Mgr. Merry del Val was given a reception in Winnipeg worthy of his position and equally worthy of the sterling Catholic people of the west.

The latest addition to the Chilean navy is said to be the most powerful warship afloat, and is appropriately named the "O'Higgins" after Chile's greatest naval hero.

It is well for the Methodist conference that it can command public money for a plebiscite merely because our Methodist brethren believe in making people solve by legislation.

The Presbyterian Witness, Halifax, quotes a paragraph from THE REGISTER on the Lourdes miracles.

The Kingston Whig, of June 3, quotes the remarks of THE REGISTER upon the reported misunderstanding in Kingston concerning the Jubilee celebration.

THE REGISTER wishes to acknowledge a set of admirable photographs of Mgr. Merry del Val, taken by Mr. Frederick Lyonde, King street west.

Points of View of the Victorian Era. In moving concurrence of the House of Commons in the address that had come down from the Senate...

The representatives of the Ottawa Catholic schools are once more endeavoring to get the Christian Brothers to return to their former charge.

The Presbyterian Witness, Halifax, quotes a paragraph from THE REGISTER on the Lourdes miracles.

We shall always be glad to receive information of any description when tendered in the right spirit; but we do not think that our Halifax contemporary can tell us anything noteworthy of Pierre Delany that we ourselves have not read.

There is an instructive article on this same subject in the current "North American Review." It is written by a Canadian Methodist, now a resident of Chicago, Dr. Charles W. Purdy.

Points of View of the Victorian Era. In moving concurrence of the House of Commons in the address that had come down from the Senate...

The subject of the Victorian Era is so large that, from whatever point of view we wish to treat it, it would be well to take Mr. Laurier's cue of associating the cause of celebration with some signal blessing that has had its birth or re-annunciation during the life or reign of the Queen.

As will be seen from the manifesto of the Irish party, which we publish in full to-day, Ireland stands apart from the jubilee festivities, because she has no such theme of her own for jubilation.

Pope Leo's Latin Poem.

The Hamilton Herald has published quite a good editorial on the Pope's Latin poem in praise of sobriety and temperance.

There is an instructive article on this same subject in the current "North American Review." It is written by a Canadian Methodist, now a resident of Chicago, Dr. Charles W. Purdy.

Dr. Howley's Study of Cabot's Voyages. The present issue contains the conclusion of Bishop Howley's paper on Cabot's voyages.

The noble and most useful object which the conclusions arrived at by Dr. Howley have impelled him to espouse should attract widespread attention to his valuable study of Cabot's voyages.

It is all very well for the American Constitution to prohibit the establishment of any state church.

The Criminal Code.

The Lord's Day Alliance people have been trying to bring private influence to bear upon the Local Government to re-impose the Puritan Sabbath on the citizens of Hamilton.

Sir Chas. Mowat is the spokeswoman of this latter class, whose aim is to proclaim a new crime and add it to the Canadian Criminal Code.

DOMESTIC READING.

Home rule, when too strict, ends in no rule. Idleness travels very leisurely, and poverty soon overtakes her. The man who looks for difficulties will find two where he only expects one.

It is a tiresome journey, and when a man arrives at the end he is all out of breath. Miss Margaret reminds me of a delicate piece of china. She is painted.

Music, flowers, books, papers, indoor and outdoor games should be procured before anything is laid by for the rainy day.

When we do anything for God—the very least thing—we never know when it will end, Love's secret, therefore, is to be always doing things for God and not to mind because they are such very little things.

Our life is March weather, savage and serene in one hour. We go forth austere, dedicated, beginning in the iron links of Destiny, and will not turn on our heel to save our life; but a book or a bust, or only the sound of a name, shoots a spark through the nerve, and we suddenly change.

There are people in the world who are honestly incredulous of anything more than what they find in themselves. These people yield you a sort of reluctant admiration while they think you mercurial, but if you disclaim the mercenary intentions they change their minds only just sufficient to consider you a hypocrite.

Oh, what a glorious reward awaits those parents who spare no pains to make home happy! And if their children should prove ungrateful and imitate the Prodigal in his wanderings, they will sooner or later imitate him in his return.

To say "I am resigned" is to acknowledge defeat at the hands of life, to accept it, and in passive endurance to give up the fight for happiness. A brave soul cannot do this, because it would be ashamed; and a wise soul cannot, because it feels that as it must continue in the world, simple common sense commands it to gather all of the good that the world may still present.

