MINISTER SPEAKS OF OUR SHIPPING

Necessary For Government To Take Complete Control STATEMENT BY LORD ROBT. CECIL

Every Vessel to be Used in Manner Best Fitted to National Interests—War Effect on the Imports and Exports

London, July 28.—In the course of a discussion of the shipping question yesterday Lord Robert Cecil, blockade minister, after saying that Great Britain has been called on to make great sacrifices through tonnage shortage, remarked that about 6,000,000 out of 916,000,000 tons of British merchant shipping has been allocated to the needs of the navy and army.

From the beginning of the war, he said, "British ships have been requisitioned on a large scale by the government and run in national instead of private interests. The rates paid to shipowners soon became much lower than could be earned by free ships, and British owners were unable to earn the same profits as competitors."

Referring to the sacrifices which the country generally has had to suffer, Lord Robert said: "The diversion of liners from long distance to short distance trade has been a great loss to the country. Last year more than 200 British export traders, particularly to India and the Far East and also upon the interests of our distant exporting colonies."

As to imports, he said, "The fact that we imported 28,000,000 tons yearly, last year 29,000,000 tons and the present year considerably less. Of the present year imports less than a quarter were foodstuffs or raw materials, leaving less than a third of the total reduced to necessities."

As to exports, he said, "We have reduced our export trade by about 26 per cent. Exports to the United States have increased to an extent, as naturally would be expected, though this increase, representing the present situation, affords no substitute for the loss of permanent trade. Our exports to other foreign countries have fallen off one-third."

Without water for five months, all the high levels in the city were without water for part of the morning, owing to a break in the water main in Stillington's field, near Silver Falls, which occurred about nine o'clock this morning.

A smaller leak had occurred in the Marsh road and the men were making repairs there when the other break happened. Until the broken main could be shut off, the wastage of water was sufficient to reduce the pressure and deprive the higher sections of the city of their supply.

North German Lloyd Steamship Line Report STATEMENTS BY DIRECTOR

Says German Industry, Trade and Shipping Face Period of Trouble—Predicts High Freight Rates After War

Amsterdam, July 28.—Philly Heinkel, director of the North German Lloyd steamship line, says in the annual report of the company that the British will be compelled to collaborate with the Germans, whether or not they like it, but that until this stage is reached German industry, trade and shipping will undergo a hard struggle.

Herr Heinkel believes that on account of the diminution of tonnage, due to the submarine warfare, high freight rates will prevail for two or three years after the war, with consequent benefit to shipping interests. He predicts that for a time Germany will find it necessary to restrict imports to highly important articles, such as grain and other foodstuffs.

Herr Heinkel is of the opinion that if the German government will give its assistance in this difficult period, the ground lost during the war will be regained.

The North German Lloyd and the Hamburg-American line, at the request of the German government, says the report, have opened offices in Holland, to enable residents of occupied territory to join their families in America. The offices are at Warsaw, Kovno and Mynlowitz. Several hundred persons emigrate from Poland each month. The company is behind him in the shape of the bourgeoisie. These and similar arguments influence the men that, although they greatly outnumber the enemy, many regiments move off, other follow and there begins a movement.

There is at present in St. Lucia an artillery unit, but several of the members have signed on for service in France. It is to be hoped that the recruits are men going overseas that the recruits are wanted.

4,000 LANGUAGES ARE NOW SPOKEN IN WORLD A Century Hence There May Only Be Four Important Languages.

How many men, if asked how many languages there were in the world, could give anything like an accurate answer? The average man's knowledge or ability to speak languages rarely exceeds two besides his own native tongue. The Emperor Francis Joseph, when visiting a Red Cross hospital, asked the patients the names of languages, which showed the aged emperor to be master of six.

It may appear strange, but it is nevertheless true, that there are more than 4,000 languages spoken by mankind, while the number of dialects exceeds this. There are more than sixty vocabularies in Brazil, and in Mexico the Nahuatl is broken up into some 700 dialects. There are also many dialects in India, while in Australia there is no classifying the complexities. Let us assume that fifty dialects, on an average, belong to each language, and we have the colossal total of a quarter of a million linguistic abilities.

A century hence the probability is that there will be only four languages of importance in the world. Central Europe may produce a newer and more straightforward German language, and North America may retain alone over the North American continent, and a more businesslike Spanish will be used in South American states, while Russia may take on some more rich Slavonic dialect, which will blend the races of eastern Europe and Central Asia into a harmonious federation. So that in future these four languages may enter into what may be a never-ending competition.

ONCE OWNED OF NEW YORK WORLD

Manton Marble Was Notable Figure in United States Newspaper Work in Stirring Days of Civil War

Manton Marble, an American publicist, who died on Tuesday at Allington Castle, Maidstone, England, the residence of Sir Martin Conway, was once owner of the New York World.

Mr. Marble, who contributed some interesting chapters to the history of the United States during the Civil War, and reconstruction periods, was in his eighty-third year, having been born in Worcester, Mass., on November 16, 1834.

His father early undertook his education and systematic training for the field of journalism and as a publicist. After earning degrees at Albany Academy and the University of Rochester, Mr. Marble became a reporter on a Boston newspaper, and in 1858 went to New York to work on the Evening Post under William Cullen Bryant.

He remained there for two years and in 1860 joined the World staff. In 1862 Mr. Marble bought the World and became its publisher and editor. The Civil War then was at its height and Mr. Marble, a firm believer in the broadest principles of democracy and the democratic party, began the advocacy of policies which at times were opposed to those of the Lincoln administration.

Among the policies fought by Mr. Marble as an editor were those which favored the efficacy of which has been attested by hundreds all over the province and throughout the world, is now registered at Ottawa under Trade Mark No. 88, folio 21,881. This remedy is made by Alfred W. McKinney and sells at $1 a bottle at "Prospect Point" road, Phone 1489-81, or at 18 St. James street, Phone Main 8440.

It was while the World was conducting editorial campaigns along those lines that a notorious plot was perpetrated upon it and the Journal of Commerce. There had been much agitation for and against a draft of soldiers, and late one night in May, 1864, after Mr. Marble had left his office, some one delivered there what purported to be a proclamation by President Lincoln for a draft of 400,000 men for the Union army. Those in charge of the plot had had the knowledge of Mr. Marble, displayed the proclamation in large type. The object was to injure the reputation of Mr. Marble and his administration.

The fraud was quickly discovered and before noon the World gave wide publicity to a correction and denial, with an offer of a reward for the arrest of the culprit. Mr. Marble also called upon General Dix, commanding the army in New York, and gave all possible aid in the effort to apprehend the guilty man.

Despite Mr. Marble's efforts he was arrested by order of the president and soldiers took possession of the World and it was suppressed for three days. When the paper was lifted, Mr. Marble addressed a letter to the president and set out today has the World been free to speak. But to those who have ears to hear, its absence has been more than a regret.

Wrote Tilden Platform One of Mr. Marble's most successful campaigns which was the beginning of the fight which elected Samuel J. Tilden governor of New York. He wrote the platform of the Syracuse state convention upon which Mr. Tilden was elected in 1854, two years later Mr. Marble wrote the platform adopted by the Democratic national convention at St. Louis, Mo., in 1860. Mr. Tilden was the nominee for president in 1860 and was elected president in 1864.

In 1876 he retired from the ownership of the World and thereafter devoted his time to writing on public questions. A pamphlet which gained wide circulation in 1876, and which exposed the electoral commission which gave the presidency to Mr. Hayes.

Mr. Marble was sent to Europe by President Cleveland in 1886 to inquire into the responsibility of imperialism.

Mr. Marble was a member of many scientific associations, of the Century Association, the Collier Club, the Round Table and the Manhattan Club, of which he was a founder and president.

MUST BE LICENSE AFTER NEXT TUESDAY

Next Tuesday marks the last day on which beer may be sold in the province without a license. Owing to an omission in the act, the dealers have had three months to get their licenses ready, but this period will end with the month of August.

The department is now issuing licenses to applicants. On or after August 1, any person selling without a license will be liable to prosecution and the chief inspector intends to see that this provision is enforced as vigorously as the other sections of the law.

There has been some misunderstanding regarding the class of drinks for which a license is required, but the chief inspector made it clear this morning that no license is required for soda water, aerated or carbonated waters or other beverages which contain no alcohol, while, on the other hand, no drinks containing alcohol, no matter in what small proportions, can be sold without a license.

BIG BUSINESS MEN HELPING ENGLAND IN WAR

Giants of Commerce Working To Defeat Germans

SOME NOTABLE ONES

Old Country Lucky in Having Many Big Practical Brains at Her Disposal—In Addition to Those at Home, They Come From All Over World

A Bonar Law recently astonished people in the Old Country by his statements to the House of Commons that he was assisting the British government.

He claimed for the ministry of munitions, for instance, that he employed thousands of business men more competent, in his belief, than is to be found in any industrial undertaking in this country.

The clothing department of the war office has now assisting it "something like 100 men who were in business before," he said further. And again, "The War Office have had helping them, and are helping them today, men who could not be bought by any salary the House of Commons could possibly give them."

Mr. Montagu himself testified. "The clothing department, or Mr. Weir, who has undertaken the position of general superintendent of the clothing department, has many big business men now working for the nation. Some of them are of the big firms of the British public before they took office; others were known as names; not a few were quite unknown outside their particular business circles. How many people, for instance, know anything of Andrew Weir, the accountant of the Glasgow and Kilmacdonald, who is now superintendent of supply at the War Office. He is the head of a big firm of Glasgow shippers. Now he is a member of the army council, and by his shrewd business methods and his shrewd business methods he is doing his best to save the country £1,000,000 a week."

The chancellor of the exchequer has at his right hand a financial secretary of the treasury Sir Samuel Ilfordman. Lever. To the consternation of politicians he is not an Englishman.

But he is a member of the army council, and by his shrewd business methods and his shrewd business methods he is doing his best to save the country £1,000,000 a week.

Of course you will—if you live. —But supposing you die, what's to become of the lad? Will he, at fourteen or earlier, be forced out into the world to earn his living?

Or will you give him the chance of his lifetime, anyway? You can do it, whether you live or die, by means of an Imperial Endowment Policy. Let us tell you more about it.

OFFICERS GOOD AND BAD

The Kind the Soldiers Like And Those Not Liked

(H. M. F. in Weekly Scotsman) Various indeed are the types of officers to be found in the British army today, from the man who is the regimental idol to the fellow whom it is impossible to admire in any way.

The Good Sort The type of officer the men most admire is the man who is considerate of those under him, reliable, not afraid of his skin, approachable, appreciative of good work, and thoroughly up in all his duties; not afraid of shouldering responsibility; a disciplinarian without being an actual martinet; not afraid should circumstances warrant it to soil his hands; make due allowance for the shortcomings of his subordinates, has the common sense to appreciate the aspirations of the commissioner-seeker, and no matter how surrounded by difficulties, is never altogether without a smile. Qualities such as these are not, however, the only things which account for the popularity of a certain company commander, a camp commandant, or an adjutant.

Catarhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured. By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarrhal deafness and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When inflamed it is inflamed with a running sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be defective forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surface. Hall's Catarrh Cure acts through the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system. It will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Catarrhal Deafness that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Circulars free. All Druggists, 75c. P. F. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

PIN-HOLE IN WATER PIPE SOON PROVES COSTLY

Information recently circulated by the water department of a small municipality where meters are used, shows the importance of discovering and mending leaks that may occur in a piping system. Under a pressure of 40 lb. it is estimated that, in twenty-four hours, 10 gallons of water will pass through a hole a shade larger than the period at the end of this sentence. An orifice slightly bigger than the head of a pin will permit 5,000 gallons to escape in a similar length of time. Thus, ever so slight a hole may cause the wastage of a great volume of water if it falls to receive immediate attention. It is easy to test a plumbing system and ascertain its condition. This may be done by closing all cocks and then reading the meter. If, after a half hour or more, the meter reads the same as originally, the pipes are free from leaks. U-BOATS AT SEA A YEAR

Captain Tells American They Are Supplied by Other Submarines

Captain Benjamin Bragg, who has arrived at the Atlantic port with the crew of an American bark Hildegard, which was sunk with bombs by the crew of a German submarine on July 10 of this year, has given an interesting account of his meeting with the commander of the U-boat. According to the U-boat captain, the submarine stayed away from their base for a year or more if nothing happened to the bark. They patrolled the seas within a certain radius, he said, and their supplies are brought to them by submarines of an older type, which act as tenders. "The commander of the submarine," the captain continues, "spoke perfect English, and told me that he did not intend to harm me or any of my crew. I am going to sink your ship, though," he said, "because there are too many American and British ships on the Atlantic. Get your crew into the lifeboats quickly and pull for the shore ahead of you, and I wish you luck." "The moss on the top and sides of the submarine was fully an inch thick, with seaweed two inches long, which looked as if the craft was kept lying on the hull of the sea for hours at a time. The crew had a rusty appearance and could have done with a turn in drydock for overhauling and cleaning up as well as their craft. After she had submerged a British boat picked up and landed us later at an English port."

A SKYSCRAPER FOR BUYERS.

