Russian Army Slowly But Surely Effecting the Retreat.

of Aug. 24-Sept. 4-Owing to Russian There Is Strong Possibility of Battle a Yentai-Left and Centre Jap Armie Halt on Taitse Biver-Attack Due.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 7.—There had been no news from Gen Kuropatkin since Monday afternoon. This is attributed to the interruption of attributed to the interruption of direct communication with the commander-in-chief, owing to transfer of telegraph office to Mukden, whither messages have to be sent by courier. The utmost confidence prevails at the War Office that the Russian army is slowly but surely effecting the retreat without serious risk of being-cut off. Nevertheless intense anxiety is felt throughout the whole nation, and this feeling is shared by the Emperor.

Late Tuesday evening the Associated Press obtained the following stateed Press obtained the following statement from the War Offices: No telugrams whatever were received to-day (Tuesday). It is inferred that only Russian troops remaining at Yental. Sept. 6, are on the rear-guard, whose mission is solely to retard the enemy's movement. It is quite consistent from the position of affairs to suppose that the position of affairs to suppose that a portion of the Japan-ese forces entered Yentai, there being no intention to hold this point, as it is of no intrinsic importance. The is of no intrinsic importance. The stores there have already been re-moved, and whatever was not removed was burned.

Tokio, Sept. 7.—An extended report from Field Marshal Oyama, the Japanese commander-in-chief in the field, was received in Tokio yesterday and made public last night.

day and made public last night. It is largely devoted to a review of the fighting which took place between Aug. 24 and Sept. 4:

The announcement that the Russians will retain possession of the Yentai collieries, indicates a strong possibility of a battle there. Yentai is the only colliery in Northern Manchuria, and its possession is of vital importance to the Russians in connection with the operation of the importance to the Russians in con-nection with the operation of the railroad.

Field Marshal Oyama reports that Field Marshal Oyama reports that a portion of the Russian troops held Yingshiwisau, south of Yentai, and that General Kuroki's right is in close touch with the Russians. He announces also that the left and centre Japanese armies, under the command of Generals Oku and Nodzu, have halted on the left bank of the Taitse River and that it is his intention to despatch a portion of them to occupy the heights north of Muchang and along the railroad. them to occupy the heights north of Muchang and along the railroad. Gen. Kuropatkin burned all the railroad bridges over the Taitse River.

General Kuroki encountered desperate opposition in the battle on the heights to the west of Haiyingtai, where he fought continuously and fercely for four days before he succeeded in dislodging the Russians. It is manifest that the stubbornness of the Russians defence at Haivingtai the Russians defence at Haiyingtai saved the Russians line of retreat and averted an overwhelming disas-

Child Instantly Killed.

Hamilton, Sept. 7.—Agnes Hazel Black, the eight-year-old daughter of James B. Black, Fullerton avenue, was instantly killed last evening about 6 o'clock in a most distressing accident. It is supposed that she had been riding on the back of a corporation wagon driven by Andrew Smith. In some way she slipped off and fell under one of the heavy wheels, which passed over her head, crushing her skull and breaking her collar-bone and left arm. She was killed almost instantly. Coroner McNichol decided not to hold an inquest.

Ald. Edmondson's response was quiet and dignified. He frankly admitted the right of the people to an explanation of any public act of their representatives, and the justification of the people's press in asking for it. He stated his position fully, fearlessly and honorably—his allegiance to the cause of permanent pavement improvements, his desire to give the people precisely what they wanted, and his own convictions as to the best pavement possible. He gave an honest man's honorable denial to the rumors concerning improper conduct in advancing the claims of any pavement in so far as he had knowledge of the matter, and expressed a preference to tender his resignation rather than be mixed in any dealings discreditable to himself, his high office as a public representative or the good name of the city he served. Ald. Edmondson's explanation appealed to the people present as adequate and right, and apparently left him in a stronger position than ever before as a safe man, a conscientious man and an honest man.

Ald. Piggott's opinion of the people's rights to an explanation Ald. Piggott's opinion of the people's rights to an explanation — as evidenced in his speech — is somewhat different. His utterances were characterized with noisy declamation and brovado. The press had no right to ask these explanations, neither had the people any right to discuss the actions of their aldermen, on the streets or eisewhere. The Council Board was the only place where such matters might be dealt with. With considerable gusto Ald. Piggott wished his name had been used in the press. Then there'd be doin's. To prepare the street by the completion of the sewer and necessary intakes, the Council have acted with wisdom and foresight—and the course, we believe, will be commended and endorsed by the whole community. There is little doubt, too, that it will be abundantly vindicated next spring by the amicable and unanimous laying of some standard and permanent payement on the thoroughfare.

An interesting sidelight was thrown apon aldermanic views of public sentiment and of the people's rights to comment upon the public actions of their representatives, by the discussion which centred around The Planet's article in which certain matters were drawn to the attention of the Council, with the recommendation that they be dealt with. The people were accorded replies from two aldermen—and thay will be interested in noting the difference with which their opinions are considered and dealt with.

DEFEAT OF THE RUSSIANS. Latest despatches from the far east tend to strengthen the conviction that the result of the three days' fighing around Llaoyang was the crushing defeat of the Russian army It is quite evident now that the retreat of the Russians across the Taitse river was not a piece of brilliant pre-arranged strategy, but a movement prompted by bitter neces sity. Kuropatkin accepted battle at Liaoyang, after having strongly fortified his position there, because he believed that he could not be dislodged and consequently that the Japanese armies would be checked if Japanese armies would be checked if The Rev. Dr. Davidson is a guest not defeated and compelled to retreat. He had guarded against flanking movements, and evidently planned to make the battle of Liaoyang the decisive engagement of the campaign. But Japanese strategy and fighting force once more prevailed. The fact that in evacuating Liaoyang the Russian army blew up the magazine and set fire to the enormous quantities of military stores which had been accumulated there is enough to indicate the character of the reverse to the Russian armies. Reading between the lines of the despatches, even those from St. Petersburg, it is plain that the retreat strongly resembled a rout. When reg ments lose half their strength during a retreat of a few miles it is easy to guess the nature of that retreat.

But if the Russian soldier is not unconquerable, the optimism of the St. Petersburg officials is. Even in the news of this great disaster they find matter for comfort and for boasting. If Kuropatkin had not ordered a withdrawal to the right bank of the Taiste, say they, he would certainly have been surrounded and compelled to surrender; therefore "the commander-in-chief has actually converted what might have been disaster to himself into what is regarded as a reverse for the Japanese.'

