A. G. SMITH
POWELL'S BLOCK.*THE "CLIMAX"

Has Been Reached and Every Doubt Removed.

Fawcett's Furnace is the Best!

I NOW TAKE GREAT PLEASURE IN OFFERING MY

"Climax" Wood Furnace

to every one desirous of obtaining a first class Heating Apparatus at a moderate cost. This Furnace has been thoroughly tested throughout the New England States and has given perfect satisfaction, besides a large number of them have been in use in the Maritime Provinces for the past two years and from the experience of those using them, I do not hesitate in recommending them to be Far Superior to any Furnace in the Market.

The fire BOX is made wholly in one piece and heavily corrugated; this giving it great strength and a large heat radiating surface. The RADIATOR is of cast iron joined only at the base in same style as the Fire Box, so that smoke cannot possibly escape into the heated rooms, as is the case with many of the Wood Furnaces in use. An examination of most of the Wood Furnaces in use, will reveal to you the fact that they are all more or less warped and cracked with but one or two seasons wear, and cases exist where the so called cheap Furnaces have proved useless and had to be renewed within the space of one year.

I WARRANT THE "CLIMAX"

to last longer than any two Furnaces of other makes, give more heat with a less quantity of fuel and so very compact that it can be set up in many places where other Furnaces could not possibly be placed. The price has been reduced which gives the "CLIMAX" the preference far before all others. Estimates furnished and every Furnace put in Warranted to give entire satisfaction.

A CAREFUL INSPECTION OF THE "CLIMAX" IS SOLICITED.

CHARLES FAWCETT,
SACKVILLE FOUNDRY.STUDIO,

Opposite Brunswick House.

Until the first of June this studio will be open daily. These rooms have been tastefully fitted up expressly for the purpose, and in light, and scenery, instruments, etc., this studio with its present facilities is more on a footing with our Head Gallery in (Black's Store) AMHERST, when has no superior in the cities of the Provinces and is noted throughout for the excellence of the work it turns out. R. S. Pritham will personally open to all Sackville every Saturday. Meeting after would find much more convenient to sit by appointment. Sackville, April 9th, 1890.

COUNTY COUNCIL.—The County Council met at Dorchester yesterday, inspected the jail and transacted other business.

BASE BALL.—The regular monthly meeting of the Charter Oaks will be held in Stipendary Cahill's office on Monday next. All are invited.

LOANER SHIPMENTS.—R. B. Anderson, of Port Elgin has recently shipped a carload of lobsters valued at $2,000 to Hamilton, Ont., and another of equal value to Halifax. On Monday last Albert Scott was fined $1.00 and costs for drunkenness and disorderly conduct on Lower Main Street.

THE ladies of the Baptist church have decided to hold their fancy fair and strawberry festival on July 16th. Advertisement and posters next week.

SABBATH SERVICES.—A. F. Baker will preach at Bethel on Sabbath the 6th at 10.30 and at Abouhagan road at 3 p.m. Rev. W. E. Hall exchanges next Sabbath afternoon with Rev. Dr. Lawson. Rev. Mr. Lawson will preach at Salem at 3 p.m. and Mr. Hall at Westmorland Point at 3 p.m.

CHARLES WARMUND begins to inform his friends and the public generally that he is now prepared to do all kinds of watch and jewelry repairing at his store in Chignecto Hall block, where he will remain for a few weeks before travelling in the interests of his business. Ad.

EXCURSIONS.—During July and August the Intercolonial Ry. will on Saturdays issue tickets at a single first class fare, good for the double journey by all trains Monday, from Truro, Oxford, Junct., Amherst, Sackville, Dorchester, and Moncton to Parrsboro.

BAND CONCERT.—The Cornet Band gave their first open air concert, under the leadership of Mr. H. A. Hillcock, in Lower Sackville, on Saturday evening last, when a lengthy and much appreciated programme was given. The band have greatly improved during the winter and a lot of new music has been added to their collection.