When a $2,000,000 building, now under construction in New York, is completed, it will no longer be necessary for a buyer visiting that city to travel through miles of congested streets to inspect stocks of goods, says Popular Mechanics, for it is proposed to house in this skyscraper permanent exhibits maintained by many producers in each of numerous lines. Another will be equally representative of the toy interests, another will be devoted to groceries, and so on. Here, also, buyers will find club accommodations, a restaurant, and an information bureau that will supply credit data, shipping news, and the like. Special provision is being made for the convenience of women also.

Imperial Honors Criticized

(Montreal Journal of Commerce)

The principle or rather lack of principle upon which, in a considerable degree, the distribution of Imperial honours has from time to time been the subject of comment in England, but never before has the question been so much discussed or the system so severely criticised as in the present issue of the Montreal Journal of Commerce. The article in question, which is headed "Imperial Honors Criticized," is a most able and well-written article, and it is to be regretted that it is not more widely read. In some respects, has not been strong enough to put an end to the abuses which it is evident enough easily gather around the system under which Imperial honors are distributed. The movement for the reform of the House of Lords will be strengthened by the widespread conviction that, apart from the deeper constitutional questions involved, the steps by which many men reach that chamber are not such as command public respect.

GERMANS GET A SHOCK

Closing of Warsaw Universities Opens Eyes of People in Fatherland

Reports found in copies of German newspapers recently received in London show that the news of the closing of the universities at Warsaw by Governor General von Beseler, which was mentioned in a Berlin cablegram printed in the New York Times of June 26, furnished a decidedly unwelcome shock to Germans who had been reading glowing accounts of the steady triumphs of the German administration in occupied Poland. In explaining the affair, which was the outcome of a student strike, the Berliner Lokal-Anzeiger said:

"The more the Warsaw students allowed themselves to be diverted from their proper path by concentrating themselves with politics, the smaller became their zeal for learning. While many of the lecture rooms became desolate, the number of students at political meetings constantly increased. Politics divided the students themselves, especially as strong anti-Semitic tendencies appeared, which provoked on the other side defense movements. The Russian revolution introduced a new factor. It now became clear that the youth of Warsaw was not yet capable of distinguishing between eastern and western academic customs. Brother student was to be seen less often in the lecture rooms than in the streets—in his hand a riding whip, and on his face the determination of a great man. In vain did the rector and senate of the university strive to bring the youth to reason."

The news from Warsaw strengthens German newspaper criticism of the innovation by which the youngest children in the elementary schools of Prussian Poland, who have not yet acquired a knowledge of German, are to be allowed to receive religious instruction in the Polish language.

THE WAR SITUATION

Looking back over the weeks and months that have passed since winter and remembering how often there seemed to be encouragement for the hope that the war would end this year, it must be confessed that the reality is quite different from the expectation. It was expected there would be a great spring and summer drive by the Allies on the western front, forcing the German grip on Belgium and a large slice of France is still very far from being broken, and there is nothing to indicate real weakness at any point.

Of course when we look at the other side we see that nowhere except on the Russian front has the enemy gained a decided advantage, and we remember that the United States and Greece have joined the Allies. We see, too, that the object of cutting off supplies for the British and French, and that its ravages are offset by an immense ship-building programme. It is obvious also that the man-power of Germany and Austria has been greatly lessened. There is growing discontent in both countries, and their people are undoubtedly suffering increasing want and hardship, while their armies are no longer able to make a great sustained offensive such as marked the earlier stages of the war.

CONSERVING INFANT LIFE

A recent publication dealing with maternity and child welfare in the city of Birmingham, England, is not only interesting because it illustrates the changed attitude of society toward infant welfare, but because it proves that by proper care a notable reduction in the rate of infant mortality can be secured. Just as it has been found that where free clinics and dispensaries are provided there is a reduction in the death rate from tuberculosis, so it has been proved in Birmingham that the establishment of infant welfare centres lowers the infant death rate. At these centres the mothers are given instruction which they gladly receive, and the infants are regularly examined and a course of treatment prescribed. Not only is there a preservation of infant life, but the children are given the advantage of intelligent care and oversight during the first five years of their lives.

The Automobile Association asks "why New Brunswick should not slightly increase the automobile fees and give the motor car owner something for his money." That is an admirable public spirit. It will encourage the government to do its very best to improve the roads. What is really needed is the hearty co-operation of all who use the roads.

of which an infant welfare centre was established, and at the present time such centres are available for about three-quarters of the whole population, the remaining quarter being either for the better class areas or small scattered units; and even these are not wholly neglected. The plan is to take a long lease of a house in the centre of a particular area, and make the necessary alterations to provide a waiting room, a weighing room, one or more consultation rooms, a room for cookery demonstrations, and others. Here the trained workers, and medical assistance. For infants and children up to five years of age the centre is open twice a week, and it is hoped after the war, when more medical aid will be available, to have it open four or five days per week. For mothers themselves the centre is open once or twice a week, and the report says that the work of advising mothers as to their own health is growing very rapidly. Cutting out and sewing is taught, and simple cookery lessons are provided for expectant and nursing mothers at a penny each. In the case of nursing mothers the effect of such feeding upon the babies is said to be frequently remarkable. There are also, connected with each centre, voluntary health visitors who go to the homes and supplement the instructions given at the institution.

There are at the present time fourteen of these centres in Birmingham, eight of them entirely run by the municipality, and six by voluntary associations which receive a municipal grant equal to two-thirds of their expenditure, on condition that they provide trained workers, a paid doctor, and accommodation for the centre work. The centres have the co-operation of a Maternity Hospital, in which the municipality provides twenty beds for special cases, and valuable provision is also made in certain cases for nursing at the home. The cost to the municipality in connection with all this infant welfare work this year will be about £11,000. The centres cost about 2500 each, but the report says it is expected this year will be doubled "when the attempt is made to secure that every child up to five years of age passes through the centre and is looked after." It is found that all mothers are almost equally anxious to do what is right for their babies, and that if there is any assistance it is in nearly all cases the result of the staff, a fact that emphasizes the importance of having on the staff women especially fitted to gain the confidence of mothers and give them good advice in their difficulties.

The fact that calls for special emphasis in connection with this story of what is being done in Birmingham is the responsibility for infant welfare which is accepted by the municipality. The work is not left to volunteers or to private charity. There is recognition by the state of the value of children to the state, and of its responsibility for their upbringing. This responsibility has long been recognized in regard to education, and since the period of child life prior to school age has so vital an influence upon the physical and mental condition of the child when it comes to age, there is the same obligation to see that proper care is given, and especially to reduce to the utmost the infant mortality rate.

Canadian cities should take a leaf out of the book of Birmingham. In St. John, for example, the infant death rate is too high, and the housing and sanitary conditions under which many families with small children live need to be improved, and there is need of a centre or centres where mothers could receive just the attention and instruction as is provided free in Birmingham. It is rightly a municipal problem, and the money spent yields a more valuable return than much of the civic expenditure to which the people offer no objection whatever. More and more attention must be given to the conservation of child-life.

The Automobile Association asks "why New Brunswick should not slightly increase the automobile fees and give the motor car owner something for his money." That is an admirable public spirit. It will encourage the government to do its very best to improve the roads. What is really needed is the hearty co-operation of all who use the roads.

Some of the Amazing Things Done by Him Rehearsed—An Appeal to the President to Give Real Power to the Giants Around Him

At thirteen years of age, his parents being dead, he became self-supporting. He went to Stanford University in 1891, graduated in 1895 as a mining engineer, and was employed professionally in New Mexico, Colorado, Colorado, Alaska, Mexico, India, and China. He returned to California in 1899. In 1900 he went to China as engineering adviser to the Chinese government, coming back to California in 1901 after the Boxer Rebellion. In a few months he returned to China as general manager of the Chinese government coal mines, a fleet of twenty ships, canals, railways and harbor work, employing in the aggregate 25,000 men. He was back in California in 1901, and then opened offices in San Francisco, New York and London, visiting all of these points annually.

His Work Before the War. He was employed in the administration of and in advisory capacity to operations, including railways, metallurgical works, mining, iron and steel, shipbuilding, land, electrical enterprises, in California, Colorado, Alaska, Mexico, India, and China, until the outbreak of the European war in 1914. At that time the concerns with which he was connected were employing 125,000 men.

Under his administration the commission for relief in Belgium, between October, 1914, and April, 1917, handled the importation of upwards of 100,000,000 bushels of wheat, rice, beans, peas and other cereals together with many thousands of tons of meat products. This commission operated its own fleet of some 1000 ships, acquired and distributed cereals and other staples in the occupied territory, delivered between 30,000,000 and 40,000,000 bushels of other cereals and large quantities of meat. The total overhead expenses of the commission up to April of this year were only three-eighths of one per cent. The aggregate amount of money expended through the organization on imported foodstuffs up to June 1 of this year has been about $300,000,000 and in the purchase of native food supplies approximately $200,000,000 additional.

Find Reflections On Hon. Robert Rogers Not Justified. Ottawa, July 27.—The report of Sir Ezekiel MeLenn and ex-Justice Teller, the royal commissioners, appointed on June 8th last to review the findings of Justice Galt, of Winnipeg, as to Hon. Robert Rogers' connection with the alleged graft and campaign funds in the letting of contracts for the Manitoba Agricultural College, was presented to parliament today. The learned judges, after reviewing all the evidence, came to the conclusion that Justice Galt was quite unjustified in reflecting upon the honor or integrity of the Hon. Mr. Rogers, or the honesty of his dealings or transactions.

The commissioners dealt mainly with the boosting of the contract awarded to the Carter Company for the power house of the new agricultural buildings, valued at $8,700 on the authority of Mr. Rogers, in 1911 and the subsequent campaign contribution from Mr. Carter of $7,500 and the alleged "fraudulent conspiracy" between Mr. Rogers and Thomas Kelly in connection with the purchase of the site of the agricultural buildings, to obtain money from the provincial treasury for the purpose of a campaign fund for the personal benefit of Thomas Kelly and his firm.

The commissioners sum up their findings as follows: (A) That the increase of the Carter Company's tender for power house by $8,700 was recommended by Mr. Rogers, the architect, to the Hon. Mr. Rogers, before he (the Hon. Mr. Rogers) telephoned to Mr. Carter. (B) That there was no connection whatever between such increase and the contribution of $7,500 made by the Carter Company to the election fund. (C) That during the time the Hon. Mr. Rogers was minister of public works for Manitoba, all the contracts that were let for the agricultural buildings were properly let.

(D) That the contracts themselves were carefully drawn and properly safeguarded the government. (E) That the payments during the Hon. Mr. Rogers' term of office were made only after they had been duly and honestly certified by the proper officials of the department. (F) That there was no conspiracy between the Hon. Mr. Rogers and Thomas Kelly or any other contractor or person. In conclusion the commissioners report: (1) That pursuant to the said commission, your commissioners have reviewed and have reviewed and considered his said two reports, and all his findings on such evidence. (2) That the commissioners further report that such evidence does not sustain or support the findings of the said Mr. Justice Galt, as such commissioner, as set forth in such reports, insofar as they reflect upon or prejudicially offset the honor or integrity of the Hon. Robert Rogers, or the honesty of his dealings or transactions.

On the contrary your commissioners consider that the reports of Mr. Justice Galt, insofar as they reflect upon the honor or integrity of the Hon. Mr. Rogers, or the honesty of his dealings or transactions, are against the evidence.

Few Supporters For Peace Proposals. London, July 27.—The smallest of the numbers in the house when division was taken last night on James Ramsay MacDonald's peace resolution: an indication of the little interest shown by parliament in any hope of a new peace movement at the present juncture, and the conviction was voted in an important statement by Herbert H. Asquith, the former premier, that nothing was to be hoped from the present temper of the German Reichstag and people.

Mr. MacDonald, as shown by the vote of 148 to 18, found very few supporters. George James Wardle, in behalf of the Labor party, declined to have anything to do with this peace resolution. The speech of Andrew Bonar Law, the government leader in the house, dealt largely with the Russian crisis. He said that all the nations engaged were staggering under the blow, but that the resources of the Allies were sufficient to make it absolutely certain that unless their hearts failed them they must secure the results for which they entered the war.

The struggle had reached a point where it was a question of staying-power, and in this matter he had absolute confidence in the Allies. He was equally certain that if anything could delay peace it would be any sign of faltering. If you'll watch our doors these days, you'll see many happy and satisfied faces going out with bundles of shoes. Wizel's Cash Stores, 248-247 Union Street.