After this, we are likely soon to learn from St. Petersburg that the fall of Port Arthur is really the best thing that could happen from the Russian point of view, and would reflect great credit upon General Stoes-

And What they Eat Must be Digest-ed — Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets What They Need.

Students, writers, book-keepers clerks and all others who sit inside Students, writers, book-keepers, clerks and all others who sit inside and work their heads for a living, should be alive to the important part the stomach plays in the day's work. If the stomach is right, the mind works easily, the pen runs smoothly and all is one grand, sweet song. But when the stomach is wrong all the rest is out of gear. Let us show by example. Let Hene Trudel, a student of Three Rivers, Que., give his experience:—

EVERY WOMAN IN POOR HEALTH

Has an awful struggle. Lots to do all kinds of worry, must contend with loss of sleep, poor appetite and tired nerves. Her only desire is for more strength and better health. This is exactly what comes from using Fer-rozone, the greatest tonic sickly wo-men can possibly use. Ferrozone makes the blood tingle and grow red, the cheeks grow rosy, the eyes bright. Ferrozone invigorates the body, develops new strength and makes life worth living. Ferrozone is the sort of tonic that builds up, it gives one a reserve of nerve force and establishes such healthy conditions that sickness is unknown. Let every woman use iFerrozone. Price 50c.

FIX BOUNDARY LINE

Toronto, Sept. 3 .- An Ottawa de spatch says it is highly probable that the minister of marine may order a survey of the Detroit river between Detroit and Lake Erie, in order to delimit the international boundary. delimit the international boundary. The last survey was made in 1822. It is said, and of late, owing to physical changes, it is hard to tell where the line of demarcation between Canadian and United States territory extends. This makes difficult the enforcement of the fishery laws, for some oftenders when caught have pleaded that they were in United States waters, and, in view of the doubt existing they could not be proceeded against.

THE SKYLARK'S SONG

POINTS OF VIEW.

ot Alone Is It a Wonder of Melody, Tone and Quality, but Its Volume Is Astounding and Its Circumstance

For its music alone the song of the lark is almost the most melodious of any bird's. The tone and quality are admirable and the volume of sound astonishing. It can be heard clearly when the lark has mounted, as it sometimes does, beyond recognition by normal eyesight. The volume of sound is also most noticeable when a caged lark is heard, singing as it does far nearer to the hearer than the bird in the sky. But apart from the quality and music of the song the circumstances in which it is uttered render it an astonishing feat.

Every other considerable songster is quite aware that singing entails much physical effort. Consequently it takes care to secure a good platform to sing from. A thrush or a blackbird or a robin nearly always selects a top shoot or projecting bough, preferably a dead one, on which it sits and sings, never moving its position, and without any objects round it to hinder the carry of its voice. The blackcap and nightingale and some of the warblers sit in bush to sing, but the whitethroat and even the hedge sparrow choose the topmost twig. The whitethroat sometimes sings when descending, and some of the pipits and the wood lark do the same, the meadow pipit singing a feeble little song as it makes a short protracted song the lark adds the great nuscular exertion of a steady upward flight, usually carried out not by scaling the air in gentle circles, as in the soaring of the larger birds, but by a vertical climb made by the incessant beating of its wings. Wordsworth's recognition of it as the notes with no intermissions or breaks whatever.

A lark will soar and sing during space of ten minutes consecutively. The rapidity with which the pectoral mus cles are working during this period may be judged from the fact that the bird makes not less than from five to beats are usually in sets of from three to five, the bird pausing for a moment as if to take a fresh start after the interval. When chased by the merlin falcon, skylarks make their finest exshaking off its pursuit during the ascent. Others prefer to rise by flying in spiral which the falcon imitates. Mr. E. B. Michell, in his volume on "The Art and Practice of Hawking," says: "The one bird may be circling right to left and the other from left to right, and neither seems to guide the direction of its rings by any reference to those which the other is making. It is now a struggle to see which can get up fastest, and it is astonishing to see to what a height such flights will sometimes reach. As soon as a lark is 800 feet high it can drop, almost like a stone, into any cover within a radius of 200 yards from the spot just under it, allowance being made for the effect of the wind. But 800 feet is not high for a ringing flight; at least there is nothing unusual about it. A lark does not go out of sight until it is much above that height, and it is no extraordinary thing for it to do this." The lark seldom sings late in the day. It can be tempted to rise in a burst of nelody for one final ascent if the ever ing sun breaks through the clouds after rain, but as a rule it is silent long before the sun has descended into the western bed of cloud. We have Milton's authority that it is up and in song before dawn. But those who have Heard the lark begin its flight And singing startle the dull night are not easily found, though in the height of the pairing time it may very possibly be beforehand with aurora in greeting its mate. But as a rule the lark sings at sunrise, as the ortolan eats. Darkness depresses it and keeps it mute, but a gleam of sun is the signal for it to ascend. Obviously rain would make it most difficult for it to soar, both by adding to the weight of its body from the moisture caught in the feathers and by wetting the webs of the pinions, so the lark only soars in the dry as a rule. It is one of the most sensitive and best of nature's weather gauges, for when the larks begin to sing it is almost certain that rain has ceased for some time, if not for the day. It is the cock lark which sings.

William Cobbett noted that one was just soaring and beginning to sing

ook Custom That Never Attained Any Very Extensive Usage.

Stichometry, from the Greek stichos, measure, is used in two senses. The first applies to the subject matter of Hebrew literature, whereby the rhyth mic lines which constitute the parallel ism of the poetical books are portioned off from one another; the second to an entirely artificial method of measuring off the contents of each book by so many lines of fixed or average length.

The former is of great antiquity and may have been introduced by the sa-cred writers themselves. The latter is due to Euthalius of Alexandria, 458 who applied it to the Pauline epistles and later to the gospels.

St. Jerome professed to have founded his method upon a similar treatment of the text in existing manuscripts of Demosthenes and Cicero. His original rrangement is thought to be represent ed by the Codex Amiatinus at Florence and that of Euthalius in the Codex Claromontanus at Paris.

As this system left a large propor-tion of each page blank and as vellum was costly, stichometry never attained any very extensive usage.

The life history of these insects in dudes a motionless pupa stage, similar to the chrysalis of a moth or but-Before passing into this dormant and helpless condition, the young of certain scale bugs make their into the earth, and then a sticky fluid exudes from their bodies and quickly hardens into a protective coating, re sembling plain or colored glass, and causes them to look something like beads, so that in some parts of the world they are known as "ground pearls.'

