head in the negative.

Mr. Harrington (Nationalist) replying to Mr. Saunderson, contended that the "plan of campaign" was better than the pressure which Sir Michael Hicks-Beach exercised for the same purpose.

Mr. Fry (Liberal) said he thought if Sir Michael Hicks-Beach was unable to give any opinion, or suggest a remedy for the Glenbeigh affair, he ought to follow Lord Randolph Churchill's example.

Sir Michael Hicks-Beach said he thought Mr. Fry's remarks unfair. The Government had in view proposals for the amelioration of the condition of Ireland. It was because he had concerned himself very much, even going beyond his ordinary duties, to prevent the sufferings alluded to, that he had been misrepresented and charged with the "plan of campaign." The "plan of campaign," he continued, meant a combination to force landlords to accept what tenants chose to offer (that sum to be further reduced next year), or leave the tenant in possession of the land, rent free, and then raise a cry about hardship of evictions for the purpose of deceiving the country. (Cries of "oh!" "oh!" and cheers.) The Government was obliged to do its best with the tools in its hands, but with the difficult delays of the criminal law as it existed it had not sufficient power to cope with such proceeding as the plan of campaign.

The House adjourned.

BRITISH POLITICS.

MR. SMITH'S REPLY TO MR GLADSTONE.

England and the Fisheries Question—Churchill Fails to Justify His Course—Scotch Home Rule Movement.

London, Jan. 28.—Mr. Gladstone's remarks in the House of Commons last night showed that he does not intend to challenge the address, although he will support the amendments relating to evictions.

Hon. Wm. Smith, replying to Mr Gladstone's speech, justified the defensive estimates, which were lower than those of the previous year, he contended. The Cabinet, he said, were arranging for the best possible means for government. They had instructed Sir Wm. White, Minister to Turkey, that it was their desire to uphold the freedom of Bulgaria consonant with the Treaty of Berlin and with due satisfaction to Russia. Hon. Wm. Smith then announced the reduction of the army in Egypt. Proceeding to the fishery question he assured the House that the Government was most anxious to do everything in its power to effect a satisfactory settlement of the dispute (cheers). The Dominion has assumed a most moderate attitude on this subject. The policy of England had ever been to maintain its colonial rights, but in this case there were two countries honestly desirous of arriving at a settlement, and no effort would be spared on the part of the Government to effect that settlement in a fair, equitable and amicable spirit (cheers). With regard to Ireland, Mr. Gladstone had it in his own hands, as the head of the National party (laughter), to exercise an influence that would result in such a state of order in Ireland as would justify the Government in proposing measures for the benefit of the Irish people. The plan of campaign was really responsible for a large amount of the misery existent in Ireland. In conclusion, he hoped that the debate on the address would be brought to a timely close, enabling the Government to proceed with necessary legislation.

Lord Randolph Churchill's speech was marked by unusual prudence, an utter absence of temper and a careful avoidance of everything that might wound the feelings of his late colleagues. His obvious reticence deprived his explanation of its expected interest. The general opinion is that he altogether failed to justify his desertion from the Cabinet at a critical time, although he denied that he regretted having taken the step. The whole tenor of his speech left the impression that he did regret his action and that he was ready to co-operate toward his return to the Ministry. The interest of the House centered in the letter in which Lord Salisbury accepted Lord Randolph's resignation. It was dated the 22nd of December. In it Lord Salisbury said:—"The outlook on the continent is so very black it is not too much to say the chances are in favor of war at an early date. When once it has broken out we shall not be secure from being involved. Therefore, we cannot accept the responsibility of refusing supplies which the War and Navy Ministers declared necessary." When this portion of the letter was read the House rang with approving cheers. Lord Salisbury's pacific declarations, which were given at the same moment in the House of Lords, were designed to check any alarm that might be caused by the disclosures in the Commons. On the whole, the Government is thought to come well out of the incident. The Tories complain that Lord Randolph Churchill's speech has produced the impression, which it was probably intended to produce, that the Government's foreign policy is reckless and dangerous, and they think Lord Salisbury ought to reassure the country as soon as possible. The Liberals are delighted at the outlook.

The Right Hon. Osborne Morgan, member of Parliament for Denbighshire, will, in the Commons to-day, ask the Government what movements have been made in the Canadian fishery question.

The Post, referring to the Queen's speech, says:—"The speech again exhibits lamentable proof of the Government's want of touch with the country, lack of guidance of party and failure in command. It was a sad tactical error to expose Goschen to defeat in Liverpool when a safe seat might have been found for him." The Post thinks the sacrifice of Lord Randolph Churchill might have been avoided, and says it is idle to conceal the fact that the session opens under unhappy auspices.

The Times fails to understand why Churchill ever joined the Cabinet. His statements in the Commons yesterday exhibit extraordinary levity in dealing in great national issues, and singular lack of coherent reasoning.

At a meeting of Scotch members of Parliament it was resolved to take Parliamentary action in favor of Home Rule in Scotland.

Richard Power, member of Parliament for Waterford, is about to resign his seat in Parliament on account of ill-health.

The Parnellites have re-elected Parnell Chairman of the Irish Parliamentary party, and Justin McCarty Vice-President. To-morrow they will again discuss the question of proposing amendments to the address.

The Parnellites at a meeting resolved to ask Healy and O'Brien to return to Parliament. O'Brien, however, decided not to return at present.

The Government's proposal for reform of the procedure rules of Parliament leave numerical limitations for enforcing the cloture the same as before, but transfer the initiative for demanding cloture to any member who has obtained the Speaker's consent to make motions. Motions to adjourn the House and discuss business of urgent public importance, which have been dependent hitherto upon the consent of forty members, shall not in future be made without consent of the Speaker, to whom a statement on the subject proposed to be discussed must be submitted in writing.

The Nordenfeldt gun which arrived at Ottawa a few days ago for Capt. The Montreal Gazette, speaking about the state of trade, says:—"There has been a satisfactory amount of progress in the volume of business, but the situation has not assumed any new phase. As the year progresses, evidences of the healthy state of trade receive renewed confirmation, and now, at the close of the first month of the year, a healthy and confident feeling prevails in all departments.

THE NATIONAL POLICY.

Its Effect on Two Local Factories.

"COULDN'T LIVE WITHOUT IT" THE VERDICT RENDERED.

The Importance Attached to the Maintenance of the Present Tariff.

A representative of the FREE PRESS fell into conversation with Mr. J. M. Dufton, proprietor of the woollen mills on King street, yesterday, and, knowing that he had opened business in the city since 1878, he was asked:—

"What effect has the National Policy had on your business?"

THE N.P. OF GREAT BENEFIT.

"It has been of very great benefit," said Mr. Dufton. "We could not begin to run if it were not for the National Policy."

"Have you increased your business, as a result?" asked the reporter.

"Yes; we have increased it a good deal since we came here," was the reply.

STEADY EMPLOYMENT.

"Have you been able to give steady employment to your hands?"

"Yes; we have given them steady employment."

"How do the wages now paid compare with your commencement?'

"We pay more," answered Mr. Dufton, "and are very much better able to do so."

"What effect would the abolition of this policy have on your business?"

RUIN WITHOUT THE N P.

"It would ruin us," was the emphatic reply. "It would kill our trade altogether. They would bring in their surplus and cullings from the other side, as they did before, and undersell us."

"Then you regard the maintenance of the National Policy as a matter of some importance to you?" asked the FREE PRESS representative.

"Yes; decidedly. Without it we could perhaps struggle along just as manufacturers did before; but there would be no safety, no assurances of trade."

Another

STRONG OPINION.

A few minutes after parting with Mr. Dufton, our representative came in contact with Mr. J. Fox, proprietor of the new scale works.

"How long have you been in business, Mr. Fox?" was the question asked.

"Six years" was the reply.

"Has the National Policy had any effect on your business?"

"Do you belong to the London FREE PRESS," said Mr. Fox rather sternly, "and yet ask me such a question as that. Why, sir, THE NATIONAL POLICY BROUGHT ME HERE, and I couldn't remain here if it were not for that. I was just making up my mind that I should have to get out, if the Government were changed."

"Then you regard it as of some importance to you?"

"The very greatest.

IT IS EVERYTHING TO US.

We go right in for it, seeing that without it we couldn't live."

"Have you been enabled to enlarge your business?"

"Yes; by fifty per cent., undoubtedly."

The activity in Mr. Fox's shop indicated that trade was brisk just now, at anyrate.

What is Thought of Blake in Manitoba.

From the Manitoban.

As a member of the Mackenzie Administration, Mr. Blake was utterly impracticable and unscrupulously ambitious. He quarreled with his leader, and had not the courage to stand by him on any matter of importance where opposition was encountered. He wound up his career as a Cabinet Minister by retiring from the Government in a huff; shortly afterwards supplanting, by means of base intrigue, the leader of his party. Never has Canada known a more impracticable and less trustworthy politician than Edward Blake.

We are told that Mr. Blake is "pure." What about his correspondence with the rebels, immediately prior to the Saskatchewan uprising? What about his letter in favor of "My friend Moore?" What about his declaration that he did not propose to make the Riel scaffold the platform of his party and his course since then?

Mr. Blake is as dishonest as he is unpatriotic. He opposed the construction of the C. P. R. He did all in his power to thwart the carrying out of that enterprise. He has made speeches that are still used as immigration literature by American railway companies. He has constantly sought to exalt his party at the expense of his country, and himself at the expense of everything else.

Mr. Blake is a designing, unscrupulous, self-seeking politician. "Simply this." Anyone accepting his own or the Grit estimate of him will be greatly deceived.

EAU ANTI-NEVRALGIQUE

DR. RIEGGER, PARIS.

AN INSTANTANEOUS CURE FOR THE FOLLOWING COMPLAINTS:

Cephalalgies, Facial Neuralgia, Headache (not Gast), Earache (Neuralgia of the Ear), Toothache (Dental Neuralgia), even if the teeth are decayed.

This Water, the efficacy of which is generally acknowledged, is not a drug; it is simply a perfumed water which has medicinal properties.

A large number of French and foreign doctors have tried it with much success in cases of neuralgia when all other known remedies had failed.

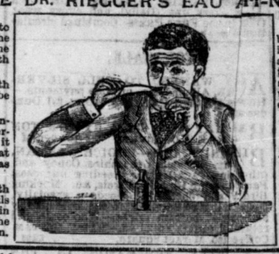
They use it with the greatest satisfaction because of its rapid action, its extreme simplicity, and its perfect harmlessness.

Druggists speak of it with much enthusiasm, and with knowledge, since all stores where this product is sold keep flasks for trial, and not a day passes without it being experimented on, either by the incredulous or by those who need it.

This water must be inhaled exactly as directed, for if the mode be not strictly conformed to, only a slight relief would be obtained: the aim of this liquid would not then be performed, its action being curative not merely palliative.

If after having inhaled once only, a slight relief is obtained, it is necessary to repeat the inhaling immediately. If a person does not wish to follow this advice, it is of no use his buying a bottle. The best way to use it is to precede the inhaling of the liquid by trials made in an empty spoon.

SEE TESTIMONIALS WITH EACH BOTTLE.



HOW TO USE DR. RIEGGER'S EAU ANTI-NEVRALGIQUE.

Pour a few drops of the liquid into a teaspoon and inhale it through the nostril on the side affected, in the same way as you would take snuff, but with greater force and more rapidly

Always close the opposite nostril with the finger, so that the inhalation will be stronger.

If, after inhaling, the pain is not entirely soothed, this means that the operation was not well performed, and it should be commenced over again at once, and continued until the pain has entirely disappeared.

If pain is felt at the same time on both sides of the head or gums, both nostrils should be used to inhale, but each in succession, care being taken to close the opposite nostril while one is in operation.

NOTICE.—The liquid should never be poured in the hand, for the inhaling is then never perfect. For toothache, also use the nostril. In the course of time, this Water loses its color, and a sediment is seen. This should in no way be noticed, as it does not alter the quality of the liquid.

To convince purchasers, we have placed in all stores where the Water is sold, trial flasks to be used on the premises.

This liquid is simply a vegetable compound, of a certain strength, perfectly harmless. The odor is agreeable. The results obtained have justified the preference which its extreme simplicity and its rapid action, although accompanied by no disagreeable sensation, have gained for this remedy. If employed for toothache, this Eau Anti-Nevralgique has a double advantage; it instantaneously alleviates the most excruciating pains, even if the teeth are entirely rotten, and it does not present the inconvenience of a number of elixirs which, when placed upon the tooth brush burn the gums, and very often increase the pain instead of soothing it. A number of hospital physicians have declared in their testimonials that, having tried this water on patients suffering with obstinate neuralgias, they obtained immediate and permanent relief; but they themselves made the remark that it must used as indicated.

This liquid has, in addition to its healing qualities, that of being entirely harmless, so that it is useless to specify the number of inhalations required, and which may vary according to each one's constitution. It can be inhaled either before or after meals, but only when there is a pain.

The simply nervous complaints above described must instantaneously disappear under the influence, even if they have become chronic, and resisted the action of sulphate of quinine.

If these complaints are accidental, one or two inhalations will be sufficient to completely stop all neuralgic pains, and even the most violent fits.

If they are chronic, several inhalations will be required, and each to the neuralgic pain will be healed at once, and will then again make its appearance only at more and more distant intervals, with an ever decreasing intensity, and it can again be stopped by one or more inhalations.

Nevertheless, there have been a great many cases where persons subject to neuralgia since fifteen or twenty years have been cured by five or six inhalations.

Sleeplessness, which is brought on by neuralgia, and is the beginning of serious illness, must also not be forgotten. As this water instantaneously stops neuralgia, which is itself the cause of somnia, the patient suffering no more, may soon go to sleep.

Mr. M. Mr. Somerville will kindly smoke that!

A chicken pie in a King street boarding house recently caused those who nibbled at it to double up like a jack-knife, in consequence of severe cramps. The scientific boarder discovered that the sickness was caused by the presence of gases between the pie crusts. This shows the danger of making chicken pies with gases. Pies built in this manner should have a burner attached to them and be used for illuminating purposes only. This is a matter calling for immediate action on the part of the Board of Health or Ald. Moore's Committee. For years the boarding house chicken pie has caused many of the most honored and respected citizens of this beautiful city to go about bow-legged and full of fetid breaths, ill will and cramps. What is wanted is a by-law making it compulsory for people who engage in the construction of a chicken pie to insert at least a few tail feathers, a wish bone or a hen's cackle between the crusts. The citizens have a right to the fullest protection in this matter. No chicken pie which cannot cackle, flap its wings and lay an egg should be considered genuine.

THE EMERSON PIANO.

Instruments That Have no Superior at Home or Abroad.

Among the well-known and reliable pianos, none is more worthy of commendation than the "EMERSON," for these instruments have commanded the admiration of the most prominent musical artists of the new and old world. The one particular feature of Emerson pianos, to which we would call special attention, is their uniformity as regards high quality. The loudly heralded winning of an award at any of the numerous competitive exhibits or fairs held in this country or abroad, is far from being conclusive evidence of the superiority of any one make of pianos, for there is hardly a prominent piano manufacturing concern that is not able to give an excellence to an individual instrument that may secure a medal or diploma.

The true test is to honestly and fairly judge of the merits of the instruments of a house by the uniformity of their output. This is where the Emerson pianos excel, as any one of them will be found to be as good as the best instrument of any other make. This is a strong statement, but it will stand, and is attested by the thousands of Emerson pianos now in use all over the United States and Canada.

The distinctive merits of these instruments are their rich, sweet and sonorous tones, and their perfect and durable mechanism. They have the valuable quality of standing in tune longer than almost any other make of pianos, and this makes them exceptionally good instruments for private families, Conservatories and Schools. In exterior finish and ornamentation these pianos are as perfect as the use of carefully selected and well seasoned lumber and skilled workmanship can make them. The Emerson manufactory is one of the most imposing industrial establishments in Boston. The equipment of that factory represents all that modern inventive genius has produced and money can buy, in machinery that will expedite and perfect production, while the various departments are all under competent supervision and every operation is completely systematized. They manufacture Square Grand Upright and Cottage Pianos, and have made valuable improvements in the latter class, which are now growing so popular, and are turning out about one hundred pianos per week.

The public are cautioned against all "imitations" of the genuine, and also so-called "just as-good-as the-Emerson" Pianos. Emerson Pianos do not receive their popularity and the patronage of Kings, Queens, Presidents, Princes, Khans, Khedives, or other unknown and distant dignitaries by "purchase," or semi-occasional "gifts" of Pianos specially constructed for them, but always "get there," with an appreciative public, solely on their own merits.

These world-renowned Pianos have been controlled in Western Canada for over fifteen years by Mr. Chas. F. Colwell, of this city, during which time he has sold many hundreds of them to the best people in the land. Emerson Pianos have no superior and very few equals. Nearly forty years in existence, with about fifty thousand pianos in use, the Emerson Company and their representatives have reason to feel proud of the unparalleled success and universal satisfaction that has crowned their united efforts to please their thousands of patrons, and Emerson pianos well deserve the name they have—the "People's Favorite."

Intending purchasers are cordially invited to visit "Colwell's Popular Music House," 171 Dundas street, and thoroughly test these beautiful instruments to any reasonable extent, when their great superiority will make itself manifest to all unprejudiced judges. Correspondence solicited, and all business promptly and properly transacted.

TWO BRUISED BULLIES.—All those who desire at this particular juncture to pose as pugilists appear destined to meet with mishaps, and George Harding seemingly is no exception to the rule. He has of late blossomed out as an exponent of the prize ring, having figured in two or three local matches, the last being with one John Raisin. Since that time there has been bad feeling between the couple, and it is alleged that Raisin boasted of his intention to "do up" the other man before he left the city. On Thursday night Harding had been drinking considerably, and it is stated that he encountered Raisin on the street, when a fight was only prevented by police interference. Finally the two, with their friends, drifted down to the Britannia House, where a social party was in progress. Here it appears the quarrel was renewed, and two versions of what took place are given. One is that Harding insulted Raisin repeatedly until the latter became unable to endure the language used, and administered to Harding a very severe pounding. Another version is that Harding was very drunk, while Raisin was sober, that he quickly started at Harding, knocked him down, and began pounding him about the face, while a brakeman friend kicked the fallen man with heavy boots. At any rate Harding's face is said to be in a shocking condition, being bruised, swollen and cut almost beyond recognition. No arrests were made in connection with the affair. It is about time the authorities came down severely upon so-called exhibitions of pugilism—and those who indulge in them—which only serve to engender ill-feeling between the contestants, and which are regarded with disfavor by the public as contrary to law.

REMITTING THE TAXES.

The Business Principally Done by No. 1 Committee Last Night.

When No. 1 Committee of the City Council met last evening Ald. Bowman occupied the chair, and there were also present Ald. Davis, G. Taylor, Dreaney, Greer, Mayor Cowan and the Secretary, Mr. Pope.

The Chairman reported that the Court of Revision had decided that the application from the National Insurance Company for remission of income tax came up too late to be dealt with.

Mr. Waddell again appeared on behalf of the Company.

The matter was filed, the Committee having no power.

A communication from Benjamin Randall, against assessment on sewer, and the Engineer's report relative thereto, were read. Application granted.

The Secretary reported progress re petitions of James McCarthy and Mrs. Grant, Mrs. Hanafin and Miss Bremner.

From Mrs. Nichols, for remission of taxes and Inspector's report. One half remitted.

From Ellen Fletcher (through Rev. J. B. Richardson), for remission of taxes and Inspector's report Remitted.

From Margaret Johnson to the same effect, and Inspector's report Filed.

From Ann McDonough and Inspector's report. Remission granted.

From Mrs. Raison and Inspector's report. One half remitted.

From Joseph Dubois, for remission of income tax on the ground that he only earned $370 last year. Remitted.

From Mrs. Black and Inspector's report. Remission granted.

The matter of the Assessors was then taken under consideration.

The Chairman said they had probably better settle how many Assessors they wanted, and what part of the city they should have.

Ald. Greer thought they should commence at the bottom of the matter. There were several applications for appointment, and the Council did not know their qualifications. He would suggest or move that a committee be appointed to examine these applicants to see if they were qualified.

His Worship asked if any special powers had been given to the committee.

The Chairman replied that there had not—the committee were to report back.

His Worship thought Messrs. Grant and Buckle were virtually appointed, and they wanted to appoint the assistants. He moved that the names of all applicants for the position of Assessors be referred back to the Council, with a recommendation that two Assessors be appointed from the list, and that in the meantime a By-law be prepared confirming said appointment, and that they, along with the Assessors formerly appointed, be instructed to proceed at once on the 1st prox to assess the city in accordance with the statutes defining their duties.

Mr. John Boyd addressed the Committee in regard to property owned by his father, which was now advertised for sale for some $8 of back taxes. He explained that one half of the lot had been bought by his father from Mr. Coombs, there being a mortgage on the lot. The purchase money was only sufficient to cover the mortgage, and there was some $8 of taxes left, which the late Mr. Brown and Coombs agreed should be charged to the north half still held by Mr. Coombs. The taxes had been paid promptly since, and he objected to pay anything of the taxes. Referred to the Council.

The matter of fixing the salary of the Assessors was left over for the present.

Harvey Washington Babcock, being present, was asked to address the Committee, and said he did not want a very bad salary.

The Chairman asked what he wanted.

Mr. Babcock said he wished to be appointed assistant Relief Officer, but he did not expect a large salary. He had lived for thirty-three years, and was poking around, so he could do good, as the Chairman and others knew. He did not want a big salary, for if he could get about $200 a year he would be satisfied. He was informed that there was no intention of making any such appointment.

Mr. Jeremiah Loughlin applied to here an error in the amount charged in his tax notice corrected. The minutes of last year were read, showing that the city collector had been instructed to have the correction made in the collector's roll.

The Secretary was instructed to see the correction made at once.

From Widow Nash—For remission of taxes. Inspector.

From Mrs Cline, F. Kenny, Eliza C. Adam and John Dean—For remission of dog tax. Inspector.

An account of $10 was read from James Veach for use of a polling booth.

The Secretary said that $4 had already been passed for Veach, the same as others received for the booths.

It was decided to recommend that Veach be paid $4 for use of the booth and $2 as compensation for the trouble caused in his store.

The following accounts were passed:—No 1 Committee accounts—E H. Kordes, $70.85; E. A. Taylor, $22 19; election expenses, Local Legislature, $12; do., municipal, $14 50; proportion maintenance Court House and Jail, $1,155 98; proportion repairs, $110.82; No. 2 Committee accounts, $114 17; No. 3 Committee accounts, $491 54; J. Gatecliffe, relief meat, $3 22; total accounts, $1,995 27.

Adjourned.

LONDON TALENT AT TORONTO.—The Mail, referring to the success of the Burns anniversary concert at Toronto on Thursday night, says:—"A special feature of the proceedings was the dancing of two boys from London, Robbie Burns and Frank Wilson. Both acquitted themselves well, but special mention is due to the dancing of 'Shawn trews' by Robbie Burns. His Highland fling has won him prizes everywhere he has appeared, but last night was the first time he essayed in public the difficult 'Shaun trews" dance, and his exhibition would have done credit to any of the best dancers of the day. For graceful movement, ease and precision it would be difficult to find his equal. On being recalled he stepped forward to the piano and dashed off a medley of Highland airs with equal ease. Frank Wilson danced the Sailor's Hornpipe admirably, and was recalled. As to the singing, the artistes were all well received and encores were the order of the evening. Where everyone pleased so well it might seem invidious to particularize, but the tribute instinctively paid by the audience to the singing of Miss Annie McNeill, London, and may be heartily endorsed. She possesses a sweet voice, which she holds in good command. Her enunciation and manner tell much in her favor also. Her rendition of "Bonnie Prince Charlie," and "I'm Glad my Heart's my Ain," point to her as an able successor to Miss Maggie Barr in the field of Scottish song.

GRIT UTTERANCES.

Hon. D. Mills tells us in his issue of Friday that the National Policy is a "yoke",—which must be painfully borne. One is thus able to see how impervious the Grit mind is to the march of events, to the teachings of experience. Take that trio composed of Mr. Mackenzie, Sir Richard Cartwright and Mr. Mills, all of whom were in the Grit Government—and how do they describe the National Policy? Mr. Mackenzie termed it a "national crime, a national disgrace;" Sir Richard called it "foolishness," and a "stupidity," and Mr. Mills deems it a "yoke"—to be borne when it cannot be helped, and thrown off as soon as possible, as all "yokes" should be. So we get a very clear insight as to what is passing in the Grit mind at the present time concerning that measure. They are in as strong opposition to it now as ever, and would no doubt deem it to be their duty to uproot it upon the first opportunity. And they are asking the people to-day to give them that opportunity. They call upon the electors to support them in their hostility to a measure which more than any other legislation enactment has tended to help the cause and promote the happiness of the people at large. Mr. Blake is just now engaged in attempting to slide and shuffle concerning it — as he has already done on the matter of prohibition. But your Clear Grit is not satisfied with his negative position on these important issues. The Hamilton Times said a day or two ago: —

"A protective tariff is a corrupt argument, and systematic scheme of bribery, "and we can hardly imagine a man like "Mr. Blake having any real sympathy "for it."

And then the Witness is not satisfied either, and speaking of Blake's coming visit to Montreal, says:—"He should be "subjected to a severe heckling on the "prohibition and protection questions." Mackenzie, Cartwright, Mills, the Hamilton Times and Witness no doubt express their opinions with considerable frankness when they talk as they have done and are doing. But as for Mr. Blake, he is a dodger. He twists and squirms on all issues, and it is almost impossible to find out from anything that he says what it is he really means. The Witness has not been satisfied with his utterances, and asks that he be put through a process of "severe heckling" in order to elicit his bottom opinions. But he will slip away, eel-like, from the Witness, and set up a sea of mystified phraseology, under cover of which he will seek to escape the issues. His three principal colleagues in the Grit government have been sufficiently explicit, however, and the public has been earnestly entreated by them from time to time to regard the National Policy as a curse upon the land, the removal of which should be heartily desired and quickly brought about. It is as well that all persons should know just where to find these aspirants to popular favor, let Mr. Blake creep in and out as he may.

The body of "Blind Cooper," whose wife was found frozen in their humble home on Thursday, was also found. The case is an extremely heartrending one. The blind man lived on a country road, near Horseheads, N.Y. and was going to his home on Tuesday night when the thermometer was below zero. By mistake he turned into a field by a log road, and, once in the field, he could not get out. His tracks in the inclosure cross each other in every direction, showing that the unfortunate blind man had tramped many miles before finally succumbing to the bitter cold. Exhausted at last he fell into the snow and perished almost within a stone's throw of the farmhouse.

The Lucknow papers report an awful tragedy which has taken place in the Leicestershire Regiment. Some privates in a detachment stationed at Ranikhet owed a grudge against the Sergeant of their company and vowed vengeance, so they actually dealt round a pack of cards, having agreed that the man to whom the ace of spades was dealt was to "do" for the offender. The card fell to a young private who, when the Sergeant entered the place where they were assembled, at once took up his rifle and shot him dead. The murderer has been sentenced to death, but Sir Frederick Roberts had not confirmed the sentence when the mail left.

SIR CHARLES TUPPER.

In our issue of Jan. 13, the opinion was hazarded, though without any precise information, that Sir Charles Tupper would soon return to the Cabinet, probably as Minister of Finance, in pursuance of a rearrangement of portfolios. That this has come about, therefore, has not taken our readers by surprise. It will, however, be a cause of deep satisfaction to the whole country. There has been no more faithful servant of Canada, in any of the high positions that he has filled, than Sir Charles Tupper. In former times his presence in the public counsels was a source of great strength to the Liberal-Conservative party, and to the country, and latterly still more so by what he has done in England as High Commissioner. That his old popularity in Nova Scotia has not dwindled is seen in the fact that on his return from England he was at once met by a deputation from his old constituency of Cumberland, and presented with a numerously signed requisition asking him once more to contest the county and again to represent the cause of the Union in opposition to those who were endeavoring to disrupt the federation, and for their own personal ends raising the cry of secession. He has felt under the present circumstances that it is his duty to waive all personal considerations, and again appeal to the people of Nova Scotia for an expression of confidence in him. Sir Charles has every confidence in the good sense and sound judgment of the great mass of the people of Nova Scotia. He believes that the cry of secession was mere clap trap raised for purely political purposes, that the sober second thought of the Province would be opposed to any severance of the ties which binds the Province to the Dominion, and acting on the conviction, he determines to take his stand once more as the supporter of Union. Of his success there is no reasonable doubt. It is confidently expected that his presence in the contest will ensure the return of a large contingent of the adherents of the National Policy and Federal system from Nova Scotia.

NORTH MIDDLESEX.

The campaign in North Middlesex has opened well for Mr. Timothy Coughlin. The same hearty efforts as formerly continued in his behalf will certainly put him at the head of the poll by a largely increased majority. And Mr. Coughlin deserves the support of the Liberal-Conservatives of the north. He has stood by the good cause faithfully during his eight years of Parliamentary life. When he first put his shoulder to the wheel there was much work to be done. The fortunes of the party were not as flourishing as they have since been. But Mr. Coughlin, by dint of hard, consistent labor, added to the excellence of the cause which he championed in 1878, came to the front in a triumphant manner. In 1882 he was again returned by a large accession of strength, having not only redeemed the riding in the first place, but piled up the very substantial majority of 126. On personal considerations, Mr. Coughlin has a strong claim upon the good will of his former constituents. He has been ever ready to serve the people at the call of duty, and has never spared himself while anything for their advantage was to be done. On general grounds he is entitled to support as a consistent advocate of the policy of Sir John Macdonald and the great Liberal-Conservative party, to whose services the country so largely owes its present advanced position and commercial importance. Mr. Coughlin has been again accepted as the Liberal-Conservative standard-bearer, by a fairly-chosen convention. Let it be a common duty, then, to unite for the triumph of Liberal-Conservative principles on the 22nd of next month by such a majority as will show that North Middlesex is still true to the good cause, and in the return of Mr. Coughlin show that it has neither any sympathy with mischievous sectarian cries, nor desire to see Gritism re-establish itself in the House of Commons for this noble Riding.

CAPITAL PUNISHMENT.

The report of the New York State commission appointed last winter to take into consideration more humane methods than hanging of carrying into effect sentences of death passed upon convicts will shortly be made. The commission consists of Hon. Elbridge T. Gerry, of New York; Matthew Hale, of Albany, and Dr. A. P. Southwick, of Buffalo. In prosecuting their inquiries the commission issues a circular letter to judges, lawyers, members of the medical profession and others, inviting answers to the following questions:—

First—Do you consider the present mode of inflicting capital punishment, by hanging, objectionable? Please give the reasons for your opinions.

Second—Were you ever present at an execution, and, if so, will you kindly state details of the occurrence bearing on the subject?

Third—In your opinion is there any method known to science which would carry into effect the death penalty in capital cases, in a more humane and practical manner, than the present one of hanging? If so, what would you suggest?

Fourth—The following substitutes for hanging have been suggested to the Commission. What are your views as to each? 1, electricity; 2, Prussic acid or other poison; 3, the guillotine; 4, the garrote.

Fifth—If a less painful method of execution than the present should be adopted, would any legal provision as to the disposition of the body of the executed criminal be expedient in your judgment, in order that the deterrent effect of capital punishment might not be lessened by the change? What do you suggest on this head?

A large number of replies have been received which reveal wide differences of opinion. Some favor the present system of hanging; others favor electricity, and again some favor other methods. The weight of opinion, however, was against hanging. It is believed that the final report of the commission will recommend the adoption of some form of electrical apparatus for the execution of the penalty for capital crimes.

CONDITION OF THE COUNTRY.

In his able address the other day, President Darling, of the Toronto Board of Trade, sustains the position taken by the FREE PRESS with respect to the growth and prosperity of the country. Mr. Darling is politically opposed to the Conservative party, but he is not so blinded by prejudice as to ask an intelligent people to believe that the Dominion is going to the dogs. He knows better. He is a business man, and his opportunities of seeing the operation of our fiscal policy are superior to those of Mr. Mills, whose cardinal doctrine is that nothing can prosper with a Tory Government in power at Ottawa. What, however, does Mr. Darling say in opposition to Mr. Mills' views? He says:

"The extent to which our country has been favored, with a healthful climate, freedom during the year from plague and pestilence, a bountiful harvest vouchsafed, peace in our borders, and employment for willing hands with reasonable remuneration, should call forth the deepest gratitude of our industrious, law-abiding, freedom-loving, self-governing people."

The President of the Toronto Board of Trade does not believe that our industries are stagnant, but that the present time is characterized by "employment for willing hands with reasonable remuneration." This is cheering. It shows how utterly absurd is the cry that the N. P. has been a failure, a humbug and a snare. Of the growth of our resources Mr. Darling says:

"We may assume, however, that the steady growth and development of our resources which have taken place during the year just closed will continue."

This is also inspiring. It points to the stability of our trade, and gives encouragement for the future. It will be remembered that less than a year ago the Grits were howling out that the collapse of N P. influences had come. A false stimulation had been given to trade by the new tariff, it was said, and now the reaction had set in. The croaking of these birds of ill-omen has not been fulfilled. In the face of that bilious outcry the country is in a state of prosperity unparalleled in its history, and it will continue to be so. The people will see that the men who have so prudently administered our affairs during the last eight years shall continue in office, to give confidence to those whose means and labor are dependent on the maintenance of the present wise policy.

THE CANADIAN VS. THE AMERICAN NORTH WEST.

The Lethbridge News gives the following striking and yet accurate account of the condition of public affairs in Dakota, which is earnestly commended to the attention of such Manitoba and North-west people as are disposed to accept the Grit dogma that they are misgoverned and oppressed while the Americans are comparatively "free and happy." The News says:—"The present position of the people of Dakota, although it may not appear in any humorous guise to them, certainly presents a humorous aspect to outsiders. Already the unfortunate territory is possessed of two governments, and a constitutional convention, now in session at Huron, is taking steps for the formation of another. The first of these is the regular Territorial Government, which, like our North-west Council, is partly nominated by the Government and partly elected by the people, who claim jurisdiction over the whole State. Then there is a so-called State Government, claiming to be the Government of Southern Dakota, which assembles at Huron for the pretence of transacting public business. This last also boasts of its own governor, minor officials and legislature, with all the paraphernalia of a mock Government. The constitutional convention, before alluded to, has decided to submit to the will of the people in November 1887, the following question: "Shall the State Government in all its departments go into operation on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in January, 1888?" There is no doubt but that the answer to this question will practically be unanimous, and unless the authorities at Washington resolve in the interim to concede the required privileges, the sisterhood of States will be astonished by the attempt of half a territory to burst forcibly into their Union. The question is certainly one which will require all the consideration that the Federal Government can afford, for should Dakota be solid in insisting upon its rights, it would appear well nigh impossible for the other States to prevent her from attaining them. However the matter goes, we who live under a government that has already conceded to its territories that representation in Federal Councils which our southern sister refuses to a territory with a population of half a million, have no cause for desiring to change our nationality."

HYPNOTISM.

The extraordinary experiments conducted at the Saltpetriere by Dr. Jean Martin Charcot, one of the greatest of living neurologists, and by his assistant, Dr. Babinski, are said to have renewed in Paris both the popular and the scientific interest in the phenomena known as hypnotism. Dr. Charcot's eminence as an authority on nervous diseases gives great importance to the statement made by him to a correspondent of the Herald regarding these explorations of the borderland so long occupied almost exclusively by the quacks and charlatans and cranks and sensationalists.

The experiments consist of attempts, more or less successful, to transmit nervous disease from one person to another person in whom it can be cured without difficulty. Dumbness, paralysis, neuralgia, hysteria and kindred affections are thus treated by Dr. Charcot. The patient is seated back to back with the man or woman to whom the disease is to be temporarily transferred. Both are put into the hypnotic state—that is to say, into a condition in which the hypnotized loses the power of originating ideas and becomes subject to the will of another. As has been known for years, the power of suggestion upon a hypnotized person is so great that he will writhe with pain if he is touched with an imaginary hot poker, or, on the other hand, will submit his flesh unflinchingly and without pain to the real branding of red-hot iron, if he is told that he will suffer nothing. The method of Charcot is to transfer by this process of suggestion the symptoms of nervous disease from the original sufferer to the substitute, and to pass it on, if necessary, through a third and fourth person, until it disappears by attenuation.

CURRENT TOPICS.

It is gratifying to hear from British Columbia that the people are going in there "as fast as the province can absorb them."

In Bavaria it is not good form for a lady to shake hands with a gentleman until she is very well acquainted with him, and no unmarried woman is allowed to speak on the street to any of her friends of the opposite sex, no matter how well she may know them.

It has been charged against Hon. Mr. Carling that he has given "perpetual contracts" to certain builders of this city. That is not deemed a fault, however, but a virtue. It is well that he has had it in his power so to benefit the city. Let us have some more "perpetual contracts." It all tends to the good of labor, and that is the best kind of politics after all. Send along the "perpetual contracts."

A car of Lake Winnipeg whitefish was shipped from Winnipeg over the C.P.R. to Buffalo on December 29th, and was delivered to the consignees on January 7th. The distance between these two points is 1,775 miles, and the freight train made over 250 miles a day. This is about the fastest on record for freight. When it is considered that the United States markets are ready to consume all the whitefish Canada can send to them, and that the Manitoba Lakes are teeming with them, the possibilities of the trade by means of the Canada Pacific Railway can be imagined.

which I mainly intend to write this time, viz :—

s the raising of cattle and the feed-them for the butcher pay at present

In order to place my views plainly be-re the public on this important branch of ne of the greatest industries of Ontario to-day, especially after a lapse of seven or eight years of almost unprecedented high prices in our history, and, now that the inflation has come, and is universally known and accepted by all throughout the European, American and Canadian markets, I believe it can be made remunerative when thoroughly managed, with the results accruing therefrom, when properly applied to the farmson which the industry is carried on. The raising of stock for the purpose requires to be well bred, and of that type known as the short legged, broad, deep flanked cattle, with good crops or a good heart girth;

broad foreheads and full eyes. When you raise or buy cattle of that type I maintain they can be fed for profit to th feeder. In the first place, the farmers that follow a mixed husbandry and sell the cattle in the fall for grazing or feeding prposes at 3c per lb. live weight pays. As they should weigh 1,200 lbs., making $36 at two years old off, or winter them so as to not lose in weight throgh winter at 4c per lb., making $48 wen ready for grass on the first of May, will pay.

The farmers whose lands are noadapted to grazing, or are using their lands for other industries, and wish to feed for spring markets, 5c per lb. liveweight.

Therefore a steer or heifer weighing 1,200 lbs in the fall, when fed as they should be, will weigh 1,500 lbs in the month of May, showing value $75, leaves $39 toay for feed consumed through the winte of the $39 to feed through the inter, I maintain it pays, when the importt object is considered—the keeping up the fertility of your farms.

Bear this in mind, that this calcuion

I find that cattle weighing 900 to 10

And in order to build up and perfect th industry, that moves along hand to ha with the other great industries of r country, which we all are proud f,

Gentlemen, we need a more thorogh knowledge of the breeding of cattle, he feeding to attain the best results to ar-selves, and establish a trade and reputon over the great waters, as our cheese indury has. This I hold can be done. If we dour duty to our stock Ontario can compe in any of the markets of the world. As I stated in the prefsce that I favored a fixed husbandry, the value of the manure rom good feeding when applied on the lan explains itself in our every day observions.

The large increare of the yield per re is seldom truly accounted for over the products of other lands, although it i well tilled. I ask, what are the results? Are you not bound to admit that thee is a difference of at least 10 bushels peracre on all grain crops, and nearly half on root crops every year. Further, it is almost indispensable that you should raise roots for stock if you make cattle-raising asuccess.

And in conclusion it might be well to define what I consider the best pasturage, or the grasses that give the best results. I find the natural grasses, better known as spear grass, or blue and white clover stand far ahead throughout all of the grazing sections of Ontario. In fact, you cannot expect a constant supply for the whole season of any other. Consequently, it is not safe to depend on what is termed meadow land as pasture until it has been pastured for a number of years, and not then unless the natural grasses have taken place of the timothy and clover. In fact, if your lands do not grow the natural grasses they will never be profitable as grazing lands. And the older the pasture

the greater will be the yield of beef, butter and cheese. Also, the most productive pastures that I have taken account of are lands that were never ploughed.

Therefore, you will not understand me to advocate all lands fit for the grazing in-contrs. Neither do I recall or every person to in grazing or feeding cattle.

all well know that all men are constituted alike. A man might be a cess in cattle-raising and a failure in ree dealing or the cheese trade. And, believing this, I advise every man not to mistake his calling, as every person has a work and a duty to perform. Then it should be our every day work to assist in perfecting each other in the industries which we have engaged in. And if any of you are engaged in an industry that you are not at home in, get out and apply your talents to the industry you incline to. If we do this we can strengthen each branch of our agricultural industries, that we may in the near future stand first among the agriculturalists of the world.

When we consider the prominent position that Ontario's educational system has taken above any other known, and considering our proud position, as is shown by statistics, which are only second, or I might say we are almost first, according to population, as a producing people, I hold that gatherings of this kind are the very best factors to cement, perfect and build up a character, and thoroughly establish ourselves in the sciences, old and new, requisite to the practical advancement of all our industries.

We have the soil, the pure water and healthy climate.

Then, with a never failing determination, Ontario will march first in the van of agricultural productiveness.

Anæmia or Paper skin.

There is little danger of too frequent urging upon those who have the care of sheep during the winter the necessity of continual watching, lest some one or more of the flock becomes anæmic, and therefore pretty sure to die in early spring. Lambs are more liable than any others of the flock to this diseased condition, in which there is a gradual lessening of the quantity of blood in the body, and hence a positive reduction in the vital force. The disease is very insidious, its first coming on never being apparent, except to the eye of a watchful shepherd, who knows each individual of his flock and notices the increasing daintiness in choice of food, and a peculiar look about the eyes which is apparent to a skillful shepherd, but can not be described intelligently. When an animal once gets into this condition it gradually, but surely, loses flesh, and as soon as the first warm days of spring come, the appetite, hitherto stimulated by cold weather, fails entirely, and the animal soon dies.

There is generally a good cause for this condition. It is usually caused either by indigestion, or by the presence of internal parasites, and this, to a great extent, accounts for its unnoticed beginning. Occasionally we see a flock more or less anæmic from the attacks of ticks, but only a few persons comparatively suffer these never-satisfied parasites to remain on a flock for any length of time. But the presence of internal parasites is not so readily noticed, and these vermin, practically out of reach of vermicides, are left to absorb the very life of the animal. In this country, lung-worms — strongylus filaria — are the most common internal parasite, as the "fluke" so destructive to flocks on the moist, flat pastures, of England, does not thrive in our drier climate. It is almost impossible to administer a medicine which will reach these lung-worms in the tissues where they are imbedded, without injuring the animal infested by them. The administration of pure turpentine in some form has been recommended, but it is by no means certain that enough of the drug gets into the deep tissues to destroy, or even seriously incommode the parasites. Alcohol is absorbed into the blood almost immediately after it is taken into the stomach, and a solution of turpentine in alcohol is probably the most "searching" medicament which can be prescribed for the destruction of lung-worms.

We have tried most of the popular remedies for anæmia caused by the presence of lung worms, and are undecided whether to attribute any good results which occurred to the use of the medicine, or to the good care given to the infected animals. While it is so difficult to kill or drive out parasites infesting the stomach and bowels, it does not look reasonable to suppose that such parasites as flukes or lung-worms can be reached by any medicament yet devised. Still, there can be no harm in trying the experiment, and it is possible that it may, at least, prevent any increase, or even a comfortably flourishing condition of the parasites. The vital point is to give the affected animals the best of care, the best of food, and the warmest shelter compatible with free ventilation. Food which the weakened animals can digest easily, and in quantity, must be provided. If the anæmic condition proceeds from indigestion, the same rules will hold. In this case, little or no medicine is needed. A disordered stomach can not be improved by adding to its already severe labors in digesting the quantity of food needed to support the animal. The "condition powders" needed are mainly bran and ground oats, instead of corn or medicaments of various kinds.

The stomach needs relief rather than more work, hence the food should be lighter and given more frequently, in smaller quantities at a time. But when all this is said and done, it is one of the hardest things a man ever undertook to bring back an anæmic sheep to normal health and strength. The disease is very slow in coming on, and it is still slower, if anything, in going off. When one has done all he can, he is pretty sure to lose a few sheep out of an anæmic flock, and often these very sheep are the ones he considered the nearest cured. In many cases, if only one or two are attacked, it is the better way to kill them, sell their pelts, and feed the carcasses, after cooking, to the fowls. If the disease is parasitic it prevents its further spread; the owner is saved much trouble and expense and has a better-looking and more valuable flock in the spring.—National Live Stock Journal

It is well to consider whether selections from litters for breeding purposes have not usually been made upon a wrong basis, in that the very refined specimens of the litter have been retained in preference to the stronger and better haired. These stronger pigs may not have the fattening tendency so manifest as in some of those of lesser size and more refined make-up. Especially may this not be so at an early age, owing, in a great measure, to the fact that the style of pig here mentioned grows more rapidly, gets more frame and size than the very fine sort; but if bred right, they respond duly to feed and fatten well when the proper time comes. Of course, they do not make the show hogs, with the form and finish these are expected to present, but they make the strong hogs of the herd, with a little more bone, and not infrequently considerably more hair, are better able to stand inclement weather, and when fatted and hung upon the hooks, show creditably at every point.

Intelligent Horse Breeding.

A writer in Wallace's Monthly says:—"The average farmer should be an intelligent horse breeder, if for no other reason than that self-interest demands it. Agriculture, we are told, is the first and noblest of the sciences, and stock raising is the right arm of agriculture. Set this truism side by side with the acknowledged fact that horse breeding is pre-eminently the first branch of stock raising, and what other conclusion can we come to than that the average farmer is unacquainted with the laws of nature governing propagation in animal life? The farm is, after all, only a factory wherein the farmer converts 'raw material' into that form in which it finds the most ready and profitable sale. He knows, then, that he must consult the market, and to cater to the tastes and requirements of those whom he desires for his customers, he must know how to produce the sort of animal they demand. If the farmer goes to the brick maker and finds that he does not know the primary steps necessary to convert the clay into bricks, he will not hesitate to decide the man who undertakes to make even so simple a thing as a brick without thoroughly knowing how.

And yet that same average farmer would be highly indignant were we to tell him that he ought to learn something about the natural laws which govern in the transmission and reproduction of characteristics, qualities and capacities in animal life before he undertakes to reproduce (call it manufacture, if you will) an animal of such complex and delicate organization as a horse. The great trouble with the average farmer is that he doesn't read and doesn't think sufficiently concerning the chief branch of his business, and a word or two may now be in season concerning some of his commonest mistakes in horse breeding.

"One of the every-day stumbling blocks of the farmer is that nuisance he so frequently resorts to—the cheap stallion that perambulates the country roads. That the day will come when the scrub must go we all know—nevertheless that time has not yet arrived, and in certain sections, for many a day yet, the stallion that insures for four or five dollars will flourish. Sometimes a farmer will breed to his neighbor's cross-roads prodigy, not because he likes the horse, but because he likes his neighbor, who would be much incensed were his animal passed by for the higher priced one of the stranger. But the majority breed to cheap horses simply because they are cheap, in the vain hope that something may come from nothing. Coupling two ciphers will not create a unit, nor can you get a horse worth something by coupling parents that are worthless. Of all the penny wise and pound foolish courses which a farmer can pursue, that wretched system of economy which prompts him to go to a poor stallion at five dollars in preference to a good one at twenty-five or fifty dollars is the most disastrously impolitic. Added to the wasted time of his mare and the paltry stallion fee is the cost of raising the colt. Assuming that it costs fifty dollars a year to raise a colt, and counting the mare's service as nothing, the scrub at four years old costs over $200, and there is not one such colt in a hundred worth $200 at four years old, or at any age. A well bred colt costs but very little more than a scrub, and is always profitable. But we will be told that after paying the higher fee and breeding to the high bred horse, a poor colt may be the result. That is quite true—it may be so; but such a result would be an accident, an exception to a pretty uniform rule, whereas by breeding to the poor animal you are sure to get a poor colt. Now, which chance would a reasonable man take?"

Poultry Pickings.

The matter of having winter eggs is comparatively simple. Much wisdom of specific foods is not necessary. Good warm roosting quarters, with a small protected place for exercise in the coldest times, and a variety of food warmed and fed regularly to good hens are the essentials. Without these few eggs will be returned for food consumed.

One gobbler may be mated to any number of hens, from one to a dozen. As a rule, from ten days' to two weeks' service of the male bird is sufficient, and after all the hens have commenced laying he may be shut up away from them. He certainly should be shut up while the hen turkeys are sitting, if he is at all inclined to worry them, for a whole nestful of eggs may be spoiled by his attention to the sitter.

Where is is objectionable to have "chanticleer wake the morn" with his noisy throat, it is said a small lath, loosely suspended about eighteen inches above the perch will prevent this. It in no way interferes with the bird's roosting, but the moment the crowing fever comes on, the swinging lath comes gently into contact with his comb and gives him a gentle reminder to keep still until he can get out on the fence. The rationale is, in the act of crowing the bird stands up and then stretches his neck to its full extent.

While a great variety of breeds of fowls, with their numerous crosses, may show that you are trying all kinds, to determine the best, it gives less satisfaction, as well as less profit in the end. Breeding to one breed and to one type and for one purpose, in that breed, gives most satisfaction, whether the breeding is in cattle, horses, hogs or poultry. What pride is taken by those poultry-raisers who can point to a whole flock of chicks that are uniform in size, color and general appearance, and even in the comb, feather bare, etc.! They remark, too, that every pullet is expected to lay regularly after January 1st, or that those uniformly large male chicks will bring the top of the market for early broilers.

In the various rules for estimating the amount of hay in bulk, not enough difference is allowed for the variation in weight depending on the condition when cured, the exposure to rains and other causes. The same sorts will have much less weight in proportion to bulk after being dried out by a cold winter. Hay that has been bleached by long exposure to rains will always be light in weight, and be proportionably less valuable than even its weight would indicate. The soluble juices which give hay its greatest value have been washed out by rains, leaving an undue proportion of woody fibre. There is besides a considerable variation in the original constituents of grass and hay, depending on the character of the soil on which it is grown. Farmers on wet, mucky and overflowed land complain that their large crops of hay do not pan out well when brought to the weighing scales. Timothy grown on such soil has coarse, hollow stems, with smaller proportion of leaves. Such soils are often deficient in mineral fertilizers, and a dressing of phosphate when the land is seeded makes the crop better and the hay richer and heavier. Still, this coarse hay is salable and does not exhaust the soil as does hay grown on upland. This may be one reason why the bulk of hay sold is grown on low, mucky or overflowed lands.

A fortune awaits that adept in palmistry who can accurately read his opponent's poker hand.

Agricultural Abstracts.

If any employe on the farm uses tobacco, smoking in barns or other buildings should be strictly prohibited. More farm buildings burn from the carelessness of smokers than from any other cause, and insurance, however large it may seem, never, in farm buildings, replaces the loss sustained. An employe careless enough to smoke in barns or sheds among hay or straw is usually not trustworthy at other times or at any other work.

Some cows after dropping one or two calves obstinately refuse to become pregnant again. They are often good milkers, and this seems sometimes to be one cause of the difficulty in conceiving. When they go dry they may be got with calf again, but it is too expensive keeping a cow nine months, or possibly more, before getting any return. Practically, cows thus bearing only occasionally are barren, and should be turned off to the butcher when they again go dry.

There is no economy in using old wagons on the farm. If the money spent in repairs were reckoned at the end of the year it would make big interest on the cost of a new wagon, besides loss of time, of temper and often waste of crops. It is poor policy to pay $10 to $20 in patching up an old wagon, when a new one can be bought for $50 to $80. When the new wagon is purchased it should be kept well painted and under cover, else it will soon be an old one. Exposure to the elements injures wagons more than active use.

Salt is one of the best materials to on manure heaps in winter. It will keep them from freezing during very cold weather, and when it is warmer will keep the heap moist and prevent fire-fanging. Salt in connection with carbonic acid gas is an excellent solvent, and it is a good fertilizer for land containing a large amount of vegetable matter. Of course where salt is applied on manure piles it should be where it will not be long exposed to rains, as its power to make fertilizers soluble will then cause loss. But if the manure is to be at once drawn on the field there is little danger from this, as the fertility will be absorbed by the soil.

If the egg shells are thin it is a sign that lime is lacking in the food, or often, if this occurs in winter, that fowls cannot get to the ground to fill their gizzards with gravel needed to digest food properly. Leghorn hens and other persistent layers generally have very thin-shelled eggs despite all precautions in feeding. Many losses of eggs while undergoing incubation occur from this cause. To prevent eggs from being thin-shelled it is better to give milk and wheat middlings mixed rather than rely on fowls eating a sufficiency of lime in any form. If egg shells are fed they should be pounded so fine that all appearance of the egg will be destroyed. More fowls learn to eat eggs from having nearly whole shells thrown to them to pick at than from any other cause.

Where the hay is put up rather green it may be saved in good condition for feeding by mixing with straw. The surplus moisture of the grass is absorbed, and with it much of the aroma which gives good hay its delicate flavor. It can hardly be said that the nutritive value of the straw has been made equal to hay by this process, for its constituents have not been changed. But in making straw more palatable there is a decided gain in its nutritive value, as whatever is eaten with a relish is digested so much better than that which is not. If straw and hay are to be stored together next summer the straw must be saved in good condition now. Many farmers who well know the benefit from this practice scarcely ever try it, for the reason that at haying time the old straw is all gone, and that from the new grain crop is not yet threshed.

Chemical analysis shows that wheat bran has a manurial value of $14.59 per ton at the same rate for phosphate of lime, nitrogen and other fertilizers as is paid for commercial manures. It is especially rich in phosphates, and these in feeding to stock go into the manure, except with rapidly-growing animals, when they are worth still more to go into bone and growth. It is not, therefore, good policy to use bran directly as a manure. Feed it and what of manurial value it has will be mostly returned to the soil and in more available form for use by plants. There is scarcely any part of the country where farmers cannot afford to buy bran for feeding milch cows, working horses or young stock of any kind. It is excellent for all these, and the manure made by feeding it will repay most of the first cost.

In selecting seed corn that with small cob, especially at the butt end, should have the preference. It is more easily husked, ripens earlier and is less likely to be injured by curing. The moisture in the cob in contact with the germ prevents it from drying out rapidly, and if severe freezing occurs at this time the germ is injured. This is the great trouble with the Western Dent corn, which, with its deep grains set in thick ears is rarely got dry until it is frozen. Much of the corn land in the West is so wet in the Fall that teams cannot be got on it to draw off a crop until after the soil is frozen solid. The Dent corn has often a small cob, and it is particularly important with this variety to select the seed so as to keep it small. A crop with thick, heavy cobs shows that the corn is running out.

A novice with swine need not go into ecstacies upon receiving a shipment from a Berkshire breeder, simply because the specimens received do not show any more white than the standard prescribes, and that this is distributed just where the books say it should be, to show pure breeding. Nor that the snout is not too long to meet the approval of modern notions. While color markings are well enough, taken at their value, they are nothing more than finger-boards, pointing out the hog men may be in quest of, but after he is found there is much required outside of these markings, and in seeking for breeding sows to propagate from, men want, by all means, such as will bring pigs that, if dropped in a cold night in March or April, will at once seek the teat, move around and get up a vigorous circulation instead of stretching out limp, giving two or three weak squeals, and then a last spasmodic kick.—National Live Stock Journal.

TAR AND TOLU.

It is important at this season of variable temperatures to insure against the settling of a cough or cold which, if neglected, may result in a serious throat or lung affection. Dr. Oakwood's compound syrup of tar and tolu is a panacea alike for the simple and more aggravated forms of these common but troublesome ailments. Ask your druggist for it. tuts

HEALTH AND HOME

HOW EYE DISEASES SPREAD.

To mention a few of the modes of contagion, I have to speak in the first place of towels, especially of that abominable institution known as the roller towel, which has been used so much in asylums where forty, fifty or more children use the same towel, whether they have granular lids or not. True, in a great many cases the existence of granular lids was not known; but even in cases in which the existence of the disease was evident the ignorance or carelessness of the persons in charge has allowed transmission by means of towels to be one of the most frequent sources of contagion. As a carrier of contagion the house fly pays an important role, especially in cases of young children, who are not able to protect themselves against the visits of this little animal. Attracted by the sweetish color of the discharge. It will settle upon the eyes of children affected with the disease, especially infants, and carry the contagion in its claws to the other eye or the eyes of other sleeping infants.

Spectacles may be the carrier of the contagion. I remember the case of a young lady who could not explain satisfactorily how she came to have granular lids. Upon her return to school she mentioned that she had granular lids, whereupon one of her classmates said: "Why, that is the disease which I have been suffering from for the last six months." This classmate was near sighted and used glasses. My patient was also near-sighted, but had not used glasses, and whenever she wanted to see anything at a distance she was in the habit of borrowing the spectacles of her friend, and there is no doubt in my mind that this was the means of carrying the poison from the classmate's eye to my patient's eye.

Children with granular lids are very apt to rub the eyes, because the secretion as it begins to dry on the edges of the lids causes an irritating, itching sensation. They will now play with other children, and from their hands transfer the poison to the hands of the other children, and these latter, rubbing their eyes contract the disease. Handling objects which have been used by persons with granular lids may be the means of carrying the contagion. A young lady who volunteered to teach children affected with granular lids that had been isolated from other children in a certain institution, was warned to be extremely careful with regard to using handkerchiefs, towels, or anything belonging to the children. She was well aware of the danger and promised to be very careful. She handled nothing whatever, she said, that belonged to the children, left her cloaks outside, and in the class-room kept away from the children a distance of five or six feet. But upon examination of her eyes fourteen days after she had taken office, it was found that she began to suffer from granular lids. Upon enquiry I found that she had been taking the copy-books and slates of the children for correction, and in all probability she got the poison from the slate and books on her hands, and then conveyed it to her eyes. A teacher of another section in the same institution was more careful; she simply walked into the class-room, did not touch anything belonging to the children, and for two or three months during the duration of the epidemic she was not affected by the disease. The atmosphere had evidently not been the carrier of the contagion in the first case.

RESTING AFTER MEALS.

Hurried eating of meals, followed immediately by some employment that occupies the whole attention and takes up all, or nearly all, of the physical energies, is sure to result in dyspepsia in one form or another. Sometimes it shows itself in excessive irritability, a sure indication that nerve force has been exhausted; the double draught in order to digest the food and carry on the business has been more than nature could stand without being thrown out of balance. In another case, the person is exceedingly dull as soon as he has a few minutes of leisure. The mind seems a dead blank, and can only move in its accustomed channels, and then only when compelled. This, also, is an indication of nervous exhaustion. Others will have decided pains in the stomach, or a sense of weight, as if a heavy burden was inside.

Others, again, will be able to eat nothing that will agree with them; everything that is put inside the stomach is made the subject of a violent protest on the part of that organ, and the person suffers untold agonies in consequence. Others suffer from constant hunger. They may eat all they can, and feel hungry still. If they feel satisfied for a little time, the least unusual exertion brings on the hungry feeling, and they can do no more until something is eaten. It is almost needless to say that this condition is not hunger, but inflammation of the stomach. Scarcely any two persons are affected exactly in the same way, the disordered condition manifesting itself according to temperament and occupation, employments that call for mental work, and those whose scene of action lies in-doors, affecting persons more seriously than those carried on in the open air and those which are merely mechanical and do not engage the mind.

All, or nearly all, of these difficulties of digestion might have never been known by the sufferers had they left their business behind them and rested a short time after eating, instead of rushing off to work immediately after hastily swallowing their food.

Nature does not do two things at a time, and do both well, as a rule. All know that when a force is divided it is weakened. If the meal were eaten slowly, without preoccupation of the mind, and the stomach allowed at least half an hour's chance to get its work well undertaken before the nervous force is turned in another direction, patients from dyspepsia would be few.

A physician once said:—"It does not so much matter what we eat as how we eat it." While this is only partly true, it certainly is true that the most healthful food hurriedly eaten, and immediately followed by work which engages the entire available physical and mental forces, is much worse than a meal of poor food eaten leisurely and followed by an interval of rest.

Some western farmers are trying to rid themselves of the slow, tedious work of husking and shelling corn by putting it through a threshing machine, which tears the stalks into shreds and shells the corn from the cob at one operation. The power required is much greater than in ordinary threshing grain, so that the use of steam is almost a necessity, besides being more economical than horse power. But these enthusiastic innovators will find an immense deal of work to be done by hand in getting the heavy stalks loaded with ears into the machine. There is besides a further difficulty in the destructive wear of threshing machinery by forcing large, heavy stalks through it. Few machines would be worth much for that or any other use after one season's work in threshing corn. This, with the heavy hand labor required, will oblige most farmers to continue in the old-fashioned though slow and expensive way of harvesting corn.

Shapely Women.

A staymaker, asked by a reporter if he ever thought of studying women's figures with respect to their nationalities, delivered himself of the following:

"Yes, the study is an interesting one. English women, when they are young, have the noblest figures, so far as I have observed," said the manufacturer, after a pause, "but they get corpulent and dowager-like after marriage much sooner than the American women, after which they may be said to have no figure at all. English women, as a rule, are less ashamed of their figures, when stout, than most other fashionables, and seldom resort to tight lacing. Among the fashionables the French ladies are apt to be spare to scrawniness, but they have such a natural talent for making up and concealing their defects that it is hard to judge of them. There are some pretty figures among the Cuban and other West Indian women, but they are short, age rapidly, and soon grow dumpy; yet such as have French maids manage to make up well. Refined German and Irish ladies have fine figures on an average. So do the Italian ladies. The few Holland and Belgium ladies I have seen, are rotund and essentially well built. The best shaped woman in every respect, who comes into this store, is a Hungarian, wife of a musician in one of our theatre orchestras. Her waist, bust, and shoulders, are like sculpture. She is tall, willowy and statuesque, and her walk is the melody of motion. She doesn't walk at all in the ordinary sense, but floats over the ground. Her natural waist measure is twenty-eight, and she doesn't lace down an inch below it. However, English figures average best."

"You have not said anything about the American ladies," said the reporter.

"I reserved them for the last, for as a nationality, there is most to be said against them. American fashionable women, though inclined to fragility, as a rule have naturally excellent figures, but there are no other women who so persistently deform and destroy what nature has given them, through tight lacing and general slavish obedience to the absurdest freak of fashion. American women are the most unconscionable lacers in the world. But everything said and seen, the British feminine figure is the best model."

Gleams of Kindliness.

It is said that a soft answer will turn away wrath; and so a kind word, spoken at the right moment, may cast a ray of sunlight upon a weary soul that otherwise would have been all chill and dark. A lady once told me of a pleasant incident that transpired in her presence, in the sanctum of Professor Moses Stuart, then at the head of the theological school or seminary at Andover, Massachusetts.

A poor divinity student, who had preached a discourse on the morning of that day in the chapel connected with the institution, had come into the professor's apartment for the purpose of bidding him good-bye; and also to thank him for the privilege which had been granted him of preaching at least one sermon at the close of his academic term.

"I tried," he said, as he held the old man's hand, "to make my subject plain."

"My dear sir," returned Stuart, warmly, "I could not have understood myself better than I understood you." And he went on, very carefully, yet pleasantly and warmly, to praise what he had found good in the young man's discourse.

Tears of joy were in the youth's eyes as he returned his thanks; and shortly afterwards he took his leave. When he had gone the aged professor turned to his lady visitor, who had been present and heard the youth's essay in the pulpit.

"Doubtless," he said, with a smile, "you were surprised to hear me praise the youth who has just left us for his morning's discourse."

The young lady replied that the young man's end and aim had been a mystery to her. She had not been able to discover anything good in it.

"Not in his good-will and pure purpose, madam?"

"Excuse me. I did not think of that."

"But I did. That youth has discovered that preaching was not his especial forte; and he is to return to his father for the purpose of entering into a business for which his unsullied honor entirely fits him. And now, seeing him about to leave me, how could I refuse him that little gleam of kindliness which I know I gave him. It cost me no falsehood; it cost me no effort. I simply praised him for the good he intended—the good that was in his heart. And I am very sure it has made him happier."

The lady bowed her head, and acknowledged that the aged man was right. She had gained a lesson that might be of profit to her in the time to come.

A Bibliomaniac Hero.

At a recent auction sale of rare and valuable works I heard a story told which is worth repeating. It was at an auction sale in London, and a very rare book—a copy of the first edition published of Shakespeare's works—was up. The Duke of Roxburgh was present, and had instructed his agent to secure the work regardless of cost; and having stood at his friend's elbow until the book had been run up to twenty guineas, he whispered into his ear to bid on to the end, and then retired to the rear of the room to watch the result.

Twenty guineas was a large price for a single book in those days, before the mania for collecting had grown to its present fashion; but the bidding did not stop there, though it began to go slowly. At length, a gentleman, who was anxious to obtain the book, wrote upon a slip of paper and handed it the duke, on which he informed his grace that it was not becoming in one like him to continue such a contest. Roxburgh read it, and immediately took out his pencil and wrote, on the same slip:

"'——Lay on Macduff!' Quote the rest of it for yourself. I mean it—the whole of it!"

—and handed it back. The gentleman read; and others, who were inclined to bid for the book, read. Such a spirit was not for them to cope with; and the duke obtained the book for five-and-twenty guineas.

BILL NYE IN WASHINGTON.

He Suggests Less Economy in the Waists of Party Dresses.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 27, 1886.

I have just returned from a polite and recherche party here. Washington is the hot-bed of gayety, and general headquarters for the recherche business. It would be hard to find a bontonger aggregation than the one I was just at, to use the words of a gentleman who was there, and who asked me if I wrote "The Heathen Chinee."

He was a very talented man, with a broad sweep of skull and a vague yearning for something more tangible—to drink. He was in Washington, he said, in the interests of Mingo county. I forgot to ask him where Mingo county might be. He took a great interest in me, and talked with me long after he really had anything to say. He was one of those fluent conversationists frequently met with in society. He used one of these web-perfecting talkers—the kind that can be fed with raw Roman punch, and that will turn out punctuated talk in links, like varnished sausages. Being a poor talker myself, and rather more fluent as a listener, I did not interrupt him.

He said that he was sorry to notice how young girls and their parents came to Washington as they would to a matrimonial market.

I was sorry also to hear it. It pained me to know that young ladies should allow themselves to be bamboozled into matrimony. Why was it, I asked, that matrimony should ever single out the young and fair?

"Ah," said he, "it is indeed rough!"

He then breathed a sigh that shook the foliage of the speckled geranium near by, and killed an artificial caterpillar that hung on its branches.

"Matrimony is all right," said he, "if properly brought about. It breaks my heart though, to notice how Washington is used as a matrimonial market. It seems to me almost as if these here young ladies were brought here like slaves and exposed for sale." I had noticed that they were somewhat exposed, but I did not know that they were for sale. I asked him if the waists of party dresses had always been so sadly in the minority, and he said they had.

I danced with a beautiful young lady whose trail had evidently caught in a doorway. She hadn't noticed it till she had walked out partially through her costume.

Her trail had evidently caught in a doorway.

I do not think a lady ought to give too much thought to her apparel, neither should she feel too much above her clothes. I say this in the kindest spirit, because I believe that man should be a friend to woman. No family circle is complete without a woman. She is like a glad landscape to the weary eye. Individually and collectively, woman is a great adjunct of civilization and progress. The electric light is a good thing, but how pale and feeble it looks by the light of a good woman's eyes. The telephone is a great invention. It is a good thing to talk at and murmur into and deposit profanity in; but to take up a conversation and keep it up and follow a man out through the front door with it, the telephone has still much to learn from woman.

It is said that our government officials are not sufficiently paid; and I presume that is the case, so it became necessary to economize in every way; but, why should wives concentrate all their economy on the waist of a dress? When chest protectors are so cheap as they now are, I hate to see people suffer, and there is more real suffering, more privation and more destitution, pervading the Washington scapula and clavicle this winter than I ever saw before.

But I do not hope to change this custom, though I spoke to several ladies about it and asked them to think it over. I do not think they will. It seems almost wicked to cut off the best part of a dress and put it at the other end of the skirt, to be trodden under foot of men, as I may say. They smiled good humoredly at me as I tried to impress my views upon them, but should I go there again next season and mingle in the mad whirl of Washington, where these fair women are also mingling in said mad whirl, I presume that I will find them, clothed in the same gaslight waist, with trimmings of real vertebræ down the back.

Still, what does a man know about the proper costume for woman? He knows nothing whatever. He is in many ways a little inconsistent. Why does a man frown on a certain costume for his wife and admire it on the first woman he meets? Why does he fight shy of religion and Christianity and talk very freely about the church, but get mad if his wife is an infidel?

Crops around Washington are looking well. Winter wheat, crocusses and indefinite postponements were never in a more thrifty condition. Quite a number of people are here who are waiting to be confirmed. Judging from their habits, they are lingering around here in order to become confirmed drunkards.

I leave here to-morrow with a large, wet towel in my plug hat. Perhaps I should have said nothing on this dress reform question while my hat is fitting me so immediately. It is seldom that I step aside from the beaten path of rectitude, but last evening, on the way home, it seemed to me that I didn't do much else but step aside. At these parties no charge is made for punch. It is perfectly free. I asked a colored man who was standing near the punch bowl, and who replenished it ever and anon, what the damage was, and he drew himself up to his full height.

Possibly I did wrong, but I hate to be a burden on any one. It seemed odd to me to go to a first-class dance and find the supper and the band and the rum all paid for. It must cost a good deal of money to run this government. BILL NYE, in Boston Globe.

A Humorist Has a Serious Thought.

At a recent dinner party the subject of eternal life and future punishment came up for a lengthy discussion, in which Mark Twain, who was present, took no part. A lady near him turned suddenly toward him and exclaimed:

"Why do you not say anything? I want your opinion."

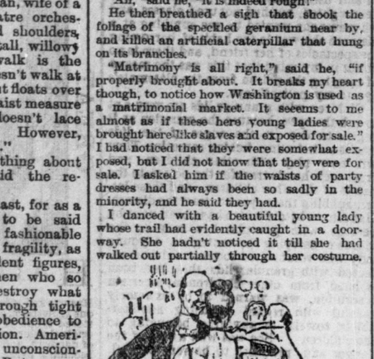
Twain replied gravely:

"Madam, you must excuse me. I am silent of necessity. I have friends in both places.—Erie Dispatch.

BILL NYE TO YOUNG WRITERS.

How to Get Acquainted with Journalists. Originality Not Undesirable.

The following correspondence is now given to the press for the first time with the consent of the parties:



Wm. Nye, Esq.

DEAR SIR: I am a young man, 20 years of age, with a fair education and a strong desire to succeed. I have done some writing for the press, having written up a very nice article on progressive euchre, which was a great success and published in our home paper. But it was not copied so much in other papers as I would like to have saw it, and I take my pen in hand at this time to write and ask you what there is in the article inclosed that prevents its being copied abroad all over our broad land. I write just as I hope you would feel perfectly free to write me at any time. I think that writers ought to aid each other. Yours, with kind regards,

ADELBERT L. TEWEY.

P. O. Box 202.

I have carefully read and pondered over the dissertation on progressive euchre which you send me, Adelbert, and I cannot see why it should not be ravenously seized and copied by the press of the broad, wide land referred to in your letter. If you have time, perhaps it would be well enough to go to the leading journalists of our country and ask them what they mean by it. You might write till your vertebræ fell out of your clothes on the floor, and it would not do half so much good as a personal conference with the editors of America.

A personal conference with the editor.

First prepare your article, then go personsonally to the editors of the country, and call them one by one out into the hall, in a current of cold air, and explain the article to them. In that way you will form pleasant acquaintances and get solid with our leading journalists. You have no idea, Adelbert, how lonely and desolate the life of a practical journalist is. Your fresh young face, and your fresh young ways, and your charming grammatical improvisations, would delight an editor who has nothing to do from year to year but attend to his business.

Do not try to win the editors of America by writing poems beginning:

Now the merry goatlet jumps,
And the trifling yaller dog,
With the tin can madly humps
Like an acrobatic frog.

At times you will be tempted to write such stuff as this, and mark it with a large blue pencil and send it to the papers of the country, but that is not a good way to do.

Seriously, Adelbert, I would suggest that you make a bold dash for success by writing things that other people are not writing, thinking things that other people are not thinking, and saying things that other people are not saying. You will say that this advice is easier to give than to take, and I agree with you. But the tendency of the age is to wear the same style of collar and coat and hat that every other man wears, and to talk and write like other men; and to be frank with you, Adelbert, I think it is an infernal shame.

How is it with our poetry? As a fellow-traveler and seasick tourist across life's tempestuous tide, I ask you, Adelbert, who is writing the poetry that will live? Is it the man who is sawing out and sand-papering stanzas of the same general dimensions as some other poet, in which he bewails the fact that he loved a tall, well-behaved, accomplished girl, sixteen hands high, who did not requite his love?

Ah, no. He is not the poet whose terra cotta statue will stand in the cemetery, wearing a laurel wreath and a lumpy brow. Show me the poet who is intimate with nature and who studies the little joys and sorrows of the poor, who smells the clover and writes about live, healthy people with ideas and appetite. He is my poet.

I apologize for speaking so earnestly, Adelbert, but I saw by your letter that you felt kindly toward me, and rather invited an expression of opinion on my part. So I have written more freely, perhaps, than I otherwise would. We are both writers. Measurably so, at least. You write on progressive euchre, and I write on anything that I can get hold of. So let us agree here and promise each other that, whatever we do, we will not think through the thinker of another man. The Great Ruler of the universe has made and placed upon the earth a good many millions of men, but he never made any two of them exactly alike. We may differ from every one of the countless millions who have preceded us, and still be safe. Even you and I, Adelbert, may agree in many matters, and yet be very dissimilar. At least, I hope so, and I presume you do, also.

Yours, for health, BILL NYE.
—Boston Globe.

A Cowboy at "The Mikado."

"Last evening I went into 'The Mikado,' a kind of singing theatre and a Chinese walk-around. It is what I would call no good. It is acted out by different people, who claim they are Chinamen, I reckon. They teeter around on the stage and sing in the English language, but their clothes are peculiar. A homely man, who played that he was the lord high executioner and chairman of the vigilance committee, wore a pair of wide, red bandanna pants which came off during the first act. He was cool and collected, though, and so caught them before it was everlastingly too late. He held them on by one hand while he sang the rest of his piece, and when he left the stage the audience heartlessly whooped for him to come back. "The Mikado" is not funny or instructive as a general thing, but last night it was accidentally facetious. It has too much singing and not enough of vocal music about it. There is also an overplus of conversation through the thing that seems like talking at a mark for $3 a week. It may be owing to my simple ways, but 'The Mikado' is too rich for my blood."—Butte (M. T.) Miner.

Even Figures are Unreliable.

A.—I tell you that mathematics is an incontrovertible science; in fact, it is logic itself! For instance, suppose it takes one man twelve days to build this wall, then twelve men can finish it in one day. B.—Certainly; therefore, 288 in an hour, 17,280 in a minute, and if 1,036,800 men set to work the wall be up in a second—i. e., before a single stone can be got into its place.—Didaskalia.

HERE'S A STATE OF THINGS.

A Glimpse Into the Future, When Man Becomes Extinct.

There are 60,000 more women than men in the neighborhood of Boston, and the relative difference in the numbers of the sexes are gradually increasing.—Statistical note.

THE FUTURE MILITARY AND POLICE.

Alas for man in Boston town;
Alas for woman too:
Alas, indeed, for all the race
If this assertion's true.
The future of the rougher sex
Seems very sad and drear;
A coldish day for man, indeed,
Is surely drawing near.

IN A BOSTON MUSEUM, 1900.

In 1900 he will hold
A most unique position,
And stuffed within a case of glass,
Be placed on exhibition,
There at one dime this wonderful
And obsolete creation
Will draw full houses day by day
From all parts of the nation.

FAIR HARVARD'S FUTURE FACULTY.

The ladies, when they've had their way
For, say, at least a quarter
Of one full century, will wish
That the supply of daughter
Had not been quite so large, and vote
That after all it's stupid
To rule the earth without a man,
And have no work for Cupid.

Satiating His Contempt.

In a justice's court in Washington, Ind., not very long ago, a somewhat rough, as well as profane customer, was arraigned for trial for some petty offense, the justice of the peace being a local preacher. Ever and anon, as the trial proceeded, the prisoner at the bar would indulge in emphatic profane language, for the which, in "contempt of court," he was duly fined. At the time referred to the state law provided that an offender could only be fined a certain number of times in one day for "contempt," so when the lawful number had been imposed, the prisoner's attorney whispered to him that the "court could not fine him any more that day."

The fellow on trial then rose and said, beginning humbly:

"May it please your honor, of the court: I have been fined to the limit of the law for to-day."

Then, straightening up and looking the Rev. J. P. square in the face:

"Your honor, eye hath not seen, ear hath not heard, neither hath it entered into the heart of man to conceive the contemptible opinion I have of you, 'Squire Billy B——, you reverential old son of a gun!" and then the court adjourned.—Detroit Free Press.

Difficult to Appraise.

The value of a small boy has never been fully settled in this country. A Chicago court has just decided that a boy's leg is worth $10,000. The railway cut off the boy's leg. As boys are in the habit of jumping on trains and losing various parts of themselves the chances are that if the various pieces are from time to time brought into court we may soon get the legal estimate of the value of an entire boy.—Detroit Free Press.

Flashes of Sunshine.

"I don't want any castor oil," said a sick little Boston boy, petulantly, "and I won't take it."

"Why, Horace," expostulated his mother, "don't you know that castor oil is made from beans?"

And the little boy, whose faith in his mother is perfect, took the dose and feebly asked for more.

A SECURE RETREAT.

Country Editor—Well, they captured the murderer at last.

Citizen—So I hear. Where did they find him?

Country Editor—Just leaving the back door of old Buerag's dry goods store. He and Buerag are relatives. He has been taking it easy there for three weeks.

Citizen—I wonder nobody saw him.

Country Editor—No danger of that. Buerag never advertises, you know.

THE IMPORTANCE OF ACCURACY.

Citizen (to homœopathic physician)—I haven't seen your partner, Dr. Pellett, recently. Is he out of town?

Homœopathic physician—He has charge of our Albany branch office.

Citizen—Have you much practice in Albany?

Homœopathic physician—No, none at all. Dr. Pellett stays in Albany for the purpose of mixing our medicines. You see, he pours a few drops of our powerful remedies in the Hudson river every morning, and on the following morning I dip out what I want off Jersey City. In that way we get the correct proportions.

A STUDENT OF HUMAN NATURE.

Stranger (to fellow passenger)—Excuse me, but am I not right in taking you for a professional man?

Fellow passenger—Yes, sir.

Stranger—Thanks. It's not often that I make a mistake in judging my fellow men. Your work is head work altogether, of course?

Fellow passenger—Oh, yes, sir, entirely so.

Stranger—Er—lawyer?

Fellow passenger—No, sir; barber.—New York Sun.

Where Did He Get the Money?

At a theatrical entertainment a few weeks ago a young lady with a three-story hat sat immediately in front of a newspaper man. Noticing that her exaggerated head gear obstructed the journalist's view of the stage, where a temperance lecture or a scriptural panorama or something was taking place, the young lady, with a sweet smile, removed her hat and placed it in her lap. The newspaper man was profuse in his thanks. The next day he caught a severe cold, contracted pneumonia and died a week later. When his will was read it was discovered that he had added a codicil, giving the young lady who sat in front of him in the theatre $2,047,468.—Jersey City Journal.

Some Popular Errors.

Some folks imagine that the Life of a hotel waiter is all sunshine, and that all he has to do is to cut the coupons off his bonds once a year and take them to the nearest bank. People who see him riding out in his carriage behind prancing horses are prone to envy his lot and to be jealous of his grandness, but there are many hours in his life when his reflections are sad indeed. The people who see him in public little know the vipers gnawing at his heart, nor can they count the sleepless hours which pass over his throbbing brow.

THE RAG MAN.

We see the rag man riding up and down our streets with nothing to do but play sweet music on a tin horn. He is never sick. He has a roll of bills in one pocket, and a handful of silver in the other. No policeman dares arrest him, and if there is a dog fight or a runaway he is sure to see it all. When we look upon him we complain that fortune has treated us unfairly, but we must not be too hasty. Unless he has an honest conscience his money and his elegant home will do him no good. He may spend his summers at Long Branch and his winters at Jacksonville, but absence from home cannot cleanse his soul of its stains. It is far better to be a poor but honest boy than it is to be a millionaire rag man.—Em Quad in Detroit Free Press.

One Society He Had Forgotten.

"John, I would like to invite in my friend, Mrs. Smalley, this evening. Will you be able to be in?"

"No, my dear, I must attend the meeting of the Ancient Order of Foresters to-night."

"Well, to-morrow evening?"

"I have the Ancient Order of United Workmen, and you know——"

"What about Wednesday evening?"

"Oh, the Odd Fellows meet that night, and on Thursday I have a meeting of the Knights of Labor to attend; on Friday the Royal Templars of Temperance; on Saturday there's a special meeting of the Masonic lodge, and I could'nt miss that, and then Sunday night—let me see—what is there on Sunday night, my dear?"

"The Grand and Ancient Order of Christian Fellowship."

"Why, I had forgotten. Am I a member of that—let me see——"

"But you have forgotten another society, John, of which you were once a member."

"What's that?"

"Your wife's."—Toronto Grip.

An Eastern man who was traveling in Arkansas entered a bank in a certain village and asked for a draft on New York.

"Don't you do any business with New York?"

"No, sir."

"Isn't that a little singular?"

Watchman—Give me the fire department, quick.

A Model Terrapin Farm.

The terrapin farms of Secretary Bayard and Counselor Heverin in Delaware are among the best known in the country, but it must be conceded that Deacon Orsott Spratt's, near Hoxawottamie, is by far the most interesting. Deacon Spratt's terrapin belong to the singing turtle family, and he has erected commodious seats around two sides of the main pond for the benefit of his friends. The intelligent brutes climb half-way out of the water almost any fine night in the spring and sing as if their little hearts would break. The $40-a-dozen terrapin only warble once or twice a week, for a few months at a time, but the red legs, which sell for only a couple or three dollars a dozen, chirp pretty lively most any night when the moon shines.

I had the privilege of visiting Spratt pond last night in company with Brother Gimp, Parson Jock, Deacon Lalow and other well-known citizens. The entertainment was, indeed, a treat. We had been on the bank but a few minutes when a large, purple-necked diamond back stuck his head out and sang "A Life on the Ocean Wave" with great effect. Before he had finished terrapin could be seen all over the pond rising to the surface, each one taking the diamond from his back as he emerged and holding it aloft in his beak to assist the illumination. The effect was dazzling. Some of the cheap terrapin evidently sported paste diamonds. At the conclusion of the solo Mr. Spratt rowed over the pond in his gondola and gave the singer a glass of sherry, of which they all seem quite fond. [Private to the Editor: Please don't cut this, as I have borrowed $10 from Spratt and charged Gimp, Jock and Lalow seventy-five cents apiece for mentioning their names.]—From the strictly veracious Hoxawottamie Herald.

When Knapsacks Were a Nuisance.

When we enlisted we went into camp with boiled shirts, slippers, half a dozen pairs of stockings, collars and any amount of bric-a-brac in the shape of brushes, razors, blacking, soap, stationery and I don't know what all. Pretty soon we began to find our boiled shirts and collars superfluous, for we didn't have many balls and receptions, and we gave the shirts to the niggers or to the surgeons for bandages, or to the cooks for dishcloths. Then we began to fire away our bric-a-brac; then we shed our extra stockings, and finally we fired away our knapsacks altogether and just rolled our stuff in our blankets and hung them from our shoulders. That's the easiest way to carry anything. I rather hated to part with my old knapsack, though, and being a bit of a cobbler I cut it down to this size. Here it is. You see it's only a foot square, and weighs, with the straps, about a pound. I went through the three days quarrel at Gettysburg with that on my shoulders and hardly knew I had anything on them. I had got down to business then, and all that there was in that bag was a flannel shirt, a pair of drawers, a towel and a bit of soap. I used to wash my stockings every night and attend to the blisters on my feet, and when my stockings were worn out there were chances enough for new clothes after a battle. What did the dead fellows want of stockings?—Chicago Ledger.

Mr. Talmage's Reply to an Evolutionist.

It was suggested to Mr. Talmage that he get up a lecture on "Cranks" and relate his experience with cranky people. He laughed, and said that while his experience was wide and varied on the subject of "Cranks," yet there was one story that always came to his mind when the conversation turned on these peculiar people. He was once very busy writing in his room at a hotel and a card came up. He gave the bell boy instructions that he could see nobody and dismissed him. A little while afterward the card came up a second time and he told the bell boy to tell that man to call on the next day, that he wouldn't see the Angel Gabriel if he called to-day, and the bell boy's eyes stuck out. In a few minutes the card came up a third time, and then Mr. Talmage went down stairs to see who his persistent visitor was. A man stepped up to him and said:

"You are Mr. Talmage?"

"I am, sir."

"Well, sir, I am an evolutionist, and I want to discuss that question with you. I am also an annihilationist. I believe that when I die that will be the end of me."

"Thank God for that!" devoutly ejaculated Mr. Talmage, as he walked off and left the man perfectly dazed.—Harrisburg Telegraph.

A Useful Attendant.

Berry Wall may be the king of the dudes, but the emperor of that fraternity is certainly a Boston exquisite now at the Palace hotel. This hothouse flower of modern "sassiety" is followed everywhere by a solemn footman who has never been known to open his lips.

The other day an acquaintance of the Bostonian met him on Market street and said:

"By the way, my dear boy, what on earth do you keep that servant tagging after you for? He doesn't seem to be of any use."

"You are very—aw—much mistaken, old chappie," drawled the dude. "I—aw—I couldn't get along without him—couldn't, really," and he took out his cigarette case. "Light?"

The man stepped up and unbuttoned his coat.

"Doncher notice his vest, dear chappie?" said the lu-lu. "It's made of sand paper. I use him to scratch matches on."—San Francisco Wasp.

On An Alleged Rapid Transit Train.

As the car reached Westville an old man, with a long, white beard, rose feebly from a corner seat and tottered toward the door. He was, however, stopped by the conductor, who said:

"Your fare, please."

"I paid my fare."

"When? I don't remember it."

"Why, I paid you when I got on the car."

"Where did you get on?"

"At Fair Haven."

That won't do," said the conductor; "when I left Fair Haven there was only a little boy on the car."

"Yes," answered the old man, "I know it. I was that little boy."—New Haven Morning News.

The Beginning of a Stage Career.

I can just remember my first appearance on the stage at the age of 5. I was to represent the young Prince of Morocco and was dressed in buckskin breeches, with a Tartar jacket and a black plug hat, as was the fashion in Morocco at that time. The property man supplied the coloring to give me the peculiar Indian hue of the Prince of Morocco, and hit on Copal varnish as the proper shade. He smeared me over with the sticky liquid, and though I remember I could not move a muscle or shut my eyes or mouth, still I felt my importance as a prince of royal blood. I sat on the right of the king. He was a small man, with cork screw legs incased in black, shiny broadcloth pantaloons and bombazine sack coat. I thought him the finest actor I ever saw, and he must have been a good one, for my father used to say he was a "corker." But to my first appearance: I got along very finely with the part of prince, but when they tried to get the color off my face—ah, there was the rub. And rub me they did. My poor mother rubbed me and scrubbed me; my father suggested sand, and my mother tried it. It made matters worse, for the sand dried it, and then they proposed to let it wear off. They used my face for sandpaper, to light matches on, for some days afterward.

My brother Tom and I once acted the humps of a dromedary. An old horse, with long, Shanghai legs, was gotten up as the dromedary. His gothic figure and long neck were wrapped in yellow colored cloth, with shaggy bundles of lamb's wool at his joints. Brother Tom and I, covered with an old table cloth, represented the humps. My mother gave us each two apples to keep us quiet. In trying to get one of my apples out of my pocket it fell on the stage. The old camel stopped to eat it, and in his effort shook off both humps, to the amusement of the audience and the discomfiture of the camel driver.—W. J. Florence.

A Couple that Enjoyed the Lecture.

The recent railroad blockade recalls a story that a distinguished Maine gentleman tells against himself. Some years ago he was making a journey down east when his train became snowbound. It was then evening, and there was no hope of progress until daylight. But near at hand was a little village which boasted a public hall. It was suggested that the passengers adjourn to the hall and listen to an address by their distinguished fellow traveler.

He finally consented to do his part; the hall was warmed and lighted, and the lecturer took his place.

The next day the gentleman was approached by a sturdy young yeoman who said:

"You're the man who made the speech last night, ain't you?"

The identity having been established, he went on:

"I want to thank you for it. I don't know when I've enjoyed myself more than I did while you were talking."

The orator experienced the genial glow which unconventional and unsought praise is wont to inspire, and he cordially took the honest fellow's hand.

"Yes," the young man continued, "it was a good thing. You see, my girl is on the train, and while you were lecturing she and I had the car all alone to ourselves."—Boston Record.

A Pin's Travels.

The usual story of the remarkable travels of a pin is at hand. This time the scene is laid in Newton, Ia., where thirteen years ago Mrs. Cyrus Gage dropped a pin in her ear. The pin in due course of time dropped into her throat and was swallowed. The other day a doctor took it out of her left leg, near the ankle. We do not see anything remarkable in that. Some years ago we had an absent-minded wife who lost a brass safety pin. She could not remember whether she had swallowed it or inadvertently stuck it in the small of her back. Three years afterwards she complained of an acute pain in her right arm. Two days after applying a fly blister, she found the safety pin in the tray of an old trunk in the attic.—Texas Siftings.

Had the fashion for bird heads in ladies' head gear continued for another season it might have reached this.—Harper's Bazar.

An Unpleasant Reminder.

It was at K street residence and the young man had being going often and staying late until the girl felt the monotony. One night about 11 o'clock the conversation dragged and for a minute or two he sat in a cogitative mood with his hand to his forehead.

"I had something pleasant to tell you," he said, finally.

"Yes," she responded, inquiringly, "what was it?"

"Um—um—let me see," rubbing his head; "I can't just think what it was."

"May be it was 'good night,'" she suggested.

He looked at her for a minute but she never flinched; then he went away and up to date has not been back.—Washington Critic.

A Fair Barbarian.

It is reported that a very pretty, but not an over highly intellectual literary western girl met Mr. William Dean Howells for the first time the other evening, and, becoming quite interested in his talk, asked him for his autograph. Mr. Howells assented willingly, and wrote a very witty verse to a very pretty girl.

"Oh, Mr. Howells," she exclaimed, girly girliously, "how sweet! Is it original?"

"Oh, yes," he replied, smiling benignantly.

"You don't say so! Well, I should think you would write something for the newspapers or the magazines. I've seen lots worse things than this in print.—Washington Critic.

A Thoughtful Wife.

Husband (desperately)—Life has no longer any charms for me. I'll kill myself. I'll take poison.

Wife (calmly)—Well, if you do take poison, my dear, get the kind that's advertised "Don't die in the house."—Harpers' Bazar.

THE LIME KILN CLUB.

Brother Gardner's Philosophy—The Club's Success Inspires Imposters.

When the meeting had been opened in due form Brother Gardner said:

"It has bin suggested by seberal members dat dis club orter hev a watchword. We started out wid one, but somehow it got lost in de bushes an' nobody eber went back to look fur it. While I hes no pertickler objeckshun to a watchword, my experience wid 'em has taught me dat dey has got to be put in a good deal of sugar to be of any 'count.

"'Liberty or Death' am a good watchword, if picked at de right season of de year, but it won't prevent butes from wearing out nor chillin' from cryin' fur bread.

"I once knowed a man who took de watchword of 'Dar Am Room at de Top.' He kept it in his pocket all day and put it under his pillar at night. In two y'ars he was in de poo'house. He found room on de top floo'.

"I knowed anoder man who 'dopted de watchword of 'Neber Despair.' It hit him exactly. When his wife was b'arfut, his chill'en hungry an' his rent two months behind, he put on a smilin' face an' thought of his watchword. He sat on de fence in de summer, an' sot by de saloon stove in de winter, an' de las' I heard of him he was in jail fur six months fur pickin' up property belongin' to anoder man.

"It ain't in de motto so much as in de man. You kin shout: 'Upward an' Onward!' an' still go down hill all de time. While I has no intenshun of bein' personal, I would suggest de follerin' personal watchwords:

"Samuel Shin: 'Let Policy Alone.'

"Whalebone Howker: 'Sell Off Some o' Yer Dogs.'

"Pickles Smith: 'Laziness Am de Doah to State Prison.'

"Trustee Pullback: 'De man who libs off his nayburs shouldn't growl ober de fare.'

"Rotunda Jackson: 'De man who has too much gab am wuss off than a dumb man.'

"De subjick am one which will keep, an' any of you who am deeply interested kin bring it up at de next meetin'."

FOR THE MUSEUM.

The keeper of the sacred relics reported the receipt of the following valuable additions to the museum:

From Boston—A kerosene can carried by one of the American army as Washington crossed the Delaware. Also, a table-leg supposed to be 3,000 years old, and to have once belonged to an Egyptian king.

From Memphis—A butcher knife with the name of "Plato" engraved on the handle.

The secretary announced a communication from Chicago asking if the president of the Lime Kiln club believed in hanging for murder, and Brother Gardner replied:

"Dat an' de Baptist religion am two of de things I believe in wid all my heart. I go furder. I believe dat ebery convicted burglar should be treated as a convicted murderer, an' also be made to pull hemp. De man who commits crime wid his eyes wide open merits de full punishment of law, an' it am no mo' dan a just law which demands an eye fur an eye an' a tooth fur a tooth. When it comes to gittin' rid of red-handed murderers an' murderous burglars, nuffin' am so calkerlated to give de public satisfackshun as de knowledge dat de hangman knows his bizness an' has a noose waitin'."

TO THE BITTER END.

A postal card from a lawyer at Montgomery, Ala., gave notice that he had been retained by the Hon. Free Soil Chivington to begin a suit against the Lime Kiln club, laying his damages at $50,000. Mr. Chivington applied for membership a few weeks ago, and was rejected on the ground that he still carried a load of bird shot fired into him five years ago by the owner of a watermelon patch near Opelika. The plaintiff declares the statement to be false, and will sue for the amount named.

The secretary was instructed to reply to the effect that the suit would be contested to the bitter end.

MORE IMPOSTORS.

The secretary announced that three different impostors were traveling through the country at the present time personating members of the Lime Kiln club and duping many innocent people. The worst of the trio is a chap who claims to be the Rev. Penstock, who is operating in Missouri and Kansas. He is bow-legged, blind of one eye and talks through his nose, and has been selling memberships in the club for $1.

On motion of Waydown Beebee, the president was authorized to offer a reward of $25 for the dead body of any of the three.

WHY NOT.

Judge Chewso arose to ask for information. He had heard dozens of people inquire why the club did not celebrate Washington's birthday, and he would now ask the reason.

"Mo' dan two y'ars ago, sah," replied the president, with considerable austarity, "dis club resolved to celebrate but once a y'ar, an' it was furder decided to combine Thanksgivin', Christmas and New Y'ar's into one gineral holiday, an' call it Thanksch'isyear's. If members would post up on purceedin's, it might save 'em mo' or less embarrassment."

"Doan' we celebrate Fo'th of July?" asked the judge.

"Not as a body. If anybody wants to drink lemonade, eat cokernuts an' foller a brass band aroun' town, dar am no objeckshuns; but sich of us as prefer to sot down under de plum tree in de back yard an' feel sorry kin not be deprived of de privilege by any ackshun of de club. We will now escape homewards."—Detroit Free Press.

He Didn't Know Sary.

A man stopped at the house of a Dakota settler to get a drink of water. He found him sitting in the shade, while another man was working near by.

"I shouldn't think you would need to keep a hired man on your small farm," the traveler said.

"Oh, I don't need to; I keep him so's to have somebody to boss around."

"I should think it would be cheaper to let the man go and boss your wife."

"Stranger," replied the settler, solemnly, "you don't know Sary—it'u'd be nec'sary to have a comp'ny of the reg'lar army here all the time if I wanted ter see any of my bossin' carried out.—Estelline Bell.

He Belied the Name.

One of the managers of a home for destitute colored children tells a funny story about the way Washington's birthday was celebrated at that institution. She went out there in the afternoon to see how things were going on, and found a youngster as black as the inside of a coal mine tied to a bedpost with his hands behind him. "What's that boy tied up so for?" she asked the attendant. "For lying, ma'am; he is the worst lying nigger I ever saw." "What's his name?" "George Washington, ma'am," was the paralyzing reply.—Washington Capital.

WHO BAISES THE DISMAL, DOLEFUL CRY, AND KNOWS NO OPTIMISM.

How Pessimistic Liberals Hurt the Country Generally—A Protest from New Brunswick.

Ed ward Jack in the St. John Sun.

The last edition of Chambers's Etymological Dictionary defines a pessimist as "one who complains of everything being for the worst." New Brunswick just now has a certain number of such people, who fortunately are more loud than numerous, more noisy than logical in their utterances. For myself I must confess that I "cannot howl with the wolves," even if I should see a fat office looming up in the distance as a reward, and after all this is about the sum and substance of all the barking and growling that we hear about the wretched condition of Canada and Canadians. In ninety nine cases out of a hundred the ordinary blating or scribbling "patriot" is a humbug; like the noisy dog, all he requires to keep him quiet is some tempting bone. Are we in such a wretched condition as to justify half the complaints that are made? Our people are not in want, we have no tramps to trouble us, and any one who is willing to work can make a decent and comfortable living. It is true that we are not by any means a wealthy people, but we have good land in abundance, the best fisheries in America—a bank upon which even the poorest may draw for his subsistence. Our climate is cold, but healthy, and our people strong and vigorous. The writer has lately spent some months in the United States, and although he has seen many rich places he has seen none where the

was any better than in the Provinces of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, nor has he anywhere seen so hardy a looking race and nowhere so little absolute poverty, and he returns to his country fully satisfied that these Provinces afford as good a field for making a comfortable and respectable living without having to labor beyond measure as can be found in America. It is quite true that there are not the chances for making great fortunes which are offered in the adjoining republic, but great fortunes do not usually bring happiness or contentment, and experience shows us that the country in which wealth and prosperity is the most evenly divided is the happiest one in which to live, as offering the greatest good to the greatest number. And yet to those who desire great wealth, even New Brunswick offers a chance. The writer remembers when the Nashwaak property was sold to Mr. Gibson a few years ago, with 7,000 acres of timber land, for $38,600, since which time his industry and ability has made it produce millions. At the time he went there to live our mercantile pessimists said that he would be ruined, just as our political pessimists now say that Canada is going to be ruined through the construction of the Canadian Pacific. Then again, Nova Scotia has its bonanzas, even in the matter of gold. Take one instance:—Since January, 1885, the labor of eighteen men at a mine there has produced 3,000 ounces of gold, worth $19 80 per ounce. Not only so, but there are 4,000 ounces of the precious metal now in sight on the same property ready to be sloped out, or, in round numbers, $80,000. The estimated area of the gold-bearing rocks of Nova Scotia is 3,000 square miles. Within these bounds are countless bonanzas which require only honest skill and labor to develop and make remunerative. If that Province had but who would set to work honestly to examine into the value of the coal, iron and gold industries of Nova Scotia and the best means of making the same known to the world so as to ensure their development, there is no knowing what the result might be. Mr. Gilpin, the well-known and able inspector of mines there, has at his own cost probably made some very valuable investigations in the matter of Nova Scotia iron ores. I am not aware that the Government has taken the trouble even to publish them. The analyses of Nova Scotian iron ores made and collected by him are to be had from publications printed in the United States. What Nova Scotia requires are the services of some first-class chemist, who is at the same time a practical iron worker of standing, and who shall spend several seasons in the examination of her iron deposits and make estimates of the cost of manufacturing charcoal and other iron there, based on the latest and most economical system. If such were done there is no doubt but that the result would show that good qualities of iron could be made at a profit there under ordinary circumstances. Instead, however, of attempting such a thing the Government of that Province are acting the part of pessimists merely because pessimism is a taking cry among the masses. Fault finding is much easier than action and requires the exercise of much less brains. All the fault-finding in the world will not add an additional industry to that Province; thoughtful and well directed investigation into its mineral and other resources will. Dr. Isaac Watts in one of his works says that every one before adopting any course should address to himself the question, what good will result from this? Let us use this test for pessimism. What good is going to result from it? Can any one tell? We all know what harm can accrue from it. To take a familiar example, suppose that one class of merchants was perpetually running the others down and constantly prophesying their failure, what would be the result? Why the constant complaint would make suppliers and bankers suspicious, the credit of these merchants would be injured, and when hard times came they would be pounced upon, with bankruptcy as the probable result. It is just so with public affairs.

OUR CREDIT IS BEING INJURED ABROAD

by the constant cry of wolf! wolf! Our neighbors in the United States, who are so jealous of their own national honor, when they deign to give any attention to our public matters, are led to think, from the fact of the abuse which our pessimist papers and orators are giving to everything connected with the administration of the government of the country, that we are in desperate straits, and they will hesitate before investing capital in a country whose people condemn it so loudly and so persistently. Who are our pessimists? If you desire to find these animals you must go among those who want office and cannot get it. In Nova Scotia the pessimists assume a different role. He has got into office and is afraid that he may lose it, and therefore raises the cry of wolf! According to the opinion of very many of our pessimists the remedy for all our ills, imaginary as well as real, is in annexation, for you will generally find the pessimist an annexationist at heart, however much he may conceal it. It is not to the public sense of our people that he appeal, but to that of the United States. Any one reading the New York Herald or other New York papers has only to notice the telegraphic reports sent from Ottawa by pessimists there and he will observe that hardly one reaches the journals which does not contain some disparaging remark with regard to the Dominion, from which the inference can be easily drawn that this fault, whatever it may be, is the result of our Government, and one which a union with the United States would remedy. Unfortunately for our pessimists, the United States do not want us. The labor party do not want to overstock the labor market by the addition of Quebec cheap labor, nor do the iron and coal masters of Pennsylvania wish to have a country lying directly on the seaboard, as Nova Scotia does, competing at even terms with them; while the fishing and manufacturing interests of the Eastern States would certainly not be well pleased to see some of their best interests transferred to a country whose people can work at a much cheaper rate and live upon less than those of their own.

"STAND-UP LUNCH."

An Entertainment for Which Boston Claims the Patent.

Boston Journal.

The afternoon tea has by no means completed its mission of usefulness in furnishing entertainment inexpensively to one's many friends. Accompanied with flowers, a bright company of men and women and a hostess who understands the art of cultivating happiness over a little plain fare, the tea is an enjoyable means of spending an hour or two on an afternoon. But it has already lost the zest of novelty. The Silas Laphams who never went to a dinner such as the Coreys give are now quite at home at a tea, and the people living many miles from social centres have held teas in the well-established manner. An entertainment possessing many features of the afternoon tea, and now holding the desirable advantage of the last novelty, is the ladies' stand up luncheon. Unlike the usual form of luncheon party, which is limited to eight, or at most twelve, ladies, it may be attended by sixty or a hundred ladies, and in most cases the number of guests is regulated only by the standing room which the hall and dining room afford. Like the tea, it may include all one's friends whom one wishes to entertain, and has the advantages of offending no forgotten person, an advantage not possessed by the small, exclusive luncheon. In the large number the timid or inexperienced woman and the lively, aggressive person may find their own friends and may not be a cause of misery to each other, since nearness is not necessary. As in the tea, the success of the entertainment depends in a great measure upon the tact and delicate consideration of the hostess. A bright woman who possesses the faculty of saying pleasant trifles to each guest, who without fussiness or apparent effort makes a congenial company from many different people, may be able to make her entertainments famous for brilliant conversation and free enjoyment. But in a stand up luncheon the task of the hostess is much less wearisome than at the tea, since the refreshments are more elaborate and occupy the chief portion of the entertainment.

The most tiresome part of the luncheon is the preparatory season, so that when everything is arranged and the guests appear, the hostess is free to welcome her guests at ease, and after a half-hour's chat in the parlor to conduct them to the dining-room, where they easily entertain themselves. The preparation consists chiefly in sending out invitations, arranging the parlors pleasantly and making out the bill of fare. The last duty is most important. When caterers are not desired or are not convenient, the luncheons should consist of simply home-made salads and creams and other refreshments adapted to a stand-up party. The conventional bill of fare, one easily obtained and unobjectionable on account of small expense, consists of lobster salad, scalloped oysters, chicken croquettes, rolls, jelly, ice cream, cake, coffee and chocolate. Guests are invited to serve themselves, and the whole luncheon partakes of an informal character. The invitations having been sent and replies having been given, the guests arrive at about half-past one. Dark street suits and bonnets or dark silk which teas have made the costume for informal gatherings are worn by the guests; a brighter home-costume is appropriately worn by the hostess and those ladies who receive with her, care is taken that the costume of the hostess does not present a glaring contrast with the dark suits of the guests. Some of the teas, in which the hostess, dressed in white silk or any other distinctively evening costume, has walked among ladies in dark woolen suits, have been studies of unpicturesque contrast. The rooms are as cheerful as flowers, open fires or any tasteful additions can make. When the guests have spent a half hour in the parlors, they are invited to the dining-room, where luncheon is served. The table is filled with an array of dishes unlike that upon which the luncheon for a small party is given. Flowers decorate the centre, and sprays of ferns are laid in flat ornamentation at the corners. Such luncheons are distinguished by one or two colors, a combination of white and yellow being particularly attractive. The ceremoniousness of the small luncheon party is not desired, and the guests, freely helping one another to the delicacies and not confined in conversation to one or two persons, feel an enjoyable freedom and ease.

For club or society entertainments, the stand-up luncheon has been found for several years to be the most practicable means of entertainment. Its diversion to private use has been found to be most convenient. As the custom for ladies to entertain one another has become established and markedly popular, one of the best means to entertain many in a pleasant manner is the "stand-up" luncheon.

It is said in New York that Augustin Daly has displayed great nerve in bringing out the "Taming of the Shrew," and, no doubt, the experiment will prove a success. Managers have uniformly considered this play better adapted to the closet than to the stage, and hence it has not been fully produced in two centuries. It has some very clever points, however, and the scintilation of wit is truly Shakespearian. It was evidently written during the author's best days, and one of its most noticeable features is that it contains an unusual quantity of what is now considered "slang." Here, indeed, we find "logger head," also "eye sore" (for offensive), and "skipper" for captain, also "mother wit," "breaking the ice," and that Shakespeare was a card player is shown by the line

Yet I have faced it with a card of ten.

Here, too, we find the origin of a familiar expression in the line

To comb your noddle with a three-legged stool, this being one of the heroine's accomplishments. Many other points might be noticed to show how its author reproduced the common talk of his day

THE ISSUE BEFORE THE ELECTORS.

The Strength of the Liberals a Menace to the Manufacturer and the Workingmen.

St. Johns News.

In spite of the efforts of some of the Liberal press to lead the electors astray, the commercial policy of the Dominion is the main and vital issue on which the elections of 1887 are to be fought, as they were in 1878 and 1882. The Gazette was perfectly right in regarding the Liberals as remaining still unconvinced on the subject, but it is wrong in saying that the party has learned nothing from its two last defeats. It has learned something; it has been taught the danger, not to say the deadliness, of avowing its opinions openly; it has been taught the advisability of cloaking them with a garb of hypocrisy; and it has been an apt pupil, though, as we said before, it has been so long in learning its lessons, up to the very eve of the general elections, that it can scarcely hope to be listened to with attention whilst it recites its task. The success of the Liberals is the peril of the National Policy; they may not destroy it utterly,—we have their word for it that they cannot, but they both can and will emasculate it, and do it all the injury they conveniently can. It behooves therefore all who are its friends, and there are many in the Liberal camp as well as in the Conservative, to sink all minor differences, and rally to its support and protection. Especially is this a Conservative duty. Now, if ever, all grounds of dissatisfaction should be laid aside, all animosities dismissed, all private grievances forgotten, all breaches healed. They are face to face with a powerful, active and intelligent foe, and one, moreover, who is not much troubled with scruples of conscience, or given to making mountains for itself out of consistency—a foe that has one definite aim before him, and that is power, and that marches straight on to that goal over every obstacle. He carries with him no baggage in the shape of platforms—these he considers useless impediments, and he makes his calculations on drawing his support from the country through which he travels; free-trader among free-traders, protectionist among protectionists, loyal among loyalists, secession among secessionists, all is fish that comes to his net. His stomach is by no means delicate, and rejects nothing; in its capacious maw soda and tartaric acid may be mingled without creating that effervescence which the legend assures us blew off the head of an incautious king of the Cannibal islands. Such is the omnivorous, energetic enemy with which the Conservatives have to contend at this moment; and though victory is within their reach it can only be grasped by equal energy among them, by unanimity and by cordial co-operation. Their first duty is to agree among themselves; their second to use all their power in working for their success. There is one section, indeed, who have become for some time past the victims of a monomania. They are bent on ejecting their party from power to avenge a real or fancied wrong which they claim has been done to them by the Ministers at Ottawa. They can see nothing else, think nothing else, hear of nothing else but this. They are determined to do all that in them lies to bring Mr. Blake and his followers into power. In doing so they will cut off their nose to spite their faces. Well! their noses are their own, and they have a right to do so, if it so pleases them; but they have not a right to inflict that serious injury on the whole Dominion implied in a modification of its commercial policy to suit the Liberal views. Let them look well to this, and consider it well; for if, by their means, either directly or indirectly, the Liberals should come into power, and there should be a repetition of the miserable and heart sickening state of affairs that obtained between '73 and '78, it is they, and they only, who will be responsible for the calamity, not merely to the country at large, but to themselves and to their consciences. It is their boast that they hold the fate of the Dominion in their hands; we do not think it true, but they do; and holding that belief, it will be well for them to realize their accountability, and to pause before taking any step which, once taken, can only be repented of when it is too late.

And to the rest of the Conservative party we would say that they also have an important duty to perform, and that the very worst way of performing it will be to undervalue the power or resources of their opponents, and engage in the struggle with them with a carelessness and presumption that can only result in defeat. Work, work!

Invented Occupations.

From Harper's Bazar.

There are a number of employments awaiting those who are wise enough to devise them, and not too proud to fill them, which, the moment they are named, strike everyone with wonder that they have not been in use before, and which are perfectly suitable for young women who have filled stations in society which unfit them for much rude or rough work. Take, for instance, the baking of fine cake. Some dozen years ago a young lady returning from Europe found herself on her native shores almost destitute, nearly all her property having suddenly been lost. An accident caused one of her friends to learn that she knew how to make a delicious cake of a sort hitherto untasted over here. The friend, seized with an idea, took a portion of the cake to another friend; the other friend, about to give an entertainment, desired the novelty; presently everybody else desired it, and was willing to pay for it; and keeping her recipe to herself, she soon found herself with enough occupation for her own time and that of several assistants, and the founder of a business that grew so as to make not only a comfortable income, but a property.

Another course that we have heard of is that of a young lady with a sort of genius for costume, millinery and general paraphernalia. While wealthy herself she could indulge her taste, and when in reduced circumstances it was more a cross to her that she could not indulge this taste of devising and designing and seeing results than that she could no longer wear the striking costumes herself. The pleasure of suggesting combinations and outlines to various of her old friends who had not deserted her made her see that it was possible to turn her talent to account. Now many ladies who do not wish to be merely tame replicas of fashion plates in dress, but while adapting their material in the main to the demands of fashion, so that they shall not seem at all out of style, prefer to maintain an individuality through it all that shall bring out their own good points and subdue their bad ones, go to her for the sketch of a dress suitable to their shape and manner, according to her ideas, harmonizing or contrasting, but never making discord, with their personal peculiarities, and she has found the work paying as well as a profession.

Everybody knows of the lady who made some doll's shoes for a fair, which shoes sold so well as to let it seem worth her while to make others and put them on sale for her own profit, and doing so she met a long unfilled want, and rapidly became the head of a large business, furnishing for years the greater part of all the doll's shoes made in the country. But few people perhaps have heard of the young lady who, needing to help herself, and seeing the market full of poorly paid music and painting teachers, and the shops full of unsalable water colors, bethought herself of one accomplishment that had always brought her in applause. She secured, with hardly any difficulty at all, several classes in whist playing, and every day met her classes at the appointed hours, having soon more eager learners at good prices than she could do justice to, whist playing, including both mnemonics and mathematics to a degree that demands continuous study and instruction on the part of those who would perfect themselves in its art.

Still another occupation suggested itself to a young person by the fact that often when the lamps of a house were trimmed by the maid they smoked or otherwise misbehaved, but when one of the ladies of the house attended to them their flame was clear and bright, and still more by the fact that often their care was the last part of the day's work, and then the late trimming endangered the house. Since lamps have become fashionable, and so often replace gas with their steady light, the matter of their trimming has acquired some weight; and thinking the matter over, our young person decided to offer her services in the sole matter of lamp trimming, and now, armed with her implements, she goes from house to house cleaning and filling the lamps, straining the old oil, and setting it aside for furniture polish when too thick for burning well, attending to wicks, rubbing up burners and cleaning chimneys, leaving everything about them in desirable trim for the night, and then going on to the next, willing to do the work with scientific neatness for the sake of a small weekly stipend in view of the number of stipends, so many housekeepers having shown themselves delighted to have lamps that burn like those of the wise virgins, and to be rid of all the soiling and malodorous work.

Mr. H. McColl was the recipient of a very pleasant surprise recently frm a dozen of the friends who meet in the Baptist Church on the sixth concession of Lobo, who called at his residence, Strathroy, with a fur overcoat, gauntlets and seal skin cap, besides a purse of money. An address was read relating Mr. McColl's services on their behalf, and the recipient made a suitable reply.

Christ Church Temperance and Literary Society held a book reception at their rooms last night, when a goodly number of volumes were added to the library. The programme included selections from Tennyson and Thackeray. Notwithstanding the prevailing storm, there was a good attendance, and several new members were added. Rev. A. G. Smith, of Muncey, delivered an interesting address.

Apropos of the blustering blather indulged in by the U. S. lawmakers at Washington the other day, a Cleveland paper remarks:—"Meantime the warlike editor may be expected to start into redeyed activity at every pronounced step in the negotiations; but neither the editor, nor any of his readers, will be called upon to bathe the soil of Canada in blood. Bathing soils in blood is not a popular thing nowadays."

At the adjourned annual meeting of the Lucan Agricultural Society, the Auditor's report, showing the total receipts to be $451 42, and a total expenditure of $405 07, leaving a balance of $46.35 to the credit of the Society, was received with great applause by the members. Mr. John Dagg was re-elected President, Mr. William Hooper, Vice-President, and Mr. W. E. Stanley re elected Secretary-Treasurer; all unanimously. The following gentlemen were appointed Directors:—Messrs. Wm. Endicott, Wm. Walker, Thos. Dickins, A. McTavish, C. C. Hodgins, S. R. Hodgins, T. H. Courtey, John Murdy, John Guest, A. O'Dwyar, S. Hudson, B. Hasket, A. Goodacre, D Harvey, John Morkin, Jas. O'Neil, John Lewis, Jas. Toohey, F. Waldon and Jas. Miller.

A new society wrinkle is the charging of "commissions" by fair ones of the bonton. Recently a young blonde was asked by an elderly invalid friend to purchase her some ruching. Upon her return with the article she was asked the price. "Just $1 40," was the answer. When the box was opened a bill was discovered which read "four yards ruching at 25 cents a yard, $1." The next time the young blonde called she was shown the bill and asked if she hadn't made a mistake. "Oh, no, Miss ——," was her reply, "the 40 cents was for commission. All the ladies of the best society always charge commission, now, you know."

The Elgin County Council yesterday refused to appoint a Police Magistrate to oblige the "Elgin Scott Act Association." The vote was seven for and eighteen against. Two of the seven who voted for the appointment stated they voted to give the matter a six months' hoist only, though they are opposed to a Magistrate being appointed. One member only did not vote, and he is said to be also opposed to the scheme, so that out of the 26 members of the Council only five are favorable to the "scheme."

Yesterday afternoon P. C. Pope observed that a dray horse driven by Frank Hall appeared to experience considerable pain and difficulty in drawing the rig to which it was attached, and soon discovered that the animal was being subjected to cruel treatment, as a large piece of the skin on its shoulder had been worn away, and the bare flesh was exposed. He at once compelled the man to return the horse to the stable, with orders not to drive it again until the injury is healed.

Dr. Belfry delivered at Victoria Hall last night, to a large audience of young men, the first of a series of medical talks to be given under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A., and the address proved both interesting and instructive. The subject was, "Manhood—how lost, how restored."

Mr. R Hazelwood, employed at the G. T R. freight shed, Stratford, had his leg broken the other day. During a shunt a barrel of raisins toppled off a case on which it rested in the car and fell on his leg, making a rather bad fracture between ankle and knee.

Law Society Examinations — The Rights of Coasters — he Archbishop's Guests—A Post Office Thief Arrested—A Brutal Assault.

Toronto, Jan. 28.—The following gentlemen have passed their second intermediate law examination:—L H Dunn, T Reid, W H Wallbridge, F Smoke, A Stevenson, W Greene, C A Blanchet, W C Fitzgerald, E E Emery, R Ruddy, R W Dennistoun, A R Bartlett, W D Gregory, C R Hanning, G H Jacques, G F Brofield, A D Dickson, J E Handsford and S F Jarvis.

John J. Veitch was charged at the Police Court this morning for coasting on Gerard street hill. Sergt. Gregory tried to stop him, but he denied the right of the policeman to interfere with him, claiming that as long as he kept off the sidewalk he had a right to coast. The Police Magistrate sustained his contention, and dismissed the case. Veitch now intends bringing a civil action against Sergeant Gregory, claiming damages for false arrest and imprisonment.

The Bishops of London, Kingston and Hamilton were guests of Archbishop Lynch at St. Michael's Palace on Wednesday night. It is reported that they were waited upon by Hon J. S. D. Thompson, Minister of Justice, who was then in the city, and afterwards by Hon. C. F. Fraser, Commissioner of Public Works in the Ontario Cabinet.

Arthur A. Pinel, a clerk in the post office here, was arrested to-night, charged with systematically stealing letters containing money. He has been suspected for some time past, and a watch was set upon him, resulting in his arrest. He is a young man recently married, and has been in the post office about three years.

John Downs was arrested to-day on the charge of criminally assaulting Sarah M. C Waster, a young woman about 24 years of age, in her mother's house on Richmond street. He admitted his crime. The case is a very brutal one, as the young woman is paralyzed in one side of her body. She fought desperately for fifteen minutes, notwithstanding her infirmity.

OTTAWA.

Lord Lansdowne's Visit to Montreal—Hoke, the Peoria, Ill., Defaulter, to be Extradited.

Ottawa, Jan. 28.—The Governor-General and Lady Lansdowne will start on Thursday next for Montreal, where they take up their residence for several weeks, including the period of the winter carnival. Lady Evelyn Fitzmaurice and the majority of the members of the household will accompany them.

The Minister of Justice this afternoon signed a warrant for the extradition of Hoke, the Peoria, Ill., defaulter, now lying in jail in Montreal. Mr. C. P. Davidson, Q.C., the prisoner's counsel, arrived in town this morning to urge the Government to withhold the issue of the warrant. The authorities, however, refused his application, with the result that Hoke will be extradited immediately. The embezzler is said to have defrauded Peoria banks to the extent of $179,000.

Yesterday Dr. Laberge, of Montreal, was informed that a family residing in St. Jean Baptiste Village had been nearly poisoned. It appears that they had been drinking coffee for breakfast and immediately after they began to suffer from headache, nausea and vomiting. It was thought that the milk had been poisoned, samples of which was sent to experts and analysed and found to be perfectly pure and free from taint of any kind. Nothing has yet been learned as to the cause of the symptoms of poisoning.

MIRACULOUS ESCAPE.

The Crew of the C. Graham Saved by a Miracle—The Captain Lost—Terrible Sufferings of the Survivors.

Halifax, Jan. 28. — "Saved by a miracle" is the explanation given by five men who had an extraordinary escape from death in the disaster to the schooner C. Graham, off Dover West, Halifax, Monday night, when pieces of wreckage were cast ashore that gave a sound clue to the vessel's name. It was concluded that the escape of her crew of six men was impossible, but with the arrival of three survivors at Halifax this evening joy returned to bereaved housholds. Only one man, Capt. John Colridge, met death by the disaster, but for nearly two days the survivers suffered a living death. The schooner struck on Dover Castle, a massive rock rising abruptly from the sea to a height between 80 and 100 feet. The schooner struck sideways and the foremast fell against a cliff resting on a ledge about thirty feet above the deck. The vessel struck with such a shock that it is wonderful she did not split into ten thousand fragments. Great holes were rent in the deck, rendering it impossible for the crew to move about with any degree of safety. Five men clambered up the mast and reached a narrow ledge on which it rested. The sixth, and missing, man was seen to enter the cabin, and it is thought he fell through the deck and hurt himself so badly as to be unable to move. The men had barely reached their place of safety when the schooner disappeared from the ledge. The men clambered to the top of the rock, where they remained until Wednesday morning, half clothed and without shelter, food and water. The storm continued throughout all this time, and the heavy sea running made it impossible for people ashore, who knew of the wreck, to make a search. On Wednesday morning, the sea having calmed down, boat crews put off from land and the men on the rock attracted their attention, and lines being thrown them, they were dragged through the water into the boats. All were fairly exhausted from their exposure to the elements, and had they been compelled to remain in their terrible position a few hours longer, all would have perished. The mate, James Watt, was so far gone that his life was despaired of.

John L. Sullivan, the pugilist, yesterday visited a surgeon in New York for the purpose of having his broken arm examined. It was found the fractured arm was not set right, but was set with the palm down when it should have been palm upwards. The surgeon rebroke the arm and set it properly, and says the arm will be as perfect as ever. Sullivan fainted with pain.

DRESS GOODS

Enormous Purchase of New All-Wool French Dress Goods.

We have much pleasure in advising our customers of the arrival of an immense purchase of high-class French Dress Goods, embracing all the shades for the coming Spring Season. These were purchased by Mr. T. F. Kingsmill, who has been in Europe since early in December, and before the recent enormous advance in the price of all woolen fabrics. As the war rumors have driven the value of these goods beyond the reach of buyers who were late in arriving, we are able to offer the newest materials cheaper than any that will be imported for many months to come.

The coming colors in really choice goods from twenty-five to fifty per cent. less than the French Manufacturers demand to-day.

Take a look at our windows and if you have time come in and examine the quality and you will be convinced.

...inter's Night.

...ood! and let the blaze leap high,
...ood! to-morrow we may die—
...r round the shining hearth
...tale of goodly worth—
... the wind that bowls without, the wood and let it shout.

...n the wood! and let the ruddy light
...e brightness reign within this stormy night;
...'ll sing a song to cheer the lonely breast—
...duck in his chair like songster in its nest.
Old Winter shrieks against the fast-closed door—
Pile on the wood! and hear its merry roar.

Pile on the wood! and pass the goblet round,
We'll drown the blast in music's merry sound;
The young, the old, in one sweet group unite.
Let no lone heart feel lonely here to-night,
To-day we live, to-morrow we may die—
Let every breast thrust down the rising sigh.

Pile on the wood! ah, sweet the hissing sound,
From each round log as quick and sure around
The gnarled old trunk bright tongues leap up—
Raise high each glass and take a cheering sup.
Let lovers coo within the corners gloom—
Pile on the wood! the darkness comes too soon.

Pile on the wood! and let the music ring—
Fling wide the door to let the wanderer in;
The creaking sounds come from the lonely street—
Ah, sweet the sight within this loved retreat;
Let laughter free, it does the old heart good—
Let cold blasts blow—pile on, pile on the wood.

THE VEILED WOMAN

A TALE OF ABSORBING INTEREST.

INTRODUCTION.

In giving to the world the record of what, looked at from that point of view only, is, I suppose one of the most wonderful and mysterious adventures ever experienced by mortal men, I feel it incumbent on me to explain what my exact connection with it is. And so I may as well say at once that I am not the narrator, but only the editor of this extraordinary history, and then proceed to tell how it found its way into my hands.

Some years ago, I, the editor, was stopping with a brother at one of the Universities, which for the purposes of this history we will call Cambridge, and was one day much struck with the appearance of two people whom I saw going arm in arm down the street. One of these gentlemen was, I think, without exception, the handsomest young fellow I have ever set eyes on. He was very tall, very broad, and had a look of power and a grace of bearing that seemed as native to him as it is to a wild stag. In addition, his face was almost without flaw—a good face as well as a beautiful one; and when he lifted his hat, which he did just then to a passing lady, I saw that his head was covered with little golden curls growing close to the scalp.

"Good gracious!" I said to my brother, with whom I was walking; "why, that fellow looks like a statue of Apollo come to life. What a splendid man he is!"

"Yes," he answered; "he is the handsomest man in the University, and one of the nicest too. They call him 'the Greek God.' But look at the other one; he's Vincey's (that's the god's name) guardian, and supposed to be full of every kind of information. They call him 'Charon.'"

I looked, and found the older man quite as interesting in his way as the glorified specimen of humanity at his side. He appeared to be about forty years of age, and was, I think, as ugly as his companion was handsome. To begin with, he was shortish, rather bow-legged, very deep-chested, and with unusually long arms. He had dark hair and small eyes, and the hair grew right down on his forehead, and his whiskers grew right up into his hair, so that there was uncommonly little of his countenance to be seen. Altogether he reminded me forcibly of a gorilla, and yet there was something very pleasing and genial about the man's eye. I remember saying that I should like to know him.

"All right," answered my brother; "nothing easier. I know Vincey; I'll introduce you;" and he did; and for some minutes we stood chatting—about the Zulu people, I think, for I had just returned from the Cape at the time. Presently, however, a stoutish lady, whose name I do not remember, came along the pavement, accompanied by a pretty fair-haired girl, and these two Mr. Vincey, who clearly knew them well, at once joined, and walked off in their company. I remember being rather amused because of the change in the expression of the elder man, whose mood I discovered was Holly, when he saw the ladies advancing. He suddenly stopped short in his talk, cast a reproachful look at his companion, and, with an abrupt "Excuse me," turned and marched off alone across the street. I heard afterward that he was popularly supposed to be so much afraid of a woman as most people are of a mad dog, which accounted for his precipitate retreat. I cannot say I was sorry that young Vincey showed much aversion to feminine society on this occasion. Indeed, I remember laughing and remarking to my brother at the time that he was not the sort of man whom one would care to introduce to a lady one was going to marry, since it is exceedingly probable that the acquaintance would end in a crash or of her affections. He was altogether too good-looking, and, what was more, he had none of that conscious ness and conceit about him which usually afflicts handsome men, and makes them deservedly disliked by their fellows.

That evening my visit came to an end, and that was the last I saw or heard of Charon and the Greek god for many a long day. Indeed, I have never seen either of them from that hour to this, and do not suppose it likely that I shall. But a month ago I received a letter and two packets, one of manuscript, and on opening the first found that it was signed by "Horace Holly," a name that at that moment was not familiar to me. It ran as follows:—

"MY DEAR SIR,—You will be surprised, considering the very slight nature of our acquaintance, to get a letter from me. Indeed, I think I had better begin by reminding you that we once met, now some five years ago, when your brother introduced me and my ward Leo Vincey to you in the street at Cambridge. To be brief and come to my business. I have recently read with much interest a book of yours describing a Central African adventure. I take it that this book is partly true, and partly an effort of the imagination. However this is, it has given me an idea. It happens—how, you will see in the accompanying manuscript, which, together with the scarab, the 'Royal Son of the Sun,' and the original sherd, I am sending to you by hand—that my ward, or rather my adopted son, Leo Vincey and myself have recently passed through a real African adventure of a nature so much more marvelous than the one which you describe that, to tell you the truth, I am almost ashamed to submit it to you for fear lest you should disbelieve me. You will see it stated in this manuscript that I, or rather we, had made up our minds not to make this history public during our joint lives. Nor should we alter our determination, were it not for a circumstance that has recently arisen. We are, for reasons that, after perusing this manuscript, you may be able to guess, going away again, this time to Central Asia, where, if anywhere upon this earth, wisdom is to be found, and anticipate that our sojourn there will be a long one. Possibly we shall not return. Under these altered conditions it has become a question whether we are justified in withholding from the world the account of a phenomenon which we believe to be of unparalleled interest, merely because our private life is involved, or because we are afraid of ridicule and doubt being cast upon our statements. I hold one view about this matter and Leo holds another, and, finally, after much discussion, we have come to a compromise, namely, to send the history to you, giving you full leave to publish it if you think fit, the only stipulation being that you shall disguise our real names and as much concerning our identity as is consistent with the maintenance of the bona fides of the narrative.

"And now what am I to say further? I really do not know, beyond once more repeating that everything described in the accompanying manuscript is exactly as it happened. As regards She herself I have nothing to add. Day by day we have greater occasion to regret that we did not better avail ourselves of our opportunities to obtain more information from that marvelous woman. Who was she? How old she first came to the Caves of Kor, and what was her real religion? We never ascertained, and now, alas! we never shall, at least not yet. These and many other questions arise in my mind; but what is the good of asking them now?

"Will you undertake the task? We give you complete freedom, and as a reward you will certainly have the credit of giving to the world the most wonderful history, as distinguished from romance, that its records can show. Read the manuscript (which I have copied out fairly for your benefit), and let me know.

"Believe me, very truly yours,

"P.S.—Of course, if any profit results from the sale of the writing, should you care to undertake it, you can do what you like with it, but if there is a loss I will leave instructions with my lawyers, Messrs Geoffrey & Jordan, to meet it. We instruct the sherd, the scarab and the parchment to your keeping till such time as we demand them back again.

This letter, as may be imagined, astonished me considerably, but when I came to look at the MS., which the pressure of other work prevented me from doing for a fortnight, I was still more astonished, as I think the reader will be also, and at once made up my mind to agree on with the matter. I wrote to this effect to Holly, but a week afterward received a letter from him, dated from Paris, saying that he had changed his mind, and would not trouble me with the manuscript, as he was on the point of starting for Thibet, and could not be bothered with it. Then I wrote again, saying that I had read the manuscript, and was very anxious to publish it, and asking him to let me have it back, and I received a reply from Paris, dated from the Hotel Continental, saying that he had left Paris, and did not know when he would return, but that he had written to his lawyers to let me have the manuscript, and they did not at present know their address.

Well, that is all I have to say. Of the history itself the reader must judge. I give it him, with the exception of a very few alterations, made with the object of concealing the identity of the actors from the general public, exactly as it has come to me. Personally I have made up my mind to refrain from comments. At first I was inclined to believe that this history of a woman on whom, clothed in the majesty of her almost endless years, the shadow of Eternity itself lay like the dark wing of Night, was some gigantic allegory of which I could not catch the meaning. Then I thought that it might be a bold attempt to portray the possible results of immortality grafted on the substance of a mortal who yet drew her strength from this earth, and in whose human bosom passion yet rose and fell and beat as in the dusking world around her the winds and the tides rise and fall and beat incessantly. But as I went on I was doomed that idea also. To me the story seems to bear the stamp of truth upon its face. Its explanation I must leave to others; and with this slight preface, which circumstances make necessary, I introduce the world to Ayesha and the Cave of Kor.

THE EDITOR.

P.S.—There is on consideration one circumstance that, after a perusal of this history, struck me with considerable force, that I can not refrain from calling the attention of the reader to. He will observe that, so far as we are made acquainted with him, there is nothing in the character of Leo Vincey which, in the opinion of most people, would have been likely to attract an intellect so powerful as that of Ayesha. He is not even, at any rate to my view, particularly interesting; indeed, one might have imagined that Mr. Holly would, under ordinary circumstances, have easily outstripped him in the favor of She. Can it be that extremes meet, and that the very excess and splendor of her mind led her, by means of some strange physical reaction, to worship at the shrine of matter? Was that ancient Kallikrates nothing but a splendid animal, beloved for his Greek beauty? Or is the true explanation of what I refer to to be, namely, that Ayesha, seeing further than we can see, perceived the germ and smoldering spark of greatness that lay hid within her lover's soul, and well knew that under the influence of her gift of life, watered by her wisdom, and shone upon with the sunshine of her presence, it would bloom like a flower and flash out like a star, filling the world with fragrance and with light?

Here, also, I am not able to answer, but must leave the reader to form his own judgment on the materials before him.

I.

MY VISITOR.

There are some events of which every circumstance and surrounding detail stamp themselves in such a harsh fashion that we can not forget it, and so it is with the scene that I am about to describe. It rises as clearly before my mind at this moment as though it had happened yesterday.

It was in this month, something over twenty years ago, that I, Ludwig Horace Holly, was sitting one night in my rooms at Camboridge, grinding away at some mathematical work. I remember that I was to go up for my fellowship within a week, and was expected by my tutor and my college generally to distinguish myself. At last, wearied out, I flung my book down, and rising to the mantel-piece, took down a pipe and filled it. There was a candle burning on the mantel-piece, and a long, narrow glass at the back of it, and as I was in the act of lighting the pipe I caught sight of my own countenance in the glass, and paused to reflect. The lighted match burned away till it scorched my fingers, forcing me to drop it, but still I stood and stared at myself in the glass, and reflected.

"Well," I said aloud, at last, "it is to be hoped that I shall be able to do something with the inside of my head, for I shall certainly never do anything by the help of the outside."

This remark will probably strike anybody who reads it as being slightly obscure, but I was in reality alluding to my physical deficiencies. Most men of twenty-two are endowed at any rate with some share of the comeliness of youth, but to me even this was denied. Short, thickset, and deep-chested almost to deformity, with long, sinewy arms, heavy features, deep-set eyes, and a brow half overgrown with a mop of thick black hair, like a deserted clearing on which the forest had once more begun to encroach—such was my appearance nearly a quarter of a century ago, and much, with some modification, it is to this day. Like Cain, I was branded—branded by nature with the stamp of abnormal ugliness, as I was gifted by nature with iron and abnormal strength and considerable intellectual powers. So ugly was I that the spruce young men of my college, though they were proud enough of my feats of endurance and physical prowess, did not even care to be seen walking with me. Was it wonderful that I was misanthropic and sullen? Was it wonderful that I brooded and worked alone; and had no friends—at least only one? I was set apart by Nature for the life alone, and drew comfort from her breast and hers only. Women hated the sight of me. Only one week before I had heard one call me a "monster" when she thought I was out of hearing, and say that I had converted her to Darwin's theory. Once, indeed, a woman pretended to care for me, and I lavished all the pent-up affection of my nature upon her. Then money that was to have come to me went elsewhere, and she discarded me. I pleaded with her as I have never pleaded with any living creature before or since, for I was caught by her sweet face, and loved her; and in the end, by way of answer, she spat in my face, and stood side by side with me, and looked into it.

"Now," she said, "if I am Beauty, who are you?" and I cursed her and fled. That was when I was only twenty.

And so I stood and stared, and felt a sort of grim satisfaction in the sense of my own loneliness for I had neither father nor mother nor brother—and as I did so there came a knock at my door.

I listened before I went to open it, for it was nearly twelve o'clock at night, and I was in no mood to admit any stranger. I had but one friend in the college, or, indeed, in the world; perhaps it was he.

Just then the person outside the door coughed, and I hastened to open it, for I knew the cough.

A tall man of about thirty, with the remains of great personal beauty, came hurriedly and staggering beneath the weight of a massive iron box, which he carried by a handle in his right hand. He placed the box upon the table, and then fell into an awful fit of coughing. He coughed and coughed till his face became quite purple, and at last he sunk into a chair and began to spit up blood. I poured out some whiskey into a tumbler and gave it to him. He drank it and seemed better, though his better was very bad indeed.

"Why did you keep me standing there in the cold?" he asked; "you know the draughts are death to me."

"I did not know who it was," I answered.

"You are a late visitor."

"Yes; and I verily believe it is my last visit," he answered, with a ghastly attempt at a smile. "I am done for, Holly—I am done for. I do not believe that I shall see to-morrow."

"Nonsense!" I said. Let me go for a doctor."

He waved be bask impertinently with his hand. "It is sober sense; but I had no doctor. I have studied medicine, and I know all about it. No doctors can help me. My last hour has come! For a year past I have only lived by a miracle. Now listen to me as you never listened to anybody before, for you will not have the opportunity of getting me to repeat my words. We have been friends for two years; now tell me how much do you know about me?"

"I know that you are rich, and have had a fancy to come to college long after the age that most men leave it. I know that you have been married, and that your wife died; and that you have been the best, indeed, almost the only, friend I ever had."

"Did you know that I have a son?"

"No."

"I have. He is five years old. He cost me his mother's life, and I have never been able to bear to look upon his face in consequence. Holly, if you will accept the trust, I am going to leave you the boy's sole guardian."

I sprung almost out of my chair. "Me!" I said.

"Yes, you. I have not studied you for two years for nothing. I have known for some time that I could not last, and since I realized the fact I have been searching for some one to whom I could confide the boy and this," and he tapped the iron box. "You are the man, Holly; for, like a rugged tree, you are hard and sound at core. Listen; the boy will be the last survivor or one of the most ancient families in the world, that is, so far as families can be traced. You will laugh at me when I say that one day it will be proved to you beyond a doubt that the founder of the family, my sixty-fifth or sixty-sixth lineal ancestor, was an Egyptian priest of Isis, though he was himself of Grecian extraction, and was called Kallikrates, or the Strong and Beautiful, or, to be still more accurate, the Beautiful in Strength! His father was, I believe, one of the Greek mercenaries raised by Hakor, a Mendesian prince of the twenty-ninth dynasty, in or about the year 389 before Christ, just at the time of the final fall of the Pharaohs, this Kallikrates broke his vows of celibacy and fled from Egypt with a princess of royal blood who had fallen in love with him, and was finally wrecked upon the coast of Africa, somewhere, as I believe, in the neighborhood of where Delagoa Bay now is, or rather to the north of it, he and his wife being saved, and all the remainder of their company destroyed in one way or another. Here they endured great hardships, but were at last entertained by the mighty queen of a savage people, a white woman of peculiar loveliness who, under circumstances which I can not enter into, but which you will one day learn, if you live, from the contents of the box, finally murdered my ancestor, Kallikrates. His wife, however, escaped, and I know not, to Africa, bearing a child with her, whom she named Tisatheses, or the Mighty Avenger. Five hundred years or more afterward the family migrated to Rome under circumstances of which no trace remains, and here, probably with the idea of preserving the idea of vengeance which we find set out in Tisatheses, they appear to have pretty regularly assumed the cognomen of Vindex, or Avenger. Here, too, they remained for another five centuries or more, till about 715 A.D., when Charlemagne invaded Lombardy, where they were then settled, wherein the head of the family seems to have attached himself to the great emperor, and to have returned with him across the Alps, and finally to have settled in Brittany. Six generations later his lineal representative crossed to England in the reign of Edward the Confessor, and in the time of William the Conqueror was advanced to great honor and power. From that time till the present day I can trace my descent without a break. Not that the Viceroys—for that was the final corruption of the name after its bearers took root in English soil—have been particularly distinguished—they never came much to the fore. Sometimes they were soldiers, sometimes merchants, but on the whole they had preserved a dead level of respectability, and still deader level of mediocrity. From the time of Charles II. till the beginning of the present century they were merchants. About 1790 my grandfather made a considerable fortune out of brewing, and retired. In 1821 he died, and my father succeeded him, and dissipated most of the money. Ten years ago he died also, leaving me a net income of about two thousand a year. Then it was that I undertook an expedition in connection with that," and he pointed to the iron chest, "which ended disastrously enough. On my way back I traveled in the south of Europe, and finally reached Athens. There I met my beloved wife, who might well also have been called the Beautiful, like my old Greek ancestor. There I married her, and there, a year afterward, she died."

He paused awhile, his head sunk upon his hand, and then continued:—

"My marriage had diverted me from a project which I can not enter into now, have no time, Holly—I have no time! One day, if you accept my trust, you will learn all about it. After my wife's death I turned my mind to it again. But first it was necessary, or at least I conceived that it was necessary, that I should attain to a perfect knowledge of Eastern dialects, especially Arabic. It was to facilitate my studies that I came here. Very soon, however, my disease developed itself, and now there is an end of me." And as though to emphasize his words, he burst into another terrible fit of coughing.

I gave him some more whisky, and, after resting, he went on:—

"I have never seen my boy, Leo, since he was a tiny baby. I never could see him, but they tell me that he is a quick and handsome child. In this envelope," and he produced a letter from his pocket addressed to myself, "I have jotted down the course I wish followed in the boy's education. It is a somewhat peculiar one. At any rate, I could not entrust it to a stranger. Once more, will you undertake it?"

"I must know what I am to undertake," I answered.

"You are to undertake to have the boy, Leo, to live with you till he is twenty-years of age—not to send him to school, remember. On his twenty fifth birthday your guardianship will end, and you will then, with the keys that I give you now" (and he placed them on the table) "open the iron box, and let him see and read the contents, and say whether or no he is willing to undertake the quest. There is no obligation on him to do so. Now, as regards terms. My present income is two thousand two hundred a year. Half of that income I have secured to you by will for life, contingently on your undertaking the guardianship and the quest, one thousand a year remuneration to yourself, for you will have to give up your life to it, and one hundred a year to pay for the board of the boy. The rest is to accumulate till Leo is twenty-five, so that there may be a sum in hand should he wish to undertake the quest of which I spoke."

"And suppose I were to die?" I asked.

"Then the boy must become a ward of Chancery and take his chance. Only be careful that the iron chest is passed on to him by your will. Listen. Holly, don't refuse me. Believe me, this is to your advantage. You are not in touch with the world: it would only embitter you. In a few weeks you will become a Fellow of your college, and the income that you will derive from that, combined with what I have left you, will enable you to live a life of learned leisure, alternated with the sport of which you are so fond, such as will exactly suit you."

He paused, and looked at me anxiously, but I still hesitated. The charge seemed so very strange.

"For my sake, Holly. We have been good friends, and I have no time to make other arrangements."

"Very well," I said, "I will do it, provided there is nothing in this paper to make me change my mind," and I touched the envelope he had put upon the table of the keys.

"Thank you, Holly, thank you. There is nothing at all. Swear to me by God that you will be a father to the boy, and follow my directions to the letter."

"I swear it," I answered, solemnly.

"Very well; remember that perhaps one day I shall ask for the account of your oath, for though I am dead and forgotten yet shall I live. There is no such thing as death, Holly, only a change; and as you may perhaps learn in time to come, I believe that even here that change could under certain circumstance be indefinitely postponed," and here again he broke into one of his dreadful fits of coughing.