VACATION OPPORTUNITIES

(American Lumberman)
Most city people when they go to the country for their summer vacations have only two objects in view—to get a "rest" and plenty to eat and the farmer who entertains his city cousin during the summer often has an opportunity to observe the operations of a city appetite at its best and indulgence in a field to a science. It is to be hoped that the young fellows who go from the cities this summer to help farmers harvest their crops will learn the valuable lesson that recreation is change of employment, not idleness, and it is to be hoped also that they will learn something of the problems and possibilities of country life, so that when they have reached maturity they will become effective instruments for promoting a better understanding between city people and country people.
Many a young man from the country has been won to city life by a visit to the city. It is too much to hope that the young city fellows will learn to win over to country life by their visits to the country this summer. Generally speaking, farming must appeal to the thinking person as the most important occupation of man; and to the same person must appear to be so remote from the main channels of life as to be of no importance whatever.
All ambitious city boys wish to initiate and originate projects in the business world, and it is from that class of boys that the great commercial leaders come. But these are of necessity few in number; the great majority of men in the cities are mere cogs in the wheel of business. They are important if not indispensable, to the transaction of business; but they are very likely soon to lose all capacity for initiative and to relapse into the state of mere automatons. The average city employee is like the fellow turning a grindstone; no thought, no skill, no initiative is required of him. He merely "turns the crank," or walks around the treadmill.
It is not so with the average farmer. More sense, greater initiative and sounder judgment are demanded of the general farmer to plan his crops, raise his live stock and keep all farming operations moving along a single season than are required of the average office man in a life time. The office man does the same things over and over again in a few years substantially all the situations likely to arise have arisen and he has a rule of conduct for each. But with the farmer no two days are alike; every day and almost every hour of the day presents new conditions and new problems for him to solve. Nowadays his knowledge must be a compound of all the sciences and he must be gifted with ability to adapt all established theories of farm management to his conditions and his facilities. He runs more machinery than many a professional machinist; he is capable of doing much of the work of the blacksmith, the harness-maker, the shoemaker, the engineer, the creameryman; and without he must be a scientific agriculturist. He knows more of the habits and life history of plants and insects than does the instructor in botany and entomology, and he knows their exact relation to his success in his business. THE LOBSTER MARKET

Talk of a Special Season this Fall—Packers and Exporters Opposed—Political Expediency Suggested.
(Halifax Chronicle)
There has been no material change in market conditions during the past fortnight. A considerable quantity of lobsters has changed hands although there are reported to be many packers holding their goods looking for still higher prices to prevail.
A great many petitions have been forwarded to the department at Ottawa asking for an extension of the fishing season. Concessions have already been made in some of the districts but the fishermen of Cape county and many in Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick have been asking for a special fall season for packing lobsters this year. Their plea is based, it is understood, upon the smaller pack secured this spring and the higher cost of their gear which has made their net returns less satisfactory than usual.
Many believe that a season from August 10th to September 15th will be granted by the government as a result of the political pressure brought to bear upon it. The trade itself does not look favorably upon this proposition. Most operators believe that the number of lobsters caught during the season will reduce the quantity available for next spring, and, further, being caught immediately after the "moulting" season, the amount of meat contained in the lobsters will be much below the average.

In conversation with a packer today we learned that in New Brunswick lobster weights a ton of fresh lobsters in the spring is reckoned to produce ten cases of canned lobsters, whereas in packing after the "moulting" season the flesh is soft and the meat is watery and a ton of fresh lobsters will only pack eight cases.
The packers disapprove of the proposal as it incurs considerable overhead charges to them and the exporters do not favor it because it will have a tendency to weaken the market. The trade considers that it is very questionable whether there will be sufficient cans obtainable in this province for a month's pack if the proposed special season is generally observed.

Heroes
We should like to print this story in letters of gold, says the London "Tri-Bits." It is of a cloned on the British front who wanted 20 men to face almost certain death.
He called the whole company together and made the situation clear to them. Then he asked for 20 volunteers to advance one pack. He loved his men, and it was almost more than he could bear. He closed his eyes to keep back his tears and when he opened them the men stood in exactly the same formation. "Is there not one volunteer?" he asked.
"A sergeant stepped forward at salute. 'Every one has advanced one pace,' 'Every one has advanced one pace,' 'Every one has advanced one pace,' he said.—Baltimore Star.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL NEWS OF THE WEEK IN SAINT JOHN

Society having gone to the country, social functions at this present time are few and far between. War or no war, it would be just the same, conditions having changed so rapidly in regard to town and country residence during the summer months. The number of small cottages erected on the banks of the St. John river, at Renforth and Rothesay, at Red Head and Duck Cove, proves that city folk will suffer many inconveniences for the sake of living in the "open." Without any doubt the young generation who go to the country and spend their days at these beautiful resorts, will be better fitted to stand the confinement of the school room during the long winter months that are to come when the holidays are over. But, it is not alone the children who rejoice in the freedom that country life affords, their sisters and their cousins and their aunts show a decided partiality for abandoning many of the conventions which surround them when on duty, as it were, in town. To be sure there are a few resorts where it is necessary to be on parade at all times and hours, but at these places, the residents, while they imbibe the fresh pure air of the woods and mountains, find the relaxation necessary to the tired nerves of the business man, the patriotic woman worker or the society hostess. Renforth Head is a delightful summer resort—when the fog is off on a holiday.

In honor of her sister, Mrs. Doane of Chicago, Miss Beattie Seely entertained at an enjoyable tea last Friday at her residence on Paddock street. Mrs. F. J. Mrs. H. H. Pidgeon, the Misses Blair, Mrs. Arthur Wright, Miss Travers, Miss Frances Travers.

The Red Cross tea at Duck Cove on Tuesday was well attended both by nearby residents and visitors from the city. Mr. Alexander Fowler presided at the table which was decorated with cut flowers. Those in charge of the arrangements on that afternoon were Mrs. Ferguson, Mrs. Armstrong, Mrs. Anderson the Misses Shaw. Among those at the tea were Mrs. William Hazen, Mrs. E. T. Sturdee, Mrs. Douglas McRobbie, Mrs. James Jack, Mrs. George Kimball, Mrs. Dodd, Montreal, Mrs. F. S. White, Mrs. F. C. Macneil, Mrs. Ellis, Mrs. D. B. Pidgeon, Mrs. Roy Church, Mrs. F. R. Barbour, Mrs. Churchill, Miss Madeleine DeSoyes, Miss Laura Hazen.

Of much interest to many friends in St. John was the wedding of Mrs. Katharine A. Walker, widow of Dr. James Walker, of South Bay, to Mr. Frederick A. Ferris, of New York, at the Bay Ridge Presbyterian church on May 14 the Rev. Dr. Leavitt being the officiating clergyman. Mr. Ferris is a former resident of St. John and was born at Randolph (N. B.). Mr. and Mrs. Ferris since their marriage have been travelling in the West and after a short visit in St. John will again leave for California.

The season at The Cedars, on the St. John river, has been a busy one, the popular hotel having been filled with guests during the past week. Among those who spent some days there were, Mrs. W. S. Thomas, of Fredericton, who was visiting her sister, Mrs. Douglas McRobbie, Mrs. J. W. McKean and Mr. Douglas McKean, who are there for two weeks; Miss Marjorie Lee also a two weeks' visitor, Mr. Y. T. Bradshaw and Mrs. A. E. Fortier of Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Wetmore of St. John, and Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Wetmore and the Misses Wetmore, Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Schofield and Miss Mabel Thompson, of West St. John.

Mrs. Frederick Stevens, of Montreal, who is visiting her parents, Dr. H. S. and Mrs. Bridges, Wentworth street, is the guest of Lieut.-Colonel and Mrs. Lindsay.

The Red Cross tea held on the beautiful grounds of Hon. William Pugsley in Rothesay on Wednesday was financially and socially successful and was largely attended. Mrs. F. C. Macneil was the lucky winner of the chippendale sofa donated by Mrs. H. E. Frink, while Mrs. Royden Thomson won the watch bracelet and Master Harry Donville was fortunate enough to win a watch. Other prizes were given one, a war bond, being eagerly sought after. A few of those on the grounds from the city were Lieutenants

THIS PROMINENT CANADIAN FAMILY HAS SUFFERED MUCH

Upon very few of the notable families of Canada has the war put so heavy a hand as on that of Sir Montagu Allan of Montreal. When the Lusitania went down off the coast of Ireland he lost two of his three daughters, and his wife was injured. On Monday week official word was received in Canada that his only son, Flight Lieut. Hugh Allan, had been killed while fighting Huns in France. Thus a family of four has been reduced to one—the sole survivor being Miss Marjorie Allan, who went to England in the fall of 1914, and has since been engaged in nursing there and in France. Lady Allan is head of the Canadian Red Cross in London, and Sir Montagu is connected with the Canadian Pensioners Board in London. The whole family being overseas none but servants have occupied painful "Haveners," one of the show places of Montreal, for the last two years. Situated in Pine avenue, on the slope of the mountain overlooking the city, it is one of Canada's most gorgeous homes. Even now its conservatories are open every Saturday for the delight of flower lovers. Sir Montagu is the son of Sir Hugh Allan, one of the founders of the Allan Line, which was taken over some time ago by the C.P.R., but which still retains its name. Besides being president of the Merchants Bank, Sir Montagu is a director of a dozen of Canada's big corporations. He is an enthusiastic horseman, having on more than one occasion annexed the Toronto Queen's Plate. He is in the millionaire class several times over, and has given large donations to public charities. Don't forget to attend our mid-summer sale any more than you would forget to pick up money—Waters' Cash Stores, 248-247 Union street. Editor—I can't say your poem, but you might leave your address. Bard—if you don't take the poem I shall have any address—Boston Transcript.

SUFFRAGE NOT YET CERTAIN IN BRITAIN

Opinion is, However, That Lords Will Yield to Sentiment in Commons

Some in Favor of a Delay for a While, at Least—Say Franchise Should Be Taken up by Newly Elected Parliament

Although the House of Commons of England declared in favor of woman's suffrage by the enormous vote of 388 for and 56 against, it does not mean that woman's suffrage is certain to become law, but the preponderant opinion at this time is that the electoral reform bill, which woman's suffrage is only a feature, will pass the Commons with such an overwhelming vote that the Lords will decide not to impede its way to the statute books.

Nevertheless it is worth while to recall that on a good many previous occasions various woman's suffrage measures have been allowed to go through the Commons with flying colors only to be defeated in the Lords. No fewer than twenty bills to confer the franchise upon women have been introduced into the Commons since 1870, and seven times these measures have passed the second reading. In 1870 the majority for the bill was thirty-three; in 1886 it passed without a division; in 1897 it had a ma-majority of seventy-one; in 1906 a majority of 170; in 1909 a majority of thirty-five; in 1910 a majority of 109, and in 1911 a majority of 67.

Although the House of Lords is now a good deal less zealously conservative than a few years ago, and much more disposed to consider public sentiment on such questions as this, there is decided hostility not only to the suffrage but to many of the other proposals in this measure. Woman's suffrage in fact, gives the peers an excuse for rejecting the whole measure without giving mortal offence to the country. The argument of the anti-suffragist is that the present parliament has now been in existence an almost unprecedented long period, that it has lost its touch with the electorate and its mandate from the people, and that while it may properly enough go ahead with the business of prosecuting a war it cannot in decency foist upon the country radical internal legislation.

Delay Urged. According to this argument, such a subject as the franchise ought to be taken up by a new electorate. And inasmuch as it would be practically impossible at this time to permit the millions of soldiers and sailors to vote in a general election, conservatism protests that there ought to be no dealing with such issues until after the war shall have been finished and the entire present electorate including the soldiers and sailors, can have a vote.

It is hard to tell to what extent this argument is seriously advanced. When the idea of thus tenderly regarding the feelings of the soldiers was first brought forward it was seized upon with great satisfaction by opponents of pretty nearly everything who wanted an excuse for preventing any legislation. Mrs. Humphry Ward recently quoted Premier Lloyd George as having said a few years ago that "he could not conceive of a revolution of this character being introduced without the opinion of the country being asked upon it definitely." At that time Lloyd George was talking about woman's suffrage, and was himself in favor of a general election to give a mandate on the subject.

Army Betrayal Charged. Opponents of the measure have, however, made the discovery that this legislation is a wholesale betrayal of the army. Nearly all the pacifist members of the Commons voted for the woman's suffrage clause. Therefore, it is argued, in as much as the pacifists are the enemies of the army and in as much as they voted for suffrage, is it not perfectly plain that all people who vote for woman suffrage are enemies of the army? Sir Bertram Falle was evidently perfectly sure of this conclusion, for he said:

"The object seems to me under this arrangement to give the vote to every possible voter who has not fought and who will not fight, to the conscientious objector and the naturalized alien, and those who like women cannot fight, and to exclude all those who have fought their way to the front and who will fight."

Sir Bertram trembles to contemplate what may happen when the soldiers are deprived of their vote and the women receive it in their stead. The Morning Post regards it as nothing less than treason to the army. Commenting on Sir Bertram's observations it says:

"In many cases the women have taken the places of the men. If it part of the design in giving them the vote to give them the means of keeping these places when the men return? We regard this measure as a measure of treason to our men at the front. While they are far overseas like Ulysses, the ignoble suitors of Penelope are making love to the grass widow. But when Ulysses returns there will be a day of reckoning; and it may be found that Penelope is not quite so forgetful of the merits of her hero as these suitors suppose. At all events, she cannot but see the interested motives of her present lovers, who seek to dispossess Ulysses while he is fighting for his country."

