MONTRÉAL EXPRESS DITCHED TWICE ON THE ONE TRIP

Serious Accident Near Millstream This Morning—Whole Train Derailed—Golden Wedding at Moncton

MONCTON, N. B., May 14.—For the second time since leaving Montreal yesterday, the Maritime Express was derailed this morning, the second accident which has occurred on the express taking place near Millstream, when the whole train was derailed, three cars and the locomotive being laid on their side in the ditch and the fireman being badly hurt. The first accident took place at Bagot, when at a switch the locomotive of the train was derailed and several hours' delay occasioned. Five miles west of Millstream, shortly after eight o'clock this morning, as the train was running along at about thirty miles an hour, the locomotive left the rails and was followed by the entire train. Pullman cars Bellchase and Gloucester, dining car Yamachase and the locomotive creased over into the ditch and lay on their side, and the other cars left the rails but remained standing. Despite the fact that there were a number of passengers in the derailed cars none were hurt, the only one to be injured being Fireman Coulombe, Camure was the conductor. The passengers and the mails are being transferred.

Mr. John Pollock, of St. John, has telegraphed the Moncton police asking them to locate her husband who, she claims, is working on the Intercolonial double tracking near the city. She says her husband left her on May second, and she is now in destitute circumstances.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Harvey Sears, of this city, last night celebrated their golden wedding anniversary marking the completion of fifty years of married life. The aged couple are active and enjoying excellent health and participated with twelve sons and daughters and a number of grand children in the festivities marking the occasion. They were presented by the children with a purse of gold and an address Mr. and Mrs. Sears were married in Sackville in 1888 and of their thirteen children, twelve are living. The youngest child, twelve years old, is the daughter of the late Mrs. Sears, who died in the Chatham disaster. All the living children gathered at the family home on the night of the celebration. The guests were present at the happy anniversary.

MONCTON DISCOVERS THAT SMALLPOX IS EXPENSIVE

Recent Epidemic Cost Nearly Twelve Thousand Dollars—Tobacco For the Patients

MONCTON, May 14.—Smallpox bills were under discussion at the meeting of the finance committee of the city council last night and some of the articles applied to residents came in for considerable discussion. The committee raised the strongest objection to the city paying for two hours with the mass of itemized bills submitted by the board meeting at a later date. A number of things of interest to taxpayers were made clear, not the least of which was the fact that the total amount expended by the board of health during the recent smallpox epidemic was $12,000. So called luxuries as tobacco, etc., supplied patients were mere bagatelle, amounting to only a few dollars. The largest bill from a patient for two hours was $1.50. After a considerable criticism of expenditures by the mayor and aldermen the cost of public vaccination just concluded was $23,000. Seventy patients were treated in the isolation hospital from which the last case was discharged yesterday. The largest bill from a single individual was from Dr. Botsford, who received ten dollars per day for 12 days which with additional charges made a total of $120.

WIFE OF CAPITALIST CHEATED BY BOOK AGENT

She Signed Notes for $30,000 Thinking They Were Orders for Books

CHICAGO, May 14.—The Tribune today says residents of Evanston were startled today when it became known that Mrs. James A. Patten, wife of the grain magnate and herself a leader in club and society life, in the suburb, had been swindled out of $30,000 by a book canvasser who is alleged to have obtained her signature on notes to that amount when she thought she was signing orders for books. The notes were discounted by the agent and are now being sought for by the bank. Some of the notes, it is said, were taken up by Mrs. Patten before her husband started an investigation, which revealed that she had been swindled. Yesterday a warrant was sworn out for the arrest of the man whose name is Major Paden, of Evanston and the others interested refused to disclose.

LONDON, May 14.—The rate of discount of the Bank of England remained unchanged today at three per cent.

HIGH COURT . O. F. OPENED ITS ANNUAL SESSION TODAY

High Chief Ranger and Other Officers Report a Prosperous Year—The Question of Higher Assessment

The High Court of Independent Order of Foresters opened its annual session this afternoon at three o'clock and was very largely attended. The delegates, numbering about 200, met at two o'clock for registration. The meeting is being held in the Keith Assembly Rooms. Supreme Chief Ranger Elliott G. Stevenson, of Toronto, will address the meeting this evening and will explain fully the causes which, in his opinion, render it necessary to equalize the rates of those who joined the order before 1899, with the rates paid by those who joined since. He will fully explain the proposed plans, especially plan B which provides that members shall pay a certain fixed amount in future, but shall not be called upon to have their policy reduced or to pay up any back deficiencies. It is understood that this plan is the most advantageous for the great majority of the members in this province. Circulars explaining the plan by High Secretary Zimmerman, will be distributed at the door of the church.

The High Court will decide what stand it will take in the matter of increase in the rates and instruct their delegates to the Supreme Court accordingly. About 4,000 in New Brunswick will be affected by the proposed new rates.

The Supreme Court meets on June 15.

DOHERTY HAD PREVIOUSLY THREATENED TO SHOOT

Further Particulars of the Murder of Joseph McMillan The Girl Was Afraid That She Might Also Be Killed

CHARLOTTETOWN, P. E. I., May 14.—The murder at Miscouche is still the talk of the province, especially in Prince County, and interest in the case will receive a stimulus by the preliminary examination of the prisoner at Summerside today before Stipendiary Magistrate Wright. Although Doherty declares that he can give no reason for his deed, the general opinion is that jealousy was at the bottom of it. Whistler Stella, MacDonald and McMillan were walking along the track on Sunday night on their way to Miscouche, they saw a man coming toward them, his head bent down. "Look there is Alonso," said Stella. "Do you think he will shoot Stella?" "I will stand in my boots as long as he will shoot," the girl replied. His conversation was so exciting that Doherty had previously threatened McMillan. Boys of the village would tease the latter about the girl and he would be jealous of anyone paying attention to her. Stella, since the shooting, has been in a half hysterical condition, and is constantly weeping, maintaining she was not to blame. "What could I do, alone with her there after he had shot Joe. I was afraid he would shoot me if I started to run away."

