

CLEVELAND ELECTED.

What His Administration may be like.

Some of the Results Likely to Follow from the Democratic Success.

The official canvass of the New York vote gives Cleveland a plurality of 70,000. As upon the vote of the State the whole election turned, there is no doubt that the Democratic candidate will be inaugurated President of the United States, if he sees to see the fourth day of next March. And then what will happen? This is the question of the hour, and much depends upon its answer. The Democrats will then control the whole government of the United States, excepting the Senate, which is Republican. The success of Cleveland is, in one sense, a triumph for the Revenue Reformers.

Samuel J. Randall, the recognized leader of the Protectionist Democrats, says:

We must abolish every unnecessary office. We must bring the administration down to an economical basis. We must reduce the aggregate of the revenue, now enormous, because an overburdened Treasury is a great injury to any people.

Power is not given by the Constitution to collect one dollar beyond the necessities of an economical administration.

The wisdom of this observation is undeniable, and coming from such a source, it carries great weight with it. It will prepare the public mind for a reduction of taxation, a reduction which will doubtless take the shape of lower customs duties upon imports, for the section of the Democratic party, certain of the revenue reformers in the ranks of the Democrats, and the nomination of Cleveland was.

A Further Evidence of their Growing Power.

The independent Republicans are also for the most part revenue reformers, and so closely was this question mixed up with Cleveland's candidature that one of the strongest arguments against him was that he was the choice of free traders and his election expenses were borne by British capitalists, and when it appeared, as it did for a time that Blaine had been successful, some of the Protectionist organs claimed it as a defeat for Free Trade. Probably no very radical steps will be taken, but perhaps among the first will be the abolition of the duty on raw materials. Last Mr. Randall would prove an obstacle to revenue reform if he proposed to put him in the Cabinet, and make him Secretary of the Navy, a post which he would be no more, if, as the Courier Journal says:

Upon the next Secretary of the Navy the important duty of constructing a navy will devolve. The new Secretary will have the disbursement of millions of dollars to make. He should be a man of experience in naval affairs and of incorruptible integrity. Mr. Randall himself probably would endorse this as he seems to favor.

A Vigorous Foreign Policy.

He is thus reported to—

The coming Administration must protect the American citizen wherever he may go, no matter where he is born. There must be no law to give him a right to be a citizen, but an actual use of the power of the Government wherever that citizen is. We want no entangling alliances with foreign Governments, and we will not allow them to interfere with the affairs of our sister republics on this side of the water.

There is a cloud, already a good deal bigger than a man's hand, hovering over Panama, and when the Canal is built, or perhaps before it, an opportunity for the application of the Monroe Doctrine may come, and Cleveland claims to be of the same political faith as the author of the political dogma of non-interference by European nations in the internal affairs of the Western Hemisphere.

In matters more purely local the public are promised some lively meat. The great railroad corporations, holding millions of acres of unenclosed land, are to be made disgorge; and the knowledge that something of the kind is likely to happen has already sent Union Pacific stock

On the Down Hill Road.

While the civil service law will have some effect as respects discharging a good many heads will fall, when the official gullibility gets fairly to work. It is said that on Thursday after the election Washington shopkeepers began to look over their books and see how accounts it would be judicious to close. The excitement in some of the departments, particularly those in which women are employed, was very great. New York was in doubt, but every body now seems resigned to the inevitable. The Democratic candidate has been elected. He has a majority of the electoral college, of the States, and of the people at large. If not a brilliant man, he is a level-headed one, and he is not a man of great intellect, but he has behind him as fine a lot of public men as any country in the world can boast of. His administration ought to be a grand success.

Covering the Boys.

"Who's president?" said a lonesome looking man, as he entered a place in this city where anti-Scott Act beverages may be found.

"Blaine," said the man who was leaning on the bar.

"Cleveland," said the chap over by the stove.

"Taint decided," said the fellow who was struggling to eat a pipeful of tobacco with his thumb nail.

"Yes it is," said the lonesome man.

"Better he drinks it taint," said the man by the stove.

"All right," said the lonesome man.

"Then who is president?" asked they all in chorus, as they gathered round so as not to be left out in the count.

"Arthur," said the lonesome man, and when he had got outside of his, he said, "Boys it trumps every time."

Sunday School Convention.