LITTLE LORD FAUNTLEROY.—The Earl Lewis Company will produce the celebrated drama for the first time in Sackville on next Wednesday evening, July 9th. The St. John "Telegraph" in speaking of this company says: "This drama was presented last evening to a packed house and a better pleased audience is seldom seen leaving Mechanics Institute. This is the latest presentation of this beautiful story in this city and it made a decided hit. Miss Mabel Paige is the cleverest child actress ever in our city and impudently 'Little Lord Fauntleroy' to perfection. Miss Flint as 'Dearest' and Mr. Chapman as the 'Earl' had excellent chance to display their good talents. In fact the whole company are clever people, and Mr. Earl Lewis can congratulate himself upon securing so good a company."

PROF. CHISHOLM.—The many friends of Prof. Chisholm will be pleased to learn of his success as indicated by the following letter received by his brother, Mr. G. R. Chisholm, Pictou:—"Charles Chisholm has been taking lessons in harmony from me since the 1st of April. In that very short time we went through a very important chapter in musical theory, by modulation, and I must say that Mr. Chisholm not only worked his exercises carefully and industriously, but that in my long experience as a teacher of Harmony and Counterpoint of the Royal Conservatory in Leipzig, I never met with a pupil who went through the same difficult chapter quite so easily, and with so few mistakes, as Mr. Chisholm. Of course, I cannot give a full account of his musical faculties and progress before he has studied some months longer with me, but I am sure that he is gifted with much intelligence, with a true talent for the theoretical part of music, etc. Dr. P. V. Vellumster, Stuttgart, May 11, 1890."

THE revenue collected at the output of Bay Verte $684.85.—Output Rockport, $65.72.

A POLISHED RASCAL.—One of the most daring and coolest pieces of rascality on record, comes from Springfield and in which Sackville man plays the leading part. Mr. Geo. L. Moss, jeweller, of Springfield, having purchased the stock of Messrs Warmund, at Amherst, decided to sell out his interest in the firm, and place made arrangements with Levy and Michaels, of Halifax, to that end. The latter were to send a Mr. Anderson to fix the transfer. Mr. E. Anderson, of Sackville, by some means heard of this and promptly presented himself to Mr. Moss as the genuine Anderson, when he was given full possession of the store, and proceeded to take an inventory of the stock. Anderson then modestly intimated that he was about to be married, but his check had not come. Would Mr. Moss oblige him with enough for the purpose?

As the Halifax firm had written that their Anderson was perfectly reliable and that they would be responsible for all debt contracted by him, Mr. Moss gave him all he required and also got him the necessary outfit for the ceremony. Anderson was to marry Miss Dobson of this place, whose friends had repeatedly warned her of his character, which has never been creditable to him. But in spite of all remonstrance, on Wednesday morning they drove to Amherst and were married, returning to Springfield that night. Moss had written Levy of the arrival of Anderson, and when he reached Springfield on Wednesday, found a telegram advising him that there was some mistake as their Mr. Anderson was still in Halifax. Mr. Moss immediately had the bogus man placed under arrest, and on Thursday, the day following his wedding, he was lodged in Amherst jail on the charge of obtaining money under false pretences, and his broken hearted bride realizing too fully the truth of the rejected advice returned to her husband's home in Sackville. Besides the money obtained Mr. Moss says that he has lost several valuable pieces of jewellery. This trial is fixed for 5th inst. Both Anderson and his wife belong to respectable families who deserve the fullest sympathy.

Local Matters.

THE total output of two rotary mills is being shipped from Rockland station on Saturdays.

T. MCMAHON &amp; SONS, of Memramcook, recently imported ten horses from the Island.

Phor. J. W. ROBERTSON lectures in Amherst on Thursday next on Dairying and other subjects.

Messrs CHRISTIE, of Amherst, have added an addition of 50x30 foot to their premises. The increase of their business demands the change.