The best known of these are dug out of the earth in the West Indies and strung into necklaces or other ornaments. Similar objects are prized and worn by the natives of other regions.

KEROSENE OIL.

Is Paramn In Great Britain and Refined Petroleum Elsewhere.

Petroleum (petra, rock; oleum, oil) is a liquid bitumen exuding from rocks. Paraffin (parum, little; affins, akin), discovered by Reichenbach in 1830, in investigating the tar produced in the distillation of wood, is a colorless waxlike solid, which he named from its extraordinary chemical indifference, its "little affinity" with anything. He afterward isolated from the same material a liquid oil, which he called eupion, very fat." For years both were re garded merely as chemical curiosities until it was realized that eupion forms the body of petroleum.

Pure paraffin resembles spermaceti and is inodorous and tasteless. Paraffin oil is chiefly a mixture of fluid hydrocarbons, and as it approaches gas more closely than any other illuminating agent and is cheap it has come into general use. Illuminating oils manufactured from petroleum are sold in Great Britain as "paraffin oil," in the United States as "kerosene" and on the continent as "refined petroleum," -London Globe.

Copperhead and Rattler. The copperhead isn't a bad looking snake, as snakes go, but it has a mighty bad reputation. In fact, it is generally is apparently without a friend or even an apologist. Although it won't chase you nor go out of its way to get a crack at you, it probably does more business per snake than does the rattler, the moccasin or any other of the venomous kind. It is said that where there is one there are always two copperheads, so when you smell green cucumbers look out, for that seems to be the only warning you will get of the presence of this reptile. The rattler is a little more polite, also more vicious, for after giving you timely warning it will star ground and fight like a good fellow, while the copperhead will run and hide.

Queens' Names on Oaks. Many English queens have choser oak trees in Windsor forest whereon their respective names, with the dates of their choice, have been commemorate ed by means of brass plates. In dif-ferent parts of the forest, with seats round them, are oaks bearing the names of Queen Elizabeth, Queen Caroline, Queen Charlotte and Queen Victoria. "Herne's Oak," mentioned in the "Merry Wives of Windsor" as being In Windsor park, was destroyed by gale on Aug. 31, 1863.

rightly wearing such clothes as any high class tailor would make for him, would compare favorably with any Greek of old, togged in his best. But neither sculptor nor painter can make so pleasing a representation of the man in close fitting clothes as he can of the man in flowing robes, not because the clothes are unhandsome, nor because they are unbecoming to the wearer, but because the artist presumptuously thinks the tailor who made the clothes did not know his ousiness, and does not think it worth while even to try to represent them as they are. As he generally repre-sents them on canvas or in stone they look as little like the sartorial things of beauty they are as a pallid corpse declared, smiling, "my position is somewhat different. Ald. Piggott seems to think he is put among those who have been bought and stayed bought—but there is to be a high price held out for me. Perhaps Barkis is willin'. They say every man has his price and a photo of King Edward on five dollar bills is a wonderful motive these days. This is the best thing that ever happened the Council and The Planet was right to bring it to the attention of the Council. It is a good thing for the press to make known the criticisms of the people—and public opinion was expressed on this matter in the strongest manner possible on the streets. The press can say a great deal without committing criminal libel. The question is, has public sentiment gone far enough to justify The Planet, Ald. Piggott has ears—I don't mean that they are too long (laughter)—and he knows what was everywhere expressed on the streets—unreasonably expressed no doubt,—that Piggott was much interested and Edmondson could soon abandon selling beef, and the little alderman was in the Barket Well, I dell you, they didn't get him at any event.

"I'think myself," continued Ald. Martin, "that the cat and dog fight between asphalt block and bitulithis is causing all this trouble. Look at the circumstances of this case. Did they appear legitimate? Why were outsiders, calculating Shylocks and schemers interesting themselves and not the residents? It was not bona fide expression of the ratepayers. The petition came, like Hanquo's ghost, in questionable shape. We heard from Mr. Houston and Mrs. Weldon of the tacties used—it was not of the people for the people. I voted to block it: I would vote so again. I pray the gods it may lie there for the next six months, then in the spring we can proceed with deliberation and calm in the people's interests."

DUTY WELL DONE.

The final decision by the City Cour cil re the Murray street pavement is to be commended. It does the aldermen credit and alleviates a very turbulent and unsatisfactory situa

It was to be expected that the aldermen interested would avail themselves of the opportunity afforded them by The Planet's article to place their position clearly before the ratepayers. This they did-and the citiens have the result before them. Ald. Edmondson evidently grasped the importance of the occasion and rose to it. Nothing could be more in jurious to the civic prosperity of our town than that a general indulgence in such street talk as was prevalent should go unnoticed and unchallenged Ald. Edmondson realized this, and his sturdy, straightforward statement last night will be accepted by the people. After ail, however we may differ, the people like a brave manone who is conscientious and courteous and stands by his guns. Ald. Edmondson has demonstrated this in this and other matters, and his word of honor given in a calm and dignified way last night will be unquestioningly received with happy assurance.

Because the strutting gobbler nakes louder racket and more vehement gestures than any other bird in the barnyard, it doesn't always follow that it is less puny and more courageous. Ald. Piggott's threats and insinuations didn't strengthen his utterances, but The Planet is quite willing to bear them all and with the meekness of a Moses if it shall be a humble instrument in aiding him to stand by his declaration to "act in the city's best interests" to the end of his term.

THAT PAVEMENT

Murray Street Residents Discuss the Situation - Differences of Opinion.

Some of the ratepayers on Murray street were inferv.ewed yesterday in reference to the pavement. Quite a number on the street are anxious to have the street paved, but not this year. Opinions very, however, as to the kind of pavement.

John Brown is not in favor of the pavement at all. He says he didn't understand the asphalt block petition when he signed it.

A. L. Sterling is very much in favor of asphalt block.

L. E. Tillson—I have probably the largest frontage of anybody desiring a pavement and I never was in favor of asphalt block, but I would take it if I cannot get bitulithic. When the Council laid over the bitulithic pavement till spring they should have done the same with asphalt block. If bitulithic is defeated fairly, I of course will support any other pavement.

Richard Cane wants a pavement

Richard Cape wents a pavement, but the work should not be hurried. He advises that the intakes and sewer be put in this year. Then the Council could ask for tenders next spring and the prople could select the pavement the people could select the pavement they wanted when they know the price.