When Doherty returned to Stella's house, after the tragedy, he threatened to kill himself, but the girl coaxed him to leave her. It was she and her aunt who induced him to go to the priest's house before daybreak and tell him the story.

The purity and decency of the girl are beyond question, precluding as far as is known at present the theory of provocation on Doherty's part arising from any action of McMillan. Parties of all the parties concerned are highly respectable. Neither victim nor slayer were quarrelsome nor addicted to drink. What the line of defence will be is uncertain. The prisoner does not desire a lawyer, claiming he cannot afford him. McMillan's funeral took place today, an immense throng of people being present.

The Anglo-American cable is still out of business. The company is negotiating for a steamer to Cape Bear and the cable is now out at sea. There are wireless stations at Cape Bear and Picot, but for the Dominion Government marine business only.

S. P. Tardif, of Charlottetown, was assaulted and robbed of an $80 watch and chain near Murray Harbour last night. When driving he overtook two men who got in his wagon. They dragged him out, went through his pockets and rolled him in the mud.

MEETING OF PUBLIC ACCOUNTS' COMMITTEE

FREDERICTON, N. B., May 14.—The public accounts committee meeting this morning was of a quiet and uninteresting nature. Education and executive government expenses were passed upon, and as the payments in most instances are those prescribed, there was little or no criticism.

CAPE BRETON WANTS BETTER RAILROAD FACILITIES

SYDNEY, N. S., May 14.—The towns of Cape Breton, including the City of Sydney, Glace Bay, North Sydney and Louisburg have appointed delegates to go to Ottawa to impress upon the government the necessity of better railway facilities in the county. The scheme proposed is for an extension of the I. C. R. to Louisburg or the completion of the St. Peters, Louisburg Sydney route. The delegates expect to leave for Ottawa on Monday morning next. Dr. A. S. Kendall, M. P., of this city, will accompany the delegates.

GANS FAVORITE AGAINST UNKOLZ

SAN FRANCISCO, May 14.—Joe Gans will go into the ring at the Coliseum tonight in all probability a 10 to 3 favorite over Rudolph Unkolz, the fighting boxer. Last night the price dropped from 2 to 1 to 3 to 2, and the Gans supporters were still taking the money offered by the followers of the short ender.

Gans did not work yesterday but was down to 123 pounds in the afternoon, so that the ringside weighing in should be a mere formality for the two boxers. The men who are to fight for the light weight championship of the world are to weigh in stripped at 123 pounds ringside.

TAXES WILL BE GREATLY INCREASED BY DEMANDS OF THE NEW HIGHWAY ACT

Government Members Admit That Good Roads Were Impossible Last Year—Mr. Robinson Not to Retire from Opposition Leadership—Dissensions in Government Ranks

FREDERICTON, N. B., May 13.—An absurd statement appears in the Fredericton Gleaner and also in the St. John Times and Globe that Mr. Roberson is to resign the leadership of the opposition in favor of Mr. McKeown. This, it is alleged by the correspondent, was discussed at the opposition caucus held Tuesday evening. Nothing of the kind occurred. Mr. Roberson has no intention of resigning the leadership of his party, which is quite satisfactory to the party and to himself. The report is the production of the government news bureau which exists here and which finds that it is extremely troublesome to deal with facts alone. The debate on the Highway Act, which took place yesterday afternoon and evening was the liveliest of the session. Every member of the opposition who was in the house and two of the independent members spoke on the question, which also called out speeches from the members of the government excepting Mr. Maxwell. Three clauses constituting the highway boards were taken. The first on the board of the highway boards was found twenty-eight supporters on the government side. When the divisions on the two sections referring to the taxation clause were called the government could only drum up twenty-three votes while the opposition had twelve votes on each occasion.

The principal theme of the opposition speeches was the complete change of front of the government on the highway question. Mr. Lowell produced the platform announced by Mr. Hasen during the campaign containing the plank placing the entire management of the highways and the appointment of the officials thereunder in the municipal councils. Mr. Hasen and Mr. Fleming tried several times to make it appear that the municipal councils did control the expenditures because two councillors were on each highway board. In answer to this it was shown that the councillors were not required to make any report whatever of the expenditure of the highway boards to the council as a body. Mr. Roberson, speaking of the working of the old Highway Act, pointed out that while the act was defective in many ways, the real reason which made it so unpopular last year was the way the government had made no attempt to do anything to improve it. Mr. Hasen said that the government had quite enough of Mr. Hasen's advanced legislation and have declined to adopt any more of his. It is not unlikely that Mr. Hasen will take the bill by the horns and bring in a bill on his own.

The budget speech will be delivered today—that is Mr. Fleming will start his speech but as the governor has invited a large number of the members to an official dinner on the evening of the 15th, there will be no evening session of the House and Mr. Fleming will adjourn the debate and conclude on the following day.

Governor and Mrs. Tweedie gave a reception yesterday afternoon. About 275 ladies and gentlemen attended. It was the first event of the kind since the opening of the House.

THE LOVE STORY OF GAMBETTA

Romance of French Soldier Revived by Question of Honoring Memory

PARIS, May 13.—The question of removing the body of Gambetta to the Pantheon is again being agitated. The memory of the man who was the soul of the French defense in the war with Germany is very dear to the French people and annual pilgrimages are made to the little house in Ville D'Aray where he died.

