with persons on whose friendship, good feeling and esteem for the church I could reatly depend. Three were clergymen and two laymen of great knowledge of men and things. It weighed with me in the great uncertainty of an election of any one in this diocese, there might be great difficulty and perhaps a struggle as in other dioceses. When it became known that this diocese contemplated the appointment of a bishop-coadjutor, several persons interfered in an unwarrantable manne with us in the election, and made matters worse than now. In the state of things of this diocese, passing to a state in which the church shall be free and certain to elect its bishops from its clergy, it appeared to me it might be better to select a graduate from the more famed English Universities. He would come with no personal feelings. On looking around the ranks of the clergy, I think that as many mistakes have been made by the natives as the non-natives of the country. "Why then," as Lord Hatherly says, "should not a man's own brother desire his daughter in marown brother desire his daughter in marriage, or look even to the reversion of his wife." We may be sure that ingenious arguments would be found even for this revolting connection, but some are prepared to go even beyond this, and even bid pared to go even beyond this, and even bid us be of good courage and dare to do what Paul tells us "is not so much as named among the heathen," to take in marriage our father's wife. This language has, I understand, been supposed to be said in a joke, as if no man would desire it. In most instances it would, no doubt, be improbable, but it is far from being impossible. A man, we will suppose marries early in life and his wife bears him sons who are grown up when his wife dies He then selects a wife very many years younger than himself. To the Editor of the Miramichi Advance In the Advocate of this date appears an editorial paragraph written in a would-be facetious style, indirectly, yet unmistakab ly pointing to me as the author of certain 'news items" printed in the Fredericto 'Star" over the nom de plume of "Bark.' The innior editor also admits that such was the intention of the article and that his information was based on a rumor to that effect, which he had heard from two or three people about town. I wish to state for the satisfaction of myself and friends that I had nothing to do, whatever, directly or indirectly, with the correspondence referred to and that the inputations contained in the Advocate are untrue, have no foundation whatever in fact and are as contemptible, mean and Another accident occurred Friday last on the Intercologial Railway, which came very near proving disastrous. The branch engine, which was running on a side track collided with the Shediac train, which was running on the main track. The result of the accident arose from the mis understanding of orders from the telegraph operator at Painsec Junction. The nage is not so extensive as would be supposed considering the nature of the accident. The baggage car attached to the regular train was considerably damaged, while the injury to the locomotives is comparatively slight. Several of the hands jumped from the train but they escaped unhurt. The other regular trains were delayed several hours. Daily Tele-