E. Kempt favored asphalt block. He had signed for bitulithic and wanted a pavement. When he saw the others thrown out, he had circulated the petition for asphalt block. He hadn't received a cent for his work but he didn't blame anyone who had. The contractors had to pay anything that was paid and it didn't come out of the pockets of the rate-payers. The pavement would cost payers. The pavement would cost just as much anyway.

Chas. Barclay also wants a pavement, but he prefers bitulithic and objects to asphalt block being shoved on the ratepayers on the street. He claims that Mrs. McGregor's sgna-cure was secured through his name. Mrs. Weldon claims that her signature was obtained under what she considers unfair means. She said that she was promised that the pavement would not go down this year and that she wouldn't have to pay taxes for two years. Also that Mrs. Douglas had a chance to sell the property if the pavement was put down, and it was to help on the sale that Mrs. Weldon signed. Mrs. Weldon says that had she been a man would have told Henry Smyth he was a liar when he spoke at Council meeting last Monday night. In his speech he made several statements contrary to the facts.

MODEL SCHOOL

The Model School opened yesterday morning with an attendance of 28 pupils. One half of these are men. whereas formerly the attendance of men was about one-fourth or one-sixth of the whole class. Principal Plewes expects to have a busy term with the new curriculum. This is the largest attendance at the Model

School for the first day experienced n years.

There are eleven pupils from the Ridgetown Collegiate, nine from the Chatham Collegiate, one from the Chatham Collegiate, one from the Leamington High School, three from the Ursuline Academy, and the rest from the Wallaceburg, Thamesville

Highgate and Alvinston Public Schools.

The attendance at the Central School is much larger than last week and there were 100 pupils in attendance at the Central Kindergarten yesterday.

LUCKY 13

If you see Skip Harry Collins and spending a few days with Mrs. John Grandbois, Elizabeth St.

Bright young man, of good appearance and address, about seventeen years of age, who can furnish references, is wanted for office work. Address box 137, Chatham.

Necktie Pin was lost between Fitth street and the Central school lawn, on Moday evening. A liberal reward will be paid for its return to this office.

The reserve seat sale for the famous Plack West with Mrs. John McCorvie recklessly undertook to play Skip Collins and the other gentlemen mentioned, a game of bowls for the neckties. The result was 13 to 11 in favor of Skip Collins and Messrs. A. H. VonGunten and G. J. Peace, those other notéd bowlers one of these bright days, you'll know where they got them when you learn applied on the park on Monday. Skip A. Heath and Bowlers D. A. Hutchison and John McCorvie recklessly undertook to play Skip Collins and the other mentioned, a game of bowls for the neckties. The result was 13 to 11 in favor of Skip Collins and Messrs. A. H. VonGunten and G. J. Peace, those other notéd bowlers, wearing gay and giddy neckties one of these bright days, you'll know where they got them when you learn applied on the park on Monday. Skip A. Heath and Bowlers D. A. Hutchison and John McCorvie recklessly undertook to play Skip Collins and Messrs. A. H. VonGunten and G. J. THE DAY AT THE FALLS

How His Grace the Archb hop Morgan Spent It.

Niagara Falls, Sept. 7.—His Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury, Mrs. Davidson and J. Pierpont Morgan, arrived on a special train over the Grand Trunk at 11.15 a.m. yesterday morning. His Grace was met and welcomed by Very Reverend Dean Houston in an appropriate Dean Houston, in an appropriate speech, which His Lordship replied to in graceful manner. Mrs. Dr. Walker, on behalf of the ladies of Niagara, Falls, presented Mrs. David-Niagara Falls, presented Mrs. Davidson with a beautiful bouquet of Niagara flowers, which was received with charming grace by the lady. The party viewed the upper rapids and falls for fully one hour, returning to Niagara Falls, N.Y., where the party was met by W. B. Rankin, president of the International Traction Company, and His Grace Bishop Walker of Buffalo. The party was escorted in a private trolley car, inspecting the great electric power specting the great electric power house, in which Mr. Morgan is heavi-ly interested financially, and were taken on the Gorge loop trip, after luncheon leaving by special train last evening for Albany.

Dr. Telford Acquitted.

Dr. Tellerd Acquitted.

Vancouver, B.C., Sept. 7.—Dr. Telford, accused of causing the death of Miss Hattie Bowell, by performing an abortion, was acquitted by Judge Bole yesterday morning on the ground that the case depended largely on circumstantial evidence which was not strong enough to convict, while the expert evidence was considered too weak and of little value. The court room was packed, a large number of prominent residents being within the rail. The verdict was received with loud applause, which could not be stopped by the sheriff. The verdict is popular throughout the city. city.

ton, the smooth tongued horse dealer got the better of the bargain when he sold her to the manager of Cowara. Hill prided himself on his knowledge of horseflesh, but Angel, the chestnut, was old, or, rather, middle aged, and not the young thing Morton had represented her to be.

Moreover, her temper, soured by long years of ill treatment, was no of the best. She was nervous, too, though with Hill she was only mul-ish, vicious and obstinate. She hated but did not fear him. She evidently

With Wilfred Paton, the overseer, a man of passionate temper, but kind and tender to women and children and dumb creatures, by whom he was blindly adored, Angel was gentleness itself. It could readily be believed when one watched him handle the mare that under happier circumstances she might have fitted her name, From the first it had been a series of battles between the chestnut and Hill, in which the man usually won out by sheer brutality. There had been no rain for morths. Each day the men watched the sky but the pitiless sun poured his scorch ing rays on the parched earth, with never a cloud to veil his face or temper the heat. The water in the dam was getting low, and when that was gone the station people would bave either to perish or get out, unless water were reached in the well Hill was sinking on the flat. Water was a price-less commodity on that inland Australian station.

One close day late in February came the crisis of that awful summer. Not a leaf stirred. The air at each inbalation burnt the lungs, and the limit of human endurance seemed to have been reached. Yet it was this afternoon of all others that Hill ordered Paton and Malcolm to fill the big iron tank.

"The fool!" exclaimed Paton as they walked through the hot sand to the dam. "Hasn't he sense enough to wait until evening?"

They worked hard for an hour, Malcolm filling the buckets and handing them up to Paton, who poured the contents into a tank. When their task was finished they returned to the ouse.