Renewed interest in Gambetta has recently been revived by the publication of the story of his mysterious affairs with Leonie Leon. Throughout his life the strange figure of this woman was always in the background, but her identity was first revealed by this volume written by Gambetta's confidential secretary. It is a remarkable story of the pure attachment, outside the bonds of wedlock, of a great man for a noble woman. The letters to her which are published show that she was his greatest inspiration and that to her act and intuitive judgment he gave much of the credit for his political success.

She first attracted his attention in the gallery of the chamber of deputies, where for months she was never absent when Gambetta spoke. But his first effort to form her acquaintance was vain. At his first approach she fled and he did not see her again for four years. At last they met and fell in love with each other. He proposed marriage but she refused, telling him that there was a stain upon her name and under the circumstances she felt that an alliance might interfere with his career. She, however, consented to become his mistress and although Gambetta always regarded her as his wife they were never legally married. But a marriage was about to occur when she sustained the fatal accident.

SEVEN WERE KILLED IN TORNADO LAST NIGHT

SHEPHERD, LA., May 13.—Seven persons are known to be dead and many others are injured as the result of a tornado which swept across northwest Louisiana last night. The little town of Gilliam, 25 miles north of Shepheard, on the east side of the river in Bossier Parish was badly wrecked. Communications with the greater portion of the storm swept area is interrupted and it is believed that later reports will increase the number of dead and injured.

It is said that the work of destruction at Gilliam was complete, only two houses remaining intact. The town had a population of about 200. The dead at Gilliam are said to be Mrs. J. T. Gardner and three negroes. Arthur Vanhook is said to be badly injured. At Boiling the dead are Mrs. Mitchell Davis and two negroes. Mrs. Davis' mother is reported to be dying from injuries received. Charles Loom and family of six are reported among the injured. It was reported that Old City, in the parish, was wiped out by the tornado, but this rumor is probably untrue although great damage is thought to have occurred in view of the wrecking of a great many oil well derricks.

"I will back your will." "Maybe, but I would like to see you break my will."

FOOTBALL

A meeting of those interested in the formation of a New Brunswick Rugby League has been called for the 22nd inst. at Moncton. Delegates from N. B. Marathons and Algonquin of this city, Moncton A. A. and possibly Fredericton city will attend. It is also expected that a Mount Allison representative will be present, although it is not likely that that college will enter a team in the league. The date and place of the meeting were chosen on account of the fact that the intercollegiate track meet takes place in Moncton on May 22nd. In that case representatives of U. N. B. and Moncton would be in the railway town in any event.

DISCUSS AMENDMENTS TO THE WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT

There was quite a large attendance at last evening's meeting in the Board of Trade rooms of those interested in the amendments to the Workmen's Compensation Act which are now before the provincial legislature.

The meeting was a short one. The opponents of the amendments stated their reasons for opposing certain sections, while the representatives of the workmen advanced arguments in support of the same sections. No resolution was passed nor recommendation made.

J. B. Cudlip thought the section making an employer liable for an injury received through the negligence of any one in his employ very unfair. He suggested that the corresponding section of the old law was of sufficient breadth.

George Cushing supported Mr. Cudlip. He thought this section should be stricken out. It was enough to make an employer liable for the mistake of a foreman, a superintendent or person in authority without making him liable on account of the error of an ordinary employe.

Joseph O'Neill of the Longshoremen's Association, took exception to Mr. Cushing's remarks and said the section should be allowed to stand.

A representative of the millmen made reference to the fact that at the time of a strike very inefficient workmen were employed in mills and factories, endangering the safety of their fellow employes.

Further Objections

T. E. Simms took objection to the section making a person for whom a contractor is doing business liable for injury to the contractor's workman.

F. B. Sayer said that under the clause which raised the amount for which an employer is liable for the death of an employe from $200 to $2,500, would increase the rate of insurance necessarily carried by the employer from one per cent to one and two-thirds per cent.

R. B. Emerson raised the point that if the amendments were passed there would be a tendency on the part of employers of labor to employ workmen as young as possible and to refuse to employ a man over forty or forty-five.

George H. Catherine, in reply to Mr. Emerson, stated that it made no difference if a longshoreman was killed while at work, whether he was twenty-five or forty-five.

The other longshoremen continued the argument and stated that under the old compensation act no damages could be recovered for injury or death because the blame for the accident was always placed on a fellow employe of the dead or injured man.

As no one present proposed the passing of a resolution, the meeting then adjourned.

THE ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE SOCIETY SELECTED ROOMS AT MEETING LAST NIGHT

The Irish Literary and Benevolent Society met last night in their temporary quarters in the Opera House building with Hon. R. J. Ritchie presiding. Three new members were elected. The society will take the whole front of the second floor of the Sutherland building on Union street. The rooms will be fitted up to suit the occupants, and it is expected they will be ready for use about the middle of July. The Ancient Order of Hibernians will also take rooms in this building.

THE FUTURE OF JAPAN WILL TURN ON CONTROL OF CHINA

Must Control Industrial Situation in Her Sphere of Influence or Her Growth is Not Assured—National Resources Limited.

Probably no phase of Japan's post-bellum activities is more illuminating than the relation of the government's foreign trade policy to her national ambitions and designs, says Thomas P. Millard, a Tokyo correspondent of the Philadelphia Public Ledger. This leads peculiar interest to the methods, in so far as they have found practical expression, which have been recently employed to promote Japanese industry and commerce.

These methods are, in themselves, a revolution of national characteristics, and point of view, and also are significant as indicating the fundamental trend of a broad political purpose.

Economists who have made a study of the subject agree that Japan's geographical situation and natural resources inevitably will limit the advance of the nation in comparison with others unless she manages to secure and retain the leading industrial position in the sphere of her probable influence. It may be that some Japanese statesmen, in projecting their imagination into the future, have a vision of a ravivified east under Nippon's leadership making an industrial conquest of the west, but it is not now feasible for this idea to take any practical shape. If it should ever be possible, two things must first be brought about—industrial recognition and a firm and established leadership of Japan in a position of leadership. From the Japanese point of view the first condition to be met is the establishment in conjunction with the second will be a calamity to Japan, since it may forever establish her in an inferior place in the Orient by awarding first place to a rival.

