VOTE IN PARLIAMENT FOR DRILL HALL HERE; POST OFFICE FOR FAIRVILLE

Ottawa, Jan. 12.—In supply today, parliament passed the estimates for public buildings in Nova Scotia.

On the New Brunswick list, on a vote of $30,000 for a public building at Campbellton, Hon. Mr. Pugsley explained that the town had been destroyed by fire and the public building was needed. The emergency step had been taken of making a governor-general's warrant to provide for immediate construction.

Twelve thousand dollars was voted for a post office at Fairville.

Fifteen thousand dollars for a public building at Grand Falls.

Three thousand dollars for a public building at Hampton.

Fifteen thousand dollars for a public building at Hillsboro.

On a vote of $7,000 for an armory at Moncton, Dr. Pugsley said the amount would not more than purchase the site which had been selected by the militia department, would include a parade ground and which would be acquired by appropriation. Plans had not been completed and the total cost had not been calculated. The building would be a commodious one.

On a vote of $100,000 for the St. John drill hall, Hon. Dr. Pugsley said that the town needed a drill hall badly, and that arrangements had been made to fill that want.

Other votes put through were $4,000 for repairs to St. John public buildings.

Three thousand dollars for the water works on Paradise Island.

Five thousand dollars for a doctor's house at the Tremblé Lazaretto.

Disease Lurks in Cup

(Toronto Telegram)
"On the edges of public drinking cups have been found the germs of tuberculosis, diphtheria and other diseases."
This statement by Dr. Hastings, M. H. O., prefaced a declaration by him that the public drinking cup must go.
"No sane person would think of using the same tooth brush that hundreds of other people use, and yet unquestionably they go on drinking out of the same germ-laden cups," said Dr. Hastings.
The M. H. O. has consulted with Park Commissioner Wilson and Property Commissioner Harris, and these officials are willing to cooperate with him in a campaign against the universal drinking utensil. Mr. Wilson will ask for an appropriation to install in all the parks sanitary drinking fountains, such as have been already placed in some of the parks, and the property commissioner will install bracket fountains in the city hall.

GLASS THAT WILL NOT BREAK
Baccarat, France, has the honor of producing the first glass that is unbreakable. The new process has been successfully applied to the manufacture of lamp chimneys for use in coal mines containing much fire-damp. The glassmakers of Baccarat have also succeeded in increasing the elasticity of the glass. This they accomplish by adding diastase dissolved in ordinary crystal glass—Success Magazine.

The DeBercy Affair

BY GORDON HOLMES
Author of "A Mysterious Disappearance,"
"By Force of Circumstances," etc.
(Copyright by McLeod & Allen, Toronto)

(CHAPTER VI (Continued))

"With pleasure," said Clarke, but there was no pleasure in his early Russian face, in which rage shone notwithstanding a marvelous makeup. Still, he opened the paper under the lamp—a sheet of note-paper with some lines of writing on the first page; and on the top of it, printed the name of a hotel, "The Swan, Toronto."

The two detectives peered over it. To the illimitable surprise of both, this letter, stolen by Clarke from Janco's pocket, was addressed to Clarke himself—a letter from Rupert Osborne, the millionaire. And Osborne said in it:

Dear Inspector Clarke:—Yours of the 7th duly to hand. In reply to your inquiry, I am not aware that the late Mr. Janco had any relations with Anarchists, either in London or in Paris, other than those which have been mentioned in the papers—i. e., a purely professional interest for stage purposes. I think it unlikely that her connection with them extended further.

I am,
Sincerely yours,
RUPERT OSBORNE.

Furneaux and Clarke looked at each other in a blank bewilderment that was not assumed by either man.

"Did you write to Mr. Osborne, asking that question?" asked Furneaux.

"No," said Clarke—"never. I didn't even know where Osborne was."

"So Janco must have written to him in your name?" said Furneaux. "Janco, then, wishes to know how much information Osborne can give you as to Mademoiselle de Bercy's association with Anarchists. That seems clear. But why should Janco think that you particularly are interested in knowing?"

Clarke flushed hotly under the point being conveyed that he was investigating the case on his own private account and in a secret way. As a matter of fact, it was by this time fully convinced that Rose de Bercy's murder was the work of Anarchist hands, but he was so fearful of official reprimand from Winter that he only answered:

"Why Janco should think that I am interested, I can't imagine. It beats me."