"We've filled the 500 gallon tank," said Paton, coming up to where Hill half reclined in a steamer chair on the veranda. "It's down at the dam in the tip cart, but I hate to leave it to evaporate in the sun, and there iso't a norse to drag it up to the house.

"Where are Bones and Myope?"
"Smiles has them working at the new dam, and Charlie has taken the two blacks and gone over to the well sinkers' camp with rations. The other orses, as you know, were sent away to McLellan's yesterday to save our water," answered Paton,

"Well, Angel is in the paddock, isn't she? Put her in." "It's too heavy a load for Angel. She isn't built for such work." "I say she shall!" cried Hill. "I'm boss here, and when I say a thing is to be done it's going to be done."

"All right! Go ahead and do it yourself!" responded Paton. The overseen nager never did hit it very well, and the heat hadn't improved their tempers. "But stay," Paton added, a thought striking him, "I'll try what I can do first."

With that Paton went down to the paddock, caught Angel, harnessed her, put her in the eart, and then coated ther to drag the load. By striving and straining she dragged the cart a few steps through the heavy sand, then paused and turned her eyes on Paton entreatingly, as though to say: "I'd do it for you, but I can't."

Hill was watching the performance from the veranda, for the house was built on the top of the sand hill, the dam was in the creek at its foot and no bushes intervened. When the manager saw the horse stop he got un and went quickly down.

"What's the matter?" he asked. "It's just as I said," answered Paton, "the mare hasn't the strength to hauf such a load." "Hasn't she? I'll see about that. It's her obstinacy, that's what it is. Angel? It's Devil she ought to be called."

"Let me get the other tank, put balf the water in it, and then she can easily manage it in two trips," suggested Paton, controlling his rising anger.

"No! She'll haul the tank as it is!"

"Then I'll wash my hands of the whole business."

Paton walked up the slope. As he stepped on the veranda Mrs. Hill, who was standing at the door, looked back into the house and called to her young "Muriel, come out and see this brute!

Her delicate throat was bare and her cheeks blanched by the heat, but her cheeks blanched by the heat, but her beautiful brown eyes were clear and deep and tender. spirit, and she would not budge an inch. This infe lated the man, and he beat her over the head with the butt of the stock whip he carried. Still she did not move. Then, as he continued to beat her, in her agony she stepped backward, plunged and rear-ed, the cart tipped back, the mare was drawn up and in her struggles broke the shafts, the tank fell out, the cover rolled off and the whole of the 500 gallons of precious water was swal-lowed up by the burning sand. Hill wavered and fell on the girl.

"Muriel, are you there? Did I hit you? I didn't mean to," he said weak-"Did it hurt?" "Hurt!" cried Paton, his eves fairly blazing. "Do'you know that you might have killed her?" "She shouldn't have interfered," said

Hill sullenly. "Not another word or by heaven I'll kill you." said Paton. Hill shrank from the fury in the other man's eyes and slunk away to the house.

"My darling,", said Paton in a voice fraught with love that the girl's eart quivered with a joy that was almost pain, "did he hurt you very nuch?" And his lips tenderly pressed the bruised shoulder.

"It does hurt most awfully, but I really think that he did not know I was here," answered Muriel, glancing up through her tears. "But, oh, look at or Angel."

The chestnut, lying huddled in the and, was truly a pitiable sight. She cost! Her head was cut and bleeding eyes swollen and closed, and she panted and groaned with pain. "Oh, do you think she will die, Wil-red?" asked Muriel.

"No; but you'll get sunstruck here, go back to the house, dear, and get Mrs. Hill to bathe your shoulder. I'll end to the mare. And, Muriel, I can't stay at Cowara now. I've been repeat offered the management of Murts but-1-I could not leave until I knew if you cared. I'm not worthy, I know I've such a vile temper"— Muriel show her head. "But now, now-you'll le me come for you when I get straight ened out over there, won't you?"

Again Muriel looked up, and his eyes drank deep from the radiance of hers "And Angel?" she whispered.
"Oh, I'll buy her from Hill. He won't refuse to sell her for the price

Wolfe Tone.

A cesultory and enormous reader of plays and novels, with an impish humor and a facility and felicity of quo tation which never deserted him under the most terrific circumstances. Wolfe Tone's style is throughout literary and in that sense artificial, but he had a passion for facts and a healthy deter mination to see things as they really were. He was perfectly free from every kind of illusion, delusion and humbug. He was very much alive to the humor ous side of all things, including him self. The diaries are full of entries like this:

"I cannot help this morning thinking of Gil Blas when he was secretary to the Duke of Lerma. Yesterday I dined with Carnot. Today I should be puzzled to raise a guinea."

Wolfe Tone at the bottom of his heart was grave enough. His death is warrant for this. But he belonged by the order of his mind to the mockers. Yone's widow, though she had doubt-less a good deal to put up with, mourn-ed her husband's loss for seventeen years, when she married one who shared her veneration for Tone's memory His son grew up to be proud of his father's sufferings in what he was taught to believe was a good cause. Ireland hás never forgotten Tone and probably never will.-Contemporary

"My babe was born seemingly a fair healthy child, but when she was three weeks old a swelling appeared on the back of her head, and in course of time broke. It did not heal but grew worse, and the sore spread from the size of a dilme to that of a dollar. I used all kinds of remedies that I could think of, but nothing seemed to help; in fact, it grew worse. Her hair fell out where the sore was, and I feared it would never grow again. It continued until my aged father came on a visit, and when he saw the baby he told me to get Cuticura Soap and Ointmeht right away.

"To please him I did so, and to my surprise by their use the sore began to heal over, the hair grew over it, and to-day she has a nice head of hair, her skin is as fair as a lily, and she has no scar left to recall that awful sore, and it is over eight months and no sign of its returning." broke. KANGAROO HUNTING.

Dangerous Sport In Which Thick Breastplater Are Worn.

Tiger skins, elephant tusks, antlers and a dozen other trophies decorated the smoking room of the huntsman. "You can't guess what this is," he said, and he took down from the wall a piece of curiously woven matting. It vas about two feet square, green in color and five inches thick.

"This," he explained, "is the breastplate that is worn in kangaroo hunting. Without it the kangaroo with a fore leg blow would smash in your chest as though it were a pasteboard box. This breastplate is a souvenir of an exciting kangaroo bunt in Australia.