CHINA'S RESOURCES BEST.

As to the natural resources of Japan and China, the divergence is so great that comparison is difficult. In every vital matter which applies to the position of China, she has enormous financial superiority. In respect to inanimate resources, she possesses abundantly more than Japan. Her coal, iron, copper, and other minerals are almost all the elements which enter into modern industrial production, and her people are richly as capable and as energetic as any in the world.

Of natural resources, which play an important and essential part in modern industry, China possesses none to any considerable degree, and it is not probable that she ever can do so economically. Her coal, iron, copper, and other minerals are almost all the elements which enter into modern industrial production, and her people are richly as capable and as energetic as any in the world.

ILLUSTRATION OF MEANS USED.

Possibly the means employed to promote Japanese interests on the Continent and in the Orient is the most interesting. It is a policy which may be briefly illustrated by example, and in presenting a hypothetical case I will make use of conditions which I know.

Raw cotton will be brought from India, America or China by the Nippon Yusen Kaisha (owned by the imperial family and subsidized); it enters Japan duty free, or has a duty rebate; it is manufactured into goods by the Nippon Spinning company (a subsidized industry in which the imperial family are interested); it is exported to Manchuria under a bonus paid by the government; it is carried to Manchuria by the Osaka Shosen Kaisha (a subsidized steamship line in which the imperial family are interested); it enters Manchuria through a port controlled by Japan, and when the duty is removed altogether or secretly rebated; it is transported to the interior by the South Manchurian railway (owned by the Japanese government) at reduced rates; it is sold in Mukden, let us say by a Japanese shopkeeper who owing to the Japanese military control of the country, does not have to pay local taxes and who enjoys other immunities. Its sale is further encouraged by one of two forms of trade mark imitation: either a counterfeit of a competition article which is familiar and popular among the Chinese consumers, or by pushing an imitation of inferior quality into the market for the purpose of undermining the reputation of the competing article, which is thus counterfeited and the Japanese merchant is afforded further advantage through control of the currency by a Japanese bank.

USURPATION BY MONOPOLY.

One instance of illegitimate promotion of Japanese trade in China which has come definitely to my notice is particularly significant in several ways. Some months ago a large foreign trading firm in the east discovered that one of its new "chops" specially designed for the Chinese trade, and which was duly registered at Peking (which is all the protection possible now to give foreign trade marks in China), at Tokio and in other countries, was being imitated.

The imitation, which was of an article monopolized by Japan in her own territories, was quickly traced to its source; whereupon the foreign firm began a correspondence with the Japanese government, politely calling its attention to the matter. The Japanese monopoly replied, expressing regret at the occurrence, which it attributed to error rather than intent, and giving assurance that the offending "chop" would be withdrawn except from Japan's own territories, where, owing to the existence of the monopoly, its competition could not injure the original.

With this reply the foreign firm was forced to content; but it soon learned that the imitation article was still being actively pushed in Korea and Manchuria. Another protest was addressed to the Japanese monopoly, which was reminded of its previous assurance. To this the monopoly replied that it does not consider that its promise to withdraw the "chop" applies to Korea and Manchuria, and practically intimates a refusal to acquiesce in the matter.

DOMINATION OF PACIFIC.

Japan's announced intention to dominate the carrying trade of the Pacific (as per Nippon Yusen Kaisha annual report, 1907) has caused great uneasiness among American, British, German and French lines which ply to the east, and subsidies are by some advocated as an only way to prevent American and other western shipping from being driven from the Pacific.

One who has known what view to take of this issue, it is scarcely clear how American trade with China will suffer as long as the government of Japan faces the Japanese to carry our goods cheaper than they can be carried by American ships. But it is contended that as soon as Japan has by cutting under western lines, driven them from business in this part of the world she will begin a process of secret discrimination against foreign cargo which will give her great advantage.

In pursuing her ambition to dominate the east, Japan now finds, in addition to China, a lion in the way. This is the United States. If American diplomacy actively interests itself in preserving the integrity of China and the "open door," it will be very difficult for Japan's policy to continue to make headway.

In these matters lies the crux of the eastern question, and the west, which has far more than a commercial interest in its solution, may well consider whether the further extension of Japan's trade policy, as expressed by her commercial ethics, can be reconciled to western interests in China.

BERGS AND BRITISH CLIMATE

That Old Yarn of the Effect of Greenland's Floating Mountains

The monthly North Atlantic Pilot Charts and the weekly Hydrographic Bulletin, issued of late by the United States Hydrographic Office, shows that last year's icebergs have not altogether ceased to trouble the navigator in the Atlantic in the vicinity of Newfoundland. This is exceptional, but certainly not unique. In some years bergs are passed near the Grand Banks, where the hardy toilers fish for cod throughout the whole twelve months, but as a rule, they are most in evidence from March to August along the western end of the transatlantic routes. Down the east coast of North Atlantic even as far south as the shores of far Florida, and perhaps still further toward the middle of the northern side of the Gulf of Mexico, a cold current of surface water is setting toward lower latitudes, and under certain conditions, this Labrador current, as it is called, bears extensive fields of ice and more massive icebergs on its broad bosom. Every year the Arctic ice-barrier is broken up by the increasing heat of the sun, which is flooding majestically to the northward along the ebb-tide; fields of ice, sometimes covering an area of 100 square miles, are set free, and the hitherto imprisoned icebergs and more awe-inspiring ice-islands drift to the southward with the swollen stream. Field-ice is formed on the sea surface of the high latitudes during the rigorous long nights of those inhospitable regions, but bergs are the ends of glaciers which have protruded into the sea, become detached, and are eventually wrenched off by the upward pressure. Once set adrift from the parent glacier on the west coast of Greenland, the icebergs start seriously on their career the length of which depends upon very complex causes, and the least, the direction of the wind, and the motion of the sea surface currents. Some get into the back-water of the Gulf Stream and remain there until dissolved by the summer sun, and the warmer sub-surface water. At least 2,000 bergs have been observed under way for summer climes in Britain's Bay, and over 300 when southeast of Cape Race.