The advocates of woman suffrage and more than a few people who are not its advocates depreciate this sort of comment, which they regard as extremely dangerous. It is, of course, calculated to make the men in the trenches fear that they are being betrayed at home; that while they are fighting somebody else—the women and the non-fighters and the politicians—are taking their jobs away from them and intend to keep them. It would be hard, says a writer, to conjure up a more unfortunate propaganda than this, nor one more unrepresentative of what is really going on in the British public mind.

Berlin War Weary. Soldiers Write, "In Spite of Everything We're Still Alive"

Moeve Film Horrors—Effect on Spectators Was Not What Had Been Expected—Sick of the War

Professor F. Sefton Delmer, who left Berlin on May 23, is writing for the London Daily Mail a series of authoritative articles on the state of Germany. He is an Australian, and became English lecturer at Berlin University in 1904. Interned at Rubleben from November, 1914, to March, 1916, he subsequently enjoyed unusual opportunities of observing developments in Berlin.

Although the fact has never been publicly proclaimed, everybody knows that a major of the general staff gathers the newspaper editors together once a week and tells them what they are to talk about in their newspapers during the coming week and what attitude they are to adopt. On the whole, the German press is a meek flock and bleats loud and the east or west, as the military press bureau prescribes.

The consequences of all the terrible control of the press is a crop of articles of subterranean cabals and camarillas among the educated classes, and among the uneducated a feeling of distrust, a feeling of being blindfolded.

Just before I came away the Moeve films (depicting the Atlantic raider at work) were put on and they were from many points of view well worth seeing. From a German standpoint they are undoubtedly a gross mistake, for, in their grim realism, they bring home to the beholder the wholesale and wanton destruction of peaceful merchantmen and lead the imagination to conceive the unpeakable horrors of the U-boat war—horrors which the Germans, as a whole, have not yet grasped. One sees on these films, which take one hour to show, steamers and sailing ships brought up; one sees the torpedo strike the ship, and the noble vessel, as in agony, struggle, writhe, fill, and sink.

Filming Frightfulness. The effect on the spectators was the very reverse of what the military authorities wished to produce. Far from being exhilarated, the public seemed depressed by the sight of what they felt to be cold-blooded murder of unarmed ships "Schrecklich! Schrecklich!" ("Frightful! Frightful!") they whisper, as if it is just beginning to dawn on them why that other more terrible and cowardly form of hostilities the U-boat war has made the German name so detested throughout the world.

I have, however, heard with my own ears certain members of the Catholic Centre Party in the Reichstag say that they did not see how either Germany or its enemies could possibly hold out till Christmas. Any such discouraging statements when made by less privileged individuals than members of parliament are liable to be regarded as treasonable, and a reward of £100 is promised to anyone who can bring any propagator of such rumors to book. Police proclamations of this effect adorn the advertisement pillars in the streets.

Hindenburg or no Hindenburg, both soldiers and officers are heartily sick of the war in general and the western front in particular, from which officers are known regularly to head their letters home with the words "Noch ein Leben" (still alive).

And that, I think, expresses the state of Germany regarded as a whole. "In spite of everything, we're still alive!"

NATIONS IN THE FIELD. (London Daily News.)

Sir William Robertson reportedly did not exaggerate when he put the total of the armies engaged in the war at 94,000,000 men. Excluding the United States and Japan, the populations of the belligerent countries, apart from their colonies, aggregate not less than 480,000,000.

Twenty-four millions is approximately one in nineteen of the total population and one in six of the males above seventeen. The people who still think the United Kingdom is not doing its bit will perhaps be cheered to discover that the British armies in the field account for about one in eight of the total population and one in three of the males above seventeen. If all the belligerents did as well there would be 800,000,000 in the fighting line instead of 24,000,000.

I thought I'd have to do my own Housework

My all around housemaid Mary, packed up her grip and quit to get married right in the middle of my busiest social season. Mary had been our faithful servant for over five years. She was a sort of a "windfall." A friend of mine who had moved to another city had left her to me and now that she was no longer mine, I didn't know where to find another.

I was perplexed. And just as I had concluded that I must do my own work a happy thought struck me. Mrs. Smith's girl had left her a few days ago and she already had another. I must find out how she got her. And she told me a—

ONE FROM ST. JOHN IS AMONG THE NUMBER

During the next two weeks seventy medical students from practically all parts of the English speaking world will arrive in Montreal to take a special session at McGill and when they graduate on April 8, 1918, they will leave for the front as qualified doctors and be prepared to do their bit in relieving the sufferings of the sick and wounded soldiers. It is upon the request of a large majority of those mentioned that the medical authorities of McGill were petitioned, promising that they would immediately offer for overseas service. The McGill board got in touch with the military authorities and the request of the extra session was granted as the government sees the need of many physicians in the spring. Among those who will take the course are the following: F. J. Donnelly, St. John, N.B.; H. K. Britton, Pugwash, N.S.; J. B. Dickie, Puro, N.S.; C. W. Gannon, Glace Bay, N.S.; C. Loughery, Norton, N.B.; W. J. Keefe and G. L. Smith, both of P. E. Island.

The Man In The Street

Just the kind of weather we ordered for the half-holiday.

Hon. Robert Rogers should have the McLeod-Teller flanking franchise as a tribute to his lofty character and blameless life it should be worth handing down to his heirs and descendants.

While the experts are showing the housewives how to can food, the electors are awaiting the chance to show Premier Borden how his government should be canned.

Donald MacMillan, after spending four years in the Arctic regions, hopes to get home in time to enjoy some winter weather.

Since the purchasing value of money has been cut in two by war conditions, would it not be more fitting if the merchants should hold a two-dollar day?

Have you paid your taxes and saved the discount? Don't answer if answering would embarrass you; there are others.

The commissioner of public works proposes to do his permanent paving shopping early.

The man who likes to hear himself argue would be more popular if he did not insist that others should hear him too.

Use the Want Ads.

When a man uses the classified columns one week to advertise for a "Boy Wanted," and next week hands in an announcement of the arrival of a son at his home, it would seem that he has a perfect right to believe in the value of advertising.

Mixed the Prescriptions

The large number of southern ministers who testified to the value of a certain patent medicine containing seventeen per cent. of alcohol must have got the spiritual needs of their congregations confused with their spiritual needs.

Modern Irrigation

The stream of parcels flowing through the express companies from Montreal to St. John is helping to make the drought more tolerable to a lot of citizens.

Talking of food conservation—we know a chap who says that, while the women are busy preserving, he is quite willing to get pickled.

The Cost of Living

The Borden government has shown a fierce determination to meet the demand for the conservation of wealth, in presenting the schedule for the proposed income tax. The poverty-stricken citizen who merely earns $4,000 a year is to be forced to hand over as much as $40, while the chap in more comfortable circumstances, with an income of $200,000, will be asked to try to struggle along on what is left after paying a tax of $48,000. The sympathy of the nation goes out to the wretched man who is to be reduced to poverty and privation for the common weal.

Does the government regard $8,960 as the minimum living wage?

ST. JOHN STUDENTS TO ENROL NEXT WEEK AS MEMBERS OF REDEMPTORIST CONGREGATION

On Thursday, which will be the feast of St. Alphonsus, two St. John boys, Edward Howard and Joseph O'Hara, will become members of the Congregation of the Most Holy Redeemer. An impressive ceremony, which will take place at the Redemptorist Fathers Novitiate in Ilchester, N. S., they in company with other young students, will take the vows of poverty, chastity and obedience, and will then be enrolled in the ranks of the Redemptorist Congregation. Two other St. John boys, Arthur Gougeon and Harry McInnis, will take the habit of the congregation and will enter upon a novitiate of one year.

Mrs. David Howard, mother of Edward Howard, left on Thursday evening for Emmitsburg, Md., en route to Illinois, to be present at the ceremony. This evening Arthur Howard, Frank Howard and Mrs. William Howard and daughter Constance, will leave for Ilchester. Mrs. Charles O'Hara, mother of Joseph O'Hara, and her daughter, Marie, will also leave this evening on the Boston train en route to Ilchester.

H. P. FLETCHER, AMERICAN AMBASSADOR, SURPRISES HIS FRIENDS BY MARRYING

Henry P. Fletcher, American Ambassador to Mexico, and Miss Beatrice Bend, daughter of Mrs. George H. Bend, of New York, were married on last Wednesday at the country house of Mr. and Mrs. Willard D. Straight at Old Westbury, L. I. The marriage comes as a mid-summer surprise for society, for there was no intimation of it, or even that an engagement existed.

They first met eight years ago in Peking, China, when Mr. Fletcher was first secretary of the American Legation. His bride was then traveling in the Orient with a party which included her mother and Miss Dorothy Whitney, now Mrs. Willard D. Straight. Mr. Straight was a member of the American colony in Peking at the time, and a year later he married Miss Whitney in Switzerland, with Miss Bend acting as attendant for the bride.

So the final chapter in the romance which began in China in 1909 was written on Wednesday when Rev. Dr. Charles L. Slattery, rector of Grace Church, performed the ceremony in the large living room and library of the Straight home, in the presence of about thirty relatives and intimate friends of the ambassador and his bride.

MAJOR BASSERMAN DEAD.

Leader of Faction in Reichstag Which Favored Ruthless War.

Major Ernest Bassermann, leader of the National Liberals in the German Reichstag, is dead at Baden-Baden, according to a cabled dispatch received in New York from Copenhagen. He was born in 1854, and had been a member of the Reichstag for many years. He was a leader of the faction for carrying on the war until Great Britain was defeated and an ardent advocate for the ruthless use of submarines and Zeppelins. On July 11 Admiral von Tirpitz telegraphed Major Bassermann at Baden-Baden asking him to leave the sanitarium where he was undergoing treatment and go to Berlin to fight against the peace resolution in the Reichstag.

THE BENEDECTION. A London ship pilot on holidays bent, while "doing" the great Northern town of Trant.

And, hailing from London, he thought nothing right. But when they all sat down to dine, he remarked the fish, as well as any one might.

"But why do you call the fish kippers?" said he. "A name which to me seems absurd; this fish is herring, I plainly can see."

And Elder McClure kept the ready laugh back. For McClure was a man of some nerve.

And he gravely explained to his boarder in black. That the word "kipper" means—"to preserve."

So in church the next day (though some of them slept). He discoursed to the true elect band; And all things went well so long as he kept.

To the speech of his own Motherland. But alas! and alas! for the blunder he made.

When he prayed for the folks, great and small; For to air his brain newly-found Scotch word he prayed.

That the Lord would "kipper" them all! HOPE A. THOMSON. 819 Princess street.

British Destroyers Act With Precision

Eye-witness Tells of U-Boat Attack and How it Was Warded Off. A British Port on the South Coast, June 27.—(By mail)—Just how a British destroyer acts when attacked by a submarine was unexpectedly demonstrated to an Associated Press correspondent on Wednesday, while traveling on one of the modern, fast torpedo boats.

The correspondent had been taken aboard the British destroyer for a moment to see how the vessel's methods of combating the submarine menace, when the boat was suddenly attacked by a U-boat, were being carried out.

On every ship things began to happen, quickly, and in the telling. Guns were swung in the direction from which the torpedo had been seen, ready to open fire if the submarine appeared again. Torpedo tubes likewise were swung into line and the numerous anti-aircraft guns were trained on the sky.

But even while this was being done the hands of the destroyer were gliding in the bright sunlight, its propellers pushing it at express train speed straight towards the destroyer.

Something was wrong with the mechanism of this particular torpedo, for it should have traveled 12 or 15 feet in the air before striking the water, and instead it came bounding in plain sight, now and then dipping into the water, like a flat stone made to skip over it.

Even this, it might have found its target, but for the presence of mind of the 60-year-old coxswain. He had been first to sight the periscope and had rushed immediately to an emergency lever whereby he instantly stopped the port engine, thus swinging the ship with a lurch to the left. The torpedo whizzed through the water six feet behind the stern of the destroyer, its gradually lessening speed as it sank into the swirl of the engines indicating that its possibilities for mischief were nearly done. Except for the coxswain's action in twisting the ship from its course the missile would apparently have made a square hit in the stern magazine.

Meanwhile the wireless was at work notifying the hundreds of patrols in all directions that the enemy was near. The destroyer's captain, according to his orders, must not leave his convoy to seek out and attack the U-boat. Officers would attend to that. Already they were gathering for the chase—trawlers, chasers, destroyers, even a dirigible air ship far off on the horizon had caught the wireless call and, with the quick turn of a seagull, was swooping down to the pursuit.

The transports and destroyers, although fairly confident that the U-boat would scarcely dare show herself again, even for a pot-shot, were nevertheless taking every precaution. Every ship was at full speed, the destroyers constantly protecting their charges.

The whole attack occupied bare seconds. Convoy and charges were in a few minutes at the most. Nowhere had there been the slightest panic or flurry, but movements of the men and ships were made with almost automatic precision. Twenty minutes later the transports were safe in their port of destination and the destroyer convoy was off again, 30 miles an hour, down the coast, to its next appointment.

Work of United States In The War of Nations

Review of Events Since Country Entered Struggle in April Shows That America Has Been Busy. The most important war ventures put into operation by the government since April 4, when President Wilson issued his proclamation declaring a state of war to exist with Germany, have been as follows:

The flotation of $3,000,000,000 in treasury certificates and $5,000,000,000 Liberty bonds for war purposes. The registration of approximately 10,000,000 men for military service by the selective draft method, and the actual call to service by the army lottery.