An injunction has been served on Mr. Willis, managing director of the Albert Railway, to restrain him from transferring that property.

SOME persons are attempting to poison cattle in Sackville. A cow belonging to Mrs. Keillor died and several others were affected.

Messrs Casey &amp; Son, of Amherst, have re-built their steam tannery and are at work again with their usual number of hands.

Mr. J. C. READ, of Pugwash, has purchased a steamer in Pictou which he intends to fit up as a tug boat and for carrying passengers to the Island. The closing exercises of the Dorchester public schools took place on Tuesday last. Speeches were made by Judge Landry, E. V. Tait and others.

At a recent meeting of the Amherst town council, a new bye law was recommended, prohibiting the beating of drums at certain hours on Sunday.

THE military camp at Moncton is now in full blast, and the men are drilling regularly. The recent rains made the grounds very soft, but they are drying rapidly.

On Friday night last Messrs Dickie Bros. store at Sackville was burglarized and a large quantity of goods stolen. Entrance was obtained by breaking a back window and the whole job looks like the work of local thieves.

Mr. SAMUEL J. CALHOUN, and family of Hopewell Hill, left recently for British Columbia, with the system of Mr. McLean, who, when he arrived at Midgie, could not give a satisfactory account of some missing enthusiasm.

When told by Mr. Joseph P. Niles, the locality of the discrepancy, he announced his ability to annihilate any number of Niles and then proceeded to work. After a contest of some few minutes, in which Mr. John Hicks became involved, Mr. Niles' residence partook of the appearance of a house made before the eyes of the onlookers. Mr. McLean's face was spotted through Mr. Niles' agency like a porous plaster. Stipendary Cahill has interviewed the parties. Messrs Hicks and McLean pay $2.00 and costs to the county's finance, and Mr. Niles will be tried later. A gun was used during the conflict, but not for slaying purposes.

SIPPING NOTES.—The brig Herbert arrived at Sackville, on the 10th ult.—The barque John Black, from Brunswick, was at Monte Video discharging on May 22nd.

SQUAT NOTES.—Mr. Jas. A. McQueen, of Pt. de Bute, has a fine colt by Sir Nutwood out of his Scadellair mare, Gypsy. It was dropped on Dominion Day. He has now two Sir Nutwoods, full brothers, and hopes to raise a span of valuable horses, both colts resembling each very much both in color and general appearance. Mr. McQueen purchased, a few days ago, a black mare by Blackwood, from S. Hayward &amp; Co., St. John, which he intends to breed to Peter Blair, Mr. J. A. Law's Saladin mare dropped a fine Peter Blair colt on Thursday night.

PERSONAL.—Mr. G. Hugh Harrison, M. A., principal of the Chatham Grammar school, was in town yesterday—Mr. and Mrs. Fred P. Thompson, of Fredericton, spent a few days in Sackville during the week—J. Walter Allis, son of Halifax, formerly of Sackville, is in town—Mr. Pella, a prominent merchant and exporter of Barbados is in the guest of Mr. Josiah Wood.

Rev. Mr. Wiggins has had the degree of M. A. conferred upon him by King's College—Prof. d'Angura, of Amherst, has severed his connection with Messrs Johnson, of Amherst, and has accepted a position in the piano ware rooms of Hallett &amp; Davis, Boston.

TROUBLE IN MIDGIE.—On Thursday last, the usually serene social sky, of Midgie was overcast by a cloud which, for the time being, threatened to rain disaster upon the residence of Mr. Joseph P. Niles and its occupants.

It appears that Mr. Niles, who is not an enterprising as well as patriotic temperament, concluded that Dominion Day was a good institution and should be duly honored by the people. However, that the recent wet weather might have dampened the ardor of his fellow citizens, he decided to get up a party, with the system of Mr. McLean, who, when he arrived at Midgie, could not give a satisfactory account of some missing enthusiasm.