In January, 1890, the steamer Minola passed by a berg on the Grand Banks which was 700 feet from the water line to the summit. On a recent number of the British North Atlantic Pilot Chart there is given a very interesting and accurate chart of the waters in the vicinity of the Grand Banks on which were plotted the positions of the icebergs reported during the last couple of decades. Icebergs exceeding 400 feet in altitude are rare in the North Atlantic, but about a dozen instances are indicated of quite monstrous icebergs just above three which are from 600 to 1,000 feet in height. The steamer Lord Lansdowne appears to have touched a high peak in the record of an icebergs in 14 N. 27 W. in September, 1896 and in May, 1907, this vessel sighted two lumps of ice in 31 N. 23 W.

It is affirmed that the stronger and cooler current from the Far North, by impinging upon that "river in the ocean" known as the Gulf Stream, compels the latter to adopt a more southerly course than usual. Still more recently a theory has been broached to the effect that the Southeast trade wind, by reason of its occasional variation in intensity in the South Atlantic tends to quicken or retard the velocity of the Gulf Stream, and thus acts indirectly upon the abatement of the eastern portion of the North Atlantic in general, and of the United Kingdom in particular. Well, oceanography in a fertile field for inquiry, and although Maury and Redfield did very much on these lines, yet there still remains very much to be done. As a matter of fact the United Kingdom has not infrequently enjoyed very warm summers just when icebergs were very numerous in the North Atlantic and has suffered severely from cold and generally inclement weather in July and August, when icebergs on the Grand Banks were conspicuous by their absence.

In weather work, despite the great assistance of the telegraphists all over the world, there remains plenty of scope for starting hypotheses, but icebergs may be struck out from the factors of this problem of many variables. Mariners as well as ship owners have, however, great cause to thank United States Hydrographic office for so carefully collecting and distributing information concerning the whereabouts of these glacial monsters which are so dangerous to shipping.—Shipping Illustrated.

FORCED HEART TO BEAT Doctor's Heroic Measures to Save Patient's Life HARTFORD, May 13.—At the crucial point of a delicate operation on the lungs of Nuncio Chial at St. Francis Hospital yesterday, when it seemed certain that the tiny spark of life had flickered out, Dr. D. F. Sullivan reached through the incision to the heart and gently squeezed it once or twice. The man's respiration was restored and the cutting away of the diseased organs was continued until Dr. Sullivan said that Chial was dying. Again he softly pressed the almost stilled heart, and with several well-timed squeezes started life anew. The long enough to complete the operation, Chial will live, the attending surgeons declare tonight.

FOUR MEN DROWNED AT CAMPBELLTON

Boat Sank While They Were Unloading Heavy Anchor Men Were Repairing Mill and Were Only a Few Feet from the Shore—One Man Reached Shore

CAMPBELLTON, N. B., May 13.—This afternoon four men were drowned here while preparing to repair the haul-up chain of the Shives Lumber Company's mill. The men were drowned through the sinking of a rowboat. One man, who was a particularly strong swimmer, reached shore alive. About three o'clock the word was passed that four men had been drowned off the Shives Lumber Company's mill wharf. Soon scores of citizens were hastening to the scene of the accident. A number of men are at present engaged in making the necessary repairs to the Shives Lumber Co. shingle mill here. After dinner it was decided to replace the haul-up chain on its pulley. This pulley or sprocket wheel is under water and extends out into the river a few feet. It was necessary to use a boat. The men, Barney Mattias, Fred Clark, Simon Fenner, J. Rouse and H. Savidant procured a boat, carefully loaded the anchor and set out. The wind was blowing hard and quite a sea was running. When the desired locality was reached the men in the stern of the boat prepared to drop the heavy anchor overboard. Just what happened will never be known, but it is thought that the rocking of the boat overbalanced the men lifting the heavy weight and they dropped it. The piece of shaft went through the bottom of the boat, tearing off about four feet of planking, through which the water poured, and before the men were struggling in the water. They were heavily clothed and had on top boots. Savidant, a strong swimmer, was the only man to reach the shore. He was in a dazed condition and hardly knew what had happened or what had become of the others. The stern of the boat, weighed down by the anchor, sank to the bottom, but the water was not very deep. The boat floated out of the water. The tide was falling and a very swift current was running which carried the men away from the boat, and as they were weighed down by boots and clothing they had a poor chance. Immediately boats put out and grapples were procured, but it was not until six o'clock that a body, that of Joe Rouse, was found. The search was continued until dark and will be continued today. All the men are married, with families ranging from three to five children, and these unfortunate people have the sympathy of the community.