"All big game enthusiasts are familiar with tiger shooting, elephant shooting, the chase of the grizzly, of the boar and of the hippo, but I know few men who have ever hunted kan

"Yet this is an exciting and danger ous sport. The kangaroo when he is brought to bay will fight. He jumps straight at you, like a great cat, and with his small fore legs he aims at your chest two tremendous blows-first the ight and then the left-and these blows, with a speed and an accuracy that no prizefighter could equal, would kill you if they landed on an unprotected surface. So you wear, for a protection, this thick green guard, woven of native grasses by native women. "You hunt the kangaroo in 'sets." Eight huntsmen compose a set, and each set employs half a dozen native runners to stalk the kangaroo. "The kangaroo, on being stalked. comes tearing over the plain straight at you. He travels with the speed of an express train, and he makes great bounding leaps. One minute he is crouched on the grass, the next he is ten feet up in the air, and all the while, remember, he is going forty miles an

"Hence he is a mighty difficult object to shoot. If you fail to shoot him, and there is no tree handy, then you must put your trust in your mat-ting breastplate. This breastplate of mine, you notice, has a dent in it."

Cold Foods,

A mistake which housekeepers often make is to serve cold food. A meal exclusively of cold food is one of the most difficult to digest. Cold meat, heated up in a little curry, is far more digestible and therefore more nourishing than cold meat alone. Never serve cold slices of meat unless they are accomparied with a little highly ed catchup or sauce. Even iced tea. that favorite beverage of summer, is a drink of doubtful value on the din-ing table. Hot tea heats the stomach and prepares it for its work, while cold tea, like ice water, taken at dinner, retards digestion by chilling the stomach

MME. TALLIEN, WHO, IT IS ASSERTED, SNUBBED NAPOLEON.

Woman Whose Entrancing Loveliness Dazzled Even the Women the French Capital-The Mild and Inoffensive Young Bonaparte.

During the directoire Marie de' Medici's palace became the center of gov-ernment and Barras reigned there under the inspiration of Mu.e. Tallien. It was she who organized all the fetes and ceremonies which enlivened Paris after the Terror. In 1706 the beautiful Spaniard was twenty-three and had a ready had an eventful past. The daugh ter of a financier named Cabarrus, she had married at the age of sixteen the Marquis de Fontenay, been divorced from him in 1793 and had remarried, a few months after, Tallien, the conver tionnel.

Arrested May 22, 1794, she was in prisoned in Les Carmes, and it was from here that she wrote the stinging epistles to her husband which induced that wavering spirit to dare all in the attempt to set her free. Armed with a dagger in case of failure and all the courage he could muster, Tallien on the famous 9th Thermidor attacked Robespierre in a debate which brought about the fall of the "sea green mon-

The world was at her feet, and she daz zled it by her beauty and her charm. her lovers and her luxury. Even won en forgot to be jealous and acknowledged what all men proclaimed. The fol lowing description is from the pen of one of her own sex, Mme. de Chaste-

"Mme. Tallien came every day to visit Barras. I do not think it possible to be loveller than this woman was then. I shall always see her like fairy queen among the rest, her beau-tiful black hair coiled simply on her head without any ornament, round her neck a single string of large pearls. She wore a white underdress and tunic of ink crepe, and, sitting on the ground playing with a child of three, the son of one of Barras' friends, they made a group which no classic sculp ture could surpass."

Barras tells us with great naivete, in his memoirs, that the "Little Corsican" only turned his attention to Josephine Beauharnais after a fruitless attempt to obtain favor with Mme. Tallien and that this lady had treated him with great disdain, telling him "she could do This account of better for herself." the affair coming from any other quar-

RAISING TURKEYS.

Rew to Care For and Feed Poults to Get Good Eesults.

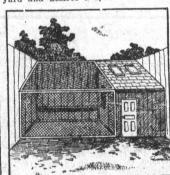

About the twenty-fifth day dust the hen thoroughly with a good insect powder, and after eggs begin to chip close the nest up tight, for as soon as the first poults are out a few hours they will get out of the nest and stroll off, sometimes causing the hen to follow with perhaps a few poults, says H. Simmons in Western Poultry Journal. I take them from the nest about two hours after all are hatched. After taking the poults from the nest I put them in a dry, warm coop with a small pen in front of the coop about 10 by 10 feet, for if the pen or yard is too large when the hen is confined in a coop poults may hobble too far to the corner of the yard and not find their way back to the hen, and if left so for a few hours, even on a fine day, will be chilled almost to death.

I think it best not to feed the first day. For the first few days thereafter good, sweet breadcrumbs, slightly moistened with sweet skimmed milknow, remember I say "sweet," not milk that has stood around for a half day or more on a hot day. Feed very lightly three or four times a day for the first few days. In the morning I give a little skimmed milk to drink in a shallow clean dish, being careful to remove before souring. After they are three or four days old I put the hen with the poults in a lot or pen of about 32 by 16 feet, using 16 foot boards and having the pen about 2½ feet high, making the pen tight, so as to hold the poults in, leaving the hen free to fly in or out at her will. In this way I have had my success. The hen will not go far from the pen, and poults will be happy and contented if they have grass in the pen and proper at tention is given.

It is best to give the hen, before feeding poults, a feed of corn or other coarse grain to satisfy most of her hunger, so she will not eat the more costly feed of her young. After the poults are four or five days old I comme feeding with milk curds or cottage cheese mixed with breadcrumbs and steel cut oatmeal. A little coarse shorts may be added; also commence once day to feed a little cracked wheat, and after two weeks old wheat may be fed whole. On very fine days I leave them out of the pen a part of the day, but get them up in the pen by at least 4 o'clock. After I get the hen in the pen I leave her to herself until after dark. I then take a fair sized A shaped coop and put it over her gently and close up well for the night. As soon as warm days come be sure to provide some sort of shade for them in their pen. Old boards fastened to south side of pen and sloping to north is fine and also makes a fine protection from sudden showers. After the poults begin to fly over this pen they must be given the run of the fields.

his birds. The dimensions of house may be varied to suit the size of yard, running from fence to fence. The framework should be substantially built and boarded on tongued and grooved siding. The in-ner side should be boarded also with the same kind of material, and if possible the space between the walls should be filled with sawdust.

The floor should be made of tongued and grooved material securely nailed to the timbers below. The underneath part of the roof should be lined with the same material as the sides, and the outside of the roof should be shingled or covered with tin. Where the house joins the fence the cracks should be well covered to prevent rain from leaking through, and every precaution should be taken to keep the interior of the house free from dampness.

edy For Sour Crop In Chicks. Use half a teaspoonful of tincture of nux vomica in each quart of drinking water, allowing the birds no other drink. See that they have a plentiful supply of green food daily; also keep grit and granulated charcoal always before them.-Reliable Poultry Journal.