When told by Mr. Joseph P. Niles, the locality of the discrepancy, he announced his ability to annihilate any number of Niles and then proceeded to work. After a contest of some few minutes, in which Mr. John Hicks became involved, Mr. Niles' residence partook of the appearance of a house made before the eyes of the onlookers. Mr. McLean's face was spotted through Mr. Niles' agency like a porous plaster. Stipendary Cahill has interviewed the parties. ## A LITTLE VENTURE.

Cornelia stepped from a Fifth avenue stage at Fifty second street. Being in an unsettled mood, she turned and strolled, with an enjoyment of aimlessness toward the east, though her proper destination was in the near west.

But she was fond of exploring New York by herself in those few intervals when she was not seeing it, as it were, professionally with Aunt Sarah and their New York relatives and friends—Willard Oliver among the latter.

She had declared to Willard Oliver that she didn't know how she should live through it when they went abroad in the fall if Aunt Sarah conducted the sight-seeing. He had asked if it was quite settled, their going. He had looked at her and asked her to pretend to be serious and sulky. Yes, pretended!

Sully on her account? He! Oh, no! For of course he knew all about her. When they were any danger of people not knowing it that she was Aunt Sarah's orphaned and adopted niece, and not her heiress, she always obeyed a nervous desire to set them right immediately. But of course Willard Oliver knew it.

She remembered that it had occurred to her just to mention it the day he had taken them, being down town, into his sumptuous looking law office, where he had a client wait while he took them up on the roof for the view. She had meant, indeed, to tell him, for further clearness, all about her several schemes for self-support since her graduation from Madame Monfort's and of Aunt Sarah's horror and calm defeat of them each in turn; but he had given her no chance.

She had frowned at the thought of all he had done for them. Why had he done it? He had not taken them to the theatre more than once or twice, but he had taken them five times. If he would let them alone! He a rich New York lawyer, and she—Then suddenly, and with an indignant surprise she found herself crying well, it was high time to go home! If Aunt Sarah should know her condition she would have put her to bed. She found herself in Third avenue, strolling northward.

A Night With Snakes.

"I passed a night once that, could the sheer terror I suffered in it have affected my brain, it would have left me a gibbering idiot," said a well known merchant of Orange Town. "The night was that of the great storm of '86, which destroyed the town of Sabine Pass. When the great tidal waves came rolling in, I saw the houses were bound to go, and I made for the tallest live oak tree in sight, preferring to trust to its roots holding than to any work of man's. Well, though, as you may suppose, at my age I was pretty awkward at climbing trees, that sweeping, maddening world of water, was a great incentive to activity, and an offer of stiff joints, so I succeeded in reaching the top of the tree, but I found even there I was hardly three feet above the water."

"All around me were people in the trees, too, but though we kept calling out encouragement to each other, the situation was not the most cheerful imaginable, and I watched night come on with a feeling of dread. It was so dark I could not see my hand before my face, and presently I felt something cold and slimy flap against my cheek. I could not tell what it was, so I put out my hand and turned sick to feel the slimy horrid body of a snake swinging from a limb above me. It kept hitting me in the face, and you can imagine for yourself my fears that the reptile would fix its fangs into my cheek. But in a few minutes I felt something crawling on my leg, and I knew it must be another of the creatures. Well, they fairly took me, among their heads into my hands, wringing about my ankles, arms and neck, and one sought a bed in the bosom of my shirt, where it nestled against my breast, from which refuge I fancied I could see its devilish eyes gleaming at me. I dared not move or halloo for help—though for the matter of that there was none to be had—nor hardly breathe, lest the reptiles, which were apparently only seeking some warm shelter, should become angry and aggressive."