McGregor's Lung Compound

Promotes free and easy expectoration, clears the throat and lungs of all phlegm, soothes and heals all sores and pains. It will be found equally beneficial to children as adults, and will give relief in every case. Sold at 50c and $1 per bottle at Harkness & Co.'s Drug Store. 2uts

The El Paso (Tex.) Times says:—"It is no use for Northern papers to say that El Paso is the toughest place in Texas. There is Cotulla, for instance. There has been a regular vendetta there lately, and several killings, and since the last killing the feeling is as high as ever, and the best citizens are very uneasy. People attended church last Sunday armed in case of emergency, and the congregation was the most solemn that has assembled for many a day."

SURE CURE FOR RHEUMATISM.—If the system is properly cleansed by some medicine that acts upon the bowels, kidneys and skin, such as Burdock Blood Bitters, and the sufferer will use Hagyard's Yellow Oil according to directions, there are few case of rheumatism, however bad, but will yield promptly to the treatment. 2

The original baptismal certificate in the possession of the family of Henry Meyers, who recently died in New Orleans, shows that he was born August 31, 1760. He came to this country in his early manhood from Holland. Another ancient certificate says Henry Meyers was admitted to his first communion in 1775.

Free and easy expectoration immediately relieves and frees the throat and lungs from viscid phlegm, and a medicine that promotes this is the best medicine to use for coughs, colds, inflammation of the lungs and all affections of the throat and chest. This is precisely what Hickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup is a specific for, and wherever used it has given unbounded satisfaction. Children like it because it is pleasant, adults like it because it relieves and cures the disease.

Tinned beef—which is English for canned beef—is served to the English soldiers at Aldershot. The other day when one of the "tins" was opened "a well-season briar-root pipe" was found imbedded in the contents, from which it appears that they don't always do these things better abroad, you know.

THE DEAF MADE TO HEAR—"After eight years suffering from deafness so bad that I was unable to attend to my business, I was cured by the use of Hagyard's Yellow Oil. With gratitude I make this known for the benefit of others afflicted." Harry Ricardo, Toronto. 2

Miss Matilda Johnson has just died in London, one hundred and sixteen years old. Eighty-nine years ago her intended husband died suddenly, and she made a will giving her entire fortune to the Military Hospital, and directing that "Love killed her" should be engraved on her tombstone.

Mr. John Magwood, Victoria Road, writes "Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and customers say they never used anything so effectual. Good results immediately follow its use. I know its value from personal experience, having been troubled for 9 or 10 years with Dyspepsia. Dyspeptic Cure is a splendid medicine. My sis. and since using it digestion goes on without that depressed feeling so well-known to dyspeptics. I have no hesitation in recommending it in any case of Indigestion, Constipation, Heartburn, or troubles arising from a disordered stomach."

Masonic.

Meetings next week:—Tuesday, Corinthian L dge, No. 32. Wednesday, St. George's Lodge, No 45; Friday, London Lodge of Perfection, A. & A. S. Rite.

The D D G M of the Third Masonic District, R W Bro Luke Slater, continues his work of visitation, and reports harmony and progress in every section of his jurisdiction. On Tuesday he will officially visit Warren Lodge, No 130, at Fingal; on Wednesday, Delaware Valley Lodge, No 358, at Delaware, and on Friday St Paul's Lodge, No 107, Lambeth.

R W Bro Bannett, the Grand Registrar, is meeting with much encouragement from the Craft throughout the Dominion in the sale of his "Freemason's Pocket-book and Directory," and reports, on every hand, an urgent demand for the handy work. The London brethren are never slow to recognize merit and good work on the part of a brother, and by writing for a copy of Bro. Bennett's "Enquire Within," they will be killing two birds with one stone, viz:—obtaining information that may be of invaluable service to them, and assisting the compiler in his laudable undertaking.

On the 9th of February will occur the fifteenth annual meeting of the London Masonic Mutual Benefit Association. From the report of the Directors it is learned that during the past year $4,745.77 have been added to the Reserve Fund, making the amount to rest $54,743.77. During the year there has been 27 deaths, one of which was the result of accident. The average age of the deceased members was 53½ years—the youngest being 38, and the oldest 70. $33,400 have been paid and to be paid to beneficiaries. The President speaks hopefully of the prospects of the Association, which has to fight against innumerable kindred Societies, both within and without the Craft. The Directors are at a loss to divine why brethren prefer policies in Associations, about the internal working of which they know little or nothing, and give the Local Association, concerning which they can easily obtain information, the cold shoulder. It no doubt arises from the fact that the immediate demand upon their purses is not so high as in our Local Association, but they overlook the fact, that the L M B A is the only Mutual Masonic Association on the continent having a reserve fund; that it has life insurances reduced to its lowest practical cost, consistent with the mortality tables of the best actuaries; that it is ran as economically as possible; and that only the best class of risks are accepted by the Medical Referee, Dr. Brown. While other Associations may (and do) offer cheaper insurances, the desideratum—permanency—cannot be secured for any lower sum than is offered by the local Association. The Secretary reports 110 applications received during 1886, eleven of which were rejected and nine of the balance not completed in time for this year's report—a total of 90 new members. The total in good standing at Jan. 1st, 1887, was 1,304, whose total insurance covers $1,696,700. There are two minutes of motion, both of similar purport: "That of leaving it optional with members to be affiliated with Lodges after five years' membership in the Association." The Directors who retire are V. W. Bro. Thos. Brock, W. Bro W. Skinner and Bro. J. D. Sharman. The financial statement shows total receipts to have been $51,398.29, and disbursements $49,711.48, leaving balance in bank and on hand (exclusive of reserve fund) $1,686.81. The attendance at the approaching meeting should be large. The Directors and officers would esteem it a favor to have the privilege of explaining every detail to the members.

A special meeting of McColl Lodge, No. 386, G R C, A F & A M., West Lorne, was held on Wednesday at the Masonic Hall, when the installing officers took place, assisted by Bro P M McLean, of Sarnia Lodge, No. 56, and Bros R McFate and W H McLean, of McColl Lodge, and Bro G E Casey, M P., from Warren Lodge No. 120, was also present. The following officers were installed: P Stalker, W M; J Chaseley, S W; J J Stalker, J W; J Wilton, Treasurer; J Hind, Secretary; A Long, Tyler; A McColl, S D; T Harris, J D; S Partridge, J G; Finance Committee, Bros R McFate, J J Stalker and D McIntyre; Charitable Committee, Bros R McFate, J Chaseley and B Partridge; Audit, Bros W H McLean and F Harris. To close up the evening we thought it about source to meet at Bro Geo Partridge's, where a supper was got up after the old style of the Commercial. We must not forget the ladies for the manner in which the good things were provided by them from the Brethren of McColl Lodge and vicinity. —COM.

The seventh annual re-union of the Ancient, Accepted Scottish Rite, comprising Hurton Lodge of Perfection, Hamilton Chapter of Rose Croix, and Godfroi Bouillon Sovereign Consistory, took place on Wednesday and Thursday last, and was attended by a very large number of Brethren from all portions of Ontario, New York, Ohio and Michigan. A grand banquet was given the visitors, and a pleasant time spent by all.

The newly-installed officers of Old Light Lodge, Lucknow, are as follows:—W M, Capt John McPherson; S W, Brown Mallough; J W, Harry Days; Treasurer, Wm Lyons; Secretary, Wm Mallis.

The four Grand Masonic bodies of Michigan held their annual sessions at Detroit during the week, elected officers for 1887, and transacted a large amount of business. Two new Lodges were instituted during 1886, and 12 new Masonic halls dedicated. The question of Masonic funerals was referred to at length in the G M's address, and the following remedy was suggested, that the Grand Lodge require that all Masonic funerals be conducted by Master Lodges, and that a specified number of the members of Commanderies be requested to act as an escort when the brother is a member of the Order. This topic is now a matter for very general discussion in Masonic circles because of the unquestionable fact that the growing custom of having Knights Templar burial services draws very largely from the Master Mason Lodges, causing those Lodges to present a depleted and unimportant appearance at funerals, to the chagrin and discomfort of Master Masons who are not Knights Templar. As all Knights Templar must be Master Masons, the solution of the problem as above suggested, is considered a fair and reasonable one. The Michigan Masonic Home Association was reported as having been very successful in its progress. It has purchased a farm of 111 acres near Grand Rapids at a cost of $12,000, and will in the early spring begin the erection of the Masonic Home. The Freemason, a Masonic paper published in Detroit, was referred to in complimentary terms, Masons being advised to subscribe to it. Bro. Rufus G. Hathaway, of Grand Rapids, was elected Grand Master. The next meeting will be held at East Saginaw in January, 1887.

The tenth annual convention of the Grand Chapter, Royal Arch Masons, of Quebec, was held at Montreal on Tuesday last. M. Ex-Comp. Noyes, in his annual address, referred to the harmony existing in the Order, and the number of influential men who have joined the Order, and recommended that the ritual be revised so as to assimilate more with the ritual practised in similar lodges in the United States, with whom the Grand Chapter were in constant intercourse. An invitation was extended to the oldest Chapter, "the Golden Rule," to the present and assist at revisions of the ritual. The relations with foreign Grand Chapters, with the exception of the Grand Mark Lodge of England, were most satisfactory. With the latter Chapter there had been no communication during the year, owing to a difficulty which had arisen with reference to the jurisdiction of the Grand Lodge of Quebec, which was disputed by the Grand Mark Lodge of England. The G D of Quebec defended the action of the Quebec Lodge on the ground that the Grand Mark Lodge had recognized the Quebec Lodge long before the application for warrants of confirmation were issued. They claimed that in the same sense as any State in the American Union, the Province of Quebec was supreme within its own boundaries. A reference was made to the Queen's Jubilee, to the effect that the G C should make their congratulation worthy of the noble woman who ruled the British Empire.

Oddfellowship.

The following are the new officers of Lincan Lodge, No 76, I O O F:—Bro W Endicott, N G; Bro W Gibson, V G; Bro W E Stanley, P S; Bro R H Collins, R S; Bro H Collins, O G; Bro E Jennings, I G; Bro A Goodacre, Treas.

Bro J B King, Grand Secretary of the I O O F of Ontario, and who has recently been fulfilling the duties of Grand Instructor among the Lodges in other portions of the Province, arrived in Ottawa on Tuesday with a view to instructing the local organizations, the Lodges of Ottawa and Carleton, in the unwritten work of the Order. During the afternoon a meeting for the purpose was held in the Oddfellows' Hall, at which a large number of representatives from the neighboring Lodges of Carleton Place, Almonte and Arnprior attended. Another session was held during the evening, on the conclusion of which the local lodges and their invited guests to the number of about 150 adjourned to the Parliamentary Hall, where a grand banquet was given to Bro. King and the other visiting members of the Order.

The officers of Frontier Lodge, I O O F, of Windsor, went to Essex Centre last Thursday evening to wish Enterprise Lodge, No. 218, to further instruct the officers of that Lodge in the secret work of the Order. Delegates were present from various Lodges throughout the county. After the ceremony a sumptuous banquet was partaken of at the Masonic Hall, and the Windsor brethren report spending a most pleasant and instructive evening.

Miscellaneous.

At the regular meeting of Court Maple No 175, I O. F., St. Thomas, the other night, the financial Secretary, James Sharpe, was presented with a handsome gold Forester's pin. Mr Sharpe has been Secretary of the lodge for two consecutive terms, and the presentation was made to mark their appreciation of their success.

Mr. Nixon, of Toronto, and Mr. Henry Watson, of Clearville, are endeavoring to resuscitate the A. O. U. W. lodge in Rodney.

The Grand Lodge of the A. O. U. W. will meet at Toronto on the 15th prox. Bro. J. W. McLaren is one of the representatives from London Lodge, No. 18.

At the last meeting of Ilderton Lodge, No 168 A O U W, the following officers were installed for 1887 by the Senior P M W:—Alex McLean, P M W; Alex J Thompson, Master; John Gibbon, Foreman; P McAndless, Overseer; J N Kendall, Recorder; A C Attwood, Financier; G B Patrick, Receiver; G Milburn, Guide; S J Gray, Inside Watchman; Wm West, Outside Watchman; Alex McLean, Representative to Grand Lodge.

CAMPAIGN NOTES.

Preparations for the Coming Struggle—Echoes From all Along the Line.

Mr. Blake will address the Nationalists at Montreal on Monday.

Senator Lacoste states that Archbishop Tache told him also to support the Government on the Riel question.

Mr. Tarte will probably be the Government candidate in Charlevoix, Mr. L Taschereau in L'Islet, and Mr. Larose in Megantic.

Mr. Louis J Papineau, son of the rebel leader of 1837, is mentioned by the Grits as an opponent of Mr. Alonzo Wright, in Ottawa County.

The nominations in Chicoutimi and Saguenay will take place on the 12th prox, three days ahead of the nominations in other counties. The elections will, however, be held on the 22nd.

It is not considered probable that Mr. B. M. Britton, of Kingston, the Grit nominee, will contest Addington, Mr. Deroche (Grit) having expressed the opinion that he would be beaten by a thousand votes.

Mr. Walter Shanly has consented to again be the Conservative standard bearer in South Renfrew. "Wandering Willie" Macdougall has therefore a very poor show of sitting in the next House.

Dr Fiset, the Grit candidate in Rimouski, is the man who took charge of Louis Riel when he visited Ottawa after the first rebellion and signed the roll as a member of Parliament. Dr. Fiset witnessed the signature.

The Liberal-Conservatives of East Toronto held their convention last night for nominating a candidate for the House of Commons. John Small, the ex-member, was unanimously chosen, no other name being brought forward.

Hamilton Conservatives speak confidently of the result of the election, pointing to the large attendance of workingmen at the Convention Thursday night as an evidence that the workingmen of the city will not vote as a body for Mr. Walters, the Grit labor candidate.

Mr. Chapleau addressed the French Conservatives at Montreal on Tuesday. On rising, he took off the heavy fur coat he was wearing, saying at the same time:—"Gentlemen, I am only taking off my coat, not changing it. The sally was received with roars of laughter. He stated in the course of his speech that he had not changed on the Riel question.

The political situation in Manitoba is rapidly assuming shape. In Selkirk, Mr. Daly, Conservative, and Mr. Christie, Grit, are holding meetings nightly, as also are Mr. Watson and Colonel Boulton in Marquette. Mr. Royal has received the regular Convention nomination for Provencher, obtaining 75 votes against 15 for Mr. H. J. Clarke. In Lisgar the contest has narrowed down to Mr. Ross, Conservative, and Mr. McArthur, Grit.

At a meeting of the Conservative Nominating Committee for Montreal West, held yesterday, Sir Donald A. Smith was chosen as the party candidate, and a general meeting of Government supporters is called for to-day to ratify the nomination. Telegrams and verbal assurances were presented from Sir John Macdonald, Sir Chas. Tupper and Hon. Mr. Chapleau, expressing their satisfaction at Sir Donald's proposed nomination. He sailed from England on Thursday and will be in Montreal within nine days.

In Perth the prospects are reported to be good for both Conservative candidates. Mr. S. R. Hesson is the Conservative candidate in North Perth, in which he was elected in 1882 by 252 majority. Some time ago Mr Jacob Hespler was nominated in convention as the Grit candidate, but he has declined to lead the forlorn hope, and Dr. Jas. Johnston, of Millbank, is now mentioned as the party candidate. In South Perth the Conservative standard-bearer is Mr. H. F. Sharp, of St. Mary's, who comes out to oppose Mr. James Trow. Mr. Trow was elected in 1882 by 179 majority.

A convention of the Conservatives of West Lambton was held at Sarnia yesterday in the Fireman's Hall, which was crowded on the occasion. The whole of the Riding was represented, and the utmost enthusiasm prevailed. Several candidates were proposed, but they all retired in favor of Mr. W. H. McMahon, ex Reeve of Plympton, who accepted the nomination. Mr McMahon is a farmer in good circumstances. Not only will he poll the Conservative vote to a man, but many Reformers will support him, the farmers, as a rule, being anxious to have one of themselves represent them in the House. The six candidates who retired in favor of Mr. McMahon were Dr. Armstrong, E. P. Watson, A. R. McGregor, Thos. Kenny, R E Lougeur.

Consumptives obtain great relief by the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. No other remedy is so effective.

The American Machinist says:—"In spite of improved appliances on locomotives some railroads sprinkle their passengers profusely with cinders and cloud them very freely with smoke. It is of more consequence to prevent the smoke and cinder nuisance, where it exists, than to provide luxurious palace-cars."

A large German firm at Bamberg has originated a novel plan for attracting customers. Adjoining their store is a cafe and restaurant. Every purchaser obtains a ticket of admission, on which is marked the value of the goods purchased. If he has spent a dollar, he gets a cup of coffee gratis; if two dollars, a steak or chop, and so on to a dinner of several courses, with wines, etc.

A LUCKY ESCAPE.—Mrs. Cyrus Kilborne, of Beamsville, Ont., had what was thought to be a cancer on her nose, and was about to submit to a cancer doctor's operation, when she tried Burdock Blood Bitters, which effected a radical cure. This medicine cures all blood diseases. 5

A TALE OF ABSORBING INTEREST.

INTRODUCTION.

In giving to the world the record of what, looked at from that point of view only, is, I suppose one of the most wonderful and mysterious adventures ever experienced by mortal men, I feel it incumbent on me to explain what my exact connection with it is. And so I may as well say at once that I am not the narrator, but only the editor of this extraordinary history, and then proceed to tell how it found its way into my hands.

Some years ago, I, the editor, was stopping with a brother at one of the Universities, which for the purposes of this history we will call Cambridge, and was one day much struck with the appearance of two people whom I saw going arm in arm down the street. One of these gentlemen was, I think, without exception, the handsomest young fellow I have ever set eyes on. He was very tall, very broad, and had a look of power and a grace of bearing that seemed as native to him as it is to a wild stag. In addition, his face was almost without flaw—a good face as well as a beautiful one; and when he lifted his hat, which he did just then to a passing lady, I saw that his head was covered with little golden curls growing close to the scalp.

"Good gracious!" I said to my brother, with whom I was walking; "why, that fellow looks like a statue of Apollo come to life. What a splendid man he is!"

"Yes," he answered; "he is the handsomest man in the University, and one of the nicest too. They call him 'the Greek God.' But look at the other one; he's Vincey's (that's the god's name) guardian, and supposed to be full of every kind of information. They call him 'Charon.'"

I looked, and found the older man quite as interesting in his way as the glorified specimen of humanity at his side. He appeared to be about forty years of age, and was, I think, as ugly as his companion was handsome. To begin with, he was shortish, rather bow-legged, very deep-chested, and with unusually long arms. He had dark hair and small eyes, and the hair grew right down on his forehead, and his whiskers grew right up to his hair, so that there was uncommonly little of his countenance to be seen. Altogether he reminded one forcibly of a gorilla, and yet there was something very pleasing and genial about the man's eye. I remember saying that I should like to know him.

"All right," answered my brother; "nothing easier. I know Vincey; I'll introduce you;" and he did; and for some minutes we stood chatting—about the Zulu people, I think, for I had just returned from the Cape at the time. Presently, however, a stoutish lady, whose name I do not remember, came along the pavement, accompanied by a pretty fair-haired girl, and these two Mr. Vincey, who clearly knew them well, at once joined, and walked off in their company. I remember being rather amused because of the change in the expression of the elder man, whose name I discovered was Holly, when he saw the ladies advancing. He suddenly stopped short in his talk, cast a reproachful look at his companion, and, with an abrupt nod to myself, turned and marched off alone across the street. I heard afterward that he was popularly supposed to be as much afraid of a woman as most people are of a mad dog, which accounted for his precipitate retreat. I cannot say, however, that young Vincey showed much aversion to feminine society on this occasion. Indeed, I remember laughing and remarking to my brother at the time that he was not the sort of man whom one would care to introduce to a lady one was going to marry, since it is exceedingly probable that the acquaintance would end in a transfer of her affections. He was altogether too good-looking, and, what was more, he had none of that consciousness and conceit about him which usually afflicts handsome men, and makes them deservedly disliked by their fellows.

That evening my visit came to an end, and that was the last I saw or heard of Charon and the Greek god for many a long day. Indeed, I have never seen either of them from that hour to this, and do not suppose it likely that I shall. But a month ago I received a letter and two packets, one of manuscript, and on opening the first found that it was signed by "Horace Holly," a name that at that moment was not familiar to me. It ran as follows:—

"MY DEAR SIR,—You will be surprised, considering the very slight nature of our acquaintance, to get a letter from me. Indeed, I think I had better begin by reminding you that we once met, now some five years ago, when your brother introduced me and my ward Leo Vincey to you in the street at Cambridge. To be brief and come to my business, I have recently read, with much interest a book of yours describing a Central African adventure. I take it that this book is partly true, and partly an effort of the imagination. However this is, it has given me an idea. It happens—how, you will see in the accompanying manuscript, which, together with the scarab, the 'Royal Son of the Sun,' and the original sherd, I am sending to you by hand—that my ward, or rather my adopted son, Leo Vincey and myself have recently passed through a real African adventure of a nature so much more marvelous than the one which you describe that, to tell you the truth, I am almost ashamed to submit it to you for fear lest you should disbelieve me. You will see it stated in this manuscript that I, or rather we, had made up our minds not to make this history public during our joint lives. Nor should we alter our determination, were it not for a circumstance that has recently arisen. We are, for reasons that, after perusing this manuscript, you may be able to guess, going away again, this time to Central Asia, where, if anywhere upon this earth, wisdom is to be found, and anticipate that our sojourn there will be a long one. Possibly we shall not return. Under these altered conditions it has become a question whether we are justified in withholding from the world an account of a phenomenon which we believe to be of unparalleled interest, merely because our private life is involved, or because we are afraid of ridicule and doubt being cast upon our statements. I hold one view about this matter and Leo holds another, and, finally, after much discussion, we have come to a compromise, namely, to send the history to you, giving you full leave to publish it if you think fit, the only stipulation being that you shall disguise our real names and as much concerning our identity as is consistent with the maintenance of the bona fides of the narrative.

"And now what am I to say further? I really do not know, beyond once more repeating that everything described in the accompanying manuscript is exactly as it happened. As regards She herself I have nothing to add. Day by day we have greater occasion to regret that we did not better avail ourselves of our opportunities to obtain more information from that marvelous woman. Who was she? How did she first come to the Caves of Kor, and what was her real religion? We never ascertained, and now, alas! we never shall, at least not yet. These and many other questions arise in my mind; but what is the good of asking them now?

"Will you undertake the task? We give you complete freedom, and as a reward you will certainly have the credit of giving to the world the most wonderful history, as distinguished from romance, that its records can show. Read the manuscript (which I have copied out fairly for your benefit), and let me know.

"Believe me, very truly yours,

"P.S.—Of course, if any profit results from the sale of the writing, should you care to undertake it, you can do what you like with it, but if there is a loss I will leave instructions with my lawyers, Messrs Geoffrey & Jordan, to meet it. We entrust the sherd, the scarab and the parchment to your keeping till such time as we demand them back again.

This letter, as may be imagined, astonished me considerably, but when I came to look at the MS., which the pressure of other work prevented me from doing for a fortnight, I was still more astonished, as I think the reader will be also, and at once made up my mind to press on with the matter. I wrote to this effect to Mr. Holly, but a week afterward received a letter from that gentleman's lawyers, returning my own, with the information that their client and Mr. Leo Vincey had left this country for Tuticot, and they did not at present know their address.

Well, that is all I have to say. Of the history itself the reader must judge. I give it him, with the exception of a very few alterations, made with the object of concealing the identity of the actors from the general public, exactly as it has come to me. Personally I have made up my mind to refrain from comments. At first I was inclined to believe the true history of a woman on whom, clothed in the majesty of her almost endless years, the shadow of Eternity itself lay like the dark wing of Sleep, was some gigantic allegory of which I could not catch the meaning. Then I thought that it might be a bold attempt to portray the possible results of immortality grafted on the substance of a mortal who yet drew her strength from the earth, and in whose human bosom passion yet rose and fell and beat with the rushing world-current that winds and the tides hurtle and fall and beat ceaselessly. But as I went on I abandoned that idea also. To me the story seems to bear the stamp of truth upon its face. Its explanation I must leave to others; and with this slight preface, which circumstances make necessary, I introduce the world to Ayesha and the Caves of Kor.

THE EDITOR.

P.S.—There is on consideration one circumstance that, after a reperusal of this history, struck me with sad much force that I can not refrain from calling the attention of the reader to it. He will observe that, so far as we are made acquainted with him, there is nothing in the character of Leo Vincey which, in the opinion of most people, would have been likely to attract an intellect so powerful as that of Ayesha. He is not even, at any rate to my view, particularly interesting; indeed, one might have imagined that Mr. Holly would, under ordinary circumstances, have easily outstripped him in the favor of She. Can it be that extreme meekness and obedience, and that very strong and splendor of her mind led her, by means of some strange physical reaction, to worship at the shrine of matter? Was that ancient Kallikrates nothing but a splendid animal, beloved for his Greek beauty? Or is the true explanation what I believe it to be, namely, that Ayesha, seeing further than we can see, perceived the eternal and burdening spark of greatness that lay hid within her lover's soul, and well knew that under the influence of her gift of life, watered by her wisdom, and shone upon with the sunshine of her presence, it would bloom like a flower and flash out like a star, filling the world with fragrance and with light?

Here, also, I am not able to answer, but must leave the reader to form his own judgment on the materials before him.

MY VISITOR.

There are some events of which every circumstance and surrounding detail seems to be graven on the memory in such fashion that we can not forget it, and so it is with the scene that I am about to describe. It rises as clearly before my mind at this moment as though it had happened yesterday.

It was in this month, something over twenty years ago, that I, Ludwig Horace Holly, was sitting one night in my rooms at Cambridge, grinding away at some mathematical work, I forget what. I was to go up for my fellowship within a week, and was expected by my tutor and my college generally to distinguish myself. At last, wearied out, I flung my book down, and going to the mantel-piece, took down a pipe and filled it. There was a candle burning on the mantel-piece, and a long, narrow glass at the back of it, and as I was in the act of lighting the pipe I caught sight of my own countenance in the glass, and paused to reflect. The lighted match burned away till it scorched my fingers, forcing me to drop it, but still I stood and stared at myself in the glass, and reflected.

"Well," I said aloud, at last, "it is to be hoped that I shall be able to do credit to nothing with the inside of my head, for I shall certainly never do anything by the help of the outside."

This remark will doubtless strike anybody who reads it as being silly and obscure, but I was in reality alluding to my bodily deficiencies. Most men of twenty-two are endowed at any rate with some share of the comeliness of youth, but to me even this was denied. I was, and am, deformed almost to deformity, with long, sinewy arms, heavy features, deep-set gray eyes, a low brow half overgrown with a mop of thick black hair, like a deserted clearing on which the forest had once more begun to encroach—such was my appearance nearly a quarter of a century ago, and such, with some modification, is it to this day. Like Cain, I was branded—branded by nature with the stamp of abnormal ugliness, that was affixed by nature's own hand. An abnormal strength and considerable intellectual powers. So ugly was I that the spruce young men of my college, though they were proud enough of my feats of endurance and physical prowess, did not even care to be seen walking with me. Was it wonderful that I was misanthropic and sullen? Was it wonderful that I brooded and worked alone; and had no friends—at least only one? I was about to say Nature, but I live alone, and draw comfort from her breast, and hers only. Women hated the sight of me. Only one week before I had heard one call me a "monster" when she thought I was out of hearing, and say that I had converted her to Darwin's theory. Once, indeed, a woman pretended to care for me, and I lavished all the pent-up affection of my nature upon her. Then money that was to have come to me went elsewhere, and she discarded me. I pleaded with her as I have never pleaded with any living creature before or since, for I was caught by her sweet face, and loved her; and in the end, by way of answer, she took me to the glass, and stood side by side with me, and looked into it.

"Now," she said, "if I am Beauty, who are you?" and I cursed her and fled. That was when I was only twenty.

And so I stood and stared, and felt a sort of grim satisfaction in the sense of my own loneliness—for I had neither father nor mother nor brother—and as I did so there came a knock at my door.

I listened before I went to open it, for it was a trifle past twelve o'clock at night, and I was in no mood to admit any stranger. I had but one friend in the college, or, indeed, in the world; perhaps it was he.

Just then the person outside the door coughed, and I hastened to open it, for I knew the cough.

A tall man of about thirty, with the remains of great personal beauty, came hurrying in, staggering beneath the weight of a massive iron box, which he carried by a handle in his right hand. He placed the box upon the table, and then fell into an awful fit of coughing. He coughed and coughed till his face became quite purple, and at last he sank into a chair and began to spit up blood. I poured out some whiskey into a tumbler and gave it to him. He drank it and seemed better, though his better was very bad indeed.

"Why did you keep me standing there in the cold?" he asked; "you know the draughts are death to me."

"I did not know who it was," I answered. "You are a late visitor."

"Yes; and I verily believe it is my last visit," he answered, with a ghastly attempt at a smile. "I am done for, Holly—I am done for. I do not believe that I shall see to-morrow eve!"

"Nonsense!" I said. Let me go for a doctor."

He waved be back imperiously with his hand. "It is sober sense; but I want no doctors. I have studied medicine, and I know all about it. No doctors can help me. My last hour has come! For a year past I have only lived by a miracle. Now listen to me as you never listened to anybody before, for you will not have the opportunity of getting me to repeat my words. We have been friends for two years; now tell me how much do you know about me?"

"I know that you are rich, and have had a fancy to come to college long after the age that most men leave it. I know that you have been married, and that your wife died, and that you have been the best, indeed, almost the only, friend I ever had."

"Did you know that I have a son?"

"No."

"If have. He is five years old. He cost me his mother's life, and I have never been able to bear to look upon his face in consequence. Holly, if you will accept the trust, I am going to leave you the boy's sole guardian."

I sprung almost out of my chair. "Me!" I said.

"Yes, you. I have not studied you for two years for nothing. I have known for some time that I could not last, and since I realized the fact I have been searching for some one to whom I could confide the boy and this," and he tapped the iron box. "You are the man, Holly; for, like a rugged tree, you are hard and sound at core. Listen; the boy will be the last survivor of one of the most ancient families in the world, that is, as far as families can be traced. You will laugh at me when I say it, but one day it will be proved to you beyond a doubt that the founder of the family, my sixty-fifth or sixty-sixth lineal ancestor, was an Egyptian priest of Isis, though he was himself of Grecian extraction, and was called Kallikrates, or the Strong and Beautiful, or, to be still more accurate, the Beautiful in Strength. His father was, I believe, one of the Greek mercenaries raised by Hakor, a Mendessian prince of the twenty-ninth dynasty. In or about the year 339 before Christ, just at the time of the final fall of the Pharaohs, this Kallikrates broke his vows of celibacy and fled from Egypt with a princess of royal blood who had fallen in love with him, and was finally wrecked upon the coast of Africa, somewhere, as I believe, in the neighborhood of where Delagoa Bay now is, or rather to the north of it, he and his wife being saved, and all the remainder of their company destroyed in one way or another. Here they endured great hardships, but were at last entertained by the mighty queen of a savage people, a white woman of peculiar loveliness who, under circumstances which I can not enter into, but which you will one day learn, if you live, from the contents of the box, finally murdered my ancestor, Kallikrates. His wife, however, escaped, how I know not, to Athens, bearing a child with her, whom she named Tisithenes, or the Mighty Avenger. Five hundred years or more afterward the family migrated to Rome under circumstances of which no trace remains, and here, probably with the idea of preserving the idea of vengeance which we find set out in Tisithenes, they appear to have pretty regularly assumed the cognomen of Vindex, or Avenger. Here, too, they remained for another five centuries or more, till about 770 A.D., when Charlemagne invaded Lombardy, where they were then settled, whereon the head of the family seems to have attached himself to the great emperor, and to have returned with him across the Alps, and finally to have settled in Brittany. Six generations later his lineal representative crossed to England in the reign of Edward the Confessor, and in the time of William the Conqueror was advanced to great honor and power. From that time till the present day I can trace my descent without a break. Not that the Viveys—for that was the final corruption of the name after its bearers took root in English soil—have been particularly distinguished—they never came much to the fore. Sometimes they were soldiers, sometimes merchants, but on the whole they had preserved a dead level of respectability, and still deader level of mediocrity. From the time of Charles II. till the beginning of the present century they were merchants. About 1790 my grandfather made a considerable fortune out of brewing, and retired. In 1821 he died, and my father succeeded him, and dissipated most of the money. Ten years ago he died also, leaving me a net income of about two thousand a year. Then it was that I undertook an expedition in connection with that," and he pointed to the iron chest, "which ended disastrously enough. On my way back I traveled in the south of Europe, and finally reached Athens. There I met my beloved wife, who might well also have been called the 'Beautiful,' like my old Greek ancestor. There I married her, and there, a year afterward, she died."

He paused awhile, his head sunk upon his hand, and then continued:—

"My marriage had diverted me from a project which I can not enter into now, save on one time, Holly—I have no time! One day, if you accept my trust, you will learn all about it. After my wife's death I turned my mind to it again. But first it was necessary, or at least I conceived that it was necessary, that I should attain to a perfect knowledge of Eastern dialects, especially Arabic. It was to facilitate my studies that I came here. Very soon, however, my disease developed itself, and now there is an end of me." And as though to emphasize his words, he burst into another terrible fit of coughing.

I gave him some more whisky, and, after resting, he went on:—

"I have never seen my boy, Leo, since he was a tiny baby. I never could see him, but they tell me he is a quick and handsome child. In this envelope," and he produced a letter from his pocket addressed to myself, "I have jotted down the course I wish followed in the boy's education. It is a somewhat peculiar one, at any rate, I could not entrust it to a stranger. Once more, will you undertake it?"

"I must know what I am to undertake," I answered.

"You are to undertake to have the boy, Leo, to live with you till he is twenty-years of age—not to send him to school, remember. On his twenty fifth birthday your guardianship will end, and you will then, with the key that I give you now" (and he placed them on the table) "open the iron box, and let him see and read the contents, and saw whether or no he is willing to undertake the quest. There is no obligation on him to do so. Now, as regards terms. My present income is two thousand two hundred a year. Half of that income I have secured to you by will for life, contingently on your undertaking the guardianship—that is, one thousand a year. Annuation to cease with your life. You will have to give up your life to it, and one hundred a year to pay for the board of the boy. The rest is to accumulate till Leo is twenty-five, so that there may be a sum in hand should he wish to undertake the quest of which I spoke."

"And suppose I were to die?" I asked.

"Then the boy must become a ward of Chancery and take his chance. Only be careful that the iron chest is passed on to him by your will. Listen, Holly, don't refuse me. Believe me, this is to your advantage. You are not fit to mix with the world; it would only imbitter you. In a few weeks you will become a Fellow of your college, and the income that you will derive from that, combined with what I have left you, will enable you to live a life of learned leisure, alternated with the sport of which you are so fond, such as will exactly suit you."

He paused, and looked at me anxiously, but I still hesitated. The charge seemed so very strange.

"For my sake, Holly. We have been good friends, and I have no time to make other arrangements."

"Very well," I said, "I will do it, provided there is nothing in this paper to make me change my mind," and I touched the envelope he had put down on the table by the key.

"Thank you, Holly, thank you. There is nothing at all. Swear to me by God that you will be a father to the boy, and follow my directions to the letter."

"I swear it," I answered, solemnly.

"Very well; remember that perhaps one day I shall ask for the account of your oath, for though I am dead and forgotten yet shall I live. There is no such thing as death, Holly, only a change; and as you may perhaps learn in time to come, I believe that even there that change could under certain circumstance be indefinitely postponed;" and here again he broke into one of his dreadful fits of coughing.

McGregor's Lung Compound

Promotes free and easy expectoration, clears the throat and lungs of all phlegm, soothes and heals all sores and pains. It will be found equally beneficial to children as adults, and will give relief in every case. Sold at 50c and $1 per bottle at Harkness & Co.'s Drug Store. 2suts

The El Paso (Tex.) Times says:—"It is no use for Northern papers to say that El Paso is the toughest place in Texas. There is Cotulla, for instance. There has been a regular vendetta there lately, and several killings, and since the last killing the feeling is as high as ever, and the best citizens are very uneasy. People attended church last Sunday armed in case of emergency, and the congregation was the most solemn that has assembled for many a day."

SURE CURE FOR RHEUMATISM.—If the system is properly cleansed by some medicine that acts upon the bowels, kidneys and skin, such as Burdock Blood Bitters, and the sufferer will use Hagyard's Yellow Oil according to directions, there are few case of rheumatism, however bad, but will yield promptly to the treatment. 6

The original baptismal certificate in the possession of the family of Henry Meyers, who recently died in New Orleans, shows that he was born August 31, 1760. He came to this country in his early manhood from Holland. Another ancient certificate says Henry Meyers was admitted to his first communion in 1775.

Free and easy expectoration immediately relieves and frees the throat and lungs from viscid phlegm, and a medicine that promotes this is the best medicine to use for coughs, colds, inflammation of the lungs and all affections of the throat and chest. This is precisely what Hickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup is a specific for, and wherever used it has given unbounded satisfaction. Children like it because it is pleasant, adults like it because it relieves and cures the disease.

Tinned beef—which is English for canned beef—is served to the English soldiers at Aldershot. The other day when one of the "tins" was opened "a well-season briar-root pipe" was found imbedded in the contents, from which it appears that they don't always do these things better abroad, you know.

THE DEAF MADE TO HEAR.—"After eight years suffering from deafness so bad that I was unable to attend to my business, I was cured by the use of Hagyard's Yellow Oil. With gratitude I make this known for the benefit of others afflicted." Harry Ricardo, Toronto. 6

Miss Matilda Johnson has just died in London, one hundred and sixteen years old. Eighty-nine years ago her intended husband died suddenly, and she made a will giving her entire fortune to the Military Hospital, and directing that "Love killed her" should be engraved on her tombstone.

Mr. John Magwood, Victoria Road, writes "Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and customers say they never used anything so effectual. Good results immediately follow its use. I know its value from personal experience, having been troubled for 9 or 10 years with Dyspepsia. Dyspeptic Cure is a splendid medicine. My sis, and since using it digestion goes on without that depressed feeling so well-known to dyspeptics. I have no hesitation in recommending it in any case of Indigestion, Constipation, Heartburn, or troubles arising from a disordered stomach."

THE LODGES COLUMN.

Gleanings From Within and Without the Fraternities.

Masonic.

Meetings next week:—Tuesday, Corinthian Lodge, No. 25; Wednesday, St. George's Lodge, No. 42; Friday, London Lodge of Perfection, A. & A. S. Rite.

The D D G M of the Third Masonic District, R W Bro Luke Slater, continues his work of visitation, and reports harmony and progress in every section of his jurisdiction. On Tuesday he will officially visit Warren Lodge, No 120, at Fingal; on Wednesday, Delaware Valley Lodge, No 358, at Delaware, and on Friday St Paul's Lodge, No 107, Lambeth.

R W Bro Bennett, the Grand Registrar, is meeting with much encouragement from the Craft throughout the Dominion in the sale of his "Freemason's Pocket-book and Directory," and reports, on every hand, an urgent demand for the handy work. The London brethren are never slow to recognize merit and good work on the part of a brother, and by writing for a copy of Bro. Bennett's "Enquire Within," they will be killing two birds with one stone, viz.:—obtaining information that may be of invaluable service to them, and assisting the compiler in his laudable undertaking.

On the 9th of February will occur the fifteenth annual meeting of the London Masonic Mutual Benefit Association. From the report of the Directors it is learned that during the past year $4,743.77 have been added to the Reserve Fund, making the amount to rest $34,743.77. During the year there has been 27 deaths, one of which was the result of accident. The average age of the deceased members was 53½ years—the youngest being 38, and the oldest 70. $33,400 have been paid and to be paid to beneficiaries. The President speaks highly of the prospects of the Association, which has to fight against innumerable kindred societies, both within and without the Craft. The Directors are at a loss to divine why Brethren prefer policies in Associations, about the internal working of which they know little or nothing, and give the Local Association, concerning which they can easily obtain information, the cold shoulder. It no doubt arises from the fact that the immediate demand upon their purses is not so high as in our Local Association; but they overlook the facts, that the L M M B A is the only Mutual Masonic Association on the continent having a reserve fund; that it has life insurances reduced to its lowest practical cost, consistent with the mortality tables of the best actuaries; that it is run as economically as possible; and that only the best class of risks are accepted by the Medical Referee, Dr. Brown. While other Associations may (and do) offer cheaper insurance, the desideratum—permanency—cannot be secured for any lower sum than is offered by the local Association. The Secretary reports 110 applications received during 1886, eleven of which were rejected and nine of the balance not completed in time for this year's report—a total of 90 new members. The fund in good standing at Jan. 1st, 1887, was 1,304, whose total insurance covers $1,696,700. There are two notices of motion, both of similar purport: "That of leaving it optional with members to be affiliated with Lodges after five years' membership in the Association." The Directors who retire are V. W. Bro. Thos. Brock, W. Bro W. Skinner and Bro. J. D. Sharman. The financial statement shows total receipts to have been $51,398.29, and disbursements $49,711.43, leaving balance in bank and on hand (exclusive of reserve fund) $1,686.86. The attendance at the approaching meeting should be large. The Directors and officers would esteem it a favor to have the privilege of explaining every detail to the members.

A special meeting of McColl Lodge, No. 386, G R C, A F & A M, West Lorne, was held on Wednesday at the Masonic Hall, when the installing of officers took place, assisted by Bro P M McLean, of Sarnia Lodge, No. 56, and Bros R McFate and W H McLean, of McColl Lodge, and Bro S E Casey, M F, from Warren Lodge, No. 120, was also present. The following Brethren were installed:—P Scalker, W M; J Chaseley, S W; J J Stalker, J W; J Wilton, Treasurer; J Hird, Secretary; A Long, Tyler. McColl's D D; T Harris, J D; B Partridge, J G; Finance Committee, Bros R McFate, J J Stalker and D McIntyre; Charitable Committee, Bros R McFate, J Chaseley and B Partridge; Audit, Bros W H McLean and F Harris. To close up the evening we thought it about square to meet at Bro Ben Partridge's, where a supper was got up after the old style of the Commercial. We must not forget the ladies for the manner in which the good things were provided by them for the Brethren of McColl Lodge and vicinity. —COM.

The seventh annual re-union of the Ancient, Accepted Scottish Rite, comprising Burton Lodge of Perfection, Hamilton Chapter of Rose Croix and Moore Sovereign Consistory, took place on Wednesday and Thursday last, and was attended by a very large number of Brethren from all portions of Ontario, New York, Ohio and Michigan. A grand banquet was given the visitors, and a pleasant time spent by all.

The newly-installed officers of Old Light Lodge, Lucknow, are as follows:—W M Capt. John McPherson; S W, Brown Mallough; J W, Harry Days; Treasurer, Wm Lyons; Secretary, Wm Mellis.

The four Grand Masonic bodies of Michigan held their annual sessions at Detroit during the week, elected officers for 1887, and transacted a large amount of business. Two new Lodges were instituted during 1886, and 12 new Masonic halls dedicated. The question of Masonic funerals was referred to at length in the G M's address, and the following remedy was suggested, that the Grand Lodge require that all Masonic funerals be conducted by Master Lodges, and that a specified number of the members of Commanderies be requested to act as escort when the brother is a member of the Order. This topic is now a matter for very general discussion in Masonic circles because of the unquestionable fact that the growing custom of having Knights Templar burial services draws very largely from the Master Mason Lodges, causing those Lodges to present a depleted and unimportant appearance at funerals, to the chagrin and discomfort of Master Masons who are not Knights Templar. As all Knights Templar must be Master Masons, the solution of the problem as above suggested, is considered a fair and reasonable one. The Michigan Masonic Home Association was reported as having been very successful in its progress. It has purchased a farm of 111 acres near Grand Rapids at a cost of $12,000, and will in the early spring begin the erection of the Masonic Home. The Freemason, a Masonic paper published in Detroit, was referred to in complimentary terms, Masons being advised to subscribe to it. Bro. Rufus C. Hatheway, of Grand Rapids, was elected Grand Master. The next meeting will be held at East Saginaw in January, 1887.

The tenth annual convention of the Grand Chapter, Royal Arch Masons, of Quebec, was held at Montreal on Tuesday last. M. Ex-Comp. Noyes, in his annual address, referred to the harmony existing in the Order, and the number of influential men who have joined the Order, and recommended that the ritual be revised so as to assimilate more with the ritual practised in similar lodges in the United States, with whom the Grand Chapter were in constant intercourse. An invitation was extended to the oldest Chapter, "the Golden Rule," to present and assist at revisions of the ritual. The relations with foreign Grand Chapters, with the exception of the Grand Mark Lodge of England, were most satisfactory. With the latter Chapter there had been no communication during the year, owing to a difficulty which had arisen with reference to the jurisdiction of the Grand Lodge of Quebec, which was disputed by the Grand Mark Lodge of England. The G C of Quebec defended the action of the Quebec Lodge on the ground that the Grand Mark Lodge had recognized the Quebec Lodge long before the so-called warrants of confirmation were issued. They claimed that in the same sense as any State in the American Union, the Province of Quebec was supreme within its own boundaries. A reference was made to the Queen's Jubilee, to the effect that the G C should make their congratulation worthy of the noble woman who ruled the British Empire.

Bro J B King, Grand Secretary of the I O O F of Ontario, and who has recently been fulfilling the duties of Grand Instructor among the Lodges in other portions of the Province, arrived in Ottawa on Tuesday with a view to instructing the local organizations, the Lodges of Ottawa and Carleton, in the unwritten work of the Order. During the afternoon a meeting for the purpose was held in the Oddfellows' Hall, at which a large number of representatives from the neighboring Lodges of Carleton Place, Almonte and Arnprior attended. Another session was held during the evening, on the conclusion of which the local lodges and their invited guests to the number of about 150 adjourned to the Pailharmonic Hall, where a grand banquet was given to Bro. King and the other visiting members of the Order.

The officers of Frontier Lodge, I O O F, of Windsor, went to Essex Centre last Thursday evening to visit Enterprise Lodge, No. 218, to instruct the officers of that Lodge in the secret work of the Order. Delegates were present from various Lodges throughout the county. After the ceremony a sumptuous banquet was partaken of at the Masonic Hall, and the Windsor brethren report spending a most pleasant and instructive evening.

Miscellaneous.

At the regular meeting of Court Maple No. 176, I. O. F., St. Thomas, the other night, the financial Secretary, James Sharpe, was presented with a handsome gold Forester's pin. Mr Sharpe has been Secretary of the lodge for two consecutive terms, and the presentation was made to mark their appreciation of their success.

Mr. Nixon, of Toronto, and Mr. Henry Watson, of Clearville, are endeavoring to resuscitate the A. O. U. W. lodge in Rodney.

The Grand Lodge of the A. O. U. W. will meet at Toronto on the 15th prox. Bro. J. W. McLaren is one of the representatives from London Lodge, No. 18.

At the last meeting of Ilderton Lodge, No 168 A O U W, the following officers were installed for 1887 by the Senior P M W:—Alex McLean, P M W; Alex J Thomdson, Master; John Gibson, Foreman; F McAndless, Overseer; J N Kendall, Recorder; A C Attwood, Financier; G H Patrick, Receiver; G Milburn, Guide; R J Gray, Inside Watchman; Wm West, Outside Watchman; Alex McLean, Representative to Grand Lodge.

CAMPAIGN NOTES.

Preparations for the Coming Struggle—Echoes From all Along the Line.

Mr. Blake will address the Nationalists at Montreal on Monday.

Senator Lacoste states that Archbishop Tache told him also to support the Government on the Riel question.

Mr. Tarte will probably be the Government candidate in Charlevoix, Mr. L Taschereau in L'Islet, and Mr. Larose in Megantic.

Mr. Louis J Papineau, son of the rebel leader of 1837, is mentioned by the Grits as an opponent of Mr. Alonzo Wright, in Ottawa County.

The nominations in Chicoutimi and Saguenay will take place on the 12th prox., three days ahead of the nominations in other counties. The elections will, however, be held on the 22nd.

It is not considered probable that Mr. B. M. Britton, of Kingston, the Grit nominee, will contest Addington, Mr. Deroche (Grit) having expressed the opinion that he would be beaten by a thousand votes.

Mr. Walter Shanly has consented to again be the Conservative standard bearer in South Renfrew. "Wandering Willie" Macdougall has therefore a very poor show of sitting in the next House.

Dr Fiset, the Grit candidate in Rimouski, is the man who took charge of Louis Riel when he visited Ottawa after the first rebellion and signed the roll as a member of Parliament. Dr. Fiset witnessed the signature.

The Liberal-Conservatives of East Toronto held their convention last night for nominating a candidate for the House of Commons. John Small, the ex-member, was unanimously chosen, no other name being brought forward.

Hamilton Conservatives speak confidently of the result of the election, pointing to the large attendance of workingmen at the Convention Thursday night as an evidence that the workingmen of the city will not vote as a body for Mr. Walters, the Grit labor candidate.

Mr. Chapleau addressed the French Conservatives at Montreal on Tuesday. On rising, he took off the heavy fur coat he was wearing, saying at the same time:—"Gentlemen, I am only taking off my coat, not changing it. The sally was received with roars of laughter. He stated in the course of his speech that he had not changed on the Riel question.

The political situation in Manitoba is rapidly assuming shape. In Selkirk, Mr. Daly, Conservative, and Mr. Christie, Grit, are holding meetings nightly, as also are Mr. Watson and Colonel Boulton in Marquette. Mr. Royal has received the regular Convention nomination for Provencher, obtaining 75 votes against 15 for Mr. H. J. Clarke. In Lisgar the contest has narrowed down to Mr. Ross, Conservative, and Mr. McArthur, Grit.

At a meeting of the Conservative Nominating Committee for Montreal West, held yesterday, Sir Donald A. Smith was chosen as the party candidate, and a general meeting of Government supporters is called for to-day to ratify the nomination. Telegrams and verbal assurances were presented from Sir John Macdonald, Sir Chas. Tupper and Hon. Mr. Chapleau, expressing their satisfaction at Sir Donald's proposed nomination. He sailed from England on Thursday and will be in Montreal within nine days.

In Perth the prospects are reported to be good for both Conservative candidates. Mr. S. R. Hesson is the Conservative candidate in North Perth, in which he was elected in 1882 by 252 majority. Some time ago Mr. Jacob Hespeler was nominated in convention as the Grit candidate, but he has declined to lead the forlorn hope, and Dr. Jas. Johnston, of Millbank, is now mentioned as the party candidate. In South Perth the Conservative standard-bearer is Mr. H. F. Sharpe, of St. Mary's, who comes out to oppose Mr. James Trow. Mr. Trow was elected in 1882 by 179 majority.

A convention of the Conservatives of West Lambton was held at Sarnia yesterday in the Fireman's Hall, which was crowded on the occasion. The whole of the Riding was represented, and the utmost enthusiasm prevailed. Several candidates were proposed, but they all retired in favor of Mr. W. H. McMahon, ex Reeve of Plympton, who accepted the nomination. Mr McMahon is a farmer in good circumstances. Not only will he poll the Conservative vote to a man, but many Reformers will support him, the farmers, as a rule, being anxious to have one of themselves represent them in the House. The six candidates who retired in favor of Mr. McMahon were Dr. Armstrong, E. P. Watson, A. R. McGregor, Thos. Kenny, R. E. Lemieux.

Consumptives obtain great relief by the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. No other remedy is so effective.

The American Machinist says:—"In spite of improved appliances on locomotives some railroads sprinkle their passengers profusely with cinders and cloud them very freely with smoke. It is of more consequence to prevent the smoke and cinder nuisance, where it exists, than to provide luxurious palace-cars."

"Rough On Rats."

A large German firm at Bamberg has originated a novel plan for attracting customers. Adjoining their store is a cafe and restaurant. Every purchaser obtains a ticket of admission, on which is marked the value of the goods purchased. If he has spent a dollar, he gets a cup of coffee gratis; if two dollars, a steak or chop, and so on to a dinner of several courses, with wines, etc.

A LUCKY ESCAPE.—Mrs. Cyrus Kilborne, of Beamsville, Ont., had what was thought to be a cancer on her nose, and was about to submit to a cancer doctor's operation, when she tried Burdock Blood Bitters, which effected a radical cure. This medicine cures all blood diseases. 5

A Winter's Night.

Pile on the wood! and let the blaze leap high,
Pile on the wood! to-morrow we may die—
Come, gather round the shining hearth
And tell a tale of goodly worth—
Heed not the wind that howls without,
Pile on the wood and let it shout.

Pile on the wood! and let the ruddy light
Make brightness reign within this stormy night.
We'll sing a song to cheer the lonely breast—
Each in his chair like sonsters in his nest,
Old Winter shrieks against the fast-closed door—
Pile on the wood! and hear its merry roar.

Pile on the wood! and pass the goblet round,
We'll drown the blast in music's merry sound;
The young, the old, to one sweet group unite.
Let no lone heart feel lonely here to-night,
To-day we live, to-morrow we may die—
Let every breast thrust down the rising sigh.

Pile on the wood! ah, sweet the hissing sound,
From each rough log we quick and sure around
The gnarled old trunk bright tongues leap up—
Raise high each glass and take a cheering sup,
Let lovers coo within the corners gloom—
Pile on the wood! the darkness comes too soon.

Pile on the wood! and let the music ring—
Fling wide the door to let the wanderer in;
The creaking sounds come from the lonely street—
Ah, sweet the sight within this loved retreat;
Let laughter free, it does the old heart good—
Let cold blasts blow—pile on, pile on the wood.

THE VEILED WOMAN

A TALE OF ABSORBING INTEREST.

INTRODUCTION.

In giving to the world the record of what looked at from that point of view only, is, I suppose one of the most wonderful and mysterious adventures ever experienced by mortal men, I feel it incumbent on me to explain what my exact connection with it is. And so I may as well say at once that I am not the narrator, but only the editor of this extraordinary history, and then proceed to tell how it found its way into my hands.

Some years ago, I, the editor, was stopping with a brother at one of the Universities, which for the purposes of this history we will call Cambridge, and was one day much struck with the appearance of two people whom I saw going arm in arm down the street. One of these gentlemen was, I think, without exception, the handsomest young fellow I have ever set eyes on. He was very tall, very broad, and had a look of power and a grace of bearing that seemed as native to him as it is to a wild stag. In addition, his face was almost without flaw—a good face as well as a beautiful one; and when he lifted his hat, which he did just then to a passing lady, I saw that his head was covered with little golden curls growing close to the scalp.

"Good gracious!" I said to my brother, with whom I was walking; "why, that fellow looks like a statue of Apollo come to life. What a splendid man he is!"

"Yes," he answered; "he is the handsomest man in the University, and one of the nicest too. They call him 'the Greek God.' But look at the other one; he's Vincey's (that's the god's name) guardian, and supposed to be full of every kind of information. They call him 'Charon.'"

I looked, and found the older man quite as interesting in his way as the glorified specimen of humanity at his side. He appeared to be about forty years of age, and was, I think, as ugly as his companion was handsome. To begin with, he was short-in fact rather bow-legged, very deep-chested, and with unusually long arms. He had dark hair and small eyes, and the hair grew right down on his forehead, and his whiskers grew right up to his hair, so that there was uncommonly little of his countenance to be seen. Altogether he reminded me forcibly of a gorilla, and yet there was something very pleasing and genial about the man's eye. I remember saying that I should like to know him.

"All right," answered my brother; "nothing easier. I know Vincey; I'll introduce you;" and he did; and for some minutes we stood chatting—about the Zulu people, I think, for I had just returned from the Cape at the time. Presently, however, a stoutish lady, whose name I do not remember, came along the pavement, accompanied by a pretty fair-haired girl, and these two Mr. Vincey, who clearly knew them well, at once joined, and walked off in their company. I remember being rather amused because of the change in the expression of the elder man, whose name I discovered was Holly, when he saw the ladies advancing. He suddenly stopped short in his talk, cast a reproachful look at his companion, and, with an abrupt nod to myself, turned and marched off alone across the street. I heard afterward that he was peculiarly supposed to be so much afraid of a woman as most people are of a mad dog, which accounted for his precipitate retreat. I can not say, however, that young Vincey showed much aversion to feminine society on this occasion. Indeed, I remember laughing and remarking to my brother at the time that he was not the sort of man whom one would care to introduce to a lady one was going to marry, since it is exceedingly probable that the acquaintance would end in a transfer of her affections. He was altogether too good-looking, and, what was more, he had none of that conscious-ness and conceit about him which usually afflicts handsome men, and makes them deservedly disliked by their fellows.

That evening my visit came to an end, and that was the last I saw or heard of Charon and the Greek god for many a long day. Indeed, I have never seen either of them from that hour to this, and do not suppose it likely that I shall. But a month ago I received a letter and two packets, one of manuscript, and on opening the first found that it was signed by "Horace Holly," a name that at that moment was not familiar to me. It ran as follows:

"——College, Cambridge, 1st May, 18—.

"My Dear Sir,—You will be surprised, considering the very slight nature of our acquaintance, to get a letter from me. Indeed, I think I had better begin by reminding you that we once met, now some five years ago, when your brother introduced me and my ward Leo Vincey to you in the street at Cambridge. To be brief and come to my business, I have recently read with much interest a book of yours describing a Central African adventure. I take it that this book is partly true, and partly an effort of the imagination. However this is, it has given me an idea. It happens—how, you will see in the accompanying manuscript, which, together with the scarab, the 'Royal Son of the Sun,' and the original sherd, I am sending to you by hand—that my ward, or rather my adopted son, Leo Vincey and myself have recently passed through a real African adventure of a nature so much more marvelous than the one which you describe that, to tell you the truth, I am almost ashamed to submit it to you for fear lest you should disbelieve me. You will see it stated in this manuscript that I, or rather we, had made up our minds not to make this history public during our joint lives. Nor should we alter our determination, were it not for a circumstance that has recently arisen. We are, for reasons that, after perusing this manuscript, you may be able to guess, going away again, this time to Central Asia, where, if anywhere upon this earth, wisdom is to be found, and anticipate that our sojourn there will be a long one. Possibly we shall not return. Under these altered conditions it has become a question whether we are justified in withholding from the world an account of a phenomenon which we believe to be of unparalleled interest, merely because our private life is involved, or because we are afraid of ridicule and doubt being cast upon our statements. I hold one view about this matter and Leo holds another, and, finally, after much discussion, we have come to a compromise, namely, to send the history to you, giving you full leave to publish it if you think fit, the only stipulation being that you shall disguise our real names and as much concerning our identity as is consistent with the maintenance of the bona fides of the narrative.

"And now what am I to say further? I really do not know, beyond once more repeating that everything described in the accompanying manuscript is exactly as it happened. As regards She herself I have nothing to add. Day by day we have greater occasion to regret that we did not better avail ourselves of our opportunities to obtain more information from that marvelous woman. Who was she? How did she first come to the Caves of Kor, and what was her real religion? We never ascertained, and now, alas! we never shall, at least not yet. These and many other questions arise in my mind; but what is the good of asking them now?

"Will you undertake the task? We give you complete freedom, and as a reward you will certainly have the credit of giving to the world the most wonderful history, as distinguished from romance, that its records can show. Read the manuscript (which I have copied out fairly for your benefit), and let me know.

"Believe me, very truly yours,

"L. Horace Holly.

"P.S.—Of course, if any profit results from the sale of the writing, should you care to undertake it, you can do what you like with it, but if there is a loss I will leave instructions with my lawyers, Messrs Geoffrey & Jordan, to meet it. We entrust the sherd, the scarab and the parchment to your keeping till such time as we demand them back again.

"L. H. H."

This letter, as may be imagined, astonished me considerably, but when I came to look at the MS., which the pressure of other work prevented me from doing for a fortnight, I was still more astonished, as I think the reader will be after perusing it. I was struck with its power, and at once made up my mind to press on also, and at once made up my mind to press on with the matter. I wrote to this effect to Mr. Holly, but a week afterward received a letter from that gentleman's lawyers, returning my own, with the information that their client and Mr. Leo Vincey had left this country for Tunis, and they did not at present know their address.

Well, that is all I have to say. Of the history itself the reader must judge. I give it him, with the exception of a very few alterations, made with the object of concealing the identity of the actors from the general public, exactly as it has come to me. Personally I have made up my mind to refrain from comments. At first I was inclined to believe that the history of a woman on whom, clothed in the majesty of her almost endless years, the shadow of Eternity itself lay like the dark wing of Sigh, was some gigantic allegory of which I could not catch the meaning. Then I thought that it might be a bold attempt to portray the possible results of immortality grafted on the substance of a mortal who yet drew her strength from this earth, and in whose human bosom passion yet rose and fell and beat as in the mighty world around her the winds and the tides rise and fall and beat unceasingly. But as I went on I abandoned that idea also. To me the story seems to bear the stamp of truth upon its face. Its explanation I must leave to others; and with this slight preface, which circumstances make necessary, I introduce the world to Ayesha and the Caves of Kor.

The Editor.

P.S.—There is on consideration one circumstance that, after a reperusal of this history, struck me with so much force that I can not refrain from calling the attention of the reader to it. He will observe that, so far as we are made acquainted with him, there is nothing in the character of Leo Vincey which, in the opinion of most people, would have been likely to attract an intellect as powerful as that of Ayesha. He is not even, at any rate to my view, particularly interesting. Indeed, one might have imagined that Mr. Holly would, under ordinary circumstances, have easily outstripped him in the favor of She. Can it be that extremes meet, and that the very excess and splendor of her mind led her, by means of some strange physical reaction, to worship at the shrine of matter? Was that ancient Kallikrates nothing but a splendid animal, beloved for his Greek beauty? Or is the true explanation what I believe it to be, namely, that Ayesha, seeing farther than we can see, perceived the germ and smoldering spark of greatness that lay hid within her lover's soul, and well knew that under the influence of her gift of life, watered by her wisdom, and shone upon with the sunshine of her presence, it would bloom like a flower and flash out like a star, filling the world with fragrance and with light?

Here, also, I am not able to answer, but must leave the reader to form his own judgment on the materials before him.

I.

MY VISITOR.

There are some events of which every circumstance and surrounding detail seems to be graven on the memory in such fashion that we can call them to mind at will with the same vividness that I am about to describe. It rises as clearly before my mind at this moment as though it had happened yesterday.

It was in this month, something over twenty years ago, that L. Ludwig Horace Holly, was sitting one night in my rooms at Cambridge, grinding away at some mathematical work, I forget what. I was to go up for my fellowship within a week, and was expected by my tutor and my college generally to distinguish myself. At last, wearied out, I flung my book down, and going to the mantel-piece, took down a pipe and filled it. There was a candle burning on the mantel-piece, and a long, narrow glass at the back of it, and as I was in the act of lighting the pipe I caught sight of my own countenance in the glass, and paused to reflect. The lighted match burned away till it scorched my fingers, forcing me to drop it, but still I stood and stared at myself in the glass, and reflected.

"Well," I said aloud, at last, "it is to be hoped that I shall be able to do something with the inside of my head, for I shall certainly never do anything by the help of the outside."

This remark will doubtless strike anybody who reads it as being slightly obscure, but I was in reality alluding to my physique as reflected. Most men of twenty-two are endowed at any rate with some share of the comeliness of youth, but to me the gift was denied. Short, wiry, thick-set, deep-chested almost to deformity, with long, sinewy arms, heavy features, deep-set gray eyes, a low brow half overgrown with a mop of thick black hair, like a deserted clearing on which the forest had once begun to encroach—such was my appearance nearly a quarter of a century ago, and such, with some modification, is it to this day. Like Cain, I was branded—branded by nature with the stamp of abnormal ugliness, as I was gifted by nature with iron and abnormal strength and considerable intellectual powers. So ugly was I that the spruce young men of my college, though they were proud enough of my feats of strength and scholarship prowess, did not even care to be seen walking with me. Was it wonderful that I was misanthropic and sullen? Was it wonderful that I brooded and worked alone; and had no friends—at least only one? I was set apart by Nature to live alone, and draw comfort from her breast, and hers only. Women hated the sight of me. Only one week before I had heard one call me a "monster" when she thought I was out of hearing, and say that I had converted her to Darwin's theory. Once, indeed, a woman pretended to care for me, and I lavished on her the wealth of affection of my nature upon her. Then money that was to have come to me went elsewhere, and she discarded me. I pleaded with her as I have never pleaded with any living creature before or since, for I was cursed by her sweet presence would end in a curse in the end, by way of answer, she took me to the glass, and stood side by side with me, and looked into it.

"Now," she said, "if I am Beauty, who are you?" and I cursed her and fled. That was when I was only twenty.

And so I stood and stared, and felt a sort of grim satisfaction in the sense of my own loneliness for I had disowned father nor mother nor brother—and as I did so there came a knock at my door.

I listened before I went to open it, for it was nearly twelve o'clock at night, and I was in no mood to admit any stranger. I had but one friend in the college, or, indeed, in the world: perhaps it was he.

Just then the person outside the door coughed, and I hastened to open it, for I knew the cough.

A tall man of about thirty, with the remains of great personal beauty, came hurrying in, staggering beneath the weight of a massive iron box, which he carried by a handle in his right hand. He placed the box upon the table, and then fell into an awful fit of coughing. He coughed and coughed till his face became quite purple, and at last he sunk into a chair and began to spit up blood. I poured out some whiskey into a tumbler and gave it to him. He drank it and seemed better, though his better was very bad indeed.

"Why did you keep me standing there in the cold?" he asked; "you know the draughts are death to me."

"I did not know who it was," I answered "You are a late visitor."

"Yes; and I verily believe it is my last visit," he answered, with a ghastly attempt at a smile. "I am done for, Holly—I am done for. I do not believe that I shall see to-morrow."

"Nonsense!" I said. Let me go for a doctor."

He waved be back imperiously with his hand. "It is sober sense; but I want no doctors. I have studied medicine, and I know all about it. No doctors can help me. My last hour has come! For a year past I have only lived by a miracle. Now listen to me as you never listened to anybody before, for you will not have the opportunity of getting me to repeat my words. We have been friends for two years; now tell me how much do you know about me?"

"I know that you are rich, and have had a fancy to come to college long after the age that most men leave it. I know that you have been married, and that your wife died; and that you have been the best, indeed, almost the only, friend I ever had."

"Did you know that I have a son?"

"No."

"I have. He is five years old. He cost me his mother's life, and I have never been able to bear to look upon his face in consequence. Holly, if you will accept the trust, I am going to leave you the boy's sole guardian."

I sprung almost out of my chair. "Me!" I said.

"Yes, you. I have not studied you for two years for nothing. I have known for some time that I could not last, and since I realized the fact I have been searching for some one to whom I could confide the boy and this," and he tapped the iron box. "You are the man, Holly; for, like a rugged tree, you are hard and sound at core. Listen; the boy will be the last survivor of one of the most ancient families in the world, that is, as far as families can be traced. You will laugh at me when I say it, but one day it will be proved to you beyond a doubt that the founder of the family, my sixty-fifth or sixty-sixth lineal ancestor, was an Egyptian priest of Isis, though he was himself of Grecian extraction, and was called Kallikrates, or the Strong and Beautiful, or, to be still more accurate, the Beautiful by Strength. His father was, I believe, one of the Greek mercenaries raised by Nakor, a Mendesian prince of the twenty-ninth dynasty. In or about the year 339 before Christ, just at the time of the final fall of the Pharaohs, this Kallikrates broke his vows of celibacy and fled from Egypt with a princess of royal blood who had fallen in love with him, and was finally wrecked upon the coast of Africa, somewhere, as I believe, in the neighborhood of where Delagoa Bay now is, or rather to the north of it, he and his wife being saved, and all the remainder of their company destroyed in one way or another. Here they endured great hardships, but were at last entertained by the mighty queen of a savage people, a white woman of peculiar loveliness who, under circumstances which I can not enter into, but which you will one day learn, if you live, from the contents of the box, finally murdered my ancestor, Kallikrates. His wife, however, escaped, how I know not, to Athens, bearing a child with her, whom she named Tisithenes, or the Mighty Avenger. Five hundred years or more afterward the family migrated to Rome under circumstances of which no trace remains, and here, probably with the idea of preserving the idea of vengeance which we find set out in Tisithenes, they appear to have pretty regularly assumed the cognomen of Vindex, or Avenger. Here, too, they remained for another five centuries or more, till about 775 A.D., when Charlemagne invaded Lombardy, where they were then settled, whereon the head of the family seems to have attached himself to the great emperor, and to have returned with him across the Alps, and finally to have settled in Brittany. Six generations later his lineal representative crossed to England in the reign of Edward the Confessor, and in the time of William the Conqueror was advanced to great honor and power. From that time till the present day I can trace my descent without a break. Not that the Vinceys—for that was the final corruption of the name after its bearers took root in English soil—have been particularly distinguished—they never came much to the fore. Sometimes they were soldiers, sometimes merchants, but on the whole they have preserved a dead level of respectability, and still dender a dead level of mediocrity. From the time of Charles II. till the beginning of the present century they were merchants. About 1790 my grandfather made a considerable fortune out of brewing, and retired. In 1821 he died, and my father succeeded him, and dissipated most of the money. Ten years ago he died also, leaving me a net income of about two thousand a year. Then it was that I undertook an expedition in connection with that," and he pointed to the iron chest, "which ended disastrously enough. On my way back I traveled in the south of Europe, and finally reached Athens. There I met my beloved wife, who might well also have been called the 'Beautiful,' like my old Greek ancestor. There I married her, and there, a year afterward, she died."

He paused awhile, his head sunk upon his hand, and then continued:—

"My marriage had diverted me from a project which I can not enter into now, I have no time, Holly—I have no time! One day, if you accept my trust, you will learn all about it. After my wife's death I turned my mind to it again. But first it was necessary, or at least I conceived that it was necessary, that I should attain to a perfect knowledge of Eastern dialects, especially Arabic. It was to facilitate my studies that I came here. Very soon, however, my disease developed itself, and now there is an end of me." And as though to emphasize his words, he burst into another terrible fit of coughing.

I gave him some more whisky, and, after resting, he went on:—

"I have never seen my boy, Leo, since he was a tiny baby. I never could see him, but they tell me that he is a quick and handsome child. In this envelope," and he produced a letter from his pocket addressed to myself, "I have jotted down the course I would follow in the boy's education. It is a somewhat peculiar one. At any rate, I could not entrust it to a stranger. Once more, will you undertake it?"

"I must know what I am to undertake," I answered.

"You are to undertake to have the boy, Leo, to live with you till he is twenty-years of age—not to send him to school, remember. On his next birthday—four—your guardianship will end, and you will then, with the keys that I give you now" (and he placed them on the table) "open the iron box, and let him see and read the contents, and say whether or no he is willing to undertake the quest. There is no obligation on him to do so. Now, as regards terms. My present income is two thousand two hundred a year. Half of that income I have secured to you by will for life, contingently on your undertaking the guardianship—that is, one thousand a year remuneration to yourself, for you will have to give up your life to it, and one hundred a year to pay for the board of the boy. The rest is to accumulate till Leo is twenty-five, so that there may be a sum in hand should he wish to undertake the quest of which I spoke."

"And suppose I were to die!" I asked.

"Then the boy must become a ward of Chancery and take his chance. Only be careful that the iron chest is passed on to him by your will. Listen, Holly, don't refuse me. Believe me, this is to your advantage. You are not fit to mix with the world: it would only imbitter you. In a few weeks you will become a Fellow of your college, and the income that you will derive from that, combined with your private means, will enable you to live a life of learned leisure, alternated with the sport of which you are so fond, such as will exactly suit you."

His manner, and looked at me anxiously, but I still hesitated. The charge seemed so very strange.

"For my sake, Holly. We have been good friends, and I have no time to make other arrangements."

"Very well," I said. "I will do it, provided there is nothing in this paper to make me change my mind," and I touched the envelope he had put down on the table by the keys.

"Thank you, Holly, thank you. There is nothing at all. Swear to me by God that you will be a father to the boy, and follow my directions to the letter."

"I swear it," I answered, solemnly.

"Very well; remember that perhaps one day I shall ask for the account of your oath, for though I am dead and forgotten yet shall I live. There is no such thing as death, Holly—only a change; and as you may perhaps learn in time to come, I believe that even here that change could under certain circumstance be indefinitely postponed" and here again he broke into one of his dreadful fits of coughing.

McGregor's Lung Compound

Promotes free and easy expectoration, clears the throat and lungs of all phlegm, soothes and heals all sores and pains. It will be found equally beneficial to children as adults, and will give relief in every case. Sold at 50c. and $1 per bottle at Harkness & Co.'s Drug Store. 2tuts

The El Paso (Tex.) Times says:—"It is no use for Northern papers to say that El Paso is the toughest place in Texas. There is Cotulla, for instance. There has been a regular vendetta there lately, and several killings, and since the last killing the feeling is as high as ever, and the best citizens are very uneasy. People attended church last Sunday armed in case of emergency, and the congregation was the most solemn that has assembled for many a day."

Sure Cure for Rheumatism.—If the system is properly cleansed by some medicine that acts upon the bowels, kidneys and skin, such as Burdock Blood Bitters, and the sufferer will use Hagyard's Yellow Oil according to directions, there are few case of rheumatism, however bad, but will yield promptly to the treatment. 2

The original baptismal certificate in the possession of the family of Henry Meyers, who recently died in New Orleans, shows that he was born August 31, 1760. He came to this country in his early manhood from Holland. Another ancient certificate says Henry Meyers was admitted to his first communion in 1775.

Free and easy expectoration immediately relieves and frees the throat and lungs from viscid phlegm, and a medicine that promotes this is the best medicine to use for coughs, colds, inflammation of the lungs and all affections of the throat and chest. This is precisely what Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup is a specific for, and wherever used it has given unbounded satisfaction. Children like it because it is pleasant, adults like it because it relieves and cures the disease.

Tinned beef—which is English for canned beef—is served to the English soldiers at Aldershot. The other day when one of the "tins" was opened "a well-season briar-root pipe" was found imbedded in the contents, from which it appears that they don't always do these things better abroad, you know.

The Deaf Made to Hear.—"After eight years suffering from deafness so bad that I was unable to attend to my business, I was cured by the use of Hagyard's Yellow Oil. With gratitude I make this known for the benefit of others afflicted." Harry Ricardo, Toronto. 2

Miss Matilda Johnson has just died in London, one hundred and sixteen years old. Eighty-nine years ago her intended husband died suddenly, and she made a will giving her entire fortune to the Military Hospital, and directing that "Love killed her" should be engraved on her tombstone.

Mr. John Magwood, Victoria Road, writes "Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and customers say they never used anything so effectual. Good results immediately follow its use. I know its value from personal experience, having been troubled for 9 or 10 years with Dyspepsia. Dyspeptic Cure is a splendid medicine. My sis, and since using it digestion goes on without that depressed feeling so well-known to dyspeptics. I have no hesitation in recommending it in any case of Indigestion, Constipation, Heartburn, or troubles arising from a disordered stomach."

Masonic.

Meetings next week:—Tuesday, Corinthian L. dge, No. 33; Wednesday, St. George's Lodge, No. 42; Friday, London Lodge of Perfection, A. & A. S. Rite.

The D D G M of the Third Masonic District, R W Bro Luke Slater, continues his work of visitation, and reports harmony and progress in every section of his jurisdiction. On Tuesday he will officially visit Warren Lodge, No 130, at Fingal; on Wednesday, Delaware Valley Lodge, No 358, at Delaware, and on Friday St Paul's Lodge, No 107, Lambeth.

R W Bro Bennett, the Grand Registrar, is meeting with much encouragement from the Craft throughout the Dominion in the sale of his "Freemason's Pocket-book and Directory," and reports, on every hand, an urgent demand for the handy work. The London brethren are never slow to recognize merit and good work on the part of a brother, and by writing for a copy of Bro. Bennett's "Enquire Within," they will be killing two birds with one stone, viz:—obtaining information that may be of invaluable service to them, and assisting the compiler in his laudable undertaking.

On the 9th of February will occur the fifteenth annual meeting of the London Masonic Mutual Benefit Association. From the report of the Directors it is learned that during the past year $4,743.77 have been added to the Reserve Fund, making the amount to rest $54,743.77. During the year there has been 27 deaths, one of which was the result of accident. The average age of the deceased members was 53½ years—the youngest being 38, and the oldest 70. $33,400 have been paid and to be paid to beneficiaries. The President speaks hopefully of the prospects of the Association, which has to fight against innumerable kindred societies, both within and without the Craft. The Directors are at a loss to divine why Brethren prefer policies in Associations, about the internal working of which they know little or nothing, and give the Local Association, concerning which they can easily obtain information, the cold shoulder. It no doubt arises from the fact that the immediate demand upon their purses is not so high as in our Local Association; but they overlook the facts, that the L M M B A is the only Mutual Masonic Association on the continent having a reserve fund; that it has life insurance reduced to its lowest practical cost, consistent with the mortality tables of the best actuaries; that it is ran as economically as possible; and that only the best class of risks are accepted by the Medical Referee, Dr. Brown. While other Associations may (and do) offer cheaper insurance, the desideratum—permanency—cannot be secured for any lower sum than is offered by the local Association. The Secretary reports 110 applications received during 1886, eleven of which were rejected and nine of the balance not completed in time for this year's report—a total of 90 new members. The total in good standing on Jan. 1st, 1887, was 1,404, whose total insurance covers $1,696,700. There are two notices of motion, both of similar purport: "That of leaving it optional with members to be affiliated with Lodges after five years' membership in the Association." The Directors who retire are V. W. Bro. Thos. Brock, W. Bro W. Skinner and Bro. J. D. Sharman. The financial statement shows total receipts to have been $51,398.35, and disbursements $49,711.63, leaving balance in bank and on hand (exclusive of reserve fund) $1,686.86. The attendance at the approaching meeting should be large. The Directors and officers would esteem it a favor to have the privilege of explaining every detail to the members.

A special meeting of McColl Lodge, No. 386, G R C, A F & A M., West Lorne, was held on Wednesday at the Masonic Hall, when the installing of officers took place, assisted by Bro P M McLean, of Sarnia Lodge No. 360, and Bros R McFate and W H McLean, of McColl Lodge, and Bro G E Casey, M P, from Warren Lodge No. 120, was also present. The following Brethren were installed: P S Bro W M; J Chaseley, S W; J J Stalker, J W; J Wilton, Treasurer; J Hind, Secretary; A Long, Tyler; A McColl, D; T Harris, J D; S Partridge, J G; Brod R McFate, J F; J Stalker and D McIntyre, Charitable Committee, Bros R McFate, J Chaseley and B Partridge; Audit, Bros W H McLean and F Harris. To close up the evening we though it about square to put down the table, and the keys, where a supper was got up after the old style of the Commercial. We must not forget the ladies for the manner in which the good things were provided by them for the Brethren of McColl Lodge and vicinity. —Com.

The seventh annual re-union of the Ancient, Accepted Scottish Rite, comprising Burton Lodge of Perfection, Hamilton Chapter of Rose Croix and Moore Sovereign Consistory, took place in Toronto on Wednesday and Thursday last, and was attended by a very large number of Brethren from all portions of Ontario New York, Ohio and Michigan. A grand banquet was given the visitors, and a pleasant time spent by all.

The newly-installed officers of Old Light Lodge, Lucknow, are as follows:—W M Chas John McPherson; S W, Brown Mallough; J W, Harry Days; Treasurer, Wm Lyons; Secretary, Wm Mellis.

The four Grand Masonic bodies of Michigan held their annual sessions at Detroit during the week, elected officers for 1887, and transacted a large amount of business. Two new Lodges were instituted during 1886, and 12 new Masonic halls dedicated. The question of Masonic funerals was referred to at length in the G. M's address, and the following remedy was suggested, that the Grand Lodge require that all Masonic funerals be conducted by Master Lodges, and that a specified number of the members of Commanderies be requested to act as escort when the brother is a member of the Order. This topic is now a matter for very general discussion in Masonic circles because of the unquestionable fact that the growing custom of having Knights Templar burial services draws very largely from the Master Mason Lodges, causing those Lodges to present a depleted and unimportant appearance at funerals, to the chagrin and discomfort of Master Masons who are not Knights Templar. As all Knights Templar must be Master Masons, the solution of the problem as above suggested, is considered a fair and reasonable one. The Michigan Masonic Home Association was reported as having been very successful in its progress. It has purchased a farm of 111 acres near Grand Rapids at a cost of $3,000, and will in the early spring begin the erection of the Masonic Home. The Freemason, a Masonic paper published in Detroit, was referred to in complimentary terms, Masons being advised to subscribe to it. Bro. Rufus C. Hathaway, of Grand Rapids, was elected Grand Master. The next meeting will be held at East Saginaw in January, 1887.

The tenth annual convention of the Grand Chapter, Royal Arch Masons, of Quebec, was held at Montreal on Tuesday last. M. Ex-Comp. Noyes, in his annual address, referred to the harmony existing in the Order, and the number of influential men who have joined the Order, and recommended that the ritual be revised so as to assimilate more with the ritual practised in similar lodges in the United States, with whom the Grand Chapter were in constant intercourse. An invitation was extended to the oldest Chapter, "the Golden Rule," to present and assist at revisions of the ritual. The relations with foreign Grand Chapters, with the exception of the Grand Mark Lodge of England, were most satisfactory. With the latter Chapter there had been no communication during the year, owing to a difficulty which had arisen with reference to the jurisdiction of the Grand Lodge of Quebec, which was disputed by the Grand Mark Lodge of England. The G O of Quebec defended the action of the Quebec Lodge on the ground that the Grand Mark Lodge had recognized the Quebec Lodge long before the so-called warrants of confirmation were issued. They claimed that in the same sense as any State in the American Union, the Province of Quebec was supreme within its own boundaries. A reference was made to the Queen's Jubilee, to the effect that the G C should make their congratulation worthy of the noble woman who ruled the British Empire.

Oddfellowship.

The following are the new officers of Lucan Lodge, No 76, I O O F:—Bro J W Endicott, N G; Bro W Gibson, V G; Bro W E Stanley, P S; Bro R H Collins, R S; Bro H Collins, O G; Bro E Jennings, I G; Bro A Goodacre, Treas.

Bro J B King, Grand Secretary of the I O O F of Ontario, and who has recently been fulfilling the duties of Grand Instructor among the Lodges in other portions of the Province, arrived in Ottawa on Tuesday with a view to instructing the local organizations, the Lodges of Ottawa and Carleton, in the unwritten work of the Order. During the afternoon a meeting for the purpose was held in the Oddfellows' Hall, at which a large number of representatives from the neighboring Lodges of Carleton Place, Almonte and Arnprior attended. Another session was held during the evening, on the conclusion of which the local lodges and their invited guests to the number of about 150 adjourned to the Pallbarmonic Hall, where a grand banquet was given to Bro. King and the other visiting members of the Order.

The officers of Frontier Lodge, I O O F, of Windsor, went to Essex Centre last Thursday evening to visit Enterprise Lodge, No. 218, to instruct the officers of that Lodge in the secret work of the Order. Delegates were present from various Lodges throughout the county. After the ceremony a sumptuous banquet was partaken of at the Masonic Hall, the Windsor brethren report speech, and the pleasant and instructive evening.

Miscellaneous.

At the regular meeting of Court Maple No. 125, I. O. F., St. Thomas, the other night, the financial Secretary, James Sharpe, was presented with a handsome gold Forester's pin. Mr Sharpe has been Secretary of the lodge for two consecutive terms, and the presentation was made to mark their appreciation of their success.

Mr. Nixon, of Toronto, and Mr. Henry Watson, of Clearville, are endeavoring to resuscitate the A. O. U. W. lodge in Rodney.

The Grand Lodge of the A. O. U. W. will meet at Toronto on the 15th prox. Bro. J. W. McLaren is one of the representatives from London Lodge, No. 18.

At the last meeting of Ilderton Lodge, No 168 A O U W, the following officers were installed for 1887 by the Senior P M W:—Alex McLean, P M W; Alex J Thomson, Master; John Gibson, Foreman; F McAndless, Overseer; J N Kendall, Recorder; A C Attwood, Financier; G B Patrick, Receiver; G Milburn, Guide; S J Gray, Inside Watchman; Wm West, Outside Watchman; Alex McLean, Representative to Grand Lodge.

CAMPAIGN NOTES.

Preparations for the Coming Struggle—Echoes From all Along the Line.

Mr. Blake will address the Nationalists at Montreal on Monday.

Senator Lacoste states that Archbishop Tsche told him also to support the Government on the Riel question.

Mr. Tarte will probably be the Government candidate in Charlevoix, Mr. L Taschereau in L'Islet, and Mr. Lsrose in Megantic.

Mr. Louis J Papineau, son of the rebel leader of 1837, is mentioned by the Grits as an opponent of Mr. Alonzo Wright, in Ottawa County.

The nominations in Chicoutimi and Saguenay will take place on the 12th prox., three days ahead of the nominations in other counties. The elections will, however, be held on the 22nd.

It is not considered probable that Mr. B. M. Britton, of Kingston, the Grit nominee, will contest Addington, Mr. Deroche (Grit) having expressed the opinion that he would be beaten by a thousand votes.

Mr. Walter Shanly has consented to again be the Conservative standard bearer in South Renfrew. "Wandering Willie" Macdougall has therefore a very poor show of sitting in the next House.

Dr Fiset, the Grit candidate in Rimouski, is the man who took charge of Louis Riel when he visited Ottawa after the first rebellion and signed the roll as a member of Parliament. Dr. Fiset witnessed the signature.

The Liberal-Conservatives of East Toronto held their convention last night for nominating a candidate for the House of Commons. John Small, the ex-member, was unanimously chosen, no other name being brought forward.

Hamilton Conservatives speak confidently of the result of the election, pointing to the large attendance of workingmen at the Convention Thursday night as an evidence that the workingmen of the city will not vote as a body for Mr. Walters, the Grit labor candidate.

Mr. Chapleau addressed the French Conservatives at Montreal on Tuesday. On rising, he took off the heavy fur coat he was wearing, saying at the same time:—"Gentlemen, I am only taking off my coat, not changing it. The sally was received with roars of laughter. He stated in the course of his speech that he had not changed on the Riel question.

The political situation in Manitoba is rapidly assuming shape. In Selkirk, Mr. Daly, Conservative, and Mr. Christie, Grit, are holding meetings nightly, as also are Mr. Watson and Colonel Boulton in Marquette. Mr. Royal has received the regular Convention nomination for Provencher, obtaining 75 votes against 15 for Mr. H. J. Clarke. In Lisgar the contest has narrowed down to Mr. Ross, Conservative, and Mr. McArthur, Grit.

At a meeting of the Conservative Nominating Committee for Montreal West, held yesterday, Sir Donald A. Smith was chosen as the party candidate, and a general meeting of Government supporters is called for to-day to ratify the nomination. Telegrams and verbal assurances were presented from Sir John Macdonald, Sir Chas. Tupper and Hon. Mr. Chapleau, expressing their satisfaction at Sir Donald's proposed nomination. He sailed from England on Thursday and will be in Montreal within nine days.

In Perth the prospects are reported to be good for both Conservative candidates. Mr. S. R. Hesson is the Conservative candidate in North Perth, in which he was elected in 1882 by 252 majority. Some time ago Mr. Jacob Hespeler was nominated in convention as the Grit candidate, but he has declined to lead the forlorn hope, and Dr. Jas. Johnston, of Millbank, is now mentioned as the party candidate. In South Perth the Conservative standard-bearer is Mr. H. F. Sharpe, of St. Mary's, who comes out to oppose Mr. James Trow. Mr. Trow was elected in 1882 by 179 majority.

A convention of the Conservatives of West Lambton was held at Sarnia yesterday in the Fireman's Hall, which was crowded on the occasion. The whole of the Riding was represented, and the utmost enthusiasm prevailed. Several candidates were proposed, but they all retired in favor of Mr. W. H. McMahon, ex Reeve of Plympton, who accepted the nomination. Mr McMahon is a farmer in good circumstances. Not only will he poll the Conservative vote to a man, but many Reformers will support him, the farmers, as a rule, being anxious to have one of themselves represent them in the House. The six candidates who retired in favor of Mr. McMahon were Dr. Armstrong, E. P. Watson, A. R. McGregor, Thos. Kenny, R. E. Lesueur.

Consumptives obtain great relief by the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. No other remedy is so effective.

The American Machinist says:—"In spite of improved appliances on locomotives some railroads sprinkle their passengers profusely with cinders and cloud them very freely with smoke. It is of more consequence to prevent the smoke and cinder nuisance, where it exists, than to provide luxurious palace-cars."

"Rough On Rats."

Clears out rats, mice, roaches, flies, ants, bed bugs, beetles, insects, skunks, jack rabbits, sparrows, gophers. 15c. At druggists.

A large German firm at Bamberg has originated a novel plan for attracting customers. Adjoining their store is a cafe and restaurant. Every purchaser obtains a ticket of admission, on which is marked the value of the goods purchased. If he has spent a dollar, he gets a cup of coffee gratis; if two dollars, a steak or chop, and so on to a dinner of several courses, with wines, etc.

A Lucky Escape.—Mrs. Cyrus Kilborne, of Beamsville, Ont., had what was thought to be a cancer on her nose, and was about to submit to a cancer doctor's operation, when she tried Burdock Blood Bitters, which effected a radical cure. This medicine cures all blood diseases. 2

Chicago, Jan. 28, 1.30 p.m.—Wheat has been rather unsettled to-day, but the tendency has been downward most of session. The foreign markets are dull and depressed, and prospects of export buying seem limited, while the sole bullish feature was the lower prices of foreign securities. Buying was therefore restricted generally to the short interest, the longs being principal sellers. The weather, though not strictly favorable for growing crop, exercised no particular effect. The strike at New York is still a bear influence, as it must practically be an embargo on shipments of wheat, and with pretty good prospect of an increase in next visible supply report the deal looks rather heavy. Corn was a shade firmer early on the moderate arrivals and some local buying, but lost all the improvement and closed tame. Provisions were stronger for a time, with the short interest covering, but afterwards dropped in sympathy with wheat closing quiet.

Chicago, Jan. 28. The WHEAT market was active, with heavy feeling, and lower prices were reached. CORN dull and steady. OATS ruled very dull. Jan 27.—Cattle—As usual on Thursday there was comparatively nothing on sale and not enough doing to make a market. Feeling, however, is firm, and a fair trade is anticipated for Saturday and Monday. Sheep and lambs—Feeling was about steady at opening on good stock, but common grades were in but very little demand at any price. Slim business. MONTREAL.

Jan 27.—The supply of live stock at the local market to day was much larger than for several weeks past, and consisted of 700 head of cattle and 300 sheep and lambs. A considerable number of the cattle offered had been kept over from last week, and there was not a little anxiety on the part of drovers to sell at lower prices than have prevailed. The best steers brought 4c to 4½c; second-class, 3c to 3½c, and third-class, 2c per lb live weight. At the close of the market quite a number remained unsold. Sheep were in good demand, but prices were rather lower; a lot of thirty sheep and lambs brought 4½c, but former alone only brought 4c. There were no live hogs offered to-day.

NOTES OF THE DAY.

The last place to look for anything is the place where you find it.

The backbone of winter sags a little; but don't flatter yourself that it's broken.

Canadian Pacific earned $128,000 for the third week in January, an increase of $35,000 over the same week of last year.

The Globe is being quoted by the American press against the Canadian view of the fisheries dispute. Just as everyone expected.

Hon Mr. Chapleau has met with a great reception at Montreal. Yet on the Riel question he takes the same attitude as he did a year ago.

The London FREE PRESS states our views correctly. We are as much opposed to the N. P. now as we were in 1878—Hamilton Times (Ry).

The Streetsville Review has been resuscitated after almost a forty years' trance. It was a power in the land, with the late Rev. G. MacGeorge at the helm.

McLaughlin Brothers, lumbermen of Ottawa, have sold their entire season's cut to the New York Exportation Company for a price close on to $500,000.

A. G Jones, of Halifax, is a great supporter of Mr Blake. He once said, "Haul down the flag (the Union Jack) from the Citadel." He is a Loyalist to the United States.

The Prince of Wales will visit Ireland in April and be present at the Punchestown races. He has taken Newlands, near Clondalkin, paying $5,000 for ten days' occupancy.

Mr. Wells, a rancher from Calgary, is in Winnipeg on his way to Ontario to purchase young stock. He also intends to purchase a large number of calves in Manitoba if possible.

The U. S. Customs has come down on the Champlain fishermen. It seeks to prevent our nice fresh fish from going in free under the treaty. Here is another finical case for diplomacy.

N. Y. Sun:—To the striking coal handlers there have been joined boatmen, and brakemen, and cartmen, and elevator men, and no one can tell what other group of laborers may take a hand in it at any moment.

Mr. Timothy Warren Anglin writes in the Globe and in the Toronto Tribune on the subject of "boodle." When Mr. Anglin was in the Speaker's chair he "boodled" to the tune of $21,000! He was "disqualified" on that account.

The Wolfville Acadian points out that large quantities of Nova Scotian apples are being shipped to England via Boston, and that Americans are making the profit that should accrue to the Canadian raiser. The remedy is to make direct shipments.

The wave has struck British Columbia. The Vancouver, B. C., Advertiser says:—"Riel in Quebec; secession in Maritime Provinces; and slander in Ontario and Manitoba! A contemporary may well exclaim, 'what a platform for intelligent and honest men.'"

Mr. J. H. Hubbard, who has been in England for some time past exhibiting what was known as the Hubbard collection at the Colonial Exhibition, has returned to Winnipeg. Mr. Hubbard is enthusiastic about the prospects of immigration to the North-west. He sold his famous collection to the county of York.

The Boston Fish Bureau (which is composed of all the leading fish merchants in that city) has just issued its twelfth annual report. In referring to the mackerel fishery for 1886 it says:—"The New England mackerel catch has been the shortest for 43 years, the quantity of mackerel landed at New England ports during the past season having been but 79 998 barrels, as against 329,943 barrels in 1885, and 478,076 in 1884, so that it is needless to say that during the past season the mackerel fleet have made a financial failure." The above, much in view of the source of information, should be accepted as an unquestioned result of a season's fishing at the beginning of which nothing was heard but loud protestations of the United States fishermen wanting nothing from Canada.

The Montreal Witness, describing the great reception to the Secretary of State, says:—Mr. Chapleau said that he was glad to meet them on the eve of a great political battle, the result of which would be similar, he fondly hoped, to other past conflicts in which he had led them to victory. He stated that the little troubles had been satisfactorily settled, and to the great benefit of the district of Montreal; and now all that remained to be done was to go to work, and, like one man, strive for the triumph of those principles they all held so dear. After discussing briefly the fiscal policy of the Government, Mr. Chapleau plunged into the Riel question, and brought to his aid that splendid oratorical gift which has served him upon so many occasions. He had, he said, never changed his mind upon the question, and although he respected the patriotic feeling which had prompted some in abandoning the Conservative party, he would still maintain that the best course had been pursued. Those who had supported the Government had been commended for so doing by Monseigneurs Taché and Lafleche.

LOCAL NOTICES.

From the Times, London, England:—An impressive, declamatory piece, given by Mr. Winch, the American tenor, with much expression, is followed by an air, "O, House of Jacob," for tenor. The latter, assigned to Mr. Sims Reeves, was, owing to that artist's sudden indisposition, undertaken by Mr. Winch, who seemed to be well prepared for such an emergency, and sang the melodious air with a delicacy and truth of feeling worthy of all praise.

Mr. Winch appears here on February 16th, at the Dundas Street Centre Church concert.

From the St. James' Gazette, June 7, '84: There is one unaccompanied quartet, too:—"O, Come, Let Us Sing Unto the Lord," towards the end of the first part, which is a masterpiece of the kind, and which, last night, perfectly sung by Mdme. Albani, Mdme. Patey, Mr. Winch and Mr. Santley, was enthusiastically redemanded.

Mr. Winch will sing at the concert on February 16th, at Dundas Street Centre Church.

A Valuable Testimonial.

Wm. Devoy, on corner of Piccadilly and William streets, told me nearly two years ago of the virtues of Barkwell's Bronchial Balsam. I had been working in a drain and caught a very severe cold. I got a bottle of that celebrated Balsam, and it so quickly and completely cured me of that acute attack, that I have never been without it since. I have recommended it to a great many and they all agree with me, that it is equally good for adults and children, pleasant to take and never known to fail, no matter how severe the cold.—JOHN WALTERS, 31 Bathurst St. *

Ask your druggist for it and take nothing else. *

Where are you going? Well, I don't know, but I have been strongly advised by my many friends to go to A. E. Trebilcock's and order a suit and overcoat. They all say he will show you the largest assortment of suits and overcoats in the city. 235 Dundas street is his number. McBride is the cutter.

It often happens that six bottles are more than sufficient to effect a cure; but still it is wise to be on the safe side; besides, there surely is no one in the whole Dominion who would begrudge that amount to cure such a loathsome and stubborn disease, especially as there is

Mr. William Bryce, of Toronto, visited the city yesterday, and leaves next week on a purchasing tour to Germany.

The East Middlesex Conservatives meet this afternoon to choose a candidate to contest the riding in the interests of that party.

Sheriff Iler has been appointed Returning Officer for the North Riding of Essex, and J. Wallace Askin, Esq., for the South Riding.

The employes of the Paterson works at Woodstock presented Mr. A. S. Patterson with a handsome clock after his recent marriage.

Mr. Gunn, formerly editor of the Embro Courier, has accepted the management of a newspaper at Kamloops, British Columbia.

Superintendent Parker, of the Sandwich Fish Hatchery, shipped 2,000,000 white fish eggs to Newcastle the other morning.

Mr. James Todd, an old resident of Stratford, who left there during the boom in the Northwest, died a few days ago at St. Paul, Minnesota.

The trustees of Ontario street Methodist Church, Clinton, have decided to proceed with the enlargement of the church, at an estimated cost of nearly $2,000.

Mechanical Superintendent Domville, of the Southern, and Assistant Superintendent Tiffin, of the Northern division of the G. T. R., were in the city yesterday.

After the adjournment of No. 1 Committee of the City Council last evening the Court of Revision for the year was formally organized by the appointment of Ald George Taylor as Chairman.

It is stated that "Gen." Atherton, who rendered himself conspicuous by his connection with the Salvation Army and kindred organizations, has embarked in the manufacture of furniture at Fergus.

Mr. P. Chesterfield, the first and for some time the only Conservative elector in Tara, was banqueted the other day by fifty of the leading Conservatives of Bruce county. The occasion was very enjoyable.

The Middlesex County Council have appointed the School Inspectors, and Messrs. H. McColl and W. F. May to be the Board of Examiners for public school teachers, and the examinations are to be held at Strathroy and London.

The Catholic church in Ingersoll will soon be in a position to be consecrated, as its congregation are making an effort to cancel the outstanding debt of $5,500. The sum of $4,700 has been paid during the three years of Rev. J. P. Molphy's pastorate.

The death is announced of Mr. Joseph Coates, formerly of East Nissouri. He lived there for a considerable time, but went to California a few years since, and expired at Santa Cruz on the 18th inst. after a long and painful illness. He was 72 years of age.

The Tiser deems it proper in the interests of the Grit party to denounce the Directors and officers of the Pottery Company as "heelers." It is in this way that gentlemen who are building up London as a manufacturing centre are encouraged by the Grit party and its organ here.

James Chase's saw mill at Clachan was found to be on fire at 5.30 on Friday morning by some of the neighbors, who succeeded in quelling the flames, after property to the value of about $500 was damaged. There had been no fire in the mill for over a week, as it was undergoing repairs. Traces of coal oil were found.

The Stratford Beacon has this to say of London's leading lady vocalist, on the occasion of her appearance at the Burns' anniversary concert there on Tuesday evening last:—"Miss McNeill, of London, was a prime favorite with the audience from her first appearance. Her songs were rendered with mathematical precision, and she demonstrated to a delighted audience that a perfectly distinct articulation is quite compatible with a pure intonation and the effective rendering of a song. A marked improvement is observable in Miss McNeill's singing since she first met a Stratford audience, and she may now be ranked as one of Canada's first vocalists."

Despite the moistness of the atmosphere there was a good attendance last night at the entertainment given in Knox Church, London South, under the auspices of the Literary Society connected therewith, and a good programme was rendered. It consisted of a "round" by Mrs. McPherson and Misses Dewar, Clark, Drayton, Browne and Land; songs by Misses Gilmour, Bremner, Alice Elliott, and Messrs H. Jewell, W. Halle and F. Jewell; readings by Messrs. McQueen, McPherson, Tennant, Alexander, McLean, and a violin solo by Mr. McCoomb.

The West Middlesex Grits elected the following officers at their annual meeting at Glencoe this week:—President, A. Stuart, Glencoe; Vice-President, B. Walterworth, Moss; Treasurer, John Watterworth, ex M. P. P., Moss; Secretary, F. F. Evans, Strathroy. Township Presidents—Adelaide, Wm. Brock; Strathroy, E. Rowland; Metcalfe, W. S. Oalver; Ekfrid, G. C. Elliot; Glencoe, John McNeil; Moss, Duncan Campbell; Euphemia, Joseph Roberts; Newbury, Dr. Graham; Wardsville, John Shaw.

The Spectator, alluding to the way Mr. Blake figures up the causes leading to the rebellion, says anybody can do that kind of thing. For instance:—"Had there been no Adam there would have been no human race. If no human race, no Canadian Grits. If no Canadian Grits, no Riel encouragers. No Riel encouragers, no rebellion. No rebellion, the blood of no cousins of Mr. Blake would crimson the snow of the North-west. Adam, then, who was the first, is responsible for every link in that fatal chain."

At a very largely attended meeting of Liberal-Conservatives held in the Lorne hotel, Ilderton, on Thursday evening, Messrs. W. Walker and Anthony Hughes were selected as delegates to the nominating convention which meets in this city today. The meeting expressed itself unanimously in favor of Mr. Thomas E. Robson, as the candidate, and closed with cheers for Mr. Robson, the delegates, Hon. John Carling, Sir John A. Macdonald and the Queen.

Mr. Heath, of the Y.M.C.A.'s soup kitchen, asks insertion of the following:—"The following is the soup kitchen report since last output:—Donations in kind—Mrs R. Hueston, 18 loaves; Mrs. H. A. Smith, 1 bag barley; Mr. Bridle, 10 loaves; G. T. Ryder, 25 lbs meat; Ferguson & Co., beans, barley and peas. Cash contributions—Mr J. Ewing, $2; Mr. V. Cronyn, $5; George G. McCormick, $2; Mrs. Benj Cronyn, $5; Mrs. H. D. Long, $2."

Some idea of the Globe's shamefaced lying may be gathered from its statement that "the Toronto Standard was edited by the Mail's Ottawa correspondent, and is supplied with a foreman from the same office." The Standard briefly sums up the charge as follows:—"It is not edited by the Mail's Ottawa correspondent, and the 'foreman' referred to left the Globe composing room to take the position he now occupies."

The Windsor Record says:—"The Scott Act is an absolute farce in the counties of Middlesex and Lambton. In one little town where there were formerly five places where liquor was sold, and where a liquor license revenue of over $500 was secured, there are now nineteen places where liquor is sold, without any tax whatever, and the hotels are running their bars as usual."

The Tiser shows its sympathy for Mr. T. Coughlin, the nominee of the North Middlesex Conservatives, by telling his co-religionists that he is "a mere cat's-paw," and "can be easily duped." The electors of Biddulph will, without any distinction of creed or party, answer this on the 22nd prox. by according Mr. Coughlin the largest majority ever polled in that township.

Duncan Cameron, of Dunwich, who was sentenced to prison for forgery, has served his term in the Kingston penitentiary and has returned home. He was visited while in prison by Rev. T. Boue, Welland Canal missionary, who states that he became a converted man, and had charge of a Bible class in the prison for a number of months past.

The Tiser seems annoyed because this journal printed a paragraph from the Spectator about the London soup kitchen. If the FREE PRESS were desirous of interfering unnecessarily with our contemporary's business, it might ask why the Tiser refused to insert Rev. Father Tiernan's letter the other day?

In 1885 the pure-minded Mr. Blake was of opinion that Mr. Patrick Purcell, of Glengarry, was a "boodler." Now he is the Grit candidate for that riding. But then as long as a "boodler" turns Reformer it is all right. D'ye see how it works?

The Mitchell Advocate says:—"The secret of the Mail's hostility to the Catholics is out at last. It is alleged to be the devoted organ of Sir Richard Cartwright, who, it is well known, always entertained the opinions which the Mail now holds."

Rev. Father McManus, of Windsor, was presented with a well-filled purse by his numerous friends previous to his removal to Woodslee, where he takes the place of Father Cummings, who goes to Elgin County.

Messrs. Forster & Kincaid, of Wingham, have received contracts from the G. P. R Company for the erection of two railway bridges on the new line to be built there this spring.

A new letter box has been placed opposite Conway's grocery, corner of Elias and Adelaide streets, East End, for the convenience of people in that vicinity.

GENERAL CABLE NEWS.

PARNELLITES WANT THE HOME RULE QUESTION DISCUSSED FIRST.

The Liberals Urging Gladstone to Offer No Concessions to the Unionists—Chamberlain Defines his Position—Parnell's Illness Reported to be Very Serious—The Struggle Between Landlord and Tenant in Ireland.

London, Jan 30, midnight.

A Seat for Goschen.

Lord Algernon Percy, Conservative member of Parliament for St. George's, Hanover Square, has announced his willingness to retire in favor of Mr. Goschen, subject to the approval of the Electoral Committee. It is believed Mr. Goschen will accept.

Seven Nihilists Hanged.

La Intransigeant, of Paris, Henri Rochefort's paper, states that seven Nihilists have been hanged in the prison at Odessa by the Russian authorities, that ten other Nihilists are being tried at Wilna for killing a colonel in the Russian army, and that 200 others have been recently sent to Siberia.

Mr. O'Brien Again Heard From.

Wm. O'Brien, speaking at Bodick, County Limerick, to day, said, that if Irishmen could meet the police man to man, and rifle to rifle in the open field, he for one would promptly abandon speaking, and the next speech the destroyer of people's homes would hear would be from the mouths of the people's guns.

Advice to Gladstone.

The Pall Mall Gazette asserts that the Liberals are urging Mr. Gladstone to abandon the round-table conference and all concessions to the Liberal-Unionists, pointing out to him that he and his followers do not need to purchase on any terms the help of either Chamberlainites or the Hartingtonites, as the Liberal victory to Mr. Goschen in Liverpool shows that Home Rule is certain to succeed in the end.

Lord Colin's Big Bill of Costs.

Lord Colin Campbell's library will be sold at suction next week at Edinburgh. The books are mainly Scotch, and the proceeds will not go far toward paying the costs of his recent suit. The bill handed in amounts to $13,500 and this, unless paid, will land Lord Colin in the Bankruptcy Court. Rumors of that other great divorce suit, which was to eclipse the Campbell case, are weekly reproduced with unfailing pertinacity.

The G. O. M.

Mr. Gladstone, who was confined to his bed with a slight cold, had so far recovered yesterday afternoon as to enable him to carry out his intention of spending Sunday with the Prince of Wales, and he left London at 4 o'clock for Sandringham, the Prince's residence. A large crowd awaited the coming of Mr. and Mrs. Gladstone and the Prince of Wales at the railway station at Lynn. Upon the arrival of the train Mr. Gladstone was called upon for a speech. He responded by expressing his thanks for the friendly greeting accorded him.

Victories for Tenants.

Lord Dunsandle some time ago offered his Galway tenants a reduction of fifteen per cent. in rents. They demanded a thirty per cent. reduction, and when this was refused adopted a plan of campaign. Lord Dunsandle now agrees to reduce rents twenty-five per cent., and to reinstate evicted tenants. There is great rejoicing among the tenants over their victory. A crowd at Lisalaton, Cork, yesterday barricaded the house of a widow named Scanlan against the bailiffs who had come to evict her, and threatened the bailiffs and their escort of forty policemen with scythes, pitchforks and scalding water. The force was withdrawn in order to prevent a conflict.

Parnell's Amendment.

The Irish amendment to the address in reply to the Queen's speech will be produced either on Monday or Tuesday, as opportunity may offer. It will definitely raise the question of home rule, placing it before the land issues as more important and urgent. The Government wish to avoid being drawn into a discussion on home rule at this early stage of the debate, but the Nationalists are resolved the subject shall be at once as thoroughly ventilated as the rules of the House of Commons permit. The Tory Unionist programme is to take the land question first and defer discussion of Home Rule until the procedure amendments or Irish gag law are passed.

Parnell's Close Call.

The Irish cause has had a more narrow escape from the loss of Mr. Parnell's services than any one at the time suspected. With characteristic pride and reserve, Mr. Parnell kept back from everyone, even his nearest colleagues, the seriousness of his late illness. The facts have only just come to light. Now he is out and among us we note how terribly he has been reduced by his recent struggle with death. His pale, worn face and thin neck, and the reduction of another fourteen pounds in his weight show how fearfully he suffered. For seven consecutive days he was absolutely unable to take or retain administered food in any form. Another week at this rate would have seen him in his grave. This is the more curious as Mr. Parnell was most abstemious at the table. His illness was the result of the irregular hours and severe strain of Parliamentary life. For three months he has not tasted butcher's meat. He is confined strictly to fish and game. His recovery must in any case be slow, and it is liable to be impeded by his duties in the House of Commons.

Chamberlain Against the Irish.

Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, in a speech at Birmingham to-night, said he was willing, for the sake of bringing peace to a country which had been at war for centuries, to further postpone much needed reforms in Great Britain, but he would not accept terms of settlement dictated by a portion of the Irish members of Parliament, nor would he submit to a minority party which represented an anti-English rent conspiracy. The reunion of the Liberal party and the settlement of the Irish question, he continued, could only be rendered possible by Irishmen and Englishmen exercising a spirit of moderation and mutual consideration. The British people would approve a conciliatory course, but they had not sunk so low as to accept a policy of surrender. The Unionists had counted the cost of their position. He was convinced that they were increasing in numbers, even in Liverpool. He was willing to go a long way to meet his former friends, but there was a limit to considerations. He believed the Radical Liberal Conference would enable them to solve the problem of how to grant justice both to landlords and to tenants on a basis involving no risk to the British taxpayer.

Cable Notes.

The sheriffs, bailiffs and police have left Glenteigh.

A credit will be submitted to the Austrian Reichsrath for the complete arming of the Landsturm.

Princess Augusta Victoria, wife of Prince William, eldest son of the Crown Prince of Prussia, gave birth to a son Saturday.

Dispatches from Pekin confirm the statement that Port Hamilton has been evacuated by Great Britain and restored to Corea.

Dr. Junker and Dr. Schweinfurth, the African explorers, though at first opposed to Stanley's views, now agree with him that the Congo route is the best one to take to reach Emin Bey.

Mr. McNulty and other farmers on the Defreyne estate at French Park, Roscommon, have been committed to await trial for conspiring to collect rents by means of the "plan of campaign."

The French Chamber of Deputies by a vote of 340 to 180 on Saturday adopted the first clause of the public worship budget. The rejection of this clause would have been tantamount to the suppression of the whole of the public worship estimates.

THE WAR SCARE.

MILITARY PREPARATIONS OF GERMANY AND FRANCE.

Uneasiness in Financial Circles—A Russian View of England's Attitude.

London, Jan. 29. — Lord Salisbury's statement in his letter to Lord Randolph Churchill, that the outlook on the Continent is black, emboldens the Daily News to reaffirm the accuracy of its last Monday's assertion of the imminent risk of immediate war. But that letter is a month old, and Lord Salisbury said in the House of Lords on Thursday night that nothing whatever had occurred during the last few weeks to create a belief that danger was more acute than for some time past. This leaves the Daily News without a leg to stand on.

FROM THE GERMAN CAPITAL.

A Berlin despatch says:—The statements of the official press that the calling out of the reserves does not imply war has failed to reassure the general public, while both on the Boerse and in military circles the measure is interpreted as part of campaign propositions. The Boerse to-day was the flattest since Monday's scare and the feeling of alarm approached a semi-panic toward the close after the receipt of bad advices from Paris and Vienna. On the Vienna Boerse there was intense depression, partly arising from several failures announced yesterday. One speculator committed suicide in front of the Rathhaus. The Mulhausen papers announce the purchases of large school buildings at Zollisheim, near Colmar, for barracks for the German troops. Reinforcements have arrived at Dieuze, Hagenau and other frontier posts. An Alsace journal reports that the French are building wooden barracks at Gerardmer to accommodate 3,000 men, and at Corcieux for 3,000 more, and that at other places in the Vosges smaller barracks are being erected. The garrisons at Epinal, Bruyeres and Saint Wie have each been reinforced with 5,000 troops. The National Zeitung says it sees that France is preparing for immediate war. The Germans need not discuss the truth of the assertions that France is only defending herself against possible assault. The continued concentration of Austrian troops in Galicia and the huge transportation of war material thither adds uneasiness in financial circles.

A RUSSIAN VIEW.

The Journal de St. Petersburg, commenting on the attitude of Great Britain with respect to foreign affairs as revealed by the proceedings at the opening of Parliament, says it could not expect from the Marquis of Salisbury any sounder or more equitable view of Russian intentions than that which he condescended to make in the House of Lords on Thursday. Lord Randolph Churchill's statement, the Journal says, would enable Russia to form an opinion concerning Lord Salisbury's unswerving pacific policy. Referring to Bulgaria, the Journal says it is impossible for Russia to treat with the Regency. The negotiations between Russia and the Porte may, however, the paper thinks, result in an arrangement based on Russia's programme for the formation of a Government in Bulgaria with which Russia can treat.

THE QUEBEC CRISIS.

BLOODSHED AT BELFAST.

THIRTY PERSONS REPORTED KILLED AND 100 INJURED.

Terrible Rioting Follows a Row Between Protestants and Catholics—Free Use of Revolvers and Stones—The Police Fire on the Mob for Their Own Protection—Many Arrests Made.

Belfast, Jan. 30.—There was terrible rioting in the Peter's Hill, Carrick Hill and Shankhill districts of this city on Saturday night. The trouble originated through soldiers belonging to the West Surrey Regiment insulting a number of Catholic civilians. The latter retaliated by stoning the soldiers, many of whom were injured. This was followed by wholesale arrests, over 100 persons being locked up. A constable engaged in this duty was seriously injured by the excited crowd. Finally military pickets were called out and quiet restored. This evening the rioting was renewed, and at this hour the police and mob are exchanging shots. Thirty persons are reported killed and a hundred more injured.

LATER PARTICULARS.

Altogether fifty rioters have been arrested. The trouble originated on Saturday night in a row between Protestants and Catholics. The arrival of police incensed the mob and led to a free use of revolvers and stones. The police were compelled to fire for their own protection. The Mayor and other authorities did their best to prevent a renewal of the riot to-night, but without success. Only three persons were arrested to-night. The outbreak to-night was caused by the appearance of two constables who gave evidence before the Riots Investigation Commission. The constables were roughly handled and reinforcements had to be called out.

TO PROTECT OUR FISHERIES.

THE IMPERIAL GOVERNMENT PROMISE MEN-OF-WAR.

The Threatened Retaliation will Hurt Canadians Less than the Yankees.

Ottawa, January 29.—It is officially stated that the Government, in response to an appeal to the mother country, has just received assurance from the Imperial authorities that men-of-war will be dispatched to the Maritime Provinces in the spring for the purpose of co-operating with Canadian cruisers in the enforcement of the fishery protective service. The promise of the English Government created great satisfaction in official circles, and indicates that American vessels will be more rigidly excluded from our waters during the next season than in the past.

A Cabinet Minister, speaking on the subject, expressed himself as follows:—"I have come to the conclusion that American legislators having gone so far will never yield their consent to the appointment of a commission. Gloucester fishermen will not venture into our waters again in force, and next April will witness the first startling falling off in their trade. Two years hence the splendid Yankee fishing fleet will be a thing of the past. Let them resort to retaliation if they will, and the result will be that the game will work both ways. Portland, now a winter port of Canada, will decline, while Halifax, under the new order of things, will flourish. Civil war between the Eastern and Western States would follow the adoption of a retaliatory Bill."

THE LONDON PRESS.

London, Jan. 29. Silence is still the rule in the English daily press on the fishery business, though the weekly papers allude to the Senate debates. The Spectator says the English Government cannot help supporting Canada. The same journal thinks it most unfortunate that American Senators should have made a compromise difficult by speeches really addressed to their constituents, but here understood to betray a deep, latent ill-will. The Saturday Review heads its article "Senator Pogram," but cannot decide whether Mr. Ingalls or Mr. Frye better deserve the name. Questions are certain to be asked concerning the matter.

A COSTLY STRIKE.

A Bill for that in New York Foots Up Over $4,000,000—A Surface Railroad Tie-up Threatened.

New York, Jan. 29.—It is estimated that the loss entailed by the great strike in this city thus far will foot up to over four million dollars. There seems to be strong probability that within the next 24 hours the strike situation in this vicinity will be complicated by the tying up of almost every surface railroad in the city. Conductors on several roads declared a tie-up was not only contemplated, but had been practically decided upon. Great resentment was caused among drivers on a particular line this morning by an order from the superintendent taking away their stools.

New York, Jan. 30.—To-morrow morning 3,500 men will join the strike. This will shut down the work on the docks of the sailing vessels. They have no grievances, but have been ordered out to support those already on strike.

NO LONGER A MYSTERY.

The Murderer of August Baltz Discovered by Detectives.

New York, Jan. 28.—As soon as Inspector Byrnes was informed by the Baltimore police that the dismembered body of a man had been received by the Adams express company in that city, he sent out a force of detectives to work up the case. They learned that the trunk had been sent from Brooklyn, where it had been left temporarily in a saloon. Edward Younger, of 22 Bridge street, this city, has been arrested for the murder. August Baltz, a man of some wealth, had been living with Younger, and was recently missed. Younger and Baltz quarreled, and there is little doubt but he was murdered.

The house was searched. A large butcher knife and a hammer covered with blood were found. Baltz's room was spattered with blood, and the bed clothes and floor saturated. Edward Younger, aged 17, a son of the prisoner, has been arrested. On Monday he saw his father washing the floor, and asked what he was doing. He was told by his father that he had a serious quarrel with Baltz, and he would never see him again. He was then told by his father that he must say nothing about it or his father would get into trouble.

Younger is 52 years old, and powerfully built. When arrested he looked the picture of despair, and refused to make any statement to Inspector Byrnes. The head of Baltz has not yet been recovered.

An autopsy of the dissected body of Baltz was held at Baltimore yesterday. It revealed no cause of death. A non-irritant poison might have been used, but the examining physician believes the cause of death will be found in the head. The bones were severed with a coarse saw. The work must have been done by a butcher.

The two razors which Unger used in carving up August Baltz after he had killed him in his sleep, in order that he might be packed up in the trunk that turned up in Baltimore, were brought to police headquarters to-day and put away with the rest of the overwhelming evidence against the murderer. Unger sat in his cell all morning refusing to speak when spoken to. He is very closely watched to prevent his cheating the hangman out of his just dues. Unger does not waste breath denying his guilt or asserting his innocence, but says unfeelingly, and yet with a perceptible degree of anxiety behind his apparent boldness, "that they will have to prove it."

Later—Unger was arraigned at the Tombs Police Court, charged with murder. He exhibited stolid indifference, and when asked if he desired to make any statement simply sneered and turned his head aside. At the request of Inspector Byrnes Unger was remanded to police headquarters.

The chief element of the mystery now clinging to the case is the fact that the head, without which identification will be difficult, is still missing. Two detectives were sent to Baltimore to-day to bring the body here. After its arrival it will be necessary to hold another inquest.

THE STRIKE SPREADING.

Fifty Thousand 'Longshoremen, Freight Handlers &c., Out.

New York, Jan. 29.—Judging from present indications 50,000 longshoremen, coal handlers, etc., will be out on strike to-day. The freight handlers who unload cars at railroad docks sympathize with the strikers, and will probably quit work. It is said the managers of the strike have under advisement the calling out of gas works' men and electric light men unless satisfactory arrangements are soon reached.

(Later).—Extension of the strike to railroad freight handlers on the piers of several roads having dock facilities on the city water front, has brought the number of men now out up to nearly 30,000. The probabilities are that before the day is over other railroad employes will stop work.

STRUCK A ROCK.

A Channel Islands Packet Wrecked in a Fog—Passengers and Crew Saved.

London, Jan. 29.—The Channel Islands packet Brighton struck a rock during a fog off the island of Guernsey and foundered in fifteen minutes after striking. The crew and passengers were saved, but the mails were lost.

Lady Macdonald's Article.

A London despatch says:—Lady Macdonald's article, "By Car and by Cowcatcher," appeared to-day in Murray's Magazine. It is a description of her lady ship's journey over the Canadian Pacific Railway. She speaks in very glowing terms of the exquisite beauty of the scenery, the comfort of the carriages and the importance of the line. She also enters briefly into the political history of the undertaking, showing how politicians quarrelled over it, how speculators shook their heads, how engineers doubted the feasibility of the scheme, and how the railway authorities opposed the enterprise. It broke one Government, embarrassed another, set everybody by the ears and bade fair to become a chronic quarrel between the rival parties, when happily the difficulty was faced and the line was brought to a successful finish. The journey of the authoress reads like a novel. It is written with admirable taste and in a gossipy style that is exceedingly interesting. Lady Macdonald refers to her husband as a chief who is always engaged in adding to his store of knowledge about the country and its necessities and the requirements of the people. The meeting with the Blackfeet is like a page from a romance. The welcome that Sir John Macdonald received was most gratifying, showing the loyalty of the Dominion's dusky and distant subjects. The authoress gives many interesting incidents of her journey, especially of that part where she proceeded from Laggan for 600 miles on the cow-catcher of the engine. At this point the story ends for the present, but sufficient has been published to awaken interest here in the great and successful enterprise.

Poisoned Herself and Babe.

Cleveland, Ohio, Jan. 28.—When Mrs Cabelck murdered her three children and suicided the newspapers published long accounts of the crime. Frank Roth, a Bohemian, read the report to his wife, two children and mother in-law. He is a well-to-do mechanic and lived happily. His wife listened to the account of the murder and had her husband re-read it. On Thursday she sent her mother to a grocery for yeast, and then took a heavy dose of "rough on rats" and forced a dose of poison down the throat of her baby. When the old lady returned she alarmed the neighborhood and doctors called, but came too late. The woman died in great agony and the babe expired soon after.

David Roach, Assistant Manager of the Rio Grande sugar plantation at Cape May, N.J., was accidentally shot and killed Friday by R. Tizard, General Agent of the Sugar Co., while the two were moving household goods.

Statute Consolidation.

Ottawa, Jan. 29.—Henceforth the legal fraternity of the Dominion will have a compendium of the law in their hands which will prove invaluable to them. To-day the Governor-General's proclamation will be issued announcing that the Revised Statutes of the Dominion will come into force on and after March 1st. Three editions of the work of the revisors have been published. The first one was that of the committee of 1884. Their labors were continued by the Parliamentary Committee of 1885, and last session by a committee over which the Minister of Justice presided. The task of consolidation has been onerous an and arduous one, requiring most careful attention on the part of the revisor. The third draft, which will in the future be the standard work, contains such suggestions as were adopted by Mr. Thompson's committee. In addition, the legislation of last session, or so much of it as the Governor-in-Council selected as necessary, has been incorporated by the law clerks of the two Houses. This, as completed, forms the original roll of statutes, and is deposited with the Clerk of Parliament for safe keeping. After the deposit of this roll, by statute 49 Victoria, chap. 4, the Governor-General issues his proclamation bringing the statutes into force, which is now being done.

Grand Trunk Property Destroyed.

Buffalo, Jan. 29.—Fire broke out about 1 30 yesterday morning in the Grand Trunk freight house bordering on River street. In half an hour the frame structure and the whole of its contents were totally destroyed. A brisk wind was blowing, and the fact that the contents comprised amongst other things about 150 barrels of kerosene oil accounted for the rapidity with which the six-year-old frame building fell a prey to the flames. The night watchman connects the outbreak with a stove located in Fenton's salt warerooms, underneath the building. Among the freight were 46 bales of rags, which, like the oil, had been consigned to parties in Canada. A number of cars on the tracks were completely destroyed. Most of them were empty. A few were laden with grain, coal and general merchandise, at the north end of the building, where there were about 200 empty oil barrels, most of which were as fuel to the flames. The office, with books and documents, was destroyed. The entire loss will probably amount to from $10,000 to $15,000.

The Bank Bursted by the Sec.-Treas.

Jersey City, N. J., Jan. 29.—The Germania Savings Bank closed this morning. C. M. E. Schroeder, secretary and Treasurer, is missing and is believed to have gone to Canada. A deficit of $30,000 was discovered in the cash account.

"BOODLE" IN OLD TAXES.

How Mr. C. S. Hyman Made the City Smart for $1,000.

A CASE OF GRASPING SELFISHNESS.

A correspondent signing himself "Liberal," and dating from William street, in this city, writes us concerning the amount of money which Mr. C. S. Hyman received back from the City Council as taxes alleged by him to have been overpaid by the Hyman estate. The writer is evidently under a wrong impression in regard to this matter, both as to the time and amount. He speaks of the sum of $600 as having been paid back to Mr. Hyman during his Mayoralty. He probably refers to a transaction which took place before Mr. Hyman was in the Council. It was at the time commonly spoken of as "Hyman's raid upon the city treasury," with what degree of justice the public may consider for themselves.

Mr. C. S. Hyman set up the plea that the estate in the time of his late father, Mr. E. W. Hyman, had been over-assessed, that a large amount had been paid by the deceased over and above what he found the estate should have been rated for at the time of such payments, and he demanded restitution.

Upon refusal, Mr. C. S. Hyman threatened to involve the city in an expensive lawsuit, in order to avoid which, or for some other reason, the Corporation made him out a cheque for $1,000 in satisfaction of the claim.

We had not intended to raise this issue against Mr. Hyman's candidature. The letter of "Liberal," which has been sent to us, shows, however, that it is one which rankles deeply in the public mind. And it may therefore be as well to discuss it.

How far Mr. Hyman might have been sustained in law and equity in the case in point is not revealed, because it was not brought to trial. But if all citizens were to be dealt with and yielded to on the same plea as Mr. C. S. Hyman set up, our City Treasury would have to be a long one, indeed.

One theory of municipal taxation is, that after a property has been assessed and the owner duly notified of such assessment, it stands, unless an appeal against it, as unjust, is made and sustained. Where the justice of it is not questioned by the owner, and where he pays the tax honestly and uncomplainingly, it stands, and no complaint, made after the lapse of several years by himself or others on his behalf, can be entertained.

But Mr. C. S. Hyman claimed a different rule for himself from that by which all other citizens are, and have been, bound. He prevailed by some means on the Council of that period to reverse the order of municipal procedure in his own favor, by which he put $1,000 of the city taxes into his own pocket.

We feel satisfied that Mr. C. S. Hyman would not support a plea of this kind made by, or in behalf of, any other citizen, and that the justice which he claimed for himself he would not be ready to extend to others, were he now in the Council.

CAMPAIGN NOTES.

Preparations for the Coming Struggle—Echoes from all Along the Line.

D. B. McLennan was nominated at Newington Saturday as the Grit candidate for Stormont.

Mr. Jas. Ross, of Moose Jaw, has accepted the nomination of the Grits to contest Western Assiniboia against Mr. N. F. Davin.

Sir Donald A. Smith's nomination for Montreal West was ratified at a very largely attended meeting of Conservatives Saturday.

Mr. B. M. Britton having refused the Grit nomination for Addington, it has been offered to and accepted by Mr. H. Shibley, a young barrister of Kingston.

The Grits are still searching for a candidate for East Toronto, but so far without success. Ald. Fleming, one of the latest mentioned, refuses to consider the matter.

Hon. Wm. McDougall, nominated in the Liberal interest in South Grenville, stated in an interview yesterday that he believed in the National Policy of the Government, and its policy of the construction of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

At a convention at Prescott Saturday Mr. Walter Shanly was chosen by an overwhelming majority as the standard bearer for the Conservatives of South Grenville. Mr. S. S. Boyd contested the convention with Mr. Shanly. On a ballot being taken, it was found that Mr. Shanly had 321 votes, and Mr. Boyd 37.

"I do not wish to pose as a prophet," said a well-known business man, recently returned from the east, to the Toronto World, "but I am convinced that Sir John Macdonald will have a good working majority after the election. In New Brunswick Alex. Gibson, who controls the railways and wields great influence, will support the Conservatives, and promises them three seats that went against them before. The Burpee influence is also with the Conservatives, and that means a great deal. In Nova Scotia the adherents of Sir John will hold their own, and will secure a slight gain in Prince Edward Island. Although the political troubles in Quebec have looked very ominous to the Conservatives, recent events have somewhat changed the complexion of affairs, and though their majority will be reduced there, it will not fall off so much as is expected. West of Quebec Sir John will carry everything before him. The only seat the Reformers can count on in Manitoba is Marquette, where Watson may be returned. This may be considered a bold forecast of the result, but wait and see if it does not come out that way."

When the bowels are bound up it is positively injurious to the system to use a medicine that is violently purgative in its action like cathartic pills, which at the same time gripe the sufferer most unpleasantly. Such treatment has a tendency to weaken the bowels, and leave the patient in a debilitated condition. McGregor's Speedy Cure will be found an invariable relief for constipation, acting mildly and insensibly on these organs, thus rendering their action healthy and regular. A dose taken before eating stimulates the gastric juice, which in turn performs its part by securing perfect digestion, and consequently ease and comfort to the unfortunate invalid. From the downcast looks of the dozen or more Grits on Richmond street on Saturday evening, after hearing the result of the East Middlesex Conservative Convention, one could not help sympathizing with them. The special services at St. Matthew's, East End, came to a close on Friday evening with an administration of the Holy Communion, when several came forward who had not been seen there before. The weather was as bad as it could well be, the roads being all but impassable, so icy were they. All the services have been well attended, and the Rev. W. J. A feeling of deep thankfulness has been expressed by the congregation for these gatherings.—Com.

There is a prospect of a lively lawsuit between the C. P. R. and Grand Trunk. The projected line of the latter Company, starting from Kirkfield, on the Lindsay and Colbrooke branch, and running as direct as possible to the Sault, a distance of 380 miles, has stirred up the C. P. R. to extend its Algoma branch to the same point. The Grand Trunk has located its line and bought most of the right of way, but while construction was under contemplation the C. P. R. has already commenced it. The Grand Trunk people claim that their great rival is following the identical route as laid out by the Grand Trunk engineers, and have consequently applied for an injunction to compel the C. P. R. to desist.

A GREAT EVENT.—This year's Carnival in Montreal is attracting thousands of prominent people from all parts of the world. This year—the Queen's Jubilee Year, the year of the greatest Carnival—is likewise to be the year of the greatest Carnival STAR yet produced—a paper that will be preserved as an historical work and descend as an heirloom from generation to generation. It is impossible to describe the attractions of the Carnival STAR this year. It marks an era of progress in illustrated papers perfectly amazing in its possibilities. How it Has Prospered Under the National Policy.

SOME VOLUNTARY TESTIMONY.

Messrs. Ferguson & Sons on the Beneficial Effects of the Protective Tariff.

AMERICAN GOODS SHUT OUT,

And Canadian Industries Built Up—Facts for the Electors to Ponder Over.

The extent to which the National Policy has been of material benefit to the people of London is not realized by casual observation. It has been the support of every industry in the city, and is the sole charter of some of them. That is to say, without the protection it affords some of our manufactories could not survive for three months, while every one of them would be crippled and ultimately swamped. Just to the extent that it gives this support to our industries, to that extent does it affect the direct interests of the employes. We feel that most of the workingmen of London realize this, and are quite prepared to show their approbation of the Government which gave this National Policy to the country. They know who the men were who opposed that measure with unsparing bitterness—that they were the men who are to-day seeking, by means fair and unfair, to take again the reins of power, and behind whom Mr. Hyman takes rank. The Advertiser considered it a point in his favor that he dared to come out and oppose an N. P. candidate. To say nothing more upon that point just now, we ask our readers to notice the sentiments expressed in this column by several prominent manufacturers.

The Furniture Trade.

In conversation with a member of the firm of John Ferguson & Sons, a day or two ago, a representative of this paper asked:—

"Has the introduction of the National Policy had any effect on your business?"

"Yes," was the reply made; "it has shut out the cheap goods from the other side with which we had formerly to compete."

"As the result of shutting out the

have you been enabled to enlarge your business?"

"Yes; it has enabled us to manufacture more stuff and to sell in Canada where these fellows sold before."

"Do you employ a greater number of hands?"

"Machinery," said Mr. Ferguson, "has made a great difference in the number of hands required; but we employ quite as many, and turn out a great deal more stuff."

"Have you been able to give these men steady employment?"

"Yes; we have been able to run straight along."

"Were there considerable quantities of American stuff brought into Canada prior to 1879?"

"Yes; a great deal. A very large number of frames used to be but now they are made in Canada. The same is true of chairs. We are making a fine line of cane chairs which we used to buy in Rochester or Buffalo. This applies also to perforated chairs, which were never made here before."

SENT IN FROM THE STATES,

"If the tariff were to be reduced to the old rate, what effect would it have on you?"

"It would swamp us," said Mr. Ferguson decisively.

"Has the Policy been directly beneficial to the undertaking branch of your business?" queried the FREE PRESS man.

"Yes; the manufacturing of burial caskets and coffin hardware has got to be in Canada since the introduction of the National Policy. We bought a very large quantity of goods of this class in the United States before 1878, but now we buy everything in that line in Canada."

"Does that industry give employment to many hands?"

"Yes; a very large number at Ridgetown, Toronto and other places."

A SAMPLE

Of the Miserable Arguments against Mr. Carling.

In bringing forward a man like Mr. Hyman to sustain the Grit cause in this city, the Advertiser finds it very hard to give its readers any reasons for forsaking a long tried and trusty public servant like Mr. Carling and taking up with a new man, having no claim on even the party which he seeks to represent, and who is opposed to the progressive policy which has made Canada a prosperous country. It accordingly gives a prominent place in its columns to a communication, in which this remarkable paragraph occurs:—

"It was a splendid thing for London West when Mr. Carling built the Water-works dam to destroy $200,000 worth of property, to desolate the homes of hundreds of hard-working people, that he might have the pleasure of a little boating on the river."

This is a fair sample of the reasons which are urged for the defeat of Mr. Carling, and it, of course, finds acceptance with our contemporary. The Advertiser persistently opposed the construction of the water-works, as well as the L., H. & B. Railway, in the promotion of both of which Mr. Carling took a prominent part. It also opposed the Military School. Nevertheless the water works system is distributing pure water all over this city, the L, H. & B Railway is pouring commercial benefits into London, and the Military School proudly overlooks our beautiful Forest City. The Advertiser has opposed everything which has been of real good to the city. It is so now; but on the 22nd of next month it will be found that the good sense of the people still prevails, and the gentleman whom it so malignantly opposes will be again the representative of London by a most substantial majority.

EAST MIDDLESEX NOMINATIONS.

A Rousing Convention of Liberal-Conservative Delegates.

Mr. Joseph H. Marshall, of London Township, Nominated on the Seventh Ballot—A Farmer Chosen as Candidate.

The East Middlesex Conservative Convention, for the purpose of selecting a candidate to contest the Riding at the coming election, was held in pursuance to agreement in the Masonic Temple on Saturday afternoon. At the opening of the meeting the banqueting hall was crowded to suffocation by as fine a gathering of representative farmers as ever gathered on any similar occasion in this city. The delegates present were:—

LONDON TOWNSHIP—John Newton, W J Fuller, Wm Routledge, Duncan Barclay, Wm Ardiel, John Abry, Wm Walker, A C Hughes, Geo Bean, W G Noyes, Thos Flynn, W H K Talbot, Wm Grey, S F Glass, Alex Wade, Wm Walker, Geo Brett, Geo Owens, Jas Shoebottom, Jas Fitzgerald, E Dunn, Jas Elliott, Benj Walden, Thos Langford, Jas Peters and W Fraleigh.

WEST NISSOURI—John F Pannell, Robt Stinson, Jas Cunningham, Henry Belton, Wm Mahon, S Pardy, Wm Lee, John Johnston, Henry Hudson, Sanders Hardy, Richard Hobbs, Richard Gleeson, W Elgie, Joseph Faircloth, Robert Stenett and Peter Smith.

NORTH DORCHESTER—David Wilson, Jas Crockett, W H Chittick, Samuel McMurray, J H Rowse, John Choate, A Rowat, Hugh McLean, H Jackson, Wesley Orr, Henry Finch, W Barr, Jas Smith, Thos Lane, Alex Flemming and J Longfield

SOUTH DORCHESTER—Andrew Cline, J E Martin, Duncan Douglas, J M O'Neil, E Martin, J Sampson, J Learn, P J Putnam, D F Moore, E V Learn, John Charlton and David Sneirk.

SPRINGFIELD—H L Dance and J Lister.

LONDON EAST—Allen Swanwick, Geo Carruthers, R Binney, Geo Childs, C McRae, Peter Toll, H Keays, John Hayman, Thos Duff, R Smith, J E Showler, H Merritt.

LONDON WEST—Thos Davidson, sen, John Peters, Edward Elliott, John Kelly, J H Lings, D G Kennedy.

Only one delegate was present from Springfield, but the delegates by unanimous vote permitted him to cast the two votes to which the village was entitled. It will thus be seen that the full vote was represented in the Convention, making a total of ninety.

Mr. Richard Tooley, M P P., was elected Chairman, and in opening the meeting said he would be willing to take off his coat and work for the man who might be chosen by the Convention.

It was decided in the event of a tie, the Chairman should decide between the parties by the means of a draw.

Nominations were then received as follows:—Joseph H. Marshall, Duncan Macmillan, John Taylor, W W Fitzgerald, Abel Steele, Peter Elson, Thomas E. Robson, Col. Peters, James Gilmour, J M O'Neil, Richard Whetter and A B Powell.

The candidates were allowed five minutes each in which to speak.

Joseph H. Marshall was before the Convention as a candidate, nevertheless whoever was chosen by a majority of the delegates would receive his most hearty support (cheers). He hoped his youthfulness would not be a substantial objection against him.

Duncan Macmillan appeared once more as a candidate. As far as his position as a Conservative was concerned there could be no doubt. He had supported Sir John A. Macdonald, and asked that his record in the past should be taken as a guarantee for his conduct in the future. He had passed through a severe contest with Mr. Armstrong, again with Mr Glass, and on the last occasion with Mr. Langford. The result in all these contests was well known. He desired that whoever should receive the nomination should be pledged to give a loyal support to the administration of the day. (Cheers.) Many important questions would come up during the next term, and it was necessary that the Premier should have loyal men about him to strengthen his hands. He wished it understood that if he did not receive one vote from this Convention, he would work as heartily for the nominee as if he received an overwhelming majority. (Great cheering.)

John Taylor desired to have Conservative votes and not Reform. He had no objection to Mr. Macmillan being a candidate, but there was just as much right for a new man to seek candidature as for an old one to ask a continuation of confidence. He had fought for twenty years in the ranks, and it was now his ambition to be promoted to the leadership. He had helped Mr. Macmillan to win the hard fights of the past, and so had Mr. Fitzgerald and Mr. Marshall. He would, of course, support Sir John A. Macdonald. He intended to join in the fight to elect the choice of the Convention, no matter who he might be.

W. W. Fitzgerald entertained the same sentiments as Mr. Taylor. The delegates all knew that his services had always been cheerfully and promptly given to the Conservative party in the past. He would continue to do so now. He saw no reasons for forsaking the grand old party, led by Sir John A. Macdonald. He had assisted Mr. Macmillan in the past, and he hoped his claim for personal consideration would not now be overlooked. They all knew his record, and his sympathies with the course taken by the administration of the day. He was not so crazy as to think of running as an independent candidate in case he should not receive the nomination of the convention. (Hear, hear.)

Abel Steele could not speak like his legal predecessors, nor did he expect to receive a nomination at the hands of the Convention. He was an agriculturist, and found it enough to mind his own business. He came forward to do honor to the grand old Chieftain who still stood at the helm of the ship of state. He spoke briefly of the rebellion, and said he would be pleased to assist towards the election of whoever might receive the nomination.

Peter Elson expressed his gratitude for the nomination accorded him, and said he deemed it a privilege to address such a large and representative gathering. They had just passed through a glorious contest, and he believed another victory lay before the old Conservative party in East Middlesex. He spoke briefly on the points of difference between the two great parties, and in retiring said he would stand the Convention and abide by the result.

Thomas Robson was confident that victory lay before the Conservative party in East Middlesex, and he believed a similarly favorable result would be achieved throughout the country. He spoke of the C. P. R., and then said that he would leave his name before the Convention. He would do his best if chosen, but if rejected would use every legitimate means to elect the nominee of the Convention.

Colonel Peters, in a neat speech of half a dozen sentences, declined the nomination.

James Gilmour had been asked to stand before the Convention, and he had acceded to the wishes of his friends, but he felt that the position should seek the man and not the man seek the position. He would throw himself vigorously into the fight if selected, and then if elected by the people he would support the administration of Sir John A. Macdonald. He agreed with the previous speakers in the conclusion to heartily support whoever might be chosen by the Convention to contest the Riding (Cheers).

J. M. O'Neil was not a candidate at this time, and would therefore retire.

R. Whetter felt highly honored by the nomination tendered him, and intended to allow his name to go before the Convention. If chosen they all knew what his political convictions were, and what course he should take if elected.

A. B. Powell had come from a stock that need not be ashamed of its record in the cause of Conservatism (applause). This was a critical time in the history of this Dominion, and it was necessary that loyal and true men should be returned to support Sir John A Macdonald. He contrasted the regime of Mr. Mackenzie with that of Sir John, and pointed to the enviable position we now occupied among the nations of the earth. His personal hopes lay in the future, but for the present contest he retired.

The hall was then cleared of everyone except the ninety delegates and balloting was promptly begun. Col. Peters, Mr. R. M. McElheran and Mr. W. Lee, acting as scrutineers. The very best feeling prevailed and before the first ballot was counted every delegate on a standing vote pledged himself to support the choice of the convention. There were eight names to vote upon, and it was agreed to drop the lowest out on each ballot. On the seventh ballot Mr. Joseph H. Marshall received the nomination by a majority of eight votes over Mr Macmillan.

Mr. Marshall and others addressed the convention a few minutes later amid great cheering.

The Grits of West Bruce think of providing a safe place for E. Blake, Esq., in view of his defeat in West Durham by Mr Blackstock, and will accord him the nomination at Kincardine to-morrow. Mr. Blake's head is level in looking after No. 1. The Midlanders don't want a Rielite to represent them any longer.

Pure Goods at the Front Door.