The papers are full of deaths from Heart Failure. Of course the heart fails to act when a man dies, but "Heart Failure," so called, nine times out of ten is caused by Uric Acid in the blood which the kidneys fail to remove, and which cures the heart until it becomes unable to perform its functions.

Health Officers in many cities very properly refuse to accept "Heart Failure" as a cause of death. It is frequently a sign of ignorance in the physician, or may be given to cover up the real cause. The papers are full of deaths from Heart Failure.

Heart Failure. A Medicine with 20 Years of Success behind it. will remove the poisonous Uric Acid by putting the kidneys in a healthy condition so that they will naturally eliminate it.

FIRESIDE FUN.

Man who takes great interest in his business—money-lovers. Some people never realize how well off they are until they try to ride a bicycle.

Life is a tiresome journey, and when a man arrives at the end he is all out of breath. Miss Margaret reminds me of a delicate piece of china.

FARM AND GARDEN.

There is always a strong desire to try new varieties of fruits and vegetables. There are already more good varieties than are required, and what is needed is not to resort to newer kinds, but give the old varieties an opportunity to prove their merits by providing proper cultivation, fertilizers, etc.

A cheap way to destroy weeds is to grow cress, potatoes, carrots, beets and turnips. A crop of cabbage should also be included. These crops require clear cultivation and pay for the labor of destroying the weeds.

Good seed potatoes that are free from disease bring prices that are the envy of those who have been careful with their crops. Farmers who grow large crops of potatoes should have facilities for taking care of those intended for seed.

Cultivating the soil to keep down weeds is not all that results from so doing. The loose soil not only prevents loss of moisture, but gains more from rains than from the surface is hard and compact.

To get good melons and Lima beans make the hills now. Use plenty of manure, and do not disturb them until the apple trees are in blossom, when the seed may be planted.

There are farms of only ten acres that are busy because every acre receives manure or fertilizer year after year, while larger farms give no profit because the soil is poor.

A good garden, it is said, lessens the visits of the physician. It will not only do this, but will add to the home enjoyment.

Chats With the Children.

Have you ever seen an ant hill? They are not found of very great size in this country, but in many foreign countries they attain enormous dimensions. You have seen ants, of course, the busy little insects as they are found everywhere, and at this season of the year they are busier than ever, for they are building their homes.

THE TELEGRAPH GIRL.

I had never met Carrie Rankin. I did not know if she was long or short, blonde or brunette, sweet sixteen or crumpled forty, plump as a mountain...

denied even a look at a pretty face, aside from fleeting glimpses of female passengers on passing trains. I came to regard Miss Rankin as "my best girl," and her personal telegraph signal, "Cr," became the sweetest sound...

from reflecting on what a martyr I was going to make of myself. I saw the conductor assist my visitor to the ground and start with her along the side of the train toward the depot...

We went to supper at the section house, and on returning she went at once to the key and asked the dispatcher if the train then nearly due was on time.

Red Rock, where I was located, was a station on the Santa Fe Railway, in the Cherokee strip of Oklahoma, before that now famous stretch of land was purchased by the Government from the Indians and thrown open for settlement.

The passenger whistled and he hastened to his train to pull out as soon as the track was clear. How utterly my idol was shattered. After the trains had gone I sat as if dazed, in fact, I was so absorbed in digesting the startling information I had gleaned from Armstrong that I neglected to report their departure.

"Thank you. It is very good of you, and since my humpbacked orge has limped away on his one leg I will enter his den with no fear. How dearly natural the old place looks!" (taking off her hat and throwing it on the table).

"I could not obey. The mental torture I endured was terrible, not only through fear of Miss Rankin's return to the office, but through the knowledge that an attempt was to be made to rob the train, and the lives of good men might be sacrificed defending the property entrusted to their care.

so queerly? Then, in clear clickings, I heard the dispatcher's call. Wharton was about to report 'the train'—but no! What did it mean? The dispatcher responded and my heart gave a great throb of delight as I heard these words flashed over the wire.

some station given me in a beautiful Kansas town, a telegram was handed to me as I stood in the parlor of Mrs. Rankin's pretty cottage home in Arkansas City. I read it and handed it to a little woman dressed in bridal robes who stood at my side.