"Think of a night spent clinging to the slippery branches of a tree a few only above water deep enough to drown me ten times over, and unable to see if it was rising or not, with a dozen or so snakes in direct contact with the body. Well, every hour was a week, to me, and finally when the day did dawn, I was paralyzed with terror and cold, but, while I was sitting numb and horror-stricken, the snakes uncoiled themselves and dropped one by one into the water, going off no doubt to look for food. I counted thirteen of them, all big, deadly water moccasins. One of the rescuing boats took me off the tree about ten o'clock next day, and I just fell into the bottom of the boat in a faint. I had never been able to resist the scene of that night of horror!"—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

There was a blank pause when she had turned to him. He stammered her name and blushed for his rudeness of amazement and strove to speak, but he only faltered fragmentarily.

"It sounded like your voice," said Cornelia—she tried, with wide-open eyes, and a thumping heart and trembling lips, to smile—but I could not believe it was you."

"And I couldn't believe it was you," he said. "It is a mutual surprise."

He looked at her eagerly smiling through the latticed wires that topped the desk.

"I was on my way," he added—"I was hurrying tremendously to get to see you."

"I shall be going soon," she said. She held her head well up, though her chin quivered.

She felt ashamed that it should. He would have known it sooner or later—she would have told him; and why did she feel it somewhat cruelly ridiculous that he should find her there?

There was only one pleasant smile in his eyes as he looked at her, and she went on hurriedly. He was asking if he might not then, take her home, but she did not hear him.

"I will tell you I know you are wondering," she said. "But I—thought you knew I was poor—"

She tried to be calmly deliberate as she told him, and—she was puzzled that he should be incoherent.

And she did not know why he should keep on smiling, even when she accounted for it all—even when she anxiously gave him her motive—her long and her self-support, and independent of charity.

She put it at its worst; at least there was no worse to come.

She did not look at him again; she did not want to see how he looked after that.

But he laughed explosively, pushing back his head to look back his hair, with boyish exclamation.

"I didn't know that—that it was 'charity' he said breathlessly, trying to look over the grating. I didn't know it. I needn't stand quite in such awe of you any more, need I? If I am a poor devil, I am a poor devil, but there are hours to help out, and goes about on false pretences trying to make a good impression on people—certain people—trying to give them an effect of solid wealth because of his awe and an interest—a certain

The wires were too high. He stooped to the small oval change window.

"You couldn't take care of yourself," he whispered, with a mingling of scorn and exultation. "You'll have to let me take care of you."

She reached down her hat.

The shopkeeper, who had a roll of bills for the agent. His round face broadened.

"You are ogre-ified," he said, beaming.

The agent joyously laughing, gave a brief explanation.

"She wouldn't suit you, Schwab," he concluded, "she doesn't know anything about keeping books or making change."

"I am sorry," Cornelia faltered. She felt with all the rest—the blissful rest—ridiculously defeated.

She looked properly into her lover's twinkling eyes. He took down her jacket and held it for her.

"What will your aunt—what will your aunt—say to you?" he queried.

"She doesn't know it yet," Cornelia murmured. "I telegraphed her that I was detained. She'll think I'm at Cousin Mary's."

Schwab, cheerfully uncomprehending save for the main fact, waited for her at the door with a silver dollar.

"I'll pay, then, at I owe," he said.

"No, no!" cried Cornelia.

But her lover took it.

"We may need it," he said, drawing her hand snugly through his arm. "Or if we manage to worry along without it, I shall keep it as a souvenir."

At the International Typographical Union in session at Atlanta, Georgia, there are two female delegates, and about one hundred and fifty males. But this is the first time that female delegates have appeared there.

Told at the Savage Club.

MARRYING IN AFRICA AS DESCRIBED BY BICYCLIST STEVENS.

(London Illustrated News.)

Mr. Stevens was entertained at dinner by the Savage Club a few evenings since (Mr. W. E. Chapman in the chair) and related that marrying among the Wa-Tutis, as with most African tribes, simply a question of purchasing the bride from her parents. The price of one of these oligarchical and head-bejewelled damsels (presumably beads and all) is three to four cows.