CLEVELAND'S SUPERIOR BAKING POWDER, now being introduced in Canada, has been before the public fifteen years, and wherever introduced during that time has, on account of its purity and great merit, superseded very largely all other similar preparations for producing delicious, light and healthful bread material. Hence the great anxiety and fear evidenced by manufacturers of other baking powders when they learn that CLEVELAND'S BAKING POWDER is working its way into a new locality.

The manufacturers of CLEVELAND'S SUPERIOR BAKING POWDER, recognizing the fact that the public have a right to know what they are using as food, have for many years published their formula, which has been confirmed by analyses made by the Government chemists, State chemists and leading scientists of various States, showing that their Baking Powder contains only purest grape cream of tartar, bicarbonate of soda and a little wheat flour, the latter to preserve the strength of the powder, and that it does not contain ammonia, alum, lime, or any adulteration whatever. The public thus has not only the assurance that CLEVELAND'S SUPERIOR BAKING POWDER is "absolutely pure," but also a knowledge of all the ingredients that enter into its manufacture. This latter information is too often withheld by other baking powder companies.

The scurrilous advertisements of rival manufacturers will not deter the citizens of Canada from giving an article so flatteringly recommended as CLEVELAND'S SUPERIOR BAKING POWDER the trial which its merits so justly deserve.

RAGE OF THE "HEATHEN."

The return of Sir Charles Tupper to the ranks of the Government has been the occasion of a new outburst of rage on the part of the Opposition. They know his force and dread the exercise of it. They have had a taste of his quality before, and nothing that could have transpired could have given them more disquietude. That Sir John has recalled Sir Charles to his assistance is but to say that he recognizes in him those excellent qualities that have been acknowledged throughout the Dominion, and which have caused the ex-High Commissioner to be reckoned as amongst the most useful public men of the day. And just in proportion that his return to the Cabinet is altogether in the interests of the country, so is it obnoxious to those who are never thinking of it, but always of themselves. How to get the office — that is the sum total of their desire. It has been in order to reach—as they have supposed—that much desired haven that they have traduced and maligned every public man that has happened to stand between them and the object that they had in view. It has been for this that they have falsified almost every public document, so as to convey to the minds of the public an incorrect estimate of the condition of affairs. It has been for this that they have upheld the rebellion that Riel set afoot, and have attempted to show that all the blame lay with the Government, and that Riel himself was a much injured person, deserving a statue to his memory, to be erected on the banks of the Saskatchewan. It was for this that one of their most trusted leaders has said, and repeated, that had he been on the banks of the Saskatchewan at the time he would have taken up his musket, "and used it, too," standing "shoulder to shoulder" with the miscreant Riel. It has been for this that they have poured out all the vials of uncharitableness upon the head of Sir John Macdonald, and have prophesied his long hoped-for demise with satanic exultation. It was for this that they opposed the construction of the Canadian Pacific Railway. That they opposed the National Policy. That they opposed the Franchise Act, which will admit more than 200,000 new voters to the exercise of the franchise, and so make the popular will more fully understood and more readily enforced. It is not matter for wonderment, then, that the re-entry of Sir Charles to the ranks of the Government, should call forth a renewed storm-agony of insult. It was but to be expected. But the country at large will be able to recognise in the step that has been taken not only the wisdom of Sir John but the willingness of Sir Charles to work for Canada in any way and at any time that his services seemed to be most useful. And that is just how the matter stands. All parties are pleased at the event except the Grits, and they are displeased because they know that Sir Charles is able and ready to give blow for blow in a manner that generally leaves them in a sorry plight. It is well known in the House that Mr. Blake, who may be fitly described as a parliamentary bully, fairly shakes in his shoes when the coming member for Cumberland takes him in hand. And that he will take him in hand—if he does not behave himself—there is no doubt of. There are a hundred grounds on which the once-supposed immaculate Mr. Blake is open to serious attack. He is excessively vulnerable as a public man, and no one on the floor of parliament is better able to expose his hypocrisies than is Sir Charles. He, at least, is not to be imposed upon by the mere pretences of purity, and can, if need be, set forth the political conduct of Mr. Blake in a manner so critical and caustic as will let the people understand by what arts and artifices the "honest Edward" has so long imposed upon their marvellous credulity. All this the Opposition know full well; all this they are afraid of. And it is in consequence of their rage in finding that the Government has been strengthened by the re-introduction of one of Sir Charles' determination and calibre that they are fairly mad with rage and crazed with well grounded apprehension.

PRINCIPLE AND INTEREST.

The Montreal Star puts the matter fairly, as follows:—

"Mr. Blake never renounced his free trade views. He has never taken back a single word he has said against the National Policy tariff. He has not become a convert to protection. Yet he is now most solicitous to convince the electors that if he is successful in the present contest he will make no material change in the trade policy which he still believes to be vicious in principle, and the establishment of which he strenuously opposed."

How long Mr. Blake could retain that which he disbelieves in, after he had been given power to destroy it, can be readily imagined. He has stated that he would apply the pruning knife to the National Policy unsparingly in certain directions yet would not "materially change it." But inasmuch as he fought strenuously against its introduction, and has since for seven or eight years gone up and down the country denouncing it as a curse to the country, how can he be trusted in regard to it? For the sake of office he would profess to tolerate, but would make use of office to mutilate or destroy it at the first opportunity.

The Aylmer Canning and Evaporating Factory has been an important industry for the district, under its present management. The goods have been successfully marketed in all parts of Canada, a large proportion of them being sent to the North-west. A meeting of shareholders is called, to determine the future basis upon which the business shall be carried on.

SIR JOHN A. MACDONALD AND THE FISHERY DISPUTE.

The late outburst against Canada in the American Senate over the fishery question may be regarded as a palpable step toward the conclusion so long looked for and desired in this country. The twisting of the lion's tail in bellicose speeches is to be taken rather in an opera bouffe sense than as indicative of the real feelings of sensible Americans. The threatened retaliation need have but few terrors for this country, therefore. The resolution of Senator Edmunds was predicated on the theory that outrages have been committed by our cruisers upon American vessels. If these could be established, Congress would not be backward in demanding positive reparation on its own account. All it does, however, is to surrender its prerogative to the President to be put in force at his personal discretion in some contingency that has not yet presented itself.

American party politics have doubtless a large share in the Senatorial buncombe. No one ought to be better aware than Senators Edmunds and Ingalls that the policy of non-intercourse which they recommend would be as hurtful to the United States as to Canada. An average of 400 cars per day pass through the western peninsula of Ontario, from one part of the United States to another. Who would be injured most by an American embargo upon them? We send into the United States $40,000,000 worth of goods per annum, and we take from thence $50,000,000. How would United States merchants be advantaged by the transference of this trade to Great Britain, which would inevitably ensue?

The strong position which Canada holds in this controversy is what gives the peculiar edge to the weapon which these worthy Senators are wielding, and wielding not against Canada alone, but against the Democratic party represented by Mr. Grover Cleveland. The President is too wary a politician, however, to become a catspaw in this embroglio. An embargo against our fish would irritate consumers all over the Union, the exclusion of our lumber would disarrange the best calculations of operators, and fill with chagrin the powerful party that has been agitating for free lumber from Canada. Restriction of general trade would be ruinous to thousands of U.S. merchants, and everywhere would arise a bitter cry against the party that had forced these losses and disabilities, all of which might be well for the Republican party, but not so well for the party which put Mr. Cleveland in power.

But the breeze in the Senate has done this much for the question: it has called the attention of all reasonable men most sharply to the necessity of coming to a clearer understanding about the fisheries. The great American people have been taught how perilous the situation may at any time become when made the shuttlecock of party firebrands. They must see with some sense of shame the quibbling pettiness that has marked this question hitherto, and which brings out in strong contrast the dignified, consistent course followed by the Canadian Government throughout.

The case as presented by Sir John Macdonald to the correspondent of the New York Herald, as reprinted in the FREE PRESS of Friday last, places Canada in so superior and magnanimous a light, that the American people must see that any other contention is but farcically dogmatic, and the reverse of the true spirit which should characterize a great people, or mark the intercourse of neighboring and friendly nations.

Canada stands by the Treaty of 1818. As to the fishing rights in Canadian waters, the language of the Treaty is clear. The first article stipulates that the fishermen of the United States shall have the right to take fish of every kind in certain defined waters, and continues: "And, also, "are permitted to enter any other bays or "harbors for the purpose of shelter and of "repairing damages therein, or purchasing "wood and of obtaining water, and for "no other purpose whatever, subject to such "restrictions as may be necessary to pre-"vent their taking, drying or curing fish "therein, or in any other manner whatever "abusing the privileges reserved to them "as above expressed."

This Treaty was framed by the representatives of Great Britain and United States in 1818. As Sir John points out, the Dominion Government has stood on the provisions of the Treaty, and it has endeavored to carry them out in harmony with justice and fairness. When the Treaty of Washington expired Canada endeavored to renew it or secure another by adopting conciliatory measures. The Government at Washington asked that the terms of the Treaty be renewed for six months—that is, when the former Treaty expired, on the 1st or June of 1885. It was held out that the Government would endeavor to create a new Treaty by joining Canada in the establishment of a Commission to consider the subject of the fisheries.

The President and Secretary of the United States did their parts, but the Senate refused assent to the Commission. Canada had given the Americans a whole season's fishing in the summer and autumn of 1885. But the refusal to negotiate new terms threw the whole question back upon the Treaty of 1818, which Canada stands by both in the letter and spirit, but which the Maine fishermen have attempted to violate. They have not only visited the bays and inlets to catch fish, but insist on receiving our bait, ice, and all the supplies which they find necessary, and in addition the privilege of shipping their fresh fish at Canadian ports over the Intercolonial railway to American markets. All this is contrary not only to the spirit but the express terms of the Treaty of 1818.

To concede such freedom of intercourse without due compensation would be a surrender of Canadian rights which no one will be found to justify. On the contrary, the country from one end to the other will unite to uphold the position taken by the Canadian Government, satisfied that in a brief time the American people will awaken to a right sense of what is due to themselves as well as what is just and fair as between nations.

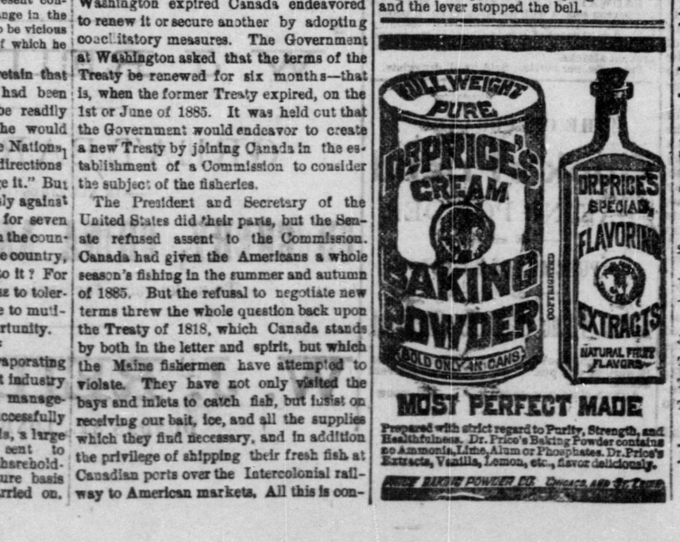
The "war" bombast over this question from Senator Ingalls is the height of absurdity. It is not with a population of five million souls only, with a sea line of three thousand miles to defend, that the United States would have to deal in such case. It is Great Britain with all her naval and military resources. To fortify their coast cities for the eventualities of war, would cost about $150,000,000. To create a navy creditable to the occasion would call for $50,000,000 more. To settle the whole question amicably and quietly might cost them a few concessions of neighborly privilege and a few millions of dollars. Which horn of the dilemma they will eventually take remains to be seen, but it is not hard to imagine.

REPUDIATING HIMSELF.

M. C. Cameron, the Huron Ananias, has repudiated his own speeches as reported in Hansard. Mr. Robt. Porter, his opponent, at a late meeting confuted him out of his own mouth in regard to the Indian question, when Mr. Cameron denied that he ever used the words reported on page 756 of the Parliamentary record. But his denial is of no use. It is of a piece with all of his misrepresentations, which have been so successfully exposed. The official shorthand reporters could have had no object in misrepresenting the member for West Huron; and if they did so by any accident he had the opportunity of correcting it in the proof sheets. No other member save Ananias Cameron, none but the most hardened and barefaced falsifier, would dare to repudiate the official report of his own speeches in Parliament, after they had passed his own revision. That M. C. Cameron has done so, shows the stamp of legislator he is most clearly. Yet this is the man from whom Mr. Blake has taken the raw material for many of his own public addresses. When Mr. Blake was taxed with its glaring inaccuracy he excused himself by saying that he was not accountable for the correctness of his facts. He gave them just as he received them from Mr. Cameron, and he neither had the time nor inclination to ascertain whether they were true or false. Truly, a humiliating position for a public man, and the leader of a great party. Were Mr. Blake in power to-morrow, this same Mr. Cameron would be viceroy over him. The people can thus see the stamp of men who would be in charge of affairs under a Grit regime. How can they put any trust in a man who will go back on his own public record and falsify all public records, as M. C. Cameron has done?

CURRENT TOPICS.

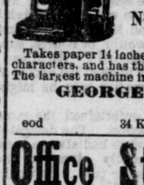
In 1882 the Grits were very much opposed to the N.P. Among their campaign songs at that time was the following gem of poesy:—



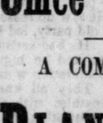
"Flags flying, people crying
Hip, hip hurrah!
We'll banish the accursed N.P.

"And then on Canadian soil
Let Free Trade's banner wave,
And Edward Blake as Admiral
Will marshall all the brave."

The gentlemen of the "Free Trade banner" will not get a chance to "banish the accursed N.P." this time. On that point the people remain of the same mind as in 1878 and 1882.



A Frenchman calling himself "L'Homme Protee," or the protean man, is giving exhibitions of himself in France. He can, it is said, become as rigid as a statue, and when struck in this condition the blows fall on him as on a block of stone. He can assume the rotundity of the proverbial alderman, and it is stated that he can make himself appear as lean as a skeleton. The Medical Abstract says he was examined by M. de Quatrefages, who was astonished at his ability to stop the flow of blood either on the right or the left side of the body.



On Race Point, Cape Cod, there used to be a big bell with clock work that would mournfully toll it whenever it was set going. The bell was under cover, but projecting from the house was a long, nicely-balanced lever, with a big sponge on the outer end. There was a little roof over the sponge to keep the rain off, but when a fog came on the moisture would saturate the sponge, and the weight bearing the lever down would start the machine and set the bell to tolling. If the fog soon disappeared the sponge dried out and the lever stopped the bell.

JOHN GARVEY'S,

No. 156 Dundas street

CARTWRIGHT AT STRATHROY.

He Tells the People that the Country is Ruined.

D. M. Cameron Doesn't Like Criticism, But He Claims to Possess a Large Influence with the G.T.R.—Geo. W. Ross on Independence in Politics—He Tells the Conservatives they Can Keep Sir John in Power if they Will.

Mayor Murdoch presided at the meeting in the Albert Hall, Strathroy, on Saturday evening, which was called for the purpose of giving Sir Richard Cartwright and some of the local Grits an opportunity of addressing the people.

After the chairman had warned D. M. Cameron, M.P., in emphatic and unflattering terms not to fall into his usual fault of talking too much and too long, the proceedings were commenced by Mr. Cameron standing up and unbosoming himself. He claimed full credit for looking after the railway interests of the town, and produced letters from Messrs. Broughton and Hickson to prove his case. He assumed that it was a desperate thing that public men should be misrepresented and maligned as he said he had been; that it discouraged those who had the best interests of their community at heart, and if continued would result in driving all decent men out of public life. Mr. Cameron appeared to think that the new station which the Grand Trunk had promised Strathroy was built more on account of D. M. Cameron than on account of the town, and plumed himself on obtaining it to an unreasonable degree. He also kindly promised not to go back on Strathroy. In fact, he cut Micawbered Mr. Micawber of happy memory. After speaking of Sir Richard Cartwright as a leading and trusted exponent of Liberal principles and the mainstay of Mr. Blake, he sat down amidst profuse sighs of relief from his hearers.

Sir Richard Cartwright on coming forward was received with applause. He promised not to say one-half as much against their Conservative opponents now behind their backs as he had said to their faces in the House, and to say nothing here that he had not already said there. He referred to four charges against the Mackenzie Government, viz., of extravagance, deficits, neglect of the farmers' interests and the industrial interests of the country. He had held at the time that in the return of Sir John Macdonald the people from one end of the Dominion to the other would declare their indifference to the character of their public men, and let loose the evils of extravagance and corruption far reaching and unequalled in the land. Sir Richard then endeavored to demonstrate how true had been his prophecy. The usual highly-spiced Grit bill-of-fare for which Sir Richard has an unrivalled reputation as a caterer was served up "hot and hot." Imbecility, extravagance, depth of corruption, the guardians of the public interest robbing their country and betraying the trust reposed in them, were the stock terms of his harangue, and appeared at intervals in his speech like plums in a cake. He talked of the increasing debt as a menace to the country; he claimed that the liabilities of the Dominion to-day were 235 millions, and afterwards in speaking of corruption he estimated the Intercolonial Railway as standing the Dominion in forty millions, and the endowment of the C. P. R. as one hundred millions, which would make a considerable hole in the figures of Sir Richard. Speaking in West Middlesex before the election of 1878 he said he told the people of this riding that in reposing their confidence in Sir John Macdonald, instead of Mr. Mackenzie, they would establish a force that would lower the morality of the country; but he could not have believed until the papers of the House revealed it that such a revel of corruption could exist; that the people could have been so hoodwinked. It was not so easy to watch the doings in Ottawa as it was in Toronto, so much closer, and this was the way he accounted for the purity of Mr. Mowat, whose Government was above suspicion, while the corruption of Ottawa, where the representatives were elected by substantially the same electors, found no parallel in an English Parliament of any kind since the days of the Stewarts, or at latest since the days of Sir Robert Walpole. More than one-half of the Conservative members of the Parliament of this country, he claimed, had become by various ways the bond slaves of the Government, instead of the guardians of the public wealth. He went on to accuse the Conservative press of being corrupt, and said that not one immigrant in twenty coming to this country remained here. The country was in a bad way, according to Sir Richard, and not even the return of the incorruptible patriots represented by Mr. Blake and himself could put it right for many years to come. The greatest boon they could give the overtaxed and oppressed Canadian people would be the sweeping away of every custom house along the borders, but if they were returned he did not see that they could afford to take the taxes off any single article consumed by Canadians. If the scheme of imperial federation ever took practical shape Canada would be debarred from entering in, as she could not offer anything in return for the advantages to be conferred on her, and could not raise her quota towards the support of the army and navy, without which the scheme would be nothing but empty wind. Ontario paid two-thirds of the Dominion expenditure, and at the present rate the people of West Middlesex would have paid $3,000,000 in ten years, enough to build a good house for every single individual in the Riding or to secure him an insurance policy for $2,500. It used to be a standing joke on Sir John Macdonald when Minister of the Interior that he did not read the reports of his department, but the people had one day to pay five or six million dollars for this jest. On this point Sir Richard Cartwright said—Your representative and myself voted on different sides on the justice of the sentence and execution of Louis Riel. We appeared to disagree there, and I, although I was willing to show all mercy and clemency to the Metis, still when I came to consider all the danger that menaced our frontier on the occasion of that rebellion; looking at the horrors of an Indian war such as Riel strove to excite; the jeopardy of the lives of tens of thousands of innocent men and women which such an uprising would cause, and the bloodshed and hardship already incurred, I voted for the justice of the execution (cheers). But I took care to state on that occasion, as I have stated on every occasion where I have discussed the question since, that of the three principals in that rebellion—Sir John Macdonald, Sir David Macpherson and Louis Riel—I hold Louis Riel infinitely the least guilty of the three (cheers). The pair of respectable criminals far more richly deserved the doom than the poor unfortunate to whom it was meted out, and their share in the rebellion should have restrained them from allowing the extreme penalty to be meted out to the less guilty Louis Riel (cheers and hisses).

The party had won many moral victories in the past (laughter), but their victories of late had been more substantial—Mowat and Mercier were victorious, and if Mr. Blake won even a portion of the increase he expected, it would not take him long to scatter a Government held together by corruption which could not bear the light of day. He concluded by bespeaking the support of the people for Donald Cameron, who was hard beset by his foes.

Hon. G. W. Ross felt glad for the honor of his old town that Sir Richard had received such a warm reception. They were under a debt of gratitude to Sir Richard. He expressed his feeling that the contest this time was not going to be such a hard one as some that have gone before. He had taken part in five contests here altogether, and assured them that never had he felt the issues so momentous as in this election. If the Conservatives wanted the present state of things to continue they could keep Sir John Macdonald in power, but Confederation would be crushed under the weight of debt and taxation. He read the other day that the debt of Canada increased at the rate of $75 per minute. They had been in this hall about two hours, and in that time the debt of our country had increased $7,000 (laughter.) Mr. Ross expressed his disgust with those Tories who could not change their minds, as he expressed it, doubtless meaning those who did not believe his arguments, and waver in their allegiance at his bidding. He concluded by calling on his friends to transfer their allegiance to D. M. Cameron, and vote for him in a contest on which the future, the very existence of the country depended. He expressed his personal willingness to take a shillelah, and whenever he saw a Tory head sticking out, to hit it.

The meeting concluded with cheers for Sir Richard Cartwright and D. M. Cameron.

The Cree Indians Starving.

Fort Keogh, Mont., Jan. 29.—The condition of the British Cree Indians on Sun River is said to be alarming. A band numbering fifty, cooped up into the mountains by snow, has ten starved ponies, little clothing, neither food nor arms, and are starving to death. Citizens have helped all they could and Gov. Hauser has telegraphed to Washington asking the immediate attention of the Interior Department.

It Raised a Laugh.

Washington, Jan. 29.—In the House today Mr. Steele, of Indiana, attempted to call up for consideration a Bill for reorganization of the army, suggesting that as war had been declared it was important that action should be taken on that measure. The suggestion raised a laugh, but the House declined to take up the Bill.

YOUNG MEN suffering from the effects of early evil habits, the result of ignorance and folly, who find themselves weak, nervous and exhausted; also MIDDLE-AGED and OLD MEN who are broken down from the effects of abuse or over-work, and in advanced life feel the consequences of youthful excess, send for and READ M. V. Lubon's Treatise on Diseases of Men. The book will be sent sealed to any address on receipt of two 3c. stamps. Address M. V. Lubon, 47 Wellington St. East, Toronto, Ont. †

We sympathise deeply with Mr. R. W. Jackson, the Grit candidate for East Middlesex, for the heartsick feeling which must have stolen over him when President McDonald, of the Reform Association, announced to him on Saturday evening that the Tories had nominated a farmer instead of a lawyer. Mr. Jackson knows now how it feels to have a stranger come up and tie a horse to his neck, or wipe his feet on his cravat.

FITS:—All Fits stopped free by Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. No Fits after first day's use. Marvelous cures. Treatise and $2 00 trial bottle free to Fit cases. Send to Dr. Kline, 931 Arch St., Phila., Pa. L7eod&w-ly

Possibly the "great mind" of the 'Tizer may not be pleased at the reproduction of the following except from the Hamilton Spectator, but it is given all the same:—"Mr. Hyman is the Reform candidate in London. The Advertiser, in cataloguing his qualifications for the position of Member of Parliament, says "he has a bathroom in his house" he "occasionally brushes his teeth," and further that "once in a while he changes his shirt." Are we to understand that such possessions and qualifications give the Grit candidate unusual prominence and respectability, or must we suppose that the Advertiser is apologizing for Mr. Hyman's weaknesses?"

SHOT IN THE LEG.—On Friday night a young man named Alex. Douglass is alleged to have been shot by a bully named Hilton at a house in Westminister occupied by a woman named Shrimpton. From what has leaked out it seems that Douglass was invited to stay in the house by one of the women and Hilton on visiting the place found him in one of the rooms and commenced to fire at him. Out of three shots, only one took effect, and that in the leg, below the knee. No arrests have been made so far as can be learned.

The crop expectations of South Australia will not be realized.

The Daily Paper.

From the Boston Journal.

No matter how the world may fret,
How out of tune mankind may get,
How badness falls and prices double—
A panacea for all trouble,
Like nothing else which he can find,
Man has to rest and calm his mind—
When he gets his daily paper.

There's nothing in the scope of life—
A ruined steak—a scolding wife—
A foolish quarrel with his neighbor—
A mob of striking Knights of Labor—
It matters not how ill he fares,
He soon forgets all mundane cares
When he gets his daily paper.

A man may be by circumstances
Robbed of his rightful hope and chances
To get a thorough education,
And fit himself to serve his nation;
Yet if he has a willing mind,
A faithful teacher he will find
When he gets his daily paper.

With deep, prophetic love, let fall
From printer's type that holds it all,
Wisdom's analyzing light is brought
On the unsearched crypt of human thought,
Illuming with its searching ray
The mysteries of yesterday,
When he gets his daily paper.

These messengers, at random sent,
Shall shape a mighty continent—
Shall wield a power for boon or blight:
And he who guides should guide aright
The flashing thought that onward speeds
To farthest bound of human needs,
In the daily printed paper.

BELLA WALDRON.

THE VEILED WOMAN.

A TALE OF ABSORBING INTEREST.

"There," he said, "I must go. You have the chest, and my will will be found among my papers, under the authority of which the child will be handed over to you. You will be well paid, Holy, and I know that you are honest; but if you betray my trust, by Heaven I will haunt you!"

I said nothing, being indeed too bewildered to speak.

He held up the candle, and looked at his own face in the glass. It had been a beautiful face, but disease had wrecked it. "Food for the worms," he said. "Curious to think that in a few hours I shall be stiff and cold—the journey done, the little game played out. All one, Holly! life is not worth the trouble of living, except when one is in love—at least mine has not been; but the boy Leo's may be if he has the courage and the faith. Good-bye, my friend!" and with a sudden access of tenderness he flung his arm about me and kissed me on the forehead, and then turned to go.

"Look here, Vincey," I said, "if you are as ill as you think, you had better let me fetch a doctor."

"No, no," he said earnestly. "Promise me that you won't. I am going to die, and, like a poisoned rat, I wish to die alone."

"I don't believe that you are going to do anything of the sort," I answered. He smiled, and with the word "Remember" on his lips, was gone. As for myself, I sat down and rubbed my eyes, wondering if I had been asleep. As the supposition would not bear investigation, I gave it up, and began to think that Vincey must have been drinking. I knew that he sometimes had been, very ill, but still it seemed impossible that he could be in such a condition as to be able to know for certain that he would not survive the night. Had he been so near dissolution, surely he would scarcely have been able to walk and carry a heavy iron box with him. The whole story, on reflection, seemed to me utterly incredible, for I was not then old enough to be aware how many things happen in this world that the common sense of the average man would set down as so improbable as to be absolutely impossible. This is a fact that I have only recently mastered. Was I likely that a man would have a son five years of age whom he had never seen since he was a tiny infant? No. Was it likely that he could foretell his own death so accurately? No. Was it likely that he would trace his pedigree more than three centuries before Christ, or that he would suddenly confide the absolute guardianship of his child, and leave half his fortune, to a college friend? Most certainly not. Clearly, Vincey was either drunk or mad. That being so, what did it mean? and what was in the sealed iron chest?

The whole thing baffled and puzzled me to such an extent that at last I could stand it no longer, and determined to sleep over it. So I jumped up, and having put the keys and the letter that Vincey had left away into my dispatch-box, and stowed the iron chest in a large portmanteau, I turned in, and was soon fast asleep.

As it seemed to me, I had only been asleep for a few minutes when I was awakened by somebody calling me. I sat up and rubbed my eyes; it was broad daylight—eight o'clock, in fact.

"Why, what is the matter with you, John?" I asked of the gyp who waited on Vincey and myself; "you look as though you had seen a ghost."

"Yes, sir, and so I have," he answered; "leastways I've seen a corpse, which is worse, I've been in to call Mr. Vincey, as usual, and there he lies stark and dead!"

II.

THE YEARS ROLL BY.

Of course poor Vincey's sudden death created a great stir in the college; but as he was known to be very ill, and a satisfactory doctor's certificate was forthcoming, there was no inquest. They were not so particular about inquests in those days as they are now; indeed, they were generally disliked, as causing a scandal. Under all these circumstances, as I was asked no questions, I did not feel called upon to volunteer any information about our interview of the night of Vincey's decease, beyond saying that he had come into my rooms to see me, as he often did. On the day of the funeral a lawyer came down from London and followed my poor friend's remains to the grave, and then went back with his papers and effects, excepting, of course, the iron chest which had been left in my keeping. For a week after this I heard no more of the matter, and, indeed my attention was amply occupied in other ways, for I was up for my Fellowship, a fact that had prevented me from attending the funeral, or seeing the lawyer. At last, however, the examination was over, and I came back to my rooms and sunk into an easy-chair with a happy consciousness that I had got through it very fairly. Soon, however, my thoughts, relieved of the pressure that had crushed them into a single groove during the last few days, turned to the events of the night of poor Vincey's death, and again I asked myself what it all meant, and wondered if I should hear anything more of the matter. And, if I did not, what it would be my duty to do with the curious iron chest. I sat there, and thought and thought till I began to grow quite disturbed over the whole occurrence; the mysterious midnight visit, the prophecy of death so shortly to be fulfilled, the solemn oath that I had taken, and which he had called on me to answer for in another world to this. Had the man committed suicide? It looked like it. And what was the quest of which he spoke. The circumstances were almost uncanny, so much so that, though I am by no means nervous, or apt to be alarmed at anything that may seem to cross the bounds of the natural, I grew afraid, and began to wish I had had nothing to do with it. How much more do I wish it now, over twenty years afterwards!

As I sat and thought there was a knock at the door, and a letter in a big blue envelope was brought to me. I saw at a glance that it was a lawyer's letter, and an instinct told me that it was connected with my trust. The letter, which I still have, runs thus:

"SIR,—Our client, the late M. L. Vincey, Esq., who died on the 9th instant in — College, Cambridge, has left behind him a will, of which you will please find a copy inclosed, and of which we are the executors. By this will you will perceive that you take a life-interest in about half of the late Mr. Vincey's property, now invested in Consols, subject to your acceptance of the guardianship of his only son, Leo Vincey, at present an infant, aged five. Had we not ourselves drawn up the document in question in obedience to Mr. Vincey's clear and precise instructions, both personal and written, and had he not then assured us that he had very good reasons for what he was doing, we are bound to tell you that its provisions seem to us of so unusual a nature that we should have felt bound to call the attention of the Court of Chancery to them, in order that such steps might be taken as seemed desirable to it, either by contesting the capacity of the testator or otherwise, to safeguard the interests of the infant. As it is, knowing that the testator was a gentleman of the highest intelligence and acumen, and that he has absolutely no relations living to whom he could have confided the guardianship of the child, we do not feel justified in taking this course.

"IS THE CHRISTIAN RELIGION A CHEAT?"

Dr. Talmage's Discourse Last Sunday Morning.

Brooklyn, Jan. 30.—At the Tabernacle this morning the Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, D.D., baptized by immersion a number of persons who preferred that mode, as on the Sunday previous, he had baptized by sprinkling those who so desired. Dr. Talmage discussed the subject: "Is the Christian Religion a Cheat?" His text was: "He made his arrows bright, he consulted with images, he looked in the liver."—Ezekiel 21: 33. The preacher said:—

Two modes of divination by which the King of Babylon proposed to find out the will of God. He took a bundle of arrows, cut them smooth, mixed them up, then pulled forth one, and by the inscription on it decided what city he should first assault. Then an animal was slain, and by the lighter or darker color of the liver, the brighter or darker prospect of success was inferred. That is the meaning of the text: "He made his arrows bright, he consulted with images, he looked in the liver."

Stupid delusion! And yet all the ages have been filled with delusions. It seems as if the world loves to be hoodwinked, the delusion of the text is only a specimen of a vast number of deceits practiced upon the human race. In the latter part of the last century, Johanna Southcote came forth pretending to have divine power, made prophecies, had chapels built in her honor, and one hundred thousand disciples came forth to follow her. About five years before the birth of Christ, Apollonius was born, and he came forth, and after five years being speechless, according to the tradition, he healed the sick and raised the dead, and preached virtue, and, according to the myth, having deceased, was brought to resurrection.

The Delphic Oracle deceived vast multitudes of people; the Pythoness seated in the Temple of Apollo uttering a crazy jargon from which the people guessed their individual or national fortunes or misfortunes. The utterances were of such a nature that you could read them any way you wanted to read them. A general, going forth to battle, consulted the Delphic Oracle, and he wanted to find out whether he was going to be safe in the battle, or killed in the battle and the answer came forth from the Delphic Oracle in such words that, if you put the comma before the word "never," it means one thing, and if you put the comma after the word "never," it means another thing just opposite. The message from the Delphic Oracle to the general was: "Go forth, return never in battle shalt thou perish." If he was killed, that was according to the Delphic Oracle; if he came home safely, that was according to the Delphic Oracle. So the ancient auguries deceived the people. The priests of those auguries, by the flight of birds, or by the intonation of thunder, or by the inside appearance of slain animals, told the fortunes or misfortunes of individuals or nations. The sibyls deceived the people. The sibyls were supposed to be inspired women who lived in caves and who wrote the sibylline books afterwards purchased by Tarquin the Proud. So late as the year 1820, a man arose in New York, pretending to be a divine being, and playing his part so well that wealthy merchants became his disciples and threw their fortunes into his discipleship. And so on in all ages, there have been necromancies, incantations, witchcrafts, sorceries, magical arts, enchantments, divinations and delusions. The one of the text was only a specimen of that which has been transpiring in all ages of the world. None of these delusions accomplished any good. They deceived, they pauperized the people, they were a curse, as they were absurd. They opened no hospitals, they healed no wounds, they wiped away no tears, they emancipated no serfdom.

But there are those who say that all these delusions combined are as nothing compared with the delusion now abroad in the world, the delusion of the Christian religion. That delusion has to-day two hundred million dupes. It proposes to encircle the earth with its girdle. That which has been called a delusion has already overshadowed the Appalachian range on this side the sea, and it has overshadowed the Balkan and Caucasian ranges on the other side the sea. It has conquered England and the United States. This champion delusion, this hoax, this swindle of the ages, as it has been called, has gone forth to conquer the Islands of the Pacific; the Melanasia and the Micronesia and Malayan Polynesia have already surrendered to the delusion. Yea, it has conquered the Indian Archipelago, and Sumatra, and Borneo, and Celebes and Java have fallen under its wiles. In the Fiji Islands, where there are 120 000 people, 102,000 have already become the dupes of this Christian religion, and at things go on as they are now going on, and if the influences of this great hallucination of the ages cannot be stopped, it will swallow the globe. Supposing, then, that Christianity is the delusion of the centuries, as some have pronounced it, I propose this morning to show you what has been accomplished by this fallacy, this hoax, this swindle of the ages.

And in the first, I remark, that this delusion of the Christian religion has made wonderful transformations of human character. I will go down the side of any church in Christendom, and I will find on either side that aisle those who were once profligate, profane, unclean of speech and unclean of action, drunken and lost. But by the power of this delusion of the Christian religion they have been completely transformed, and now they are kind and amiable and genial and loving and useful. Everybody sees the change. Under the power of this great hallucination they have quit their former associates, and, whereas they found their chief delight among those who gambled and swore and raced horses, now they find their chief joy among those who go to prayer meetings and churches; so complete is the delusion. Yea, their own families have noticed it—the wife has noticed it, the children have noticed it. The money that used to buy rum now goes for books and for clothes and for education. He is a new man. All who knew him say there has been a wonderful change. What is the cause of this change? This great hallucination of the Christian religion. There is as much difference between what he is now and what he once was, as between a rose and a nettle, as between a dove and a vulture, as between day and night. Tremendous delusion!

Admiral Farragut one of the most admired men of the American navy, early became a victim of this Christian delusion, and, converted not long before his death, at Long Branch, he was giving some friends an account of his early life. He said: "My father went down in behalf of the United States Government to put an end to Aaron Burr's rebellion. I was a cabin boy and went along with him. I could swear like an old salt; I could gamble in every style of game flung. I knew all the wickedness there was at that time abroad. One day my father cleared everybody out of the cabin except myself and locked the door. He said: 'David, what are you going to do? What are you going to be?' 'Well' I said, 'father, I am going to follow the sea.' 'Follow the sea!' and be a poor, miserable, drunken sailor, kicked and cuffed about the world and die of a fever in a foreign hospital?' 'Oh! no.' I said, 'father, I will not be that; I will tread the quarter-deck and command, as you do.' 'No, David,' my father said; 'no lawful, a person that has your principles and your bad habits will never tread the quarter-deck or command.' My father went out and shut the door after him, and I said then: 'I will change, I will never swear again, I will never drink again, I will never gamble again; and, gentlemen, by the help of God I have kept those three vows to this time. Soon after that became a Christian, and that decided my fate for time and for eternity."

Another captive of this great Christian delusion! There goes Saul of Tarsus on horseback at full gallop. Where is he going? To destroy Christians. He wants no better play-spell than to stand and watch the hats and coats of the murderers who are massacring God's children. There goes the same man. This time he is afoot. Where is he going now? Going as fast as he can to Ostia to die for Christ. They tried to whip it out of him, they tried to scare it out of him, they thought they would give him enough of it by putting him into a windowless dungeon, and keeping him on small diet, and denying him a cloak, and condemning him as a criminal, and howling at him through the street; but they could not freeze it out of him, and they could not sweat it out of him, and they could not pound it out of him, so they tried the surgery of the sword, and one summer day in 65 he was decapitated. Perhaps the mightiest intellect of the 6,000 years of the world's existence hoodwinked, cheated, enjoled, duped by the Christian religion. Ah! to at is the remarkable thing about this delusion of Christianity. It overpowers the strongest intellects. Gather the critics, secular and religious, of this century together, and put a vote to them as to which is the greatest book ever written, and by large majority they will say "Paradise Lost." Who wrote "Paradise Lost?" One of the fools who believed in this Bible, John Milton. Benjamin Franklin surrendered to this delusion. If you may judge from the letter that he wrote to Thomas Paine begging him to destroy the "Age of Reason" in manuscript, and never let it go into type, and writing afterward, in his old days: 'Of this Jesus of Nazareth I have to say that the system of morals He felt, and the religion He has given us are the best things the world has ever seen or is likely to see." Patrick Henry, the electric champion of liberty, enslaved by this delusion, so that he says: "The book worth all other books put together is the Bible." Benjamin Rush, the leading physiologist and anatomist of his day, the great medical scientist—what did he say? "The only true and perfect religion is Christianity." Isaac Newton, the leading philosopher of his time—what did he say? That man surrendering to this delusion of the Christian religion, crying out: "The sublimest philosophy on earth is the philosophy of the Gospel." David Brewster, at the pronunciation of whose name every scientific the world over bows his head, David Brewster saying:—"Of this religion has been a great light to me, a very great light all my days." President Thiers, the great French statesman, acknowledging that he prayed when he said—"I invoke the Lord God in whom I am glad to believe." David Livingstone, able to conquer the savage, yet conquered by this delusion, this hallucination, this great swindle of the ages, so when they found him dead they find him on his knees. William E. Gladstone, the strongest intellect in England to-day, unable to resist the chimera, this fallacy, this delusion of the Christian religion, goes to the house of God every Sabbath, and often, at the invitation of the rector, read the prayers to the people. O! if those mighty intellects are overborne by this delusion, what chance is there for you and for me?

Beside that, I have noticed that first-rate infidels cannot be depended on for steadfastness in the proclamation of their sentiments. Goethe, a leading skeptic, was so wrought upon by this Christianity that in a weak moment he cried out: "My belief in the Bible has saved me in my literary and moral life." Rousseau, one of the most eloquent champions of infidelity, spending his whole life warring against Christianity, cries out: "The majesty of the Scriptures amazes me." Altamont, the notorious infidel, one would think would have been safe against this delusion of the Christian religion. O, no! After talking against Christianity all his days, in his last hours he cried out: "Oh, Thou blasphemed but most indulgent Lord God, hell itself is a refuge if it hide me from Thy frown." Voltaire, the most talented infidel the world ever saw, writing two hundred and fifty publications, and the most of them spiteful against Christianity, himself the most notorious libertine of his century—one would have thought he could have been depended upon for steadfastness in the adversary of infidelity and in war against this terrible chimera, this delusion of the Gospel. But no; in his last hour he asks for Christian burial, and says that they give him the sacrament of the Lord Jesus Christ. Why, you cannot depend upon these first-rate infidels—you cannot depend upon their power to resist this great delusion of Christianity. Thomas Paine, the god of my dear people, his birthday celebrated in New York and Boston with great enthusiasm—Thomas Paine, the paragon of Bible haters—Thomas Paine, about whom his brother infidel, William Carver, wrote in a letter which I have at my house, saying that he drank a quart of rum a day, and was too mean and too dishonest to pay for it—Thomas Paine, the adored of modern infidelity—Thomas Paine, who stole another man's wife in England and brought her to this land. Thomas Paine, who was so squalid and so loathsome and so drunken and so profligate and so beastly in his habits, sometimes picked out of the ditch, sometimes too filthy to be picked out—Thomas Paine, one would have thought that he could have been depended on for steadfastness against this great delusion. But no. In his dying hour, he begs the Lord Jesus Christ for mercy.

Powerful delusion, all-conquering delusion, earthquaking delusion of the Christian religion. Yea, it goes on. It is so impertinent, and it is so overbearing, this chimera of the Gospel, that having conquered the great picture galleries of the world, the old masters and the young masters, as I showed in a former sermon, it is not satisfied until it has conquered the music of the world. Look over the programme of that magnificent musical festival a few years ago in New York and see what were the great performances, and learn that the greatest of all the subjects were religious subjects. What was it one night when three thousand voices were accompanied with a vast number of instruments? "Israel in Egypt." Ay! Beethoven deluded until he wrote the High Mass in D Major. Haydn deluded with this religion until he wrote the "Creation." Handel deluded until he wrote the oratorios of "Jepthan" and "Esther" and "Saul" and "Israel in Egypt," and the "Messiah." On the closing night three thousand deluded people singing of a delusion to eight thousand deluded hearers.

Yes, this chimera of the Gospel is not satisfied until it goes on and builds itself into the most permanent architecture, so it seems as if the world is never to get rid of it. What are some of the finest buildings in the world? St. Paul's, St. Peter's, the cathedrals and temples and churches of Christendom. Yes, this impertinence of the Gospel, this vast delusion is not satisfied until it projects itself, and in one year gives, contributes, $6,250,000 to foreign missions, the work of which is to make dunces and fools on the other side of the world—people we have never seen. Deluded doctors—two hundred and twenty physicians meeting week by week in London, in the Union Medical Prayer Circle, to worship God. Deluded lawyers—the late Lord Cairns, the highest legal authority in England, the ex-adviser of the throne, speeding his vacation in preaching the Gospel of Jesus Christ to the poor people of Scotland. Frederick T. Frelinguysen, once the Secretary of State of the United States, an old-fashioned evangelical Christian, an elder in the Reformed Church. John Bright, a deluded Quaker. Henry Wilson, the Vice-President of the U. S., dying a deluded Methodist or Congregationalist. Earl of Kintore, dying a deluded Presbyterian. The cannibals in South Sea, the Bushmen of Terra del Fuego, the wild men of Australia, putting down the knives of their cruelty, and clothing themselves in decent apparel—all under the power of this delusion. Judson and Doty and Abeel and Campbell and Williams, and the three thousand missionaries of the Cross turning their backs on home and civilization and comfort, and going out amid the squalor of heathenism to relieve it, to save it, to help it, toiling until they dropped into their graves, dying with no earthly comfort about them, and going into graves with no appropriate epitaph, when they might have lived in this country, and lived for themselves, and lived luxuriously, and been at last put into brilliant sepulchre. What a delusion!

Yes, this delusion of Christian religion shows itself in the fact that it goes to those who are in trouble. Now, it is bad enough to cheat a man when he is well, and when he is prosperous; but this religion comes to a man when he is sick, and says: "You will be well again after a while; you are going into a land where there are no coughs and no pleurisies and no consumptions and no languishing; take courage and bear up." Yes, this awful chimera of the Gospel comes to the poor and it says to them: "You are on your way to vast estates and to dividends always declarable." This delusion of Christianity comes to the bereft, and it talks of re-union before the throne and of the cessation of all sorrow. And then to show that this delusion will stop at absolutely no thing, it goes to the dying bed and fills the man with anticipations. How much better it would be to have him die without any more hope than a swine and rats and snakes. That fall. Nothing more left of him. He will never know anything again. Shovel him under. The soul is only a superior part of the body, and when the body disintegrates the soul disintegrates. Annihilation, vacancy, everlasting blank, obliteration. Why not present all that beautiful doctrine to the dying, instead of coming with this hoax, this swindle of the Christian religion, and filling the dying man with anticipations of another life, until some in the last hour have clapped their hands and some have shouted, and some have sung, and some have been so overwrought with joy they could only look ecstatic. Palace gates opening, they thought; diamond coronets flashing, hands beckoning, orchestras sounding. Little children dying, actually believing they saw their departed parents, so that, although the little children had been so weak and feeble and sick for weeks, they could not turn on their dying pillow, at the last, in a paroxysm of rapture unaccountable, they sprang to their feet, and shouted: "Mother, catch me, I am coming!"

And to show the immensity of this delusion, this awful swindle of the Gospel of Jesus Christ, I open a hospital and I bring into that hospital the death-beds of a great many Christian people, and I take you by the hand this morning, and I walk up and down the wards of that hospital, and I ask a few questions. I ask: "Dying Stephen, what have you to say?" Lord Jesus, receive my spirit." "Dying John Wesley, what have you to say?" "The best of all is, God is with us." "Dying Edward Payson, what have you to say?" "I feel in a sea of glory." "Dying John Bradford, what have you to say?" "If there be any way of going to heaven on horseback, or in a fiery chariot, it is this." "Dying Neander, what have you to say?" "I am going to sleep now—good-night." "Dying Mrs. Florence Foster, what have you to say?" "A pilgrim in the valley, but the mountain-tops are all aglean from peak to peak." "Dying Alexander Mather, what have you to say?" "The Lord who has taken care of me fifty years, will not cast me off now; glory be to God and to the Lamb! Amen, amen, amen, amen!" "Dying John Powson, after preaching the Gospel so many years, what have you to say?" "My death-bed is a bed of roses." "Dying Doctor Thomas Scott, what have you to say?" "This is Heaven begun." "Dying soldier in the last war, what have you to say?" "Boys, I am going to the front." "Dying telegraph operator on the battlefield of Virginia, what have you to say?" The wires are all laid, and the poles are up from Stony Point to headquarters." "Dying Paul, what have you to say?" "I am now ready to be offered, and the time of my departure is at hand; I have fought the good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith. O Death, where is thy sting? O Grave, where is thy victory? Thanks be unto God who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ." O my Lord, my God, what a delusion, what a glorious delusion! Come over me with it, fill my eyes and ears with it, put it under my dying head for a pillow—this delusion—spread it over me for a canopy, put it underneath me for an outspreading—roll it over me in ocean surges ten thousand fathoms deep! O, if infidelity, and if atheism, and if annihilation are a reality, and the Christian religion is a delusion, give me the delusion!

The strong conclusion of every man and woman in the house is that Christianity producing such grand results cannot be a delusion. A life, a character, a suicide, an hallucination cannot launch such a glory of the centuries. Your logic and your common-sense convince you that a bad cause cannot produce an illustrious result; out of the womb of such a monster no such angel can be born. There are many in this house this morning, in the galleries and on the main floor, who began with thinking that the Christian religion was a stupid farce, who have come to the conclusion that it is a reality. Why are you here to-day? Why did you sing this song? Why did you bow your head in the opening prayer? Why did you bring your family with you? Why, when I tell you of the endless of all trials in the bosom of God, do there start tears in your eyes—not tears of grief, but tears of joy, such as stand in the eyes of homesick children far away at school when someone talks to them about going home? Why is it that you can be so calmly submissive to the death of your loved one, about whose departure you once were so angry and so rebellious? There is something the matter with you. All your friends have found out there is a great change. And if some of you would give your experience, you would give it in scholarly style, and others giving your experience would give it in broken style, but the one experience would be just as good as the other. Some of you have read everything. You are scientific and you are scholarly, and yet if I should ask you: "What is the most sensible thing you ever did?" you would say: "The most sensible thing I ever did was to give my heart to God."

But there may be others here who have not had early advantages, and if they were asked to give their experience, they might rise and give such testimony as the man gave in a prayer meeting when he said: "On my way here to-night, I met a man who asked me where I was going. I said: 'I am going to prayer meeting.' He said: 'There are a good many religions, and I think the most of them are delusions: as to the Christian religion, that is only a notion, that is a mere notion, the Christian religion.' I said to him: "Stranger, you see that tavern over there?" "Yes," he said. "I see it." "Do you see me?" "Yes, of course I see you." "Now, the time was, as everybody in this town knows, that if I had a quarter of a dollar in my pocket I could not pass that tavern without going in and getting a drink; all the people of Jefferson could not keep me out of that place; but God has changed my heart, and the Lord Jesus Christ has destroyed my thirst for strong drink, and there is not a whole week's wages, and I have no temptation to go in there; and, stranger, if this is a notion, I want to tell you it is a mighty powerful notion; it is a notion that has put clothes on my children's back, and it is a notion that has put good food on our table, and it is a notion that has filled my mouth with thanksgiving to God. And, stranger, you had better go along with me, you might get religion, too, lots of people are getting religion now."

Well, we will soon understand it all. Your life and mine will soon be over. We will soon come to the conclusion of the last bar of music, to the last act of the tragedy, to the last page of the book—yea, to the last line and to the last word, and to you and to me it will either be midnoon or midnight.

The question of maintaining an Anglican Bishop in Jerusalem, which has been in abeyance for several years, has lately been revived, and under circumstances that leave no doubt of the speedy re-establishment of the See.

How to Gain Flesh and Strength.—Use after each meal Scott's Emulsion: It is as palatable as milk and easily digested. Delicate people improve rapidly with its use. For Consumption, Throat affections and Bronchitis it is unequalled. Dr. THOS. PRIM, Ala., says: "I used Scott's Emulsion on a child eight months old; he gained four pounds in a month."

The editor of a theatrical paper has asked a number of English actors to say, "What is the most striking incident in your professional experience?" "The most striking incident that I can remember," writes Mr. Irving, "was when the 'ghost' in 'Faust' struck me on the head instead of carrying me up into the flies above."

A Good Reputation.—Brown's BRONCHIAL TROCHES have been before the public many years, and are everywhere acknowledged to be the best remedy for all throat troubles.

A new application of the distribution of power by compressed air has been made by the French minister of posts and telegraphs. This consists in winding up the weights of the Hughes Printing Telegraph by pneumatic power. The first experiments in this direction were so successful that it is intended to adopt the pneumatic apparatus throughout the telegraphic service.

Mrs. Jackson Singleton, of Denver, was the mother of nine children on Friday morning. That evening she was the mother of twelve. "I was sort of dumfoundered at first," said Mr. Singleton, who is a colored man and very poor. "I thought they never would stop comin'. It almost took my bref away." Mrs. Singleton is thirty-five years old, and she and Hiram Madison, Alva Adams and Carrie Collins are doing right well.

Robert Ream, brother to Vinnie Ream Hoxie, the sculptress, recently died at Fort Worth, Tex. He was a noted character in the Indian Territory for more than twenty years, being an adopted citizen of the Choctaw tribe. He was a man of nerve, and was particularly noted for killing Ben Jones, the worst desperado Indian Territory ever produced, at McAllister. He was never punished for it, the general verdict being that he had performed a righteous act.

TRADE, TRAFFIC AND FINANCE.

Latest Notes by Telegraph and Mail.

BRITISH GRAIN TRADE.

Liverpool, Jan. 28.—A leading weekly grain circular says:—There was extreme quietness in the grain trade during the past week, the previous firmness due to political influences having disappeared. Values were lower. English and foreign wheat was in slow demand. Several cargoes were moved off and there are only four left. To-day the market was quiet, with a small attendance, and business was limited. Red wheats were generally unchanged, while other grades were 1d lower. Flour was in average demand at the late rates. There were liberal offerings of maize, with sales of old at ½d decline, and new at 1d decline.

LIVE STOCK TRADE.

John Swan & Sons' weekly report, Jan. 15, says:—Our markets have been glutted with fat cattle this week, as the roads have been opened for traffic, and this has also been the case in England. Trade, therefore, has been decidedly worse, and lower prices have had to be expected. A fairly good clearance was effected, but prices were entirely in buyers' favor. On comparing the quotations which are current here with those prevalent in England, it will be seen that there is no room for speculation in the south to any extent, and although store cattle were laid in more cheaply last autumn than has been the case for some years, the present prices of beef leave very little profit to the feeder. The heavy arrivals of foreign meat in London completely prevent any improvement so far as secondary class qualities are concerned. Cows and bulls also share in the depreciation in value. The sheep markets have been more heavily supplied, which is also attributable to the removal of the block on the roads. The demand experienced has not been so good, and prices were from 1s to 2s a head more than last week. In many cases this stock is paying very badly for turnips, especially the high-priced lots, many of them realizing very little over what they cost in lots. Fat calves have again been scarce, and very dear, and pigs have been easily sold at full prices. There has been a more active demand for milch cows, and at the close of the sale prices were higher than at the beginning. In Edinburgh the supply of store stock was very small, the few small sticks on offer realizing firmer quotations. Three hundred and twenty States cattle were shown, the enquiry for which is reported to have been brisker, at 6s 9d to 7s per stone. Current top prices of the best beef throughout, 7s 6d per stone, though a little more was got in some cases; secondary qualities, 7s; top Irish, 7s to 7s 3d; secondary, 6s 6d to 6s 9d. Best mutton, 8d to 8½d per lb; secondary, 7½d to 7¾d; ewes from 6½d to 7½d per lb.

PRODUCE MARKET REPORT.

January 15.

Cheese—A better demand has been experienced during the last day or two, and considerable business has been done in full prices, but the demand has been almost entirely confined to mild August makes at 58s to 60s, which are now getting into very small compass, and holders of such are disposed to advance prices a little. There is also an improved demand for finest, and altogether holders comment upon the situation in favorable terms, as there are indications of a quiet but growing interest, that is expected to result in a healthier business at no very distant period. I quote finest September colored, 61s to 63s; white, 60s to 63s; finest Augusts, 58s to 60s; medium to fine, stock almost nil; medium to good, stock nil; skims, dull and neglected, 15s to 25s.

Butter meets with a ready sale, and the small arrivals this week have brought full prices, especially finest, which is scarce. I quote finest Canadian and U. S. extra, 105s to 115s; fine, 95s to 100s; good to fine, 75s to 85s; grease sorts, 40s to 50s; finest Danish, 135s to 138s; Irish firsts (stock nil); seconds, 126s; thirds, 165s; fourths, 82s 6d.

Bacon.—The demand has not been quite so active this week, but holders have held firmly, and the few concessions made have been principally for lots ex Quay. I quote Staffordshires 36s 6d to 39s; Cumberland cut, 37s to 39s; singed Wiltshires, 40s to 41s 6d; short rib, 36s 6d to 37s 6d; long rib (according to size), 36s to 44s; shoulders, 28s to 32s; bellies (rib in), 30s 6d to 38s; clear bellies, 37s to 43s; long backs, 31s 6d to 33s 6d; short clear backs, 37s to 38s.

Hams continue in good demand, and a further advance of 1s to 1s 6d is obtained for light weights. I quote long cuts, according to size, 45s 6d to 55s 6d, and Staffordshire cuts, 46s to 51s.

Lard early in the week declined 1s per cwt., but later, with higher quotations from America, is now more firmly held, both on spot and for future. I quote 35s to 35s 6d on spot for Feb.-March, 35s is asked, for March-April 35s 6d, and for April-May options 36s is asked.

Pork.—There is not much business passing, and prices almost same as last week. Prime mess, 60s to 65s; ordinary to good, 55s to 60s.

Reform Principles.

The Reform platform, so far as we have been able to collect its scattered and battered planks, seems to be about this:—

1. Nova Scotia must secede from the Dominion.
2. Riel was a hero, a patriot and a martyr.
3. The National Policy must be destroyed.
4. The Pacific Railway is a bad thing.
5. Sir John Macdonald is growing old.
6. The French Canadians are not half so bad as the Grits said they were.
7. We keep mum about free trade in the cities and towns.

These are the unalterable opinions of the party, but if they do not suit they can be changed for Mr. Blake's alternative policy.

Manitoba Then and Now.

So sudden has been the change produced by the construction of railways in this province that the advantages secured are scarcely perceived or properly appreciated. Instead of a long drive of fifty, sixty or a hundred miles, as in former days, with a tired and struggling team over the drifting snows of the prairie, the Manitoba farmer now hastens to the nearest station, probably only a few miles distant, delivering his produce and enjoying the pleasure of seeing the stir which is always created at the stopping places along a line of railway.—Manitoban.

Delicate diseases of either sex, however induced, promptly, thoroughly and permanently cured. Send 10 cents in stamps for large illustrated treatise, suggesting sure means of cure. Address, World's Dispensary Medical Association, 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

London Markets.

Revised Daily.

London, Saturday, January 29, 1887.

The market was more active to-day in general productions, though grain deliveries were small.

Wheat was inclined to be easier, at $1.35 to $1.40 per 100 lbs.

Oats were unchanged, at 91 to 92 cents per cwt.

Peas were firm, at 85 and 87 cents per cental, and indications are for 90 to 92 cents.

The clover seed trade is inactive; farmers are hanging back for better prices, and such a course is not recommendable, inasmuch as the Toledo and Detroit markets are only quoted at $4.50 to $4.60 per bushel. Seed can be laid down in London at $5.25 per bushel from the other side, so that Canadian sellers cannot much better on our quotations.

The meat market was full, and prices were dull, at our quotations.

Pork ranged at $5 to $6 25 per cwt.

The butter market was flat, and best roll was controlled at 20 cents a pound.

Eggs, easier, at 25 to 28 cents a dozen for fresh.

Poultry was scarce, and prices firmer.

Apples were dull, at 50 to 75 cents a bag.

Potatoes, firm, at 85 cents to $1 a bag.

Hay, easier, at $10.50 to $12 a ton.

Chicago, Jan. 29, 1.30 p.m.—Wheat has ruled very quiet to-day, though recovered partially from yesterday's depression. The weather was reported to be colder at the North, which caused some covering, while there was said to be a further decline in foreign securities. The resulting buying was mostly by local shorts, though some was done for outside, but the selling by prominent local operators was so free that the advance did not hold. The foreign grain markets were weaker, and exporters' limits said to be further reduced, and the foreign houses were selling both in this market and New York. The visible supply is expected to show an increase, and with present limited outward movement it may reach 50,000. Corn was a shade better, but trading was light and fluctuations small. Provisions were steady without any important changes. Hogs are estimated to run rather more freely next week.

TRADE IN THE STATES

Dun, Wiman & Co.'s Weekly Review of the Situation.

New York, January 28.—Dun, Wiman & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:—The strength of the market is noteworthy in view of the labor troubles, which have affected the week's business more than many realize. The strikes of coal handlers and longshoremen here affect not only the coal trade, but exports of grain, provisions and cotton, tending to depress those markets. The Massachusetts movement for free shops having nearly stopped boot and shoe manufacture in important localities, affects that business and the leather trade. Actual and threatened strikes of carpet weavers affect the wool trade. Speculation has lagged, as is natural, moderate sales being the rule in the Exchanges.

Wheat, after advancing to 94 cents, weakened, because exports were checked, and closed as a week ago, with corn a shade lower and oats a shade higher.

Coffee, sugar, cotton and pork products are unchanged; oil a cent lower and cattle a little lower.

Receipts of dressed meat in London call attention to the growing dressed meat traffic. In 1883 the shipments of cattle to New York and New England were 493 000 tons, and of dressed beef, 133,000 tons. In 1886 cattle shipments were only 392,000 while dressed beef shipments were 223,000 tons. In New York the average price of cattle for 1886 was half a cent lower than in 1885.

The butter trade is dull and values uncertain.

In tobacco there is no improvement.

Last year's average for wheat was about the lowest on record in New York as in Great Britain. The low prices are partly due to low freight rates, but the market for many agricultural staples are otherwise depressed—a fact to be remembered in judging of the probable purchases of manufactured goods by farmers.

Dry goods tend upward at present, print cloths and many varieties of cotton having advanced during the week with active trade. Woolens fail to advance. In spite of higher foreign prices for wool yarns and goods and higher prices for wool, goods generally opened at last year's prices, with cheverets about 8 per cent. lower and worsteds offered with hesitation. The large sales of heavy woolens last year impede improvement, and orders from farming sections do not wholly answer expectations. Wool sales at Boston have been 17¼ per cent. larger thus far than last year, but inability to move prices of goods upward tends to check the advance in material. The auction sales of woolens resulted in prices not very encouraging, but many believe an advance in goods will yet be made.

Iron continues to strengthen, though official reports show 6,866 688 net tons were produced last year; stocks were diminished 1,670,008 tons, indicating the largest consumption on record. All the Southern States increased production only 186,819 tons, however, against 354,131 increase in Ohio alone, and 847,793 in Pennsylvania.

The speculative fever fills Southern papers with notices of new corporations, and conservative journals utter warnings. Money comes out of the Treasury slowly, only $700 000 for the week, and silver receipts at New York are 17 per cent. of the total. Though the Bank of England gained $4,000 000 this week, foreign exchange here rises toward the gold exporting point.

No important financial action by Congress is now expected, and railroad presidents have been convened by Mr. Fink to consider the Interstate Bill, the signature of which is deemed certain. Reports still show large gains in railway earnings, but in most cases as large an increase in expenses.

The movement of freight continue heavy, 21,986 cars having passed Indianapolis this week.

Business failures reported for last week give a total of 271, of which the United States has 236, and Canada 35, compared with a total of 301 last week and 289 for the same week in 1886. In New York City and New England States they are very light, the bulk of failures being in the Western Pacific and Southern States.

Will Moore, of Chadd's Ford, drove to Centreville the other evening, and when about to go home saw a nice black dog that looked so much like his Rover that he decided to steal it and have a pair. So he called the dog to him, carried it to his wagon, and tucked it under the buffalo robes. When he reached home he took the dog to his room, where he made a nice bed for it on the floor. The next morning he found the dog standing at the side of his bed wagging his tail. His own Rover had followed him to Centreville, and had been stolen by its own master.

Catarrh, Catarrhal Deafness and Hay Fever.

Sufferers are not generally aware that these diseases are contagious, or that they are due to the presence of living parasites in the lining membrane of the nose and eustachian tubes. Microscopic research, however, has proved this to be a fact, and the result is that a simple remedy has been formulated, whereby catarrh, catarrhal deafness and hay fever are cured in from one to three simple applications made at home. A pamphlet explaining this new treatment is sent free on receipt of stamp by A. H. DIXON & SON, 305 King street, West, Toronto, Canada.—Christian Standard. eod

Not long ago a widow and widower, near Indiana, Pa., consoled each other by marrying, and a few weeks afterward they drove to town. While the husband was doing some business the wife stepped around to the undertaker's to pay for his services at her late husband's funeral. The bill had scarcely been receipted when the husband put in an appearance and proceeded to pay the undertaker for services at his late wife's funeral. It is said they were mutually surprised.

Wm. Devoy, on corner of Piccadilly and William streets, told me nearly two years ago of the virtues of Barkwell's Bronchial Balsam. I had been working in a drain and caught a very severe cold. I got a bottle of that celebrated Balsam, and it so quickly and completely cured me of that acute attack, that I have never been without it since. I have recommended it to a great many and they all agree with me, that it is equally good for adults and children, pleasant to take and never known to fail, no matter how severe the cold.—JOHN WALTERS, 31 Bathurst St. *

Fair and Very Cold.

Toronto, January 31, 1 a.m.—The pressure is low in the St. Larence Valley and the South west States, and highest in the North-west States and Territories. Light rain has fallen in the Maritime Provinces, and in Quebec it has been mostly fair and mild, whilst in Ontario the weather this evening has turned decidedly colder, attended by westerly gales and light snow falls. In the North-west Territories a severe blizzard set in during Friday night, and since then the temperature has ranged from 20° to 40° below zero, accompanied by fresh gales.

Indications:—Lakes, fresh winds, fair and very cold.

A VERY COLD WAVE IN DAKOTA AND MONTANA.

St Paul, January 29.—Specials from various Dakota and Montana points indicate a blizzard prevailing to-day as the very worst known for years. Trains everywhere are either abandoned or stuck in the snow. The thermometer is twenty to thirty degrees below zero and the weather still growing colder. Roads here report that all freight trains north and west are abandoned and passenger trains late. The blizzard has not reached here yet (10 p.m.), but the mercury indicates fifteen below and still falling.

DEATH OF A FORMER LONDONER.—Thomas J. Jones, assistant manager in Barnett & Goulding's 99c. store, Port Huron, met a horrible death at Point Edward at six o'clock on Saturday morning. He had spent the night with his sister, living there, and was returning by the track to catch the G.T.R. transfer boat for Port Huron, when a yard engine struck him and passed over him. He was under the engine 45 minutes and they had to raise the engine to release him. He made his will in the meantime, leaving $4,000 to his wife, who was on a visit to her brother's, Dr. Hutchinson, in this city. He lived about three hours. Mr. Jones formerly clerked with Mr. Wm Bryce here, and was known to a large number of citizens. He was a cousin of Dr G. P. Jones. Mr. Charles Jones, Mrs. F. A. Fitzgerald and Mrs S. F. Peters, of this city, and a brother-in-law of Dr. Hutchinson and Mr. E A. Hutchinson, of the Advertiser staff. He was 50 years of age. The funeral will take place from St. Paul's Cathedral today.

DRESS GOODS!

Enormous Purchase of New All-Wool French Dress Goods.

We have much pleasure in advising our customers of the arrival of an immense purchase of high-class French Dress Goods, embracing all the shades for the coming Spring Season. These were purchased by Mr. T. F. Kingsmill, who has been in Europe since early in December, and before the recent enormous advance in the price of all woolen fabrics. As the war rumors have driven the value of these goods beyond the reach of buyers who were late in arriving, we are able to offer the newest materials cheaper than any that will be imported for many months to come.

The coming colors in really choice goods from twenty-five to fifty per cent. less than the French Manufacturers demand to-day.

Take a look at our windows and if you have time come in and examine the quality and you will be convinced.

T. F. KINGSMILL.

Rumors of Dissensions in the British Cabinet.

MR. GOSCHEN ELECTED TO PARLIAMENT.

Hartington and Chamberlain Will Support the Government's Irish Proposals.

BOMB FIENDS AT WORK IN FRANCE.

General Boulanger About to Send Troops to the Eastern Frontier of France—Spain Making Defensive Preparations—The Pope Desires the German Catholic Party to Support the Septennate Bill—Gladstone Still Undecided Whether to Support Parnell's Amendment or Not—Morley on the Irish Question.

London, Feb 9, midnight.

Will Support the Government.

Lord Hartington and Mr. Chamberlain conferred for two hours this afternoon It is believed they decided to support the Irish proposals indicated in the Queen's speech.

A Female Conspirator.

A lady has been arrested at Sofia for conspiring against the Government. She admits that she was sent by Russians to cajole the superior officers of the Bulgarian army into attempting to overthrow the Regency.

The Paris Bourse.

The Paris Bourse was lifeless to-day. Cash purchases, which had been the principal feature during the last few days, entirely ceased. At the close adverse rumors affected the market. The fall would have been more pronounced if prices had not been supported by London quotations.

Bright Ideas.

John Bright, writing to a Sydney correspondent, congratulates New South Wales upon having a Minister who had the courage to condemn the Soudan campaign, and expresses the hope that it will be the first and last expedition participated in by Australia in a contest in which she has no interest.

"Punch" on the Irish Question.

Punch publishes a cartoon on the Irish question. The picture represents Mephistopheles as a Fenian fiend carrying a pouch of dynamite, and with a wand labelled "American vote" stirring up the waters of strife, namely, the fishing grounds, over which the United States and England are disputing.

Goschen Elected.

Mr. Goschen, Chancellor of the Exchequer, was to-day elected member of Parliament for St. George's, Hanover Square. The vote stood:—Goschen, 5,702; Hayman (Gladstonian), 1,545. At last election in this district Lord Algoman Perry, who resigned in order to allow Mr. Goschen to run, was returned without opposition.

Rumors of Dissensions.

The British Cabinet had a session of three hours' duration to-day. Rumors are current that dissensions have developed among the Ministers. Lord Salisbury has accepted the resignation of Lord Dunraven as Under-Colonial Secretary. Lord Dunraven was discontented because he was superseded by Sir Henry Holland as Colonial Secretary.

Bomb-Throwers at Work.

Two bombs simultaneously exploded to-day in front of police headquarters at Lyons, France. The bombs struck against the railing and were thus prevented from expending their force on the building. At St. Ettienne a bomb was thrown at the Police Station. It exploded with such force that three of the officers within the building were seriously injured. Eight men been arrested for alleged complicity in the latter outrage

Morley on the Irish Question.

John Morley, speaking at Newcastle to-night, said the Conservative Liberal Union was crumbling away. There had been no recoil of popular opinion on the Irish question, but the Home Rule tide was flowing slowly but steadily. Lord Hartington's latest speech, he continued, revealed complete impotence in the face of a difficult problem. The question was:—"What are we waiting for?" Ireland was admittedly orderly in many parts, and surely the time was opportune to satisfy her wants. Even if Parliament adopted the Canadian scheme for Ireland such a course would not be less liberal than that of Mr. Gladstone's.

Alsace-Lorraine.

Prince Von Hohenlohe, Governor of Alsace-Lorraine, made a speech to-day at a banquet given at Strasburg to a provincial committee. He said that the situation would continue serious even without a war. While there was a general feeling that France would recognize without reservation the situation created by the international treaties, the people of Alsace-Lorraine had in the coming elections the best chance for working for peace. Until the Federal Government and German people were perfectly convinced that Alsace-Lorraine fully recognized the effects of the Frankfort treaty, the province could not hope to be placed upon the same footing with other German states.

French Military Movements.

The Berliner Nachrichten says it has authentic information that Gen. Boulanger, French Minister of War, is preparing for a movement of troops to the eastern frontier. Four battalions of infantry are to go to Verdun and Toul, and quarters are being prepared to receive them. A brigade of cavalry will also go to Verdun and provision trains to Toul. Four battalions in Algiers have been ordered to France. Gen. Boulanger has instructed the Military Railway Committee to remain in permanent session. The Nachrichten adds:—Paris advices state, that owing to urgent representations by his colleagues, Gen. Boulanger has postponed issuing the orders for these movements until the 21st inst.

The Pope and the Septennate.

The Munich Allgemine Zeitung publishes Cardinal Jacobini's letter to the Nuncio at Munich. It is dated Jan. 3. The Cardinal says that in view of the impending revision of the church laws, the Pope desires the Centre to support the Septennate Bill in every possible way, and concludes:—"It is well known that the Government attaches the greatest importance to the passage of the Bill. If by its adoption it should be found possible to avert the danger of war in the near future, the Centre would render a great service to the Fatherland and to the cause of humanity in Europe by supporting the Bill. In the contrary case the hostile attitude of the Centre would be considered unpatriotic and the dissolution of the Reichstag would cause embarrassments to the Centre party. Cardinal Jacobini instructs the Nuncio to urge the leaders of the Centre to influence their colleagues in favor of the Septennate, and to assure them that such a course would greatly satisfy the Holy Father. The North German Gazette accuses Dr. Windthorst and Baron Frankenstein of keeping secret the first letter from the Pope, while exerting pressure upon the Centre to vote against the Septennate. The Cologne Gazette says it believes the Government had confidential, not official, knowledge of the letter, and that it was because the Centre leader withheld the letter from the party that the Pope caused Cardinal Jacobini to write a note to the Nuncio at Munich. A new Catholic paper is about to appear in Berlin. It will be the organ of that section of the Centre party which supports the Government.

The Irish Debate.

The debate on Parnell's amendment was resumed in the House of Commons to day. Mr. McLaren (Radical) defended the plan of campaign, and Sir Edward Clarke denounced it as a conspiracy. Mr. Redmond adjourned the debate. The pressure which Sir Wm. Vernon Harcourt and other Liberals have exerted to induce Mr. Gladstone to refrain from committing himself to approval of the "plan of campaign" counteracts the Parnellites' appeal to him to come and speak in favor of Parnell's amendment. Although it is probable a division will be taken on Friday Mr. Gladstone is still undecided. If he continues absent the Government whips are confident of 110 majority. They expect to have the support of all the Unionists, and they believe that, Mr. Gladstone himself abstaining, many of his followers will not vote.

Spain Preparing.

Senor Castillo, Spanish Minister of the Interior, replying to-day to an inquiry as to whether Spain was making any preparations in view of a possible European war, said steps had been taken to augment the defences of Spain and her colonies, and that other measures would be adopted, but that, at present, it was inexpedient to explain more fully the extent of the Government's preparations.

Herr Divillon, manager of the Shansrock mine at Dortmound, and Leopold Goldstein, chief of the banking firm at Dantzig, have committed suicide. The latter was insolvent.

The North German Gazette, without comment, quotes prominently the statement of the Berliner Nachrichten, that General Von Moltke declared to a deputation of electors that the political situation was most serious.

The Roman Catholic Bishop of Limburg, in Hesse-Nassau, Prussia, has forbidden the clergy to take part in any agitation against the Septennate Bill. It is believed all other German Catholic bishops will pursue a similar course.

Cardinals Taschereau and Gibbons will start from Paris for Rome to-morrow. They have been received by Mr. McLane, the U. S. Minister; M Fabre, the Canadian Consul, and numerous other Americans, and have had a conference with Archbishop Richard.

Messrs. Dillon and Davitt were present at an Irish demonstration held at Battersea to-night In the ocurse of his speech Mr. Dillon said it was only due to the advice given by himself and his colleagues to tenants that Ireland was not soaked with the blood of the landlords.

The Berlin Official Gazette publishes an Imperial order, confirming the arrangements made for military transportation in time of war, which received the approval of the Bundesrath on January 13. The Berlin Boerse was inactive to-day, and prices closed lower. The French vote of credit repressed buying. International securities are down ¼ to ½ per cent. The Vienna Bourse is firm.

The 'Longshoremen's Strike.

New York, Feb. 9.—Except for the number of 'longshoremen standing idle on the corners of the streets the river front has assumed almost its usual appearance The Knights of Labor and Corbin's representatives met to-day. FEBRUARY FRESHETS.

Serious Floods at St. Catharines and Vicinity.

St. Catharines, Feb. 9.—The heavy rain and sudden thaw which set in on Tuesday morning has caused a severe freshet in the neighborhood of Locks 2, 3 and 4, Old Canal. A large quantity of sawn lumber owned by Mr. Shickluna, ship builder, has been swept into the canal. Two houses which stood by the bank of the stream were in imminent danger, as the water swept through the doors and carried off all moveables from the outside. The families of Mr. T. O'Neil and Mr. Walker were in great danger, as their retreat to St. Paul street was cut off and they were compelled to take shelter on the adjoining high land. The ship yard and the floors of the workshops are several feet under water, and all the moveable timber around has been carried away. Captain Jas. Norris's wharf and the lower floors of his large store-house are also flooded. On these floors are stored immense quantities of flour in barrels, sacks and paper bags. The whole lower tiers are wet and destroyed, thousands of packages being more or less damaged. At lock number three the flood gathered in such volume as to force its way over the sides of the lock and also enter the drydock upon the blocks of which rested the steamers Persia and Ocean undergoing repairs. To save what might have caused serious damage to these large vessels they were scuttled, and consequently remained fixed without any injury. At lock 4 the lockmaster's houses were flooded. At lock 2 the water flowed over the bank into the level below without doing much damage. Considerable damage was done at Reynoldsville. At present the losses caused by the flood cannot be estimated, but will be very large. At Port Dalhousie about 40 feet of the embankment being built by the contractors there was carried away. The flood is subsiding and any further danger is believed to be past.

TORONTO.

Election Petition—Big Hauls by Burglars—Business Difficulties—Dates for the Spring Assizes.

Toronto, Feb 9. A petition was filed to-day in the Court of Appeal against the election of James Clancy, Conservative member elect for West Kent. The petition alleges corrupt practices and claims a scrutiny.

It is estimated that the burglars who visited the stores of Harris & George, furriers, and Treble, gents' furnishings, early this morning, carried off about $900 worth of goods.

Thomas Houston & Co., wholesale woollens, Wellington street west, who some time ago secured an extension, have suspended. Liabilities are placed at $40,000, with assets nominally the same amount. Wicks & Sons, jewellers, Young street, have assigned, with $4,000 liabilities. They offered 25 cents on the dollar, which was refused. Aaron Friendly & Co., manufacturers of overalls, to-day offered their creditors 25 cents on the dollar, but it was held over, pending the decision of creditors in England.

The dates for holding the Spring Assizes were fixed to-day. Judge Galt will be at St Thomas, March 14th; Sandwich, 28th; Sarnia, April 4th; Goderich, 11th; Woodstock, 18th; Chatham, 25th; London, May 2nd; Walkerton, 9th. Chief Justice Cameron will be at Cayuga, March 14th; Berlin, 21st; Welland, 28th; Brantford, April 4th; Simcoe, 11th; Hamilton, 18th; Guelph, May 2nd; Stratford, 9th.

The deputation from Kingston and counties in Eastern Ontario that waited upon the Government this afternoon to urge the establishment of a School of Practical Science in connection with the Queen's University was a large and influential one. All the members of the Local Government were present. The principal speakers on behalf of the deputation were Ald. Gildersleeve, of Kingston; Principal Grant, of Queen's, and Sandford Fleming, Chancellor of Queen's. After the deputation had stated their case, Premier Mowat said the matter would receive careful consideration.

MONTREAL.

A Snow Blockade—A Gang of Burglars Arrested—Victims of the Central Vermont Disaster.

Montreal, February 9.—The trains which left here for Quebec and those coming in could not get further than St. Martin Junction, where they were detained by a snow-blockade. The passengers were compelled to pass the night on the cars. Snow plows are at work, and it is expected that the line will be cleared to-night.

The police arrested five men here to-day in a house occupied by Thos. Murphy, 154 Murray street. A thorough search of the house resulted in the finding of a complete set of burglars' tools, also many articles stolen from Myer's jewellery store on Saturday evening last. One of the men arrested, named Lee, escaped from jail a few days ago.

F. H. Smith and G. M. Cox, commercial travellers, of Boston, were on the Central Vermont train which met with the accident last Saturday. Anxious enquiries are being instituted about them. Charles Cadieux, of Rochville, Conn., is believed to have met his death by the railway accident on Saturday. It is supposed he was on his way here to visit his relatives.

AFTERNOON CABLEGRAMS.

GERMANY'S ARMAMENTS MERELY FOR DEFENCE.

The Czar Expresses Hearty Assurances of Friendship for Germany—Davitt on the "Plan of Campaign"—The Debate on Parnell's Amendment—State Aided Colonization to Canada.

London, Feb. 9, 3 p.m.

Friendship for Germany.

Gen. Von Schweinitz, German Ambassador at St. Petersburg, received hearty assurances of the Czar's friendship for Germany.

On 'Change.

A firm tone prevails in the London stock market this afternoon for American and other foreign securities. The Paris Bourse is weak.

The German Armaments.

The Paris Reenement has a despatch saying Dr. Windthorst in an interview declared the German armaments were for defensive, not for offensive, purposes, and that they were directed as much against Russia as against France.

Davitt on the "Plan."

Michael Davitt, speaking at Edinburgh last evening, said that under other than existing conditions in Ireland the "plan of campaign" would be neither desirable nor permissive, but it was better to have the "plan of campaign" than a plan of blunderbuss and revolver.

State-Aided Colonization.

A large meeting was held last night at Manchester, at which State-aided colonization to Canada was advocated by some prominent men, the Prime Minister's unsatisfactory reply not preventing the extension of the movement. Public opinion is rapidly growing in favor of the scheme.

A Bad Augury.

The press of Vienna considers the resignation of Count Dierobtiant, Italian Foreign Minister, a bad augury for a preservation of European peace. His retirement, the papers say, will be especially welcomed in Russia, where the Italian defeat at Massowah is recognized as being partly the work of Russian assistance to the Abyssinians.

The Irish Debate.

In the course of his speech in the House of Commons last night on the Parnell amendment, John Morley said the amendment pointed out the only possible policy for the proper government of Ireland. The remedy advocated by Lord Hartington in his recent address at Newcastle amounted simply to migration and emigration, and it would be impossible to effect either of these without regard to the wishes of the people. No Government could achieve anything by a policy based on emigration, for successful emigration depended largely on the condition of the labor market. Concerning the question of land purchase, Morley asked what better terms were for tenants than those proposed in the Ashbourne Act, which, though good in itself, is utterly insufficient for the just demands of Home Rulers. Jacob Bright, Liberal, said it was no discredit to England if she failed to govern Ireland. The discredit was in refusing to abandon an impossible task. The attempt to govern by force failed in America and Canada and would fail in Ireland. Ireland must be treated the same as Canada. The relations between landlord and tenant in Ireland were a far greater scandal than the plan of campaign. He would be surprised if the Irish leaders had not adopted some such method. Mr. Gibson, Solicitor-General for Ireland, in defending the Government's action at Sligo, said it was the duty of the Crown to insure selection of jurors of independent mind. The Gladstone administration pursued the same course. It was a fact that the alleged packed juries had in many instances given verdicts of acquittal. T. P. O'Connor, Nationalist, called attention to the fact that the Government at last frankly admitted the charge of jury packing. He said Dillon would doubtless be tried and convicted by a packed jury. He felt compelled to denounce such a state of things as a foul, dishonest administration of law.

It was agreed that the Bulgarian Regency should be reconstructed and the Zankoff party admitted, and that the coalition should decide whether or not to hold a new election of members of the Sobranje.

Flood at Niagara Falls.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Feb 8.—The rain which set in yesterday morning has continued ever since, and caused Muddy Run Creek to overflow its banks. Bridge street is submerged, the water running down it about a foot deep, and over the river bank near the railway bridge. The G.T.R. yards are completely flooded, and the movement of trains is somewhat difficult. In the lower part of the town a great deal of damage has been done.

Probably Fatal Stabbing Case.

Montreal, Feb 9.—An Italian named James Corrosini was last night stabbed in seven places while walking with a young girl on the street by a fellow-countryman named Vincent Mattie, it is supposed from jealousy. Mattie then ran off. Corrosini was taken up unconscious and was bleeding profusely. He was carried to his residence, where medical aid was summoned. Corrosini has two stabs in the stomach, and there is but little hope of his recovery. Corrosini has made a deposition against his assailant, and a warrant has been issued for his arrest.

THE FISHERIES DISPUTE.

The Official Correspondence Laid Before Congress—Letters Between Minister Phelps and Lords Iddesleigh and Salisbury—The Retaliation Bill Too Ambiguous—A Big Scheme from Ohio.

Washington, Feb 9.—The President yesterday sent to the House, in answer to the resolution introduced by Mr Belmont, copies of correspondence which has taken place since December 8th last, and up to the present time, between the Department of State and the Government of Great Britain, relative to the fisheries dispute. The correspondence is very voluminous, especially the letters which passed between Minister Phelps and Lords Iddesleigh and Salisbury.

On December 16th Lord Iddesleigh, in a communication to Minister Phelps, transmits the apology of the Canadian Government for having hauled down the flag on the Marion Grimes.

In a letter to Minister Phelps from the Earl of Iddesleigh, dated November 30th last, it is stated that her Majesty's Government earnestly desires some equitable settlement of the controversy, and that it is with feelings of disappointment that there is not found in the previous note from Mr. Phelps any indication of a wish on the part of the United States Government to enter upon negotiations "based on the principle of mutual concessions, but rather a suggestion that some ad interim construction of the terms of the existing treaty should be reached, which might for the present remove the chance of dispute." The communication submits the desire of the British Government to leave points of technical detail and construction in the treaties and fishery laws for the consideration of a commission properly constituted to examine them.

On January 26th Minister Phelps writes to Lord Salisbury:—"It seems now very important that before the commencement of another fishing season a distinct understanding should be reached relative to the course to be pursued by the Canadian authorities towards American vessels." In this letter Minister Phelps reasserts the inability of the United States to accede to the proposition to await the judicial settlement of the cases in dispute in the courts of Nova Scotia. Speaking of the purchase of bait in Canadian ports by American vessels, he says:—"This purchase is not denied by the owners of the vessels, and the United States Government insist that such an act is not in violation of the Treaty of 1818, and that no then existing statute in Great Britain or Canada authorized any proceedings against the vessel for such an Act, even if it could be regarded as in violation of the terms of the treaty, and no such statute has been yet produced." Further on he says: "The United States Government is not able to concur in the favorable view taken by Lord Iddesleigh of the efforts of the Canadian Government to promote a friendly negotiation. That the conduct of the Government has been directed to obtaining a revision of the existing treaty cannot be doubted, but its efforts have been of such character as to preclude the prospect of a successful negotiation so long as they continue, and seriously to endanger the friendly relations between the United States and Great Britain. Apart from the question as to the right to American vessels to purchase bait in Canadian ports, such a construction has been given to the treaty between the United States and Great Britain as to amount almost to a declaration of complete non-intercourse. * * * Since the receipt of Lord Iddesleigh's note the United States Government has learned with grave regret that Her Majesty's assent has been given to the Act of Parliament of Canada passed at its late session, entitled an Act Further to Amend the Act Respecting Fishing by Foreign Vessels. By the provisions of this Act, any foreign ship, vessel, or boat, whether engaged in fishing or not, found within any harbor in Canada, or within the three-mile limit of any of the coasts, bays, or creeks of Canada, may be brought into port by any of the officers or persons mentioned in the Act, her cargo searched, and her master examined on oath touching the cargo and voyage. * * * It is quite unnecessary to point out what grave embarrassments may arise in the relations between the United States and Great Britain under such administration as it is reasonably to be expected of the extraordinary provisions of that Act and its amendment, which it is not necessary at this time further to comment upon. It will be for Her Majesty's Government to determine how far its sanction and support will be given to further proceedings such as the United States Government have now repeatedly complained of, and have just ground to apprehend may be continued by the Canadian authorities."

Mr. Phelps concludes by again suggesting, in view of the wide difference between the views of the United States and Great Britain as to the extent of the treaty rights claimed by both countries, that an ad interim construction be agreed upon by which friendly relations may be preserved until some permanent treaty arrangement may be made.

A Schooner Sunk and Four Lives Lost.

Hartford, Conn., Feb. 8.—The schooner Samuel Daly, of New London, stone laden, was cut through by ice at Saybrook Point this afternoon and sank. Capt. Samuel Spaulding, his wife and child, and three seamen, got into the yawl, but before it could be freed from the vessel she went down. The Captain and one seaman were saved, but the others were drowned.

One Hundred and Five Days Without Food.

Wabash, Ind., Feb. 9.—Mary Baker, the White County faster, completed last evening her 105th day of total abstinence from food or drink. Several days ago the extremities began growing colder and signs of dissolution were apparent, but she still lives. There is a wide difference of opinion among physician as to the cause of the malady.

AMERICAN WIRELETS.

Detective Hulligan, one of the men assaulted by desperadoes at Ravenna, died Tuesday morning. He leaves a wife and four children.

John C. Leighton, for 19 years clerk of the Municipal Criminal Court at Boston, is short in his accounts to the amount of $200,000 or more.

The employes of the Cambridge, Mass., Horse RR. have decided to strike. This strike, with that of the South Boston road, makes the number of railroad men now out about 900.

George Cox, at one time a prosperous merchant in Dundas, Ont., moved to Brighton, Mich., about one year ago, having lost all his property. It preyed on his mind so that he was irrational at times, and he was Tuesday adjudged hopelessly insane. He was taken by Deputy Sheriff Cushing to the Pontiac Asylum to-day. He has a family of ten small children who are left destitute.

A LARGE INDUSTRY,

Which the National Policy has Given London.

A Visit to the Works of the London Crockery Manufacturing Co.

An important industry which has been started within a few months, just outside the city limits, is the London Crockery Manufacturing Co. It is a direct outcome of the National Policy, and could not exist without it. When a representative of the FREE PRESS paid the works a visit yesterday he found it the scene of marked activity. The pottery itself is a large building, so situated that the cars of the G. T. R. and the new C. P. R. may be unloaded at the very door of the main building. Around it quite a number of neat cottages have been erected and the little village thus created has already been given a Post Office, and is appropriately named Pottersburg. A run through the several buildings showed that in the adaptation of machinery and the utilization of room, the pottery was thoroughly equipped for the classes of work it is intended to turn out. Mr. S. F. Glass is the Managing Director, and to the newspaper man he said:—

"We commenced building in August and are just now getting into running shape."

"How many men do you employ?" asked the reporter.

"Seventy just now," was the reply made, "but, as you see, we are just commencing, and when we go into the manufacturing of sewer pipes, as we intend to early next year, we will employ double that number."

"Had the National Policy anything to do with your starting?"

"It was the protection afforded by the tariff that enabled us to start, and last year the Government gave us a specific duty on certain classes of goods, which gave us confidence in branching out extensively."

"Does the tariff now exclude American goods?"

"Yes; at the prices we are selling at. We are producing the goods and selling them at lower prices than the Americans can bring them in for. We are not taking advantage of the tariff. It simply keeps out the Americans and gives us the home market. The consumer does not pay one cent more, and the goods he uses from us are produced by Canadians. This is the largest Rockingham and stoneware pottery in Canada."

"What success are you meeting with from a business point of view?"

"Although not yet in proper running order, we have orders for twenty more carloads of goods than we are able to supply. We ship largely to Montreal and Ottawa, and intend to go into the farthermost Eastern market. We expect also to do considerable business in British Columbia when C. P. R. connection has been established with London."

It may be added that in the pottery the reporter saw enormous quantities of crockery and stoneware goods in various stages of manufacture, exhibiting skill on the part of the workmen and enterprise on the part of the firm. It would occupy a large space in these columns to enumerate the varieties, or to enter, however cursorily, into a description of the goods themselves. It was, to say the least, a most interesting thing to see the process of production, from the time the clay was ground up in the cellar until it appeared in the warehouse, ready and fit to adorn the table of a prince.

Horse-Shoeing Contest at Detroit.

Detroit, Feb. 9.—It is doubtful if a more unique contest was ever witnessed on a theatre stage than the grand horseshoe-turning match at the Detroit Opera House last night between Michael J. Dunn, of Detroit, and John Campbell, of Buffalo, N. Y., formerly of Toronto. It was certainly the most novel contest ever seen in this city. The opera house was packed. Campbell was accompanied from Buffalo by about two hundred of his friends, and there were large delegations from Chicago, Cincinnati, Toledo, Toronto, Pittsburg and other cities. Mayor Chamberlain made an address and introduced the contestants. Sherman E. Bunnell, of Buffalo, was selected as judge for Campbell, and Wm. McCarthy, of Detroit, acted in the same capacity for Dunn. Michael Daly, of Chicago, was selected as referee. On the left of the stage Dunn and his five assistants were grouped picturesquely around their two forges and anvil. On the right of the stage were Campbell and his five assistants. When the referee called "Time," in a jiffy a piece of white hot iron was on the anvil before each of the men, and the house resounded with the ring of the hammers as the blows rained down and the rod was bent to the proper curve. It was noble work for the two men and their assistants for one hour and forty-seven minutes, when Dunn completed his one hundredth shoe, beating Campbell six shoes, and the best previous record by forty minutes. Considerable money changed hands on the result, most bets being made on the time.

Destitution and Disease Among Indians.

Ottawa, Feb. 9. With reference to the distress and alleged ravages of measles among the Indians of the White Fish and Sturgeon Lakes and Peace River settlements, the Deputy Superintendent of Indian affairs to-day stated that the Department has been advised that measles were epidemic among the tribes at the White Fish and Sturgeon Lake settlements some time ago, and that a number of Indian children had been carried off with it, but as regards the assertion that the Indians at those settlements are suffering and are likely to suffer from want there is not the slightest truth in it. These Indians will be provided for in the usual way. As regards the Indian settlements at Peace River, the Department has no control whatever over them, and is consequently not cognizant of their condition.

A GREAT SUCCESS.

Montreal, Q., Feb. 9.—(Special.)—Although the weather on the second day of the carnival was unseasonable, the city is packed with visitors, the streets being black with a moving mass of strangers from all lands. Everybody is trying to secure copies of the Montreal Star Carnival number as souvenirs of the events and festivities. The Americans say the Carnival Star eclipses anything ever published in the States. The publishers acknowledge themselves unable to keep up to the demand and are now working on the last edition, most of which is bought up in advance.

THE FLOODED DISTRICTS.

NO SERIOUS DAMAGE CAUSED BY THE FRESHET.

The London West Breakwater Slightly Injured—Part of the Sulphur Springs Building Carried Away—A Little Washout on the L. & P. S. Line—The Proof Line Flooded and Travel Suspended.

It is reported that a great deal of ice still remains in the south branch of the river above the city, and in the north branch there is a jam below Brough's Bridge, and the River Medway was flowing through the Mitcheltree property and across the Proof Line Road yesterday.

Later intelligence was to the effect that from the mill race to Brough's bridge there was one pond of water, and travel on the Proof Line was obstructed, people going around by Adelaide street.

The railroad bridge near Port Stanley was rendered impassable yesterday by a washout, and the train from the south came only as far as the bridge, across which Conductor Fraser had the passengers and baggage transferred, and returned to Port Stanley while they were brought on in another train to the city. In the afternoon the damage was repaired and traffic resumed as usual.

After consulting the other members of the Council the Chairman of the London West Board of Works gave orders for a channel to be cut across Dundas street and through the breakwater to carry off the water which found its way in through and over the embankment during the night. It will be impossible to get rid of it, however, until the volume of water in the river is reduced.

The damage done in London West is greater than was at first supposed. The water covered Dundas street a foot deep in places, the sidewalks being impassable and almost every street in the south end of the village being flooded, the water reaching about half way to Blackfriars' street. The houses were nearly all flooded, and at 3 o'clock yesterday, when the water had fallen a foot, there was still four feet of water on the base ball grounds, and the river was not low enough to carry it off through the channel which had been opened. Fences and outhouses were knocked down in all directions. The Sulphur Springs' buildings were struck by the floating ice and a part of the wall enclosing the swimming pond carried away. The sides of the river are lined with large slices of ice, heaped up in confusion, and the weight and size of these illustrate well the mighty force of the water. In one place between Kensington and Blackfriar's bridges a piece of the breakwater wall has been stove in by the ice, but the rest of it appears to stand firm.

The river is running rapidly, free of ice, and every hour shows a fall in the water and an abatement of the danger.

STRIFE ABOUT BOODLE.

The Boodle of the Whole People and Where it Comes From.

To the Workingmen of the City of London.

On the 22nd of February you will tell who shall represent your interests at Ottawa. You are protected by the ballot—and so will act for yourselves and say who shall be your choice, as the majority of votes are yours.

You have a few days to think which is your best man, and review and weigh the questions of the day, and what is your duty to the city, and to yourselves. Ask yourselves if your present representative is blameable for misrule, for the rebellion of the Northwest, said to be owing to neglect, also said to be fostered and aided by the Opposition and their friends. You know it cost $8,000 000, which we shall have to help to pay—but this is not boodle, and it is pleasant to think that loyal workingmen put down the rebellion, and their pay is not to be looked upon as boodle.

The next question is perhaps the foreign credit of the country. It never stood higher, and so our city member may have a share in the praise due for the good standing of Canada financially—if he has come in for a share of the boodle slander.

The Post Office Savings Bank is a working man's share of the boodle. 4 per cent. is not too much interest to pay for loans from capital. Then why should not workingmen have this honest share of the boodle? The wish of the city member is that the workingmen may become the greatest creditors of the Dominion, knowing, if this should ever be the case, there would be no rebellions.

When Hon John Wilson was member for this city he had no favors to ask: that is, no boodle to get for the city, as he stated in the City Hall, which we heard (that he expected no favor for the city, therefore he had asked none, and so had not been disappointed). Fact is, we had sent the wrong man to ask for city boodle. Men carried the hod in summer time in those days for fifty cents per day, the wrong kind of boodle for the workingman.

But when our present member went to Ottawa (as the Globe stated, as the London baby) things changed. We wanted a post office, and our member asked for one. It was his business he was sent for that, and the city got the boodle. We wanted a custom house, and our member asked for it, and the city got the boodle. The city wanted a high school, and our member asked for a site for it, and the city again got the boodle.

The Asylum and the Military School were also asked for, and the city got the boodle. Fact is, the city member represented the interests in a manner not to be found elsewhere. What more could he have done?

You will see the city has had its share of the boodle, and yet this spent boodle (which has passed through the workingmen's hands) still fairly represents the amount spent, and would add to the growing credit of Canada.

You will also see that our share of the boodle will always have to come in the shape of wages for work done.

The way this kind of boodle has come to the workingmen by the means of the N.P. will be made clear to workmen of to-day by considering the past, perhaps. When John Carling was in opposition, not on the treasury benches, the public meetings asked for aid from Government to place the unemployed upon the land. This was a kind of boodle we did not get, but your city member was sound.

Public meetings where hundreds of men were out of work—not old men past work—but men wanting work, able and deserving—our best men—but could not get work. But the N.P. came into being, and the wheels of industries began to take up this mass of unemployed and therefore non-productive labor, and to-day we have new industries in our midst which could not exist here without the National Policy, which is sound, which our friends in opposition don't object to. I am trying to speak to workingmen that are not bound by promise or society ties to vote in any given way.

When there is plenty of work workmen ask for more pay, but when there is little work there is little pay. You will see it is not in the province of legislation to say how much shall be paid per day, but by giving work the National Policy has been the means of carrying up wages, which is honest boodle.

The list of wages here stated from the London Tool Works Company will show how the workingmen's "boodle" comes to hand. Thanks to the N. P. and wise legislation, the welfare of the workmen and firm of the London Tool Works Company says there must be no go back on the tariff, or it will interfere with extensions contemplated.

The administration of public lands has been often before you, which you have a right to know about, as it is of vital importance to all of you, every man that works for his bread by the sweat of his brow.

It is your hope of final independence—a home in old age—and the grand absorbent of oversupply of the labor market, but more, a valuable means of regulating the supply of labor without disastrous strikes and their bad outcomes.

You, as workingmen, have a right to ask your present member what he has done in this way, as you want a share of the land boodle, and what he will try to do as Minister of Public Lands.

The other man can do nothing. He may never reach the position the present member holds.

Yours, a workingman truly,
JOHN LAW.

If you want something to please you and your friends, go to A. E. Trebilcock's and order a suit and overcoat. They have the largest assortment of tailoring goods in the city. Call at 285 Dundas street before leaving your order.

THE MASONIC MUTUAL.

Fifteenth Annual Meeting of the Members Yesterday Afternoon.

Reports of the Directors and Secretary and Financial Abstract—Resolutions Passed, etc.

The fifteenth annual meeting of the members of the London Masonic Mutual Benefit Association was held in the library of the Temple yesterday afternoon, the President, V. W. Bro. Col. Lewis in the chair; V. W. Bro. H. A. Baxter, Secretary, and the following brethren in attendance:—Bros L. Skey, Port Dover; F. Allshie, Plattsville; J. Mohr, Belmont; Capt. Pollock, Port Stanley; Chas. Kinzie, St. Thomas; J. Laing, St. Thomas; Rev A. Anthony, Brantford; R. O'Neil, Birr; Chas. King, Whitby; J. Glover, Aylmer; J. Johnstone, Dorchester; J. S. Dewar, J. D. Sharman, Thos Brock; C. N. Spencer, London; D. W. Vary, Strathroy; W. Skinner, W. Mercer, A. G. Smyth, A. S. Murray, J. B. Smyth, J. H. Flock, I. Danks, V. A. Brown, M. D.; J. B. Laidlaw, J. H. Elliott, James Cowan (Mayor), London; S. S. Murray, M. D., Thorndale, and also brethren from Ridgetown, Simcoe and elsewhere.

After the minutes of the last annual meeting had been read and confirmed, the Secretary read the annual report of the Directors, as follows:—

BRETHREN:—We welcome our brethren again after the lapse of another year, and feel thankful that we are still united in sustaining an institution that has done so much good. It is now sixteen years since three or four London Masons met in a store upon one of our principal streets, and discussed the matter of uniting the brotherhood into a benevolent society for the protection of the widows and orphans of Masons. Death came silently along and made inroads into the Order, leaving widows and families destitute, and dependent, in some measure upon the Craft. Our Lodges, as well as private individuals, had to come to the rescue, and our funds were depleted, and our Benevolent Boards were not equal to the task in relieving the distress. This society was the outgrowth of this meeting, and the membership was confined to the Order in Canada. Our laws compelled the members to be affiliated and remain in good standing in their Lodges, or they lost the benefits of the Society, and that fact has been a source of strength to the Order, which is now recognized by the Grand Lodge. We have since our organization paid out to our beneficiaries between four and five hundred thousand dollars, and the good that that has accomplished, the distress relieved, and the tears that have been dried, cannot be known in time. No Brother need regret the assessments he has paid, for he can rest satisfied that it has gone to sustain the wife and children of a departed Brother. It was money well expended, even were there not another side to the question. But while every dollar paid out was money paid in a good cause, it has also been a protection to our own wives and families. The many years of experience we have had, has enabled us to see the imperfections existing in the Society, and the necessity of change, so that it should become permanent. Radical changes have taken place, a limit of age fixed, a rigid medical examination made, and within the last year a graduated scale, according to age, has been incorporated into our system. We have found that to afford permanent protection to the Order, we had to incorporate business with benevolence. Early in our history we saw the necessity of a permanent Reserve Fund, which has grown with our growth, and though very violently opposed by many, all opposition to it has long since ceased, and it has become the backbone and main-stay of the Society. It is an absolute security for the membership and should afford an inducement to all young Masons to join. The past year we have added $4,743 77 to reserve, making in all $54,743 77. This sum is well invested, drawing a good rate of interest, and year by year as it increases your Directors are careful in placing it where the Society will be secure and derive the most revenue.

During the year there has been 27 deaths, one of which was the result of accident. The average of the deceased members was 53½ years—the youngest being 38, and the oldest 70. $38,400 have been paid and to be paid to beneficiaries.

The year's experience under the new change has been for good. We have taken in more new blood than during the previous year, and the average age of those coming in has been low, this fact alone should inspire us with as with courage, and induce all our present members to endeavor, during the coming year, to add one more to the number. If a persistent effort is made in this direction, the London Masonic Mutual Benefit Association will be the strongest Mutual Benefit Association on this continent. It is the constant influx of new material that gives life and zest to all societies, and without that element we cannot prosper.

We have continued the services of our General Agent during the past year, and if he has not met with the success in bringing new members that he had confidently hoped for, he has done a good work, which, we consider, has amply repaid the expenditure. He has visited nearly every section of the country, throughly explained the working of the new system, and increased the general confidence in our membership. The lapses, while considerable, have been less than we expected under the change, and now that it has got in good working order, and the members thoroughly understand what they have to pay, we can expect a more prosperous year. We would recommend, in view of the work yet to be accomplished, the continuance of our Special General Agent.

The notice of amendment given by Bro. Hargreaves making it optional for joining members to secure a reduction on their death assessments for a period of five years of 25 per cent., allowing it to be made up by extending the time of receiving the profits of reserve to ten years, will, we think, be an advantage in getting in new material. It will not affect the carrying out of the original intention of the law, and will make it easier for members of limited means.

The time having arrived when Clause 20, page 10, of the Constitution, comes into force, and as a great many of our members may desire to take advantage of it, your Directors would like specific power or direction as to its interpretation. We are of opinion that full power should be delegated to your Board to finally settle all cases coming under that clause, as they in their judgment may determine.

The business of the past year has been very carefully looked after by your Board, the greatest interest manifested in the success of the Society, and the expenses kept down to the minimum consistent with efficiency. We think that the new investments made were fortunate, and trust will meet with your approval. All our meetings were regularly attended, and every member looked after your interest as carefully as after his own business.

For all other information we refer you to the Reports of the Secretary and General Agent.

I remain on behalf of the Directors, yours fraternally,
R. LEWIS, President.

It was, on motion, taken up clause by clause, and after some discussion adopted.

In connection with the second last clause of the above report, it was moved by R. W. Bro. J. S. Dewar, and seconded by W. Bro. J. B. Smyth, "That in view of the question having been raised of the legality of the amendment or addition to clause 20 of the constitution, which was made at the meeting of the Association on the 14th day of October, 1885, by reason of no previous notice of such amendment having been given, and the further question of the real meaning and intention of such addition or amendment:—Resolved, that the Board of Directors of this Association are hereby requested to allow such addition or amendment to remain in abeyance until the next annual meeting, and in the meantime grant no application made to them thereunder."

After explanations by the mover, Bro. Flock and the President, the resolution was unanimously agreed to.

The Special General Agent's report was also adopted.

The Secretary's report was accepted as read, and adopted as follows:—

SECRETARY'S REPORT.

The number of applications received within the year was 110, of which number the Medical Referee rejected 11, and 9 of the balance, not having perfected their applications, could not be written in, although some of them have promised to do so during the coming year. This leaves:—

Of New Material	90
(Whose average age is 39 years; insured for $87,000.)
No. of Members Jan. 1st, 1886	1,401
Total	1,491

Lapses during 1886:

By death (whose average age was 53½ years)	27
By surrender	33
By lapses and non-payment	127
	187
Net total	1,304

(Whose total insurance amounts to $1,696,710.00)

The number of claims coming under the Disability clause of the Constitution was 8, but, not coming within its provision, they could not be entertained.

This being the first year of working of the Association under the new plan of Graded Assessment, has, on the whole, been found to work satisfactorily, and chiefly for the reason that members know definitely the amount they are assured for, and are not moved into higher grades as are increases.

I need not point out the desirability of an increased membership, thereby lowering the cost of insurance to all.

The Reserve Fund has increased this year by $4,744 77, and now represents $54,743 77 safely invested. This Fund is considered one of the mainstays of the Association, as no other Mutual of the same membership can show so large a Reserve.

The amendment to the Constitution by Dr. S. S. Murray is the same as submitted by Wor. Bro. J. Callard, and laid over, viz.:—That of leaving it optional with members to be affiliated with Lodges after five years' membership in the Association.

The officers who retire are the President, V. W. Bro. R. Lewis; Vice-President, V. W. Bro. M. D. Dawson; and the Directors are Wor. Bro. Wm. Skinner, V. Wor. Bro. Thos. Brock and Bro. J. D. Sharman; the Auditors are Wor. Bro. John Overell and Bro. D. C. Hannah, all of whom are eligible for re-election.

H. A. BAXTER, Secretary and Treasurer.

The financial statement of the Association was next read and discussed item by item. The following is an abstract:—

London, Ont., 11th January, 1887.

After a few explanations by the President, the whole report was adopted.

W. Bro. Dr. Murray, of Thorndale, introduced his motion, of which notice had been given, to change clauses 11 and 12 of the constitution, so as to provide that a member after five years in the Association may become unaffiliated with his Lodge.

W. Bro. Dr. Brown seconded the motion.

After discussing the matter for some time, the point of order was taken that Bro. Murray had not included clause 10 in his notice (wherein the same words were used as in clause 12) and that the passage of one clause, without expunging it from the other, would render the proposition unworkable.

The President, after receiving the advice of the Solicitor, decided the point was well taken, and declared the motion out of order.

V. W. Bro Dawson moved, seconded by R W. Bro. Dewar, and resolved, "That a committee comprising the Board of Directors and R. W. Bro. Judge Toms, of Goderich, be appointed in connection with the Solicitor to re-cast and re-model the wording of the constitution and by-laws of this Association, with the view to make them clearer, more harmonious and less conflicting than they now appear; and to suggest any changes which may be deemed desirable after the experience of the working of the Association under the new system, and to submit the same at the next annual meeting."

R. W. Bro. Dewar moved, seconded by Bro. Danks, "In view of the fact that the Grand Lodge of A., F. & A. M. of Canada has not been formally invited by this Association to recognize the good work it has done and is doing amongst the Craft, to the advantage of the latter, be it resolved that official recognition of this Association be asked from the said Grand Lodge at its next communication; and that the President name a committee to present a memorial setting forth the objects and aims of the Association, to the favorable consideration of the members of Grand Lodge. Carried.

The election of officers was then proceeded with, resulting as follows:—President, V. W. Bro. Col. Lewis; Vice-President, V. W. Bro. Col. Dawson; Directors, W. Bros. W. Skinner, Thomas Brock and J. D. Sharman for two years; Auditors, W. Bro. J. Overell and D. C. Hannah.

After a desultory discussion as to the best means of increasing the membership, the Association adjourned.

Lord Tollemache has issued a circular to his Cheshire tenantry showing the necessity of producing cheese of superior quality. He states that he intends to acknowledge the skill and energy of those tenants who gain prizes and high commendations for their cheese at public shows next season in the same way as he did last season, and those of his tenants who receive this acknowledgment, can at the same time have their lease notes renewed to ensure them undisturbed possession of their holdings for twenty-one years. The lease notes enable the tenant farmer to give the landlord twelve months' notice to quit, but secures the tenant against the landlord's notice for twenty-one years.

JOHN ELLIOTT & SONS' TAXES.

A Plain Statement of the Case as it Now Stands.

The rebate of taxes to Messrs. John Elliott & Sons has been very greatly misrepresented, and it is proposed to state the facts of the case in a few sentences. When the fire occurred at the Phœnix Foundry, in 1885, it was resolved, at the very next meeting of the Council, to remit the taxes—an act which every fair-minded citizen will say was just. The taxes for the previous year had been paid, and it was understood by the firm that an amount equal to the taxes on the foundry would be allowed off the 1886 sum, but for some reason the Council neglected to have the amount struck off, and the collector called for what was due. A member of the firm waited on No. 1 Committee and explained the state of affairs. It was immediately decided that nothing could be done for that year, but provision was made whereby $1,100 should be deducted off Messrs. Elliott & Sons' taxes in 1887. So the case now stands in this position:—Messrs. John Elliott & Sons have never asked for a rebate, the Council have voluntarily resolved to allow it to them, but the sum will not be deducted until the taxes for 1887 are due. This is an entirely different position from that set forth by the Advertiser, and Messrs. John Elliott & Sons wish the public to be informed of the facts as given above.

NO. 3 COMMITTEE.

A Variety of Business Items Disposed of at the Regular Meeting Last Night.

A meeting of No. 3 Committee was held last night in the City Clerk's office. Present:—Ald. Stringer (Chairman), Vining, McIntosh, Jarvis, Moule. Mayor Cowan, Secretary Keary, Clerk Wilson, Inspector Bell, and Chief Roe, of the Fire Department.

An application from Michael Donohue, for position as call fireman, was recommended to the Council for acceptance.

An offer from the Empire Rubber Company for worn-out hose, was referred to the Chief of the Fire Department.

Mrs. Wilson's application for reduction in rent of stall was referred to the market Clerk and Chairman.

The Clerk of the wood market reported measuring 877 cords of wood in January, the fees received being $43 60.

Market Clerk Wilson's report showed arrears of rent due $360 25; collected since last report, $216 25.

Inspector Bell's report showed that $33 of license fees had been collected since January 5th.

Hospital accounts amounting to $448 27 were passed.

Mr. Ironsides' account for street lamp repairs and lighting, $166 06, passed; Phillips and McBride, $114 90; W. H. Heard & Co., and Henry Woodfork's accounts were referred back to be made out on a proper blank; M. Baldwin, wood for relief purposes, $372 79. Mr. Bell stated that was 17½ cords less than for the corresponding month of 1876. The accounts passed.

The agent for the Chicago incandescent gas burner received an order for two lights for the Committee table.

It was decided to call for tenders for wood for relief purposes.

Ald. Stringer suggested that the wood-market should be moved, and the Central School property would be a good place to have it.

It was further decided, on motion of Ald. Moule, to recommend the continuance of the welsh scales contract with Mr. McIntosh for another year on the same terms. Both the mover and Mayor Cowan spoke in high terms of Mr. McIntosh as a man possessing the confidence of the farmers.

The City Engineer reported that the electric lighting apparatus was not run on Sunday nights because the private consumers did not contract for it, and it would not pay to run it for the city alone.

Mayor Cowan said the Chief of Police had informed him that it would be of no particular advantage in the station, and would not save any expense.

The resolution to put a light in the Station was consequently rescinded.

Chief Roe said they could do with one in the Fire Station very well, but as the Engineer did not see how any saving could be effected by it no action was taken.

Adjourned.

Electors of No. 3 Ward, kindly attend the Mass Meeting in the Hamilton Road School House, on Thursday evening, 10th inst. td

Where are you going? Well, I don't know, but I have been strongly advised by my many friends to go to A. E. Trebilcock's and order a suit and overcoat. They all say he will show you the largest assortment of suits and overcoats in the city. 285 Dundas street is his number. McBride is the cutter.

ROTTEN TO THE CORE.

There is a good deal of rottenness to be found within the Grit party at the present time. Not only are they going back on their so-called principles, but many important persons who at one time took a leading position in support of that interest are now falling away from it. It was noted a few days ago that Mr. Neelon, of St. Catharines, a warm supporter of Mr. Mowat, had thrown off his allegiance to the Grit party, and come out boldly in favor of Mr. Rykert. There is no mistake that that is a great blow for the Grit cause in Lincoln. And people naturally enquire whether it is not the fact that there are thousands like Mr. Neelon who are heartily sick and tired of Grit pretence and subterfuge, Grit falsehood and prevarication, who are ready and eager to follow him in siding with those whose policy is in keeping with the true interests of the country? Then there is Mr. Ferguson, another long-time "reformer" who has accepted the Conservative nomination in South Renfrew, and who will undoubtedly carry that constituency. Mr Nesbitt, of Hamilton, who has hitherto acted with the "reform" party, has publicly thrown them up, and has been elected President of the Conservative Association of that city. In Manitoba, Mr. A. W. Ross, so well known in this part of Ontario, has said good-by to the Grit party, and is now contesting Lisgar in the Conservative interest. In Lambton there is Mr. George Moncrieff, a young man whose proclivities were always strongly on the "reform" side; he has come to the conclusion that the National or Conservative policy is the true one for Canada, and is making such progress amongst the electors in the East riding that his election is now deemed to be beyond peradventure. He will make an excellent member, for besides those personal graces which he is known to possess, he has a clear head, a warm heart, and is a hard worker. He carries with him in no small degree the elements of success. And there are hundreds of other young and rising men in this and other constituencies that are about to take the same step. They have had enough of pretence. They have seen that historical Grittism is out of place to day, and that the mere introduction of certain men to office who do not understand the true needs of the country (however honest some may suppose them to be), is no way in which to carry on affairs to a successful issue. In Toronto the election of three Conservatives is now admitted to be certain. Twist and wriggle as they would the Grits have not been able to nominate candidates that have the ghost of a chance, and the coquetting that they set up with a labor candidate has been contemptuously discounted by those most interested. And the same feeling is being displayed in many other parts of the country. Even those in Quebec who opposed Sir John on the execution of Riel now see that that incident—however much they may dissent from it—is no sufficient ground on which to forsake that line of action which has been of such signal benefit to the country. So one after another, as in the case of Mr. Girouard and Mr. Desjardin, they are declaring that they will not accept Mr. Blake as a leader under any circumstances. Take it from the east to the west the same feeling prevails. And that may be summed up in this, that the present Government have done all that has been possible to do for the benefit of the people; and that, too, in the face of an opposition on the part of the Grits which has been as bitter as it has been unpatriotic. Ontario is becoming more and more Conservative; and though at one time it was held to be the stronghold of Grittism it has been educated by the Globe and its kindred sheets out of that error, and now stands ready to give to the Conservative policy an amount of support that it never before obtained. Disintegration and rottenness are at the present time all that makes the Grit cause remarkable.

The other members of the Mowat "Boodle Brigade", in this city are said to be quite displeased with Mr. Hyman for so rashly calling attention to the boodle. When he sprang at Mr. Carling and his supporters so furiously on the boodle question, Mr. Hyman did not reckon on the exposure that was in store for himself and them. He "hadn't thought of that." But this is what makes them feel so bitter against him. They say he should have been more cautious and politic than to call "Boodle! boodle!" when so large a codfish of the same sort was sticking out from under his own coat-tails. A man who got boodle from the city and boodle from the Mowat Government in such quantities as he did, should surely have been the last one to say "Boodle, boodle" to anybody. How can Mr. Hyman's "C. B's" (Companions of the Boodle) take any sort of interest in his political prospects after he has brought the whole brigade of them into such public scandal as he has done? It's monstrous to think of.

THE WATER-WORKS DAM.

The dam at the Water-works has been abused from time to time in an uncalled-for way. It has been said that the dam is the cause of the floods in Kensington. But every old resident knows that those flats have always been subject to floods in the rainy season. The cause was lately well explained in the FREE PRESS. It comes from the crookedness of the river below the railway bridge, producing ice jams, which hold back the water. The bridge itself is also said to be an obstacle, and in fact was always blamed for the floods until it came to be thought proper in certain quarters to make the Water-works dam a scapegoat. But neither the bridge nor the dam is the real cause, which is found in the peculiar configuration of the stream itself—in its zig-zag course. Hence, floods have occurred from time immemorial. Indeed, the year that the Kensington lots were sold in, the whole place was flooded to the depth of five to ten feet.

There has been no ice at the Water-works dam for several days past. While the flood of yesterday morning was at its height, the water above the dam was clear for half a mile or more. It is strange that at this late day the Water-works dam should be attacked, as it has been, when, as we all know, the river was blocked by a dam further up the stream long before the Water-works were thought of. The system was adopted by the scientific advice of the best engineers. At the time, it was approved most highly. It was generally conceded that to run the pumps by water-power instead of steam was a wise conception, and one of great economy to the city. The Board of Commissioners which constructed the works was composed of the Hon. John Carling, Chairman, Messrs. E. W. Hyman (deceased) and R. Lewis.

It was estimated that the cost of running steam machinery would be from $6,000 to $8,000 a year; the dam that has been so much abused has therefore by its steady and efficient service saved the city since it went into operation fully $50,000 in money. The earnings of the Works have thus been available for the extension of mains and adding in other ways to their efficiency.

In 1883 the sum of $18,000 was taken by the City Council from the Water-works, and put in reduction of the rate of taxation. And in 1886 a surplus of $11,000 was handed over by the Commissioners for the same purpose. Had there not been a dam—were the Works run by steam rather than water-power—there would have been no such surpluses at all. The earnings would all have been swallowed up for fuel. From a city point of view, then, the dam has been a great financial help. It has saved us a great deal of money. But for its successful operation, we should have had to borrow such sums as were required to extend the system to its present greatness and efficiency. All honor, then, to the men who devised that economical plan, Messrs. Carling, Hyman and Lewis. Instead of blame, they should receive thanks. Their action at the outset has saved the city from $6,000 to $8,000 a year ever since the Works were started. And those who are now blaming Mr. Carling in that matter are not only playing into the hands of those who are promoting law suits against the city, but favoring a scheme by which the city will have to pay at least $6,000 a year, which it is now able to save by reason of the dam, which Mr. Carling built.

STATISTICS OF THE STRIKES.

Bradstreet's publishes a statement showing that since January 1st throughout the United States nearly 90,000 men have been on strike, of whom 40,000 alone are in New York and vicinity. Consequent upon the strikes there, it is estimated that there are 17,000 workingmen idle elsewhere. In January there were begun over 90 strikes by 73,000 employes. Of these, 32 have ended, 22 of them, involving 3,300 men, being successful, and 9 of them, involving 5 700 men, having failed. About 60 January strikes, therefore, remain unsettled. The 24 strikes reported for three days in February furnish a list of 9,900 men, none of which have been settled. A classification of January strikes, by trades, for two years, shows the following totals:

	1887.	1883.
Transportation	41,300	2,000
Coal miners	12,450	14,000
Boots and shoes	14.600	4,000
Tobacco hands	4,600	10.000
Textiles	2,700	5,500
Clothing	1,300	6.000
Iron, etc	600	5,700
Total accounted for	77,550	47,200

Never has the Grit organ cut a more sorry figure than in the matter of George Watson, the absconding Alderman. Day after day it linked his name with that of Hon. Mr. Carling as having been a party to some corrupt bargain, in which both were concerned. It even insinuated the amount of money that Watson was alleged to have become possessed of. But when challenged to go into particulars, the Grit organ coolly drew in its horns, and said, "We have no charge to make," and "We know nothing about it." But we must not be hard upon Mr. Hyman's organ. No doubt it has been disturbed by the hot water in which we have kept it for the past week or two. Goodbye, Watson! Ta! ta!

When the Grit organ intimated that the FREE PRESS dared not "discuss Mr. Hyman," it probably supposed its hero to be a sort of Admirable Crichton, without assailable points. By this time it realizes that there is hardly a more discussable member of the Grit party than the gentleman who is now standing up to be "downed" (vide Mr. Gibbons) on the 22nd. How many "young" men, or old ones, either, would find so many political Banquos rising up before him as the present Grit candidate? Truly, he has had a hand in a great deal of mischief for London.

CURRENT TOPICS.

From a private source we learn that the prospects of Mr. Dawson in West Algoma are most cheering, and his return is a foregone conclusion.

Humboldt was, according to Senor Lorena, misinformed when he was told that goitre was unknown in South America before the eighteenth century, for there are preserved in many private museums wax figures with immense goitres dated from the times of the Incas.

Montreal Star:—"It is now freely admitted in Washington, even by the fire-eating Senators, that the firm and dignified attitude of the Canadian Conservative Government is well calculated to bring about a good understanding between the two countries on the fishery question, and is sure to pave the way for reciprocity at no distant day.

Reports from West Durham give the best assurance that Mr. Blake will be defeated there. The temperance electors refuse almost to a man to give him their support. He knows it is so himself or he would not have demanded a nomination in that hive of Grits—West Bruce. Poor Blake! His trimming on temperance, N. P., Riel, etc., is bearing fruit, and he has a hard row to hoe. Thus it is always with trimmers.

The light from an electric lamp tower at Davenport, Ia., falls full upon a flower garden about 160 feet away, and during last summer the owner observed that lilies which usually bloom only in the day opened in the night, and that morning-glories unclosed their blossoms as soon as the electric light fell on them. It has frequently been observed that trees were most exuberant in their foliage on the side nearest the electric light.

The new rule with diners out is to drink but one wine—champagne or claret. The heavy old dinner with sherry, hock, chablis, claret and champagne, with port, sherry and claret to follow, is bourgeois. At such a table as the mess of the Household Guards Blue in London even the half-glass of sherry with the soup and the glass of claret with the nuts is foregone, champagne being the only wine taken, with great improvement in sobriety.

Australians are anxious to become good linguists, so that when they make a tour in Europe they may not lose the pleasure of travel through ignorance of the respective languages. So a French literary club has been formed in Sydney to promote conversational fluency and literary discussions in the Gallic tongue, and should the scheme succeed, German, Italian and Spanish will be practiced in similar manner by the members. A paper in French called L'Oceanien has lately been started in Sydney.

A committee of the Massachusetts Legislature are investigating the drainage and sewerage system of the town of Pullman. The system is known as the surface deposit or sewerage farm plan, where the accumulation is all carried to a farm and there absorbed. It is the only system of the kind in the country on an extended scale, and is believed to be better adapted to the formation of the land in Massachusetts than any yet discovered. The committee members expressed themselves as much pleased with the operation of the system, and will report favorably.

Sir John A. Macdonald had such a reception in Kingston lately as no public man ever met with there before. In his speech, he drew a comparison between the present Government and a board of directors in a flourishing company. Canada' he said, should judge her affairs the same as would a corporation or association, the members of which would, without a doubt, re-elect directors who had been successful in business and made the society prosperous and its members contented. If the present Government had been as a successful board of directors, then the people of the Dominion would show their sense by keeping them in power. He thought he could prove that the present Government had been as a successful board of directors.

Sir Charles Tupper, who is making so valiant a fight in Nova Scotia, has been distinguished not only for his able administration of affairs in the Government in connection with the C. P. R. construction, but for his energy and ability in watching over the interests of Canada in England as High Commissioner. He saved the Canadian cattle trade and Canada large amounts of money in floating loans and otherwise protecting our interests. He assisted in negotiating a treaty with Spain by which Canadian products would be admitted to Cuba and Porto Rico under the "most favored nation clause," and has recently been engaged in drawing up an extended trade treaty with Spain, which it will be one of his first duties as Finance Minister to complete, and which will place the trade relations between Canada and the Spanish West Indies in a much better condition than are our trade relations with our American neighbors.

THE MEMORIAL CHURCH.

Annual Missionary Meeting Last Night—Addresses Delivered, etc.

The annual missionary meeting of the congregation of the Memorial Church was held last evening, when the lecture hall was fairly well filled. His Lordship Bishop Baldwin presided, and on the platform were Revs. J. B. Richardson, L. DesBrisay, of Strathroy, R. Kerr, of Mitchell and Evans Davis, of London South.

After congregational singing and prayer, Rev. Mr. DesBrisay was called upon. He understood that the Diocesan Mission Fund was based upon the Christian principle, "The strong shall help the weak." It was to support the clergy and those missions where the people were unable to raise a sufficient stipend to maintain life. He pictured in graphic terms the consistent life and missionary spirit of the Apostle Paul. The question was often asked, "Are we not paying into this fund money which is given to churches well able to support themselves, but will not do so because of want of zeal and stinginess?" Perhaps so, but was it not our duty to do all in our power to send the gospel to these people, for it was only in this way that their hearts could be opened. We are, through this denial of self, sowing the seeds of unselfishness—"Whatsoever ye sow that shall ye also reap." These close men were heaping up to themselves selfishness against the day of judgment, but, he asked, would anyone change places with them? It was necessary for many of these people in the country to be close at the beginning, or they would never have managed to maintain an existence. This closeness soon grew into a habit, and if we were in their position we would have acted very much as they did. The Mission Fund of Huron Diocese was considerably overdrawn. If the missionary's stipend was not paid up it materially affected his work. He found, from close observation, that as the minister was so was the flock. If he was lukewarm the people would be so, too. If the minister was earnest in presenting the love of his Lord the people would be the same. Therefore the clergyman should have as little pecuniary care as possible. If the outlying districts of this Diocese were represented by weak men it would be felt in the towns, in the cities, and the whole world over, to the disgrace of our dear, our beloved Church of England. He closed by urging a liberal collection.

Rev. Evans Davis, rector of St. James, was the next speaker. When he was present some years ago at a meeting of this kind, a spirited emulation existed between this congregation of the Memorial Church and one in Brantford. In looking over the report, he found that the Memorial congregation was some $200 ahead now, with a total amount of $565, being the second highest amount raised in the Diocese. The object of meeting together was not so much to raise funds as to advance the cause of Christ. If we knew more of that love which brought Christ down a missionary from Heaven, there would not be so much need to refer to pecuniary affairs. It was not for justice but for mercy that we should go to the Lord Jesus Christ for. There were sixty-six missionaries, twenty-six widows and orphans, eleven Catheclists and Indian teachers receiving support from the fund at present. Still the Bishop's heart was often pained by being continually receiving requests for additional men. It was not that the people were not able, not that they had not the means, but they were not informed and educated up to the wants of the missionary cause. After referring to the noble work the Bishop had done in spreading this information, he said, if those who knew something of the love of Christ were only by prayer and precept to do what laid in their power the cause would be materially advanced.

Rev. Robert Kerr, of Mitchell, said that he felt himself fortunate in having the privilege to speak to the "citizens of no mean city," for the first time, on such a theme. He was not long enough connected with the Diocese of Huron to speak as confidently as he would wish to, but he had been for several years a missionary. As the general question had been discussed by the preceding speakers, he would give in a measure the ordinary life a missionary led. Very often the missionary became despondent if he failed to see any result from his labors, and felt that there were others who were better able to overcome the obstacles incident thereto. It was a life of deep and profound isolation, but the assurances which God gave to those who were faithful were very consoling. He related numerous incidents in his backwoods experience. If the chapels were not so commodious, if the communion table was primitive, the religion of Christ was just as pure as in St. Paul's. Often the congregations were small, especially if the weather was not "churchy." He would venture to affirm that there was more money spent for strong drink in the city than for missionary purposes, although he had not seen the statistics. In the whole Church there was raised for Christian mission purposes $400,000, while $27,000,000 was spent in supporting missionaries of the devil. He closed by asking the people to give continually, not by spasmodic jumps.

The Bishop then gave a short and pointed address. This Diocese had every reason to take heart. During the year many of the former claimants had become self-supporting. He depreciated the old method of collecting by force, and which was styled in the reports voluntary contributions. There was a better way, a Christian way, and that was by making it entirely voluntary. He thought that the wrong people were often canvassed, and forgot that all the gold and silver was the Lord's, and he would provide the requisite amounts to carry on His work. There was three things which he wished to impress upon his people.—First, that they should be intensely spiritual in the motive in which they did the Master's work. Second, that they should be possessed of the missionary spirit, the great substance and birth of the Kingdom of Christ. Third, that this was not our home, but that we were only pilgrims and strangers here, and always would be until the second advent of the World's Redeemer.

A liberal collection was then taken up, and the meeting closed with the benediction.

The Montreal Carnival.

Montreal, Feb. 9.—The first carnival attraction to-day was the fancy skating tournament at Victoria Rink, which was won by Louis Rubenstein, who received a valuable gold medal, the other competitors being his two brothers. The Montreal Contractor's Association had their annual drive to-day. About sixty handsomely decorated sleighs formed the procession, led by Wm. Bird, the President. The carnival snowshoe races were largely attended to-day. All the toboggan slides were patronized by throngs of visitors eager to participate in the favorite winter sport. The Governor-General and suite visited a number of carnival attractions. The first day's trotting races at the Driving Park were witnessed by a large and enthusiastic gathering, who were repaid by seeing good races. To-day's proceedings of the carnival closed to night with one of the leading features of the carnival—the attack and defence of the ice castle. Snowshoers representing all city and visiting clubs, 1,900 in number, assembled on the mountain and marched down to Dominion Square, letting off Roman candles. There were over 14,000 Roman candles and over 1,000 colored lights used in the fireworks display. Arrived on Dominion Square the attack on the ice palace was commenced and carried on for about 20 minutes. The scene presented as rockets, Roman candles, etc., was sent into the air was a very pretty one. There were six or seven explosions in the ice palace during the attack and the reserve ammunition took fire and there were many narrow escapes. A girl named Forget was struck with a bomb which exploded and is not expected to live. Two pieces of the towers fell, and one man named Hyde was seriously injured.

A Brutal Wife Murder.

Boulder, Col., Feb. 9.—Mr. and Mrs. Wendell M. Mott, a young couple living eight miles from here, to all appearances had been very happy until three weeks ago, when their first child was born. Since then Mott has been very abusive and quarrelsome. On Monday morning Mott got up early, built a fire, made some coffee, drank it and sat down to smoke. His wife was still in bed with her child, and had fallen into a doze, when she was awakened by the report of a gun. She jumped up, but fell to the floor unconscious, a ball having entered her shoulder and passed into her neck. In the meantime Mott disappeared. When Mrs. Mott regained consciousness she got into bed with great difficulty and sank into a stupor. When she came to herself again her child was crying, but she, having become paralyzed, was unable to reach it. The fire went out and the baby cried until midnight, when it died. Mrs. Mott's plight was not known until Tuesday night, when a relative called at the house. She cannot recover. Officers and a posse of citizens are in pursuit of the murderer.

President Cleveland on the Retaliatory Legislation.

Washington, February 9. — Several Democratic members of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs had an interview with the President to-day in connection with the retaliatory fisheries legislation. The interview was strictly confidential. The President sought to impress upon the members of the Committee the necessity of making very clear and free from ambiguity any measure relating to the subject of fisheries which Congress might see fit to pass. If there was to be any legislation on the subject he said it should state definitely whether railroads and all other carriers were to be included in the prohibition. While the President did not commit himself to any legislation on the subject, the gentlemen present gathered from his remarks that as between the two Bills he favored the House Bill, for the reason that it is more explicit and mandatory in character.

A Ghastly Tragedy.

Warsaw, Ind., Feb. 9.—A party of hunters yesterday passed the farm house of Henry Dunham, in Tippecanoe Township, and came upon Dunham's mutilated remains in a lane near his residence. On entering the house they discovered a two year-old girl with throat cut from ear to ear, and Mrs. Dunham near by, alive, but so badly cut and injured as to render her insensible. Dunham's body had been badly torn by hogs. The theory of murder obtains from the fact that a few days ago Dunham sold some wheat and calves for $350. Only $9 was found in the house. Mr. Dunham later recovered enough to ask if her husband "was hurt too," and a few moments after said "the two men will leave in a few minutes." She is now sinking rapidly and will not live to tell the tale.

A Horrible Accident or Crime.

Des Moines, Ia., Feb. 9.—News was received here to-day of a horrible accident or tragedy that occurred yesterday, about six miles west of Jefferson. A small farm house occupied by a man named Lucklum was entirely consumed in the afternoon, and Lucklum's aged father, wife and son were burned to death. Two neighboring women saw the flames and tried to get in, but the doors were fastened with the occupants inside. This, together with the fact that a gun and revolver were found near the charred remains of the old man, indicate foul play—possibly murder and suicide.

A Strike Ended.

Pittsburg, Pa., Feb. 9.—The strike of 6,000 Monongahela River coal miners is practically settled, and work will be resumed to-morrow.

CAMPAIGN NOTES.

Preparations for the Coming Struggle—Echoes From all Along the Line.

Mr. John Bell, the Conservative candidate for Addington, is seriously ill.

In Shefford Mr. Auger, ex-M. P. P., and Mr. Amier, are running on the Grit side, and Mr. Audet on the Conservative.

Open air meetings are held in Montreal. The battle is so warm there that indoor gatherings are unpleasant even in February.

The Secretary of the Conservative Committee in North Essex is a colored man. The Windsor Record (Grit) takes exception to the appointment.

Mr. L. F. Burroughs has accepted the candidature for Quebec West, and F. X. Drouin, Q. C., for Quebec East, both in the interest of the Conservative party.

Sir John Macdonald has consented to deliver a public address at Ottawa on Saturday evening under the auspices of the Macdonald Club just organized by the Young Conservatives.

Sir John Macdonald will probably address a number of meetings next week. He is announced for North Lanark and will likely visit Manotic, in Carleton County. Mr. Bowell left for Dundas County this afternoon. He will speak in several places this week, and will likely not return until after nomination day.

A Winnipeg despatch says:—The chances are that Manitoba and the Northwest Territories will send a solid Conservative delegation to Ottawa. Both Selkirk and Marquette are likely to go Conservative, while in Winnipeg, if Mr. Mac Arthur retires, as it is thought he will most certainly do within a day or so, Mr. Scarth's majority is likely to be considerable. In any event the prospects of his election are favorable.

Sir John Macdonald said in his Kingston speech:—"He did not intend to argue the point as to whether the N. P. was a success or not, because those present were aware of the result. (Cheers.) The gentleman who now leads the Opposition and had attacked and condemned the N. P. since 1878 had at the last moment, and just before an election, come to the conclusion that that policy was 'just the cheese,' (roars of laughter)—he having declared that if returned to power the National Policy would not be disturbed, so that the manufacturers might rest satisfied that they would not be injured in any way. (Laughter.) Sir John here created considerable amusement by asking the audience, in his own way, if they wanted to hire a man to work their farm whether they would engage a man who claimed that a certain policy, which turned out to be successful, was right from the beginning, or the man who said the Policy was wrong at the outset and right at the end." Hon. Geo. A. Kirkpatrick said: "The last convert to the N. P. was Edward Blake. (Cheers.) In his recent speech a Malvern he had stated the N. P. had become so fixed in the country, and there was so much capital invested through it, that if he were returned to power the only duty that would be changed would be that on cornmeal. (Loud laughter.) How did that statement agree with Sir Richard's, who had called the coal tax legalized robbery? (Laughter.) He would leave it to the ladies, whether it would be better to leave the N. P., which had grown from an infant to be a child, with its father, Sir John, or with its stepfather, Mr. Blake. He was sure the ladies would say 'the father.'" (Laughter.)

A Disaster Narrowly Averted.

St. Paul, Minn., February 9.—A sensation was caused in the hall of the House of Representatives this afternoon. Shortly after the session began the attention of Chairman Donnelly was called to the fact that the ceiling cross-beams appeared to be settling and one member declared the gallery had settled four inches. A motion was hurriedly carried that spectators be excluded, whereupon the gallery and aisles were cleared. It is the opinion of many that a frightful disaster was narrowly averted by the prompt action of Chairman Donnelly, as the building was crowded.

The Peacemaker Killed.

Scranton, Pa., Feb. 9.—Late Monday night Barney Sullivan, aged 26, murdered his brother John and attempted to murder his brother Thomas. Thomas and Barney got into an altercation, when John came upon the scene and tried to pacify them. Barney, in a fit of rage, seized a heavy bar that was used to fasten the door, and rushing upon John struck him upon the head, killing him instantly. Seeing what he had done Barney rushed at Thomas with a butcher's knife, but the latter succeeded in making his escape.

Floods in the States.

Buffalo, Feb 9.—Destructive floods are reported in Michigan and Illinois. In many places railroads are under water. At Springwells, near Detroit, flood carried away Wabash tracks, furnace fires were put out by rising waters, and over 1,000 men are thrown out of work. At Sulmyar, N.Y., the water is rising, and the Central and West Shore tracks are covered to the depth of two feet, and trains are delayed. It is the worst freshet ever known there.

MINOR TELEGRAMS

THE DOMINION.

Geo. Pickering, of Stoney Creek, while chopping stove wood, cut his foot, almost severing it from the ankle.

Sir Narcisse Belleau has been named Lieutenant-Governor of Quebec during the absence of Hon. Mr. Masson.

Charles Willoughby, a farmer of Kazubszua, Ottawa County, died in his sleigh on Monday evening while on the road to consult a doctor. Inflammation of the lungs was the cause of death.

The employes of Orr, Harvey & Co., shoe manufacturers, Hamilton, are out on strike. The firm deny that there is a lockout. The K. of L. district officers are working on the subject. The trouble is said to have arisen over the discharge of a workman.

THE UNITED STATES.

The Connecticut Senate to-day unanimously passed a resolution calling on Congress to protect the sea coast and lake board States by some proper system of defensive fortification.

A fight between "Bob" Haight, of Hudson, and "Tommy" Warren, light-weight champion, was fought Tuesday evening about nine miles from Troy, N.Y. Eight rounds were fought in thirty minutes, and the fight was decided in favor of Warren.

"CROWDED OUT," AND OTHER STORIES, by Seranus (published at the Evening Journal Office, Ottawa). Price, 25 cts.

This little volume is a collection of short sketches, descriptive of colonial life of today, and also of years ago. There is much of charm and originality displayed in the construction of these sketches; much, too, of realistic imagery. The reader seems, at times, to be actually listening to the quaint refrain of the habitan raftsmen:—

"Descendez a l'ombre, Ma jolie blonde."

and to hear the splash of oars and the waving of mighty forest trees. In so many short stories the scenery and general surroundings are but an adjunct of the stories themselves and the chief interest centres in the characters. Here, however, the characters are entirely subordinate to the delicate frame work of time and place, although many of them are cleverly drawn and life-like.

The author states in a very modest little preface:—"To my mind, there is no country, no town, no village, as there is no nation, no class of society, nor individual existence that has not its own deep and peculiar significance, its own unique and personal characteristics that distinguish it from the rest of the world, etc." In this sentiment we entirely concur, and feel very certain that whatever of romance lies hidden amongst our beautiful rivers, forests, and villages, Seranus seems determined to unearth it and deal with it in a tender and graceful strain which will appeal to a large class of readers. We cordially recommend the book.

The Grand Lodge, Sons of England, has rejected the proposition to establish a junior branch of the order. The following cablegram was received yesterday, while the Grand Lodge was in session, from Her Majesty in answer to the message of congratulation sent by the Sons of England:—"Osborne, Isle of Wight, Feb. 9th —To Worthy Grand President Clayton, Sons of England, Grand Lodge, Barrie:—The Queen thanks your Grand Lodge for their kind congratulations.—(Sgd.) PONSONBY." The Royal message was received with hearty British cheers, the whole Grand body rising on their feet during the reading.

THE VEILED WOMAN

A TALE OF ABSORBING INTEREST.

Unfortunately we were never able to ascertain whether or not this was the case, inasmuch as the rock was difficult of access both from the land and the water side, and we had other things to attend to. Myself, considering the matter by the light of what we afterward saw, I believe it was fashioned by man, but whether or not this is so, there it stands, and sullenly stares from age to age out across the changing sea; there it stood two thousand years and more ago, when Amenartar, the Egyptian princess, and the wife of Leo's remote ancestor Kallikrates, gazed upon its devilish face, and there I have no doubt it will still stand when as many centuries as are numbered between her day and our own are added to the year that bore us to oblivion.

"What do you think of that, Job?" I asked of our retainer, who was sitting on the edge of the boat trying to get as much sunshine as possible, and generally looking uncommonly wretched, and I pointed to the fiery demonical head.

"Oh, Lord, sir," answered Job, who now perceived he object for the first time, "I think that the old gentleman must have been sitting for his portrait on them rocks,"

I laughed, and the laugh woke up Leo.

"Hallo," he said "what's the matter with me? I am ill stiff. Where is the dhow?"

"You may be thankful that you are not stiffer, my b'y," I answered. "The dhow is sunk, and everybody on board her is drowned, with the exception of us four, and your own life was only saved by a miracle;" and whilst Job, now that it was light enough, searched about in a locker for the brandy, for which Leo asked, I told him the history of our night's adventure.

"Great Heavens!" he said faintly; "and to think that we should have been chosen to live through it.

By this time the brandy was forthcoming, and we all had a good pull at it, and thankful enough we were for it. Also the sun was beginning to get strength, and warm our chilled bones, for we had been wet through for five hours or more.

"Why," said Leo, with a gasp, as he put down the brandy bottle, "there is the head the writing talks of—the rock shaped like the head of an Ethiopian,"

"Yes," I said, "there it is."

"Well, then," he answered, "the whole thing is true."

"I don't at all see that that follows," I answered. "We knew this head was here; your father saw it. Very likely it is not the same head but the writing talks of, or if it is it proves nothing."

Leo smiled at me in a superior way. "You are an unbelieving Jew, Uncle Horace," he said. "Those who live will see."

"Exactly so," I answered; "and now perhaps you observe that we are drifting across a sandbank into the mouth of the river. Get hold of your oar Job, and we will row in and see if we can't find a place to land."