Miss Rankin was my predecessor in the position of agent and operator at Red Rock. She learned the telegraph in the train dispatcher's office at Arkansas City, where her widowed mother resided, and when competent to assume charge of a small station had asked for and been given a position at Red Rock. She tired after a while of the lonely monotony of that obscure station and asked to be sent to one less isolated from mankind.

"I think it was one day last week, or was it the week before? It was the day the superintendent came over the road on a special. The sprouting of depots by agents—male agents, that is—is always regulated by official wire."

"I had a dreadful time up there one day. The insulated copper wires from the instruments run up through the office ceiling, you know, and connect with the line out under the eaves of the depot. I cut out my instruments for a heavy thunder storm, and when I cut in again after the storm had passed I found the wire open on both sides of me.

"I heard the little heroine report the words to the dispatcher and felt that my object had been accomplished and her anxiety relieved. In a moment came a message intended for my ears: 'Brace up, Fred, for help is coming. We've got the best of this game, but I am distressed at your condition, old fellow. Grin and bear it. I will be with you the minute the train gets here.—Cr.'"

In a tone of voice so loud I know she could hear it, I said: "Men have been shot in the thigh and arm in pain. This bench is a hard bed for a wounded man. Won't you carry me in and lay me on my back in the next room?"

MOTHERS REJOICE AS THEY SEE THEIR LITTLE ONES MADE STRONG AND WELL BY KOOTENAY WHICH CONTAINS THE NEW INGREDIENT. A sick child always appeals to our love and sympathy. It commands the tenderest care and watchfulness from the mother, who would gladly sacrifice anything to have her darling well.

My first train report had scarcely announced my presence to the operators up and down the line ere Edmond called me up. She expressed regret that she had been denied the privilege of extending to me a personal welcome to my new home, said she hoped I would find the station a pleasant one, and asked me if I would not kindly collect a number of feminine trifles which she had evolved in her haste in packing her trunk and send them down to her.

"I beg your pardon, madam. I've got bad headache to-day and feel cross as bear. Forget I was talking to lady. Who I want to see to me?"

"I had a dreadful time up there one day. The insulated copper wires from the instruments run up through the office ceiling, you know, and connect with the line out under the eaves of the depot. I cut out my instruments for a heavy thunder storm, and when I cut in again after the storm had passed I found the wire open on both sides of me.

"I heard the little heroine report the words to the dispatcher and felt that my object had been accomplished and her anxiety relieved. In a moment came a message intended for my ears: 'Brace up, Fred, for help is coming. We've got the best of this game, but I am distressed at your condition, old fellow. Grin and bear it. I will be with you the minute the train gets here.—Cr.'"

God bless her. And she called me Fred! Her heroism fanned yet brighter the flames of love in my heart and I felt that her language indicated that she held me in more than ordinary regard.

Another of these mothers was Mrs. Geo. Wharton, who lives at 139 St. John St., Hamilton, Ont. She says that her daughter Louisa is nine years of age, has always been delicate and has had Eczema since birth. Some years ago her mother saw the Eczema Pills, and gave her several bottles of them, and she is now perfectly healthy.

Little by little Miss Rankin and myself became acquainted over the wire. We were soon holding daily conversations, then semi-daily, and then our chats became so frequent that at times jealous operators at other stations would break in on our conversation with hints that some one was "masjed" on some one else, and that we had better give the suffering wire a rest and do our spooning by mail. To these ungentlemanly interruptions we paid but little attention, but continued our long-distance intercourse—I, as I have remarked, being more hospitably in love with my new friend as the days sped by, and often wondering if a reciprocity being was not growing in warmth at the other end of the wire. I was a young man of but 20, very susceptible to female charms, and as I was then

She was going away, that was a blessed consolation—going to a busy office where she would have no time for wire chats. I could endure her for a few hours, and although I would have resented from anyone the imputation that I was a liar I assured her I would be delighted to have her come and would endeavor to make her brief visit a pleasant one.

As we sat in the office during the evening chatting the growl more and more vivacious and jolly, and our merry laughter rang out in marked contrast to the usual stillness which prevailed about the dreary station.

"I got no further. There was a loud report; I felt a heavy blow, accompanied by a stinging sensation on my right thigh, and sank to the floor. You used fool, that's yer game, is it? Lucky for you my gun went off afore it got it rained or that sho'd a tuk you whar it'd a done more good."