The coy damsel, in accordance with an ancient custom of the tribe, affecting to flee from the consummation of her happiness, runs away and hides in the hut of some relative. Collecting his friends, and armed with the search warrant of time honored custom, the groom then enters and searches house after house where his fiancée's hide may be concealed.

At length the shrinking maiden is discovered, amid much merriment, and is drawn triumphantly from her hiding place. Four of the groom's assistants, seizing each an arm or leg, then carry her off to her new home.

Longest Speech on Record.

HOW LEGISLATOR DE COSMOS SPOKE FOR TWENTY-SIX HOURS.

The longest speech on record is believed to have been made by a member of the legislature of British Columbia named De Cosmos. It was in the interest of the settlers who were to be ousted from their lands. De Cosmos was in a hopeless minority. The job had been held back until near the close of the session; unless legislation was taken before noon of a certain day, the act of confiscation would fail.

The day before the expiration of the limitation, De Cosmos got the floor about 10 a. m., and began a speech against the bill. Those in favor of the bill could but little for what they supposed would be an hour or an hour and a half speech from De Cosmos, thinking they would have no trouble in putting it on its passage as soon as he was through. One, two, three, four, and five o'clock came, still De Cosmos talked as though he had ages to finish his remarks. At six o'clock he produced a fearful bundle of evidence; then for the first time, a suspicion of the truth dawned upon the majority—De Cosmos intended to speak until noon of the next day, the time for adjournment, and thus kill the bill! They tried to shout him down with their frequent and noisy interruptions, but soon saw that that only gave him a chance to digress and make his talk less laborious. At midnight, the members slipped out to lunch and returned only to fall asleep in their seats; still De Cosmos went on. Day dawned over the sleepy assemblage with tired looks and bloodshot eyes; still the settlers' hero kept the floor. Six hours more of talk and noon, the hour of adjournment came to the baffled majority; a single man had triumphed. His lips were cracked and his chin smeared with blood from the cracks; he tottered and fell from sheer exhaustion but the land was saved. De Cosmos had spoken twenty-six hours.

The Texan Cow Boy.

Cow-boy life has in the last years lost much of its roughness. The cattle barons have discharged most of the men who drank, and have frowned so persistently upon gambling that little of it is done. Cards and whiskey being put away, there is small temptation to disorderly conduct; so it is only when they reach some large city, and are not on duty, that they indulge in a genuine spree.

On the ranches kept under fence they have little to do when not on the drive or in branding time, the cattle are safely enclosed. But they must take their turn at line riding, which means a close inspection of the fences, and the repair of all breaks and damages. Where night overtakes them, there they sleep, staking their horses, and rolling themselves in their blankets. These rides of inspection take days to accomplish, for there are ranches in Texas which extend in a straight line over seventy-five miles. Those ranches which are not kept under fence necessitate more work. The boys must then keep their cattle in sight, and while allowing them to graze in every direction, must see that none in many thousands stray beyond the limits of their own particular pastures. They go then in parties, scattering all over the territory, for they must cover hundreds of thousands of acres in a day.

It is not a life of hardship, and pays well enough. Everything is furnished to them free of and of the very best, and they are paid besides thirty dollars per month. Each party stays out from two to three weeks at a time; but they take with them the finest of camp wagons, with beds and bedding, cooking utensils, the best of groceries of all kinds, and an excellent cook as money can employ. The prairies are full of game, and their rides are ever handy. The life is free fascinating and peculiarly healthy.

These men are exceedingly chivalrous to all women; this seems to be a trait born in them, as much a part of the moral nature as it is of the physical to have small feet, for it is seldom that a genuine Texas cow-boy can be found, who has the distinguishing mark of a handsome foot, and his boots are to him all that the sombrero is to the Mexican. He will deny himself many pleasures, he will go without a coat, and be seen in most dilapidated attire, but his boots must be of the best and most beautiful that the country can afford; high of heel and curved of instep, a fine upper and thin sole, fitting like a glove, and