Increasing the regular army to 500,000 men, the National Guard to 440,000 and the navy to 150,000 and the Marine Corps to 30,000.

The cooperation of the government of the ships owned by the German government held in ports of the United States and its railroad German locomotive warfare.

The organization of the Emergency Fleet Corporation to create an adequate merchant marine service to cope with the submarine menace of the German U-boats.

The imposition of embargoes on shipments of every country in the world and the creation of the War Relocation Authority to care for the Japanese-Americans.

The despatching of a commission headed by Elihu Root to encourage and assist in the establishment of the new democratic government of Russia.

The creation of a voluntary food conservation agency (pending congressional authority) under the administration of Herbert Hoover, the organizer of the Red Cross, and of a board of three men.

The tentative fixing of prices for war materials and the organization of the War Relocation Authority to care for the Japanese-Americans.

The adoption of plans for the expansion of the aviation service, for which $50,000,000 has already been provided.

Mobilization of the agricultural and industrial resources of the country under the supervision of the national council of defense and its advisory council.

DOG FOLLOWS MASTER'S HEARSE TO THE GRAVE. Samuel King, aged eighty-three, died at his home in Waterville, Me., on last Saturday afternoon, following a long illness. The funeral was held from St. Francis de Sales church at nine o'clock on Monday morning and interment was in the old Catholic cemetery.

Mr. King was one of the best known of the older residents of Waterville. For many years a hunter, fisherman and woodman, he was known from one end of the Kennebec river to the other. He had been a familiar figure on the streets for many years and was at one time on the police force of the city. For the last few years he had been in failing health and about two years ago lost an eye as the result of an accident. His passing will be regretted by many people in Waterville for he was well liked by all who knew him.

A peculiar feature of the funeral was the fact that the dog followed close behind the hearse to the church, remained in waiting on the church steps until the hearse containing the body of his master was brought out and then patiently followed close behind the hearse to the grave, where it stood and watched the casket as it was lowered to its last resting place. A neighbor who was present after some effort, induced the dog to return home with her, but it did not want to leave the side of its master.

Not The Answer Expected. Clossenman was feeling his way before definitely engaging the physician for his charges.

"Pardon me, doctor," he said, "but do you—take off anything for cash?"

"Certainly," was the reply. "What would you like taken off—a hand or a foot?"

British Continuing Terrific Bombardment

London, July 27.—The Flanders bombardment last night and throughout today, judged by the sound of guns heard around London, has reached unimaginable fierceness. The drums keep up an incessant rumbling, punctuated at times by terrific individual explosions, which actually shook ground in southeast London, though the cannonade must have been nearly ninety miles away.

Jassy, Roumania, Thursday, July 26.—The occupation of ten villages by the Roumanians in their new offensive is announced by the war office. The Austro-German forces retired in disorder.

When they reached Poltava, they were welcomed by 100,000 citizens and soldiers, with a brass band and carrying banners.

Women In Many Places In The British Army

Thirteen Thousand Fully-Trained Nurses Now on Military Duty—Although 27,000 are Doing Hospital Work—Soldiers Supplanted as Typists, Clerks, Motor Transport Drivers. (By F. A. Wray, in Toronto Star-Weekly.) London, July 27.—Women are serving in the army in more ways than were ever looked for in time of peace. The old army asked them for nurses. When war broke out there were 900 nurses in the Imperial Military Nursing Service and 178 in reserve. Besides these, 800 were called up from the civil hospitals for duty with the expeditionary force. Small as this number now seems, it was sufficient to staff the hospitals for the first year, and also the permanent military hospitals in Great Britain.

It was found the more necessary to have rigorous tests, as the Red Cross was choosing women not only for hospitals at home. It was asked very early in the war to find them for the most arduous and difficult work overseas, for Serbia, devastated with typhus, and for the army in Gallipoli. For such work only the best would serve. Take Places of Men. It was a little later that the war office decided to employ women in the place of men in many of the duties of the army. There are hundreds who work in telephonics, as storekeepers, as laboratory assistants, as X-ray attendants, as cooks, as dispensers, and as cleaners. All these duties that had before been performed by the orderlies of the Royal Army Medical Corps. But since November, 1915, not a man fit for service at the front has been enlisted in that corps, unless by reason of some special qualification. There are hundreds who work in the base hospitals overseas, nor on the lines of communication are any men, fully fit, to be employed. It is by the service of women that this has been made possible. There are now 6,000 in the army. And even this does not end the tale of the work women are doing in the army. There are hundreds who work in the army postal service, there are thousands who work in the paymasters' departments, and in the clerical work in hospitals at home and abroad, there are the 6,000 who are required by the war office to be in the front lines, the 4,000-odd at the beginning of the war.

Sir Sam Hughes Again Asks Asks For It. C.G.R. Under Commission. Dominion Board to Have Jurisdiction—Hon. Mr. Pugsley Objects to Insurance Bill Amendment. Ottawa, July 27.—When the house met, Hon. It was found the more necessary to have rigorous tests, as the Red Cross was choosing women not only for hospitals at home. It was asked very early in the war to find them for the most arduous and difficult work overseas, for Serbia, devastated with typhus, and for the army in Gallipoli. For such work only the best would serve. Take Places of Men. It was a little later that the war office decided to employ women in the place of men in many of the duties of the army. There are hundreds who work in telephonics, as storekeepers, as laboratory assistants, as X-ray attendants, as cooks, as dispensers, and as cleaners. All these duties that had before been performed by the orderlies of the Royal Army Medical Corps. But since November, 1915, not a man fit for service at the front has been enlisted in that corps, unless by reason of some special qualification. There are hundreds who work in the base hospitals overseas, nor on the lines of communication are any men, fully fit, to be employed. It is by the service of women that this has been made possible. There are now 6,000 in the army. And even this does not end the tale of the work women are doing in the army. There are hundreds who work in the army postal service, there are thousands who work in the paymasters' departments, and in the clerical work in hospitals at home and abroad, there are the 6,000 who are required by the war office to be in the front lines, the 4,000-odd at the beginning of the war.

Predicts Wonders From First Lord of Admiralty

Sir Eric Geddes Will Shatter Traditions and Display Rare Reforming Talent, Critic Says

Arthur H. Pollen, one of Great Britain's foremost naval critics and inventor of many of the range-finding devices now in use, said in New York the other day, that the appointment of Sir Eric Campbell Geddes as First Lord of the British Admiralty was "the most important single political event that has taken place since the beginning of the war."

Mr. Pollen, who interpreted the significance of the event for the New York Evening Post, said Sir Eric Geddes was a man who aroused no antagonisms and made no enemies, although he "shatters traditions, blows office rules into the air and robs heads of departments of a thousand cherished adjuncts to their authority." A result of the appointment, Mr. Pollen predicted, would be "a rejuvenation of many branches of Admiralty activity" and an opportunity to the younger men in the British navy to "work wonders."

"The appointment of Sir Eric Campbell Geddes as First Lord of the British Admiralty is the most important single political event that has taken place since the beginning of the war, and for a very simple reason," said Mr. Pollen, who is stopping at the Hotel Vanderbilt. "This war is a sea war. It is a sea war being waged by the British navy. The efficiency of the British navy depends upon the higher command. The character of the higher command depends upon the ability, the character, the energy, the insight and the imagination of the civilian chief of the admiralty."

Called the Ablest Man.
"It has been quite obvious from the beginning that the ablest man Great Britain could produce ought to be the First Lord of the Admiralty. The miracle is that the ablest man is now First Lord of the Admiralty. I have said recently that the most important war command in the world is that held by the secretary of the American navy, and the officers and staff who work with him. I said that because I assumed that no change could take place in the leadership of the British navy."

"But the miracle has happened, the change has taken place. Carson has gone, and Geddes, proved in four other crucial tests, has now a free hand to conduct a naval policy with the best advice that could be gotten, and to choose his colleagues, and name those who are to execute their plans."
"And he comes to the task assuming the chief strategic and political guidance of the nation after two months spent in mastering the civil purchasing and manufacturing side of the Admiralty's business. When Mr. Lloyd George intervened in May, and, in response to vigorous criticism of expert writers in the press, intervened to re-organize the Admiralty from within, I pointed out that putting Geddes in command of the material side of the navy was one step in which Lloyd George could be sure of himself. The man who created the Munitions Department knew exactly what he was doing in giving Geddes omnipotent power."

Tan, Red or Freckled Skin is Easily Shed

To free your summer-solled skin of its mottled freckles, blotches or tan, the best thing to do is to free yourself of the ordinary perspiration, which is the cause of all skin troubles. Use at night as you use cold cream, washing off the ordinary perspiration with soap and water. The entire outside is absorbed, without the use of any medicine. The layer of skin now in evidence presents a bright whiteness and sparkling beauty obtainable in no other way.

For specific purposes the gun is built integral with some vehicle, such as a motorcycle, aeroplane, or motorboat. Instead of being manually operated, the mechanism is motor-driven. The machine that rubes it into action, also mounts and operates it. No time is consumed in assembling or dismantling the piece when seconds are precious. An aeroplane pilot can be his own gunner, for by touching a button with a finger or foot, the instrument is put into action. For trench use, a special mounting with creeper-wheels is provided and an electric cable control used. This arrangement allows the operator to remain in a protected position and dispatch the gun across "No Man's Land" on its deadly mission. The direction and speed of its movements, as well as its angle and rate of fire, are regulated with buttons. An illustration, showing the new weapon in use, accompanies the article.

CONTINUOUS FIRING FEATURE OF AMERICAN GUN

Announcement has been made of the development of an American machine gun capable of continuous firing, says the August Popular Mechanics Magazine. Ammunition is carried to its feed block by an endless belt kept filled by an automatic magazine mechanism. Magazine hoppers contain from 2,500 to 10,000 cartridges and are replenished or replaced without interrupting with operation. Most machine guns fire about 600 shots a minute and are supplied with ammunition by belts holding approximately 200 cartridges. They are able to fire uninterruptedly for only 30 seconds, while the new instrument spits thousands of missiles without pausing, and thereby does the work of two ordinary pieces.

"AWEE BIT BOOKIE" "AWAY WITH IT!"

(Toronto Globe)

Is Canada a self-governing dominion? Are the Canadian people intellectual infants and moral weaklings? Or are they grown men in a world of men? Reflect for a moment on these questions, and, before answering them, read this "Censorship Notice" published in the latest issue of "The Canada Gazette."

"Department of the Secretary of State of Canada," Ottawa, 11th July, 1917. "Notice is hereby given that, in pursuance of the Consolidated Orders respecting Censorship, dated the 17th day of January, 1917, passed under the provisions of section 6 of the War Measures Act, 1914, a book entitled 'The Fiddlers' by Arthur Mee, published by Morgan & Scott, Limited, 12 Paternoster Buildings, England, has been declared by the secretary of state of Canada to contain objectionable matter, as defined by the Consolidated Orders respecting Censorship, and the possession within Canada of any issue or copy of the said 'The Fiddlers,' whether heretofore or hereafter published, has been prohibited by a Warrant of the Secretary of State of Canada, dated the 12th July, 1917, and that, as provided by paragraph 3 (1) of Order 111 of the said Consolidated Orders respecting Censorship, any person guilty of an offence against the said Orders shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five thousand dollars, or imprisonment for any term not exceeding five years, or to both, such fine and such imprisonment."

"THOMAS MULVEY. "Under-Secretary of State." And so this "wee bit bookie," made in England, is proscribed in Canada! It contains sixty-four pages, printed on cheap "war-time" news-print, with four pages for cover, and published in May, 1917, by that ancient and honorable firm, Morgan & Scott, in the devoutly religious district of Paternoster, at "3d each, 25s per 100." Its title

STRANGE TALE OF A SHIPWRECK

Sailor Ashore Hanged on Spar From Which He Had Thrust Man Into Ocean

Andrew Tillotson, a seaman of the crew of the Norwegian steamship Vilja, which was sunk by a submarine, has just arrived at an American port on board a steamship from the coast of Africa with a strange story of retribution at sea.