God bless her. And she called me Fred! Her heroism fanned yet brighter the flames of love in my heart and I felt that her language indicated that she held me in more than ordinary regard.

The detailed sworn statements of the above cases, together with hundreds of others, sent free, by addressing the Ryckman Medicine Co., Hamilton, Ont. The New Ingredient works well. One bottle lasts over a month.

CABOT'S VOYAGES.

By John De Baptist.

SALE BY JOHN DE BAPTIST.

I have now a few words to say regarding my own particular opinion. I believe I am the only person who has fixed upon Cape St. John as the landfall. I may say that this is not, strictly speaking, a new theory. It is included in the theory of the North-east coast of Newfoundland. It is only a question of a very few miles between it and Bonavista, an absolute trifling distance when the whole breadth of the Atlantic ocean is considered. Cape St. John is a high and prominent headland, forming the northern point of Notre Dame Bay. It has received some importance in modern times from being the point fixed on by the treaty of Utrecht (1713) as the limit of the French fishing rights. The southeast point of what is known as the "French Shore." It is situated exactly on the parallel of 50° North Latitude. The line runs right through the bill of the Cape on the map. It is in longitude 56° 27' west, being thus just two degrees and a half, or about one hundred miles farther west than Bonavista. Hence Bonavista is a more important and prominent point for vessels coming from the eastwards. Hence it is, that although I believe Cabot first made land at Cape St. John, yet he afterwards fixed on the point now called Bonavista, as the signal point for voyagers from Europe, and to take a departure from on going eastwards. I am sure that John Cabot took special and particular bearings of this point. I believe it to be the point of which Socrates is speaking, when he says Cabot made certain signal marks (presert cert signa), and I feel confident that if we could find John Cabot's map, we should see this point (now called Bonavista) distinctly marked, and its latitude clearly and correctly given. Yet all this would not shake my belief in the view of his first having had sight of land at Cape St. John a few miles farther north.

FRONT OF ST. JOHN DE BAPTIST.

My reasons are briefly stated: firstly, the name. If there is one fact clearly handed down by tradition, it is that Cabot struck land on the coast of St. John the Baptist, June 24th, and gave the name of the saint to the land first seen. The name of St. John is to be seen at this point from the very earliest maps in our possession—Hiero, (1427), just thirty years after Cabot, and it is there to day. It is true that Cabot gave the name St. John, not to the mainland, but to an island off the shore; but it is quite a customary thing for names to be transferred from islands to the mainland opposite, and vice versa. It was thus that Prince Edward Island received, by mistake, as I stated before the name of St. John. It had been given by Cartier (1534) to a cape on Newfoundland shore, near Cape Anguille, and was transferred first to the Magdalen Islands opposite, and finally from these to the island afterwards (in 1719) called Prince Edward, after the visit of Edward, duke of Kent.

The island seen off the coast by Cabot is described on the Cabot map as a "large island"—"una ysla grande." There is no island off Cape Bonavista to correspond to this description. There are only some small islands or rocks, namely, Gull Island, Green Island, Stone Island, The Spillers, &c.; but not far from Cape St. John is the large island which bears to this day the remarkable name of "New-World-Island." The very name by which Cabot's New Land or New Isles, or New Found Isle, was frequently known. And quite near to this is the other large island which bears to-day the name of Pogo—a name found constantly on all the old maps.

Finally: in relation to the voyage of Verazano, which I mentioned before as having taken place in 1499, only twenty-six years after Cabot, it is stated in the chronicle that he came to the land formerly (in 1497) discovered by Cabot, which is in latitude 50°. That is, as I have shown above, the exact latitude of Cape St. John. Thus, then, taking the name and the latitude into account, I believe this point to have been the landfall; at all events, it shows that at that early period the tradition was in favor of Cape St. John, as the site of the landfall.

SIGNAL STATION AND OBSERVATORY.