"And how can Janco know where Osborne is, or his assumed name, to write to him?" muttered Furneaux. "I thought that was a secret between Osborne, Winter, and myself."

Clarke, equally puzzled, scratched his head under his wig, which had been in sufficiently hot in that stifling room.

"Janco and his crew must be keeping an eye on Osborne, it seems for some reason," he exclaimed.

"Heaven knows why—I don't. I am out of the DeBercy case, of course. I am interested in the Janco crowd—is political."

"Let me see the letter again," said Furneaux, and he read it carefully once more. Then he opened the sheet, as if seeking additional information from the blank pages, turned it over, looked at the back—and there he saw something else that was astounding, for the words "Rosalia" near the bottom of the page, in Osborne's handwriting, were written "Rosalia!"

"Who is 'Rosalia!'" asked Furneaux—"see here, an impression from some other letter written at the same time?"

"Don't know, I'm sure," said Clarke. "A sister, perhaps?"

"A sister. Why, though, should his sister's name appear at the back of a note written to Janco, or to Inspector Clarke, as he thought?" said Furneaux to himself, deep in meditation. He suddenly added brightly: "Now, Clarke, there's a puzzle for you!"

"I don't see it, I'm sure, I mean. It might have appeared on any other letter, say to his bankers, or to a friend. It was a mere accident. There is nothing in that."

"Quite right," grinned Furneaux. "And it was a sister, I'm sure, poor girl, she will be anxious about her fond and devoted brother."

"It may be another woman's name," said Clarke sagely. "Although, for what matter, he'd hardly be on with a new love before the other one is cold in her grave, as the saying is."

Furneaux laughed a low, mysterious laugh, and rang hard and bitter in the ears of the other.

"I'll keep this, if you don't mind," he said, slipping into the detective again. Meantime, Furneaux knew that there were other papers of Janco's in Clarke's pocket, and he lingered a little, giving his colleague a change of exhibiting them. Clarke made no move, however, so he put out his hand saying, "Well, good luck," and disappeared toward his residence, Hampstead way. But in Southampton Row an overwhelming impatience to see the other Janco papers overcame him, and he was constrained to examine them as he went.

Two were bills. A third was a newspaper cutting from the Matin commenting on the murder in Fiddisham Mansions. The fourth had power to arrest Clarke's steps. It was a letter of three closely-written pages—in French; and though Clarke's French, although for what matter it could walk, if it could not fly, in ten minutes he had read and understood.

St. Petersburg says that since the secret meeting, a steady growth of courage in the rank-and-file is observable. As for

Fraternal Prescription For Nervous Weakness

(From "Medical Reports.")
Thousands of men, nervous wrecks, have found the following "Fraternal prescription" a blessing and a boon. Such men, lack energy, easily discouraged, lacking in self-esteem and confidence. They suffer from cold extremities, thin watery blood, nervousness, sleeplessness, frightful dreams, tremulousness, and, in many cases, indigestion and an absolute inability to perform the ordinary natural and rational acts or duties such as any healthy normal man can.

A vigorous man works, plays, eats and sleeps always with the keenest enjoyment. The greater his exertions are the stronger becomes his appetite and slumbers. The nervous man seems always tired and worn out. Getting things no relief. Sleep brings no refreshment, all because of an abnormal condition of the nervous system, brought about by—well, no matter what—the desire is for relief and freedom with rich, red blood surging through the body supplying the sensitive nerves with all the power of sensation, so that sleep is refreshing, food is delicious, work is play and play is pleasure.

Get this remedy, though, simple and correct. The ingredients are: One ounce of various prescription, and one ounce of mixed oils. Obtain about embarrasment of the system.

Obtain three ounces of syrup (syrup of cod liver oil) in a six ounce bottle. To this, add one ounce of compound fluid balsam, and let stand two hours. Then add one ounce of tincture cadomene compound (not cadomene), and one ounce of compound essence cod-liver. Mix, shake well and take a teaspoonful after each meal and one when retiring, until you are vigorous, bounding new-health takes hold of the tired, exhausted nerves. Only a few weeks treatment will astonish, and rejuvenate, because the treatment is the right thing at the right time, and contains no deceptive opiates.

The average man would rather lose $50 on a horse race than pay $3 for taxes. Why?

By RUTH CAMERON

As two sturdy youngsters with their skates slung over their shoulders tramped past me on the street the other day, three words came back to us at which my companion and myself simultaneously turned to each other, smiled and then looked thoughtful.