According to Tillotson's tale a man who had escaped human tribunals where he was tried for murder was hanged to the spar from which he knocked a comrade to death in the sea. "There was a stowaway aboard the Vilja," said Tillotson to a reporter, "and he had given his name as Jan Swensen. He was a surly sort of fellow, and when Captain Nielsen set him to work after discovering his presence on the vessel, he refused to obey almost started a riot. Of course, he was at last persuaded to obey orders but I always felt that if he ever got a chance he would not hesitate to stick a knife into the captain's back." "When we were summarised, Swensen and I and half a dozen others got into the same lifeboat. After we had been drifting around for hours, the boat capsized, and Swensen, I and a third man, whose name I do not know, managed to swim to a large spar, big enough to keep a dozen men afloat by clinging to it. Swensen had grabbed hold of the spar directly across from where the other man was holding on, 'don't know whether he had a grudge against that man or whether he really did not think the spar could hold the three of us, but at any rate, he shouted to the poor fellow to let go." "Naturally the man refused to let go, and I told him to hold on as long as he could. Swensen told me to shut up, and before I could get close enough from my end of the spar Swensen had punched the man a terrific blow right on the throat, knocking him off the spar and probably stunning him, for he sank and I never saw him again." "Starting for my own life—for I thought the fellow must be a madman—I humored him, but decided to denounce him if ever we should be rescued. The spar was probably part of the wreckage of another submerged vessel. It had the name 'Hebe, Piranesi' painted on it. A Greek ship, no doubt. As I didn't know exactly what to say to make Swensen believe that I didn't make much account of what he had done, I called his attention to the name of the spar. He made some mumbled reply, and the rest of the time we were silent. That lasted nearly all day, but finally we were sighted by a sailing vessel and taken aboard."

told the captain of the schooner what Swensen had done, and the captain assured me he would turn the man over to the authorities as soon as we arrived at Dakar. And he was turned over and put on trial, but he lied himself out of it and swore that I must have been crazy. And so he was allowed to go free.

"About two weeks after that Swensen got into a dispute over cards with a stranger in a barroom and killed him. This time there were no court proceedings. The murder was so cold-blooded that the crowd took the law into its own hands and decided to lynch him. They rushed him to the shore road, and out of some wreckage which they found on the strand they erected a gallows.

"When brought face to face with the gallows, Swensen let out a yell that made my blood run cold. 'No wonder! Near the top part of the upright beam were the words, 'Hebe, Piranesi.' It was the spar from which he had pushed the man to death.

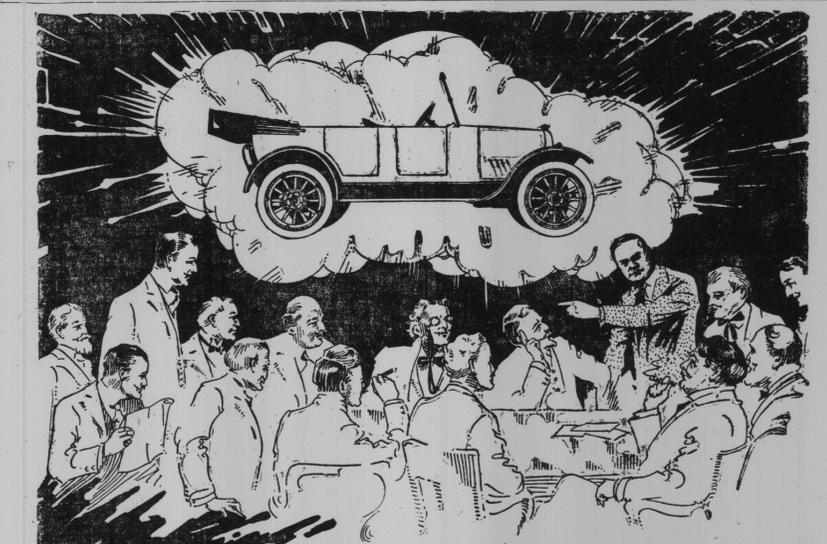

"Even Swensen could plainly see the hand of God in this wonderful instrument of punishment, which had come drifting so many hundreds of miles to convict him. He fell upon his knees and confessed the murder he had committed at sea. He begged for mercy then; but the rope was pulled taut around his throat and he was swung off the ground."

Upon the recent death in a western town of a politician who at one time, served his country in a very high legislative place, a number of newspaper men were collaborating on an obituary notice.

"What shall we say of the former senator?" asked one of the men.

"Oh, just put down that he was always faithful to his trust."

"And," queried a cynical member of the group, "shall we mention the name of the trust?"

The Climax of Million Experiments

THE BRISCOE is not a new car. It was conceived in the mind of Benjamin Briscoe, one of the founders of the automobile industry, away back in 1904. It is the climax of a million experiments—the final outcome of an unconquerable determination to make the automobile value of a dollar greater under the Briscoe name than anywhere else in the industry. Three years ago, after having been identified with the construction of more than a million light cars, Benjamin Briscoe went to Paris. There he surrounded himself with fourteen of the most famous European engineers. For two years these men worked together with a single purpose—the perfection of an automobile of the highest possible class to sell at a price within reach of all. Their first achievement was the now-famous BRISCOE Motor. The long stroke, 5 1/8 inches, with its relatively small bore, 3 1/8 inches, means greater economy, because it utilizes every possible ounce of explosive force in the gas, making possible from 30 to 35 miles per gallon.

Next, the mechanical details of operation, balance, flexibility, and accessibility came in for their rightful share of attention, and, finally, the important matter of Body Design was disposed of. Benjamin Briscoe's designs have always been noted for their beauty, and the BRISCOE, B "4-24" is a masterpiece of artistic excellence. It is graceful, smart, distinctive. Both the driving compartment and the tonneau are roomy and luxurious, with deep upholstery and high seat backs which come up well over the shoulder blades. There is ample leg and elbow room for the tallest and stoutest of men, and the many refinements and convenient appointments make an instant appeal to the most critical feminine mind.

When Benjamin Briscoe had finished his work in Europe, he returned to America and completed arrangements for the production of his master car both in Canada and in the States. In the immense Briscoe factories at Jackson, Mich., and Brockville, Ont., every detail of production has been developed to the highest standard of efficiency. THE BRISCOE car is "Made in Canada" in the truest sense of the term. Everything necessary to the complete manufacture and equipment of a car, that is made in Canada, is used in the BRISCOE. The Canadian organization is controlled by men of large interests both in Canada and the United States, and is affiliated with the $6,000,000 Briscoe corporation of Jackson, Mich. The President and General Manager are both Canadians, and their wide experience and thorough knowledge of the industry have been largely responsible for the instantaneous success of the BRISCOE in Canada.

THE BRISCOE is a Real Car—powerful, beautiful, reliable, economical—the car you have longed for, at the price you have wanted to pay.

WILL KAISER SEE THE WHITE LADY?

Story of the Figure Known as the Hohenzollerns' Portent of Death

'Tis a Weird Legend—Many Men Saying Themselves Instruments of God Have Drenched World in Blood

"Through the undergrowth of a Silesian wood stumbled an unkempt man. A glaring red dawn, spreading like disaster from up over Russia's plains, unmercifully lighted his pale, tired face...

All this, Edward Lyell Fox admits, reads like the opening of a fiction novel. It never happened—least of all happened yet. "But," inquires Mr. Fox in his admirable book, "Wilhelm Hohenzollern & Co."

Guarded Prisoners. At another time, all in the dark, Belgian, French and German soldiers were inextricably mixed up in bayonet fighting round the car. Three times the girls were driven from a turnip field by German fire when they were ministering to German wounded...

There were humorous incidents, occasionally. The girls had found quarters once in an abandoned house. There they slept at night and imagined they had the house to themselves. Once they were awakened by the visit of a burly French soldier...

"We crept along the bank, slipping and falling, wet through, until we saw on the river pathway just behind the trench, the uniform of a Belgian major. It was terribly difficult work, as the German patrol spotted us on the other side of the river, and it was not a pleasant moment if you can imagine us exactly between two firing lines, you have some idea of our position. I do not profess to know whether the Kaiser believes he has seen her or not. And Wilhelm II. is mystical. But the Duke of Cumberland disappeared in November of 1915—after speaking of the White Lady. He was found some weeks later wandering, babbling, insane. He is descended in the fourth line from a king who died a drivelling idiot. The Kaiser is descended in the fifth line from this same king. Who can tell? They found the Duke of Cumberland wandering, a mad man. Who knows what may come true? Should Wilhelm II. see the White Lady, might there not come a day when the man described in the opening lines could be seen stumbling out through the Silesian woods, facing the Russian dawn...

COUNT FIFTH AV. TRAFFIC Nearly 17,000 Vehicles Pass the Library Every Hour. According to a traffic census issued on Sunday by the New York City Avenue Association the average daily traffic passing the Public Library in Fifth Avenue between Forty-first and Forty-second streets between 8 a.m. and 6 p.m. is 16,980 vehicles. Northbound and southbound traffic are about equal, 8,518 vehicles northbound and 8,462 vehicles southbound, included in the total of 16,980 vehicles are 1,293 motor buses, 130 per hour in both directions. The traffic averages twenty-eight vehicles a minute.

At the point where this census was taken Fifth Avenue is fifty-five feet wide, which theoretically at least, permits the movement of six lines of vehicles. The count showed that passenger motor vehicles composed about two-thirds of the traffic, but these included the ponderous motor buses, which are heavier than most commercial motor cars. The pavement carrying this enormous weight of traffic consists of sheet asphalt, 1 1/2-inch close binder and 1 1/2-inch top on a 6-inch concrete base. It was laid in 1918, replacing a similar pavement, which was seventeen years of age. The analysis of the top material in this pavement shows a high percentage of bitumen and a correspondingly high proportion of fine material. An average of 11.7 per cent. of Trinidad asphalt was maintained throughout the pavement although 10.8 per cent. was all that was required.

Toronto View Of Our Governor

A Politician But Not a Glad-hatter—Gardening His Pastime and Roses His Hobby

By William Lewis Edmonds, in Toronto Star Weekly) The Hon. G. W. Ganong, who was the other day sworn in as lieutenant-governor of New Brunswick, is not of the type of man usually selected to be a lieutenant-governor. In appearance it is what he is: a business man, president of Ganong Bros., Limited, of St. Stephen, N.B. For three years, beginning with 1898, he represented his home constituency, Charlotte, in the house of commons, although he is an active politician, ever sparing himself when the interests of the Conservative party are at stake, yet he is not of the forward and "glad-hatter" type. He has got any amount of persistence, for when he sets his hand to the plow, either in politics or in business, he never turns back. He flows the furrow to the end, whatever the end may be. Neither does he make a noise about what he is doing, but a quiet and retiring disposition prefers to keep pecking away without tooting his horn or permitting anybody to toot it for him. As a business man Mr. Ganong has met with more than the usual measure of success, ranking among New Brunswick's wealthy men. And now his political efforts have been rewarded by

THE STORY OF THE STAIRS

Every time you go upstairs you can test your state of health—the condition of your blood. Do you arrive at the top of the stairs breathless and distressed? Does your heart palpitate violently? Do you have a pain in your side? Perhaps you even have to stop half way up, with limbs trembling and head dizzy, too exhausted to go further without resting. These are unending signs of anemia. As soon as your blood becomes impoverished or impure the staircase becomes an instrument of torture. When this is so you are unfit for work; your blood is watery and your nerves exhausted, you are losing the joy of an active life and paving the way for a further breakdown and decline. In this condition only one thing can save you. You must put new, rich, red blood into your veins without further delay and so build up your health anew. To get this new-rich blood give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial, and they will give you new vitality, sound health, and the power to resist and throw off disease. For more than a generation this favorite medicine has been in use throughout the world and has made many thousands of weak, dependent men and women bright, active and strong. You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes at $2.50 from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

life of the province are receiving the attention of his ministers. In his home town and county, Lieutenant-Governor Ganong is a sort of Father of Israel. In his beneficence he is liberal and since the outbreak of the war he has given much of his time and his means to the Patriotic Fund. People in difficulty or in trouble seek his advice and counsel, and because of his sound judgment and integrity he has become something approaching a public official for the administration of estates. There is only about one important thing that the new lieutenant-governor of New Brunswick lacks, and that is children.

KEEP CHILDREN WELL DURING HOT WEATHER

Every mother knows how fatal the hot summer months are to small children. Cholera, infantile diarrhea, dysentery and stomach troubles are rife at this time and often a precious little life is lost after only a few hours' illness. The mother who keeps Baby's Own Tablets in the house feels safe. The occasional use of the Tablets prevents stomach and bowel troubles, or if trouble comes suddenly—as it generally does—the Tablets will bring the baby safely through. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

452 METAL ARTICLES FOUND INSIDE PHILADELPHIA MAN

For several weeks, Mrs. Joseph Quinlan of Philadelphia has been mystified by the disappearance of numerous articles from her household. She changed servants half a dozen times, but the articles, such as silver spoons and pieces of household hardware, continued to be missed. Recently her husband became ill and was sent to the Philadelphia hospital and there the surgeons cut open his stomach and removed the following articles: Thirty-four silver teaspoons. One alcohol cigar lighter and chain. One padlock. Twelve screen door hooks. One glass medicine dropper. Six ten-penny nails. Thirty-six carpet tacks. Thirteen metal buttons. Six safety pins. Forty pieces printers' type. Thirty-two coins. Four souvenir medals. Nineteen screws (assorted sizes). Two hundred and forty-seven pebbles. Disordered nerves were responsible for the unusual appetite which caused Mr. Quinlan to go on a hardware diet. When "the goods were found on him," Mr. Quinlan confessed and said he was unable to overcome his appetite when tempted, for instance, by a nice nickel-plated screen door hook or by a silver teaspoon that seemed to slide down like a stick of candy. After the 452 foreign and undigestible objects had been removed from Mr. Quinlan's stomach the physicians said he had a chance to recover.