AVENGE CHURCHILL ON SUFFRAGETTES

His Sympathizers Break Up Meeting at Cardiff. Bells, Whistles and Rattles in Imitation of Suffragette Who Persecuted Him at Dundee. LONDON, May 12.—Miss Maloney's persecution by ringing a bell at Dundee which her Winston Churchill tried to speak, and who broke up three of his political meetings has been avenged by the people who favored Churchill on other suffragettes, who had arranged a meeting at Cardiff. They are apparently in no way responsible for Miss Maloney, but it was enough that they were suffragettes. The hall was packed. All the audience seemed to be hostile, although a large proportion of those present were women. Nearly everybody seemed to be equipped with some instrument capable of producing a hideous din. Bells predominated, but whistles, trumpets and rattles abounded, and all sounded in full chorus to the accompaniment of shouts of "Ravage for Dundee." The suffragettes were not allowed to utter a single sentence that could be heard. Well known public men appealed in vain for a fair hearing. The intending speakers were driven from the platform. Banners, mottoes and literature were seized, and furniture and windows smashed. The disorderly crowd overflowed into the streets, where they kept the police busy.

THE JUDGE OF THE LAND.

"But these poems appear to be modern," remarked a blunt editor. "They are second-class." "I'll leave it to the highest authority in the land that they are first class," retorted the pretty verse scribbler indignantly. "Indeed, muse. And may I ask whom you consider the highest authority in the land?" "Why, Uncle Sam. Doesn't he charge me 2 cents an ounce for all the poems I send out? Isn't that first-class matter?"

TWO GOOD PERFORMANCES BY KIRK BROWN

Kirk Brown presented a very attractive double bill at yesterday afternoon's matinee.

In this Mr. Brown presented the character of the old country inn-keeper in a most touching and sympathetic manner.

The second play on the bill was "David Garrick." Mr. Brown was seen in this in the role of the famous actor.

Exceedingly attractive is the May number of "Rod and Gun and Motor Sports in Canada," published by W. J. Taylor at Woodstock, Ont. Dr. Murdoch, and maskinonge fishing by W. Hickson must call up memories and awaken thoughts such as only the fisherman can know.

GETTING AT THE BOTTOM OF THE LAPORTE MURDER

LAPORTE, Ind., May 14.—The possible determination that the globules of metal found by the mining operations in the Guinness farm yesterday were bits of gold used in filling or crowns for teeth is likely to be a development of importance in the case today. The specimens were turned over to the local jeweler last night and it is expected that he will report on them soon. The mystery has reached a stage where the determination of such facts is even more distinctly to be expected. Yesterday's developments did little to elucidate any of the unsolved problems.

If We Could Look at the Heart of a Pale-Faced Person!

Few people ever stop to consider what pallor to the countenance means. In the first place it indicates an absence from the blood of the rich, red, life-giving elements so requisite to health; and in the second place it indicates a weakened heart action. These two things act and react. If we could look at the heart of one of those pale-faced people, we would see it flabby, weak and palid. No wonder they are easily tired, get out of breath quickly, have palpitation, are nervous and down-hearted. Their muscles are poor, their stomachs disordered, and their lives are seldom free from misery. Let them take Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills; there is no remedy to equal them for making pale faces rosy, weak hearts and slinky nerves strong, flabby muscles firm, and infusing new hope and ambition into life. Mr. W. J. Churchill, Lombardy, Ont., writes: "I was troubled for three years with a weak heart and nervousness. I could not sleep and over so little food would distress me. I also had faint and dizzy spells, and doctoring with three doctors but was growing worse. After taking three boxes of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills I feel as well as ever I did. They are the best pills on earth." Price 50 cents per box, or $1.25 at all dealers, or mail direct on receipt of price by The T. Millburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

BAILIFF'S SALE

There will be sold at Public Auction tomorrow, FRIDAY, at 11 o'clock, at 81 Clarence Street, the following article, the same having been distrained for rent: ONE SEWING MACHINE. R. HEPFER, Bailiff. May 14th, 1908.

HER MOMENT OF WEAKNESS

By CECILY ALLEN.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

She had always been distressingly capable and competent.

"I don't believe Beatrice ever had a headache or a nervous spell like you girls have," Harry Dalton had remarked one day to his two sisters, absorbed by bonbons and new novels, and wrapped in indifference and silk negligee.

And the tone in which she spoke was not entirely complimentary. In fact a distinct note of personal injury rang through it. For how can a man assume an attitude of protective civility toward a girl entirely capable of doing for herself.

Beatrice never dropped her fan or her handkerchief, nor came into the drawing room with her gloves buttoned, nor gave opportunity for the little services which other women to have demanded of Henry Dalton since he had risen to the dignity of knickerbockers.

Yet without, Beatrice Craig was no think if not feminine. She wore the softest and most clinging of fabrics, she played golf, but did not court bare arms and tan. She wore tailored suits but softened them with delicious frou-frou bows of lace at her throat. She was ruffy and fluffy—but she never tore her ruffles and then asked for a pin to make repairs.

And if all these things she was before her father's failure and death, she was doubly inaccessible and impressive after reverse overtook her. Before that she had simply fenced with Dalton. Now she donned an armor that seemed well nigh invulnerable.

Directly the estate was settled up and the smallness of her inheritance was made known to her, Beatrice Craig had turned breadwinner, investing the pitiful little heritage in a smart shop where layettes of the most superlative fineness and beauty were sold.

In the front room with its exquisite fittings and scented presses, she exhibited wares selected to suit the macons among whom she had grown from girlhood to womanhood. In the rear room, she gathered the most expert needlewomen her purse could command, and all work was done under her direct supervision.

Her delighted clientele said that her success was founded on this personal oversight. Her doctor said that nervous prostration would inevitably result from her persistent, close confinement to business; her mother wept in sheer loneliness at first, and later drifted from their tiny apartment back to the old bridge-playing, novel-reading circle of gray-haired friends. And when Henry Dalton said he was not for repetition here. For having no niece or nephews, how could he offer a decent excuse for hunting a layette shop?

And now today, with Henry Dalton thrust into the dim background of the life when her father made all things lovely for her well-shod feet to walk upon, she was standing before her cheval mirror, preparing for a return just a brief return glimpse—to the old life.