The river mouth which we were entering did not appear to be a very wide one, though as yet the long banks of steaming mist that clung about it had not lifted sufficiently to enable us to get its exact width. There was, as is the case with nearly every east African river, a considerable bar at the mouth, which, no doubt, when the wind is on shore and the tide running out, was absolutely impassable even for a boat drawing only a few inches. But as things were it was manageable enough, and we did not ship a cupful of water. In twenty minutes we were well across it, with but slight assistance from ourselves, and being carried by a strong though somewhat variable breeze, well up the harbor. By this time the mist was being sucked up by the sun, which was getting uncomfortably hot, and we saw that the mouth of the little estuary was here about half a mile across, and that the banks were very marshy, and crowded with crocodiles lying about on the mud like logs. About a mile ahead of us, however, was what appeared to be a strip of firm land, and for this we steered. In another quarter of an hour we were there, and making the boat fast to a beautiful tree with broad shining leaves, and flowers of the magnolia species, only they were rose-colored and not white,* which hung over the water, we disembarked. This done, we undressed, washed ourselves, and spread our clothes and the contents of the boat in the sun to dry, which they very quickly did, and then taking a slice from the sun under some trees, we made a hearty breakfast off a "Paysandu" potted tongue, of which we had brought a good quantity with us from the army and navy stores, congratulating ourselves enormously on our good fortune in having loaded and provisioned the boat on the previous day before the hurricane destroyed the dhow. By the time that we had finished our meal our clothes were dry, and we hastened to get into them, feeling not a little refreshed. Indeed, with the exception of weariness and a few bruises, none of us were the worse for our terrifying adventure, which had been fatal to all our companions. Leo, it is true had been half drowned, but that is no great matter to a vigorous young athlete of five-and-twenty.

After breakfast we started to look about us. We were on a strip of dry land about two hundred yards broad by five hundred long, bordered on one side by the river and on the other three by endless desolate swamps, that stretched as far as the eye could reach. This strip of land was raised about twenty-five feet above the level of the surrounding swamps and the river level, indeed, it had every appearance of having been made by the hand of man.

"This place has been a wharf," said Leo, dogmatically

"Nonsense!" I answered. "Who would be fool enough to build a wharf in the middle of these dreadful marshes in a country inhabited by savages, that is, if it is inhabited at all?"

"Perhaps it was not always marsh, and perhaps the people were not always savage," he said, dryly looking down the steep bank, for we were standing by the river. "Look there," he went on, pointing to a spot where the hurricane of the previous night had torn up one of the magnolia-trees, which had grown on the extreme edge of the bank just where it sloped down to the water, by the roots, that had lifted a large cake of earth with them. "Is not that stone-work? If not, it is very like it.

"Nonsense!" I said again, and we clambered down to the spot, and got between the upturned roots and the bank.

"Well!" he said.

But I didn't answer this time. I only whistled. For there, had bare by the removal of the earth, was an undoubted facing of solid stone laid in large blocks and bound together with brown cement, so hard that I could make no impression on it with the file in my shooting knife. Nor was this all; seeing something projecting through the soil at the bottom of the bared patch of wall ing, I removed the loose earth in my hands, and revealed a huge stone ring, a foot or more in diameter and about three inches thick. This finally staggered me.

THE FAIR GROUNDS SCHEME

Receives Another Airing Yesterday Afternoon—Ald. Moore's Inconsistency Exposed, etc.

The City Horticultural Society met yesterday afternoon. Present:—Messrs. Porte (chairman), Brunton, B. Cronyn, T. H. Marsh, Ald Moore, John Green, Thomas Green, T. R. Parker, R. C. Struthers, and Geo. McBroom, Secretary.

Communications were read from the Secretary of the Board of Trade reporting the election of Col. Walker and Mr. Thos. Green as representatives on the Fair Committee.

From C. A. Kingston on behalf of Mr. S. Grigg, offering the whole of the race course farm, including the course south of the track, for $20,000. Filed.

The act or charter of the Toronto Fair Association was read by Mr. Brunton for the purpose of getting the sense of the meeting on the adoption of the same to the purposes of the Western Fair.

Mr. Brunton suggested that a clause providing that the Western Fair be not held on the same week as the Provincial Fair, as in case the Provincial went to Ottawa, or any point east of Toronto, it would not affect them if they were held at the same time. He also suggested that the limitation of the value of any lands or buildings which the Association should hold should not exceed $10,000 per annum, instead of $20,000. Both of the amendments suggested were adopted.

The fourth clause, relating to the composition of the Association, was read.

Mr. Brunton suggested that the sub-committee consider and report on this clause. His own idea was that the Fair Board should consist of six members each of the Horticultural Society, the Board of Trade and the City Council, with an equal number from the East Middlesex Agricultural Society, provided a suitable financial arrangement could be made with the last mentioned body.

Mr. Marsh asked would it not be well to associate with them representatives from the different counties, east, west, north and south of us? He believed it would be well to interest the surrounding places all they could in the Western Fair.

Mr. Parker thought twelve members from the Horticultural Society would not be too many.

Mr. Brunton regretted that he had not spoken more clearly. His idea was to place the six members on the executive, but to give all the members a vote on the General Board.

Mr. Struthers moved that Messrs. Marsh, Brunton and the President and Solicitor be a committee to go over the clause and report.

Mr. John Green seconded, and the motion was carried.

Clause 5—Provisional Directors—Left to the Committee with power to add such members of the City Council and Board of Trade and E. M. Agricultural Society as they may deem proper, and to include the full Board of Directors of the City Horticultural Society.

Mr. Brunton said there was one clause in the by-laws of the Toronto Society which would be well placed in the Act in regard to raising and expending money, the Directors not being personally responsible, or making anything by the Fair.

Ald. Moore stated that the Board appeared to him to be proceeding under a wrong idea. He had no authority from the City Council to speak on the subject, but as an Alderman he would not favor providing either ground or buildings, although he would be in favor of an annual grant. He thought the city, after clearing off the liens, were entitled to an absolute right to the proceeds of the sale of the grounds.

Mr. Brunton said he thought Ald. Moore was mistaken. The land was sold to the city at a reasonable price for Fair purposes, and when the Council tried to get control of the money from the London Trust that body refused to give it up, holding that the Fair Board had a claim on the money. Ald. Moore also appeared to forget the vote by which the citizens, by a very large majority, declared the Queen's Park might be used for Fair purposes.

Mr. Cronyn said the liens on the old land were perpetual for Fair purposes.

Ald. Moore said they were. But if the city bought them off, the city was then the uncontested owner of the grounds. The vote of the Queen's Park for Fair purposes was just to burk the other scheme. He held that if the vote were to be taken on the question the verdict of the people would be adverse to mixing up the city with the Fair business. He would not vote to spend that money without a vote of the people.

Mr. Cronyn said the liens could not be valued or bought off, as they were for Fair purposes perpetual. It was inconsistent of Ald. Moore to take this stand after the relations between the Council and the Fair Board for so many years.

Mr. Brunton had no doubt that the money realized from the land was the property of the Fair organization, and could not be diverted without consent to other purposes.

Mr. Porte read a letter explaining the relation between the Toronto Fair Board and the city, and said if London could get up such a Fair it would be a good investment for the city.

Mr. John Green said it was no use continuing the discussion. If the Council took Ald. Moore's view there would be no Fair this year.

An account of $12 50, from Mr. Scragg, caretaker, was passed.

Adjourned.

FOUR YEARS OF SUFFERING.—Mrs. Torrance McNish, of Smith's Falls, Ont., after four years of intense suffering with scrofula, from which her head became bald, was cured by Burdock Blood Bitters after the best medical aid had failed. 2

The outbreak of pleuro pneumonia in Inverness is not abating. Already forty-five milk cows have been slaughtered. The local authority have made very stringent regulations, with the view of preventing the further spread of the disease.

What a comfort to be able to gratify one's appetite once more without pain, after long suffering from Dyspepsia! Victims of indigestion wise enough to accept the general verdict in favor of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure as true, and use the article, can enjoy the welcome relief. Obstinate Dyspepsia, Constipation and Biliousness, invariably yield to its potent regulating action.

FARMER REDMOND, near Sturgeon, Mo., owned a hog that was afflicted with inability to breathe through its nose, so he trained it to carry a cob in its mouth to keep its jaws open so that it could breathe. For the past four years the hog has been going around with a cob. When it wanted to eat it laid down its cob, and when it got through picked it up again.

A FAIR PROPOSITION.—There could be no offer more fair than that of the proprietors of Hagyard's Yellow Oil, who have long offered to refund every cent expended for that remedy if it fails to give satisfaction on fair trial for rheumatism, neuralgia, sore throat and all painful complaints. 2

A Manchester, Vt., poultry dealer recently sent five live ducks to Wadleigh Falls, N. H., a distance of 200 miles. One of the ducks, a black one, had not had its wings clipped. A few days later there was a great commotion among the fowls of the dealer at Manchester, and on going to ascertain the cause, he discovered the identical black duck that he had sent to New Hampshire.

I suffered for a long time from a severe, hacking cough, which was pronounced by a skillful physician to be dangerous and liable to terminate in consumption. I was completely cured by using WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY. HENRY A. BEAN, Lawrence, Mass.

William Falls, of Albany, Or., is rather unlucky. He is not yet seventeen years old, and yet he has had his right leg broken twice, his arm broken twice, his collar bone broken, and five of his ribs broken, besides a number of less important injuries too numerous to mention. He was just recovering from a recent injury, when, the other day, while wrestling with some boys, he slipped and fell, breaking a bone in his wrist.

It may be only a trifling cold, but neglect it and it will fasten its fangs in your lungs, and you will soon be carried to an untimely grave. In this country we have sudden changes and must expect to have coughs and colds. We cannot avoid them, but we can effect a cure by using Bickle's Anti Consumptive Syrup, the medicine that has never been known to fail in curing coughs, colds, bronchitis and all affections of the throat, lungs and chest.

Jack Franklin, an old colored porter in a Louisville tobacco warehouse, was sent into the cellar to remove a pile of dirt that had been long accumulating. While at work he picked up a battered army canteen, very heavy. He broke it open, and found $362.50 in nickles, dimes, paper quarters and half dollars, gold dollars, and $5 gold pieces. No one knows whose the money is, and the old man is richer than he ever expected to be.

AN OBSTINATE CASE.—"In the spring of '83 I was nearly dead, as everybody around my neighborhood knows. My trouble was cured by obstinate constipation. One bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters cured me entirely." This statement is made by Walter Stinson of Gorrie, Ont. 2

Kate Ware, a school teacher in Raynham, Mass., saw a little boy cutting his desk with his jack knife. She told him to stop, saying that if he did it again she would whittle his fingers. The boy did it again, and Miss Kate kept her word, and cut a little gash in the lad's thumb. The result was great indignation on the part of the boy's father, the school teacher's arrest, and finally her apology and payment of the costs.

HE SHOOK IT.—"I was subject to ague for two or three seasons which nothing would eradicate until I tried Burdock Blood Bitters, since which time, four years, I have had no return of the disease." W. J. Jordan, Strange, Ont. 2

David Meredith, of Rich Valley, Ind., who has always supposed that he was a full-blooded Hoosier, recently discovered that he had Cherokee Indian blood in his veins. He at once applied for the annuities and privileges accorded members of his tribe, and has just returned from a trip to Vinita, I. T., where he selected a liberal slice of choice lands, and he has received a patent for the property from United States Commissioner Aikens.

JOYFUL NEWS.—It is certainly glad tidings to the poor invalid to be informed of a remedy that will give prompt and sure relief in case of painful suffering. Such a remedy is Hagyard's Yellow Oil, adapted for internal and external use in all aches, pains lameness and soreness. It cures rheumatism, neuralgia sore throat, croup and all inflammatory pains. 2

New York, Feb. 9.—Traders were generally bullish, and at the close of yesterday's market the opinion appeared general that notwithstanding the very heavy pressure brought to bear stocks only declined fractionally, and that while the bears favored an adequate reaction the buying power was so well distributed that the orders to purchase the specialties, even on the fractional breaks, absorbed the short stock which Schutt and the room tracers felt like putting out. To-day there will be quite an important meeting of the Pacific Mail Directors, at which some settlement with the Panama Company will probably be effected. The meeting is called for noon, and in the meantime the Directors of the Panama Company will convene. It is understood that a proposition will be submitted and accepted which will provide for the payment of a future monthly subsidy of $60,000. Friends of the Pacific Mail now talk of buying extra steamers, so as to be able to carry the additional business which the passage of the Inter-State Commerce Bill will give them. There was considerable liquidation going on in St. Paul from the time the stock sold at 92¾. Philip Armour was out with his characteristic dispatches, predicting that stock will cross par this trip.

Chicago, February 9, 1.30 p. m.—Wheat market has sustained a severe break to-day and closes at inside. The pressure to sell long wheat was the most severe witnessed for many weeks, and the local crowd perceiving this hammered the market and forced it still further down. The news was almost without exceptions bearish, and the rallying influence don't appear as yet. Probably it will not come until the market becomes decidedly oversold. The weather is clear and cool but not sufficiently so to excite any apprehensions. Fears of war were apparently dissipated for the present. The decline has developed an uneasy feeling among some of the longs, and if it is not arrested will bring out more wheat. Corn was also weak and very little buying, except by shorts and one or two longs, who were endeavoring to sustain it by bidding more than buying. Provisions were stronger and higher; closed at outside.

Chicago, Feb. 9.—There was a big drop in WHEAT to-day. Shrinkage in values was steady, causing large lines of long wheat to be thrown on the market and materially assisting the break. The foreign advices were not encouraging to holders, while export clearings aggregated only 131,000 bushels from three points. Receipts at eleven points were 312,000 bushels. The "curb" late in the afternoon May was sold down to 81c, or a full decline of 1¾c during the day. CORN took the same course. OATS were pounded heavily, offerings for May delivery being very large, and causing a break of 1½c. Provisions ruled strong, and advanced sharply. PORK advanced 35c to 37½c per barrel, and closed at nearly top prices. LARD advanced 1c, and SHORT RIBS 17½c. The leading futures closed:—WHEAT, February, 75c; March, 75¾c; May, 82¾c. The 23rd General Annual Meeting —OF THE— HURON & ERIE LOAN & SAVINGS CO.,

Present:—Messrs. Wm. Saunders, W. P. R. Street, V. Cronyn, John Beattie, Hanson, Marsh, Moore, Jewell, Mackenzie, J. G. McIntosh, G. O. Challoner, W. J. McIntosh and others.

The President, Wm. Saunders, Esq., occupied the chair, the Manager, Mr. Robert W. Smylie, acting as Secretary.

The minutes of the last General Annual Meeting were read and confirmed.

The Secretary read the notice calling the meeting, and also the following Report and Financial Statement:—

The Directors of the Huron and Erie Loan and Savings Company beg to submit herewith their Twenty third Annual Report, shewing the results of the business of the Company for the past year, accompanied by the Balance Sheet of 31st December, 1886, duly audited.

From the profits of the year, your Directors have been enabled, after defraying all expenses of management, to pay two half-yearly dividends of four-and-a-half per cent. each, pay the income tax of $2,791 93, add $23 000 to the Reserve Fund, and leave a balance to the credit of Profit and Loss of $371 28

During the year there has been a small increase in the deposits in the Savings Bank, amounting to $1,084 84, a marked increase in Canadian Debentures of $29,000, and in Sterling Debentures of $120,000, and in Sterling Debentures of $120,-331 60, making a total increase to the working capital of $150,416 50

In accordance with the invariable custom of the Company, all preliminary expenses connected with the issuing of Sterling Debentures have been paid out of the profits of the year.

Notwithstanding that low rates have prevailed, the demand for money has continued, and the funds of the Company are well invested. The net cash value of the securities held by the Company at the close of the year amounted to $3,303,-680 83, being an increase since the corresponding period of last year of $223,-924 91.

The sum invested by your Directors in 1885 in Government Inscribed Stock remains undisturbed, and is at any time readily convertible.

The value of the Real Estate held by the Company, other than the office premises, is $2,635.05. In this sum is included all the properties remaining unsold which have come into possession of the Company, by foreclosure, failure to obtain purchasers under power of sale, or otherwise.

The net losses for the year have amounted to $963.94, a very small sum when compared with the total investments of the Company. The system of inspection by the Company's own inspectors of securities offered to the Company has been continued.

Your Directors desire to bear testimony to the very efficient manner in which the Manager, and the other officers of the Company have discharged their respective duties.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

WM SAUNDERS, President.

We hereby certify that we have carefully audited the Books and Accounts of the Huron and Erie Loan and Savings Company for the year ending 31st December, 1886. GEO. F. JEWELL, F.C.A., W. M. MOORE, Auditors.

In moving the adoption of the Report, the President said:—

JAMES PYLE'S
PEARLINE
BEST COMPOUND EVER INVENTED FOR WASHING AND CLEANING
IN HARD OR SOFT, HOT OR COLD WATER
Without Harm to FABRIC or HANDS.
SAVES TIME, LABOR and SOAP amazingly, and is of great value to housekeepers. Sold by all Grocers, but see that VILE COUNTERFEITS are not urged upon you. PEARLINE is the ONLY SAFE ARTICLE, and ALWAYS bears the name of JAMES PYLE, New York.

The Report which has just been read to you, containing the results of the business of this Company for the past year, must be gratifying to all the Shareholders, since it shows that an increasing and profitable business has been transacted.

To the net cash value of the securities of the Company there has been added $223,924, making a total of $3,303 680 83, which is secured by real estate valued by the Inspectors of the Company at $7,153.595 The demand for money has enabled the Directors to find safe investments for all repayments received on mortgages, and also for the increase in the working Capital, amounting to $159,-416 50, which has been mainly derived from the sale of Debentures. During the year applications for loans have been received to the extent of $1,076,420, of which $643,155 was accepted and $433,265 declined

When the estimate of profits of the half year, ending June 30th, 1886, was submitted to the Directors the important subject of the dividend was carefully considered. Seeing that the rates of interest on money continued low, with no apparent probability of an advance, it was unanimously resolved to adopt what was believed to be a prudent course, to anticipate the gradually lessened earning powers of the Company and reduce the dividend from 5 to 4½ per cent. half-yearly. This has been done with the hope of so strengthening the Reserve Fund as to make the present dividend as permanent as possible, a course which I trust will be approved of by all.

Toward the close of 1886 I accepted an appointment from the Canadian Government as the Director of the Experimental Farms proposed to be established in several Provinces of the Dominion. This work will be very onerous and involve much responsibility, and will make it impracticable for me to undertake any other duties which would prove a material tax upon my time. Under the circumstances I shall be unable to continue to act as President of this Company, but as I expect to visit London frequently during this coming year, if the Shareholders think proper to elect me again as a Director, with the understanding that such service only will be expected of me as I can render without interfering with the efficient discharge of my public duties, I shall be glad to continue to occupy a seat at the Board for another term.

Since I took office as your President in 1878, the Huron & Erie Loan and Savings Company has made substantial progress. The working Capital has been augmented from $2,109,473 24 to $3,407,888 99, being a net gain of $1,298,415.75 This large sum has been made up from different sources; the funds in the Savings Bank having increased from $833,398.84 to $1,073 556.16, an addition of $238,157 32 In 1878 the sum of $16,452.29 covered all the Debentures issued by the Company, whereas the present statement shows under this item the large sum of $753,948 33, to the Capital Stock there has been added the sum of $122,238, while the Reserve Fund has been nearly doubled since that date, having grown from $220 000 to $417,000. These figures will, I trust, afford convincing proof that your Directors and officers have not during the past nine years been negligent of the trust committed to their care, but have endeavored to their utmost to make the best use of all the funds with which they have been entrusted for the benefit of the shareholders. I have much pleasure, gentlemen, in moving the adoption of the report.

The motion was seconded by the Vice-President, who referred at length to the items in the report, and carried unanimously.

Moved by Mr. V. Cronyn, seconded by John Beattie:—

The shareholders of the Huron & Erie L. & S. Co. desire to record their high appreciation of the valuable services rendered the Company during the past eight years by the President, Mr. Wm. Saunders, and referring to the intimation he has just given: That his duty to the public, in the important and honorable position he has been called upon by the Government of the country to fill, will not permit his again accepting at the hands of his co-Directors the Presidency of the Company. While congratulating the country upon having secured as Director of the Government Experimental Farms the services of one who has proved himself so able and conscientious in every walk of life, the shareholders cannot but regard his vacation of the Presidency with the deepest regret, nevertheless it is some satisfaction to know that, at least for the current year, his invaluable experience and sound judgment will still be available by the Company, and that some months at least must elapse before his permanent withdrawal from London to his new sphere of duty can take place, and in token of their appreciation of his supervision of the Company during the past year the shareholders beg his acceptance of the sum of $1,000, payment of which is hereby authorised from the funds of the Company. Carried unanimously.

The Manager, briefly for himself and his officers, expressed his unfeigned regret that Mr. Saunders should be resigning the Presidency.

FREE PRESS CORRESPONDENCE.

The Voters' List.

To the Editor of the Free Press.

SIR,—Kindly inform me in your valuable paper:—

1.—Which voters' list is being used in the present Dominion election; the list of 1885 or the list of 1886?; also,

2.—Who are entitled to vote? I mean in reference to wage earners and tenents of houses where the taxes are included in the rent. Yours, respectfully,

ELECTOR.

ANSWER.—1. The list is prepared by the Revising Barrister from the assessment of 1886. 2. Any one paying a rental of $2 per month, or earning a salary of $300 a year, is eligible as a voter. The mode of paying household taxes is not an ingredient in the law.

THE PORT STANLEY FLOOD.—County Engineer Bell, of Elgin, visited Port Stanley yesterday morning. He reports the flood to be the worst known, being two feet higher than ever previously. There is an ice jam extending from one fourth of a mile above the iron bridge over Kettle Creek, on the L. & P. S. R., clear up to the lake. The iron bridge was sprung 18 inches off its moorings, preventing the train from coming to this city. Mr. Lucas set to work and had it repaired sufficiently at noon to allow trains to go over. The gravel road from the toll gate to the village was flooded to a depth of six feet, but has receded somewhat, traffic still being blocked by large deposits of ice. The piers of the lake are covered with ice. Nearly every house in the lower lying section of the village is flooded and surrounded by water. The road leading from Batts' hotel to the village is also flooded with from four to six feet of water. The railroad platform at the station was submerged, and a foot of water covered the floors of the Franklin house. All the bridges are in good shape.

Fram was elected Secretary. Moved by Wm. Taylor, and seconded by Robert Stinson, that the so-called Ross Bible be dismissed from this school, and a copy of the Holy Bible be substituted in lieu thereof. Carried unanimously."

Mr. James Burris occupied the chair, and a good programme was rendered, comprising duets by Mrs. and Mr. Marshall, music by the Italian Band, and recitations by Miss Lily Evans. After singing "God Save the Queen" the meeting closed.

GENERAL CABLE NEWS.

IMPROVEMENT IN THE RELATIONS BETWEEN RUSSIA AND AUSTRIA.

The Tone of the French Press More Pacific—France Making Extensive Purchases of Horses in Spain—Mutiny Among Inmates of an Irish Workhouse—Arrival of Italian Troops at Massowah.

London, Feb 17, midnight.

Gladstone to Bright.

Mr. Gladstone has written a letter referring to John Bright's recent communication, in which he says he is glad that Mr. Bright feels for the Irish people whom he may hereafter trust.

The King Praises His Troops.

King Humbert of Italy has issued an order of the day to the army, praising the Italian troops who displayed such gallantry and steadiness in the recent battles with the Abyssinians.

Russia and Austria.

It is semi officially stated at St. Petersburg that the relations between Austria and Russia are so much improved that it is no longer expected that Austria would make a Russian occupation of Bulgaria a casus belli.

Celebrating the Jubilee.

Yesterday and to-day were observed as holidays at Madras in celebration of the Queen's Jubilee. The feasting and rejoicing were universal. The native quarters were gaily decorated and illuminated in honor of the occasion.

More Peaceful.

Rentes closed 78 francs 12½c on the Paris Bourse. The rise is attributed to the peaceful character of articles in the French press in regard to the relations between France and Germany, and to orders from the Provinces for the purchases for investment.

Struck Amidships.

The French steamer Burmondis, while leaving Naples for New York with 834 passengers on board, was struck amidships by the spur of the man-of-war Italia, and was so badly damaged that the Captain beached her. The main and after holds are full of water.

France Purchasing Horses.

The North German Gazette publishes advices from Barcelona, to the effect that expensive purchases of horses by the French Government have been made in Spain, and that sheep dealers of Alsace-Lorraine who supply France are purchasing all the sheep and cattle they can secure.

In the Soudan.

Advices from Massowah say 800 Italian troops, with Gatling guns, landed on the 15th, and that 2,000 more men were expected. The Italians have raised a corps of 1,000 bashi-bazouks and have armed the inhabitants of Massowah. Ras Aloula has gone to meet the King of Abyssinia, who is displeased on account of the attack upon the Italians.

Mutinous Paupers.

Paupers at New Ross, Ireland, workhouse, yesterday broke into the Council Chamber of the Poor Guardians while that body was in session, and pelted them with various missles. The master of the workhouse received a severe beating from the assailants. The police were powerless to prevent the outrage. Reinforcements have been summoned. The paupers are still mutinous, and are holding the workhouse against authorities.—(Later.)—Quiet has been restored. Ten of the rioters were arrested.

The Case of Dillon et al.

A Dublin despatch says:—In the case of the Government against John Dillon et al., the prosecution to-day applied for an order compelling the defendants to be present during the trial. The Court refused application. Archbishop Walsh has subscribed $50 to the defence fund in behalf of Dillon, O'Brien, Redmond, Crilly and others, who are being prosecuted by the Crown on the charge of conspiracy. The archbishop says he sends the contribution as a protest against the insult to many members of his flock by the packing of the jury chosen to try the defendants.

Bismarck and his 10 points.

Bismarck, referring to assertions of members of the Opposition that the Government in the event of obtaining a majority in the new Reichstag intended to adopt various unpopular measures, declared that the political well had been so filled with nauseating matter by opponents of the Government that it was poisoning the energies of the Empire, and that the warfare being waged by the Opposition against the prosperity of the Empire was both premeditated and systematic. In conclusion the Chancellor said all statements except the intention of the Government to prolong the anti Socialist law are inventions for the purpose of trying to defeat the Government at the polls on Monday next.

Cable Notes.

Evictions at Dingle, County Kerry, have been temporarily abandoned.

The steamship Great Eastern was sold at auction at Liverpool to-day for $130,000.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

THE ADDRESS IN REPLY TO THE QUEEN'S SPEECH ADOPTED.

Parnellite Amendment Rejected—The Procedure Rules to be Given Precedence—The Dublin Conspiracy Trial.

London, Feb. 17.—In the House of Commons to-night, L. L. Dillwyn (Liberal) moved to adjourn the debate on the address in reply to the Queen's speech for the purpose of discussing irregularities in the conspiracy trial at Dublin, by which the interests of certain members of the House of Commons were prejudiced.

The Speaker declined to put the motion or to permit debate on the subject. He said that according to a previous decision a motion to adjourn could not be put on a subject respecting which a motion stood on the order book, and that as Mr. Sexton had already placed a motion referring to jury packing, Mr. Dillwyn's motion could not be entertained.

W. H. Smith moved that the discussion of the rules of procedure have precedence over all orders of the day. He said the prolonged debate on the address showed the necessity of putting some limit to the speaking, which had become prolix.

Sir William Vernon Harcourt said the Opposition did not desire to place obstacles in the way of the progress of business. He hoped the matter of procedure would not be made a party question.

Mr. Labouchere objected to giving a blank check of this sort to the Government, thereby permitting them to monopolize every day with the discussion of procedure rules. He did not think the Government was able to effect good legislation. The session ought, therefore, in his opinion, to be made an educational session.

An amendment that a day be granted for debating the Welsh Disestablishment Bill was carried by 261 to 158.

Mr. Parnell asked the Government to concede time to discuss his proposal for admitting Irish leaseholders to the benefits of the Land Act of 1881. Under Mr. Smith's motion, he said, it would be five weeks before any Irish question would have a chance to be heard. He therefore moved "That the rules of procedure be not considered before the Government discloses the nature of their proposed legislation for Ireland" (cheers). Continuing, he said he was not disposed to surrender the interests of Ireland in order to give the Government precedence for their procedure proposals. The motion had been sprung on the House suddenly, in defiance of the fact that there were no precedents for such an interruption of the debate on the address. The affairs of Ireland were in too critical a condition to be thus put aside. The West Port Board of Guardians had just received notice of intended evictions of one thousand persons, while Lord Cork was asking for police to assist in further evictions. Was it at such a time as this that Irish members were debarred from bringing forward grievances?

Mr. Smith said he thought the proceedings of the last three weeks were sufficient to show how selfish it was of the Government to defer Irish legislation until the rules of procedure were settled.

Mr. Parnell's resolution was rejected by a vote of 242 to 107.

The announcement of the result was received with cheers by the Conservatives.

Mr. Smith announced that the Government would begin giving precedence to rules of procedure on Monday.

Mr. Dillon complained of the removal of the venue of his trial, and accused High Sheriff Hamilton of having dismissed the sub-sheriff who had compiled the jury panels for 30 years, in order to appoint Captain Hamilton, who was a personal enemy of Mr. Dillon.

Here Sir Michael Hicks-Beach interposed and said Captain Hamilton had not been appointed sub-sheriff.

Mr. Dillon replied it was a matter of common knowledge that the post had been offered to Captain Hamilton. He proceeded to refer to the jury panel when the Speaker ruled him out of order. Mr. Dillon bowed to the chair, but said he hardly expected that he would be allowed to refer to his being tried by a jury that had been deliberately and maliciously packed by his enemies (loud Parnellite cheers).

The Speaker again interposed, and in reply to Messrs Dillon and Kelly ruled that the subject could not be referred to in any way.

The Speaker then suggested the putting of the question on the address.

Arthur O'Conner moved to adjourn, on the ground that the Parnellites had not been fairly treated.

The motion was rejected by 261 to 119.

After another attempt to continue the debate, the Speaker said it was evidently the sense of the House that the subject had been sufficiently discussed.

Mr. Smith moved "that the question be now put."

The motion was carried by 289 to 74, and the address was adopted by a vote of 288 to 70, amid Conservative cheers.

The Government's double victory to-night was partly due to the continued disorganization of the Liberals, the Conservative whips being aware that Mr Smith would declare urgency for the giving of precedence to the discussion of the procedure rules over other business kept a full complement of members ready. The Liberals had issued no call for the attendance of members, and were taken by surprise, their benches being almost empty. The brunt of the debate fell upon the Parnellites, and before the division on Parnell's amendment the bulk of the Liberals had left the House. After the division the Parnellites held a hurried conference and decided to try obstruction tactics in order to prolong the debate. Mr. Smith will counteract this move by insisting on precedence for procedure on Monday.

Alds. Voisard, Brennan, Butler, Lawrie, and Begg, of St. Catharines, have been served with writs of quo warranto for alleged illegality in their election. The plea is insufficient property qualifications. In one or two of the cases the proceedings are said to hang upon slim technicalities and may not be sustained.

SUPPORTERS OF SIR JOHN.

MESSRS. MARA AND ROSS GOOD CONSERVATIVES.

A Couple of Telegrams that Explain Themselves.

Toronto, Feb. 17.—(Special.)—Sir John Macdonald has received the following telegrams from Messrs. Mara, of Yale, B. C., and Ross, of Lisgar, Man., who have been elected by acclamation and whom the Grit press classified as Independents.

"Winnipeg, Feb. 16, 1887.

"Regarding the Globe's classification of me, I am a strong supporter of your Government; was elected as such in the face of the strong opposition from a local Grit paper. I will continue to support the Government, thinking its policy much better for this country than that of the Opposition. "A. W. ROSS."

Mr. Mara telegraphs from Kamloops, under the date of the 16th instant, that he has been elected by acclamation, and that he hopes his seat in the House of Commons may be as near as possible to Sir John.

MONTREAL.

Items of Interest From the Canadian Metropolis.

Montreal, Feb 17.—The returns of traffic of the G. T. R. for last week amounted to $310,045, against $294,000 for corresponding period of last year, showing an increase of $16,025.

Wm. Spears, who was in the employ of R. H. White & Co., of Boston, for 25 years, and who skipped on Christmas Eve, taking with him about $3,500, was enticed over the line and arrested by a Boston detective who gained his confidence.

Thomas Loughran, of New York, was arrested at the Windsor Hotel on a writ of capias. It appears that a few days ago Mr. Loughran arrived from New York and registered at the Windsor, but shortly after his arrival he complained to the hotel authorities that he had missed several valuable diamonds, and that he suspected a young servant girl named Elizabeth Grace. The matter was then fully investigated, but shortly after the supposed missing diamonds were found by detectives in Mr. Loughran's own trunk. The servant girl was at once exonerated from all blame, and, as a result, she now, through her attorneys, sues for $400 damages, and, inasmuch as Mr. Loughran had no seizable property in the Dominion, she had him arrested on a capias to-day. Mr. Loughran gave his personal check to the Sheriff and furnished the necessary bondsmen.

His Excellency the Governor-General and party attended a ball given in their honor at the Kennel to-night.

TORONTO.

Paris Curlers Win the Ontario Tankard—Fatal Coasting Accident—A Family Nearly Suffocated by Coal Gas—Langtry vs. Dumoulin—The Grenadiers' Ball.

Toronto, Feb. 17.—The second draw for the final competition for the Ontario Tankard was played here this morning, resulting in Paris defeating Orillia by 50 points to 26, and St. Mary's defeating Toronto Caledonians by 37 to 34. The final between Paris and St Mary's was played this afternoon, resulting in a victory for Paris by 41 to 38. Paris therefore gets the tankard.

Yesterday afternoon Alfred, the eight-year-old son of R A Harman, Huron street, went coasting with some playmates on a hill on the east side of the cricket ground. While little Harman was descending the hill on his sled a pair of bobs carrying four boys collided with him. The sharp runner of the bob ran into his abdomen and he died this morning.

James Robb, Centre street, and his wife and seven children narrowly escaped falling victims to coal gas, through neglect to shut off a parlor baseburner. When Robb awakened this morning he could barely manage to crawl to the windows and throw them open. He discovered his wife and children lying insensible on the floors of the bedrooms. Medical assistance was promptly obtained and the children were soon out of danger, but Mrs. Robb is in a critical condition, her recovery being very doubtful.

The Mayor to-day received a requisition signed by a large number of lady ratepayers, asking him to call a public meeting to discuss the question of shorter hours for female clerks and dry goods store employes. The meeting will be held some evening next week.

The Vestry of St. James' Cathedral met to-night and discussed the situation of the now celebrated case of Langtry vs. Dumoulin. It was decided to petition Her Majesty's Privy Council in England for leave to appeal against the judgment of the Supreme Court. Rev. Canon Dumoulin, Rector, protested against this course, and said he washed his hands of the whole affair.

The Royal Grenadiers' ball to-night in the Pavilion Music Hall was undoubtedly the leading social event of the season. The Hall was crowded with richly-attired ladies and the various military uniforms and sombre black of the civilian made up a most striking and charming scene. Over 300 couples were present, among the guests being Lieut.-Governor and Mrs. Robinson, Major-General and Mrs. Middleton, Col. and Mrs. Otter and most of our leading citizens with their ladies.

Arrests continue in German frontier towns of persons suspected of being in the confidence of M. Deroulede. The Paris police are seising copies of a pictoral brochure entitled "Bismarck's Nightmare," which has lately been hawked on the boulevards.

The Egyptian Question.

The withdrawal of the annual subvention to Egypt has not been formally decided upon. Sir Evelyn Baring, British diplomatic agent at Cairo, has informed the French agent that Sir Henry Drummond Wolffe's proposals imply neither the recalling of British troops nor the fixing of a date for their withdrawal from Egypt.

A Loan for the Congo Free State.

The Belgian Minister of Finance yesterday asked the Chambers for authority to issue a loan on behalf of the Congo Free State. The Bill does not mention the amount of the loan, but it is believed to be between 80,000,000 and 100,000,000 francs, part of the money to be used in constructing railways and part to make up deficit in the Congo budget.

Murdered by a Mob.

An Odessa dispatch says the recent riot at the Demidoff spinning mills was occasioned by the discharge of 2,500 women and children in accordance with a new law. Chief Orloff and his assistant, Sakaroff, were murdered by the mob and other officials had narrow escapes. The offices at the mills were completely wrecked and the entire plant, including machinery, was demolished. The outbreak was fomented by Socialists.

The Queen's Jubilee.

A Calcutta despatch says:—The Viceroy received numerous deputations until late last evening, when there was an exhibition of fireworks, the natives displaying unbounded enthusiasm. At Bombay the Duke and Duchess of Connaught and the Governor drove in state through the streets and received an ovation from immense crowds that lined their route. In the evening the city was illuminated and there was a brilliant display of fireworks.

"The Latest Peace Swindle."

The Berlin Post has a brief article entitled "The Latest Peace Swindle," warning the country not to be lulled by any deceptive appearances. The Post says it still depends on the elections whether the country will have to prepare for war within a period much shorter than is generally supposed. Bismarck has just caused the publication of a resolution adopted by the Federal Council in favor of abolishing the duty on wool, hoping thereby to gain votes for the Government.

A Commission of Inquiry.

Herr Tissendorf, Chief Procurator of the Imperial tribunal at Leipsic, Commissioner Tausch, of the Criminal Inquiry Department, and public Prosecutor Vacano held a conference at Strasburg to-day. Herr Tissendorf started for Mulhausen and Herr Tausch for Metz. The supposed object of their journey is to make inquiries respecting the secret communications between German and French Anarchists, and concerning the reported conspiracy between the French Patriotic League and its adherents in Alsace. Prices on the Berlin Bourse are stronger, owing to large rebuying by operators for a fall. Russian securities advanced ½, Hungarian and Italian securities ¼.

Quiet in the Soudan

Gen. Gene, commander of the Italian troops at Massowah, telegraphs under date of last Sunday: "The situation is unchanged. Rasaloula's camp is still at Gura, but Rasaloula has gone to Makalee. He was summoned by King John of Abyssinia. Count Salembini arrived Thursday from Asmara with a verbal demand from Rasaloula to imprison Mohamed Bey, who, Rasaloula says, incited him to attack us to prevent our invading the country. Count Salembini confirming this, I arrested and imprisoned Mohamed Bey and informed Rasaloula that I did so and that it rests with me to punish Mohamed Bey, as he is in my service. I asked Rasaloula to release Count Salembini and his companions. Count Salembini has confirmed the information that only the usual garrisons are stationed at Ghinda and Asmara and that Rasaloula considers the campaign ended. Count Salembini has returned to Asmara."

THE EXPERIMENTAL FARM.

The Seed Department Ready for Operations—Directions for Farmers

Ottawa, Feb. 17.—The seed-testing department of the Government Experimental Farm near this city is now ready for work. Bulletin No. 1, just issued by Prof. Saunders, says of this department:—"It has been undertaken for the purpose of determining the value of the agricultural seeds which are sold to farmers from year to year, and to save them from some of the losses to which they are annually subject, by using old and inferior seeds. Every farmer in Canada will have the privilege and right to send to the Experimental Farm samples of any seeds of which he may desire to know the germinating power, and it is hoped that all will avail themselves freely of the advantage offered. A suitable glass structure has been erected for this work of a sufficient size to admit of the testing of a very large number of samples at one time. The returns of the germinating power of seeds will not be based upon a single test, but every sample will be tested in duplicate, once in the soil and again out of the soil, in the most approved form of apparatus devised for this purpose. Small seeds will also be examined for impurities, such as sand, dust, foreign seeds, chaff, etc., and the proportion of these given.

"The samples sent should be a fair average of the whole of the seed from which it is taken. The quantities which should be forwarded will vary in proportion to the size of the seed. Of large seeds such as corn, peas, wheat, barley, oats, etc., about four ounces will be required, while of the smaller seeds, such as grass, clover, turnip, carrot, etc., from half an ounce to an ounce will be sufficient. The larger seeds may be put into small cotton bags, each marked with the name of the seed, and these smaller bags enclosed in a larger canvas bag provided with a tag on which the address may be written. The smaller seeds may be folded in stout paper, each parcel marked, and the whole enclosed in a strong envelope. Packages and communications should be addressed:—'Experimental Farm, Ottawa, Canada.' All mail matter will be carried free to and from the Experimental Farm within the limits of the general postal regulations as to the size and weight of packages."

FURTHER PARTICULARS.

Lavant, Ont., Feb. 17.—The accident at Wilbur was caused by loose ground falling from the roof of the pit. The accident occurred at half-past one o'clock Thursday morning, at which time a thick scale weighing several tons was precipitated below on the unconscious miners working round the skip car. The roof had been examined a week previously by the captain and pronounced secure, but owing to the surface water draining through by the late changes in the weather, the mass became loosened and fell with the sad result. The alarm was quickly given and the captain collected a force of men and proceeded to recover the bodies from beneath the debris. Five men were found dead and two others slightly injured by bruises on the legs.

NORTH-WEST NEWS.

The Winnipeg Murder Hoax—Fire at Portage La Prairie.

Winnipeg, Feb. 17.—Nothing new or important has occurred in connection with the murder hoax in this city. Schofield has been released by the Minneapolis authorities and has skipped out. Miller, the unfortunate night watchman, has been released. In consequence of the discovery of blood marks on his clothes the matter might have gone hard with him but for Schofield's appearance.

Rochester, N. Y., Feb. 17.—Dr. Swift, of Warner Observatory, has received a telegram from Prof. Barnard, of Vanderbilt University Observatory, Nashville, Tenn., announcing the discovery last evening of another comet. This entitles him to another Warner prize of $100, making $1,300 in all.

LIBERAL SLUGGERS.

Nightly Attractions at the Young Liberal Club.

MR HYMAN'S PALS IN THE PUGILISTIC ROLE.

The young men of the Liberal Club have a perfect right to entertain themselves as they see fit at their own rooms; but there are many citizens who would not agree with their peculiar tastes.

On Tuesday night the chief attraction at their rooms was a sparring match between Mr. William O'Hearn and another young man, which ended with the latter having his eye badly cut.

On Wednesday night the Club was entertained to a boxing mill between Jack Stewart and a man named Harding.

While this was going on, Thos. Tracy, one of the gentlemen who occupied a prominent place on Mr. Hyman's platform in No. 3 Ward on Tuesday evening, was engaged in kicking the window of the Conservative Committee rooms into pieces, and, backed up by a crowd of Mr. Hyman's Committeemen, dared the "Tories" out to fight.

A member of the Liberal Club made the boast, a night or two ago—"We've got the sluggers on our side, and we'll teach the Tories whether they can run this town."

It is understood that these athletes with pugilistic tendencies are to be used in No. 3 Ward on Tuesday next. The peace-loving electors of that ward, however, will not be intimidated by any such bullying, but will poll their votes in spite of these pugilistic young men, if the whole police force is needed to protect them.

THE BOTHWELL FIGHT.

Mr. Mills to Take Leave of the Riding—No More Philosophy Wanted.

From a Correspondent.

Florence, Feb. 17.—It needs not the wisdom of a soothsayer to foretell the fate of Mr. Mills in Bothwell. In almost every section of the Riding his opponent, Dr. Mitchell, is meeting with such assurances of confidence and support from the electors as to certainly forebode defeat on the 22nd, for the philosopher and theorist, who, unlike his leader, Mr. Blake, has in his nineteen years' tenure of office been unable to see any benefit whatsoever in the National Policy, but is as ready now as he was when the scheme was first propounded to wipe it off the statute books, and thus again disturb the present feeling of confidence in trade and commerce. Mr. Mills, too, poses as a supporter of Mr. Blake's Aurora vision — Canada to negotiate her own treaties—which meets with just as little favor among his constituents as his opposition to the present tariff. When Mr. Mills tells the electors that they are already over-taxed, and then unfolds a scheme whereby Canada will be called upon to support an immense array of officials in the various trade centres of the world, as well as to equip and maintain a navy to enforce those treaties, they see nothing in it but increased taxation with no additional benefits to accrue to the country. His reputation for veracity seems to suffer greatly, too, and association with that Prince of Prevaricators, M. C. Cameron, has had the effect of prompting "D. M." to state anything, true or not, if perchance his cause may be even temporarily strengthened. Upon investigation people are unable to confirm his statement that farmers are taxed 60 per cent. on articles which they require; neither do they accept his assertion that Sir John burned reports and communications relating to North-west matters rather than submit them to Parliament.

The electors of Bothwell are determined that they shall be no longer represented by a man who, though willing to serve the Mowat administration when handsomely feed, has never yet thought it necessary to assist the riding in any way, and has been unable to secure any grant to improve the navigation of its rivers, though Mr. Smith, the energetic representative for Kent, has had expended over $8,000 in dredging alone. The way of the unfaithful is hard, and Mr. Mills feels it in the present contest.

The Grand Lodge, A. O. U. W.

Toronto, Feb. 17.—The Ontario Grand Lodge, A. O. U. W., at this morning's session elected their officers as follows:—Grand Master, H. B. Taylor, Whitby (re-elected by acclamation); Grand Foreman, Daniel Spry, Barrie; Grand Overseer, Rev. E. B. Crawford, Brockville (re-elected by acclamation); Grand Recorder, M. D. Carder (re-elected by acclamation); Grand Receiver, James Rushton, Ridgetown (re-elected by acclamation). At last night's session it was decided to send congratulations to Her Majesty on the occasion of her jubilee year.

Kelly made a statement that he was a city official of Cincinnati; that a paper there assailed his party and printed infamous lies about him. He was not a murderer, but his brother John killed an antagonist. The story that he was a thief was false. He was implicated in an election row, when a man was pretty badly cut. When his trial came on he saw too many professional jurymen on the panel and skinned out.

The rival teams digested their very hardest, but the non-smokers outdistanced the others by the space of one hour.

Liver Complaint

Is more surely and speedily cured by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, than by any other remedy. "I was a great sufferer from liver troubles, and never found anything that gave me permanent relief until I began taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla, about two years ago. A few bottles of this medicine produced a radical cure.—Wm. E. Baker, 155 W. Brookline st., Boston, Mass.

A Remarkable Cure.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla has cured me of as bad a case of Abscess of the Liver as any human being could be afflicted with and live. I was confined to the house for two years, and, for the last three months of that time, was unable to leave my bed. Four physicians treated me without giving relief, and, in fact, nothing helped me, until I tried Ayer's Sarsaparilla. After using a quarter of a bottle of this medicine I began to feel better, and every additional dose seemed to bring new health and strength. I used three bottles, and am now able to attend to my business. I walk to town—one mile distant—and return, without difficulty. Ayer's Sarsaparilla has accomplished all this for me. —W. S. Miner, Carson City, Mich.

A complaint from which so many are suffering that they really do not know how to treat properly is Constipation. Pause. Harsh mineral purgatives are certainly injurious to the health; but if vegetable species are resorted to they will, if used properly, effect a cure. The nicest combination of herbs and roots yet discovered will be found in McGregor's Speedy Cure. It does not contain one grain of mineral matter. It restores vitality to the system; tones the stomach, heals and strengthens the bowels, which have become weakened by successive ravages of mineral purgatives. It also acts as a blood purifier; as a remedy for Dyspepsia and Indigestion it remains unexcelled. Ladies of delicate health will find this a safe and unfailing remedy. Sold in 50c and $1.00 bottles at Harkness & Co.'s drug store. 4eod

For Breaking Faith With the Members of the Trades and Labor Council—Mr. Warren Sits on It Heavily—"Locking the Stable Door after the Horse is Stolen," etc.

A meeting of the Trades and Labor Council was held in their rooms, Masonic Temple buildings, last night. Mr. Wm. Idelstine occupied the chair, and there were present in addition to the officers a large number of members.

Upon motion the President and Bro. Tweed were appointed to accompany the deputation to Toronto on behalf of the School of Science.

A discussion ensued in regard to the petition adopted by the Council at its last meeting, and also to their action on a resolution introduced in condemnation of the FREE PRESS.

Mr. Fleming believed the Council had no right to take action on any reports or communications received from Assemblies unless properly vouched for.

Mr. Hugh McLean spoke of the number of signatures to the petition for a meeting. He explained a few of the public issues of the day, thoroughly vindicating the wisdom and liberality of the Government in dealing with the workingmen. It had been charged that the FREE PRESS had done wrong to the workingmen.

The minutes were read and adopted of last meeting, after which the preamble and resolution introduced at last meeting by Hsm Hunter was read as follows:—

"Whereas, the London FREE PRESS has on several occasions during the present election contest published articles injurious to an important industry in the city—the shoe-making trade—and calculated to drive a portion of the trade away from London, therefore, be it

"Resolved—That this Council hereby express its strong disapproval of those articles, and trust that for the future neither the FREE PRESS nor any other paper will for sake of party advantage seek to injure any of London's industries in this way."

Mr. C. Dawson moved a resolution to the effect that in the opinion of the Council the resolution condemning the FREE PRESS was wrong.

Mr. Warren said the Advertiser had not done right in publishing the proceedings of last meeting after promising not to do so, and he thought the action was not square. He strongly took exception throughout his remarks to the statements of the Advertiser.

Mr. McKeown wished to know why the FREE PRESS was particularly mentioned.

Mr. D. H Warren said if there was anything the Advertiser had published that had not been passed by the Council it should be condemned; if not it should not be.

Mr. James Smith thought the first question should be disposed of.

Mr Warren claimed a right to speak, and raised the point of order.

The Chairman said there must be a motion before the chair.

Mr. Dawson thought they should consider what was to come afterwards as to the newspapers.

Mr. Warren thought the reason of their condemning the Advertiser was that the Trades and Labor Council should not be made the tid-bit of any party. The Advertiser had construed to their own advantage some of the sayings made here as deserving of the strongest condemnation. He wished it distinctly understood that he was here as a member independent of party or politics

Mr. C. Dawson, as a member, wished to give his opinion. He found just now in the Order nothing but politics from the start to the end. He strongly condemned the course of the Young Liberals and of the Advertiser in its article on the "Kazoo" organ.

Mr. Griffith did not propose to go into politics He simply advocated the cause of the workingmen.

The Secretary said he could blame the reporter of no paper for misunderstanding what was done at last meeting, as he could scarcely understand it himself, but the FREE PRESS mentioned it in a wrong form.

Mr. J. McKeown moved that the first part of the resolution be struck out. Mr. Burns seconded.

Mr. Dawson objected that it was sought to make political capital out of the Council.

Mr. Shaw, as one who was present at last meeting, said the Tiser report was substantially correct, only it did not go far enough, for the most essential point had been omitted. If they expected to advance the interests of labor they must leave all their political feelings aside, and go in together. He thought it was child's play to support any papers that were not advocating the cause of labor, and believed it was time for them to strike out on a new line.

The Secretary believed each paper would do all for party.

In further amendment Mr. Warren said he would move that this Council hereafter take no action in regard to political questions, and request the reporters of the Advertiser and FREE PRESS to insert this resolution. He believed they should meet as brothers and not as wolves to gobble up one another. He urged they should let all political matters drop as if nothing had happened and join for the cause of labor.

The amendment was seconded by Messrs. Matthews and Hodgens.

Mr. Matthews said the clause was right with the exception of that in regard to the Hyman Shoe Factory. He thought it was quite unnecessary to put in the Advertiser the letter they did on this subject A deputation went to the editor of the Advertiser, and on his honor he promised to keep it out of the evening issue. The deputation relied on that promise, and asked to have it kept out altogether, as they were advised it would only end in introducing politics. They were willing to have wrongs put right, but not at their political expense.

Mr. Griffith fully endorsed the ideas of the previous speaker. He believed both political parties were trying to use the workingmen, and the sooner they dropped politics the better it would be for themselves.

Mr. Hugh McLean thought it was time to wipe out all discussion on the matter, for they were asked to condemn a newspaper without knowing whether it was wrong or not. He asked was it intended to quash all proceedings or to condemn the Advertiser.

A voice To condemn the Tiser.

Mr. Warren noticed that a very good feeling existed among the members of the Council, and he wished to sink all political differences existing between them. He did not wish to stir up any rottenness or ill-feeling, but wished all to be united, and to let their differences sink to oblivion.

Mr. McKeown said he wished to know particularly whether any member had any objection to him as a member of the Council.

Chorus of voices—"No."

The amendment of Mr. Warren to lay aside all political matters was adopted by a large majority, and the meeting adjourned.

They speak about matrimonial ties and political ties, but the neck ties which W. L. Graham displays in his window at 25 cents each, get away with them all.

AN OLD-TIMER.

Grand Gathering in the City Hall.

SOLID NUMBER 1 & 2.

Stirring Speeches and Unbounded Enthusiasm.

THE ISSUES PRESENTED

By Messrs. Carling, Meredith, O'Meara Lowe, Skinner, Cousins and Bayly.

Grit Rowdyism Exposed—Mr. Hyman's Patronizing Ways—The Country Loyal to Sir John—Good News from Other Constituencies—Confident of Success.

The City Hall never held a larger nor more enthusiastic gathering of electors than it did last night. The occasion was the meeting of Mr. Carling's supporters in Nos. 1 and 2 Wards, and from the time the proceedings began until they closed, the building trembled with the enthusiastic cheering of the vast audience. It was not an assemblage of boys, but of the solid, intelligent electors of the banner Wards of the city. The speeches were excellent. They were spirited and brimful of loyalty and hope for the country. In this respect it was in bright contrast with the Grit meeting in the Opera House, where the political rubbish heaps were picked over and petty scandals magnified before the audience. The meeting began with many prominent citizens on the platform, every seat in the Hall occupied, and hundreds crowding for standing room. It was a thorough old-timer, such as have always preceded the long line of Conservative victories in the past.

Ald. Greer was elected Chairman, and in opening the meeting said it was quite unnecessary that he should make any remarks.

Mr. James M. Cousins was the first speaker, and said he was willing to do anything to help the cause of Mr. Carling He had every respect for Mr. Hyman, but he was on the wrong side and surrounded by a bad crowd (cheers). He had every confidence in the result on the 22nd. He had never seen a time when the Conservative were more united than at present (cheers). They were not making public displays, but were waiting in a vast majority to elect Mr. Carling as in the past (great cheering) Mr. Cousins pointed to the evidences of prosperity in Canada since the introduction of the N.P., and reminded his hearers of the time when American goods flooded London. Why didn't Mr. Blake have the courage of Mr. Carling to run in his own constituency? It was an evidence of his weakness.

Mr. J. C. Judd, although perhaps the youngest Tory in the house, believed that a crisis had arrived when the young men were needed to stand by the party that had made Canada a nation (cheers). The two parties were before the electors and he asked which side would the young men take (great shouts of "Conservatives")? Who could be more benefited by the National Policy than the young men, whose hopes lay in the future? Mr. Judd touched upon the Franchise Bill and showed that it was Sir John A. Macdonald who had given the opportunity of voting at this election to the young men (cheers). He wished to refer to an organization in the city known as the Young Liberal Club, and to say that they had resorted to tactics from which respectable men would shrink (cheers). He knew that the Young Conservatives commended themselves by their conduct to the sensible and peace loving people of the city (cheers). Mr. Judd showed the inconsistencies of men like John Campbell in working against their own interests when supporting Mr. Hyman. Mr. Judd's speech was most enthusiastically cheered, as much for the ability it displayed as the truthfulness of his sentiments.

Ex-Ald Skinner felt as deep an interest in the questions of the day as any man in London. He had for over thirty years been proud to cast a Conservative vote (cheers), and, as he viewed the vast audience before him, he was pleased to see that many like himself had not wearied in well doing (cheers). He had watched the career of Mr Carling from its very beginning, and he was prouder of him to-day than when he cast his first vote for him (cheers). And why not? Were there not monuments all over this city of the good acts and enterprise of Mr. Carling? (cheers.) He could not stand by and hear it asked by Mr. Hyman's friends, "What has Mr. Carling done for London?" when so much abounded on all hands to give the answer (cheers). The glory of this country was the National Policy. He had filled the position of Chairman of Relief in 1878, and he knew the difficulty with the people was lack of work (hear, hear) It was not so now (cheers) Mr. Skinner spoke in the highest terms of the C.P.R. and of the effect it had had on the credit and prospects of the Dominion Touching upon the hanging of Riel, Mr. Skinner showed how despicable had been the conduct of the Reform party on that matter In conclusion he appealed to all good citizens to go and cast their ballots for the man who had served them so well and whose character was without a blemish (great cheering). The Conservative party in London were certain of success, not because they could carry Chinese lanterns, but because they had the electors on their side (tremendous cheering).

Ex-Ald. O'Meara was received with a perfect ovation, and in starting said he felt that he lacked the qualification of a speaker; but the knowledge of the excellence of the cause of the Conservative party made him feel at home (cheers). He had been an elector in London for over thirty years, and had never seen such a disgraceful scene as was enacted on Tuesday last (hear, hear). The charges against Mr. Carling were false, and the Government of Sir John was the best under the sun (cheers) It had been said the Hon. John Carling had done nothing for London. He proposed to go over some of the chief acts of the honored representative for London, and began by referring to the acquisition of the Fair Grounds, Post Office, Custom House, Victoria Park, the Asylum, the L., H. & B Railway, and the G.W.R. car-shops.

Yet there were those who said Mr. Carling had done nothing. Mr. O'Meara reviewed the history of the two parties, and in scathing terms showed how treacherously Mr. Blake had ousted Mr. Mackenzie from the leadership of the Reform party. From 1873 to 1878 London saw the darkest days in her history (hear, hear) He had seen good mechanics reduced almost to starvation It was so all over the country, and Sir John resolved to provide a remedy. He did so by introducing the National Policy (cheers). The Grits said it was a fraud, but the people had said by their votes: "We believe you not" (cheers). It was in those days Mr. Blake declared it took seven yards of cotton to make a man's shirt (great laughter) It was not until two months ago that he had heard Mr. Blake express any respect for the National Policy whatever, and it reminded him of the poor Irishwoman, who, when in danger, prayed to the Almighty for safety; but seeing her shadow in the stream, she said "Mr. Divil is not such a bad man either" (great laughter). It was so with Mr Blake He was like the badger, who never dug a hole for himself, but took possession of a fox's hole (laughter and cheers). He liked protection but was too lazy to work for it (tremendous cheering) It would be found, however, on the 22nd that the badger of Canada would not drive the fox out of his hole this time. (great cheering) One of the most despicable acts of Mr Blake's life had been his attempt to arouse race and religious cries (hear, hear) He challenged Mr. Hyman to take the records of Parliament and lay his finger on one single appeal to religious passions by Sir John A. Macdonald (great cheering) Mr. O'Meara said he was as good a Catholic as stood in the city of London, but he wished to say the man who would seek to appeal to a man's religious passions was not worthy of the name (cheers). Mr. O'Meara gave an amusing illustration of the sequence of events The other day a Grit slipped on the sidewalk, and said:—"I wish John Carling would fall and break his neck" To-day that man was carrying his arm in a sling, having broken his collar bone, the next thing to his neck (great cheering). Mr. Hyman, in telling the people of London that they were burdened with debt, insulted their intelligence. There was no burden that the people felt, and what was there to show for that debt? Mr. O'Meara pointed to the public works of Canada and the C.P.R. as the answer (cheers). He thought Sir John's name should be written in diamonds on the pages of Canadian history (cheers). He felt perfectly satisfied that on the night of the 22nd they would see it written on the FREE PRESS window "John Carling elected by 550 of a majority" (tremendous cheering) By ten o'clock the next morning it would be found that Sir John had been sustained by 55 of a majority (renewed cheers)

Mr. T. G. Lowe said that Mr. O'Meara was known as a truthful and honorable man, and his story had been nothing but the plain, unvarnished truth (cheers). The National Policy did not admit of controversy. Even the Grits now admitted the good effects of it, but asked the people to allow them to carry it out further. This was absurd (cheers) The C. P. R. was the grandest work in history (cheers). The other day he had read in an American paper that Canada was better able to defend itself than the Americans were to attack The reason given was the complete connection established by the C. P. R. (cheers). He saw before him the elements which would win the election next Tuesday—the solid voting strength of London (cheers). This was a different meeting from last Tuesday (cheers).

Hon. John Carling was received with tremendous cheering, renewed over and over again. He said that owing to a severe cold he could not address the audience at any length; but he wished to say, at the outset, how much pleasure it gave him to see so many of his fellow-citizens present. It was a good augury (cheers) He looked for the same endorsation of Sir John A. Macdonald's policy at this election as in 1882 (cheers). All sorts of tactics had been used by the opponents of Sir John in this contest, in order to catch votes He remembered a few years ago the Globe had announced that the Premier had committed suicide, and quite recently it asserted that he had become insane (shame). These statements would react upon those who uttered them (hear, hear). Sir John was never in better form nor more confident of victory (cheers). The most cheering assurances came from every Province, and contrary to the Advertiser's statement that a majority of Grits had been elected by acclamation, the actual result had been Grits 2, Tories 6 (great cheers). Sir John never had a firmer hold on the affections of the people than at present (cheers) Desperate attempts were being made to wrest London from its Conservative allegiance, but these efforts would fail (cheers). He had been in political contests for thirty years, and never in his lifetime had he found the people so warmly disposed to him as now (cheers) During all that time, however, he had never seen a more disgraceful and unfair proceeding than that on the part of his opponents last Tuesday ("shame"). There were gentlemen who would be willing to swear that it had been arranged that he should not be heard; but such tactics would not succeed in London (cheers). Mr Hyman had been very reckless in his statements, and not only had he exaggerated the expenditure on immigration to the extent of $200,000, but he had said that he (Mr. Carling) had drawn $130 000 by way of allowances from the Government. Mr. Carling assured the audience that he had never received a half of that sum (cheers). The C.P.R and National Policy were briefly discussed, and the salient points put before the audience. With all the public expenditure it was worth noticing that the public credit had risen, and the per capita burden was not one cent greater now than in 1878 (cheers). Mr. Carling said the broad question before the people was whether Sir John A. Macdonald should continue to guide the destinies of Canada, and he mistook the sentiment of the country if that grand old statesman were not returned to office by a most overwhelming majority (great and long-continued cheering)

Mr. W. R. Meredith was greeted with a storm of applause, and said the time for speaking had almost passed and the time for action was at hand. He congratulated Mr. Carling upon the enormous gathering, which indicated that the Conservative party still continued its hold upon the citizens of London (cheers) He congratulated the gathering upon the character of the speeches they had listened to. Not a hundred yards away there was an audience listening to an imported Irishman, while the audience before him had listened to an Irishman who was a citizen (cheers) Mr. Meredith ventured to say that Mr. O'Meara had spoken more sound, practical common sense, with more of patriotism and loyalty in it than Mr. Ryan was capable of (great cheering) Mr. O'Meara had addressed himself to the intelligence of the people, while the burden of Mr. Ryan's speech would be "Boodle, boodle, boodle" (laughter and cheers). Mr. Meredith said he had taken part in many political contests in London, but had never witnessed such a disgraceful scene as was enacted in that hall on Tuesday last, and the broken window in Mr. Carling's Committee room was another evidence of the class of arguments against which the Conservatives had to contend (hear, hear). The policy of Mr. Hyman seemed to be that of all things to all men. He had button holed half the citizens in London, and had told them he was a young man, and therefore it was right that they should elect him and oust an old political servant like Mr. Carling. Mr. Hyman pleaded that Mr. Carling was standing in the way of the young men of his party. What boldness Mr. Hyman had to put himself forward as sponsor for the young Conservatives of London (laughter and cheers) When the young Conservatives of London felt themselves being imposed upon, they would not go into the Grit camp to find a man tell them of it (great cheering) Mr Hyman complained that he had been attacked. It was sickening to hear such a plea from a man whose party had hounded Mr. Carling with the utmost malignity ever since the first day he had entered public life, sparing not even the privacy of his family (cheers) What had Mr. Hyman said in his first speech? He had referred to the gentlemen who sat on Mr. Carling's platform, gentlemen older than himself, as "boodlers." The campaign had been conducted fairly and honorably by the Conservatives; but most dishonorably by the Grits (hear, hear) It would be found, however, that on the 22nd Mr. Hyman would be buried deeper than any political candidate in London had been buried for years. Mr. Meredith pointed to the attitude of Mr. Blake and his party on the N. P., and then the Canadian Pacific Railway was taken up. Sir Richard had said it would ruin the country to build the road, and yet the road had been built and Canada's credit was higher than ever (cheers) Mr Blake had said that it would ruin Confederation to build it; yet the road was completed and Confederation was safe if Mr Blake could only be kept out of power (cheers). For its conduct in building the C. P. R. he believed the audience would say Sir John A Macdonald would receive their hearty support (cheers) There was not an intelligent man who did know that the only hope Mr. Blake had of coming to power was over the Riel cry in Quebec and the secession cry in Nova Scotia (hear, hear) This was an unholy alliance, and aimed a blow at the very basis of Confederation (Cheers) Where had the voice of Edward Blake been heard saying: —'I have no sympathy with this cry?' The policy of the Conservative party was to build up, while it was the policy of the Grit party to destroy (hear, hear). Mr. Meredith spoke most eloquently on the Riel question, and was again and again cheered to the echo. He passed on to speak briefly of the Fishery matter, now receiving so much of public attention, and said that it was necessary that a man of Sir John A. Macdonald's good sense and tact should be kept at the head of affairs to deal with it (cheers). This was Sir John's last appeal to the country, and it behooved every man who called himself a Conservative, who gloried in the past and future of his party, to stand true to the cause of right and truth (great cheering). They should arise in their might and stamp out forever these cries of secession. When their nation's life was in jeopardy, they should disregard the empty cries raised by designing men, and be true to Canada. "Be true to your country," said Mr. Meredith, "and stamp our your enemies forever. We have a grand platform to rest upon, and we go to the polls with the grand old banner above us If we fall, we fall in defence of national rights and national liberty." Mr. Meredith sat down amid the most enthusiastic cheering.

Mr. Richard Bayly intended to speak for but a moment. He had been at the West Middlesex nomination on Tuesday, and the Grit speeches were from beginning to end nothing but "Boodle" and "Debt." Nevertheless he had the cheering news to tell the audience that the redemption of West Middlesex, East Lambton and Bothwell amounted to a certainty (cheers). Straws showed which way the wind blew, and Mr. Mills had said of himself it his own paper, a day or two ago, that it would be a disaster to the country if he were defeated. He would be defeated (cheers). Mr. Bayly, in conclusion, urged the Conservatives to ceaseless efforts until the last vote be polled on Tuesday next.

The meeting broke up with tremendous cheering for Hon. John Carling, Sir John and the Queen. The hall was crowded to the very last.

Germany has long been in quest of a new weapon, and has at last attained one. Its official name is "M 71 84" M stands for Mauser, whose gun was adopted in 1871, but in the thirteen years that followed the model was constantly being perfected. At last, in 1871, the gun of the future was designed, and now, in 1887, it has become the weapon of the German army. It differs from the old model in several respects. The metal contains no copper in its composition, and the barrel is somewhat shorter. In the original Mauser, when a charge was fired, the soldier had to give the stock a smart stroke so as to throw out the used cartridge. In the new gun this is attained automatically. But the chief innovation is the introduction of a reserve of cartridges into the stock of the piece, which in effect converts "M 71 84" into a revolver. These cartridges are held in a steel tube, which by the operation of a spring can be made to deliver them in succession into the breech. A fully loaded gun contains ten of these charges. For three hours a day the German troops are being drilled in the loading, handling, and discharge of these pieces. The use of the reserve cartridges is not to be permitted unless at a special word of command. It is thought better to accustomed the soldiery for ordinary purposes of warfare to the ordinary method of loading the gun to which they have been so long accustomed. The reserve is for a crisis.

THE WESTERN POLITICAL CENTRE

Of the twenty-nine constituencies of which London may be said to be the centre, the Grits held at the last election eighteen—the Conservatives eleven. It is in good prospect that the position will now be reversed, and that on the night of the 22nd it will be found that the Conservatives have won eighteen of those twenty-nine, the Grits succeeding in retaining eleven only. That this important change in the West can be easily brought about there is no doubt of—if the Liberal-Conservatives will but rise to the occasion, every man polling his vote for the right cause, and securing as many others as possible to do the same. The constituencies in question are given below, with the names of the candidates who are in support of the National Policy; who approve of the firmness displayed by the Government in stamping out once for all the rebellion in the North-west, by disposing of Riel, according to the law and his own deserts. It will be found that the same gentlemen are in support of the Canadian Pacific Railway, which has made Canada ten times that which it was, and has assured a future to us of which no other nation can boast. It is those, too, who have supported Sir Charles Tupper as High Commissioner in England, by whose efforts the Canadian cattle trade was saved to us, and placed upon a firm basis in the future, by removing misapprehensions that prevailed in England respecting it. They are in support, also, of that policy, backed up by all the strength of England, directed to preserve the Canadian fisheries from illegal and wanton outrage on the part of the American skippers; and by the construction of the Intercolonial Railway have placed Canada in an independent position in respect of its Atlantic trade to and from European countries. It is the same liberal-spirited policy that has recently thrown open the electoral Franchise to upwards of 250,000 of the Canadian people, and is ever in the advance-guard of progress and philanthropic measures.

The readers of the FREE PRESS need not be reminded of the shortcomings of the Grits. How they opposed might and main, tooth and nail, the National Policy. How they have fought against the great national enterprise, the Canadian Pacific Railway. How they settled themselves down at Ottawa night after night during three months to prevent the Franchise from being extended. How they have aspersed the good name and credit of Canada from time to time, thus hoping to make political capital with the people. How they have scoffed and scorned the efforts of the High Commissioner to secure Canadian agricultural interests in England, and have depreciated all endeavors that have been made to lift up, enoble and confirm this "new nationality." And they have become aware, too, how, on the very eve of this general election, Mr. Blake has "thrown up the sponge" concerning the National Policy. How he has been obliged to confess that the existing debt, arising under the Dominion auspices, has been brought about by the construction of useful and remunerative public works, and how the interest payable on account of it is no more per head to-day than it was during the "dark days" of Grit administration in 1878-78, when there was no National Policy, no Pacific Railway, and instead of the hopes and prosperity that are to be seen everywhere around at the present time there was nothing but failure, gloom, and even despair. No fair-minded man can look at the record of the two parties without coming to the conclusion which is in accord with the true interests of the country, which it is that has exhibited a spirit of hostility to all those measures calculated to strengthen and establish the country and enrich its inhabitants. Therefore we sincerely trust that our friends throughout the West will rally with heart and soul to the support of the following candidates in the respective constituencies for which they have been nomisated, as follows:—

THE P. R. IN POLITICS.

The Globe frequently begins, or interlards its articles with words and phrases "in the language of the prize ring." Its latest is "first blood for Blake." It is not true; but the phraseology is suggestive. In London the Grit candidate opened the campaign by the pronouncement that in addition to being "the grittiest of the Grits," he was a shoulder hitter, hitting straight out, no half ways, "no medium course." In the Young Liberal Club the science of fisticuffs is taught nightly by experts, while young Liberals have been heard to declare that "we have the sluggers with us, and will win it this time." The rowdyism at the nomination was organized in the Liberal Club on Monday night last. Repeated acts of violence have taken place in the streets. Slugging, it is understood, is to be one of the Grit methods in this election. But we tell them that the sluggers and those who back them will, in the language of J. D. Edgar, be "smashed down" by the votes of the decent electorate.

UNFOUNDED BOASTINGS.

The Grit press is just now trying to humbug the people with the assertion that the "Reform" cause is on the eve of success. This "bluff" game was carried on in 1882, when the Globe gave the assurance that the "great Liberal leader" was about to sweep the country. On the morning of the nomination in 1882 the veracious Globe, "after a careful consideration of the whole situation," summed up the coming result as follows:—

	TORY.	GRIT.
Ontario	30	62
Quebec	45	20
Nova Scotia	9	12
New Brunswick	3	13
Prince Edward Island	1	5
	88	112

And what was the result? As we all know, Sir John Macdonald's Government was sustained by a majority of seventy-five, at least. The "Liberals" did not carry a majority in a single Province in the Dominion. So now, when they are boasting and bragging what they are about to do and to conquer, it may be well to bear in mind that it is a part of their policy of bluster, by means of which they hope to shake the good opinion of the wavering and discon cert the assured. But let no one believe them who wishes to be in the right. The Grits will not carry a single Province in the Dominion on the 22nd, and the Ottawa Government will be sustained, as we have every reason to believe, by fifty five to sixty majority—even if it does not overap that number considerably.

NEWS FROM BOTHWELL.

The London Advertiser—Hon. D. Mills, Editor-in-chief—states that the defeat of Mr. Mills in Bothwell would be "a positive and damaging loss to the country," also, a loss to the debating talent of the House. It is very good of Hon. D. Mills, Editor, to say these flattering things of the Hon. D. Mills, candidate in Bothwell. But how far do they agree with facts? How many will assent that the defeat of that hon. gent. would be more than the most evanescent of public afflictions? The other members don't think so, judging by the way they hustle out whenever he rises to address the House. It is a signal for instant departure to all but the most confirmed sitters. The hon. gent. is tantalizing and tedious in delivery, and his matter is not always either accurate or interesting. He is a fairish quibbler, can raise obstructive quirks with persistency if not perspicacity, and when it was thought good Grit policy to try to drive Sir John into a sick bed by long night vigils, David was always ready to sit up. He sat up for three whole months in the session of 1885 to kill the Franchise Bill, but although Mills "did murder sleep" on that occasion, the Bill passed all right in due time. However, Mills et al. were solaced with $500 extra indemnity, which was so much more boodle added to that obtained by him from the Mowat Government. In fact the two chief things working against David Mills in Bothwell just now are the inordinate amount of boodle he secured ($8,000) for an insignificant and quite imaginary service; and the accuracy with which he has been gauged since he left the serene and mystic shades of Palmyra, to ply the editorial shears in London. There he had a little intellectual paradise all to himself from which he could periodically pose as some gifted oracle or "speculative thinker." Such deliverances doubtless had the weight which commonly adheres to a voice out of a cave; which may be startling, if not intelligible, doleful if not convincing. But set the same individual down in a large community, where he can be daily seen and examined, turned round, picked over, and sorted out, and he takes on a different aspect.

While the virtuous souls of Western Grits are vexed by the duty on coal, Mr. Murray, Grit candidate in Cape Breton, is parading a letter from Mr. Blake, in which he promises not to interfere with it under any circumstances. Mr. Blake has one story for Ontario, and another for the Maritime coast, and yet another for the North-west. What faith can be reposed in a leader who tells the North-west settlers that the Government policy is not liberal enough, and in Ontario declares it is too liberal; who in Ontario declared that he would not make a political platform of the Regina scaffold, yet in a few days clasped hands with Mr. Musket Laurier on that straight issue; who has declared in Ontario that the duty on coal was an iniquity that ought to be abolished, and now writes letters to be read at meetings in the Nova Scotia coal region, that he does not intend to interfere with it? There is neither honor nor sincerity in such a course.

CURRENT TOPICS.

Word comes from Quebec that no bets can be got on the election on a basis of less than fifteen majority in that Province for Sir John Macdonald.

"Well, I'm sick of the Grits," was the remark of a well-known citizen who witnessed the outrageous attempt to suppress free speech at the nomination. "That side has had my last vote."

The Globe suggests that whether the destiny of the country be in the hands of Mr. E. Blake or Sir Charles Tupper makes all the difference in the world. Sir Charles Tupper is a patriotic Canadian statesman. The other man is the political associate of secessionists, annexationists and rebels.

That the Globe is a "jolly old liar" is well illustrated in its columns of yesterday and the day before, in which it is alleged that the returns by acclamation did not result in the election of a single Ministerialist. Such bare faced falsehood—such unblushing lying—is one of the means that is killing the Grit party Decent people do not care to belong to any side that has to rely upon such outrage of truth in order to create a false impression.

The Globe wants to know if Mr. W. R. Meredith is "sulking" just now. No one here has heard he that was in such a condition. Indeed, he has seemed to his fellow-citizens to have been in his usually happy frame of mind. As the Globe seems to wish for some particulars we may state for its information that Mr. Meredith has made several speeches of late in favor of the Liberal-Conservative candidates. On Wednesday evening he addressed a large meeting at Parkhill, and last night he spoke at the City Hall in support of the Hon. Mr. Carling. Who has been stuffing the senile old Globe that Mr. Meredith was "sulking?"

One of the Grit speakers on Tuesday spoke of the fewness of the laws which Hon. Mr. Carling has put upon the statute book. But how many have been the acts that are to be credited to Mr. Blake? There is an act to prevent a man from carrying a pistol, an act to suppress pool selling, and an act to put under arrest or shoot down any railway man who should dare to go on strike.

If Mr. Carling has not put many sentimental acts upon the statute book, his acts of practical wisdom lie thickly strewn over the City of London and the country. There has been no more practical statesman ever sent from Ontario than the Hon. John Carling. He showed it while a member of Sandfield Macdonald's Government, in draining the waste lands of the West; in opening the Muskoka region to settlers; in setting apart experimental townships for the poorer of them; in the erection of Benevolent and Scholastic Institutions at the most desirable points (London included). And as Postmaster General in the Dominion Government he has been awarded by impartial judges, friends and opponents alike, the credit of filling that office with an activity and public acceptance that has been most striking. And no sooner did he take office as Minister of Agriculture (one of the most important in the Cabinet) than he proceeded to organize the Experimental Farm and stations. This is the man whom certain Grits of this city mouth at, and whose voice they endeavor to stop.

Mr. Blake has been emulating Bunyan's celebrated character of "Mr. Facing-Both-Ways." He has been against the National Policy, but now he smiles on it. He has been intensely hostile to the C. P. R., but now he says it may do some good. He has mouthed about the enormous debt but now he admits that a good deal of it has resulted from the construction of useful public works. In Ontario he is angry with the duty on coal, but in Nova Scotia his ally, Mr. Murray, the Grit candidate in Cape Breton, says that he has a letter from Mr. Blake in which he affirms that under a "Reform" administration the duty on coal would not be interfered with. And so on through a long list of subjects, not forgetting the position he took on the Riel issue in this city, and the subsequent use he has made of it in the Province of Quebec with his friend Laurier. The fact is that Mr. Blake is not politically honest. He set out on his bad career when he seduced Hon. W. B. Wood from the confidence of his colleagues, and having got possession of him, ordered him to get up in the Legislature and "speak now" against those very colleagues with whom he had been in confidential communication an hour before! Blake is a man that cannot, and should not, be politically trusted.

VAIN BOASTS.

How Majorities are Made "on Paper."

The boasted strength of Mr. Hyman in this city is on a par with the bulletin at the Advertiser yesterday announcing that seven Grits had been elected by acclamation and one Tory. The mere statement on the bulletin board, however, does not make it a fact. The truth is that only two of those elected by acclamation are Liberals, while the remaining six are pledged supporters of the general policy of Sir John. It is so in this city. Mr. Hyman's committees claim that so many hundreds intend voting for their candidate, but it does not follow that such will be the case on polling day. In every contest in this city the Grit candidate has been able to show a majority on paper, but every one knows they never got it at the polls. The young men who have done the chief portion of the canvassing for Mr. Hyman are naturally hopeful, but neither their superior style of bookkeeping nor the shaking of Chinese lanterns by a hundred youths without votes, will prevent the Hon. Mr. Carling from having one of his old time majorities on Tuesday next.

SIR JOHN AT BRANTFORD.

THE PREMIER ACCORDED A HEARTY RECEPTION.

Unbounded Enthusiasm of the People—Sir John Also Addresses Immense Meetings in East York and Toronto.

Brantford, Feb. 17.—Sir John Macdonald and Senator Plumb arrived here by G. T. R. at 11 a. m. to-day, and received a great reception. They were met at the station by a large number of political friends. When the visitors had entered the carriage provided, a procession was formed, and, headed by the Indian band, they proceeded to the Kirby House, where Sir John held a reception for an hour. The cheering along the route of procession was deafening.

At two o'clock the procession formed again, and after passing through some of the principal streets, halted at the Drill Shed, where Sir John and others addressed the large assemblage. The enthusiasm was unbounded. At five o'clock the procession re-formed, and, headed by the band, escorted Sir John to the train, by which he left for the East. So enthusiastic had the people become during Sir John's return to the station that the horses on the Premier's carriage were unhitched, and a long rope substituted, a number of men pulling the carriage with the occupants along the route of procession.

Senator Plumb remained here to-night and addressed an immense meeting in the Drill Shed.

THE PREMIER IN EAST YORK.

Toronto, Feb. 17.—Sir John Macdonald arrived here to-night from Hamilton and was immediately driven to Poulton's Hall, Kingston Road, which was crowded by electors of East York. Sir John, on making his appearance, was enthusiastically cheered. He delivered a brief address in support of Mr. Boultbee, the Conservative candidate, during which he referred to the benefits derived by the country from the National Policy. He spoke of Hon. Alex. Mackenzie as a straight-forward, courageous man, and compared him with Hon. Edward Blake, who lacked those qualities.

Other speakers addressed the meeting.

Sir John was then driven to St. Paul's Hall, North Toronto, which was packed to the doors. He was again greeted with enthusiasm, and delivered a brief address, urging the electors to vote for his friend Boultbee.

Sir John, after leaving this meeting, was driven to McBride's Hall, St. John's Ward, where he made a few remarks in favor of the candidature of Mr. Cockburn, Centre Toronto. He will leave for the east to-morrow morning.

A MINORITY REPORT.

The Immediate Passage of the U.S. Senate Retaliation Bill Recommended.

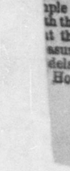
Washington, February 17.—Mr. Rice, on behalf of the minority of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs, submitted the following report:—The minority, desirous of securing prompt action, and if possible unanimity of expression by both branches of Congress, on pending questions in dispute between this Government and that of Great Britain concerning the fisheries, and believing that the Bill which has already passed the Senate by substantially a unanimous vote, clothes the executive with ample power, and is constrained to differ with the recommendations of the majority, that the House adopt a separate or new measure which will necessarily be followed by delay, and recommend the passage by the House of the Senate Bill.

THE OPERA HOUSE MEETING.

A Couple of Grit Stumpers Repeat Chestnut Yarns.

And Warm up Old-time Race and Revenge Cries for Mr. Hyman's Benefit—Peter Ryan Sizes up the Mowat Boodlers.

Mr. George C. Gibbons presided at the Grit meeting in the Opera House last night. He said that the FREE PRESS stated what it knew to be false when it accused the Reformers of packing the nomination meeting. This meeting was a good answer to the charge. It was a new position for the Tories of this city, who had a record of stuffing ballot boxes, intimidation and every kind of unfair conduct, to cry that they were not allowed free and full discussion. He asked what Mr. Carling had said in the past thirty years that was worth repeating. The cry also came with a bad grace from those Tories who in cold blood attempted to prevent Hon. Wilfred Laurier from speaking here (cheers).



Mr. Hyman was the next speaker. He denied most emphatically that he had asked any one or heard any one asked to be at the City Hall on Tuesday last. He was glad to state that the daily accessions to the Grit ranks made it almost certain that they would win. Mr. Hyman believed the only chance of saving Confederation was by putting in Mr. Blake, and, of course, Mr. Hyman. He concluded by calling on the electors to remember their duty to their country, and above all, their duty to their God, by putting away those who tried to set race against race and creed against creed.

Mr. Preston referred to the account in the FREE PRESS of the Liberal attempt to prevent a hearing at the nomination. Who were those, he asked, who tried to prevent Mr. Laurier from being heard? He said the Liberals were not afraid of discussion, while the Tories were. The Conservatives had kept their word, he said, and put it out of the power of any party to upset the National Policy by the heavy debt they had piled up. All the North-west officials were robbers, according to Mr Preston, and guilty of crimes and sins and deeds amongst the Indians that he would not mention in any audience. But there were other things to condemn them. He was not going at length into boodle stories. It was true there were a number of them that could not be convincingly proved. It was the way of politicians to made charges; but in this case enough had been absolutely proved to settle the character of the Government and supporters of Sir John Macdonald. The Premier was afraid to appeal to the Nova Scotians as the leader, and Sir Charles Tupper was called the great chieftain down there. He concluded by calling on the voters of London to support C. S. Hyman and Edward Blake.

Mr. Peter Ryan, alleged to hail from Toronto, wanted to know how the Tories would have behaved if Mr. Mackenzie had given the country protection. They were very loyal when in power, but when out of power they were rebels. He admitted that the party had lost a number of Grit supporters when Sir John gave the country protection, but as the Reformers had acknowledged the necessity of protection they were getting their friends back, and these friends admitted that their connection with the Tory party was humiliating and painful. As a Radical and a Democrat he was opposed to the Senate, which was not subject to the will of the people. While he had no objections to a second Chamber if deemed necessary, it must be elective. He was also an advocate of commercial freedom whereby Canada could make its own treaties with other nations without British interference.

The usual charges of boodle were taken up by Mr. Ryan, who accused nearly every prominent Conservative in Parliament with corruption. He read a letter from the Globe protesting against the statement that Sir Charles Tupper was to be the leader of the Conservative party, and said it was genuine, Mr. Farrow, M. P., being the author. Out of the Commons and Senate 115 members had been proved guilty of these shameful, swindling, boodle transactions. On the other hand not one of the Reform advocates were in receipt of $1 towards their travelling expenses or hotel bills (cheers). When he was selling dry goods wholesale, he made it a rule never to sell anything to the Mowat Government. He held it was not an honest thing to do, it was not a proper thing for a man to advocate the Reform cause or any other cause with the money from that side in his pocket. Some squirming on the platform was noticed when Mr. Ryan said this. He strove not as a politican but as a citizen, for he was not a politican to lay these matters before them. He was there as a Catholic to express to the citizens of London how grateful he was for the stand they had taken on the last Ontario election. He knew how dear to them was their Bible and their religion, and he thanked God the appeals to their ignorance and prejudices did not succeed. The enemy found the people living together in peace and charity, and they strove for their own base purposes to excite enmity and to divide the people into two hostile camps. He did not think there could be a man of his religion who could forget the rancour and enmity displayed towards their religion by the Conservative party. He held that it was too late now for the Tories to disclaim the Mail newspaper, that should have been done before the people recorded their verdict on the Local election. Yet they were distributing this Lynch-Mowat pamphlet (holding up a little book), untruthfully claiming that there was a compact between Mowat and Archbishop Lynch. He claimed that the Catholics wanted no privileges; they only wanted fair play. They knew the Tories wanted to reap all the benefits they could from the rousing of these feelings of religious antagonism; but his co-religionists knew the sheep from the goats, and he hoped, and believed, not one of them would be so ungrateful as to withdraw his support from those who sustained and upheld them in their struggle, and refused to add to the peril of the situation by becoming party to it. After talking about the luminous intellect of Mr. E. Blake, the purity of the Reform party, etc., he said the Grits could win without the city of London, but they wanted to win with it, and they should send Hyman down to Ottawa as their representative.

A vote of thanks was passed, on motion of John Campbell and J. W. Jones, and after the usual cheers the meeting broke up.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Nomination of Candidates for the House of Commons in New Westminster and Victoria Districts.

Special per C.P.R. Line.

Victoria, B.C., February 17 — The nominations to-day were as follows:—

New Westminster District — Donald Chisholm, Conservative; Thos. J. Trapp, Independant.

Victoria District—Noah Shakespeare, Edgar C. Baker and Hon. T. B. Humphrich, Conservatives; Arthur E. McCallum, Reform; Mayor Fell and William A. Robertson, Independant.

Mr. Alfred Jury, the Labor candidate in East Toronto, addressed a large meeting on Wednesday night, and in the course of his remarks pointed out "the fact that on A. d. Macdonald's nomination paper were to be found the names of a number of Grit capitalists. Their purpose in thus supporting and encouraging Mr Macdonald was evident. Although his political leanings were known to be in the same direction as these gentlemen yet they were found to be opposed to him. No matter what the political faith of a capitalist might be he was prepared to set that aside when it came to the question of labor. They were bound to oppose the workingman and his interests every time, and these men saw that by supporting Mr Macdonald they were injuring him." Still, a few workingmen are found supporting the Grit candidate in London, unmindful of Mr. Jury's advice.

YOUNG MEN suffering from the effects of early evil habits, the result of ignorance and folly, who find themselves weak, nervous and exhausted; also MIDDLE-AGED and OLD MEN who are broken down from the effects of abuse or over-work, and in advanced life feel the consequences of youthful excess, send for and READ M. V. Lubon's Treatise on Diseases of Men. The book will be sent sealed to any address on receipt of two 3¢ stamps. Address M. V. Lubon, 47 Wellington St. East, Toronto, Ont.

THE VEILED WOMAN

A TALE OF ABSORBING INTEREST

Accordingly, having indicated our wish to a middle-aged individual of an unusually saturnine cast of countenance, even among the saturnine people who appeared to be deputed to look after us now that the Father of the band let had departed, we started in a body—having first lighted our pipes. Outside the cave we found quite a crowd of people, evidently watching for our appearance, but when they saw us come out smoking they vanished this way and that, calling out that we were great magicians. Indeed, nothing about us created so great a sensation as our tobacco smoke—not even our fire-arms. After this we succeeded in reaching a stream and taking our bath in peace, though some of the women, not excepting Ustane, showed a decided inclination to follow us even there.

By the time we had finished this most refreshing bath the sun was setting; indeed, when we got back to the big cave, it had already set. The cave itself was full of people gathered round fires for several more had now been lighted—and eating their evening meal by the lurid light, and by that of various lamps which were set about or hung upon walls. These lamps were of a rude manufacture of baked earthenware, and of all shapes, some of them graceful enough. The larger ones were formed of big red earthen-ware pots, filled with clarified melted fat, and having a reed wick sunk through a wooden disk which filled the top of the pot, and this sort of lamp required the most constant attention to prevent its going out when ever the wick burned down, as there were no means of turning it up. The smaller hand-lamps, however, which were also made of baked clay, had a wick manufactured from the pith of a palm-tree, or sometimes from the stem of a very handsome variety of fern. This wick came up through a round hole at the end of the lamp, to which a sharp piece of hard wood was attached to pierce and draw it up with whenever it showed signs of burning low.

For awhile we sat down and watched this grim people eating their evening meal in silence as grim as themselves, till at length, getting tired of contemplating them and the huge moving shadows on the rocky walls, I suggested to our new keeper that we should like to go to bed.

Without a word he rose, and taking me politely by the hand, advanced with a lamp to one of the small passages that I had noticed opening out of the central cave. This we followed for about five paces, when it suddenly widened out into a small chamber, about eight feet square, and hewn out of the living rock. On one side of this chamber was a stone slab, about three feet from the ground, and running its entire length, like a bunk in a cabin, and on this he indicated I was to sleep. There was no window or air-hole to the chamber, and no furniture, and on looking at it more closely I came to the disturbing conclusion (in which, as I afterward discovered, I was quite right) that it had originally served for a sepulchre for the dead rather than a sleeping-place for the living, the slab being designed to receive the corpse of the departed. The thought made me shudder in spite of myself; but seeing that I must sleep somewhere, I got over the feeling as best I might, and returned to the cavern to get my blanket, which had been brought up from the boat with the other things. There I met Job, who, having been introduced to a similar apartment, had flatly declined to sleep in it, saying that the look of the place gave him the horrors, and that he might as well be dead and buried in his grandfather's brick grave at once, and expressed his determination of sleeping with me if I would allow him, which, of course, I was only too glad to do.

The night passed very comfortably on the whole. I say on the whole, for personally I went through a most horrible nightmare of being buried alive, induced, no doubt, by the sepulchral nature of my surroundings. At dawn we were aroused by a loud trumpeting sound, produced, as we afterward discovered, by a young Amahagger blowing through a hole bored in its side into a hollowed elephant tusk, which was kept for the purpose.

Taking the hint, we got up, and went down to the stream to wash, after which the morning meal was served. At breakfast one of the women, no longer quite young, advanced and publicly kissed Job. He sprung to his feet, and pushed the woman, a buxom party of about thirty, from him.

"Well, I never!" he gasped; whereupon she embraced him again.

"Be off with you! Get away, you minx!" he shouted, waving the wooden spoon with which he was eating his breakfast up and down before the lady's face. "Beg your pardon, gentlemen. I am sure I haven't encouraged her. Oh Lord! she's coming for me again. Hold her, Mr. Holly; please hold her. I can't stand it, I can't indeed. This has never happened to me before, gentlemen, never! There's nothing against my character," and here he broke off, and ran as hard as he could go down the cave; and for once I saw the Amahagger laugh. As for the woman, however, she did not laugh. On the contrary, she seemed to bristle with fury, which the mockery of the other women about only served to intensify. She stood there literally snarling and shaking with indignation; and seeing her, I wished Job's scruples had been at Jericho—forming a shrewd guess that his admirable behavior had endangered our throats. Nor, as the sequel shows, was I wrong.

The lady having retreated, Job returned in a great state of nervousness, and keeping his weather eye fixed upon every woman who came near him. I took an opportunity to explain to our hosts that Job was a married man, and had had very unhappy experiences in his domestic relations, which accounted for his presence here, and his terror at the sight of women; but my remarks were received in grim silence, it being evident that our retainer's behavior was considered as a slight to the "house-hold" at large, although the women, after the manner of their more civilized sisters, made merry at the rebuff of their companion.

At first we were much puzzled as to the origin and constitution of this extraordinary race, points upon which they were singularly uncommunicative. As the time went on for the next four days passed without any striking event we learned something from Leo's lady-friend Ustane, who, by the way, stuck to that young gentleman like his own shadow. As to origin, they had none, at least so far as she was aware. There were, however, she informed us, mounds of masonry and many pillars near the place where She lived, which was called Kor, and which the wise said had once been houses where men lived, and it was suggested that they were descended from these men. No one, however, dared go near these great ruins, because they were haunted; they only looked on them from a distance. Other similar ruins were to be seen, she had heard, in various parts of the country, that is, wherever one of the mountains rose above the level of the swamps. Also the caves in which they lived had been hollowed out of the rocks by men, perhaps the same who built the cities. They themselves had no written laws, only custom, which was, however, quite as binding as law. If any man offended against the custom, he was put to death by order of the Father of the "household." I asked how he was put to death, and she only smiled, and said that I might see one day soon.

FREE PRESS CORRESPONDENCE.

THE CITY HALL OUTRAGE.

Letter From an Indignant Citizen.

To the Editor of the Daily Free Press.

SIR,—We have had on nomination day a fair sample of what the party of purity can effect towards the elevation of the standard of public morality. I feel less much loss, for the personal insult offered to Mr. Carling, to whom it has been a very decided advantage, to have had it shown to the Canadian world what is the moral and intellectual character of his opponents, than I do for the humiliation and disgrace to which our city has been subjected through the shameful tactics of Mr. Hyman. But a very few of our fellow-countrymen, living at a distance, can possibly understand the intense feeling of shame, regret and indignation which now surges in the heart of every respectable citizen, on account of these disgraceful scenes. Few of those outside our city can justly appreciate the feeling of shame, caused to every respectable citizen, by this display of vulgar, unmitigated rowdyism, made by the members of the Rielite Club and cheered on by their leader, the would-be member for London. I am not at all surprised to learn that many, very many respectable Reformers, to mark their disapprobation and disgust at such conduct, should have openly avowed their determination to sever their connection with such political ruffianism, and vote directly against the man who employs it. Such Reformers now recognize it as a public duty to oppose a man who thus shows himself so void of principle, so void of respect for himself, his party and his native city, as to have prearranged, organized and directed such a mob of vulgar ruffians. Surely such a man would do us but small honor in legislative halls as our representative. Now, I venture to say, and I ought to know something of the sentiments, the honor, the moral worth and self-respect of the citizens of London, as I have dwelt among them for upwards of thirty years, that Mr. Hyman cannot find one dozen respectable men in this community. Whig or Tory, who will endorse his conduct in the disgraceful course he has thought proper to pursue in this matter. I freely concede to every man among us what I claim for myself—the right to hold and express my views on the political questions of the day; but to try to put down by demoniacal howling, hissing, and hurling of coarse, vulgar epithets against the man who has been the choice of the electors of this city for thirty years, is something at variance with our sense of right and honor rises in stern revolt.

But why in the name of justice and fair play, should such a bitter feeling and such a cowardly manner of displaying it be brought to bear in opposing Mr. Carling? Is there a man within the bounds of the Forest City to-day who more deserves the respect of the whole community than the Hon. John Carling? Is there a man among us who has done more for the promotion of its material interests than he his? Nay! Are there one hundred men among us who have, conjointly, effected as much for the advancement and extension of the wealth and population of our city, the happiness, the comfort and prosperity of our fellow-citizens, and in shedding brightness in the present and in giving a rational hope for its future as has the very man whom the Rielites think it's their duty to howl down and insult?

All those who now indulge in bitter invectives against Mr. Carling only look calmly to east, west, north and south, and ask themselves what evidences they see of his influence with various administrations on their behalf? Can they find one or more representatives of one single city in Ontario, or in the Dominion, who have effected as much for their constituents as Mr. Carling has done for his? Judged simply by what he has already done he ought to stand high by his work indeed in comparison with that of others similarly situated: he ought to stand still higher; but judged by his good will and unwearied, fearless efforts on our behalf, he ought to stand highest among Canadian statesmen. Will the electors of London only compare the records of the two men now before them seeking their suffrages, and permit their own untrammelled conscience to give its verdict. The result of the comparison should be the pride of our people, as the source of our help and the cause of much of our prosperity and progress; that of the other has been the loss of hundreds of thousands of dollars, and quite regardless of deep burning and enduring shame! Electors of London! determine this day, determine wisely, determine for yourselves and your children, and above all determine in the light of past experience which of these men is the more worthy to be your representative, and vote accordingly.

A REFORMED GRIT SPEAKS.

Blinded by Party Zeal—Who are Benefited by the N. P.?

To the Editor of the Free Press.

SIR,—It would be somewhat interesting at the present time to ascertain what amount of solid benefit certain local wholesale dealers in dry goods, hats and caps, hardware, and others, who are now railing against the National Policy have derived, directly and indirectly, from the introduction of that measure in Canada. Let Messrs Robinson & Little, J. B. Laing, R. C. Macfie, Jno Green, E. A. Pavey, D. S. Perrin, Hobbs & Osborne, Jno. Campbell, Jno. Marshall, and numerous others of the Grit party, place their honest convictions before the public, and state positively whether the trade of their respective establishments has not been materially increased by the working of said policy, coupled with the early opening of the Canada Pacific Railway. Compare the business extension of those houses now with the period when the Mackenzie Government was in power, and note the result. In the North-west alone an outlet for trade has been secured to those importers and manufacturers that would never have been known had it not been for the action of the present Government—a policy beneficial to Grit and Tory alike. And although the Grits admit this fact privately they publicly sacrifice country to party from the undying hatred they bear to Conservative rule, and every good act emanating from such a source. As an old Grit stager, and one that at one time worked that ticket for all it was worth, I must now conscientiously aver that I am thoroughly convinced of the magical effects Sir John Macdonald's wise policy has had upon the prosperity of the country, which fact I am publicly willing to admit, and propose to vote accordingly. My sympathy in this matter is with Hon. John Carling, and I propose to vote accordingly, not altogether on personal grounds, but from a firm belief that more good has been accomplished by the Government, in which he is a prominent member, for the welfare of Canada, since it has been in power, than would have been effected by the Opposition in fifty years. My hope is, then, that the voters of this city will give this question their earnest consideration, and studying their own interests they can only arrive at the conclusion to roll up such a majority for Mr. Carling that will astonish the blind Grit party for all time to come. I doubt not, on the 22nd, the Hymanites will be disgustingly astonished at the two hundred and fifty majority that will be awarded the Hon. John Carling.

A REFORMED GRIT.

London, Feb. 17 1887.

Voting in Two Places.

To the Editor of the London Free Press.

Paris, 14th Feb., 1887.

SIR,—Will you please tell me in your next issue if I am entitled to vote on the 22nd. I live in Paris, Brant county, and have a vote here. I own a farm in county of Waterloo, but as I cannot live in both I wish to know if I can vote in two counties. I would not trouble you, but in Paris both are Grit, and I might not get the truth from them. I am, dear sir, SUBSCRIBER.

Facts About "Globe" Lies.

To the Editor of the Free Press.

SIR,—The Globe has for some time back published a stereotyped statement of the country's debt in burlesque form, and of course with its usual unfairness tries to make the country appear on the verge of bankruptcy. To give electors of the Dominion an idea of the Globe's want of veracity I think it would not be out of place to publish the following as a companion piece to the Globe's account of Canada's debt:—

FACTS ABOUT "GLOBE" LIES.

The gross number to date is..... ...281,000,000
The net number..... 220,000,000

There is over 1,000,000 for every constituency.

2,000,000 for the average Ontario county.

300 for every family.

50 for every man, woman and child.

They have increased 75 a minute under Deacon Cameron's rule.

If type used in printing them were piled up it would take 55 trains of 20 cars each to carry it away.

They would pave a highway for 105 miles.

It would take seven cars of Canada's wheat crop to pay for ink used.

If the price of ink and type were used to purchase votes for Blake at $1 each, 24,500 trains of 20 cars each would be required to haul away the ballot papers.

If the ballot papers were loaded in wagons placed in line as on a road, the line would encircle the earth at the equator and lap over.

The annual increase of Globe lies is 21 a minute. If the value of the ink and type used was invested in paper and loaded on wagons, and the wagons drawn in close order along a road at the rate of four miles an hour, for ten hours a day, six days in the week, it would take sixteen years for the procession to pass the Globe office.

The lies are equal to the number of weeds and thistles on every acre of land in the Dominion.

If the Globe told 100,456 truths every day it would take them six years to "get even."

ELECTOR

Mr. Porte's Explanation.

To the Editor of the Free Press.

DEAR SIR,—As my name has been mentioned frequently in the Advertiser columns in connection with timber limits, I would ask you to kindly publish the following facts of the case:—

In 1883, in company with John W. Colclough, of Winnipeg, Man., and James Colclough, of Selkirk, Man., (both gentlemen opposed to the Government of Sir John A. Macdonald), I made an application for a timber berth or license to cut timber in the District of Saskatchewan, N. W. T. An Order-in-Council was passed for same, and I paid to the Government the sum of $250, being first year's rental in advance. My friends on more full consideration the cost of surveying, some $1,500, and the great expense of erecting a mill inside the twelve months, decided to abandon it, consequently the license was not issued. As in now stands the revenue of the country has been increased $250 at our expense. Thanking you for the space, I remain yours respectfully,

L. W. PORTE.

War Tips.

The new military critic, Col. Meithun, states that Germany has available at present 2,075 563 men thoroughly trained, and 424 437 partially trained, giving a total of 2,500,000. France had an army of 2,713,000 men, but many of this number were not trained to anything like the same perfection as the troops of Germany. Austria had available for fighting in the field 1,264,000 men, and the astounding number of 4,646,000 men not thoroughly organised. Italy had available for the field 1,077,000 men, and further 1,366,000 men more or less trained. Russia possesses an army of 2,863,000 men, and a reserve under instruction of 1,619 000.

Is not an ordinary mixture. In fact its properties are entirely different from any preparation used for Coughs, Colds, Throat and Lung Troubles.

The collection of grasses and their arrangement with both scientific and common name should be encouraged; it is a work that can easily be done by the scholars in our High Schools, especially those that study botany. Farmers ought to be more familiar with the names of the common plants on the farm; if he was he would not make so many mistakes as he now does in speaking of different varieties of the same species of plants.

B. A. McLaughlin, Norland, writes: "I am sold out of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure. It sells well, and I find in every instance it has proven satisfactory. I have reason to believe it is the best preparation of the kind in the market." It cures Dyspepsia, Biliousness, and Torpidity of the Liver, Constipation, and all diseases arising from Impure Blood, Female Complaints, etc.

The story of the faithful dog who lies on his master's grave and starves to death is by no means new; but a really true one comes from Paducah, Ky. The master was Uncle Ike Enders, an aged negro, said to be 102 years old when he died. The dog himself was grizzled and aged, and when the old man's body was put in the grave the old dog refused to leave the spot, and there he died the other day from exposure and hunger, and his body still lies on the grave.

"Time Tries all Things," and has proved that DR. WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY is the remedy par excellence for the cure of coughs, colds, croup, whooping cough, bronchitis, asthma, sore throat, and influenza. It cures coughs instanter, and even consumption yields to its magic influence.

A few years ago at the auction of the property of Christopher Curtis, who died in Atlanta, an old Bible was bought by a citizen for $1. He put the book away and thought no more about it until the other day, when E. W. Curtis, of Providence, R. I., called on him, and said that the Bible had belonged to him, and had been loaned to his brother Christopher. The buyer at once gave up the book, and was surprised when Mr. Curtis offered him $25, saying that the Bible was one of the famous "Breeches Edition," but he refused to take more than the dollar he had paid.

Epernay, in France, is a vast subterranean city of champagne. For miles and miles there are streets hewn out of the solid chalk, flanked with piles of bottles with champagne of all blends and qualities. There is no light in this labyrinth of streets, crossings, and turnings, except what the spluttering candles afford. All is dark, dank, and damp, with the temperature away down about zero. The largest champagne manufacturers in Epernay have underground cellars which cover forty-five acres and contain five million bottles of wine. There is a whole street in Epernay lined with fine chateaux, all owned by champagne men.

Catarrh, Catarrhal Deafness and Hay Fever.

Sufferers are not generally aware that these diseases are contagious, or that they are due to the presence of living parasites in the lining membrane of the nose and eustachian tubes. Microscopic research, however, has proved this to be a fact, and the result is that a simple remedy has been formulated, whereby catarrh, catarrhal deafness and hay fever are cured in from one to three simple applications made at home. A pamphlet explaining this new treatment is sent free on receipt of stamp by A. H. DIXON & SON, 305 King street, West, Toronto, Canada.—Christian Standard. eod

The only curiosities brought to light by the dredge since the work was begun on the Cape Cod Canal have been a strange collection of about fifty figures carved in oak, which are supposed to have remained under the sand and water of the marsh for the past century or more. The story goes that the artist who executed them was a poor debauched fellow by the name of Nye, whose fondness for a Saadwich belle by the name of Hester Tupper led him to seek employment for his leisure time by carving her effigy and various cabalistic signs upon pieces of oak and hiding them in the ditches of water which furrowed the marsh.

An old Indian known as Nevos died at San Diego recently, who, the Union says, was 125 years old. He was raised by the first missionaries who came to Lower California, and was brought by them to San Diego. He was for many years stone blind, but always refused to go the poor-house. He worked right along until within a short time of his death. He would cut wood, wash clothes, hoe corn and beans, but never, although he couldn't see, was he known to hurt a hill of beans.

Mrs. B. T. Rogers, of Kenosha, Wis., owns an intelligent collie dog. Two weeks ago Miss Rogers lost a valuable gold watch, and, although large rewards were offered for its recovery, and many Kenosha people joined in the search, no trace of it could be found. On Sunday morning the dog walked into the house with the missing article in his mouth. The Rogers family firmly believe he heard them talking about it and looked for it and found it.

If the Bill Taylor of Goodell's ranch, Wyoming Territory, can be believed, he is the champion hunter of the plains. One day recently, he says, he saw a herd of three thousand antelope in a canyon. He walked around to the head of the canyon and got a good shot at close quarters into the herd. Seven head dropped dead at the first shot, and after a few more shots he killed eighteen.

A new system of cable railway is being tried in Chicago, which has the cable carried along on little trucks through a box only about six inches square in cross sections. Buttons on the cable enter indentations on the drum which propels it, and a forked wheel attached to the car catches the buttons at the will of the conductor, thus doing away with the grip.

Chicago, Feb. 17, 1.30 p.m.—Our wheat market has averaged a trifle higher, but fluctuations have been small. The buying was mostly by local short interest, but the selling was sufficiently free, both on local and outside account, to satisfy this very quickly, and the market thereafter was mostly a scalping deal. Foreign markets were firmer on California wheat, in which variety a corner seems to be running in Liverpool similar to that which was engineered in December last, but it does not effect other trades except sympathetically. Export business is not as large as yesterday's reports. No special news from the cabitical centers abroad which could influence our market. Corn was also firmer on the light receipts, and fair shipping demand, though no particular advance in prices was established. Provisions opened lower on weaker hog market, but buying orders were large enough to cause a marked improvement, though hardly sustained except in pork.

Chicago, Feb. 17.—The grain market showed more strength to-day, and closed a shade higher. Pork opened 20c lower, for May delivery at $14 25; rallied to $14 70 and closed at $14 37½. Lard closed 10c lower and short ribs 5c lower. The leading futures closed as follows: WHEAT, February, 73¾c; March, 73¾c; May, 79¼c to 80c. CORN, Feb., 34c; March, 34½c; May, 39½c. OATS, Feb. and March 23¾c; May, 28½c. PORK, Feb., $14 80; March, $14 36; May, $14 37½. LARD, Feb., $6 95; March, $6 92½; May, $7 02½. Cash quotations were as follows:—FLOUR—Quiet and unchanged; No 2 spring wheat, 73¾c to 76¼c; No. 3 red, 77½c; No 2 CORN, 34½c to 35¼c. No 2 OATS, 23¾c. PORK, $14 80. LARD, $6 95. TRADE, TRAFFIC AND FINANCE.

Latest Notes by Telegraph and Mail.

MANCHESTER DRY GOODS.

London, February 16.—The Manchester Guardian, in its commercial article, says: There has been little progress, but sellers are firm. The strength is the result of previous engagements, the steadiness of cotton and an expected decrease in the receipts at American ports. Despite the large quantity of cotton available, a belief that the estimates of the short crop men are partly correct prevents sellers entering into forward contracts of magnitude, except at full rates. The India and China business is light. The smaller foreign markets are quiet, with only a hand-to-mouth trade. The home department is busy in white goods. There is a poor business in export yarns. Not an average business is done in cloth. Cloths and Mexicans are firm.

HYMAN AS A BOSS.

Honest Men Humbugged and Forced Out.

"THE WAY THEY DO THINGS THERE."

The following letter has been handed us for publication:—

MR. FREDERICKS, DEAR SIR,—Yours received; will be glad to give you any information I can. If you go to the FREE PRESS Office you can get a copy of the agreement between C. S. Hyman and his men seven years ago, when we went on strike. They went back on that agreement, and two or more of his men had to leave London—myself for one. Then, last spring, his foreman promised me a certain line of work if I would come back, and he gave it to me till my family was moved back; then he gave that kind of work to another man from St. Thomas, and I got work that I could not make wages on. He thought that I was in a fix, but I got work from the firm in Toronto, and I went to him (the foreman) to find out why he did not give me the work he promised, and I was told that I could not do it to suit them, that they would have to give it where they got it done the best. There was nothing for me to do but play second fiddle or go. Remember, that same work I done before I went to Toronto, and for one of the best firms in Toronto. So he knew whether my work would do or not before he sent for me and promised it, but that is the way they do things there, when they get a married man to move his family there, when they think he can't go away again; but at a big expense to myself I went back to Toronto and there are lots that were served the same as me—Mr. John Bush, 128 Euclid ave., Toronto, will give you his experience in the workingman's friend's factory; John Hamilton, Pingree & Smith's, Detroit, Mich.; Richard George, in James McPherson's shoe factory, Hamilton, Ont. They will all bear me out in what I say. I have got a vote in London at this election, and would vote for Carling, as I have always done, but I am not in a position financially to do so. Wishing him success over such a friend of the workingman, I remain, Yours truly, W. H. GILLEY, Coming Home to Die.

At a period of life when budding womanhood requires all her strength to meet the demands nature makes upon it, many a young woman returns home from the severe mental strain of school with a broken-down constitution, and her functions disarranged, to go to an early grave. If she had been wisely counseled and given the benefit of Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription" her bodily development might have kept pace with her mental growth, and health and beauty would not have given way to decline and death.

"ONLY AFTER DEATH."

WHAT WONDERS THE MICROSCOPE HAS DONE FOR US.

No Longer Obliged to Die, to Find Out "Whave Killed Us."

One of the leading scientific publications states that many people are now using the microscope to discover the real cause of disease in the system, and to detect adulterations of food and medicines

This wonderful instrument has saved many a life. A microscopical test shows, for instance, the presence of albumen, or the life of the blood, in certain derangements of the kidneys, but medicine does not tell us how far advanced the derangement is or whether it shall prove fatal

The microscope, however, gives us this knowledge:

Bright's disease, which so many people dread, was not fully known until the microscope revealed its characteristics. It greatly aids the physician, skilled in its use, in determining how far disease has advanced, and gives a fuller idea of the true structure of the kidney.

A noted German scholar recently discovered that by the aid of the microscope, the physician can tell if there is a tumor forming in the system, and if certain appearances are seen in the fluids passed it is proof positive that the tumor is to be a malignant one.

If any derangement of the kidneys is detected by the microscope, the physician looks for the development of almost any disease the system is heir to, and any indication of Bright's disease, which has no symptoms of its own and cannot be fully recognized except by the microscope, he looks upon with alarm.

This disease has existed for more than 2,000 years. It is only until recently that the microscope has revealed to us its universal prevalence and fatal character. Persons who formerly died of what was called general debility, nervous breakdown, dropsy, paralysis, heart disease, rheumatism, apoplexy, etc., are not known to have really died of kidney disease, because, had there been no disorder of the kidneys, the chances are that the effects from which they died would never have existed.

As the world becomes better acquainted with the importance of the kidneys in the human economy by the aid of the microscope, there is greater alarm spread through the communities concerning it, and thus accounts for the erroneous belief that it is on the increase.

As yet neither homeopathist nor allopathist is prepared with a cure for deranged kidneys, but the world has long since recognized, and many medical gentlemen also recognize and prescribe Warner's safe cure for these derangements, and admit that it is the only specific for the common and advanced forms of kidney disorders.

Formerly the true cause of death was discovered only after death. To-day the microscope shows us, in the water we pass, the dangerous condition of any organ in the body, thus enabling us to treat it promptly and escape premature death.

As the microscope in the hands of laymen has revealed many diseases that medical men were not aware of, so that preparation, like many other discoveries in medicine and science, was found out by laymen, outside the medical code; consequently it comes very hard for medical men to indorse and prescribe it. Nevertheless, Warner's safe cure continues to grow in popularity and the evidences of its effectiveness are seen on every hand

Some persons claim that the proprietors should give the medical profession the formula of this remedy, if it is such a "God-send to humanity," and let the physicians and public judge whether or not it be so recognized.

We, however, do not blame them for not publishing the formula, even to get the recognition of the medical profession. The standing of the men who manufacture this great remedy is equal to that of the majority of physicians, and the reason that some doctors give for not adopting and prescribing it—viz.: that they do not know what its ingredients are—is absurd.

Mr. Warner's statement—that many of the ingredients are expensive, and that the desire of the unscrupulous dealer or prescriber to realize a large profit from its manufacture by using cheap or injurious substances for those ingredients would jeopardize its quality and reputation; and that Warner's safe cure cannot be made in small quantities on account of the expensive apparatus necessary in compounding these ingredients—seems to us to be a reasonable and sufficient one.

The universal testimony of our friends and neighbors, and the indisputable evidence that it, and it alone, has complete mastery over all diseases of the kidneys, is sufficient explanation of its extraordinary reputation, and conclusive proof that it is, perhaps, the most beneficent discovery known to scientific medicine since the microscope revealed to us the all-important nature of the organs it is designed to reach and benefit.

A Crew Menaced by Centipedes.

Capt. Elisha Hall and the crew of the schooner Lucy T. Harvey, which has just arrived from Port-au-Prince with a cargo of logwood, narrate a terrible experience which befell them during the voyage to this port. Capt. Hall says that when two days out a number of centipedes appeared on deck, but were promptly scalded. On January 25 Julian Dominguez, a Mexican acting as cook, found the galley and cabin swarming with centipedes and scorpions, which, when disturbed by a light, made their appearance on deck. The crew, which was composed principally of colored men, became terrorized at the appearance of the poisonous reptiles, and took to the rigging. So great was their fear of being bitten that they refused to leave their high perch when commanded by the captain to assist in the work of destroying the dreaded passengers. The scorpions crawled over the deck for two days, compelling the sailors to take to the rail while manning the vessel.

A large Newfoundland dog, which was tied to the forehatch, was bitten and died after its body had swollen to twice its natural size. Finally the reptiles in the galley and cabin were smothered by the fumes of burning sulphur, lowered in pans. Those on deck were not gotten rid of until Wednesday last, when a north-east gale and heavy sea were encountered. The sudden change in the temperature killed many of them, and the others were so benumbed that they were swept overboard without much difficulty. The logwood was in a decayed condition, and the scorpions and centipedes took refuge in the holes before it was loaded on the vessel.—Philadelphia Press, February 9.

Suffered 30 Years with Lumbago—Cured.

Lumbago of 40 Years Standing—Cured.

Joe Park, Bris ol, England.

I am impelled by a sense of duty to testify to the extraordinary efficacy of your remarkable specific, St. Jacobs Oil. I am an old man and for the last 40 years have been a victim of lumbago. I have in vain sought relief from medical science, and was at last led to consider my case hopeless. I procured your Oil and it would be impossible for me to describe the relief that even one application produced, and I can affirm most distinctly that its use has completely cured me.

THE ELECTED.

The Truth as to Their Classification.

The Globe is evidently whistling to keep up its courage, and also that of its followers; and with a great flourish declares in a prominent part of the paper that six Grits and two Independents have been elected by acclamation, while as a matter of fact six Conservatives and only two Grits have been returned without opposition. Anyone wishing to ascertain the true position of the Globe (and the Advertiser, too), on this matter, has only to examine the list of nominations published in these papers before Tuesday last and see how the candidates are there classified. In the Globe list Messrs. Mara, of Yale, B. C.; Ross, of Lisgar, and Guilbault, of Joliette, Que., were classed as Ministerialists, while Messrs. Coursol, of Montreal East; Dupont, of Bagot; Gigault, of Rouville, were placed under the head of "Independents." Now, the Grit organ coolly claims the four last named as Oppositionists, and puts down Messrs. Mara and Ross as Independents. Sir John Macdonald, in the course of his brilliant address at Hamilton on Wednesday night, referred to this matter, and said:—

The Globe has to-day given a list of constituencies in which members had been elected by acclamation. Two of the candidates, Mr. Ross, of Lisgar, Man., and Mr. Mara, of Yale, B. C., described as Independents, were friends of Sir John, and not Independents. Four of the five returned in Quebec were Frenchmen who opposed the execution of Riel, but their Opposition ended there, or they would have been opposed by Conservatives."

The Montreal Herald (Liberal), which gave a forecast of the result all over Quebec on Tuesday, thus spoke of Joliette:—

"The nominations will take place in the town of Joliette, and as the county was redeemed in the last Local elections by Mr. Bazinet, the Opposition candidate, the chances of Mr. Guilbault's re-election are slim. The Liberals and National Conservatives are working in harmony, and whether Dr. Beaupre or Mr. Niven be nominated, Mr. Guilbault will be beaten."

Of Mr. Dupont, who has been elected by acclamation in Bagot, the Herald said that he came out as a thoroughly independent man. On Mr. Gigault, in Rouville, the Herald says that he is now a Nationalist.

Mr. Coursol, who was elected by acclamation in Montreal East, thus, according to the Montreal Star's report of his speech at the nomination, defines his position:—

"Mr. Coursol stated that he always was, and always will be, a Conservative, but that he would at the same time oppose the present Government on the Riel issue. The National Policy in general, and protection in particular, would have his fullest support. He also spoke in favor of Home Rule for Ireland, and promised the Irish electors in Montreal East that he would speak for Irish rights on all occasions. The C.P.R., which made that constituency what it is, deserves all credit, and he would, as he had always done, favor it."

Winter is the dullest time of the year on a farm, but the country boys have developed a new amusement in the killing of rats that serves to pass away many a lonesome hour. The Toronto World (Ind.) sums up the John A. demonstration at Hamilton on Wednesday in these words:—"The day's doings have had the effect of sending Tory stock up kiting, and the Grits are correspondingly depressed. The street parade was a revelation to the Grit managers, and, it may as well be confessed, the Tories had not hoped for anything nearly so imposing as it turned out to be. The universal opinion in Hamilton to night is that both Conservative candidates have first mortgages on certain seats in Parliament."

The Toronto Standard says:—"We say again, and we wish to make the charge as specific as possible, that the iron men of the Pittsburg district have raised a fund to aid the Grits in this election, that $150,000 of that money was received here in Toronto by the financial managers of the Grit campaign over ten days ago, that the money has already been distributed among the counties, and that there is now in the possession of Conservatives some of that very money."

Scarcely a day passes but paragraphs, such as the following, are mailed to this office, minus the name of the sender:—"The many friends of Miss Maud J. Belmont, who for the past two months has been visiting friends in this city, will learn with regret that she left for her home in Jacksonville, Florida, owing to the illness of her father." In future, unless accompanied by the name of the writer, such effusions will be doomed to the waste basket.

Court Forest Queen, 6563, A.O.F., held a pleasing entertainment in their hall on Tuesday night last, Bro. Lewis, C. R., in the chair. Amongst those who took part in the programme were Misses Allen, Holman, L. Anderson, Pickell, Wilson, Alice Croden, Mrs R H. Brock and Messrs. Brock, A. and J. Drewe, Burgess, Scarlett, Price, Powe, Hodgins, Irwin and E. Lee.

The three women recently arrested at Chatham on suspicion of child murder, have been discharged, the Coroner's jury having resolved that the death of the infant resulted from "stricture of the bowels and inflammation," and that no blame was attachable to the mother or attendants.

At the last regular weekly riot in Belfast only one man was killed. Unless the weekly list of killed and wounded is raised, in some way, Belfast will soon lose her identity altogether. Perhaps it would be better to call off the riot and put on the toboggan slide.

Lizzie Evans has been keeping up her record as a matinee star. Recently in St. Louis she had the largest matinee ever in the People's Theatre there, and her matinees in Cincinnati, Buffalo, Cleveland and Chicago were invariably largely attended.

One of the best soubrette actresses in America, Miss Lizzie Evans, will appear at the Grand Opera House this (Friday) evening. Don't fail to see her as "Chip." Lizzie Evans in her way is as great an artiste as either Jefferson or Booth.

It was stated in well-informed circles last night that the Grit leaders in London had gone down into their pockets and subscribed $7 500 to "see" Mr. Hyman through this election. This information came from an authentic source.

Lucan will hold its annual sawing match on March the 1st, and Kirkton on the 2nd of March. Lucan sawing match consists of two classes of sawyers About $75 and the championship for 1887 will be competed for.

"The story of a kiss" is the heading of an article going the rounds of some of the papers. We haven't read the story, but presume it has the usual ending—either marriage or a $10,000 breach of promise suit.

The Tiser's rejoinder concerning the pool made at the City Hotel table is quite as true as that six Grits and one Tory were elected by acclamation on Tuesday. And neither statements contained a grain of truth.

Duncan McIntyre, the youth who stole horses from Elgin County last week, has been convicted before Judge Jones, at Brantford, and sentenced to four months in the Central Prison.

The Bishop of Huron has sanctioned an arrangement by which the Rev. W. B. Bailey will officiate in the Church of the Advent, Ridgetown, until the appointment of a clergyman.

Mr. Joseph Close, a well-known brick manufacturer and resident of Woodstock nearly 40 years, died suddenly at his residence yesterday from the bursting of a blood vessel.

The Dutton Enterprise, which has been neutral in politics, has been purchased by Mr. Casey's election address, and now fires red-hot Grit shot at its former subscribers.

Prof. Philp, of Guelph, has been chosen Bandmaster of the 27th (Lambton) Band. Mr. Philp has also been named organist for St. Andrew's Church, Sarnia.

LONDON TRUE TO ITS PAST.

All who are free from passion see clearly that in this fight London is and will be true to its past. There has been no falling off in the Liberal-Conservative ranks, but on the contrary, large accessions of strength to them. And this is the natural fruit of affairs, the necessary issue of the policy of well-doing that has been worked out by our old representative. London interests have always been well guarded or advanced by Mr. Carling, as opportunity offered. He has left no stone unturned for the general welfare. When his former opponent, Mr. John Campbell, crossed the Chamber of the Board of Trade to offer his hand to Mr. Carling, and to congratulate him upon his success in bringing the Pacific Railway into the city, what are all fair-minded people to think of it? Is it not a testimony of the strongest kind to Mr. Carling's public usefulness? He received not only the public thanks of that old and powerful opponent, a man who dealt hard blows, but dealt them in fair and manly fashion, but resolutions of thanks to him were passed by the Board of Trade, composed largely of Mr. Carling's political opponents, and by the City Council. All know that the Pacific Railway was "Mr. Carling's scheme," and if it had not been for his untiring efforts we would not have had it so well assured. And so with regard to the Military School. It was Mr. Carling's influence which secured it for this city. There it stands, $100,000 worth of brick and mortar. It will bring to London a large number of people, and will cost about $50 000 a year to maintain. The Grits may sneer at it, but that does not alter facts. There it stands, the fruit of Mr. Carling's exertions in behalf of London and the volunteers of the district. And these are but two examples of the solid work our city member has done for us, and which are so many solid reasons why he should be again returned with a rousing majority.

Barkwell's Bronchial Balsam.

DEAR SIR,—I wish to testify of the merits of that grand preparation known as Barkwell's Vegetable Healing Bronchial Balsam. I was told by a neighbor what a grand Balsam it was. My little girl was very ill with bronchitis, and a very few doses restored her and I believe saved her life. I feel it my duty to let others know that they also can be cured of this terrible affection.

While the Grits are scouring the earth to rake up nineteen manufacturers in support of Blake, such men as Mr. Rathbun, Deseronto; Mr. Lingsheim, Hamilton; Ald. Germain, Ottawa; Sylvester Neelon, St. Catharines; Jacob Shantz, Berlin, come voluntarily out from the Grit ranks in support of the National Policy. Any one of the above named men—and they are only a few that could be mentioned—could about buy out Blake's whole nineteen.

The crowd which gathered at the corner of Dundas and Richmond streets yesterday afternoon were paralyzed by something. Some said it was a dog fight; others that a man had been seen going along who told the truth 365 days in the year. The fact is, it was Graham's window of 25 cent ties that rooted them to the spot.

A FEW FACTS!

Which will explain to the satisfaction of all. The question so often asked, "How can T. F. Kingsmill afford to sell Cottons cheaper than other merchants?"

FACT NO. 1.

Last summer when the mills were shutting down owing to an overproduction of Cottons, and when the price had dropped to the lowest figure ever known in Canada, we placed our orders for this year's supply, which were delivered according to contract.

FACT NO. 2.

In order to be head and front of the trade this spring, we bought great quantities at these low prices, we invested a great deal of capital and we have held the goods for our customers, although we can sell them to the wholesale trade to-day for more money than we ask retail.

FACT NO. 3.

As our business is now so great, we have been obliged to open a store in Chatham for our customers in the west. We buy wholly from the makers, thereby saving the profit made by the wholesalers, a large amount in freight and buying direct, we can cut a yard at the bale price.

MORE FACTS

We treat our customers liberally.
We treat our employes liberally.
We pay no heavy rent.
We do the largest strictly cash trade in Western Canada.
We have customers in every county, town and village.
We carry the finest stock west of Toronto.

Ladies—Don't let your husbands and brothers have all the fun. While they are off electioneering come and see what Our Policy will do for you Lots of work and cheap goods.

THE GERMAN ELECTIONS.

Berlin, Feb. 22.—The Socialists have carried the first and second divisions of Hamburg and Altona and Nuremburg. They have lost Glanchau, Brunswick, Chemnitz, Schneeberg and Zurichau.

Supplementary elections will be held on March 3.

Herr Bennigsen, the National Liberal leader, is elected.

The returns from Alsace show that the electors adhere to the protesting candidates.

A Ghastly Crime.

Philadelphia, Feb 22.—A confession, horrible in its details and revealing one of the foulest crimes of modern times, was made to-day by a colored woman, Hannah May Tubbs, who was arrested on Monday. The female fiend declares that Wakefield Gaines, whose body was found in the pond near Eddington, was murdered in her house, in this city, by John Wilson or Wallace, that the victim's remains were dismembered by Wilson, that the brute made away with the head, legs and arms, and that she carried the trunk of the body to Eddington, and threw them into Mann's pond. Jealousy on the part of Gaines and Wilson regarding a pretty mulatto girl named Annie Richardson was the motive for the horrible crime. The woman Tubbs is under arrest, and Wilson was captured to-night. Gaines and Wilson quarrelled in the house of Gaines, and was knocked senseless with a chair. Wilson took the body down to the cellar.

GENERAL CABLE NEWS.

Stanley at Zanzibar.

Henry M. Stanley has arrived at Zanzibar.

Churchill Will Go Back.

Henry Matthews, in a speech at Birmingham to-day, intimated that Lord Randolph Churchill will rejoin the Government after the adoption of the Budget.

Imperial Parliament.

In the House of Commons to-day Sir James Ferguson declined to explain the tenor of the despatch from the Canadian Government, suggesting a modus vivendi for a settlement of the fisheries dispute with the United States. He promised to publish the despatch when the Government deemed it expedient. He also announced that French posts in the New Hebrides would be reduced. The French Government, instead of erecting new forts, as had been stated, was making arrangements for the withdrawal of garrisons already there.

Affairs in the Soudan.

Rasalouis, the Abyssinian leader in the Soudan, has sent a letter to Gen. Gene, commander of the Italian forces at Massowah, in which he says:—I am not to blame. The fault is yours. You fortified Saati, which belongs to me. The infidels among you caused a rupture; shun their bad counsels. Let us be friends as before, each remaining on his own territory. Send me a word of friendship. The Rome Tribune publishes Gen. Gene's reply to Rasalouis. Gen. Gene says:—"Before entering into negotiations with me you must liberate Salimben, Piano and the other captives; otherwise I shall consider them as much dead men as are the troops that fell at Saati, and shall devise the means of avenging them." The same paper says:—"It is learned that Salimbeni approves of Gen. Gene's reply. The Neg

AFTERNOON CABLEGRAMS.

RECOMMENDATIONS OF THE IRISH LAND COMMISSION.

The Gladstonians and the Cloture—Canadian Horses for the British Army—The New German Ecclesiastical Bill.

London, Feb. 22, 3 p.m.

The Cloture.

The Gladstonians have decided to make a proposal in favor of cloture by a simple majority, but will not make an amendment embodying the proposal.

Esmond will be Removed.

Sir Michael Hicks-Beach has decided to remove Sir Thomas Esmond from the office of High Sheriff of Waterford, for his share in the Nationalist demonstration.

The Irish Land Commission.

The Telegraph says:—The report of the Irish Land Commission recommends the revision of judicial rents every five years and extension of the Ashbourne Act, by advancing the whole amount to tenants desirous of acquiring their holdings. These advantages, however, are applicable to only certain classes of leaseholders.

Gladstone in the House.

Gladstone was received in silence upon reappearing in the House of Commons last night. He postponed attacking the Speaker's recent ruling against Dillon, making only side reference to his intention of discussing the subject in future, with the view of effecting modifications of the ruling. After Gladstone had concluded the House became empty.

The Trial of the Traversers.

In the trial of the traversers at Dublin yesterday Mr. Walker, on behalf of Mr Dillon, urged that the latter had interested himself to prevent evictions and crimes resulting therefrom by trying to obtain reduction in rent. There was nothing secret in his conduct, and the Government appeared to be working on parallel lines. Counsel for other traversers made similar arguments.

The German Ecclesiastical Bill.

The new German Ecclesiastical Bill provides that the Bishops of Osnabruck and Limburg shall be authorized to establish seminaries for the scientific training of priests. Objections to the appointments of priests are to be admissible in cases where persons designated are considered unsuitable from either private or political reasons. The Bill has no clause compelling the State to permanently fill clerical posts, nor is the former law relating to disciplinary and punishment of clergy included in the bill. The first clauses of the May laws are abolished. Only those orders are readmitted which devote themselves simply to religious or charitable duties.

Canadian Horses for the English Army.

In the House of Commons yesterday, Mr Edward Stanhope, the Secretary for War, stated that the Government had ordered the purchase of horses in Canada, with the object of developing markets on which—in the case of mobilization—it would be possible to draw a portion of the large supply which would be required. The War Office, at the same time, desired to encourage in every way the supply of home breeders of horses for the army. It is officially stated that the Government experiences great difficulty in obtaining suitable horses for the cavalry and artillery in England at the stated price of £45. The horses already received from Canada turned out remarkably well, and consequently the Government has ordered a further supply.

SHOCKING STORIES.

From the Ottawa Lumber Camps—Two Hundred Women Enticed by False Pretences into a Life of Brutal Treatment and Shame—Virtually Held Prisoners of Dens of Vice.

Boston, Feb. 22.—A Desert, Que., despatch to the Globe says that some weeks ago the Rev. Fr. Poolier, who is connected with the Temiscamingue Colonization and Settlement Company, went to visit the lumber camps in the wilderness north to investigate the rumors that have long been current about the horrible treatment to which women are subjected in that region. He says the full truth has not been told, and never will be. He will apply to the government for aid in breaking up the dens of vice which abound in every lumber camp along the Upper Ottawa. For months in the year the loggers make their home in camp. Gradually here and there throughout the vast tracts of wilderness, rough board houses have been built to serve as places for dealing out whiskey and tobacco and as a resort for the rough loggers.

Female help was entirely absent at first, but one by one the owners of the places secured abandoned women as inmates. These houses throve and multiplied as the demand increased. Intelligence offices have been pressed into service to find material to fill the ranks. In one case it is known that the female keeper of an intelligence office in Montreal was decoying young girls by promise of easy lives to this section. Some of the girls escaped, and the story of their experience had such an effect that that branch of the intelligence office business, for the time, was closed, and the keeper arrested. The dens are holds of violence and crime. The keepers are desperadoes. The inmates, in part, are unfortunate girls who have been allured to the life of suffering, and many of whom are practically prisoners.

Fr. Poolier says there are 200 women in the camps, of whom probably half are not over 24 years old, and in some cases not over 17. As far as known over a dozen have died so far this season from rough usage and disease. One girl told Fr. Poolier that she was hired in Richmond, Que., to go to the north to work as a waitress in a restaurant; that she was met at Desert by her employer and taken to Gilmour's camp, 40 miles to the northwest. The camp was composed of about 100 shanties inhabited by 400 men. There were 16 other girls there. The first night she was outraged, and from that time her life had been one of vice and servitude. She was taken to Desert by the reverend father, and sent home more dead than alive. It is probable that the Government will at once put a stop to the abuse.

A Domestic Tragedy in Illinois.

Bethany, Ill., Feb. 21.—Maurice Hatfield, a well-to-do citizen, shot his wife and himself this afternoon. He died this evening. She will recover. They had quarreled and separated three years ago. To-day Hatfield wished to effect a reconciliation. His wife was too frightened to answer him when he spoke to her. The man mistook her fright for obstinacy, and, not stopping to look in her face, sent a bullet into the woman's back and another into his own breast.

THE GERMAN ELECTIONS.

Good Prospects for the Success of the Septennate—A Large Number of Second Ballots Necessary.

Berlin, February 22, 8 a.m.—The results in 71 election districts is known. In 22 of these districts new elections will be necessary. In 12 of these contest will be between Socialists and Septennists; in five between New German Liberals and Septennists; in two between Centreists and Septennists; in one between Centreists and Democrats; in one between Socialists and New German Liberals, and in one between New German Liberals and Conservatives. Among candidates returned are four Centreist, 20 National Liberals, five Socialists, two Imperialists, four Conservatives, one Guelph, one New German Liberal and 12 Alsatians, including Herren, Cable and Antoine. The other candidates of the Protestor party who were renominated have been re elected. Herr Richter is the only new German Liberal yet re-elected.

11 a m.—From present calculations Bismarck will barely obtain a majority for his Septennate Bill. He required 40 votes; he has already won 20 and the remainder are almost certain to be secured from the wavering Centre. It is certain the Government will not obtain a majority sufficient to adopt the monopoly bills.

Herr Windthorst has been re-elected. The Progressists are demoralized. They have met with unexpected defeat and have only gained one seat. The Socialists have lost seven and gained three. The total Socialist vote shows an increase of 500,000. The National Liberals have gained nearly as many seats as they have lost.

2 p. m.—At this hour the results in 133 districts are known. The candidates elected include 17 Conservatives, 5 Imperialists 43 National Liberals, 14 Centreists, 4 New German Liberals, 6 Socialists and 14 Poles and Alsatians. In 30 districts new elections will be required. So far 103 candidates have been definitely elected, comprising 66 Septennists and 37 opponents of the Government.

Berlin, Feb. 22.—The net result of the Berlin voting is:—Socialist, 90,107—a gain of 29,000—Septennist, 69,878; New German Liberal, 65,884. The Government parties have gained 18,000 votes, and the New German Liberals have lost 5,000. Returns from the Provinces show losses by the New German Liberals. Herr Richter's organ, the Freisennine Zeitung, consoles the party by declaring that the Socialists profited by Radical disasters. This, however, is not exactly the case. The combined Conservative and National-Liberal supporters of the Septennate secured many seats, though there is no clear prospect of their having a working majority, as the centre seemed to have voted in undiminished numbers.

Forckenbreck, Bamberger, Stauffenberg and Gen. Von Moltke are re-elected.

Metz elected Antonie (anti-German); Siegen returned Stocker. A feature of the elections is the unusual number of second ballots necessary—a fact which proves the closeness of the contests.

The result in Hamburg is a triumph for the Social Democrats, two of whose candidates are returned by large majorities. In the third Hamburg division the Socialist candidate is ahead, but a second ballot is necessary.

The prospects of the success of the Septennists are good. The formidable increase in the number of Socialists throughout the Empire is a prominent fact. During the day all approaches to the palaces of Emperor William, Crown Prince Frederick William and Prince Bismarck were barred by police.

A leaflet recently issued by the New German Liberals stated that the question of peace or war did not depend upon whether the peace effective was fixed for three or for seven years. The Liegnitzer Zeitung referred the statement to Count Von Moltke, who telegraphed the following reply:—"The peace effective is certainly the same whether it, be sanctioned for seven or for three years; but as regards the war strength the former term gives more than double the number of trained reserves as compared with the shorter period. With the army there must be permanence. It cannot be remodelled every three years in conformity with parliamentary resolutions."

The National Zeitung says a number of French Socialist societies have addressed a manifesto to partisans in Germany, thus interfering with the election struggle, and further that some lodges of American Knights of Labor have issued a manifesto, and forwarded contributions to German Socialists—a fact affording fresh evidence that the charters of social democracy is not national if international.

Sir John Kaye's North-west Farm Scheme.

Montreal, February 22.—Sir John Lister Kaye, who has made his headquarters here for the past two months, while negotiating with the Minister of the Interior and the Canadian Pacific Railway Company regarding his scheme for model farms in Manitoba and the North-west, has just left for England, after completing his arrangements with the Government and the railway company. The promoter of this great enterprise for the settlement of English and Scotch agriculturists will have London capitalists joined with him in raising a company with £1,300,000 capital, of which £955,000 have been already promised. The details of Sir John Lister Kaye's proposal having been published in the Mail, it is unnecessary to enlarge further. The breeding of horses from imported stallions, and of cattle, sheep and pigs from the best British strains, will be one of the principal features of the scheme next to the settlement of the right kind of British farmers on the land.

A Woman Murdered while Defending Her Babe.

Cincinnati, February 21.—A horrible murder was committed on Mt. Adams, this city, between 9 and 10 o'clock tonight. It was that of Mrs. Matilda Warren by Edward Jordon, a drunken desperado. Mrs. Warren's daughter was drawing her infant daughter in a baby wagon on the sidewalk in front of the house. Ed. Jordan came along reeling drunk and upset the baby wagon in the gutter and pushed the terrified little girl into the street. Mrs. Warren rushed out in defense of her babe, protesting as she went against Jordan's brutality. The villain waited till she got within a few feet of him, then shot her through the lungs. She is not dead, but her wound is mortal. Jordan escaped. If found in Mt. Adams to-night he will never see daylight.

Emigration to Canada.

Cardinal Manning has issued a pastoral on the relief of the poor of London, in which he states that he has been instrumental during the past few years in sending 500 children to Canada, all of whom were received into comfortable homes. Good reports have been received of these children, and in every case their prospects are bright.

CANADIAN WIRELETS.

Sir John Macdonald returned to Ottawa shortly after midnight and there awaited the return of the elections. He voted in Ottawa.

Duncan McIntyre, a lad fifteen years of age, who was sentenced to four months in the Central Prison for horse stealing, made his escape from the gaol at Brantford on Monday morning. He climbed on a pile of wood, thence on top of the gaol fence, and lowered himself on the outside to the ground and made off.

In the suit of Holmes vs. Murray, before the High Court of Justice at Toronto on Monday, J. Maclennan, Q. C., for the defendants, appealed from the judgment of Ferguson, J., at the trial upon the question whether a devise in favor of a Presbyterian Church was void under the statutes of mortmain. The devise was in a will made more than six months before the death of the testator, but a codicil was subsequently added within the six months before the death, and the learned judge held that as this devise was not thereby altered it must be taken to be re-published and the devise therefore void. AMERICAN WIRELETS.

It is rumored in Washington that there is a probability of an extra session of Congress to consider the extradition treaty with Great Britain.

An explosion of natural gas at Black Diamond Steel Works, Pittsburg, Pa., late on Monday afternoon, probably fatally burned a workman named James Kerr and seriously injured five others.

John Getzenauer, a painter, of New York, tried to murder his wife Monday afternoon by firing three shots at her. He then threw himself out of a fifth story window and received injuries from which he died. The shooting was the outcome of family difficulty.

Gold and Silver Products.

Washington, Feb. 23.—The production of gold during 1886 exceeded that of any previous year since 1880 and almost equalled the production of that year. This amounted to $35,000,000 in 1886, against $31,300,000 in 1885. The production of silver was $49,895,930. The amount of gold bullion imported was $17,947,518; exports, $37,862,637. Importations were made almost exclusively since August last.

MR. ROSS' POSITION.

A Stinging Rebuke to the "Globe" and its Satellites.

The Grit papers, following in the wake of the Toronto Globe, have been classing Mr. A. M. Ross, M.P., of Lisgar, Man. (who was elected by acclamation), as an Independent. Here is what Mr. Ross said after the election to the people at Selkirk:—

"On account of a speech he made in the House in favor of the C.P.R. the Grit members, some of whom where his warm friends, would not even see him, and took every opportunity to snub him. Even David Mills would not look at him. The Grit party had done their best to oust him out of Lisgar, and had tried to vilify him as much as possible, but to-day, he rejoiced to say, was a complete answer to their efforts. It had been said that he was a non-resident, that he had taken up his abode in British Columbia, but he assured his hearers that his considered Manitoba as still his home, and would at no distant day return to it. During his term in Parliament he considered both political parties in the House, and was thoroughly convinced that the Government of Sir John Macdonald was the one the most to be depended upon to work for the interests of Manitoba and the North-west, and for that reason he had come to the conclusion to enter Parliament this time as a supporter of the Conservative Government. (Cheers)."