DO YOUR EARS RING WITH HEAD NOISES? Tells Simple, Harmless Way to Overcome This Trouble at Home and Improve Hearing 100 Percent in Many Instances

Thousands of people are constantly troubled with buzzing, ringing, rumbling or hissing noises in their head and ears, are hard of hearing and fear the day when partial or total deafness may be their lot. Such cases, even though of long standing are not hopeless as a simple home prescription used daily has shown it possible in many instances to overcome head and ear noises in less than ten days and to restore clear, distinct hearing in less than thirty. Get from any druggist 1 oz. Perminol (double strength) which costs about 75 cents. Take this home and add to it 4 pint of hot water and 4 oz. granulated sugar. Stir until dissolved and take one tablespoonful four times daily. Perminol is used in this way not only to reduce by tonic action the inflammation and swelling in the Eustachian tubes, and thus to equalize the air pressure on the drum, but to correct any excess of secretions in the middle ear, and the results it gives are nearly always quick and effective. NOTE—While Perminol is widely used in the treatment of catarrh people who suffer from head noises or defective hearing should be certain to get it in the special (double strength) form especially designed for treating such cases.

his elevation to the lieutenant-governorship of the province.

Social ambitions Lieutenant-Governor Ganong has none. His ambition lies rather in the direction of cultivating his business and his roses, and spending his evenings in the quiet of his home with his wife and his books. In the cultivation of his roses he has been as successful as in the cultivation of his business, and it is a moot question in which he takes the most pride. His intimates, however, think that roses have the call. At any rate, rose cultivation is his hobby and, except for a little motoring which he does when he can spare time from it and his business, is his only pastime. Even golf has so far had no attraction for him. Whatever the reason may be—whether it was business, roses or native modesty—Mr. Ganong was not at all disposed to accept the lieutenant-governorship when it was offered to him. But as not once since Confederation had a lieutenant-governor been selected from that part of the province strong local pressure was brought to bear upon him, and on that ground he finally accepted. Possibly another thing that had some influence upon him is the fact that there being no official residence for the lieutenant-governor at Fredericton, the capital, the occupant of the office only needs to reside there during the session of the legislature. The rest of the time he can reside where he likes. Lieutenant-governor Ganong will not therefore be separated from his beloved roses in St. Stephen when they most need his attention and his best company.

Lieutenant-Governor Ganong, who is 66, has for many years taken an active interest in practically all movements having for their object the industrial development of his province, and with that end in view he has drawn liberally upon his own wealth, feeling that thereby he is only doing his duty. It is because of this character that his elevation to the gubernatorial chair is particularly acceptable to the business men of New Brunswick. They feel that his influence will be potent when ways and means of developing the industrial

NEW WAR SURGERY'S EXCELLENT RESULTS

Speed and Dexterity in Abdominal Cases Reduce Mortality Ten Per Cent

Either Safest Anesthetic—Fewer Die at the Base Hospitals After Being Operated Upon in the Field

One of the results of the war has been a tremendous gain in surgical knowledge, according to those who have served in hospitals on the various fronts, Dr. Cuthbert Wallace recently has made public the results of his experience in a series of lectures on "War Surgery of the Abdomen," delivered in London.

Commenting on these, The New York Medical Journal says: "To do and dare or to die is an inspiring motto under which to work. The necessity of face-about decisions and promptness of action brings instinctive gain. Certain daring experiments in surgery, unjustifiable perhaps in the calculating times of peace, are giving a new assurance to the skilled initiate which finds its gold of action in the military hospitals."

"The mystery of abdominal surgery is as yet largely unexplored. This branch of operative work is comparatively in its beginnings. Choice between certain death on the one hand or a possible chance of life through abdominal exploration has turned the tide at the front away from the older method of expectant treatment to adoption of radical operative treatment as an indicated routine measure in evident or suspected wounds of the abdomen."

"A series of lectures on 'War Surgery of the Abdomen' recently delivered in London by Cuthbert Wallace suggests some of the many things concerning wounds of the abdomen which surgical knowledge may reap from experience at the front. It is true, as Wallace says, that abdominal surgery in the military hospital differs but little from that in civil life. Yet the varied location of wounds here met with, their great number, the complicated nature of the injuries, present a field of profitable study."

"The variety of wounds inflicted by the various forms of projectiles, their often freakish mode of entrance and passage, the obscurity from their appearance of the actual location and seriousness of the injury form a chapter of rare interest in surgery. Even more do the lessons to be learned depend upon that peculiar condition which not only slows of daring exploration, but which through increasing experience urgently

MORE WATER USED THAN EVER BEFORE

Montreal Hot Weather Consumption More Than 60,000,000 Gallons Daily—All Records Broken

(Montreal Gazette.) With an increase of 5,500,000 gallons a day for the first fortnight of July, 1917, as compared with the same period of July a year ago, the quantity of water consumed in Montreal is more than maintaining its past record for the hot season. In a growing city precautions must be taken far ahead of the actual requirements, and Supt. Lesage is already working on specifications for a new turbine pump, which would not be delivered for another year.

The greatest quantity of water consumed in a single day in Montreal was the record of Montreal, the hottest day of the season, when 68,000,000 gallons were required to meet the demands of the population. On one or two days last summer, 62,000,000 gallons were pumped, which high figure has already been surpassed in a single day by 1,000,000 gallons.

As the city pumping plant has a daily capacity of 100,000,000 gallons, there is no danger of a water famine. But, as the present force mains could not carry off all this water from the pumps at one time, Supt. Lesage stated yesterday that in a year or two another force main would have to be constructed. Continuing, Supt. Lesage stated that, while the city possessed plenty of pumping reserves, it was advisable to prepare for the needs of the future. The increase of 5,500,000 gallons a day for the first two weeks of July, 1917, is 22,100,000, 61,900,000 and 62,000,000 gallons. Some of the high records for July, 1916, were: 62,100,000, 61,900,000 and 62,000,000 gallons.

If the city has a large number of pumps of various makes the new 80,000-gallon turbine is doing the lion's share of the work. Last Monday this one pump delivered 10,000,000 gallons of water, while on the two preceding days the quantity was even greater, the figures being 29,570,000 and 29,800,000. The records for the three preceding days being 61,000,000, 61,200,000, and 61,850,000 gallons. Some of them being responsible for 15,000,000 and 15,000,000 gallons. The reason the larger pump is being so much used is that it can be operated to lessen as much as possible the condition of shock, and the rest

SEEMS EVERYONE HEARD ABOUT IT

All want to try new drug that dries up corns so they lift out

Good news spreads rapidly and drug-gists here are kept busy dispensing the new, recent discovery of a Cincinnati man, which is said to loosen any corn so it lifts out with the fingers. A quarter of an ounce costs very little at any pharmacy, but is said to be sufficient to rid one's feet of every hard or soft corn or callus. You apply just a few drops on the tender, aching corn and instantly the soreness is relieved, and soon the corn is so shriveled that it lifts out without pain. It is a sticky substance which dries when applied and never inflames or even irritates the adjoining skin. Thousands of deaths annually from lockjaw and infection have resulted from the suicidal habit of cutting corns.

ARE GOOD COWS MISJUDGED?

(Dominion Department of Agriculture, Dairy Division, Ottawa.)

Recently three cows that stood side by side were tested for nine consecutive milkings. The first cow had an average test of 8.7 per cent of fat, the maximum and minimum tests being 2.9 and 5.4.

The second cow had an average for the nine tests of 4.2 with maximum and minimum tests of 2.4 and 5.4. The average test for the third cow was 2.5, with extremes of 2.0 and 4.0. Hence it is evident that the laudable desire to know what a certain cow's milk tests for fat may be defeated entirely if only one sample is run through the machine. In the light of these examples, as well as of hundreds of other instances on record, it is safe to conclude that a method is to test a composite sample of five or six milkings taken at intervals when the cow is in normal condition. This plan has given good results in the cow testing work of the dairy division, Ottawa. Write for full particulars, so that your good cows may not be mis-judged on an isolated test.—C.F.W.

PUBLIC HEALTH AND CHARITIES STATES THAT Tests Made With Nuxated Iron

On Stubborn Cases Where Other Tonics Had Failed Absolutely Convinced Him of Its Remarkable and Unusual Power—Says That When He Took It Personally The Rapidity With Which His Energy and Endurance Increased Was Most Surprising.

FOR TEN YEARS THE DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC HEALTH AND CHARITIES STATES THAT

WHO HE IS.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Probably no remedy has ever met with such phenomenal success as has Nuxated Iron—over three million people annually take it in this country alone. To say nothing of the vast number who are using it in France, England, South America and other countries. It has been highly endorsed and used by former United States Senators and Members of Congress; physicians who have been connected with well-known hospitals have prescribed and recommended it; Monseigneur Nani, a prominent Catholic Clergyman, recommends it to all members of the Catholic Church. Former Health Commissioner Wm. R. Kerr of Chicago, says it ought to be used in every hospital and prescribed by every physician. Former First Assistant Postmaster-General of the United States, C. P. Grandfield, strongly endorses and recommends it to the tens of thousands of citizens who employ him who know his name and signature. Sarah Bernhardt—"The Divine Sarah"—the world's most noted actress, has ordered a large quantity sent to the French soldiers to help give them strength, power and endurance.

Former United States Senator Wm. E. Mason says the results he obtained from its use in his own case were so beneficial that he feels it should be made known to every nervous, run-down man, woman and child. The famous "Cyclone" Davis, Member of the United States Congress, says the effect of Nuxated Iron on him was almost magical, that after trying it nothing seemed to tire him out, no matter how strenuous it might be. Former United States Senator Charles A. Towne, the silver-tongued orator of Minnesota, says he unhesitatingly recommends Nuxated Iron to all who feel the need of renewed energy and the regularity of bodily functions, and that henceforth he shall not be without it. Dr. A. J. Newman, Chief of Police Surgeon of the City of Chicago and former House Surgeon Jefferson Park Hospital, Chicago, says Nuxated Iron has helped him out of his own tests of it to excel any preparation he has ever used for creating red blood, building up the nerves, strengthening the muscles and correcting digestive disorders. Dr. Schuyler C. Jaques, Visiting Surgeon St. Elizabeth's Hospital, New York, says he has never before recommended any remedy to the public, but that in the case of Nuxated Iron he would feel he were remiss in his duty not to mention it. Dr. Ferdinand King, New York Physician and Medical Author, says that in his recent talks to physicians on the grave and serious consequences of iron deficiency in the blood of American women, he has strongly emphasized the fact that doctors should prescribe the more organic iron—Nuxated Iron—for their weak, run-down, nervous, haggard-looking patients. Ty Cobb, the greatest baseball batter of all time, took it to help give him renewed energy and great staying power. No matter what anybody says you could not at this day get such prominent men to endorse a remedy that has no value—doctors, lawyers, politicians, athletes—except Nuxated Iron.

Dr. E. Sauer, a Boston physician who has studied both in this country and great European Medical Institutions, said: "Nuxated Iron is a wonderful remedy. Not long ago a man came to me who was nearly half a century old and asked me to give him a preliminary examination for life insurance. I was astonished to find him with the blood pres-

SPECIAL TO PHYSICIANS. Doctor, what do you recommend to renew the supply of iron in the blood of people in a weak, nervous, run-down State?

Dr. Hornstine, for ten years Physician in the Department of Public Health and Charities of Philadelphia, says: "TAKE NUXATED IRON." So says Dr. A. J. Newman, late of the Jefferson Park Hospital, Chicago; Dr. Schuyler C. Jaques, Visiting Surgeon St. Elizabeth's Hospital, New York; Dr. Ferdinand King, New York Physician and Medical Author, and others. Wm. R. Kerr, former Health Commissioner of Chicago, says Nuxated Iron should be used in every hospital and prescribed by every physician in this country.

Now, doctor, why not give your patients the same kind of iron that Dr. Hornstine and other physicians felt was best for them to take—Nuxated Iron? Your patient's health and welfare comes first—medical ethics second. If a remedy is best for the doctor, why is it not best for the patient? Two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron taken three times per day after meals will often increase the strength and endurance of delicate, nervous, run-down folks 100 per cent in two weeks' time. Your druggist will refund your patient's money if it doesn't.

Read Below What Dr. Hornstine Says:

During my ten years' connection with the Department of Public Health and Charities as District Physician, and with the Department of Public Safety as Police Surgeon, also as a member of important hospital staffs, I was often asked by both physicians and laymen: "Doctor, what do you recommend to renew the supply of iron in the blood of people in a weak, nervous, run-down State?" The answer to this question is the same: Nuxated Iron, and that iron must be supplied before renewed strength could be obtained. I nevertheless always hesitated about giving an opinion. This was simply because of my lack of confidence in the ordinary forms of metallic iron salts, with which there has been so much dissatisfaction. After carefully examining the formula of Nuxated Iron, I realized that here at last was organic iron—the only kind I could conscientiously recommend prepared in such a way with other ingredients as to be easily assimilated and calculated to act as a quick revitalizer of the blood and a true strength builder. ITS ADMINISTRATION IN A NUMBER OF STUBBORN CASES WHERE OTHER TONICS HAD FAILED, ONLY SERVED TO CONVINCME ABSOLUTELY OF THE REMARKABLE AND UNUSUAL POWER OF NUXATED IRON. WHEN I PERSONALLY TOOK IT, I FOUND THIS RAPIDITY WITH WHICH MY ENERGY AND ENDURANCE INCREASED MOST SURPRISING. The fact that this preparation of iron does not injure the teeth, nor upset the stomach, makes it especially desirable. In my opinion the widespread use of Nuxated Iron is bound to make a nation of stronger men, lovelier women and healthful children.