Poultry Notes.

Ice In India.

Dr. Wells, a London physician, in 1818, in his published essay on dew, was the first to draw attention to the curious artificial production of ice in India. Shallow pits are dug, which are partially filled with perfectly dry straw. On the straw broad, flat pans containing water are exposed to the clear sky. The water, being a powerful radiant, sends off its heat abundantly into space.

The heat thus lost cannot be replaced from the earth, for this source is excluded by the straw. Before sunrise a cake of ice is formed in each vessel. To produce this ice in tities clear nights are advantageous, and particularly those on which practically no dew falls. Should the straw get wet it becomes more matted and compact and consequently a better conductor of heat, for the vapor then acts as a screen over the pans, checks the cold and retards freezing.

Birds Are Mathematicians. The English naturalist, Morris Gibbs, devoted years of study to birds' nests, their formation and their contents, and asserts that birds lay their eggs in accordance with geometrical lines, so that every inch of space is used to the greatest possible advantage. Birds which lay many eggs arrange them in circles, the pointed ends turned to the inside. Others, whose eggs are elliptically shaped, place them in longitudinal rows. If an egg is moved out of its original position by an intruder, it will be found on the following morning that the bird has returned it to its first position. Among the numerous and often difficult cases which Gibbs made a matter of study, not one was found which would not do credit to a mathematician. Cromwell and the Specter.

The stories of the "White Lady" that periodically visits the German royal family and of the "Little Red Man" that frequently paid his respects to the great Napoleon are tolerably well known, especially that of the former. But few, perhaps, are familiar with the story of Cromwell's "Giant Specter." It appeared to him one night when he was wide awake and quietly resting on his couch. In appearance the apparition was a woman of gigantic propor tions. Approaching him she announced in tones like thunder, "Within the year you, my son, will be recognized as the greatest man in Britain."

Creation of a Knight.

The ceremonies at the creation of a knight have been various; the principal were a box on the ear and a stroke with a sword on the shoulder. John of Salisbury tells us the blow with the naked fist was in use among the ancient Normans; by this it was that William the Conqueror conferred the honor of knighthood on his son Henry. It was afterward changed into a blow with the flat of the sword on the shoulder of the knight.

Stratford, Sept. 7.—The North Perth election trial was heard yesterday. At the general Provincial election on May 29, 1902, John C. Monteith, Conservative, defeated John Brown, Liberal, by two votes. The election was protested and Mr. Monteith was unseated on a technicality, a supporter who had a perfectly good vote in the county, having voted in the city by mistake, thus preventing him from voting. The bye-election took place on January 7, 1903. The same two men were again candidates, and this time Mr. Brown was elected, his majority being 206. It is that election which was protested yesterday, and there were 130 charges to be ventilated. The Liberals had a cross-petition consisting of some forty charges.

The trial judges, Chief Justice Moss and Judge Street, arrived here yesterday morning. For the petitioners, Messrs. E. A. DuVernet, K. C., and E. Sydney Smith, K.C., appeared, for the respondent, Messrs. A. B.

The first witness called by Mr.
DuVernet was Mr. Branner, who was living here at the time of the byeelection. The day before that Mr.
John Collins came to his house and offered him money, which he declined.
Afterwards the visitor talked to his wife. Three days after the election she gave him a $5 bill. Collins had asked witness to vote for Brown.

Cross-examined, witness said that Cross-examined, witness said that the money offered had not influenced his vote. Mr. Collins had asked him whether he was going to "Give us a lift?" Witness had said he did not know what he was going to do. The witness caused a laugh by saying that he had told Collins that if he wanted to offer any money he had better "Go and see the missus." The same night his wife had told him that she had received a $5 bill. Mrs. Brenner was called. She told of Col-lins did not say what the bill was for. She did not know Collins, but he said that such was his name. Extracts were read from Mr. Brown's examination showing that Mr. Col-lins was known to him as a party

Mr. Aylesworth admitted to the bench that there seemed little doubt as to the giving of the bill. "Our conclusion must be," said the Chief Justice, "that this charge is established."

On behalf of the respondent, Mr.
Aylesworth said that he did not propose to ask for the benefit of the "saving clause" in the statute.
Mr. DuVernet stated that there was no evidence to prove that Mr. Brown knew of the corrupt act. After a consultation, the Chief Brown knew of the corrupt act.

After a consultation, the Chief Justice announced that the statute be sufficient to cause the election to be declared void. As the case stood,

There are 146 charges, and application was made yesterday morning to add more to the number. The right to enter new charges was held in abeyance, as the respondent has had no opportunity of meeting them, and whether they will be admitted or not depends largely upon the progress made in the case. The morning court was largely taken up in proving agency. The charge against Dr. Williams was dropped. Evidence adduced re Oliver's charge of having had an account reduced proved conflicting and the charge was dropped. Charge of intimidation was dismissed. Charges hinging on a bottle of whiskey failed. Charge that William Lambe paid money to William Peacock and others most important, but agency was not admitted, or proved. Departure of Miss Aylesworth Causes Readjustment of the Kindergartens.

Both Lady Directors Receive Salary Recognition-Summer School Report.

Several important changes were nade in the teaching staffs of the Map.e City kindergartens at last night's meeting of the Public School Board. Miss Helen McTaggart, who has been conducting the afternoon kindergarten at the Central School, was appointed directress of the McKeough School Kindergarten in the place of Miss Aylesworth, resigned, at an increased salary from $325 to $350. Miss Green was appointed directress of both morning and afternoon kindergartens at the Central at an increased salary from $440 to $450. Miss Midred Turner was appointed first assistant at the Central at a salary of $240, and Miss Snackleton and Miss McLean were appointed second assistants at the Central at salaries of $150 each. Changes to take effect on the 1st of October.

This arrangement was considered highly satisfactory by the Board and the committee were complimented upon their good judgment and excellent selections.

It was thought at first that the Board would have seen the selections. Maple City kindergartens at last

It was thought at first that the Board would have to advertise for a directress, but the trustees held to a directress, but the trustees held to the opin on that the vacant positions on the Public School teaching staff should be given to Chatham girls, and so the above arrangement was made and carried. As a student in the kindergarten training, now, according to the new curriculum, has to be 18 years of age and holding a Junior Leaving certificate, it will be difficult to get students in this branch of school life.