Excitement in the Chinese Harem.

From the London Times.

There appeared a few weeks ago a decree of the Empress-Mother of China, calling upon Tehou, the Censor, to justify his strictures with regard to the employment of one of the court eunuchs in a semi-political capacity. The incident has caused a good deal of excitement in Pekin, particularly among the 5,000 guardians of the imperial harem. A strong feeling of rivalry exists between these palace officials and the Mandarins; but the former are supported by the Empress, who has the supreme direction and choosing of the female members of the court. The Emperor is entitled to seven "legal" and an unlimited number of "illegal" concubines. If, however, one of the latter give birth to a son, her status is legitimated, and she becomes a "Princess of the Blood," and associated to the fortunes of her child, who may one day ascend the throne. Those young ladies who arrive at the age of 25 without giving an increase to the imperial family are restored to the bosom of their parents and are quickly sought in marriage by suitors of their own degree. It is an accepted social dogma that they all leave the court without a stain upon their character. An overhauling of the seraglio in this sense takes place every three years, and new recruits from about 14 years of age are selected by the Empress to fill up the vacancies. Her choice, however, is almost invariably confined to the pretty daughters of Manchu officers, so as to preserve as far as possible the racial integrity of the dynasty.

A Gorgeous Baron.

From the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Baron Zedwitz, the military attache of the German Legation, was the most gorgeous thing in regimentals there. His light-blue coat, his tight, white breeches, and his beautiful patent leather boots made one soberly uniformed envious, and when it came to aigrettes, and loops and cords, and frogs and medals, any American bandmaster would die of envy. He carries a helmet that, with its white horse tail, is as large as a bee hive, and it fills his arm like a debutante's biggest bouquet. His patent leather boots, that reach up over his knees, do not look like real warfare, or even riding academy practice, and the ferocious looking silver spurs, that ring musically every time he sets his heels down in the decisive Prussian marching step, have no points on the rowels at all, simply little round pieces of silver, that only look dangerous at a distance, and warn the wearers of tulle dresses to keep away.

Many people, while stopping at Hotels, make themselves miserable by worrying about FIRE. The Grand Union Hotel, New York City, has just had erected eight large fire escapes. All through the halls are fire-hose, Babcock fire extinguishers and hand grenades. Four watchmen constantly patrol the building during the night.

The extent or degree of the oscillation of chimneys has been exactly measured by observation of the shadows cast by the sun upon the ground. An instance in point is that of a chimney one hundred and fifteen feet high and four feet in diameter externally at the top, near Marseilles, France, the oscillations of which were observed by the shadow during a high wind to attain a maximum of twenty inches.

Liver Complaint

Is more surely and speedily cured by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, than by any other remedy. "I was a great sufferer from liver troubles, and never found anything that gave me permanent relief until I began taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla, about two years ago. A few bottles of this medicine produced a radical cure.—Wm. E. Baker, 135 W. Brookline st., Boston, Mass.

A Remarkable Cure.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla has cured me of as bad a case of Abscess of the Liver as any human being could be afflicted with and live. I was confined to the house for two years, and, for the last three months of that time, was unable to leave my bed. Four physicians treated me without giving relief, and, in fact, nothing helped me, until I tried Ayer's Sarsaparilla. After using a quarter of a bottle of this medicine I began to feel better, and every additional dose seemed to bring new health and strength. I used three bottles, and am now able to attend to my business. I walk to town—one mile distant—and return, without difficulty. Ayer's Sarsaparilla has accomplished all this for me. —W. S. Miner, Carson City, Mich.

A NEW SWINDLE,

By Which Farmers are Gulled on the Bogus Roof Paint.

It will be interesting to some of our farmer friends to know just how the roof paint swindle is worked. The operation is as follows:—A stranger appears to a farmer, states that he is travelling for a roofing company, and in order to introduce their compound he would like to send the farmer ten gallons free. "In order to show to the company that he is doing straight business, he is obliged to ask the farmer for a written order for the paint, and he will give the farmer in return a receipt, so he can get the paint, which will be shipped to him." The receipt reads:—

"This is to certify that Mr. Blank is to have ten gallons paint specified on the card signed, free of charge and for nothing.

"JOHN SMITH."

The paper which the farmer gives the "agent" is:—

"Tingal, Feb. 24, 1887.

"New York Roofing Co:—

"GENTS,—Please ship me by Michigan Central Railroad to Shedden Station two casks of your roofing compound according to the follow agreement, viz:

"I am to have ten gallons of your roofing compound free of charge; for all future orders I am to pay two-thirds of the retail price. Any verbal agreement different from the above will not be recognized. JAMES BROWN.

"Retail price $3.24 per gallon."

All this while the "agent" and the farmer have been talking in a loose way about "ten gallons" and "two casks," and an idea has crept into the farmer's head that each cask is to contain only five gallons; but, bless you, you were never more mistaken. By and bye, a week or two after, two casks of the roofing paint, valued at $218, are delivered. The farmer is rather paralyzed, begins to feel that he has been duped, but manages to say he "thinks not. He never gave an order for such an amount, and what he did order was to be without charge." "Certainly, certainly," says the attorney, "you have ten gallons free, but"—and he produces the farmer's order—for "two casks." The farmer attempts to explain, but the deliverer says he don't know anything about that. There is the farmer's order for "two casks" and his signature, which he has acknowledged. There is the bill and the bill of lading showing that the goods have been shipped. The goods have been shipped in good faith. He wants to know if the farmer is in the habit of doing business in this way; if he makes a practice of going back on his word. As the knaves invariably select well-off farmers, this is liable to be a catcher. The deliverer isn't particular about having cash down, but he wants the matter settled some way. If the farmer can't pay cash he'll take his note; if the farmer gives his note, that settles it—he is kitten, and if he remains obdurate the swindler retires.

That is the way they talk, and the catch all lies in the lack of specifications as to how much "two casks" shall contain. It is a very neat trick, but sometimes it don't work.

A GLORIOUS RECORD.

Mr. Carling's Nine Political Successes!

A CAREER TO BE PROUD OF.

The re-election of Hon. John Carling yesterday makes the ninth contest of his political career, in all of which he has been successful.

The first was in 1858, when he ran against Mr. Elijah Leonard. The vote then stood:—

Carling, 901; Leonard, 329

Mr. Carling had a majority in every Ward of the city, making a total of 572

The second was in 1863, when Mr. Carling was opposed by Mr. Wm. McBride. The vote stood:—Carling, 848; McBride, 490.

Mr. Carling had a majority in every ward, making a total of 358.

The third and fourth were a double contest in 1867 (year of confederation), when Mr. Carling was opposed for the House of Commons by Mr. James Peacock, and for the Local Legislature by Mr. James Durand. The results were as follows:—

For the House of Commons, Carling, 1,182; Peacock, 267; majority, 915.

For the Local Legislature, Carling, 94; Durand, 606; majority, 341.

Carling had a majority in every Ward for both Houses.

In the fifth contest, which took place in 1871, Mr. Carling was opposed by Mr. Francis Evans Cornish, whom he vanquished by 427 majority.

Mr. Carling had a majority in every Ward of the city.

Dual representation was then abolished.

The general elections for the House of Commons took place in 1882, in which Mr. Hugh Macmahon opposed Mr. Carling, who ran for the sixth time. The result of that contest was as follows:—

Carling, 1,101; Macmahon, 797.

Majority for Carling, 304, as usual leading in every Ward of the city.

In 1878 Mr. Carling was nominated for the seventh of his successful contests, being opposed by Col. Walker. The vote stood:—

Carling, 1,407; Walker, 1,344.

Majority for Carling, 63.

Mr. Carling had a majority in six Wards out of seven.

The eighth time Mr. Carling was nominated in 1883, and was opposed by Mr. John Campbell, on which occasion the vote stood:—

Carling, 1,486. Campbell, 1,240.

Majority for Carling, 256, sweeping every Ward.

The result of the ninth contest, which took place yesterday is known to our readers. Mr. Carling was most handsomely supported, and sustained in the bitterest trial of strength in the whole political record of the city, and he had a majority in three Wards out of the four to which the city is now reduced.

Is it not a grand series of triumphs? What public man can boast a greater?

A HORRIBLE STORY.

Sad Fate of a Helpless Chicago Millionaire.

Who is Reported to Have Been Eaten Alive by Maggots.

Arrest of the Two Men Alleged to Have Had Charge of the Unfortunate—Revolting Details, etc.

Government Detective McGowan and Constable Heffernan, of Port Elgin, on Monday last arrested James Keyes and Henry Raymond on a warrant charging them with the slaying of Wm. Webster, the Chicago millionaire, who is said to have been eaten alive by vermin. As nearly as can be learned the facts in the case are as follows:—Some two years ago all Chicago was startled by the mysterious disappearance of Mr. Richard R. Webster, a well-known millionaire. His friends employed Pinkerton and other detectives to trace him up, and advertised for him in the newspapers, but every effort to get on the track of the missing man was unavailing. Nothing more was known of him until early in January last, when his body was brought to Chicago for burial by his son, Wm. Webster. What story young Webster told his relatives in Chicago about his father's disappearance and death is not known here. It is alleged, however, that he had enticed his father away, and for two years kept him practically a prisoner. Mr. Webster, sr., married when young, and the boy William was the son of the first wife, who died several years after he was born. Mr. Webster married again, a young and attractive woman, and the son, it is said, feared her influence over his father, and fancied that, at his father's death, the father would leave the bulk of his property to her. The allegation is that this is why the son enticed his father away, and held him until he was glad to either make a will or sign papers transferring the property to his son. That this impression is held in Chicago is evidenced by the fact that a civil suit is being brought by the friends of the second wife to test the validity of the transfer papers which young Webster is said to have wrung from his father.

It is stated that the old man was enticed away while under the influence of liquor. The son either took him or had him taken to a small town in Michigan, and thence to various places in the States, keeping him principally down South. Six or seven months ago the old man turned up in Burgoyne, a settlement a few miles from Port Elgin. Here he was placed by his son in charge of a hotel-keeper named Keays. Keays kept the only hotel there, in fact he was about the whole settlement in himself, for there were only a few houses built up about his imposing hostelry. A strict watch was kept on the old man, and Keays seemingly treated him well. Mr. Webster was continually begging of them to let him go home to his wife and family, but this was refused him. On one occasion he escaped from the vigilant guard, and in his anxiety to get away he strayed into the woods and was lost. The people in the village and surrounding neighborhood turned out to search for him, and after about three days he was found lying beneath a tree so weak and exhausted that he was unable to rise. In the meantime Keays had telegraphed the sad word of his father's disappearance, and the son came to Burgoyne at once. Shortly after his arrival, father and son left Burgoyne, and it has not yet been ascertained where they went. At any rate they were absent about a week. On their return the son told Keays that the old man had signed over all the property to him. He asked Keays to get a man to take charge of the father—to do nothing else than watch him, and see that he did not escape again. Keays secured a man named Raymond, and the son left for Chicago. Keays was getting $70 a month for taking charge of Webster, and out of this he paid Raymond a small sum for watching him. After the son left for Chicago, a decided change came over affairs. The old man is said to have been neglected and half starved, his clothes were unwashed, and his room was left in a state of such filth that living in it would seem an impossibility. Very shortly he began to show signs of the ill-treatment he was receiving. He became emaciated and so weak he could not walk. His food consisted, it is said, of bread and two cups of tea twice a day. Towards the end of December Keays sold his hotel to a man named Kelly. Mrs. Kelly, seeing the horrible state of the old man and his room, complained to Raymond frequently that Webster was not receiving proper treatment, and said he was used shamefully. She gave him some sago pudding one day, and while the old man was eating it Raymond came in and told her that she had no right to give him anything, it being against the doctor's orders. A few days after this the doctor denied that he had given any such instructions. Mrs. Kelly did all she could for the unfortunate man, but her assistance came too late, and on the 30th of December he died. His room was in such a horribly filthy state that people were afraid to go in, and it was with utmost difficulty that anyone could be induced to perform the last sad offices of the dead millionaire. A Mr. Haines, who was boarding at the hotel, at last came to Mrs. Kelly's assistance, and they lifted the old man from the bed to the floor. It was then they noticed that the sheets were besmeared with blood. With a pair of scissors Haines cut open the dead man's shirt and undershirt. They were in a condition of filth too horrible to describe, and Haines was horrified to see the old man's breast literally alive with maggots, and on his right side, which was a little paralized, a large hole was eaten in. This part of the story is almost too incredible for belief. When the maggots in the side were brushed out a stream of blood flowed from the body, and the blood and the size of the hole showed conclusively that the maggots had been there for weeks before his death. Haines washed the dead man and put on a clean shirt. In doing so he raised the arm, and the skin under the arm pit broke away, and a mass of maggots fell out. It seemed as though the old man's side was actually eaten away by this vermin life. The appearance of the body is described as being something frightful. The poor old man's emaciated form was a mass of corruption.

Mr. Kelly was called away for a day or two at this time, and before going he left strict orders that the body was not to be removed during his absence. Keays, however, who at this time had started a large hotel in Port Elgin, came with an undertaker and took the body away, in the meantime telegraphing to his son, who had the body taken to Chicago. At this time the Coroner, Dr. Patterson, was not aware of the circumstances of the case, and no inquest was held, although he states now that had he known the circumstances he would have instituted an inquiry.

Shortly after Wm. Webster had returned to Chicago with the body of his father fresh interest was created in the affair here by the arrival of Sheriff's Officer John O'Connel. Mr. O'Connel was suspicious of foul play and spent some time in investigating the case. Shortly after his arrival a nephew of the dead man appeared, and he, too, was investigated. He engaged the services of a first-class lawyer to get affidavits from those who came in contact with the old man, and the statutory declarations they affirmed bear out, it is said, the story as it is told above.

Mr. Webster was an old man, about 65 years of age, and when he arrived at Burgoyne he was fashionably and handsomely attired, was apparently strong and healthy, and had all the appearance of a cultured, educated gentleman. In searching his bedroom afterwards Constable Briggs found a bottle of laudanum and some white powder, the nature of which is not known. Mrs. Kelly states that a couple of mornings before his death she went up to his room and all at once remarked a startling change in him. He seemed to be stupid, and lay as if under the influence of some narcotic.

The prisoners were taken to Walkerton to appear before the magistrate. The Crown will endeavor to produce witnesses. Detective McGowan says the evidence he can produce will be sensational and revolting.

Congressional Electricity.

From the Baltimore American.

"I think I'll take my electricity," said a member of Congress to-day, as he came out of the House into the lobby. "I feel all worn out; that last speech has almost exhausted me. Won't you come along?" he asked of a fellow member.

"I don't mind," the second Congressman replied. "I think a little will do me good, too."

The two members got on the elevator and went down to the basement to take their electricity. It is quite "the fad" nowadays for the members to take electricity. An electric apparatus has been fixed up in the engine room in the basement, and daily the members avail themselves of the opportunity to get freshened up. A board, with a tooth piece of copper, is placed beneath the great belt of the large engine wheel, and the electricity thus generated is carried off by a wire attached to the board, which is long enough to be grasped by one who sits in a chair near by. The circuit is completed by the person holding the wire grasping a small brass chain attached to the railing around the engine's wheel. The system is thus filled quietly with electricity. The members say it is splendid after they have been out to receptions and suppers all night, or after they have exhausted their brain power by speech making or listening. A great many members take electricity, and some go to the basement of the Capitol for it every day during the session.

The C.P.R. is 3,090 miles long from Quebec to Vancouver, and travellers making the journey would do well to purchase a solid leather trunk from Alex. Johnston & Co., 351 Richmond street. A large assortment of trunks, valises, satchels, &c., always on hand at lowest prices.

Who are Good Farmers

The Farm and Stock says on this point:—Prosperity comes of intelligent enterprise and industry with a thorough knowledge of the business in hand. It is not the education of schools and colleges that gives industry and enterprise, but, all else being equal, education assists largely. In fact, it is a most important integer to success in any calling, and quite as much so to the farmer as to any other business man.

A good farmer is methodical. He does his work at the proper time and in proper season. He keeps himself posted on market prices and never refuses to sell when values show a proper profit for his labors. His circumstances may not permit him to hold a crop for some possible larger price in the future, yet he never sells at a loss to himself, except in such cases, for instance, when an untoward season may have reduced the yield and quality of the crop below the cost of production. Yet here the good farmer will get all there is possible out of the crop. Why? He is a reading man. Reads the best journals devoted to his calling and thereby keeps himself fully posted in all that pertains to the present value, and also the future probabilities, of the markets of the country.

The good farmer keeps his farm fully stocked, and with a diversity of animals. He allows no manure to go unduly to waste. He feeds up such inferior grain as would otherwise have to be sacrificed. His stock enables him to carry out a more elaborate rotation of crops, thus fully holding the integrity of the soil, and very often increasing the fertility from year to year. He knows full well that a soil once depleted of its necessary constituents—that to renew these costs more than the profits from the grain sold. Still further, he knows that to realize best crops the soil must contain, in excess, the constituents required by a crop. Hence his acumen in carrying out a rotation by which succeeding crops shall take up these constituents not needed by preceding ones is never at fault. He knows his soil from a careful study of its constituents and capabilities. He drains waste, damp, or wet situations so as to bring a field as near as possible into one equally arable condition.

A good farmer never runs needlessly into debt, trusting to "luck" to get out. He knows that blind chance never gave any man prosperity; that honest prosperity comes only by labor and honest intelligent endeavor, and never allows himself to be seduced from his integrity because some other man, by chicanery or fraud, has gotten money rightfully belonging to another

The choir of the Queen's Avenue Methodist Church purpose giving a concert on Tuesday evening, the 1st of March, in the church. This choir, although little over a year old, is now the largest in the city, if not in Canada, mustering nearly one hundred members, and Mr. Fetherston, their energetic leader and organist, deserves great credit for the way in which he has worked it up from twenty-five members to the large stand it now has in this short time. Not content with local talent, Mr. Fetherston has engaged Miss Carrie Smith, of Buffalo, who is highly spoken of as a very fine soprano; also Mr. Chas. Dimmock, of Brantford, who is said to be one of Canada's finest tenors. No doubt this will be one of the very best concerts of the season.

THE PEOPLE HAVE SPOKEN.

It was altogether natural to conclude that the people of Canada would not be so lost to a sense of their own interests as to turn out the present Government for the purpose of replacing the Grits in office. The public conscience is fully aware that the acts of the administration of Sir John Macdonald have been very beneficial to the country at large, while they bear in doleful recollection the miserable condition of things that existed as the result of "reform" rule. The issue of the elections is not a matter of surprise, therefore, to those who asked themselves this simple question—Whether prejudice and slander were likely to be the guiding lines of action on which the sensible electors would be willing to move. For what, after all, have the Grits had to present to the people as a reason why the Government of Sir John should be ousted? The progress of the country since 1878 has been so astonishing, so solid and secure, that no one could regard it without being satisfied that the right policy had been contrived, and that in the further pursuance of it continual satisfaction would be found. It is true that attempts have been made to make it appear that wrongful acts had been committed in various ways, at various times. But on investigation these charges have all turned out to be groundless. The great outcry that was made as to the disposition of the public lands in the North-west has been shown time and again to have been absolutely false, and yet has been reiterated from week to week, and from month to month, as if the allegations had not been repeatedly confuted and exposed. So, too, in respect of the charges in relation to the execution of Riel. It has been seen that the principle that actuated the Government in that difficult affair was that which has been condensed in the maxim:—"One Law for All." And respecting the National Policy, even Mr. Blake himself has been obliged to give way before it, and to say that if placed in office he would not seek to alter it in any of its main principles of action, but that he would confine himself to some minor modifications of the tariff. To do so was to give up the chief position that the Grits had so long maintained, and to say that, after all, the Government had been in the right. After such a confession as that the case of the Grit party may be said to have gone by default. There was nothing left in it. And what has been equally apparent is this, that they have not had any "alternative policy" to present. Their organs and platform speakers have relied almost solely upon scandalous assertions as a means of discrediting the Liberal-Conservative party. But these have been so often exposed that the people at large came to place no reliance in them. The election has turned upon the grave issues that have combined to constitute the Government policy. And the verdict of yesterday has been to establish them once for all. It will be known henceforth that the National Policy is the policy not only of a Government but of the people, and that it is one that will not be departed from under any specious pretense, such as Mr. Blake has put forward. And the maintenance of the law is another of those conditions which will now be understood to underlie the popular will. The due expenditure of money for the purpose of the general improvement of the country has also been recognized as salutary, and the bugbear of a burdensome debt has been discounted by those who are able to distinguish as between money spent for legitimate and profitable purposes and that which has elsewhere been squandered in empty enterprises. From every point of view the result of yesterday affords good ground for congratulation, and should teach the Grits that they cannot hoodwink an intelligent people by issuing a flood of miserable slander.

LONDON AND MR. CARLING.

The political elections in London are generally pretty hot. Little quarter is either asked or expected on either side. But after all is over the excitement dies away, and those who have differed on questions of a public nature become the best of friends again. It is a noticeable fact that Mr. Carling has been the best abused man at all times. He has held his seat longer, we think, than any other member in the Dominion House, and with the exception of an illegal election that was won from him, has held it continuously. Such a position is a very trying one, for no one can be in public life for so long a time without disobliging some persons, or exciting the envy of others. The result of the election of yesterday shows, however, that Mr. Carling still lives in the affections of the people. And justly so. For quite apart from that which he has done in relation to the general affairs of the country, he has exerted himself in behalf of his constituents in a manner that no other representative has been able to accomplish. If he had had that which is due to him he would have been elected by acclamation every time. But that would have been too gracious an act to expect at the hands of the Grits, who from time to time have tried to make the outside public believe that they were about to sweep London clean of its Conservative majority. But each time they have only disappointed those that trusted in them. The fact is, that London has been growing more and more Conservative, as it has come home to the minds of the people that the policy of the Conservative party is that alone by which we can call all prosper as a people. Mr. Carling has just reason to be proud of the result of the election just held, and he no doubt feels that the devotion that has been exhibited towards him in so many quarters—in some quarters so unexpected—deserves at his hands the warmest thanks. Few constituencies are as strongly attached to a representative as is London to Mr. Carling, and we feel sure that no consideration—scarcely that pertaining to life itself—would wean his sympathies from the home of his youth, and the successes of his maturer years. London and Mr. Carling are inseparable. The bond has been too often welded in confidence and affection to be easily broken.

MINISTERS ALL RE-ELECTED.

One of the most gratifying features of the elections is to be found in the fact that all of the Ministers have been re-elected. And this as respects Quebec is especially satisfactory. The members representing Quebec in the Government were made the especial objects of attack, because they stood up manfully for the great principle of "One Law for All." When they stood firm in hostility to the demand that was made on them to arrest the course of justice respecting the execution of Riel, they took their political future in their hands. But they did not flinch from the position, and for that reason deserve the especial thanks of all loyal men in Ontario, and the Dominion at large. They have also been confirmed by the votes of the people in all the policies to which they have lent their efficient aid, and by reason of which the progress of the country has been so greatly benefited. All honor to them! we say.

GREENBACKS AT A DISCOUNT.

The Yankee greenbacks that were poured in and handled by the Grits in the hope of stemming the tide of the popular will has been as so much money wasted, except to those who have "socked it down here," as one of the witnesses at a celebrated election trial in this city testified to have done with the "boodle" that had been intrusted to him. It is evident that the people of the Dominion do not intend to have their policy dictated to them from the other side of the lines. They want to have the Fisheries taken care of, as Sir John has been doing, and they want the National Policy to protect them from the greed of the American manufacturers. We all like our neighbors very well, but when election time comes we do not desire that their greenbacks should hold the sway.

"CARRIED HIM OUT."

The defeat that has overtaken Mr. M. C. Cameron in West Huron, at the hands of Mr. Porter, is the most suggestive. Perhaps there is no man within the ranks of Gritism who has done so much to shock the moral sense of the people as that political bravo, who has violated truth so often and so flagrantly. It has been seen that he did not even tell the truth to his political leader, Mr. Blake, but furnished him with false statements which were openly given to the people as facts, but which, when proved by the Hon. Thomas White to be unfounded, were not even disowned by Mr. Blake himself, nor apologized for by their author. The western Ananias has been "carried out."

THE FUTURE OF BLAKE.

It has been freely predicted that if beaten this time Hon. Mr. Blake would retire into private life and resume his professional practice. But how could Mr. Blake have hoped for success or an enthusiastic support, when he so often declared that he had no relish for the service he had undertaken, and that "it suited him in none of the relations of life." He also said he would gladly give up the lead the moment his followers said the word. He will doubtless do so before they ask him to get out. The country has said that it does not care for his prolixity and hypocrisy, and will not tolerate his assumption of power in the lion's skin of the National Policy.

The readers of the FREE PRESS had been led to expect that West Middlesex would be redeemed from the clutches of Gritism—and they have not been disappointed. Dr. Roome has carried the riding at a rush and the neighboring electoral district has ranged itself with those other constituencies in the West which have abjured the errors by which they were so long betrayed. All honor to the men of West Middlesex. A constituency gained from the enemy is a two-fold victory.

In East Elgin much disappointment has come about in the defeat of Mr. Ermatinger. He would have proved a most useful member, and we are not without hope that at the next trial of strength he will be able to induce the electors to reverse the verdict that now stands against him. At the same time it may be remarked that he played his part nobly, and though defeated, has placed the Conservatives of Elgin under a debt of obligation to him.

The attempts that were made to sow dissensions in the ranks of the Conservatives in North Middlesex have been signally defeated. Mr. Coughlin has been gloriously successful, and has retained a seat that was at one time one of the chief strongholds of Gritism in the west. Thus out of the five constituencies of which London is the centre, the Conservatives have carried four. That fact tells a tale that carries with it a significant lesson.

The Globe and Tiser have been aptly called the "Screaming Twins." The appellation is well given. For what have they been about during the last few weeks but screaming and spitting, clawing, fighting, abusing and defaming, scolding and calling out "thief" against their betters? But the "Screaming Twins" are now left to tear their hair in desperation. The people do not like them nor their ways.

Mr. Mills has just managed to get squeezed in by a majority of twenty! It is quite possible that a recount and a scrutiny may deprive him even of that small modicum of comfort. Dr. Mitchell has fought an excellent fight, and may yet be confirmed in the seat. At any rate, Mr. Mills has nothing much to brag of.

Not among the least of the gains which the Conservatives of the West have reason to be justly proud of is that of South Norfolk, which has been gallantly carried by Colonel Tisdale. Taken with those of East Lambton and West Middlesex, it counts three gratifying gains in the West.

ECHOES OF ELECTION DAY.

Our equine friends worked nobly yesterday, seeming to be actuated by the war spirit of their drivers. We can be sure that every Liberal-Conservative nag got a good feed of oats after his hard day's labor, it is to be hoped the Grit drivers did not forget, in their terrible chagrin, to do justice to the animals which did such fierce duty on their less fortunate behalf.

The Grits thought they had "a dead sure thing" yesterday, and drove their nags with an air of peculiar self-satisfaction. But the "laughing muscle" gradually relaxed and straightened out to lugubrious lengths directly the returns came in from brave old Ward No. 4, which got its work in so nobly.

The most daring attempts at bulldozing were made in the Percival polling division, on Queen's avenue, where a number of our Italian fellow-citizens reside. On appearing to record their votes, violent objections were raised by the Grit scrutineers, who contended that these Italians were not citizens of Canada. This was untrue, however. These good men had duly taken out naturalization papers, and were as good voters as the amiable Grit scrutineer who tried to bluff them off. They voted, we believe, for the Hon. John Carling, the great and unconquerable chieftain of the Conservative party in London.

The Young Louis Riels went to the trouble of procuring a coffin for use in the procession which did not come off. It was a case of gross indecency, characteristic of their entire proceedings, and the defeat of their hero has been a fitting rebuke of such impertinent folly.

The "grittiest of the Grits" is said to have made a speech to the Louis Riels on Monday night, in which he promised them "a surprise party" for Tuesday at 5 p.m. It came to them, accordingly! Some of them got the biggest surprise they have ever experienced, having been puffed up by their patron with the idea of an easy victory. They were very savage, but quite impotent in their savagery, last night, in face of the greatest procession of triumph ever witnessed in Ontario, both in numbers and enthusiasm.

There had been a great parade of brooms in the city for the past week. Every day a truck load or so would be seen rolling through the streets. If any one asked what they were for, the Young Riels replied that they were for Hyman's Committee. They meant to "sweep the Tories out" with them on Tuesday night, &c. Those brooms can now be bought cheaply. They are "dead stock," and a "heavy sacrifice" for the Riel Club. Buy a broom!! Cheaper than the Cheapest!!

So deep was the interest taken in the London election, that sporting men came all the way from Montreal on Monday, with stacks of money to bet with. They backed "Carling" all the way through, but found few takers.

Two thousand kazoos and four hundred brass horns were imported here by the Grits to use in their proposed triumphal progress through the city. They are now stowed away in some obscure loft, silent and tuneless. They must have cost Mr. Hyman a pretty penny, but they will never give forth a note in his political honor.

But—
The brass did crash
And the trumpets play
At the Tory's dash
On election day,
As they toddled away in fine array,
With Carling as the Conqueror.

"Wet tan bark" is hardly a comfortable abode of rest for weary boodlers, bribers and bulldozers; yet, even that would have been found an acceptable bed for the Young Louis Riels last night. We predicted that they would be calling upon it to cover them. The only trouble is there is not enough to go round and spread on top.

It is quite true, as related by Mr. ex-Ald. O'Mears at the City Hall, that a certain Grit on passing a slippery sidewalk opposite Hyman's tannery on Richmond st., remarked that he "hoped it would not be cleaned off until Carling came along there and broke his neck." It is also true that the same person on passing the same spot next day, actually slipped and broke his collar bone! The curse came home to roost, with a vengeance! Was it a special augury? No Conservative wishes such bad luck to his neighbors, but this incident is a startling admonition to all those young Louis Riels who have been cursing their opponents so bitterly during the past month.

It is said that the colored men of this city, who were so much lampooned by the Advertiser, did excellent work for the Hon. Mr. Carling. The "Lime Kiln Club," as the Hyman organ called them, were on the right side, and can fairly share in the triumph of their political hero and friend.

The Hon. Mr. Blake came three times to the rescue of the Young Assyrians in this city. He exhorted them to "go up and take the city." They undertook to do so. But, as the FREE PRESS said at the time, the city would remain in the keeping of the good King Hezekiah, while the place where the old lion walked and the young lions fed, would be desolate in the time of trial.

A Young Louis Riel was heard to say that if Hyman was beaten, after so much fuss and parade, he would like to leave town for a few weeks. By all means let him do so! Let him take a ticket for the Arctic Circle. It is rather warm here just now.

The "Tiger" made a hard fight of it, but as ever, he was "downed," as Mr. Gibbons would say, by the old Liberal-Conservative Lion.

The Grit badger tried to steal and befoul the fox's burrow, but the fox was there and on guard. And so the badger must try and scratch a burrow for himself elsewhere.

The patriots rejoiced last night. They were happy, for the horse and his rider, he of the "specs," were thrown into the sea.

'Twas well the Grits "demonstrated" with their blue light procession on Saturday night. The chemicals burnt well, in one case nearly consuming a couple of the "fire-eaters." There was beat of drum and rum-ti-tum, but for "one night only." We shall not hear much more drum beating from that quarter for five years to come!

The broom procession last night was immense!

The Grits in 1882 fretted at the leadership of Mr. Blake. One of the organs—the Hamilton Times—said the party wanted a leader who could "win victories." Mr. Blake won neither in 1882 nor again in 1887. He has instead but demoralised the Grits with his heavy maunderings and lack of a defined policy. The country is sick of it.

Dirt getting up, dirt lying down,
Dirt in the eye, dirt in the ear,
Dirt in the mouth, dirt all round has been the whole political stock in trade of the Grit party in this election. But the country has soured on the policy of defamation. It believes in the capable government and honest intentions of Sir John, and disapproves of slander.

The Grits will now turn and rend Mr. Blake as they did Mr. Mackenzie, with Blake's connivance, in 1879. They will cry, away with him! But the question is, who can they get to fill his place? M. C. Cameron once had notions in that direction, but they have probably vanished along with his seat in Parliament.

A SCIENTIFIC FACT.

"Royal" the only Baking Powder Free from Lime and Absolutely Pure.

Lime is the serious defect found in most of the cream of tartar baking powders. As a matter of fact, chemical analysis has found it in all such powders except the "Royal." Its presence is caused by the use of adulterated cream of tartar in the effort to reduce their cost of production.

Lime adds to the weight, while it detracts from the strength of the baking powder. It also renders the food less wholesome, giving rise to dyspepsia and kindred ailments. Baking powders containing lime produce less leavening gas, and therefore in use are more expensive than a first-class, pure article.

The Royal Baking Powder is made from cream of tartar that is first specially refined and made chemically pure. No tartrate of lime or other impurity can find its way into the "Royal," and to this fact its great superiority in strength, wholesomeness and keeping quality is due.

All this adds greatly to the cost of manufacturing the Royal Baking Powder, but as all its ingredients are selected and prepared with the same precise care and regardless of labor or expense, an article is produced that is free from every extraneous substance—"absolutely pure." Nor does it contain any ingredients except those necessary to make a pure, wholesome and perfect baking powder.

Prof. McMurtrie, late chemist in chief to the U. S. Department of Agriculture, after analyzing the cream of tartar used by the various baking powders of the market, reported as follows:

"I have examined the cream of tartar manufactured for and used by the Royal Baking Powder Company in their baking powder, and find it to be perfectly pure and free from lime in any form."

Prof. Love, who made the analyses of baking powders for the N. Y. State Board of Health, as well as for the Government, certifies to the purity and wholesomeness of the Royal.

Dr. E. H. Bartley, chemist of the Brooklyn, N. Y., Department of Health, says: "I have recently analyzed samples of the Royal Baking Powder purchased by myself in the stores of this city, and find it free from lime in any form."

Bread, cake, biscuits, etc., prepared with Royal Baking Powder, will be lighter, sweeter and more wholesome than if made with any other baking powder or leavening agent.

LONDON TRUE

To Her Old Conservative Principles,

CARLING SOLID

He Wins Against the Greatest Odds.

TREMENDOUS OVATION

Given to Mr. Carling by Enthusiastic Conservatives.

THE FULL RETURNS.

The Elaborate Demonstration Prepared for by the Grits, Indefinitely Postponed.

Mr. Carling's Address—How the News was Received — Incidents of the Day — The Lanterns and Voce-phones Laid Away—The "Tiger." Sectional Appeals Fail, &c., &c.

The election of Mr. Carling once more by the City of London in the face of the unscrupulous organization which opposed him, is a triumph for the Conservative cause in the west, which shows the stability of the party and the firm hold the policy of Sir John Macdonald's Government has on the hearts of the people. There never was a more bitter opposition shown to a distinguished public man than that to which Mr. Carling was subject, and all the benefits which his influence has been able to secure for the city was distorted by the perverted minds of the Advertiser and the Grit leaders, until his most innocent and unselfish acts were made to appear as the evidences of unmitigated selfishness, instead of the efforts of a loyal citizen, anxious to help forward his native place. The efforts of the Grits to defeat Mr. Carling were desperate. Money was poured out like water. The several processions, demonstrations, etc., held in the interest of Mr. Hyman were only got up at a vast expense, and Mr. Blake's frequent visits to London, the quantity of talk lavished on the electors of the city, all showed that the Grit party had organized a dead set on Mr. Carling's seat, and were determined to carry the city if they could. The Conservatives met the opposition with a good organization, and worked faithfully until the last vote was polled. The efforts of each side in this direction resulted in a very heavy vote being pulled. There was quite an element of uncertainty added to the contest by the addition of many newly enfranchised persons to the rolls; but it is an encouraging reflection that a fair majority of these new voters were true to the Conservative cause. The election was conducted quietly. In No. 1 Ward the result was in a certain degree discouraging to the Conservatives, who counted on a fair majority there. No. 2 was not very promising, as the list for that Ward was set down somewhat by the system adopted by the Revising Barrister of making the electors vote in the division in which they happened to reside instead of where their places of business happened to be. Mr. Hyman's tannery and shoe factory being located in No. 2 Ward, also, threw the balance slightly against the Conservatives. With these drawbacks a small majority was secured for Mr. Carling in the Ward. No. 3 Ward was the centre point of the battle ground, and the lively work done there by both parties was never surpassed in any election in this city. The young men from the Grit rooms went down there the night before the election, and what was done under cover of the darkness may perhaps account for the large Liberal vote polled. The election was won by the splendid work done in No. 4 Ward. That division of the city was organized early and well, and not a vote possible was lost through neglect. The oldest electioneerers in the Conservative party were surprised by the discrepancy in the vote promised and the result of the tally. A liberal allowance is generally made for doubtful voters, but in the case of yesterday's election it is safe to say that the enemy resorted to false pretences to put the Conservatives off their guard. However, in the words of a certain despatch 40 is a good enough majority for us, and the result will be the same as if Mr. Carling had one of his old-time majorities running up into the hundreds. The Conservatives are to be congratulated on conducting their campaign in a moderate and fair way, relying rather on the justice of their cause than on any appeals to prejudice or personal feeling. The result in the city by polling sub-divisions is appended:—

Carling's majority	60

After the returns had been received from the various polling divisions of the city a great majority of those on the streets went down in front of the Conservative Committee rooms, where, after a short interval, Mr. Carling appeared at the windows of the Young Men's reading room and addressed the electors. He said—I cannot find words to thank you for the noble manner in which you have stood by me at this election. It has been one of the severest contests in which we have ever fought, and we have won it against the most unscrupulous vilification, misrepresentation, slander and abuse that I ever remember in any political election that has taken place in my knowledge. It is indeed gratifying to us to have put down the disgraceful tactics, the savage assaults of our opponents which we have all experienced, to know that we have fairly fought and fairly won the victory over Messrs. Gibbons, Little & Co., the Grit organisers. Mr. Gibbons has, ever since the occasion when he filled the chair at the Blake banquet in this city, been cackling like a hen, and making himself offensively prominent in his vile abuse of decent citizens of London. The listre of the position was rather too much for him. J. W. Little, the other Grit organizer, was, I believe, the main spring of the Young Liberal Club, and their conduct is in part attributed to him. He is the volunteer officer who fumed when brave citizens were hurrying to the front to put down the rebellion, and he said recently on the street, in imitation of Mr. Laurier, that if he had been on the banks of the Saskatchewan he too would have shouldered his musket. The battle has been a hot one, but we have won it (cheers). There was bribery practiced on the other side, and we know it. I am sure Sir John Macdonald and his Government will be sustained (cheers). I believe the policy of Sir John Macdonald has met the approval of the people of this country, and I regard the verdict of my fellow citizens of London as an effectual reply to the slanders with which I have been beset; they have said that I have done to my best for their interests and have re-elected me. For this I desire to express my hearty thanks to my friends, to the young men and old of the Liberal Conservative Association who have one and all worked nobly; to my committees and to the electors generally. More especially do I desire to thank the ladies for their kindly reception of my canvass and the assistance I have received from them; and to the FREE PRESS, which has fought admirably throughout the campaign, and to which the Conservatives of Western Ontario owe a debt of gratitude for the very substantial victory they have won in most of the constituencies where that journal makes its influence felt. He hoped his friends would not do anything now to mar the glorious triumph, but that they would close the fight in the same law-abiding manner as they had conducted it. One thing he referred to was the despicable efforts of the Advertiser to arouse those bitter feelings of religious intolerance which are sometimes disastrous in their results (cheers).

Mr. W. R. Meredith, M.P.P., on coming forward, received an immense ovation the crowd finishing up with three cheers for him. As soon as order was restored Mr. Meredith said the Young Liberals had their procession on Saturday night. (Cheers and laughter.) The contest just closed was essentially a soldiers' battle, and the victory was due to the individual efforts of the voters. It was a substantial victory over misrepresentation and corruption. He believed that never again would the Grits make the fight they had made this time, and that by the rising of to-morrow's sun the Grit party would be practically dead in Canada. The issues of this election were the most important since Confederation. They were, in fact, fighting for Confederation, and the decisive victory attained would, he hoped, discourage the enemies of Canada for many years. This was the first opportunity he had of meeting a large number of his fellow citizens since his election, and he took this opportunity of thanking them for what they had done for him (cheers). In concluding his speech, Mr. Meredith announced the glorious news of victory in Hamilton, Ottawa, Toronto and Kingston. He hoped the Conservatives would be satisfied with their splendid victory, and go to their homes assured that the country was safe.

A TRIUMPHANT PROCESSION.

Before the election the Young Conservatives of the city stuck pretty closely to their work, and made no particular display, while the other fellows had either a torch light procession or a minstrel show every night. When victory was assured, however, the Conservatives felt a little jubilant, and a procession was formed with the Seventh Band in front. It was the champion procession for this city, and although there was no red light, firecrackers or rockets, there was a line of young voting Conservatives numerous enough to wind around the biggest Grit procession and lap over at the ends, while solid victory just gained made the cheers sound a little more musical than the weird howls emitted by the Grit sideshow under the impression that it was a good thing to keep the party courage up. There were two brass bands, a kazoo band, two or three tambourine bands, carriages containing Hon. John Carling, the member-elect for the city, and other leading Conservatives, and the broom brigade numbering over 2,000. The procession wound along from the Liberal Rooms on Richmond street to Queen's avenue, thence to Wellington, back to Clarence and Dundas, and along Dundas to Ridout street. The Young Liberals, true to the principles which have animated them throughout the campaign, ran out and attempted to capture some of the brooms as the tail of the procession was passing their club room. Their attack was beaten back and nothing else occurred to interfere with the success of the "only" Conservative procession, which was the biggest show of the campaign.

AWAITING THE RETURNS.

Scarcely had the hour of five sounded from the city clocks, indicating that the keenly fought contest had virtually reached its close, when the citizens began, as at former elections, to congregate in front of the FREE PRESS office, and within a short time the concourse of people became immense. They came from every direction by scores, and comprised not only citizens, but residents of the surrounding country. With their characteristic enterprise, the FREE PRESS had completed the most perfect arrangements to ensure the obtaining of accurate returns at the earliest possible moment, and the result was that the people were not suffered to remain long in suspense. The telephone was freely brought into requisition, and a consequence it became possible to bulletin the figures from the several polling sub-divisions in a very expeditious manner. Each moment served to materially augment the proportions of the crowd, and it appeared very noticeable that while the vicinity of this office remained almost impassable until a late hour the Advertiser was comparatively deserted. The figures were bulletined from the windows of the FREE PRESS editorial rooms, so that they were plainly visible for a considerable distance, and as each successive sub-division was heard from a cheer went up from the crowd. Gradually, however, a few majorities were secred in favor of Mr Hyman, and as the votes given for the two candidates became almost even the vast throng seemed to be inspired with an intense degree of anxiety, which deepened steadily for a few moments. But when the final returns were recorded from No. 4 Ward, and it was announced that Hon. John Carling, the loyal and long-tried representative of the city, had been once more returned as the choice of the people by the majority of 40 votes, a sigh of relief escaped from the eager, surging concourse, and then, from hundreds of throats, there arose a spontaneous outburst of cheering that resounded far and wide, and served to assure all who were not present to verify the gratifying fact for themselves, that victory once again perched upon the banners of the Liberal-Conservative party. Then the crowd surged towards the Young Men's Conservative Club Rooms, where they remained until they were addressed by Messrs. Carling and Meredith, when they again retraced their steps to the vicinity of this office. As the evening advanced hundreds joined the already large throng, and ultimately an immense concourse of people became packed along the thoroughfare. For upwards of half a block on Richmond street a complete jam existed, sidewalk and roadway being alike so thoroughly filled as to be practically impassable. Even this large space, however, did not suffice to afford standing room, and very many were compelled to find places along Carling street. Glancing from the windows of this office during the evening, nothing could be discerned save one solid sea of upturned faces, while the almost unbounded enthusiasm manifested and the hearty cheers that were given upon the announcement of each additional victory, furnished the most convincing testimony that the vast majority of those present were heartily in favor of the Government of Sir John A. Macdonald, and united in a desire to maintain the National Policy. The enthusiasm was maintained until a late hour, and while the FREE PRESS presented a brilliant appearance, dismal silence brooded over the home of the Grit organ, and silence and darkness reigned supreme. The overwhelming character of the defeat sustained by their candidates had evidently exercised a most depressing effect, and the result was apparent to everyone. But the supporters of London's honest representative, without a single exception, appeared highly jubilant, and whenever an opportunity offered they freely expressed their approval of Mr. Carling and of the wisdom of the electors in the selection they had chosen to make. Indeed, the victory received a fitting celebration, and every appearance of Mr. Carling proved the signal for a grand ovation. In order to contribute to the entertainment of the thousands who were awaiting with intense earnestness for the several returns, a large screen had been fixed in front of the FREE PRESS Office, and upon this were represented, through the medium of a large magic lantern, a very large variety of pictures illustrating in a piquant and striking manner prominent features of the campaign, besides which there were given numerous portraits of prominent public men and citizens, together with many appropriate couplets. These met with the hearty appreciation of the spectators, whose cheers were frequent and prolonged, while the comical features personified excited loud laughter and delight. The programme opened with a fine portrait of the member elect, which was greeted with a grand chorus of applause. Then followed a couplet:—

"Grits are beaten,
Carling's in;
Tories always Know they'd win."

A burst of laughter quickly gave place to a spontaneous, and sustained cheering as the profile of the grand old statesman, Sir John A. Macdonald, was presented to their view. More laughter arose from the couplet,

"The Glee Club now is silent,
The lanterns laid away;
The Tories of the city
All voted t'other way."

A fine portrait of Bishop Walsh was followed with a humorous sketch representing a game cock with fallen head and drooping feathers, and labelled, "'Tiser, 5 o'clock p.m.—The last croak of the Opposition."

A capital portrait of Mr. Hyman, the defeated candidate, was received in solemn silence, not a single cheer being evoked, although quite a few hisses were heard, and cries of "Send him home" closed the scene.

"Let trumpets blow,
And torches blare,
But Champagne Charley Can't get there" was the next couplet, and another portrait of Mr. Carling gained more applause. Much laughter was excited by a rear view of an exceedingly bald pate, labelled, "The Young Rielite." Another couplet read,

The Louis Riel Club
Is shut down for repairs,
The fixures kind of took 'em
A little unawares.

Another scene showed a Grit before the election smiling blandly, while the contrast was given in the doleful expression that covered his countenance after that event. After a portrait of the Governor-General, a picture was given illustrating a rotund, jolly-looking man as the one who voted for Carling, while a cadaverous individual typified he who bet on Hyman. The ex-Adjutant's horse after the battle was an exceedingly dilapidated specimen of the equine race. Profiles of Rev. Dr. Evans and T. V. Powderly preceded the verse:—

They thought the Knights of Labor
For Hyman right would be;
But to the Tories stiff they stuck,
And voted straight N.P.

Mr. H. Becher's portrait was followed with a comical representation of a young Rielite and several other scenes. Then came the couplet,

There was a young fellow named Charley,
With the electors he wanted to parley;
But the people said "nay,
At home you shall stay,"
And that was the end of poor Charley.

A venerable, scraggy horse of gaunt appearance represented the Free Trade nag, and then came the verse,

"We didn't think it,"
The Grits now say;
"The solid vote Went t'other way."

The portrait of ex-Ald. O'Meara elicited a hearty cheer, as did also the picture of a C. P. R. train bearing the legend, "Carling's Scheme an Accomplished Fact." Several additional scenes were good, including that of "How to Manage the Grit Kickers," and a cut of the city Coat of Arms and "London true to her own interests." Then was a couplet,

There was a young fellow named Hyman,
Who was thought an exceedingly sly man;
But he foolishly ran Against Honest John,
And was laid low as a 'Tiger' he can.

A disconsolate "broken-up" Grit who got left was shown, and the portrait of Sheriff Glass followed, with a verse:—

No, sir; we knew it all along,
The solid votes were right:
And Hyman and his Riel Club
Would be buried out of sight.

They don't "own the whole of the earth" just yet.

Hon. J. S D. Thompson's profile preceded the couplet:—

Where are to-night the sturdy sloggers
That on Tuesday—just a week—
So hoarsely howled for Hyman?
They now lie low and mock.

The announcement, "East Middlesex, 800 majority," with a portrait of Mr. Joseph S. Marshall, provoked warm applause.

We made no show,
No rockets bright we fired,
But the voting at the polls
Has made the Grits feel tired.

was followed with a picture of two men, one emphatically asserting, "We've got 'em again, and don't you forget it." Gen. Middleton's profile came before:—

Oh what a Larke
Poor Charley's missed his mark;
The torches didn't vote to-day,
And he's left in the cold, they say.

There was also a couplet—

Come, let us be happy together
At the end of a glorious day;
Our hearts are as light as a feather,
We've fought, and have carried the fray.

Several excellent portraits were given of Messrs. John Elliott, Rev. D J Sutherland, W. P. R. Street, W. R Meredith, Judge Elliot, G. S. Birrell, Rev. H. D. Hunter, John Campbell, B. W. Greer, W. J Reid and Frank W. Foreman, besides other scenes, including a sick Grit, and the verse—

Their boxing matches are over,
Their under laws hung down;
The Louis Riel Club is closed,
They cannot run this town—At least not at present.

Another couplet read thus:—

The lanterns now are laid away,
Their usefulness is past;
They thought they'd turn a lot of votes,
But the influence didn't last.

Then came a representation of a monkey, and the words—

This monkey is a man—u—all
Know well, and its not nes-Essery
To say that at the nomination day
He was first, and Charley ace-Nessery.

After a portrait of President Cleveland had been applauded, this verse was read:

The lantern has been laid away,
And quiet is the drum;
The Grit who howled a week ago
Now quietly sucks his thumb—and wonders how it all happened.

The next couplet was:—

They couldn't carry London,
With all that they could do;
Although they brought up Edward Blake
And Laurier's musket, too.

Portraits of the late Bishop Hellmuth, Bishop Baldwin and others, with a variety of miscellaneous scenes, brought the seance to a close, but still the crowd remained, and cheered heartily until after midnight, when they dispersed. Despite their defeat some of the Young Louis Rielites proved unable to visit their customary amusements, and with horns, kazoos and similar instruments of torture they sought to disturb the proceedings, but were utterly unable to accomplish their purpose, for the people—thoroughly satisfied now that the representation of the city is again entrusted in prudent and capable hands—were willing to afford the utmost possible latitude to their discomfited opponents.

EAST MIDDLESEX.

The contest in this staunch Conservative constituency was a walk-over for Mr. Marshall, the Liberal-Conservative candidate, who "snowed under" his Grit opponent, Mr. Jackson, by over 700 majority, with several places to hear from. Mr. Marshall's popularity in London East and London West was demonstrated by 188 and 65 majorities, respectively. The Grits claimed 100 and 25 majorities for Mr. Jackson in these municipalities, but "Joe" seems to have some what disturbed their predictions. The contest was conducted in a gentlemanly manner by both candidates, and resulted, so far as could be ascertained up to the hour of going to press, as follows:—

REJOICING AT GLENCOE.

Glencoe, Feb. 22.—(Special.)—Roome's majority of 101 for West Middlesex was celebrated by a grand torchlight procession and band of music. Great praise is given to Nathaniel Currie for his grand exertions in the past, and congratulations all around are in order. Dr. Roome has made a valiant fight, and he is the hero of the hour.

The Yankee boodle, alleged to have been sent over in large sums, did not help Mr. Blake any. Indeed, hardly any amount of boodle could tempt the people of Canada to forsake their old Chieftain for the tender mercies of such a leader.

Gen. Boulanger has recently given prizes to the best trainers of carrier pigeons in the department of the Seine. Pigeon training in France has become a branch of the military service, and plenty of well-trained birds are to be found in the costly and beautiful little establishments that have been built for them. They are furnished with modern improvements and luxuries that vulgar and ignorant pigeons could never appreciate. Among the pigeons now in the possession of the Government are several veterans of the siege of Paris, and one among them is a genuine old hero. In 1870 this bird was taken up in the Paris balloon called the Niepce, and was captured by the Prussians. Prince Frederick Charles sent him as a present to his mother, the Princess Charles of Prussia, who put him among her own collection of birds, where he was treated with all possible kindness. But he was a patriot. The bitter bread of exile did not agree with him. He flew away and reached his home in a pigeon house in the Boulevard Clichy. The owner of this establishment handed him over to the military authorities, and he is now once more in the service of his native country, and doubtless hopes to win additional glory in the future.

Little Feet.

Two little feet, so small that both may nestle
In one caressing hand—
Two tender feet upon the untried border
Of Life's mysterious land.

Dimpled and soft, and pink as peach tree blossoms
In April's fragrant days—
How can they walk among the briery tangles
Edging the world's rough ways?

These white-rose feet along the doubtful future
Must bear a woman's load;
Abundance woman has the heaviest burdens,
And walks the hardest road.

Love, for a while will make the path before them
All dainty, smooth and fair—
Will call away the brambles, letting only
The roses blossom there;

But when the mother's watchful eyes are shrouded
Away from sight of men,
And their dear feet are left without her guiding—
Who shall direct them then?

How will they be allured, betrayed, deluded—
Poor little untaught feet!—
Into what weary mazes will they wander,
What dangers will they meet?

Will they go stumbling blindly in the darkness
Of sorrow's tearful shades?
Or find the upland slopes of Peace and Beauty,
Whose sunlight never fades?

Will they go toiling up Ambition's summit,
The common world above?
Or in some nameless vale securely sheltered,
Walk side by side with Love?

Some feet there be which walk Life's track unwounded,
Which find but pleasant ways.
Some hearts there be to which this life is only
A round of happy days.

But they are few. Far more there are who wander
Without a hope or friend—
Who find their journey full of pain and losses,
And long to reach the end.

How shall it be with her, the tender stranger,
Fair-faced and gentle-eyed,
Before whose unstained feet the world's rude highway
Stretches so strange and wide?

Oh, who may read the future? For our darling
We crave all blessings sweet—
And pray that He who feeds the crying ravens
Will guide the baby's feet.

THE VEILED WOMAN

A TALE OF ABSORBING INTEREST.

"God's will be done," I said, setting my teeth, as I prepared for the end. At that moment, with an exclamation, Job lifted his revolver and fired, and hit a man—not the man he had aimed at, by the way; anything that Job shot at was perfectly safe.

On they came with a rush, and I fired too as fast as I could, and checked them—between us, Job and I killed—mortally wounded five men with our pistols before they were emptied, besides the woman. But we had no time to reload, and they still came on in a way that was almost splendid in its recklessness, seeing that they did not know but that we could go on firing forever.

A great fellow bounded up upon the platform, and Leo struck him dead with one blow of his powerful arm, sending the knife right through him. I did the same by another, but Job missed his stroke, and I saw a brawny Amahagger grip him by the middle and whirl him off the ice. The knife, not being secured by a thong, fell from his hand as he did so, and, by a most happy accident for Job, lighted upon its handle on the rock, just as the body of the Amahagger, being undermost, hit upon its point, and was transfixed upon it. What happened to Job after that I am sure I do not know, but my own impression is that he lay still upon the corpse of his deceased assailant, "playing possum," as the Americans say. As for myself, I was soon involved in a desperate encounter with two ruffians, who, luckily for me, had left their spears behind them; and for the first time in my life the great physical power with which Nature had endowed me stood me in good stead. I met and backed at the head of one man with my hunting-knife, which was almost as big and savvy as a short sword, with such vigor that the sharp steel had split his skull down to the eyes, and was held so fast by it that as he suddenly fell sideways the knife was twisted right out of my hand.

Then it was that the two others sprung upon me. I saw them coming and got an arm round the waist of each, and down we all fell upon the floor of the cave together, rolling over and over. They were strong men, but I was mad with rage and that awful lust for slaughter which will creep into the hearts of the most civilized of us when blows are flying, and life and death tremble on the turn. My arms were round the two swarthy demons, and I hugged them till I heard their ribs creak and crumple beneath my grip. They twisted and writhed like snakes, and clawed and battered at me with their fists, but I held on. Lying on my back there, so that their bodies should protect me from spear-thrusts from above, I slowly crushed the life out of them, and as I did so, strange as it may seem, I thought of what the inside Head of my College at Cambridge and my brother Fellows would say if by chance they could see me, of all men, playing such a bloody game. Soon my assailants grew faint, and almost ceased to struggle, their breath had left them, and they were dying, but still I gave Leo leave them, for they died very slowly, I knew that if I relaxed my grip, they would revive. The other ruffians probably thought—for we were all three lying in the shadow of the lodge—that we were all dead together, at any rate they did not interfere with our little tragedy.

I turned my head, and as I lay gasping in the throes of that awful struggle I could see that Leo was off the rock now, for the lamp-light fell full upon him. He was still on his feet, but in the center of a surging mass of struggling men, who were striving to pull him down as wolves pull down a stag. Up above them towered his beautiful pale face crowned with its bright curls (for Leo was six feet two high), and I saw that he was fighting with a desperate abandonment and energy that was at once splendid and hideous to behold. He drove his knife through one man—they were so close to him and mixed up with him that they could not get at him to kill him with their big spears, and they had no knives or sticks. The man fell, and then somehow the knife was wrenched from his hand, leaving him defenceless, and I thought the end had come. But no; with a desperate effort he broke loose from them, seized the body of the man he had just slain, and lifting it high in the air, hurled it right at the mob of his assailants, so that the shock and weight of it sweet some five or six more of them to the earth. But in a minute they were all up again, except one, whose skull was smashed, and had once more fastened upon him. And then slowly, and with infinite labor and struggling, the wolves bore the lion down. Once even he recovered himself, and felled an Amahagger with his fist, but it was more than a man could do to hold his own for long against so many, and at last he came crashing down upon the rock, falling as an oak falls, and bearing with him to the earth all those who clung about him. They gripped him by his arms and legs, and then cleared off his body.

"A spear," cried a voice—"a spear to cut his throat, and a vessel to catch his blood."

I shut my eyes, for I saw the man coming with a spear, and myself I could not stir to Leo's help, for I was growing weak, and the two men on me were not yet dead, and a deadly sickness came over me.

Then suddenly there was a disturbance, and involuntarily I opened my eyes again, and looked toward the scene of murder. The girl Ustane had suddenly thrown herself on the top of Leo's prostrate form, covering his body with her body, and fastening her arms about his neck. They tried to drag her off him, but she twisted her legs round his; she hung on like a bull-dog, or rather like a creeper to a tree, and they could not. Then they tried to stab him in the side without hurting her, but somehow she shielded him, and he was only wounded.

At last they left off pulling.

"Drive the spear through the man and the woman together," said a voice, the same voice that had asked the questions at that ghastly feast, "so of a truth shall they be wed."

Then I saw a man with the weapon straighten himself for the effort. I saw the cold steel gleam high, and once more I shut my eyes.

Oh! I did not shut my ears, and I heard a voice of a man thunder out in tones that rang and echoed down the rocky ways—

"Cease!"

Then I fainted, and as I did so it flashed through my reeling mind that I was passing down into the great oblivion of death.

IX.

A LITTLE FOOT.

When I opened my eyes again I found myself lying on a skin mat, not far from the fire round which we had been gathered for the dreadful feast. Near to me lay Leo, still apparently in a swoon, and over him was bending the tall form of the girl Ustane, who was washing a deep spear wound in his side with water preparatory to binding it with linen. Leaning against the wall of the cave behind her was Job, apparently unhurt, but bruised and trembling. On the other side of the fire, tossed about this way and that, as though they had thrown themselves down to sleep after some moment of absolute exhaustion, were the bodies of those whom we had killed in our brief struggle for life.

To be continued.

SHOULD WAR REALLY COME.

FORCES THAT GERMANY NOW HAS AT THE FRONT.

All Ready for an Immediate Advance—The Armies of France and Russia—War or no War?

Paris, February 20.—It being an understood thing that France will never under any circumstances attack Germany, and M. de Bismarck having averred that Germany will not attack France, no apprehension of a Franco-German conflict ought any longer exist, and a great many people, among the number being myself, do not entertain any such apprehension, given, of course, that the Chancellor meant really what he said, a matter which no one but himself can pronounce upon authoritatively. But M. de Bismarck also declared that a war between France and Germany was inevitable some day; he made it a question of time and opportunity—"It may come within a fortnight, perhaps not for 10 years," was the substance of his statement—and, war being an admissible hypothesis, it becomes a matter of interest to discuss the military situation and to indicate the points at which France will probably be attacked, and the probable lines of operation of her enemy.

According to what I can learn from Germany direct, and from other sources of information, the concentration of the German armies will be made on this side of Metz and Nancy, along the line of the Meuse, between Neufchateau and Stenay. I know that certain strategists deny the possibility that the Germans should choose this line, on the ground that the fortresses of Toul and Verdun must interfere. They forget that, in the concentration of their forces, the Germans take into account the neighborhood of hostile fortresses, to which their staff attach only a relative value; the German staff considers a hostile fortress as of no importance, except when situated in rear of an enemy's army, to which it serves as a base of support. According to the German system, the zone of action of every fortress, however formidable per se, is limited to the sect formed by the first lateral roads which pass around it beyond the effective range of its batteries. Certainly the fortresses of Toul and Verdun may prevent the immediate advance of the mass of the German army beyond the Meuse. But with equal certainty it can be stated that neither Verdun nor Toul can prevent at the opening of the campaign those minor operations which the Germans qualify as "a campaign of armies or advance guards," of which the war of 1870 offers an example, and of which the results were the battles of Spikeren, of Wissemburg, of Reichsoffen, the panic of Mulhouse, the capture of the bridges across the Moselle, and the loss of the commissariat at Forbach.

It is not sufficient to be first on the ground to win a battle. More than ever nowadays is it true that victory perches on the colors of the strongest battalions. Supposing, then, a German attack, the German forces will be constituted into four distinct armies, which will necessitate four distinct concentrations. The first will be along the line Nancy-Toul-Commercy, and will be composed of four corps d'armee, which will operate at the outset with the minimum war effective—battalions of 800 men—and will complete their mobilization on the theatre of war itself.

Concentration No. 2 will be the line Germersheim-Metz-Verdun, and will consist of eight army corps and mobilized in garrison, which will be advanced successively toward the Moselle at first, and later toward the Meuse, which will be moved upon by the advanced guard, while the main body takes up its position in front of Metz. This is destined to be the most important concentration, and will form the grand army of the centre.

The third concentration will be on the line Treves Luxemburg-Montmedy; it will be made with four army corps, of which one only will operate immediately, while the other three terminate their mobilization in garrison.

A fourth army, or army of reserve, is to be assembled in front of Mannheim. It will be composed of two army corps—so far as I can learn of the First and Sixth Corps—to which will be added the regiments in addition to the usual war complement, which, when formed into brigades and divisions, are to constitute two other corps d'armies.

Army No. 1, specially constituted of an "advanced guard army," as soon as war shall be declared will begin operations in the direction of Commercy-Bar-le-Duc, preceded by two divisions of cavalry, the one scouring the country to the north, the other to the south, burning and devastating, in order that, if occupied by the French, it will be found a desert. The instructions given by Marshal von Moltke to his cavalry colonels are—"Not to leave a crumb of bread nor a drop of wine in any locality." This is typical. A corps of observation in front of Toul will protect the operations of the raiders; their reconnaissance being completed, they will be rallied to the main body of this advanced guard army, which will take position either at Commercy or in the environs of Vaucouleurs.

The third army, immediately after a declaration of war, will occupy the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg, and perhaps even move upon Nancy. The operations in Upper Alsace will be confined to an occupation of the defiles of the Vosges, the principal efforts of the invaders being directed toward the Meuse.

From two to three days only will be required for the entire concentration of the advanced guard army on the Luneville-Nancy-Commercy line; in 13 days the third army can begin hostilities by a movement toward Stenay, and in 16 the grand army of the Centre can be in position in front of its base, Metz.

It is not possible to give the precise strength of the German forces in Alsace-Lorraine and in Rhenish Prussia at present. But we know that the garrisons along the western frontier of Germany have been considerably reinforced since the 1st of December, 1886, at which time they numbered 140 battalions of infantry, 110 squadrons of cavalry, 90 field batteries, and 56 siege batteries. The distribution of these troops is as follows:—In the first line, 80 battalions, 57 squadrons, 86 field batteries, and 41 foot (heavy artillery) batteries; between Fribourg and Frankfort, 27 battalions, 28 squadrons, 26 field and 3 foot batteries; between Aix-la-Chapelle, Cologne, Dusseldorf, and Wesel, 21 battalions, 20 squadrons, 16 field batteries, and 12 foot batteries; a little to the rear, 12 battalions, 5 squadrons, and 12 field batteries. In fine, it may be said that Germany has in close proximity to the French frontier about one-third of her entire army, cantoned in 34 of her towns, along the different railways which have their terminus or which lead directly to the points of concentration that I have indicated above. Everything is ready for an immediate advance, and if war should be declared the enemy can direct at once upon Luneville, via Fribourg and Strasburg, 29 battalions, 20 squadrons, and 8 groups of field artillery; upon Nancy, via Landau and via Mayence, 45 battalions, 45 squadrons, and 9 groups of artillery, upon Frouard, via Coblenz, 39 battalions, 20 squadrons, 4 groups of field artillery; upon the Luxembourg and further on, via Aix and Cologne, 27 battalions, 25 squadrons and 7 groups of artillery.

Within three days' time, so admirable are their arrangements made for transport service, the Germans can mass in front of Metz and Nancy an advanced guard army numbering between 140,000 and 150,000 troops, of which there are two divisions of independent cavalry, and which can dispose of 450 pieces of artillery. Nor need any deductions be made from these forces of the garrisons necessary for the occupation of the German fortresses. Not only do we know that the Prussians never hesitate to leave their fortress, temporarily, without a garrison whenever men are needed for a rapid movement upon the enemy, but there is always a special reserve ad hoc at the disposal of the military authorities to take the place of the regular troops, and the landwehr is mobilized at the same time as the army of the first line. Thus it was that when the mobilization was completed in 1870 not one fraction of the active army was in garrison in any of the Prussian fortresses with the exception of a few Rhenish regiments which, recruited on the left bank of the Rhine, did not inspire great confidence for reasons which do not exist at present.

At all the manufactories of arms and ammunition the number of workmen has been tripled, and labor is not suspended even during the night. Commissary stores in immense quantities are being accumulated in all the Rhine fortresses, special contracts have been made for the supply of canned meats, enormous provisions of wheat and barley have been made at Antwerp, Amsterdam and Rotterdam, and one mill at Mayence has accepted a contract to furnish 1,000,000 pounds of flour on or before the 1st of March. Prince Bismarck explained to the Reichstag that the old proverb, "Si vis pacem para bellum," is always true, and that a preparation for war is a certain method to insure peace. If so, the Government of Germany must desire peace very earnestly, for similar preparations for war have not been seen since the days of the first Napoleon.

However, as generally happens, the panic of last week has been followed by extraordinary confidence on the part of the public that there will be no war, although, in reality, nothing can be alleged to justify either the one or the other movement. On the contrary, the Political News, of Berlin, asserts that Marshall von Moltke has recently declared to an electoral deputation that he considered the situation more serious than it has ever been, and that this statement the delegation was authorized to repeat. And that sensational article in the Moscow Gazette, which not one of the Fleet street quill-drivers who sketch out, in prophecy, the fate of empires have ventured to discuss? And the article of the Temps, which fills with joy the heart of the Morning Post, because it affirms that a triple alliance has been concluded against Russia between Austria, England and Italy, which, in certain eventualities, may become a quadruple alliance, by the adhesion of Germany? There is little doubt that the elections next week will return a strong Government majority in Germany, where Cardinal Jacobini's letter has "convinced" weak-kneed Catholic voters of the necessity of using sugar instead of vinegar for fly catching. But the Morning Post's correspondent affirms that the Chancellor has said:—"I have no confidence whatever in the pacific protestations of the French," and Germany is so very ready for a fight that it may become expedient to strike the first blow.

The Continental Governments continue to express their hopes, sometimes their confidence, in the preservation of peace, but they continue also, and with feverish activity, to prepare for the other thing. The French do not venture to strengthen their eastern garrisons, and not a word is hinted about mobilization, but Gen. Boulanger's resignation was unanimously refused by his colleagues of the French Cabinet, when he offered it last week, on a hint indirectly from M. Grevy that it would be an opportune concession to German susceptibility. Workmen labor day and night, by the light of electricity, in the erection of huts and shelters for commissary stores along the southeastern frontier, and, the arsenals not being able to furnish rapidly enough the requisite quantity of shell cases, large contracts for a supply of that article have been given to private factories. For instance, a gentleman whom I know, who has a large establishment at Orleans, where hitherto and for 30 years past agricultural implements exclusively have been made, has received an order for gaines d'obus at a great advance upon the usual price alloted at the Government works—9f. 99c. each, instead of 3f.

I take from the Schwabische Merkur the following comparative tables of the situations of the three great European armies, correcting, however, its statement as to the strength of the French artillery, which is an under-estimate:—

	Infantry Battalions	Squadrons.	Batteries	Pieces Horsed.
Germany	503	466	340	1,404
France.	649	395	445	2,258
Russia.	864	610	305	1,736

	Army on Peace Establishment	War Budget.	Exposed Frontier.	Navy.
Germany	427,000	26.04 per cent. of general budget.	42 per cent.	98 ships, of which 27 iron-clads.
France	523,283	47 per cent. of general budget.	14 per cent.	410 ships, 63 iron-clads.
Russia	990,000	45 per cent.	unknown	391 ships, 89 iron-clads.

"Rough On Rile" Pills

Small granules, small dose, big results, pleasant in operation, don't disturb the stomach. 25c.

One of the mediæval artistic adornments of Nurnberg is the series of "Stations of the Cross," or representations of the various stages in the Redeemer's journey to Calvary. They were sculptured by Adam Krafft more than 400 years ago. Time's effacing fingers have made much havoc with them, rendering some of them so indistinct that it is difficult to trace what was meant to be represented. Yielding to wishes expressed by persons of all conditions and creeds, the Nurnberg Town Council have undertaken their restoration, or rather renovation, at an expense of 6,500 marks (£325). The work will be carried out under the direction of Prof. Wanderer. When the "stations" have been completed, it is intended to take in hand the restoration of another monument of mediæval art, the well-known "Schone Brunnen."

BRITISH GRAIN TRADE.

London, Feb. 21.—The Mark Lane Express, in its weekly review of the British grain trade, says:—The deliveries of native wheat are very small. The London market is steadier. Prices at the leading provincial exchanges show an advance of 6d to 1s. The sales of English wheat during the past week were 40 427 quarters at 32 11d, against 73 557 quarters at 29s 3d during the corresponding week last year. Country flour is slow of sale, but values are slightly hardened. Foreign wheats are a shade steadier. The supplies continue so large that improvement is considered improbable unless in event of war. Foreign flour is slow of sale and weak. American brands are 6d cheaper. Corn and barley are dull. Oats are down 3d There were six arrivals of wheat cargoes. Two cargoes were withdrawn and three remained—one of American red winter, one of California and one of Oregon. At to-day's market wheat was firmer. Both English and foreign wheat was 6d dearer. Flour was irregular. Some sales were 6d lower. American corn was 6d cheaper. Oats were 3d lower. Linseed was firm and 3d dearer.

LIVE STOCK TRADE.

John Swan & Sons' weekly report says:—The supplies of fat cattle throughout this week have scarcely been so large, on account of the excessively depressed state of the meat markets towards the latter end of last week, together with no quotable improvement in the South markets. On Monday trade at all the earlier markets showed no improvement. In Edinburgh, Glasgow and Wakefield, however, there was for the best descriptions of bullocks a sharper demand at an advance of 10s a head over last week's quotations, all the markets closing firmer. Bulls and cows continue to be difficult to sell, at most unsatisfactory prices. There were fewer Irish cattle on offer. The supplies of sheep in Edinburgh and Glasgow have been scarcely so large, and a better feeling prevailed. Prices for all descriptions, except secondary black-faced wedders, were higher, and sales were more readily effected. The general tendency towards the close of the week, both in the cattle and sheep markets, has been more favorable for sellers. Foreign supplies consisted of 650 States cattle, which are reported to have made from 6s 3d to 6s 6d per stone. Both fat pigs and calves are dearer. A few fat lambs are now being offered, which of good quality make 42s to 46s There was a large supply of dairy cows in Edinburgh, trade for which was barely so good as last week; a clearance was made. There were more store cattle on offer; anything well bred are making, relatively, more money than the value of fat cattle warrants. Good descriptions of sheep for keep are dear. Price of beef, current top, 7s 8d; extreme and exceptional, 7s 6d; secondary, 6s 9d. Bulls and cows, 5s 6d per stone. Top price of shop sheep, 8½d; secondary, 7½d to 7¾d; ewes, 6¼d to 7¼ per lb.

Edinburgh, 13th Feb., 1887.

PRODUCE MARKET REPORT, FEB. 5TH.

Cheese.—Early in the week very little enquiry was experienced for any description, and the anticipated pause in the demand was fully realized, but with higher cable advices, and a good consumptive demand from the country, holders obtained without any difficulty an advance of 6d per cwt. on finest, with some very large sales reported at 63s 6d to 64s 6d for choice Septembers, with reports of even higher prices being paid at close. Holders manifest no desire to push sales, and the position of the market is viewed with considerable favor by the trade, it being pleasing for them to know that but little effort is being made to urge goods in excess of buyers' ability to distribute, and the situation looks healthy, and higher prices soon are confidently looked forward to, as the stock is considered small. The Market closes strong, with an upward tendency on all grades. I quote Finest Septembers 63s 6d to 64s 6d, Finest Augusts 62s to 63s, Medium to Fine (stock nil), Medium to Good (stock nil), Skims in better demand, at 20s to 25s.

At Nantwich Market this week Cheshire showed a steady upward movement with light offerings. Choice, none offered; Good Cheshires sold at 65s to 75s per 120 lbs. Medium Dairies realized from 60s to 65s per 120 lbs.

Butter.—Slightly easier. To the weaker condition is attributed the lessened demand now experienced, and with a change in this respect the current is expected to again run full, and holders, anticipating this, look upon the present condition of business as existing only temporarily; meantime, prices are slightly in buyers' favor, though in some cases holders still ask full prices for finest. I quote Finest Canadians and U. S. Extra 105s to 110s, Fine 90s to 95s, Good to Fine 75s to 85s, Grease sorts 36s to 45s, Finest Danish 125s to 130s, Irish Firsts (stock nil,) Seconds 120s, Thirds 100s, Fourths 80s to 85s.

Bacon meets with a fair consumptive demand, and with continued strong advices from America, holders at the close display increased firmness. I quote Staffordshires 37s to 39s 6d, Cumberland Cut 36s to 38s, Singed Wiltshires 41s to 42s, Short Rib 36s to 38s 6d, Long Rib (according to size) 35s to 43s, Shoulders 28s to 32s 6d, Bellies (rib in) 36s 6d to 38s, Clear Bellies 37s to 42s; Long Backs, 2s deaver, 33s to 35s, Short Clear Backs 37s to 38s.

The Central Asiatics.

From the London Times.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 31. Gen. Prjevalsky estimates the whole population of Central Asia at about 9,000,000, spread over an extent of 120 000 square miles. Like all peoples living under Asiatic despotism, they have no notions whatever of virtue, honor or duty, and they exhibit no leanings of any kind toward European civilisation and culture. The most frightful immorality and revolting despotism reign in the family life of the sedentary populations, while the nomads, strange to say, are milder, more modest, and more sincere.

The General expatiates at great length on their fervent desire to be annexed to the Russian crown. Only in Thibet is this feeling not pronounced, owing to the fact that the Russians are so little known there. The dream of the nomadic Mongols, the Dongans—i e, the Chinese Mohammedans—and the inhabitants of Eastern Turkestan is to become subjects of the Great White Czar, whose name, with that of the Dalai Lama of Thibet, figures in their imaginations as the symbol of magical power and authority.

At some places visited by the Russian expedition the Mohammedan mollahs implored the General to permit them to rise and murder every Chinese in the district in the name of the mighty Czar. "Only trumpet the Czar's name," said these supplicants, "from the mountain tops, and not a single Chinese will live." The insupportable oppression of China on the one side and the gradual introduction of order and prosperity by Russia on the other, must inevitably push forward Russian dominion.

An Expert that Amounted to Something.

From the Pottery Gazette.

In a large factory in which were employed several hundred persons one of the workmen, in wielding his hammer, carelessly allowed it to slip from his hand. It flew half way across the room and struck a fellow workman in the left eye. The man averred that his eye was blinded by the blow, although a careful examination failed to reveal any injury, there being not a scratch visible. He brought a suit in the courts for compensation for the loss of half of his eyesight, and refused all offers of compromise. Under the law the owner of the factory was responsible for an injury resulting from an accident of this kind. The day of the trial arrived, and in open court an eminent oculist retained by the defence examined the alleged injured member, and gave it as his opinion that it was as good as the right eye. Upon the plaintiff's loud protest of his inability to see with his left eye, the oculist proved him a perjurer and satisfied the court and jury of the falsity of his claim. He did it simply by knowing that the colors green and red combined make black. He prepared a black card on which a few words were written with green ink. Then the plaintiff was ordered to put on a pair of spectacles with two different glasses, the one for the right eye being red, and the one for the left eye consisting of ordinary glass. Then the card was handed him and he was ordered to read the writing on it. This he did without hesitation, and the cheat was at once exposed. The sound right eye, fitted with the red glass, was unable to distinguish the green writing on the black surface of the card, while the left eye, which he pretended was sightless, was the one with which the reading had to be done.

Indestructible Roofs.

Fire and Water speaks quite strongly in favor of the use of tiles for roof covering, instead of slate, which is in this country almost the only material employed for pitch roofs in cities, or elsewhere in cases where shingles would be objectionable. As that excellent journal truly says, a slate roof under the action of fire, and particularly if water is thrown on it while hot, cracks and flies in all directions, opening crevices through which a strong draught is set up, increasing the fury of the flames in the building which the roof is supposed to protect. On this account even cedar shingles are preferred to slate for roofing by many experienced fire engineers, for the reason that, inflammable as they are, the shingles do not fly to pieces when a cinder falls on them, but char, and, until burned through, at least, serve to prevent fire inside the building from breaking out of the roof. Tiles, unlike slates, never crack or fly, but keep their places even when red hot; and their thickness and non-conducting property enables them to keep the heat from cinders or burning brands for an indefinite time from affecting the boarding beneath them. The main objections to the use of tiles in this country have hitherto been their cost, and the difficulty of laying them so as to keep out our fine, drifting snows, but with a little effort, particularly if architects and insurance managers could act in concert in the matter, both defects might be overcome. A considerable demand would soon make tiles here as cheap as they are in England or France, or Germany, where they are the universal roof covering, and roofs laid with them might easily be made, not only impervious to snow, but proof against the shaking of winds or earthquakes by laying them in mortar or cement. This, with cheap tiles, would not be an expensive matter, and while a slate roof constantly needs repairs, tiles in cement, laid on a roof of simple form, are almost indestructible. Thousands of roofs in France and Germany, laid in this way four or five hundred years ago, are still in good condition, and they not only are really solid and enduring, but look so, presenting an appearance of substantial comfort which architects well understand.—American Architect.

A New Gas Light.

From the London Telegraph.

Experiments were made last night at the Marlborough Gallery, Pall Mall, with a new system of gas lighting invented by Dr. Von Welsbach of Vienna. The Picture Gallery, which belongs to Mr. Colnaghi, was lit by some small lamps, containing apparently an electric light similar to that used at the Savoy Theatre. In reality, however, the light employed was that of ordinary gas raised to a point of incandescence by a process which the Viennese inventor has patented. There could be no doubt as to its superiority over the ordinary light in bringing out all the details of the pictures on the walls, and should the expectations formed of it be realised it will successfully rival electricity as an illuminant of power and brilliancy, for which the latter has so long been pre-eminent.

The official description states that the light is produced by "placing within the flame of an atmospheric or Bunsen burner a mantle or hood of cotton net or webbing which has been previously steeped in a solution containing oxides of the elements zirconium, lanthanum, and some other bodies." The mantles last from 800 to 2 000 hours, and can be renewed at a small cost. The inventor asserts that not only is a better light obtained by using his burner, but that there is a saving of gas, which need not be of the best quality for the purposes of incandescence. The description concludes with the statement that the "average consumption in each burner is about two feet of gas per hour at the pressure of nine-tenths of an inch, and the average illuminating power may be taken at about 17 candles, showing an efficiency of about 8½ candles per cubic foot of gas consumed."

A New Game of Cards.

From the Court Journal.

Le Basilic is the name of a new French game of cards, in which three, four, or five players can take part. Only thirty-two cards are required in the game. Each player deals the cards in turn. If only three are playing, each one receives ten cards; if four, eight cards; if five, six cards. The remaining cards are left as stock. The cards are of the same value as in piquet. The first player selects a card, and lays it on the centre of the table; the next player has to cover it with a card, the value of which must be immediately higher or lower. Thus, if the first player lays down a knave, the second player can only cover it with a ten or a queen. The third player proceeds after the same manner, and the game continues thus until one of the players holds no more cards of the requisite value for covering, when he must place in the pool as many counters as he holds cards in his hand. The last player who holds the cards wins, and takes the pool. Should one of the players use up all his cards in covering he becomes the winner, and is entitled to the pool.

Only Thirty-six Per Cent.

of those who die from consumption inherit the disease. In all other cases it must either be contracted through carelessness; or, according to the new theory of tubercular parasites, received directly from others as an infectious disease. But in either case, Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" is a positive remedy for the disease in its early stages. It is delay that is dangerous. If you are troubled with shortness of breath, spitting of blood, night-sweats or a lingering cough, do not hesitate to procure this sovereign remedy at once.

An Indian, of Owens Valley, Cal., hailed a passing doctor the other day and asked him to look at his sick child. The doctor saw that the little fellow was at death's door, and told his father that he could do nothing for him, but the Indian insisted that it must have some "white man's medis," and to satisfy the anxious father the doctor prepared a simple medicine. Next day the Indian called at the doctor's office and said:—"Pappoose dead; maybe your medis heap kill um; you buy um box, make um grave, you kill um all same white man, put um in ground all same white man."

The cowboys have a language of their own which no "tenderfoot" may attain unto until he has served his novitiate. They call a horse-herder a "horse-wrangler," and a horse-breaker a "bronche-buster." Their steed is often a "cayuse," and to dress well is to "rag proper." When a cowboy goes out on the prairie he "hits the flats." Whiskey is "family disturbance," and to eat is to "chew." His hat is a "cady," his whip a "quirt," his rubber coat a "slicker," his leather overalls are "chaps," or "chappereals," and his revolver is a "45." Bacon is "overland trout," and unbranded cattle are "mavericks."

TOLU AND TAR.

All healing far. Everybody knows the curative properties of tar. As a remedy it has been employed for ages, and when combined with healing balsams as in Dr. Oakwood's Compound Syrup of Tar and Tolu, it produces a remedy of unrivalled efficacy for the cure of coughs colds, bronchitis, asthma, and all throat and lung affections. eod

An English newspaper, in a report of a ball given by a rector to his flock in a hotel in London, says:—"The rector was the life and soul of the entertainment, and following the fashion, joined with his clergy in a minuet, in which he had been very carefully coached by a member of the congregation, once a danseuse at the Alhambra. Church and stage met indeed, several actors and actresses being guests. The young men present are most of them employed in the larger city warehouses."

Catarrh, Catarrhal Deafness and Hay Fever.

Sufferers are not generally aware that these diseases are contagious, or that they are due to the presence of living parasites in the lining membrane of the nose and eustachian tubes. Microscopic research, however, has proved this to be a fact, and the result is that a simple remedy has been formulated, whereby catarrh, catarrhal deafness and hay fever are cured in from one to three simple applications made at home. A pamphlet explaining this new treatment is sent free on receipt of stamp by A. H. DIXON & SON, 305 King street, West, Toronto, Canada.—Christian Standard. eod

Mortimer McRoberts and Maude C. Mansfield were married in Cincinnati the other day, and after the ceremony, McRoberts went to the hotel office to pay his bill, carrying a small hand bag. After getting a receipt, he hurried to his bride, leaving the bag on the floor under the cashier's window. In about fifteen minutes he returned, pale as a ghost, and gasped:—"Did I leave my satchel here?" Without a word the clerk handed it to him, and with a sigh of relief he grabbed and opened it. Then the eyes of the clerk stuck out with astonishment, for the bag was full of money. It contained a round $50,000

The wager was accepted, and the other evening he appeared with five dozen eggs and a skillet, and the match began. He cooked the eggs himself, and ate twenty-seven in six minutes. LOCAL AND DISTRICT.

Local, District, or Sporting News, to ensure prompt attention, should be addressed to "City Editor, FREE PRESS." Correspondents will please note this.

One more week and alleged spring will be here.

The fairy story about seeing robins is beginning to start on its annual spring tour.

Hyman's majority has lost its moisture, and yesterday developed into a thin mist.

Mr. Hyman will long remember Washington's Birthday 1887—yes, if he lives for 40 years.

The Holman Opera Company will appear in Guelph next Monday night, and will give popular plays for one week.

To-morrow evening the annual supper of Court Pride of the Dominion will be held in the Foresters' Hall, Albion Block.

Mr. Thos. Ballantyne, of Westminster, has sold his team of French Hero horses to Mr. A. S. Bird, of Plainfield, N. J, for $650.

Mr. Hyman may now continue to engineer his "hide ring," assisted by the butchers at the Asylum and the tanners of the city.

'Tiger, 19th:—We have not yet heard of the "further particulars." What? Not heard of the 40 majority recorded for Mr. Carling.

The 'Tiger hinted that Mr. Carling would take a "drop" on the 22nd. He dropped heavily upon the Grit candidate—just the same.

A new system of weather signals for farmers, by means of flags, will be inaugurated by the Canadian Pacific Railway in the spring.

Mr. James W. Curran, of the Arthur Enterprise, has severed his connection with that journal, and is to take a position on the Orillia News Letter.

'Tiger 1st Feb.:—"Mr. Carling will make a beautiful political corpse." Substitute Mr. Hyman's name for Mr. Carling's, and the picture is complete.

The Chatham Planet thinks it "wonderful to relate, the Tory who bit the finger off an Advertiser reporter is still living. The strength of his stomach is phenomenal."

A benefit concert will be given the Piggott sisters at Victoria Hall on Friday evening next. These talented vocalists are general favorites in the city, and deserve a crowded house.

It is said that when a horse strays off he is usually found wandering in the direction the wind is blowing, thus turning his back to the wind, but with sheep the contrary is the case, as sheep face the storm.

The County Commissioners has approved of Mr. R. Dennis' tender for the Kensington Bridge walk, which will consequently be accepted. It is about $170 below that of the Hamilton Bridge Company.

On the 29th of January, 1887, the Advertiser said: "The selection of Mr. Coughlin, in North Middlesex, is daily felt more and more by his party to have been a mistake." A majority of 200 is a "fair to middling" mistake.

Mr. John O'Brien was "surprised" at his new residence on the Hyde Park Gravel Road on Monday evening by a number of young people from the city and guests from Woodstock and Toronto. With the assistance of the Italian Band a pleasant evening was spent.

Mrs. Smith, of Cleveland, the mother of Billy Smith, the base ball player, who died at Toronto last season, writes to say that she never received a cent from the exhibition games at either Toronto or Rochester, or from the sale of pictures. This ought to be explained at once.

One of the mean, contemptible tricks resorted to by the Grit papers is the "roorback." This is a campaign lie, sprung upon a candidate at the last moment, when he has no opportunity of refuting it until after the election is over, and the electors who were deceived by it have cast their vote.

The Tiger predicted on the 18th of January thus:—"Mr. Carling's day is near its close, and it would have been better for him had he withdrawn himself from the contest instead of waiting to be rejected." This prediction, like a good many of our local contemporary's election forecasts, seems to "have been loaded up the wrong way."

Berlin News:—Even good men are led astray by such bad examples as are set by the Globe. The editor of the St. Mary's Argus, a regular gusher at Sunday School Conventions, religious conferences and temperance gatherings, says:—"There were nine members returned by acclamation on Tuesday, two of whom were Independents and seven Opposition."

Hon. D. Mills on the 18th of January said:—"Mr. Carling, no doubt, will work energetically, but it will be to no purpose. The majority of the voters of London have decided to return Mr. Hyman. They are of opinion that Mr. Hyman can do them better service than Mr. Carling, and in this they are right." No, no, "D M." You're wrong again. They (the people) are not of your opinion—even when bribed by Ontario Grit money.

The other day one of the oldest and most respected settlers of Kent county, Mr. Louis L. Araold, of Harwich, passed away at the good old age of 84 years and 5 months. Deceased was born in the township of Chatham, in the year 1803, shortly after the removal of his parents to this county, and remained on the farm until 1843, when he moved across the river into the township of Harwich, residing there up to the time of his death. Twelve children were born, ten of whom survive him, his wife having died in 1854.

A Sensation in Pork.

"The leading sensation in Board of Trade circles at the present time," says the Chicago Tribune of Wednesday, "is hog product. For once wheat has sunk to the second place, though it is by no means neglected. The discovery that the supply of hogs this winter is much smaller than that of a year ago has brought out the fact that speculative sellers have obliged themselves to deliver large quantities of product at far less prices than it can be made for, and they are in trouble. The prices of pork and meats are nearly a cent per pound higher than a fortnight ago. They have gone up with a rush, but scarcely more so than warranted by the higher quotations for hogs. And the smallness of the supply would seem to extend to other countries. Only yesterday a lot of lard was purchased in this market for shipment to Toronto, in Canada, though the article will be required to pay a duty of two cents per pound in crossing the border.

THE FACTS IN THE SITUATION

have been masked by the labor troubles in this city at the opening of the season. The packing record of Chicago has fallen behind that of last year, the difference to the disadvantage of the present winter being nearly 500,000 hogs three months ago, and now something like 700,000. The bears assumed that the decadence here was counteracted by extra activity elsewhere, and are only now discovering their mistake. All other points in the West are found to have gained in numbers but one-third as many as we have lost, and even that small gain is compensated for by a reduction in the average weight of the animal. It is also said that the hog supply is used up more closely than is usual at this date in the year, so that the prospect is for much less than the average production during the summer months, while the stocks of product in Chicago are actually on the decrease during this month—a statement that would not hold good for any other February since Chicago distanced Cincinnati in the packing race just

A QUARTER OF A CENTURY AGO.

"It is not improbable that the gravity of the situation is overrated by the men who are now doing the talking and figuring about it. That is the way with all speculative movements—jumping from one extreme to the other, with little more reason for the second than the first. It may also be inferred that the men who make it their business to watch the situation have been aware of the facts long enough to take advantage of them, so that the individuals who now jump into the market as buyers, if any such there be, will be much more likely to lose than to make money by the operation. But it is not difficult to see that there is really a legitimate cause for the excitement. The losses of hogs by winter cholera have been very large within the last few months, and a great many of the animals were sent to market in light flesh because of fears that they would if kept longer. And there is also some reason to fear that this experience is far from being confined to the limits of a single season. It is undeniable that the hog of to-day is a much less hardy animal than his predecessor of only a few years ago, and that his stamina is further degenerating. In other words, the largely artificial character of the process employed in cultivating the hog has undermined his constitution, rendering him less healthy and more liable to succumb to the attacks of disease. Whether or not his flesh makes as healthful food for the human family as did that of the hog of a few years ago must be left to the physiologists to decide. Probably not."

DIE ON THE HANDS OF THE FARMER

Bad Morals in the Swedish Capital.

From a Stockholm Letter.

The recent expulsion of twenty-two young men from the learned schools in this city for immoral practices has made a great scandal. The culprits belong nearly all to old and well-known families, and bore honored names. The newspapers tried vainly to suppress the facts, but have been forced to publish them in refutation of the damaging rumors that have been in circulation for a fortnight. In all conscience, it is bad enough as it is. The banished ones were proven guilty of all manner of villainy, from petty thieving to highway robbery, and the grossest immorality. The question is not here of the ordinary peccadilloes of a lot of wild boys, but of atrocities that admit of no excuse. In fact, none is sought. Their authors appear to have put their pride in them, and challenge criticism with a scornful defiance that is the saddest symptom of all. There can be no doubt that we are reaping the legitimate harvest of the crop of realistic literature that has fallen like a pall upon our country and upon our age. Sex is the alpha and omega of the new school, the one string upon which it harps from the bottom rung to the top of the literary ladder. The reproach of encouraging the trash that masquerades in one way and another as the "idea of a century," the "spirit of the age," and in like false disguises, lies especially at the door of our nation. Books that are proscribed in Denmark and Norway find the readiest sale in Sweden, where the authorities are less captious. Considering that the names of the authors should be in most cases a sufficient introduction to decent society, what wonder that the minds of our youth are corrupted? Need we complain? The question is asked by some of our more conservative journals with the facts of this latest scandal before them, and the necessity for answering it categorically evidently worries them.

Few Know What They Drink.

From the Buffalo Courier.

"It is a fact," said a somewhat famous mixer of fancy drinks last evening, "that there are very few good judges of liquor. It is a very old chestnut to set out whisky when brandy is called for, and not one in ten can tell the difference. I have often been told by a customer that he had never tasted finer brandy when he was drinking a very ordinary whisky. There are few people who can distinguish between high and low priced wines. I remember nearly splitting my sides once laughing at a man who was ordering champagne. He was drinking Werner's American extra dry, and told his friend how he once drank it with M. Werner in Paris. He thought it was the highest priced French wine until he found out it was costing him only a dollar a bottle, then he wilted. Even manufacturers are sold. Once at a convention of the beer brewers of the country I heard a brewer boast that he could name any kind of beer with his eyes blinded. We tried him, and when the handkerchief was over his eyes we gave him nine sips out of the same glass and heard him name nine different brands. That was very good sport. As a matter of fact, this telling liquors by the taste is very delicate business. By modern processes distillers can age liquor so as to fool even the old timers. The worst case I ever struck was a fisherman who rowed me down the river last summer. I offered him a swig out of a bottle containing very fine whisky. He returned it, saying it was poor stuff. I handed him a bottle containing some 'rot gut' I used to clean my gun. He took a long pull, and said it was as good liquor as he ever tasted."

The Hot Water Cure in Washington.

From the Chicago News.

Looking into one of the writing rooms of the House of Representatives the other day I saw a large nickel plated tank, such as is used in restaurants to make coffee in, and noticed that there was an alcohol lamp underneath and steam escaping from above. I asked the colored attendant what it was for, and with a sententious tone he answered:

"Its fer them as drinks hot water, boss."

"That drinks hot water?" I answered. "Do they drink it straight, or is it to temper their toddy with?"

"Thar's no liquor hyar," was the reply; "at least ways I've not done got any, an' the members don't drink none while the ole man's hyar; they does drink a powerful sight o' hot water though, an' keep me runnin' with th' glasses sometimes, too."

And by inquiry I found out what the old darkey told me was true. Ever since the commencement of the session the coffee boiler has been in operation, and hot water has been served as a beverage to those who have taken champagne or something with more body to it the night before. One of the members told me that a colleague, whose habits are well known, but who never drinks till after dark, generally took about twice as much hot water in the morning as he took of other beverages at night, and nearly all the members have gotten into the habit of using it.

ST. JAMES' CHURCH.—The annual meeting of St. James' Presbyterian Church was held on Monday evening, Rev. D. McGillivray in the chair, and Mr. G. Rowat acting as secretary. The Treasurer's statement showed $2,068.86 total income, of which the Ladies' Aid contributed $324. Four families removed during the year; 18 added; 97 families now belong; 40 communicants were added, making a total of 175; Sunday scholars, 140. Messrs A. K. Melbourne, George McNeil, Neil McNeil and Kennedy were elected to vacancies in the Board of Management. A motion of sympathy with the family of the late Mr. Purdom was passed, and the resolution moved by A. K. Melbourne, "that the congregation, while profoundly grateful to Almighty God for raising up their very esteemed pastor from severe illness to health, express their sincere sympathy with him in his affliction and joy in his recovery to health again; also, their deep appreciation of his able, faithful, earnest labors amongst them as their pastor, and that he may be long spared among them." This was carried with a standing vote. Mr. McGillivray made a grateful response.

Barkwell's Bronchial Balsam.

DEAR SIR,—I wish to testify of the merits of that grand preparation known as Barkwell's Vegetable Healing Bronchial Balsam. I was told by a neighbor what a grand Balsam it was. My little girl was very ill with bronchitis, and a very few doses restored her and I believe saved her life. I feel it my duty to let others know that they also can be cured of this terrible affection.

A FEW FACTS!

Which will explain to the satisfaction of all. The question so often asked, "How can T. F. Kingsmill afford to sell Cottons cheaper than other merchants?"

FACT NO. 1.

Last summer when the mills were shutting down owing to an overproduction of Cottons, and when the price had dropped to the lowest figure ever known in Canada, we placed our orders for this year's supply, which were delivered according to contract.

FACT NO. 2.

As our business is now so great, we have been obliged to open a store in Chatham for our customers in the west. We buy wholly from the makers, thereby saving the profit made by the wholesalers, a large amount in freight and buying direct, we can cut a yard at the bale price.

FACT NO. 3.

In order to be head and front of the trade this spring, we bought great quantities at these low prices, we invested a great deal of capital and we have held the goods for our customers, although we can sell them to the wholesale trade to-day for more money than we ask retail.

MORE FACTS

We treat our customers liberally.
We treat our employes liberally.
We pay no heavy rent.
We do the largest strictly cash trade in Western Canada.
We have customers in every county, town and village.
We carry the finest stock west of Toronto.

Ladies—Don't let your husbands and brothers have all the fun. While they are off electioneering come and see what Our Policy will do for you. Lots of work and cheap goods.

GENERAL CABLE NEWS.

THE PARNELLITES AND THE CLOTURE.

Belief that the Round Table Negotiations will be Successful—Disturbances at Evictions in Ireland—Mrs Gladstone at the Head of a Women's Liberal Federation—The Result of the German Elections—An Alliance Between Germany, Austria and Italy Assured—Portuguese Version of the Trouble Between the Sultan of Zanzibar and Governor of Mozambique.

London, Feb. 25, midnight.

The Cloture.

The House of Commons to night, by a vote of 261 to 92, rejected Mr. Parnell's amendment exempting from cloture the Committee on Supply. Mr. Sexton moved the exemption from cloture to any question relating to procedure. The motion was negatived by 170 to 80.

The Triple Alliance.

The Berlin National Gazette says the alliance between Italy, Germany and Austria for reciprocal defence and guarantee of present possessions of parties to arrangement is assured of completion, although the Italian ministerial crisis may delay its formal conclusion.

Stanley's Expedition.

Stanley, in his dispatch from Zanzibar, says an advance force will push on to Wadelai the third day after arriving at Stanley Falls, without the Arabs. The force of Tippu Tib will proceed by way of Kasongo and Lake Tanganyika to Stanley Falls. Stanley hopes to reach the Cape by March 9th, 1888.

The German Elections.

A Berlin despatch says:—The official returns show the election of 75 Conservatives, 34 Imperialists, 84 National Liberals, 90 Centrelists, 14 New German Liberals, six Socialists, 15 Alsatians, 13 Poles, 2 Guelphs, 1 Dane, and 2 others whose views are as yet unknown. There will be 61 supplementary ballots.

Lady Liberals.

Mrs. Gladstone presided to-day over a meeting called for the purpose of forming a Women's Liberal Federation. In her address to the assemblage, Mrs. Gladstone said she thought the women of Great Britain who were anxious to work for the Liberal cause and progress of justice should be organized and united.

Attacked by a Mob.

While a force of two hundred policemen were making a seizure on the Nolan Farrell estate at Ballyhannis, County Mayo, to-day, they were attacked by about 200 men and women, armed with sticks and stones. Several policemen were injured in the affray. Finally the Rev. Mr. Warlow intervened and prevented further violence.

The Round Table Conference.

Baron Herschel, Sir William Vernon Harcourt, Sir Geo. Trevelyan, Mr. Chamberlain and Mr. Morley have recently had many meetings with reference to the round table negotiations which had been left unfinished. It is believed the negotiations will be successful. Mr. Gladstone and Mr. Chamberlain dined at the Devonshire Club this evening and exchanged cordial greetings.

Misrepresentation.

The North German Gazette accuses M. Kalkoff, editor of the Moscow Gazette, of misrepresenting, either wilfully or through ignorance of English, the attitude of Prince Bismarck towards the Bulgarian question, by misquoting from the English blue book in regard to the German Chancellor's decision not to meddle in the effort to sustain Prince Alexander on the Bulgarian throne.

Settled by the Priest.

The people of Dingle, county Kerry, were made aware of the arrival there to-day of an evicting party by the blowing of horns and the ringing of the chapel bells. A crowd of fully 2,000 persons quickly collected. Father Egan, acting on behalf of the tenants, had a long conference with the sheriff, at the conclusion of which he announced that a settlement had been arranged under which each tenant was to pay one gale's rent, Father Egan himself paying the sheriff's costs.

Riot at Newross.

Another disturbance occurred at Newross, Ireland, to-day. One hundred policemen went to the workhouse there and arrested the refractory paupers, but at the Sessions Court the charges of assault against the prisoners were withdrawn, and they were allowed to return to the workhouse. A Nationalist band, which celebrated the result by parading through the streets, came into collision with the police. In a fight that followed the musicians' instruments were broken and many of the men were injured.

A Denial.

Chief Justice Morris, of the Dublin Court of Queen's Bench, made the following statement: "We, as Judges of the Supreme Court and members of the Irish Privy Council, deny that the Council has discussed with or advised the Government respecting the institution of criminal prosecutions or the administration of the law in Ireland. The Privy Council have never been consulted with reference to criminal prosecutions, and are not connected with the administration of the criminal law, except in their capacity as Judges."

Alexander's Ailment.

The following bulletin has been issued at Darmstadt:—"Prince Alexander is suffering from varioloid of a rather severe form. He had fits of shivering during his recent journey. The fever, which, though it has been very violent, is pursuing an entirely normal course. The tension of the skin now causes the patient violent pain, although with a fall in the patient's temperature there will be no danger. The Prince must pass through some difficult hours in consequence of pain in the head. It is believed the Prince contracted the disease while visiting the harbor of Marseilles.

The Trouble at Fungi.

The following, says a Lisbon despatch, is an official version of the trouble between the Sultan of Zanzibar and the Governor of Mozambique:—Portugal has always maintained Cape Delgado as the northern limit of her Province of Mozambique rights over the territory being recognized in the London convention of 1877. Portugal did not occupy the northern part of the Province, although maintaining her rights over it. In 1886 negotiations between the King of Portugal and the Sultan of Zanzibar ended in the latter expressing a desire for the appointment of Commissioners to effect an amicable settlement. The King of Portugal assented, and sent the Governor of Mozambique as the Portuguese Commissioner. The Sultan declined to negotiate, asserting that he had since concluded a treaty with England and Germany, in which they recognized the territory as his. The King, convinced that such treaty existed, and that the Sultan was merely shuffling, asserted his rights and occupied Tungi.

TERRIBLE RECORD OF DEATH AND DESTRUCTION.

Paris Crowded with Fugitives—Fifteen Thousand People Quit Nice—Scenes at Genoa—Still Another Shock.

London, Feb. 25.—A despatch from Nice says another earthquake shock was felt there this morning. The disturbance was slight.

KILLED AND INJURED.

Despatches from Rome give the following official list of killed and wounded:—Bajardo, 300 killed and wounded; Diano Marina, 250 killed and injured; Bressano, 50 killed and 36 injured; Diana Castello, 30 killed; Castelano, 35 killed and many injured. The number of persons killed is less than was supposed. It is estimated that in the Province of Porto Maurizio 570 persons were killed and 156 injured. In the Province of Genoa 34 were killed and 37 injured. Bajardo and Diano Marina were the only places destroyed. Cervo was only partially damaged. The churches at Bajardo, Castellaro and Aurigo were thrown down.

FUGITIVES AT PARIS.

The hotels at Paris are all crowded with fugitives from the Riviera. Many reached that city but partially dressed and others without luggage. A number of ladies are suffering from illness caused by fright during the earthquakes.

RELIEF FOR THE SUFFERERS.

Mr. Goblet, the French Premier, has sent to the Prefect of Nice the first remittance of 10,000 francs for the relief of the earthquake sufferers.

FURTHER SHOCKS PREDICTED.

A Paris despatch says:—Fiammarion and other astronomers predict further shocks, but say the disturbances will be probably less severe. Slight damage was done in the Basses Alpes. In the Department of Var the walls of houses and churches were cracked. No lives were lost.

PANIC SUBSIDING.

At Nice and Cannes the panic is subsiding, and the inhabitants who have been camping out are returning to their homes. Yesterday's shock destroyed the arches of the Cathedral Church of the Conception at Nice.

TERRIBLE SCENES AT GENOA.

Despatches from Genoa say that the populace slept out-doors last night. Many persons went on board ships in the harbor and 20,000 fled from the city by rail. At a house near Diano Marino a ball was proceeding when the shocks came. The building was completely wrecked and a terrible loss of life resulted. The dancers lay dead in heaps upon the ground. Many of the houses destroyed had large tanks filled with new olive oil intended for exportation to France and Germany. A party of soldiers, while exploring the ruins, found Judge Rossi lying beneath a mass of debris. He was still alive. While the men were trying to extricate him a beam fell, killing the Judge and wounding one of the soldiers.

THE EXODUS FROM NICE.

Fifteen thousand persons have left Nice, and the exodus continues. Throughout the Riviera the railway stations are thronged with people anxious to get away. It has transpired that during Wednesday a panic a French Countess gave birth to a child in the public gardens at Nice.

The Board of Trade and the Canals—The Dominion Live Stock and Ontario Creamery Associations—Queen's Jubilee Celebration—Shorter Hours for Shop Girls.

Toronto, Feb 25.—At a meeting of the Board of Trade to-day the following resolution has passed:—"That the interests of the Dominion demand that canals between Lake Ontario and the sea be at once enlarged to the same size as the Welland Canal, and the Board urge on the Government that for the furthering of export trade via Montreal the reduction of tolls continue to be made on export grain passing through Canada." Barlow Cumberland and George A. Chapman were appointed a deputation to act with representatives of other Boards in urging the matter upon the Government. It was decided to increase the entrance fee to $200 as soon as the membership reached 1,000.

The Dominion Live Stock Association concluded its business this afternoon. A Committee was appointed with power to commence legal proceedings against the Allen Steamship Co. for loss occasioned in stock sent by the steamship Hibernia last year to Liverpool, having been taken to Glasgow, and before they could be transported thence to Liverpool the Manchester and Wakefield markets, for which they were intended, was over. The Executive Committee were directed to employ a legal adviser for the Association. It was decided to take steps to protect the trade generally against the indiscriminate exportation of cattle from foreign countries. Failing in satisfactory arrangement with steamship companies, a committee was appointed to wait upon the Dominion Government with a view to getting a bill passed regulating conditions that can be imposed upon shippers, the form of bill of lading issued by steamship companies to which shippers being strongly objected to as entirely one-sided in favor of steamship companies.

At the closing session this afternoon of the Ontario Creamery Association, the following officers were elected:—President, John Hannah, Seaforth; First Vice-President, D. Derbyshire, Brockville; Second Vice, A. T. Brill, Guelph. Directors were also appointed for the thirteen divisions in the Province. An interesting paper was read by Prof. Robertson on "Little matters in daily practice that cause great losses." The financial statement showed a balance in hand of $175 66

The Executive Committee of the City Council this afternoon considered the celebration of her Majesty's Jubilee, and decided to recommend to the Council that the occasion would be most fittingly celebrated by the erection of a cottage for charitable purposes on the grounds of the General Hospital, bearing the name of "Victoria."

A public meeting was held to-night, when resolutions were passed in support of the movement for shorter hours for shop girls. One speaker said if employers would not voluntarily grant the concession he would institute a movement to compel them to do so by law. Nine hours per day was to be the maximum, and girls to be provided with seats.

The Newfoundland Salt Bill.

Halifax, N.S., Feb. 25.—Hon. Mr. Thornburn, Premier of Newfoundland, accompanied by Sir Ambrose Shea, arrived at Halifax to-night by the steamer Newfoundland and sail for England to-morrow. Their mission is to press upon the British Government the urgent necessity of giving its approval to the Bait Bill that has been adopted in both branches of the Newfoundland Assembly forbidding the sale of bait to foreign fishermen. The St. John's press is unanimous in its endorsation of the measure, and expresses confident belief that it will meet with the approval of the home authorities. The fishermen of Newfoundland are petitioning the Legislature of the Island to impose a duty on fish coming from any country equal the duty levied on fish from Newfoundland entering the United States. They also ask for such an adjustment of the tariff as to cause it to bear more equitably on the fishermen than it does at present.

Heating Cars by Steam.

St. Paul, Feb. 25.—An official test of steam heating apparatus was made yesterday on a Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad short line train between St. Paul and Minneapolis. The device consists of the use of exhaust steam from the dome of the engine carried through pipes underneath the engine and cars, with patent flexible coupling between each car. This pipe connects in the centre of each car with a radiating pipe on each side, with a branch under each seat. The test seemed perfectly satisfactory, the thermometer registering eighty degrees within the car, while outside it stood at zero, with a pressure of six pounds to the square inch inside the car. The engineer declared he saw no perceptible difference in the amount of coal used.

PANIC-STRICKEN PEOPLE.

TERRIBLE DISTRESS IN THE EARTHQUAKE STRICKEN DISTRICTS.

Fugitives Fleeing in Every Direction—A Village Wrecked and One-third of the Inhabitants Buried in the Debris.

Rome, Feb. 25.—The earthquake was strongly felt at sea. Off Genoa it woke sailors from their sleep. At Turin a portion of the ceiling of Santa Teresa Church fell upon the worshipers, but none were killed. In many streets traffic was stopped; as houses were rendered liable to fall. At Castellaro a church collapsed, killing many persons. The transport Roma has left Genoa to take on board 500 prisoners confined in the Oneglia prison, which is expected to collapse. Parties of soldiers have been sent to the villages visited by the earthquake to assist in burying the dead. King Humbert desired to proceed to Genoa, but was dissuaded therefrom. The Italian Soothsayer, an almanac, predicted earthquake shocks between the 15th and 23rd of February.

BURIED BEYOND RESCUE.

It is reported that at Bussana, a village of 800 inhabitants, successive shocks leveled nearly every house. One-third of the people are said to be buried in the ruins, and there is no hope of rescuing them. Not one of the 106 communes in the populous Province of Porto Maurizo escaped injury. The villages built on terraces on the sides of hills are almost all destroyed. The distress is great everywhere. The nights are very cold.

AT NICE.

Nice, Feb. 25.—The panic has not yet subsided. Fugitives are fleeing in every direction. The people are afraid to re-enter their houses and hotels, and last evening the highis back of the city were crowded with refugees. Two thousand English, American and Russian visitors were camped out during the night on the elevated ground. Six thousand persons have left the city and started for Paris. The son of Mr. Albert N. Hathaway, the American Consul at Nice, was seriously injured. Some wells in this section dried up, while others increased in volume. A jet of hot water burst from the bed of the Paillon River, throwing up a mass of shingle.

AT MONTE CARLO.

There have been no further disturbances at Monte Carlo. The place is filled with thousands of refugees from Cannes, Nice, Mentone and San Remo. It is difficult to find shelter for the great number of people, and last night many of them were compelled to camp out. A more confident feeling prevails to-day. Gaming has been suspended, and a band is playing on the terrace for the purpose of restoring confidence to the frightened people.

NOTES.

At Mentone 250 houses were rendered uninhabitable. Several fires occurred, but were speedily extinguished. A bread famine is expected, owing to destruction of the ovens of the bakers.

Miss Chapelez, an American, was buried alive in the ruins of the Villa Natal, but was rescued unhurt. The total number of injured is twenty-three. There were occasional tremors during yesterday, which caused acute suspense while they lasted. Baron Rothschild, who was at Monsco, chartered a Pullman car for his family.

Instruments in the observatory at Vienna showed seismic action on Wednesday which was unperceived by the general public.

Oscillations of the earth from north to south were felt throughout Switzerland. No loss of life is reported, but much damage was done to property.

The Colonial Secretary stated yesterday in the House of Commons that Newfoundland is in danger of permanent commercial ruin, owing to the impossibility of maintaining her staple industry of cod fishing against the competition of French fishermen, who are allowed a bounty by their Government of over fifty per cent.

The Secretary for India yesterday announced in the House of Commons a great scheme for the development of railways in India and Burmah. A proposed railway in the latter country, running from Mandalay, will open up Southern China and Assam, where there are immense populations. To-day the stock of the Bengal and Nagpore railway was placed on the market, and the capital of £3,000,000 was subscribed several times in less than three hours.

GERMANY.

One-half of the New Members of the Reichstag Pledged to the Septennate—Obligations Required of Catholic Bishops in Prussia.

Berlin, Feb. 25.—Definite results now known give exactly one-half of the members of the new Reichstag distinctly pledged to the support of the Septennate, without reckoning reballots. The supplementary elections have been fixed for March 2. Although a majority of the districts in which new elections are to be held are certain to be carried by opposition candidates, the final result will give Prince Bismarck a working majority independent of the Centre members, many of whom will either vote for the Septennate or abstain from voting. It is expected the Septennate will pass the three readings without debate.

The royal order, prescribing the forms of oath which Catholic Bishops appointed to sees in Prussia shall take before being confirmed by the State, ordains that each bishop shall swear to be submissive loyal, obedient and devoted to the King of Prussia, and inculcate on his clergy and the people of his diocese veneration and fidelity towards the king, love of fatherland and obedience to the State's laws, to refuse to tolerate by any of his clergy any teaching or action opposed to the spirit of the vows taken by the Bishop in making the oath, and to abstain from maintaining either within or outside of the country any relations prejudicial to the security of the country. The oath concludes as follows:—"I promise to keep all this the more inviolable as I am certain that by the oath I took to the Pope and the Church I did not bind myself to anything that might be opposed to this oath of allegiance to the King."

The idea is gaining ground that the enhanced strength of the National-Liberal will lead to a rupture of the Nationals Liberal and Conservative coalition after the passage of the Septennate Bill. The Post advises the Government not to overstrain its bow, but to confine itself as before to absolutely necessary measures, especially those relating to financial affairs.

CANADIAN COLLEGE AT ROME.

The Corner-stone Laid—Solemn and Beautiful Ceremonies.

Rome, February 25.—The ceremony of laying the corner stone of the Canadian Church College took place at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Cardinal Howard officiated. Among those present were Cardinal Gibbons, Cardinal Taschereau, Mgr. Azarian, Patriarch of the Armenian Catholics; Mgr. O'Connell, of the American College; Mgr. O'Callaghan, of the English College; Mgr. Campbell of the Scotch College; Archbishop Kirby, of the Irish College; Bishop Keane, of Richmond, Va.; Mgr. Jacobini, of the Propaganda; the Bishop of Lyons; Mgr. Puyol, French Superior; Mgr. Henry Icard, Superior-General of the Sulpicians; Mgr. Rubian, Rector of the Armenian College; M. Hyvernat, Professor of Assyriology and Egyptology. Father Captier, a Sulpician, and a Canadian deputation were also present. The church was dedicated to Saint Joseph. In the corner-stone was placed a parchment which had been signed by all present, together with several Canadian twenty-five cent and ten-cent pieces, a medal representing the Pope and the Madonna and a larger one representing the Pope and the restoration of the Lateran. The spectacle was solemn and religiously beautiful. The walls of the college are adorned with antique tapestries, upon which is pictured the story of Esther. The architect of the edifice is Carimini.

THE PANAMA CANAL.

De Lesseps Says it Will be Done on Time—Pleased With the Nicaragua Project.

London, Feb. 25.—The Standard's Paris correspondent says that in an interview M. de Lesseps declared that he had learned with pleasure of the formation of the Nicaragua Company, which, he said, would improve the prospects of the Panama Canal Company. The Nicaragua enterprise, being a fresh water canal, would be useful as a means of irrigating and fertilizing the country. M. de Lesseps scouted the idea that the Nicaragua enterprise could be used for inter-oceanic traffic, as owing to endless locks increasing the time of transit, vessels would prefer going round Cape Horn. Referring to the Panama Canal, he said the only point of anxiety was the rocky culebra, although he was firmly convinced that the contract would be finished within the specified time. The work would soon be pushed day and night, lighting the culebra by means of electric light. The directors of the company anticipate that the work accomplished in 1887 will be double that done in 1886. The Panama Canal Company has bought thirty locomotives in Belgium.

HIGH-HANDED ACTION.

Stanley on the Bombardment of Tungi by Portuguese and Seizure of the Sultan of Zanzibar's Steamer—The Emin Bey Relief Expedition.

London, Feb. 25.—Henry M. Stanley telegraphs from Zanzibar recounting the seizure of the Sultan of Zanzibar's steamer Kiltva and bombardment of Tungi by the Portuguese. In the opinion of Stanley, Portugal is acting in a high-handed manner, relying on the non-interference of Germany. Passiveness on the part of England, Stanley says, will be most injurious to the value of trade. England and Germany together ought to cry "Hands off" to Portugal before irreparable mischief ensues.

Stanley says, in reference to the expedition for the relief of Emin Bey, that the party have gone on the steamer Madura. The expedition consists of nine European officers, 61 Soudanese, 13 Somalis, 620 natives of Zanzibar, three interpreters and Tippu Tib, the Arab trader, and 40 of his followers. Couriers have gone overland with letters to Ugandi, while others have been sent to Stanley Falls to meet native chiefs.

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE FEES

What the Non-Residents are to Pay for Attending the High School.

A meeting of No. 1 Committee of the Board of Education was held last night in the ante-room of the Council Chamber. The members present were:—Messrs. Ball (Chairman), Colwell, Dr. Campbell, Dr. McArthur, Secretary Abbott, Inspector Boyle and Rev. F. Checkley.

Miss Boone's application for increase of salary was received.

Dr. Campbell suggested that the Board be asked for permission to grade the salaries on a plan based on time of service, qualifications and duties. The suggestion was adopted.

A communication was read from Edward Robinson, asking that as he paid taxes in the city to the amount of $33 his son be exempted from fees paid by non-residents. Filed, as the law already provided for such cases.

Daniel O'Gorman's certificate of being assessed as a public school supporter on the roll of 1887 was referred to the Secretary with power, to allow his children the necessary certificate to attend the public school.

Daniel O'Hearn's application to be assessed as separate school supporter was also referred to the Secretary.

Some requisitions for supplies were put in by Mr. Boyle, who stated that the Board in former years had supplied pens, ink and paper used by the children in the school work.

It was decided to continue the practice. The Inspector was authorized to purchase the supplies recommended.

It was decided to recommend no action on a requisition for stationery and supplies from the Protestant Orphans' Home School, as the Committee considered there was too much waste up there.

Progress will be reported on Mr. Wright's motion for the re-appointment of the music master, and the Board will be asked for permission to advertise for and appoint a drawing master for the High School.

A number of questions from Mr. Pope as to imposition of non-resident fees was answered as follows:—

1. Every non-resident shall pay the full fees, a rebate being allowed at the end of the year when the taxes for the year are paid.

2. The fee of $40 per annum shall be exacted from more than one member of a family, where more than one attends the Collegiate Institute.

3. The rebate shall apply in full on the total amount paid.

4. Pupils attending a portion of the year only shall receive a proportionate rebate, and the original motion be amended accordingly.

Mr. Pope also stated that only about $200 of the Government grant due London East had been received, instead of $600, the proper sum. He supposed it was due to the full returns for the year not having been sent down.

The Secretary and Mr. Pope were instructed to investigate and correspond with the Government in regard to the matter.

Burned Hand—Cured.

Toronto, Ontario, Canada.

Your St. Jacobs Oil is certainly a very effective preparation, as it has cured me of a severe burn of the hand, after other remedies had failed to relieve me, and it has been used by other members of my family with very good effects.

THOMAS MURRAY, Ex-Alderman.

Injured for 14 Years Cured.—

Mr. C. T. Peirce, Sidney, N. S. W., fourteen years ago was thrown from a horse, and so injured his hip that he was unable to go about without the aid of a walking stick. Recently, he used St. Jacobs Oil. The result was marvellous. After applying half a bottle he found that he could walk with ease; and, by continuing the remedy, he is now free from pain and well.

ST. JACOBS OIL is an absolute cure for all bodily pains for which an external remedy may be applied. It never fails. It acts like magic, and a trial of it has convinced the most ingenuous. It is sold by Chemists and Dealers in medicine, throughout the Dominion of Canada. Price fifty cents per bottle. The Charles A. Vogeler Co., Baltimore, Md., U. S. A. LOCAL AND DISTRICT.

Among the successful candidates in the Land Surveyors' examinations, is noticed the name of Mr. H. W. Burwell, of this city.

Mr. W. T. Jennings, C. E., of this city, has been elected a member of the Executive Council of the Canadian Association of Civil Engineers.

Mr. George Holdsker, of Beecher street, London South, met with a painful accident at the London Tool Company's works on the 21st inst., which no doubt will keep him from work for some time.

Mr. W. A. Hilton, of the Post Office Department, Strathroy, leaves for California to-day (Saturday). His departure from that town will be felt by his many friends, as he was well respected and highly esteemed by all who knew him.

A very successful parlor social was held Wednesday evening at the residence of W. Henderson, George street, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of Pall Mall street Methodist Church. A good programme was given and refreshments were served during the evening. All seemingly spent an enjoyable time.

In the High Court of Justice at Toronto on Thursday, in the suit of the Dominion S. and I. Co. vs. Kilroy, Mr. Aylesworth, for the claimant, moved to bar the execution creditors for non-production. J. R. Roaf contra. An affidavit having now been filed no order was made except for part of costs to the appilcants in any event.

George Rankin, well-known to Londoners, locked himself in his house at Sandwich early in the winter, and a constable, who had a warrant for him for assaulting his uncle, County Clerk McKee, was warned by threats of bodily harm not to attempt to break into the house to serve the warrant. The constable heeded the warning. Rankin kept under cover, remaining in the house most of the time. The other day the constable saw him on the street, and invited him to walk over to Mayor McWhinney's office. Rankin did so, and the Mayor fined him $9 50, and put him under $150 bonds to keep the peace.

A FATAL ERROR.

The local leaders of the Grit party would have stood in a better light with the citizens of London but for two items in their programme, viz., their dictatorial attitude on nomination day, and the peculiar preparations that they had made for the event of success. Counting upon a victory, they had determined to "rub it in" to the Tories in a way the most cutting and offensive that could be contrived. For days before the election there was a COFFIN, as a prominent article of furniture at the Liberal Club, and which it was intended to use in mockery of a funeral in their expected triumphal procession. Had the leaders been actuated by the ordinary feelings attendant upon political warfare, they would have made a "Protest" against that form of self-flattery. They would have said, "Come, boys, bar this out of your arrangements; it is an indecent travesty; it will offend all right-thinking persons; we must not bring a solemn ceremonial that is respected even on a battle field by friend and foe alike, into mockery like this." But they allowed the idea to take root among their followers and gave it countenance, and had the Grits been successful we should have seen them parading with a hearse and other funeral trappings in celebration of it. This phase of Grit tactics has disgusted a great many, and won for the Conservative candidate and member-elect many expressions of sympathy and support from old opponents.

HOSTILITY TO THE N. P.

The Sick Man's Case—"None so Blind as Those Who Don't Want to See."

The hedging of Mr. Blake on the question of protection had very little effect in the recent contest, his hypocrisy having been apparent to the public. The man who had used the full force of his influence against the National Policy for eight years was not to be trusted in a crisis such as the country had just passed through. It was evident during the progress of the campaign that at heart the Grits—that is the out and out fellows—were as hostile as ever to the great measure, and an incident which occurred in this city affords a striking proof of this fact. Just on the eve of the election Mr. John Plummer, of this city, was held up by the Advertiser as a man who had been ruined by the N. P., and a desperate attempt was made to arouse sympathy for Mr. Hyman over the recital of Mr. Plummer's alleged wrongs. Mr. Hyman, it will be remembered, was held up as a man who "dared oppose an N. P. candidate." It is not necessary to tell the people of London that Mr. Plummer's failure in business some years ago, was in no way due to the operations of the N. P. Every citizen is conversant with the facts; but, the use of Mr. Plummer's name by the Advertiser cannot be lost sight of as a proof of the hostility which it still nurses against Sir John's great protective measure. In magnifying the case of the gentleman in question it closed its eyes to the beneficial effects of the N. P. in London, and never let a word of good cheer respecting them appear in its columns. The number of men who find employment in this city in excess of 1878 is really surprising. No attempt has been made to collect information from all of the manufacturers, but in four establishments the increased number of employes has been as follows:—

McClary Manufacturing Co...	150
John Elliott & Sons	101
McCormick Manuf'g Co	45
FREE PRESS Printing Co	45
Total increase	341

Here there are four companies giving employment to 341 more hands than in 1878, and the list could be extended so as to show with absolute truthfulness an increase of possibly a thousand employes in the manufactories of the city since the introduction of the National Policy. Added to this is the potent fact that at least ten manufactories are now in operation in London which were not here in 1878, and these on a careful estimate employ at least 200 hands. Yet the Advertiser is blind to the good effects of the N. P.

Advices from Trujillo, La., state that one of the construction boats of the Aguan Navigation Co. under command of C. A. Russell, Assistant-Superintendent, capsized during a squall at the entrance to the canal. All on board were saved excepting Russell, who was caught and eaten by a shark.

Meeting of No. 1 Committee Last Night—The Business Done.

No. 1 Committee of the City Council met in their room last evening. Present:—Ald Bowman (in the chair), Davis, G. Taylor, Greer, Mayor Cowan and the Secretary, Mr. Pope.

The petition of James McKnight for remission of dog tax was read, with Inspector's report. Remitted.

From Catharine Keefe—For remission of taxes as a widow and Inspector's report. No action.

From James McCarthy—For reduction of rate. Filed.

From W.C.A.—For a grant from the Council.

Ald. Davis moved that they be granted $250. Ald. Taylor seconded.

His Worship objected to making the grant more than it was last year.

The grant was made $300

From M. Grayson—For rebate on horses owned by him. Filed—no power.

From R. Evans—For exemption from taxes, on the ground of being pastor of the Latter Day Saints. Granted.

From M. A. Pew, No. 5 War—For remission of taxes. Inspector.

From Mary Barrett—For remission of taxes. Inspector.

From Samuel Friendship, on behalf of Mrs. Mason—For remission of taxes. Inspector.

From Mrs Stockwell—For remission of dog tax. Filed, the tax having been paid.

From C. A. Kingston, on behalf of J. Simmons, refusing to accept the amount granted him by the Council, but expressing willingness to arbitrate. Laid over.

From the Clerk of Port Rowan—Asking that that place be made the terminus of the London & South-eastern Railway. Referred to Railway Committee.

A communication in regard to the celebration of the Queen's Jubilee was laid over till next meeting.

From the Bank of Scotland—Stating that the holder of two debentures of the city had lost the coupons, and asking what was to be done.

The Chairman said he and the Secretary had answered that the payment would be made on the city receiving a guarantee against any further liability.

This view was approved of by the Committee.

From the London & Petroles Barrel Company—In regard to the exemption they should be granted.

The Secretary said several properties appeared as rated under the exemption, and there were certain conditions in the by-law which the city did not know had been carried out.

It was decided that the Company be requested to put in an affidavit showing the number of men employed and other particulars.

Mr. Simmons was heard in regard to his claim for copying the assessment rolls. He said he not only had to do his own work, but also to go over that of Mr. Barnard. He had not only worked in the office, but had taken the books home and worked there.

Ald. Davis said Mr. Barnard had been paid for revising which he said he had done.

Mr. Simmons explained the number of hours he worked both day and night. He had only charged each day by itself and not for the number of hours.

Mr. James Grant said he knew that Mr. Barnard had worked all day and till late at night repeatedly.

On motion the matter was referred to the Chairman and Ald Davis to report to the Council.

The Chairman said the main question was why Mr. Simmons had taken the books away from the City Clerk's office.

The following accounts were passed:—Catholic Record, $0 67; Bell Telephone Co., $0.75; No. 2 Committee, $283 97; No. 3, $588 51—total, $1,073 90.

"LOOSE AND CARELESS"

Fitly Describes the Manner in Which D. R. O. Talbot Macbeth Did His Work.

Five of the ballots marked for Mr. Carling and one for Mr. Hyman were found after the election on the floor of the booth in No. 5 Division. It appears that they were objected to by the respective scrutineers, and laid aside by the Deputy Returning officer, Mr. Talbot Macbeth, who forgot to replace them with the others in the ballot box. They were, however, counted in the returns made. The ballots were subsequently delivered to Returning Officer Gill, but that gentleman knew nothing whatever of the circumstances when asked regarding the matter by a FREE PRESS representative yesterday afternoon. The finding of these ballots on the floor of the room in which the polling took place instead of in a sealed envelope in the ballot box demonstrates that the affidavits taken by the Deputy Returning Officer and Poll Clerk after the poll closed are worth nothing.

The Case of Intimidation.

To the Editor of the Free Press.

DEAR SIR,—Referring to CRAWFORD Beckett's letter in yesterday morning's issue of your paper, I can say that Mr. Beckett made a statement to me fifteen minutes after his dismissal, which agrees exactly with his letter, and which I believe to be true in every particular. I would put much more faith in Mr. Beckett's word than I would in Alderman Bowman's statement, as the latter has proved himself to be a trimmer of the first water since his election to the City Council, and I sincerely hope that the workingmen electors of his Ward will remember him if he ever comes forward for re election. I also leave the public to pass judgment on his too thin statement, "that Mr. Smallman did not know how he or his son were going to vote." Yours truly.

ELECTOR No 4 WARD.

Did You Ever Get Left?

DEAR SIR,—I see in my FREE PRESS of to-day a great deal about people driving and travelling to put in their votes, but I don't think you have any to beat this:—Nelson Lightfoot was taken from Aylmer to Port Burwell, 18 miles, by E. Rockey, who had no vote, pretending that he had some apples to pack, but when they got to Port Burwell Lightfoot discovered there were no apples, and that he had been taken there to rob him of his vote, and at twelve o'clock midnight he started and walked to Aylmer, 18 miles, and put in his vote, and said he would have walked from Windsor.

A GOOD TORY.

AFTER THE BATTLE.

Conservatives Agree to Have no Demonstration Just Now.

The banqueting room in the Masonic Temple was crowded last night by Conservative committeemen to discuss the advisability of having a demonstration in celebration of the recent victory in this city. It was agreed, however, that the city had been sufficiently stirred by political excitement during the last two months without adding a fresh cause of agitation. A conclusion was unanimously arrived at to utilize the money which might be spent in a demonstration in continuing the Young Liberal-Conservative Club on a thoroughly good and effective basis. It was suggested that during the summer a monster Conservative jubilee picnic might be held in this city, in which the other Ridings of the county might join. Hon. John Carling was present and delivered a short address, in which he expressed his gratitude for the efforts of his friends in the recent contest. He said that the vague threats of a protest in no way alarmed him, as the Conservatives of London were quite prepared to meet Mr. Hyman in the election courts and show up some of his crookedness during the campaign. Mr. Carling was heartily cheered. At the close of the meeting a committee was appointed to draft a basis of organization. The utmost unanimity and enthusiasm prevailed.

POSSIBLE RECIPROCITY.

It has always been a portion of Conservative policy to endeavor to promote reciprocity with the United States. But those efforts have been often thwarted by the unfortunate counter influence of the Grits, who have opposed those measures by which alone it could be brought about. It is not reasonable to suppose that if this country were prepared to give up the advantages that it has in respect of the Fisheries, of lumber, of the canals, and in some other ways, the Americans would be one iota more willing to make a fair and square treaty with us. If the advantages that we enjoy were to be surrendered in the way the late Hon. George Brown proposed to do, this country would be in the position of having nothing to offer in return for the facilities that the government at Washington might be asked to accord. But now they see, as they have been brought to see, that England will stand in with Canada so that an honorable and satisfactory arrangement may be made, they will be the more likely to accede to conditions which would prove satisfactory to our people. The days when we were almost dependent on them as customers and as carriers has passed. In consequence of the steam service of the St. Lawrence (promoted by the wisdom of the "wicked Tories") and from the fact that Canadian produce can go out on our own railways, and thus be independent of the American lines, no measure of hostility, such as that which has lately been passed, is able to scare us. The Canadian producer is able to meet the American in the English market on equal terms in every respect, and has the advantage of him in some important particulars. This has been seen (as before remarked in these columns) more particularly in connection with the cattle trade, which is growing to immense proportions. The cheese and butter exports are also in a favorable position, while in respect of the lumber and cereals there is nothing to be desired. Such being the fact, the country is able to get along even in the face of fire-eating politicians on the other side who may think that they can "starve us into annexation." At the same time this people are at all times willing to enter upon a course of inter-trade with the United States which would be mutually beneficial. And there is reason to hope that such a measure of good neighborhood will not be long delayed. The on-coming of the fishing season will present an opportunity which may be made use of to arrange the matters at issue to general satisfaction. The American markets in the absence of Canadian fish would be but poorly supplied, whilst they consume but about one-third of the Canadian catch. If special efforts were to be made there is reason to believe that the entire catch could be disposed of in other countries, in the same way that it is possible to send the entire surplus of the products of the farm and forest to European markets. So we are under no kind of compulsion, as some of the talkers at Washington seem to suppose. But if the question were to be asked, What is it that would be preferred? the answer would undoubtedly be that, A preference would be given to the American markets on account of their proximity, and for the reason that we are good neighbors, which will always count as something. If it were not for the friction that is produced by some of the mere "politicians" on the other side, there is no doubt that an amicable arrangement could be quickly come to which would give to both parties all that is desired. The temper of our people is a reasonable one, and if the American representatives do but concur in that bent a pleasing relief from the existing strained condition would be quickly brought about. Of this thing we may be sure, that now that Sir John has been once more confirmed in office he will lose no opportunity to endeavor to place affairs on a satisfactory basis. But it should be borne in mind that Canada is but one of the parties to such a bargain, and that if the American obstructionists continue to hinder, the best intentions that exist at Ottawa may be frustrated. We have had some experience of the obstructionist policy amongst ourselves, and can therefore all the more readily make allowance for the difficulties in which President Cleveland and his cabinet find themselves on the matters at issue in respect of the Dominion.

THE ONTARIO "BIRD."

It has been truly said:—"In vain is the net spread in the sight of any bird." Yet Mr. Blake, forgetting or ignoring the maxim which he has no doubt heard of, attempted to undertake the impossible task. After having derided and denounced the National Policy for years on every possible occasion, he went down to Malvern just a few days before the elections and professed to be its friend. He thus tried to "spread the net" for the feet of those who might be silly enough to forget what he had previously said, and cast their votes in his favor. But did the Ontario "bird" fall into the trap? Not much. The net had been set too palpably, and it did as little birds usually do on such occasions, and flitted off. But if Mr. Blake were to try a little salt next time, who knows but that he might not be successful.

Sir A. B. Walker, the founder of the Walker Art Gallery, Liverpool, has given £10,000 towards the building of the Liverpool Cathedral, and suggests that the Queen's jubilee would be an appropriate occasion for the laying of the foundation stone.

CATTLE "ON DECK."

All will recollect how the live cattle trade with Great Britain was saved to Canada by the timely intervention of Sir Charles Tupper a year or two ago. The Privy Council set an embargo on United States live cattle, on account of the prevalence of Texas fever amongst them. They would not allow cattle brought from the Southern States even to circulate over their country from market to market, because of the fear that the disease would be introduced among English herds. This regulation was promoted by the great cattle interests of the Islands. There was good reason in the allegations as to Texas fever. An order was made that cattle arriving from the United States should be taken to the lairages at once and there slaughtered. They could only find a market in England as "dead meat." Great complaint was made by American shippers, as to the disadvantage under which they suffered, as compared with those of other countries such as Canada, from which live stock continued to be imported. They made a great fuss over it, and many tricks were resorted to to induce the English authorities to put the Canadians under the same ban. This met the favor of the Duke of Richmond and other large cattle breeders. At last a "case of disease" was reported to be found amongst Canadian cattle, on which the law was about to be enforced against our trade as well as that of the States. It was a serious crisis. But Sir Charles Tupper sped from London to Liverpool by a midnight train, and caused such an examination to be made instantly by experts as to show that no disease existed. The trade was preserved to us by his vigorous action. Another attack has now been made upon "Canada's cattle" by the Agricultural Department of the Privy Council. A circular has been issued to ship-owners to prohibit the carrying of cattle 'on deck' on the Atlantic in the winter months, owing to the sufferings of the animals so carried. This looks very humane on the face of it, but the hand of Esau is only indifferently concealed in this latest attempt of the landlords to protect their fast-depreciating property by keeping up the price of cattle bred in England. 'On deck' technically means a great deal more than people think. Any erection, whether it be a good, substantial, permanent shelter for cattle, so long as it is not altogether closed in, is 'on deck' in the interpretation of the authorities. If this order comes out all such erections are to be held inapplicable to the carrying of cattle in the winter, and a correspondingly less number of good American beeves will be landed on the other side. The ship-owners are fighting this ukase with all their might. As a matter of fact, cattle carried on deck, either in summer or winter, are better off, and arrive, if they do at all, in as good, or better shape than those carried in the hold.

STRONGHOLDS CAPTURED.

The fact that the Conservatives captured such strongholds of Gritism as East Lambton, West Middlesex, South Norfolk, West Huron, North and South Ontario, is evidence of what can be effected with properly disposed forces. The reduction of the apparent Conservative majority in this city arose solely from the fact, that whilst Mr. Carling had been engaged in departmental duties at Ottawa his opponent was industriously at work here. The admission of so many more voters to the franchise provided material easily to be worked upon by the indefatigable canvass that was made, and which extended over several months. So soon as any party gives away to lethargy, resting secure upon former victories, so soon has its decadence at the polls commenced. If eternal vigilance is the price of liberty, a well-directed canvass and the distribution of sound political information, are certainly pre-requisites to success at the polls. So earnest and persistent had been the canvass on the Grit side in London that the managers were entirely confident of success. "Nothing can keep it from us," was an expression made use of by one of them. "In peace prepare for war" is a maxim of universal acceptation. And if the Conservative ranks are to be kept up to a victorious strength it will be by not only taking that maxim to heart but by acting upon it. Many of the lessons taught by the results of the elections are pregnant with suggestions of this kind.

THE GOVERNMENTAL MAJORITY.

The Montreal Gazette sums up the position of parties in the new House as follows:—

	Con.	Lib.
Ontario	53	38
Quebec	36	28
Manitoba	4	1
Nova Scotia	11	7
New Brunswick	9	7
P. E. Island	0	6
	116	87

This gives a Conservative majority of 29 to the western boundaries of Manitoba, allowing to the Liberals on all questions such Conservatives as left their party on the Riel issue, and whose subsequent conduct has indicated that henceforth they will not act with their former friends West of that line, in the Territories and British Columbia, the Conservative candidates have no serious opposition. In some of the constituencies no Liberal whatever is in the field. One representative, Mr. Mara, in Yale, is already elected as a supporter of the Government's policy. His colleagues are not likely to differ from him, and the total Conservative majority when Parliament meets will be not less than forty. In a House of 215 members, that is sufficient to carry on the business of the country in accord with the views of the Government—the more so as the Liberal abandonment of opposition to the National Policy and Mr. Blake's latest utterance on the Riel question have cut from under the feet of the Opposition their main grounds of assault upon their opponents.

MR. BLAKE'S "FRENCH ARMY."

The motto displayed from the Globe office on the night of the 22nd inst. told its own tale. And it was this:—"The French Army is moving on." In that lay Mr Blake's chief hope. He had no hope—the Globe had no hope—of Ontario, and so fell back expectantly on Quebec—and the "French Army." And of what was that army to which they looked for their redemption composed? It was composed of those burning with the desire of ousting the Government because they had stood up for the grand principle of "One Law for All," as applied to the miscreant Riel. Is that the kind of position in which the great "friend of Ontario" should be found?

CURRENT TOPICS.

Robert Bonner has been offered $100,000 for Maud S. The wonderful mare may be one of the lower animals, but she comes high in price.

Henry George opened a speech at Cincinnati Monday night with the declaration. —"We want the earth." Will somebody please hand the globe over to this man and let him go?

The five bodies found in a Dakota cave, and supposed to belong to an unknown race of 2,000 years ago, should be sent to Ontario for identification by the Grits. There are many ante-diluvian fossils moving about here, who might brush up their memories and tell all about their old friends in Dakota.

After the elections, Mr. P. A. Sauvalle, chief editor of La Patrie, said: "I admit that we have been badly beaten, although I cannot say but what the Province of Quebec has done its duty fairly well. But it was the Protection cry that killed us in the manufacturing centres of Ontario and Quebec."

Thunder Bay Sentinel, Feb. 21:—"If the sun goes down to-morrow evening with Edward Blake in a minority his star has set forever, as a political leader. The grits feel this. They thoroughly understand that their hopes for office will be blighted, and they will leave nothing undone to secure a victory."

Montreal Witness:—"When employers, both publicly and privately, threaten to discharge their employes, as they have done during the present contest, the secrecy of the ballot becomes a matter of the very highest importance. It is in fact under such circumstances the true guardian of liberty and should be preserved inviolate."

It is a notable fact that has not attracted much public remark that the Pacific Railway was constructed throughout its whole length without any scandalous allegation being successfully established in connection with it as against the Government. Whereas, the very commence of the enterprise under Mackenzie introduced us to the Neebing Hotel, Kaministiquia River, Georgian Bay Branch, steel rails, and other scandals, all of which were proved in a convincing manner.

Some people on stilts have begun to talk about the evils of party, and hold up their hands in horror at its excesses. Bad as it may be held to be, it is still the only means yet discovered of ascertaining the bent of the popular will. It is seen in potent action in Germany, in England, in America as well as in Canada. And what is also true is this, that no substitute has been found for it. One of the worst features in connection with it (for it is far from perfect), is the falsehoods that certain party organs resort to in the endeavor to mislead the electors. In this respect the course pursued by the "Screaming Twins," the Globe and Tizer—has been simply disgusting.