During the past three weeks a committee consisting of representatives of the Presbyterian, Baptist and Methodist Sunday schools have had several meetings and taken preliminary steps towards organizing a York County S. S. Association and holding a Convention some time in January. An interesting programme of addresses and discussions on practical topics connected with Sunday School work, has been arranged and half-a-dozen clever and enthusiastic speakers and workers from outside the county have promised to come to the convention and take an active part. Mr. John T. Clark has been appointed by the committee as their representative to call upon every pastor and S. S. Superintendent in the county and secure their co-operation and he will start on his mission on Monday next. During the trip he will gather all available information as to the number of schools, scholars in attendance etc., and the whole will be tabulated for use hereafter. A very large gathering is anticipated at the convention.

Nearly Completed.

The leveling of the Main Street in Marysville is nearly completed. The cutting down of the hill, and the filling up of the hollow at the road-side, have greatly improved and improved the appearance of the locality.

Bought his Discharge.

Mr. Thomas Wheeler, of Douglas, on Saturday last, paid the sum of fifty-five dollars for the discharge of his son out of the Infantry School band, of which he was a member.

The Land League.

It is said that the appointment of Mr. Woodward as Collector of Miscellaneous Licenses will have the effect of largely increasing the membership of Land League.

DANGER IN THE AIR.—In the chilling winds, the damp atmosphere, and suddenly checked respiration, colds are lurking. Haggard's Peculiar Balsam cures colds, coughs, asthma and bronchitis, and all complaints tending towards consumption.

THE PACIFIC SLOPE.

The Future of the Western Province of Canada.

What May Come to Pass in the West By-and-by.

Most of us, who have all used to study in schools twenty-five years ago, continue many things about America, which read in the light of our subsequently acquired knowledge appear very odd. Our great north-west was described as "a cold barren country where the soil is so rocky and thin that only moss, shrubs and a few stunted trees can grow upon it," and as for British Columbia it was not considered worth mentioning at all. Even of late years it has not been an unusual thing to hear

British Columbia described.

And yet my opinion of our Western Province which regards it as more than a land desolate to become the seat of important industries, and the home of a prosperous people, scarcely varies by the facts. It is not possible, of course, to foretell with accuracy the future of any country, but when we find one which possesses in geographical position, in climate, in forest and mineral resources, and in the character of a large portion of its soil the elements which are the basis of a long continued prosperity, it is only reasonable to anticipate that such will be its lot unless gross mismanagement produces other results.

Our western province lies almost entirely in a more northerly latitude than New Brunswick yet except in the higher mountain ranges or towards its northern boundary—

The Climate is Delightful.

Victoria is said to have a finer climate than any other city in the world. It is a beautiful city on a sunny harbor, and in fact is a land of perpetual summer at least in one where there is nothing that we would call winter. A great ocean current, corresponding to the Gulf Stream, but of greater density, starts from the shores of Farther India, and the islands which cluster to the eastward, and sweeping up the Chinese coast to Japan swings to the east in a magnificent curve and over to the American coast, and it sweeps the west of British Columbia and Washington Territory. On the coast of Vancouver Island, which arrests the progress of this current and whose mountains condense the moisture carried by the sea breeze, it rains incessantly, but on the other side of the island and the mainland the wet season is not long, nor is it very disagreeable. Queen Charlotte's and Fraser Sound form immense havens, and with numerous river harbors, and here many expect to before many years. If we follow the trade between America and Asia across similar proportions to that between Europe and America the future of the ports along these Sounds and at the termini of the Canada and Northern Pacific railways will surpass the most hopeful anticipations. In China, Japan, Farther India and the Indies entered the sea is a bit more practical, if not so pathetic. Instead of reading prayers to Conquering and Glorious, the British Empire, we should be reading prayers to Private Commerce, whose condition was most desperate and critical.

A Vast Commerce Centre.

Prospects of a Collision between France and England.

Special to the Gleaner.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—The Times' Foreign correspondent telegraphs that foreign operations in the vicinity of the city. The effect upon trade is most disastrous. The English are alarmed at the continual accessions of strength of the French squadron and the supineness of the English government in neglecting to equip the English fleet nearly equal to the French who are flushed with success. A collision sooner or later is regarded as inevitable.

They are Thinking It Over.

Special to the Gleaner.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—The Conservatives of both Houses of Parliament held a meeting at noon today, at the Carlton Club, to consider the compromise offered by the Government last night, with reference to the Franchise Bill.

He Denies the Charge.