Aylesworth is generally known. She is a superior kindergarten teacher, having put industry, time and spirit in her outies. This loss will be felt very much by all. She has been an in pration to the whole school. Her value was so recognized by the Dominion Teachers' Association at Winniege that she was offered $500 to go to Brantford. This shows that other Boards give much higher salmies than are given here, so the people will see that our teachers are not over-paid. With the resignations of Miss Aylesworth and Miss Samson, the McKeough School has sustained a severe loss."

Chatham, July 29, 1904. The Public School Board,

The Public School Board,
Chatham:
Gentlemen,—I beg to report upon the progress of the city schools for the first term of 1904 as follows:
No contagious diseases have affected the attendance during the term, the only drawback being the severe winter weather which had a serious effect upon the attendance at the Central School during the first three months of the term. The attendance for the six months is, however, the highest yet recorded. During the term the schools have made great advancement. Manual training—including bench work—has been firmly established in both schools and the results have exceeded my most sanguine expectations. This has been done without in any way interfering with or impeding the ordinary work of

McKEOUGH SCHOOL.

The attendance at McKeough School has grown through the term, the enrolment for June being 17 higher and the average 27 higher than for January. The percentage of attendance to enrolment for the six months is slightly over 92, being the highest we have ever had for any school in the city. This shows the high appreciation parents and pupils have of the instruction given in that school. The ordinary work of the term has been carried on satisfactorily in every room. Manual training work was introduced immediately after the Easter vacation, and splendid progress has been made, which is made evident by the very excellent exhibit of this work sent by McKeough School to the meeting of the Dominion Educational Association at Winn peg. This school won 61 Art certificates at the Art School examinations in April last as compared with 43 the year before. Of 35 candidates who wrote the High School entrance examination 34 were successful and with a much higher didates who wrote the High School entrance examination 34 were successful and with a much higher standing than usual. The general management of this school reflects the highest credit upon the energetic and thoroughly efficient principal, Miss Abram, and the work done in the various rooms shows that she has a most capable staff. I regret exceedingly that we have had to lose the services of Miss Samson, one of the most efficient teachers this city has ever had and who was for so long a tower of strength on the teaching staff of this school,

THE CENTRAL SCHOOL. THE CENTRAL SCHOOL.

The severe winter weather combined with the inefficiency of the heating apparatus scriously affected the attendance at the Central for the first three months of the term, but with the coming of spring the attendance became so great that we have had great difficulty in accommodating the pupils. Manual training work was begun in the Central in February and has been carried on with excellent success throughout the term. We were able to make an exhibit of drawing, color work, weaving, modeling, etc., at the Easter meeting of the Teachers' Association that surprised and delighted all the visiting teachers. Good progress her meeting of the Teachers' Association that surprised and delighted all the visiting teachers. Good progress has been made in each of the rooms of this large school and the higher forms will be filled to overflowing. From the two Senior Fouth Book Classes 66 pupils wrote the High School entrance examination, of whom 64 were successful, one taking the highest standing in the County. There were also 89 Art School extificates won at the Art school examinations. The discipline maintained in each room, as well as the management of the school as a whole, leaves nothing to be desired. From the staff of this school we have lost two of our most efficient teachers by the resignation of Miss McKellar has proved herself the bost all round primary teacher I have ever seen, while Miss Thomson has for years upon the city staff.

These resignations have made some promotions and other changes necessary, and after careful study of the present conditions with the Principal, I beg to recommend in conjunction with him:

1. That Miss Laura Ryan be promoted from Senior 3rd Class to Junior 4th to succeed Miss Thomson.

2. That Miss Marion McColl be promoted to Senior 3rd—temporarily—to succeed Miss Ryan.

3. That Miss Daisy King be promoted to Junior 3rd to succeed Miss Mounteer, who takes Miss McKellar's place with Junior 1.

THE KINDER OF THOMSON TO THE SENIOR OF THE SE

THE KINDERGARTENS.

I cannot speak too highly of our three Kindergartens, under three Kindergartens, under the management of, I believe, the three most capable kindergarten directors in the Province. Not only are our Kindergartens ideal training grounds for the little people to develop in, but they have proved themselves the best training grounds for kindergarten teachers, no less than five graduating therefrom at the Departmental examination in June last. This city will always owe a debt of gratitude to Miss Green, Miss Aylesworth and Miss McTaggart, who have in a will always owe a debt of gratitude to Miss Green, Miss Aylesworth and Miss McTaggart, who have in a wholesouled manner, and not sparing themselves, taken up the subject of Manual Training, have instructed our teachers therein, and have brought to success the establishment of Manual Training in our schools which would otherwise have been impossible. The conspicuous success of our Summer School in Manual Training must be a source of gratification to the members of the Board.

I have the honor to be, Gentlemen, have the nonor to re,

Gentlemen,

THE STAGE

Last night "The Heart of Texas" was presented at the Opera House by Allan Villair, Pearl Lewis and a very Allan Villair, Pearl Lewis and a very good company. The play is a genuine thriller and yet it contains lines and scenes of the highest dramatic excellence; it tells a vivid heart story of love, hatred and jealousy, disclosing the extremes of human desires and passions. Some of the startling incitove, hatred and jealousy, disclosing the extremes of human desires and passions. Some of the startling incidents are the attack by a mad wolf, the attempt to blow up "Jack" with dynamite, the realistic den scene, where "Jack" and "Texas" are surrounded by a murderous lot of ruffians and engage in a thrilling fight for life and the robbery in the last act. The comedy is rich and plenty, the dialogue crisp, but clean, and the whole teaches a good moral lesson to the young and old. Allan Villair as "Jack" was the ideal, picturesque hero, who fears nothing and very pretty Pearl Lewis was a close second as the vivacious "Texas." She also did a very clever specialty. The balance of the company was competent and the scenery very pretty.—Cortland, N. Y., Standard.

The above attraction appears for one solid week at the Grand Opera House, starting Monday, Sept. 12th. A different play and specialties cach night. They made a big hit at the Park, Brantford, for four weeks. Ladies 15c for best 30c seat for Monday night only to see "Her Strange Wedding."

Ping.-How did that old deaf mute injure his knuckles so? Pong-Why, he just tried to crack one of Chauncey's latest jokes.

Pale.

Pale cheeks, white lips, and languid step tell the story of thin blood, impure blood. Doctors call it "anemia." They recommend Ayer's Sarsaparilla. They know why it cures.