In conclusion, I would say that I regard the idea of a Signal Station and Observatory on the site of the block house, as a most suitable memorial for the Cabot quarter-centenary. There can be no doubt that this country occupies the most important position—geographically, historically, and commercially—on the face of the globe. It is a half-way station on the great Atlantic highway, a thousand miles nearer to Europe than any other place in America. It is most important for astronomical, geodetical, and submarine observations; it is the landing-place of the great inter-continental cables; it is the jewel-clasp which binds the electric ring that encircles the zone of the earth; it is the starting point of the great exploration parties to the North Pole; and I have no doubt, that immediately upon the completion of our great railway system, all these advantages will be acknowledged by the world. Some people seem to think that the proposed Cabot celebration is but a mere puerile and senseless demonstration; but such is not the case. We should, by this demonstration, beseeching to ourselves our merited place among the nations. A grand astronomical and meteorological station, and Signal Hill, connected by telephons with all the important points of the Island—Cape Spear, Cape Race, Cape Ray, Cape Norman, and Cape Bauld; and by telegraph and cable with all the principal sports and scientific centers in the world! Such a project would be no mere childish pageant, but would raise us at once to a high and important position. I have not the slightest doubt that in this matter we were properly and (let me say) unanimously set forth and supported by our people, we would receive immediate and generous assistance from outside countries. So much is its importance, as an observing station, already valued by America, that even now our small and insignificant observatory is, I mistake not, liberally subsidized by the Smithsonian Institute, and there can be no doubt that our newly proposed Cabot observatory, erected according to the latest and improved designs, and equipped with the best approved instruments and apparatus, would be liberally and eagerly supported by the government of America, and England also, might hold forth a friendly hand towards us, and thus make some restitution for all she owes us on account of Treaty restrictions. The new observatory would be ornamental as well as useful. It would be a centre of practical study, of astronomy, of meteorology, and kindred sciences, for the youth of our various colleges and educational institutions, who would thereby be able to have practical experiments of the theoretical lectures received in their academical halls. It should also be adorned with a lofty and massive tower of our native granite, surmounting which would arise a colossal statue of Cabot, our discoverer add our patron, who would stretch out his protecting arm over our city and our coast; while from his brow should radiate a beacon bright, whose electric rays would flash across the bosom of the ocean, would be a guiding star to the approaching ship, over the tempest tossed billows to the haven of safety, and at the same time would enlighten the hearts of our people with noble aspirations, and fill with sentiments of patriotism and national pride, the minds of our countrymen for centuries to come.

(THE END.)

Obituary.

JAMES FARREL OF BARRIE. On Friday, 28th of May, the people of Barrie and especially the Catholic community were shocked and grieved beyond expression by the intelligence of the fatal accident near Huron Falls in which James Farrel was the victim. Mr. Farrel was repairer of cars at this station, to which he had gone some ten days before, in the discharge of his duties, and while standing on a flat car, next to the engine, was (when for shunting purposes the rest of the halft train was moved from the van) a sudden jerk from the detached part of the train caused him to fall on the track, which resulted in his death. His remains were at once brought to Barrie. His funeral took place on Sunday afternoon from St. Mary's Church to the Catholic Cemetery. It was one of the largest funerals ever seen in Barrie. About 200 G. T. R. employes attended in a body and led the funeral procession. They carried the C. M. B. A., over 50 in number, and of whom the deceased was a member. The services at the church were conducted by Rev. Father Sweeney, who preached a most touching, eloquent and appropriate sermon.

Mr. Farrel was married nearly two years ago to Miss Cavanagh, daughter of Mr. P. Cavanagh of this parish. The grief-stricken young widow, who has been left with a child ten months old, has the heartfelt sympathy of the entire community. No wonder that his devoted young wife is prostrated and that her family to whom he was as a brother are grieved. Yet as St. Paul says: "They should not grieve like those who have no hope." His life is not lost, for James Farrel has acted from the conviction of one who realized in his life this principle. He and his wife were mouthy communicants. Even when he had been attending to his duties on Saturday night and even on Sunday morning he would not on any account miss Mass on Sunday. All honor to the family to which he belongs and to the parents that brought him up, for these are the only consolations that remain to them now. Will people take a lesson from his life and from his death? What a lesson for the railway employes, who are so frequently, nay continually, in imminent danger! How many even of the members of the C. M. B. A. are true to their religious and society principles? Who amongst them are fitting for a sudden death? His death though sudden was not unprepared. His exemplary life, actuated by religious faith, was the best guarantee of this. Will his sudden death teach to railway employes and to all those who are careless about their salvation the lesson which it is calculated to teach? This short but imperfect notice is offered as a tribute to his memory and as a public expression of heartfelt sympathy to his bereaved widow, his parents and friends, by his pastor.