Dr. N. H. Hornstine

of a boy of twenty, and as full of vigor, vim and vitality as a young man in fact, a young man he really was, notwithstanding his age. This secret, he said, was taking iron—Nuxated Iron. He filled him with renewed life. At 30 he was in bad health; at 46 he was careworn and nearly all in—now at 50, after taking Nuxated Iron, a miracle of vitality, his face beaming with the buoyancy of youth.

If you are not strong or well, you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Then take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times a day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained.

NOTE: Nuxated Iron, which is prescribed and recommended above by physicians in such a great variety of cases, is not a patent medicine nor secret remedy, but one which is known to druggists and whose ingredients are widely prescribed by eminent physicians both in Europe and America. Unlike the older 'morgan' iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make the stomach or upset the stomach; on the contrary, it is a most potent remedy for nearly all forms of indigestion as well as for nervous, run-down condition. The manufacturers have such confidence in Nuxated Iron, that they offer to-forfeit $100.00 to any charitable institution if they cannot take any man or woman under 60 who lacks iron, and increase their strength 100 per cent. or over in four weeks' time, provided they have no serious organic trouble. The offer also to refund your money if it does not at least double your strength and endurance in ten days' time. It is dispensed in this city by Wasson's Drug Store, and all good druggists.

Will Continue Famous Suit

Baltimore, July 26.—The now famous $800,000 suit of the Baltimore Federal League baseball club against the National League, which was suddenly withdrawn recently while under trial in the United States District Court in Philadelphia, is again to come into being. It is learned that the suit probably will be entered in Washington this week, although New York is also being considered.

RING

Hebrews in the Ring

Probably the secret of the success of many of the young Hebrew boxers of late is the careful, normal, lives they lead in or out of training. Egregious fame and fortune does not seem to lead them to dissipation and the merry party that has destroyed the grand physiques of so many gladiators of other races.

You don't find Benny Leonard whooping it up along the Great White Way, like other lightweight champions before him. He is not going the festive route that Freddy Welsh did for so many moons.

But take nearly all the top-notch Jewish fighters like Ted "Kid" Lewis, the new welterweight champion; Battling Levinsky, the recognized boss of the light lightweight division; Al McCoy, the supposed middleweight chief; Charley White, Willie Jackson, Frankie Callahan, Eddie Wallace and others of the chosen people:

They not only lead clean, athletic lives, but they probably train more earnestly, faithfully and thoroughly than the average Christian boxer. In fact, know they do. And if the Hebrews keep on developing in Flatland as they have been doing during the past few years in this country, especially, we may see all the title holders of Jewish blood, from the flyweight to the heavyweight classes. Holy Moses! Won't that be dreadful for us poor Irish? We who have predominated as fatie champions and ring idols for over a hundred years or more both in this country, England and Australia.

I certainly consider, says a sport writer, that the Jewish boxers deserve great praise, credit and honor for their remarkable progress in the ring. They have studied and learned the many art by close, strenuous attention. They understand the great value of getting into the fighting condition, and most all

Canada a Model For Home Rule

Dublin, July 27.—(Montreal Gazette Cable)—Conversation with delegates to the convention representing three phases of Irish life convinces me that the present moment offers the best and most hopeful opportunity Ireland has yet had of reaching a possible solution of its problem.

The Nationalists are intensely anxious to get autonomy, which will suit every part of the land. Southern Unionists are so anxious to end the deadlock that they are prepared to make concessions, with reasonable safeguards, while Ulstermen also manifest some willingness to negotiate. One of the latter assumed me positively that he came to the convention honestly prepared to negotiate, and he believed this spirit prevailed to a greater extent than in any previous gathering of the Irish parties.

The growing strength and unabated declarations of the Sinn Fein are undoubtedly an important factor in the rapprochement of delegates. Home rule on Canadian lines finds many advocates, among whom are Lord Dunraven and Sir Thomas Ramonde, both of whom know the dominion well.

The adjournment of the convention this afternoon is regarded as a healthy sign, indicating that delegates expect to settle down to serious deliberations after settling the form of procedure.

Many Taking Up Farms Now in Western Canada

Montreal, July 26.—The Grand Trunk Pacific Railway in its present reading more inquiries relative to the purchase of farms in western Canada than for some years, reports R. C. W. Lett, tourist and colonization agent of the line, who is visiting Montreal.

"At the beginning of the war there has been a feeling among the farmers of the United States that the settler crossing the invisible border line might be called upon to make some heavy sacrifice in view of Canada's participation in the world conflict," said Mr. Lett, "but with the entry of the United States into the struggle, and the passing of the selective conscription act in the states, these fears are no longer proving a hindrance to immigration into the dominion. The demand is for the very best kind of land, and we have had in many instances recently the satisfaction of hearing from experienced farmers who have settled here that they have been able to acquire holdings at prices 50 per cent. below those ruling in any other section of the continent. In addition to these farmers who are buying improved lands, there is a steady flow of settlers on the homesteads along the G.T.P. line in British Columbia.

"During the last two months we have sent into the Noche and Bulke valleys more than fifty carloads of settlers' effects. Many of these settlers are Mennonites, hard-working, law-abiding people and splendid mixed farmers. They have had farming experience in other districts and are moving up to virgin land and a good climate. Many of these homesteads which they are taking up are within eight miles of the railway line. These people are well able to do the very best development work, and all have financial resources. One family which we handled recently had a working capital of $45,000."

On windy days, when the starch blows out of your clothes, try putting in a teaspoonful of salt in the starch when it is cooking, and see how nicely the clothes still retain their stiffness.

What Happens Under The Conscription Act

Military Service Bill as Discussed and Amended Explained in Language Free From Legal Phrasology—What the Exemption Clause Means—Local Tribunals Distinct From "Reporting"—Various Appeals Elucidated and Procedure Outlined

(Toronto Star) Here is a plain-language story of how a citizen liable to conscription will fare under the military service act, provided the measure becomes law in the form in which it was left by committee yesterday. It is a complicated bill, and after it is passed, will be supplemented by many regulations as to details. The following article is compiled from a study of the bill itself and from answers given by the ministry in the house. The Star will cheerfully answer questions upon points not covered in this article, if such are sent to the Telegraph Editor. Staff Correspondent. Ottawa, July 18.—This is what happens to John Doe under Canada's military service act. And it will happen to him whether he spells his name Doe, D'Eau or Dough. French or English, rich or poor, he will fare the same, so long as he is a British subject resident in Canada. John is a single man between the ages of 20 and 34; that is, he is included even if he was born as long ago as January 1, 1883. He belongs to the first class, and perhaps the only class which will be called out under Canada's new conscription law. If John is a widower without children, or is a divorced man without children dependent on him, he is considered unmarried. To follow John's career it has to be presumed that the bill has gone through parliament, has been assented to by the governor-general, and has become law. If, since that assent, any man or newspaper has been urging John to evade the provisions of the act, that man or newspaper has become liable to penalties ranging from ten dollars up to a $500 fine and one year's imprisonment, or, in the case of the paper, to suppression. But let it be supposed that John has not been influenced in this way; perhaps has been thinking very little about the conscription law at all. When He Sees the Call One day he reads in his newspaper, or sees on a poster, a proclamation which calls his class to the colors. This proclamation tells him that if he desires to claim exemption he must go before a local tribunal upon a day named, at a certain place not too far from where he lives. If he makes no claim he must "report," that is, he must go to some military authority who is named in the proclamation, at a date later than that on which the local tribunal sits. It is important to remember the distinction between going before a tribunal, which is only necessary in case an exemption is claimed, and "reporting," which is the later process, and consists of reporting one's self to the militia, so as to be placed on service later. Presuming that John reports without attending the tribunal, the only reason upon which he is likely to be exempted would be the discovery of some physical defect lends his own, is subject to imprisonment of not more than six months. If a certificate is lost, a duplicate will be issued for fifty cents. A man who claims to be exempted must be able to produce his certificate whenever a peace officer requires it, or he is liable to be fined as much as $100 or imprisoned for as long as one year.

When He Appeals But to get back to John Doe. Suppose that he does not get his exemption and wishes to appeal. Or suppose that he does get it and the representative of the militia department who attends each local tribunal enters an appeal. Then John's case is regarded as not concluded and he does not have to report when the day for reporting arrives. His appeal is forwarded to an official known as the registrar, and the latter decides where it shall be heard. Each court of appeal which hears such cases will consist of only one man, and a higher court. In either case he is the appointee of the chief justice of the province. John Doe must go before whatever one of these appeal judges the registrar names. Having been before one local tribunal, he cannot go before another such (penalty $100 to $1,000), but must take his chance before the appeal court.

The proceedings before this body may partake more of the nature of a re-trial than an appeal. John may have a new witness, or the militia department may have one. Technicalities and formalities will be taboo. The main object of the court will be to get at the facts. The decision of the appeal court will, in most instances, end the case. There is, however, a second appeal for either John or the militia department if the conditions of the case are such as will be outlined in regulations yet to be made. These are to be drawn up by the central appeal judge, who is to be a member of the supreme court and who will be appointed or re-appointed by the governor-general. He is to be assisted by two other judges of the supreme court to assist. He is the court of last resort and his decision is absolutely final.

At the Final Decision If John Doe carries his case that far and is exempted, the decision stands. If he is not exempted, to the war he must go. No habeas corpus or injunction mandamus or certiorari will avail against the tribunals which have considered his case. He may be sent to the navy. That will hardly be probable unless he has special qualifications. He may even go into the Flying Corps or the artillery. But mostly he will be allocated to the infantry. Any wishes in the matter which he expresses will be "considered," but not necessarily followed. "Bayonets" are the need of the hour, and most "Johns" will have no choice. After drying salt for table use, do not fill the salt cellars until the salt is quite hard; otherwise it will harden in a lump.

TWO-THIRDS OF CANADA FOR TIMBER CROPS

(From Canadian Forestry Association.) One of the surprises to those visiting Europe in peace times is the method by which all lands are carefully examined and put to work according to their capacity. No farmer is permitted to locate on non-agricultural soil, and at the same time, good farming soil cannot be retained under such a crop as timber. Canada has only made a beginning at applying such a policy of business efficiency in the use of the nation's natural resources. Thousands of farmers are today treading to farms that produce only a few dollars an acre, their efforts and ambitions practically wasted in a time when man-power is at a high premium. Taking the whole of Canada's area, more than two-thirds will never produce field crops, and the bulk of the two-thirds will prove profitable under only one crop, namely timber. All efforts for the protection of the forests against fire and other forms of needless waste aim to keep in a productive condition those millions of acres that can never grow field crops. Canada holds a tremendous natural advantage in her forests, but from the beginning of the last century about two-thirds of the original inheritance has been destroyed by fires. Nearly all modern countries have put an end to forest fires by carefully organized protective systems.

neighborhood, where he can do more to help win the war than if he went to the front. In that case he can be allowed to take the position in question if he so wishes. If John is a college boy or undergoing some other form of education or training he may get an exemption for a limited time only, if he can show that it is in the national interest. A case in point would be that of a student approaching the end of his term, and liable to lose the course he is taking if he does not complete it. There is another, and very important, exemption possible. John may be able to prove that serious hardship would ensue if he were placed on active service, owing to his exceptional financial, business obligations or domestic position. It will be noted that the word "obligations" means what it says, and therefore means liabilities and not assets. It does not excuse the rich man. Exemption for "domestic position" would likely be granted to such cases as the only son of a widowed mother, but this would be for the tribunal to decide. The act gives the central appeal judge, with the cabinet's consent, the power to make regulations to secure uniformity in the findings of the various local tribunals. In Case of Ill-Health. If a man's health is such that he is unable to get exemption from the court, he may still be rejected by a military doctor, whose reports, if he is a man with an obvious infirmity, there will be no need for a doctor at all. He will forthwith be sent on to the tribunal. He may present, if he so desires, the certificate of his family physician, but this will naturally be taken into consideration by the court, especially if it tells of tubercular paraffin, or something of that sort, but there is no obligation upon the court to accept it. If John is so foolish as to make false statements in seeking this or any other form of exemption, he makes himself liable to imprisonment not exceeding five months with hard labor. If a doctor issues to him a false certificate he likewise is liable to the same penalty. John Doe may be a Mennonite or a Doukhor, or a Quaker, or a member of some other well recognized religion which specifically prohibits its people from taking part in combatant military service. In that case, he will be exempted from service in a combatant unit. But it will not be sufficient for him to say that he has conscientious objections to war. He must show membership in good faith in one of the well-recognized sects whose teachings prohibit him from fighting. He cannot get exemption on the general ground that all Christian churches teach "Thou shalt not kill."