Her mother had wept to some purpose. The doctor had said certain sharp things that were more effective than maternal tears—and so Beatrice had accepted the De Haven Smith warm invitation to spend the week end and perhaps a few days more at their lodge in the Catskills.

Beatrice surveyed with critical eye her smartly tailored traveling suit and then cast a smiling glance at the suit case where rested a delightful matinee, product of her own workroom. It would be good to lie abed mornings and drink her chocolate and wear the white crepe de chine, newly made over for the trip, to dinner. Old times—yes, she was strong enough now to stand an occasional dip back into old times.

"Beatrice, here's a C. O. D. parcel from Mason's—picked up a love of a waist for $175. Have you any money?"

Beatrice readjusted her veil to a more fetching angle, and murmured, as well as the pins in her mouth would permit: "Yes, mother, there's a roll of bills in my bag, the large pocket. Take what you think will last you until I come back."

An hour later Beatrice leaned back luxuriously in the parlor car, her unseeing eyes fixed on the Hudson panorama. It was good—just to do nothing. And when the call for luncheon came she felt hungry—and smiled. The doctor had said a change was all she needed, and here she was hungry already for the first time in weeks.

The obsequious dandy in charge of her table gave her the perfection of service, with one eye perhaps on the beautiful pigskin hand bag that rested against the window. That bag had been one of Dalton's gifts, and at that very moment the giver himself was sitting at a table behind Beatrice, watching her every move with hungry eyes. He knew that she was going to the De Haven Smith lodge. Mrs. Smith had boldly held this out as a bait in his invitation, but somehow he felt that the psychological moment for making his presence known had not yet arrived. He noted sometimes a new droop in her shoulders. Occasionally, too, she leaned her head on her hand between courses. This was the reaction which the doctor had predicted—but Henry Dalton did not know this. He thought only that she was slowly but surely killing herself by reason of her pride—and he must stand idle, dumbly, simply because he was so disgustingly rich that she would not listen.

And upon these bitter thoughts rushed the psychological moment. Miss Beatrice Craig, the independent and competent, opened her hand bag, the dark keenly observant, and slipped her hand into the large pocket. Her finger tips touched naught but polished leather. She tried the small pocket and drew forth some cards. She sat up very straight and dipped into her change purse, to find a dime, a quarter, and an old German coin, souvenir of Henry Dalton's student days in Berlin.

Her face turned scarlet, then white. A horrible nervous tremor swept over her. Frantically she turned everything out of the bag—to find almost anything a business-like, yet distinctly feminine person might own—except money. Like a flash she remembered her mother's request. She had kept it all—every penny of the flatly folded bill. "Take what you think will last you until I come back."

Painful words! Beatrice sent for the dining car conductor and explained the situation. He was polite, but behind the mask of courtesy she read amusement, or was it distrust?

She became haughty. "My host will meet me at the depot—until then—well, here are my rings—or my watch—"

The dainties had gathered at the table opposite Henry Dalton with heads together, lips parted in ironical smiles. He summoned his waiter sharply. "Anything happened to the lady?"

"Seems like she ain't got the price of her lunch."

Just at the instant Henry Dalton rose precipitately. Beatrice came down the aisle, her head high but her face ghastly. It was not the attitude of the conductor nor the grinning dainties, but a sudden faintness, a realization that for once her business ability, her supreme tact, her resourcefulness had failed her. She did not read this as a physical exhaustion. Her one grim thought was that she had lost her grip on herself.

And then came Henry Dalton with a hand outstretched, and the love of her shining in his eyes. "Beatrice, I am the most fortunate of men—"

"Oh, Henry," she said with a quaver break in her clear voice, "will you please—"

Henry Dalton carried her back to the stateroom in the parlor car. Henry Dalton took firm possession of her luggage and firm control of the situation. Henry Dalton all but lifted her into the De Haven Smith wagonette when they left the train. And Henry Dalton read the telegram, for which he paid, though it was sent C. O. D. to Beatrice Craig, and taking care of Beatrice and always shall.

And that was why the smartest layette shop in all New York passed to a new owner and Love came into its own.

CURIOUS HEALTH CURES

We of the twentieth century are given to being greatly amused and to feeling highly superior on reading of some of the ancient methods of combating disease. Such superstitions as that which led Aristotle to rub bears' fat on his temples to improve his memory.

We are apt to say that science has entirely done away with all such foolish superstitions. It would be surprising to know what Aristotle and other wise men of his time would say to some of the many peculiar treatments which are receiving the sanction of thousands of thoughtful people today.

The great French savant Metchnikoff recently startled the world by advocating a diet of sour milk. In defence of this he pointed to the fact that one of the professors of the Pasteur Institute in Paris, is reported to have said that the antidote to the poisons which accumulate in our bodies and cause the hardening of the arteries, is a queerly met with in old age, is sour milk.

Whether this treatment would cause the average mortal to live to 120 years—as the professor is commonly reported to have stated—will naturally have to remain unproven until years after most of us are dead and buried, but the fact that so learned a scientist has expressed such belief in the sour milk diet puts it in a very different class from some of the other freak treatments and cures which nowadays have made their appearance.

Why men should pick out grapes as an article of diet which will satisfy all their wants and keep them in perfect health is doubtless well known and fully capable of explanation by the adherents to this cause, who now make up quite a considerable sect. Grape sugar, of course, is a most nutritious and valuable article of diet, and water is so necessary in its use, when people as a rule drink altogether too little of it, that any food which contains a large proportion of this is to be commended. On the other hand, how the other constituents of a full diet are to be obtained in the grape seems to be known only by the enthusiastic supporters of this cause.

One of the most curious of all dietary reforms comes from a man who has discovered that his health is never so perfect as when he is eating five ounces of sand daily. The medical properties of sand have evidently not been sufficiently studied.