Montreal Witness:—The word "Boodle," which has become so popular of late, has, it is said, a most interesting derivation. The story is that during the revolt in the Netherlands the "Beggars," as the first opponents of the Spaniards were proud to call themselves, not only plundered their enemies and all who supported them, but they exacted contributions of food, goods and money from those communities and individuals who desired to blow neither hot nor cold, but to be neutral, and the proceeds of these levies were called "beodle." In process of time, when the place of the beggars had been taken by the armies of the House of Orange, the practice was continued as a species of blackmail, not by patriotic, but by thievish beggars, and "beodle" became the term applied to a particularly mean species of plundering. The term lingered long not only in Holland, but on this continent, in New Amsterdam, and it survived in New York until the Broadway franchise gave it an opportunity of further usefulness under its present form "boodle."

THE VICTORY IN EAST LAMBTON.

Grand Demonstration at Forest.

Petrolea, Feb 25.—Mr. George Moncrieff received an invitation from several of the leading citizens of Forest to be with them on the evening of Thursday, on 24th, and he accordingly accepted. On his way to Forest he was received at Sarnia station by an immense crowd, and cheer after cheer was given. After greetings and congratulations the train moved off amid tremendous cheering. The train arrived at Forest about eight o'clock. Mr. Moncrieff was met at the station by Mr. W. J. Porte, President of the Forest Liberal-Conservative Association, and a host of his supporters, who accompanied him to Green's Hotel. After supper a grand torchlight procession of at least 200 torch-bearers and 100 men carrying brooms, the Forest Brass band and a great display of fireworks. Mr. Moncrieff and three others were in a carriage drawn by four horses, but the fireworks were so large that it became dangerous to continue in the conveyance and they all got out and walked. Arriving at the hall it was found jammed full, and hundreds failed to obtain admission. The chair was taken by the President of the Forest Conservative Association, Mr. W. J. Porte, who referred to their great success in carrying East Lambton. He then introduced the following gentlemen to the audience, who made short and suitable addresses: Messrs. M. J. Woodward and John Kerr, of Petrolia; Mr. Carsaden, of Forest; Mr. E. F. Watson, of Sarnia, and others, after which Miss Addie Wood, on behalf of the ladies of Forest, presented Mr. Moncrieff with a very complimentary address, and a beautiful bouquet by Miss Pearl Webster. Another address was then read by Miss Fannie Parker, on behalf of the Moncrieff Union Liberal-Conservative Club, of Forest. Mr. Carsaden then, on behalf of the Forest Union Liberal-Conservative Association, read an address to Mr. Moncrieff. Mr. Moncrieff feelingly replied to each of the addresses, after which he spoke to the audience on the political issues of the day, and joined with them in expressing congratulations for the redemption of East Lambton. The demonstration was the largest and finest ever held in Forest, and from all appearances the Conservative party appear determined to hold the fort in East Lambton for all time to come.

TRADE IN THE STATES.

Dun, Wiman & Co.'s Weekly Review of the Situation.

New York, Feb. 25.—Dun, Wiman & Co.'s weekly review of trade says the German elections are believed to mean peace. Wheat has therefore declined, losing the advance based on war rumors and touching the lowest quotations for this crop year. At Chicago stocks have advanced, though as yet with no public buying to help. Small exports of gold hardly warranted by exchange quotations have no effect on an easy money market, foreign trade being just now the vital point. The official statement for January, made public yesterday, is important, with large gains in exports of cotton, breadstuffs and provisions. There was an actual decrease of $1,805,000 in the minor exports, compared with last year, so that the excess of merchandize exports over imports for the month fell below $2,000,000, the net imports of specie were $50,760,000. The figures indicate some liquidation for stocks sent back from Europe, but February returns for three weeks show smaller exports from New York than last year by 18.8 per cent, while imports are larger by 12.3 per cent. Unless exports materially increase again a considerable exports of gold are probable. Last year nearly $5,000,000 went out in February. Money is in good supply though the treasury has taken in $9,300,000 gold during the week and enough of silver to balance United States loss of paper. Speculation has been dull except in grain and oil, wheat sales reaching 35,000,000 bushels and oil 16,000,000 barrels. A rapid advance from 85¾c to 65¼c per barrel was suddenly followed by a fall to 61c on news that a bill would be reported in the Pennsylvania Legislature cutting down carrying charges from 40 to 15 cents. Pork products continue to advance, mess reaching $14.50. Cotton is unchanged and coffee has recovered only an eighth, no demand having been stimulated by the recent decline so far. Sugar also looks weaker, consumption being narrow and slow. The demand for pig iron slackens, but the demand for manufactured products continues strong. The nail production in 1885 was 8,160,773 kegs, 5 per cent. larger than in any previous year, yet nearly 3,000,000 kegs were of steel. The coal production for the latest week shows an increase of 8 to 9 per cent., but for January a decrease is noted of 4 per cent. Coke prices for March will be unchanged, notwithstanding protests. Strikes have generally abated, but the Fall River spinners ask higher wages, and are refused. About Pittsburg the outlook promises industrial peace, but the general advance in wages, especially in the iron and connected industries, must soon seriously affect the cost of production. The dry goods business is a little better in cottons, with improved demand, though print cloths are shaded at 3-44 cents, and jobbings in dress goods go on with great freedom, but there is but little improvement in woollen goods. Railroad earnings and traffic continues encouraging. West-bound tonnage in January was the largest since 1882, and east-bound 10 per cent. over last year, though smaller than in 1883 or 1885. Heavy transactions in real estate continue, largely of a speculative character. The business failures during the last seven days number, for the United States, 186; for Canada, 23—a total of 209, compared with 201 last week, and 248 the corresponding week of last year.

FIRE FLASHES.

Hamilton, Feb. 25.—The general store of Baxter & Galloway, situated near the post Office, in Burlington, was completely destroyed by fire at an early hour this morning. The fire was discovered about 4:30 a.m. by Mrs. Rysch, who lives across the street from the building and she immediately gave the alarm. There is no fire brigade in the village, but a volunteer brigade, armed with buckets, managed to save the adjoining buildings. The fire is supposed to have been an incendiary one. Loss about $14,000; insurance $10,000.

ELECTION ECHOES.

Notes and Comments on the Recent Struggle.

The majority for Mr. O'Brien (Conservative) in Muskoka, is 44, all places heard from.

The official result of the voting in West Toronto gives Col. F. C. Denison a majority of 467.

The new Conservative contingent from the Maritime Province contains some splendid men among its number. Dr. Weldon, the member-elect of Albert, N. B., and Dean of the Law Faculty of Dalhousie College, is looked upon as a valuable acquisition to the new House.

Now that Sir John Macdonald has been returned for Kingston, for which constituency it is expected the Premier will sit, the attention of Ottawa politicians is being directed towards Carleton County. Among the names of prospective candidates are those of Messrs. John Rochester, George Clarke and Warden Dawson.

The question as to who will be the new Speaker is already beginning to exercise the minds of politicians at Ottawa. It is pretty generally conceded that a new man, probably a French-Canadian, will get it. Mr. C. H. Mackintosh is spoken of in various quarters for the Deputy Speakership, and it is learned that he has already received three offers from Conservative members-elect to make way for him. That he will be in the new House seems pretty sure.

Dr. Sutton, the opponent of Mr. Mackenzie Bowell in North Hastings, has lost his deposit. The Minister of Customs is already 865 votes ahead, with several strongholds in the back townships to hear from.

Mr. Donald Macmaster, ex-M. P., has left Alexandria for Montreal. He announces that he will protest the election in Glengarry. It is alleged by Conservatives that Mr. Purcell, his opponent, spent nearly $50,000 to secure the constituency.

Mr. Chapleau, the Secretary of State, from a Conservative standpoint, did yeoman service in the late elections. He was entrusted with the direction of the campaign in the thirty-two constituencies comprising Montreal district, and in twenty-one of these the Conservatives were successful. The rest of the Province, consisting of thirty-three constituencies, was looked after by Sir Hector Langevin and Sir A. Caron, and in their division the full force of the Riel cry was felt. Friends of the Secretary of State claim that he is now more popular than ever, and that his following, ever increasing, will make things lively in certain quarters ere many months elapse. Mr. Chapleau worked so hard in the late contest that the strain upon him was considerable, and yesterday he sought rest in a trip to New York, where he will spend a few days.

MINOR TELEGRAMS

THE DOMINION.

D. Switzer, who hails from near Angus, Ont., on Thursday started for Toronto, and, while the train was speeding citywards, he was cleverly decoyed into transferring his available wealth, amounting to $200, to three card sharpers. The detectives arrested an alleged notorious American criminal named Eddie Mines as one of the parties. He was arraigned on the charge of fraud, but at the request of the detectives the prisoner was remanded till Monday.

A Guelph despatch says:—Within the past month or so three mail bags destined to the Guelph Post Office have mysteriously disappeared at the Grand Trunk Railway Station. The proper authorities were promptly notified of the fact. To-day Detective Day, of the Grand Trunk Railway, was in the city sifting the matter. Inspector Burnham, of the Toronto Post Office, is also here. It is understood that some money was in letters in these bags. Further developments may be expected in a day or two.

Sir Charles Tupper and Ministers Thompson and McLelan arrived at Halifax last night. They were received at the Intercolonial station by a crowd numbering several thousand, which formed into procession and accompanied the Ministers to the Drill Shed. A large throng followed the procession through the city, and the building in which the meeting was held was packed. Addresses were delivered by Sir Charles, Messrs. McLelan and Thompson and a number of others, the proceedings not being brought to a close till after midnight.

THE UNITED STATES.

A heavy snow-storm in Vermont and New Hampshire on Thursday severely interrupted railway traffic. In Maine the storm reached the dimensions of a blizzard.

The U. S. Secretary of the Interior has transmitted to Congress a recommendation of the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, that Congress appropriate $50,000 for the subsistence of the remnant of Sitting Bull's band of Sioux Indians, now in Canada, for the ensuing fiscal year, when they shall return to their reservation in Dakota.

In the United States Senate on Friday Hoar's resolution declaring that under the present circumstances no investigation should be undertaken with Great Britain in regard to existing difficulties with the Canadian Provinces, having for its object a change or abolition of any of the existing duties on imports, was after discussion referred to the Finance Committee.

Jacob Schaefer, champion billiardist, has challenged any man in the world to play a game of cushion caroms, 500 points, for $2,500 a side, the person accepting to have the privilege of naming the place of meeting. Schaefer also challenged Slosson to a game of cushion caroms, 500 points, and to a game at fourteen inch balk line, for $500 a side each game, or as much more as Slosson may wish, both games to be played in the city of the latter's selection.

It is stated that on Jan. 26 a lot of milch cows from Buffalo were received at Brighton and disposed of to purchasers in Boston. One of the animals died in South Boston on February 15th of contagious pleuro-pneumonia. The State Cattle Commissioners have been working since then to recover traces of the herd. The Commissioners have been successful in a number of cases, and while they admit that there is great danger that the decase has been spread they believe the measures adopted will prevent serious results. Most of the animals have been placed in quarantine.

The Biddle House, the largest hotel in Detroit, covers an acre of ground, has six acres of floor, and is worth $500,000. Luther Beecher, who owns it, has had trouble for twenty years in renting the property, and now proposes to give it to the public. If he can sell it he will give $500 000 to a fund for the charitable institutions in the city. If he can rent it at $50,000 a year he will apply the rental to the same purpose. If he can neither sell nor rent he will cut up the big building and devote it to charitable purposes.

A WELL-EARNED HONOR.—The death of the late Venerable Rector of Paris, the Rev Canon Townley, has caused a vacancy in the list of the dignitaries of this diocese. The Lord Bishop of Huron has been pleased to appoint the Rev. Ephraim Patterson, M. A., Rector of St. James Church, Stratford, to the vacant canonry. The Rev. Canon Patterson has been for many years the Rector of Stratford, and is deservedly respected and esteemed by all classes of the community. The Rev. gentleman is to be congratulated upon his appointment, and it is certain the whole diocese will unite in feeling that his Lordship has exercised a wise discretion and conferred a well-earned honor upon one of the most loyal and faithful of his Prebyters. Of the 43 clergymen who constituted the Diocese of Huron at its original formation in July, 1857, nearly all have passed away. Rev. Canon Patterson is one of the eight survivors left in the diocese, having as his comrades of those early days Deacon Boomer, Rev. Archdeacons Elwood, March and Sandys; Rev. Canons Mulholland and Salter, and Rev. W. B. Rally.

Dick Steele in Omaha World.

Brother Ned
Is home from college,
And his head
So full of knowledge
Is, that really 'tis an effort to adjust his Derby hat.

Full of boating, full of racing,
Full of base ball, steeplechasing,
Boxing, foot-ball, hare and hounds,
Putting up the monstrous bell weighing many, many pounds,
And all that.

He can leap
And he can tumble;
In his sleep
He talks of "fumble,"
"Half-back," "touch down," "cushion carroms," "sets to," "going out on strike,"

"Umpire's ruling," "even innings,"
Like his Coney Island winnings,
And he's followed by a pup
That at any time can go against its weight and do it up,
If it like.

Such is Ned,
My cultured brother:
College-bred,
There' sure none other
Can compete with him in classics—such as wild Olympian games.

He's a boxer, he's a runner,
He's a short-stop, he's a stunner,
Always leading, never led,
Is my short-haired, noseless, earless, broken-fingered brother Ned,
He is Fame's.

THE VEILED WOMAN.

A TALE OF ABSORBING INTEREST.

Job and Ustane got him on to the bottom, or rather the sacking, of a litter, which was removed from its pole for that purpose, and carried him out into the shade at the mouth of the cave, from which, by the way, every trace of the slaughter of the previous night had now been removed, and there we all breakfasted, and indeed spent that day and most of the two following ones.

On the third morning Job and myself were practically recovered. Leo also was so much better that I yielded to Billali's often expressed entreaty, and agreed to start at once upon our journey to Kor, which we were told was the name of the place where the mysterious She lived, though I still feared for its effects upon Leo, and especially less the motion should cause his wound, which was scarcely skinned over, to break open again. Indeed, had it not been for Billali's evident anxiety to get off, which led us to suspect that some difficulty or danger might threaten us if we did not comply with it, I would not have consented to go.

X.

SPECULATIONS.

Within an hour of our finally deciding to start five litters were brought up to the door of the cave, each accompanied by four regular bearers and two spare hands, also a band of about fifty armed Amahagger, who were to form the escort and carry the baggage. Three of these litters, of course, were for us, and one for Billali, who, I was immensely relieved to hear, was to be our companion, while the fifth I presumed was for the use of Ustane.

"Does the lady go with us, my father?" I asked of Billali, as he stood superintending things generally.

He shrugged his shoulders as he answered: "If she wills. In this country the women do what they please. We worship them, and give them their way, because without them the world could not go on; they are the source of life."

"Ah," I said, the matter never having struck me in that light before.

"We worship them," he went on, "up to a certain point, till at last they get unbearable, which," he added, "they do about every second generation."

"And then what do you do?" I asked with curiosity.

"Then," he answered, with a faint smile, "we rise, and kill the old ones as an example to the young ones, and to show them that we are the strongest. My poor wife was killed in that way three years ago. It was very sad, but to tell thee the truth, my son, life has been happier since, for my age protects me from the young ones.

"In short," I replied, quoting the saying of a great man whose wisdom has not yet lightened the darkness of the Amahagger, "thou hast found thy position one of greater freedom and less responsibility."

This phrase puzzled him a little at first from its vagueness, though I think my translation hit off its sense very well, but at last he saw it, and appreciated it.

"Yes, yes, my Baboon," he said, "I see it now; but all the 'responsibilities' are killed, at least most of them are, and that is why there are so few old women about just now. Well, they brought it on themselves. As for this girl," he went on, in a graver tone, "I know not what to say. She is a brave girl, and she loves the Lion (Leo): thou sawest how she clung to him, and saved his life. Also, she is, according to our custom, wed to him, and she has a right to go where he goes, unless," he added, significantly, "she should say her no, for her word overrides all rights."

"And if She bade her leave him, and the girl refused? What then?"

"If," he said, with a shrug, "the hurricane bids the tree to bend, and it will not, what happens?"

And then, without waiting for an answer, he turned and walked to his litter, and in ten minutes from that time we were all well under way.

It took us an hour and more to cross the cup of the volcanic plain, and another half hour or so to climb the edge on the further side. Once there, however, the view was a very fine one. Before us was a long steep slope of grassy plain, broken here and there by clumps of trees mostly of the thorn tribe. At the bottom of the gentle slope, some nine or ten miles away, we could make out a dim sea of marsh, on which the foul vapors hung like smoke about a city. It was easy going for the bearers down the slopes, and by midday we had reached the borders of the dismal swamp. Here we halted to eat our midday meal, and then, following a winding and devious path, plunged into the morass. Presently the path, at any rate to our unaccustomed eye, seemed to grow so faint as to be almost indistinguishable from those made by the aquatic beasts and birds, and it is to this day a mystery to me how our bearers found their way across the marshes. Ahead of the cavalcade marched two men with long poles, which they now and again plunged into the ground before them, the reason being that the nature of the soil frequently changed from those with which I am not acquainted, so that places that would be safe enough to cross one month would certainly swallow the wayfarer the next. Never did I see a more dreary and depressing scene. Miles on miles of quagmire, varied only by bright green strips of comparatively solid ground, and by deep sunken pools fringed with tall rushes, in which the bitterns boomed and the frogs croaked incessantly; miles on miles of it without a break, unless the fever fog can be called a break. The only life in this great morass was that of the aquatic birds, and the animals that fed on them, of both of which there were vast numbers. Geese, cranes, ducks, teal, coot, snipe, and plover swarmed all around us, many being of varieties that were quite new to me, and all so tame that one could almost have knocked them over with a stick. Among these birds I especially noticed a very beautiful variety of painted snipe, almost the size of woodcock, and with a flight more resembling that bird's than an English snipe's. In the pools, too, was a species of small alligator or enormous iguana, I do not know which, that fed, Billali told me, upon the water-fowl, also large quantities of a hideous black water-snake, of which the bite is very dangerous, though not, I gathered, so deadly as a cobra's or a puff-adder's. The puff-frogs were also very large, and with voices proportionate to their size; and as for the mosquitoes, they were, if possible, even worse than they had been on the river, and tormented us greatly. Undoubtedly, however, the worst feature of the swamp was the awful smell of rotting vegetation that hung about it, that was at times positively overpowering, and the malarious exhalations that accompanied it, which we were, of course, obliged to breathe.

On we went through it all, till at last the sun sank in sullen splendor just as we reached a spot of rising ground about two acres in extent—a little oasis of dry land in the midst of the miry wilderness—where Billali announced that we were to camp.

THE LODGES' COLUMN.

Gleanings From Within and Without the Fraternities.

Masonic.

Meeting next week—Tuesday, Corinthian Lodge, No. 533; Wednesday, St. George's Lodge, No. 42.

Now that the elections are over, it may fairly be assumed that the brethren will pay more attention to the affairs of the Craft than they have been able to do for two months past. Some of them are so bound up in politics, however, that their presence in the Lodge Room will not be visible again until the near approach of the next election. Such men are the "hod-carriers" of Masonry, and belong to it for what they can make out of it.

The brethren of Zurich Lodge, No. 224, held a ball and supper at Hensall last night.

The Royal Arch Chapters here are progressing fairly, and the record of 1887 promises to be ahead of many previous years. The Companions are awakening to the fact that the Royal degrees when properly exemplified are the most beautiful of the whole.

What steps are being taken by the Craft in Canada to recognize the Queen's Jubilee? The London Lodges should move in this matter. Grand Lodge when in session will, no doubt, enable its congratulations, but an effort should be made in every city to recognize the jubilee year with Masonic ceremonies.

The Toronto Freemason says:—"In the Eleventh District, S. W. Bro. John Ross Robertson (of the Toronto Telegram) has held seven Lodges of Instruction, all of which have created the greatest interest in craft work, and have been attended by a large number of brethren from all over the district. In addition to this the D D G M has given individual instruction in many of the Lodges, and has, we understand, visited all the Lodges in this district once, and some of them twice. We believe this is the first time in the history of this district that all the Lodges have been visited. Bro Robertson proposes making another round of official visits in April and May, and four more Lodges of Instruction will be held this winter. One at the Masonic Hall, Parkdale; one at Orient's Hall, Riverside; one at Ashlar's Hall, North Toronto, and one in the Toronto street Temple, Toronto. This will make eleven Lodges of Instruction in this district, and there can be no doubt that these Lodges of Instruction have given an impetus to Masonic work that has surprised many of the old minds, who used to think that when they paid one official visit a month they were doing their duty to Grand Lodge."

At the recent session of the Grand Lodge of Manitoba a large attendance was noticeable, and a great deal of business transacted. In his annual address Grand Master Pearson, in referring to Pequonga Lodge, Rat Portage, said: "Owing to the decision of the Privy Council in the disputed territory case, which gave a large portion of Keewatin to the Province of Ontario, thereby placing Pequonga Lodge, which until this time owed its allegiance to our Grand Lodge, in the Province of Ontario, and thereby placing us in the position of having a lodge on occupied territory, and being, as I am, a firm believer in the sovereignty of each Grand Lodge in its own territory, I would recommend that Pequonga Lodge be requested to return its warrant to us and make application to the Grand Lodge of Canada for one from them; a great deal of correspondence has passed in this matter, and from the assurances I personally received that full justice will be done in the premises, I am sure that none of the members of Paquonga Lodge will have any cause to feel themselves aggrieved."

Another paragraph of his excellent address is that respecting "Affiliation," which reads thus: "I am glad to be able to inform you that the action of Grand Lodge last season in doing away with an affiliation fee has had a marked tendency in inducing a very large number of non-affiliates to renew their fealty and resume labor with us; to the subordinate Lodges also which abolished the joining fee much credit must be given. May the day soon come when a joining fee will be unknown in this jurisdiction."

The Grand Treasurer's report showed that the total receipts for the year had been $1,515.16, and that the balance on hand was $1,171.06. The representation is the largest the Grand Lodge has ever had.

The membership returns as shown by the Grand Secretary are as follows:—Members reported last year, 1,340; members initiated, 182; passed, 191; raised, 177; joined, 190; reinstated, 12; demitted, 83; died, 8; present number of members, 1,563; increase last year, 223. Nine new lodges have been established during the year.

The new Lodge room of Ionic Lodge, No. 229, Brampton, was consecrated and dedicated the other night by the Most Worshipful Grand Master, assisted by R W Bro D H H Martyne, of Kincardine, as Deputy Grand Master; R W Bro J J Mason, of Hamilton, Grand Secretary, and other Grand Lodge officials. At the conclusion of the ceremonies the visitors were hospitably entertained by the members of the Lodge.

At the conversazione held under Acacia Lodge, Hamilton, Thursday night, during intermission R W Bro Ed Mitchell delivered an address, touching upon the principles of Freemasonry, and congratulating the members of the Craft, and those of Acacia Lodge in particular, for the success which had attended their entertainments. His remarks were exceedingly well chosen, full of interest, with just enough humor to give variety.

The Great Priory of Knights Templar of Canada held an emergent meeting at Kingston yesterday to consider the advisability of withdrawing the warrant granted to a Preceptory in Australia. The Great Priory of England demanded the withdrawal, inasmuch as it has had a Provincial Priory in existence for several years. It is likely that, in order to keep good friends with the English Templars, the Sovereign Great Priory of Canada will "eat crow"—as usual. The question of exclusive territorial jurisdiction should be resolved upon by Canadians as soon as possible.

Oddfellowship.

The old cry, "Officers of the lodge lose their interest as soon as they have passed the chairs," is being raised in some quarters once more. It will not bear the searching rays of the light of experience, we fear. So far as our observation goes, the workers—those who take the lead in all things for the best interest of the Order; and are most faithful in work and attendance during a long period of years—are past officers. It is that element which has never acquired a proper interest in the Order, and never qualified itself for, or aspired to, the highest positions in the lodge, that is worthless and cumbersome to the Order. Short terms of office have brought the Order its greatest periods of prosperity, and a liberal opportunity to attain the honors of office has been proven to be a great stimulus to regular attendance and labor to acquire the work of Oddfellowship. It is those who take interest enough in the Order to qualify themselves to fill the positions of honor in a lodge who are its life and spirit, and, as a rule, a far larger proportion of past officers than those brothers who have not held office are regular in attendance upon the meetings, and faithful in the labors of our fraternity. All this outcry about the negligence of past officers is bred by a more narrow spirit than that inculcated by our Order.—Oddfellows' Herald.

Forestric.

Mr. D. Stewart, the Manitoba Provincial Organizer of the Canadian Order of Foresters, went the other day from Winnipeg to organize Court Eureka, No. 8, in Selkirk. He was assisted in the ceremonies by Bros. Cody and Steep, and installed: F. W. Colclough, C.R.

Knights of Pythias

The Grand Chancellor of the K. of P. has just received for approval an application for a new Lodge in Owen Sound. The Lodge will be opened as soon as the necessary arrangements can be made.

A large number of inquiries are being made from different places regarding the Order, and it is fully expected that the result of the correspondence will be the opening of a number of new Lodges in the eastern section of the Province.

For Scrofula, Impoverished Blood and General Debility, Scott's Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil, with Hypophosphites, has no equal in the whole realm of Medicine. Read the following: "I gave one bottle of Scott's Emulsion to my own child for Scrofula, and the effect was marvelous."—O. F. Gray, M. D., White Hall, Ind.

A wide field for speculation is opened by this paragraph in the Nashua Telegraph, describing dancing parties in Amherst, N. H.:—"These dances have been kept upon as purely a moral basis as practicable."

Important.—It is of the utmost importance that some good household remedy should be kept within handy reach in case of pain and accidental injury. The most useful remedy of this kind is undoubtedly Hagyard's Yellow Oil, for internal and external use in all painful complaints. 2

THE ONTARIO INVESTMENT ASSOCIATION (LIMITED.)

The annual general meeting of the shareholders of The Ontario Investment Association (Limited) was held at its office, London, Ontario, on the 15th day of February, 1887, a large number of shareholders being present.

After the notice calling the meeting and the minutes of last annual meeting and intervening meetings of shareholders had been read and confirmed, the Secretary read the annual report and financial statement as follows:—

The Directors beg to submit their Report and Financial Statement for the year 1886.

Notwithstanding the continued abundance of money, and keen competition for investments, the Directors have pleasure in stating that profits have been sufficient, after payment of all charges and expenses of management, to maintain the Dividend at the rate of eight per cent. per annum free of Income Tax, leaving a surplus of $7,214 09 (£1,487 7s. 0½d.) which has been applied as follows: $4,371.49 (£898 5s. 0d.), Suspense Account, shown in last statement, written off, and balance, $2,842.60 (£584 2s. 0d.) in reduction of Debenture Commission Account.

The general business for the year has been very satisfactory.

The increase in loans on mortgage upon real estate was $580,800 70 (£119,280 16s 6d), the total investments being over $900,000 00 (£184,931 10s 2d), at a cost for Valuator's commission and Inspection charges of $3,060 00 (£628 15s 4d), or about one-third of one per cent.

The greatest care has been exercised by the Directors in the selection of securities.

An important transaction during the year was the purchase of the assets of The Brant Loan and Savings Society, of Brantford, by which valuable real estate securities were obtained, yielding a reasonable profit to the Association.

The English agents of the Association continue to transact its business to the entire satisfaction of the Directors, and money is realized as fast as it can be profitably employed.

The Directors sincerely regret the illness of the Manager of the Association, Mr. Taylor, but recent advices are so reassuring, that they confidently anticipate his speedy restoration to his wonted health and usefulness.

The Vouchers, Books and Statements have received careful audit, and the officers of the Association have discharged their various duties in a satisfactory manner.

All of which is respectfully submitted,

CHAS. MURRAY,
President.

"Rough on Bile" Pills

Small granules, small dose, big results, pleasant in operation, don't disturb the stomach. 25c.

Senator Ingalls was yesterday elected President pro tem. of the U.S. Senate.

John Hays, Credit P. O., says: "His shoulder was so lame for nine months that he could not raise his hand to his head, but by the use of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil the pain and lameness disappeared, and although three months has elapsed, he has not had an attack of it since."

Four cases of small-pox have been reported at Holyoke, Mass., since Thursday.

Humorous.—The most humorous man is not always the happiest; the man who has scrofulous humor or any obstinate humor of the blood, does not feel very lively, at least not until he is cured, which, by the way, Burdock Blood Bitters will do in the most troublesome of blood humors. 2

Jim Stevens was hanged at Baltimore yesterday for the outrage of Mrs. Mary Trehearn, aged 80 years.

McGregor & Parke's Carbolic Cerate is a compound of the best healing chemicals in carefully estimated proportions, and has no equal, a fact proved by the years it has been in use for Burns, Sores, Festerings, etc. Get McGregor & Parke's Carbolic Cerate. Sold by Harkness & Co., Druggists. 2tuts Benj. F. Taylor, poet and author, died at Cleveland yesterday after a brief illness. He was born in 1823.

Don't Do It.—Don't rack and ruin your lungs with a tight, harrowing, distressing cough, when a few doses of Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam will loosen the phlegm, soothe the irritation, and heal the sore throat and bronchial pipes, and may avert that destructive disease, consumption. 2

The Rev. Sylvanus Staff, a Lutheran clergyman, of Lancaster, Pa., is organizing a bicycle party of ten, who shall sail from N Y. about the 1st of June and wheel through Norway and Sweden, returning in about ten weeks.

A Friend in Need.—Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry is a friend in deed. Who has not found it such in curing coughs and diseases of the lungs and throat? The sick are assured that the high standard of excellence on which the popularity of this preparation is based, will always be maintained by the proprietors.

A vessel with a cargo of forty-four ostriches arrived recently at Galveston, Tex. This is the second cargo within twelve months. The birds are for ostrich farms in California, and came from Natal.

Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup stands at the head of the list for all diseases of the throat and lungs. It acts like magic in breaking up a cold. A cough is soon subdued, tightness of the chest is relieved, even the worst case of consumption is relieved, while in recent cases it may be said never to fail. It is a medicine prepared from the active principles or virtues of several medicinal herbs, and can be depended upon for all pulmonary complaints.

The clergymen of Cleveland have all been invited to attend the performance of the "Black Crook" in that city, and some are very indignant. Said the Rev. G. T. Downing:—"I would as soon accept an invitation from the devil to watch the fires of hell burn. The invitation is an insult. The Kiralfy Brothers must look upon the clergy of this country as a gang of long-eared asses."

Doubly Benefited.—There is no one remedy known that has more curative power over dyspepsia and liver complaint than Burdock Blood Bitters. "I had liver complaint and my head was so bad with dyspepsia I could not labor. One dozen bottles of B. B. B. has enabled us both to attend to our usual work," reports Mrs. John A. Campbell, of Brighton, N. B. 2

Fifty-three years ago Isaac Slusbaugh and Lydia Colton were ten-year-old school children near Waynesburg, Pa., and very much attached to each other. Lydia's parents moved west and the children were separated. In time Isaac married and reared a large family, and about ten years ago his wife died. He lived then at Fateskala, O. About a year ago he decided that he'd try and find Lydia, of whom he had lost all trace; and after long trying he found that she was a widow in St. Louis. He wrote to her and she wrote to him, and the other day he sent her some money and she started for Ohio, where she was met by Isaac who married her then and there.

Thomas Broxton, of St. Simon's Mills, Ga., has a heifer that has adopted a large dog belonging to a neighbor. She has never had a calf, but treats the dog as if he were one, and shows great anxiety and worry when separated from him. She will attack other dogs and drive them away, and even attacks persons in defence of the dog. Mr. Broxton undertook to drive her away from the dog a few evenings since, when she turned on him and drove him indoors for safety.

TAR AND TOLU.

It is important at this season of variable temperatures to insure against the settling of a cough or cold which, if neglected, may result in a serious throat or lung affection. Dr. Oakwood's compound syrup of tar and tolu is a panacea alike for the simple and more aggravated forms of these common but troublesome ailments. Ask your druggist for it tuts

The other night some young and foolish citizens of Reidsville, Ga., thought to frighten a young woman by going about her house with long white sheets about them, but the young woman's father let the dogs loose, and, in the words of the Enterprise, of that place, "one spook had to go home and change his pants, after he jumped the fence and got away, while another was seen in the vicinity of the house next day looking for his hat and one of his chum's shoes."

"Rough On Dirt."

Ask for Rough on Dirt: A perfect washing powder found at last! A harmless, extra fine A 1 article, pure and clean, sweetens, freshens, bleaches and whitens without slightest injury to finest fabric. E. Y. Judd, the Hartford bicyclist, has perfected a plan for winter work with the wheel. He arranged a wooden roller on the floor, grooved so that his wheel would fit it. Then he fastened the machine upright, pinned down the little wheel, and got on and started. His weight, and the fact that the machine could not move ahead, gave him a good reproduction of road work. Of course, as he worked the pedals the large wheel turned on the roller.

New York, February 25—The common expression among professional traders found at the Windsor Hotel and Hoffman House last night, was that if the London market and foreign bourses had shown any reciprocity this market will sell considerably higher, as bull leaders are now in a position to drive out whatever short interest exists, and as the arguments now favor a bull movement, bears on covering will probably lead up with a line of stocks which they will give to the outside public, which is expected to put in an appearance with any further money advance in prices. Jay Gould was reported to have lent a hand, and to have helped bull leaders mark up specialties. The Western Union people were all talking bullish, and said the great rise has only commenced. Judge M. Graham's decision halved Western Union, and pointers are given out that the Stock Exchange's Committee will now take action against the Commercial ticker Company. An appeal will of course be taken, but if the Governing Committee wishes, it can, pending this appeal, abrogate its contract with the Commercial Co. If the appeal is sustained then the rival company can be reinstated.

Chicago, Feb. 25, 1:30 p.m.—The wheat market has averaged lower, though the trading has been active, and at close market had recovered somewhat from the extreme decline. The selling of long wheat by tired holders, has been a big item and a prominent feature while the buying has been hard to identify. Some claim that some outsiders were buying long wheat to considerable extent, others that shorts absorbed most of the offerings. A marked feature was the selling by foreign houses, and supposed to be based on considerable weakness abroad. The export trade worked here late yesterday was considerable, but the published estimates were too high, as it would seem impossible to work 250,000 here while not a bushel could be done in New York. Corn was fairly steady at a shade over yesterday's latest prices, but transactions were only moderate. Provisions ruled stronger, and pork touched highest point thus far, but realizing caused some reaction. Outlook is strong if next stock reports are not larger than estimated.

Chicago, Feb. 25.—May wheat closed ¼c higher than yesterday, on good buying orders. Corn was steady and a shade higher. Oats easy. There was tremendous speculation in pork, under sharp demand from "shorts." prices advanced 65c to 69c, fell back 20c to 25c several times, and closed 42½c to 45c higher than yesterday. Lard and short ribs closed 2½c higher. The leading futures closed as follows:—WHEAT, February and March, 73¾c; May, 73¾c. CORN, Feb. and March, 33¾c; May, 35¾c. OATS, Feb. and March, 23¾c; May, 25¾c. TRADE, TRAFFIC AND FINANCE.

Latest Notes by Telegraph and Mail.

THE STATE OF TRADE.

The Montreal Gazette, speaking about the state of trade, says:—While it has not shown any improvement, it is manifestly on verge of doing so, and throughout every branch there exists a belief that trade during this year will be satisfactory both in volume and character.

Only Thirty-six Per Cent.

of those who die from consumption inherit the disease. In all other cases it must either be contracted through carelessness; or, according to the new theory of tubercular parasites, received directly from others as an infectious disease. But in either case, Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" is a positive remedy for the disease in its early stages. It is delay that is dangerous. If you are troubled with shortness of breath, spitting of blood, night-sweats or a lingering cough, do not hesitate so procure this sovereign remedy at once.

Dr. Hahnewald, the African traveller, says that in Zululand he met the savage who killed the French Prince Imperial, and told him that if he had only taken the young man prisoner he might have got a large ransom, whereupon the Zulu wept with regret and grief.

Mr. Alex. Robinson, of Exeter, in writing about one of the most popular articles, and one that has done more good to the afflicted than any other medicine has during the short time it has been in existence, says: "I have used four bottles of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure, and have been cured of Dyspepsia that troubled me for over ten years. Part of that time I had it very bad, and was at a considerable expense trying to get relief; but this excellent remedy was the first and only relief I received."

THE ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION.

Rousing Meeting of the Lovers of Sport—Scheme Suggested for New Grounds—Officers, Etc.

A meeting of the Western Amateur Athletic Association was held last evening in the Board of Trade rooms at the Masonic Temple. There was a very large attendance, the room being crowded in every part. Mr. Hume Cronyn occupied the chair, and there were also present:—Messrs. C. B. Bazan, J. Fairgrieve, W. D. Kirkendale, W. d'H. Washington, T. H. Purdom, K. Evans, A. G. Chisholm, R. C. Macfie, W. Nichols, J. McMartin, M. J. Kent, W. Spittle, J. Lambe, C. D. McKay, A. Murphy, P. J. Edmonds, P. J. Barks, A. B. Cox, J. Muirhead, W. Gunn, J. Fulcher, G. Sayers, T. Weldon, A. Wigmore, H. B. Pope, Jas. Reid, T. Hutchinson, W. L. Marsh, W. Chisholm, A. O. Fraser, R. S. Woods, R. McAlpine, E. Baynes, J. B. Nicholson, W. Mills, R. Wallace, H. Hartshorne, A. D. Hardy, W. Smyth, C. Murray, J. Glass, F. Pollard, A. Lund, Dr. Knight, W. D. Pavey, Dr. Harvey, — Lang, E. Gower, T. C. Hewitt, Col. Williame, J. Harper, J. Broadbent, C. F. Colwell, — Patton, S. H. Craig, C. Huper, H. Abbott, M. Sheppard, W. L. Graham, J. Curtin, B. C. McCann, L. K. Cameron, W. Cooper, F. A. Chapman, J. B. Richardson, jr., A. Bell and many others.

The Chairman in an elaborate address explained the purposes that were intended to be furthered by the Association, which were the promotion of athletic sports in the city. He stated that the matter of a suitable place had been carefully considered, and that as it appeared that it was the intention of the Board of Education with the introduction of the graded school system to do away with the Central school grounds, they would be in every way the best adapted for the purpose.

Mr. T. H. Purdom warmly advocated this proposition, advancing reasons to show why it could not but be highly acceptable to all, especially as the grounds could be utilized for base-ball, cricket, lacrosse, bicycling and other purposes of recreation. He read the draft of a petition which he proposed should be circulated for signature, asking the City Council to set apart the Central School Grounds for recreation purposes.

It was moved by T. H. Purdom, seconded by R. C. Macfie, that in the opinion of this meeting the Central School Grounds being considered by the School Trustees unsuitable for school purposes under the graded school system, should not be sold but retained for the purposes of an athletic park, and further that a petition be circulated requesting the City Council to set apart the said grounds for an athletic park, placing the management thereof under suitable rules in the hands of trustees or commissioners, or a reliable athletic association, and that any legislation sought be sufficient to cover that purpose. The resolution was carried unanimously.

It was then moved by Mr. Kent, seconded by Mr. T. C. Hewitt, that each member of the Association be furnished with a printed copy of the petition to the Council, and that each member use his utmost endeavor to obtain signatures thereto; and that when signed the officers and executive (with power to add to their number) attend the Council with it. This was also carried unanimously.

Mr. Kent asked that all who intended to work for the petition should signify that, and it was unanimously approved of.

The President thought every member should use their utmost endeavors to make the scheme a success.

Mr. Purdom believed these grounds were the most suitable, and thought with a strong effort they could secure them.

Mr. Colwell said they should go slow. It was not intended to do away with the whole school this year, but only to build one graded school now and another next year, so they could not depend on getting these grounds for two or three years, and in the meantime should look out for other grounds.

After several members had expressed their opinions, Mr. J. A. Muirhead expressed a fear that the grounds would be too small in extent.

Mr. Patton, of Montreal, pointed out the difficulty experienced by the Montreal Club in regard to grounds. They had found their present grounds too small, and were obliged to purchase new grounds. He hoped in starting out this club would look out for the future.

Mr. John Fairgrieve believed the Central School grounds were quite sufficient in extent.

The election of permanent officers was then proceeded with, and resulted as follows:—President, B. Cronyn; Vice-President, F. B. Leys; Secretary, C. B. Bazan; Treasurer, A. B. Cox; Executive Committee, Messrs. G. S. Birrell, T. C. Hewitt, J. Fairgrieve, T. H. Purdom, H. Cronyn.

After an invitation had been extended for all desiring to join the Association to leave their names with the Secretary to be balloted for, the meeting adjourned.

WORTHY OF CONFIDENCE—The preparation sold by druggists known as Hagyard's Yellow Oil is worthy of all confidence as a household remedy for pain. It has been over a quarter of a century in the market, and never fails to cure or relieve rheumatism, neuralgia, sore throat, quinsy, deafness, burns, scalds, bruises, frost bites and internal or external pains and injuries. 9

Some of the boys, just for fun, got an old darkey to run for Burgess at Sharon, Pa. On election day he appeared on the streets mounted on a white horse, which was loaded down with bells and red, white and blue ribbons, while his rider was togged out in white plug hat, linen duster, and covered with ribbons. The joke took so well that he came within a few votes of being elected.

Some months ago I was troubled with Scrofulous Sores on my leg. The limb was badly swollen and inflamed, and the sores discharged large quantities of offensive matter. I am grateful for the good this medicine has done me.—Mrs. Ann O'Brian, 158 Sullivan st., New York.

LOCAL NOTICES.

The attention of the public is called to the advertisement in another column of Messrs. A. W. Oliver & Co., vinegar manufacturers, of this city. This enterprising firm are manufacturing by an entirely new process, which enables them to place in the hands of the trade a class of vinegar heretofore unapproached by any manufacturer this side of the Atlantic. The only reason why it has been found necessary to import pickles from the Old Country has been the lack of a proper vinegar for pickling. Messrs Oliver & Co. claim to have overcome the difficulty by their new process. They guarantee their vinegar as strictly pure, fermented only from native wine, cider or spirits, and at a price as low as any other dealer in Canada. f

LOCAL AND DISTRICT.

Local, District, or Sporting News, to ensure prompt attention, should be addressed to "City Editor, FREE PRESS." Correspondents will please note this.

Sir John Macdonald to Prime Bismarck: "Shake."

A Western lecturer has selected for his subject "A Bad Egg." This subject often strikes a lecturer unfavorably.

All the Ministers were elected—except Dr. Burns. He elects to preach at London South Methodist Church to-morrow

Both Messrs Casey and Mills have reconsidered their determination to enter the Dominion Cabinet for the next five years.

Mr. W.H. Fraser, Dominion Appraiser, is dying of inflammation of the lungs at Ottawa. He formerly lived in Hamilton.

Mr. John Haley, of West Nissouri, intends starting a brick and tile yard on his own property near Belton, as soon as the season opens.

Hamilton Spectator:—"It is suspected that Ananias Cameron died of Indian pamphlet. A post-mortem examination will be made."

Sure enough, Mr. Sam Blake's assertion that on the 22nd the party of righteousness, truth and honesty would be returned to power was about correct.

Mrs. Edward Hobbs, of Cherry Grove, Nissouri, had three ribs broken recently by a runaway horse. The animal was fortunately stopped before further damage resulted.

Mr. Charles R Moore, who of late has been employed in the G.T.R. offices Montreal, has been promoted to a more lucrative position at Palmerston. His friends wish him every success.

Manager Shaw, of the Toronto Opera House, will shortly open an opera house in Ottawa. Undoubtedly there is a good field in the Capital for a live theatrical manager such as Shaw is.

Mr. S. B. Webb, of Wingham, sold his 200 acre farm, on the 14th concession of East Wawanosh, a short distance west of Wingham, to George Thompson, Deputy Reeve of Turnberry, for $9,000.

Mr. P. Brown, of East Wawanosh, has the contract for supplying the square timber for the C. P. R. bridges now being built at Wingham by Messrs. Forster & Kincaid. The square timber is now being delivered.

La Patrie, the Blake-Rielite organ, of Montreal, says:—"The Conservative majority is reduced to 12, and with British Columbia and the North-west Territories, it cannot reach over 25. We will not try to hide the blow given to us."

Mr. Hopkirk, lately private secretary to Sir Alex. Campbell, has been appointed Inspector in the P O. Department for a newly organized division in Western Ontario, with headquarters at Stratford. He has been in public service for 19 years.

An exchange speaks of cane being raised in all parts of the United States—sugar-cane in the south and hurricane in the north. And all this without taking into the calculations the dude-gold-headed cane industry of the east or the raising of Cain in the Dominion.

The Deacon, of the Stratford Beacon, having been accused by his Conservative contemporaries of working off a "roorback" fly-sheet for Mr. Thos. Ballantyne in his office last Sunday, denies that his press or presses were at work on Saturday night after eleven o'clock. He dare not deny that the fly-sheet was not printed on Sunday, however.

Sir Donald Smith, the member for Montreal West, is claimed by the Grit papers as an "Independent," although in a printed address published since the election he says:—"I am thoroughly convinced of the necessity of affording due protection to the varied industries of our country by maintaining what is known as the National Policy."

Some of the gloves wafted along on the zephyrs of spring have straggling vines in different colors embroidered on the back in lieu of the usual fine or heavy stitching. The idea does not seem to be one that would correspond acceptably with good taste, as it bears too much of the gaudy, cheap effect to be wholly pleasing. The wearing of white kid gloves is not considered dressy on any occasion, but flesh-colored, undressed kid gloves seem to be looked upon as just the thing for evening wear.

The Clinton New Era soliloquizes thus:—"The people have preferred Sir John to Blake. While we cannot admire their choice, we gracefully accept the inevitable. West Huron in general, and Clinton in particular, is a pretty hard pone to swallow, but we will make a virtue of necessity. We have gone up Salt Creek for the time being, but no tossing wavelets will prevent us from working steadily for a victory on the first available opportunity."

A Young People's Christian Endeavor Society has been organized in connection with the King Street Methodist Church, the officers being as follows:—President, Rev. J. Holmes; Vice-President, J. Percival; Treasurer, Mr. Wiseman; Secretary, J. D. Smith. Visiting, missionary, musical and literary committees were formed, the latter consisting of Mr. Chas. Thorn (Chairman), Misses Parsons, Lena Benson, Ettie Parker, Susie Daniels and Mr. J. Jones.

As soon as the first warm breeze makes itself felt after the snows and blasts of a horribly long winter, almost the first thought which penetrates the mind of the average mamma is the renovating of baby's last summer's carriage. It is fixed up and adorned with a new pale-blue lining and ribbons, and the darling little cherub is placed in it, and is wheeled up and down the pavement for the benefit of admiring, or otherwise inclined neighbors.

The City Hall was thronged to the doors last evening by a highly intelligent audience, which included a very large proportion of ladies, upon the occasion of a concert given under the auspices of the Trades and Labor Council. An excellent and well sustained programme was rendered, and was highly appreciated by the audience, who expressed their approval by frequent outbursts of cheering and by numerous recalls.

On Wednesday Mr. W. Y. Brunton disposed of two bankrupt stocks by auction. That of J. R. King, Chatham, amounting to $5,600, was bought by Mr. Richardson for 71 cents on the dollar; and Mr. Golding, of Tilsonburg, purchased the stock of Cameron & McLean, Petrolia, for 59½ cents on the dollar.

The bakery occupied by Mr. H H. Gore, near the corner of South and Wellington streets, was destroyed by fire yesterday morning; loss about $250 It was owned by Mr. J.W. Jones. The firemen experienced considerable difficulty, owing to the bursting of hose and the fact that the hydrants were out of order.

At an early hour yesterday morning thieves effected an entrance to Yelland's shoe store on King street through the rear door, but before they had secured any booty they were discovered by P. C. Howie, who gave chase, but failed to overtake them.

David Livingston, while intoxicated in the Fifth Ward last night, made a brutal and unprovoked assault on John Inwood, an old man employed in the Grand Trunk Car-works, who was going home from work. Livingston was subsequently arrested.

Mr. Alex Gillean fell in a fit at the corner of Dundas and Richmond street yesterday forenoon while talking to a couple of gentlemen and struck his head on the icy sidewalk. He had to be taken home, where he speedily recovered.

Mr. Isaac Waterman has received a diploma from the Colonial Exhibition for his exhibit of petroleum and its products. A medal will follow. The diploma is a beautiful piece of lithographic art.

Mr. John McGrory, blacksmith, Richmond street, wishes it understood that it was not him, or his father either, that was before the Police Magistrate on Friday morning.

The choir of St. Paul's were entertained by the congregation at a supper in the Cronyn Hall a few nights ago. Everything passed off very pleasantly.

Joseph Murphy, the popular Irish comedian, appears in Shaun Rhue, in the Grand Opera House, on Monday evening. The seats went off lively yesterday.

At the last meeting of the Galt Town Council it was decided to procure Chief Constable Crawford a uniform, which he is to be invited to wear.

Mr. Frank Nelles, of the London Loan Co.'s office, was considerably cut and bruised by falling through an open trap yesterday morning.

Henry Cronmiller, of Humberstone, on the Loop Line, has been committed for trial upon a charge of stealing wheat from a G.T.R. car.

Mr. Richard Gibson, of Delaware, has been elected Vice-President of the Dominion Shorthorn Breeders' Association for Ontario.

Mr. J. G. Oliver, of Battleford, N. W. T. is registered at the Grigg House.

The sale of seats for Gardiner's "Karl" opens this morning.

Band at the Princess Rink this afternoon.

THE ONTARIO INVESTMENT.—The annual report of the Ontario Investment Association for the year 1886, published today, shows a profitable year's business. The four per cent. half yearly dividends, amounting to $54,841 41, were paid, together with the income tax on the same, amounting to $1,211 97. There is a satisfactory increase of loans on real estate, and the greatest care has been observed in the selection of securities. By the purchase of the assets of the Brant Loan & Savings Society a considerable increase of profitable investment was obtained. The Ontario Investment is one of the most prudently conducted of the monetary institutions of this city, and its steady increase in prosperity and the volume of business done is a well deserved result of the careful direction of its affairs.

THE PIGOTT SISTERS.—These clever little people gave one of their bright and lively entertainments in Victoria Hall last night before a highly appreciative audience. Miss Lila especially in her impersonation of Madame Nillson made a decided hit, while Miss Anna's solos were repeated again and again to satisfy the calls of the audience. Miss Carrie gave some amusing recitals, and took a part in the trios very acceptably. The Pigott sisters appear again at a matinee in Victoria Hall this afternoon.

Only Two Applications and a Corn is Cured.

Mrs. Allan, one of London's most respected and reliable ladies, writes to say:—"My daughter had a corn under her toe from which she suffered much pain. I applied that renowned preparation, called Barkwell's Sure Corn Cure, and with two applications I completely removed it without the slightest pain. I most cheerfully, and without solicitation, hand you this testimonial, and hope many others may be benefited by it to the extent that I have. tuts

"Betting" Uncertain.

A vast amount of money has been "put up" on the election this year, perhaps more than was ever known, and some speculators have been badly left. If they had only been as sure of a "win" as those who have dental work done by Knight, the dentist, how many aching hearts to-day might have been beating happily and natural instead (like Sir John's)? f

This office and infirmary are comprised in buildings 36x60 and 22x36 feet in dimensions, properly ventilated. It is a model establishment of its kind, and affords every accommodation for the treatment of sick and lame horses. A skilful assistant, Dr. W. Green, V.S., and competent attendants, are always in charge, day and night, to attend to the wants of every equine patient. Dr. O'Neil makes a specialty of dentistry, firing and surgical operations. Firing has been much abused in the past, and many owners of horses have been disgusted with the unsightly blemishes left after the inexperienced hand with the iron. London, March 8, midnight.

The Marquis of Lorthrain will be appointed Secretary of State for Scotland.

Stanley's Expedition.

The Stanley expedition for the relief of Emin Bey arrived at Simonstown, Cape of Good Hope, to-day.

The British Army Estimates.

The British army estimates which have just been issued amount to $91,989,500, being an increase of $803,500.

Attacked the Barracks.

A mob in Youghall, Ireland, has attacked the police barracks to prevent the threatened arrest of Father Killoher and Michael Kennedy on a charge of contempt of court for refusing to appear as witnesses in a recent rent case.

Pacifying Burmah.

A Rangoon despatch says:—The Woontho Tsawbwa has submitted to the British, and has agreed to pay tribute and to deliver up his arms. This is an important step in the work of pacifying the people of Upper Burmah.

Mob vs. Military.

During a riot at Galway last night, while troops were confined to the barracks, a mob numbering one thousand beat and kicked a dozen soldiers found straggling in the streets, and chased them into the barracks. They afterwards stoned the barracks windows.

The Imperial Institute.

John Morley has written a letter in which he expresses his entire sympathy with the spirit and objects of the proposed Imperial Institute. He recalls the Queen's fifty years of blameless life and orderly progressive reign, and says the anniversary about to be celebrated is an occasion over which all good citizens rejoice.

A Great Preacher.

The London Daily News, commenting upon the death of the Rev. Henry Ward Beecher, says: "He leaves no system either of theology or of church government. His influence, except as a personal recollection, ends with his life. He was for Americans the great expositor of his time. He was a great preacher and nothing but a preacher."

Treachery in Chatham Navy Yard.

It has been ascertained that the dismissed employe at Chatham was foreman of the Construction Department in the navy yard. He is charged with giving foreigners details of the modern improvements in torpedoes and other naval devices adopted by the British Government. Suspicion was excited against the accused by the fact that certain foreign scientific journals printed articles commenting on innovations in the English navy, and gave information concerning them, supposed to be in the exclusive possession of the Admiralty, and especially by the fact that an American journal printed the exact wording of the confidential specification for the manufacture of a new torpedo appliance still in the draughtsman's office pending approval. A draughtsman named Terry, employed at Chatham dockyard, has been publicly dismissed for selling information. It has been proved that Terry's revelations went indirectly to the American Legation. Terry admitted the truth of the charges against him, but declared he did not know for whom the information was intended.

Washington, March 8.—A package has been received at the dead letter office which was mailed in Boston and addressed to the Prince of Wales, London, England. It was held for postage. When it was opened it was found to contain a brass figure of Christ, evidently detached from a small crucifix, and a small glass tube containing a white liquid and having two wires running through the tube and projecting from both ends. A paper enclosed an incident sentence. The contents of the glass tube will be analysed.

RUSSIA AND AUSTRIA.

RUMORED AGREEMENT BETWEEN THE TWO POWERS

For Settlement of the Balkan Difficulty—The Austrian Emperor Confident Peace will be Maintained—He Denies that Russia has Withdrawn from the Triple Alliance.

London, March 8.—It is rumored that an agreement has been arrived at between Russia and Austria for a settlement of the difficulties of the Balkan States.

RUMORED ALLIANCE.

It is believed at Rome that a treaty of alliance between Austria, Germany and Italy was signed on March 4. The Paris Temps and the Journal des Debats, however, semi-officially contradict the report.

PEACE WILL BE MAINTAINED

A Vienna despatch says:—No protest has yet been made by Russia concerning the execution in Bulgaria of officers provided with Russian passports. Official circles here it is believed Russia will not depart from the policy of inaction which she has hitherto pursued. Emperor Francis Joseph, conversing with members of the Hungarian Diet to-day, said he had every confidence that peace would be maintained.

FROM SOFIA.

A Sofia despatch says:—The Government is about to summon the great Sobranje. The national party will demand of the Sobranje that greater power be given to the Regents. It is reported that the Roumanian authorities have arrested at Astrov two superior officers of Russian nationality who were concerned in the recent uprising in Bulgaria.

RUSSIA AND THE TRIPLE ALLIANCE.

THE ORANGE ORDER.

Annual Meeting of the Grand Lodge, Ontario West.

Toronto, March 8.—About 200 delegates were present at the opening of the annual session of the Orange Grand Lodge, Ontario West, this afternoon — Major White, Grand Master, presiding.

The Grand Secretary's report stated there had been up to date admitted to membership 991, by certificate, 405; by reinstatement, 99, while the number of deaths and expulsions amounted to 121, showing a very handsome increase in the working membership of the Order. Six new warrants had been applied for and granted, five dormant warrants had been revived, and only one warrant had been sent in. Since making the last report a year ago, new county lodges had been organized, bearing the names of North Bruce and East Grey. Referring to the notice of motion asking for increased powers for Provincial Grand Lodges to come before the Grand Lodge of British America at its annual session in Belleville in June, the opinion was expressed that the idea of abolishing Provincial Grand Lodges would simply have effect of wiping out the Association in the smaller Provinces, and it was hoped that no further agitation in that direction would be contemplated. The election of a large number of brethren to both the Parliament of Canada and Local Assembly was a matter of congratulation.

The Grand Treasurer's report showed the total receipts for the year ending March 4th, $5,123, exclusive of $847 balance on hand from last year, being over $1,000 in excess of previous year. The disbursements were $4 040, leaving a balance on hand of $1,930.

A resolution of congratulation to Her Majesty on her jubilee year was carried by a standing vote, the members singing "God Save the Queen."

To-night divine service was held in Bond street Congregational Church, Rev. Wm. Walsh, of Ottawa, officiating, assisted by Rev. Dr. Wild.

Singular Phenomenon.

Evansville, Ind., March 8.—Residents of Princeton and vicinity are much exercised over a phenomenon which occurred on Sunday. A severe rain storm began before daybreak, and covered the earth to the depth of an inch with a yellow substance, which is pronounced to be of volcanic origin.

MONTREAL.

Erratic Career of a Wealthy Young Man—A Commercial Sensation—Railway Traffic Resumed—Welland Canal Opening.

Montreal, March 8.—A good deal of excitement was created to-day when it became known that a young French-Canadian connected with one of the wealthiest and most aristocratic families in the Province of Quebec, whose allowance of $7,000 per year has proved too small for his extravagant ideas, had recently capped the climax by leaving his young wife and friends in the city and taking the road with a burlesque company which recently played at the Academy of Music. Hardly had he gone before the executors of the estate were beset with accounts for jewelry, expensive clothes, etc. One of the accounts was for a set of diamonds, the gems of which are said to have been as large as beans. A family council has been held, and it was decided to have him interdicted. Two friends have gone in search of the young gentleman with a view of bringing him back.

The news of the suspension of the Maritime Bank of St. John, N.B., created a sensation among commercial men here to-day. The Bank of Montreal is supposed to hold a quantity of exchange bills, for which it is said to be fully covered.

The train service of the railways is once more resuming its usual condition.

In the Court of Queen's Bench to-day John Bremsolme was put on trial on the charge of bigamy. After the evidence had been heard the jury disagreed, being 11 for conviction and one for acquittal.

The Council of the Board of Trade have written to the Minister of Railways and Canals, asking that the Welland Canal be opened not later than the 15th of April instead of 1st May, as was proposed, to allow vessels to go to Chicago for grain and return to Montreal in time for the first arrival of ocean-going vessels, as otherwise the latter would have to leave the port without grain cargoes.

TORONTO.

Trade with the Australian Colonies—Crooks Captured.

Toronto, March 8.—A meeting of the creditors of R. Crabb, builder, was held to-day, when a statement was submitted, showing liabilities of $113,850, of which $61,000 are unsecured. An offer of forty cents on the dollar was accepted.

Mr. Nicholls, Secretary of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, has received a letter from Sydney, New South Wales, from Alex. Woods, Agent General from Canada to Australia, that since his arrival he had no cause to change his opinion that good and profitable trade can be done throughout the Australian colonies in many lines. Much delay, however, is being caused by Canadian manufacturers neglecting to forward samples as promised.

Detectives arrived from Hamilton this afternoon, accompanied by the quartette of crooks, John Meany, Thomas Curtis, Alice Dowling and Maggie Winfield, who were arrested in Hamilton last night. The silk goods and jewelry found on the prisoners are a portion of the goods taken from Boyd Bros.' establishment on Sunday last. Tom Curtis, brother of Thomas, has been also arrested.

It is understood that P. Burns' offer for the plant, coal, &c., has been accepted by his creditors, and that he will resume business with John Ryan, of Brockville, and William Harty, of Kingston, as co-partners. The creditors will realize about 90 cents on the dollar on the total of their liabilities.

Thirty new police constables were to-day sworn in by the Police Commissioners.

OTTAWA.

The Lumber Cut—Abolition of Canal Tolls Wanted—The Metlakahtla Indians.

The almost unparalleled depth of snow in the woods this winter will reduce the contemplated supply of logs, and consequently next season's lumber out by about 25 per cent.

A deputation consisting of delegates from the Hamilton, Toronto, Kingston and Montreal Boards of Trade and the Montreal Corn Exchange Association waited upon the Cabinet this afternoon and asked for the total abolition of canal tolls. This decisive step was undertaken after careful consideration, united action having been determined upon several months ago.

Mr. Vankoughnet, Deputy Superintendent General of Indian Affairs, denies the truth of the statements now going the rounds of the United States press, that the Metlakahtla Indians are desirous of migrating to Alaska because the recent action of the Department has made insecure their tenure of the lands they occupy. Mr. Vankoughnet says the Indians cannot be removed without their own consent.

Mangled by a Bursted Fly Wheel.

Chicago, Ill., March 8.—At the North Chicago rolling mills this afternoon the belt on the big fly wheel in the machine shop became loose and a minute later the fly wheel flew into pieces, huge fragments of iron being hurled in every direction. The workmen were struck by the flying missiles, and one of them, Frederick Allen, was struck in the face and chest by a large chunk of iron, a horrible wound which left his lungs and heart exposed to view being inflicted. He will die. James Ryan was also fatally injured.

AFTERNOON CABLEGRAMS

FURTHER CHANGES IN THE BRITISH CABINET PROBABLE.

Archbishop Croke Explains His Attitude on the Irish Tax and Rent Questions — Another Bulgarian Rebel Executed—The Part Germany will Play in the Event of an Austro-Russian War.

London, March 8, 3 p. m.

England and Germany as Peacemakers.

England and Germany, it is asserted, will endeavor to effect an amicable settlement of the dispute between Zanzibar and Portugal.

British Cabinet Changes.

A rumor is current that the appointment of Mr. Balfour to the Irish Chief Secretaryship is only temporary, and that other Cabinet changes is meditated.

Sensation at Chatham.

A sensation has been caused at Chatham by the suspension of a foreman employed in Government works there. It is alleged the man has been guilty of revealing important secret naval designs to the United States and Russian Governments.

Germany's Neutrality.

It is believed in Government circles here that Germany will remain neutral in the event—not probable according to military authorities—of Austria defeating Russia; but that if Russia defeats Austria and pushes her victories up to the walls of Vienna, public feeling in Germany would compel her to draw the sword in defence of the German population of Austro-Hungary. M. de Lesseps thoroughly personifies France. He is untrammelled by any official position, and a frank conversation between the grand Francais and Prince Bismarck would be good for both France and Germany.

Archbishop Croke Explains.

Archbishop Croke has written to the Pope in explanation of his attitude on the rent question. He says he has proposed nothing, nor has he made any recommendation relative to taxes. He has simply expressed his opinion relative to the no-tax manifesto and no-rent manifesto. He states it never entered his head to recommend a general uprising against payment of taxes. He would trust alone to constitutional agitation for the restoration of national rights in Ireland. Under existing conditions only a knave or a fool, he declares, would trust otherwise. It is believed the action of Archbishop Croke in offering this explanation is the result of pressure from the Pope.

The Trouble in Bulgaria.

A dispatch from Rustchuk says another of the rebels has been executed. At a private soiree given at Bucharest last evening M. Hitrove, Russian Minister, inveighed against the Bulgarian Regents, whose action he denounced as infamous. The Roumanian Government has expelled from the country all Bulgarian political refugees. The Moscow Gazette glorifies the memory of the executed Bulgarian rebels. It says:—"They were massacred for protesting like men against the unhappy ignominious state of their country, and against its oppressors and betrayers. Their honorable death will bring forth events and set history in motion." The Gazette expresses indignation at the powers which secretly approved the execution of rebels, and concludes "We shall not forget that these men were victims of their devotion to Russia." Among the insurgents in Bulgaria was M. Dimitrieff, correspondent of the Moscow Viedomosti. Twenty Russian officers who were implicated in the revolt and who fled after the defeat of the insurgents, have arrived in Roumania. Major Ouzanoff, who commanded the rebel troops at Rustchuk, and who was mortally wounded, was an enthusiastic supporter of Prince Alexander, and was commander at Widdin during the Servia-Bulgarian war.

It is stated that Emperor William will confer the Grand Cordon of the Order of the Black Eagle upon M. De Lesseps.

It is stated Mr. Knipe, member of the Irish Land Commission, has handed to the Government his own individual report on the land question.

The Russian Government has sent secret instructions to all Government railway Inspectors on the subject of mobilization and transportation of troops.

The American play called "Hans, the Boatman," was successfully produced at Sheffield last evening. It is the first American play ever produced in England prior to being produced in America.

Emperor William has ordered a deputation from the Czar's Prussian regiment equipped with new repeating rifles to present themselves before the Czar at Gatschina on the Emperor's birthday. The Czar is highly pleased with the idea.

Lloyd's Committee has consented to bring before the English underwriters the complaint of the Montreal Board of Trade that that shipping port is much injured by the present rule compelling transient ships to leave the St. Lawrence before September 30 each year.

Boat Race Between Hanlan and Beach Arranged.

Toronto, March 7.—Hanlan to day signed articles of agreement for a race with Beach. The course is to be the one Hanlan and Laycock rowed over in May, 1884, and the stakes are to be £500 and the championship of the world. The race is to take place on Saturday, the 26th of November, 1887, and the start is to be by mutual consent. C H. Ashley, one of the proprietors of the Sportsman of London, England, is appointed stake-holder, and the stakes are to be deposited with him in two instalments—£200 on the 23rd of May, 1887, and the balance on the 1st of August, 1887. The umpire is to be mutually agreed upon on or before Saturday, the 12th of November, 1887, but failing an agreement in this respect by the date mentioned, the editor of the Australasian, published at Melbourne, Australia, is to appoint such official. All receipts accruing from railways, steamboats, or from whatever source on account of this race are to be equally divided between the contestants, and all expenses incidental to the race, save only the hundred pounds to be paid by Mr. Joseph Thompson to Edward Hanlan for his personal expenses, are to be borne in equal proportion by the contestants.

TWO MORE FOR SIR JOHN.

BAKER AND SHAKESPEARE ELECTED IN VICTORIA, B. C.

Mr. Dawson Almost Certain of Election in Algoma.

New Westminster, B. C., March 8.—Messrs. E. C. Baker and Noah Shakespeare (Conservatives) were re-elected yesterday for Victoria, B. C. Their opponents were Messrs. Curran and Humphries (Conservatives), Fell and Robertson (Independents), and McCollum (Grit).

ALGOMA.

Winnipeg, March 8.—A despatch received here from Mr. Burks, of Port Arthur, says:—"Mr. Dawson reports from Algoma Mills that all Manitoulin, except three stations, is heard from, and will likely give him fifty minority in the whole island. This makes his minority in the eastern division less than 90. His present majority in the western division is 154. Fort Frances, which is likely to go 24 against him, is to be heard from. It is probable his western majority will be 130. Mr. Dawson is therefore almost absolutely certain of 40 to 50 majority over the whole district."

MANITOBA AND THE TERRITORIES.

Winnipeg, March 8.—Messrs. Bedson, Secretan, Hugh John Macdonald and other Winnipeggers have left the city to take part in the electioneering campaign in the Territories. Ex-Judge Matthew Ryan, of Winnipeg, Messrs. Proctor and Preston, of Toronto, and Mr. C. H. Mackintosh, of Ottawa, are already laboring in Assiniboia.

MONTREAL.

The Franco-Canadian Ranching Co.—The Snow-Storm and the Railways—An Over-Officious Beadle Punished.

Montreal, March 7.—C. A. Globensky, D. C., of St Eustache; S. Chapleau, Sheriff of Regina; L. A. Senecal, J. M. Dufresene and S. B. Mongenais, of this city, have applied to the Governer General in Council for a grant to them of a charter constituting them and other persons who may join them in their enterprise shareholders in a new limited body corporate called "The Franco-Canadian Ranching Co." The capital stock of the Company will be $100,000, divided into 1,000 shares of $100 each. The chief place of business will be in Montreal.

Owing to the heavy snow storm of yesterday gangs of men are engaged to-day at the C.P.R and G.T.R. depots and at Point St. Charles yard keeping the track clear. Thousands of tons of snow are piled up on either sides of these railways, which make formidable embankments. Mr. Robinson, of the intercolonial Railway, states that this storm has been the severest of the season, and it need not occasion surprise if all railway lines are blocked. From late information it appears that the Hemmingford train on the G.T.R., due at 8 30 this morning, is not expected this evening, being blocked on the line. On the C. P. R. the western train due yesterday is expected to arrive to-night. The Quebec train which left yesterday p.m. was only enabled to get as far as St. Martin's junction, having been blocked up at St. Anne's. The New York and Boston trains were only about an hour late. To-day all trains due at Bonaventure depot came in fairly on time, the delay ranging from 30 to 60 minutes. The outgoing trains were all despatched on time.

J. B. Pelletier, beadle of Bonsecours church, who forcibly ejected two young ladies named Alice Lamoureaux and Mary Foley from a pew in the church a few Sundays ago, was to-day ordered by Judge Dugas to pay a fine of $200 and costs to Miss Lamoureaux. Miss Foley's case was dismissed.

FIRE AND LOSS OF LIFE.

A Conflagration in New York Causes a Blockade on the Elevated R. R.—Passengers, Trying to Walk the Track, Fall, and three are Killed and Seven Injured.

New York, March 8.—Fire occurred this morning in the store of Nicoll, the tailor, on the Bowery, and adjoining building, causing a loss of $100,000. Three elevated railway passengers who attempted to walk the track, were instantly killed, and seven were badly injured by falling to the street below. It was nearly eight o'clock before the blockade was lifted and trains run on regular time. The distance which the men fell was about 20 feet. The dying and wounded were taken immediately to hospitals. The killed were Patrick Mathews and two unknown men. It is said that the conductor of the train, which had come to a standstill near one of the stations, told the passengers they could get out and walk along the track to the depot. A number of them made the attempt, but they fell to the street and three were killed.

Eight Persons Drowned.

Madison, Ind., March 7.—About two o'clock yesterday afternoon the tow-boat Diamond, ascending the Ohio river with a tow of barges, ran down a skiff which had just started from Glent, Ky., to cross the river in front of her. The skiff contained seven colored people—Harry Gross, his three sons and two daughters, and a young man named Brown. The skiff and its occupants were swept under the entire fleet of barges, and six of them lost their lives. John Graham, son of the Ferry ferryman, by superhuman efforts, succeeded in rescuing three of the unfortunate persons, but only one survived, the other two dying from exhaustion. The bodies of the other four were not recovered. No blame is attached to the pilot of the Diamond, who stopped the boat and made every effort to rescue the party.

Burglaries at Toronto.

Toronto, March 7.—Since Saturday night last burglars have been very busily engaged here. The dry goods warehouse of Boyd Brothers was visited and about $300 worth of goods carried off. The residence of W. H. Reting, Denison Place, and Robert Scott, Robert street, were also visited. In the former several articles of costly cutlery and $11 in cash were stolen, but in the latter the burglar was interrupted in his operations by Mr. Scott, whom he covered with a revolver and escaped. Then there was the case of Wm. Thomson, alias Carr, who was caught burglarizing the premises of McCoskey, confectioner, Yonge street. There is evidently an organized gang in the city.

BEECHER DEAD.

The Famous Preacher Breathes His Last, Surrounded by His Family.

He Passes Away Without Apparent Suffering or Return to Consciousness.

New York, March 8.—Rev. Henry Ward Beecher died in the presence of his family at 9 30 a.m. Those present at the bedside were Col. H. B Beecher, his wife, his daughters Hattie and Daisy, and son Henry Ward Beecher, Miss Edith Beecher W. C. Beecher and wife, Rev. Samuel Scoville, Mrs. S. Scoville, eldest daughter of Rev. Henry Ward Beecher; Miss Scoville, who has just come from the Pacific Slope, Miss Bullard, Rev. S. B. Halliday and wife, Deacon S. V. White, E. A. S. Secombe, one of the trustees of Plymouth Church, and Major S. B. Pond.

Dr. Searle noticed a change in the patient's condition at 8 30 a.m., and summoned all in the house to the bedside, momentarily expecting death, but he lingered on much longer than had been anticipated. He passed away gradually, and almost imperceptibly, drawing his last breath without apparent suffering, or return to consciousness in any degree. Mrs. Beecher bore up wonderfully and with marvellous courage. No crape was hung on the door, Mr. Beecher having always objected to the use of this and the gloom associated with it in the presence of death. Instead a wreath of flowers was hung from the left side of the doorway at the top of the stoop, composed of white and red roses and lilies of the valley, and tied up with satin.

At 10.30 it was given out that the funeral would take place in Greenwood on Thursday next.

Some time ago H. W. Sage, a member of Plymouth church, appropriated by will a sum of money to place a statue of Mr. Beecher in Prospect Park after his decease. Mr. Quincy Wood, the well-known sculptor, who is to do the work, will call at the house in the course of the day for the purpose of making a plaster cast of Mr Beecher's features. It is not intended that any examination shall be made of Mr. Beecher's brain organism.

New York, March 8.—As the end approached the family could be heard weeping and sobbing. Dr. Searle stood by the bedside holding one of Mr. Beecher's hands, and at 9.30 he said:—"Mr. Beecher is no more—he is dead." It is difficult to describe the scene at this moment. Notwithstanding the fact that his death was looked for, that it had been expected hourly, it seemed to come with such crushing force that the family were perfectly prostrated with grief. Mrs. Beecher, who had held up so bravely from the first, was utterly broken down, and when, supported by her son Harry, as she tottered from the room, she looked as if it would not be long before she would follow her beloved husband.

News of Mr. Beecher's death spread very quickly to all parts of the city, and Brooklyn may now be said to be a city of mourning. Even those who did not always concur with Mr. Beecher in his views had no hesitation in expressing their deep regret at his death. As a mark of respect to his memory flags on all public buildings were placed at half-mast, and Mayor Whitney had the City Hall bell tolled for half an hour.

The Committee appointed by the officers of Plymouth Church to take charge of the funeral made the necessary arrangements this morning. Many years ago John T. Howard gave Mr. Beecher a portion of his plot in Greenwood Cemetery, and members of Mr. Beecher's family who have died have been buried there, but the Committee will probably now select another plot.

Nearly one hundred telegrams of condolence poured into the household within an hour after the death. President Cleveland and Governor Hill were among the first to send such messages.

The funeral services over the remains of Mr. Beecher will be held at the family residence at 9:30 o'clock on Thursday morning, and at the church at 11:30 o'clock. It is the wish of the family that the funeral shall be as quiet as possible. Rev. Dr. C. H. Hall will conduct the services in accordance with an agreement made years ago between Mr. Beecher and Dr. Hall—that whoever died first the other should officiate at the funeral.

The New York Senate adopted a resolution of regret at the death of Rev. Henry Ward Beecher, expressing sympathy with the bereaved family, and adjourned as a mark of respect to the deceased.

Catarrh, Catarrhal Deafness and Hay Fever.

Sufferers are not generally aware that these diseases are contagious, or that they are due to the presence of living parasites in the lining membrane of the nose and eustachian tubes. Microscopic research, however, has proved this to be a fact, and the result is that a simple remedy has been formulated, whereby catarrh, catarrhal deafness and hay fever are cured in from one to three simple applications made at home. A pamphlet explaining this new treatment is sent free on receipt of stamp by A. H. DIXON & SON, 305 King street, West, Toronto, Canada.—Christian Standard. 246

VITALITY OF SEEDS.

An Important Matter Before Spring Planting.

WHICH MAY BE FULLY SETTLED

By Sending Samples, Free of Charge, to the Experimental Farm at Ottawa.

Special Free Press Correspondence.

Ottawa, 4th March.—Elaborate preparations are being made at the Central Experimental Farm Station near this city for spring work, and if no mishap occurs a very great change will be found to have been made on the 460 acres before fall arrives. When fully equipped, the experiments will be carried on under the direction of Prof. Saunders in a thoroughly scientific manner and on a most extensive scale. Already a vast number of seeds, trees, shrubs and plants are on their way from foreign countries, and in due time these will be planted and their suitability to the Canadian soil and climate tested. Some idea of the extent and thoroughness of the experiments to be made, may be had when it is said that it is intended to plant the following number of distinct varieties this spring: Potatoes, 225; wheat, 100; oats, 50; apple trees, 300; strawberries, 100; raspberries, 55; grapes, 20); blackberries, 25; gooseberries, 50; currants, 35, and plums, 30; in addition to many other classes of fruits, trees, shrubs, &c. Beside the distinct varieties of fruits, many nameless seedlings will be tested as to their productive qualities, hardiness and freedom from blight and mildew. The institution, although but in its infancy, has received recognition from abroad, 83 packages of seeds having arrived as the gift of Dr. Regel, Director of the Imperial Botanic Gardens at St. Petersburg. These seeds are chiefly of hardy trees and shrubs indigenous to Northern Russia, and Dr. Regel desires that they shall be tested in colder districts of the Dominion.

Arrangements for one important branch of the work to be done are already complete, and that is with respect to seed testing. When your correspondent visited the Station yesterday he was shown through the new building set apart for this process, and was much interested by what was shown and told to him. The process of testing the germinating power of seeds is as thorough as it can possibly be made, and the arrangements for carrying it on are most complete. When a sample of grain or seed of any character is received it is promptly taken to the testing house, where a certain number of seeds are counted out and placed in the testing apparatus. This consists of a long galvanized iron box about eight inches deep, the bottom of which is covered with water. A long strip of linen is folded over little rods resting on the sides of the box, each fold forming a little sack into which a given number of seeds are placed. The ends of the strip of linen lie in the water at the bottom of the box, and by the force of capillary attraction a sufficient quantity of the moisture is made to surround the seeds in the folds of the cloth. The room is heated by a furnace and the two elements essential to growth of plants—heat and moisture—being thus supplied, germination soon begins if the seeds have any vitality whatever. By the time taken to sprout, the number of seeds which show life and the vigor displayed, the quality is ascertained. To each fold a little wooden tag is placed, on which is kept a record of the test as it proceeds. When the process has been completed, the data written on the tags is entered up in a book kept for the purpose. It may be mentioned that the power to germinate is also tested in earth, and a record kept in a like manner to the measure process.

This process of testing is for the benefit of Canadian farmers. If any agriculturist or a gardener desires to ascertain the value of seeds before planting time, he has only to send a sample to the Experimental Farm station here, and in two or three weeks he will receive a full reply in return. The mailing of the seed will cost him nothing, Hon. Mr Carling having made arrangements for free transmission by post and no charge is made in any way for the work done here. Accommodation for an immense number of samples has been provided, and Mr. Saunders hopes that the farmers of the Dominion will feel perfectly free to make use of the Experimental Farm in any way that it can be of service to them. It requires no argument to show that by ascertaining the vitality of seeds, a farmer may avoid many serious losses, and may in the spring know what he may expect under favorable circumstances for his season's work. Others of the farmers are welcome to avail themselves of all the facilities afforded by the Station. A person who desires to set out a small garden has some seeds which he desires to plant. They may be good or they may be bad. If he plants them and waits for the result, it may be too late to provide a remedy if they turn out to be worthless. By sending a sample here, however, all danger of loss from poor seeds may be avoided.

THE ST. CLAIR RIVER TUNNEL.

Progress of the Work.

From Bradstreet's.

Work is actively in progress on the preliminary excavations for the tunnel under the St. Clair river, which is intended to connect the Grand Trunk and Chicago & Grand Trunk Railway systems at Port Huron and Sarnia. It will be built by a company independent of the corporations owning and controlling these railways, but in their interests. At present the connection between the lines east and west of the river is maintained by a ferry, which transfers the trains between Point Edward, in Canada, and Fort Gratiot, in Michigan. This ferry is about three miles north of the proposed tunnel.

The location of the tunnel was determined by the following considerations, among others: (1) the comparatively small depth of water at the proposed crossing; (2) the tunnel and its approaches can be constructed on the same straight line; (3) the short length of new railway that will be required, the tunnel approaches connecting immediately with the main lines of both the Grand Trunk and Chicago and Grand Trunk Railways; (4) the distance to be run by all through trains to and from the Great Western division of the Grand Trunk will be reduced six miles, while it will not be increased for those to and from the Grand Trunk proper, (5) the favorable material in the bed of the river for tunneling, the borings showing that the rock is from ninety to ninety-five feet below the surface of the water, and that strong clay, in which not a trace of quicksand was discovered, overlies it; (6) the necessary land and right of way for the tunnel and its approaches will cost less than upon any other line within the limits available for selection.

The advantages to be gained by the construction of the tunnel are a reduction in the cost and time of transferring trains, and a degree of regularity in the service not always attainable by the ferry in consequence of the river being occasionally obstructed by ice in the winter and by vessels during the season of navigation.

The length of the tunnel will be 1 mile, of which 2,310 feet will be under the river, 1,160 feet under dry ground on the Canadian side and 1,510 feet under dry ground on the American side. Of the portion under the river, 1,200 feet will be nearly level, having merely enough of fall toward the east to cause any water finding its way into the tunnel to flow in that direction. At either end of this part of the tunnel there will be a gradient rising 1 in 50, or at the rate of 105 6 10 feet per mile, which will be continued through the open cuttings forming the approaches. The total length of the ascent on the Canadian side will be 4,970 feet and on the American side 4,900 feet. The length of the open cutting at the east end of the tunnel well be 3 270 feet and at the west end 2 820 feet.

The depth of the lowest part of the tunnel below the surface of the water will be 80½ feet; the minimum depth of the top of it below the bed of the river will be 15 feet. The tunnel will be for a single track only. In cross sections it will be circular, with a clear internal diameter of 20 feet.

The work which is now in progress is the construction of a trial heading or small cylindrical tunnel, with a clear diameter of six feet under the river. This is being driven for the purpose of thoroughly testing the material. Although the borings were of a satisfactory character, there is of course a chance of pockets of quicksand being found between them. This heading, if successfully completed, will be of material assistance in the construction of the permanent work. It will be finished probably in about six or seven months. If the present operations are carried out satisfactorily, then the larger work of making the full sized tunnel will be proceeded with. The shafts at each end have been sunk to the bottom line of tunnel without meeting with any difficulties, and so far the experience is all favorable.

The completion of this work must obviously have an important effect on transportation between the eastern and western states, and between Canada and the west. The route by way of the tunnel between Detroit and Buffalo or Toronto will be only eight miles longer than the direct route across the river at Detroit.

Mr Perpetus Bolleau, Ottawa, says: "I was radically cured of piles, from which I had been suffering for over two months, by the use of Thomas' Eclectric Oil. I used it both internally and externally, taking it in small doses before meals and on retiring to bed, in one week I was cured, and have had no trouble since. I believe it saved my life."

FOUND BY HER HUSBAND.

A London Woman With Another Spouse Found in Rochester.

SPICY SCENE AT THE STATION.

A Canadian Car Baker's Wife Quietly Disappears With Her Two Children—The Husband and Father's Long and Hot Pursuit.

From the Rochester Democrat of the 7th.

The office of the Chief of Police presented an animated appearance yesterday afternoon for a short time. In one corner sat a middle-aged woman, wearing a fuzzy black sack, with a very youthful appearing hat, surmounted by a big tuft of yellowish colored feathers, perched jauntily on her head. Beside the woman sat a small man, who in stature hardly came up to her neck. He was a thin-faced, sandy complexioned individual, and from his constantly shifting fingers was evidently ill at ease. At a casual glance one would hardly think that the two were principals in an elopement. On the opposite side of the room sat a man about 45 years of age with a gray beard and dressed like a well-to-do mechanic. He was the husband of the woman referred to. Next to him sat a respectable appearing man, somewhat short and thick set.

For nearly an hour the police officials listened to a cross fire of conversation between the man and woman on one side and the two men on the other, which has rarely been equalled even in the police station for bitterness and virulence. The charges and accusations came from the lips of the party with a vehemence and rapidity which nearly took away the breath of the auditors. The tongue of the woman seemed tireless, and a constant stream of words came from her mouth. They were directed at her husband, and at last became so violent and abusive that the officers were obliged to order the conversation to cease.

The two men mentioned were John L. White, an employe in the Grand Trunk car shops at London, Ont., and his friend, George Gowart, of the same place. The two reached this city yesterday, coming on a telegram from Chief Cleary that White's wife had been discovered in this city with Albert E. Luscombe. According to Mr. White's story, his wife left her home Saturday afternoon, February 26th, while he was at work, and he did not discover her absence until he returned at night. Inquiry developed the fact that Luscombe, who is also employed in the car shops, had obtained permission to "lay off" a day or two on Friday night, and had been seen buying tickets at a railway ticket agency. Certain past events made White suspicious that all was not right, and his suspicions were soon confirmed that the pair had left London together. Mrs. White had taken two of her children with her. Telegrams were sent in all directions, giving partial descriptions of the pair, while White's fellow employes resolved to make every effort to discover the fugitives.

Among the places telegraphed to was this city. As soon as Chief Cleary received word of the occurrence he placed Detectives Long and Lynch on the case to see if the party had come to this city. On Saturday the officers located them at a boarding house on Franklin street. Mr. White was notified and came on yesterday with Mr. Gowart, who was selected to represent the workmen in the car shops. As soon as the two reached the city, they went to police headquarters, and in the afternoon the detectives visited the boarding place and brought Luscombe with the woman and children to the police station. The four were found living in one room in which were two beds. They had been in Rochester since leaving London.

After the war of words referred to, Luscombe was given to understand that he could take the choice of settling the matter then and there by giving up the two children to their father and refunding a certain amount of money, or be locked up. He finally decided that it was best to make the settlement, and Messrs. White and Gowart left the city last evening with the children and money, leaving Luscombe and the woman behind.

According to Mr. Gowart's statement, White and Luscombe have worked in the same shop for over fifteen years, and dwelt in the same neighborhood fully as long. White had eight children, but Luscombe had none. About two years ago Luscombe and Mrs. White met each other quite frequently at church revivals which were begun in London. It is stated that their intimacy soon became a subject of comment. About three weeks ago White received a letter from an anonymous writer, warning him against Luscombe, who, it appears, about three months since, began boarding at White's house, as Luscombe's wife was in poor health, but the husband's suspicions were not confirmed until the departure of the two.

The object in making Luscombe pay over a certain sum of money was because it is alleged that two days before leaving London he induced his wife to unsuspectingly assign a $300 mortgage to him. Then he sold the mortgage and used the proceeds for the purpose of going away, leaving his wife with hardly a dollar.

Mr. White's indignation when confronted with Luscombe was great, and several times he could hardly be restrained from offering him violence.

One hotel keeper pleaded guilty of selling liquor during hours prohibited by law, and was fined $20 and costs by the P.M. yesterday. A number of other similar cases were enlarged. Mr E Meredith Q. C., spoke strongly of the injustice to the defendants when the prosecution was delayed for over a month after the date of the alleged offence, and the difficulty they were put to in getting any evidence as to dates on that account. William Jones pleaded guilty of stealing a buffalo robe belonging to Hamilton Smith, of Lobo, out of a hotel yard, and was sentenced to two months in jail. A couple of drunks were disposed of, and Mrs. Sutherland again remanded. John Lavanti, an Italian, charged with larceny, was acquitted.

The Canadian Gazette of Saturday contains the following local appointments:—James S. M. B. Niven, of the City of London, in the Province of Ontario, Esquire, doctor of medicine, a medical examiner for the said City of London, under the provisions of the Act to amend the Civil Service Acts of 1882 and 1883 (47 Vict. chap. 15), from 26th September, 1887. Mr. William Saunders, of London, is also gazetted Director of the Experimental Farm, the appointment to date from October 16, 1886.

Mrs. W. M. Mackay (formerly of London) but now of Newark, N. J., has been enjoying three or four weeks' holiday with her friends and relatives in this city and returned home with her little daughter yesterday. Mrs Mackay is a sister of Mr. Fred. Cryer, barrister.

THE FAIR PROPOSITION.

$90,000 to be Asked From the City Council to Provide New Buildings, etc for Western Fair Purposes—Another Meeting Held Yesterday.

The Directors of the London Horticultural Society met in their office yesterday afternoon. Present:—Messrs. A. W. Porte (President), T. H. Marsh, T. R. Parker, W. Y. Brunton, Smart, Col. Lewis, the Solicitor, Mr. Benj. Cronyn, and the Secretary, Mr. Geo. McBroom.

The minutes of last meeting were read, slightly amended, and adopted.

The President stated the object for which the meeting had been called, viz., to consider the resolutions laid before the Joint Committee of the East Middlesex Agricultural and the London Horticultural Societies; and also to consider the necessary steps to bring the matter before the City Council.

Mr. Brunton thought that the County Society should contribute an equal amount with the City Society to the funds of the Western Fair Association if the County Society wished to share equal honors.

Mr. Cronyn said that he had interviewed Mr. A. J. B. Macdonald, and the latter gave him to understand that the East Middlesex Society were willing to forego all claims on the Western Fair fund and chattels, and release their lien on the grounds and use their influence with the County Council in the same direction, provided that they were guaranteed the return of the money they invest should the Fair for any reason cease, and they be deprived of grounds.

Col. Lewis thought that this was a reasonable offer.

Several other members also concurred with Col. Lewis.

Mr. Parker moved that:—"We, the City of London Horticultural Society, agree to amalgamate with the East Middlesex Agricultural Society on equal terms as regards membership and directorship, in consideration that the East Middlesex Society pay to the Western Fair Association $6,000, give up any claim they may have on the Western Fair funds and chattels, release their lien on the Fair grounds, and get the County Council to release their lien; and should the Fair not be continued, or the East Middlesex Society be deprived of the use of the Fair grounds, then the E M. A. S. shall be paid back the $6,000 cash capital paid in by them to the Western Fair fund, and the said Western Fair Association secure to them that amount."

Col. Lewis seconded, and the resolution carried unanimously.

Mr. Parker suggested that the City Council be requested to advance the money received by them from the sale of the old Fair grounds.

Col. Lewis said that he did not think the Council would entertain such a proposition. A better way would be to ask the Council for the requisite grounds and buildings.

Mr. Cronyn said that the Council had no power to give the proceeds to the Board, but they might advance the money on debentures.

A desultory discussion ensued in regard to grounds.

Mr. Brunton said that unless something definite was done in regard to a site it would be some time before there would be a Western Fair. If Queen's Park was secured, the Board would only require it for two or three weeks in the year. It could be used as a recreation park. If economy was exercised in laying out the grounds. He proposed to put the sheds round the sides and the main building at one end. This would leave a large space in the centre for base ball, cricket and other amusements, the Horticultural Hall for athletic purposes, and the Machinery Hall used only be temporary. He urged upon the Board the necessity of signifying where the grounds should be.

Mr. Marsh said that a committee had already been appointed to select a site, and nothing could be done until they reported.

Mr. Smart said that the Board could recommend a site.

In reply to Mr. Smart, Mr. Brunton thought $70,000 was sufficient to ask from the Council.

Mr. Smart moved, seconded by Mr. Brunton, that the President, John Green, the mover and seconder be appointed a committee to prepare and present to the City Council a memorial, asking that body to exercise the power placed in them by the Ontario statute passed in regard to the Fair grounds, in order to provide funds for the purpose of paying off the present lien on Queen's Park and erecting buildings thereon for Fair and other purposes, in order to secure the permanent establishment of the Western Fair, said sum not to exceed $90 000, and that the Board attend by a body the meeting of the Council on Monday next.

An item of $[illegible] for wood was passed.

WATER COMMISSIONERS.

Objections to an Old Account—Use of the Telephone Line Granted—Tenders for Pasturage.

The Water Commissioners met last night, the Chairman Muirhead, Mayor Cowan and George T. Hiscox being the members present, with the City Engineer, Secretary Burke and Inspector Pike.

Mr. T. Tanton applied for reduction in rates, but judgment was reserved.

Accounts were received from J. Robertson & Co., $2,292 53; W. Wills, $16; Ferguson Bros, $42 57; Cowan & Gibson, $4; James Wright & Co., $3 76; P. J. Burke, $1.70; Catholic Record, $4; G. W. Salter, 75 cents; T. C. Keefer, $140; P. Flint, $10; S. H. Craig, $19 86; freight, $6 90; insurance, $20; M. O'Meara, $17.50; Osborne, Kelley & Co., $3.25; pay sheets, $173.

The account of Mr. Keefer was for work done for the last Board, and the members objected strongly, but finally passed it. The account of Osborne, Kelley & Co. was not certified to as the crank shaft for which the sum was charged was in excess of the price agreed on, nearly $50.

It was decided to allow Mr. Nicholas Wilson to run a switch from the Waterworks telephone line across the river to his summer cottage, at the pleasure of the Board.

Mr. R. Whetter's account for pasturing cattle at the Water works was charged at the rate of $30. It was decided to advertise for tenders for the pasturage, subject to cancellation at one month's notice.

FREE PRESS CORRESPONDENCE.

The Necessity for a New Hospital.

To the Editor of the Free Press.

DEAR SIR,—By the city press I see the medical fraternity of this city have applied for power and aid to erect a Medical School in connection with the City Hospital. I would suggest, would it not be well for our citizens to build a new Hospital, and, if necessary to have a Medical School, to take the present Hospital for such, as it is entirely unfit for the purpose it was intended. Let any of our citizens take a walk through the City Hospital, and they will no doubt come to the conclusion that such a building for a city like London is a disgrace, not saying anything about its management, and its Commitee of the Council, who have charge of the running expenses, and who rarely enter the Hospital. Look at the money that has been wasted on the Hospital, and no comfort to the patients therefor! There is not a stairway in the building wide enough to carry an unfortunate patient on a stretcher. There is not a verandah on any part of the building to give a patient the air, sunlight, and means of fire escape, and the ventilation is simply horrible all through. The drainage is bad; there is no accommodation for any of the help, and a dozen or more nurses are huddled up in one room, and that immediately adjoining the sick wards. The steam-heating pipes are evidently put in to punish the patients, and breed vermin. These are only a few of the defects which can be seen by anyone. It is high time that our citizens should awake to the fact that our City Hospital is governed by those who know no more about the Hospital than the "man in the moon," and that the sooner we have trustees who will take an interest in the Hospital the better. VISITOR.

Astray as to Authorship.

To the Editor of the Free Press.

DEAR SIR,—Saturday's Advertiser contained a letter from E T. Essery, the Barrister "by Act of Parliament, you know," which pretends to be an acceptance of the challenge of Thomas Smith to discuss "the political situation."

This precious epistle is made up of slang and abuse, and the matters he offers to discuss, whether true or false, are older than Smith; but the cream of the joke is that Essery got Smith's promise to drop the matter, and then attempts to play the part of a bully.

Boodle and abuse are Tom's weapons, and he is ably assisted by the Advertiser. What seems to trouble those worthies is who wrote the letters signed Marshall Lewis and Smith. First they picked on W. R. Meredith; now it is Market Clerk Wilson. Hadn't they better try again and insult our colored fellow-citizens worse than they have done already?

Yours truly, WATERLOO ST.

Mr. Baldwin to Mr. Heaman.

To the Editor of the Free Press.

SIR,—In reply to a letter of mine Mr. W. Heaman rushes into print with a lot of abuse to which I am not called on to reply. I reiterate every statement made in my former letter, and warn the citizens that through Brother Bill's Brother George being in the Council they are paying more for a worse quality of wood now than they had to pay before, or than they would have to pay if the lowest tender of the new lot were accepted. With regard to my voting for Mr. Hyman, I may state that gentleman knows I did no such thing, so, when he asked me for my vote, I gave him to understand in unmistakable terms that I would vote for Mr Carling. I don't suppose, Mr. Editor, that my politics induced you to insert my letter, as you gave more space to the Heaman communication.

THE BOGUS THIRD PARTY.

That the Conservative party has well performed its mission has been testified to on several occasions by the people at the polls. There can be no mistake as to the utterances that have been given, and it is reasonable to suppose that what it has been in the past it will continue to be in the future. The same desire to forward the best interests of the country animate it now as ever. Those that have attempted to displace it have not received the countenance of the people because they have not done anything to deserve it. The whole matter lies in the proverbial nutshell. But there are always some to be found who, pretending to be better than others, are desirous to be at the head of what is called a third party. As if a party that can point to such a long line of usefulness as that which has attended Conservative administration is not the best kind of party that any country can have! That captious objections may be offered to isolated acts of government may be true enough. But such a condition of matters is not appliable to Canada alone. It is to be found present in all countries, amidst all means and methods of administration, whether in the political, the commercial, or the religious world. If one were to wait till a government perfect in all its acts were to be evolved a very long time would elapse. The carping that is forever going on in the direction of finding a new party which shall combine all the elements of goodness together with all the wisdom of the ages is but trifling with conditions by which we are surrounded. No government can be called perfect, just as no other human institution can claim to be immaculate. There must be some margin for the evil common to human nature some allowance for the shortcomings incident to human weakness and shortsightedness. Those that pretend that they are so much better than their neighbors, and that government in their hands would be devoid of all error, may be regarded as so many imposters—so many cheats and charlatans. What a leader of an administration has to do is to make the best use of the elements by which he is surrounded. As water cannot rise above its level so no government is likely to be much better than those whom it represents. In a country devoted to progress as is Canada much allowance is evidently necessary in this respect. Men look to the administration of the day to forward their material interests in every possible way. Some seek it in the matter of railways. Some in relation to manufactures. Others think that it is a poor administration that will not uphold national rights and national law. And so on. But in whatever direction one may turn the same kind of expectation is found to exist, viz, that the government of the day will do something of a tangible kind to better the condition of those whose affairs they have been called to deal with. When earnest endeavors are made in this direction the carpers to whom we allude call out "corruption," just as if the advancement of the material progress of the country was a thing to be censured. No doubt the people feel this, for they have said so by their acts if not by their words on several occasions. That which is best administered is best. And there can be no question—at least with the country at large—that the party that has just been for the third time successful at the polls has been recognised as the most practical, the most pains-taking, the most successful in respect of administration that Canada has had. Of what use, then, would it be to displace it upon the ground that some indefinite third party, as yet unborn, unbaptised, could do better than this first party that has won so conclusively the good wishes of the people?

BOB, LINE AND SINKER.

Next to the defeated "Reformers" themselves there are none so much disappointed at the result of the late elections as the Americans. Taking the Globe for their guide, backed up by the other journals in that interest, they had come to the conclusion that Mr. Blake would be returned with a sufficient number of supporters at his back to enable him to take office. And then, as one of them expressed it, "Our turn will come." The conclusion they had arrived at was that the "Reformers" were ready and willing to come down to their terms on the fishery question. And that may be stated to be that—this country is to permit free access to its fishing grounds whilst the Americans are to exclude our fish from their markets as they have been in the habit of doing, except on the payment of a heavy duty. The more that this claim is looked into the more it is found to be untenable. Indeed, Mr. Dingly, of Maine, speaking in the House of Representatives at Washington a few days since, admitted that there is no question that the Canadians had the right to protect their inshore fisheries. But what he contended for was, that if fish had been caught outside of that limit, in open waters, in that case fishing vessels should be permitted to make for Canadian ports, and thus be able to ship the catch by rail to places of sale, and also for the purchasing bait, ice and supplies. It may be admitted that if the matter in dispute is confined to that issue it does not contain within it any very great difficulty. Except in this way—that, the very fact of selling bait and ice to American vessels is to enable them to carry on their occupation in hostility to Canadian interests, whilst the Americans do all that they can to keep out Canadian fish from their own markets. If they were to admit Canadian fish free of duty—as was the case under the Reciprocity Treaty—there is little doubt that the regulations preventing them from going in shore to buy bait and ice would be withdrawn. As it is, the Americans ask for privileges so as to enable them to carry on a business in opposition to the Canadians, at the same time refusing to accord any privileges in return. Neighbor, let there be a "fair shake."

A BAD HABIT REBUKED.

Mr. Meredith has again complained, and with justice, of the way in which the House has been slighted by the Mowat Government in neglecting to bring down important papers that have been called for from time to time. The Grit theory is that departmental affairs at Toronto are so well ordered that nothing is at fault, and that any matter on which information may be desired can be easily obtained. It is indeed reasonable to expect that the business of a public office like that of the Crown Lands, for example, should be conducted as regularly as that of a commercial firm. A bank that does not make clear monthly returns to the Government, or a private corporation that could not present any information as to the conduct of its business, and the position of its assets, at the annual meeting, would be justly liable to the suspicion of irregularity or incompetence. Yet, what is the fact concerning this department of government? When Mr. Meredith calls for particulars of the sale of the timber lands, with maps showing the situation and extent of the lands which have been sold or put under license, he is quietly told that the matter is practically a sealed book, and that such information as he asks for cannot be brought down without a vast waste of time and enormous cost to the Province. The public must look upon this answer as a mere evasion of responsibility, and an attempt to hide from the light facts which it is not unreasonable to require should be made clear at the call of a member of the House. The Crown Lands Department is above all others the most important. From them a revenue of about $700,000 yearly is derived. The public domain is sold or leased, not as directed by the Legislature, but by the exercise of the Commissioner's will alone. He is practically a dictator in these matters. He orders large blocks of timber land to be sold when and where he chooses. There is no check upon him except at the meeting of the House, when precise information may be called for. Yet when the Legislature is called together, and Mr. Meredith demands such information, when he requests that a map should be produced showing where and to what extent the public lands have been alienated by the Department, he is met by the plea that it cannot be got ready unless at a cost of money and time too great to be undertaken. Which means that these details are to remain as a Departmental secret. Such excuses are most flimsy and unsatisfactory. There ought to be little difficulty in illustrating upon a blackboard or colored plan of the provincial estate which tracts of land are under lease, or in the hands of speculators, and which yet available as an asset of the Province. A minister who could not within six months cause such a plan to be prepared for public inspection, may be said to be open to serious question. Yet the Commissioner of Crown Lands gravely tells the Opposition leader that it could not be got ready under two years' time, and at a cost which, as his chief organ says, would be a wanton waste of money. But it is not in the Crown lands only that this sinister feature is to be noted. Last session a return was demanded by Mr. Clancy concerning the drainage system of the Province. It has not been forthcoming. In this matter also the order of the House had been grossly slighted. Mr. Meredith had, therefore, good ground for complaint when he said that "the Government was falling into the bad habit of allowing motions for returns to pass the House, and then afterwards saying it was impossible to bring these returns down."

AUSTRALIA IN WINTER.

The heat of Southern and Central Australia in January would have been found almost unendurable in this country. In Melbourne on the 8th the thermometer stood at 104° in the shade, while at Sandhurst it was 115°. At Adelaide on the same day it was over 111°, and on the Teetulpa gold field 116° in the shade was registered. At Port Pirie it was 110°, and at Strathalbyn 115°, while in Western New South Wales it was 110° at Euston and 115° at Balranald. Sydney, on the east coast, though further north, was comparatively cool, at not much above 90° in the shade, while in Queensland the weather alternated between heat and storm, as it often does in January. Talk about the coldness of the Canadian winter! Forty degrees below zero is a state preferable to the Australian winter climate.

AN EASY REMEDY.

Fifteen minute sessions have been the order of the day in the Ontario Legislature since it met. A Grit organ, in excusing this real or apparent waste of time, says that members must be allowed to master the documents presented for consideration before they undertake other work. But such studies are expensive, at a cost to the Province of some $2,000 a day. Why not save all this money and economize the time of members by furnishing each one with advance copies of the annual reports? Our legislators might then prepare themselves at leisure, by their own firesides, for the important and responsible duties of the session. It would be an easy remedy.

CURRENT TOPICS.

It is said that steam communication is likely to be established by Halifax parties during the coming summer, between Cape Breton ports and the west coast of Newfoundland.

A contemporary gives an account of some doings at Dresden by so-called "Elated Reformers." Taking the condition of the "Reformers" throughout the Dominion, they might more properly be spoken of as Belated Reformers.

"The old flag and an appropriation" was tried on in every way at the session of Congress just closed. But neither the proposal to expend $10,000,000 for coastal fortifications, nor $10,000,000 to bore holes into the earth at short intervals, as far as it could be pierced, for the purpose of geological discovery, seemed to draw. They must try another scheme.

Mr. Mills, speaking last week at Blenheim, referred to the elections just held as "the most important since Confederation." Seeing that the National Policy was confirmed for the third time, and that the popular voice has been in favor of all the good Conservative measures, it may be conceded that the hon. gentleman is not far astray in the estimate that he has formed. Besides, Ontario sends a majority of fourteen Conservatives to the Dominion Parliament, which is of itself something to be satisfied with.

The local Grit organ lately said that Kingston was the only Ontario constituency lost to the Liberals in the last election that was not gerrymandered. Whereupon the Citizen remarks that Kingston is one of the constituencies that Mr. Mowat gerrymandered in a most disgraceful manner; but notwithstanding the job, Mr. Metzalfe was re-elected. The less Mr. Mowat's organs say about gerrymandering the better; for if ever constituencies were gerrymandered in the interests of a political party these of Ontario were for the last general election.

A Grit paper remarks that it is only necessary for the "creature of the Government who happens to be deputy-returning officer at a polling place" to be told that he is expected to spoil the ballots or forget something, so that the return may be invalidated. Well, two ways have been tried on behalf of the Grits, viz., to stuff the box with bogus ballots, as at Jacques Cartier, and to carelessly but surely drop a specified number of the regular ballots on to the floor, in order that they may be carefully swept into the rubbish heap and cremated without positive criminality. These are Grit methods, and they ought to be duly patented.

Carloads of lumber arriving from British Columbia are now recorded in the Manitoba papers. The arrival of carloads of hogs from Manitoba at Montreal are referred to in the press of the latter city, and an Ontario paper of a late date contained the following: "Wm. Gray & Son are shipping a carload of buckboards to Winnipeg to-day. The firm has a large order for these vehicles to go to the Northwest, and in a few days will commence on several orders for driving buggies, which were secured last fall in Winnipeg." All this is indicative of an expansion of inter-Provincial trade which was impossible before the completion of the C. P. R. And this is but the beginning of it.

The crime for which Mrs. Druse was hanged admits of no palliation. Enraged by abusive words from her husband one morning at breakfast she went out of the room and returned with a pistol concealed under her apron. In some way she got a rope round his neck, and calling in his nephew, a boy of fourteen years, she compelled him by threats to take the pistol and shoot the man. He did so, and after that the woman took the pistol and fired at her husband again herself. Then, as he fell from his chair, she struck him on the head with an axe. Having killed him, she and her daughter, who had been present all the time, spent the rest of the day in cutting to pieces and burning his body, while "the boys amused themselves by playing checkers." If the execution of a woman can ever be justified hers can be.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

SIXTH PARLIAMENT—FIRST SESSION.

Special Per C.P.R. Line.

Toronto, March 8.—The House met this afternoon at 3.15, and adjourned after a session of half an hour, during which it was in Committee of the Whole on supplies.

An interim appropriation of $250,000 was made for the Government till April 15th, when the estimates will be brought down.

Mr. Creighton brought up his motion for a return of copies of all advertisements for tenders, specifications, etc., in connection with the proposed departmental buildings.

Mr. Fraser referred to the motion, and said all the information asked for was already before the House, scattered over a number of documents which he had brought down the day before yesterday, and told Mr. Creighton he thought it would be better if Mr. Creighton would take out his notice of motion to-day.

In reply, Mr. Creighton said he was prepared to leave it standing until the information was before the House, and insisted on having the information asked for.

Mr. Fraser said he thought it was all nonsense. (Cries of "Order.")

NOTES.

It is likely the budget will be brought down about the end of the week.

The estimates will be ready next week.

PROVINCIAL STATISTICS

The Public Accounts and Report of the Minister of Education.

PUBLIC ACCOUNTS.

Toronto, March 8.—The Public Accounts were laid on the table yesterday, and the Treasurer will probably make his financial statement on Thursday or Friday. The estimated expenditure for the year was $3,029,316 91. The expenditure was $2,769,978 82. There was unexpended $302,794 02 of the amount granted by the Estimates, and over-expended in special cases $43,555 93. The expenditure for immigration was $16,827.40, against $19,-088.11 in 1885. The expenditure for agriculture and arts was $125,259.-68, as compared with $159,576 45 in the previous year; hospitals and charities, $105,416.19, as against $96,421.28; repairs and maintenance, $57,-650.91, as against $62,601 54; public institutions, $609,228 66, as against $613,-270.89; public buildings, $227,893 19 as against $155,720,29; Public Works, $51,-763.07, as against $38,690 80; Colonization Roads, $145,213 80, as against $121,435 32; charges on Crown Lands, $91,092.98 as against $96,573 08; Civil Government, $183,049 56, as against $184,254 70; Legislation, $115,612 22, as against $125,762 04; Administration of Justice, $346,641 16, as against $354,923 35; Education, $568,112 13, as against $533 564 46. The increase in this last department is accounted for by the fact that for the first time the expenditure for mechanics' institutes, art schools and literary and scientific institutions is charged under this head.

SCHOOL STATISTICS.

According to the report of the Minister of Education for last year, comprising the statistics for 1885, the total number of children of school age in the Province in the latter year was 588,147. Of these 471,285 were actually pupils in attendance on the public and separate schools. This shows an increase of 5,861, as compared with 1884. But it is considerably short of the number actually attending school in 1876, amounting to 489,664. Since that time the number steadily decreased until 1883, when the pupils only numbered 462,887. The falling off is partly accounted for by the rush to Manitoba, but the wide margin between the total school population and the actual attendance shows that a large class do not take advantage of our school system, some, no doubt, because they attend private schools, but more by reason of poverty or the neglect of their parents.

The Prisoners Hold the Fort.

Lancaster, Pa., March 8.—George Watson and Arthur Green, desperate Welsh Mountain thieves, confined in the Lancaster county prison, became rebellious this morning, and threatened to brain any person who entered their cell, with big oak sticks, which they broke from a carpet loom. Keeper Burkholder thrust a pistol into the cell to intimidate them, when they knocked the weapon from his hand and secured it. They have since held possession of the cell, threatening to shoot any person who comes near, and all attempts to dislodge them have failed. An effort will be made to starve them out.

The National Base Ball League.

New York, March 8.—The National League Base Ball Committee to-day solved the eighth club problem. Indianapolis was admitted and Kansas City thrown out. The schedule has not yet been completed. St. Louis accepted $12,000 for its franchise, and the Committee offered Kansas City $6,000 for its franchise and players. An answer will be given to-morrow.

NEW BRUNSWICK FAILURES.

Suspension of the Maritime Bank and Two Extensive Lumbering Firms.

St John, N.B., March 8.—The suspension of the Maritime Bank of New Brunswick has been followed by the startling announcement of the failure of R. A. & J. Stewart and of Guy Bevan & Co., two of the greatest and most extensively interested lumbering firms in the Province. The news of the three failures has caused a great sensation, and a perfect panic prevails in business circles.

The failure of the Maritime Bank, which occurred to-day, created a tremendous sensation, and commercial and financial circles have been wrought with excitement all day. When the suspension was first reported innumerable rumors obtained circulation affecting the standing of other concerns, but those in a great measure are without foundation. It is known that the bank's suspension has been chiefly brought about by complications with two extensive lumbering firms, which are engaged in an immense business, but so far no details of the affairs of the institution have been given to the public. Probably the most immediate cause of the failure was the return to the bank of a quantity of English exchange. The New Brunswick Government kept its account with the Maritime, but what amount was held to its credit is unknown to the public. The stockholders in the bank are under double liability, so that there is every probability that the notes, which are a first lien, and possibly the deposits, will be made good. The bank paid five per cent. interest, which is higher than that paid by any other banking institution in St. John, and the depositors are very large, many of the depositors being people who can poorly afford to suffer the loss. Thomas McLellan was President of the Maritime, and Jeremiah Harrison, Vice-President. The other directors were:—John McMillan, John Tapley and A. A. Sterling of Fredericton. The bank had branches in Fredericton and Woodstock, N. B.

THE UNITED STATES.

The steamer Yazoor Valley was burned near New Orleans yesterday. Three negro deck hands were drowned.

Rev. Frank Belmont, Baptist minister, was found dead on Saturday evening in Chickasaw Nation. He was doubtless murdered.

At Brockport, N.Y., last evening, J. J. Swedley and Mrs. Annie Graves were united in marriage at the bride's home. The groom is 80 years of age and the bride 78. Both have been married before.

Two sheep ranchers, named Fraser and Lackie, were murdered in their house, near Albuquerque, N. M., last week. It is believed Mexicans committed the crime. All the money on the place was stolen.

Isman and Mead Case, young sons of the late Rev. John Case, at Hawley, Pa., quarrelled at the home last night and drew revolvers. Isman shot his brother dead, and the young man will die. Isma is wild with grief.

The threatened strike of St. Louis stove moulders was inaugurated yesterday. The men demanded an increase of 15 per cent. They were told the condition of business would not warrant the advance, and that it would not be granted. All moulds in the city then quit work.

Kilrain and Lannon fought last night just outside of Boston, the latter being knocked out in the eleventh round. Time, 43 minutes. The fight was witnessed by about 20 persons. Lannon was knocked down in the third round and received three terrific blows over the left eye, which closed in the last round.

W. C. T. U.—The regular mothly meeting of the W. C. T. U. was held at their rooms, Dundas street, yesterday. Members present:—Mesdames Gresten (President), Moore, Lawrason, Sage, Ingram, Williams, Mayell, Stinson, Slaght, Nelles, Robertson, Edy, Jones and Miss Green. The minutes of last meting were read and on motion adopted. The Treasurer reported, disbursements, $2 77; balance on hand, $70 71. A report of Industrial School was given by the secretary. Number of pupils last Saturday, 40. A treat was provided for the children by the Young W. C. T. U. Mrs. Gresten told of one of the Industrial School girls who was greatly in need of a new dress. Mesdames Crawford, Lawrason and Mayell volunteered to make one for her. Mrs. B. Howie and Mrs. Noble were proposed and accepted as new members. Unanimous votes of thanks were passed to the Trustees of the Dundas Street Centre Methodist Church for their kindness in granting the free use of their church for Mrs Youmans' lecture, and to Miss Jessie Sage for adding so much to the enjoyment of the evening by her singing. A most interesting report of the late W. C. T. U. convention at St. Thomas by Mrs. Darch, one of the delegates, was read, after which the meeting adjourned.

Telephone Patents.—The Bell Telephone Company's Officials say that a great deal of unnecessary importance has been attached (through misleading reports sent from Ottawa), to the last decision of the Minister of Agriculture, voiding the Blake transmitter patent. This was not an original patent for a transmitter, but only for an improvement on it's method of instruction, and is only one of the numerous patents held by the Company class of instruments; and the setting aside of this does not by any means allow the public to manufacture or use Blake transmitters, and will make no difference whatever to the Company. The decision given on evidence put in two years ago and was anticipated by the Company, who did not contest the case at all. In case of the Edison patents, after all the evidence for the petitioners had been heard the Bell Company's counsel moved for a petition dismissed without costs, bringing forward evidence for the defence on the ground of absence of jurisdiction. The Minister stated that he would consider this point in a few days.

PRESBYTERY OF LONDON.

Regular Quarterly Meeting Yesterday—Call to Rev. Mr. Currie Sustained The Delegates to the General Assembly—London Township Church Services, etc.

A meeting of the London Presbytery was held in the school room of Dr. Proudfoot's church, Rev. Mr. McConnell, Moderator; Rev. Geo. Sutherland, Clerk.

The first question was the settlement of the docket of business, which provoked some discussion, and was amended.

On motion Rev. Mr. McGillivray was elected Moderator, and as he was absent, the retiring Moderator continued in the chair.

The election of delegates to the next General Assembly, to be held in Winnipeg, resulted as follows:—

Revs John Currie, J. S. Henderson, Roger, McConechy, James Ballantyne and Dr. Archibald.

The Clerk then announced the following elders chosen to represent the different congregations qualified:—Kintore, Mr. Hornell; St. Andrew's, London, Dr. Fraser; London First, Dr. Arnott; London South, Mr. C. Morton.

London East and Lobo having neglected to nominate their representative elder Mr. Brown was proposed, but declined.

Rev. J. A. Murray proposed that Mr. D. K. McKenzie, of St. Thomas, and Mr. Young, of Glencoe, be representative elders to the General Assembly.

Rev. A. Henderson moved that the two next sessions in the regular sequence be notified and the appointment left to them.

Mr. Murray's resolution passed.

Rev. Messrs. Gordon and Smith were invited to sit as corresponding members.

Rev. Mr. Urquhart read a report on the call from Wallacetown and Dutton to Rev. D. Currie, of Three Rivers, signed by 124 members and 126 adherents, with a salary of $800 and a manse.

The call was supported by Mr. Poole, of Dutton, and Law, of Wallacetown. Dutton guarantees half of the stipend.

The usual motion, approving of the conduct of the Moderator and directing the call to be sustained, was passed.

Rev. Dr. Matthews and Mr. Clarke were appointed to represent the congregation and Presbytery, respectively, in the Quebec Presbytery.

Rev. J. A. Murray reported moderating in a call from Glencoe, also to Rev. Mr. Currie, signed by 159 members and all the elders, 11 in number.

Messrs. Young and D. Cameron, of Glencoe, were heard in support of the charge.

It was stated that Appin and Tait's corners were contemplating a separation from the Glencoe group for the purpose of forming an independent congregation. The salary guaranteed is $1,000, Glencoe agreeing to pay $900 alone, in case of the separation. It was decided also to sustain this call and to approve of the conduct of the Moderator. Rev. Mr. Love was appointed to represent the Presbytery and congregation in the Presbytery of Quebec. Rev. Mr. McLeod's name was also added as a representative of the Presbytery.

The commission and report on the establishment of religious services in London Township were then called for.

Mr. Stewart, coming in, was then asked to sit as a corresponding member.

Rev. A. Henderson presented his report on the subject named. He exchanged with Mr. Ball on Feb 20, preaching at Bryanston and Ilderton, and addressed a meeting at Bryanston. At this meeting a member from the Proof Line (Bethel) congregation gave notice of their intention of applying for permission to set up as a congregation for themselves, guaranteeing at least the minimum stipend. On this information the meeting resolved to maintain their memorial to the Presbytery, and to ask to be affiliated with the Proof Line charge, and to have services supplied by the same Minister somewhere between the Bryanston Road and the town line dividing London and Nissouri.

The report was received.

Messrs. I. Langford, James Carmichael and James Robb were then introduced by Rev. Mr. Ball.

Mr. Langford presented the memorial from the Proof Line congregation, asking for a separate organization and service. He was not, however, very desirous of being united with the eastern section unless the people out there were willing to do better in a financial point of view than they had done, viz., $30 a year. The other Commissioners corroborated his views.

After discussing the matter, it was decided to deal with it at a special meeting to be called for the purpose in May.

The Home Mission report was introduced, and was under discussion when the hour of adjournment arrived.

EVENING SEDERUNT.

After devotional exercises the report of the Committee on the State of Religion was read by the convener, Rev. Mr. Urquhart, which showed the cause of Christ to be flourishing in the various congregations which had reported, under the jurisdiction of the Presbytery, and answering several queries from the General Assembly.

Rev. Alex. Henderson, in moving the adoption of the report, referred to the difficulties that had to be met in every day life, and the value of prayer in overcoming them.

Rev. Mr. Rogers thought that the report was a little indifferent on one or two points. No mention was made of the number of congregations making returns.

Rev. Mr. Urquhart said that he had purposely omitted it as a delicate matter, but it was easily answered,—about two-thirds reported.

Rev. Mr. Rogers thought that this matter should be enforced. He did not see why the Presbytery should deal hesitatingly, as they were backed up by the General Assembly. He understood that the Committee was instructed to report on a feasible scheme for special services, but no mention of it was made in the report.

Rev. Dr. Archibald, of St. Thomas, seconded Mr. Henderson's motion.

After considerable discussion in regard to Evangelistic work, the report was adopted.

The Home Mission report was also adopted.

The Presbytery adjourned at 10.20 till this morning.

Young men suffering from the effects of early evil habits, the result of ignorance and folly, who find themselves weak, nervous and exhausted; also Middle-aged and Old Men who are broken down from the effects of abuse or over-work, and in advanced life feel the consequences of youthful excess, send for and read M. V. Lubon's Treatise on Diseases of Men. The book will be sent sealed to any address on receipt of two 3c stamps. Address M. V. Lubon, 47 Wellington St. East, Toronto, Ont.

Indigestion.

Many persons lose appetite and strength, become emaciated, suffer, and die, because of defective nutrition, who might have been restored to health by Ayer's Sarsaparilla. This medicine acts upon the digestive organs, through the blood, and has effected many wonderful cures.

me, and my appetite and digestion are now perfect.—Fred G. Bower, 496 Seventh st., South Boston, Mass.

I have, for years, suffered acutely from Dyspepsia, scarcely taking a meal, until within the past few months, without enduring the most distressing pains of Indigestion. My stomach sometimes rejected all food. I became greatly reduced in strength, and very despondent. Satisfied, at last, that my trouble was of a scrofulous nature, I began taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and believe it has saved my life. My appetite and digestion are now good, and my health is perfect.—Oliver T. Adams, Spencer, Ohio.

THE VEILED WOMAN.

A TALE OF ABSORBING INTEREST.

"'Holly' is a prickly tree," I said.

"So. Well, thou hast a prickly and yet a tree-like look. Strong art thou, and ugly, but, if my wisdom be not at fault, honest at the core, and a staff to lean on. Also one who thinks. But stay, Holly, stand not there; enter with me and be seated by me. I would not see thee crawl before me like those slaves. I am sweary of their worship and their terror; sometimes when they vex me I could blast them for very sport, and to see the rest turn white, even to the heart," and she held the curtain aside with her ivory hand to let me pass in.

I entered, shuddering. This woman was very terrible. Within the curtains was a recess about twelve feet by ten, and in the recess was a couch and a table whereon stood fruit and sparkling water. By it at its end was a vessel like a font cut in carved stone, also full of pure water. The place was softly lit with lamps formed out of the beautiful vessels of which I have spoken, and the air and the curtains were full of a subtle perfume. Perfume, too, seemed to emanate from the glorious hair and white clinging vestments of She herself, I entered the little room, and there stood uncertain.

"Sit," said She, pointing to the couch. "At present thou hast no cause to fear me. If thou hast cause, thou shalt not fear for long, for I shall slay thee. Therefore let thy heart be light."

I sat down on the end of the couch near to the font-like basin of water, and She sunk down softly on to the other end.

"Now, Holly," she said, "how comest thou to speak Arabic? It is mine own dear tongue, for Arabian am I by my birth.

"You see I still speak, and there is yet an Egypt. And what Pharaoh sits upon the throne? Still one of the spawn of the Persian Ochus, or are the Archæmenians gone?"

"The Persians have been gone from Egypt for nigh two thousand years, and since then the Ptolemys, the Romans, and many others have flourished and held sway upon the Nile, and fallen when their time was ripe," I said, wishing that I could then know of the Persian Artaxerxes?"

She laughed, and made no answer, and again a cold chill went through me. "And Greece," she said—"is there still a Greece? Ah, I loved the Greeks. Beautiful were they as the day, and clever, but fierce at heart and fickle, notwithstanding."

"Yes," I said, "there is a Greece; and just now is it once more a people. Yet the Greeks of to-day are not what the Greeks of the days of Pericles were, and Greece herself is but a mockery of the Greece that was."

"So. The Hebrews, are they yet at Jerusalem? And does the Temple that the wise King built stand? Or, Mahaffy, is Baal, and Ashtoreth worship therein? Is their Messiah come, of whom they talked so much, and does He rule the earth?"

"The Jews are broken and gone, and the fragments of their people strew the world, and Jerusalem is no more. As for the temple that Herod built——"

"Herod!" she said. "I know not Herod. But go on."

"The Romans burned it, and the Roman eagles flew across its ruins."

"So, so! They were a great people, those Romans, and went straight to their end—ay, they sped to it like Fate, or like their own eagles on their prey—and left peace behind them."

"Solitudinem faciunt, pacem appellant," I suggested.

"Ah, thou canst speak the Latin tongue too," she said, in surprise. "It hath a strange ring in my ears after all these days, and it seems to me that they accent does not fall as the Romans put it. Who was it wrote that? I know not the saying, but it is a true one of that great people. It seems that I have met a learned man—one whose knowledge I have held the sum of the world's knowledge. Knowest thou Greek also?"

"Yes, oh, queen, and something of Hebrew, but not to speak them. They are all dead languages now."

She clapped her hands in childish glee. "Of a truth, ugly tree that thou art, thou growest the fruits of wisdom, oh, Holly," she said, "for all those laws we, whom I have for the spelled me "heathen," when I would have taught them philosophy. Did their Messiah come, and doth He rule the world?"

"Their Messiah came," I answered, with reverence; "but He came poor and lowly, and they would have none of Him. They scourged Him, and crucified Him upon a tree, but His words and His works live on, for He was the Son of God, and now of a truth He rules half the world, but not with an empire of the world.

"Ah, the fierce-hearted wolves," she said, "they follow after Sense, and of many gods—greedy of gain, and faction-torn! I can see their dark faces now. So they crucified their Messiah! Well can I believe it that He was a Son of the Living Spirit, would be naught to them, if indeed He was so, which is that we will talk afterward. Yet He was naught for any god if he came not with pomp and power. They, a chosen people, a vessel of Him they called Jehovah, ay, and a vessel of task, and a vessel of Astonish, of the Gods of the Egyptians—a high-stomached people, weary of aught that brought them wealth and power. So they crucified their Messiah because He came in lowly guise, and now are they scattered about the world, if I remember me, for one of their prophets that it should be. Well let them go; they broke my heart, those Jews, and made me look with evil eyes across the world, ay, and drive me to the wildness for a people that was before them. When I would have taught them wisdom in Jerusalem they stoned me; ay, at the Gate of the Temple those very priests of Jehovah would have slain me for the people on to stone me! See, here is the mark of it to this day," and with a sudden move she pulled up the saucy wrapping on her rounded arm, and pointed to a little scar that showed red against its milky beauty.

I shrank back horrified.

"Pardon me, oh, queen," I said, "but I am bewildered. Nearly two thousand years have rolled across the earth since the Jewish Messiah hung upon His cross at Golgotha. How, then, canst thou have taught thy philosophy to the Jews before He was? Thou art a woman, and no spirit. How can a woman live two thousand years? Why dost thou behold me, oh, queen?"

She leaned back on the couch, and once more I felt the hidden eyes playing upon me and searching out my heart.

BEECHER'S LAST SERMONS.

EVERY MAN PAINTS HIS OWN PICTURE OF GOD.

DELIVERED BY MR. BEECHER IN PLYMOUTH CHURCH, BROOKLYN, N. Y., FEBRUARY, 1887.

TEXT:—"By faith he forsook Egypt, not fearing the wrath of the king; for he endured, as seeing Him who is invisible."—HEBREWS xi., 27.

When a distinguished author or actor upon the scenes of life has gone, there is hardly anything men are more fond of than to look in upon the secret operations of his mind—as the phrase is, to discern exactly what his genius was. An interior account of himself by Plato or by Aristotle would throw the literary world into a fever of curiosity. Look at the library of literature that has sprung up in dissecting and criticising the operation of the genius of Goethe. See how men are searching to find out something more about Shakespeare—not alone the circumstances of his origin and the influences that acted upon him, but the way in which his mind worked in producing his immortal dramas.

One of the greatest names that ever lived—almost second to none, except that which was above all names stands that of Moses. In all antiquity it is the name. Among the Hebrews it was higher than any other. No patriarch was comparable to this man. His is the one name that will not go down below the horizon. Abraham was only a name. Moses was a statesman, a great organizer and administrator; and there were more strains of wisdom that flowed to the making of him than of any other Hebrew in antiquity. His task was something immense, and it has been one of the most universal over all men in hard times, and men of stern nature have clung to that view of God almost to the losing sight of the other side. Nowhere is there so many men, artists in nature, to whom God is manifested more through the channels of beauty than through all other channels. If you could take away and sow as they are, you might say: "Thou may be your God, but I never had such a God before." It is so from the immensity of the divine being, and from the fact that we fashion the conception of God. For the elements of all that we have. He is invisible, incommunicable. "No man shall see Him and live." I had almost said the meaning of it was that no man shall see Him and live. Then he is dead. We shall see Him as He is," breaks out in another place. "Now we see as through a glass, darkly," says another of the interlocutors of the New Testament. God is so vast, so vast, that nobody sees Him. Not only that, it is not to be supposed that any man ever has a comprehension that takes in the whole cycle and circle of the divine existence. We are each of us seeing a little.

Of two or three children sitting on a cliff, looking over all the valley, one looks at the vineyards, and something attracts him there; another at the hills that bound the encircured vale; and another still at the village and the factories lying at the foot; but no one takes them all in. Each gains a separate idea.

So it is as we look now and then, as could see men as they actually are in their interior nature, there would be almost as many visions of God as there are men; and in a large number of those that see Christ there is not a single vision that would be found would be like the vision of the portrait of a person that moved while the picture was being taken. So that it was indistinct and vague and blurred. We have the general conception that there is a God, that He is a controller, and that He is just and good; but that is no more a conception of God than a year full of logs is a log. The idea that God is not fixed and settled, on the heavens, but is to be formed out of thoughts and imaginations of men—out of which they have had developed the ideas of God as not God-makers, but we are the makers of our ideas of God, and the materials are scattered in the Bible not only, but we bring them to that living form in the consciousness and conduct of spiritual men. There is a word of the Lord revealed in Jeremiah. Centuries had rolled away; Moses had gone; his word yet echoed; but now, later, this great prophet, Jeremiah, caught up the thought, and gave it a new impulse, saying: "Thus saith the Lord, let not the wise man glory in his wisdom, neither let the mighty man glory in his might, let not the rich man glory in his riches; but let him that glories glory in this, that he understandeth and knoweth me, that I am the Lord which exercise loving kindness, judgment, and righteousness in the earth; for in these things I delight, saith the Lord." He has written his heart's biography in such words as those.

You read in the Psalms, one and another, and in the Epistles, also, of the goodness of God. The earth shows that goodness everywhere; and the thanksgivings that are poured out in the Psalms are of the goodness of God. The apostle himself makes goodness an argument of mighty pressure of motive. Where he teaches that the goodness of God ought to lead us to repentance.

This is, then, a biographical view of the divine nature. Goodness is the centre of all qualities, therefore, of restriction, of limitation, of penalties, or of pain, whether they are inflicted in natural law, or whether they are ordained by divine Providence, are enemies of the spirit of goodness and love until you come to the very highest point, when it is feared, finally, "God is love." Thus it stands unqualified, with not butress of explanation. It is the full blossom of those representations in the first began with God's power and the infinitudeness of it, and then proclaimed His authority, sovereignty, and then portrayed His sympathy, and then, at last, rising to a sense of goodness as highest—greater than the expanding magnolia tree that send incense up to it—pure as crystal, declared, "God is love."

Who has Moses had a revelation of this to which we have been led step by step, we can say; but then is this declaration, has he had such a view of God that he lived as seeing (as it he saw the invisible, and that was the spring or power of his endurance in his heroic task.

Now, that which was so large in him, even if it be only in small measure in us, is the true wisdom; but we ought to live as seeing Him who is invisible more than he did; for the development of the divine idea in humanity has wonderfully grown. We of this period of the world are qualified to take it a larger view of God than those who lived in any preceding era. The qualities that go to constitute the divine attributes have had an interpretation in our own experience of purity, sweetness, and faithfulness. These qualities us to have a conception of God that was restricted in the early ages. To live as seeing Him who is invisible, to live with a consciousness that we are in Him, that He is around us, and that He knows us altogether, may be said to be the perfection of living. Naked and open are we before Him with whom we have to do"—naked and open as we are before the physician, an surgeon—stripped, that every fault and failing may be made known. Being naked and open before Him with whom we have to do, what then? Shall we be afraid? Shall we come boldly," because God sees us through and through. He has such love, He has such goodness, His disposition is such that, as a man opens himself before Him, he finds in his God all sympathy, all recognition, all help and in the consciousness that we behold Him that is invisible, we ourselves are strengthened, and in some measure of that divine element in us which shall yet make us sons of God.

Ah, the supremacy of God! Kings may rage, governments may battle each other, parties may form, even nature itself may be affronted by various experiments of men; but there is a Being that controls the universe; that is at the head of all providence; that is near to us, allied to us—allied to us not simply in that He created us, and than treated us as a farmer treats his chickens, leaving them, after they are hatched, to scratch and take care of themselves, but as a mother is allied to her babe, which is the most precious part of herself. We are children of God an I heirs with Jesus Christ.

If I were a professor of theology, sitting in a chair, I might be called upon to undertake to discriminate between one view and another, and harmonize all the various views given in the Bible; that is a very good thing for one that is a teacher of theology; it meets many questions that arise in the minds of thoughtful persons, and there ought to be men somewhere to guide such ones, but for you and me, living in ordinary life, the thing I present is that God is your Father; that His nature is goodness; and, if you seek a more familiar family name, that His name is Love. If you live in the daily consciousness of His being and presence, and in your thoughts bring Him down to you, it will equip you for all the sorrows, mistakes, burdens, pains, and penalties of life. It will lift you above the smallness of time. Your worth, your value, will not be interpreted by property, nor by praise, nor by the want of them. You are the children of the Highest; and you have the right to live in such daily converse and consciousness of His presence that you shall be connected with time, yet feeling infinite, absolute perfectness.

We are all marching thither. We are going home. Men shiver at the idea that they are going to die; but this world is only a nest. We are scarcely hatched out of it here. We do not know ourselves. We have strange feelings that do not interpret themselves. The mortal in us is crying out for the immortal. As in the night the child wakes and cries for mamma, its fear arises not so much from any definite cause that it has terror, cries out, to express its fear and dread, and its cry is interpreted in the mother's heart, who runs to the child, and lays her hand upon it, and quiets it to sleep again, so do you not suppose that the ear of God hears our disturbances and trials and tribulations in life? do you not suppose that He who is goodness and love cares for you? Do you suppose that for whose royal name is Love has less sympathy for you than a mother has for her babe? Let the world rock. If the foot of God is on the cradle, fear not. Look up, take courage, hope, and hope to the end.

Disease gathers strength as it advances. Annihilate it at its birth. There is danger in neglecting a cold. Many go to early graves who have died of consumption, dated their troubles from exposure, followed by a cold which settled on their lungs, and in a short time they were beyond the skill of the best physician. This medicine has no equal for curing coughs, colds and all affections of the throat and lungs.

Chicago, Ill., March 8.—The speculation in wheat, which has been steadily increasing for a week past, leaped all bounds to-day, and the scene in the pit was very wild. There was a continuation of the upward movement from the start. The dealing was confined almost entirely to May delivery, and the outward evidence indicated that a "squeeze" in that month was to be attempted. The excitement in the pit during the advance was very great, and shorts were thoroughly alarmed. The advance of May from 83¾c to 86c was almost instantaneous. After the top was touched, and even before it, there was heavy selling by some of the powers identified with the bull side. The market sold off to 85½c and closed there at 10 o'clock. In the afternoon May again rose to 85¾c, but the offerings suddenly grew to be very large. For a time the market was but one remove from a panic. May started in apparently strong, but immediately began breaking under enormous offerings and dropped by ½c to 85¾c. There was a combined solid rush to sell out. If a broker could not get what he wanted for it he took what he could get. Around 85¾c the feeling became steadier and prices recovered to 84½c, finally closing at 84⅝c. Everything except wheat was entirely neglected. On the curb, late in the afternoon, the price was 84¾c. There is a very broad suspicion that a moneyed combination is attempting a "squeeze" in wheat, but the interesting problem for a speculator to decide is, "Who is under wheat?" Cincinnati, San Francisco, New York and Chicago cliques are known to be under different sections of it. May and June were quoted at the same figures at the opening, but May at one time commanded a premium of 1½c over June, but this was reduced to ¾c at the close. The leading futures closed:—WHEAT, March, 78¾c; May, 84½c; June, 83¾c. CORN, March, 34¾c; May, 40c; June, 41c. OATS, March, 24c; May, 29¾c; June, 29½c. PORK, March, $20 35; May, $20 75; June, $20 90. LARD, March, $7 62½; May, $7 80; June, $7 82½. Cash quotations: FLOUR firmer. No. 3 spring WHEAT, 78¾c to 80c; 80½c; No. 2 red, nominal. No. 2 CORN, 34½c to 37½c. No. 2 OATS, 24c. LONDON AGRICULTURAL SEED TRADE

Monday, Feb. 21.—Messrs. John Shaw & Sons write that the markets for field seeds have lately exhibited no special feature of interest. Stocks for the moment prove fully adequate to the demand. Country dealers, generally, seem this season, as usual, to prefer waiting for the actual sowing requirements to come on before laying in any considerable portion of their supplies. Meantime prices all round show no great movement either way; English reds can occasionally be picked up at reduced figures, whilst in foreign white there has been a substantial fall. Choice Alsike well holds its own. In Trefoils and Ryegrasses, both Italian and Perennial, there is no quotable variation. For bird seeds the sale is slow; canary seed tends downwards. More money is asked for rape seed.

TOLU AND TAR.

All healing tar. Everybody knows the curative properties of tar. A young woman of Boston was recently presented with a very valuable coin, a shekel of the time of Christ. She took it to a jeweller to have it mounted with pearls as a breastpin; and when she went for it was horrified to find that the jeweller had scoured off all the sacred accumulations of ages, and the shekel shone as bright as a new nickel.

The Toronto Telegram proves that the more the Globe abuses a public officer in that city, the higher the official's character rises in the estimation of the people. Instance:—Inspector Hughes' salary raised $500. He has been branded as a coward, corruptionist, sordid romancer and driveling incapable. Still there are to be found a couple of dozen people in London who believe all they read in that organ.

On Thursday last, 3rd March, a large gathering of the members and adherents of Cromwell Presbyterian Church surprised Mr. A. McKenzie at his residence, in West Nissouri Township, by presenting him with an address and a handsome gentleman's Florentine plush easy chair as a small token and recognition of their indebtedness and appreciation of his valuable services and assistance to the church and congregation in the past, and as an expression of thankfulness for his recovery from his late illness. The address was read by the pastor, Rev. Wm. Galloway, and was signed by him on behalf of the congregation. Mr. McKenzie, who was altogether taken by surprise, made an appropriate reply in feeling terms, after which a bounteous repast was prepared by the ladies of the congregation, and a pleasant evening was spent by all those present.

Wilson & Rankin's Minstrels occupy the boards at the Grand Opera House to-morrow night. The company is a good one. Speaking of one of their recent performances the Norwich (Conn) Bulletin says:—"The curtain was rung up on a pyramid of twenty-five vocalists and instrumentalists, and from first to last the entertainment was a treat. Wilson and Rankin in their varied acts won a strong hold in the appreciation of the people, and the whole company, in attractive costumes, unique stage movements, charming songs, wonderful sketches, graceful dances and convulsing repartee and comicalities, kept the audience in a constant roar of laughter. The special musical attraction, the pavers of Paris, were as merry with the musical stones, brooms, rammers, shovels and pickaxes as the royal bell-ringers are with their silver chimes."

A large assemblage met on Wednesday, 2nd inst., at the house of Mr. James Eaton, Harrietsville, to witness the marriage of his third daughter, Harriet Mary, to Mr. Edwin Abbott, son of Mr. William Abbott, all of Harrietsville. The young couple went west to spend their honeymoon, accompanied by the best wishes of their numerous friends. They intend to settle in this neighborhood after their return.

The Hamilton Times last night stated that "Mr. Noah Shakespeare and Mr. Baker (the members for Victoria, B.C.) were re-elected. Mr. S. is a Government supporter, and Mr. Baker claims to be Independent." This last assertion is on a par with the claims put forth by Grit journals. Mr. E. C. Baker's address to the electors of Victoria reads:—"I beg respectfully to announce myself as a candidate for re-election to the Commons, as a supporter of the Liberal Conservative party." Next!

Mr. James Liddell, son of Andrew Liddell, of Dunwich, Elgin county, was to have been married the other day to Miss Morris, daughter of the widow Morris. Monthly meeting of St. George's Society to-morrow night. Business—arranging for anniversary service and banquet.

No. 2 EDUCATIONAL.—A meeting of No. 2 Committee of the Board of Education was held last night. Present:—Messrs. T. Love (Chairman), Sharman, Wilson, Somerville, Inspector Boyle and Secretary Abbott. Accounts passed:—John Lewis, $9; Jas. Greenway, $9 35; Fairgrieves, $55 69; Joseph Lewis, $4; A. Nuric, $1.30; Thos. Bryan, $4 60; John Dunn, $1. The question of arranging for the cleaning of dry earth closets was referred to the Chairman and Mr. Wilson. Messrs. Butler, Wallace and Smith, insurance agents, were heard in reference to insurance matters. On motion, $2,000 on the Waterloo street North school was renewed with the Ontario Mutual for three years at 55c. The insurance on Colborne street was renewed as they at present stand at the rate of 60c. for three years. The matter of appointing a temporary janitor in place of Mr. Hansen, who is sick, was left with the Chairman. The Secretary was instructed to get prices for printing minutes and the annual report. Adjourned.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—"Engaged" last night drew a goodly audience, and was played in capital style by the McDowell Company. It is full of ludicrous love complications, arising out of a supposed marriage at Gretna Green, and the amorous fondancies of the male party to the contract in paying his "distresses" to every female he meets with. The play of Gilbertian wit, fancy and satire is keen and flashing, and really enjoyable at a first hearing, but some of the stilted, unnatural speeches are apt to pall and grow tedious unless the acting makes amends. This was fully the case last night. Mr. and Mrs. McDowell were admirably supported by their company of exceptionally clever and finished artists. In fact, a more thoroughly respectable dramatic combination it would be hard to find anywhere than this one. Success to them!

A RELIABLE CITIZEN, seventy-five years old—His testimony. He says:—I was persuaded by my wife to get a bottle of Barkwell's Bronchial Balsam; I was relieved by the first dose of an incessant and exhausting cough; and on finishing a 25c bottle I was, to my surprise, completely cured of this annoying and painful affliction, and I unhesitatingly recommend it to all who may suffer likewise as the best preparation I ever used, and sure to give a speedy and permanent cure. eod

CLOUDS AND RAIN.

A communication to the London Meteorological Society, by Capt. Toynbee, states as his conclusion that clouds of not less than 2,000 feet in thickness are seldom accompanied by rain, or, if they are, it is very gentle, consisting of minute drops with a thickness of between 2,000 and 4,000 feet, the size of the drops is moderate; with increasing thickness of the clouds comes an increasing size of the drops, and at the same time the degree of temperature becomes lowered. When the thickness amounts to more than 6,000 feet, hail is produced.