"But FATHER said You shouldn't see anything to smile at or look particularly thoughtful about in that? You should have heard them. It wasn't just the words. It was the tone of pride, which my companion and myself simultaneously turned to each other, smiled and then looked thoughtful.

"The deeper meaning of that smote the man like a blow. 'Why, mum, the sweet it came right out on my head when I thought about it,' he said, and that very sound like Sunday school fiction, doesn't it? But as a matter of fact it really did happen just about as I've told it.

Fathers and mothers, doesn't the thought of your influence terrify you sometimes? You've just got to look out where you step, for whether you wish it or not the little ones are surely going to step right where you do.

The law of 'Do as I say, not as I do,' can't ever be enforced in the home, for when people live so close together the 'I do's' is about one hundred times stronger than the 'I say's'.

Fathers and mothers, are your thoughts, your spirit toward your neighbors, the spirit you create in your home, your habits, the tone of your conversation, your manners, your ambitions, your beliefs such that you are willing that your children shall 'step right where you do'?

Really, it's an appalling bit of responsibility, isn't it?

Cured Awful Ringworm

"Well over four years ago my two little girls were taken with a dread-dread disease called ringworm. They attended the Hospital as out-patients for a year. I had to apply their ointment with a brush, giving the children frightful pain. I also had to have their heads shaved every two weeks, but they got no better and their heads were covered with a thick scurf and dandruff. About a year ago I determined to try the Cuticura Remedies. I applied plenty of Cuticura Soap and applied the Cuticura Ointment. I cured them. Their hair is growing long and nice again. They had become so fatigued after their three year suffering that I had to send one away to the hospital. I am very grateful to the Cuticura Remedies as she was cured in only a few months. My children are now happy and healthy. I always use it to keep the hair so soft and smooth." (Signed) Mrs. M. B. BROWN, 33, Lena Gardens, Brook Green, W. London.

FOR LADY READERS

The Secret of a Good Complexion

This is the season for evening parties, social events, etc. Why not look your best. Why let your complexion suffer by contrast with other ladies? You can do this on sound, natural lines by using Zam-Buk, Nature's herbal balm. Zam-Buk is a skin food, and complexion is purely a matter of skin health. Zam-Buk smears lightly over the face each night acts as a skin tonic. It stimulates the cell beneath the cuticle to healthy action, and expels impurities and blood vessels, and capillaries and circulation of healthy, active cells. It gives place to the white, velvet "skin" and "feel" which healthy skin alone has. Isn't it wiser than relying upon talcum powder and cosmetics? These only put on a "complexion" from the outside. It doesn't last. Zam-Buk helps nature to build up a complexion from blood and tissue. Zam-Buk all cures skin diseases, pimples, ulcers, abrasions, blood-poison, eruptions, cuts, burns, scalds, discolored places, scalp sores, piles, etc. 50c. box, all drug stores, or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, and beware of harmful substitutes and imitations.

In the preparation of this bulletin, every effort has been made to secure the most accurate and reliable data regarding the industry. TEACHER OF NEW CULT. ARRESTED

Chicago, Jan. 12.—Evelyn Arthur See, self-declared apostle of a new life, in which all things will be perfect, appeared in the municipal court here to answer to charges of disorderly conduct. Two girls, one 19 and the other 17 years old, who admitted in court they had for months been living with See, unchaperoned, also appeared under the same charges. Mona Rees, the elder of the girls, was destined, according to the plan of See, to be mother of the first "nearly perfect" child, she herself being almost perfect, according to the cult's teachings. The other girl, Mildred Bridges, was striving to attain that state of purity, she declared, that would place her on a plane with the Rees girl. Twenty thirty little boys and girls attended a sort of school conducted by these three, and according to See, were taught to be useful, and to work for the love of work, not for money alone. Mrs. Felicia Rees, mother of Mona, told the police she approved her daughter's living with See, as all were "perfect" and honest in their hearts. She refused the services of an attorney, saying he had the counsel of God and would prepare the court room. Hearing was postponed, and See refused bail.

Wise Men and Women Know that most of the sicknesses of life come from inactive bowels and from unhealthy condition of the organs of digestion. Some several of the personal workers who were active in the foray campaign will be present to help in the services, and it is hoped that many will attend. There will be a song service at 7:45; special music by the choir.