The presumption is that in this medical pioneer's case he does not look for his substances and nutriment in the sand, but eats it as a savory at the end of his meal, relying on the power which any inert power, like bismuth, has in warding off indigestion.

In Germany there are several institutions where the patients seek health by exposing themselves quite unclad to the action of the air and the sun's rays for hours at a time. Presumably this exposure of the body to the elements was man's custom in the first days of our race. But whether or after all these centuries of wearing clothes, this peculiar throwback to first principles can have any beneficial effect on the health, remains to be proved. Certain cases have undoubtedly been benefited by this peculiar regime, but they have been largely menial cases, where suggestion must have had a great deal to do with the cure. A treatment which has much of common sense principles to recommend it is that of the great diet sect.

FRUIT CURISTS. Although the cow is a fairly healthy animal, and will under natural conditions, remain healthy waking about all day long on its four legs and eating the fruit before going to bed, are loud in their praise of the apple.

Oranges for influenza have formed the subject for many a newspaper paragraph in the last few months. Nor are bananas forgotten, a believer in this fruit having written recently a long letter in one of the papers proving conclusively that an exclusive banana diet would do away with most of the ills of mankind. Pioneers in any line are always scoffed at, and it may be that the followers of some of these peculiar treatments have found the secret of long life and health.

The only difficulty to the unprejudiced and open-minded observer is that since they are so widely opposite in their rules it is impossible to follow more than one at a time, and, as far as such things as these sand and grape cures are not spreading, there is no doubt that the present time enthusiasts who pin their faith on the health-giving properties of individual fruits are becoming more numerous. The apple curists, who not only eat apples religiously with every meal, but (quite contrary to all the recognized tenets of home medicine) partake of the fruit before going to bed, are loud in their praise of the apple.

While it is to be hoped that the number of extreme faddists who go in for such things as these sand and grape cures are not spreading, there is no doubt that the present time enthusiasts who pin their faith on the health-giving properties of individual fruits are becoming more numerous. The apple curists, who not only eat apples religiously with every meal, but (quite contrary to all the recognized tenets of home medicine) partake of the fruit before going to bed, are loud in their praise of the apple.

The way the "booster" committee of the Board of Trade is working is a caution. Not content with adding sixty-five names to the board's membership list in a week the members of the committee are continuing to hustle in the hope that the five hundred mark will ultimately be reached. The committee have decided to assign two members to each business street in the city, so that a thorough canvass for members may be made.

Great interest is being taken in the Mitchell and Bilby meetings at the Douglas Avenue Christian church. Two persons were baptized last night and nine have made the confession in the last few evenings. Every Tuesday and Friday, at 4 o'clock, Prof. Bilby, the cartoonist, holds a service for children. Good crowds of children attend these and these services are fruitful of much good. Tonight Evangelist Mitchell will speak on "The Coming of Christ."

St. John is suffering from an epidemic of rats. Where they have come from no one seems to know, but during the past two or three weeks certain sections of the city have been literally overrun. In some houses not formerly afflicted, the rodents are being caught by the score. A lady who was under the impression that a rat had found its way into her house, set a trap and caught no less than eight while another is credited with having captured eleven in one trap in one night. Even on the streets in the evenings the creatures are frequently seen running from one side to the other, evidently seeking house not wholly occupied.

The C. P. R. is issuing a particularly attractive series of pamphlets illustrating the beauties of various routes which may be taken over the company's lines. One of the booklets is a prospectus of a ninety days' tour from Montreal through Japan and China, and contains a number of interesting photographs from the eastern lands. The other two booklets deal more particularly with the Empress line, one of them being largely given over to a description of the steamer, and of the places visited in a tour from Quebec to Europe. The third pamphlet is a series of post cards supposed to have been written by a bride to her mother on a honeymoon trip taken on the Empress. The booklets are very prettily gotten up.

CHANGES AMONG THE RENFORTH RESIDENTS

Several New Families Will Occupy Cottages This Summer

There will be a number of changes among the residents at Renforth during the coming season. Only one new house is being put up, the owner being Mr. Humphreys. This house will be constructed to accommodate two families and is situated nearer Terryburn than any of the others at Renforth. Mr. Fred. Murray, who has spent some years in his cottage at Renforth has decided to try a change this summer, and will go up the C. P. R. for the summer. His place has been taken by Mr. W. L. Stewart. C. J. Fleetwood will not occupy his cottage this summer, but has rented it to H. L. Garter of the National Drug Company. The Chateau has been leased by Mr. C. A. Chazy who has sublet one half of it to Mr. Woodley. Mr. C. O. Pose will again occupy his own cottage which he purchased from E. R. Chapman. One tenement of Mr. F. A. Dykeman's house has been leased to Miss Robertson, a part of P. A. Perkins to George Polby, and half of Alexander Watson's to Mr. Clarence H. Ferguson. These are about the only changes so far as are now known.

DEAF MUTE CLAIMS TO HAVE BEEN ROBBED

Joseph Holland Says He Was Assaulted, and Later Found His Pocketbook Missing

There was but one drunk on the police bench today. He was Joseph Holland, who claimed Ireland as his birth place. When asked what he had to say to the charges of drunkenness, the prisoner started the court by producing a small slate and pencil and wrote the words "I am a deaf mute" on the slate. He was sent to the cells for a couple of hours and then put in his berth with the usual understanding that he was to keep sober.

Holland writes that he came from St. Stephen and is en route to Bangor. He claims to have had $16 in his pocket yesterday afternoon, that two young men assaulted him on Main street by throwing him off a stove, and that when he picked himself up he found his pocket book and money was gone.

Some of the Carleton fishermen who evidently wish to get some return for the money they spend in taxes to keep the boat in commission, have started to use it for their own purposes.