THE MALAHIDE MYSTERY.—Havelock Smith, the young Malahide farmer, who has twice been tried for the murder of Marshall Piggott in November, 1884, will probably be released next week upon his own recognizances, to appear when called upon. The facts of the celebrated case are well known. In November, 1884, Piggott mysteriously disappeared and his body was washed ashore at Long Point in the December following, which his mother and brothers positively identified as that of the missing man. An investigation resulted in the arrest of Smith, who, it is stated, has twice been tried, the first time before Judge Armour, when the jury disagreed, seven being for acquittal and five against, and the second time before Judge O'Connor, when the jury again disagreed, seven being for conviction. The Spring Assizes open at St. Thomas on Monday, and County Crown Attorney Donahoe yesterday received a letter from the Attorney-General's department to the effect that the Crown will not be ready to go on with the case

FELL BETWEEN THE CARS.—Another has again to be added to the list of accidents that have happened on the Michigan Central during the past couple of months. Yesterday morning Mr. Angus McDonald, transfer conductor, whose run was between Suspension Bridge and Montreal, was walking on his train just as it was leaving the latter place, when he slipped and fell between the cars, the wheels of which passed over him and cut off both legs. Two physicians, of Clifton, were summoned, and the Company's surgeon, Dr. W. H. Smith, of St. Thomas, and W. J. Orr, Secretary of the Railroad Hospital Association, of which the unfortunate man was a member, also went down to the scene of the accident, but despite their efforts the injured man is not expected to recover. He was a married man, about 45 years of age, and had six small children. His relatives reside near Melbourne. This is the sixth accident that has occurred on the road within as many weeks, all from the same cause, falling off the cars.

The Regents' Precautions.

The Bulgarian Regents, fearing an outbreak of hostilities, have divided Bulgaria into two military sections and appointed a commander for each section, with virtually absolute powers. Tirnova has been fortified and garrisoned until the Varna and Bourgas shore defences have been strengthened with artillery.

Murder and Suicide.

To-day M. Aubergal, the conductor of the orchestra at the Grand Theatre, Toulon, quarrelled with his mistress, an actress named Lery, and shot her dead just as she was buying a ticket at the railway station, preparatory to leaving the city. The murderer then threw himself beneath a passing train and was crushed to death.

Queen Victoria has sent a telegram to the Czar congratulating him on his escape. The Prince of Wales visited the Russian Ambassador to-day and expressed the grief of himself and the Princess of Wales that such an attempt had been made upon the life of the Czar, and offered their congratulations upon the Czar's escape.

An Irish Parliamentary Scheme.

The Dublin Evening Telegraph publishes this story:—A memorandum of an Irish parliamentary scheme, as extensive as that of Mr. Gladstone's, was recently found in a copy of Thoms' Official Directory for 1885. The memorandum is in Lord Ashbourne's handwriting, and the directory came from Lord Ashbourne's residence. The document, after curious adventures, was bought by a Conservative member of the House of Commons, who had it lithographed and copies distributed among his friends.

The New Cardinals.

Cardinal Pecci, the Pope's brother, received the new Cardinals at Rome to-day, and accompanied them to the throne room, where the Pope conferred upon them the Mozetta and Crimson Beretta. Cardinal Mazetta addressed the Pope, who replied. In the morning a vatican messenger went to the residences of Cardinals Gibbons and Taschereau, and other members of the Sacred College, to notify them that a public consistory would be held to-morrow. On Thursday the new Cardinals will receive their hats.

The Queen's Next Journey.

The royal yacht is ordered to be ready for service by the end of next week, as the Queen, having changed the arrangements of her trip to the Continent, is to leave Windsor on Wednesday, the 23rd, a week earlier than the day originally fixed for her departure. Her Majesty will leave the Castle at 9.30 in the morning for Portsmouth harbor, where she is to embark for Cherbourg on board the Victoria and Albert, which will be escorted across the Channel by three other royal yachts. Cherbourg harbor is to be reached before dusk, and the Queen will dine and sleep on board the yacht, starting at ten on Wednesday morning, the 30th, direct for Cannes. The special train on which Her Majesty travels will pass around Paris by the Cinture Railway. The Queen is to reach Cannes on the afternoon of the 31st inst., and will remain there till the evening of Wednesday, April 6th, when she proceeds to Aix-les-Bains, travelling by way of Marseilles and Lyons. The Queen will be accompanied by Princess Beatrice and Prince Henry of Battenburg, and she is to be attended only by a very small suite. Her Majesty has abandoned her intended visit to Darmstadt, and she will return home from Aix-les-Bains through Paris, where the Royal party will probably stop at the Embassy for a couple of days. The Queen is to stay at Aix-les-Bains for about eighteen days, and she will occupy the Villa Mottet, where she resided during her last visit, two years ago. The Court returns to Windsor not later than April 29th.

The St. Petersburg Bomb Fiends.

The St. Petersburg Official Messenger publishes the following:—On Sunday last, at 11 o'clock in the morning, three students of St. Petersburg University were arrested on Newsky Prospect, having in their possession bombs. The prisoners admitted that they belong to a secret criminal society. The bombs found on them were charged with dynamite. Each bomb was arranged to throw 11 balls, and all these balls were filled with strychnine. The Czar and Czarina came back from Gatschina to St. Petersburg yesterday morning, attended a ball given by the Grand Duke Vladimer, and returned to Gatschina in the evening. Baron de Stael, Russian Ambassador to London, has received from all the diplomats in London and from Prime Minister Salisbury expressions of congratulation on the Czar's escape from assassination last Sunday, and of horror over the plot against his life. A despatch from St. Petersburg says two of the six persons arrested on the Newski Prospect are quite young, and that two others appear to belong to the peasant class. All six carried poisons, and it is presumed they intended to commit suicide in the event of arrest. Twenty female students of Bestwcheff Institute are among those arrested in connection with the plot.

The Trouble at Youghal.

In the Bankruptcy Court at Dublin to-day Father Keller, of Youghal, County Cork, was called to testify respecting his action as trustee under the plan of campaign. He was absent. Testimony was then given that a summons to appear had been served on the priest, that he refused to receive it, and that Mr. Harrington, who was present, took the summons, and that he threw it out of a window. At the Hanlon inquest at Youghal to day Mr. Harrington asked the Inspector of Police if a statement made in the House of Commons last evening by Mr. Balfour, Chief Secretary for Ireland, that 21 out of the 22 policemen engaged in the work of serving the first summons on Father Keller were injured in the riot which resulted was true. The Inspector replied that but three of the policemen were injured. He added that it was not he that supplied Mr. Balfour with the report, but Captain Plunkett. Witness was unable to say whether he had reported to Captain Plunkett that 21 policemen had been injured, but he swore that Mr. Balfour's statement was untrue.

Trevelyan's Position.

Sir G. O. Trevelyan, speaking at Liskeard this evening, said his position as regards Ireland had not changed. He hoped, however, that a basis of agreement would yet be found by conciliatory methods. The Liberals were all agreed upon a general policy, and desired a similar agreement with reference to Ireland. He repeated that the Gladstone Bills were dead and buried and could be ignored. He believed there was very little real difference between Lord Hartington's conditions for the settlement of the Irish question and those which Mr. Gladstone enunciated in Parliament; but the latter, the Unionists thought, were not sufficiently embodied in Mr. Gladstone's Bills. He never expected that the leaders who had been separated from the Liberal party by their objections to the Gladstone Bills, would return to that party unless their objections were definitely met, but he certainly believed it possible to reconcile the differences, and to deal with the Irish question in a manner more thorough than the half-hearted style of the Conservatives.

Cable Notes.

Bismarck's cordiality to Italy increases.

Steward Brothers, slate and timber merchants, London, have failed. Liabilities, $500,000.

On the Emperor William's birthday 85 members of reigning houses will assemble with 350 notables en suite.

The Berlin Geographical and Anthropological Societies gave a banquet this evening in honor of Dr. Junker, the distinguished African explorer. The doctor, in a speech, gave a graphic account of his travels in the Congo country.

The Prussian Church Bill as passed by the commission of the Oberhaus grants religious orders restitution of their properties. The report of commission will be placed before the Chamber on Friday next. The measure fails to conciliate the centre party.

It is reported at Berlin that Emperor William, on receiving the French General, Marquis d'Abzac, said:—"Tell your compatriots that there is no danger of war. So long as I live I shall use all my influence to maintain peace. God will soon call me to himself. I do not wish to leave my people a heritage of blood. Germany shares my desire for relations with France."

TORONTO.

Toronto, March 16.—There was a large turnout of magnificent Clydesdales at the spring stallion show, under the auspices of the Agriculture and Arts Association, which opened in Haymarket Square at one o'clock. Some of the best horses of this breed in the Province are being exhibited.

Daniel A. Stewart and Florence Andrews were to-day committed for trial on the charge of procuring girls for prostitution. Evidence was given by two girls that they were engaged by Stewart as domestic servants and were sent to a house of ill-fame in St. Mary's, kept by the woman Andrews. This afternoon Carrie McDonald, who came from St. Mary's to-day to look after Stewart's house here, was arrested as an accomplice.

Prof. Goldwin Smith and Mrs. Smith left to-day for a visit to Washington and the South for the benefit of their health.

Two colonists' trains of 32 cars left last night for Manitoba and the North-west by way of the Northern and Pacific Junction Railway.

Joseph Small, Oscar Hopkins and John R. Johnston were to-day committed for trial on charges of uttering counterfeit bills, bail being refused.

Thos. Curtis, John Meany, Alice Dowling and Maggie Winfield, who were arrested in Hamilton last week with a quantity of stolen goods in their possession, had charges against them heard to-day. Curtis was discharged. Meany and Winfield got two months each in the Central Prison, and Dowling one year in the Mercer Reformatory.

The annual meeting of the Agriculture and Arts Association of Ontario was commenced here to-night. The following officers were elected:—President, J. C. Snell, Edmonton; Vice-President, Ira Morgan, Medcalfe; Treasurer, George Graham, Brampton. The various Committees were also appointed. The annual report showed an income from registration fees of $1,398, being $481 75 less than last year, without shorthorn registrations. The sale of herd books amounted to $315 25. Total receipts $1,613 25. Total expenditure $1 805. The assets amount to $537, which, added to receipts, will leave a credit balance. A deputation from the Veterinary College were received and presented a petition, asking the co-operation of the Association in carrying through the Legislature a Bill prohibiting persons other than graduates of the College from practising in the Province, under a penalty. The opinion was expressed that the Bill was of too sweeping a character, and the deputation was advised to modify it before presenting it to the Legislature.

The following were the prize takers at the Clydesdale stallion show this afternoon:—Class 1—Stallions foaled previous to Jan. 1st, 1884, 1st, Glinns, owned by Robert Beith, Bowmanville; 2nd, Lucky Getter, Beattie & Torrance, Markham; 3rd, Grange, Graham Bros., Claremont; 4th, Laird o' Logie, David Annan, Pickering; 5th, Macarthur, W. THE VICTORY IN HALDIMAND.

Grand Conservative Demonstration in Honor of Dr. Montague at Hagersville.

Hagersville, March 16 (special).—The Young Men's Liberal Conservative Association of this town held a big demonstration to-night to celebrate the victory gained by the election of Dr. Montague as the member for Haldimand. The Doctor was met at the M.C.R.R. Depot by a delegation, and escorted through the town by four brass bands and a big torchlight procession. Fireworks were displayed all along the route. The vast audience could not be seated in the Opera House. The Doctor addressed the assemblage from the balcony. Addresses of welcome were presented to the Doctor, who replied in his usual eloquent manner. The reception that Dr. Montague received equalled any in this part of the country before. The cheering was immense, and a good evidence of the Doctor's popularity. Senator McCallum was present, addressed the audience and congratulated them on having redeemed Haldimand. A banquet will be tendered Dr. Montague in a few days.

PLOTTED TO KILL THE CZAR.

REPORTED CONSPIRACY TO ASSASSINATE ALEXANDER CONFIRMED.

Over 200 Persons Arrested in Connection with the Affair—The Intended Victim Sheds Tears on Learning of His Danger.

London, March 16.—The Russian Embassy in London has received dispatches confirming the reports of the discovery of a plot to assassinate the Czar and the arrest of the ringleaders. These dispatches say that no actual attempt was made to kill the Czar, as the plot had been discovered before he left the palace. The British Government has received dispatches to the same effect from Sir R. D. Morier, the British Ambassador at St. Petersburg.

On Sunday morning the Czar had no suspicion of any danger whatever. He had been congratulated by Gen. Gresser upon his continued safety. Both the Standard and Times confirm the statement that the Czar took a different route from the one announced. The story that a bomb was thrown beneath the Czar's carriage appears to have emanated from Vienna. The thread of the narrative is still somewhat obscure. The St. Petersburg papers, even of Monday, give no account of the affair. The Czar cried on hearing of the danger which he had escaped. He did not learn the particulars until he arrived at the Gatschina palace.

The persons arrested in connection with the constitutional plot indignantly deny that they are in any way connected with the outrage, and repudiate the idea of conspiracy. Their motto is, they say:—"The people; with the Czar or against the Czar." They have published a lithographic periodical composed mainly of extracts from the works of notable writers on constitutional law and political economy. The statutes of the society obliged all the members to join at the signal of their chief in doing their utmost to subvert the existing government and establish a constitutional government.

A dispatch from St. Petersburg to the Daily News says:—While the Czar was returning from the requiem services in the Cathedral of St. Peter and St. Paul a bomb attached to a cord was thrown in his direction. The intention was to tighten the string, which was connected with the mechanism, and thus explode the bomb, but before it could be executed the criminal and a suspected accomplice were seized. It was found that they lived together in a lodging house in a suburb of the city. The police visited this house and discovered there a quantity of explosives and a number of revolutionary pamphlets. Over 200 persons have already been arrested in connection with the affair, and domiciliary visits are being made throughout the city. The German police had warned the Russian authorities that an attempt was to be made against the Czar's life, but the latter failed to trace the plotters.

A telegram from Vienna confirms the News' despatch and says that the bomb was thrown under the Czar's carriage and that it was shaped like a book, so that it could be carried in the hand without exciting suspicion.

A despatch from St. Petersburg to the Standard says that one of the six students arrested in connection with the plot carried a hollow book containing a bottle filled with dynamite and poisoned bullets. The others had parcels and bags containing bombs. The despatch also says it is alleged that a woman was arrested who had a bomb concealed in her muff.

A St. Petersburg despatch to the Times says:—On Sunday the route which was to have been taken by the Czar was crowded with gayly-dressed people. Before the Imperial party left the Fortress the police telegraphed thither that they had grave suspicions that violence would be attempted, and advised their Majesties to change their route. Accordingly the royal party drove by way of the Neva quay and a circuitous route, avoiding the town. Meanwhile arrests were made at the corner of the Newsky Prospect and the Great Morskaia, where the plotters expected the Imperial party would slacken its pace upon turning the corner. On Monday many of the 200 persons arrested were released. A special council was held on Sunday night, Grand Duke Vladimir presiding. The would-be assassin is of short stature. He refuses to reply to any questions.

Vienna, March 16.—It has been ascertained that the recently discovered conspiracy of Russian land owners and tradesmen to overthrow the Czar's Government was very extensive and included a number of military officers, and that it was chiefly on this ground that the Czar was averse to war.

The Berlin Post takes a gloomy view of the plot to assassinate the Czar, and says:—"With terror and regret we say that Europe must prepare to see Russia adopt a policy of despair, taking the shape in either a fatalist resignation or frantic adventures. The latter is more probable. It will require a superhuman effort on the part of the Czar to oppose the tempest of voices calling for war as a remedy for Russia's woes."

ALSACE-LORRAINE.

The Proposed Coercive Measures Discussed in Committee.

Strasburg, March 16.—During the discussion of the budget in the Provincial Committee to day, Deputy Winterer severely criticised the existing and the proposed repressive measures, and in behalf of all the protesting Deputies declared that the recent elections were not affected by any foreign influence.

Herr Putthamer replied that although the debate was raised in the absence of the principal representatives of the Government, Herr Winterer should not be altogether unanswered. The measures which the Government had in view were not open for criticism by the Committee. The Government officials were servants of the Emperor, not of the Provincial Committee, and they would be supported by the Government in their task of effectually binding Alsace-Lorraine to Germany. The Government was not responsible for newspaper proposals. It was not the result of the election, but the spirit in which it had been conducted that induced the government to resort to the adoption of measures of which Herr Winterer complained. Those measures did not go further than was necessary to protect the province from illegal agitation, and they would be enforced without regard to their being liked or disliked. The government was convinced that the time had arrived when it was necessary to adopt measures more severe than it had wished to adopt. A tendency to nullify the provisions of the treaty of Frankfort had to be confronted, and measures had to be adopted which were calculated to fortify the constitutional position of the Provinces, in the sense of welding them in closer cohesion with the rest of Germany.

AN ENGLISH EXECUTION.

A Woman Hanged at Liverpool for Poisoning Her Child.

Liverpool, March 16.—The public hangman yesterday executed his namesake, Mrs. Berry. She is the sixth woman that has been hanged here during the last fifty years. What Mrs. Druse was to the United States Mrs. Berry was to England. There was a great similarity in their love for finery in their death garments, in the heartless character of the murders they committed, in their mania for writing farewell letters and in the scaffold scenes.

Mrs. Berry was convicted of poisoning, with sulphuric acid, her eleven year-old daughter for the purpose of obtaining £10 insurance money. She was also charged by a coroner's jury with poisoning, with tincture of atropra, her own mother, so that she could secure about £200 of insurance money. The daughter was brought by her mother from school in perfect health to spend her last Christmas holidays at home. In the midst of some juvenile festivities the poison was administered to the child, and she died on the first day of the happy New Year. Said one of the principal witnesses at the trial:—"Never can I forget the piteous tone in which I heard the child, who was bright, beautiful and interesting, explain, as she sat on her mother's lap, 'Oh, mamma! how can you give me that horrible drink?'" No one doubts that Mrs. Berry was guilty, although she died protesting her innocence; and the last words she said were to ask Heaven to forgive the doctor "who swore my life away." During her last days on earth she had some curious interviews with her solicitor. On the table in her cell were a Bible, a prayer book, Longfellow's poems and a number of letters.

At the last stroke of the hour the woman and a small procession emerged from the prison into the yard. Here her nerve broke; she went into hysterics and fell fainting into the arms of two female wardens who were on each side of her. They supported her in the brief walk to the concealed, noiseless and padded drop, where she temporarily revived long enough to declare in weak tones, "I am innocent," and to give an ejaculatory prayer for forgiveness for the doctor. There was scarcely time to study her awful, spectral face before she disappeared from view. There was no prolongation of mental agony after she was pinioned; no meaningless reading of the death warrant; no flowery address to Heaven from the parsons. Only the short sentence from the service for the dying was read, and the murderess was dead. Berry, the hangman, stated that death was instantaneous.

GENERAL CABLE NOTES.

Gustave Achile Guillaumet, French painter, is dead.

An earthquake was felt at Mandalay, Burmah, yesterday, but no damage was done.

Baron Henry De Worms' preface to the forthcoming English edition of Count von Beust's memoirs will include letters from the Count criticising in a hostile manner Mr. Gladstone's Irish bills.

Eight moonlighters were tried a second time at Cork yesterday in consequence of jury disagreements on first trial. Six of them were acquitted, but in the cases of the other two the jury again disagreed.

The Vienna correspondent of the Standard says it is reported that Emperor William, on his birthday, will proclaim the Crown Prince Frederick William co-Regent, with the consent of the Bundesrath.

Many members of the Unterhaus and Oberhaus have enlisted in the Austrian army. General Jelentzix addressed them yesterday in patriotic terms, assuring them that the Emperor relied upon their devotion for the protection of the country.

Colonel William Henry Browning, paymaster at Chatham, who had been 30 years in the service, and was entitled to a retiring pension of £250, has been found guilty of embezzlement to the extent of £4,000, and sentenced to sixteen months' imprisonment with hard labor.

A deputation from the Irish Leaseholders' Association had an interview to-day with Mr. Balfour, the Chief Secretary for Ireland, who promised that the Government would give their views serious and sympathetic attention. The deputation afterwards interviewed Mr. Parnell, who promised to support any measure for their benefit.

A DRAIN CASE DECIDED.

Dillon vs. Township of Raleigh Finally Disposed of.

Ottawa, March 16.—The appeals from the Court of Appeal for Ontario were taken up by the Supreme Court yesterday, the first on the list being the case of Dillon vs. Township of Raleigh. In this case the Township of Raleigh had made an assessment on a certain district in the township for the construction of a drain, and had issued debentures for $600 to provide funds for the same. A report was made by a surveyor, and a contract made for constructing the drain, the contract price being $4,000. The township then refunded the difference between the contract price and the amount of the debentures to the ratepayers of the district. The appellant, Dillon and others, on whose behalf this suit was brought, accepted the refund, but notified the Council of the Townships that they would insist upon the drain being completed. The drain was not completed, and this suit was brought to compel the Township to have it finished. The court of first instance gave judgment for plaintiff, and ordered the Township to finish the drain within six months. The Court of Appeal endorsed this judgment and dismissed the action. The Supreme Court to-day dismissed the appeal from the latter judgment without calling on the respondents' counsel, holding that after accepting the refund the plaintiff could not insist upon the completion of the drain, and that no valid decree could be made in the matter, as the only thing the township could be compelled to do would be to proceed against the sureties of the contractor. Mr. Douglas, Q. C., appeared for the appellants; Mr. Moss, Q. C., for the respondents.

The Big Railway Deal.

New York, March 15.—It is generally believed on Wall street that the control of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company has passed into the hands of a syndicate. The story is current and is reported by parties who are generally accepted as good authority that Jay Gould has acquired a quarter interest in the syndicate, and has paid $1,400,000 in cash on the agreement. Russell Sage is also named as a member of the syndicate. According to reports the Western Union takes the Baltimore & Ohio telegraph line. Dinsmore takes the express business for the Adams Express Co., and the Pennsylvania Railroad takes the road. The details are said to have been arranged last night.

THE TERRITORIAL ELECTION

OVERWHELMING CONSERVATIVE VICTORIES.

Sir John's Estimate of the Government's Majority—The East Bruce Case.

Winnipeg, March 16.—The territorial election resulted yesterday, as had been expected, in overwhelming Conservative victories. The Liberal candidates were practically out of the fight, Messrs. Davis, Davin, McDowell and Perley easily defeating their opponents by large majorities. In Eastern Assiniboia Mr. Perley had a walkover. In Western Assiniboia Mr. Davin had a little more work, but had a good majority over Mr. Ross. Mr. McDowell appears to have had a majority over Mr. Laird at almost every poll. The only constituency where anything like a contest prevailed was in Alberta. There Dr. Lafferty, the Reform candidate, polled a good vote in his own town, Calgary, but did practically nothing elsewhere. The real fight was between Mr. Davis, a straight Conservative, and Mr. Hardisty, Independent Conservative. Practically it was a contest between north and south. Mr. Hardisty had a large majority at Edmonton and all the northern points, while in the more populous south the reverse order of things prevailed, and the result has been the election of Mr. Davis.

SIR JOHN'S ESTIMATE.

Sir John Macdonald sent the following telegram to Mr. Davis on Monday:—"After a careful revision of the Government's majorities they may be set down as follows:—Ontario, 14; Quebec, 11; Nova Scotia, 7; New Brunswick, 4; Manitoba, 3. A total of 39. Prince Edward Island returns six Opposition members, but British Columbia has already returned four Ministerialists, and the remaining two will, undoubtedly, go the same way. These Provinces, therefore, offset each other, leaving a total present majority of 39, to be increased, we hope, to-morrow, by the 4 North-west seats, bringing it up to 43."

MR. CARGILL'S RESIGNATION.

Ottawa, March 16.—It appears that Mr. Cargill, who has just resigned his seat for East Bruce, assigned his business before the general election, but it was questionable whether he had disposed of his postmastership in sufficient time. As there was some doubt as to the legality of his election the advice of counsel was obtained, and Mr. Cargill was recommended to resign his seat, which he did by taking a Government position. It is said that a Customs appointment was given to Mr. Cargill to make his disqualification clear, and this he has since resigned. The writ for the new election has been sent, although the date has not transpired.

How Cholera May be Spread.

New York, March 16.—The Tribune says: In spite of the fact that cholera has been raging in the Argentine Republic since last November, merchandise from River Platte and Chili has been steadily brought into this port and distributed over the country in a thousand different directions, with no attempt at precaution on the part of the quarantine officials. Now that the winter is over and such safeguard as frost gives can be depended upon for only a short time longer, shipping brokers, custom officials, longshoremen and others who are brought into direct personal contact with this merchandise from cholera-infected countries are alarmed over the inaction of the health officials. Even some of the importers who own merchandise but do not run the risk of handling it are feeling a lively interest in the question whether there is to be quarantine established here this summer against products of the River Platte. It is said some brokers whose business it is to handle and inspect stuff for importers have refused to perform their duty.

Two Canadian Girls on a Tramp.

St. Paul, Minn., March 16.—Two children wandered into Windom, Minn., on Sunday evening and gave their names as Charlie and Bertie Byers, of Rochester, N. Y. Yesterday it was discovered that they are girls, named Lilly Davey and Kate Leeker, aged 14 and 16 years. They were born in Lindsay, Ont., and on the death of their parents were taken to Rochester by their brother, W. A. Byers, of Calgarry, North-west Territory. Wearying of Eastern life they started without money to join their brother. After several vain attempts to get away they exchanged their attire for that of boys. They travelled on foot or in box cars with tramps, encountered all imaginable dangers, and finally wandered into Windom depot. Their friends have been notified.

Floods in the North-west.

Bismarck, Dak., March 16.—A Northern Pacific train from the West, delayed seventy hours by flood, reached here last evening. Reports indicate that the Missouri must break within this week, and there is great alarm among people living along the banks. Thirty bridges on the Northern Pacific, between this point and Billings, have been swept away, and much other damage has been done. Miles City is under water. At Medora, water surrounded the extensive slaughter house and refrigerators of the Marquis de Mores. Never in the history of the country has there been so much snow water as is now pouring into the Missouri in immense torrents, and every creek is swelled to the proportions of a river.

A Schooner Wrecked—Perilous Position of the Crew.

North Eastham, Mass., March 15.—An unknown two masted schooner was wrecked this morning near the life-saving steamer at Nausette. All attempts to reach her by the crew of the station have failed. The sea is at present making a clean sweep over the schooner, and the hull is almost under water. Three men can be counted from the shore, lashed to the foretop, and one man is clinging to the bowsprit. The life-saving crew have fired 15 lines at the vessel, out of which only one reached her, but the sea is too heavy to do anything. There is not much prospect of saving the crew unless the weather moderates.

Shot and Killed His Friend.

Lexington, Ky., March 15.—At Moorhead, Ky., yesterday, J. N. Witcher playfully remarked to Trumbo:—"I could cut your throat, Trumbo, were you and I to get into a difficulty, before you could draw your pistol to save your life." "Well," said his companion, "I will just show you that you could not," and immediately pulled his pistol and fired, the ball taking effect in the brain of Witcher, killing him instantly. Trumbo was arrested.

Storm on the Banks.

Gloucester, Mass., March 16.—Vessels arriving from George's Bank report a gale of great energy swept over the banks on March 11. It is feared much damage was done, as a large fleet of fishing vessels were on the banks.

QUEBEC LEGISLATURE.

Speech from the Throne at the Opening Yesterday.

Quebec, March 16.—The first session of the sixth Parliament of Quebec was formally opened this afternoon. The speech from the throne, after referring to the Queen's jubilee in suitable terms, and expressing regret that the health of the Lieut.-Governor has compelled him to ask for a short leave of absence, says:—

The Ministerial crisis which took place at the commencement of this session and the exceptional circumstances which necessitated my calling on my present advisers, justify me in telling you that my Government will not be able to lay before you several important measures which are actually under consideration, and which must be brought to your notice later on. This will not prevent you being called on to examine some urgent measures which require your attention. The financial question will rank first. Amongst these the construction of a railway, the erection of the legislative and departmental buildings, and of the Court House at Quebec and the various subsidies granted to the railways. The loan of 1882, destined to complete these undertakings, to pay off the balance of these subsidies, and to liquidate the floating debt of the Province, has been completely expended, and it has satisfied only a portion of these demands. There still remains unpaid a considerable amount of the floating debt. A full and detailed statement of all claims above the consolidated debt (which are actually pending, and which comprise the present floating debt, the uncontested portion of which must be paid within a brief delay if the honor and credit of the Province are to be maintained), is being prepared, and will be laid before the House. The Government has not had time to devise any plan for providing means to meet the emergency of the moment, and the only alternative left is to suggest a new loan sufficient to pay off all lawful claims.

The Government intends inviting the Governments of the other Provinces and that of the Dominion, to examine a question of vital importance—namely, that of their financial and other relations with the Federal Government. The obscurity in some respects of the British North America Act, 1867, and the interpretation given to some clauses of that Act under certain circumstances, have given rise to well founded fears for the maintenance of our local institutions, and necessitate an understanding between the Provincial and Federal Governments with a view to arrive at a state of things more satisfactory to all. The lapse of twenty years since Confederation has shown the insufficiency of the financial arrangements made at the outset. Upon entering into Confederation the Province of Quebec, like the others, gave to the central power its portion of the customs and excise revenue, which have more than doubled since. It has received in return only a yearly fixed and settled grant. While the Provinces gave up in this way the surest and most important of their revenues, they remained burdened with having expenses for the supplies of their local institutions, which expenses must of necessity increase with the growth of the population and the development of their country. Under those circumstances, and for these reasons, the Government believes the time has come for the Provinces to consider the situation, and to consult together upon the means to surmount the present difficulties and prevent their recurrence. The Legislature will be made acquainted with the progress of the negotiations which may take place on this subject, and called upon, if need be, to pass resolutions suitable to the circumstances.

The Government intends to devote special care to the speedy settlement of new townships, and will submit a measure for the establishment of a special Ministere of Agriculture and Colonization, and endeavor to favor still more bona fide settlers, while at the same time protecting the revenues of their own lands.

The serious difficulties which have arisen respecting insane asylums and the occasion of putting into force the Statute of 1885 relating to these asylums, render necessary the appointment of a royal commission empowered to discover, by consulting the most competent authorities, the causes of these difficulties and the proper means to put an end to them.

Recent and regretable occurrences have shown that our system of keeping public accounts was imperfect and required some alterations. These, it is the intention of the Government, to make as soon as possible.

The Government intends to practice the strictest economy to effect certain urgent reforms in the administration of justice.

EAST BRUCE.

Nomination, March 26; Election, April 2—No Opposition to Mr. Cargill as Yet.

Walkerton, March 16.—Mr. Cargill, the member elect for East Bruce, has resigned on account of the flaw in connection with the Postmastership of the village of Cargill. The returning officer has issued his proclamation, calling for the nomination of candidates on the 26th of this month. If Mr. Cargill is opposed the election will be on the second of April, but so far there is no opponent in the field.

THE PARLIAMENT BUILDINGS JOB.

AN EXTRAORDINARY STATE OF FACTS.

Crookedness in High Places—How Mowat has been Deluding the People.

From the Owen Sound Times.

It will be remembered that during the Provincial elections there was a good deal of dispute as to what the contract let for the new Parliament Buildings amounted to, but no direct information could be got from the Department respecting it. The public had as a certainty the fact that the Government had promised the buildings would not cost more than $750,000, and in pursuance of that pledge the statute was passed not to exceed that amount. Information got out that in defiance of this pledge the Government had let a contract for the stone and brickwork alone, or the bare walls, without either roof, floor, or anything else, exceeding the amount they were limited to for the whole buildings, the amount understood to be in the neighborhood of $800,000! The Grit papers and speakers believed it would never do to admit such a damaging fact, and so there were emphatic denials made, and assertions that the contract let was not up to the amount limited for the whole buildings. Although no direct word could be got from the Department, Grit papers paraded a letter supposed to be received from it, denying in a roundabout way, and at last the Globe came out with the bold assertion that the contract let to Lionel Yorke only amounted to $671,250. Even that amount for the bare walls was a monstrous thing, when the faith of the Government was pledged not to exceed $750,000 for the whole building; but we felt certain, and we stated at the time, that the Globe was trying by some trick to conceal the true amount.

The House has now met—the facts can no longer be concealed—and the return of tenders and contract laid on the table of the House decide the matter and confirm the contention of those who said that the contract for the bare walls was far more than the whole building was to cost. The papers brought down show that the tender of Lionel Yorke, who got the contract, was $809,000. But after the tenders were in, the letting of the contract hung fire; the good Grit who had the monopoly of supplying the stone was told that he was too greedy and would have to come down a little, or the work could not go on, and he made a reduction in the price of the stone, on which the contractor agreed to reduce his tender $43,000. A change was also made substituting mortar for cement, and a reduction of $13 750 was made on this account. Taking off these items, the contract to Lionel Yorke was let for $752,250, or $2,250 more for the stone and brickwork than the whole building was to cost. The Government has made an arrangement with him to take the bricks necessary for the building from them, at $6 per thousand, and he is bound to take whatever quantity may be necessary, not exceeding 13,500,000 bricks, at that figure; and the brickmasers are to be subject to the competition of the convicts in the Central Prison, by whom all the bricks to be used in the building are to be made. It will be remembered that when during the campaign the Globe stated that the contract only amounted to $671,250, we stated that it was dishonestly leaving out something, and we believed it to be the material. The facts verify our assertion; for the way the Globe got at the figures it gave and represented the contract to be only $671,250 was by omitting the $81,000 of bricks to be made at the Central Prison!

These are some of the facts as brought down to the House, but we refrain from further comment at present, as there are other facts yet to be got out about this extraordinary transaction, before the public are in a position fully to discuss it.

Repeal of the capital punishment law has been effected in Maine, and imprisonment for life is substituted for death in all cases of murder in the first degree. Such convicts, however, are not to be kept in close confinement away from all associations, and no pardoning power is left to the Governor-in-Council unless the convict is proved innocent.

It is reported at Washington that the resignation of William C. Endicott as Secretary of War is in the hands of the President. While this is probably premature the fact is that there is very little sympathy between the President and Mr. Endicott, and their entire alienation may occur at any time. Mr. Endicott, it is asserted, finds his duties in the Cabinet not congenial. The President, it is asserted, is disappointed in Mr. Endicott. As a political factor he has been a failure, and in his official capacity he has offended many prominent men who have had business relations with the department, to the general annoyance of the President.

Fatally Injured by a Vicious Stallion.

Windsor, March 16.—Daniel Fox, a South Gosfield farmer, was fatally injured yesterday. He owns a vicious stallion, and was the only one who could feed the animal. Yesterday he slipped in the horse's stall, when the brute started to tramp on him. His cries attracted the attention of the hired man, and Fox was taken out more dead than alive. Two of his ribs were broken and he is suffering internal pain.

SUICIDE.—The inhabitants of Windsor were startled on Tuesday evening about 9 o'clock by the announcement of the suicide of one of the oldest and most highly esteemed citizens, John McNish, carpenter and builder, aged 65, has long resided in a comfortable home at 172 Windsor avenue. His wife, of about the same age as her husband, is the only other member of the family, their married daughter residing at Regina, N.W.T. At about the hour named McNish seems to have experienced a fit of temporary insanity. He arose, secured his razor and with one desperate blow severed the muscles, windpipe, jugular vein and carotid artery of the throat, expiring in a few minutes. His aged wife, who no doubt witnessed the act, was so overcome by the deed that she could only scream, which brought a body of neighbors. For hours the woman lay in hysterics and was only quieted by artificial means. The coroner was summoned and decided that no inquest was necessary. The deceased was a man of considerable means, possessing several houses and lots in Windsor and a fair share of personal property.

THE NEW CHURCH IN THE NORTH.—It has been decided by the congregation and churchwardens of the Chapter House to proceed with the erection of a new church, which will be located on the old college property at the corner of Wellington and St. James streets. The new edifice, which is to be of white brick with Ohio stone trimmings, will be 100x49 feet, and will have seating accommodation for 500 people, but there will be no galleries. There will be two entrances, one of which will be surmounted by a tower 128 feet in height, and the building will be heated with hot air. A separate structure will be built for Sabbath-school purposes. The building committee met on Tuesday evening to consider the tenders, but owing to the high figures it was decided to postpone final action until a full meeting.

LOCAL AND DISTRICT.

James Sutherland, M.P., North Oxford, was on a visit to the jail here yesterday.

One drunk was fined $3 at the Police Court yesterday, and a liquor case enlarged till Friday.

The London Township Agricultural Society have decided to hold their spring show at Ilderton on Friday, April 22nd.

Mr. William A. Reid, of this city, has been appointed as one of the official umpires of the International Base Ball League.

Robert A. West, the alleged opium smuggler, has not yet furnished the bond of $5 000 for his appearance in the United States Court next June and occupies a cell in the jail at Detroit.

Judgment was rendered yesterday by James Noble, Scott Act Police Magistrate, in the case of John Smith, proprietor of the Asylum Hotel, upon the charge of violating the provisions of the Canada Temperance Act. Smith was fined $50 and costs, his own recognizance being taken in $100 for payment of the amount on Monday next.

An entertainment was given on Tuesday evening at the residence of Mr. J. Frith Jeffers, under the auspices of the Young Ladies' Mission Circle of the Queen's avenue Methodist Church. There was a very large attendance, and upwards of $34 was realized. A good programme of solos, duets, and vocal and instrumental selections was rendered, in which Misses Saunders, Forsyth, Hobbs, Webster, Dodge and Rogers, and Messrs. Featherstone, Skinner, Rowell and J. B. Dignam participated.

The Forest City Business College Literary Society's programme Tuesday night was well carried out. Vice-President Keating occupied the chair. G. M. Evans opened the meeting by a piano selection, after which a quartette by Misses Hughes, Robertson, Armstrong and Adams was given. The "Clipper," by Mr. Meadows, was spicy, and contained the results of recent examinations in "commercial paper and arithmetic." The harmonica selections by Messrs. Armstrong and Davis were enjoyed, but the most enjoyable part of the programme was the debate, resolved "That money has more influence over men than women." Messrs. Robertson, York and Flannary argued for money, and Messrs. Hughes, Webster and Davis pleaded lovingly for the women, but the money won. Reading by Mr. Westervelt, critic's remarks and the singing of the National Anthem closed the entertainment.

THE BETTS ACCIDENT CASE.

Are the Records of a Railway's Inquiry into the Cause of an Accident Privileged?

Among the judgments delivered in the Common Pleas Division of the High Court of Justice at Toronto the other day, was one of especial interests to solicitors upon points of practise Betts v. The Grand Trunk Railway Company is an action for damages for injuries to the plaintiff in a railway accident which happened on the 24th September, 1884. It appears that the train in which Mr. Betts, solicitor, of this city, was a passenger, was thrown off the track, the immediate cause not being ascertained. Mr. Hannaford, Chief Engineer of the Grand Trunk, happened to be on the train at the time and held an immediate investigation into its cause, at first upon the ground and then in a room in Toronto, at which many of those concerned in the accident were examined—the station agent conductor, brakemen, trackmen and others—and some others whom it was not convenient to examine, furnished written statements of their knowledge of the matter. It was contended that the plaintiff was entitled to have produced for his inspection, as part of his discovery in the action, the report written upon this investigation and the memoranda of evidence and written statements taken. This was strenuously opposed by the railway company upon the ground that these were privileged documents. Mr. Hannaford was examined in the cause, and said that these documents were in the custody of the Assistant General Manager, Mr. Wainwright. He further said that they were not obtained for the solicitor, nor for the purpose of being laid before him for advice, nor in view of any impending or threatened litigation, nor after litigation commenced, but "for the purpose of the management of the line"—"for our own purposes; it was not intended for a purpose of this kind." Mr. Bell, the Grand Trunk solicitor, was not present at the investigation, but in an affidavit made by him he said that he thought the information was obtained that he, as solicitor and counsel for the company, might advise as to their liability for damages arising from the accident, and that it had been used for such purpose and no other. Mr. Justice Rose, who delivered the judgment, said that even if so, the report and the evidence would not be privileged, the point being covered by the authority of decisions of the English Court of Appeal. He thought, and the other judges agreed with him, that the documents were not privileged, and must be produced for inspection.

LICENSE APPLICATIONS.

List of Hotel Men, Grocers and Wholesale Dealers Who Apply for Liquor Licenses for 1887-8.

Inspector Henderson has received during the last few days 94 applications for licenses to sell spirituous liquors. The total number issued last year was:—Taverns, 61; shops, 21; wholesale, 2—total, 84. There is an excess of the applications this year mostly for tavern licenses, and if the Commissioners do, as it has been semi-officially announced they will, cut down the number of licenses for this year to a considerable extent, the man who gets a license may consider himself lucky. It will be noticed in the following list that there are two applications for each of the premises occupied by Mrs. Smith, Mrs Daley and Mr. Land.

A FIGHTING AND FITING BOUT.—Maurice Baldwin and Wm. Nelson had a fight near the corner of Dundas and Adelaide streets last night. It is related of the difficulty that some time ago the two men were trying the speed of their horses, and Baldwin struck Nelson with his whip, but whether it was accidental or otherwise is not stated. Nelson then pulled up, and Baldwin drove away from him. Last evening, when the two men met, Nelson asked Baldwin if he was as good a man now as he was the other night, and then, without waiting for a reply, struck Baldwin across the eyes with his whip handle. Baldwin waded in with his fists and struck one or two pretty stiff blows, but got his finger in Nelson's mouth and had it badly bitten. In the meantime, a number of respectable citizens, including a well-known clergyman, gathered round and went to separate the men, but were prevented by others in the crowd. Then Baldwin got his finger loose and pretty nearly turned Nelson's mouth back over his head, so viciously did he pull at the cheek. The men were finally separated and walked off in different directions. Baldwin bears a souvenir of the encounter in the shape of a black eye.

THE STORY OF HUNDREDS.—In a recent letter received from Mrs. Sarah A. Mills, of Wheatley, Ont., she says, "I was a sufferer for six years with dyspepsia and liver complaint. My food did not digest, and I grew weaker every day. I lost appetite and had little hope of recovery. I tried many remedies, but all in vain, till I took Burdock Blood Bitters. The first bottle gave relief; after taking seven bottles, I am thankful that I now enjoy good health."

THE IRISH RITUAL.

Fraternal Visit of a London Lodge to Hamilton.

The Spectator says:—"About 40 members (including the officers) of St. John's Lodge, No. 209 A., of London, visited Strict Observance Lodge, of this city, last night on invitation, to give an exemplification of the third degree of the ancient Irish ritual. St. John's is the only lodge in Canada which is permitted to work in the Irish ritual, this privilege having been conceded to the lodge when it affiliated with the Grand Lodge of Canada in 1872. There was a large attendance of Freemasons last night, including M. W. Hugh Murray, I. P. G.M., R. W. Bro. J. J. Mason, Grand Secretary, and other eminent members of the craft both in the city and from a distance. The work of the third degree, as exemplified by the brethren from London, was extremely beautiful and impressive, and greatly pleased the assembled brethren, to most of whom it was new. The officers of St. John's Lodge who exemplified the work are:—Bros A. E. Cooper, W.M.; J. A. Smith, S.W.; Geo. C. Davis, J.W.; A. Carrothers, S.D.; J. Stephenson, J.D.; J. H. Hodgins, I.G.; J. Siddons, Secretary; D. Burn and J. Graham, Stewards.

After the adjournment of the Lodge the visiting brethren were royally entertained at a banquet in the Scottish Rite chamber. Covers were laid for over three hundred. A very happy time was spent, and it was long after midnight before the company dispersed. Several of the London brethren left by the early morning train, but most of them remained over in the city, and will go home to-day.

From the Times of the 16th.

One of the most important events in Freemasonry which have taken place in this city for a good while was the visit of St. John's Lodge, No. 209, of London, to Lodge of Strict Observance, No. 27, last night. Besides the thirty-eight visitors from London and a number from Toronto and other places, there was a turnout of 250 or 300 members of the city lodges. Those from St. John's Lodge, London, were:—W Bros A E Cooper, W M; James Smith, S W; Geo C Davis, J W; John Siddons, Secretary; Arthur Carrothers, S D; J T Stephenson, J D; Jas H Hodgins, I G; R W Bro J S Dewar, W Hawthorne, W A Reid, S S Armitage, H J Bowen, John A Rose, J M Dufton, J M Shaw, Alex McDonald, Wm Ryan, Geo McComb, Geo Pelton, John Harris, D Ferguson, H S Rhycard, T A Rowat, O W Smith, Geo H G Hawthorn, Geo P Lilly, D Burns, J Graham, John Burns and others. There were also present from a distance Bro T B Robb, Constitution Lodge No. 241, New York City; W Bro T F Lash, Ionic Lodge, Toronto; W Bro M MacLeod, Zetland Lodge, Toronto; W Bro J D Crichton, King Solomon's Lodge, Jarvis; R W Bro John Simpson, King Solomon's Lodge, London; W Bro Wm Crawford, Valley Lodge, Dundas; W Bro B C Mooley, Mountain Lodge, Thorold; A R Beymington, Rehoboam Lodge, Toronto, and W Bro Henry Bickford, Dundas. The M W the P G M Bro Hugh Murray; R W Bro J J Mason, Grand Secretary; R W Bro Gavin Stewart, P D D G M; R W Bro J W Murton, P G S W; V W C R Smith and many other distinguished members from the city were present, as well as Past Masters E W Klotz, W C Morton, Thomas Irwin, F F Dalley, Wm Carey, Charles Lemon, B J Morgan and R A Hutchinson, of Lodge of Strict Observance. The work of the Third Degree was exemplified in the Irish ritual by W Bro Cooper, W M, and officers of St. John's Lodge, London, which is the only Lodge in Canada using that ritual exclusively. When the meeting was closed the brethren were invited to a banquet which had been prepared in honor of the visitors. A large number of those present accepted the invitation, about 200 people sitting down around a magnificent repast, spread in the most delicate manner. Mr W F McGiverin, Master of Lodge of Strict Observance, presided, and occupying seats on his right and left respectively were W Bro Cooper, of St John's Lodge, London, and M W Bro Hugh Murray. The first toast proposed was that of "The Queen and the Craft." The National Anthem was sung in chorus. The toast of the "Grand Lodge of Canada" was given, after which the Masonic Glee Club sang "Ye Shepherds Tell Me," Prof. James Jonnson and W. Bro. W. C. Morton taking solo parts. M. W. Bro. Hugh Murray responded to the toast. He said that in no Grand Lodge of any country in the world was better work done than in the Grand Lodge of Canada. That Lodge was composed of the best merchants, doctors, lawyers and ministers of the country, and other Grand Lodges were vying with each other to see which could equal Canada. He knew this from the reports he had received while Grand Master. He had been delighted with the manner in which the officers of St. John's Lodge had worked the third degree of the Irish ritual. After complimenting the officers and members of Lodge of Strict Observance, he resumed his seat amid applause. Bro. Alex. Calder sang "The Land Where the Shamrock Grows" and was encored. The toast of "Our Sister Grand Lodges" was responded to by R W Bro J S Dewar, of London; that of "The Officers and Members of St. John's Lodge, No. 209a, London," called for a hearty reception. After "The Old Oaken Bucket" had been sung by Bros J Johnson, E Hodgins, W C Morton and T M Davis, W Bro Cooper responded, thanking the officers and members of Lodge of Strict Observance for the kindness they had shown the members of his Lodge. R W Bro Simpson, of King Solomon's Lodge, London, also replied. Bro. Cooper then proposed the toast of "The Officers and Members of Lodge of Strict Observance," which the St. John's Lodge members received royally. W Bro Mc Giverin, W M, responded. The toast of "Our Visitors" was responded to by W Bro McKay and Bro O'Brien, and Mr. Morton sang "Drinking." Other toasts were given, speeches made and songs sung until the hour of departure, when all expressed sorrow at parting and a desire to meet again.

THE TRAMWAY BILL.—The Railway Committee of the Local Legislature held a meeting Tuesday at Toronto and discussed the Act to incorporate the Thames Valley Tramway Company, with power to construct 34 miles of road from London to Springbank, a pleasure resort on the Thames river. Some discussion arose as to whether the Company should be allowed to use steam. Mr. V. Cronyn, one of the promoters of the road, stated that it was their present intention to employ a new invention, on the principle of a cable. The Bill was allowed to stand to permit of the addition of certain clauses suggested by Mr. Meredith, providing for use of tramway rails, dummy engines if steam is employed, and certain other restrictions intended to guard the interests of London.

SCOTT ACT SPIES.

How They Narrowly Escaped being Hurt at Glencoe.

A correspondent writing from Glencoe says:—Just a week ago word was received here that two whiskey informers, wearing black caps and overcoats and driving an iron grey horse, were on their way to our town. In less than half an hour some forty men banded together with the avowed intention of making an example of the coming visitors. A watch was sent out to Strathburn (two miles distant), and after patiently waiting several hours, saw the long-looked-for about 5 p. m. passing through the village in the direction of Wardsville. All that night an angry crowd of men marched the streets of Glencoe, and had the whiskey informers entered the village there is no doubt some desperate deed would have been committed. Next morning word was received that the spies were on their way to Glencoe, and sure enough, about 9 a. m., the grey horse and the two sleuthhounds entered the village. No man could be mistaken in them. They were the genuine type in every respect. They were young men in years, with a mean, hungry, sneaking appearance; said their name was "Jones," and that they lived near Ilderton. They stopped at McRae's hotel, and had no sooner entered than they were surrounded by an angry crowd, who were prepared to teach the Scott Act cranks a lesson; but at this moment Constable Donnelly and Doctor Blackwell appeared on the scene and prevented trouble. The latter two took the spies and escorted them out of town, and advised them to be careful in future. They then drove to Mr. Mullens', hotel-keeper, Appin, and asked for a drink and their dinner; but Mr. Mullens had just received word from Glencoe, and threatened to kick them off his premises. A letter just received from a man near Ilderton says:—"It was the two Joneses that visited your village, and I have no doubt from what I have just learned that they are hired servants of Icspector. Williams." Such are the chances of murder being committed in every village in which the Scott Act is working. How long this state of things will be allowed to go on remains for those in higher power than I am to say.

FREE PRESS CORRESPONDENCE.

Amalgamation.

To the Editor of the Free Press.

SIR,—I see it suggested that steps be taken to amalgamate London West with the city. Why do not the London Westers settle all their troubles by moving into the city? We have lots of room for them, and will make them welcome, if they would like to come in and "hang up their hats." But as for bringing in their flats along with them, I don't think much of it. If they themselves can't manage the flats, we don't want the task put upon the city. I think, sir, that we did very well by our good neighbors over there to permit them to build a breakwater, that, while it saves them, drowns out Thames street, city side. We ought to get damages for that; but will not be too hard on our neighbors, no matter how much trouble some of them may put us to. Sir, forbearance and kindness is a virtue, as you are aware. But I say if the good folks of the flats wish to come in, let them; treat them well, but let the flats stay out. If we had to manage the breakwater in addition to our own affairs, good land! I would like to see some of our London South neighbors also move into town. Let them move in and fill up the waste places.

The Western Fair and Queen's Park.

To the Editor of the Free Press.

SIR,—While I am not opposed to the Western Fair, I wish to state a few points that I think are worthy of consideration at this time. I find that people are greatly divided in opinion as to where it shall be located. And the question is a serious one, when we look at the large amount of money that is demanded for building purposes. If the buildings are to be only temporary, it might be worth considering whether Queen's Park would be suitable; but if we are going to lay out $80,000 in buildings, then I, for one, am prepared to go against it. In the first place, we don't own Queen's Park. It is under a mortgage. I am told, of $26 000. Our Council in 1883 borrowed that amount upon its security. Therefore, before we talk of using Queen's Park for Fair purposes we will have to take up that mortgage. Then there is not enough of room in the Park for a Fair. We should have to buy eight or ten acres more adjoining it, which would cost about $2,000 an acre. Altogether, the Queen's Park and additional land to be purchased, would foot up to about $50 000. Put $80,000 into buildings, and you have about $130,000 of city money locked up in Fair grounds and buildings, to be used only one week of the year. Again, when the old grounds were sold off, it was because it was said to hinder the growth of the city northward. It was called a nuisance, etc. The people of No. 7 Ward cried out against it as a disgrace, etc., to have so much land locked up. It strikes me very forcibly that the same outcry would be raised in No. 5 Ward if we put the Fair there. The Park is now in the centre of a large population. What will it be in a few years' time, if, as we are told, the city is bound to grow that way? Why, sir, we shall hear the same complaint over again. And then will come the question of another removal, and another large outlay of the people's money, and by that time it may be more difficult than now to buy a suitable site somewhere else. I would go in for making a permanent thing of it while we are about it, that is, if it is necessary to keep up the Fair at all at so much expense, which is open to question. We may be paying too much for our whistle. I hope to see this matter fully ventilated before anything is done. Let the people consider it over, and see exactly how much is to be gained by all the fair fussery before they agree to buy Queen's Park and spend $80,000 in buildings upon it.

WILL BLAKE RETIRE?

That Mr Blake is about to retire from the leadership of the Opposition is a conclusion which has been frequently pointed out to the readers of the FREE PRESS as likely to come about. He has not been able to "win victories." When Mr. Mackenzie met with a defeat at the polls in 1878 it was deemed by the Grit party to be sufficient reason to hustle him off the stage, and Mr. Blake was installed in his place—in a manner so rude, so cruel, so unnecessary as to elicit the cry of "shame" from those who were cognizant of all the facts. But since that distressful period Mr. Blake has been defeated twice. If the same measure of justice be now measured out to him that he meted to Mr. Mackenzie he should be requested to retire, because he has not only not been able to "win victories" but because it has been demonstrated that he is not fitted by nature to be a leader. Besides, he has frequently told his followers that he did not want to lead. When speaking at the "great Liberal banquet" held in London in January, 1886, he put this very plainly before the "magnificent audience." Let us recall the language that he made use of. He said:—

"You know, gentlemen, I have never concealed it from you, that it was with reluctance I accepted the lead. High and honorable as that post is, I never coveted it; it suits me in no one of its relations to my life. I am deeply conscious how inadequately I fill it, and I grow each year more anxious to return to the ranks. I am told by some Ministerial organs, which, of course, have very confidential relations with the Opposition, that my wishes are seconded by a considerable number of my friends. I am glad to know it, and I wish that our community of sentiment in this matter might lead that contingent to so far confide in me as to concert measures to accomplish our common end."

One might have supposed that that was explicit enough. He did not want to be bothered any more with the affairs of the "great Liberal party" as its leader. It did not suit him. He asked them to relieve him from a duty that had become irksome to him. But they did not do it. They hung on to his ineffective skirts as their only hope of salvation. He was desirous to shake the dust of leadership from off his feet. He had endeavored to measure swords with Sir John Macdonald, but had found his blade too short. He had tried to pink him, but had always been received either by a successful parry, or by a decided thrust that made him wince and draw back in painful haste. No wonder that he had become tired of so hopeless a task. And the recent elections have added no little gall to a position that had become sufficiently distasteful. He has come to find that despite the adulations of his supporters he is not in the confidence of the people. That his pretences of superiority of purpose as well as of wisdom have not been entertained, and that the very man against whom he has so long cast forth his envenomed shafts has again proved to be the idol of the people, their much-loved counsellor and friend. So—as it is said—he is on the point of retiring. What will the great Liberal party do then? Mr. Mackenzie is not now in health and strength enough to take the lead again, and even Mr. Mills may be deemed to be not quite up to the mark. Some have it that Mr. Mowat may be called upon to try conclusions at Ottawa, but he would find himself rather hampered when there by a record that has been too grossly one-sided to meet with much general support. It is not likely that he would be able to "down" Sir John where Mr. Blake has so signally failed. So far as the Conservative party is concerned it matters but little. They will continue to carry on their policy of doing all the good that they can, in every direction, no matter who may lead the forlorn hope of the Grit opposition.

TRICKERY ALL ROUND.

The trick that Mr. Mowat played upon the architects of this Province was at best a scurvy one. They were asked to furnish plans for the erection of Parliament buildings at Toronto, the cost of which was no to exceed $500,000. Mr. Waite, a Buffalo architect, appointed as a judge in the matter, declared that the plans submitted could not be carried out for that sum. So without more ado the whole affair was handed over to him, and the plans that he has submitted, and which will necessitate an outlay of not less than $2,000,000, have been accepted by the Government, the Canadian architects being thus put out of the race altogether. It thus appears that faith has not been kept with the Province or the architects. The FREE PRESS has constantly warned the people that a building such as Mr. Mowat contemplated could not be put up for the sum first named, and instances were given of the experiences at Albany and at Ottawa pointing to the fact that in such cases the original estimate is always largely exceeded. Then the Ontario Government decided that a sum equal to $750,000 might be expended, but the Ontario architects were not permitted to compete on that basis. It was reserved for Mr. Waite, the American architect, if you please, to have the entire business placed in his hands. And what does his plan call for? Why, the very stone and brick-work will cost as much as Mr. Mowat had told the Legislature that the entire building would be put up for, and which the House thereupon granted the money to execute. There has been trickery all round. Trickery with the architects; trickery with the Legislature; trickery with the people. And yet Mr. Waters, of North Middlesex, and others like him, have the effrontery to stand up and tell the people that all this was necessary to be done.

CROWN LANDS STATISTICS.

From the report of the Ontario Commissioner of Crown Lands for 1886 we learn that there were sold during the year 55,641 acres of Crown lands. The sales amount to $50,169.65. The collections amounted to $55,452 15. The sales of clergy lands during the year aggregated a total of 1,788 acres. The sales amounted to $2,087.17. The collections amounted to $8 129 89. There were sold during the year 157½ acres of the common school lands. The sales aggregate $3,685. The collection were $17 997 26. There were sold during the year 783 acres of grammar school lands. The sales equalled $765 50. The collections on account of these lands amounted to $3,235 76.

The accruals for timber dues, bonus, ground rents, etc., for the year 1886 amount to $742,029.64, and the total collections under the same heads amount to $715 804 61. The total collected from all sources during the year was $820 895 68. The total expenditure of the Department for the year 1886 amounts to $259,564 51. The total collection during the year from woods and forests is $715,804.61, which includes $147,471 payment of bonuses on sale of timber berths of 22nd October, 1885, which became due in 1886. This sum being deducted leaves $568,333 61 as revenue proper from timber dues, ground rents, etc.

THE FALL WHEAT.

The weather of the past few days has been disastrous to the fall wheat prospects. On elevated situations and exposed to the action of prevailing winds the plant has a scorched appearance. From this time until steady growing weather sets in is the most trying period for wheat in this climate. Where the plan of mulching and top-dressing, which has been recommended in this journal, has been adopted, the plant is comparatively safe. However, on well-drained and fertile soils, wheat will stand a great amount of unfavorable and adverse weather. The alternate freezing and thawing, or the sudden difference in temperature, destroys the crop more than anything else. But the tillering or starting from the vegetation of a single grain of wheat is such that if one-half or even one-third of the plants remain there are sufficient to produce a heavy crop of grain. By all means let not farmers plow up their wheat fields because a few plants are winter-killed. As large crops of wheat as were ever produced were grown by Mechi, an advanced agriculturist, who used to only dibble in one peck of wheat to the acre, or a plant about every seven inches. One kernel of wheat will tiller out from 12 to 80 stalks and heads. The truth is, the majority of farmers sow their grain too thickly to produce the best results in quality of grain and yield. When wheat plants are crowded not sufficient light and nutriment is received to develop a well-nourished plant. The yield may be fair, but a great quantity of the kernels will be of the "lean kind," and only fit for chicken feed. Unless the case is desperate do not plow up any wheat. In any case harrow your wheat fields as soon as the frost is out, and the top dry; sow 150 to 200 lbs. of salt to the acre whether you have top-dressed with manure or not, and you may look for a fair yield of wheat this summer.

ONTARIO VS CALIFORNIA.

California, it is said, is not a poor man's country, and nowhere is this more evident than in the rural and mountainous districts. Living is cheaper than at the east, but it is harder to make money. Capital is centralized and labor is so cheap that a poor man has no chance. The men who are wealthy have enormous amounts. Ontario, on the contrary, is, par excellence, the poor man's country. Nowhere else, probably, in the world, is there a more general prosperity, or a more perfect realization of the words said of old, "give me neither poverty or riches." While there is no wealthy class, like that of California, there is none very poor.

It was said of Attila that he slept in the open air with no other covering than the skin of the lion that he himself had slain. But he was an old 'Un, and could possibly stand more hardship than some of us. A few nights of lying out in the weather of the past sixty hours, however, would give even him a chance to "be jolly under creditable circumstances," if it did not lay up a stock of rheumatiz. There may be something after all in the story told of the ancient knocker-out. The experience of an old Indian was given some time ago to the effect that the human body could become "all face" by gradual adaptation. A writer in a scientific journal says that in experiences in Colorado and Utah he never saw an Indian with a cold. He concluded that it is our hot rooms which gives us colds. And that is very likely true. Hot rooms and over much wrapping are fruitful of colds, sore throats, aching limbs and congested organs. A man in this city who wore a muffler about his throat for ten years was never free from ailments arising from the exposures due to occasional negligence, whilst never, since he ceased wearing it, has he been troubled in the same way.

Pasteur has another rival. A Dutch family at Pelzz, Holland, is said to be possessed of a secret remedy for hydrophobia. The oldest inhabitant cannot recollect a single case of hydrophobia in the neighborhood for the last seventy years. This mysterious drug has been known to the family for over 100 years, and has been successfully applied to men, dogs, cats and cattle. It has a soothing influence also on violent lunatics. Its harmlessness is shown by the fact that when a double dose was administered to a man who had been bitten by a mad dog, he simply fell into a profound sleep, from which he awoke without a trace of either drug or madness.

CURRENT TOPICS.

St. Catherine's Journal:—There is no solid reason why Mr. Mowat should longer adhere to the idea of playing parliament for two or three months annually, when all the work necessary could be accomplished in about thirty days every second year.

Professor Herzen has recently shown, from vivisectional experiments, the intimate relation between cold and touch, and that an injury to the cortex of the brain that destroys the sense of touch in any region will usually also abolish correspondingly the sense of cold.

The commercial relations between France and Canada have of late been receiving much attention from French capitalists and manufacturers. The latest serious move in that direction has been the arrival in Canada of Mr. Francis Giroux, who comes under the patronage of the Board of Trade in Paris.

It seems as if the License Commissioners had about made up their minds to strike off a number of hotel-keepers from the list of license holders. Is this a convenient pretext for punishing some wicked Tories? We were lately told that there was one hotel-keeper in London who had gone so far as to "hurrah for Sir John." Perhaps the Commissioners will see to his case.

Our city contemporary reminds us that "a large portion of the world is governed by very old men." For instance, Prince Bismarck is 71, M. Grevy 76, and Mr Gladstone 77; and yet Mr. Gladstone is a hale old buck, and game for more campaigns. Sir John A. Macdonald is only 72; and the people of Canada only wish that he will live to govern them till he is 90.

The Grit policy is not "Canada for the Canadians," but Canada for any other country but Canada. For instance, as the Manitoban agrees with us in saying:—"The Ontario Government has not pursued a very patriotic policy in employing American architects for its new Legislative and Departmental buildings. The work should certainly have been given to some one living on this side of the line."

A half dozen roast clams were eaten by Mr. Beecher, it is stated, on the night before he was seized with his fatal illness. A correspondent comments on this, and adds: "It is a rather singular coincidence that General Arthur ate clams for his last dinner, and was found unconscious and paralyzed in the morning. In the tables on the digestion of food roast clams are classed with pork, veal, lobster, etc, as hard to digest."

Heavy machinery is run by artesian-well power in many parts of France, and the experience of the French shows that the deeper the well the greater the pressure and the higher the temperature. At Grenelle a well sunk to the depth of 1,802 feet, and flowing daily 500,000 gallons, has a pressure of 60 pounds to the square inch, and the water from this well is so hot that it is used for heating the hospitals in the vicinity.

Mr. Mills rushes to the defence of Aeneas Cameron. He says the name is inappropriate, and that he is "not lying about his own possessions." No, he was lying about the North-west, in which the people of Canada and Huron take more interest. We are also told that "he has given the country valuable service." Right! He aided as much as any man to discredit Mr. Blake, by furnishing him with false briefs.

Cholera has not made its appearance at any point in Peru or Bolivia, but at Santiago its ravages are distressing, over sixty per cent. of the cases proving fatal. Seven cases are reported at Valparaiso, and are confined in the lazaretto. The strictest sanitary precautions are observed at Lima and at Callao. No vessels from Chilean ports are allowed to touch in those of Peru; commerce is therefore wholly interrupted, and the only sources of revenue are idle.

The opium ring in San Francisco is pleased with Secretary Manning's ruling that all opium seized which does not contain nine per cent. of morphia shall be destroyed instead of being sold. The chief incentive of the Custom House officers to discover smuggled opium was in their share of the profits on its sale, while the sale of the condemned drug injured the trade of the smugglers. In both ways this decision plays into the hands of the smugglers.

In an address to the congregation of a New York Methodist church recently, Miss Fannie Sparks, a missionary from India, said that the old custom of walking in pilgrimage to sacred shrines was dying out, and that pilgrims now generally rode in railway cars. Some of the cars were reserved exclusively for women. Recently a man, by some mistake, got into a woman's car, and then there was a time. Every woman in the car, including Miss Sparks, jumped on a seat and clamored for the man's instant removal. After a time Miss Sparks succeeded in quieting the outraged women, and the man got out at the next station, the most thoroughly frightened person in the car.

The Northern Pacific Railway Company are saying bitter things of the C. P. R. But it is to be taken in much the same sense as the oaths and objurgations of a person whose corns are trodden on. "We are cutting into the Northern Pacific through rates, both passenger and freight," said Mr. Whyte to a reporter recently, "and they are hostile. They are issuing pamphlets running down the C. P. R, and depicting snow slides and mountain accidents in a manner calculated to deter people from travelling over the line; but we are taking traffic from them every day, notwithstanding their efforts to injure us. There are now about sixty Americans in the city going to the coast who came by the C. P. R. to day and yesterday."

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

SIXTH PARLIAMENT—FIRST SESSION.

Special Per C.P.R. Line.

Toronto, March 16.—The House opened at 2.25

After the usual presentation of petitions, etc., Mr. Eventural moved for an order of the House for copies of all correspondence, papers and reports between the Department of Education and William S. Summerby and O. Dufort, Inspectors of Public Schools in the united counties of Prescott and Russell, during the last year, on the subject of Public Schools in the French settlements of these counties; also copies of all reports respecting the alleged difficulties between the English and French ratepayers of the town of L'Original, or upon the propriety of establishing a separate school for Protestant children in that town. Carried.

Mr. Meredith moved for an order of the House for a return showing the agreement entered into between the Province and the Roman Catholic Episcopal and Reglopolis College, the amount expended for repairs and improvements made at the expense of the Province upon the building. He said he supposed the House would be called upon to vote sums of money for the purpose of maintaining this institution. It was only just, therefore, that the House should be consulted before this responsibility was assumed by the Government.

Hon. Mr. Hardy said he had no objection to the returns being brought down.

Mr. Meredith said he understood the building had been unoccupied for a long time, and yet he saw an item in the Public Accounts of $1,500 for taking care of the building.

Hon. Mr. Pardee, in answer, said there had been a good deal of gardening done, and there was a large amount of fruit there. The Government had made it a condition that he should receive this amount before he vacated the building.

Mr. Meredith—There was nothing said about that last year.

Some discussion arose upon the second reading of Mr. Clark's Bill to amend the Consolidated Municipal Act.

The Attorney-General said he had a decided objection that the heads of Councils, Reeves and Deputy Reeves should be ex-officio Justices of the Peace.

Mr. Meredith—Hear, hear.

The Attorney-General had the greatest confidence in the member for Wellington, and if he thought there was a scarcity of Magistrates in his particular county he was willing to confer with him in the matter.

Mr. Meredith said there was a principle involved, and he objected to what the Attorney-General had said, that these gentlemen were not qualified to fill the position of Magistrates, as their present offices necessitated election by the people. He favored the Bill. It was hard for the Attorney-General to sit upon Mr. Clark in this manner, after the high position he had occupied in this House.

THE BUDGET.

The House then resumed the debate on the motion to go into Committee of Supply.

Mr. Aurey said the same charges of extravagance and general looseness of the finance of this Province were made by the Opposition in 1875; again in 1879; again in 1883, and again in 1886; and still on all these occasions the people had declared their entire confidence in the Government.

Mr. W. S. Biggon asked the indulgence of the House as a new member. He did not think it was a fair comparison to make to compare the finances of Ontario with that of Quebec. It was not a parallel one. The Government of Quebec had become poor to save the people from direct taxation; but the Government of Ontario was on the verge of direct taxation. He thought there was a good opportunity now for the Government of Ontario to go hand in hand with the Government of Quebec and demand of the Dominion Government what they wanted. The people of this Province were burdened with taxation. The municipalities were carrying debt, which it was almost impossible for them to bear. It would certainly in the near future be necessary for the Government to devise some scheme whereby these municipalities could be relieved, and although the Government claim a surplus of six or seven millions, the reality was that the Government had large liabilities. The principal portion of the assets claimed by the Government were not available. It was inconsistent to claim these as assets. In conclusion, he hoped the Government would help the municipalities out of their difficulties, as they would expect it. The Government had made the people believe they were rich, and, therefore, they had no excuse to offer why they should not assist the municipalities.

Mr. Waters said he had never listened to a more satisfactory statement than the one made yesterday by the Provincial Treasurer. He hoped the day was far distant when this Government would have recourse to direct taxation to carry on the government of this country.

Mr. Kyle thought it was unfair for followers of the Government to twit members of the Opposition as to the small majorities they had obtained at the late elections, when it was well known that the Government had the power to manipulate a large number of the constituencies, to their especial benefit, and that they had not been slow to use it. Some of the Government members said yesterday that the Opposition did not, or could not, find any reason for complaint in the management of the finances of the Province. Why, the Opposition had never ceased in their endeavors to make it plain to the members of this House and the people of the country that the expenditure was increasing out of all proportion to the receipts, and that the supposed surplus was not a reality.

Mr. Pacaud commenced by saying he was the youngest member in the House, and that the Opposition was a small sized one. He had been cruelly attacked in this House when he had not the opportunity to reply to the accusations, but he thought his election for West Essex was a satisfactory answer. He concluded by saying he had broken the ice and he hoped to be in a better position to address the House in future.

After recess the debate was resumed by Mr. Marter (Muskoka) He said considerable reference had been made to Colonization Roads. He held that the very fact of his presence in this House demonstrated that the district he represented had not received the amount they were entitled to, when he considered the amount of revenue obtained by the Government from that district. The roads were in a bad state. The people cannot of themselves raise the money to build the roads necessary. While the district had been charged with receiving a large amount of assistance from the Government for this purpose they had not really received the benefit. They were supposed to have. Instead of being expended on the roads a large amount of it found its way into the pockets of the road bosses, the generality of whom were Government campaigners at the time of elections. He hoped the Government would devise some better means of laying out the money in future, and it would redound to their credit. Campaign sheets had been scattered broadcast throughout the district in previous elections, to the effect that the Government intended spending a large amount of money on these roads, but at the last election his opponent dared not make any such promise, for the simple reason that the previous promises had never been fulfilled. With regard to immigration, he thought before voting money to assist immigrants to come to this country he would advise the Government to devise some scheme to keep the old settlers here. He knew an agent of the Government in his district who was receiving $150 per year as an immigration agent. He did not earn $50. It was high time that the item in the estimates for immigration purposes was struck out altogether. He also took exception to the large amount of expense attached to the Lieutenant-Governor's house. It was unnecessary expense. He was prepared to move a motion that it be not tolerated any longer. He had come to this House determined to advance the interests of the district he represented and the Province generally.

Mr. Armstrong spoke at some length in support of the grants to Colonization roads.

Mr. Murray, referring to the religious cry in the late elections, said the ministers in the church to which he belonged had not taken any active part in the late election. He rather favored the Opposition candidates. He held the Conservative party responsible for the religious cry brought before the electors in the election.

Mr. Hudson said he might say in reply to the hon. member for Renfrew that it was not the Conservative party who raised the religious cry. The Conservative party always claimed religious liberty for all sections of the community. If the Government had taken this stand they would not have been on the Treasury benches to-day. It had been said by members of the Government that the Opposition had never objected to the extravagant expenditure of the Government. He was prepared to contradict that statement. Time and again have the Opposition protested against the enormous expenditure of the Ontario Government, who, from the year 1873 and down to the present time, have spent more money than they have received from the revenue of this Province. Referring to the supposed surplus, he did not see why it could not stand good simply because it was unavailable. It was well known that Sandfield Macdonald had left a surplus in 1871, but from that time down there had been a deficit. From year to year we have been living on our capital.

Mr. Eventurel mainly occupied the time of the House in repudiating the charge that the Liberal party were responsible for the sectarian cry during the Provincial elections.

Mr. Meredith, who was received with loud Opposition cheers, said he did not intend to occupy the time of the House to any great length. In connection with this surplus, it had been more than once discussed in this House. The Government, in putting forth their financial statement, were misleading the people. Not only do they find themselves in an unenviable position by the claims of the different districts on account of railways and colonization roads, but there is another point. We all know, and we cannot shut our eyes to the fact, that the Province of Quebec, in conjunction with other Provinces, are about to make a demand for a resdjustment of the financial basis. Now, in putting forward this amount in our assets, it will go against this Province in the event of any settlement in the direction indicated. Therefore it was not to our advantage to claim this fictitious surplus. In discussing this surplus there was a consideration which should not be lost sight of. We have arrived at a time when our ordinary receipts did not come up to the expenditure, so that we are to day practically applying money to the administration of the affairs of the Province that cannot be met by the ordinary income. You will readily see that in the event of this six millions being paid into the treasury it would soon dwindle away under the present system of management, and then our income would be reduced annually to the amount of interest we are now receiving from that amount. It is time to stop this extravagant expenditure, unless we mean to have recourse to direct taxation, which would be a lamentable thing. The hon. gentleman had closed the Provincial Treasury against giving any aid to the Provincial railways. It was a fortunate circumstance for the Ontario Government that the Dominion Government had decided to take these railways off their hands. The hon. member for Prescott had referred to the religious cry, but he himself was a standing monument to the success of that cry. Mr. Meredith concluded by saying he denied on behalf of the Conservative party the charge of the raising the religious cry. At the same time he wished the House to understand that while he was prepared to give the Roman Catholics of this community all the rights of citizenship he was not prepared to give one iota more than their just rights. (Loud applause) He did not care if every member of the Cabinet was Roman Catholic, but he objected to only one member of that Cabinet holding office because he was a member of that persuasion. He did not object to the expenditure on Colonization Roads when it was spent in a legitimate manner, but he did object to the corrupt manner in which the present Government were spending that money. (Cheers.)

Mr. Ross replied, going over some of the ground in his previous speech.

After the motion to go into Committee of Supply was agreed to, the House adjourned at 11 o'clock.

Israel Desjardins, Warden of Essex County, was summoned before Magistrate Bartlet at Windsor yesterday, to answer a charge of bribing a voter at the recent Dominion election. The charge was made by Constable W. Lindsay, of Comber, who alleges that Desjardins paid one Norris Winegarden $2 to vote for Mr. J. C Patterson for member of Parliament. Mr Desjardins denies the accusation. The accused is about 50 years old and widely known in the county, where he has lived all his life. He has represented West Tilbury in the County Council several years, and was elected Warden by the Council last January. He lives at Stoney Point, where he owns a large general store.

PORT of ABERDEEN, SCOTLAND.

To Cattle Dealers and Agriculturists.

THE Aberdeen Harbor Commissioners beg to invite the attention of Cattle Dealers and Agriculturists to the advantages which the Port of Aberdeen presents as a Landing-place for Canadian Store Cattle.

Aberdeen has now been licensed by H.M Privy Council as a Landing-place for Foreign Cattle not subject to slaughter or quarantine, and a wharf for the purpose has been provided by the Harbor Commissioners, with sheds capable of accommodating 350 head of Cattle.

The number of Store Cattle at present required in the North-eastern Counties of Scotland, for which Aberdeen is naturally the place of import, is believed to be about 30,000 annually, and the opening of Aberdeen as a port of debarkation offers undoubted facilities and advantages, and cannot fail to enhance the demand in the district for Canadian Cattle for feeding purposes.

Further information may be obtained, on application, from the Minister of Agriculture, Ottawa; or from A. F. RIDDELL, 24 St. John street, Montreal.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

SIXTH PARLIAMENT—FIRST SESSION.

Special Per C.P.R. Line.

Toronto, March 16.—The House opened at 3.35

After the usual presentation of petitions, etc., Mr. Evantural moved for an order of the House for copies of all correspondence, papers and reports between the Department of Education and William S. Summerby and O. Dufort, Inspectors of Public Schools for the united counties of Prescott and Russell, during the last year, on the subject of Public Schools in the French settlements of these counties; also copies of all reports respecting the alleged difficulties between the English and French ratepayers of the town of L'Original, or upon the propriety of establishing a separate school for Protestant children in that town. Carried.

Mr. Meredith moved for an order of the House for a return showing the agreement entered into between the Province and the Roman Catholic Episcopal and Regiopolis College, the amount expended for repairs and improvements made at the expense of the Province upon the building. He said he supposed the House would be called upon to vote sums of money for the purpose of maintaining this institution. It was only just, therefore, that the House should be consulted before this responsibility was assumed by the Government.

Hon. Mr. Hardy said he had no objection to the returns being brought down.

Mr. Meredith said he understood the building had been unoccupied for a long time, and yet he saw an item in the Public Accounts of $1,500 for taking care of the building.

Hon. Mr. Pardee, in answer, said there had been a good deal of gardening done, and there was a large amount of fruit there. The Government had made it a condition that he should receive this amount before he vacated the building.

Mr. Meredith—There was nothing said about that last year.

Some discussion arose upon the second reading of Mr. Clark's Bill to amend the Consolidated Municipal Act.

The Attorney-General said he had a decided objection that the heads of Councils, Reeves and Deputy Reeves should be ex officio Justices of the Peace.

Mr. Meredith—Hear, hear.

The Attorney-General had the greatest confidence in the member for Wellington, and if he thought there was a scarcity of Magistrates in his particular county he was willing to confer with him in the matter.

Mr. Meredith said there was a principle involved, and he objected to what the Attorney-General had said, that these gentlemen were not qualified to fill the position of Magistrates, as their present offices necessitated election by the people. He favored the Bill. It was hard for the Attorney-General to sit upon Mr. Clark in this manner, after the high position he had occupied in this House.

THE BUDGET.

The House then resumed the debate on the motion to go into Committee of Supply.

Mr. Aurey said the same charges of extravagance and general looseness of the finance of this Province were made by the Opposition in 1875; again in 1879; again in 1883, and again in 1886; and still on all these occasions the people had declared their entire confidence in the Government.

Mr. W. S. Biggon asked the indulgence of the House as a new member. He did not think it was a fair comparison to make to compare the finances of Ontario with that of Quebec. It was not a parallel one. The Government of Quebec had become poor to save the people from direct taxation; but the Government of Ontario was on the verge of direct taxation. He thought there was a good opportunity now for the Government of Ontario to go hand in hand with the Government of Quebec and demand of the Dominion Government what they wanted. The people of this Province were burdened with taxation. The municipalities were carrying debt, which it was almost impossible for them to bear. It would certainly in the near future be necessary for the Government to devise some scheme whereby these municipalities could be relieved, and although the Government claim a surplus of six or seven millions, the reality was that the Government had large liabilities. The principal portion of the assets claimed by the Government were not available. It was inconsistent to claim these as assets. In conclusion, he hoped the Government would help the municipalities out of their difficulties, as they would expect it. The Government had made the people believe they were rich, and, therefore, they had no excuse to offer why they should not assist the municipalities.

Mr. Waters said he had never listened to a more satisfactory statement than the one made yesterday by the Provincial Treasurer. He hoped the day was far distant when this Government would have recourse to direct taxation to carry on the government of this country.

Mr. Kyle thought it was unfair for followers of the Government to twit members of the Opposition as to the small majorities they had obtained at the late elections, when it was well known that the Government had the power to manipulate a large number of the constituencies, to their especial benefit, and that they had not been slow to use it. Some of the Government members said yesterday that the Opposition did not, or could not, find any reason for complaint in the management of the finances of the Province. Why, the Opposition had never ceased in their endeavors to make it plain to the members of this House and the people of the country that the expenditure was increasing out of all proportion to the receipts, and that the supposed surplus was not a reality.

Mr. Pacaud commenced by saying he was the youngest member in the House, and that the Opposition was a small sized one. He had been cruelly attacked in this House when he had not the opportunity to reply to the accusations, but he thought his election for West Essex was a satisfactory answer. He concluded by saying he had broken the ice and he hoped to be in a better position to address the House in future.

After recess the debate was resumed by Mr. Marter (Muskoka). He said considerable reference had been made to Colonization Roads. He held that the very fact of his presence in this House demonstrated that the district he represented had not received the amount they were entitled to, when he considered the amount of revenue obtained by the Government from that district. The roads were in a bad state. The people cannot of themselves raise the money to build the roads necessary. While the district had been charged with receiving a large amount of assistance from the Government for this purpose they had not really received the benefit. They were supposed to have. Instead of being expended on the roads a large amount of it found its way into the pockets of the road bosses, the generality of whom were Government campaigners at the time of elections. He hoped the Government would devise some better means of laying out the money in future, and it would redound to their credit. Campaign sheets had been scattered broadcast throughout the district in previous elections, to the effect that the Government intended spending a large amount of money on these roads, but at the last election his opponent dared not make any such promise, for the simple reason that the previous promises had never been fulfilled. With regard to immigration, he thought before voting money to assist immigrants to come to this country he would advise the Government to devise some scheme to keep the old settlers here. He knew an agent of the Government in his district who was receiving $150 per year as an immigration agent. He did not earn $50. It was high time that the item in the estimates for immigration purposes was struck out altogether. He also took exception to the large amount of expense attached to the Lieutenant-Governor's house. It was unnecessary expense. He was prepared to move a motion that it be not tolerated any longer. He had come to this House determined to advance the interests of the district he represented and the Province generally.

Mr. Armstrong spoke at some length in support of the grants to Colonization roads.

Mr. Murray, referring to the religious cry in the late elections, said the ministers in the church to which he belonged had not taken any active part in the late election. He rather favored the Opposition candidates. He held the Conservative party responsible for the religious cry brought before the electors in the election.

Mr. Hudson said he might say in reply to the hon. member for Renfrew that it was not the Conservative party who raised the religious cry. The Conservative party always claimed religious liberty for all sections of the community. If the Government had taken this stand they would not have been on the Treasury benches to-day. It had been said by members of the Government that the Opposition had never objected to the extravagant expenditure of the Government. He was prepared to contradict that statement. Time and again have the Opposition protested against the enormous expenditure of the Ontario Government, who, from the year 1873 and down to the present time, have spent more money than they have received from the revenue of this Province. Referring to the supposed surplus, he did not see why it could not stand good simply because it was unavailable. It was well known that Sandfield Macdonald had left a surplus in 1871, but from that time down there had been a deficit. From year to year we have been living on our capital.

Mr. Eventurel mainly occupied the time of the House in repudiating the charge that the Liberal party were responsible for the sectarian cry during the Provincial elections.

Mr. Meredith, who was received with loud Opposition cheers, said he did not intend to occupy the time of the House to any great length. In connection with this surplus, it had been more than once discussed in this House. The Government, in putting forth their financial statement, were misleading the people. Not only do they find themselves in an unenviable position by the claims of the different districts on account of railways and colonization roads, but there is another point. We all know, and we cannot shut our eyes to the fact, that the Province of Quebec, in conjunction with other Provinces, are about to make a demand for a readjustment of the financial basis. Now, in putting forward this amount in our assets, it will go against this Province in the event of any settlement in the direction indicated. Therefore it was not to our advantage to claim this fictitious surplus. In discussing this surplus there was a consideration which should not be lost sight of. We have arrived at a time when our ordinary receipts did not come up to the expenditure, so that we are to day practically applying money to the administration of the affairs of the Province that cannot be met by the ordinary income. You will readily see that in the event of this six millions being paid into the treasury it would soon dwindle away under the present system of management, and then our income would be reduced annually to the amount of interest we are now receiving from that amount. It is time to stop this extravagant expenditure, unless we mean to have recourse to direct taxation, which would be a lamentable thing. The hon. gentleman had closed the Provincial Treasury against giving any aid to the Provincial railways. It was a fortunate circumstance for the Ontario Government that the Dominion Government had decided to take these railways off their hands. The hon. member for Prescott had referred to the religious cry, but he himself was a standing monument to the success of that cry. Mr. Meredith concluded by saying he denied on behalf of the Conservative party the charge of the raising the religious cry. At the same time he wished the House to understand that while he was prepared to give the Roman Catholics of this community all the rights of citizenship he was not prepared to give one iota more than their just rights. (Loud applause.) He did not care if every member of the Cabinet was Roman Catholic, but he objected to only one member of that Cabinet holding office because he was a member of that persuasion. He did not object to the expenditure on Colonization Roads when it was spent in a legitimate manner, but he did object to the corrupt manner in which the present Government were spending that money. (Cheers.)

Mr. Ross replied, going over some of the ground in his previous speech.

After the motion to go into Committee of Supply was agreed to, the House adjourned at 11 o'clock.

Mr. Desjardins denies the accusation. The accused is about 50 years old and widely known in the county, where he has lived all his life. TAR AND TOLU.

It is important at this season of variable temperatures to insure against the settling of a cough or cold which, if neglected, may result in a serious throat or lung affection. Dr. Oakwood's compound syrup of tar and tolu is a panacea alike for the simple and more aggravated forms of these common but troublesome ailments. Ask your druggist for it. tuts

Acting under instructions from the Department of Agriculture, Mr. Dyke, the Government agent at Liverpool, has just despatched a man to Norway to select suitable settlers for the island, which the British Columbia Government has recently reserved for them, between Vancouver Island and the mainland. It is expected that these settlers will be instrumental in developing the vast fishery resources of the Pacific coast of the Dominion.

PORT of ABERDEEN, SCOTLAND.

To Cattle Dealers and Agriculturists.

THE Aberdeen Harbor Commissioners beg to invite the attention of Cattle Dealers and Agriculturists to the advantages which the Port of Aberdeen presents as a Landing-place for Canadian Store Cattle.

Aberdeen has now been licensed by H.M. Privy Council as a Landing-place for Foreign Cattle not subject to slaughter or quarantine, and a wharf for the purpose has been provided by the Harbor Commissioners, with sheds capable of accommodating 350 head of Cattle.

The number of Store Cattle at present required in the North-eastern Counties of Scotland, for which Aberdeen is naturally the place of import, is believed to be about 30,000 annually, and the opening of Aberdeen as a port of debarkation offers undoubted facilities and advantages, and cannot fail to enhance the demand in the district for Canadian Cattle for feeding purposes.

Further information may be obtained, on application, from the Minister of Agriculture, Ottawa; or from A. F. RIDDELL, 22 St. John street, Montreal.

THE VEILED WOMAN.

A TALE OF ABSORBING INTREST

For some time there was no answer, but at last one of the men, a fine broad-chested fellow, well on in middle life, with deep-graven features and an eye like a hawk's spoke, and said that the orders that they had received were not to harm the white men; nothing was said of their black servant, so, egged on thereto by a woman who was now dead, they proceeded to try to hot-pot him after the ancient and honorable custom of their country, with a view of eating him in due course. As for their attack upon ourselves, it was made in an access of sudden fury, and they deeply regretted it. He ended to harm by praying that mercy might be extended to them, or at least that they might be banished into the swamps, to live or die as it might chance; but I saw on his face that he had but little hope of mercy.

Then came a pause, and the most intense silence reigned over the whole scene, which, illuminated as it was by the flickering lamps that struck out broad patterns of light and shadow upon the rocky walls, was as strange an one as I ever saw, even in that weird land. There, seated on her barbaric chair above them all, with myself at her feet, was the veiled white woman, whose awesome power seemed to shine about her like a halo. Never have I seen her veiled shape look more terrible than it did in that space, while she gathered herself up as it were for vengeance.

At last it came.

"Dogs and serpents," she began, in a low voice that gradually gathered power as she went on, till the place rang with it, "eaters of human flesh, two things have ye done. First, ye have attacked these strangers, being white men, and would have slain their servant, and for that alone death is your reward. But that is not all. Ye have dared to disobey me. Did I not send my word unto me by Billali, my servant, and the father of my household? Hath it not been taught to ye from childhood that the law of Sheis an ever-fixed law, and that he who breaketh it by so much as one jot or tittle shall perish? and is not my lightest word a law? Have not your fathers taught ye this, I say, whilst as yet ye were but children? Well do ye know it, ye Wicked Ones. But ye are all evil—evil to the core; the wickedness bubbles up in ye like a fountain in the springtime. And now because ye have done this thing, because ye have striven to put these men, my guests, to death, and yet more because ye have dared to disobey my word, this is the doom that I doom ye to. That ye be taken to the cave of torture, and given over to the torturers to wreak their will upon ye, and that on the going down of to-morrow's sun those of ye who yet remain alive be slain by the hot-pot, as ye would have slain the servant of this my guest."

She ceased, and a faint murmur of horror ran round the cave. As for the victims, as soon as they realized the full hideousness of their doom, their stoicism forsook them, and they flung themselves down upon the ground, and wept and implored for mercy in a way that was dreadful to behold. I too turned to Ayesha and begged her to spare them, or at least to mete out their fate in some less awful way. But she was hard as adamant about it.

"My Holly," she said, again speaking in Greek, which, to tell the truth, although I have always been considered as good a scholar of the language as most, I found it rather difficult to follow, chiefly because of the change in the fall of the accent—Ayesha, of course, talked with the accent of her contemporaries, whereas we have only tradition and the modern accent to guide us as to the exact pronunciation—"my Holly, it can not be. Were I to show mercy to those wolves, your lives would not be safe among this people for a day. Thou knowest them not. They are tigers to lap blood, and even now they hunger after your lives. How thinkest thou that I rule this people? I have but a regiment of guards to do my bidding, therefore it is not by force. It is by terror. Nay, the men must die, and die as I have said." Then turning suddenly to the captain of the guard, "My word is spoken—let my doom be done."

XVI.

THE TOMBS OF KOR.

After the prisoners had been removed, Ayesha waved her hand, and the spectators turned round and began to crawl off down the cave like a scattered flock of sheep. When they got a fair distance from the dais, however, they rose and walked away, leaving the queen and myself alone, with the exception of the mutes and a few guards, most of the latter having departed with the doomed men. Thinking this a good opportunity, I asked She to come and see Leo, telling her of his serious condition; but she would not, saying that he certainly would not die before the night, as people never died of that sort of fever except at nightfall or dawn. Also she said that it would be better to let the fever spend its course as much as possible before she cured it. Accordingly I was rising to leave, when she bade me follow her, as she would talk with me, and show me the wonders of the caves.

I was too much involved in the web of her fatal fascinations to say her no, even if I had wished to, which I did not. She rose from her chair, and making some signs to the mutes, descended from the dais. Thereon four of the girls took lamps, and ranged themselves two in front and two behind us, but the others went away.

"Now," she said, "wouldst thou see some of the wonders of this place, oh, Holly? Look upon this great cave. Saw ye ever the like? Yet was it, and many more like it, hollowed by the hands of the dead race that once lived here in the city on the plain. A great and a wonderful people must they have been, these men of Kor; but, like the Egyptians, they thought more of the dead than the living. How many men think ye, working for how many years, did it require to hollow out this cave and all the galleries thereof?"

"Tens of thousands," I answered.

"So, oh, Holly. This people was an old people before the Egyptians were. A little can I read of their inscriptions, having found the key thereto—and, see here, this was one of the last of the caves that they dug;" and turning to the rock behind her, she motioned the mutes to hold up the lamps. Carven over the dais was the figure of an old man seated in a chair, with an ivory rod in his hand. It struck me that his features were exceedingly like those of the man who was represented as being embalmed in the chamber where we took our meals. Beneath the chair—which, by the way, was shaped exactly like the one in which Ayesha had sat to give judgement—was a short inscription in the extraordinary characters of which I have already spoken, but which I do not remember sufficient of to illustrate. It looked more like Chinese writing than any other that I am acquainted with. This inscription Ayesha proceeded, with some difficulty and hesitation, to read aloud and translate. It ran as follows:

HOSPITAL ENLARGEMENT.

The Medical Staff and No 3 Committee Discuss the Question Last Night—Additions to the Present Building Proposed.

A meeting of No. 3 Committee and the medical staff of the Hospital was held last night in No. 1 Committee room. There were present Ald Saunger (Chairman), Vining, Moule, McIntosh, Jarvis, the City Engineer, Secretary Keary, Drs. Arnott, Jarvis, Wishart, Niven, E. G. Edwards, Drake.

Ald. Jarvis said, in reply to the Chairman, that he was getting out the stuff for the new woodrack, and it would be ready on Friday.

The Chairman instructed the Market Clerk to strictly observe the new regulations.

George Pook's request for a reduction in the charge for hospital treatment of his son was taken up. The amount incurred was $90; Mr. Pook had paid $30, and the balance was remitted.

The Chairman asked the medical men present to give their opinion as to the best remedy for the overcrowding at the Hospital. He thought the city could hardly stand the expense of a new building, but if was possible to build a new wing, if that could be made to answer. He denied the charges of uncleanliness contained in a recent communication to the press saying that with the exception of a little mud carried in on the floors at times when the weather was bad, there was no foundation for the charge. Special care was taken to keep the place clean.

Dr. Arnott denied the truth of the letter signed by Citizen, which was also unmanly and had a tendency to do harm. The Medical Superintendent had too much to do. There was not much fault in the present building, except it being so overcrowded. He believed a perfectly satisfactory Hospital could be made by building additions to accommodate the extra number of patients, and using the original building for the employes' apartments. Great danger was incurred by not having separate apartments for contagious diseases. He saw the other day a case of measles in the lying in ward, and circumstances rendered it impossible to isolate it. He did not desire accommodation in a city of 30,000 inhabitants for 100,000. The Hospital was kept clean, with the exception of the complaints of vermin in some of the wards, which might be due to the crowded state and the difficulty of moving the patients and getting the beds out for cleaning. Elbow grease would cure that all right. If there was accommodation for forty new beds it would be sufficient for some time yet. The risk of the cases cited in the lying-in ward were too serious to be allowed.

Dr. Niven agreed largely with Dr. Arnott. He suggested that a new ward should be built either on the west side of the present ward, or between it and the main building. Better ventilation would also have to be provided in the main building, and the drainage was also very defective. The death rate here averaged very low, about half as high as in Hamilton. Two wards were necessary for the lying-in patients, so that one could be disinfected while the other was being used.

Dr. Edwards wanted complete separation between the lying in Hospital and the other wards. The danger from the poison of wounds, and the thousand-and-one other things from the general wards, were too great to be risked, and he would even have a different set of attendants for the lying-in wards, as the danger existed no matter how careful the nurses were. The drainage was bad, and should be attended to. Two wards were not sufficient for lying-in. There should be several, and also a confining room.

Dr. Niven said his opinion was in favor of having the lying in wards detached from the rest of the Hospital, but as there were only 22 births in the Hospital last year there were other things more needed than several rooms for this class of patients.

Dr. Wishart said the pavilion or cottage style of building hospitals was the modern way, and with this system pursued and new wards built when necessary, with corridors between for ventilation, the present building would be as good as any of the same size. In England now they did not treat lying-in cases in the hospitals. It was found almost impossible to provide safe and efficient ventilation.

The City Engineer said when the present Hospital was designed the doctors were consulted, and it was proposed, as additions were required, to build alongside, and to use the original building for the attendants. This agreed with the suggestions to-night.

Dr. Jarvis said they could find a splendid site for a hospital in the Fifth Ward. He believed in the plan of making any needful alterations to the present main building, which was a good one, and building the additions required alongside in the way recommended.

Dr. Rourke also spoke in favor of isolating the lying-in ward, having two wards and one small room for accouchement. He thought, with Dr. Niven, that verandahs would be a great and valuable addition to the institution.

Dr. Arnott said they were so crowded that patients had frequently to be discharged before they should be.

Dr. Belton said the case of measles referred to had developed in the ward. The crowded condition of the nurses was as bad a difficulty as any other. He proposed using the main building for nurses' quarters alone. The stair cases were not wide enough to allow a patient being carried up or down properly.

The Chairman said an immense number of cases come in from the outside municipalities. He had not the heart to rebuff a girl who was friendless and without money, even if she had no claim on the city.

The doctors then left and the Committee decided to meet at the Hospital on Wednesday next at 3 o'clock.

A number of repairs were spoken of, including repairs to the floor in the long ward, the building of a drying room in connection with the laundry, ventilation, etc.

Tenders were ordered to be called for the repairs to the floor and for the new suits for the Fire Department men.

Adjourned.

Mrs. Rongword was in trouble about something she had said, and a lady was talking to her about it. "I don't think," sobbed Mrs. R., "that I ever made such a remark." "I beg your pardon, my dear," replied her friend, "but I heard you say it." "Well, perhaps I did, but if I did, it was an ignis fatuus, and I do not think I ought to be blamed for it.

Dimensions of this New Engineering Work

The Sault Ste. Marie bridge in connection with the Canadian Pacific railroad extension line from Algoma Mills to Sault Ste. Marie (about eighty six miles) will consist of three sections—first, the drawbridge, with centre pier, and two abutments, superstructure 396 feet long; second, the bridge over the main channel of river, nine piers and two abutments, ten spans of superstructure, 239 feet centre to centre of piers; third, the bridge north of St Mary's Island, one pier, two abutments and two spans 104 feet each over all. The masonry is rock-faced ashlar, and the concrete used is to be made of the best Portland cement. The coping stones and outwaters are to be chisel dressed. The masonry is all to be completed by the 15th November next, and the superstructure ready for the passage of trains fifteen days after.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla is just what you want for a spring medicine—superior to all others.

The magnificent ice crop this year is, of course, partly due to the scarcity of coal.

Constipation, which gives rise to many graver troubles, is cured and prevented by Carter's Little Liver Pills. 25 cents a vial.

This winter may be a freak, anyhow, and have two backbones in sound working order.

That sense of extreme weariness indicates disordered blood. Ayer's Sarsaparilla purifies and invigorates.

Rather than call "pants" "trousers," Chicago people are going to wear knee-breeches.

You can't help liking Carter's Little Liver Pills, they are so very small and their action is so perfect. Only one pill a dose. 25 cents.

There is a good deal of back number weather being bound up in this season's volume.

A perfect specific—Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy.

"I do not come here to talk," said an orator at a Nevada meeting, and the audience, taking him at his word, bucked and gagged him.

"Bough On Corns"

Ask for Wells' "Rough on Corns." Quick relief, complete cure. Corns, warts, bunions. 15c

First Editor—"Can you give me an equivalent for 'fired with enthusiasm,' Jack?" Second Editor—"Certainly, my boy. Write it 'ejected with cheerful alacrity.'"

A Large Volume would not contain the mass of testimony which has accumulated in favor of DR. WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY as a safe, efficient, and reliable remedy in curing coughs and pulmonary disease. Many of the cures are truly wonderful.

Tender-hearted Young Lady—"Oh, you cruel, heartless little wretch! to rob those poor birds of their eggs." Wicked Little Boy—"Ho! That's the old mother-bird that you've got on yer bonnet. Guess she won't care."

"Rough On Itch."

"Rough on Itch" cures skin humors, eruptions, ring worm, tetter, salt rheum, frosted feet, chilblains, itch, ivy poison, barber's itch. 50c. 1ars.

A NICE HOW DIOUX YIOUX DIOUX.

The squaw of a chief of the Sioux
Eloped with a red-headed Jioux:
The pair in Dubuque
The husband o'ertuque,
And he made a nice how-dioux yioux-dioux.

CURE FOR CROUP.—Prompt relief to prevent suffocation from the accumulation of tough mucous—the formation of false membrane—and the constriction of the air passage, is necessary in case of a sudden attack of croup. Hagyard's Yellow Oil should be used at once, afterwards Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam. 9

Wife—"John, who was it said 'Keep your powder dry?'" Husband—"I don't know, exactly." Wife—"It must have been a man." Husband—"Why?" Wife—"Well, no woman would ever think of putting water in her powder-box."

The great demand for a pleasant, safe and reliable antidote for all affections of the throat and lungs is fully met with in Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup. It is a purely Vegetable Compound, and acts promptly and magically in subduing all coughs, colds, bronchitis, inflammation of the lungs, etc. It is so palatable that a child will not refuse it, and is put at a price that will not exclude the poor from its benefits.

I'm down upon the style, Mary,
Which makes your hat so high.
The man behind you cannot see,
There's murder in his eye.
Now poets call you angels,
With taffy you are fed,
But whoe'er saw an angel
With a turret on her head?

'Twixt fool and wise
This difference lies:
The fool his folly shows,
Yet knows it not;
The wise his folly knows,
Yet shows it not.

A LUCKY ESCAPE.—"For six years I suffered with my throat and enlarged tonsils. I was very weak; I doctored four years, and had advice from three doctors; they said I would have to undergo an operation. I tried B. B. B. instead. One bottle cured me." M. A. Squelch, Raglan, Ont. 9

NO CURE, NO PAY.
GUARANTEE.
Procure from the Druggist mentioned below six bottles of Dr. Carson's Catarrh Cure, for which he will charge you Five Dollars; he will also give you a guarantee, signed by himself, to the following effect:—"If after using the contents of the six bottles a cure is not effected, return the empty bottles with your signature written across each label, and also on the guarantee, when the druggist will refund you the five dollars paid." It often happens that six bottles are more than sufficient to effect a cure; but still it is wise to be on the safe side; besides, there surely is no one in the whole Dominion who would begrudge that amount to cure such a loathsome and stubborn disease, especially as there is

IS THE SUN BLUE?

A year ago Prof. Langley, the distinguished American astronomer, performed an experiment in the theatre of the Royal Institution to explain his startling paradox that the true color of the sun is blue. He argued that the atmosphere cuts off a large proportion of the blue rays, and that if the observer could get beyond it these would so predominate that the sun would look blue. Last night, says the St. James' Gazette of Feb. 26, in the same place, Capt. Abney, in a lecture on "Sunlight Colors," repeated this experiment, adopting Prof. Langley's figures with mathematical accuracy, but dispensing with his paper disks, which this lecturer held vitiated the result; and he showed that the color of the sun was not blue, but very nearly that of the white light to be seen at high elevations in a clear, dust-free atmosphere. When the spectra of sunlight on the Alps and as imagined by Mr. Langley were compared side by side, they were almost identical. The principle was illustrated by a fine experiment, which Captain Abney called an artificial sunset. Through a solution of hyposulphite of soda a clear circle of electric light was thrown on the screen. The image was like the sun at noon. Then a few drops of hydrochloric acid were added to the solution. This produced a turbid mixture, and, as the turbidity or muddiness increased, first the violet, then the blue, the green and the yellow rays were successively cut off, the image varying with every gradation, until finally there was the dull red of the sun setting in a wintry or a smoky sky. The obscuration caused by a London fog, when every light seems a dull red at a short distance, is due to the same cause. Incidentally Capt. Abney mentioned that many artists whom he and Gen. Festing had examined in their laboratory did not see more than three-fourths of the red light, but this imperfect perception did not interfere with their use of the colors, for they applied their pigments in the same proportion as they saw them in nature. The effects of clearness of atmosphere on photographic pictures were shown strikingly in Alpine and Egyptian pictures.

Last Friday Henry Perkins came before Judge Mackenzie at Sarnia on a charge of stealing an overcoat, and pleaded guilty. Sentence was reserved till to-day.

An invention has been patented for putting out the fires in wrecked railway cars instantly, but no method has yet been suggested for putting out the passengers.

The Hamilton Grand Opera House Company has chosen the following directors:—Messrs. Edward Mitchell, C. W. Counsell, F. Mackelcan, Q.C., and J. H. Millaj

Tuesday evening about seven o'clock two boys came into Mr. Morris's store on Dundas street. One of the boys was about ten years of age, and the smallest about seven. The oldest asked Mr. Morris to give the little fellow an overcoat. Mr. M said, have you any money? The boys said yes, and pulled out a twenty-dollar American bill. Mr. M. made an excuse and said he would get a coat for the boy, but instead of doing so went to the Police Station and brought over Detective Peair, who on arriving found the largest boy had gone, but the little fellow was still there. They asked where the big boy had gone, and were told that he was down at the corner, but he was not to be found, and on returning to the store the small boy had fled. It was afterwards found that the boys were the sons of respectable parents, and the money belonged to them.

The Board of Directors of the London Mutual Fire Insurance Company have unanimously agreed as to the wisdom of adopting the suggestion made at the last annual meeting to secure a new and more commodious office. Yesterday afternoon they took a stroll through the city, and inspected a number of places, but arrived at the conclusion that there is at present no edifice in the city which will meet all the requirements of their increasing business, and that it will therefore be necessary to secure property and put up a building specially adapted for their necessities. Several sites were looked at, but no decision was arrived at, although it was recognized that the new buildings must be of the most modern design and be located within the business centre of the city.

The marriage of Mr. Walter Hourd and Miss Susie Mossop, at the residence of the bride's father, Dorchester North, on the 9th instant, was attended by numerous guests, by whom a grand supper and social intercourse were much enjoyed. The presents to the bride made a fine array. One of the presents was from the "Oliver's" Methodist Church, of which the bride had been organist, and it consisted of four handsome pieces of silverware. Mr. and Mrs. Hourd are very thankful for the kind remembrances of their friends, and will ever treasure these expressive gifts as mementoes of happy days.

Surely these be times that try men's souls, and John Waters, M. P. P., will have a heep to answer for. From every concession line in the North Riding of Middlesex there comes a murmur which rolls along, growing louder and louder and shriller, until it bursts into a mighty chorus. Hark! 'tis the voice of gentle woman as she starts suddenly out of her midnight slumber and sings at the top of her voice:—

"I am dreaming, husband, dreaming,
Of the days that are to be,
When we'll go with you to 'lection,
Mother, hired girl and me."

The election law requires "all persons who have any bills, charges or claims upon the candidate, for or in respect of any election, to send in such bills, charges or claims within one month from the day of the declaration of the election," to his agent, otherwise such person shall be barred of his right to recover such claims, and every and any part thereof. The agent is therefore required to make out a detailed statement of these expenses and to send the same to the returning officer.

Thomas White and H. E. Cummings ran for Reeve in Anderdon Township, Essex County, last January. White was elected, but his opponent brought a charge of bribery against him, and the case was tried before Judge Horne one month ago. The principal charge against White was that just before election day he paid a voter $5 to drive his mother to his brother's house. Judge Horne yesterday decided against White, and a new election will be held.

A very large audience attended an entertainment given in the Delaware Town Hall on Tuesday evening, under the auspices of the Adelaide Street Baptist Literary Society. The programme included songs and solos by Misses Annie McNeil and Agnes McLeod, Mrs. C. G. Morehead, and Misses Morrison, Maynard and others, besides readings by Miss Boone and Mr. Crofts. Miss L. Kerr officiated as accompanist.

Mr. J. D. Clement, of Brantford, is undoubtedly one of the oldest inhabitants of Canada—native born—as on Tuesday he completed his 85th birthday, having been born in St. Davids, near Queenston Heights, on March 15, 1802. Mr. Clement has served in the capacity of Warden, Reeve and Mayor, and his hosts of friends will join in wishing the old gentleman many very happy returns of the day.

Messrs. Yales & Co.'s oil well, on the old Chief Jacob's farm, Longwoods road, two or three miles south-west of Bothwell, is doing some twenty barrels a day, but as rumor sometimes runs a trifle too fast, ten or fifteen barrels may be nearer the mark. Oliver Cromwell struck a good show in Bothwell on Monday. The well is supposed to be good for ten to fifteen barrels. He is putting in the pump.

John Boyle O'Reilly, the Boston poet, refereed the Kilrain-Lannon prize fight. This shows that the improbable is always happening, and we shouldn't be surprised a bit to see it announced next that the author of "When I own the Whole of the Earth" has been acting as chief engineer of a canine encounter.

The Supreme Court has just decided in favor of Mr. Hately, of Brantford, who got a verdict of $1,500 against the Merchant's Despatch Company for loss of butter, but which verdict has been several times appealed against. Mr. Hately wins his suit, but the costs of the case will amount to $5 000.

Bombardier James Herrick, of the London Field Battery, acted as a scout in the North west during the rebellion, and for his services has been awarded a medal. Lieut.-Col. Peters received the medal and ribbon from Ottawa yesterday, and will present it to Bombardier Herrick at once.

It is stated that the evangelistic services now being held at Windsor by Messrs. Crossley and Hunter are proving productive of much good, and that a very large number of railway men have been converted, including quite a number of G. T. R. trainmen.

Mr. Henry Taylor, of this city, President of the Bank of London in Canada, who is now undergoing medical treatment in London, is reported to be rapidly gaining in strength, and Dr. Andrew Clark gives strong hopes of speedy recovery.

Edward King was arraigned at Sarnia last Friday before Judge Mackenzie on a charge of stealing a pair of trousers from C. Pearce, of Petrolia, and his trial was fixed for to-day.

Mr. J. D. Martin, late organist of St Andrew's Church at Sarnia, has been appointed to a similar position in Williamsport, Pa., and left for that place on Monday with his family.

The following recent assignments are reported:—Frald Bros., clothiers, at Lindsay; Alex. Durward, tailor, Simcoe; Platt & Orr, carriage makers, Harriston, and Reid & Graham, dry goods, Trenton.

The pater and materfamilias can console themselves with the reflection that "there's no danger of the young man who goes to see his girl, striking for shorter hours." Not unless he marries the girl, there isn't.

E. C. Phillips, a St. Thomas boot and shoe dealer, has made an assignment to T. A. Ley for the benefit of his creditors. Mr. Phillips is in Michigan, but will probably return. The liabilities will be from $4,000 to $4 500, and the assets about $2,500.

Mr. Ed. Harding, miller, Port Stanley, was fastening a tie cord around a bag of flour the other day and cut his finger with the string. Blood-poisoning set in and his arm is swollen to twice its natural size and is black from the shoulder down. It may be necessary to amputate the arm.

Speech by Lord Hartington at the Liberal-Union Dinner.

AN INFERNAL MACHINE HOAX

Unconfirmed Report of Another Attempt on the Czar's Life.

ASIATIC CHOLERA AT PESTH.

Bismarck's Intentions Regarding Alsace-Lorraine—The Military Conspiracy at Varna.

London, March 30, midnight.

Cholera at Pesth.

Three cases of Asiatic cholera have been discovered at Pesth, and the nature of the malady in each case has been clearly established. Much alarm prevails.

No Easter Holidays.

The London Post says the Government will ask the House of Commons to sit during the Easter holidays, in order to carry the second reading of the Crimes Bill.

The Conspiracy at Varna.

In consequence of the discovery of a military conspiracy at Varna, the Governor has been dismissed and the Commander of the National Guard has been arrested. A number of members of the Patriotic League yesterday tried to lynch a Russian spy found in the town. The Russian took refuge in the German Consulate.

Dr. Bird Gets Damages.

Heinrich Felbermann, proprietor of Life, was to-day fined £75 for libelling Dr. Bird, family physician to Lady Colin Campbell, by publishing under the caption, "Cockolly Bird," an article insinuating that the Doctor had been guilty of improper intimacy with his patient. The libel was published during the Campbell divorce trial.

The English Turf.

At the Northampton meeting to-day the race for the Ascott Piece stakes, for two year-olds, was won by Gen. Pearson's Asarch; A. Taylor's Pull Together second, J. Ryan's Lily Bud third. The race for the great Northamptonshire stakes of 400 sovereigns was won by Leopold de Rothschild's Middlethorpe; Treuman's Postscript second, F. Robinson's Sandpiper third.

The Queen Photographed.

The Queen has been photographed in her state robes by M. Walery, the Court photographer, and the portrait is a rare chef d'œuvre. M. Walery has invented a new process by which the photographs look nearly like etchings. So pleased was Her Majesty with the pictures that she ordered quite a number to be sent after her to Aix-les-Bains. It speaks volumes for the popularity of the Queen outside England that a number of continental papers have asked M. Walery to let them have this new portrait, as they intend to publish special editions on the day of her jubilee, with her portrait as a supplement. The Queen's absence from England will not exceed four weeks, as she returns by the same route.

Another Attempt to Kill the Czar.

Authentic information has been received at Berlin from St. Petersburg, that a fresh attempt was made upon the Czar's life at the Gatschina Palace, yesterday. The Czar was not injured. No news has been received at the Russian embassy in London respecting the reported attempt at the Gatschina Palace upon the life of the Czar. Seditious placards were secretly posted throughout the St. Petersburg University building to-day, proclaiming that the address recently presented to the Czar did not represent the real feelings of the students. The Czar and Czarina will return to St. Petersburg from Gatschina to-morrow to attend a grand military concert. Every possible precaution will be taken to insure the personal safety of the Imperial party.

A Hoax.

A brief sensation was caused in London to day by a report that yesterday evening an attempt on the life of Mr. Balfour, Chief Secretary for Ireland, was discovered and frustrated. In the mail at the Oxford street branch of the post office there was a small box addressed to Mr. Balfour. The mail clerk thought the package was peculiar and suspicious looking, and, obtaining permission to have it opened, it was found to contain a small phial filled with what was thought to be an explosive compound connected with a spring attached to the bottle. Careful investigation to-day, however, has shown the whole thing was a hoax. The box was a jeweler's scarf pin box, and the bottle was filled with a brown powder, made up probably of pulverized coffee.

A Recent Paris Tragedy.

A Paris despatch says:—Mdlle. Sabathier, mistress of Pranzini, the Italian under arrest for the murder of Mme. Regnault, her maid, and the latter's little daughter, on the night of the 17th instant, states that on the night of the murders Pranzini came to her and told her that while he was visiting Mme. Regnault another man called to see her. She told Pranzini to hide, and he did so. While concealed he heard stifled groans. Twenty minutes afterwards he emerged from his place of retreat, and found that the room where Mme. Regnault had received the strange man was deserted. Pranzini then went into the bedrooms, and found the dead bodies of Mme. Regnault, her maid and the latter's child. He immediately left the place, came to Mdlle. Sabathier, and asked her to provide him with money to leave Paris.

Hartington Speaks.

Lord Hartington delivered a speech at the inaugural dinner of the Liberal-Unionists this evening. He said the effect of Mr. Gladstone's open espousal of the action of the Parnellites during the present session was to divorce still further the opposing elements of the Liberal party. The round table conference had broken down. The Unionists were not prepared for a reconciliation based upon formulas they did not understand. With regard to the Crimes Act he knew that a severe trial was about to be put on many who had hoped that they would never again have to vote for such a measure. But those who had refused to allow Ireland to govern herself were bound to find some remedy by which she could be governed; and by voting for the second reading of the Crimes Bill they would have the remedy before them in the definite shape of the Government's proposals. The Unionists were determined to do nothing to turn out the Government as long as they maintained the law.

Bismarck Talks.

The Belgian paper La Meuse prints a report of a conversation which it says Prince Bismarck had with an illustrious Belgian during the recent fetes at Berlin. According to this report the German Chancellor said he abandoned the idea of neutralizing Reichsland (Alsace Lorraine) because it would be a dangerous delusion. The neutrality of any Province, he said, was preservable as long as the people were prepared to defend their neutrality by force of arms, and he could not admit that such a determination existed in Reichland. "Therefore," said the Chancellor, "we intend that the Provinces shall remain incorporated with Germany. Their fortresses are a strong bulwark against France, and for us they have the advantage of removing by several days' march the starting point for an aggressive movement against us from France. Two months ago," added Prince Bismarck, "I feared there would be war; I do not now. Still we must be prepared for war. We never know what is to happen. Who could have expected a few years ago that the Pope and I would become faithful allies?"

The Latest Craze of Parisian Ladies.

A Paris despatch says:—A number of young, beautiful and fashionable ladies of Parisian high life have discovered a novel method of combining merriment and mortification during the season of Lent. They attend once a week a "dinner of the mourners." The ladies, twelve in number, dress in the deepest mourning, the dining room is hung with black, tables of black wood, the chairs are black, with silver ornamentation, the dishes have a design of wreaths of immortelles, death's heads and other cemetery emblems, while the glasses in which the champagne is served are made in the form of skulls. The footmen who wait at table are dressed like undertakers, and during dinner an invisible organ plays melancholy music. The new insanity has become so much the rage here that the priests of the fashionable churches have begun to preach against it as a scandal to religion. The Abbe Duvin, who is one of the favorite father confessors of the great ladies here, declared yesterday from the pulpit that he should refuse absolution to any person who persisted in such frivolous and criminal folly.

Cable Notes.

The Proposed Observatory—Manitoba Politics—Snow Bound Immigrants.

Ottawa, March 30.—Mr. W. F. King, Inspector of Government Surveys, and Mr. Otto J. Klotz, Dominion Topographical Surveyor, have just returned from Washington and Boston, where they were sent by the Government for the purpose of obtaining information preparatory to the establishment of an observatory at this city, in connection with the Surveyors' Branch of the Interior Department. The observatory, which, it is believed, will be located on Nepean Point, will, it is said, likely be constructed this year.

Hon. John Norquay, Premier of Manitoba, who arrived here to-day, in an interview said he knew nothing about the reported probable formation of a coalition Government in Manitoba, but he thought such an event might possibly happen.

The Department of Agriculture has received information that about a thousand immigrants are snowed-up on the line of the Intercolonial, between Rimouski and River Du Loup.

At a meeting of the graduates of Upper Canada College, held here to-day, a resolution was passed protesting against the proposed alienation of the endowment fund.

A Murder Mystery Solved by a Death-bed Confession.

Shenandoah, Pa., March 30.—The mystery of a murder committed seventeen years ago has been cleared up by a death-bed confession of one of the murderers. On the 27th of May, 1870, Jefferson Yohe, 18 years of age, was shot and killed on the Ringtown Mountain, a mile out of town. The crime was laid at the door of the Mollie Maguires, notwithstanding that suspicion pointed strongly to Charles Fredericks and Michael Herzel, of Mifflin, the home of the murdered man, as the perpetrators of the crime. Fredericks died yesterday, but before his death he made a confession, in which he admitted that he and Herziel committed the murder for the purpose of robbery. Heuzel has been arrested, and will be brought here for trial.

MONTREAL.

Railroads Badly Blocked with Snow—The Lighting and Heating of Railway Cars—Sir Hector Langevin—Electric Signals on Passenger Trains—Danger of a Flood.

Montreal, March 30.—Owing to the high wind which prevailed after Monday's snow storm, high drifts on the railways are the result, consequently trains on the various lines have been blocked. Local traffic has been interfered with. The Central Vermont, due last night, is stuck in a snowdrift five miles below St. John's, without any hope of being able to make immediate headway. Numbers 4 and 8, due this morning beyond this trait, are of course brought to a standstill. The outgoing Fort Covington train this afternoon was cancelled. The Winnipeg train is detained at Chalk River, waiting for the snow-plough to clear the track. None of the trains on the branch lines are running to-day. The G. T. R. train for St. Laurent was cancelled. The Western, Ottawa and Hemmingford trains are several hours late.

Mr. Hickson, General Manager of the G. T. R., says he will take into consideration the proposition to have the railway cars lighted by electricity and heated by steam from the locomotives, as a protection against fire in case of accident.

Sir Hector Langevin will arrive here to-night, and will be entertained to supper by a few personal friends on the occasion of the 30th anniversary of his entry into public life, and the 7th of his entry into the Cabinet.

J. A. Rolland & Co., large boot and shoe manufacturers, of this city, have assigned with liabilities about $25,000 and normal assets. There are indirect liabilities in notes held by the Bank of Toronto for $6,000.

The blasting operations are going on satisfactorily. The water is not freezing over again as many suppose. The work has been completed to about a mile above Longue Pointe. It is said by some people that notwithstanding the blasting operations on the river a spring flood is imminent, and some of the inhabitants of Point St. Charles and other low lying places are making necessary preparations to get their perishable property above high water level. A flood this spring, after such a long and severe winter, would be ruinous to thousands of poor families who reside in low lying districts.

The Ottawa train, via the Grand Trunk, has been equipped with an electric signal apparatus, which affords direct communication with the engine throughout the whole length of the train. It is intended for the greater safety and convenience of the public, as it will enable the engineer to be instantaneously communicated with in order to bring the train to a standstill at any given point desired. The officials tested the apparatus as far as Coteau Landing, and expressed themselves much pleased with the results. It will be thoroughly tested for several weeks before being finally adopted. The Grand Trunk Railway is the first railway in Canada to introduce this superior communication.

Up to a late hour this evening no trace of Albert Hamer, the McGill student, has been found. A diligent search is being made of Black River and vicinity.

Death of Sheriff Merrick—Conscience Money—Arrival of Patti—The Shoemakers' Strike—Convicted of Leading a Young Girl Astray—The Irish National League and the Legislature—The "Tribune" No More.

The shoemakers' strike is in a fair way of reaching a settlement. The bosses will meet a deputation of the strikers this afternoon, and the result of the conference is expected to close hostilities.

Daniel Stewart, Florence Andrews and Caroline McDonald were arraigned at the Criminal Assizes to-day for enticing a girl under 21 years of age into a house of ill-fame. The jury returned a verdict of guilty. In sentencing the prisoners, Judge Armour severely lectured Stewart upon his offence, and said that nothing could be more unmanly or cowardly. Such a disgraceful thing had never come within his jurisdiction before. He characterized Stewart as a pimp and viper. Stewart got two years in Kingston Penitentiary, and the female prisoners two years each in the Mercer Reformatory.

The Builders' Laborers' Union to-day made a demand for an increase in wages from 18½ cents to 19 cents per hour, which the employers granted. It is not expected there will be strikes in the building trade this season, although bricklayers seem determined upon getting an increase over last season's rate.

The Conservative Party.

Lord Salisbury will preside at a meeting of the Conservative party to-morrow to consider the political situation. Lord Carnarvon denies that an anti-Coercion Conservative "Cave" is being formed under his leadership, and says he knows of no such movement.

Murdered by a Nihilist.

A wholesale merchant of St. Petersburg, reputed to be worth millions, has been shot and killed by a man to whom he refused to give 8,000 roubles towards the Nihilist fund. The murderer has been arrested. Other Russian capitalists are fearful of suffering the like fate. They are receiving letters threatening them with immediate death if they do not comply with the demands to furnish funds for the "common cause."

Imperial Federation.

Hon. John Merriman, a member of the Cape Assembly, has an article in the Nineteenth Century on "The Closer Union of the British Empire." Mr. Merriman says a federation which aims at the maintenance of British manufacturing monopolies at the expense of the Colonial markets would not be tolerated by the colonies, but that the union of self-governing democracies would add strength to England, and common action for the defence of the dependencies is feasible.

Mrs. Potter in "Man and Wife."

The play in which Mrs. J. Brown Potter appeared in London last night was Wilkie Collins' "Man and Wife," in which Mrs. Potter took the part of Anne Sylvester. The audience included the Prince of Wales, Lord Dunraven, Lord Elche, Chas. Phelps and Mrs. White, of the American legation, Lady Colin Campbell and Oscar Wilde. Some critics complain of her general amateurishness, and say her voice is sharp and metallic, and her actions jerky. Mrs. Potter says she has taken to the stage permanently. She will receive $60,000 for a series of her performances. The Daily News says: "Mrs. Potter has valuable gifts. She has a good presence, mobile features and clear, resonant voice, which varies in expression, but her method is over elaborate. The audience sighed for a little repose. To sum up, she has manifestly great capabilities, but it is no less manifest that injudicious friends who have heralded the experiment by great promises have done her an ill service.

Goschen's Reply to Gladstone.

In his speech in the House of Commons last night, Mr. Goschen said he regretted the absence from Gladstone's speech of any condemnation of Irish crime or the violent language of Irish agitators. The Liberal leader rather suggested a defense of those crimes. The Government based their case upon the notorious failure of the administration of law, which constituted the safety of individuals and was the only true guarantee of life and liberty. Here he read extracts from Judges' charges on the difficulties attending the administration of the laws. Continuing, he asked whether this evidence, though not statistical, should be disregarded. Was it not well known that jurors were in danger of their lives? Were not individual jurors held up to odium by the public press? He deplored Gladstone's de quoque allusions to boycotting. Such a way of treating crime would be understood by ignorant people as a justification of crime. There were misery and suffering inflicted under boycotting that were outrages upon civilization, such as no Government should tolerate. Gladstone had spoken of a breach of trust. The Government also had a trust to which it was their duty to be true, a trust that had been placed in their hands by the country—to restore the authority of the Queen, respect for Judges and the liberty of all classes of society. (Cheers.)

Cable Notes.

Constable Dorney, who refused to assist in Father Ryan's arrest, has been imprisoned, and a testimonial to him is being organized at Dublin.

A Petrified Body.

Tiffin, O., March 29.—Mrs. Rannanah Denis, wife of Hartman Denis, who died December 29, 1870, was taken up at the old city burying ground to-day and removed to Green Lawn Cemetery. When the body was exhumed it was found in a complete state of petrifaction, with the exception of the feet. The deceased had been clothed in a black silk dress, which was still in a good state of preservation. The coffin, however, was almost entirely decayed. The deceased was a large woman, and the full outlines of the body had been preserved. So heavy had it become that it took the united effort of ten men to remove it from its resting place. Mrs. Denis died of dropsy.

FIRE FLASHES

Galt, March 29.—This morning fire destroyed a large two story stone residence on Shade street, occupied by Mrs. Harvey, an old lady over 90 years of age, and a family named Godfrey. The fire spread to an empty wooden building adjoining, which was destroyed also. The occupants and furniture were safely removed. The residence, which was built about fifty years ago, was owned by Mrs. W. H. Jones, of Huntsville, Muskoka. There is no insurance, and the loss will be in the neighborhood of $1 500.

Brantford, March 29.—Between twelve and one o'clock last night a large frame barn on Queen street, occupied by M. Stratford, was discovered on fire. The fire was on the outside of the building close to the sidewalk. The firemen were promptly on hand and had the fire extinguished before much damage was done. About three o'clock this morning fire was discovered in an unoccupied store on Colborne street, owned by the Sproule estate. Fortunately the fire was discovered before making much headway, and the firemen had it quickly subdued. These two fires are clearly the work of incendiaries. A few extra night watchmen have been appointed to patrol the streets.

Montreal, March 29.—A destructive fire occurred this morning in the wholesale fur establishment of B. Levin & Co. The estimated damage to stock is $45,000; insured in the Royal Canadian, Norwich Union, Queen's, London Assurance; London, Liverpool and Globe, Guardian, City of London, Royal and Fire Insurance for $5,000 each, and in the North British and Mercantile for $7,000. The building was damaged to the estimated extent of $3,000; covered in the Citizens' Insurance Company.

Toronto, March 30.—The House opened at 3 20.

THIRD READINGS.

The following Bills were read a third time and passed:—To declare and define the correct boundary between the township of Smith and the town of Peterboro'; to incorporate the town of Parry Sound; respecting the administration of justice in the Districts of Algoma and Thunder Bay.

THE CITY OF LONDON BILL.

Mr. Meredith's Bill respecting the Corporation of the City of London, at the suggestion of Mr. Meredith, was again referred to a Committee of the House for a slight alteration. The alteration was adopted and the Bill will come up for third reading to-morrow.

NIAGARA FALLS RAILWAY.

Mr. Meredith asked whether any Order-in-Council has been passed, under the provisions of Section 18 of the Act incorporating the Niagara Falls Railway Company (48 Vic., cap. 77), directing the transfer of the railway and its rights and powers to another company, and, if so, when and to what company; whether any Order-in-Council has been passed, under the authority of Section 30 of the said Act, authorizing the company to proceed with the construction of its railway, and, if so, when; whether any application has been made for the passing of the last mentioned Order-in-Council, and, if so, what action has been taken upon it.

The Attorney-General—In reference to the first and second question there has been no such orders passed. In answer to the third question, such application has been made, but no action has been taken with reference to the matter.

TIMBER DUES.

Mr. Meredith asked whether the Government has assumed to exercise and has been exercising, and if so, for how long, the right to collect dues for timber cut in that part of the district of Algoma, formerly known as the disputed territory which lies west of the provisional boundary established in 1874, and what was the amount realized from timber dues at the Rat Portage Agency for the year ended 31st December, 1886.

The Attorney-General—The Government has assumed the right to collect dues, and since the judgment of the Privy Council the Government has permitted the cutting of timber for railway purposes. In reference to the second question, he said the amount realized for the year ending December 31st, 1886, was $14,797.

THE PROPOSED CONFERENCE.

Mr. Meredith asked whether any application has been made by the Government of Quebec, or any member of it, to the Government of Ontario, or any member of it, to appoint a delegate, or delegates, or other persons, to represent this Province at a meeting of the representatives of the Provinces, for the purpose of considering a revision of the provisions of the British North America Act; what reply has been made to any such application; whether it is proposed to take part in any such meeting without consulting the representatives of the people in this House, or without their prior sanction.

The Attorney-General said, in answer to the first question, he had received a communication from the Premier of Quebec in reference to the encroachments on Provincial rights made by the Dominion Government, and in reference to financial matters. He had answered to the effect that in view of what had occurred since Confederation, this Government would be willing to accede to the proposal for a meeting of delegates representing the Provincial Governments. In answer to the third question he said anything that is suggested to be done requiring the sanction of this House, it was the intention of the Government to apply for that sanction.

THE REGISTRAR OF HALIBURTON.

Mr. Fell moved for an order of the House for a return of copies of all correspondence received by the Government, or any member thereof, regarding the conduct of Frederick Mooney, Registrar for the provisional County of Haliburton, and any correspondence asking for an investigation into his general conduct; also, any copies of any report made to the Government by any officer who may have been instructed to investigate charges preferred against the Registrar, if any exist.

The Attorney-General—There have been charges made against this officer, and it was also correct that an investigation had been made and the report had been received, but in consequence of a very great pressure of business he had not found time to consider the report sufficiently to guarantee him coming to a conclusion in reference to the matter. However, he promised to make known his decision before the House was prorogued.

REVENUE FROM THE DISPUTED TERRITORY.

Mr. Meredith moved for an order of the House for a return showing the total revenue derived during the year ended 31st December, 1886, from that part of the District of Algoma, formerly known as the disputed territory, distinguishing the amounts received from tavern and shop licenses, pine timber dues, and from other timber dues respectively. The motion was carried.

SCOTT ACT FINES.

Mr. Gibson (Huron) moved for an order of the House for a return of amounts received by county or city treasurers throughout the Province on account of fines imposed for violations of the Scott Act. The motion was carried.

MUNICIPAL ACT AMENDMENT.

Mr. Preston moved for the second reading of his Bill to amend the Municipal Act. This Bill met with considerable opposition.

The Commissioner of Public Works moved an amendment, practically meaning that the Bill be not read a second time.

Mr. Creighton was in favor of manhood suffrage in parliamentary elections, pure and simple, but he was not prepared to go so far as the hon. member's Bill for Leeds proposed.

Mr. Preston withdrew the Bill.

OTHER BILLS.

Mr. Gibson's (Hamilton) Bill relating to exemptions from seizure under execution was read a third time and passed.

The Bill to amend the Division Courts Act was referred to a special committee.

Mr. Balfour moved the second reading of his Bill to amend the game law. This Bill caused considerable discussion.

Mr. Garson moved in amendment that the Bill be read the second time on the 24th of May next.

On a division the amendment was carried by 44 yeas against 34 nays.

The following Bills were read a second time and referred to the committees:—To amend the Public Parks Act; to amend the Municipal Act.

The House then went into Committee on Private Bills and passed Mr. Meredith's Bill to amend the Act incorporating the London and South-Eastern Railway Company and the Bill to authorize the Roman Catholic Episcopal Corporation of the Diocese of London to sell certain lands.

UNIVERSITY FEDERATION.

Mr. Meredith asked when the University Federation question would come up, and when the Niagara Falls Bill would be taken up.

The Attorney-General—The Federation question would come up in a few days, and the Niagara Falls Bill to-morrow.

The House adjourned at 6 20 until 8 o'clock to-morrow.

CANADIAN WIRELETS.

The people of Windsor are taking steps to have a hospital built in that town.

It is definitely stated that Hon. J. B. Plumb be the next speaker of the Senate.

The new lighthouse on the outside of the breakwater at Port Arthur has been completed.

A Montreal girl has been arrested on the charge of enticing her sister away to enter a disreputable house.

The North-west Central promoters say they will be in a position to commence work on the 1st of May.

The Hamilton journeymen painters have accepted the offer of the bosses for $1.50 to $2 per day, according to ability.

Mr. MacArthur, of Winnipeg, who started for the North Pole some time ago, has found it advisable to cut his journey short.

Mr. R. A. Lyon, M. P. P. for East Algoma, has been chosen as the Grit candidate in that constituency at the coming election for the Local Legislature.

Toronto steam fitters and plumbers threaten to quit work on Friday morning. They want an increase all round of five cents per hour, which employers flatly refuse to grant.

A Toronto despatch says:—Hon. Edward Blake has returned to the city from South Carolina, where he spent a few weeks in recuperating his health after the hard work of the election campaign.

Justices of the Peace will not as such receive copies gratis of the revised statutes just issued, but a collection of the criminal laws is now being prepared for their use, and will be issued as soon as practicable.

The Toronto journeymen tailors' strike is practically at an end, almost all the employers having agreed to pay the new scale of prices. The tailoresses have decided to demand an increase of fourteen cents per hour, which employers will refuse to give. This may lead to further complications.

A Winnipeg lawyer, now in England, who has been examining into the position of the Hudson's Bay Railway project, think the chances are good if a Provincial guarantee be given of say 3 per cent. for ten years on the stock, as was done in the case of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

In regard to the cable from London stating that Lord Lansdowne has offered to stop the eviction of tenants who will pay any portion of their rent without costs, the Governor-General said this afternoon that no fresh instructions had been issued, but his agent had throughout offered to deal leniently in the matter of legal costs with any tenant showing a bona fide desire to meet his liabilities.

The Minister of Railways and Canals says the question of deepening the canals will be a subject for further consideration. The policy of the Government was to enlarge the canals by degrees as the resources of the country permitted. So far substantial progress had been made in deepening the Welland canal, and it was hoped to complete that particular work this year. Afterwards other canals would be proceeded with as circumstances permitted.

The Department of Fisheries has completed the work of scheduling the fishing bounty claims for 1886, and is now engaged in issuing cheques for payment. The bounty is two dollars per ton on the tonnage of each vessel up to 80 tons. Thus the bounty to an 80 ton vessel will be $160, half of which goes to the owner and the remainder to the crew. The conditions on which the bounty is given are that a vessel must engage in deep sea fishing continuously for three months and at the end of the season a return of operations must be forwarded to the Department, giving particulars of operation, the name of the owner, crew, etc. A separate cheque is issued to each person entitled to the bounty, so that at the present time about 47,000 cheques are being prepared.

We are after business; after your trade; we intend to get it, but we do not intend to reach your pockets by trying to make you believe that we are selling goods for COST and UNDER (which some dealers tell you THEY are DOING, and YOU know they are NOT, for how could they live, pay rent and taxes if they did?) We are not doing this. We are and do make a fair profit on everything we sell, or how should we live and be as prosperous as we are to-day and be enjoying the large patronage we do over all our competitors? Would $3.50 for a $5.00 Knee-pants Plaited Suit, ages 2 to 7 years, interest you, COME AND SEE HOW GOOD IT IS. Would $5.00 for an all-wool double and twist Boy's Suit, ages from 4 to 8 years, attract your attention, supposing that it was $2.00 LESS THAN ANYBODY ELSE? Now for larger boys. We take care of all kinds of boys, no matter what kind of work or what they want it for. Good all-wool Suits at $5.00, $6.00 and $7.00. But if you want a nice, fashionable, well-made and well-trimmed Suit, we can please you to the Queen's taste at $8.00, $9.00 and $10.00. CAN A MAN INDICT HIMSELF?—Among the grand jurors drawn for the Essex Spring Assizes, which began at Sandwich on Monday, was Warden Israel Desjardins, who was recently held for trial to the present session of the court on a charge of bribing a voter. Mr. Desjardins answered to his name when the jury was sworn. The judge wasn't aware that Desjardins was the same person who is defendant in one of the cases on the docket, and nobody took the trouble to remind him of it. Juror Desjardins listened carefully to the charge of the Judge, telling them to carefully consider the evidence against Warden Desjardins, and not allow their judgment to be swerved by his position or standing in the community. Then Desjardins retired to the jury-room with his colleagues, and the speculative ones around the court are offering odds that Juror Desjardins will never sign an indictment against Warden Desjardins. The matter has been traversed to the next Assizes.

LOCAL LEGAL NOTES.—On Tuesday Mr. Justice Ferguson delivered judgment in the special case argued before him in last September (Smith vs. Synod of Huron), as to the distribution of the surplus income arising from St. Paul's Rectory investments. The question was whether the city of London Church of England rectors were alone entitled to this surplus, or whether the township of London rectors were not also entitled with the city rectors. The Judge holds that St. Paul's was the rectory, not only of the city, but also of the township, and that accordingly the township rectors must have their share of this surplus. This lets in Canon Newman and the Reverends Seaborn and Wilson. Previously the city rectors were the only recipients. Mr. V. Cronyn appeared on behalf of the Synod of Huron, the trustees of the fund; Mr. S. H. Blake, Q.C., for the city rectors, and Mr. I. F. Hellmuth for the township rectors.

LOCAL AND DISTRICT.

Chief Engineer Jennings is superintending the operations of the West Ontario Pacific construction train near Woodstock.

Mr. A. E. Pavey leaves to-day upon a purchasing trip to the European market. He will sail from New York on Saturday via SS. Etruria.

Geo. C. Boniface, who appears here in "The Streets of New York" on Friday night, has met with great success at Toronto, and is giving an excellent performance.

J. L. Crosby, of Petrolia, has been awarded the contract for the county bridge over the Sydenham river on the line between Metcalfe and Brook. There were five tenders in all, and the contract price is a little over $1,700.

Messrs. John Ferguson & Son have placed in their establishment an electric indicator, which compels the night watchman to make visits to the several flats of the building and register the same by a button at the proper times.

A concert will be given in the Fifth Ward Town Hall on the 31st inst., under the auspices of conclave No. 25, Knights of Sherwood Forest. The conclave has received a request to give an exhibition sword exercise, which they will do in full dress uniform.

The vacancy caused in the office of keeper of the quarantine grounds by the death of Mr. Gray, the late incumbent, has been filled, by the appointment of Mr. John Macdougall, of the Township of Lobo, formerly M.P.P. for the North Riding of Middlesex. He well deserved the appointment.

Frank Brodison, employed at the London Crockery Co.'s Factory, had his right hand badly mashed in the machinery while grinding clay yesterday. He was taken to the hospital and Drs. Niven and McArthur dressed the hand. A liberal sum was subscribed by the employes to assist the injured man.

The "Dauntless" junior lacrosse club, of East London, has been organized for the season, with the following officers:—Dr. Gardiner, President; R. Grey, Secretary; W. A. Hunter, Treasurer; A. Allister, Captain. The club is now open for challenges. Address, R. Grey, G. T. R. Carshops, East London.

Charles Smith, a colored man, was arrested this morning by Officer Charles Pope on a charge of obtaining money under false pretences. He was remanded to jail by Squire Peters. It is charged against Smith that he got possession without authority of a collector's book for one of the colored churches, and went around collecting money without authority.

Somerville & Connor's horse ran away from near the front of their store yesterday afternoon. The animal ran around on Talbot street, banging up against the Delaware stage on its way, and then started across the market, but turned short and ran into the City Hotel stables, damaging more or less the vehicles standing in front, and breaking up the grocery wagon badly.

Charley Pratt, of Toronto, has added to his list of charges the imported filly Lady Dayrell, 3 years, by Will Dayrell, and the province-bred filly Passaic Flower, 3 years, by Blinkitson, dam Passaic, the property of Mr. Sinclair, of Chatham. Both fillies are entered in stakes to be run at the Ontario Jockey Club May meeting, the former for the Woodstock Plate and the latter for the Guiness.

Alex. Drummond, drunk, was fined $5 or 20 days by the Police Magistrate yesterday. Four others, disorderly, were bailed to the 6th February. One hotel-keeper pleaded guilty to breach of the liquor law, and was fined $20 and costs; one case was withdrawn and another enlarged till Wednesday next. Mary Ann Irvin against William Rowell, non-payment of wages, was settled by the wages being paid.

The police have received an intimation that Coroner Bartholemew, of Port Huron, has held an inquest on the body of a man named Jones or Young, who is reported to belong to this city. He called on the 15th last summer, and any information as to his friends or family will be thankfully received at the Police Station. The suffers to the same person who is alleged to have been murdered by Bob. Murrey.

Messrs. J. D. Ivison, agent of the American Express Company, Toronto, and Capt. Thos. McGaw, of the Queen's Hotel, Toronto, have returned from a two months' trip to the Pacific Slope. While on the trip the party were the guests of the Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, and Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railways, and all are delighted with their experiences. Messrs. Irwin and McGaw passed east for Toronto to-day.

The Sarnia Canadian says:—"The indications point to something very like a boom in Sarnia this season. Notwithstanding the large number of new houses built last season, the demand for dwellings is far in advance of the supply. There are no unoccupied houses in town. The owners of dwellings in course of erection are besieged by applicants, and in many cases the premises are engaged by intending tenants before the foundations are laid."

The Railway Life, of Toronto, in its last issue, discussing the ability of Superintendent Stiff and his assistant here, Mr. Larmour, to keep their line clear for a special run, says:—"It should be remembered that the Southern Division of the Grand Trunk Railway is the main artery of the country westward of Toronto, and that from London the centre of that fertile peninsula which, all in all, is the finest piece of ground that exists, veins as large as arteries radiate like the ribs of a fan."

Last week a large party of "farm pupils" sent out by the Trans Atlantic and General Emigration Association of England arrived in Toronto and were immediately sent by the Rev. Dr. Armstrong, of Moore, to places he had provided for them in the counties of Brant, Durham, Elgin, Essex, Kent, Lambton and North and South Middlesex. Another large party will arrive in Canada in a few days, and on the 7th of April the largest party of the season will sail from Liverpool, and after that there will be weekly arrivals all through the year. In future London will be the distributing centre.

Yesterday as the Limited Express, due here at 4 40 a.m., was crossing the river on the boat between Fort Gratiot and Point Edward, one of the passengers on his way to the Lower Provinces was "held up" by some unknown person, and robbed of four $20 gold pieces, one $5 gold piece and a Canadian $5 bill, as well as his ticket and checks. He claimed that some news agent, who, he said, either ran on the Chicago & Grand Trunk or on the G.T.R out of this city committed the theft, with accomplices. Mr. Davey gives the insinuation that one of his employes perpetrated the robbery an emphatic denial, and it is quite probable that the passenger did not know who the robber was or when he was robbed.