I have known him well, admired his sterling qualities of head and heart, his religious faith and fervent piety, which were as fresh and untainted on the day of his death as they were on the day on which he left his good parents in Ireland. Requiescat in pace. J. J. EGAN.

Honoring the Dead.

On Sunday the various divisions of the Ancient Order of Hibernians assembled in Red Lion Hall, Yonge street, and marched in procession to St. Michael's Cemetery. This is now an annual custom of the Hibernians, who pay tribute to the memory of their departed brethren by throwing flowers on their graves and offering prayers for their souls eternal rest. The cemetery was crowded, not by the Hibernians alone, but by others who came to mourn and pray for loved ones who are gone for ever. It was most edifying to see those strangers joining with the Hibernians on banded knee and giving fervent utterance to the responses as Rev. Father Dollard read the prayers for the dead. A solemn yet inspiring scene it was—one of those beautiful traits of the Irish, whose kindred, though dead, still live in the deepest recesses of their hearts. The graves visited by the Hibernians were those of Mousignor Rooney, Michael Murphy, Matthew Steedy, James McCarty, Michael Heffernan, Francis Sumner, John Shilly, John Kane, Owen C. Cove, Mortagh Moriarty, Patrick Malloy, James Kelly, Richard Kane, Michael M'Mahon, William McCurry, Joseph Burke, John Flynn, John Grogan, Martin McMillan. May their souls rest in peace.

The regular meeting of St. Leo Court, No. 581, was held in their hall, corner of Queen and McCaul streets, on last Wednesday evening and was well attended. Among the visiting brethren present were District Deputies J. Caderact and J. Mander. Two new members were balloted for, and several applications for membership were received. A communication was received inviting its members to attend the Sunday, June 13th, for Musical Vespers, and the new organ which has recently been completed for the Church will also be blessed. The invitation was unanimously accepted and all members notified to attend. It was also decided to take part in the celebration on June 22nd in honor of the Queen's Jubilee. Short addresses were then delivered by District Deputies J. Mander and J. Caderact, complimenting the court on their increase in membership and also on the expeditious manner in which they transact their business. J. J. NIGHTINGALE, C.R.

A THANK OFFERING.

A CLERGYMAN WRITES ON BEHALF OF GRATEFUL PEOPLE.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Restored Their Health and They Wish Other Sufferers to Know It.—A Letter that Will Bring Hope to Many.—No Other Medicine Does Such Voluntary Praise.

The following letter written by the Rev. Wm. Lawson, Methodist minister at Richibucto, N. B., attests in the strongest manner the merits of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and a personal of it will suggest why this great medicine is so popular throughout thousands of homes throughout the Dominion—it cures when other medicines fail.

Richibucto, N. B., April 26th, 1897. Dr. Williams' Medicine Co.

DEAR SIRS—I am glad to furnish you the following voluntarily given testimonial, with the fullest permission to give the names and place. They do this as a thank offering to God and your medicine. Mrs. Wm. Lawson of Richibucto (near here) says her son Alden was sickly from birth. He could hardly ever retain food, and his parents had but little hope that he would live long and the doctors who attended him were of the same opinion. Till seven years of age he continued in that condition. Then the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills was begun, and under them he recovered and is now a strong healthy boy. Mr. Lawson, the boy's father, also adds his testimonial to the great value of Pink Pills, saying: "I suffered for years with a bad back, until I used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and they cured me." Miss Anne Warren adds this evidence with enthusiasm and freedom: "I was weak and sickly, and did not know the blessing of your health till I took Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I used eight boxes and have since enjoyed the best of health. In fact I am never sick now."

Here you have three members of a family restored to health by the use of your medicine, and you would almost covet their good health and genial ways largely resulting from such health. They wish you to freely use those facts to help other sufferers, and I am able as their pastor to certify to the facts above stated. Sincerely yours, Wm. LAWSON, Methodist Minister.

Pill Clothes. The good pill has a good coat. The pill coat serves two purposes: it protects the pill, and it is soft to the sensitive palate. Some coats are too brittle and won't dissolve, and the pills they cover won't get to the system, harmless as a broad piller. Others are too light, and permit the speedy disintegration of the pill. After 30 years' experience, Ayer's Cathartic Pills have been found a satisfactory one. They are from the laboratory. It's a good pill, with a good coat. Ask your druggist for Ayer's Cathartic Pills.