Special to the Gleaner.

PARIS, Nov. 18.—Gen. Briere de Lisle denies the report that 500 Chinese were beheaded at Kehl. He admits that 600 were killed by bullet or bayonet wounds, but does not state whether they were killed after or during battle.

Indications.

Special to the Gleaner.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—Colder, generally fair weather, northerly winds becoming variable, higher barometer.

The Shop Hours Regulation bill which Sir John Lubbock will soon introduce in the House of Commons will provide that a young person shall not be employed in a shop for a longer period than twelve hours in any one day, and that where any person is employed in a shop on condition of being liable to a fine not exceeding five pounds for each person so employed. The bill is to apply to England, Scotland, and Ireland.

An understanding has been arrived at between France and Switzerland for the construction of a tunnel through the mountains of the Alps, Lyons and Geneva. The railway company has been instructed to study a project to be submitted to the three States interested, and to furnish an estimate of the amount which it would itself undertake the construction of the tunnel on condition of a grant from each of these three States.

A Wonderful Nerve.

PORT JARVIS, N. Y., Nov. 18.—An instance of great nerve and endurance is reported from the Suez Canal. A division of the New York, Lake Erie & Western Railway. While a freight train on that division was approaching Elmhurst, a brakeman named Daniel Thomas was misled. Two men and a locomotive were sent back to look for him, but he had evidently fallen from the train. A mile this side of Seely's bridge they met Thomas walking towards Elmhurst, on the east-bound track. His clothing was nearly all torn from his body, and he was covered with blood. His right arm had been cut off at the shoulder by the car wheels and Thomas was carrying a severed member in his left hand, which was clasped about the fingers of the severed hand. His collar bone was broken in two places, four ribs were fractured, his head was badly cut and he was terribly bruised. He had been thrown from a car by a sudden lurch of the train. He said as soon as he could recover himself after the train had passed over him he regained his feet, limped up his arm, and started up the track hoping to meet help. He had walked nearly a mile when he was overtaken by the locomotive. Notwithstanding his terrible injuries Thomas never lost consciousness. He was taken to Dr. Updegrave's, where he was given all the aid possible. Notwithstanding his wonderful nerve it is feared that his wounds will result fatally.

NEWS SUMMARY.

Although the Marquis of Lorne was one of the noblest non-combatants recently for the Chancellor of Glasgow University he did not receive one vote.

A young tramp has escaped from a menial traveling salary to Marlborough, in England, and is at large in the neighborhood of Devizes. It was last seen on the Salisbury Plain.

The Alsace-Lorraine elections have been watched with natural interest in France. The anti-anarchists have, as heretofore, carried the vote, and by about the same majority. At Strasbourg the numbers were 6,665 to 2,558, while in Metz they were 5,770 to 2,714.

General Paget, son of Lord Alfred Paget, and a brother of Arthur Paget, who married Miss Stevens of New York, was shooting in Busby Park in company with Lord Alfred and his own wife, when the lady, who was carrying a double-barreled gun, accidentally shot her husband in the calf of one of his legs.

Lieut. Laurovi, of the Italian army, who slapped and insulted a brother officer, has been sentenced to three months' imprisonment, and has been tried by court martial for the former offence and condemned to two years' military reclusion and the forfeiture of his commission. The court martial took no cognizance of the duel, for, while the pencil could regard dueling as a crime, though a very venial one, the regulations of the Italian army compel an officer to fight with any one who insults or challenges him, on pain of expulsion from the army.

GRITTY EXPEDITION.

Commander Schley's Report Continued.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Nov. 7, 1884.—The latest sensation in connection with the Greely survivors is the ordering of Congress of the party, to Fort Warren, Boston harbor. It will be remembered that Combel was the weakest of the party at the time of the rescue; indeed it was only a question of a few hours as to his death. Of his condition Commander Schley says in his report:

"The latter was cold to the waist; all sensation of humor gone; his eyes were speechless and almost breathless; his hands were cold and his feet were numb; he was the weakest of the party, and the order sending him to Fort Warren, while all the other men were being sent to the hospital, and then proceeded to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the time of the expedition, the position was given to the best soldier in the company, and one that is considered the best in a cavalry company. This position he gave up to go to the hospital, and one of the best and most active members of the party. Why, then, should he be sent to the hospital, and then proceed to Washington, is causing a vast deal of talk as to the why and wherefore. Consider, at the