AN AUTOCRATIC CHAIRMAN.

How the Relief Wood Contract is Manipulated in the Interests of Political Friends, Etc.

No. 3 Committee of the City Council met in the Clerk's office last evening. Present—Ald. Stringer (in the chair), Jarvis, Vining, McIntosh, Moule, Mayor Cowan, Engineer Tracy, Chief Roe, Inspector Bell, Market Clerk Wilson, and the clerk, Mr. Keary.

The communication from Dr. O'Reilly in regard to the City Hospital, which formed the basis of the long discussion at the Council meeting on Tuesday evening, was read.

Telegrams exchanged between the city and Dr. O'Reilly were read, the doctor stating that no petition had been received, excepting one from the Middlesex County Council, requesting to be represented on the Hospital Board.

A communication was read from Dr. O'Reilly, stating that he could not at present give information regarding the Toronto Hospital, owing to discussion therein.

The report of Inspector Bell reported that since last report he had collected and paid over $713, and that the total collected so far was $4,651 50. He also enclosed certificate of the Treasurer to the effect that so far the sum of $1,651 had been paid over for licenses. Received.

The account of Essex & Co. was passed.

The Chairman said there were two men who had a small account for work, and it should be paid.

Ald. Vining questioned this.

The Chairman said they were men who had worked in the sewer, and sent in their account. It should be paid.

Ald. Vining said it should not be passed without having knowledge of it.

The Chairman said the work had been done, and if the account was sent in right by Monday night he supposed it should be paid.

Ald Vining—Oh, yes.

The account of W. Heaman for relief wood was then presented, it being for wood supplied since the expiration of the old contract therefor.

Ald. Vining asked if it was not usual to continue with the one contractor until another was selected.

The Chairman—It is optional.

Ald. Vining—Yes, but is it not usual to do so?

The Chairman—Yes, but I don't consider Baldwin worthy of it.

In reply to another question the Chairman said he asked no one about the price, but he would not think much of any one who would stoop to ask anything of Mr. Baldwin, after the letters he had written to the papers.

Ald. Vining—But this is a matter of business.

The Chairman—Yes.

Ald. Vining—Didn't Mr. Baldwin give satisfaction last year?

The Chairman—No, not to me.

Ald. Vining—Well, we shouldn't pay more than we paid to the contractor.

The Chairman said this price was paid only during the interval. He had a right to send the orders where he pleased. Owing to the second calling for tenders the contracts had been delayed.

Ald. Vining said owing to the small amount involved, the old contractor should be continued on, and in any case they should not pay more than before.

The Chairman (emphatically)—But you have to.

Ald. Vining—Well, if we have I suppose we have.

The following tenders were submitted for the supply of serge uniforms for the Fire Department:—Twoby & Scrimton, A. E. Trebilcock, Southcott & Patton, Charles McDonald, J. H. Chapman & Co., R. Boyd & Son.

A considerable time was occupied in considering the matter, owing to the large number of samples sent in by the parties tendering, and the difficulty of arriving at a decision that would afford justice to all.

It was finally decided that the samples of cloth submitted be returned and new tenders called for from those putting in the tenders at present for the best serge they can supply for $16 per suit, the said tenders, together with the samples, to be considered at a meeting to be held in the Fire Hall on Saturday afternoon.

The petition from the call men of the Fire Department for an increase of salary was then taken up, and after some discussion was referred to No. 1 Committee.

The Hospital management question was next dealt with, and it was decided that His Worship write to Mr. Meredith at once for a copy of the petition sent in to the Legislature regarding the matter.

The Chairman was also requested to instruct Mr. Jewell to examine into all accounts between the city and county since the completion of the Hospital.

Adjourned.

A LOCAL APPEAL CASE.

What the Contentions are in the Suit of Arscott vs. Lilley and Hutchinson.

The case of Arscott against Lilley and Hutchinson has been occupying the attention of the Court of Appeal for the last two days in Toronto. The plaintiff, Esther Arscott, was arrested in this city for keeping a house of ill-fame. She was committed to jail by Mr. Charles Lilley, J.P., then Mayor of London East, being released on an order of Mr. Justice Rose, but was re-arrested on a fresh information and cast back into the cells before she got out of the precincts of the jail. For this she entered an action against Mr. Lilley and Crown Attorney Hutchinson, under whose advice he was acting, for damages for false arrest, and for the penalty of £500 for violating the writ of habeas corpus by virtue of which she had been released. These actions were tried before Chief Justice Cameron, who decided that the defendants were liable for the penalty of £500, and on the action for damages, the jury returning a verdict for no damages, he entered judgment for the defendants without costs. Appeals were at once entered and pushed through the intermediate courts, with the result of upsetting the judgment for the penalty of £500, and otherwise changing the state of affairs until the Court of Appeal was reached. Here Lilley and Hutchinson are appealing for judgment for costs on the suit for damages, and the plaintiff is appealing to set aside the verdict of the jury and to be awarded damages for false arrest and imprisonment. She also appeals against the decision of the Court of Queen's Bench, reversing Chief Justice Cameron's decision on the action for penalty. The cases were argued in Toronto by Mr. R. M. Meredith for the plaintiff, and Mr. Charles Hutchinson for himself and Mr. Lilley, and judgment reserved. Since the case has been entered the plaintiff, Mrs. Arscott, has been married to a man named Barnes, and, it is reported, has removed to Duluth.

THE COUNTY AND THE HOSPITAL.

What Warden Cleverdon Has to Say Regarding the Management and Petition.

In the course of an interview with a FREE PRESS representative yesterday Mr. Leander Cleverdon, Warden of the County of Middlesex, said he and some of the other members of the County Council were unable to understand the character of the discussion at the meeting of the City Council on Tuesday evening in regard to the City Hospital and the petition before the Legislature. He stated that the petition asking for a change in the management of the Hospital was sent to the Legislature by the County Council, who believed such a change is greatly needed. As to the statement that the county has no direct interest in the Hospital, but only pays pro rata for the number of inmates sent thereto, Mr. Cleverdon stated that the county now holds an interest of some $8,100 in the Trust Fund, and that the interest on that amount, of some $420, is paid into and becomes part of the revenue of the institution. He further added that a number of the county members desire to withdraw from any connection with the Hospital unless an improvement is made in its whole management.

LONDON WEST.

A special meeting of the Joint Committee of the City Council and the village in regard to the Water-works dam question was held on Tuesday afternoon, when Reeve Campbell reported that the London West Council considered the agreement with the city should not be for all time, but should be limited, say to ten years; also that they considered the city should clean out any deposits or filling from time to time as it accumulates. Upon motion it was decided that the fourth clause of the proposition passed at previous meeting be amended so as to read that the city agrees to:—"Put two openings in dam 8 feet deep and 30 feet long each, with stop logs and so arranged that the logs may be withdrawn at any time" on the request of the Council of London West and City Engineer, and will also remove 15 inches from the top of other part of dam—the latter portion being substituted for the words "on request of the Reeve of London West."

IT NEEDS WATCHING.

The proposal that has been made by M. Mercier—the "Reform" leader of the Quebec Government—to convoke a meeting of delegates from the various provinces for the purpose of securing "better terms" from the Dominion, is a significant one. It bears on its face something like a conspiracy to extort concessions of a pecuniary kind which are not in any way justified. The province of Quebec has run violently into debt, and is at its wits' end to provide for the necessary annual payments on account of interest. To resort to direct taxation is an expedient which they know very well the amiable habitant will not consent to. He is more obnoxious to it than is even the resident of Ontario, who has objections to that mode of procedure of a very marked character. So M. Mercier does not intend to meet the issue squarely in the face on account of his own province, but seeks to associate with him those greedy ones of the other provinces who while upbraiding the Ottawa Government for increasing the debt of the Dominion, have never hesitated to pile up that debt if by that means they could but secure a share of the "boodle." When the proposed convocation will meet, and who the associate representatives may be, has not been fully decided on. But in the meantime it may be well to point out that the Dominion Government now pays to the various provinces a sum annually which touches $4,000,000. Since the establishment of Confederation it has paid in this way not less than $60,000,000, and has thus added to the general debt a sum more than equal to one-fourth part of the existing obligations. If M. Mercier's plan of the campaign were to be followed, the general debt would be certainly increased by some $50,000,000. That is the outcome that would have to be faced if all the provinces were to share-and-share alike in plunder that it is proposed to extract from the general estate. It has been alleged, and with some approach to truth, that the principal revenue that is collected falls upon Ontario with the greatest force in proportion to its population. And if this be so it is evident that we of the west would be called upon under such an arrangement as M. Mercier proposes to contribute still more heroically to the general expenditures. It need scarcely be said that that contrivance to extract more money, still more money, from us would not be received with general satisfaction. Indeed, it would be far better that the province should be ready to assume the burden of its own expenditures—the other provinces doing the same, than that so unfair a plan should be entered upon. At the present time the Dominion pays over to Ontario the sum of $1,389,000 as its share of the subsidy. That is at the rate of 80 cents per head. In order to provide that amount drafts have to be made upon the revenue calling for taxation that might otherwise be abated. It has been often pointed out in these columns that the system of Provincial subsidies is a vicious one. It was consented to at the establishment of Confederation as necessary to smooth the way to union with the other Provinces "down by the sea." But it has become apparent that the largess that has been thus obtained by the Provincial Governments has not been wisely administered, and the proverb, "Lightly "come, lightly go," has received another exemplification. So long as the Provincial Governments have poured into their treasuries from year to year immense sums of money which they have not had the pains to collect, so long it may be supposed that necessary thrift will be absent. The Dominion has been a generous cow to milk, and so long as the national udder does not dry up so long it may be supposed it will be called on for ever-renewed contributions. At the same time that kind of process is going on, and the general debt growing as a consequence, the Government of the Dominion is made the subject of continual denunciations on account of the augmentation of that Debt. And yet we see the "reformers" of Quebec, those who have been so heartily welcomed by Mr. Mowat and his fraternity, preparing the way to compel the increase of the debt by a very large sum. It is true that it may be argued that, after all, it would be but shifting the obligation from one side to the other, and that it would be of little real consequence whether the provinces owed the amount individually or collectively. And further, that it could be borne more economically by the Dominion than by the provinces separately. Which in a certain sense would be true. But that fact would not remove this grave aspect of the case—that Ontario would be called upon to "foot the bill" still more heavily in proportion to its population than its sisters in the confederate union. M. Mercier needs watching badly.

A Portland correspondent of the New York Herald says:—

"The Canadian Government has prohibited the sale of bait, and there is, and will be, great suffering in Newfoundland in consequence."

This is a fair specimen of the accuracy with which the average American measures the Canadian fishery question. The sale of bait in Newfoundland was prohibited by the Colonial Legislature, but the Act was disallowed in England, which has been deemed so great a hardship by the islanders that they have been represented as on the verge of "rebellion," and have sent special envoys to London to get the disallowance withdrawn.

HOSPITAL AFFAIRS.

The movement in favor of placing the affairs of the Hospital in the hands of a competent Trust gains in public estimation. The Government Inspector, Dr. O'Reilly, has stated to the Council that in his opinion the management cannot be properly conducted under present conditions—a conclusion in which all those that have looked into the matter concur. But so far nothing has been done of a conclusive kind looking to the needed alteration. For some reason or other which does not appear upon the surface, a needless delay has taken place in pushing this matter to the desired result. So that another year, or more, will elapse before anything of an advantageous kind can be carried out. This is to be deplored. If there is one institution more than another that should be carried on with the utmost efficiency it is the Hospital, which is designed in the common interests of humanity. But the old methods of conducting it are still in vogue, though they have been condemned by the Medical Faculty, by the Government Inspector, as well as by public opinion. There can be no doubt that if the Hospital were in proper hands large contributions would be forthcoming in favor of it. But at the present none have any confidence in it, and its usefulness is thus largely circumscribed.

DISTRESS FOR RENT.

The Bill relating to distraint for rent has passed its second reading in the Local Legislature. Hon. Mr. Hardy, in speaking to the measure on Tuesday, said the Government did not think it advisable to go to the whole length of abolishing distress for rent, at all events at one step. The Bill would prevent the distraint of goods which are now exempt from seizure under execution. Then it was provided that the goods of third parties on the premises should not be distrained; but in order to prevent frauds it was provided that this freedom from distraint should not apply to relatives of the tenant, or to persons claiming, by gift or sale from the tenant, or by virtue of an execution against the tenant. In case of an assignment for the benefit of creditors, the landlord would be entitled to distrain as against the assignee for six months' rent and no more. Then, as they were in a measure depriving the landlord of his right to distrain, it became important that the landlord should have some simple way of recovering possession of the premises. It was therefore provided that the tenant could claim the exemption given by the Act only upon giving up possession of the premises. The tenant would have the right to set off against the rent any debt due to him by the landlord. Some landlords might think the Bill went too far, inasmuch as it practically exempted all the goods of the poorer class of tenants living in tenement houses. Other persons might think it did not go far enough. It was urged that the arbitrary power given to a landlord who distrained was too great and liable to abuse. Yet it would probably be found that the power was not often abused; that there were not many cases of distress where no rent was due. The landlord who distrained wrongfully was under severe penalties, and he was usually a responsible person, from whom damages could be collected. On the whole, Mr. Hardy thought that under existing circumstances the Bill would do the maximum amount of good.

LONDON BOUND TO THRIVE.

A decided start in the direction of a boom may be looked for in this city in a few days' time. Track-laying on the western extension of the Pacific Railway system has begun at Woodstock, and the expectation that June will see the completion of the roadway into this city is not unwarranted. The further extension toward the Detroit River will follow in due course, together with the erection of the Divisional Shops, and a large industry established here as a consequence. The Southeastern Railway will also be in running order by the time indicated, with the independent terminal facilities which are to be put immediately under contract. With these competing railway connections, London will be in an exceptionally favorable position as a centre of trade and industry, and, doubtless, affairs will go forward with redoubled energy and success. The houses which have started in business in London within the last year or two have made such satisfactory progress as to augur well for the new firms who are expected to establish themselves here in new buildings now under construction. London as a business centre has always held its own in the dullest times. It may now, with the extra facilities referred to, be counted upon for a rapid and solid extension of trade.

AN ENGLISH SETTLER'S EXPERIENCE IN THE NORTH-WEST.

Mr. James Buchanan, writing to the Liverpool Mercury on the 4th of March, says:—

Three years ago I sailed with my wife and family to Winnipeg, Manitoba, there to found a home and find occupation for my large family of boys and girls. Arriving at Winnipeg, I sought the advice and counsel of Captain Graham, the courteous Government agent, whose thorough knowledge of the city of Winnipeg and its surroundings I found of the greatest value to me, and by his advice I settled at Kildonan, four miles from Winnipeg. My father being a large landowner in the Old Country, and I being brought up to an agricultural life, I started a farm, my success being so great that I have now returned to the Old Country to sell out all my lands and finally settle in this most promising colony. My boys, aged 16 and 18 respectively, readily obtained situations at a salary of £75 per annum, which will increase yearly, there being no apprenticeships, salary dating from engagement.

The climate is the healthiest on the surface of the globe; it is cold, dry, bracing and sunshiny in winter, and perfect in summer. The prairie affords unlimited pasturage to our herds of Shorthorn cattle and flocks of Cotswolds, Down and Leicester sheep. I am willing to give all the help and render all the assistance in my power to those who are willing to come and join me in stock raising, where we have millions of acres of the finest and richest land under the sun, free from rates and taxes and "old world" conventionalities.

A TICKLISH QUESTION.

"Has a husband a right to open his wife's letters?" This was one of the questions discussed by the Parisian lawyers at a late Conference, the conclusion being that he has. Several extra-legal luminaries, being interviewed on the subject by a journalist, agreed with the lawyers. An enlightened priest, whose name is not given, answered that the doctrine of the Church was that the husband is master in the house, and that he had, therefore, a perfect right to open his wife's letters.

M. de Pressense, the leading Protestant pastor in Paris, was somewhat less affirmative; though, as regards wives who had anything to fear from the exercise of the right, he supported the decision of the barristers, while in the case of a good wife he could not see how it mattered either way. Alexandre Dumas, looking at the question from the historico-philosophical standpoint, contended that what we know of the relations of Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden clearly establishes the right of the husband to inspect his wife's correspondence.

Mme. Peyrebune's answer was also in the affirmative, though she added that the question was of no practical importance, as compromising letters are never sent through the post. Mme. Adam was the only dissentient. In her opinion, the husband who opened his wife's letter was nothing more nor less than a blackguard.

CURRENT TOPICS.

From reliable information the Selkirk Herald is led to believe that the work on the Hudson's Bay Railway is to be proceeded with at an early date.

Of the Grit leadership, "Don" says in the News:—

I was talking the other day with a half-dozen Grit M. P.'s, who are of that particular class who don't hope to attain to the leadership themselves, and look without passion on the claims of those a grade above them.

I said, "Without Blake who would you have?"

"There is nobody in the party!"

"That is a great confession of weakness," I said.

They replied:

"It's a fact. Sir Richard is the only other man, and he won't do. He is too tenacious of what he doesn't know, and not wide enough to draw any new elements."

Mr. Beecher's youngest sister, Mrs. Isabella Hooker, was refused permission to look upon her dying brother. This has been explained on the ground that she acted and spoke cruelly against him during the Beecher-Tilton trial, being at the time infatuated with Victoria Woodhull. As the family hated her in consequence, and Beecher was unconscious, and she could not have spoken to him, and he could not have recognized her, it was resolved not to admit her to see him.

"Miss Mary Anderson's experimental production of 'A Winter's Tale,' at the Theatre Royal, Nottingham, on Shakespeare's birthday, is to be on a very elaborate scale," says the London World. "It is anticipated, from the careful study which Miss Anderson has bestowed on the play, that it will create a great impression. She will probably introduce herself as a living statue, after the manner of Galatea. Her company will include Mr. and Mrs. Macklin."

In Cuba a woman never loses her maiden name. After marriage she adds her husband's name to her own. In being spoken of, she is always called by her Christian and maiden names. To a stranger it is often quite a task to find out whose wife a woman is. Never hearing the wife called by the husband's name, one naturally does not associate them together. The children take the names of both parents, but place the mother's name after the father's.

On the reality of the sea serpent, Prof. Proctor quotes the following statement by Agassiz:—"If a naturalist had to sketch the outlines of an ichthyossurus or plesiosaurus from the remains we have of them, he would make a drawing very similar to the sea serpent as it has been described. There is reason to think that the parts are soft and perishable, but I still consider it probable that it will be the good fortune of some person on the coast of Norway or North America to find a living representative of this type of reptile, which is thought to have died out."

The celerity and perfection with which a quail can secrete itself when it alights, after it has been flushed, has often been a source of surprise to the sportsman, but if all these game birds act as did one observed by Henry Ray, of Gilmer, Tex., their success in hiding is no longer surprising. He was walking in a field with his dog, when a covey of birds was flushed and one alighted near him, and the moment it did so seized a dead oak leaf, crouched to the ground, and threw the leaf over its back, so that it was completely hidden from view. Mr. Ray had actually to go and turn over the leaf before he could believe the evidence of his own eyes.

A correspondent in Notes and Queries questions whether anybody was ever burnt alive. He writes:—Of all the strange things in history that puzzled one's childhood, I do not remember anything that strained one's belief more than the stories of various persons who were made to harangue and argue, and even poke dry puns, while burning "at the stake." The story which harrowed me most of all concerned Savanarola. I think the book was by Dumas. A more shameless piece of circumstantial invention was never printed. More serious writers than Dumas, however, with less fascination of detail, have unblushingly asserted that he was burnt alive; and nine out of every ten of educated persons to whom you put the question would be found possessed of the belief that this was the case. Nevertheless, Savanarola certainly was not burnt alive. Is it more than a ghastly myth that anybody ever was?

PORT of ABERDEEN, SCOTLAND.

To Cattle Dealers and Agriculturists.

THE Aberdeen Harbor Commissioners beg to invite the attention of Cattle Dealers and Agriculturists to the advantages which the Port of Aberdeen presents as a Landing-place for Canadian Store Cattle.

Aberdeen has now been licensed by H.M. Privy Council as a Landing-place for Foreign Cattle not subject to slaughter or quarantine, and a wharf for the purpose has been provided by the Harbor Commissioners, with sheds capable of accommodating 35) head of Cattle.

The number of Store Cattle at present required in the North-eastern Counties of Scotland, for which Aberdeen is naturally the place of import, is believed to be about 30,0.0 annually, and the opening of Aberdeen as a port of debarkation offers undoubted facilities and advantages, and cannot fail to enhance the demand in the district for Canadian Cattle for feeding purposes.

Further information may be obtained, on application, from the Minister of Agriculture, Ottawa; or from A. F. RIDDELL, 24 St. John street, Montreal.

An Indian Quarrel.

Albuquerque, N.M., March 30.—News has been received here of a quarrel between Navajos and Zuni Indians at Defiance. A day or two ago a Navajo and a Zuni warrior quarrelled, and a Navajo chief took away the pistols from both to prevent bloodshed. The Zuni Indian took this as an insult and threatened the chief, who was afterwards waylaid by Zunis, who gave him a thrashing with rods. When news of the indignity offered their chief reached the Navajos they formed a pursuing party and went for the Zunis. There are now about 500 of both tribes on the ground, and recruits for both parties are rapidly coming in.

Mr. Dawson will now be declared elected by eleven majority.

NOTICE.

SEALED TENDERS, ADDRESSED TO THE undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Indian Supplies," will be received at this office up to noon of SATURDAY, 30th April, 1887, for the delivery of Indian Supplies during the fiscal year ending 30th June, 1888, consisting of Flour, Bacon, Groceries, Ammunition, Twine, Oxen, Cows, Bulls, Agricultural Implements, Tools, &c., duty paid, at various points in Manitoba and the North-west Territories.

Forms of tender containing full particulars relative to the Supplies required, dates of delivery, &c., may be had by applying to the undersigned, or to the Indian Commissioner at Regina, or to the Indian Office, Winnipeg.

Parties may tender for each description of goods (or for any portion of each description of goods) separately or for all the goods called for in the Schedules, and the Department reserves to itself the right to reject the whole or any part of a tender.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted Cheque on a Canadian Bank in favor of the Superintendent General of Indian Affairs for at least five per cent of the amount of the tender, which will be forfeited if the party tendering declines to enter into a contract based on such tender when called upon to do so, or if he fails to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted, the cheque will be returned.

Tenderers must make up in the money columns in the schedule the total money value of the goods they offer to supply, or their tender will not be entertained.

Each tender must, in addition to the signature of the tenderer, be signed by two sureties acceptable to the Department, for the proper performance of the contract.

When ingredients of a particular make are mentioned it is because the articles so designated suit the Department for the purpose required better than others; in such cases the competition between tenderers must, of course, be in the transportation to the place of delivery.

In all cases where transportation may be only partial by rail, contractors must make proper arrangements for supplies to be forwarded at once from railway stations to their destination in the Government Warehouse at the point of delivery.

Tenders will please note carefully the following conditions:—

1. Supplies will not be paid for until the Department has been assured of the satisfactory delivery of each article for which payment is claimed.
2. No tender for supplies of a description different to that given in the index will be considered, and supplies which are found on delivery, to be of a kind or quality different to those described, will be rejected by the agents of the Department, and the contractor and his sureties will be held responsible for any loss entailed on the Department through failure to deliver in accordance with terms of contract.
3. It must be distinctly understood that supplies are to be delivered at the various points for the prices named in the tender; that no additional charge for packing or any other account will be entertained, and that an invoice must accompany each separate delivery of supplies. An invoice for each separate delivery must also be sent to the Department of Indian Affairs at Ottawa, and one to the Indian Commissioner at Regina, if the supplies are for the North-West Territories. When the supplies are for points in the Manitoba Superintendency the triplicate invoice should be sent to E. McColl, Winnipeg.
4. Prices must be given for articles to be delivered at each point of delivery named in the Schedule for each article for which a tender is submitted, and not an average price for each article at all points of delivery; no tender based on a system of averages will be considered.
5. Tenderers should understand that they must bear the cost, not only of sending their samples to the Department of Indian Affairs but also freight charges incurred in returning such samples to the tenderer.
6. When supplies are to be delivered "equal to sample," tenderers should understand that the sample is to be seen either at the Department of Indian Affairs, at the office of the Indian Commissioner at Regina, at the office of the Inspector in charge at Winnipeg, or at any one of the undermentioned Indian Agencies:—

It Didn't Stop There.

From Tid-Bits.

Upon the ice we sported
Our figures much distorted,
The temperature our spirits could not chill
She, all grace and beauty,
To love her seemed a duty
Which I tried in great measure to fulfil.

I told her of the pleasure
Of having such a treasure,
And sure my love for her would always grow
Then spoke of my distress
In a world wide wilderness,
If by any chance her answer should be No.

The moon shone out the brighter,
I grasped her hands still tighter,
And she turned to me her radiant loveslit face
For answer then I knew:
So what less could I do
Than try to seal it with a fond embrace?

Our footing was not sure,
But that it was quite secure,
And now for many years we have been one.
I wish that I might say
With truthfulness to-day,
"That's the only time that I was sat upon."

THE VEILED WOMAN

Ayesha said nothing; she made no sound, she only drew herself up, stretched out her arm, and, her tall veiled frame quivering like an aspen leaf, appeared to look fixedly at her victim. Even as she did so Ustane put her hands to her head, uttered one piercing scream, turned round twice, and then fell backward with a thud across upon the floor. Both Leo and myself rushed to her—she was stone dead—blasted into death by some mysterious electric agency or overwhelming will-force whereof the dread she had command.

For a moment Leo did not quite realize what had happened. But when he did his face was awful to see. With a savage oath he rose from beside the corpse, and turning, literally shrunk at Ayesha. But she had been calling, and seeing him coming, stretched out her hand again, and he came staggering back toward me, and would have fallen had I not caught him. Afterward he told me that he felt as though he had suddenly received a violent blow in the chest, and, what is more, cowed as though all the manhood had been taken out of him.

Then Ayesha spoke. "Forgive me, my guest," she said, softly, addressing him, "if I have shocked thee with my justice."

"Forgive thee, thou fiend," roared poor Leo, wringing his hands in his rage and grief—"forgive thee, thou murderess! By Heaven, I will kill thee if I can!"

"Nay, nay," she answered, in the same soft voice, "thou dost not understand—the time has come for thee to learn. Thou art my love, my Kallikrates—my Beautiful, my Strong! For two thousand years, Kallikrates, have I waited for thee, and now at length thou hast come back to me, and as for this woman," pointing to the corpse, "she stood between me and thee, and therefore I have removed her, Kallikrates."

"It is an accursed lie!" screamed Leo. "My name is not Kallikrates! I am Leo Vincey, my ancestor was Kallikrates—at least I believe he was."

"Ah, thou sayest it; thine ancestor was Kallikrates, and thou, even thou, art Kallikrates come back—and mine own dear lord!"

"I am not Kallikrates, and as for being thy lord, or having anything to with do thee, I had rather be the lord of a fiend from hell, for she would be better than thou."

"Sayest thou so—sayest thou so, Kallikrates? Nay, but thou hast not seen me for so many years that no memory remains. Yet am I very fair, Kallikrates!"

"I hate thee, murderess, and I do not wish to see thee. What is it to me how fair thou art? I hate thee, I say."

"Yet, within a very little space shalt thou creep to my knee, and swear that thou dost love me," answered Ayesha, with a sweet, mocking laugh. "Come, there is no time like the present time; here, before this dead girl who loved thee, let us put it to the proof.

"Look now on me, Kallikrates!" and with a sudden motion she shook her gauzy covering from her, and stood forth in her low kirtle and her snaky zone, in her glorious, radiant beauty and her imperial grace, rising from her wrappings, as it were, like Venus from the wave, or Galatea from her marble, or a beautified spirit from the tomb. She stood forth, and fixed her deep and glowing eyes upon his own, and I saw his clinched fists unclasp, and his set and quivering features relax beneath her gaze. I saw his wonder and astonishment grow into admiration, and then into fascination; and the more he struggled the more I saw the power of her dread beauty fasten on him and take possession of his senses, dragging them, and drawing the heart out of him. Did I not know the process? Had not I, who was twice his age, gone through it myself? Was I not going through it afresh even then, though her sweet and passionate gaze was not for me? Yes, alas, it was. Alas, that I should have to confess that at that very moment I was rent by mad and furious jealously. I could have flown at his throat, shame upon me. That woman had confounded and almost destroyed my moral sense, as she was bound to confound all who looked upon her superhuman loveliness. But, somehow, I do not know how, I got the better of myself, and once more turned to see the climax of the tragedy.

"Oh, Heavens!" gasped Leo. "Art thou a woman?"

"A woman in truth—in very truth—and thine own spouse, Kallikrates!" she answered, stretching out her rounded ivory arms toward him, and smiling, oh, so sweetly!

He looked and looked, and slowly I perceived that he was drawing nearer to her. Suddenly his eye fell upon the corpse of poor Ustane, and he shuddered and stopped.

"How can I?" he said hoarsely. "Thou art a murderess. She loved me."

Observe, he was already forgetting that he had loved her.

"It is naught," she murmured, and her voice sounded as the night wind passing through the trees. "It is naught at all. If I have sinned, let my beauty answer for my sin. If I have sinned it is for love of thee; let my sin, therefore, be put away and forgotten;" and once more she stretched out her arms and whispered, "Come," and then in another few seconds it was over. I saw him struggle—I saw him even turn to fly; but her eyes drew him stronger than iron bonds, and the magic of her beauty and concentrated will and passion entered into him and overpowered him—ay, even there—in the presence of the body of the woman who had loved him well enough to die for him. It sounds horrible and wicked enough, but no can not be blamed too much, and be sure his sin will find him out. The temptress who drew him into evil was more than human, and her beauty was greater than the loveliness of the daughters of men.

"Perchance thou dost not believe my word, Kallikrates—perchance thou thinkest that I do delude thee, and that I have not lived these many years, and that thou hast not been born again to me. Now will I show thee, and thee also, my Holly, who dost stand staring there as though of a truth thou hadst taken root in this unkindly soil. Bear each one of you a lamp, and follow after me whither I shall lead ye."

Without pausing to think—indeed, speaking for myself, I had almost abandoned the function in circumstances under which to think seemed to be absolutely useless, since thought fell hourly helpless against a black wall of wonder—we took the lamps and followed her. Going to the end of her "boudoir," she raised a curtain, and revealed a little stair of the sort that was so common in these dim caves of Kor. As we hurried down the stair I observed that the steps were worn in the center to such an extent that some of them had been reduced from seven and a half inches, at which I guessed their original height, to about three and a half. Now, as all the other steps that I had seen in the caves had been practically unworn, as was to be expected, seeing that the only traffic that ever passed upon them was that of those who bore a fresh burden to the tomb, this fact struck my notice with that curious pertinacity with which little things do strike us when our minds are absolutely overwhelmed with a rush of powerful sensations, beaten flat, as it were, like a sea beneath a hurricane, so that every little object on the surface stands up like a mountain. At the bottom of the staircase I stood and stared at the worn steps, and Sae, turning, saw me.

A PARADOX.

The bachelor's lot is lonely and sad,
Poor man!
He hasn't a wife to make his heart glad,
He doesn't know how he'd be best if he had;
Nor can
He conceive what it is he has lost;
He thinks he has only escaped "being bossed"—
Poor man!

Oh, the bachelor's heart is sorry and sore,
Indeed!
He knows he can never know joy any more,
And he looks upon life as a terrible bore,
Agreed
With the croaker that life doesn't pay,
And to all thoughtless lovers impatient to say—
"Take heed!"

Yes, the bachelor's lot is a desolate one,
And yet
There are girls who think it would really be fun
To share it with him, after all's said and done:
Forget
All his miseries many, and pleasures so few;
I know lots of girls who would do it—don't you?
You bet!

The man who with meek resignation permits himself to be henpecked is a sort of conquered philosopher.

Wife—Am I as dear to you, John, as I was before we were married? Husband (with a sigh)—Yes, a good deal dearer.

Mrs. Goodington says she doesn't think much of the anonymous writers. Nine cases out of ten nobody knows who they are.

Little Scholar—Why is "man" called a noun? Elderly Schoolmistress (with acidity)—Because it's the name of a "thing."

Now, groundhogs, all answer together.
Correct! For you sing that the advertised spring
Is postponed on account of the weather.

Well, Hauntz, you may talk 'bout your iron age an' your stone age an' your goal age, but gimme a good bolegna. How is dot for sausage?

Mistress (to servant)—Did you tell those ladies at the door that I was not at home? Servant—Yis, mum. Mistress—What did they say? Servant—How fortinit!

Wife (to husband)—Why is young Tompkins called a good fellow by his friends? Husband—Because he is always good natured and pleasant, can tell a story well, spends his money freely, and shamefully neglects his family.

Old Gentleman (to driver of street car)—My friend, what do you do with your wages every week—put part of it in the Savings Bank? Driver—No, sir. After payin' the butcher and grocer an' rent, I pook away what's left in barrels. I'm 'fraid of them savis's banks.

Sharp settlement.—"There is one thing about me," said Dumley, as he wrote his name in the hotel register, "I pay as I go, and don't you forget to remember it!" "Any baggage?" demanded the clerk. "No." "Then you won't pay as you go; you'll pay as you come! Two dollars, please, and remember not to forget it!"

Chicago Lady (stopping at an up-town hotel, to husband)—I don't feel a bit like eating this morning. (To waiter) You may bring me a small piece of mince pie and a cup of coffee. Waiter—We don't serve pie for breakfast, ma'am. Chicago Lady (with a genteel elevation of the eyebrows) Noh? Then a little frosted cake, please, and some rawsberry jell.

Young Man (to fellow-passenger)—You appear anxious, sir. Fellow-Passenger—Yes, I want to know the time o' day very much; but I see you wear two watch chains, and I don't suppose you— Young Man (buttoning his coat)—No; I foolishly allowed both my watches to run down last night, but I think it must be in the neighborhood of 9 or 10 o'clock, or thereabouts.

Robinson—Did you ever notice, Brown, the habit Dumley has of saying "What's that?" to every remark made to him? Brown—No; I think you're mistaken, Robinson. Robinson—I'll bet you five dollars that you can't make a remark to him that he won't say, "What's that?" Brown (puts up the money and accosts Dumley)—Will you have something to drink, Dumley? THE SONG THE SIRENS SING.

In sea caves dark and rocks where hides
The restless wind that haunts the sea,
Where murmuring waves and moaning tides
Chant their unceasing melody;
In meadows bright with fadeless spring,
Where dead men's bones the light defile,
What were the songs they used to sing,
The sirens of this sunny isle?

Soft breathed and tender sweet and low,
Across the waters dark and wild,
The wanderer heard their numbers flow,
And all his soul their charm beguiled.
Swift through the brasker's snowy foam,
He drove his bark with panting breath,
Forgetting wife and child at home,
While sirens sang him to his death.

We know their songs—they had but one—
Odysseus heard the fatefut thing;
And madness seized Laerte's son,
Who heard "The Flowers that Bloom in Spring?"
And still unchanged in air or word,
The sirens sing with tireless breath,
The same old song Ulysses heard,
And with it still sing men to death.

Prohibition in Michigan.

From the Detroit Free Press.

Let every prohibitionist and anti-prohibitionist in the State take these facts home to himself:—For ten years, in a time of peace and of freedom from any excitement likely to distract attention from the enforcement of law, the State of Michigan had a prohibitory law as stringent as any that can possibly be enacted under the proposed amendment to the Constitution; and during that period the sale of ardent spirits was far less restricted than it has been since under the tax law. What possible ground then can there be for believing that any law based upon that amendment will be any better enforced?

We invite the attention of voters to this view of the question because it is a view based upon experience here in their own home State. It is possible to guess what would happen here from prohibitory legislation from knowing what has happened in Maine or Kansas, in Rhode Island or Iowa. But it is not possible to do more than guess. The conditions in those States, the habits of the people, their disposition toward inebriety or toward the enforcement of law, may all be different from what they are in Michigan. But when we find that right here in our own State a prohibitory law as stringent as any that can be expected under any circumstances has proven utterly worthless to check intemperance, we know what the effect will be of trying the experiment again with the same people.

FREE PRESS CORRESPONDENCE.

Algoma Jubilee Offering.

To the Editor of the Free Press.

DEAR SIR,—A few weeks ago I ventured to appeal through the columns of the Church papers to the churchwomen of the Dominion, asking them to join heart and hand in raising a fund worthy to offer the Bishop of Algoma for the much needed Clergy Widows' and Orphans' Fund of his Diocese. I asked, "Will not the Women's Auxiliary Missionary Associations, each in its own branch and diocese, take up this work now at once, so that by early in June next our continued efforts, each one having done its utmost, may have a glorious result to show?" Can you make room for one amongst several messages of encouragement which have reached me? viz., a short commendatory editorial in the Dominion Churchman of March 10th. It tells my story much better than I could tell it myself:—

THE PROPOSED JUBILEE OFFERING TO ALGOMA.

It is proposed to set a Jubilee memorial stone in the history of the Church in Canada, by devoting a special fund collected throughout the Dominion by the Women's Auxiliary Missionary Association, towards the founding on a sure basis a Widows' and Orphans' Fund for the Algoma Diocese.

The project was laid before the Church at large by a letter from Mrs. Boomer, in our issue of March 3rd.

The idea seems to us eminently happy and feasible. Happy, inasmuch as it would commend itself to that exalted widow in whose honor the memorial fund is proposed to be raised. To her motherly, generous heart nothing could be more acceptable than that in years to come the widows and orphans of the Algoma diocese should associate the comforts derived from such a fund with the memory of her Jubilee, as the Queen and Mother of this Empire and its loyal and loving people. The idea is feasible, it calls for a small sum only, one which all can give with ease, or, if not with ease, at least with thankfulness, that by some self-denial they may honor their Sovereign, and bless their afflicted sisters and orphan children.

We commend this proposal to the warmest sympathy of those to whom it appeals, assured as we are that no form of Jubilee Memorial could more appropriately honor our gracious Queen, whose reign has been so gloriously signalized by Church progress, and by the development of practical benevolence towards all who are oppressed in mind, body or estate.

Until I was certain that there would be a hearty response from the various W. Auxiliary Branches I did not dare to invoke the powerful aid of our local press, but now that a ready co-operation is promised from nearly every diocese, direct from their fountain heads, i.e., Bishops, Presidents, &c., after special meetings held to decide the practicability of the steps, we come to you, sir, for the help you never deny to a good cause. The President of the Toronto Diocesan Branch writes:—"Can you arrange to have the money sent to you by the beginning of June? The presentation should certainly come from London when full grown, where the cradle was first rocked." Whether we accept this graceful and kindly intentioned tribute to our at present very weak little attempt at cradle-rocking, depends upon our further efforts in that direction. Let us, anyway, see to it that if we can help it, the babe shall be no mere weakling, but one of such fine, sturdy growth that whoever acts as its foster mother, when it shows its welcome little face in Algoma, it shall do credit to its nurses and carry with it such firmly knit bones and sinews that it will soon be able to run alone. I have to acknowledge already donations of $5 each from Mrs. Baldwin, Mrs. Mills, Mrs. Jno. Labatt, Mrs. Boomer, Mrs. V. Cronyn, Mrs. B Cronyn, Mrs. Innes, Mrs. Cleghorn, Mrs. Hyman, Mrs. G Hyman, Mrs. G E Harris, Mrs. Meredith, Mrs. W R Meredith, Mrs. Carling, Mrs. R Shawwood; Mrs. Labatt, Rev. J. W. Racey, Mrs. Racey; $3 each, Mrs. Compiin, Miss F. Labatt, $1 each, Mrs. Beddome, Mrs. Tilley, Mrs. Hutchinson, Miss Harriet Marsh, Mrs. Bayley, Rev. F. W. Kerr, Mrs. Warner, Mrs. Birrell, Miss Birrell and Miss B. Birrell; 25c each, Miss E. Street and Mrs. Coze—Total, $107.50. At a mothers' meeting held in the Memorial Church Parish, its members asked to have a box placed upon the table for their weekly mites as they could spare them. After these encouragements who will despair of our fund? Contributions of even the smallest coin of the realm will be welcomed, not only for its money value, but for its proof of a loving, sisterly interest in those who are devoting their lives to the mission work of our own Missionary Diocese of Algoma, and of their loyalty to their Queen and their gratitude to God for a half century of blessings granted to us under her auspicious reign.

Thanking you for your courtesy in obtaining for us so "far and wide" a hearing as are ensured to us in the columns of the FREE PRESS, Believe me, faithfully yours,

H. A. BOOMER

Is dry and turns hard, until oil is applied, after which it moves easily. When the joints, or hinges, of the body are stiffened and inflamed by Rheumatism, they cannot be moved without causing the most excruciating pains. Ayer's Sarsaparilla, by its action on the blood, relieves this condition, and restores the joints to good working order.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla has effected, in our city, many most remarkable cures, a number of which baffled the efforts of the most experienced physicians. Were it necessary, I could give the names of many individuals who have been cured by taking this medicine. In my own case it has certainly worked wonders, relieving me of A hint worth heeding. Life loses half its zest when digestion is permanently impaired. Surely then a speedy means of restoring this essential of bodily comfort is worth trying. Every rank, every profession, bears its quota of evidence to the beneficent influence upon the stomach, and also upon the liver, bowels, and kidneys, of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure, the celebrated Blood Purifier. What is the wise course suggested to the sick by this testimony? We leave them to decide.

The sloop Carrie and Hattie ran into a raft on Cooper River, near Columbia, S.C., yesterday, and partially split it. There were a large number of colored laborers on the raft, and four were drowned. The captain of the sloop was responsible for the accident, and he has been jailed.

THE STORY OF HUNDREDS.—In a recent letter received from Mrs. Sarah A. Mills, of Wheatley, Ont., she says, "I was a sufferer for six years with dyspepsia and liver complaint. My food did not digest, and I grew weaker every day. I lost appetite and had little hope of recovery. I tried many remedies, but all in vain, till I took Burdock Blood Bitters. The first bottle gave relief; after taking seven bottles, I am thankful that I now enjoy good health."

Forty years ago an old lady in Baldwin, Fla., about to die, made her children promise not to bury her body. She threatened to haunt them if they did, and so when she was dead they placed the body in a stout coffin of Florida pine, placed it on the surface of the ground in the graveyard, and built a strong log pen around it. The log house is in good condition now, and so is the coffin within it.

"Good deeds," once said the celebrated Richter, "ring clear through Heaven like a bell." One of the best deeds is to alleviate human sufferings. "Last fall my daughter was in decline," says Mrs. Mary Hinson, of Montrose, Kansas, "And everybody thought she was going into consumption. I got her a bottle of Dr. R. V. Pierce's 'Favorite Prescription,' and it cured her." Such facts as the above need no comment.

New York, March 30.—Bulls continue to talk onfidently of higher prices, and say indications re that there will be an active movement hich will last the summer through, and that e long-sail-ted bulls will be the ones to make e most money. Everybody seemed to think ay Gould is in the market in real earnest, and at it is largely to his influence that the present ovement has become so generally popular as is. The trading in W. U. Preferred was some- hat of a mystery, and the traders were in- lined to believe that London had more to do ith rise in Preferred than arbitrageurs cared o admit. N. E. was very favorably influenced y declaration of semi-annual dividend on the referred stock. The demand for common was etter as the day advanced, and the inside party, hich has been persistently bulling the stock on he supposition that there will be amalgama- ion, consolidation or working arrangement ith the Manhatten elevated system, was talk- ng as hopefully as ever on the property. A rominent director of the W U said yesterday, know of no particular reason why the W U hould go up at present. Intrinsically, it is worth more than it is selling for, but there is no cause for a boom. As far as I know the stock, however, acts strangely, and while insiders think we know about property, the other fellows mentioned walk away with the profits which the bull market gives them. Commission people are not over- active, but what their customers lack in orders they make up in enthusiasm. They believe that the market is a bull one, and look for sharp rallies to follow every depression.

Toronto Horse Market.

March 30.—There has not been so much busi- ness transacted in horses this week or last. There is a good steady demand, but there are fewer offerings. There have been no shipments so far. Most of the buyers of heavy draught horses are in the country buying. In the city there are a good many inquiries for drivers and useful horses for waggons, but offerings are light. At Grand's sale to- day twenty-five animals were offered, of which twenty were sold; among them were a few good general purpose blocks, weighing 1,100 to 1,200 lbs, which sold at $110 to $141 per head; drivers, 15 to 15.3, 900 to 1,100 lbs, $80 to $120. The annual spring sale at Grand's Re- pository will take place April 19 to 22, when it is expected about 300 animals will be offered. No purchases have yet been made for the British Army, but a good many sellers are making in- quiries.

TORONTO.

March 29.—There were twenty-four loads of stock on the market this morning. Nearly all were cattle, small stock being scarce. Some very nice cattle were offered; sales were made of choice steers weighing 1,280 lbs at 4½c per lb, while for one lot about 4¼c was bid; these, however, were very nice quality and would have done for export; they were bought, however, for the block; good loads of butchers' cattle sold at 3½c to 3¾c per lb, with the pick at 3¾c to 4c per lb; medium sold at 3c and common 2½c per lb; mostly every- thing offered was sold or was shipped to Mon- treal. Stockers and feeders ruled quiet, business in them being light. Milch cows and springers continue dull; there was quite a number on sale to-day, but there was very little inquiry for them; the only business done was between speculators. Calves were rather scarce, and those weighing 120 to 140 lbs per head sold readily at $5 to $7 per head. Sheep and yearling lambs continue very scarce; there were only a few bunches on the market this morning; most of those sent here were bought by speculators who went out to meet the trains coming in; most of the sales were made at $6 50 to $7 per head. Spring lambs were easier on more liberal offer- ings; demand has not opened out yet to any ex- tent; sales were made at $5 to $4 50 per head. Hogs were steady and in good demand, most of the offerings sold at $5 to $5 25 per cwt.

LIVE STOCK FREIGHT WAR.

Reports from East Buffalo show that war has been declared between the Erie and Central in freight rates on live stock to New York. The rate made by the Central is $30 per car, which rate, it is alleged, the Erie has been cutting for some time past on the quiet. Yesterday the Erie came out and boldly offered to ship at $25 per car, and thus secured a good deal of business. The fight will now probably be kept up until the later State law goes into effect.

A GOOD MOTIVE.—Harry Ricardo, of Toronto, agent for Fine Art Publications, states that he was so troubled with deafness for eight years that he could scarcely at- tend to business, until he tried Yellow Oil. He desires to make this cure known, for the benefit of others afflicted. 9

THE IRISH CRIMES BILL.

OPPOSITION TO THE MEASURE INTENSIFIED.

The Cabinet Discussing Liberal-Unionist Amendments—Lord Randolph Churchill Still a Faithful Supporter of the Conservative Party.

London, April 2.—The text of the Coercion Bill, now that it has been made public, intensifies the opposition to the measure. The Parnellites express themselves as sanguine that in any appeal to the country the government will be overthrown.

DISCUSSED BY THE CABINET.

The Cabinet was in session two hours to day discussing amendments proposed by Liberal-Unionists to the Coercion and Land Bills.

CHURCHILL SPEAKS.

Lord Randolph Churchill made a speech at Paddington to-day, in the course of which he declared that the action of the House of Commons last evening was not only momentous in its importance and encouraging, but worthy of Parliament and the nation. He said that although he intended to continue his crusade against extravagance in Government management, he still remained a true and faithful supporter of the Tory party, and maintained the necessity of the union. He was convinced, he added, that nobody could devise a Home Rule scheme capable of successfully standing the criticism of Parliament.

PLAGUE STRICKEN.

Hundreds of Deaths Daily From Cholera.

New York, April 3.—South American advices of a recent date state that cholera has appeared in Bolivia. At Tucaman, Argentine Republic, the death rate has reached two hundred per day. The only vehicles seen in the streets are hearses in charge of the priests of the different Orders. In the four days ending February 23rd, 626 cases of cholera and 417 deaths occurred in Santiago de Chili.

A Shocking Occurrence.

Paterson, N. J, April 2.—While ill to-night Mrs. Ernest Krause shot herself in the head with a revolver, and will probably die. An hour after the shooting the woman gave birth to twins—a boy and a girl, who are doing well.

GENERAL CABLE NEWS.

GUNPOWDER OUTRAGES IN THE SPANISH PARLIAMENT BUILDING.

Another Outbreak at Rustchuk—The Attempt to Assassinate the Prefect of Rustchuk Charged to Russian Agents—The New Italian Cabinet

London, April 3, midnight.

The Queen at Cannes.

Queen Victoria received the local officials and the chief English colonists at her villa at Cannes to-day.

Attempted Assassination.

An attempt has been made to assassinate the President of the court-martial before which the persons concerned in the recent Rustchuk revolt were tried.

The Fisheries Trouble.

The Saturday Review publishes an offensive article on the Canadian fisheries question, full of its usual bitterness toward America, concluding with the remark that the Americans are striving to fasten a quarrel on an unconscious nation.

An Open Revolt.

It is rumored at Bucharest that an outbreak has occurred at Rustchuk, and that the Bulgarian War Minister has been attacked. It is also stated that two regiments have revolted at Kustendel, that the officers of both have been placed under arrest, but that the men after a fight with the loyal troops have fled to the mountains.

The New Italian Cabinet.

The formation of a new Italian Cabinet has been virtually accomplished. Signor Depretis becomes Minister of Foreign Affairs; Signor Crispi, Minister of the Interior; Signor Viale, Minister of War; Signor Zanardelli, Minister of Justice, and Signor Saracco, Minister of Public Works. In the other Departments the present Ministers retain their portfolios.

Fiends at Work in Madrid.

During the sitting of the Spanish Chamber of Deputies at Madrid yesterday a parchment case containing gunpowder, within which was a metallic cartridge with a fuse attached, was found in the doorway of the President's bureau. Later in the evening a petard was exploded in the vestibule adjoining the offices of the Minister of Finance. Windows were broken by the concussion. Nobody was injured, but the two events have caused much alarm.

Lansdowne and O'Brien.

A telegram was received at Dublin from Toronto, Ont., yesterday, saying that if William O'Brien, editor of the United Ireland, tried to agitate in Canada against the Marquis of Lansdowne, he would be immediately arrested. O'Brien, speaking in reference to this telegram, said:—"It is a very encouraging sign of Lord Lansdowne's sensitiveness to Canadian opinion. I would not at all object to Canadians having an example on the spot of the landlord and police tyranny which Lord Lansdowne's friends practice in Ireland."

The Week of Russian Alarms.

The Times publishes a dispatch from Sofia, which says the attempt made at Rustchuk Friday by three Bulgarian refugees to assassinate the Prefect of Rustchuk was a part of a cowardly Russian intrigue. The Prefect's name is Mantoff. At the time of the attack he was walking with a man named Jacobson, who is a dragoman attached to the Russian Consulate at Rustchuk. Jacobson had for a long time been engaged in an attempt to bribe Mantoff with large sums of money. He had induced the Prefect to go to Bucharest with him to see M. Hitrovo, the Russian Minister to Roumania. Suspicions being aroused that he would not accede to their wishes and would betray their secrets, they decided to have him removed. The result was the attempt to assassinate him, which, as Saturday's dispatches stated, resulted in a severe wound to Mantoff and the arrest of two or three Bulgarians who attacked him.

Cable Notes.

Baron Hindlips, formerly Sir Henry Alsopp, a member of the brewing firm, is dead. He was 76 years of age.

It is reported that Emperor Francis Joseph will come to England during the Queen's jubilee if political affairs permit of his leaving Austria.

A second audience was given to the Americans at the Vatican yesterday. Cardinal Gibbons presented the visitors to the Pope, who said a kindly word to each.

The fine Roman amphitheatre at Poli, in Austria, on the Adriatic, suddenly collapsed Saturday and fell into an immense chasm which opened on the site. From this chasm vapors are emitted.

The Czar has assured M. de Giers, Russian Minister of Foreign Affairs, that he retains the Czar's fullest confidence. M. de Giers will remain in the Foreign Office. The Czar has assured M. Katkoff, the editor of the Moscow Gazette.

Constable Dorney, who threw down his arms and refused to obey orders and take part in the arrest of Father Ryan, of the Herbertstown branch of the National League, has been dismissed from the force. The Government have decided not to prosecute him.

Among the first of the Government proposals to be submitted when the Reichstag meets again will be a military railway Bill providing for the construction of important strategetic lines in South Germany, including the Baden See Railway, designed to avoid Swiss territory.

The Journal de St. Petersburg says, the Ameer of Afghanistan has no grounds for proclaiming a holy war against Russia, and cites the resumption of negotiations at St. Petersburg for the delimitation of the Russo-Afghan frontier as a fact showing that the Ameer's fears are groundless.

THE SCYTHIA SAFE.

A STARTLING RUMOR HAPPILY PROVES FALSE.

A Storm Almost Unprecedented in its Fury Throughout New England.

Boston, April 2.—A report was received at the Cunard Steamship Office in this city at a late hour this evening that the steamer Scythia, of the Cunard line, had gone ashore in the breakers off Scituate, some six miles from Minot's Light, just before dusk to-night. It is also reported that at the time of the disaster a blinding snow storm was prevailing, accompanied by a terrific gale, and that the sea was simply wild with fury. The Scythia has over 800 souls on board, including passengers and crew, and a rumor which cannot be verified because telegraphic communication with that section is interrupted by the storm, is current that there has been great loss of life. The wrecking companies have endeavored to send out tugs to the relief of the stranded ship, but the sea is so terrific that they could not live outside. They are now waiting for the sea to subside.

THE RUMOR FALSE.

Boston, April 3.—The rumor of a disaster on the coast at Scituate to the Cunard steamer Scythia, the circulation of which created a tremendous sensation in this city last night, has been proven to have been false. Owing to the fact that telegraphic communication with the south shore had been interrupted by the storm, it was impossible last night either to confirm the rumor or to disprove it. The circumstances were so peculiarly favorable to a belief in the truth of the report, however, that the local agent of the Cunard Company determined to charter a special train and go at once to the locality of the alleged wreck. The train left the Old Colony Station at 3.15 a. m., with the agent and thirty reporters on board, and arrived at Scituate at 4.15. Then the party trudged through three miles of snowdrifts to the beach, where, the sun having risen, a clear view of the long stretch of beach was obtained. There was no sign of a wreck in any direction. The sea was tremendously high, the waves breaking over the tops of the cliffs fifty feet high. Having been convinced of the falsity of the rumor concerning the Scythia the party returned at once to Boston. How the rumor originated is not known. The Scythia arrived at her dock safely soon after five o'clock to-night.

A STORM ALMOST UNPRECEDENTED IN ITS FURY.

Boston, April 3.—At an early hour last night a violent snow storm set in very generally throughout New England, accompanied, particularly along the coast, by a heavy gale. Reports from Gloucester, Provincetown and other prominent ports indicate the storm to have been the most severe for many years, if not altogether without precedent. For thirty-six hours the wind maintained a velocity of 40 or 48 miles an hour. From eight inches to a foot and a half of snow has fallen. Many reports are received of damage to buildings and trees from the weight of snow. At Block Island the gale was simply terrific. The beach is strewn with wreckage from the schooner Pathfinder, which went ashore at the breakwater Friday. The Old Colony boat could not leave Fall River for New York because of the terrific sea outside. Provincetown reports the weather so thick that lights cannot be seen 500 yards from shore. The harbor is full of vessels, but no reports of disasters received. Gloucester reports two feet of snow fallen. The weather is so thick that nothing can be seen of crafts in the harbor. The steamer Katahdin, from Boston for Bangor, with 125 passengers, put in at Portsmouth harbor and landed her passengers at Newcastle. The sea was so terrific her officers were convinced she would never live to reach her destination. At Newport the storm was also terrible. Trips of boats were suspended. In Boston the streets are filled up with snow and street car traffic is retarded, while on all railroads throughout New England trains are very much delayed. Advices from Sandwich and Chatham state that the storm along the coast was the most severe by far for ten years. Telegraphic and telephonic communication with the south shore is completely cut off, the wires being prostrated by heavy gales. The wind, which has blown terribly all day from the northeast, shows no sign of abating. Its force is so great that it is almost impossible for pedestrians to be about. A tremendous sea is running. The blinding snow renders navigation extremely dangerous.

A MIDNIGHT BLAZE.

A Magnificent Hotel at Monterey, Cal., Burned—The Three Hundred Guests All Escape.

Monterey, Cal, April 2.—The Hotel Delmonte was discovered on fire shortly before midnight. Everything was done to save it, but without success. The magnificent hotel and contents are a total wreck. No lives were lost. The building cost $350,000. There were 300 guests in the house when the fire was discovered, and the fire was discovered quick enough to give all an opportunity to escape, and those who were not badly frightened saved their jewels and money.

Three of the Would-be Assassins Hanged—The Irish Crimes Bill Debate—Proposed Emigration of Pauper Children to Canada.

London, April 2, 3 p.m.

Lord Cadogan's Omissions.

Lord Cadogan omitted two important clauses in his exposition of the Land Bill in the House of Lords Thursday. One of these provides that in the future judicial rents shall be reckoned from the date of the application instead of the date of the judgment of the Land Court. The other provides that tenants in arrears asking that judicial rents be fixed, shall have the arrears estimated on the same basis upon which the rents are estimated.

Colonization Scheme.

The Committees of both Houses of Parliament interested in the promotion of a State aided colonization scheme have decided to amalgamate and to present their proposals in the form of a Bill to the House of Commons. Much good is expected to result from the impartial consideration of this question. The members of Parliament have decided to invite Canadian and other delegates to a Conference, and afterwards they will be entertained at a banquet.

The Crimes Bill Debate.

Parnell's speech in the House of Commons last night, which was one of the best he ever made, was an unusually fiery peroration. He commenced to speak in low solemn tones that almost caused a sensation. Gladstone and the whole Opposition frequently applauded his remarks. The Opposition consider Balfour's case pulverized by the speech. Lord Hartington taunted the Parnellites with having wasted the time earlier in the evening on the crofter discussion. The speeches already delivered were properly second reading and committee speeches. Much time had already been given to Irish questions. He opposed the adjournment. Sir William Vernon Harcourt said the Unionist policy, it was now plainly shown, was a policy of coercion pure and simple. It is stated that if the Crimes Bill is passed the headquarters of the National League will be removed from Dublin to London.

The Attack Upon the Czar.

A dispatch from Vienna to the Chronicle says:—"While the Czar was walking on the terrace overlooking the lawn at the Gatschina Palace a shot was fired from behind a bush. The bullet whistled close to the Czar's ear. A second shot was fired from behind another bush, but without effect. The sentinel near by immediately fired upon the first assassin, and it is reported killed him on the spot. The second assassin tried to escape, but was arrested. He proved to be an officer of the army." The Russian Government has placed at the disposal of the police £25,000 to be used in unraveling the Nihilist conspiracies in Russia and £12,500 for the same purpose in foreign countries. Three persons concerned in the attempt to assassinate the Czar, by means of bombs in St. Petersburg on March 13, were hanged on Thursday morning. One hundred and twenty more officers in various branches of the service have been arrested in connection with the attempt made against the life of the Czar in the Park of Gatschina Palace on Friday last.

In Regard to Spies.

The Berlin Post, referring to the remarks of French papers on alleged disclosures by an official of the French War Office to a German official, expresses amazement that the press of a country which has for years kept up unexampled organization of espionage in Germany should make an affair devoid of significance the occasion of all kinds of insulting accusations and unmeasured demands. The Post says:—"The facts established in the evidence given at the trials for treason of Jenssen, Saranw and Prohl brought to light a network of spies, organized by the Paris Intelligence Department, throughout Germany. As to the demand of Paris papers that the German military attache who received the information should be recalled, the request, if made by the French Government, could only be answered by the simultaneous recall of the German ambassador at Paris." The Post proceeds to enumerate cases where French officers, even superior officers, have been detected in flagrante delicto acting as spies in Germany and afterward set free because the Government desired to conciliate France. In conclusion the Post says, the spy system was carried to perfection by Frenchmen in Germany, while similar charges against Germans have their chief basis in French fancy.

Emigration of Pauper Children.

Mr. Ritchie, President of the Local Government Board, received to-day a very influential deputation in favor of State-assisted emigration of pauper children to Canada and other colonies. Mr. Ritchie, in his reply to the deputation, said the question was most important, and one in which he took great interest, as also did the general community. Properly controlled emigration, he said, would be beneficial to all concerned, but there must be safeguards. He would undertake that the Boards of Guardians should have power to send children to industrial training schools previous to emigration. It was asserted that workhouse children received excellent training, and he could not undertake to certify industrial schools; but the Boards of Guardians should have the responsibility of selecting those institutions which promised to be most satisfactory. While abstaining from expressing an opinion as to the emigration of children without parental consent, he said the field was wide enough without entering upon that question. Mr. James Rankin, M. P. for Leominster, explained that the main object the deputation had in view was to induce the Board to authorize a voluntary institution, after the grant of a certificate, to receive children from workhouses, to train them industrially and then emigrate the best of them to Canada, where comfortable homes are awaiting them. He said the Board of Guardians should be permitted to pay for the maintenance of the children during training. The emigration of the children, he explained, would be only with the consent of their parents, and no child unfit to emigrate would be sent out of the country. For this purpose there would be adequate inspection, which would be arranged with the Government of Canada, and the religious feelings of the children would in all cases be respected. He said the cost of preparing the children for emigration would be £35 each, and this would be cheaper than the present system. Dr. Barnardo said 2,683 of the children he had sent to Canada had turned out good citizens, and emigration was more economical than keeping the children in workhouses. The inspection in Canada was complete, and he was continually asked to send children, but the assistance of the Government was required to achieve full success. Other speakers gave evidence as to the advantage of emigration to Canada, and the benefit conferred thereby on the [illegible]

NORTH-WEST NEWS.

Losses of Pilgrim Cattle on the Ranches—Arrival of Lady Macdonald in Winnipeg—Immigrants from Ontario—Immigrant Shed Burned.

Winnipeg, April 2.—The through train from Montreal arrived at ten o'clock last night, having been delayed in the Chalk River district a day and a half. The obstacles have now been removed.

Lady Macdonald was a passenger on last night's train from the east, en route to Banff, with her daughter.

Mr. Oldfield, a member of the firm of J. G. Baker & Co., is in the city. He says the losses on Pilgrim cattle on the ranches will be considerable, but he did not think the aggregate losses would be sufficient to injure the business of cattle-raising.

An association has been formed here of the survivors of the old Red river expedition, under the name of "Wolseley's Red River Expeditionary Force."

The total value of the customs imports for March amounted to $151,416, against $137,024 for the corresponding period last year. The amount of duty collected was $40,981.

Upwards of one hundred immigrants arrived from Ontario yesterday morning.

A large frame building used as immigrant sheds by the Dominion Government caught fire last night from a defective flue, and owing to the very inadequate water supply was completely gutted. The building was filled with immigrants and their effects, but sufficient time was given for their removal. The loss is about $5,000.

NOT CONFIRMED.

Seafaring Men Doubt the Report of the Loss of the Steamer Eagle—A Steamer Sent in Search—Sealers Lost on an Ice Floe.

St. John's, Nfld., April 2.—The report of the loss of the steamer Eagle has not been confirmed, and seafaring men doubt it. The steamer Auron has been despatched to the scene of the supposed wreck of the steamer Eagle, in hope of saving some of the survivors in case the vessel went down. The Eagle's crew numbered 275 men.

A party of sealers some days ago went from shore to the channel on the west coast of Newfoundland on a sealing expedition. The ice moved seaward, and the men were unable to return. Two bodies have been recovered on an ice floe frozen stiff.

St. John's, Nfld., April 2.—The Government has been enquiring into the reports of the loss of the sealing steamer Eagle. The result of the investigation makes it appear that there is no real ground for alarm. It is true that a small ladder bearing the vessel's name and one or two other articles of small value, were picked up on March 20, near Cabot Island, Bona Vista bay, but these things may have been thrown overboard. Capt. Fairweather, of the Aurora, which parted company with the Eagle on March 11, does not believe the reports of the disaster. An arrival from the ice fields is hourly expected, when something definite may be learned.

SUFFERED SEVERELY.

Terrible Experience of Three Deserters from the North-west Mounted Police.

Fort Assiniboine, Mont., April 2.—On March 12, James Waldron, Stephen Owens and John McCuig left Lethbridge, N. W. T., for this place and arrived yesterday. Owing to heavy snow the horses were abandoned. The men's sufferings from want of food and from intense cold were terrible. Owens will die. Waldron and McCuig may recover with the loss of both their feet. They claim to be deserters from the North-west Mounted Police.

A Conflict with Cowboys.

Omaha, Neb., April 2.—Sheriff Penn, of Broken Bow, was called yesterday to Anselmo, which was literally taken by cowboys. Cowboys were shooting right and left and had killed one man. The Sheriff responded, and in an attempt to arrest the ring-leader, shot two of them dead. The cowboys are in full force and swear vengeance. Deputies are being hurried to the scene. A desperate battle is expected.

Murdered his Wife and Cremated the Body.

Montgomery, Ala., April 1.—Last Tuesday morning Tarleton Steele (colored) murdered his wife near Ada, this county, and carried the body to the woods, piling brush and straw on it. He then poured kerosene oil on the heap and set fire to it. He then returned home and left the body to be cremated.

At a meeting of the Directors of the St. Catharine's & Niagara Central Railroad the contract for construction of that portion of the road from Thorold to Hamilton was awarded to Messrs. Shields & Carroll. The tender of the Hamilton Bridge Co., for the construction of the railway bridge across the old canal in the vicinity of the Stephenson House, St. Catharine's, was also accepted.

Judge Jette rendered a very interesting judgment at Montreal Friday in the case of Perras et al vs. the church wardens of a city church. The facts are that some time ago the chief warden of the church having voluntarily omitted to present the collection-box to one of the parishioners during divine service was sued and was condemned to pay $200 damages. The church wardens afterwards passed a resolution agreeing to refund this amount to their confrere out of church money. Perras and other parishioners took an action to have this resolution rescinded, and the Court pronounces in their favor, declaring that such a resolution was not justified.

MRS. FANNY GREEN.

ASHBURNHAM, MASS., Jan. 15, 1886.
I have been very sick over two years. They all gave me up as past cure. I tried the most skilful physicians, but they did not reach the worst part. The lungs and heart would fill up every night and distress me, and my throat was very bad. I told my children I should never die in peace until I had tried Hop Bitters. When I had taken two bottles they helped me very much indeed. When I had taken two more bottles I was well. There was a lot of sick folks here who have seen how they cured me, and they used them and were cured, and feel as thankful as I do that there is so valuable a medicine made. Yours truly,
MRS. JULIA G. CUSHING.

GENTS:—Your Hop Bitters have been of great value to me. I was laid up with typhoid fever for over two months, and could get no relief until I tried your Hop Bitters. To those suffering from debility, or any one in feeble health, I cordially recommend them. J. C. STOETZEL.

Mothers and Boys

We are after business; after your trade; we intend to get it, but we do not intend to reach your pockets by trying to make you believe that we are selling goods for COST and UNDER (which some dealers tell you THEY are DOING, and YOU know they are NOT, for how could they live, pay rent and taxes if they did?) We are not doing this. We are and do make a fair profit on everything we sell, or how should we live and be as prosperous as we are to-day, and be enjoying the large patronage we do over all our competitors? Would $3.50 for a $5.00 Knee-pants Plaited Suit, ages 2 to 7 years, interest you, COME AND SEE HOW GOOD IT IS. Would $5.00 for an all-wool double and twist Boy's Suit, ages from 4 to 8 years, attract your attention, supposing that it was $2.00 LESS THAN ANYBODY ELSE? Now for larger boys. We take care of all kinds of boys, no matter what kind of work or what they want it for. Good all-wool Suits at $5.00, $6.00 and $7.00. But if you want a nice, fashionable, well-made and well-trimmed Suit, we can please you to the Queen's taste at $8.00, $9.00 and $10.00. EMMA ABBOTT.—April 8th and 9th will prove of especial interest and importance to music-lovers of London and vicinity. These are the dates set apart for the appearance of the renowned prima donna Emma Abbott and her celebrated English Opera Company. Emma Abbott has had the most successful operatic career of any prima donna ever brought out in America. She has made three trans-continental tours, and that of this winter has been a series of brilliant triumphs. She always carries her own chorus and grand orchestra, and a distinguished array of operatic talent. They will produce in London, as the opening opera, Donizetti's famous love lyric "Linda of Chamouni," at the Saturday matinee, Bellini's brilliant "La Sonnambula," with its celebrated sleep-walking scene, and as a farewell, Emma Abbott will give her great impersonation of "Leonora," in Verdi's master-work "Il Trovatore."

An account from George Vacher for $28 for work at the hospital was passed. The Committee then inspected the buildings and apparatus, and instructed the Chief to bring in a report of the repairs and improvements he may consider necessary.

A SAD OCCURRENCE.—A lamentable accident occurred in the Township of Westminster on Friday last, resulting in the instant death of James Harris. At the time the sad affair took place the unfortunate man was, in company with his son, engaged in chopping upon the farm of William Piper. A tree had been cut, and Harris stepped aside to what he considered a safe position, but the tree, in falling, struck him and knocked him down, and he fell between that and another tree, and met with a shocking death, his body being literally crushed in. He leaves a wife and eight small children to regret his untimely fate.

David Pike, well known as hostler at hotels round Zurich, attempted to commit suicide by cutting his throat with a razor in bed Saturday, at the Commercial Hotel in that village. Dr. Buchanan was called and sewed up the gash. Pike will likely die.

The Barry (Watford) Scott Act case was settled during the week by the defendant paying the usual fine. The County Attorney of Lambton, to whom the legal points raised at the examination were submitted, did not sustain the objections, and the case was settled before the hour of adjournment.

Mr. Donald Cameron, of the firm of Cameron & Bartlett, Windsor, has retired from the firm. His place will be taken by Colin McDonald. Mr. Cameron is one of Windsor's oldest citizens, having resided in the County of Essex since 1854 and in Windsor since 1861. He contemplates taking up his residence in Scotland.

On Thursday evening a well attended tea meeting took place in the Hamilton Road Methodist Church, Rev. W. Godwin, the pastor, presiding. An abundance of refreshments was served, and a good programme was rendered by Misses Phillips, Cox, Mutch, Messrs. Maynard, Jinks, Crofts, Yealland, Carr, Plowes, Marshall and the choir.

It is understood that the office of Receiver of the Wabash Railway lines east of the Mississippi River, vacant by the appointment of Judge Cooley to the Interstate Railway Commission, has been offered to Mr. Sam. R. Callaway, General Manager of the Union Pacific Railway, and formerly employed on the Great Western Railway at London and Hamilton. Mr. Callaway signified a willingness to accept, but was afraid he could not do so at once.

Saturday the auctioneers were required for the first time to conduct their business on the ground north of the Fish Market, and the change is a decided improvement in every respect. The new stand is more conveniently located, and the nuisance and annoyance caused hitherto by the crowding of the auctioneers on the Talbot street side of the Market Square will be abated, which will be highly appreciated by farmers and others driving upon the Square.

The regular semi-monthly meeting of the Young Peoples' Helping Society was held in Wesley Hall Friday evening, the President, Mr. Geo. F. Brickenden, in the chair, and Miss A. Trebilcock, Secretary pro tem. The resignation of Mr. F. Warburton Nelles, as Secretary, was accepted, and Mr. Joe. A. Abbott appointed to fill the position for the remainder of the year. Messrs. Huff, Ball and Alley were elected members of the Society. After the usual preliminary business, the following programme was successfully carried out:—Quotations from Willis, by the Society; essay on Willis, Mr. Fred. A. Hutton; reading, Miss Buckle; reading, Miss B. Webster; recitation, Mr. Rogers. The meeting then adjourned for two weeks.

The gold medal for best general examination, presented by the Ontario Veterinary Medical Association, was awarded to John E. Blackwell, of London.

HONORS AND GOLD MEDAL.—At the recent examination at the Ontario Veterinary College, Toronto, J. E. Blackwell and J. Prudham, students in the office of J. H. Tennent, veterinary surgeon, this city, passed their final examinations for veterinary surgeons in a most creditable manner. Mr. Blackwell won the gold medal for the best general examination in a class of over 150 candidates; also the silver medal for anatomy and first prize in materia medica, and also several prizes in physiology and patheology. Mr. Blackwell deserves great credit, as one year ago he secured the silver medal. Mr. Prudham, in his final examination, passed with honors.

TWO BRAKEMEN KILLED

By the Collision on the Canada Southern Railway

NEAR SPRINGFIELD ON SATURDAY MORNING LAST

Brakemen Odbert and Burnham Go Down with the Wreck and Lose their Lives—Twenty-six Cars and Two Engines Demolished, etc.

The worst accident, taken as a whole, that has ever happened on the Canada Southern division of the Michigan Central Railway, indeed one of the most serious that has ever taken place in the Province, occurred near Springfield, about seventeen miles east of St Thomas, early Saturday morning, when, through the mistake of an employe, two freight trains collided, causing a great amount of damage, and, worst of all, resulting in the death of two men, and the serious injury of two others. The Canada Southern has happily been free from such accidents, as may be judged when it is stated that the one of Saturday was the first "head" collision that has ever occurred on the road. With their system of despatching and general running of trains a collision is almost impossible, unless the rules are not carried out, which was the cause of the accident Saturday.

HOW IT WAS CAUSED.

A freight train of 39 cars, bound east, in charge of Conductor R. W. Smith, Head Brakeman Thomas Burnham and Rear Brakeman George Jackson, with engine No. 384, which had only been taken out of the St. Thomas shops, where about $1,000 had been expended in repairing it a few days before, Engineer Perry Van Houghton and Fireman A. W. Ginley, left the St. Thomas depot at nearly one o'clock. When a train is to meet another at a station, the despatcher gives the operator at that station an order and instructs him to display the green signal, which is a signal to hold all trains for orders. The operator must answer back if he understands the order or not. Such an order was given to George Judson Brown, the operator at Springfield station, when Conductor Smith's train pulled out of the St. Thomas depot. A freight train of 39 cars, in charge of Conductor John Calicott, Head Brakeman Wm. Odbert, Rear Brakeman Wm. McLury, Engineer Nat. Vail, Fireman Chas. Allison, Engine No. 365, was near Tilsonburg when the other train left St. Thomas. As Conductor Smith's train neared Springfield they observed no green signal, and passed the station at the rate of from twenty-five to thirty miles an hour. Conductor Calicott's train was passing Brownsville at this time, running at the rate of about ten miles an hour. As the trains neared each other it became too evident that someone had blundered, and when it was too late the levers were reversed and brakes called for. At 2 23 the two trains came together in a hollow in the track, two and one-half miles from Springfield, and there was a frightful crash. The iron monsters crashed into each other with tremendous force, their bolts and bands being crushed as if they were paper. Both toppled over on the south side of the ditch. The freight cars, which were laden with almost every conceivable class of merchandise, consisting of silverware, furniture, flour, molasses, corn, peas, etc., fared as badly as did the engines, and seventeen of the cars on the east-bound freight, and over a dozen cars of the other train, were almost totally destroyed, being piled up into an inextricable mass, eye-witnesses say, 45 feet high. The track, of course, was completely blocked for several rods.

Just before the collision the engineers, firemen and rear brakemen of the two trains, jumped for their lives, and escaped, with the exception of painful bruises. The head brakeman, however, William Odbert, and Thomas Burnham, stuck to their posts, and were buried in the debris. After the catastrophe search was made for them, and poor Burnham was discovered entangled in a mass of timbers laying on his face, his limbs being held down by pieces of cars and a piece of one of the tenders lying across his legs. Those around him were totally unable to render the unfortunate man any assistance.

LEAVING FOR THE SCENE.

Word was telegraphed to St. Thomas about 4 o'clock, and a special containing the wrecker, and accompanied by Dr. W. E. Smith, the Company's surgeon; W. J. Orr, Secretary of the Railroad Hospital; Assistant Superintendent Moorhead, and Roadmaster Jordan, was soon at the scene of the wreck. Efforts were at once put forth to rescue the unfortunate man Burnham, whose cries for help were heartrending, and after five hours' hard work he was taken out, placed on a special train, and conveyed to the St. Thomas RR. Y. M. C. A. hospital, where he was attended by two physicians. Death put an end to his sufferings yesterday. Search was continued for the body of brakeman Odbert, and on Saturday it was found under the coal, with very few bruises upon it. His cap and lamp were found in the ruins and identified.

The loss to the company will probably be from $150,000 to $250,000. It is impossible to fix the amount at present.

The men around the Springfield station were engaged in shunting cars at the time of the accident, it is said, and on that account the operator forgot his orders and allowed the east bound train to pass. He soon became aware of his mistake, and, it is said, signalled with his lantern, but the men of the train thought it was a signal to those engaged in shunting. When he knew a collision could not be avoided he threw up his hands and wept like a child. He is a young man about 18 or 20 years of age, and is said to have been an efficient servant previous to the accident. He is a son of Rev. Mr. Brown, Methodist Minister, of Springfield. He was almost crazed with grief on Saturday and made no attempt to get away, being at his father's residence, where he had to be put under opiates. His failure to display the signal was directly against the rules of the Company, which expressly states that the order board must be displayed before the operator sends back that he has understood the orders.

THE VICTIMS DEAD.

William Odbert, married, aged 31, resided at 15 Station street, St. Thomas; leaves wife and one child. He had been employed as brakeman for about three months. He was a carpenter by trade, and was formerly employed at the Cochrane Manufacturing Company's works. He intended resuming his trade when the building season opened, having engaged with a St. Thomas contractor. He was a son of Thomas Odbert, who resides at Stratford.

THE INJURED.

A. W. Ginley, fireman, married, resides on Inkerman street, St. Thomas. Badly bruised.

Percy Van Houghton, engineer, unmarried, boards on Alma street, St. Thomas, left knee badly hurt in jumping.

Nat. Vail, engineer, ankle injured in jumping.

Thomas Burnham, aged 22, single, was a spare brakeman, being engaged on January 8th last. His father lives at Walpole Highway, Wispich, England, and has no relatives in this country except a cousin, Alf. Garrad, of Blenheim. The regular brakeman did not want to go out on the train, and the call-boy went after Burnham, who was the next on the list. He was badly bruised on the hip and about the abdomen, and it is feared injured internally. Late Saturday afternoon the doctors said he was slowly sinking. He was not unconscious, but was enduring terrible pain.

Odbert was a member of the I. O. O. F., and both he and Burnham were members of the Railroad Sick Hospital and Benefit Association.

SPIRITUAL BLINDNESS,

As Depicted by Bishop Walsh Last Night.

Bishop Walsh preached an impressive sermon in St. Peter's Cathedral last night, using for his text the miracle of the blind man whose sight was restored by Christ, as related in the 18 h chapter of St. Luke's Gospel. The spiritual blindness, of which this was a type, afflicted thousands and thousands of men in this generation, rendering them blind to God's plan in the creation of the world and its people; blind to the great essentials of earthly happiness as well as the heavenly reward; blind to the love and even providence of God as the subject of the miracle was; blind to the glorious gifts and attributes of the Father benificent, as mirrored forth on the face of nature. Sin was the only evil in the world, and the only bar to man's complete happiness; but some of these wilfully blind refused the good gifts of God, and while in full hearing of the tramp of God's servants going about their daily duties, yet deferred their submission to God, trusting to a more convenient season or a turn of chance to win that without effort for which the saints had toiled in sorrow and self-denial—the bliss of heaven. What error could be greater than such a belief? Were the saints fools? His Lordship spoke of what he had seen himself of bitter death-bed memories caused by neglected opportunities, and said there was not a priest of the Church without similar experiences. The service of God and the welfare of the soul were far above and beyond any other affairs of this life, and while the cross was yet held out, and the invitation of God open for acceptance, he urged them to plead for the gift of grace to serve and love Christ. Let their cry be, Lord, grant that I may see, and He who opened the eyes of the blind man will also pour the light of truth on their eyes, and lead them along the path of holy obedience which leads to the joys of God. The Bishop concluded his discourse by calling all Catholics to remember their duties at the Easter season, and to attend the sacraments of the Church. He appealed to the separated brethren there present to earnestly consider the claims of God and the eternal welfare of their souls, and to give an honest consideration to the claims of the one Church—there could not be two; and the right one was the Holy Catholic Church. Let them realize the vital importance of a right choice, and with a reverent spirit, seeking counsel from the Most High, investigate for themselves from the approved evidence, not accepting as true the reflections cast upon the Church with no better foundation than old women's tattle.

ASKING FOR ASSISTANCE.

Rev. Mr. Beaudry on French-Canadian Evangelization.

Yesterday morning Rev. Louis N. Beaudry, of Montreal, who is deeply interested in the work of French-Canadian evangelization in Quebec, occupied the pulpit of the Queen's Avenue Methodist Church, and delivered a very forcible address to a large congregation, appealing fervently for support. The reverend gentleman selected as his text the Acts of the Apostles, xvi c., 9v: "Come over into Macedonia and help us." This, he said, was the sublimest cry of fallen humanity, and in it could be seen at once man's divine origin and man's sublime justice. As a diamond, even if crushed, revealed its origin in every piece, so man, though fallen, still retained some token of life and of God. Christianity is the only reality; heathenism is a block, drop it where they would. It has no life, no character, no heroism—it never can. Christianity is a glow where the promises made in the name of the Lord are met in the heart of every believer, and it is perfect in geometrical regularity. No one can take anything away from it without marring its symmetry; no one can add to it, because it is perfection itself. This was the religion that Paul preached, and that every minister should preach. To day he was not here as a stranger, but as one of themselves, and he represented 2,000,000 of the people—the French-Canadians. And there was one thing he wanted to correct, and it was the impression that the French-Canadians are perfectly satisfied with their condition under Romanism. That was an error, and he wished to present five classes who are not satisfied, but who cry, "Come and help us." The first class were the educated, the second the impoverished, then the imprisoned, the deeply pious and the regenerated. He dwelt at considerable length on the different classes, and denounced Romanism in vigorous language throughout the remainder of his discourse. In appealing for assistance for the mission cause in Montreal the speaker explained that in the last two years' labor 30,000 had been converted, and there are now eight Protestant congregations in Montreal. On his former visit London did more to give success to the enterprise than any city in Canada. This was a great work; God was in it, and he trusted it would be multiplied year by year till those who heeded the call, "Come to Macedonia and help us," will hear the heavenly message, "Come up higher."

Gilbert Laird, St Margaret's Hope, Orkney, Scotland, writes: I am requested by several friends to order another parcel of Dr Thomas' Eclectric Oil. The last lot I got from you having been tested in several cases of rheumatism, has given relief when doctors' medicines have failed to have any effect. The excellent qualities of this medicine should be made known, that the millions of sufferers throughout the world may benefit by its providential discovery.

The patterns in wall paper this year are indeed very handsome. Some of the most expensive designs are produced on cheap paper, and so well executed that it is almost impossible to distinguish the difference. E. N. Hunt, 190 Dundas street, has a fine collection, and is offering them at very low prices. In picture frames he is showing a lot of new designs of American mouldings. eod

THE WATER COMMISSIONERS.

Business Transacted at the Regular Meeting—The Scarcity of Water Again Considered.

The Water Commissioners held a meeting Friday afternoon—(although no notification of the same reached this office)—Messrs. Muirhead and Cowan being in attendance.

The following accounts were passed:—A. Kelly & Co., $325; John Robertson, $2,303 21; James Anderson, $31 18; Stevens & Burns, $52 34; H. Craig, $16 38; J. Wright, $25 20; W. J. Craig, $27; insurance, $30; Wilson, 90 cents; Brock, 60 cents; London Seed Company, $3 20; Mr. McCarthy, 50 cents; E. Baskett, $1 75; P. J. Burke, $1 50; E. Hart, $2; F. Evans, $25; pay sheet, $248 75.

Mr. J. C. Stewart was allowed a rebate of $1 46, as he did not get the water.

A petition from James McGuire and seven others, asking that a main be laid on Elliss street, between Quebec and Ontario streets, was deferred.

John Evans offered $40 for the pasturage at Springbank; accepted.

The Pumping Engineer, Mr. John Wrigley, submitted the following report:—"In answer to inquiry as to the quantity of water pumped at present, I have to state that we are still pumping the whole of the supply on the grounds, which is just equal to the present consumption. The ponds require cleaning, but I cannot get a chance to work at them while the demand continues so large as it is at present. When the street watering commences I shall not be able to keep up the supply without additional springs, which I urge should be secured as soon as possible. I might add that I am not able to keep up the quantity of water in the reservoir as it ought to be, the quantity now in it being about 6,000 000 gallons instead of 7,000,000, as intended."

After the Commissioners had advanced reasons to themselves why they were not in a position to secure the money necessary to purchase additional springs, the following resolution was carried:—

"That the Chief Pumping Engineer having reported the necessity for an increased supply of water, the Commissioners respectfully ask the aid and assistance of the City Council in procuring a further supply. The Commissioners are also of the opinion that in addition to the large quantity of water used by the Grand Trunk Railway and other railways coming into London, as well as a very large anticipated increase of consumers, a larger supply has become imperative, the City Engineer having reported that to carry out said scheme $50,000 will be required during this year.

The motion also referred the Council to the recommendations of the Engineer's last report, advocating the extension to the springs in the neighborhood and the utilization of the water power at Byron to pump the additional supply.

Adjourned.

AN UNWILLING LEADER.

The Globe has commenced the re-discussion of the ever-anxious question of the Grit leadership. Ignoring the fact that Mr. Blake sent a circular letter to all of his parliamentary supporters, saying that it would not be possible for him to act as leader at the coming session, the journal goes on to argue that if he is in the House at all he must be the leader. Where he is there is none other that can compare. He is leader as lawyers would say ex necessitate. But it has been frequently noticed, by his friends and others, that though he is a leader he does not advance. He is like the post that points but does not move. In fact, according to Grit principles he has retrograded. The time when the "Reform" party was a unit as against the National Policy is at an end, for Mr. Blake gave up that issue during the last electoral campaign, in the hopes of catching a few stray votes. The chief difficulty under which he labors is, that he finds himself, as of old, belonging to a "Reform" party that has nothing to reform. The same difficulty was present to his mind years ago, when he used to amuse himself and astonish his friends by rushing about making "disturbing speeches," and playing at hide-and-seek in the Government. Now he was in it, and again before one had time to wink he was out of it—off on some expedition or another, growling at some and sulking against others. That he finds as little to reform now as in those days when he trifled with the public, and seemed to think that he could be permitted to take any kind of liberty with it that he might choose, is very evident. During the late electoral campaign he did not advance the necessity of any vital reform. He harped upon worn out issues, and endeavored to make the people believe that everything was "going to the dogs," because some money had been borrowed and had been invested in railways which had opened up the country from the Atlantic to the Pacific. True, he pottered a little over the supposed defects of Senate. But even then he did not tell anybody how he would amend them if he had the opportunity. He left all that up in the clouds, where it is likely to remain. The truth of the matter is that the Government has been so active, so continually pressing forward those ameliorations which the necessities of the times seemed to demand, that Mr. Blake has found his occupation as "Reformer" completely cut from under him. He has seen that there has been nothing of any moment to reform. Thus it is that he has not been able to win those "victories" with which he has been so constantly charged. If there is no enemy to attack, how can triumphs be obtained? And that is the unhappy position in which Mr. Blake has found himself. He has set no efficient objects before himself and party. He has not been in the advance. If he has gone forward at all it has been in consequence of those that are behind him prodding him in the back. But he has not liked that kind of exercise. It has galled him. He has been restive under it, and on more than one occasion has kicked so alarmingly as to place the whole "Reform" concern in imminent jeopardy. He has frequently told his friends that he did not want to lead. That it did not suit him to lead. And that he would be infinitely obliged to them if they would find some other one who would accept a duty which had always been distasteful to him, and which did not suit him in any one of the relations of his life. But his friends will not listen to his piteous entreaties. They hang on his skirts in abject desperation, beseeching him to lead. It is true that not long ago a leading Grit journal did have the temerity to hint that it was possible for the "Reform" party to get along without Mr. Blake. But there were none of its colleagues that had the pluck to "second the motion." So Mr. Blake remains, and is to be hustled to the front again at the coming session, whether he likes it or not. Poor man! How much he is to be pitied. He does not want to lead, nature has forbidden him to be a leader, and yet his friends insist that he should assume the truncheon of the marshal once again, and go forth to battle. But what can any commander do that is surrounded, and has at his back only troops that are inferior in number and morale? The aspect of the heterogeneous army of the Grits prodding their leader in the back, and kicking at his legs to make him go on, is most amusing. It is more than amusing—it is ridiculous.

The Duchess of Cumberland, who has just been sent to an asylum, was the Princess Thyra of Denmark, and was born September 29, 1853. She was married in December, 1878, to Ernest Augustus, Duke of Cumberland, the only son of the late King of Hanover, and has three daughters and two sons. The marriage of the Princess Thyra to the Duke of Cumberland was an event of considerable interest. It was the last but one (the last one being the marriage of Prince Waldemar of Denmark to Princess Maria d'Orleans) of those brilliant alliances which the House of Denmark has formed with the principal royal families of Europe. The Duke of Cumberland is a member of the royal family of England, who, had not a daughter been unexpectedly born to the Duke of Kent, would now be King of England. It was as nearest male descendant of George III. that his grandfather succeeded to the crown of Hanover. He himself would now be King of Hanover had not the kingdom been annexed by Prussia after her triumphant war with Austria in 1866, in which Hanover took the side which was vanquished, and his refusal to accept facts has prevented his succeeding to the Duchy of Brunswick.

THE ANALYSIS OF SOILS.

There is not enough attention paid to soil analysis that the importance of the subject demands. In reality the analysis of soils is not much more complicated than the separation of milk into its constituents parts, yet the great expectations entertained in the early days of agricultural chemistry as to the practicable usefulness of the chemical analysis of soils were long since abandoned, and apparently for the one reason especially, of the difficulty of procuring a sample of a few pounds of soil in even a single acre, to say nothing of a field of many acres. But in the past few years there has been much discussion of this matter in the different agricultural journals, and the belief is at least getting some foothold that the chemist may yet usefully serve the farmer by analyzing his soils, even as he has for several years already rendered such valuable service in analyzing the commercial manures for supplying the needed fertility to those soils. It is related of Jno. Prout, who has made such signal success in England of farming with commercial fertilizers only, that one of the first steps taken in the enterprise was to have his soils analyzed by Dr. Voelcker, and to get that eminent chemist's advice as to the course he should pursue; and that after several years of this kind of farming, all crops being sold standing, (so nothing was returned to the soil from the crops), and no animal manures used, the chemist's services were again brought into requisition to prove by analysis that these soils had become richer rather than poorer under the treatment given them. By analysis the relative portions of nitrogen, phosphoric acid, potash, lime, &c., which make up plant food, may be ascertained; and there is no reason why such analysis could not be turned to the same practical useful results to farmers as testing milk to see what ratio of caseine, butter fats, sugar and water it contains. But there seems to be a very general agreement that such a desirable result has not yet been secured in soil analysis, yet by patient study and investigation we may reasonably hope to attain it sooner or later. Fuesca, an eminent German agriculturist, recommends the examination and mapping of agricultural soils on a scientific basis. This same writer says the question is asked, has the study of soil become such an extensive science that it is worthy of being set apart as an independent field of investigation? I believe this question should be answered most decidedly in the affirmative. Hitherto a great deal has been said of the difficulties that stand in the way of the successful investigation of soils; and on many sides the possibility is doubted of so far overcoming these difficulties that the results obtained will have a practical value commensurate with the great amount of labor expended upon them; the result of this doubting was the neglect of the study of the soil. But the difficulty of any study cannot be regarded as a valid reason for neglecting it, especially when its prosecution is of such great importance as in this case. In another place this writer argues for experiment stations, similar to the Dominion station at Ottawa, the work of such station to be, with its other duties, the study in detail of the qualities of the soil upon which its productiveness depends and of the methods of examination of the soil which are intended to lead to conclusions as to its agricultural needs or value; particular attention should be given to the soils of the region around the station, and to this institution should be assigned the mapping, for the geological survey of the region, of these soils according to their agricultural qualities. Special practical questions that would naturally be sent to such a station should be investigated—but not as is usually the case, with only a cigar-box full of earth in hand; the locality from which each call for an investigation comes should be visited and the stratification of the soil and its other relations in place carefully examined; also the mapping of the soils of any estate should be done on request for the same.

It is needless to say that under the able supervision of Prof. Saunders the Dominion Experiment Stations, in both testing seeds and analyzing soils, intend to accomplish everything in those lines that will prove of practical usefulness to farmers, and the Government is to be congratulated in meeting the advanced views of the first scientists of the age on the question of scientific methods of farming.

MECHANICS' INSTITUTES.

The Mechanics' Institutes of the Province appear to be in a prosperous state, as a rule. The report says the number of such institutes and free libraries in operation last year was 131, with 29,492 members, averaging 225 members to each institute, with property valued at $5,369,098 The total expenditure for the past year was $93,136; the sum of $23 875 was expended for books, and 679,096 volumes were issued to the public, showing that there were at least that number of applications from persons who availed themselves of this source of information. Seventy-nine institutes expended $7,927 on reading-rooms, and provided for their members 1,147 periodicals and 1,214 newspapers. Twenty-four institutes conducted evening classes in English, commercial and science courses, and 57 institutes conducted evening classes in drawing, including the elementary course, industrial designs, mechanical drawing, machine drawing, architectural drawing, flower drawing, shading from the flat, shading from the round, wood-carving, etc. One thousand and fifty-two students from mechanics' institutes were examined for certificates in drawing in March, 1886. The sum of $6,222 was expended on evening classes, and $2,293 on lectures. Forty-eight mechanics' institutes sent specimens of drawings to the Colonial and Indian Exhibition.

CURRENT TOPICS.

The late Daniel Davis, of Princeton, Mass., was once one of the foremost electrical experts in America. He is said to have made many valuable inventions, including the art of electrotyping in copper, which, had they been patented, would have made him many times a millionaire. Elias Howe, inventor of the sewing machine, was a workman in his shop.

An exhibition by a school of acting in New York concluded with a novel fencing exercise by young men and young women. The fencing by the young women was surprisingly good and elicted much applause. It was ended by a bout between the young woman who carried off the prize among the girls and the young man who was most successful among the men. It was a hard-fought battle, which was watched with breathless interest by the audience, and was finally decided in favor of the young man, the young girl being evidently tired out.

The custodian of a public building in New York has a very practical test for finding out who of the men who enter the buildings are gentlemen. He says that when a man holds the swing door open for any who may be going out behind, he is sure that he is a gentleman, no matter how poorly he may be dressed. But it is mournful to add that judged by this test, he has met very few gentlemen in all his life. As for the ladies, the custodian says that they never think of holding a door open for anybody, but he gallantly adds that no one expects them to.

A movement has been set on foot in Italy toward erecting in one of the principal towns an electrical crematorium. In this edifice the corpse will be instantly consumed by means of an intense heat caused by electricity. It is said that animals subjected to the process forthwith evaporated into nothingness, and there was perceptible no disagreeable odor. Sanitarians, says the Sanitary Age, will be interested in the success of this method, for the destruction of garbage and offal. But the best cremation of all can be effected in dry soil, with profit in place of expense.

The experiment of working-women's clubs, which was begun in New York about four years ago, has succeeded far beyond the expectations of its promoters. In the parent society during the past year there has been an average attendance of 166 members. They have rooms in the central part of the city. With dues amounting to but 25 cents a month, and some extra fees for the payment of teachers, they enjoy advantages which were formerly out of their reach as individuals. Among the occupations which have been exercised to advantage by the parent club and the many branches that have sprung up in New York and vicinity are dress-making, type-writing, millinery and drawing.

The London correspondent of the Manchester Guardian writes:—"It is intended to hold an international congress on cremation in September of the present year. The place selected for this gathering of the savants of various countries who are interested in cremation and cemetery hygiene is Milan. French will be the official language of the congress; but the speakers may, if they like, make use of any other language. Reports will be submitted as to the progress made in the practice of cremation in different countries, and the formation of an international league will be proposed. An exhibition of models of crematories, urns, and other objects connected with the campaign now being conducted against the present methods of disposing of the dead will be open during the congress."

Dr. Otto Hermes has just published the results of some interesting investigations concerning the phosphorescence of marine fish. He wished to ascertain whether the phosphorescence was caused by the same bacillus which Dr. Fischer, an eminent authority on bacteria, has discovered and brought from the West Indies. Marine fish are easily rendered phosphorescent after death by being moistened with a little sea water. Dr Hermes took a fragment of a species of Gadus callarias, which had been made strongly phosphorescent in this manner, to the laboratory of Councillor Koch; and Dr. Frank, a pupil of the latter, was enabled to isolate it after a few days. This is undoubtedly a new species. Like Dr Fischer's bacillus, it can be transferred upon sterilized fish, and after 48 hours it emits an emerald-green light; the seawater is also rendered phosphorescent.

According to Stepniak and other authorities on Nihilism, it is a part of the unwritten history of Russia that in the early months of 1877 the father of the present Czar was promised a reprieve from assaults upon his life so long as the war with Turkey, then in contemplation, should continue. Hostilities were forthwith begun; the pledge of the conspirators was kept; and although revolutionists were numbered among the officers around him, as well as in the rank and file, Alexander II. slept more safely in a canvas tent than he had slept within the inmost chamber of the Winter Palace. The revolutionary party cannot afford to balk the national impulse to Panslavism, and it has always timed its homicidal demonstrations so as to seem rather to share than to obstruct the popular desire and favorite programme of the hour. In the latest attempt the same nice regard to circumstances was exhibited, for the Czar's failure to avert or avenge the execution of his friends and agents in Bulgaria was naturally viewed with indignation in Moscow and St. Petersburg. Whether the designed assination failed or succeeded, the event would serve not only the purpose of the terrorists, but promote the plans of the Panslavists. If the Czar fell, his successor could be counted on to yield to the national demand. If he escaped, he would be likely to himself profit by the lesson are of two kinds: firstly, those which are only skin deep (which are not now to be considered); secondly, those which are caused by a bad state of the blood, and which attack various parts of the body in different ways. Skin disease shows itself in the HEAD, sometimes in the form of Dandruff, which no amount of brushing and combing will get rid of, and sometimes in the form of Scaly Eruptions. In the NECK, by an enlargement of the glands (commonly called Glandular Swellings), which if unchecked become very unsightly wounds. In the ARMPITS, and the inside of the ELBOWS, by an inflamed Roughness of the Skin, which is very painful when washed. In the HANDS, by deep Cracks or Fissures, which, if healed for a few days, speedily open again, or by horny-looking patches. In the LEGS, by Hard, Shiny and Inflamed Swellings, or by wounds more or less deep. And on the BODY, in Red Scaly Patches, which as often as rubbed off, form again, or in the discharge of a thin, watery fluid of a very disagreeable nature. In all these cases the treatment must be twofold. An Ointment is required to relieve Itching, and Medicine must be taken to change the state of the Blood, and render it pure. Both these requirements are supplied by

LOCAL AND DISTRICT.

Ed. Mitchell, for the past six months on the Wingham Times staff, left on Saturday for Aylmer, where he takes a position on the Express.

The other day, as Malichi Stevans and Moses Kittley, of Amherstburg, were scuffling, the former fell with his whole weight on his left arm, breaking it in two places.

Rev. A. F. Burt, of the Episcopal Church, Alvinston, has been ordered by the Bishop to prepare for a removal from that parish to a larger one. The change will occur about Easter.

As George Grenier, of Amherstburg, was climbing up the verandah post at Cousins' store, the other day, a hook penetrated one of the fingers of his right hand, and thus he hung until released.

The Caldwell Sentinel advocates the abolition of the numbering of ballots at Provincial elections. The law as it stands certainly impairs the secrecy of the ballot, and if absolute secrecy be not secured voting by ballot falls of its purpose.

Mr. J. J Foote, proprietor of the Quebec Chronicle, formerly of the London Prototype, will, it is stated in official circles, receive the appointment of Post-office Inspector for the Quebec Division, vice Mr. J. Sheppard, deceased.

The Essex Centre Liberal seems to regret that it has not been sufficiently long established to have an "Old Subscriber" on its list of correspondents. It had better mend its political ways or it may never have one. The FREE PRESS has over 20,000 of them on tap.

The plans of the proposed new Roman Catholic Church in Essex Centre, drawn by John A. Maycock, architect, have been submitted to his Lordship Bishop Walsh, and approved by him. It is expected the church will be a brick one, and will cost in the neighborhood of $2 500.

About a week ago R. E. Millard seized, under a bill of sale, a horse belonging to James Laughead, of Comber. The horse was brought to Essex Centre and put in D C. Horton's stable at the American House. A few evenings since the horse was taken by some unknown person, and has not been seen or heard of since.

Monetary Times:—"Robert Turner, a Brantford grocer, who is a steady and industrious man, is again in difficulty, and is offering to compromise liabilities of $6,600 at 50 per cent. His assets are nominally about $1,000. He has been a long time in business, and about ten or twelve years ago he failed."

Some person broke into the cellar of Mr. W. T. Birmingham's hotel on the Hamilton Road at an early hour on Saturday morning, but was heard at work and quickly made off. A pool of blood was found upon the floor, and it is thought that the man must have cut himself in clambering through the window.

Wellington Snodden, of Uxbridge Township, was before His Honor Judge Burnham last week charged with stealing $48 from his grandmother, Mrs. E Miller, of the same township. It seems he took the money to get married with, and, after spending his honeymoon, was arrested at Stouffville and brought to jail. He had $8 when arrested, and handed that amount to his grandmother. He was sentenced to one week at hard labor in the county jail, with three hours' solitary confinement two days in the week.

The Fergus News Record:—"Mr. W. H. McCulloch enjoys a day's hunting when he has the time to spare, and consequently keeps a couple of hounds. He has had three dogs poisoned within the past three years, and narrowly escaped losing one, or possibly two, more on Wednesday. About 10 o'clock that day a man who was walking along the C. V. R. track was seen to drop something opposite Mr. McCulloch's, which upon examination was found to be a piece of sausage split open, with arsenic in the centre. There is no doubt but the intention was to poison Mr. McCulloch's dog."

The other day a highly respectable lady of the Township of Nissouri—Mrs. W. J. Dsmore—was assaulted by three men while she was walking along the second concession of Nissouri Township, in a northerly direction. The men, who were driving in a top buggy drawn by a grey horse, drove furiously towards the affrighted lady, and as she attempted to evade the determined attacks of these men the more serious the situation of the lady became. She, however, escaped unhurt, but much terrified by her encounter with these vagabonds, who, after passing, discharged several shots from their revolvers. The parties are alleged to be Inspector Williams' whiskey informers.

The funeral of the late Thomas Lee, which took place yesterday afternoon from the family residence to Mount Pleasant Cemetery, was one of the largest society funerals held in this city for some years. The London South Band headed the procession, the members of Adelphian and Harmony Encampments and London Canton No. 1 marched next, the employes of the London Furniture Company and the members of the various Lodges of Oddfellows following in the order named. There was also a long line of carriages. The floral offerings were very beautiful. The following patriarchs acted as pallbearers:—Messrs. Henry Boyd, Ed. Beltz, John Trebilcock, D. J. Hardy, John Dawson and James Stanley. Six members chosen from the city lodges also marched beside the hearse.

The advanced fashionable young lady is never so happy as when she is inventing or has completed the invention of a new wrinkle, elsewhere than on her alabaster brow. The latest freak is the art of recognizing an acquaintance on the street. When the awfully pronounced, capricious young lady meets a friend she lowers her head to the right side about two inches and then gently throws it a little forward. The girls think it the sweetest idea, because it looks kinder cute and is so entirely new. don'tchrsee! The style for gentlemen of lifting the hat straight up in the air for about two feet, which was rather fought shy of except by a few very young men, is becoming quite universal, and there are now almost a half-a-dozen young men in the city who tip, or rather elevate their hats in that manner, who can do so without looking embarrassed or awkward during the operation.

SUICIDE NEAR THAMESFORD.—On Saturday, about noon, Mr. George Weir, a wealthy farmer, living on the 12th concession of East Nissouri, about four miles from Thamesford, hanged himself in the barn with a leather line. His family discovered him shortly after, and cut him down, but life was not extinct. Drs. Kester, of Thamesford, and McKay, of Ingersoll, attended him. They say his case is hopeless. The cause is believed to be the loss of some money and family trouble.

An Independent Cable Service for Canada.

Halifax, N.S., April 2.—Supt. Fisher, of the French Cable Company, arrived today from New York, and is arranging for the immediate construction of land lines connecting their cable at Sydney with Montreal, so as to give Canada a cable service independent of the United States. This land line will tap all leading cities and towns between Sydney and Montreal, where it will give French cable connection with Canada Pacific telegraphic systems, also an additional connection with New York by way of the Baltimore & Ohio lines. Mr. Fisher says competition of the French Cable Company will make it exceedingly lively for the "cable pool."

THE LICENSING BOARD.—The Board of License Commissioners have decided to effect a considerable reduction in the number of liquor licenses to be granted in the city for the ensuing term. As a result of this decision no applications for houses not before licensed will be granted, and most probably the report of the Inspector and police in regard to houses that have violated the law will be considered in making the reduction in the present number of licenses. The Board visited and carefully examined several hotels on Friday afternoon, in company with Inspector Henderson, and their ultimate decision will in all likelihood be made known to-morrow. So far the following applications for tavern license have been refused:—Levi Skelton, corner York and Burwell; Henry Brinsmead, 641 Richmond; Thos. Hueston, 474 Pall Mall; W. J. O'Hearn, 246 Richmond; John Siggins, 489 Richmond; Peter Allaster, corner Adelaide and York; W. T. Birmingham, 468 Pall Mall; Frank W. Lilley, 615 and 617 Dundas street, 5th Ward.

HE WAS ON HIS WAY TO LONDON.—A despatch from Montreal last night says:—A young immigrant, who came over on the steamship Parisian, named Keen, fell off a Grand Trunk Railway train at Point Clare, while on his way to London, Ont., and fractured his skull. He was brought to the General Hospital here to-day and is still unconscious

Many persons in Pittston are using Ely's Cream Balm, a Catarrh remedy, with most satisfactory results. A lady is recovering the sense of smell, which she had not enjoyed for fifteen years. She had given up her case as incurable. Mr. Barber has used it in his family and recommends it very highly. A Tunkhannock lawyer known to many of our readers, testifies that he was cured of partial deafness.—Pittston, Pa., Gazette. eod&w

A heavy snow storm prevailed throughout New Brunswick Saturday night, the fall being the heaviest of the winter. The railroads in some places are again seriously blocked, and several trains due Sunday had not arrived up to a late hour Sunday night. The wind blew with terrific force throughout the night, and it is feared that shipping on the coast has suffered.

Catarrh, Catarrhal Deafness and Hay Fever.

Sufferers are not generally aware that these diseases are contagious, or that they are due to the presence of living parasites in the lining membrane of the nose and eustachian tubes. Microscopic research, however, has proved this to be a fact, and the result is that a simple remedy has been formulated, whereby catarrh, catarrhal deafness and hay fever are cured in from one to three simple applications made at home. A phamphlet explaining this new treatment is sent free on receipt of stamp by A. H. DIXON & SON, 305 King street, West, Toronto, Canada.—Christian Standard. eod

Capt. Neilson, Dr. S. C. Olle and E. C. Smith, of St. Catharine's, and David Blain, of Toronto, waited upon the Government at Ottawa on Saturday to urge the granting of a subsidy for a new railway from Niagara River to Toronto, via Hamilton.

How Things Turn Out.

From the Selinsgrove, Penn., U.S.A., Times.

The great Commonwealth of Pennsylvania furnishes a remarkable incident which is a marvel of its kind. Mr. J. G. L. Shindel, the leading druggist and general dealer at Selinsgrove, Snyder county, Pa., in endorsing the following statement of his friend Mr. Reed, of the same place, says: "Mr. Reed is one of our best citizens and what he says can be relied on, and what he certifies to, I think, is wonderful. They expected him to die every day. I have known Mr. Reed for nearly fifty years." Mr. Reed writes: "In the fall I was taken sick, having taken a very bad cold. A physician was called in, he prescribed and attended me during the winter. Towards spring a second physician was called in. I still became weaker and weaker, very much reduced and so much so by the next spring I was unable to raise myself in bed. Finally I was given up to die. The doctors said it was only a matter of time and it was impossible for me to get up again. Thus I lingered between life and death until a friend called and recommended a new discovery in science. After some persuasion I consented and commenced the use of it, strictly in accordance with directions. After the second day I felt better. I continued its use, and now at 74 years of age, am a well, hearty man. Never used any other medicine since. Having been so greatly and wonderfully benefited by the use of St. Jacobs Oil, I deem it just and right that I should state to you for the benefit of others, how much good it has done me."

A correspondent asks:—"Where can we send to get Peck's Patent Ear Drums, an invention for enabling people to hear who are deaf, slightly or otherwise?" Write to F. Hiscox, 853 Broadway, N. Y., stating cause and particulars of your deafness, and he will give you all the points desired. Read the following from the Medical Record: "A lecturer in one of our hospitals, while illustrating progress in medical science, introduced a deaf patient whose case baffled all medical skill, and was considered hopeless. But an invention belonging to F. Hiscox, New York, having been recommended, it was used with very satisfactory results, as it fully restored the hearing. It was tested in other cases and found to be more successful than any known device for the relief of deafness, as hearing lost for many years was fully restored by it. This invention is all the more satisfactory, as it is out of sight and does not require to be held in position. And while it can be readily removed or inserted by the patients themselves, it is withal curative in action and comfortable to wear." D4 d&wf

THE VEILED WOMAN

On the other hand, however, no ordinary marriage could bring him such awful beauty—for awful is the only word that can describe it—such divine devotion, such wisdom and command over the secrets of nature, and the place and power that they must win, or lastly the royal crown of unending youth, if indeed she could give that. Nor on the whole it is not wonderful that, though Leo was plunged in bitter shame and grief, such as any gentleman would have felt under the circumstances, he was not ready to entertain the idea of running away from his extraordinary fortune

XXII.

JOB HAS A PRESENTIMENT.

It was nine o'clock on the following morning when Job, who still looked scared and frightened, came to call on me, and at the same time breathe his gratitude at finding us alive in our beds, which it appeared was more than he had expected. When I told him of the awful end of poor Ustane he was even more grateful at our survival, and much shocked, though Ustane had been no favorite of his—or he of hers, for the matter of that. She called him "pig" in bastard Arabic, and he called her "hussy" in good English, but these amenities were forgotten in the face of the catastrophe that had overwhelmed her at the hands of her queen.

"I don't want to say anything as mayn't be agreeable, sir," said Job, when he had finished exclaiming at my tale, "but it's my opinion that that there She is the old gentleman himself, or perhaps his wife, if he has got one, which I suppose he has, for he couldn't be so wicked all by himself. The Witch of Endor was a fool to her, sir; bless you, she would make no more of raising every gentleman in the Bible out of these here beastly tombs than I should of growing cress on an old flannel. It's a country of devils, this is, sir, and she's the master one of the lot; and if ever we get out of it, it will be more than I expect to do. I don't see no way out of it. That witch isn't likely to let a fine young man like Mr. Leo go."

"Come," I said; "at any rate she saved his life."

"Yes, and she'll take his soul to pay for it. She'll make him a witch, like herself. I say it's wicked to have anything to do with those sort of people. Last night, sir, I lay awake and read in my little Bible that my poor old mother gave me about what is going to happen to sorceresses and them sort, till my hair stood on end. Lord, how the old lady would stare if she saw where her Job had got to!"

"Yes, it's a queer country, and a queer people too, Job," I answered, with a sigh, for though I am not superstitious like Job, I admit to a natural shrinking (which will not bear investigation) from the things that are above nature.

"You are right, sir," he answered; "and if you won't think me very foolish, I should like to say something to you, now that Mr. Leo is out of the way" (Leo had got up early and gone for a stroll), "and that is that I know it is the last country as ever I shall see in this world. I had a dream last night, and I dreamed that I saw my old father, with a kind of night-shirt on him, something like these folks wear when they want to be in particular full dress, and a bit of that feathery grass in his hand, which he may have gathered on the way, for I saw lots of it yesterday about three hundred yards from the mouth of this beastly cave.

"'Job,' he said to me, solemn like, and yet with a kind of satisfaction shining through him, more like a Methody parson when he has sold a neighbor a marked horse for a sound one and cleared twenty pounds by the job than anything I can think on—'Job, time's up, Job; but I never did expect to have to come and hunt you out in this here place, Job. Such ado as I have had to nose you up; it wasn't friendly to give your poor old father such a run, let alone that a wonderful lot of bad characters hail from this place Kor.'

"'Come, come, Job,' I said, seriously, 'this is all nonsense, you know. You mustn't be silly enough to go getting such ideas into your head. We've lives enough some queer things, and I hope that we may go on doing so.'

"'No, sir,' answered Job, in a tone of conviction that jarred on me unpleasantly, 'it isn't nonsense. I'm a doomed man, and I feel it, and a most uncomfortable feeling it is, sir, for one can't help wondering how it's going to come about. If you are eating your dinner you think of poison, and it goes against your stomach; and if you are walking along these dark rabbit burrows you think of knives, and Lord, don't you just shiver about the backs! I ain't particular, sir, provided it's sharp, like that poor girl who, now that she's gone, I am sorry to have spoke hard on, though I don't approve of her morals in getting married, which I consider too quick to be decent. Still, sir,' and poor Job turned a shade paler as he said it, 'I do hope it won't be that hot-pot game.'

"'Nonsense,' I broke in, angrily—'nonsense!'

"'Very well, sir,' said Job; 'it isn't my place to differ from you, sir; but if you happen to be going anywhere, sir, I should be obliged if you could manage to take me with you, seeing that I shall be glad to have a friendly face to look at when the time comes, just to help one through as it were. And now, sir, I'll be getting the breakfast;' and he went, leaving me in a very uncomfortable state of mind. I was deeply attached to old Job, who was one of the best and honestest men I have ever had to do with in any class of life, and really more of a friend than a servant, and the mere idea of anything happening to him brought a lump into my throat. Beneath all his ludicrous talk I could see that he himself was quite convinced that something was going to happen, and though in most cases these convictions turn out to be utter moonshine—and this particular one especially was to be amply accounted for by the gloomy and unaccustomed surroundings in which its victim was placed—still it did more or less to carry a chill to my heart, as anything that is obviously a genuine object of belief is apt to do, however absurd the belief may be. Presently the breakfast arrived, and with it Leo, who had been taking a walk outside the cave—to clear his mind, he said—and very glad I was to see both, for they gave me a respite from my gloomy thoughts. After breakfast we went for another walk, and watched some of the Amahagger sowing a plot of ground with the grain from which they might make their beer. This they did in Scriptural fashion—a man with a bag made of goat's hide fastened round his waist walking up and down the plot, and scattering the seed as he went. It was a positive relief to see one of these dreadful people do anything so homely and pleasant as sow a field, perhaps, because it seemed to link them, as it were, with the rest of humanity.

As we were returning, Billali met us, and informed us that it was She's pleasure that we should walk upon her, and accordingly we entered her presence, not without trepidation, for Ayesha was certainly an exception to the rule. Familiarity with her might and did breed passion and wonder and horror, but it certainly did not breed contempt.

"A LIVE CHURCH."

Dr. Talmage's Discourse on Sunday Morning.

Brooklyn, April 3.—The Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage, D.D., has returned from the west, after an absence of nearly three weeks. His subject this morning was: "A Live Church," and his text Revelation, chapter ii., verses 8 and 9: "Unto the angel of the Church in Smyrna write, these things saith the first and the last, which was dead and is alive; I know thy works, and tribulations, and poverty, but thou art rich."

Smyrna was a great city of the ancients, bounded on three sides by mountains. It was the central emporium of the Levantine trade. In that prosperous and brilliant city there was a Christian church established. After it had existed for a while, it was rocked down by an earthquake. It was rebuilt. Then it was consumed by a conflagration that swept over the entire city. That church went through fire, and trouble, and disaster, but kept on to great spiritual prosperity. The fact was, that church had the grace of God, an ever active principle. Had it been otherwise, all the grandeur of architecture and pomp of surroundings would only have been the ornament of death—the garlands of a coffin, the plumes of a hearse.

It may be profitable to consider what are the elements of a live Church.

I remark in the first place, that one characteristic of such a Church is punctual in meeting its engagements. All ecclesiastical institutions have financial relations, and they ought to meet their obligations just as certainly as men meet their obligations at the bank. When a Church of God is not as faithful in its promises as the Bank of England, it ceases to be a Church of God. It ought to be understood that prayers cannot paint a church, and prayers cannot pay the winter's coal bill, and prayers cannot meet the insurance; and that, while prayers can do a thousand things, there are a thousand things that prayers cannot do. Prayers for any particular Church will never reach heaven high unless it goes down pocket deep. In my Church at the West, there was a man of comfortable means, who used to pray for his pastor in such elongated style that he became a nuisance to the prayer-meeting; asking God, in a prayer that was almost without ceasing, that the pastor might be blessed in his basket and in his store, while the fact was he never paid anything. If we pray for the advancement of the Church, and do not out of our means contribute for its advancement, our prayer is only mockery. Let the Church of God there meet its obligations on the outside, and let the members of the congregation meet the obligations on the inside, and the Church will be financially prosperous.

Let me say, also, that there must be punctuality in the attendance on the house of the Lord. If the service begins at half-past ten in the morning, the regular congregation of a live Church will not come at a quarter to eleven. If the service is to begin at half-past seven in the evening, the regular congregation of a live church will not come at a quarter to eight. In some churches I have noticed the people are always tardy. There are some people who are always late. They were born too late, and the probability is they will die too late. The rustling of dresses up the aisle, and the slamming of doors, and the treading of heavy feet is poor inspiration for a minister. It requires great abstraction in a pastor's mind to proceed with the preliminary exercises of the church when one-half of the audience are seated are looking around to see the other half come in. Such a difference of attendance upon the house of God may be a difference of time-pieces; but the live church of which I am speaking ought to go by railroad time, and that is pretty well understood in all communities.

There is one hymn that ought to be sung in a great many Christian families on Sabbath morning:

"Early, my God, without delay,
I haste to seek Thy place."

Another characteristic of a live church is the fact that all the people participate in the exercises. A stranger can tell by the way the first tune starts whether there is any life there. A church that does not sing is a dead church. It is awful to find a cold drizzle of music coming down from the organ loft, while all the people beneath sit in silence. When a tune wanders around, lonely and unbefriended, and is finally lost amid the arches because the people do not join in it, there is not much melody made unto the Lord. In heaven they all sing, though some there can not sing half as well as others. The Methodist Church has sung all around the world, and gone from conquest to conquest, among other things because it is a singing church; and any Christian church organization that with enthusiasm performs this part of its duty will go on from triumph to triumph. A Church of God that can sing, can do anything that ought to be done. Go forth into this holy war with the Bible in one hand and a hymn book in the other. O! ye who used to sing the praises of the Lord, and have got out of the habit, take your harps down from the willows. I am glad to know that, as a Church, we are making advancement in this respect. When I came to be your pastor we had an excellent choir in the little chapel, and they sang very sweetly to us Sabbath by Sabbath; but ever and anon there was trouble, for you know that the choirs in the United States are the Waterloos where the great battles go on. One Sunday they will sing like angels, and the next Sunday they will be mad, and will not sing at all. We resolved to settle all the difficulties, and have one skillful man at the organ, and one man to do the work of a precentor; and now, from Sabbath to Sabbath, the voice comes up like the voice of mighty thunderings.

"Let those refuse to sing
Who never knew our God;
But children of the Heavenly King
Should speak their joys abroad."

On the way to triumph that never ends, and pleasures that never die—sing!

Another characteristic of a live Church is a flourishing Sabbath school. It is too late in the history of the Christian Church to argue the benefit of such an institution. The Sabbath school is not a supplement to the Church; it is its right arm. But you say there are dead Churches that have Sabbath schools. Yes, but the Sabbath schools are dead, too. It is a dead mother holding in her arms a dead child. But when superintendent, and teachers, and scholars come on Sabbath afternoon together, their faces glowing with interest and enthusiasm, and their songs are heard all through the exercises, and as the close they go away feeling they have been on the Mount of Transfiguration—that is a live school, and it is characteristic of a live Church. There is only one thing I have against the Sabbath schools of this country, and that is, they are too respectable. We gather into our schools the children of the refined, and the cultured, and the educated; but alas for the great multitude of the children of the abandoned and the lost! A few of them are gathered into our Sabbath schools; but what about the 70,000 destitute children of New York, and the score of thousands of destitute children of Brooklyn, around whom are thrown no benign, and heavenly, and Christian influences? It is a tremendous question, what is to become of the destitute children of these cities? We must either act on them, or they will act on us. We will either Christianize them, or they will heathenize us. It is a question not more for the Christian than for the philanthropic and the statesman. Oh! if we could have all these suffering little ones gathered together, what a scene of hunger, and wretchedness, and rags, and sin, and trouble, and darkness! If we could see those little feet on the broad road to death, which through Christian charity ought to be pressing the narrow path of life; if we could hear those voices in blasphemy which ought to be singing the praises of God; if we could see those little hearts, which at that age ought not to be soiled with one unclean thought, becoming the sewers for every abomination; if we could see those suffering little ones sacrificed on the altar of every iniquitous passion, and baptized with fire from the lava of the pit, we would recoil, crying out:—"Avaunt, thou dream of hell!" They are not always going to be children. They are coming up to be the men and women of this country. That spark of iniquity that might now be put out with one drop of the water of life will become the conflagration of every green thing that God ever planted in the soul. That which ought to have been a temple of the Holy Ghost will become a scarred and blistered ruin—every light quenched and every altar in the dust. That petty thief, who slips into your store and takes a yard of cloth from your counter will become the highwayman of the forest, or the burglar at midnight, picking the lock of your money safe and blowing up your store to hide the villany. A great army, with staggering step, and blood-shot eye, and drunken hoot, they are coming on—gathering recruits from every grog shop and den of infamy in the land, to take the ballot box and hurrah at the elections. The hard-knuckled fist of ruffianism will have more power than the gentle hand of intelligence and sobriety. Men, bloated, and with the signature of sin burned in from the top of the forehead to the bottom of the chin, will look honest men out of countenance. Moral corpses, which ought to be buried a hundred feet deep to keep them from poisoning the air, will rot in the face of the sun at noonday. Industry in her plain frock will be unappreciated, while thousands of men will wander around in idleness, with their hands on their hips, saying:—"The world owes us a living." O, what a tremendous power there is in iniquity when unedicated, and unrestrained, and unblanched, it goes on concentrating, and deepening, and widening, and gathering momentum until it swings ahead with a very triumph of desolation, drowning like surges, scorching like flames, crushing like rocks! What are you going to do with this abandoned population of the streets? Will you gather them in your Churches? It is not the will of your Heavenly Father that one of these little ones should perish. If you have ten respectable children in your class, gather in ten that are not respectable. If in your Bible class there be twenty young men who have come from Christian homes and elegant surroundings; let those twenty young men go out and gather in twenty more of the young men of the city who are lost to God and lost to society. This outside population, unless educated and restrained, will work terror in area that are to come. Years ago, at New Orleans, when the cholera was raging fearfully, a steamboat put out just before nightfall, crowded with passengers who were trying to escape from the pestilence. After the boat had been out a little while, the engineer fell with the cholera. The captain, in consternation, went down among the passengers and asked:—"Is there anyone here who knows anything about engineering?" A swarthy man replied: "I am an engineer." "Well," said the captain, "I would be very glad if you would take charge of this boat." The man went to the engine. The steamer moved more rapidly until, after awhile, the captain and some passengers were alarmed, and they went to see what was the matter, and they found that this was a maniac engineer, and that he was seated on the safety-valve; and, as they came to him, he said: "I am commissioned of Satan to drive this steamer to hell!" and he flourished his pistol, and would not come down. But after awhile, through some stratagem, he was brought from his position, and the lives of the passengers were saved. O, my friends! that steamer had no such peril as our institutions are threatened with, if the ignorant and unrestrained children of this land shall come up in their ignorance and their crime to engineer our civil and religious institutions, and drive them on the rocks. Educate this abandoned population, or they will overthrow the institutions of this land. Gather them into your Sabbath-schools. I congratulate you that many have been gathered. Go forth, teachers, in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, and on the coming Sabbaths may there be found gathered scores and hundreds of these wanderers, and, instead of eighteen hundred in the Sabbath-schools, we shall see three thousand or four thousand, and the grace of God will come down upon them, and the Holy Spirit will bring them all into the truth.

Another characteristic of a live Church is one with appropriate architecture. In the far West and amid destitute population, a log church is very appropriate—the people living in log houses. But in communities where people live in comfortable abodes, a church uncommodious or lacking in beauty is a moral nuisance. Because Christ was born in a manger is no reason why we should worship Him in a barn. Let the churches of Jesus Christ be not only comfortable, but ornate. Years ago, we resolved to have a comfortable church. We resolved that it should be architectural in shape. The prominent architects of the country, after figuring on the matter a good while, said that such a church would not be churchly, and they would have nothing to do with the enterprise. But after awhile we found an architect willing to risk his reputation. He put up for us the first tabernacle in amphitheatrical style. We liked it. All who came liked it. This building followed in the same style. We believe it is appropriate and adapted. An angular church will have an angular theology. The Church of Jesus Christ ought to be a great family circle, the pulpit only the fire-place, around which they are gathered in sweet and domestic communion. But when our first tabernacle went up, O the caricature and the scoffing! They said: "It's a hippodrome! It's a holy circus! It's Talmage's theatre!" But the Lord came down with power upon that old building, and made it the gate of heaven to a great many. And this building followed. That we were right in persisting in the style of architecture is proved by the fact that now there are sixty or seventy Churches in the United States in the same style. Indeed, our tabernacle has revolutionized Church architecture in this country. A live Church must have a commodious, a comfortable, an adapted building. "How amiable are Thy Tabernacles, O Lord of Hosts! I would rather be a doorkeeper in the house of my God than to dwell in the tents of wickedness."

Again, the characteristic of a live Church must be that it is a soul-saving Church. It must be the old Gospel of Christ. "O," say some people, "the Gospel of Christ allows but a small swing for a man's faculties, and some men have left the ministry with that idea." One such said to Rowland Hill:—"I have left the ministry because I don't want to hide my talents any longer. "Well," replied Rowland Hill, "I think the more you hide your talents the better." Why, there is no field on earth so grand as that which is open before the Gospel ministry. Have you powers of analysis? Exhaust them here. Have you unconquerable logic? Let it grapple with Paul's Epistle to the Romans. Have you strong imagination? Let it discourse on the Psalms of David, or John's Apocalyptic Vision. Have you great powers of pathos? Exhaust it in telling the story of a Saviour's love. Have you a bold style of thinking? Then follow Ezekiel's wheel, full of eyes, and hear through his chapters the rush of the wings of the seraphim. All ye who want a grand field in which to work for God, come into the Gospel ministry. At any rate, come into Christian circles, and somewhere and somehow declare the grace of God. Pardon for all sin. Comfort for all trouble. Eternal life for all the dead. O, my soul! preach it forever. It has been my ambition, and I believe it has been yours, my dear people, in these years of my ministry, to have this a soul-saving Church, and we never yet threw out the Gospel net but we drew in a great multitude. They have come, a hundred at a time; and two hundred at a time; and three hundred and fifty at a time; and I expect the day will appear when, in some service, there will be three thousand souls accepting the offers of eternal life. I wish I could tell you some circumstances that have come under my observation, proving the fact that God has blessed the prayers of these people in behalf of souls immortal. I could tell you of one night, when I stood at the end of the platform and a gentleman passed me, his cheek bronzed with the sea, and as he went into the inquiry-room he said to me:—"I am an Englishman," I said:—"I am very glad to see you; walk in." That night he gave his heart to the Lord. It was a clear case of quick but thorough conversion. Passing out at the close of the inquiry meeting, I said: "How long have you been in this country?" He said:—"I arrived by steamer this morning at eleven o'clock." I said:—"How long will you be in the city?" He said:—"I leave to-morrow for Canada, and thence I go to Halifax, and thence to Europe, and I'll never be here again." I said:—"I think you must have come to this country to have your soul saved." He said: "That certainly was the reason." In that other room, one night, at the close of the service, there sat among other persons, three persons looking so cheerful that I said to myself:—"These are not anxious inquirers." I said to the man:—"Are you a Christian?" He said:—"I am." I said:—"When did you become a Christian?" He said:—"To-night." His wife sat next to him. I said to her:—"Are you a Christian?" She said:—"I am." I said:—"When did you become a Christian?" She said:—"To-night." I remarked:—"Is this young lady your daughter?" They said:—"Yes." I said to her:—"Are you a Christian?" She said: "Yes." I said:—"When did you become a Christian?" She said:—"To-night." I said to them:—"From whence came you?". They said: "We are from Charleston, South Carolina." I said: "When did you come?" They said:—"We came yesterday." "How long are you going to remain?" "We go to-morrow. We have never been here before, and shall never be here again." I have heard from them since. They are members of the Church of Jesus Christ, in good and regular standing, eminent for consistency and piety. And so God has made it a soul-saving Church. But I could tell you of a tragic scene, when once at the close of the service I found a man in one of these front seats, wrought upon most mightily. I said to him:—"What is the matter?" He replied:—"I am a captive of strong drink! I came from the West; I thought, perhaps, you could do me some good; I find you can't do me any good; I find there is no hope for me." I said:—"Come into this side room and we will talk together." "Oh, no!" he said, "there's no need of my going in; I am a lost man; I have a beautiful wife; I have four beautiful children; I had a fine profession; I have had a thorough education; I had every opportunity a man ever had, but I am a captive of strong drink; God only knows what I suffer." I said:—"Be encouraged; come in here, and we'll talk together about it." "No," he said, "I can't come; you can't do me any good. I was on the Hudson River Railroad yesterday, and coming down, I resolved never again to touch a drop of strong drink. While I sat there a man came in—a low creature—and sat by me; he had a whiskey flask, and he said to me: 'Will you take a drink?' I said no; but oh, how I wanted it! and as I said no, it seemed that the liquor curled up around the mouth of the flask and begged:—'Take me! take me! take me!' I felt I couldn't resist it, and yet I was determined not to drink, and I rushed out on the platform of the car, and I thought I would jump off; we were going at the rate of forty miles an hour, and I didn't dare to jump; the paroxysm of thirst went off, and I am here to-night." I said: "Come in, I'll pray for you, and commend you to God." He came in trembling. Some of you remember. After the service, we walked out and up the street. I said: "You have an awful struggle; I'll take you into a drug store; perhaps the doctor can give you some medicine that will help you in your struggle though, after all, you will have to depend upon the grace of God." I said to the doctor: "Can you give this man something to help him in his battle against strong drink?" "I can," replied the doctor, and he prepared a bottle of medicine. I said: "There is no alcohol in this—no strong drink?" "None at all," said the doctor. "How long will this last?" I enquired. "It will last him a week." "O," I said, "give us another bottle." We passed out into the street and stood under the gaslight. It was getting late, and I said to the man:—"I must part with you. Put your trust in the Lord, and He will see you through. You will make use of this medicine when the paroxysm of thirst comes on." A few weeks passed away, and I got a letter from Boston saying: "Dear friend, I enclose the money you paid for that medicine. I have never used any of it. The thirst for strong drink has entirely gone away from me. I send you two or three newspapers to show you what I have been doing since I came to Boston." I opened the newspapers and saw accounts of meetings of two or three thousand people to whom this man had been preaching righteousness, temperance, and judgment to come. I have heard from him again and again since. He is faithful now, and will be, I know, faithful to the last. O, this work of soul saving! Would God that out of this audience to-day five hundred men might hear the voice of the Son of God bidding them come to a glorious resurrection!

All the offers of the Gospel are extended to you, "without money and without price," and you are conscious of the fact that these opportunities will soon be gone forever. The conductor of a rail-train was telling me of the fact that he was one night standing his train on a side track, his train having been switched off so that the express train might dart past unhindered. He said while he stood there in the darkness, beside his train on the side-track, he heard the thunder of the express in the distance. Then he saw the flash of the headlight. The train came with fearful velocity, nearer and nearer, until after awhile when very near, by the flash of the headlight, he saw that the switchman had not attended to his duty—either through intoxication or indifference, had not attended to his duty, and that train, unless something were done immediately, would rush on the side-track, and dash the other train to atoms. He shouted to the switchman:—"Set up that switch!" and with one stroke the switch went back, and the express thundered on. O! men and women, going on toward the eternal world, swift as the years, swift as the months, swift as the days, swift as the hours, swift as the minutes, swift as the seconds—on what track are you running? Toward light or darkness? Toward victory or defeat? Toward heaven or hell? Set up that switch. Cry aloud to God. Now is the day of salvation."

The best previous record was that of Dunn at Detroit—100 shoes in one hour and forty-seven minutes. Tunney made his 100 shoes Friday night in one hour, twelve minutes and fifteen seconds. The first shoe was complete in twenty-two seconds.

New York, April 2.—Railroads quiet. Stocks fairly active; generally higher at close.

New York, April 2.—Brokers and operators at hotels last evening were generally talking bullish, and thought the market was in good shape for material advance. They said the question of Inter-State law would prove beneficial to the interests of railroad properties, and that the scarcity of money would cease to be a factor in the early part of next week. No apprehension is anticipated as to the effect of to-day's bank statement, as stocks are now held in very strong hands, and there is an evident disposition on the part of these interested in the present movement to sustain prices on all raids. The leading traders who have been left on advance are talking bearish, and say prices should have a reaction. The Chicago party have been very active in St. Paul, and while they declined to advise their friends as to the immediate cause of speculation in these properties, the purchases by Laven, Green & Bateman, H. Durand, and other houses identified with Chicago interests, are regarded as significant. Jones, McCormick & Kennett, who are believed to represent not only their senior partner, but also the leading Chicago operators in the New York market, gave out a number of orders yesterday. Boston was again prominent in dealings in Union Pacific, and an advance on this stock was thought to have been for this interest. Goulo and Connor, brokers, did not give the support to their specialties which has been noticeable during the early part of the week, and it was believed that they found too much company on the bull side for comfort and desired to shake out some of the small buyers, in anticipation of the expected advance. London, while not a conspicuous buyer, picked up stock on all the dips. Commission brokers report an increase of outside orders and a disposition on the part of unprofessional operators to become interested in the market.

London Markets.

Revised Daily.
London, Saturday April 1, 1887.

There was a large attendance on the market to-day, and the supplies in every department were full, if we except grain. The delivery of cereals for a long time now has not been sufficient hardly for the local demand; and large quantities of wheat, oats and barley have been brought in by rail to meet the wants of the flour and oat meal mills.

Wheat to-day kept steady at $1 30 to $1 36 per cental; a few extra loads were bought at $1.39.

Oats were unchanged, at 93 to 95 cents per cental; the latter price prevailed for a few loads for private purposes.

Good seed oats sell at 98c and $1 per cental.

A prime quality of spring wheat for seed purposes is held at $1.55 per hundred lbs.

Peas have been coming in sparingly of late, but for shipping purposes 85 cents per cental, but for seed, best varieties, pure, 90 to 95 cents.

The barley market has had no change from our last report.

Clover seed was coming in more freely, and it is evident that farmers have been holding back, and apparently there is more seed in the country than was expected in the fore part of the season. Clover seed now does not bring within 50 and 75 cents a bushel of what it did a month ago, and as a farmer expressed it to-day, a number of them have got "ketched" by holding back. The holding back business rarely ever pays, from the fact that as soon as a "corner" gets up here, even allowing a short supply, seed can be imported from the large centres of production on the other side. This, with duties added, will always equalize prices.

The meat supply was normal, and the quality in general good, in a few cases extra. Mr. Hodgins, of Arva, had a three-year-old Shorthorn steer that dressed 1,800 lbs. of beef. It is needless to say that the meat was prime in every respect, and this goes to show the profit and importance of raising good stock, as against scrubs. Here we have a thoroughbred steer dressing at three years of age more than a double of an animal of the same age bred from ordinary stock. This weight of meat at 6 cents a pound covered $108; whereas an eight hundred pound steer, which is average for an ordinary three year old steer, would be at the most $50.

The veal supply was fair, at from 6 to 8 cents a pound.

Mutton 8 and 9 cents a pound; yearling lambs 10 to 11 cents a pound by the carcass.

Spring lamb, $1 to $1 25 per quarter of about 6 pounds.

Pork was in fair supply, at $6 to $6 25 per cwt.

Young pigs were offered at $3 50 to $4 50 a pair; shoats, from $7 to $10 a pair.

There were a goodly number of milch cows offered for sale, and all around they were as scraggy and scrubby a lot as ever was offered in this country. The best of them were no larger than what an ordinary two year old should be, and in the most miserable condition. If they were Jerseys allowance might be made, but the diminutive size was evidently due to bad breeding, worse feeding and care.

The butter supply was large, and prices easy, at 20c to 23c for single roll, and 16c to 18c for large rolls.

Eggs were cheap, at 10c to 12c a dozen.

There was a large apple supply, and prices ranged from 35c to $1 10 a bag.

There was a large supply of potatoes, and prices were easier, at 90c to $1 a bag.

Other vegetables ruled at our quotations.

Maple syrup (?) was scarce, at $1 25 to $1 30 per gallon. Sugar, 12c to 14c. It may be remarked here that a great number of good running sugar bushes may be found in and around our large cities in the shape of an ordinary sugar hogshead.

Hay was plentiful, at $10 a ton.

TRADE, TRAFFIC AND FINANCE

Latest Notes by Telegraph and Mail.

BRITISH GRAIN TRADE.

Liverpool, April 1.—A leading weekly grain circular says: "Wheat is very steady, but not particularly active. Millers are buying sparingly, flour being unremunerative. Supplies of wheat and flour are liberal. A few cargoes off coast. The business done is unimportant. A few sales of cargoes for shipment and on passage at higher prices. To-day the market is poor and the tone quiet. Only a small business was transacted. The tone of wheat is unchanged. Whites and reds declined ½ to 1d. For flour there was a moderate inquiry. Rates are without change. Corn is offered freely, but there is a poor demand. Rates declined 1d per cental.

HOP NOTES.

The Kentish Observer of March 17 says:—During the past week the trade has been quiet, and for medium and low qualities prices are slightly more favorable to buyers. The better quality hops, of which the quantity is proportionately small, maintain late quotations.

Messrs. Thomas Wild & Co., hop factors, report—The general trade is still confined to a few retail orders for immediate use, and there is hardly enough business doing to keep values firm. In the absence of any genuine demand holders are inclined to push sales, which, of course, adversely affect the market. Foreign markets are quiet, with a few transactions in best goods, and all others more or less neglected.

From Worcester Messrs. J. H. Meredith & Co. report:—During the past week there has been no business of importance on this market, but several small lots of Worcesters have changed hands at previous rates. Planters who hold low and mismanaged samples seem for the most part inclined to keep them until the summer rather than force a trade by accepting speculators' prices, which would hardly pay the bare expense of picking, curing and bagging. Snow has fallen in this district since Friday, but the weather altogether has been favorable for ploughing down and cutting, and the hop land is generally reported to be in first-rate condition.

THE DRUG TRADE.

Liver Complaint

Is more surely and speedily cured by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, than by any other remedy. "I was a great sufferer from liver troubles, and never found anything that gave me permanent relief until I began taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla, about two years ago. A few bottles of this medicine produced a radical cure.—Wm. E. Baker, 155 W. Brookline st., Boston, Mass.

A Remarkable Cure.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla has cured me of as bad a case of Abscess of the Liver as any human being could be afflicted with and live. I was confined to the house for two years, and, for the last three months of that time, was unable to leave my bed. Four physicians treated me without giving relief, and, in fact, nothing helped me, until I tried Ayer's Sarsaparilla. After using a quarter of a bottle of this medicine I began to feel better, and every additional dose seemed to bring new health and strength. I used three bottles, and am now able to attend to my business. I walk to town—one mile distant—and return, without difficulty. Ayer's Sarsaparilla has accomplished all this for me.—W. S. Miner, Carson City, Mich.

Clears out rats, mice, roaches, flies, ants, bedbugs, beetles, insects, skunks, jack rabbits, sparrows, gophers. 15c. At druggists.

There is in Lincoln, Cal., a young man whose eyes are very like an owl's. He can see but little in daylight, scarcely at all in the sunlight, but at night his vision is perfect. His wonderful sight has been tested by many, and as a guide at night he has no equal.

Unequalled.

P. B MacNamara, dry goods merchant, Brockville, Ont., says—As an instant relief for cold in the head and catarrh, Nasal Balm is unequalled. The effect is noticed as soon as it is used.

Most, the Anarchist, was released from Blackwell's Island Prison yesterday. He was met by a crowd of Anarchists and escorted to a New York beer saloon. The Anarchists will hold a meeting at Clarendon Hall next Wednesday night, at which Most will speak.

Mr. Henry Marshall, Reeve of Dunn, writes: "Some time ago I got a bottle of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery from Mr Harrison, and I consider it the very best medicine extant for Dyspepsia." This medicine is making marvellous cures in Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia, etc., in purifying the blood and restoring manhood to full vigor.

The appearance of six hundred new vehicles in the streets of London may be looked for at an early date. Handsome four-wheelers will compete with the old-fashioned cabs, and the comfortable vehicle known as a Victoria will, for the first time, be obtainable from the stands. The vehicles of the new company will be driven by men in livery.

Struck by Lightning

Is an every day saying regarding the way in which "Fluid Lightning" disposes of Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Toothache, Lumbago, Sciatica and shooting pains. It does not blister nor discolor the skin, and is always ready for use. Sold in 25c bottles by Harkness & Co., Druggists. 3eod

They have been taking from the 1,500 foot level of a mine at Virginia City, Nev., pieces of pine timbers which have been compressed to one-fourth their natural size by twelve years' use under immense pressure at a temperature of 160 degrees. The wood is of a deep chestnut color, takes a fine polish, and seems as firm grained as boxwood. Here's a hint for an inventor.

Thirteen Months in 1885.

Apparently impossible—but true nevertheless. There are fifty-two weeks in a year. One day in each week is devoted by all good housewives to the laundry and cleaning, or fifty-two days in each year. By using James Pyle's Pearline, this work can be done in one-half the time, or in twenty-six days—thus saving a woman twenty-six days of the hardest kind of work. A trial of the article will prove this—surely it deserves a trial, being harmless to fabric or hands.

"Rough On Catarrh"

corrects offensive odors at once. Complete cure of worst chronic cases; also unequaled as gargle or diphtheria, sore throat, foul breath. 50c.

NAVIGATION, TRANSPORTATION etc.
